

Dozen Top Teams Still Undefeated

Chicago Cards Topped From Unbeaten Rank

NEW YORK—There isn't an unbeaten team in the major professional football leagues today but several of them will have to do some fancy stepping Saturday to keep from joining the others which were tumbled from the ranks of the unbeaten and untied during the past week.

Around the twilight aggregations, those whose perfect records survived the weekend firing include Michigan, Notre Dame, Texas, California, Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Southern Methodist, Baylor, Wake Forest, Virginia and West Virginia.

Probably the toughest chore immediately ahead for any of this select group is that faced by the Golden Bears of California, who tangle with Southern California's unbeaten but once-tied Trojans at Berkeley Saturday in one of the top games of the day.

California opened its bid for the Pacific Coast conference crown by clipping Washington State, 21-6, for its fifth straight triumph Saturday—a development considerably less impressive than the 45-6 hammer which Southern Cal landed on Oregon State.

UCLA, the only other team involved in a three-cornered scrap for the coast title and Rose Bowl honors, steps into a conference play to meet the invasion of Southern Methodist, which kept its state clean by blanking Rice, 14-0, while UCLA was trampling Stanford, 39-6.

Other western highlights Saturday include Stanford at Washington, Montana at Washington State, Fortland at Oregon State, Brigham Young at Utah State, Colorado at Colorado A. & M., Utah at Wyoming, Texas Tech at Denver and Tulsa at Nevada.

Elsewhere, the Bruins of Arkansas, 21-6, to clear its first Southwest Conference hurdle, goes after its sixth win of the year against Rice at Austin and Baylor invades Texas A. & M. in quest of its fifth in a row.

Michigan, looking more and more like the class of the country after crushing Northwestern 49-21, will be at home against Minnesota, while Illinois, 40-13 conqueror of Minnesota and still unbeaten but once-tied, invades Purdue in Big Nine engagements.

Kentucky, which ended Vanderbilt's dream, 14-0, travels to Michigan State and Texas Christian 26-0, winner over Texas A. & M., invades Oklahoma, held to a 13-13 tie by Kansas. In other Midwest encounters, Iowa at Missouri at Iowa State and Nebraska at Kansas State in the Big Six.

Duke, which handed Maryland its first loss, 19-7, invades Wake Forest to attempt more of the same in the Southern Conference. Alabama, after dropping Tennessee, 10-0, goes to Georgia, Auburn to Tulane and Louisiana State to Vanderbilt in the Southern Loop.

Georgia Tech, which made it four straight with a 27-7 win over Auburn, coasts against the Citadel, Pennsylvania, which turned back Columbia 34-14, against a Navy crew that found itself and whipped Cornell, 38-19, and once-tied Army visits Columbia for two of the East's high spots.

Lone Star Conf. Moves Into Thick Of Title Contests

By The Associated Press

The Lone Star Conference moves into the thick of the championship fight this week with three games counting in the standings but with undefeated, untied East Texas State not figuring in the title contests.

The East Texans, one of four college teams in the state boasting perfect records, clash with Austin College of the Texas Conference at Commerce.

The six other members of the Lone Star Circuit, while each other, North Texas engages Sam Houston at Huntsville, Trinity plays University of Houston at Houston and Southwest Texas State goes to Nacogoches to joust with Stephen F. Austin.

East Texas State took over the conference leadership last week by crushing University of Houston 33-7, while Trinity was remaining unbeaten, although once tied, by strapping Sam Houston State 27-0.

Surprise of the week was North Texas State's trouble in edging Stephen F. Austin 13-7. Austin hasn't won a game this year but didn't show it the way it battled the defending champions.

Jim Batchelor, East Texas State's mighty man, ran his total to 36 points to pace the way in scoring. In second place is Boyd Tingle of University of Houston with 30.

Nine Teams Still Undefeated, Untied in Schoolboy Grid Race

Harvesters Drill for Conf. Opener Against Plainview Bulldogs

Pampa High School's Green and Gold Harvesters will return to the roll of favorites when they open their 1947 conference schedule with the Plainview Bulldogs in Plainview, Friday night.

The Harvesters, who have been beaten in their last two starts, will meet a team that has lost three of its first five starts. The Bulldogs were downed by Childress, 19 to 14; by Odessa, 32 to 14; and by Sweetwater, 33 to 12. The local grid men downed Sweetwater, 27 to 6, in their second game of the season.

With an open date last week, Coaches Tom Tipps and Aubra Noncaster have been working their charges feverishly towards their Friday night opening conference game. This will also be W. C. Harris' Bulldogs' first conference game.

Among the 14 lettermen, returning to Bulldog squad will be Bill Howton, end, who was selected on the all-district second team, at the close of last season. Coach Harris had 74 men out for spring training, which included the 14 lettermen, of which five were regulars from last year's team.

Winner of 100-Mile Race to Receive Huge Waggoner Cup

ARLINGTON DOWNS—Winner of the 100-mile national championship automobile race Sunday at Arlington Downs will receive a huge trophy to be known as the Waggoner Cup and donated by the owners of the Downs, E. Paul and Guy L. Waggoner, wealthy Vernon and Fort Worth cattle and oil men.

The four-hour, full-gallop trophy, with silver racing car mounted on top, valued at nearly $1,000, arrived from Chicago last week and now is on display in a window of the Fair Store in Fort Worth.

The presentation to the Downs victor will be made immediately following Sunday's race by Electra Waggoner Biggs, daughter of Paul Waggoner and a nationally known sculptress.

The Waggoners leased Arlington Downs, plus $3,000,000 horse racing plant in the 1930's, to Racing International of Texas for the purpose of large-scale automobile racing. Sunday's event, an American Automobile Association sponsored affair that definitely will crown the 1947 national champion, will be run entirely with Indianapolis cars and drivers in a contest that brings these top contestants south and west of Indianapolis for the first time in racing history.

Other trophies and awards will be given to the national champion crowned at the Downs, lap winners, and fastest qualifiers in the event.

Wildlife Federation Requests Commission To Reconsider Plans

MINERAL WELLS—(AP) Directors of the Texas Wildlife Federation today had asked the state commission to reconsider plans to abandon a game restoration preserve.

Meeting here yesterday, the directors approved a resolution calling for a review of the decision to discontinue the project, which would have been sold to 55,000 acres of surplus Camp Bowie, Brownwood, land.

The federation also voted a resolution asking the Federal Land Agency of Houston to postpone sale of the surplus land and to ask Gov. Beauford Jester to intercede with the agency in securing a postponement.

The resolution asking for reconsideration of the project was forwarded to Murrel Buckner of Dallas, game commission chairman.

In another resolution, the federation asked the State Legislature to cooperate with the National Forest Service to permit establishment of a 600,000-acre forest hunting program in East Texas.

The group also requested establishment of a series of wildlife experiment stations over the state.

The annual convention of the federation will be held here in April.

McMurry, ACC Clash To Feature Week's Texas Conf. Games

Abilene Christian College, knocked from its perch among the nation's undefeated teams, but still a potent grid machine, meets McMurry at Abilene Saturday night.

This game tops the two conference tilts scheduled with an inter-conference affair rounding out the schedule.

Howard Payne and Southwestern play in the other conference game at Brownwood, while Austin tries to stop powerful East Texas State of the Lone Star Conference.

ACC became the last unbeaten Texas Conference team to fall when Wichita dented the Wildcats, 7-0. A possible tying touchdown in the final 20 seconds of play was nullified by a holding penalty.

Texas, SMU, Baylor Share SWC Top Spot

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference hits the halfway mark this week, boasting three undefeated, untied teams in its 32-year history.

Texas, Southern Methodist and Baylor had been figured only as possible contenders for the championship, certainly not to reach this stage undefeated.

But in the unpredictable Southwest Conference the title "favorite" is often an invitation to oblivion. It happened this year.

Two conference and three inter-sectional games are not expected to alter the status of the big three—though Baylor even yet is considered an added attraction to the impending struggle between Texas and Southern Methodist University for the championship.

Texas—which racked up its fifth straight victory in downing Arkansas 21-6—opened its season with a lull against the deers and nearly out Rice Owls Saturday at Austin. A 14-0 defeat by Southern Methodist chilled pre-season favorite Rice's hopes against the Longhorns. Evidence Texas could go in mud as well as sunshine also helped.

Baylor, after its fifth win, skip on woebegone Texas A&M at College Station in the only other conference game.

Southern Methodist guides its Doak Walker special against the University of Southern California at Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast.

Texas Christian plays Oklahoma at Fort Worth, Arkansas meets Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn., to grind out the schedule.

Southern Methodist cashed in on the outside change it was given to take Rice while Texas Christian made its own breaks at Woppled by San Antonio, for the biggest upset last week.

Baylor came through with a 32-6 decision over Texas Tech. The Longhorns looked good in doing it, leaving them in very good position to continue unbeaten after the A&M affair.

A&M couldn't get on the ground, nor in the air. And it couldn't stop Texas Christian in very often in either department.

Walker jumped smack into the All-America spotlight with his performance against Rice and climbed among the nation's leading scorers in his 19 points in four games.

The conference's other backfield ace, Bobby Layne, was grounded pretty much in Texas' muddy tilt with Arkansas.

Cherry Says TU Is More Than a One Punch Team

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Coach Blair Cherry is not ready yet to declare his Texas football goliath "great," but he concedes one point—the untarnished Longhorns, rich in resources and versatility, are more than a one punch team.

"We've had to play every game differently," the gray-haired Cherry said after the Longhorns had registered victory No. 5 here Saturday, a muddy 21 to 6 conquest of Arkansas.

"I gave the boys instructions to get the ball and hold onto it, to skip the fancy stuff," the Texas coach said.

How well his charges responded is reflected in the statistics which show the Longhorns had possession about three-fourths of the time, running 84 plays to 34 for Arkansas.

The 26,000 fans kept looking around for Bobby Layne and Byron Giltroy. They saw them only briefly. Texas tossed only five passes.

Instead they got a lead of the Longhorns' line-wrecking crew in action—big Randall Clay from Pampa, Texas, a built-like plunger named Ray Jones from Houston and speedsters Billy Pyle of Wichita Falls, Jim Canady of Austin and Bubba Shands of Lufkin.

"They didn't see Texas the spectacular, but Texas the coldly methodical—a power on the ground."

Czech Tennis Ace Takes Pan-American Singles Championship

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—Jaroslav Drozny, the Czech tennis star who missed out on the Davis Cup and U. S. championships, finally had a trophy today to show for his extended trip to North America.

Drozny, currently rated Europe's best, won the singles title at the sixth Pan-American tournament yesterday, defeating Francisco (Pancho) Segura, New York Ecuadorian, 4-6, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, in the finals.

The Czech ace then teamed with Torsten Johansson, Swedish Day is Copper, to take the doubles title with a 6-3, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 final victory over Segura and Frank Parker of Los Angeles.

Nancy Bolton, who won the women's singles title Saturday, came back with her fellow Australian, Nell Hopman, yesterday to defeat Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles and Barbara Krass of San Francisco, 6-1, 1-6, 7-5, in the women's doubles finals.

Striking Exercise Boys And Grooms Scheduled To Return to Jamaica

NEW YORK—(AP)—Striking grooms and exercise boys were scheduled to return to the Jamaica race track under a two-year "Code of Honor" agreement today as the Metropolitan Jockey Club resumed its fall meeting with the program which was called off Saturday because of the walkout.

More than 100 owners and trainers already had signed the agreement, which was called off Saturday because of the walkout.

The "Code of Honor" drafted earlier last week by a Citizens' Committee appointed by Mayor William O'Dwyer, was accepted by the union Saturday night when the strikers agreed to return to work and a sufficient number of horsemen had signed the agreement by last night to insure a resumption of racing.

Under the agreement, grooms will be guaranteed a minimum of $225 a month while the minimum scale for exercise riders will be $240 for regulars, $225 for apprentices, and two to three years' experience and $275 for those with three or more years' experience.

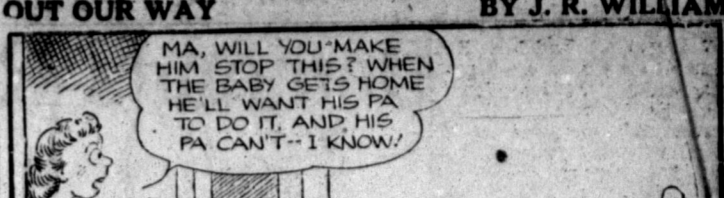

CAVALRY DOWNS WITH AIRBORNE 7-0

TOKYO—(AP)—The First Cavalry Foremen, staging the biggest upset of the current occupation football season, trounced the 11th Airborne Division Angels 7 to 0 yesterday.

Longhorn cattle were introduced into the United States by Spanish settlers.

The scoring column for the first time this year, picked a conference opponent for its first victim this season, Howard Payne lost, 14-13.

Highlights in individual play last week came on two long runs by McMurry players, Brad Rowland clipped off 92 yards for a touchdown and Lloyd Sampson 56 yards for a tally.

It takes a lot more than just a telephone

"I'm a telephone installer. I put in telephones for new customers. And, believe me, I'd like to put 'em in right now for everybody."

"But telephone service takes a lot more than just a telephone. It takes wire, cables and poles, and complicated switchboards. These things have to be ready and working first."

"It takes time to make switchboards and dial equipment, and it takes time to fit them into the present telephone system. But factories are turning them out faster than ever before, and we're putting them in as fast as we get them."

"It's not a short job or an easy job. But we're hard at work. Since V-J day, we've put in one million telephones in the Southwest. That's nearly twice as fast as prewar speed. Just as soon as we can, we'll be coming your way with telephone service."

Communist Candidate

It is not surprising that W. Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party, should endorse Henry Wallace as the Communist candidate and offer him the support of the Communist organization.

On the same day that Foster declared for Wallace, the latter addressed a CIO union's annual convention in Boston and demanded that "the war that is being bred for us must be stopped."

Like to make $10,000 a year? Then go into the flagpole painting business.

Take John Edwin Carter of Dallas, Flagpole Johnny, as they call him, makes that, and has a good time doing it. Recently he painted the pole atop the 600-foot Mercantile Bank building.

He told Frank X. Tolbert of the Dallas News in an interview that he feels as safe and comfortable up there "as I would at home on the parlor sofa."

To mount a flagpole, Tolbert went on to say, Carter uses a pair of quarter inch ropes and attaches to a wooden seat and the other to a wooden stirrup.

He attaches each rope to the pole with double half-hitches. Then he works his way up by first loosening and raising the stirrup rope.

He replaces the ropes just once a year. In his 40 years of active flagpole work, he has had only one fall. That was at Sadler, Texas, when a pole snapped with him 50 feet aloft.

He weighs about 100 pounds, wears steel-rimmed glasses, is 53 years old and has been at his trade 40 years. He figures he's good for another 20, and then he'll retire and go to the South Seas.

To climb coconut trees, he says.

So They Say

It would be neither fitting nor efficacious for this government to undertake to draw up unilaterally a program designed to place Europe on its feet economically. This is the business of the Europeans.

The farmers are not profiteering. They are selling their products at free market prices. If they should sell them for less than these market prices, the speculators would get the benefit.

RARE BOOK ON COMMUNISM

A booklet attacking "Communism and Socialism" (by that title), first published in St. Louis nearly 70 years ago, has come in the morning mail, being freshly reprinted by the Lutheran Research Society of Detroit, Mich.

Except for dates and names of the radical leaders of the time, this small volume might well have been done last week, by a scholar exceptionally well versed in the history of this subject.

The booklet is a compilation of four sermons delivered by Dr. Walter before a St. Louis congregation in 1879. A new movement was springing up in that city, as in other growing industrial centers in the United States, taking the form of labor unions.

The organizers published newspapers, even as today. However, according to the numerous excerpts from these papers, which Dr. Walther read to his congregation, those early organizers all appeared to be Communists, or their less violent brothers, Socialists.

Whereas today few unions incorporate Communist or Socialist objectives in their constitutions, those early foundings did, taking their cue from the First (Communist) International and the Second (Socialist) International of Marxist world conspirators.

Those Red unions came into this world attended by such labor pains, such storms of violence, you wonder that they did not die a born-again death.

Perhaps the sweat shops and the threat of imported labor created a fertile field for them. But the agents were smoothies and, as Dr. Walther foresaw: "The ignorant are to be drummed together and organized into labor unions, that those unions be the seed of socialism and communism may be sown, and when the seed has come to maturity, there will be enough muscle to accomplish the desired end by force."

This early minister was not fooled by what he labeled "the Fata Morgana," the utopian promises, of the radicals:

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER
SPOKANE — Although Franklin D. Roosevelt undoubtedly gazed in the belief that his conservation of natural resource and the release of mighty forces buried in the nation's mountains, valleys and streams would be his most lasting contribution to American history, he gets only scant credit in certain circles for the part he played in the construction of giant dams, irrigation projects and similar undertakings in the Great Northwest.

Men who helped to inspire and develop these modern miracles insist that he simply seized on a wise political opportunity. In the order of their importance, they give credit for the Grand Coulee power and irrigation system, which has transformed this territory into an "inland empire" of its own, to a generally unknown lawyer named E. F. Blaine, to Major General George Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, to Colonel Hugh Cooper, to their own efforts in persistent lobbying at Washington, and only finally, to the late President Roosevelt. It is a story with vivid interest and some historical importance.

VISION — "Old Mr. Blaine," as they refer to him, was an excellent railroad lawyer and a community spirit. He saw the vision of Northwest based on a combination of industry and agriculture, although he emphasized the farm production feature after water had been brought in to make the arid and semi-arid land of eastern Washington.

Local economists and engineers framed blueprints of the "Blaine Plan" at the beginning of World War I. They revised it after that conflict, but realized that they needed a famous name as head of their group to attract popular attention. They paid a fee of approximately $10,000 to General Goethals, who was then practicing in New York City. He confirmed the local experts' finding, but like them, he gave no thought to the power phase of the project. It was to be, exclusively, a farming development.

WATER—Next, the empire builders looked around for a sufficient supply of water. They evolved a plan for tapping a stream near the Canadian Border, the Pende D'Orielle, and channeling it down into their neck of the woods.

It is so happened that Colonel Cooper, famous for his construction of Russia's mightiest power dam on the Volga it was destroyed; during the Reds' "scorched earth" strategy in 1941) owned a small stubborn plant just below the gorge on its way to the Pacific. Here, he said, is where the storage dam should be built. But not even he saw the possibilities for development of power. "This was in the early thirties."

EXPENDITURES — The Hoover Administration dallied with the plan, but the depression ruled out the vast expenditures involved. The stubborn men of Washington resumed the struggle with the advent of the Roosevelt Administration and besought the political services of Clarence Dill, then the State's U. S. senator. He saw F. D. R. as soon as Congress had appropriated $3,300,000,000 for the first P. W. A. program in 1933, and demanded at least $100,000,000 for Grand Coulee.

"Clarence," replied F. D. R. "I can give you that much. That is more than your state's allotment under our make-work program through P. W. A."

The canny Clarence then approached Mr. Roosevelt from his blind side—public power. Remembering the Chief Executive's policies at Albany, Senator Dill suggested a dam that would have multiple purposes—irrigation, flood control and power. Mr. Roosevelt grabbed at the idea, laid stress on

What has really upset some of the union leaders is not the enslavement of their men, but the very reasonable restraints on their hitherto unrestrained and arbitrary power over both men and the public.

The anti-Communist preacher recognized traitors in the church then, just as we see them spotted here and there today in Christian pulpits and just as Edgar Hoover has called attention to them. Some of the church's growing troubles he attributed to those traitors and enemies of the church found in her very bosom."

International Pactomania

By MELCHIOR PALYI, Ph.D.

Pactomania is an ailment which affects our thinking about international affairs. It creates a childish belief in the possibility of pacts between nations, especially when many of them conclude one.

The original specification, however, would not have permitted a structure vast enough for supplying the Northwest with both electricity and irrigation, and by now they were hungry for both. Quietly and without asking Congressional authorization, the blueprints were constantly revised until now Grand Coulee stands as the "eighth wonder of the world" and, according to claims out here, a fourth to the Army, Navy and Air Corps in winning World War II.

However, they admit, reluctantly, that, after all, it was F. D. R. who provided the money to make their dream a reality and also the power motif.

UNPOPULARITY — Incidentally, two other Rooseveltian conservationists are none too popular out here, why? Explains why any proposed Wallace-Ickes third party or anti-Truman movement may not go places even in the supposedly liberal Northwest. The two winners of the unpopularity contest are, obviously, former Secretaries Wallace and Ickes.

With farmers, canners, shippers and allied agencies laboring night and day to do their part in feeding this nation and the world, they recall how the Iowan sponsored the killing of pigs, the uprooting of corn, payments for leaving land fallow and other schemes which robbed America of its heritage of good earth and the fruit thereof.

The salmon packers blame Mr. Ickes for the fact that their catch this year: was the worst in many moons. In order to preserve the fish, he restricted trap sizes, cut down the length of the season and applied other restrictive measures.

However, the fishes, the changed habits of fish or some other natural phenomenon. And they don't consider Mr. Ickes to fall into that category when they mention them, seem to be doing rather well. The "pink" which used to sell for $3 for four dozen cases, now brings more than $20. People who used to feed it to their pets cannot afford to eat it themselves.

Anyway, although the Northwest prospers as never before, it grows against the men, living and dead, who regarded themselves as this section's politico-economic benefactors, that's politics, here and elsewhere, perhaps!

Gracie Reports

By GRACIE ALLEN
Well, I see that Kenneth Hopkins, a Hollywood hat designer, says that are the bigger and wider ladies' hats are the most in show that we are out to dominate men.

Personally, I find it hard to dominate George when I'm wearing a big hat. In fact, I even find it hard to see him, but I gave the theory a trial the other night.

He announced that he was going out to play poker with the boys, so I went to my closet to pick out a dominating hat. By the time I made my selection and had it on straight, he'd gone to the poker game, lost seven dollars and was back home in bed with a severe headache.

However, hats do help me to keep him in line. I get wonderful results every time I threaten to buy another one.

UnAmerican (Continued From Page 1) having encountered them in Hollywood. The "unAmerican" infiltration in Hollywood, Warner said, first was noticed in 1936 and 1937 "in our studio and every studio there." Warner listed Clifford Odets, Irwin Shaw and Ring Lardner, Jr. among writers he has dismissed from his studio because he believed they are injecting "unAmerican doctrines" into movie scenarios. Others he continued under questioning by Stripling, were Gordon Kahn, Alvah Bessie, Guy Endore, Howard Koch, Emmett Lavery, John Howard Lawson, Robert Rossen, Dalton Trumbo, John Wexley, Julius and Philip Epstein, and Sheridan Gibney. Warner insisted several times he did not know whether any of these were or are Communists but that he considered some of their beliefs unAmerican. He identified Kahn as director of a paper for the Screen Writers' Guild. After he discharged him, Warner continued, Kahn went to Mexico on an assignment for Holiday, a Curtis Publishing Company magazine. Warner said he instructed his New York office to inform Curtis of his reasons for dismissing Kahn. The company replied, he said, that its assignment to writers were none of Warner's business. As the reading finished, Thomas asked Warner whether he still feels the same about the writers. "Yes," Warner replied, adding "I pay my deep respect to the Curtis Publishing Company for their American stand for free speech and a free press."

This Is Happy By PEGGY DERN

THE STORY: George takes his mother, Joyce and Happy dining and dancing at the swank Golden Palace Hotel. During the evening he warms Happy, that sooner or later he is going to propose to her. SUNDAY morning they all went to church. Joyce had come into Happy's room before breakfast to tell her that they were going and to help her select the proper gown. They went down the stairs together, arm in arm, and halfway down, Joyce paused as George came out of the drawing-room and stepped to speak to one of the waiters. "The squire himself," said Joyce under her breath. "All dressed up to assert his importance in the community and put the peasants in their proper place." Before Happy could answer her, George turned away from the servant, glanced up and saw them, and came to the stairs to meet them. "You're going to church, Joyce — not a matinee. A little less make-up, don't you think?" he suggested mildly, almost jokingly, but Joyce frowned past him and into the drawing-room, where Madeline waited, slender and poised and cool-looking in her sheer black, with a hat made of white roses on her head, and white gloves in her hands. "Hello, darling," said George very softly to Happy, his eyes caressing. "Hello," said Happy unsteadily, feeling idiotically shy before him. The station wagon, highly polished and shining brightly in the warm sunlight, was waiting. George put Joyce and her mother into the back seat, tucked Happy into the front, slid beneath the wheel, and the car rolled off. AFTER church was over, George drew Happy with him out into the brilliant sunshine, and as he helped her into the station wagon ride on any safe the sundown bride paths, where she is reasonably safe from rattlesnakes and stray hunters. Rotten sundown bride paths are closed to the public; no one has the right to ride there without his express permission. Therefore, young Boyle was trespassing, or if Joyce had arranged to meet him there, it was against my express wishes! SUDDENLY George was a stranger, a rather terrifying prospect at all pleasant stranger. His jaw was set, his eyes were hostile and he looked down at Happy with an accusing look that had nothing of a care about it. "George—after all, Joyce is almost twenty," she said unasily. "Are you so sure you have the right to interfere in her life?" George's jaw set even more stubbornly. "A marriage between Joyce and Boyle is out of the question—unthinkable. The very thought of it is disgraceful. He is a complete nobody—and Joyce owes it to her family to marry somebody to her while." She had never believed that he could be so pompous, such an arrogant snob. "I'm sorry," she said after a moment. "I don't want to be tiresome, but aren't you being—well—pretty illogical?" Joyce mustn't marry David because he's a nobody. But you, the master of Sundown, want to marry me; and, goodness knows, nobody could be less of a personage than I am. I'm more of a nobody than David." George relaxed a little and smiled at her. "That's not important Happy. You see, the continuation of the Harrell name depends on me. It's important that I marry someone who is young and healthy and completely normal, but it's not important that she be possessed of a famous name or background or anything like that. You will become a Harrell, Joyce, by marrying David, stops being a Harrell, so." He shrugged as though that finished the subject. Royalty (Continued From Page 1) both day and night, without any escort. So far as the late King George V was concerned, he was absolutely fearless in crowds. When he and Queen Mary went to India in 1911 to be crowned Emperor and Empress, they drove through Calcutta in an open carriage with thousands of natives swarming the streets and crowding about the vehicle in an effort to touch the Royal pair. And George refused to let his anxious mounted escort move the people back. Despite the cancellation of the post-wedding drive, thousands will have a chance to see the bride and groom as they ride from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and back over a route a little less than a mile. However Scotland Yard will take extreme precautions safeguard that journey. As is the custom, windows in buildings along the way will be rented to parties for great sums, and the police will know the identity of every person in those windows. Naturally the street will be equally watched. So Britain can rest secure in the knowledge that the best protection possible will be accorded the girl who may one day be a queen in her own right. Still, as previously indicated, it is a forceful commentary on our harsh times that such precautions have to be taken.
