

Can Faubus Close It?

Legal Questions Arise On School

By LEE NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Some government officials expressed doubt today that Gov. Orval E. Faubus or the Arkansas legislature can legally desegregate Central High School in Little Rock.

Faubus was on the point of deciding whether to call the legislature into special session to see about closing racially integrated Central High. One possibility he was considering was withdrawal of state funds from Central and reopening it under private sponsorship.

"That would be an act to evade the constitutional rights of the col-

Youths Freed After Talk By Judge Parker

Three local teenage youths appeared in Juvenile Court this morning to answer charges of stealing hubcaps last night.

Juvenile Judge Bruce Parker talked to the three youths and their fathers and released them without any action. He warned them, however, that if they ever appeared in Juvenile Court again, it would probably mean a jail sentence.

The three youths were arrested about 10:30 last night by local officers after a local citizen had seen them taking hubcaps from a 1954 Oldsmobile at the Calvary Baptist Church about 9 p.m. The man had obtained the license number of the youths' car and had given it to the officers.

When the officers stopped the boys they discovered hubcaps other than the ones taken from the 1954 Oldsmobile, owned by Bud Parker, 1057 Huff. The youths admitted taking the other hubcaps from a car parked in the west part of town.

This morning Mrs. John Cunningham, 729 Deason Dr., reported that two hubcaps had been taken from her 1954 Oldsmobile while it was parked near the First Baptist Church last night. The extra hubcaps taken from the youths matched the remaining hubcaps on her car.

The hubcaps were returned to the owners by local officers.

Army Cuts Forces Again

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army pulled in its belt another notch today to meet the economy demands of Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

It said it would replace one of its two 15,000-man armored divisions with a 5,000-man armored combat team. It said it would also abolish 14 Air Defense installations and five aviation construction battalions as well as reduce a combat team in Panama.

The cuts were part of the army's drive to help meet Wilson's order to pare down its overall manpower strength by 100,000 men by the end of the current fiscal year next June 30.

The Army said in a statement last night it would cut its manpower by 11,000 by next Jan. 1 and an additional 20,000 by June 30. It said Wilson's order also may force it to close some Army posts, camps and other installations.

The service said the manpower cuts would be concentrated "among personnel engaged in administrative, logistical and special activity" branches.

But it said Wilson's economy order required changes in its combat structure.

Wilson recently directed the armed forces to trim 200,000 men from their manpower strengths by next June 30. The orders were designed to save about a billion dollars in defense spending.

CoC Directors Meeting Today

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce board of directors was holding its monthly meeting at noon today.

The meeting was taking place in the Palm Room of City Hall. CoC Manager E. O. Wedgeworth said this morning that the nominating committee, chaired by Floyd Watson, would report on its actions in naming new officers.

Other business was slated to be discussion of plans for the annual banquet and the installation dinner for new officers.

Integration In Peaceful Start Second Week

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—The second week of integrated education at Central High School began peacefully today. A reduced force of paratroopers, with bayonets removed from their rifles, stood guard as nine Negro children entered the school without incident.

The Negroes arrived at 8:15 a.m. in an Army station wagon, escorted as usual by two jeeps loaded with paratroopers. One soldier, with a pistol strapped on his belt, escorted them from the car into the building. A small group of white students stood on the steps to watch their arrival, but made no demonstration.

About 200 paratroopers, less than half the number who drove back sullen crowds last Wednesday, ringed the school this morning. The naked bayonets which had been fixed on their M1 rifles last week were conspicuously absent.

No crowds assembled on the streets near the school.

Visitors in Town
Military officials had been prepared for the possibility that there might be a crowd at the school this morning, because thousands of out of town visitors are here for a livestock exposition which began today.

It was thought that curiosity, if not hostility to integration, might draw some of these visitors to the troop-guarded high school. The reporters could find no bystanders on the sidewalks except other reporters.

The novelty had worn off of the spectacle of armed troops ringing the high school, and Little Rock's interest was shifting to political and legal phases of the controversy.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus was expected to decide today whether he will call the state legislature into special session. He said Saturday that a special session might enact legislation aimed at closing Central High School by cutting off state tax funds.

Planned 'Private Institution'
Faubus envisioned reopening the school as a "private institution," a maneuver calculated to remove the federal government's legal justification for using troops to enforce integration.

Political opponents were confident they could defeat Faubus' plan either in the legislature or in the courts. Central High School gets more than 80 per cent of its funds from local taxes which do not pass through state collection and disbursement machinery.

Some local authorities felt the school could continue to operate indefinitely with these funds even if state support were cut off.

They also believed as did legal officials in Washington that federal courts would quickly strike down any special legislation that was aimed solely at integrated schools.

ored children," said one government legal source here in close touch with the Little Rock situation.

"The courts would not permit it. They (the state) would have to close down all the schools in Little Rock, not just the one racially-mixed school in the city."

This official said Arkansas could, if it wished, abolish its entire public school system to avoid integration. But he doubted the people of Arkansas are willing to pay "such a price."

President Eisenhower prepared to return to the capital late today to take personal command of his administration's fight to prevent interference with court-backed integration of Little Rock schools.

He faces a critical conference with five southern governors tomorrow that may decide the course not only of the Little Rock dispute but of southern school integration problems for years to come.

At least four of the five governors are prepared to press hard for prompt withdrawal of federal troops from Little Rock. Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida, one of the four and a so-called southern "moderate," warned today that the "drastic" troop intervention "has driven many people away from a moderate attitude on this problem."

"If we can relieve, it, it will be easier to have more people who are open minded and fair minded to reach an ultimate solution," he told the press.

On the other hand Eisenhower is reported grimly determined that court orders on school integration must not be blocked by mob violence as in Little Rock—even if he has to call out federal troops again.

Two Men Fined In Court Here

A Pampa man was sentenced to 90 days in jail and an Oklahoma man was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail after they pleaded guilty to charges filed against them in County Court this morning.

David Hugh Sutton of Pampa was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors. Sutton told the court that he had purchased beer and whiskey at a local package store and had given it to the youths. He later said that he had not purchased the beer but the judge sentenced him on his plea of guilty.

A plea of guilty on a charge of driving while intoxicated cost Amy Jones of Marlow, Okla., $100 and costs plus three days in jail. Jones was arrested at 4 p.m. Saturday by a local officer after being observed in the 300 block of S. Cuyler.

CIRCUS COMING

The Clyde Beatty Circus will give two performances here Wednesday under the auspices of the local Elks Lodge. The shows will be given at 3 and 8 p.m. at Recreation Park and will feature wild animals, the Zoppe Family doing bareback riding, the Saber-Jets, aerial stars, the Carmenas Duo, head-balancing artists, and many others.

For Texas

Long Range Water Program Proposed

HOUSTON (UP)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson today proposed creation of a statewide water congress to push fulfillment of a water conservation program for Texas aimed at meeting the needs of 1975.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the Intracoastal Canal Association, the Senate Democratic leader warned that "the justified dreams of a prosperous future will quickly vanish unless we act now to control our water resources. We will awaken to the cold grey dawn with nothing on our horizons except clouds of trouble."

Johnson predicted that "an overall water plan for Texas, expected to be initiated in a special legislative session called by Gov. Price Daniel for Oct. 14, will be completed "by sometime next spring."

Bring Users Together
However, he said the co-operative planning work by federal and state authorities must be supplemented by "bringing all the water users together and reaching an understanding of the fact that the problems may be diverse but the solution must be a joint one."

"It would be worthwhile to call a water congress once various plans are available—a congress at which the various users could meet and discuss their reactions."

Basis of Overall Need
"I mean specifically those who are interested in navigation and commerce; in irrigation and reclamation; in flood control; in municipal water supplies; in individual consumption. And it would be well to realize that we have sister states which will be affected and should be considered," Johnson continued.

Congressman Aiming For End To Draft

WASHINGTON (UP)—A New York congressman plans to introduce legislation next year to end the draft.

The congressman, Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn, said it no longer is necessary to force men into military service because the armed forces can get all the men they need through voluntary enlistments.

Furthermore, Celler said, abolishing the draft would save the government 28 million dollars annually in salaries of selective service officials, office rent and other expenses.

The New York Democrat's plan was certain to run up against stiff opposition from the administration. Defense Department officials said that without compulsory service it would be impossible to maintain more than 1,500,000 men in uniform.

But Celler, speaking Sunday over New York radio station WINS, said the draft should be scrapped because "we are not at war, we are not in any emergency" and "inductions by draft are progressively shrinking." He said about 175,000 men will be called up this year compared with 587,000 in 1951.

Severe Storm Hugs Coast Of North Carolina

WILMINGTON, N.C. (UP)—An "unusually severe" coastal storm with 50-mile-an-hour winds, heavy rain and high tides hugged the North Carolina coast today as it advanced towards the northeast.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Raleigh warned that heavy rains which pounced on the coastal area over the weekend and extended as far inland as the Piedmont may cause steep rises in river levels today. Coast Guard officials extended storm warnings as far north as Cape Charles, Va., and expected to move them farther northward as the low pressure storm pushed in that direction.

The weather bureau predicted that the storm center, located off the coast, would continue moving northeastward today.

Gusty winds whipped beaches along the North Carolina coast Sunday and tides ranged as high as five feet above their normal high mark at Wrightsville and Carolina beaches.

Soaked coastal residents sandbagged their homes and watched waves pound and break just offshore. Bill Summers, commanding officer of the Cape Fear squadron of the Civil Air Patrol reported that beach areas were beginning to flood by noon Sunday at Wilmington, Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach.

Water stood two feet in the Carolina Beach police station and covered in many sections of the road at the north end of the beach.

The U.S. Coast Guard in Norfolk, Va., reported that the Cuban motor vessel F.R.U. Cuba "put into Morehead City, N.C., to wait out the storm after finding conditions at sea too rough. The captain said his ship would continue its Havana-New York run after the storm passed."

Members Of Union Plan Legal Move

WASHINGTON (UP)—Attorneys for 13 determined rank-and-file New York Teamsters planned last night legal moves today to block upcoming elections of the union's top officers.

The attorneys, working against a four-day deadline, considered two moves: Requesting the U.S. Court of Appeals for a rehearing on its decision Saturday to allow the elections or carrying their fight to the Supreme Court.

The elections are scheduled for Oct. 4 at the union's Miami Beach convention which opens today. The 13 New York Teamsters charge the convention is stacked to assure election of Midwest Teamster boss James R. Hoffa as union president.

In another development, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said the Teamsters controversy may lead the administration to ask Congress for legislation for some form of supervision over union elections.

Mitchell said he is legally handicuffed from aiding responsible labor leaders to oust racketeers and corrupt union bosses from labor's ranks.

The Appeals Court Saturday overturned a preliminary injunction issued by Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts barring the Teamsters election on request of the New York rank-and-file group.

Hoffa Is Apparently Well Ahead In Teamsters' Race

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent
MIAMI BEACH, (UP)—The Teamsters union convention opened today with controversial James R. Hoffa apparently well ahead in a five-way race for the union's top job.

The corruption charges against Hoffa and other top teamsters were taken back seat to politicking for the $50,000-a-year presidency being vacated by Dave Beck.

A new contender, Teamsters Vice President William A. Lee of Chicago, joined the race and pledged himself to "restore the union's good name." He said he was not anti-Hoffa but merely pro-Lee.

An early test of Hoffa's strength may come in a preliminary report on delegates' credentials expected to reach the floor today. Balloting on the presidential post will be on Friday.

Another contender, Chicago Teamster official Thomas J. Haggerty, protested that more than 175 delegates from 100 locals have been illegally elected and should not be seated. Most of them were committed to Hoffa, he said.

Haggerty's campaign manager, Peter J. Hoban, charged that Lee's candidacy probably was arranged with the approval of "the Beck-Hoffa axis."

The other announced candidates are Teamsters Vice President Thomas L. Hickey and John F. Shelley of San Francisco, Democratic congressman and long-time member of the trucking union.

Little Rock Bigwigs May Face Grand Jury

By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Justice Department attorneys are preparing to go before a federal grand jury here to seek criminal indictments against instigators of mob violence at Central High School.

Some highly-placed persons in Little Rock expect the grand jury to be called into session within a week. They believe the FBI already has enough evidence to obtain indictments against eight or ten men. At least 30 or 40 others are under intensive investigation.

One man in whom the FBI is taking a very active interest is Jimmy Karam, a close personal and political friend of Gov. Orval E. Faubus. Karam operates a clothing store on Little Rock's main street.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann has charged in an official statement to federal authorities that Karam was "one of the principal agitators" of last Monday's disorders at the school, which included President Eisenhower to order in federal troops.

Faubus Himself Involved
Mann also contends that Faubus himself was involved "at least" to the extent that he knew in advance of plans to stir up trouble at the school.

Karam and Faubus deny these charges.

The precise plans of the Justice Department are secret. U.S. Dist. Atty. Osro Cobb replies "no comment" to all questions.

But it is anticipated, by those in a position to know a good deal about the preparations, that the government will seek indictments charging a criminal conspiracy to obstruct justice by encouraging defiance of federal court orders.

Violence Last Monday
There are several federal statutes which make this a serious crime. Conviction under any one of them could be punished by a substantial prison sentence.

The violence federal agents are particularly interested in happened last Monday. That was the day the nine Negroes slipped into a side entrance to the school while 1,000 persons were beating four Negro newsmen who arrived at the same time.

The mob got out of hand and threatened to break through the lines of police who were then guarding Central High and invade the school. The Negroes were removed by police for their own safety.

Federal agents take the view that the mob was not an accident. They are proceeding on the idea that it was inspired and carefully directed. FBI agents in the mob spotted and followed the leaders.

British Trawler Sinks In One Of Two Ship Collisions

LONDON (UP)—The U.S. Navy destroyer Purdy collided with and sank a 135-ton British trawler Sunday in the North Sea 125 miles east of Flamborough Head, England, it was announced in London.

There were no serious casualties. All crew members of the British trawler, the British Columbia, were taken aboard the Purdy which was bringing them to Loestoft.

The Purdy was only slightly damaged. The destroyer left Norfolk, Va., early last month to take part in NATO maneuvers.

BRISBANE, Australia (UP)—The 20,000-ton liner New Australia with 1,000 passengers aboard collided with the Norwegian tanker France Stove in Torres Straits Sunday night. Neither ship was reported badly damaged and no casualties were reported.

The New Australia and the 16,000-ton Norwegian tanker have to at the scene of the accident. Both were expected to proceed to their destinations today after crewmen make a more thorough investigation.

The New Australia is the former liner Monarch of Bermuda and was renamed in 1949 when bought by the British Ministry of Transport.

Curfew In Haiti Extended

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UP)—Haiti's military junta extended an island-wide curfew Sunday in the wake of the slaying of four soldiers by armed raiders.

Military authorities said a band of unidentified civilians armed with automatic weapons raided a guardpost at the mountain resort town of Kenscoff less than 15 miles from Port Au Prince early Sunday. They said the raiders killed the sentry and three other soldiers. A corporal sleeping in another room was unharmed.

It was the first incident of violence since the disputed presidential elections last week. The junta Friday imposed martial law and ordered a 10 p.m. curfew on sight. The curfew was moved up to 8 p.m. last night.

There has been no word on the whereabouts of defeated presidential candidate Louis Dejoie, who disappeared from his home here after accusing the junta of rigging the elections in favor of Francois Duvalier.

The junta countercharged that supporters of Dejoie were plotting a rebellion.

When Princess Margaret recently celebrated her 27th birthday without a husband in sight, British writers loyally pointed out that the princess still has plenty of time to find her Prince Charming and that after all, many a woman is her most attractive self in her late 20's.

But the fact remains that from a marriage point of view the princess is "getting on." The small circle of eligible bachelors that flattered around her is thinning out as more and more of them are led to the altar by other girls. Her field of choice is becoming more limited with each year.

It can even happen to a princess — this waiting around to marry until the cream of the crop has been plucked.

It happens often to American girls, particularly the ones with career ambitions.

While career-minded girls are glorying in making their own way up the success ladder, girls who realize that the best husband-hunting years are limited grab off the eligible men.

Not until they begin to notice that the telephone doesn't ring as often as it used to, that the mail is bringing baby announcements from friends their own age do the career girls begin to wonder if they haven't put off thinking about marriage too long.

Be she a rising young career girl — or even a princess — a girl's best friend so far as marriage is concerned is her early 20's. Before that she isn't likely to have enough judgment to know whether a young man will make a good husband.

After that, she all too often discovers that the best husband material is already firmly hooked. It doesn't much matter why a girl lets her best marrying years slip away from her. The end of the story is usually the same.

The girl who doesn't take advantage of best-marriage years either slips into spinsterhood or takes a husband from what is left after the more enterprising young women have chosen.

Stuffed Knockwurst's Tasty, Also Eases Budget Strain

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

High food prices are worrying a lot of homemakers these days. We think this dinner, with stuffed knockwurst served with crisp potato chips, will ease the budget strain and satisfy the family at the same time.

Stuffed Knockwurst (6 servings)

Eight knockwurst (about 2 pounds), 2 slices day-old bread, 1/2 teaspoon celery salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper, 1 7-ounce can whole kernel corn, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Heat oven to 375 degrees F (moderately hot). Slice each knockwurst almost through lengthwise. Crumble bread, crusts and all, into a bowl. Add celery salt, pepper, onion, green pepper and corn. Toss to blend well. Pack stuffing firmly into the slits in the knockwurst and arrange them in a shallow, oblong baking dish on a shallow, oblong baking dish on a shallow, oblong baking dish on a shallow, oblong baking dish. Pour about 1/4 cup hot water into the pan around the knockwurst. Drizzle the melted butter over the stuffing. Cover and bake for 20 to 25 minutes at 375 degrees F, or until sizzling hot. Serve with crispy potato chips.

Sauerkraut Slaw (6 servings)

Four cups finely shredded cabbage (about 1/2 large head), 1 1-pound can sauerkraut, 1 large crisp dill pickle, 2-3 cup thick commercial sour cream, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon onion salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Combine shredded cabbage and sauerkraut, breaking up the kraut with a fork to blend well. Dice half of the dill pickle and add to the slaw. Combine sour cream, lemon juice, onion salt, pepper and mustard. Pour into the slaw and toss with a fork to blend. Garnish with dill pickle slices from the remaining half pickle.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Stuffed knockwurst, crisp potato chips, buns, butter or margarine, sauerkraut slaw, jelly glazed baked apples, coffee, tea, milk.

Chase Onion Scent With Water 'N Talc

By ALICIA HART

NEA Beauty Editor

Onions are not only healthful, they're indispensable to a salad and to many other dishes. But no one ever labeled them a beauty aid.

The hostess who comes from the kitchen to greet her guests with an outstretched hand that wafts onion odors could be called socially backward. Even though she's wearing her favorite perfume, it's safe to say that the onion scent will come out on top every time.

Best way to solve the problem is to peel the onion with cold water running. Either peel it directly under the stream of water or frequently let the water play over the hands during the peeling. This will both kill the scent and keep your eyes from watering.

When the job is over, wash your hands, dry them carefully and use a little scented talc in the palms. The cold water and the talc should turn the trick and make you socially acceptable.

The talc is a good idea as follow-up to other kitchen tasks. It belongs on a shelf in the kitchen together with mirror, hand lotion, comb and lipstick.

AROUND THE WORLD

FLOORED—Isidro Martinez hits the canvas during the seventh round of a 10-round feather-weight bout in Washington with Davy Moore. Moore, ranked 10th, scored an upset victory over his sixth ranked opponent by winning a unanimous decision.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY—Detroit Tigers' outfielder Bill Tuttle celebrates his 28th birthday with some cake before a double header with the Indians in Cleveland. The Indians were in no mood to help Tuttle celebrate, for they beat his team, 3-1. The Tigers bounced back in the second game to win, 4-3, and that helped make Tuttle's birthday a happy one.

NEW LOOK—New York Yankees' catcher Yogi Berra wears eyeglasses for the first time as he steps up to the plate for some batting practice in a warm up session for a game with the Kansas City Athletics. Yogi has yet to wear the glasses in an actual game. We hope they help his batting eye.

BOYER IS OUT—St. Louis Cardinals' Ken Boyer (14) tears into second base in an attempt to break up a double play in the first game of a double header between the Cardinals and the Philadelphia Phillies in Philadelphia. Boyer was out with the play going from the Phillies' Chico Fernandez (rear) to Granny Hamner (center). Philadelphia won, 6-2.

HE LOST THE RACE BUT WON A SMILE—Czech runner Emil Zatopek is greeted by Mrs. Olga Conolly, wife of American Olympic hammerthrow ace Harold Conolly, after the 5,000 meter race in the International Athletic Competition held at the Bislett track in Oslo, Norway. Zatopek placed third, behind another Czech, Misolav Jurek, and Norwegian Ernst Larsen.

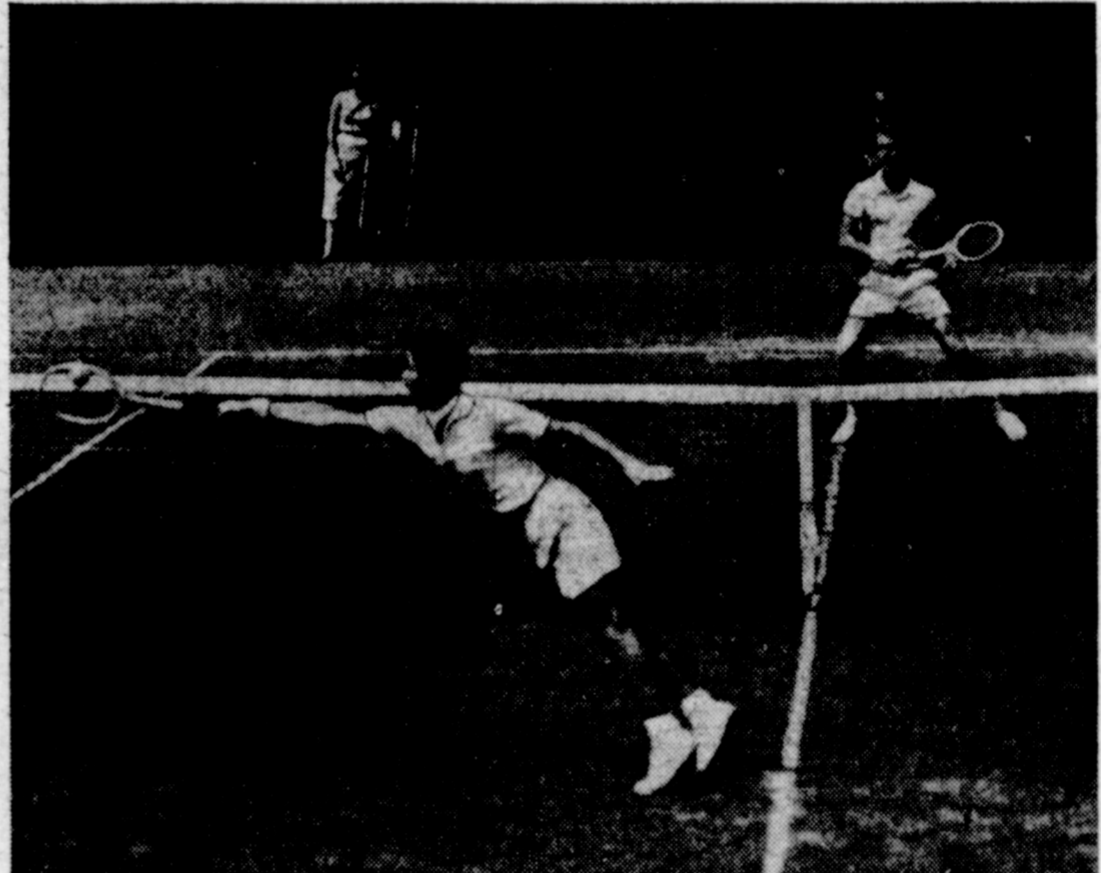

THEREBY HANGS A TAIL—Six-year-old Beverly Berger's hat may not be a Paris creation, but it allows her pony tail full freedom. Beverly was among 300 youngsters taking part in the Clinton, Kan., Kids' Fishing Derby.

STAR BOARDER—Pretty Swiss dancer Cecile Mustchard, 19, perches gracefully on a diving board at Monte Carlo as she relaxes between rehearsals for her opening in Monaco. She recently made her debut in Geneva.

REFRESHMENT TIME—Eight-year-old Betty Lynn Price doesn't have to worry about leading her horse to water or making him drink at Columbia, S. C. She just offers her pet, Little Man, a drink of soda pop, which Dobbin downs right out of the bottle. Little Man drinks a bottle a day during the hot summer months to keep himself cooled off.

CHAMPS IN ACTION—Tennis' newest pro, Australia's Lew Hoad (rear), labors hard against his countryman Ken Rosewall at the Tournament of Champions, Forest Hills, N. Y., but it was love's labor lost. Rosewall defeated the Wimbledon champ, 6-3, 9-7, 4-6, 6-3.

UP AND OVER—E. L. Scott of Yale University wears a look of grim determination as he clears six feet in the high jump event at White City Stadium in London. The jump enabled Scott to qualify for the finals of the A.A.A. Championships.

NEW JOB—Alice Marble, who won the women's singles title at Wimbledon in 1939 and was four times U. S. women's singles champ, sits behind a microscope at a doctor's office in Encino, Calif., where she works as a nurse's assistant. At 43, she still likes to play tennis, but has no desire to compete with today's top-notch players.

SOGGY CHEESECAKE—No wonder skin-diving and underwater photography are gaining such widespread popularity, if subjects like pretty Betty Connell are to be found in the deep. The Robber Barons

Not long ago, Walter Reuther of the UAW made a suggestion to the automotive industry. He implied that a new round of wage increases was on the horizon, but that if the industry would begin now, by cutting the costs of all cars by $100, when bargaining time came around, he and his stooges would be a little more gentle with management and not ask for such a great big hunk of earned increment.

A number of leading automotive manufacturers got into the act and had a few things to say in reply. One of the best comments, we thought, came from Henry Ford II. He said in part, "I will accept an immediate reduction in wages to the levels prevailing at the introduction of our 1957 models, we will take this into consideration in determining how much we will increase prices of our 1958 models."

Well, that is fair enough. For this is exactly what Mr. Reuther's suggestion was in reverse.

What all of us ought to have in mind is this: Suppose that we lived in an age in which robber barons rode into town occasionally to exact tribute. These robber barons lived in a remote castle and were protected there by the powers of the king. The king sometimes had a use for the great armies kept and maintained by these robber barons. Therefore, he was unwilling to punish them, despite their lawless and truculent ways. He never knew but what he might have to call on these barons to pull him out of a bad political situation, so he was accustomed to grant them considerable leeway in connection with laws which other people had to obey.

So, periodically, the robber barons rode into town. They had no ideas which would increase the productivity or the well-being of the people in the town. What they wanted was plunder. And since they were powerful most of the townspeople felt they had to grin and bear the burden. In their hearts they knew the barons were immoral and terribly cruel and unjust. But, they also knew that despite the handicaps they suffered because of this annual tribute, the tribute was never large enough at any one time to completely bankrupt the community.

So the townspeople concentrated on raising whatever amount of tribute they figured the robber barons would ask for.

Of course there were a few people in the town who understood economics. These people pointed out that what the robber barons were doing was to rob and not to give to the poor, as they claimed. They explained that in the entire countryside, the robber barons took out of the economy something close to $100 million per month for which no useful goods or services were provided. And they further pointed out that wealth is composed of goods and services and not money.

Thus, the persons in the town who took the trouble to think the matter through came up with this conclusion: The robber barons only took specie. That is, they never bothered their victims with picking up real wealth. What they wanted was money, which they scooped up in ever increasing amounts through the years. And of course, the more money they took the less money there was in comparison with the real wealth. This caused the king to print more money to make up for what was stolen, and this caused the prices of everything in town to go up. Consequently, savings dried up and there was less and less money to invest in tools so that more and more real goods and services (wealth) could be produced.

This way the robber barons were cheating everyone. How long do you think a town can exist if it is robbed of about $100 million per month?

The big joke of the whole thing was that the robber barons were cheating themselves. Certainly they got more money. No one could refuse their demands because if anyone did they beat him up, told lies about him, and generally destroyed productive incentives. But the more money the robber barons took, the less that money was worth in terms of goods and services. This was because only that money is real which relates to real things. Thus, if money is taken out of productive channels by means of force and violence, then there will be less money in productive channels and that means fewer jobs and fewer goods and services to divide among the townspeople.

But some way, a great many people still believe today that robber barons are good because they pretend to give to the poor. Some one should explain to the people that such money does no good in the long run. When money is taken out of productive channels, even if it is given to the poor, it does not help. It only serves to keep the poor dependent and to rob them of better jobs and more money that they could earn in an honest manner.

The Doctor Says

RESPONSIBILITY FOR CHILD'S EYE CARE RESTS WITH PARENTS

It has been estimated by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness that about nine million of the United States' 36 million school children need some form of eye care. Some who need this care and do not receive it may become blind. Others are likely to go through life with serious handicaps in education and psychology, as a result.

The responsibility for obtaining eye care for children who need it rests first with the parents. Youngsters often do not know that they have eye trouble. Even if they do, they are unlikely to talk about it. Impaired vision can cause discomfort and maladjustment in school. It is sometimes followed by truancy and delinquency.

ACCORDING TO one New York educator, loss of an eye through injury may be responsible for disobedience, quarrelsomeness, temper tantrums, truancy and cruelty. Crossed eyes produce an emotional as well as visual difficulty. Youngsters who are near-sighted may engage too much in solitary activities not conducive to mental health. The farsighted youngster may become lazy, inattentive, extroverted or mischievous in school.

MOST VISUAL defects in youngsters can be corrected by glasses. However, some may need other forms of treatment.

There are certain precautions which parents should take: Keep sharp instruments away from children; make sure toys are suitable for the child's age; supervise play as much as possible and teach a child never to rub his eyes with dirty hands.

THUS the problem becomes one of avoiding injury, identifying defects as early as possible and taking corrective measures. Awareness on the part of the parents that difficulties in school reflect some eye disorder is particularly important.

September has been labeled "Sight-Saving Month." During this month the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 1790 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y., will distribute a small booklet entitled "A Word to the Wise" to parents who wish to watch for clues of possible eye defects in their children.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Holies
Union Printer's Letter
With Answer

I am continuing to quote from a letter from a union printer R. B. Burwell. In the last issue I quoted his contention that I had not offered any constructive method of arriving at a fair and just wage, excepting the right to make an individual contract and freedom. Then he said, "As for freedom: Freedom to do what?" and continued with the following statements:

"Freedom to work for low wages (and-or long hours?); freedom to worry about how to pay bills and go into debt?; freedom to deny my children a good education?; freedom to deny my family joy and satisfaction of a full life?"

"Thank you, No. I much prefer to eat well; freedom to spend more time with my family; freedom to indulge in my hobbies; freedom to study and learn and so better myself; freedom to give my children a good start in life; freedom to retain my self-respect as an honest workman; freedom to respect the boss for giving me a day's pay for a day's work—freedom in short that I find only through membership in my union."

"When I first became acquainted with The Register I was not a strong union man. On the contrary I had unlimited trust in the fundamental decency of management as evidenced by the fact I asked only for an opportunity to prove myself and to be paid according to my worth. My faith was very much misplaced."

"Then I began to wonder, remembering the old truism about there being two sides to every story, if any organization possibly could be as wicked as you would have your readers believe unions are. So I investigated."

"I was agreeably surprised to learn that in the main, unions are not composed of racketeers, blackmailers and thieves but rather of honest, conscientious, God-fearing men and women who, while demanding and receiving a fair recompense for their labor, are just as eager to give management an honest day's work in return."

"Which is why today I am a proud and loyal member of the International Typographical Union."

"For which I thank you." My Comment
Certainly Mr. Burwell has a strange understanding of the meaning of freedom. Freedom, of course, includes the right to make mistakes, the right to choose, but freedom is liberty that our Founding Fathers pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to support does not include the right to do anything that injures anybody else.

I wonder whether Mr. Burwell does not care much for freedom, because the printer's union, according to its oath, requires members to put the printer's union before their God, their conscience, their family, their church, their lodge, their government. And they have sworn to put the changeable will of the union, whatever it may be, above eternal principles such as the Golden Rule, the Love Commandment, the Declaration of Independence and the Decalogue.

Mr. Burwell implies that freedom takes away from an individual his ability to pay his bills. It gives them, of course, the right to go into debt. He also implies that freedom denies a parent the right and ability to bring about a condition that will enable his children to have an opportunity to get a good education; that it denies the family the joy and satisfaction of a full life. It is a little hard to understand how anybody can have a full life who surrenders his right to choose, as does one who takes the oath the printers are obliged to take, that puts the union above the individual's right to choose.

Freedom gives the individual the freedom to eat well, if he eats well by serving his fellowman well. Freedom gives the individual the right to spend more time with his family, provided he serves his fellowman better; to indulge in his hobbies, for the same reason; freedom to study and learn; to live in harmony with the great moral laws that the union subordinates to the printer's union.

It is hard to comprehend how freedom to make an individual contract and to serve mankind, interferes with a man developing his faculties so that he can give more to his children to start a better life. It is especially hard for anyone to understand how any man can retain his own self-respect when he joins an organization that requires him to strike and try to injure others in order that he may intimidate his employer to pay more than the worker can get from other employers.

Matty Fox—Little Man With Big Ideas

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

SAN FRANCISCO — Vaguely it comes to mind that during the day, a weird, impalpable gremlin flitted hither and yon and touched down in out of the way places to inscribe in chalk or paint "Kilroy was here."

With fascinating persistency, even since the war, a redoubtable promoter of colossal projects with a knack for personal, though often flimsy, publicity has been touching the bases of high finance and speculation and leaving his gaudy challenge written in the skies — "Matty Fox was here."

Matty Fox has been in San Francisco for a long time. He is a former pay-TV, to hear his harbingers tell it, preparing to visualize the ball games of the San Francisco Giants come next grass on a closed circuit arrangement with a box-office potential of billions. Well, if not billions, then hundreds of millions.

An official of the city of San Francisco with a legal and mathematical mind sat in his office in the City Hall a few days ago and agreed with Matty's advocates that the boy certainly goes for the chunk. In this instance two corporations are involved, both with the synthetic word "Skiatron" worked into their titles.

Matty Fox's layout is Skiatron Television, Inc., which made a bold reach for the exclusive rights to these games. The appropriate city department had just analyzed Mr. Fox's proposals and read up on his past performances in Hollywood; as social host to the high brass in London during the war when he was only a warrant officer, and his greatest cast to date, his American-Indonesian Corporation.

Eugene Garey, a Wall Street lawyer, drew up the papers for that, and insisted that it was absolutely ethical, fine and good. The late Johnny Burns of Boston, who also had an office in Wall Street, examined the contract which Garey had composed and wrote his considered opinion that it was a fantastic attempt by a small promoter to establish an equivalent of the stupendous East India Company which was the foundation of Queen Victoria's Indian Empire.

Johnny Burns wrote: "It is fantastic to find in this supposedly enlightened age an arrangement so strongly reminiscent of the 16th Century when private companies were authorized under government charter to enjoy monopolistic privileges in colonial exploitation. Indonesia is obviously in a necessary condition and may be excused for accepting a harsh bargain. The corporation is made the sole agent for the exportation to and the importation from the United States of all commodities. It is the sole agent for the negotiation of developments or financing by American interests."

The State Department got into the act, apparently in sympathy with Matty Fox of Hollywood, who had also marked time briefly with the small war plants administration in the Washington mazes. And in New York, after the war, Matty threw in with Major General Royal B. Lord, late of the Corps of Engineers, in a firm called the World-Wide Corporation. This association soon dissolved because, as General Lord said, Matty's ideas were too big for practical achievement.

RETAILERS AND INFLATION (Industrial News Review)

People may get the idea that retailers are not deeply concerned with price inflation — on the theory that all any retailer has to do when costs go up is to add some more pennies or dollars to his price tags and let the consumer like it or lump it.

That idea is 100 per cent wrong. As editor Godfrey M. Lebar of Chain Store Age writes, "No factor which retailers consider in planning for the future can be more important than the purchasing power of the dollar. It affects not only their own capital expenditures but more importantly it affects their sales prospects."

As an example of the last, he cites the many consumers who live on fixed incomes or whose buying power falls for some reason to keep pace with rising prices. When prices go up, these people are forced to curtail their purchasing.

There is another big factor here too. Human nature being what it is, we often tend to blame the retailer for price increases. He is the man we deal with when we other public places" should be subject to regulation by the board of supervisors, the committee now inserted the words "approval and installation" now would require not only regulation subsequently but "approval" beforehand. The committee thought this a very important reservation.

By Matty's original form the franchise would have given his company for a period of 20 years the right to build, equip, maintain and operate in, on or under present and future "public places" all apparatus required for a closed-circuit TV system. The term "public places" included all the public parks, the council chamber, even the mayor's own office. So the importance of the word "approval" is even more emphatic.

But Matty can't be ruled off for trying. His imagination is audacious and his gall the envy of all promoters. One of these days he will hit the payoff and the world will agree that Matty Fox was there.

For Bargains Abroad; Appear Un-American

By HENRY McEldore

NAPLES — There are two prices in Europe for everything. One price is for Americans, and the other is for everybody else. It is hardly necessary to say that the American one is much the higher. To say that Europeans believe that money grows on trees in America is not wholly true — they believe that it grows on bushes, small shrubs, and weeds as well.

Americans who speak the language of the countries they visit often get the non-American prices, and are the envy of the vast majority of us who are as one-tongued as a wagon. But we one-tongued don't roll over and play dead before the foreign shopkeepers. We put up a fight in shops to cloak our Americanism, and use all manner of tricks in the hope of being mistaken for citizens of some other country.

One of the tricks I often use is surliness. As most Americans abroad are happy, laughing, easy-going folk, I make it a point to glower when I go into a shop, and am not above uttering a snarl. Better to be mistaken for a grouch at half-price than an American at double the price.

Another ruse that has served me well is to ask the proprietor, in a sort of pidgin English, the name of the President of the United States, all the while looking as blank as possible. The shopkeeper may put you down as an idiot for not knowing of Ike, which is what all Europeans call him, too, but he isn't likely to give you the full "Stars and Stripes" price. It's a bit hard on one's pride, yes, but ever so much gentler, on one's purse.

One of my American friends here in Italy has had great success with a turban and three or four well memorized phrases in Hindu. He poses as an Indian, and while he doesn't look any more like an Indian than, say, Tony Galento, he comes up with some rock-bottom prices. I watched him at work in a leather goods store here, and he came out with a wallet at almost half of what I had to pay, even though I had worn a terrific scowl and asked help in naming our President.

Another help in throwing shop owners off the scent that one is an American, is to ride up to the shop on a bicycle. If you do this in Germany and wearing a peasant blouse she had bought in Bavaria. It is fatal to go into a shop wearing all American type clothes. They are a dead give away. You might just as well be whistling "The Yellow Rose of Texas" or waving a small Old Glory. Wear something to break up the American ensemble. I have made small savings just by wearing a deerstalker cap, or an Italian shirt with one of those collars cut to accommodate a knot as big as a pineapple.

Inflation Serious Threat To Nation, Republicans

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has finally decided that continuing inflation constitutes the most serious threat to the nation's economy and to the Republican Party's success in the 1958-1960 elections.

The dangerous depreciation of money values, including wages, pensions and investment income, overshadows — in fact, underlies — such politically superficial issues as the cold war, racial integration, labor corruption, the farm revolt, national defense, etc. In essence, all these national and international difficulties boil down to the future value of the dollar, which has resulted in a sharp loss in terms of purchasing power and financial security.

Private political research by GOP agents reveals that inflation in short, excessively high living costs — is the principal worry of the American people, from Wall Street to the humblest home. The grave questions listed above — and must — disturb the White House; the State Department and the Pentagon.

IKER'S STAFF — It is for these reasons that, in the face of considerable opposition inside and outside White House circles, Eisenhower has organized this country's first National Economic Staff. It consists of the head of the Federal Reserve System, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers and Eisenhower's personal assistant on economic matters.

This is the first time that the government's experts in this field have been consolidated for an attack on problems of money, credit, public and private spending and all their combined effect on the economy. Too often in the past, especially the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, they have been before combined their talents and resources.

ACTION FORCED — Several untoward developments have forced the Presidential hand and action. Eisenhower first sought to check do our shopping, and he becomes the scapegoat when we are displeased. It will be remembered that, just after the war when inflation set in hard, consumer groups actually picketed stores on the grounds that retailers were responsible. The truth is that retailers themselves can do little about inflation. Current studies — including one from the Labor Department — intimate or indicate that excessive wage increases have been mainly at fault, and retailers have no control over those. But retailers — like all the rest of us — are deeply concerned, and would like nothing better than price stability.

Phillips Is Expanding Berger Plant
BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (UP)—The largest plant in the world for processing and refining natural gas liquids is being expanded at Berger, Tex., by the Phillips Petroleum Co., the company announced today.

Officials said the new unit, the first of its kind, will convert normal pentane, a natural gas liquid with an 85 octane number, to isopentane, which has an octane rating of about 105.

Company Chairman K. S. Adams said the company's Berger facilities are not only the largest in the world for separating various components of natural gas liquids, but it also receives the greatest volume of these materials.

The new unit will use the Penex process, developed by Universal Oil Products Co. The unit is expected to be completed during the first quarter of 1958, Adams said.

Truck Tires And Rims Are Stolen Near Miami

Two 925 x 20 truck tires and the rims were removed from the truck crusher of Ray Boswell, local paving contractor, sometime over the week end, according to Sheriff Cy Cobb of Miami.

The sheriff told The News this morning that the persons responsible for the theft had jacked the heavy crusher up as far as they could and then had dug out from under the large tires to remove them.

Cobb placed the value of the tires at approximately $200 each. "It was apparently someone that knew the layout," the sheriff said, "because the crusher, which is located on the A. A. Smith ranch about 11 miles northeast of Pampa, could not be seen from the road."

He concluded by stating, "It will probably take time but we will locate the tires."

INTEGRATION

against instigators of the mob violence which broke up an attempt to enroll the Negro youths at Central High last Monday. They said a federal grand jury, already empaneled but now in recess, may be called into session within a week.

Officials in Washington intimated that federal troops will be kept in Little Rock until the alleged ringleaders of the mob are tried on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice. This plan conforms with the expectations of many influential persons here.

Other developments in the Little Rock integration crisis: —U. S. Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.), a moderate on the integration question, appealed to President Eisenhower in an interview to withdraw the troopers and replace them with the federalized National Guard.

—Thousands of persons from the country and small towns crowded into Little Rock for the Arkansas Livestock Exposition. Authorities watched them closely for signs of trouble.

Executive editor Harry Ashmore of the Arkansas Gazette charged in a television interview (Face the Nation—CBS) that Faubus created the Little Rock school crisis basically for his own political gain.

—Former Gov. Sid McMath said in a television interview (Outlook—NBC) that he didn't think Faubus wanted violence, but that his speeches and actions encouraged it.

BRIDGE BOO-BOO
—PARIS (UP)—French officials have admitted they made a mistake when they built a new $30,000 bridge near Orly Air Field as part of the Southern Expressway from Paris. It did not take into account a planned extension of Orly runways for the use of jet transports. The bridge was blown up Saturday. It will be replaced by a tunnel.

Speaking of prospects for war and peace, the 81-year-old chancellor said "I think it is improbable that the Russians will attempt any diversion abroad because they are quite aware that the U. S. is stronger than the Soviet Union and that they would probably destroy themselves by war. What is particularly important is that the Russians should not be given any reason to believe that the free world is letting up in its watchfulness."

No Present Crisis
Adenauer continued "I have never concealed my belief that world peace is constantly threatened by many dangers. The Suez crisis is an example of how quickly a source of danger can develop into a crisis that threatens the peace. This situation of constant dangers forces us to be constantly on the alert and continually ready to defend ourselves."

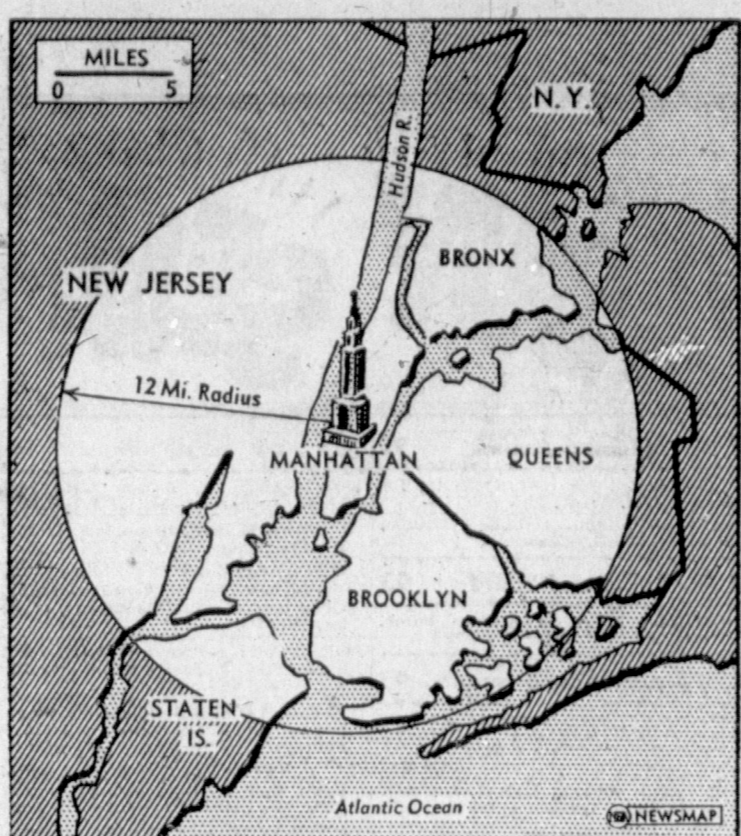

"Watchfulness and readiness of the free world to defend itself are, I believe, an effective guarantee against the outbreak of war," he added. "At the moment I see no acute danger of war comparable to the Suez crisis. But peace can be regarded as assured only if a true relaxation of tension in international relations is achieved."

Asked about reports that he might visit the U. S. again next year, Adenauer said he did not believe such a trip would be possible at the beginning of the year. "But," he added, "it is obvious that I like from time to time to meet with President Eisenhower, Secretary Dulles and other U. S. leaders and to hear their opinions."

Adenauer expressed the conviction that the Soviets are "highly interested" in reaching a disarmament agreement with the West. Danger Still Present

HOT FEET, HOT TRIAL—Sue Sarafian, 24, gives her weary feet a rest at the entrance to the Los Angeles courtroom where the scandal trial of Confidential magazine is being heard. Sue stuck to her post ahead of long lines of eager spectators seeking entrance to the spicy hearings.

SMALL MARGIN—If what the Russians are saying is true, their new missile would have to land somewhere in circle shown on Newsmag if they aimed it at the Empire State Building. Soviet Maj. Gen. G. I. Povroski said calculations show the Red's intercontinental ballistic missile has a "possible margin of error" of only 6-12 miles. The weapon, he said, "can reach any place on the globe."

Adenauer Doubts Reds Will Start War

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
BONN, Germany, Sept. 28 (UP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today it is unlikely the Russians will start a war now because "they are quite aware that the U. S. is stronger than the Soviet Union and that they probably would destroy themselves."

However, he warned against any one-sided cut in the West's armed forces.

He said that for "psychological reasons" alone, it would be wrong for the West to slash its defenses without winning anything in return from the Soviets.

In an interview with the United Press, the veteran West German chancellor said his landslide victory in the Sept. 15 general election also served as a warning to the Soviets of the West's determination.

Relaxed and showing no signs of the grueling election battle, Adenauer said that through his victory "the German people demonstrated their full endorsement of the policy of the German federal government."

Progress in Reunification
Adenauer made these other main points:

—West Germany's policy will continue to be based on close membership of the Western Alliance.

—West Germany will fulfill its NATO arms commitments but will not speed up its rearmament timetable.

—He expects to see substantial progress toward German reunification during the next four years. The West must continue patiently showing the Soviets that it is wrong for them to block a United Germany.

—West Germany will continue to support any western policy "that can lead to honorable progress in the disarmament issue."

—There is no acute war danger today such as there was at the time of the Suez crisis a year ago.

—Speaking of prospects for war and peace, the 81-year-old chancellor said "I think it is improbable that the Russians will attempt any diversion abroad because they are quite aware that the U. S. is stronger than the Soviet Union and that they would probably destroy themselves by war. What is particularly important is that the Russians should not be given any reason to believe that the free world is letting up in its watchfulness."

"But," he added, "it is obvious that I like from time to time to meet with President Eisenhower, Secretary Dulles and other U. S. leaders and to hear their opinions."

Adenauer expressed the conviction that the Soviets are "highly interested" in reaching a disarmament agreement with the West. Danger Still Present

"The dangers of a nuclear war threaten the peoples of the Soviet Union no less than other nations," he said. "In a modern air war—one need not take atomic weapons into consideration—Russia for the first time in her history would no longer enjoy the strategic advantage conferred by her vast area."

He warned, however, that until the Kremlin rulers clearly realize this, "the attitude of the West should be governed by extreme caution."

Adenauer said his government still hopes an international disarmament agreement will make it not necessary for the new West German Bundeswehr to be equipped with A-weapons.

"But," he warned, "if such a disarmament agreement is not reached, it will be essential to equip the Bundeswehr with the most modern weapons suitable for its mission."

He added that U. S. and other allied troops in Germany "obviously must be given the opportunity to take all necessary military defense measures."

Fall Harvest Starts At Panhandle

PAHNHANDLE — The fall harvest was officially opened Thursday when C. H. Bell and Phil Hawkins brought in loads of Milo.

The 610 Hybrid raised by Bell on the old airport land west of the city was delivered to Kimbell elevators, while the Martin Milo raised by Hawkins on the land of Mrs. E. E. Ellis, three miles east of Panhandle, was taken to H. J. Hughes Elevators.

Attempts of others to harvest last week were halted by the high moisture content in the grain.

Jim and Bob Meeaskey harvested their irrigated crop, just west of the Santa Fe tracks on FM highway 283 by turning it into ensilage which averaged 20 tons per acre on the 70 acre plot.

Correction
The story in Friday's paper in regards to Hugh Burdette and E. L. Green Jr. of Cabot leaving for Europe was in error in that it stated that Burdette was president of the Texas Butadiene and Chemical Corporation of Houston.

It should have listed Green as president of the Houston firm.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Charles A. Lutzenberg, 79, longtime theatrical booking agent and former drama editor for the old Press Union newspapers here, died Saturday.
