Location Of Hotel Decided By Board

Pampa's new community hotel will be located on the crown of land between Red Deer Creek and the drainage ditch which angles across the northeast corner of the quarter section owned by the corporation on north Hobart Street, it was decided at this morning's meeting of the hotel board of directors. The area involved will be approximately 16 acres, even though the hotel proper will be within a designated unencumbered 10 acres. The balance of the quarter section is secured until the amount owed on it is retired. The board voted to authorize the executive committee to negotiate on any sales, leases or options which might be offered by individuals or businesses desiring to acquire portions of the quarter section for commercial or residential purposes. George Cree Jr., board president, explained the various easements which have been granted for drainage ditches, water and gas lines.

New Cabinet Is Formed In France

PARIS (UP)—Premier-designate Maurice Bourges-Maunoury announced today formation of a 14-man coalition cabinet which included five holdovers from the outgoing government led by Socialist Guy Mollet. The 42-year-old Radical Socialist, so-called "boy wonder" of French politics, youngest premier since 1885, goes before the National Assembly Wednesday for expected approval. Two of the most prominent holdovers were Christian Pineau and Robert Lacoste, both Socialists. Pineau is minister of foreign affairs and Lacoste is minister-resident of Algeria. Dropped from the cabinet was veteran Socialist Paul Ramadier, finance minister in the Mollet government whose call for higher taxes resulted in Mollet's defeat. Felix Gaillard, a Radical Socialist, succeeded Ramadier.

The election will be held by the directors of CRMWA as the result of petitions submitted to the board of directors yesterday in Lubbock by Mayor Lynn Boyd. A total of 88 property owners in Pampa had signed the petitions and only 50 signatures were needed for the CRMWA to call the election. Petitions were also submitted by Amarillo and Plainview. Mayor Boyd reported, and after discussion by representatives of the three cities and the directors, it was decided that a public hearing on the question would be held at 11 a.m. on July 17 in the Municipal Auditorium at Amarillo. Mayor Boyd reported that this site was chosen because it was about the same distance for people of Plainview and Pampa to travel.

Five Pampa Youths Are Missing

Five Pampa youths, and possibly six, were listed as missing this morning according to Police Chief Jim Conner. One father reported that his 17-year-old stepson had borrowed his 1957 Plymouth last night and had not returned. Subsequent investigation by the police department showed three 13-year-old girls, a 16-year-old boy, and possibly another boy were missing this morning.

Since the group were friends, officers theorized that they were possibly together. Conner said that there was, as yet, no trace of the youngsters.

Eisenhower Back In Office Today

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower returned to his office today, "virtually recovered" from a stomach upset which kept him in bed all day Monday. The chief executive, stricken Sunday night with nausea and painful vomiting, returned to his desk a few minutes before 10 a.m. e.d.t. and went to work on accumulated mail. On the recommendation of his doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the President took it relatively easy today and scheduled no official callers. The President awoke shortly before 8:30 a.m. and promptly breakfasted on prunes, cooked cereal, toast and honey. An official bulletin said he had a "very comfortable night" and "awoke refreshed and hungry."

Air Rifle Club Finds Sponsor

The board of directors of the Pampa Lions Club voted to sponsor the Panhandle Junior Air Rifle Club, F. D. Montgomery, club leader, announced today. The newly organized club has filed application for a charter with the National Rifle Association so that its members will be eligible for regular NRA junior awards. Targets, ammunition and awards will be furnished by the Lions Club. The purpose of the club is to educate boys in the proper handling and use of air rifles and by so doing to stimulate a sense of responsibility and leadership. Good sportsmanship will be stressed according to Montgomery. Meetings are held weekly in the Gray County Community Building at Recreation Park. Montgomery expressed hope that other civic clubs will sponsor similar clubs in order to promote tournament competition among clubs. Any other group who wants to sponsor such an organization may get details from Montgomery.

Senator Johnson Endorses Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson today endorsed the Senate's $3,617,333,000 foreign aid bill and expressed hope that it would pass without further cuts. He said in a statement that the Foreign Relations Committee, which trimmed the administration program by almost 250 million, had done an "excellent job." The Senate is scheduled to debate the measure later this week. "It is my intention to support the committee right down the line," Johnson said. He said reductions might be made but that this question could be considered later when the Senate considers the appropriation bill to provide cash for the program.

British Queen To Visit US In October

WASHINGTON (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip have accepted an invitation to visit the United States in October, it was learned today. There had been a report that the visit would be announced this morning in simultaneous announcements from Washington and London. However, a later message from London called for a postponement of the announcement for "a day or two," an authoritative source said. The acceptance of the invitation remained in effect. No explanation for delay was offered here, but a dispatch from London said Monday's Canadian election upset was causing the Queen's trip scheduled to be rescheduled. There was a possibility that new Canadian elections would be necessary this fall, as the Conservative government will not have a majority in Parliament. If this occurs, the visit may be delayed or advanced to avoid her presence in Ottawa during a political campaign, the report said.

Daniel Appoints Insurance Head

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Price Daniel announced today he will appoint Judge Penn J. Jackson of Cleburne as chairman of the new State Board of Insurance. The appointment will be effective July 1. Rumors that Jackson would be tagged for the new state post have mounted since late last week.

BILLY GRAHAM ... warning from God

Billy Graham Warns Of Day Of Judgment

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham warned Monday night that man may stand now on the threshold of Judgment Day and that God may choose the hydrogen bomb as the instrument of global destruction predicted in the Bible. "God never sends down a judgment without warning, whether it be to nations, to cities, or individuals," Graham said. "This New York Crusade may be held now, in June, in 1957, as part of God's warning to people all over the world to repent their sins while they still can. "We may be seeing a period that is just before what could be judgment over the world, this nation, this city. If people refuse to repent, refuse to turn to God, to stop serving their own gods."

Graham threw up his hands, leaving his warning unfinished. "The rain of fire and destruction that befell Sodom and Gomorrah sounds to me similar to the effects of modern nuclear weapons," Graham said. "As God rendered Sodom and Gomorrah into dust, so might the hydrogen bomb be used to destroy modern cities."

He said that peoples on either side of the Iron Curtain might be saved from the terrible destruction of the H-bomb if men and nations repent their sins and give themselves to God. In making that net reduction, however, the Senate committee approved a $14,250,000 greater reduction than the House cut of $149,500,000 for veterans' compensation and pensions. These were paper reductions, however, which save the Treasury nothing because the payments are fixed by law.

'Disaster' Is Red Cross Meet Theme

Some 21 members and guests were present this morning at 7 when the Pampa Chapter of Red Cross held its board meeting at Johnson's Cafe. "Disaster Service" was the theme of the meeting presided over by Chairman John Campbell. The program, under the direction of J. F. Kuhn, included a talk on the Silverton disaster by Sheriff Rufe Jordan and a discussion of Red Cross work in a disaster by Robert M. Blackburn, field representative for the Panhandle. A special recognition award was made to Alvin Lewis of White Deer for outstanding work in first aid and accident prevention during the past year. Lewis has given over 300 hours of service during that period. James Hart was appointed as representative for the Red Cross on the Welfare Index Board. The board then voted to contribute $20 to the Index. Mrs. C. E. Jeffries and Dr. J. Foster Elder were appointed representatives for the Social Agency Board. H. V. McCorkle presented a certificate of award to John Campbell for outstanding service as fund chairman during the past two years. Mrs. Sam George will be sent by the board to an aquatic school in Missouri in August to become an instructor in water safety.

THE BALD BOY

Chapter 18

The End Of a Hair-Raising Story

By ELMER WHEELER
You only live once so live a little!

You only have one head of hair, so keep it there.

I'm at the rope's end.

Not my hair end — but the end of my hair-raising yarn.

My hair has stopped thinning, my brow is no longer cowardly and retreating unabashedly and prematurely to the rear.

It has stopped its abnormal receding. It is just receding in a natural way now.

The hole in my hair, caused by a nervous ailment, has closed up.

I'm ending this tale now with the doc's final treatment for the permanently bald, of which after he finished, I wish I were one.

I've told you psychosomatic treatment No. 1, that of being a good sport about the bald spot, and capitalizing on it in a business way.

Now for a final treatment of your mental attitude.

It's been shown time and again that when the hair leaves the noggin it goes to the chest, and what woman hasn't said of her man, "Boy, he has hair on his chest."

It's a sign of virility. Vigor. Pep in a man.

There is lots of medical proof on this, too. Not just hope, but proof.

The proof is that there is a secretion of male sex hormones to be considered. Depletion of them in love-making weakens hair.

Blood, too, seldom rushes to the head when a pretty girl goes by. So if a man is constantly susceptible to the females, his head isn't flooded with circulating blood so needed to his hair.

This may be slightly far-fetched, but don't tell the girls.

The idea is to spread the idea around to bald boys' great prowess with the girls. Sell the idea, boys.

That's psychosomatic treatment No. 2.

You have plenty of proof on this, too. Show the girls that Charles Boyer, Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby all wear dome doilies.

Greatest of lovers in history all had thinning hair. Chasing the girls, no doubt, brought most of it about.

It's nice to think this is so.

I don't want to get into any argument with followers of Freud, but I believe in selling ideas. I'm a salesman, aren't I?

So why not sell this idea to the world, men!

Peter J. Michael, the research man on hair, has detailed information on sex and love and its relationship on hair. See the guy.

Maybe underneath that bald spot you are a Don Juan and don't realize it. This psychosomatic treatment No. 2 may bring out your hidden and latent talents, men.

'Greatest lovers in history all had thinning hair.'

You may not make hair stick on your head with that bottle of glue my doc recommended as my shock treatment, but you can make this idea stick.

You can get gray-haired or lose your hair rushing hither and yon. Just sit back and relax. Let the world bring its riches and pleasures to your door.

How?

Sell the idea of how great you are as a bald boy. You are a business tycoon. A great lover.

America depends on salesmanship.

It has sold new cars, finer homes, better living conditions, new mouse traps and toupees.

Salesmanship can sell the idea that bald boys are lover boys.

You have proof, proof aplenty.

What have you to lose? No more hair, that is certain.

You have much to gain, believe me.

In fact, after the doc got through with this final "treatment" for my hair trouble, I actually felt sad that I wasn't bald.

What chance had Elmer now?

He wasn't slated to become a big tycoon, head of a firm, for he had too much hair left. Maybe later in life.

He hadn't a chance now to sell the idea that bald boys are the best playboys and lovers.

I went home dejected.

As I approached the front porch, I saw a strange thing on the floor. It leaped to its feet, all life and joy, and started toward me.

I ran for a tree.

As I looked down I saw it was my sheep dog — with a haircut.

My wife had gotten it for him that morning.

Now two of us were happy. Me with hair; my dog with none.

I'll bet he'll become the Don Juan dog of the neighborhood.

Discovery Of Scrolls May Be Significant

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Biblical scholar believes the Dead Sea scrolls have weakened doubts raised 74 years ago over the authenticity of a scroll which contained a variation of the Ten Commandments.

The forgotten scroll purported to be an ancient text of Deuteronomy. If it is authentic, its significance lies in its variance with the known version of the Ten Commandments.

Dr. Menahem Mansoor, chairman of the department of Hebrew studies at the University of Wisconsin, said Sunday the doubts raised over the authenticity of the forgotten scroll "are substantially weakened" by the Dead Sea scroll discoveries.

Mansoor wrote his opinions in the current issue of the national Jewish monthly, B'Nai B'Rith Magazine. He is one of the scholars working on translations of the Dead Sea scrolls.

The scroll was branded a forgery when first examined 74 years ago by British museum experts. They scoffed at the theory that the manuscripts could have been preserved for 2,000 years.

Burt Lancaster To Play The Part Of A Columnist

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writers
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Burt Lancaster has taken on assorted cattle rustlers, Indians and Anna Magnani in recent movies, but now he bravely faces irate columnists for playing a "real life" villainous Broadway scribe.

"I've never had a press agent or cared about column mentions," is one of the outspoken Lancaster's philosophies, which may be just as well for he portrays a New York columnist who's one of the archest villains in screen history in the absorbing drama, "The Sweet Smell of Success."

"I'm going to New York June 21 for the opening of the picture," said Lancaster. "I guess the columnists will be ready with sharpened knives. Ha! Nothing pleases me more."

My reaction to the movie about columnists is that the Broadway variety certainly leads an exciting life. According to the story, they make or break careers with the snap of a finger, tell off senators and are bowed to by press agents and maitre d's at Toots Shor's and El Morocco.

But the columnist in the film, as described by press releases from the producers, Hecht-Hill-Lancaster, also is "an egomaniac who would be a revengeful god, arrogant, cruel, deceitful, a man with an acid soul and of acid words, uncompromising when he pounces for the kill...."

The columnist, called J. J. Hunsecker, writes a gossip column, has a nationwide television show, prowls around New York in a police car and holds court in night clubs.

To find out why Lancaster dared face the wrath of the Fourth Estate I interviewed him at Will Wright's ice cream parlor (Will Wright isn't exactly Toots Shor's or El Morocco but at least I can get a table there).

"Ernest Lehman wrote the story of the movie from his personal experiences," Lancaster said. "Lehman once was a Broadway press agent."

Curtis In Picture
The press agent in the picture, played by Tony Curtis, is described by Hecht-Hill-Lancaster gery when first examined 74 years ago by British museum experts. They scoffed at the theory that the manuscripts could have been preserved for 2,000 years.

Traffic Safety Hints
TOKYO (UP)—The police department hinted today the way to avoid traffic accidents in Tokyo is to stay out of taxicabs and cars driven by bachelors under 30. A weekend police white paper reported taxicabs caused one-fourth against gossip columns or columnists.

"I had two difficulties years ago, in Washington and in New York, with columnists, but most are extremely nice and write nice things about you," he said.

"What can they find to write about me, anyway? Sinatra and others get into scrapes but I'm home in bed at 9 every night."

Headless Frogman Case Enshrouded In Secrecy

CHICHESTER, England (UP)—British police enshrouded the case of the headless frogman in wartime secrecy today on direct orders from the government of Prime Minister Harold MacMillan.

There were hints the U.S. Navy might be involved.

A day and night guard was mounted at the mortuary where the body lay and a coroner's inquest called for 1 p.m. (7 a.m. est) was expected to adjourn immediately without a statement.

The body was generally believed to be that of former Navy frogman Lionel (Buster) Crabb, a naval hero who disappeared beneath the Soviet cruiser Orzhonikidze during last year's Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin visit.

Mrs. Margaret Crabb, 43-year-old ex-wife of the Royal Navy commander, was summoned to Chichester for the inquest and a possible identification of the body which has lain beneath the waters for 14 months. She said Crabb had two deformed toes.

But any official findings remained secret and the British press fell back on the speculation which has marked the cold war mystery from the beginning. One, the Daily Express, said Crabb had died while carrying out a hush hush assignment for the U.S. Navy.

Crabb's death was never officially confirmed. The admiralty admitted he disappeared while diving near the Soviet cruiser — reported to be of secret new design below the waterline — and said he was "presumed" to be dead.

Farm Housing Loans May Be Obtained

James D. Gouldy, county supervisor of Farmers Home Administration serving Armstrong, Donley and Gray counties, announced today that eligible farmers may obtain farm housing loans from the Agency.

Farm housing loans may be made for the construction and repair of farm houses and other farm buildings, including farmstead water supplies. Interest on the loans will be 4 per cent per year on the unpaid principal. Repayments may be scheduled over periods up to 33 years.

Building plans and specifications for the improvements to be financed with the farm housing loan will be obtained by the applicant. Farmers Home Administration will review the plans and inspect construction as it progresses to assist the borrower in obtaining construction that meets generally accepted standards of soundness.

The local county FHA committee determines the eligibility of applicants for farm housing loans. To be eligible, Gouldy explained, an applicant must be the owner of a farm, be unable to obtain suitable credit for dwellings and other buildings from other lenders, and have enough farm income or income from the farm and other sources to meet family living and farm operating expenses and repay his debts.

The farm housing loans are made under the authority of Title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended.

Former Pampan's Rites Set

L. N. (Neil) McCullough, 63, former Pampa resident, died early Monday morning in Albuquerque, N.M.

Mr. McCullough attended Pampa high school and was a veteran of WWI. He was very active in civic affairs in Pampa, being a charter member of the Pampa Rotary club.

Mr. McCullough was also a former member of the city commission here. He was engaged in the lumber business in Pampa for 20 years. In 1941, he moved to Albuquerque where he has been in the lumber business since that time.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret; one daughter, Mrs. J. S. Leakou of Albuquerque; one son, Dr. L. N. McCullough of St. Louis, Mo.; a sister, Mrs. Earl Mead of Higgins; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon in Albuquerque at the First Methodist Church there with Strong-Thorn Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Burial will also be in Albuquerque.

J. E. Murphy Jr., Mayor Lynn Boyd, and others left today to attend the services.

One Collision Reported Here

A collision at the intersection of W. Francis and N. Frost at 10:20 last night resulted in $380 property damage, but no injuries.

A 1954 Dodge sedan driven by Jenny Elizabeth Davenport of 601 Dean Dr., and a 1954 Lincoln sedan driven by Virginia Lee Collins of 312 N. Ward were involved.

There were no tickets issued.

The Dodge sustained $250 damage while the Lincoln suffered $130 damages.

COMMISSION

on city property in the amount of $912,500 were delivered by Ray Duncan, secretary of the insurance association handling city insurance. Under the new method, the insurance companies appointed Duncan as secretary and he will handle business with the city for the insurance companies.

Commissioner Ed Myatt questioned the present system for paying employee's hospital bills when the employee is injured on the job. It was learned that the city does not provide workmen's compensation for employees and that in the past the city has paid what the commission approved on each individual case. Following the discussion the commissioners felt that the question of workmen's compensation, Duncan was instructed to check on the cost of such coverage.

The commissioners also chose brick for the new fire stations and decided that different types would be used on each station to conform to the type of brick commonly used in the areas where the stations are to be built. Interior tile for the walls was chosen and will be light green in color.

A letter from the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co., the firm building the water storage tanks, informed the commission that clearance lights for aircraft were not needed on the legs of the overhead storage tank and the commission approved the deletion of the lights from the contract. This will mean a saving of over $700 on the cost of the overhead storage tank.

Late this morning the commission was still in session and still had scheduled for discussion a request of Brodie - Enix Construction Co. for an extension of time on their contract for the construction of water and sewer lines. This request was made after recent rains delayed work on the two projects.

tan plain jacket, tan slacks, loafers, white shirt and purple figured tie. He went to the elevator on the second floor of the White House and descended to the ground level, walking along the west wing colonnade in the bright morning sunshine to his office.

As he sat at his desk starting to dictate correspondence to his personal secretary, Mrs. Ann Whitman, the President said, "I'm just going to sign a few papers and I have no engagements today."

Confer With Staff

Hagerty said Eisenhower also would confer during the morning with some members of the White House staff.

A bulletin at 7 a.m. est by Hagerty said in part:

"His temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure are normal. He has virtually recovered from his stomach upset, but on the recommendation of his doctor, the President will not have any engagements in his office today."

Hagerty said it will be later today before he has definite word on the President's schedule for Wednesday.

Girard Accused Of "Enticing" Woman

By LEE NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—A high defense official exploded a bombshell in the Girard case today by disclosing government evidence that GI William S. Girard "enticed" a Japanese woman closer toward a guarded area before killing her.

Robert Dechert, Defense Department general counsel, said in Coral Gables, Fla., that testimony of all Japanese witnesses plus that of Girard's "American soldier-companion" made it appear the 21-year-old specialist 3-C "enticed" Japanese civilians prior to his deadly act.

Girard had been ordered to guard a machine gun emplacement on a firing range in Japan where Japanese were accustomed to pick up fired shells to sell as scrap. The defense official said the evidence showed Girard enticed the Japanese closer to the guarded area "by throwing them expended shell casings," then fired a shot that killed Mrs. Naka Sakai.

"No one says he deliberately killed the woman," Dechert said. But he added the Ottawa, Ill., soldier's action was "such a complete departure from his duty... that he could not have been considered on duty."

Japan, to whose jurisdiction the United States has surrendered Girard, has made the claim he enticed the Japanese shell gatherers. But heretofore this country has said only that Girard denied the charge.

Dechert's surprise statement amounted to a bombshell in the case. Previously Defense Department spokesmen had indicated they would not reveal evidence against Girard for fear of prejudicing his case in the Japanese courts.

U.S. attorney Oliver Gasch, who will argue the government's case against Girard's return to this country before Federal District Judge Joseph McGarraghy today, told the United Press:

"I didn't know Mr. Dechert was going to say that."

Earl J. Carroll of New York, Girard's chief American counsel, denounced Dechert's statement in the best fitting terms.

He called it "one of the lowest possible blows," a "dastardly charge" that would damage the prestige of the United States in the eyes of the world.

H-Bomb Test Ban Is Up To Russia

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

It is now squarely up to Soviet Russia to decide whether there is to be an agreement to end the testing of nuclear weapons.

Russia has long been the leader in the demand that tests be ended and that nuclear weapons be outlawed.

This demand is becoming increasingly insistent in the United States and Great Britain, the only two countries besides Russia which have developed the H-bomb—or any other atomic weapon.

But President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan have answered the demand by saying firmly that they will not promise to end tests until Russia agrees to an air-tight system of inspection to safeguard their countries against cheating.

In the United States last Monday when Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel Prize winner of the California Institute of Technology, announced that 2,000 scientists had joined him in urging an international agreement to end tests because of radiation danger.

Gave Replies
Pauling said his announcement grew out of a speech he made in St. Louis on May 15. He said more than 20 scientists had "collaborated" in preparing the appeal. They did so as individuals, he said, and no organization was involved.

MacMillan last Tuesday and Eisenhower last Wednesday gave their replies to those who demand that tests be ended.

They both said it was their duty to see that their countries were safeguarded against attack. Eisenhower spoke with special force. He said the United States could not agree to ban tests "unless we also had a system which we knew would forever ban the use of... these weapons in war."

In Great Britain, the demand is being made chiefly by the leftist Labor party, the opposition to MacMillan's conservatives, and by churches.

The demand hit the headlines

Republicans Aired Embarked On 'Operation Dixie'

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Republican Party has embarked on what it called, "Operation Dixie," a campaign to enlarge its foothold in the Democratic South.

GOP National Chairman Meade Alcorn formally announced the appointment of I. Lee Potter, Virginia state Republican chairman, as Southern director for the GOP National Committee.

Potter, 47, a resident of Arlington, Va., has worked as patronage director for the national committee. He will continue to be based in Washington.

President Eisenhower scheduled a meeting today with Alcorn and Potter.

It was reported during last week's National Republican strategy conference that Potter's selection for the Southern assignment had been approved by the party's executive committee.

The GOP has eyed the Democratic South with growing interest since President Eisenhower carried four Southern states in 1952 and five in 1956.

Alcorn said the Republican Party had made "giant strides" in the South in recent presidential and congressional elections. He termed Potter well qualified to direct the organizing activity to win "substantial Republican gains in congressional, state and local elections throughout the South."

A lifelong Republican, Potter was born at Tower City, Pa., and has lived in Washington and Arlington. He has been in the real estate business in northern Virginia since 1935 and is a former director of the Washington Association of Home Builders.

What You See, Hear In a Typical Billy Graham Crusade Meeting

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of four dispatches by the religion writer of the United Press on Billy Graham's New York crusade. Today's dispatch takes you to a typical Graham meeting.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—As you turn off Broadway onto West 49th Street, you see the first sign that something strange is happening in the big city.

A poster hung in the window of a neon-lighted bar urges you to "attend the Billy Graham crusade."

A block farther, the lighted marquee of Madison Square Garden comes into view. In the same bold letters that have announced prize fights and circuses, it proclaims: "Nightly at 7:30... Billy Graham New York crusade... all air conditioned... all seats free."

It is not yet 7 p.m., but a long line already stands outside the main entrance. No ticket is needed to get in. Although some sections are reserved for church-sponsored delegations, at least half of the 18,500 seats are held open each night for people who just walk in.

As the well-mannered crowd moves inside, you notice that the Garden has undergone a few subtle transformations. Strips of cardboard cover the beer signs. A Bible shop has been set up in a checkroom.

At the west end of the Garden, is a big platform about 10 feet above the arena floor. Decorated with potted plants, it is furnished with chairs, an electric organ and a piano. On a narrow promontory extending from the front of the platform, surrounded by a wrought iron fence, is the mahogany pulpit.

From the front of the pulpit to the first row of folding chairs is a 300-foot space — room for several hundred people to stand. The rows of chairs are divided by aisles. Some sections are marked with signs — reserved for counselors, for ministers, for the blind or the deaf (to whom the sermon is translated by an expert in sign language).

No One Smokes
No one tells you not to smoke, but you sense that it wouldn't be appropriate. And as you look around the fast-filling auditorium, you notice there is remarkable unanimity on this conclusion. Throughout the two hours you are in the Garden, you will not see a single match-flame in the distant, darkened balconies.

You also will listen in vain for the coughing, whispering, throat-clearing and chair-scrapping that usually go with a big crowd. These people have come to witness, or perhaps to experience, religious conversion, and they are waiting... some reverently, some curiously, all quietly and expectantly.

There is a paper-bound "crusade hymnal" on your seat, and promptly at 7:30 choir director Cliff Barrows tells you to turn to page 28. The choir — 800 women in white blouses, 700 men in white shirts — swells out in the familiar words of "Blessed Assurance." Barrows gently coaxes you to join in... "there's a blessing if you sing..." and soon the whole crowd is singing.

Familiar Service
Two more hymns... a prayer by a local minister... a vocal solo by George Zeverly Shea... the Scripture is read by an English clergyman... the offering is taken up in cardboard ice buckets. So far the service has been — except for the sheer size of choir and congregation — just what you'd find in any Baptist church on Sunday morning.

You have been waiting for Graham to make a dramatic entrance. But now you spot him sitting there on the platform, taking part in the preliminaries like everyone else. At 8:10 p.m., without fanfare or introduction, he gets up and walks quietly to the pulpit.

He is, as advertised, a handsome man, with hawklike features and wavy blond hair that makes him look younger than his 38 years. His suit is well tailored, perfectly pressed.

He hoods a limp-backed Bible in his left hand and from it he reads his text in a loud, clear voice that never reaches a shout. A portable microphone hidden in his tie clip carries his voice to the loud-speaker system.

Moves Across Platform
He moves back and forth across the platform as he talks. He gestures frequently and vividly... you count 23 different hand movements in the space of one minute.

The message, tonight as always, is the Christian plan of salvation, as Graham reads it in his Bible... unadorned — or undiluted — by the insights of modern theology. "We are all sinners," he declares again and again. Abundantly documenting this fact are examples of the pride, lust, selfishness, greed and worldliness which infect the lives of all men... even the pious... "including the speaker."

And "the wages of sin is death." Graham does not invoke the image of everlasting fire, but neither does he pass lightly over the doctrine of final judgment the "sentence of eternal death" which awaits the unrepentant sinner.

Now the evangelist is inviting you to make your "decision for Christ tonight... now 'before you leave this building.'"

Rain Has Curtailed Farm Work In Texas

DALLAS (UP) — Normal spring plowing and planting have been so curtailed by spring rains that businessmen in Texas communities are feeling the impact of the farm situation more than at any time since World War II, according to the May Texas and Pacific Railway crop report for the state.

C. B. Senter, agriculture agent who prepared the report, said that in every area along the railroad, field work has been so limited that all crops are from three weeks to a month behind schedule.

Farm laborers have lost wages in idleness, farm owners are not spending any money until they see better prospects ahead and a result has been a mushrooming economic pinch, according to the report.

Senter points out, however, that despite the 28 million dollar loss in flood damage already suffered by farmers and ranchers along with the reductions of crops that will follow this year, the rains are going to be an "over-all" help to everyone.

Outcome in Doubt
Although the outcome of many crops in the state remains in doubt, there is still a chance for good yields from certain crops in some areas, Senter said.

Cotton planting has been held up by the wetness in practically all areas, with some of it four weeks behind and some fields planted for the third time.

In West Texas some 370,000 acres of cotton will be planted if weather permits. This is the smallest acreage in this area in many years and is partially the result of 128,000 acres being put under the soil bank program for a total of some $4,394,000.

In East Texas $1,234 acres have been put under the soil bank for a return of $2,918,168, leaving 333,268 acres to be planted if weather permits.

Cut Deeply
The spring vegetable production for the state is estimated at 23 per cent under last year's, the report shows.

Tomato acreage along the line in East Texas was about double that of last year, but the unfavorable weather cut it deeply. Only tomatoes planted on high ground or with good drainage are doing well, Senter said.

The watermelon crop in East Texas is still uncertain. Many fields have been abandoned, and the remainder in various stages of development. Indications are that there will be no volume of melons on the line until the middle of July, Senter reported.

The sweet potato crop is in about the same condition as other truck crops in East Texas. Excessive wetness rotted many beds and when it was dry enough to reset fields the demand for plants created a shortage.

Senter said truck acreage in the Pecos, Cuyamaca and Lea County, New Mexico area look much more promising at the present time.

Supplies Adequate
The East Texas broiler market closed the month of May steady with the supplies adequate for a good demand.

During May, Texas broiler producers put 6 per cent less birds in broiler houses than in 1956, while the national average was up 3 per cent. However, with even this high volume of broilers in prospect, production figures and market trends indicate the prices will not return to as low a level as they reached last year, Senter said.

The range and pasture outlook is the brightest in the otherwise dreary agriculture picture. Ranges and pastures have made a remarkable recovery over almost all the Texas lines. Much more moisture could be used west of the Pecos, but elsewhere pastures are in the best condition in years, the report said.

SHE'LL QUIT — Anna Maria Alberghetti says she'll quit show business when she decides to get married. Anna, who just celebrated her 21st birthday, says she's concluded that "a girl can't combine both" career and marriage. She's giving herself "a couple of years" to decide what she wants in a husband.

CHICAGO (UP) — Lasses with glasses with dark, ornate frames are "sophisticated and worldly." Girls with plain, rimless or gold-filled rims tend to wear conservative but expensive clothes. ## RUTH MILLET SOCIAL CALENDAR

I never dreamed I was so susceptible to suggestion until I read the fascinating new book, "The Hidden Persuaders."

It's about the latest techniques used by advertising agencies to find out what makes me "buy, believe — and even vote" the way I do.

If I'm a typical consumer, I shop, vote, market and even give money to charity for the darndest reasons.

It seems as though everybody who has something to sell knows so much more about me than I know about myself. Thanks to the insight into human nature advertising agencies have been getting from "motivational researchers," they can take advantage of all my frailties to sell me anything.

Don't laugh. You are probably a typical consumer, too. And it's 100-1 you don't know why you bought a big, roomy, comfortable car instead of a compact, cheaper, little model. But the motivational researchers know.

They also know that the typical housewife goes into a kind of trance when she enters a supermarket. They know it isn't until she apprehensively hears the items being rung up on the cash register that she comes to and realizes she has loaded her cart with a great many items she didn't want.

They know so many things about us—those who are teaching advertisers how to lead to either our strength or our weakness—that you can learn as much about yourself as the business of advertising by reading "The Hidden Persuader."

A knitted wool sheath worn under a wool jersey coat makes a travel combination that's hard to beat. Good in any climate and no wrinkles to worry about when you step off plane or train.

Summer travelers should remember that a girl's best friend on a trip is a big, roomy handbag that carries all the necessities and then some. It should have space for a paper-back book to read en route.

Generally, the man-made fibers take permanent pleating better than the natural fibers. The reason for this is that the man-made fibers can be easily set by heat.

Voluntary Contract

There seems to be one general area of thought in which the meaning of freedom is persistently misunderstood. While there are no number of persons who appear to agree that if a government agency proscribes a course of action which would otherwise be taken, freedom has been injured thereby; the same persons seem to hold that if an employer demands certain actions of his employe, the employe has suffered a corresponding loss of liberty.

This view is distinctly non-libertarian. And we feel it is inimical to a true understanding of the nature of freedom or liberty.

The relationship between a citizen and his government is involuntary. While it may be true that at the beginning of any government, or at the institution of any administration, a form of tacit consent has occurred on the part of the citizen to the government, it follows that within an extremely short period that consent vanishes.

The otherwise constant relationship between the citizen and his government is an involving relationship. The government commands. The citizen obeys. Nor is there recourse left to the individual savings to wait for those rare intervals of ballot marking at which time he can indicate his displeasure if he has any.

But the indication of his displeasure is meaningless, unless it so happens that he finds himself with a majority. Then, in each instance in which the individual comes in contact with the state, the relationship is related to collectives. The citizen faces a collective in the state, and if his voice is to be heard, it is only because he has associated himself for the moment with some other collective.

Individual relationship is impossible. Yet, freedom is an individual thing.

The opposite is true respecting the relationship between employer and employe. Here, unless a union intervenes to manifest as a collective and to rob both employer and employe of their individual choices, all relationships are individual. The employe enters his employment as an individual. The employer hires him as such.

So long as the arrangements are satisfactory, both employer and employe voluntarily continue the association. Yet, at any time, for cause or without cause, the association can be terminated by either party. The condition is one of contract. The employe obeys, yes. But he is paid for obeying. There is a mutually profitable arrangement which will continue just so long as it is mutually profitable.

In the relationship between an individual and his government the condition is one of inferior to a superior. The inferior has no power to quit or refuse. He does as he is told. Punishment for failure to comply is imprisonment or, in extreme cases, death. In a business establishment there is a relationship between equals. In essence, each obeys the other. The employer commands the services of the employe. The employe commands payment for those services. And if the employe becomes dissatisfied for any reason he is not punished for quitting or refusing to obey. The worst that can happen to him is that the contract is broken and he is free to find other employment more to his liking.

There is no actual loss of liberty within a contract voluntarily entered. The employe may be bound by his promise to pay. But if he does not intend to pay he does not need to enter into the contract. Also, the employe may be bound by his promise to perform certain tasks. But if he does not intend to perform them he need not agree to the contract.

The performance of a contract is not an abrogation of liberty.

But there is no contract between the government and the citizen. The citizen is at a total disadvantage. The government has all the advantage. Only the one command. Only the other obeys. And all the propaganda to the effect that the people ARE the government, is simple nonsense. The people are those acted upon by the government. The government is the actor, and inescapably above its own edicts.

The myth persists that if a foreman, an overseer, an employer or some official in a business gives an order, the freedom of the worker is cancelled at that moment. But since the entire relationship of every moment is voluntary, there can be no loss of freedom.

However, it is no myth that the government can rob persons of their freedom, simply because no recourse for refusal remains to the citizen. He obeys OR ELSE.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

years of age need reading glasses to see well at 14 inches.

Thus, parents and teachers need not fear that a child who holds a book or magazine close to the eyes is injuring them.

Difficulty with the system of eye balance controlled by the muscles should receive early correction. Disturbance of balance may result in blurring of vision, headaches or even double vision.

This is the squint which I have discussed on other occasions and which should receive early treatment.

IT OFTEN BEGINS between the ages of one and four and therefore cannot be safely left for treatment until school age. Its treatment is highly technical and may involve glasses, surgery, eye exercise or combinations of these.

This type of difficulty is often discovered because the child may tilt the head somewhat to the side, although this alone is not enough to make a diagnosis. The Detroit ophthalmologist also discussed the question of whether glasses weaken the eyes. Glasses do not change the eyes but change the direction of light coming into them. "I have never seen vision made worse by properly fitted lenses," he said, "but I have seen vision made better by them."

It has not been recognized as often as it should be that children sometimes need special eye attention before they reach school age. An extremely valuable discussion of this subject by a Detroit eye specialist recently appeared in the Sight-Saving Review, published by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

The author pointed out that vision is a highly complex sense. It requires the participation of three entirely different systems: the visual pathway, eye movement, and balance, and the higher brain centers.

THE GLANDS of internal secretion control the growth of children and the eye matures along with muscles, nerves and bones. Of specific importance is the fact that one portion of the retina of the eye is slow in maturing. The clarity of vision of a four-year-old is likely to be considerably less than it is a few years later. However, the ability to focus rays of light on the retina, which is spoken of as accommodation, is much better in small children than it is later in life. A seven-year-old child can often read ordinary print at a distance of one inch. THIS ABILITY to see clearly things close to the eyes decreases bit by bit until most of us at 45

Religion And Evolutionary Progress II.

In the last issue I was quoting an address made by H. Bayard Phillips before the Forum of the Arlington Street Church in Boston, Massachusetts. The article ended discussing whether happiness should be the ultimate objective of all men. Then he proceeds in this manner:

"A first reason is a logical one. Happiness is only nature's sign of approval. To take happiness as the objective is to substitute the sign for the thing signified. The correspondence between the two is never unique. Overstressing the sign thus usually results in replacing values by superficial details.

"Another reason for rejecting happiness as the objective of life stems from the origin of our sense of pleasure through the process of evolution. This process adapts only to conditions which have existed for a long time. Individuals are thus harmed by over-indulgence. Similarly, many of the conditions most helpful as well as most harmful to the human race, have existed only a few generations, a period much too short for human tastes to develop any powers of discrimination. We have every reason to believe that these changes will be even more rapid in the future. In a world subject to such rapid change human tastes, however elevated, will always be to a considerable extent obsolete. A state of happiness based on obsolete values cannot furnish a satisfactory ultimate objective.

"To obtain an objective less influenced by human frailty, many philosophers have taken the general welfare, rather than mere happiness, as the goal of life. Since happiness is one of the elements in general welfare, it follows that a condition of maximum general welfare will include greatest happiness."

Defining General Welfare "When we attempt to define what we mean by the general welfare we find, however, that the task is not simple. While most people admit that general welfare should apply to all races and all nations, it is not clear whether this should involve any condition of equality. There is considerable evidence that complete equality reduces the state not only of the more fortunate but of all classes of society. Any attempt to discriminate requires the statement of conditions which amounts practically to a new description of objective.

"Another question is whether general welfare should apply only to people now living or should include all who will live in the future. From the moral point of view it seems more meritorious to save the life of a child now gasping for breath than to devise procedures which will result in a similar saving a thousand years from now. In fact the latter is infinitely more praiseworthy because of its applicability throughout the unlimited future. When we consider the welfare of all who live, as well as those now living, we cannot make any definite statement, because we do not know what conditions will exist or what type of beings will be involved."

Most of our trouble in understanding the general welfare as now practiced in the United States comes from thinking only of the present. Time is a factor of every act. The succeeding results are of utmost importance. Certainly we could raise the standard of living for a few days or a year or so for millions and millions of people, but the succeeding results would be to lower the standard of living of the whole people for years and years until tools were re-accumulated.

Then Mr. Phillips continues: "To see this more clearly we might consider the similar difficulty of making such statements at earlier periods of life on earth. At one time the highest form of life was represented by single-cell creatures of the type of protozoa; no one would now take the ultimate objective of life to be the happiness of protozoa. A little later the giant lizards were supreme; no one would now consider the beauties of nature created for the enjoyment of lizards. Later still mammals appeared about the size of rats; no one would now base a moral system on the promotion of the welfare of rats. And millions of years from now some superintending, digging in the rubble of Manhattan for relics of a prehistoric creature called man, will certainly not think the marvels of this universe were provided for the welfare of such an animal as that."

"Thus, however high we place the goal of life, it will ultimately be reached and passed. The highest forms in every age will already have attained a level beyond the wildest dreams of every preceding age. The only way to assign a permanent goal is to say the purpose of life is just forever to keep advancing. "Eternal progress is thus the goal of life, and religion is then man's effort to promote progress. "To many it may seem strange to associate religion and progress. Religion is considered as concerned with material things. In reality progress and ethics are closely related. Helping others is the central principle of Christian ethics. Only those who are more advanced are able to help. Good will is not enough. Ability is also needed. In recent times, for example, the United States has helped nearly all the world, including even Russia and China. It has been able to

I seldom discuss political matters, preferring interviews with wise, philosophical hackmen whose raw material for vendable essays costs me 25 cents on top of the meter, and little, harmless human-interest items about babies, dogs and lawnmowers.

But here, my countrymen, we have a subtle attack on freedom of the press disguised as an esthetic venture by the federal government in collusion with unwary highway commissions of the several states. The federal octopus by a variety of sugared provisions would drive back all roadside announcements at least 500 feet from any highway which has been siphoned into Washington by income tax and other confiscations. Any state which should refuse to adopt this restriction would be punished by reduction of the share of its own people's own money which the department of commerce would dribble back into its confines to pay for such boulevards.

I should be allowed to say first that I am innocent of financial greed in this. Apportion of every dollar spent on outdoor signs is subtracted from the potential income of the newspapers which provide my lavish living. I am as sordid as the next one and if my avarice alone were consulted I would cry to—oh, hell! Let me spell it out! To heck with roadside advertisements. But if the principle be granted that the octopus may drive these communications back 500-feet, by that same principle they may be driven out of sight and I am not in a mood to yield any means of expression. I do not mean that I would fight. Nor even protest. I have been fighting and protesting for years and the wear and tear are almost total. But I would object. More objection is so meek and contemptible that mere objectors are simply ignored rather than crushed. I am meek and contemptible. I am the little people.

As far as my knowledge goes, there are no editors editing roadside advertisements. These proclamations have no editorial policies or political attachments. They are the purest of journalism. You may

Part of this more rapid advance has, of course, been due to superior natural resources, but only part. There are other nations, blessed with great natural resources, which have made little progress and now need aid instead of being able to give aid. But, because of our superior resources, we are particularly obligated to advance as rapidly as possible. Eisenhower Encouraged By Selection Of LaFollette Sr.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has been encouraged in his crusade for "modern Republicanism" by selection of the late Robert Marion LaFollette, Sr., as one of the Senate's most illustrious members. Although the Wisconsin lawmaker was once reviled for his leftist ideas, many of his principles are now embodied in Federal or State laws.

In Ike's opinion, the reevaluation of the famous political rebel demonstrates that change is inevitable in a nation's history. The movement is carried on by both Parties, but not by them alone. It rolls ahead, slowly but steadily, because of and in response to changing national needs and public demand. He justifies his budget on the ground that the voters and Congress have asked for the services it is designed to finance. A nation and a Party which now acknowledge LaFollette's vision, according to this theory, must and will accept and approve the changes envisaged in his "modern Republicanism."

It is easy — too easy — forget "Old Bob's" sad and lonely state in the first quarter of the twentieth century.

When he voted against the 1917 declaration of war against Germany, his colleagues refused to speak to him. They stepped aside when they met him in Congressional corridors. They left Senate elevators when he entered, preferring to wait for another lift.

"Traitor" was the least of the names applied to him. Even "Young Bob," later his father's successor, was avoided by his friends.

In 1924, LaFollette dared to raise the flag of political revolt against the esteemed Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, Chicago banker, with former Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana as his running mate. They carried only one state — Wisconsin — as candidates of the Progressive Party.

LaFollette broke into open rebellion after a docile Cleveland convention had hooted and voted down his platform in favor of a Coolidge-Mallory - Hoover document. The Wisconsin set of principles were denounced by conservative Republican orators and strategists.

The LaFollette faction asked the adoption of resolutions which, in retrospect, seem relatively mild and accepted by both Parties. They condemned the Mellon tax reduction bill on the ground that it favored wealthy individuals and corporations. Today's Democrats have made the same indictment against Ike's far less lopsided tax-cutting.

They demanded publicity of tax returns. This proposal became effective for a few years under F.D.R., but it has been rescinded. However, there are current demands for its reinstatement.

They called for condemnation of several faithless-Harding officials. Several of Ike's men have had to resign merely because of a "conflict of interest" between their public duties and private obligations.

They urged farm relief, payment of the soldiers' bonus and reduction of "extortionate" railroad rates. LaFollette never dreamed of the Eisenhower kind of generosity to agriculture. The bonus has long since been paid. The Interstate Commerce Commission listens periodically to farmers' and businessmen's complaints against excessive railroad charges.

They commended Senator George W. Norris for blocking sale of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford. It was the Nebraskan's 15-year filibuster against this proposed transaction that made possible such an accepted undertaking as TVA.

Two LaFollette demands have not been met, but there are scores of bills before Congress designed to put them into effect. They are the subject of serious discussion by eminent and conservative experts. One would bar political parties from accepting campaign contributions from individuals or corporations liable to antitrust prosecution, or from interests having leases or concessions on the public domain — oil, coal, water power, timber, etc. This demand derived from revelations of Sinclair-Doheny political gifts during the Teapot Dome inquiry. LaFollette sponsored the resolution for that investigation, which led to imprisonment of a Cabinet member.

The other called for popular election of the President and Vice President, with abolition of the Electoral College. That question is still alive, and many agree with LaFollette that, as he said, "The convention system has failed as an instrument of representative government."

It is ironic but true that a Republican President should derive comfort from the fate and fortune of the most famous political rebel in modern political history!

Londoners Are Proud Of Their Climate

By HENRY McLEMORE

LONDON — Londoners are proud of their city's climate. They belittle it to no another, make jokes about it, and sympathize with visitors for having to endure it. Nevertheless, it is a source of pride with them.

They wouldn't have it changed for the world. They consider it the best climate on earth, and really feel sorry for those of us who live in what are generally felt to be better climes.

Londoners might be right, at that. For one thing, their city has more climate than any other city in the world. London never runs short of it. It uses up more climate in a week than most cities do in three months.

It has rain, cold, heat, sunshine, fog, smog, gentle winds, gales, drizzles, showers, downpours, droughts, and thunder. It also has lightning, torrents, zephyrs, barometric rises, barometric falls, sleet, snow and hail.

And this is only a partial list of London's unlimited supply of climate. Name the climate that any other city has, and London can reach into one of its voluminous weather kits and produce it. It can even pull out a prevailing wind that isn't its own prevailing wind, but one which it keeps on hand for a change of pace.

London is most generous with its climate. There's nothing stingy about London. It doesn't hoard its climate. It uses it all the time. Twenty-four hours a day it flings climate around with a profligate hand. It saves nothing for a rainy day, of which there are more than a few.

If the best climate is climate that has something for all, then London's undoubtedly is the best. No matter where the visitor is from, be it Zanzibar or Milwaukee, London will eventually get around to making him feel at home. It will supply him with a slice of weather that will bring tears of homesickness to his eyes. As a rule, London provides between ten and fifteen types of climate each day. This makes it impossible for a traveler to bring all the necessary clothes. To be properly dressed for London weather at all times, one would require a wardrobe of half a hundred trunks at least. And the range of the wardrobe would have to be from a bed sheet type of garment, like those favored by the Indians, to a fur parka of the Arctic explorer.

It is ironic but true that a Republican President should derive comfort from the fate and fortune of the most famous political rebel in modern political history!

I have solved this sudden switch in climate by always wearing a medium-weight suit and by carrying a pair of long johns in a little leather case which I had made especially for this purpose. If the weather switches from hot to cold, as it does almost every day, I simply slip into a phone booth and slip into my long handles. I'll admit that I have had some curious and angry stares from people who were waiting to make a call from the booths in which I was making my change.

I also always carry a light raincoat over one arm, and a large palm leaf fan, of the undertaker parlor type, in the other. Thus, I am always ready for rain and high humidity.

This morning when I arose it was bright and sunny, I was caught in a light shower about ten, then it brightened again, and now a cold, raw wind is blowing that chills the marrow of those not wise enough to have a suit of long underwear handy.

This evening, for all anyone knows, it will be snowing.

Braves Back In Tie For 2nd; Down Dodgers 3-1

Buhl's Four-Hitter Moves Braves 1 1/2 Behind Redlegs

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Braves are the majors' No. 1 engine this year because they're playing like also-rans against the weak teams but look like champions against their chief National League rivals.

The Braves again rose to the challenge of a top contender Monday night when Bob Buhl's four-hit pitching and Ed Matthews' two-run homer gave them a 3-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The win put the Braves into a third-place tie with the Dodgers and moved them within a game and a half of the first-place Cincinnati Redlegs, who lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2.

Tigers Take Yanks

The Detroit Tigers walloped the New York Yankees, 9-4, for their sixth victory in eight meetings with the world champions and the Boston Red Sox clubbed the Kansas City A's, 11-4, in the only other big league activity.

Buhl, who beat the Dodgers eight times last season, did it for the second time this year although six walks kept him in frequent trouble. The big right hander struck out five for his fifth victory of the year.

Mathews, who hit only .218 against Brooklyn last season, put the Braves ahead with his third-inning homer and singles by Bill Bruton, Johnny Logan and Hank Aaron produced their other run in the eighth. Don Newcombe suffered the defeat and now stands 4-6 for the year. Gil Hodges had three of the Dodgers' four hits and raised his league-leading average to .371.

End Loss String

The Pirates ended a string of 15 straight losses to Cincinnati dating back to last July 22 when Vern Law turned in a four-hitter. Law yielded a single to lead-off man Johnny Temple and Wally Post followed with a homer to give the Redlegs a quick 2-0 bulge, but he was tagged for only two more hits the rest of the way. Bill Virdon knocked in three runs with a single and a double to lead the Pirates' 10th hit attack. Charley Maxwell smashed his ninth and 10th homers and drove in five runs to pace Detroit's 10th hit attack on three Yankee pitchers. Al Kaline and Harvey Kuhn also homered for the Tigers while Mickey Mantle hit No. 15 and Hank Bauer homered for New York. Frank Lary got credit for the victory, although he needed help from Al Aber in the eighth. Bob Turley suffered the loss.

Dick Gerner's two homers and a double drove in six runs for the Red Sox, who have scored 28 runs in three straight victories. Willard Nixon scattered 10 hits, including Hal Smith's eighth home run, to win his fourth game while Bruton, Johnny Logan and Hank Aaron produced their other run in the eighth.

Score About Ready For Return To Play

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — Cleveland pitcher Herb Score was to undergo another series of vision tests today before learning when he can return to the mound.

The southpaw, who says his vision remains "fuzzy at long distances," indicated he would go to his home in Lake Worth, Fla., if eye specialist Dr. Charles I. Thomas ordered another long period of rest.

Dr. Thomas said he would give the 24-year-old pitcher Senilen tests to determine how far along the injured eye has progressed.

Last week the specialist said it may be four or five more weeks before Score could begin working out, but he today would give him a chance to be more certain about the length of the recuperating period.

Score returned to Cleveland Monday after spending 12 days at his uncle's home in Hagerstown, Md.

He had been hospitalized three weeks, after being hit by a line drive off the bat of New York infielder Gil McDougald May 7.

In his first visit to the Cleveland clubhouse since his injury he told his teammates, "I feel like putting a uniform on right now."

ROUEN, France (UP) — Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, the world auto racing champion, will drive a Maserati in the Grand Prix of France on Rouen's Esplanade track July 7.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (UP) — Builing-browed Carmen Basilio knelt on a sun-swept boat dock at the "admiral" of the Thousand Islands fleet poised a sword over his close-drooping head and prepared to "knight" him.

A broad grin swept over the battle-scarred features of the welterweight champion and, looking up at the "admiral" and his sword, Basilio quipped: "Just like all these fight managers. Ready to take his cut."

Which may explain in part why the one-time onion farmer is hoping today to get an opportunity to destroy a long-time idol.

Carmen Basilio needs a "big pay-day."

Even when you're the champion of the world, it is no guarantee that you are financially "loaded." And so it is with Basilio, an iron-hard terror in the ring but a butter-soft "touch" on the outside. He has had his share of lucrative fights but the circle of pleading pals is large and Basilio is too nice for his own good.

Basilio thinks he can do it, too. "Robinson was one of the great fighters," Basilio analyzed with the admiration of a crowding slugger for the master boxer. "But he has got to be over the hill and I know I can beat him."

There were those who thought that Robinson should never have come back. But he, too, needed money and the old-time hunger revived a certain amount of the ancient talents so that he twice fought his way back to the middleweight title, the last time against another Basilio - type crowdier named Gene Fullmer.

"He was lucky," Basilio says. "Coming off the ropes he threw a desperation hook and caught Fullmer coming in. Anbody had to go when hit with such a lucky combination. But I saw him in the dressing room 15 minutes later and he still was huffing and puffing."

Five Rounds Of Danger

So Basilio has it worked out in his mind just how he will beat Robinson—if given the chance.

"He's dangerous only for four or five rounds now," Basilio explains. "Then he's got to run out of gas. So I'll have to feint and move him, keep on top of him and never let him rest. If I stood around and let him make the fight, he'd have a chance. If I stay on him, he won't."

"If he doesn't come to terms

The turning point of the 72-hole tournament came on the 14th tee where freckle-faced Wiff, playing in her first pro tour, sent her drive whistling into the woods for the right for an automatic two-stroke penalty. She was one-over at the time and wound up with a heart-breaking seven for the par-four hole.

Meanwhile, Miss Suggs was building up steam. She was one-over-par at 37 making the turn, after sinking her first birdie on No. 9. She also flashed birdies on the 11th, 15th and 17th greens with the last one set up by a dazzling five wood shot that landed 2 1/2 feet from the pin. By that time, youthful Wiff was too far behind to recover and finished with a 74.

Ballinger Three Games Out In 10-5 Win Over Clovis

By UNITED PRESS

Ballinger edged closer to the Southwestern League lead Monday night with a homer-sparked rally that stopped Clovis.

The 10-5 victory pulled Ballinger within three games of the pace-setting Redlegs in what may soon be a six-team race.

Plainview officials announced their club was folding Saturday. Authoritative sources expected the league to drop San Angelo, which it has been operating since Pampa folded, and finish the season with six teams.

Plainview lost to Carlsbad, 4-2, last night. Midland dropped Hobbs 7-5 and El Paso whipped San Angelo 5-3.

Four in Ninth

Ballinger raced to eight runs in the final three innings to stop Clovis. The Westerners picked up three runs in the seventh on a solo homer by Joe Giel and a two-run blast by Jim Moore.

They added another in the eighth on Frank Coffone's solo homer and saluted it away with four in the ninth.

Doug Cassay helped Clovis to an early 4-2 lead with a two-run homer. Jim Bailey, who allowed only four hits over the first six innings, suffered his first loss against seven wins.

Carlsbad, using a single and three Plainview errors, put over two runs in the eighth for its 4-2 victory. Roy Patterson singled. Ed Roy was safe on an error, and Jim Bawcum reached first on another error to load the bases. Glen Rediger grounded to short, but catcher Dick Hutzler lost the peg in an attempt to cut off the run and both Patterson and Reed scampered over before Hutzler could come up with the ball.

Midland scored six runs in the last three frames for its win over Hobbs, with doubles by Carlos DeSouza and Ozzie Alvarez paving the way.

Pitcher Wilbur Ernst poled a two-run homer in the seventh and Hobbs and the Sports, loaded the bases in the ninth but couldn't get a run.

Jerry Soler poled a home run for El Paso in its 5-3 victory while Don Risinger picked up one for San Angelo.

STANTON, Del. (UP) — Betrayed, a 100-1 shot, produced a $1,304.80 daily double Monday at Delaware Park when she won the second race at $202.00 for $2. Sweet Stroller won the first race at $6.80 for $2.

AROUND THE WORLD

SHE'LL BE THERE—Pretty Karol Fageros is shown at New York's International Airport as she waited to board a clipper to London. The blonde gal from Miami, who is seeded seventh in the U. S., will play in the Wimbledon tennis matches which begin June 28th. Karol will first get in some practice.

READY TO GO—Wearing the latest thing in Wild West outfits for three-year-olds is Bruce Alan Bennett, of Paterson, N. J. He's showing off his six-shooter to tiny Elaine Hantman, of Chicago, as they waited at a New York airport to fly to England with their mothers. Thirty-five war brides and 61 children took off aboard a chartered plane.

THE WINNING MILE—Ron Delaney of Villanova won the mile in 4:08.4 at the IC4A track and field meet on Randall's Island, N. Y. Behind Delaney are Jim Doulin, center, of Manhattan College, who placed second, and Alex Breckinridge, also of Villanova, who finished third.

NIGHT AND DAY—Fishermen in Eastlake, Ohio, no longer have to go without bait when the local bait store closes for the night. Worms can now be bought from a vending machine at any hour of the day. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linc are about to make a purchase from it.

HOURS AHEAD—Mr. John uses a waterproof watch as a decoration for this hat design. In a Tyrolean motif, the hat is made for sports viewing. Of course, that watch brings this new style right up to the minute and keeps time on the wearer's mind.

CLOSE INSPECTION—An eye-catcher examining a fish-catcher is pretty British starlet Joan Cunningham. The buxom blonde was strolling along the beach at Cannes, France, when she discovered this fishing net. She stopped to look it over and form an idea of how it works.

FULL SPEED AHEAD—A group of bicycle racers is pedaling over a bridge across the Po River at Ferrara, Italy. They were competing in the 40th Tour of Italy race, a rugged cross-country event. It begins in Milan and follows a tortuous, circular route back to Milan.

DOUBLE YOO-HOO—Ernestine Russell, left, 18, of Michigan State University, and 21-year-old Beverly Cude, of Windsor, Ont., Canada, are teamed in a "W" that might stand for wow, in Chicago. They're shown sharing a gym horse at a sporting event in the Windy City.

HOLDING HER BREATH—Six-month-old Teresa Hoye probably senses that she may "get the point" at any moment as Henry Surowski, left, a Southern Illinois University junior in Carbondale, makes his first attempt at dispering. He volunteered for the job after all-male class in home economics witnessed a baby-changing demonstration. The fascinated on-looker is his classmate, Gerald Rombach, awaiting his turn.

ESPRIT DE CORPS—These members of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity at Central Michigan College in Mount Pleasant are displaying plenty of the proper team spirit. They're on the losing end of a tug-of-war contest with members of the local Phi Sigma Epsilon chapter. It's really a damp shame that they're struggling in vain in the river.

Court-Martial Power Limited

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that some 450,000 U.S. civilians now with the armed forces in 43 foreign countries are not subject to court-martial by the military.

The 6 to 2 ruling reversed a 5 to 3 decision on the issue delivered by the high court only last June. At the beginning of this term the court agreed to reconsider. Meantime, the membership on the high bench had changed.

The government had told the court that civilian employees and dependents might have to be barred from accompanying the armed forces abroad if court-martial jurisdiction were denied. The decision permanently freed two women who had been convicted by courts-martial or murdering their husbands while on overseas assignments.

One is Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith, daughter of retired Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, who helped Gen. Douglas MacArthur recapture the Philippines. She was convicted in 1953 in Tokyo of the fatal stabbing of Col. Aubrey D. Smith.

Richard Boone Is Strict Teacher Of TV Actors

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Why anybody would want to be an actor, Richard Boone doesn't know, but for those who do, the TV-movie actor has become one of the foremost—and strictest—teachers in town.

Actors' schools have mushroomed around Hollywood since the vogue of the Actors' Studio and other top schools in New York. Anthony Quinn, director Jeff Hayden (Eva Marie Saint's husband) and Jeff Corey are among those who take on acting pupils.

"Boone says: 'My teacher in New York, Sanford Meisner, used to tell us, 'If you can possibly be anything else in the world, don't be an actor. Only if necessary, try it. You have to put up with too much.'"

After observing one of Boone's acting classes, I agree with Meisner and Boone. Acting seems embarrassing enough but learning to act appears worse. Here is what an acting class is like:

Forty young adults stood on the floor in their bare feet and practiced saying, "One-two-three-four-five" in a rising or falling tone. Then they practiced saying "boom" in a humming tone.

Later, students were handed a situation for a scene, such as, "A soldier says goodbye to his girl," and they had to improvise dialogue on the spot. Boone criticized, constructively but firmly, their actions.

"I make it pretty rough on my students," admitted Boone, "to see if they really want to go it or not. I lose some pupils that way but it's for the best."

Boone began his school two years ago after six newcomers asked him to. The school now has 40 pupils, 25 of whom are TV and movie actors. Classes are held two nights a week in a kindergarten.

The veteran actor is busy by days with movies ("Killer on the Wall") and TV (he gave up "Medical" to begin a new series about a 19th century private eye in San Francisco, "Have Gun, Will Travel"). But he sticks to his drama school "because I get a lot out of it."

Peace Prize For Ike
Insiders in Norway give President Eisenhower a good chance to win this year's Nobel Peace prize.

Finn Moe, chairman of the foreign committee of the Norwegian Parliament, disclosed last week that Eisenhower has been nominated as a candidate. In doing so Moe suggested Eisenhower's "indefatigable" work for peace. A committee named by Parliament will choose the winner. If Eisenhower won, he would be expected to go to Norway in December to receive it. Diplomatic sources suggest that might be a good time to hold a Big Four "summit" conference in some European capital.

Red TV
Don't be surprised if British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appears on a Soviet TV program as a follow-up to the TV appearance of Soviet Communist Leader Nikita S. Khrushchev. The Khrushchev program was televised in Britain after its presentation in the United States. It has been suggested that Macmillan make a similar appearance on a Russian program. He is reported to be warm to the idea. But the initiative would have to come from Moscow.

Chisel Airing
Alleged chiseling in veterans charities will be aired soon by a House committee in Washington. A committee investigator is at work now sifting complaints. One complaint is that promoters are using veterans groups as fronts to raise funds. They keep most of the funds.

Diplomatic Note
You can expect a friendly diplomatic fashion war between the new Austrian and American ambassadors to Norway. Both are women. En route to Oslo on the liner Bergensfjord is American Ambassador Frances M. E. Willis. Already there is Austrian Ambassador Dr. Johanna Monschein. Dr. Monschein is one of Europe's best dressed women. Diplomats are sure Miss Willis will want to hold up America's end.

Airway Argument
Watch for the Curtis Air safety report to increase instead of lessen the fight in Washington over ways to make the skyways safe. The Curtis Commission, among other things, called for a completely independent federal aviation agency. Some congressmen, while approving the commission's recommendations in general, say they are designed almost entirely for the

NEW YORK (UP)—Summertime—when the living is easy, the cotton is high and re-runs bloom in the TV machine—rapidly is approaching.

"THIS COULD Be the NIGHT" Tyrone Power Will Leave Romantic Roles To Young

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD, June 11 (UP)—Tyrone Power, matinee idol of the 40s, says he is leaving "romantic leading roles" to younger actors. Power, his hair shot with gray and character lines erasing his pretty-boy appearance, returns to movieland after two years of globe-trotting.

An independent cuss with a straightforward approach to things, the handsome actor says movies have become decentral-ized along with the social life in Hollywood. Thus, he concludes, there is little to hold an actor in this part of the country.

"When you've been twenty years in this business you begin to look to other fields," he grinned. "After all, how many movies can you make?"

"In the past couple of years I've been to France, England, New York, Mexico and Italy—working in the theater, movies and television."

In regard to his career as a dashing screen hero, Power is refreshingly frank. "You can fool everybody but yourself. If you are a 'romantic leading man,'" he paused, said

GARBAGE (COLOR ADDED)

GENEVA, Switzerland (UP)—The younger son of the Aga Khan, Sadruddin, will be married in a Gene vasuburb July 15 to former British model Nina Dyer.

CHIEF HAD A BALL
DULUTH, Minn. (UP)—A construction crew scared the chief jailer of the county jail Thursday when they dropped a 3,300 pound steel ball. The ball plunged through the street and into a tunnel connecting the court house and the jail. The jailer was in the tunnel at the time.

"ugh," and added, "there are a good many young fellows coming along to take your place."

"If you don't do something else there comes a day when you turn around and ask, 'Where did everybody go?'"

"That isn't going to happen to me."

"The theater is my transition out of the situation. It will mean traveling a great deal, but I don't mind. I'm happy wherever I am. I don't miss people or things."

Power recently completed a starring role in Darryl Zanuck's "The Sun Also Rises," and will star in a film for his own Copia Productions before leaving for New York.

"Next November I hope to be working in a play in London," he said. "The theater is far more satisfying than pictures."

"Do you want my brain to wear out?"
