

Government Appeals For Crude Oil Production Boost

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—The government appealed Saturday for an immediate increase in U.S. crude oil production and cutbacks in domestic refinery operations to step up emergency oil shipments to Western Europe.

The appeal, directed both to the oil industry and to state agencies such as the Texas Railroad Commission which regulate crude oil output, was made in a statement by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Felix E. Wormser.

It followed a report by the Interior Department Friday that U.S. oil shipments to Europe are falling far short of the 500,000 barrels a day this country undertook to supply to help replace Mid-East oil cut off by blocking of the Suez Canal. Shipments from the Gulf Coast to Europe in the week ending Jan. 17 were 275,000 barrels daily.

European Supply 'Critical' Wormser warned that the European supply situation is "critical" and said NATO countries vital to U.S. security will be "seriously undermined" unless the economic effects of the shortage are quickly relieved.

He said Europe can get by on gasoline through rationing, but shortages of fuel oil and other distillates for industrial power and heat threaten to have a "most severe impact."

The only way in which U.S. crude shipments to Europe "can continue at anything approaching a satisfactory rate," he said, is to increase U.S. crude oil production, or reduce domestic refinery runs which currently emphasize gasoline rather than fuel oil output.

Wormser also revealed the Defense Department has promised to make available limited quantities of its military oil reserves to meet domestic spot shortages of fuel oil if any such result from increased shipments to Europe.

US Is Seeking Endorsement Of Doctrine

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—The United States hopes to win a solid endorsement of the Eisenhower Middle East doctrine from King Saud of Saudi Arabia, when the Arab monarch visits here next week.

Officials feel a Saudi statement of approval could do much to sell the President's plan in the turbulent area and thwart Russian designs on its rich oil fields.

King Saud, a strong anti-Communist, is believed to favor the Eisenhower plan but wants more details on how it will work.

The tall, bespectacled king, one of the last absolute monarchs of the world, arrives in New York with a retinue of more than 80. He comes to Washington to begin a state visit with Mr. Eisenhower the following day.

The United States is rolling out its most sumptuous red carpet in an effort to impress the king. A squadron of five Navy destroyers will meet the liner Constitution carrying the king and escort it into New York harbor. Before (See ENDORSEMENT, Page 2)

Ike Doctrine Approval Is Expected By Demos

Congressional OK Is Seen By Sometime In February

By PAUL SOUTHWICK
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—Democratic leaders expect President Eisenhower's controversial Middle East doctrine to be approved by Congress without substantial change sometime in February, it was learned Saturday.

But Democratic disenchantment with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' conduct of foreign policy seems certain to touch off a full-scale examination of administration policies not only in the Middle East but in other world trouble spots.

The House Foreign Affairs committee, in a formal report Saturday on the Eisenhower Middle East resolution, urged the House to approve it as a blunt warning to Russia that the United States will use force if necessary to halt any Soviet attempt to subjugate the Middle East.

Positive Measures Demanded But the committee, noting the President's plan deals only with immediate military and economic threats, called on the administration to prepare "positive and comprehensive measures for dealing with the fundamental problems of the Middle East."

The House is scheduled to begin debate Tuesday on the resolution which would grant, with only minor changes, Mr. Eisenhower's request for authority to use U.S. military force to resist any open Communist attack on a Middle East nation seeking U.S. help.

The resolution also would allow the President to use up to $200 million of already appropriated foreign aid funds as the start of a new $600 million economic-military aid program for the Middle East.

House debate will be conducted under a rule barring amendments. Both Democratic and Republican leaders are confident the measure will be approved, probably by nightfall Wednesday.

Highly-placed Senate sources likewise voiced confidence Saturday that the intensified Democratic assault on Dulles' conduct of foreign policy will not block or seriously delay Senate approval of the resolution.

No Alternative One well-qualified Democratic informant said that while Congress does not have sufficient information to judge the need for the grant of authority, it would withhold from the President the tools he says he needs to conduct foreign policy.

Moslems Riot In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan, Jan. 26 (UP)—More than 80,000 Moslems rioted here Saturday to protest against India's annexation of the state of Kashmir.

Police, armed with long wooden staffs, flailed at screaming Pakistanis to little avail. The mob surged through the main thoroughfares of this capital city burning hundreds of effigies of Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru and screaming "Nehru...murder."

A number of casualties were reported.

A Moslem leader called for a war against Hindu India to regain control of the predominantly Moslem state which India incorporated Saturday, Indian independence day, in defiance of a United Nations Security Council veto against such action.

The irate Pakistanis manhandled foreigners in the streets and surged towards the homes and offices of Indian diplomatic officials. Barbed wire and police reinforcements managed to keep the crowds from the Indians.

The demonstrations, led by students wearing black armbands as signs of mourning for Kashmir, were the wildest in Pakistan's history.

For a time, it appeared that the mobs would rule the city. All shops closed. Transportation stopped dead. Hordes of students marched on a United Nations building demanding enforcement of the Security Council resolution.

Five teenagers began a hunger strike outside the UN building.

At Dacca, in East Pakistan, 300 students marched on the Indian chancery but were turned back by barbed wire entanglements.

Panhandle Area Gets Snow, Cold

Light to medium-heavy snow fell in Pampa Saturday morning. The snow was enough to cover the ground and make downtown streets slippery but not enough to mean very much economically.

Pampans were also faced with some of the coldest temperatures during the winter. The lowest temperature in the state early Saturday was 10 degrees at Amarillo. The high at Amarillo during yesterday afternoon was 19 degrees.

The local March of Dimes street collections were called off Saturday because of the inclement weather.

Plans called, however, for having the "bucket brigade" work the streets next Saturday.

"The roads are getting more dangerous each hour," the highway patrol reported early Saturday night. "Everyone should proceed with caution if they have to go out at all."

The highway department in Austin reported all roads in the state remained open, though a freezing rain had glazed the Panhandle area from Lubbock to Amarillo. Bridges were being sanded.

Ice roads were reported as far south as San Angelo, Brownwood, Waco and Texarkana, but those north of Amarillo were in better condition because of less precipitation.

The forecast for today was cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms. The low last night in Pampa was supposed to be around 20 degrees with a high of 28 forecast for this afternoon.

Red Embassy Attache Ousted

By CLAIRE COX
NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (UP)—A Russian embassy military attache was ousted from the United States Saturday in the aftermath of the smashing of a Soviet spy ring here.

Maj. Yuri P. Krylov was expelled for improperly purchasing "quantities" of electronic equipment and trying to buy U.S. military secrets. He left with his wife and two small children aboard the French liner Liberte.

There were indications that U.S. government officials planned to implicate other Soviet officials in the spy ring, regarded by the FBI as the biggest such case since Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were executed in 1953 for wartime atomic espionage.

Probe Spreads to Canada The investigation of the alleged new spy ring spread to Canada where authorities sought possible links with the three Lithuanian-born defendants being held here in $100,000 bail.

Krylov's ouster was ordered last week as FBI agents closed in on Jack Sobel, 53, his wife, Myra, 52, and Jacob Albam, 64, who were arrested in their homes here Friday. They were charged with conspiracy since 1947.

U.S. Attorney Paul Williams said Sobel had succeeded Soviet embassy Second Secretary Vasily M. Zubilin "as a dominant figure in the espionage ring after World War II." Zubilin, who returned to Moscow in 1944, was identified by the FBI in 1953 as head of the NKVD in North America. The NKVD was described by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as "one of the primary branches of Soviet intelligence in North America."

Grand Jury to Meet A federal grand jury investigation of the Sobel-Albam case was set for Monday. U. S. officials were expected to introduce evidence implicating Soviet officials and others believed to be involved in the alleged spy ring. There were reports that other arrests would be made.

Police Get Statement In Murders

CHICAGO, Jan. 26 (UP)—Benny (The Dishwasher) Bedwell, 21-year-old old road transient, Saturday signed a statement in which he admitted being with the murdered Grimms sisters during a hard-drinking three-day period prior to their slaying, sheriff's office reported.

Cook County Sheriff Joseph Lohman took the statement from Bedwell, as the giant manhunt for the killer of the teen-age girls first in a West Madison Street tavern Dec. 29 and asking the "bigger girl" if he could buy them a drink.

The offer was accepted, Bedwell said, and they had "five or six drinks" there and about same number in several other taverns along the transient strip.

The dishwasher said he and another man, whose name he couldn't recall, met the girls off and on for drinks for a period of three days or so. Then, he said, they went to a movie and out of his life.

While Bedwell's statement was being taken, authorities painstakingly followed every angle arising from the slaying.

Samples of the slain sisters' handprints were being checked against those placed on a hotel register by two girls the night of Dec. 30, in an effort to determine whether the sisters were there.

In another step, police began distributing a new circular on the girls in the hope of getting "definitive" leads. The circulars displayed head shots of the sisters and, in the center, contained simulated pictures of the girls' "two playmates" with faces blotted out.

Capt. John Cappilatti of the sheriff's police revealed Bedwell confessed he accompanied the girls and Louis and Frank to scene where the nude, frozen bodies of the Grimms sisters were found last Tuesday.

The confession was made, Cappilatti said, Friday while Bedwell (See POLICE, Page 2)

Car-Cattle Truck Crash Fatal To 1

An automobile-cattle truck collision on Highway 60, 7.2 miles east of Miami, was fatal to one and injured two Friday night.

The accident occurred at 11:40 p.m. Friday, T. Victor Wisely, who had been living in Canadian, was killed instantly when the Buick he was driving, collided with the truck, according to the investigating highway patrolman.

Don Thompson, also of Canadian, was a passenger in the Wiseley car and was hospitalized in Canadian with lacerations about the head. Henry "Junior" Jones of Vici, Okla., was the driver of the truck. He suffered only minor injuries and was not hospitalized.

The cattle truck was going west and the Buick east when the collision occurred. Highway Patrolman Royce Logan said that the front left fenders of both vehicles smashed together.

The truck turned over on its left side after the collision and its entire load of cattle spilled out. Logan reported that only one of the animals was injured seriously enough to have to be destroyed, he understood. The cattle roamed down both sides of the highway toward Miami but a group was reported to have gone to work rounding them up early Saturday morning.

T. Victor Wisely was reported to have moved to Canadian from Denton. Both he and Thompson were working on an oil rig near Canadian, Logan said.

Solon Says Gas, Oil Price Increases Boost Inflation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—oil and gasoline reserves show there is no shortage to justify the price advance.

"Not only are the citizens of the United States being asked by the President to finance a multi-million program for the economic aid of the Middle East by their tax dollars, but they now have thrust upon them an even greater burden in the form of unwarranted price increases. The volume of mail protesting this double job at the consuming public's pocketbook is mounting daily in my office and I presume in the offices of other legislators," he said.

Carroll has associated himself with a Senate resolution introduced by Sen. W. Kerr Scott (D-N.C.) and 17 other senators to set up a bipartisan committee of six to investigate the price increases.

Majority House Support For Senate Race Runoff Claimed

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
AUSTIN, Jan. 26 (UP)—Majority House support for legislation providing for a run-off race in the April 2 special U.S. Senate election was claimed Saturday by its sponsor, Rep. Joe Pool of Dallas.

The first test of legislative sentiment will come Monday night when the House State Affairs committee, headed by Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, holds public hearing on the measure.

Support in the upper chamber was predicted by Sen. Frank Owen III, of El Paso.

Gov. Price Daniel, who opened the way for the off-season contest by resigning from the Senate to become Texas' chief executive, has endorsed Pool's proposal, which would provide for a run-off election in the event no candidate receives more than 50 per cent of the votes.

The election winner will succeed to the Senate seat now held by William Blakely, a wealthy Dallas attorney named to an interim appointment by former Gov. Allan Shivers.

Republican candidate Thad Hutchison, a Houston attorney, has led GOP attacks on the measure. He charged Democrats are attempting to freeze out Republican chances for victory in event of a sharply-split Democratic vote in a winner-take-all race — by changing the rules in the middle of the game.

However, the governor said a run-off race would assure the fullest expression of choice by a majority of the voters.

Meantime, former Gov. and U.S. Sen. W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel was reported eyeing the political prospects as a possible contender.

now a Dallas insurance executive, lost in last year's Democratic primary race for governor. He tried again, as a write-in candidate, in the November general election and polled 110,224 votes.

Many Candidates Announced A covey of candidates have already announced on the Democratic ticket. These include State Sen. Searcy Bracewell of Houston; Congressman-at-large Martin Dies; Austin attorneys James Hart and Ralph Yorborough; and Hugh Wilson, a Port Arthur oil company employee.

Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, elected last fall to a fourth term, says he is loyally with the idea of running.

Meantime, legislation aimed at giving public school teachers an "emergency" raise through an additional $34 million annual appropriation came under attack by a House member. In addition to the (See MAJORITY, Page 2)

Knife, Fork Club Will Hear Author

Richard Gump, author of "Good Taste Costs No More," will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Pampa Knife and Fork Club to be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the High School cafeteria, according to Dr. Joe Donaldson, president of the club.

Gump, aside from being an author is, according to Donaldson, one of the nation's top authorities on interior decorating and design.

He is a San Francisco business man and head of the Gump's Store in that city. He has traveled extensively for articles of unusual design and has been called "the world's most widely traveled 'treasure hunter.'"

In his travels he usually looks for articles of rare design, jade, and what he calls "strange pieces from strange lands."

Richard is the third member of the Gump family to head the store which was started 90 years ago by Solomon Gump. His job consists of ferreting out articles of unusual value for "unusual people." In the purview of this job, he has visited the Orient, Central and South America, Europe, and the Middle East, and wherever else he has had reason to believe there might be something which is "unusual."

Gump wanted to be a major league baseball player in his youth, but instead has become one of the nation's leading designers and home fashion experts.

His talk in Pampa will be entitled "Treasure Hunting." This will be the final meeting of the Knife and Fork club for the fiscal year, and tickets may be obtained at Clyde's Pharmacy. They will be on sale until 1 p.m. Monday.

Joseph said salary raises were needed but "the amount specified is too high and would take such a large portion of our surplus funds that the other services, desperately needed by our state would suffer."

He said these included recommended $14.5 million salary boosts for teachers in the state's 18 universities and colleges; additional funds for the aged; improvements for state hospitals; $3 million welfare aid for the totally disabled; additional highway patrolmen; and increased salaries for the personnel; financing of a paid probation system housing for state archives; and special consideration of mentally retarded children.

A general appropriation bill, now in House committee, falls about $11 million under anticipated revenue.

However, the surplus figure is expected to be hiked in a revised estimate of income now being prepared by State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert for probable release late next week.

Daniel is scheduled to detail his budget recommendations — spelling out the decision on whether new taxes will be needed — in a message to the legislature Feb. 5. Calvert's estimate, revised on the basis of increased oil production — the mainstay of the state's economy — is expected to be made public before that date.

Reporter Takes a Stroll Through The Halls Of Pampa High School

By BOB PEREZ
Pampa News Staff Writer
Ever want to know what goes on at Pampa High School, where your children attend school?
Well, so have I and I went to take a look last week. Therefore, this piece is to inform you who can't go to see for yourself, in a small way.
One of the first things I saw as I entered the school were three buckets in the hallway, each bearing the name of an individual for the March of Dimes, and the names of the classes were there as part of a contest to see which one would give the most. As I passed by, what I saw in these tubs gave me to feel that no matter which class won this "contest," they had all, collectively, contributed much toward the aid of one of America's worst cases.
As I walked down the stairs to the cafeteria, I heard what could have been the "voices of Schuman." But it wasn't—it was the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Bill Hunt preparing for a musical play that group expects to put on within the next month or two.

Washington's Party Whirl

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—In the Washington party whirl: Still simmering are three GOP Senate wives who started presidential inaugural festivities off last weekend with a backstage fireworks display.
It happened when well-meaning White House assistant Maxwell Rabb tossed a movie premiere party honoring Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N. H.) at movie czar Eric Johnston's elaborate private theater. The movie Rabb chose was "top secret"—a tale of an over-enthusiastic Senate committee investigator. Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. Karl E. Mundt, (R-S. D.), and Mrs. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) went up in smoke. Their husbands tried to laugh it off but Mrs. Bridges apologized to every guest Rabb had invited.
Note: Rabb chose the movie at the suggestion of an assistant of Bridges.
People are still talking about Mrs. Richard M. Nixon's stamina during the four-day inaugural weekend. She accompanied her indefatigable husband on a morning-to-midnight round of parties that would have left someone twice her size-nine self gasping and kept smiling through it all.
Her "big brother," Thomas Ryan, from Artesia, Calif., commented that "even as a little girl, she never told anyone, no matter how tired she was. We kinda worry about her."
One stratagem of the second lady of the land: She always wears comfortable shoes!
Although the inaugural is over, the party circus is still going full blast, with only a three-day breathing space between the inaugural balls and the first big state reception at the White House on Thursday.
And in less time than it takes to get a ball of down dry-cleaned the red carpet will be out for King Saud of Saudi Arabia, who reportedly is bringing in his retinue 15 trucks of gifts for President Eisenhower.
The French ambassador's wife, Mme. Herve Alphonse, has taken to tossing elegant small supper parties beginning at 11 p. m. and featuring such guests as petite singer Edith Piaf and pianist Arthur Rubenstein.

'WRITTEN ON THE WIND'

TV Writer Likes British Treatment

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (UP)—Peggy Phillips has written for television in both the United States and Britain, and purely from the standpoint of a writer, she prefers to work over there. "In England, the TV writer gets treated as though he is important," she explained. "Here at home, he turns in a script, gets paid and he has nothing to say about what is done with it." Miss Phillips, of course, was speaking of the writers who turn out the bulk of TV material, not the very few who have managed by one means or another to reach a stature that gives them some control over their material.

Trouble-Shooter She went to Britain early last year to work as a sort of script trouble-shooter for Sapphire Productions, a British TV film organization, after establishing a number of good TV writing credits for herself here.

"I worked on the scripts of other writers to be sure that they fitted the needs of the various shows being shot," she said. "I was right at the studio all the time they were shooting. If something came up that required a change of dialogue or some new dialogue, the director and actors, didn't just work out something among themselves. They came knocking at my door. I'd move right out to the set where a typewriter was waiting and turn out what was needed."

Not Immortal This may not result in immortal dialogue writing, but at least they let the work be done by a writer. The drama on NBC at 9 p. m. is "Nobody's Town" by George Maharis, and Jason Roberts, Jr., and Frank Overton are the leading players.

Part of "Omnibus" on ABC at 9 will be given over to a study of old-time burlesque written by S. J. Perelman. Bert Lahr, a burly guard, will be involved.

Steve Allen's guests on NBC are Pearl Bailey, Lilli Palmer, and Steve Lawrence. The drama on NBC at 9 p. m. is "Nobody's Town" by George Maharis, and Jason Roberts, Jr., and Frank Overton are the leading players.

Article By Jerry Stirs Up Martin-Lewis Quarrel Again

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press Hollywood Writer HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A magazine article by Jerry Lewis on the Martin-Lewis split-up has stirred up their feud again. Dean charges what Jerry wrote is "completely phony."

In Look magazine this week Lewis writes (as told to Bill Davidson) a touching and revealing story about his frightened childhood, his 10 years with Dean Martin, their break-up and his terror about performing as a single.

The story is called, "I've always been scared." When I asked Martin what he thought of the yarn, he snorted. "It should be called 'I've never been scared'!"

"He's never been frightened, and I really know this kid," said the crooner. "Nothing that Jerry wrote is true. It's maudlin and ridiculous."

The Martin-Lewis break was like a divorce with two sides to the story, and right and wrong undoubtedly in both camps. Jerry claims in his article that Martin "wanted wild, crazy noise without rhyme or reason . . . I felt the best comedian is a man in trouble, a tragic figure . . ."

But Martin's reply to this basic reason for their split: "I like slapstick—that's what got us to the top."

"I like the pathos stuff. If it comes from the heart, but it didn't come over on Jerry's TV show," Martin added.

Lewis' TV debut as a single last Saturday drew supercolossal ratings, but frowns from many critics who thought his material could have been sharper. Martin blasted Jerry's act as "not original" and copied from other performers.

"The bicycle sketch was Jackie Gleason pathos," Martin claimed. The chore bit was "from one of our movies. The telephone sketch was an old Ben Blue routine. The dancing bit was copied after Sammy Davis Jr."

"I understand Jerry directed his show and that's where the trouble is. Jerry has talent if he'd let somebody direct his talent. Bob Hope, all of the big stars use directors. Jerry's show should have been better."

Martin said he was especially hurt over Jerry's magazine article because "we parted friends."

Although Lewis has drawn the most notice over his finding success on his own, Martin has quietly re-established his career as a single. He has signed for two NBC-TV shows a year and four weeks annually at the Sands hotel in Las Vegas. He recently finished an MGM musical, "10,000 Bedrooms" and plans to do "three pictures a year."

"Jerry still is working with other people, but I really will be a single when I entertain," Martin said.

"The rest of the time I want to play golf and be with my family. I'm not making any fuss about being a single. I want to forget Jerry."

Miss Phillips worked on the "Buccaneer" and "Sir Lancelot" shows which are highly popular series on two of this country's networks. Sapphire also has "Robin Hood" package, and is now planning two other adventure series—one based on 18th century highwaymen in Britain, the other on sword play intrigue in medieval Italy.

The writer returned here last October to await the birth of a son to herself and her music-composer husband. The child was born late last month. Meanwhile, she has been screening American writers and scripts for use on the Sapphire series.

Know Requirements "There is no reason at all that American writers can't do the work as well as those abroad," she said. "All they need to know is the requirements for each series and to do the required research to cover details of the periods involved. We furnish them with the research sources—they need."

Miss Phillips hopes to go back to London in the spring because she enjoys writing much more than she does hiring writers.

On Bridge Jacoby

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service West had the courage of a lion in today's hand, but he should have remembered the saying that it's better to be a live dog than a dead lion.

To put it bluntly, West was foolhardy when he doubled six hearts. If he felt sure of defeating the contract he could keep quiet and collect a small profit. If he had doubts, he could bid six spades and take a small loss rather than risk a big one.

The double turned out disastrously when the opponents ran from six hearts to seven clubs. Incidentally, North's bid of six no-trump was the "unusual" no-trump at a very high level. It was clear that he didn't like hearts.

and that he could hardly want to play the hand at six no-trump when he had made no earlier attempt to play at no-trump. Hence choose between the remaining suits—diamonds and clubs.

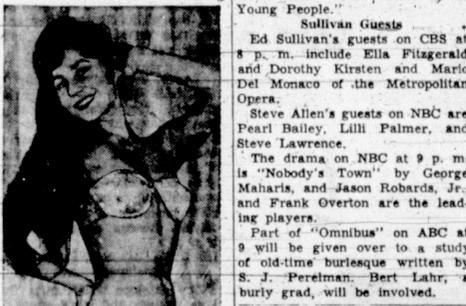

West saw no need to think about the opening lead. He opened the king of spades, and that was the end of him. South ruffed, drew trumps, cashed the ace of hearts, and led the queen of hearts through West to ruff out the king.

South then returned to his hand with a trump and discarded all of dummy's diamonds on good hearts. At the end he had successfully discarded every last one of dummy's six-card suit. Then he could ruff his own singleton diamond and claim the grand slam.

Child Dies of Burns SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 19 (UP)—Three-year-old Diana Lee Thomson died Saturday of second and third degree burns which doctors said covered 90 per cent. of her body. The child was critically burned late Friday when she knocked a pan of boiling water off the stove and was splattered.

HOPEFUL—Genevieve Zanetti displays the curves which won her the title of "Miss France, 1957" in a nationwide contest in Lyon. The 18-year-old Parisienne, a student of drama and the dance, hopes to compete for the title of "Miss Europe" in the spring.

Mexican Car Proposal Rejected LAREDO, Tex. (UP)—Laredo city officials rejected Wednesday a Mexican proposal to charge higher rates for U.S. cars than Mexican cars on the new international bridge, which has been idle since its completion Dec. 14. Laredo and Nuevo Laredo continued negotiations to clear the rate argument.

The American Farmer is Enjoying Record Produce Export Business

By GAYLORD F. GODWIN
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—The American farmer is enjoying a record export business for his produce, but there is no reason to believe that present high levels will be maintained.

Other countries are trying to cut in on the business and are offering aggressive competition.

That is the outlook presented by the Agriculture Department in a study of the export business of U. S. farm products abroad.

"World farm production is now more competitive," the department said. The volume of U. S. farm exports in the fiscal year ended last June 30 was the highest in 30 years. The department predicts the volume for the year ending next June 30 will be 25 per cent above that of a year ago.

Production Pushed
"At the same time, however," the department said, "foreign production and exports of agricultural commodities are continuing at an accelerated pace. Exporting countries are pushing agricultural production widely. Major importing areas have been encouraging agricultural production to reduce their dependence on imports of food and raw materials, and to free more foreign exchange for industrialization programs."

The department said the purchasing power on international markets for manufactured goods since the war has averaged about 50 per cent more than in 1938.

This change in terms of trade has encouraged importing areas such as Western Europe, India, and Japan to encourage agricultural production by every means possible to cut down the amount of foreign exchange required to buy food and raw materials," the department said.

Trade Stable
In the early postwar period, when food throughout the world was relatively short, foreign trade in agricultural products increased along with production, the department said. During 1950-52, agricultural trade was very stable but since 1952, trade in agricultural products competitive with U. S. production has expanded more rapidly than world production.

The department said this reflects the intense efforts all exporting countries have made to market their surplus supplies. Many have subsidized exports through bilateral agreements or barter, exchanging their agricultural products for industrial products of importing countries.

The department listed this outlook for exports and foreign competition by commodities:

WHEAT—World import requirements during 1956-57 may reach the all time record of 1.1 billion bushels set in the 1951-52 marketing year. U. S. exports of wheat and flour are expected to reach 415 million bushels compared with 361 million bushels a year ago. This will result in a reduction of carryover stocks.

World wheat production this year is tentatively estimated at 1.1 billion bushels despite shorter crops in Europe and Australia. Over the long run, the effect of increasing production in both importing and exporting countries will make it increasingly difficult for the United States to maintain its present share of the world import requirements.

RICE—Indications are that U. S. exports will be sufficiently in excess of the 2.1 billion pounds sold abroad in 1956 to permit virtual liquidation of stocks in government inventory from the 1953, 1954, and 1955 crops.

FEDERAL GRAINS—World production of major feed grains—corn, oats, barley—reached an estimated all-time record of 330 million long tons this year. U. S. exports of these grains during 1956-57 are expected to be 25 to 30 per cent under the 1955-56 record of 7.5 million long tons. Main reason for the expected decline is reduced European demand resulting from heavy local supplies of low quality wheat this year, increased European plantings of feed grains, and an unprecedented exportable surplus of barley in France.

COTTON—U. S. cotton exports this year may exceed 6.5 million bales—some three times the 1955-56 export total—bringing cotton exports to the highest level in 23 years. But the United States must face the fact that cotton is the most profitable cash crop of many foreign producing and exporting countries. They will be in there fighting for the export trade.

TOBACCO—Exports of unmanufactured tobacco are expected to decline somewhat from last year's extremely high level of 578 million pounds. Higher prices for certain traditional U. S. export grades, larger stocks in several major importing countries, and increased supplies in competing exporting countries all point to lower U. S. exports.

DAIRY—The outlook for 1957 is favorable, but there probably will be a drop in butter exports due primarily to lack of supplies for foreign donations. This drop is expected to be partially offset by an increase in cheese exports.

POULTRY PRODUCTS—U. S. exports of poultry products have risen from $1 million in 1937 to more than $40 million in 1956. This upward trend is expected to continue.

STAFF NOTES

JOEL R. COMBS, managing editor

Sometimes, when a newspaper starts poking its nose around, people start hollerin'. Usually, they just can't stand being taken to task by the local press for all to see. In fact, many people think the paper is doing them a great harm when it simply reports their exact actions. Especially if they happened to be breaking a law—at the time. Informatively, those people who feel that their public actions should not be reported in the free press for the free public to see, may start yelling a bit louder soon. The Texas Press Association is boosting a resolution to provide penalties for public officials who do not open their records for scrutiny by the press. Also, both houses in Congress are studying bills to combat suppression of news in federal doings.

Does Pampa have too many organizations asking for contributions? Many argue that such is the case here. Should an organization be set up to decide whether any individual or group should be allowed to solicit contributions for some cause or the other? Many say so. Maybe there are too many groups asking for gifts to their cause. SO WHAT? This is a democratic nation, thank goodness, and no one is likely to point a gun at your head and say that you MUST give to the March of Dimes, Heart Fund, or a related cause.

BOB PEREZ, staff writer
I think that people are pretty much a business in themselves. They are a business that deals with the preservation of self and the obtaining of such comforts as will enable them to show, in the end, some sort of a profit of which they can pass on to their children an unspecified amount with which to start out in this business of life. The one trouble is that too many of us can't afford what it takes to run his business properly, and therefore, we must go on day after day, robbing Peter to pay Paul and vice versa, doing whatever we can to stave off starvation and wind up in the cellar of utter bankruptcy. Let's take a look at some of the things it would take to run such a business properly. For one, it would take a good business manager. One who would see to it that we did not run overboard in excess of our means, while still seeing to it that we have enough to maintain ourselves in a proper way. It would be wise also to devise

The battle of girth and girdle was... what with coffee and minia-ture rolls at the Pampa Garden Club meeting... brunch at the PEO Founder's Day meeting... a delightful piece of cake at a stork shower... a delectable bit of candy at a bridal shower... a sumptuous dinner at the Girl Scout banquet, these are the strong opponents in the battle as against my weak resistance to temptation. I've tried to assuage my conscience with the thought that it is the high altitude. Mount Carmel was only 500 plus above sea level as against Pampa's 3,218 feet, which I am told and I believe, the difference makes you hungry and sleepy all the time. Since there is little time for sleep, I compensate by eating. Oh me! I went out this past week to see the most unusual piece of handiwork in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Roop, 814 Scott. It was a crocheted goose. If you can imagine that. The neck of the goose was crocheted with light, close chain

DICK COLLINS, sports editor
Although basketball should belong on the sports pages, the game of battling polio belongs to every one. The two will be closely related this week when Pampa and Borger play in the first annual "Points For Polio" game. The Harvesters' games with Borger are always interesting and in the past years they have been played to determine district champions. The "Points For Polio" drive will make Friday's contest in Borger more interesting. The two cities are close rivals in sports and civic events. Pampa will try to prove it has a better basketball team and at the same time show that our citizens will pitch in and help more when it counts.

Government Plane Crash Probes Are Hit By Veteran Airline Pilot

By ROBERT J. SERLING
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP)—A veteran airline pilot accused the government Saturday of failing to properly investigate accidents "that are written off as pilot error." Capt. R. F. Adickes, chairman of the Airline Pilots Association's Aircraft Evaluation Committee, said too many crashes blamed on pilot error are actually due to faulty design, fatigue, "cockpit booby traps" and inadequate training programs. He conceded that "there are pilot error accidents," but said government investigators should look for the reason behind a pilot's mistake. His vigorous views on various phases of air safety problem were expressed in the official magazine of the ALPA.

Eight Accidents
Adickes, himself an airline pilot, cited the case of a medium-range transport plane that has had more than eight landing accidents officially attributed to pilot error. In each one, he said, the captain or co-pilot was found guilty of retracting the landing gear rather than the wing flaps. Adickes pointed out that another, almost identical transport plane enjoying even wider usage has never had a landing accident of this kind.

"Are the pilots of the latter airplane more proficient or is there a design fault in the gear and flap controls?" he asked. "It is a very simple study to compare the position and relative motion of the controls between the two, and the answer to the accidents is immediate and obvious."

Product Disavored?
"Have the designers of our 'accident-prone' airplanes disavored their product?" he continued. "Why does this obvious design error continue to fly?" Adickes charged that vital air safety research is lagging because of emphasis on relatively unimportant projects. He specifically pointed to efforts to reduce the sound of jet transport engines. He said scientists are experimenting with a device to prevent fire after jet crash, through application of a stream of cold water. "This project," Adickes said, "has proceeded slowly with only a fraction of the effort the jet sound-suppressor has enjoyed. It is discouraging to the pilots to see millions spent to placate some highly vocal political minority and at the same time observe the small pace of a potential life-saving device. We cannot design a fireproof man."

Accidents Cost
He said the airlines themselves have often ignored the "basic premise that accidents cost money." He said one airline, which had failed to equip its fleet of four-engine transports with reversible props, lost five of these planes in landing "runout" accidents (ability to stop before going off the runway).

The direct loss to the airline was $6 million, he said. The cost of converting the fleet to reversible props, which act as ground breaks, was a little more than $1 million, he added.

He also made the following charges:

Even the newest transports being built today are "incapable of climbing above 10,000 or 12,000 feet for several hours after take-off."

Raft Location
On trans-ocean planes, life raft location "has been grossly neglected. Heavy, clumsy rafts are located in inaccessible areas, requiring, once they are reached, carrying them a considerable distance through a narrow cabin aisle to an opening for launching."

Since 1952, 400 new airliners have been delivered, "apparently without any attempt being made (by) the manufacturer or the carriers to make the minor inexpensive revisions necessary to provide each occupant of the airplane with a means to prevent being drowned after having survived the accident without injury."

Adickes said the ALPA has pledged for years for a head pillow or seat cushion that would serve as an emergency life preserver. (Some planes do carry such equipment, he added, but their use is not universal).

Episcopal Bishop Calls For Church Racial Stand

GALVESTON (UP)—The Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Texas, has called for a "decisive and not evasive" church stand on racial integration. "It is wrong... to pass resolutions that say we believe in brotherly love and then not practice what we preach," Bishop Hines said. He added: "It is an injustice to our Negro brethren to pass a resolution that means nothing." Bishop Hines spoke Friday night at the 108th annual council of the Texas diocese. Some 800 delegates attended the council meeting. "Our task," Bishop Hines told the delegates, "is to move cautiously and resolutely to the acceptance of all men in our parish family, not by the ruling of the Supreme Court but by the divine ruling of the Lord. This decision must stem from faith, not fear. "We are Christ's men and women, are all children of God and are all equal in his endowment," he said. "This leaves no place for wedges of discrimination." The bishop closed his address with "May God grant us the courage to take up the current at its surge or lose the magic of the stream."

Pampa, Borger Stage Battle For Boxing Titles

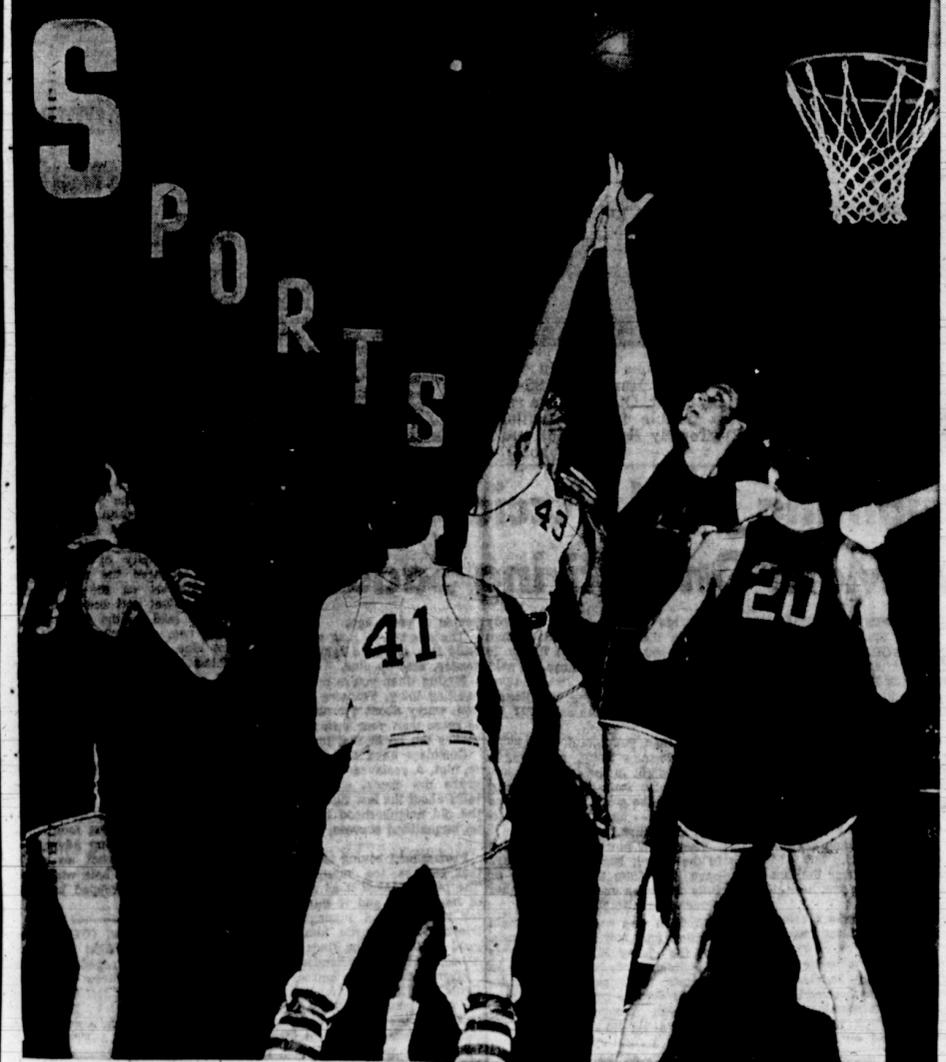

BORGER—The host Borger and four high school trophies... Pampa victories went to Dickie Powell, 65 pounds; James Tucker, 75; John Mathis, 80; Dickie Willis, 100; Gary Wills, 118; Charles Snider, 147; Jesse Ring, 155; and Wesley Crites, 175. Losers were Kenny Powell, James Morse, Doy Hutchison, Dickie James, Charles Coffee, Larry Powell and James Snider.

the two meets were Kenny Powell and Carson Watt, Dickie Willis and Jerry Gibbs, Joe Gutierrez and Charles Moore and Robert Williams and Wesley Crites. Crites' victory over Williams was a clincher for Pampa. The Pampa team went into that match needing a victory to gain a split. Crites used a second-round knockdown to gain his narrow decision. Ring had an easy time in winning over Amarillo's Sam Baskin. He cut Baskin's nose in the third round and referee C. J. Smiley stopped the bout.

but his lack of ring experience kept him from winning. Hutchison had Kirk hurt in the second round, but did not take advantage of it. It was another close match. Dickie Willis outlasted Jerry Gibbs of Borger in his title match. Gibbs had won a narrow decision over Willis in the Pampa meet. Willis used hard left hooks to Gibbs' head throughout the match. The two traded left jabs but Willis spun Gibbs around in the first with a hard right. Gibbs' nose began bleeding early in the second and Willis continued his barrage of rights to the head. Gibbs was hurt and the referee stepped in to stop the match in the second round.

PAMPA'S HARVESTERS WILL BEAT BORGER if they play like they did against Amarillo Friday night. Putt Powell of the Amarillo Globe-News, who covered the game here, goes along with me on that. Putt watched the Harvesters play for the first time this season and he was really impressed with them. He has also seen Borger and rates Pampa over the Bulldogs. Glad he didn't see the last Borger-Pampa game for comparison.

HIGH JUMPERS—Two towering 6-6 centers scramble for ball control during the Pampa-Amarillo game here Friday night. Pampa's Tommy Gindorf (43) lets go with a hook shot in the first quarter with Amarillo's John Peek (21) attempting to block it. Watching the action are Ronnie Mayberry (13) of Amarillo, Jerry Pope (41) of Pampa and Bob Taylor (20) of Amarillo. Pampa won 82-61. (News photo)

Harvesters Roll By Sandies, 82-61 Pampa Meets Palo Duro, Borger This Week

By DICK COLLINS
Pampa News Sports Editor
Pampa's Harvesters set their sights on Palo Duro's Dons today after clearing another hurdle to reach the much-sought District 3-AAAA basketball championship. The Harvesters shot past the Amarillo Sandies 82-61 here Friday night to help set up their do-or-die battle with the Borger Bulldogs.

They fell far short on free throws, led by 15 to 20 points the rest of the way. Amarillo was playing without services of its shifty little guard, Bobby Hutto, who is out for the season with an injured leg. Wendell Cason paced the Sandies with 19 points while Ronnie Mayberry and Martin Turner each had 13. Amarillo's tall boys, 6-7 Bob Taylor and 6-6 John Peek were held to a total of 10 points and 11 rebounds.

White Deer And Wheeler Among Area Powers In Basketball Action

The White Deer Bucks stood out this week as the top basketball team in the Pampa area after topping the strong Stinnett Rattlers for a lead in District 1-A.

Coch Sam Christy's Bucks took undisputed possession of the district lead last week by stopping Stinnett 76-63, and they added to that lead by topping Sunray's Bobcats 72-57 Friday night.

The Bucks have won 14 of 18 games this season, including three district games. White Deer plays Gruver's Greyhounds at home Tuesday night in a non-conference contest. The Bucks will get their biggest test of the season against the Skyrockets, the pace setter in Class AA in the Panhandle area.

The White Deer girls have also been setting a torrid pace this campaign, winning 18 of 19 games this year. They beat Stinnett 67-64 Tuesday night and then pulled past the Sunray girls 56-53 Friday night. The Bucks are led by giant Earnest Reusch, 6-8, and A. J. Alford, 6-3.

Both players have been consistent high scorers this season. Alford dumped in 34 points. Reusch had 26 against Stinnett while Larry Dawson had 18 for the Rattlers. Reusch had 26 to pace the Bucks past Sunray and Ken Riddle made 32 for the Bobcats.

Mary Ann Freeman took scoring honors in both girls games, scoring 30 against Stinnett and 20 against Sunray although playing only the first half. Barbara Brittain had 25 for Stinnett and Ruthie Donovan made 25 for Sunray.

Wheeler's Mustangs continued to set a blistering pace the past week by beating Briscoe's Broncos in both the boys and girls' games. The Mustangs edged Briscoe, 53-52, in the varsity contest while the girls beat Briscoe 63-57.

Joe Jaco made 21 points for the Mustangs. Jackie Helton had 18 for Wheeler. Wheeler led 13-7, 31-23 and 42-35 by quarters. The Mustangs have four more district games remaining and must win all of them to take the championship.

The league-leading Wheeler girls have lost only two games this year with four games left. They must win any three of the remaining four to win the title. Phyllis Richardson again paced Wheeler's scoring, dumping in 33 points. Sandra Meek had 36 for Briscoe. Wheeler led 11-6, 28-25 and 43-38 by quarters.

The Wheeler Junior High team, paced by speedy little Jimmy Derl Atherton, beat the Briscoe team 56-24. Atherton scored 32 points. Fred McCray had 13 for Briscoe. Briscoe won the girls' game, 37-30.

In other games during the week, McLean's Tigers won both boys and girls games from the Memphis Cyclones. Panhandle's Panthers beat Gruver but lost to Dumas, Shamrock split with Quanah, Canadian won a pair from Memphis and Letors and Wellington took two important district victories.

Eddie Brown's 14 points was high for McLean as the Tigers beat Memphis, 50-40. Laura Mae Switzer had 38 points to pace the McLean girls to a 66-49 win.

Panhandle beat Gruver, 57-54, and won the girls' game, 60-47. Pat Hamilton took scoring honors for Panhandle with 17 in the boys game and Marion Hodges had 30 for the winning girls. The Panthers bowed to Class AAA Dumas 53-48 in a Friday night game with Hamilton and Bill Brown each scoring 13 for Panhandle.

Canadian beat Memphis 50-32 in a District 2-A game. The Canadian girls won by a 44-34 count. Wellington 62-33 in the boys game and won by a 38-37 count in the girls contest. Shamrock lost to Quanah, 77-60 in the boys game but won over the Quanah girls, 41-19.

In games this week, Groom plays at Panhandle, Wheeler is at Canadian, McLean is at Clarendon Tuesday and at Samnorwood Thursday.

Maxim weighed 192 for the fight and Machen 190½ pounds.

Hoad Injures Back; Loses In Semifinals

By BRIAN HAWKLEY
MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 26 (UP)—Lew Hoad, who dreamed of a grand slam of the world's four major tennis titles that would lead to a $100,000 pro contract, failed in the first of his quests Saturday because of a back injury that may sideline him for months.

Hoad, attempting to cover up a back ailment so painful he could not even put on his own shoes before the match, was defeated in the semi-finals of the Australian championships by his best friend, Neale Fraser, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Neither the officials nor the gallery at Kooyong stadium were aware of Hoad's agonized condition, because he gave no signs of distress as he bowed to 23-year-old Fraser.

Fraser knew, however, for he had tried to help Hoad by massaging his back before the match. And before he had gone to the stadium, Hoad's wife Jennifer had to put on his socks and shoes for him, so painful was his condition. Hoad, not wishing to detract from Fraser's victory, made light of his injury immediately after the match.

However, at night Hoad disclosed that his doctor has advised him to quit tennis for an indefinite period. Hoad said he has cancelled exhibition appearances in Victoria during the first two weeks of February.

The 22-year-old Australian star's condition is either a slipped spinal disc or a severe muscular sprain that has not responded to heat treatment or massage.

Bobby Jones Award Goes To Zaharias

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (UP)—The U. S. Golf Association's Bobby Jones award, for distinguished sportsmanship in golf, was presented posthumously Saturday to Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

Mrs. Zaharias' husband, George, accepted the award at the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A. Jones was present at the ceremony.

The staff of officers of the U. S. G. A. was re-elected. This group was made up of: President, Richard S. Tufts, Pinehurst, N. C.; vice presidents, John D. Ames of Chicago and John Clock of Long Beach, Calif.; secretary, Charles L. Peirson, Boston; and treasurer, J. Frederic Byers, Pittsburgh, Pa. William Ward Fosbury of New York was named general counsel to succeed the late Fraser M. Horn.

Quast Winner Over Stewart In Golf Meet

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 26 (UP)—Ann Quast, a 19-year-old college student, got her revenge Saturday by upsetting Marlene Stewart of Canada, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals of the Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament.

Miss Quast, from Marysville, Wash., plays Joanne Goodwin of Havertill, Mass., in the 36-hole final Sunday. Miss Goodwin beat Sheila Moss of San Bernardino, Calif., 4 and 3 in the semi-finals.

Miss Stewart, the U. S. national amateur champion from Fonthill, Ont., defeated the younger Miss Quast in the semi-finals of the national amateur last September, 4 and 3. But not Saturday.

The University of Washington student squared the match with Miss Stewart on the 12th hole with a 15-foot putt and then went into the lead on the 18th with a birdie two, after placing her tee shot nine feet from the pin.

Miss Quast, playing steadier golf as the match progressed, clinched the victory on the 17th with a par four while Miss Stewart's three-foot putt rimmed the cup and forced her to take a bogey five.

The lead see-sawed during the first nine holes and both made the turn all-even.

Miss Goodwin ran away with her match on the first four holes and still held the 4-up advantage at the turn. She shot an eagle three on the fourth hole when her 45-foot chip shot dropped into the cup.

Fighting And Accident Left A Mark On Retiring Saddler

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — The fight guy always talks of how much Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney did with the game.

Say anything about the harm it can do and you're just trying to knock. That's the creed throughout the business.

If you listen long enough, you come to believe that all ex-fighters are selling their life story to the movies as did Rocky Graziano and Barney Ross and Dempsey. Or that a Hurricane Jackson, who can't read or write but made $50,000 for himself over the last three years, illustrates just how good the business is.

But then you take a casual walk around town and you have to wonder about it. The newsstand, for example, sold a paper and in it the story said Saddler had to give up his featherweight title because injuries sustained in a taxi cab accident have him on the verge of total blindness. But even with his failing eyesight, Sandy was in the ring, Sam Boardman let his son, Larry, box Sandy 10 rounds last April because, he said, "I undersold" Sandy was having trouble seeing." Was the Boardman fight before the accident?

And then you go for a shine from Norman Kelly, who was a middleweight in the late '40's, and you wonder, some more it-boxing doesn't make a big deal out of the top names — and conveniently forgets the Kellys.

There are more Norman Kellys in the boxing business and many have been than the Dempseys or Billy Petrolles or any of the other names you always hear.

Norman was a small club fight eventer and now is a bootblack. Not the classy Miami hotel type as is Beau Jack. Norman works in a small shoe repair and pants-pressed - while - you - wait shop on Eighth Avenue. The dime is Norman's big tip and he looks at you with a right eye that peers in, awkwardly, at his nose.

"Doctors," he says, "don't know how I got it. Probably was from fighting. Anyway, I don't have the money to get it fixed."

On a fight night at Madison Square Garden, Jack McVey, who was one of those "tough fighters" as a middleweight 25 years ago, stands under the marquee and sells a boxing magazine.

Joe Louis walks down East 54th Street with Marnie Seamon, his old trainer, and they have to sidestep a steady stream of school girls walking the opposite way. For the length of the block only a parking lot attendant knew who Louis was.

"He owes his life and there's no way out," the attendant said.

On a cab ride to Queens you pass a bar still carrying the name of Mike McTigue, the old light-heavyweight champion, who died in the charity ward of a city hospital a couple of years ago.

There is the bowling alley where Billy Fox, one-time lightweight contender, sets up pins.

Boxing when you're active, is an exciting thing. Trainers fawn over you, worry about a bruised knuckle more than your own mother. It makes the boxer feel important.

Outsiders have the same effect on him. A restaurant owner gladly grabs the check, sits down and talks about the last fight. People in the old neighborhood hail him as an unqualified success.

Professional boxing is a business that teaches too many nothing. The pugilist takes it as a way out of hard work and if things don't fall right, if the manager or a friend doesn't hustle him into a good investment, he finds himself a bootblack or a bartender.

Even Saddler, who had so many fights and made so much money, wound up hoping a suit against the taxi company would bring him his money because, "I've had to give up the only way of making a living I know."

Like nearly all the rest, Sandy Saddler had to revert to the ring for comfort.

Jerry Claiborne Added To Missouri Grid Staff

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP) — Jerry Claiborne, defensive coach at Texas A&M, has been added to the staff of new Missouri football Coach Frank Broyles.

The 28-year-old Claiborne will work as a defensive coach with the backs and ends. Athletic Director Don Faurot announced, he will assume his coaching duties Feb. 1.

"Jerry is regarded as one of the top young coaches in the game today," Broyles said. "He has a fine reputation for the terrific job he's done at Texas A&M."

Their defense has been mighty rough," Broyles added. "I hope some of his success can rub off on us here at Missouri."

Claiborne played collegiate football at the University of Kentucky where he lettered four years under Paul (Bear) Bryant, now coach at Texas A&M. An outstanding safety man and end, Claiborne was one of the nation's top pass interception artists.

He played on Kentucky's first major bowl team which went to the 1950 Orange Bowl.

Claiborne was head coach at Virginia Military Academy in 1950 and 1951. He served under Bryant for two years at Kentucky before following Bryant to Texas A&M.

"Jerry has had many offers from other schools," Broyles said, "and I am very pleased that he has cast his lot with us. He should be a great asset."

Claiborne is married and the father of two sons.

Panhandle Outdoor Life

By S. V. WHITEHORN

It's a small wonder we have the amount of game in the Panhandle that we do considering 1956 was the driest year since the U.S. Weather Department started keeping a record of the rain fall.

It is a "survival of the fittest" race with the game and the ranches. No doubt about it, the game in the Panhandle at this time is a super breed. However, it is why as 1956, the trial probably would be too much for the turkeys and quail. But if we can manage to keep a fair amount of breeding stock on the range we will be in good position when it does begin to rain again.

Great-grandfather had little difficulty in bringing in all the wild game he wanted some 50 or more years back. Nature provided an ample amount. One of the reasons why nature provided such bountiful amounts of game in that day was that the grass land wasn't grazed to the ground. There had to be enough grass to run the cattle through the winter until next grass.

More grass was needed then because the ranchers didn't have 35 per cent protein cottonseed cake to supplement diet of the cattle. With a few pounds of high protein feed each day, the cows will come through the winter with flying colors even though they get but a very small amount of poor quality grass.

In order to produce a good amount of beef per section the modern rancher will add more acre to the daily ration of cattle. In order to produce more feed per section the modern farmer drills a well and adds water to the ground. In order to produce more game per section the modern rancher does what to assist the struggling wildlife.

As far as I know there has been but one large amount of feed purchased in Hutchinson County to feed the turkeys. J. R. McGill purchased 5,000 pounds of maize and had feeders constructed to give the turkeys a lift through the winter months.

The "know how" is ample to produce almost an unlimited amount of game but the dollars are in short supply. In my opinion, most game management practices simply boil down to the dollar.

There are hundreds of ways to increase game but they all cost. When a system can be worked out whereby the hunter can assist in feeding the game to a certain degree, the game will increase. Nature is a wonderful thing, but for the amount of hunters we have today compared to the amount of hunters in great-grandfather's day, nature needs some help to produce the amount of hunting being demanded by the hunter of 1957.

Registered Hunting Dogs The modern pointing dog has been bred for scores if not hundreds of years to make what we have today. Anyone can get in on the ground floor of top breeding for a small cost. Records have been kept since 1850 of all winners in recognized competition in the bird pointing field. For years, setters led the field in competition, but since 1940 most of the winners have been pointers.

By taking a little time out and studying the records, anyone can soon find out the facts about certain bloodlines. Pointers and setters are by far the best priced of any of the registered dogs in the field today. A few years back I raised a litter of what I thought was about the best that could be had and finally one of these pups sold for $12.50 and the other was given away.

Investigating the price of a couple of Airedale pups the other day the owner stated that the price was $35 for the two best females left. "We are selling them too cheap, the sire of these dogs sold for $100" was remark made by the owner of the Airedales. They weren't registered either.

Joe Rich of Canadian has one of the best bred females in the Panhandle. Sire is national champion Lester's Enjoy Wahoo and the dam a Spunky Creek Boy bitch. Rich and I are going to raise a litter of pups from this female and my pointer, Tex. If we have any pups for sale they will sell for about the same price as was asked for the unregistered Airedales.

Winter Fishing Usually most fishermen think of the warm months as being the time to go fishing. One local rancher stated the other day that all last summer he had very poor luck catching bass but a few days back went out and caught his limit within a short time. Ran from a pound to four pounds. One large bass got away due to ice forming on the tip of the rod, caught them with a Dive Bomber.

TAG TEAM PARTNERS — Dory Funk (left) and Rip Rogers will team up to battle Leo Newman and Tokyo Joe in a tag team rematch as the main event on the Monday night wrestling program. The two beat Newman and Joe two weeks ago in a chair-throwing battle.

Funk And Rogers In Rematch With Newman, Joe Monday

Big Jim Wright, former holder of the North American heavyweight wrestling title, meets another newcomer, Juan Humberto, in the semifinals bout on the Pampa Shrine Club's mat show Monday night. Bout will start at 8:15 Monday night at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club. Tickets are on sale at Modern Pharmacy. Admission is $1.50 for ringside seats, $1.25 for reserved seats, 50 cents for general admission and 50 cents for children.

Dory Funk and Rip Rogers, newly formed tag team, take on Leo Newman and Tokyo Joe in the main event tag team attraction. The four battled here two weeks ago with Funk and Rogers winning the match after staging a chair and table throwing spectacle. The four fighters asked for a rematch. The main event will be one-hour in duration with two of three falls. Rogers and Tokyo Joe tangled in the one-fall, 20-minute opener.

No Kind Thoughts Pedro Martinez, the hero of the Boston Red Sox, was the subject of a "no kind thoughts" campaign in such places as Buffalo and Rochester, doesn't take kindly to people who question the on-the-level character of his sport. Recently he spoke before a group of lawyers and, when one of their number began to slip him the needle, Pedro quoth haughtily: "Recently I talked before a group of prisoners at San Quentin. Gentlemen, I was quite surprised to discover that there were a great many former attorneys, judges and politicians in that prison. It there wasn't a single wrestler." Imagine!

Latest Basketball Suggestion: Limit Teams To 30 Lineal Feet

By JIMMY BRESLIN NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — "Basketball," writes C. B. Ford of New York, "was meant to be played by normal young men and women, not freaks. Why not restore it to them by a rule that no team should have more than 30 lineal feet of players on the floor during any game? In other words, any combination of heights that would total more than 30 feet for five men.

"For freak teams, put the baskets 10 feet higher and 10 feet farther back." Clayton Anderson of the Eau Claire, Wis., Young Men's Christian Association writes that "few realize that the basketball today is smaller and easier to handle than it was in the past. Actually it is two and a half inches smaller in circumference.

"We believe the rim, now 18 inches in diameter, should be cut to 16 1/2." The average fan is starting to growl about the inroads seven-foot centers, jump shooters and the colleges' one-and-one foul shot rule have been making into the excitement normally attending a game. He is producing a barrage of ideas, most of which are designed to change the game's structure radically. Of all the major sports, basketball is the only one open to this type of thinking.

Tubbs Marries Hometown Girl

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., Jan. 26 (UP)—Jerry Tubbs, All-America center on Oklahoma's football team, married Marlene Hamilton, his hometown sweetheart, in an informal wedding Saturday night at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. Tommy McDonald, the other half of Oklahoma's famous "Tom Jerry" football combination, was married four days ago to Ann Campbell, a campus beauty. Tubbs' bride, who worked for an insurance company, also is a beauty. She has dark hair and brown eyes and is slender and tall. Tubbs said he knew her when she was in high school — she was graduated in 1954 — but didn't court her then. After the wedding, they left on a honeymoon flight to Philadelphia, where Tubbs will receive the Philadelphia Touchdown Club's "Lineman of the Year" award. They plan to establish a home in Norman. Tubbs is a senior at the University.

It is nearly impossible to come up with anything for baseball more than a thought on a new type of slugging average or the like. Football has its platooning and extra-point problems but the game basically remains the same no matter how hard the customer searches for new pitches.

Basketball, then, is the spectator's delight. He can sit down and in the space of few wild thoughts come up with a totally different sport. If, for example, you're tired watching some referee from night club doorman duties reach up and turn a rebound into a simple basket, you can take your anger out by figuring how to stop this.

John Marks, a Chicago fan, did this and his solution was simple. "Extend the basket a full foot from the backboard," he yelled. "It would be impossible to score points on tap-ins."

Louis Van Arthos of Berkeley, Calif., didn't seem to think it out quite as well. Best he could come up with was the old saws: "Raise the basket to 12 feet (they're 10 now) and take the backboards off so at least banked shots would be out."

Scoring today is outright murder. But from a college viewpoint, the foul shooting is worse. College officials invariably play it close to the book. "As a result," notes Eau Claire's Anderson, "the game is a track meet between the free-throw lines. Last year, we had a high school game here in which 115 free throws were shot in a single game, 97 in another."

The one-and-one calls for a player shot to be awarded a bonus who sinks a foul shot. Under this set-up, an alert official, a whistle and two accurate shooting teams can combine to make a travesty out of any single game. To Maurice Podoloff, president of the National Basketball Association, this clamor proves something — in reverse.

"I doubt that any other sport could stand this type of criticism of its basic foundations," he says. "Basketball, however, flourishes."

For our taste, the suggestion forwarded by C. B. Ford — keep the team at 30 feet — is by far the best.

It is in keeping with Jimmy Durante's, "Don't raise the bridge, lower the water."

Jackie Robinson Campanella Continues To Blast Ex-Teammate

NEW YORK (UP)—Roy Campanella today followed up his blast at ex-teammate Jackie Robinson's "undignified exit from baseball" with the promise: "I'll stick to my guns because he can't hurt me."

to go out like he did," Campanella said. "It just wasn't the dignified way to do it." Asked whether the sweeping blast — which Campanella insisted he didn't realize would be printed — proved the two stars hadn't gotten along well in recent seasons, Roy replied: "Well, you can play with a guy but not want to live with him. I always steered clear of him when he was doing that popping off in the clubhouse."

Campanella, three-time winner of the National League's Most Valuable Player Award, was responding to a recent interview in which Robinson said Roy couldn't be expected to stage a comeback from his poor 1956 season in 1957. In the midst of doing so, he also leveled sharp criticism at "the manner in which Jackie quit baseball" and revealed the strained relationship between the two great Negro stars that existed in recent years.

Lou Little Embarrassed At Idea Of Coaching Comeback

NEW YORK (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures: Lou Little, who retired last season as Columbia University football coach, admits that he has received a "number of offers" to coach elsewhere but embarrassment is keeping him from accepting any of them.

There was so much fuss made about my retirement, and I received so many awards and "farewell" dinners," Lou says with a wry grin, "that I honestly don't feel I can make a comeback." If I did, I'd be setting down all those folks who were so nice with their farewells." Which is really going all "out" for your friends.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE Sam's Aunt Jo isn't his real aunt. He gives her this title because she's his mother's best friend. He looks forward to her visits, not just because she always brings him a present, but because he likes her very much.

The last time she visited, he didn't wait to be given the present. When Aunt Jo, still wearing her coat and hat, kissed him and told him how he'd grown, he asked eagerly, "What did you bring me?"

"The horn for my tricycle," Sam's mother realized that this question expressed trust in Aunt Jo as well as interest in her gift. So instead of rebuking it, she just said gently, "Better wait and find out."

Later, however, she told him why he must not ask visitors for presents.

"With little boys and girls, it's sensible to present good manners as obligation to themselves rather than to others."

We adults are supposed to possess good manners out of consideration for the other fellow's feelings. Little boys and girls are too young to have developed this consideration. We therefore have no right to demand it of them.

As we must still demand good manners, this presents us with a real problem. How can we teach good manners to a little boy or girl without also teaching them to falsify their natural and paramount interest in themselves? Is a courteous child to be had only at the cost of turning him into an emotional liar?

I think not. I think that the answer is explaining good manners to children as self-protective. We are on truthful ground when we warn Sam that he arouses resentment in guests by demanding presents from them. We are being realistic when we tell Baby to get up and surrender her chair to Grandma, to avoid criticism by Grandma, her aunts and uncles.

GRACE-FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend
I have a problem and thought maybe you might be able to help me.

I am 16 and I am going out with a guy that is 21. I don't like this guy at all and I was wondering if you could tell me how I might get rid of him in a nice way. He is a very nice looking guy and has a nice personality, a new car, and everything a girl could ask for but I just don't want to go out with him anymore. I met him through a blind date and now I just can't get rid of him.

Another problem that I have is that I don't ever seem to meet other boys. Everyone tries to get me to go out and they fix me up with dates too. But I seem to find something wrong with them all.

NOT PARTICULAR

I'm really not a particular girl and not a bad looking girl either. Because I get my share of whistles and honks. But that's all I seem to get.

When I do meet boys they say they will come down but never show up. I would like to know how I could get a few to come down, then maybe I could have some dates.

Dramatic Roles Help Bring Out Better Self

Doris Marshall, high school drama teacher at Helena, Montana, casts "troublesome" students in roles that bring out their better selves. And, lo, reports that February Reader's Digest, bulges become enemies of injustice; wall flowers blossom; buffoons turn into scholars.

"I have the perfect medium," says Mrs. Marshall, for dealing with the child who's really a treat—the young egotist. If a youngster is accustomed to raising Cain in geometry class, on the stage he finds a chance to show off constructively. The novelty of social approval helps change his attitude.

Short-Long Hair Combined In One With Italian Pastry

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

About every other season, there are loud noises to the effect that long hair is coming back. And actually, long hair is seen on some of the top fashion models.

But there the matter pretty much comes to an end—Women continue to wear their hair short and to demand hats for short hair. They've found short hair both pretty and efficient.

They've found they can save grooming time with short hair, in shampooing and brushing and tinting it. Lots of them like to shampoo their hair every other day or so, a task that would be too tiring if a great deal of hair were involved.

So most women's hair stays short, no matter what the experts decree. Many women do without permanents entirely, depending on expert cutting and shaping for curl. This means that hair must be short so that the weight does not pull out the curl.

For those who like occasional change, the nation's top hair stylists devise coiffures that combine long and short hair cleverly and prettily.

First Lady Wears Original Creation To Inaugural Ball

The First Lady, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wore costume jewelry to the Inaugural Ball. In a repeat gesture, which again endeared her to millions of women who can't afford precious jewels, Mrs. Eisenhower wore a divinely beautiful three strand necklace, created for her by Trifari, of very pale yellow Orientique, graduated pearls interspersed with tiny rondels, set with minute jonquil chatons. Nine graduated pear-shaped, pale yellow Orientiques hung from the third strand of pearls.

The clasp of the necklace consists of six golden, graduated bars set with the jonquil chatons and laced with pale yellow baguettes. The same clasp is repeated in the matching Orientique pearl-bracelet.

The round earrings, the shape most becoming to Mrs. Eisenhower, have one pale yellow pearl in the center, surrounded by a circle of the jonquil chatons. The outer rim of the earring is eleven yellow pearls, each in a tube of golden Trifarium, set with a tiny jonquil chaton. The entire effect is of great elegance and restraint.

Trifari has presented the jewelry in a magnificent satin lined box of yellow suede, with Marie Doud Eisenhower encrusted in gold on the box. As was the case with the jewelry created for Mrs. Eisenhower for the first Inaugural Ball, only two sets have been made. One is for Mrs. Eisenhower, the other will be on display at the Trifari showroom. This jewelry will never be copied or sold by Trifari. It was created for Mrs. Eisenhower alone.

Teen-age parties in one southern city were getting to be rather hectic affairs — especially for the parents of the teen-ager giving the party — until a group of mothers came up with a solution that seems to have the situation under control.

When the parties were given in individual homes, there were always the gate-crashers parents were reluctant to refuse admittance.

The Wonder Classic Miss Hankhouse Is RG Worthy Advisor

The officers of Pampa Rainbow Assembly No. 96 were formally installed Saturday night. Past grand fidelity, Mrs. Mae Jo Larson, was installing officer; Miss Gaynell Grundy, installing marshal; Rhona Finkelstein, installing chaplain; Miss Ann Price, installing recorder; and Miss Cynthia Duncan, installing musician.

The following officers were installed, Shirley Hankhouse, worthy advisor; Sylvia Grider, associate advisor; Maynette Loftus, charity; Sharon Summers, hope; Linda Skewes, faith; Carol Miller, recorder; Linda Warden, treasurer; Marianna Perkins, chaplain; Kay McMurray, drill leader; Judy Neef, love; Priscilla Turnbo, religion; Mary Heflin, nature; Judy Mahalski, immortality; Kristi Brown, fidelity; Glenda Finkelstein, patriotism; Gail Chisum, service; Patty Hoover, confidential observer; Sandra Rodgers, outer observer; Betty McWilliams, musician; Mary Helen Ayers, choir director.

A winter theme was carried out in the colors of pink and white. The table was covered with pink net over a pink satin cloth with a crystal bowl as the centerpiece.

The guests were registered by Mrs. Naomi Davis and were served cake and punch by Mrs. Larson and Miss Grundy.

VARIATIONS ON A THEME

We're hearing a great deal these days about the new Romantic theme in home furnishings and decor... and a delightful variation of this theme is French Provincial, particularly the city styles.

What the mothers did was organize a dancing club for teen-agers and their invitation list carefully left out all known troublemakers among the teen-agers.

They made a list of rules for the dances and made it quite clear in their invitations that any member breaking any of the rules would be dropped immediately.

Then they set about to organize parties that would be fun, but at which teen-agers were to come appropriately dressed for a party and were to behave like young ladies and young gentlemen.

The parties are a big success. The kids actually seem to enjoy being made to toe the mark on a few important points. With a committee of chaperons instead of two parents trying to manage a party alone, there is no trouble from gate-crashers.

An interesting sidelight on the experiment is that those who belong to the dancing club now look with pity instead of a certain amount of envy on the "tough" kids who are excluded.

As long as they were getting by with party-crashing and trouble-making they were heroes of a sort. But now they are outsiders and that's a different story.

What worked for one group of parents might work for another. So try the idea if your teen-agers parties are getting out of hand.

Do your friends regard the man you married as head of his home or just another henpecked husband? How they see him depends on how you treat him.

Lucky Indeed Is The One Woman In A Million Who Has No Figure Problem

Lucky indeed is the woman with no figure problem. And let's admit, she's one in a million, too. Our unattractive bulges are usually caused by two factors: lack of exercise and the fact that we regard the word "calorie" as a kind of club that deprives us of any food we really enjoy eating. Yet figure control is essential, particularly now with the smart spring fashions of the way. And it can be accomplished. New foundation garments are designed to prevent any bumps and bulges that might mar the smooth line of these new styles. So take a good look at yourself today, see what your trouble is and find out what you can do about it. A brassiere that fits badly can create problems where actually there are none. Bulges above the bra cup or under the arm indicate that the cup size you're wearing is too small. Perhaps you've worn a B cup for years. It doesn't necessarily follow that you still do. Remember, too, that the band of a brassiere bought for daytime wear should anchor beneath the shoulder blades and should not be too snug. Otherwise it will form an unsightly roll of flesh right above it.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Recently this column discussed the problem created for a teenager's parents by her friends' fathers and mothers. They leave home when their children have parties.

The girl's parents felt that this unrestricted freedom was unwise. I urged them to act on their own feelings, not on those that belong to other parents. Now a reader asks if I disapprove community "codes" to regulate teen-age hours. She is soon to vote on one proposed by her PTA. She says, "You recently said that parents should decide these matters for themselves, not let their neighbors do it for them. Does this mean you wouldn't vote for such a code?"

No. It just means that if I saw little wisdom in my neighbors' action, I wouldn't feel compelled to duplicate it. But if I saw wisdom in it, I'd join them in it. AS I'd see wisdom in their effort to regulate teen-age hours, I would enthusiastically vote for their code.

Usually such community controls are put on young people through the thing we call "tradition." One of America's big discipline problems is the absence of any generally accepted tradition that tells young people what we expect of them. This melting pot is still cooking so many different traditions that it hasn't had time to boil down one we can all subscribe to. The situation has put a fearful burden on American parents, making our control of adolescent young solely dependent on their personal affection for us instead of mixing it with restrictions by impersonal, community-endorsed tradition.

Even the most uncivilized tribes recognize parents' need for help in preparing the teen-ager for adult responsibility. In their solemn, painful puberty rituals, they say to the child in the most dramatic way, "See, this utmost endurance and loyalty is what we expect of you."

The savage community admits its increased interest in the child who is approaching the world's hazards, and does not leave his parents alone to make and execute standards for his social and sexual conduct.

We are tired of struggling with just that job. These new codes represent our deep need for some of the security which tradition has immemorially arranged for other parents in the world.

We're a wonderful people. Maybe we're going to start pioneering ourselves a tradition now just as we pioneered our Declaration of Independence.

If You Live Alone, Check Daily Food Habits And Plan Well-Balanced Diet

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

If you live alone, you're more apt to be careless about your eating habits than if you've a family to cook for. So check up on yourself from day to day and make sure you're not subsisting on canned soup or sandwiches alone. Such fare is fine at times, but it doesn't comprise a complete diet, by any means.

In these times of frozen foods, it takes no time to prepare meat, a green salad or vegetable and a potato, all of them good for you. You can change into a robe and read the evening paper while dinner cooks.

Finish up with cheese and crackers and perhaps some fruit for dessert and you will have had a well-balanced meal.

Skipping breakfast has become a custom in many American homes, and a bad one.

You need breakfast for both health and beauty. Nobody says that it has to be cereal or bacon and eggs every morning. This is practically the only country in which this is considered the standard breakfast. French and Italian women, for example, invariably start the day with croissants and coffee au lait (coffee with milk).

Actually, breakfast can be anything that appeals to you and provides food you really need. Maybe you'd prefer a bit of broiled, canned kipper (five-minutes-to-broil) or sardines on buttered toast or tuna fish mixed with mayonnaise and chopped, hard-boiled eggs.

Sound strange? Well, our breakfast ideas seem odd in other countries.

Have whatever you like, if you don't like the typical American breakfast. But don't skip the meal entirely if you want to be beautiful and energetic.

For beauty's sake you pillow be long under your feet rather than under your head. It's a matter of circulation.

If you can sleep without a pillow fine. If you can't accustom yourself to the notion, try to rest at some period during the day with your head lower than your feet. It's the same principle as those reclining chairs that prop your feet in the air and send the blood rushing to your head.

Those sending gifts, but unable to attend were Mmes. Iva Jenkins, A. C. Stealy, N. A. Holmes, Callie Palmer, A. L. Price, Irene Adams, Sue Smith, Lewis Holmes, Jack McKay, Jo Ann Kelley, N. W. Kelly, Ray Graham, Mrs. Dale Everson, W. L. Morris, Jack Morris, Jim Aull, Wayne Ivay, and Joanie Cross.

Manners Make Friends

A teen-age girl wanted to give the boy she was dating an expensive birthday gift. Her mother wisely pointed out to her that an expensive gift wouldn't be in good taste. And, besides, she would be making the boy feel that his next gift to her would have to be an equally expensive one.

Generosity sometimes has to be tempered with good judgment.

In his inexperience, the poor little boy agrees with her. He, too, continues to think that her kindness is less important to him than his passing desires for balls, candy, or jumping n puddles. What unnecessary misunderstanding.

Past, Present, And Future Telephones Are Discussed At Senior Citizens Meet

Senior Citizens heard an interesting discussion regarding telephones, past and future, at their Thursday afternoon meeting in the Lovett Memorial Library.

George Newberry presented the discussion and stated that 840,000 local calls are put through in the United States each day. The dial system did not put people out of work, but rather it was due to a shortage of woman-power that the system became necessary, he said.

There are many telephone inventions in the process of being perfected, but one that will be available within the next two years is the service that will enable a caller to pick up the phone and talk directly to any person within the United States, without it being necessary to have an operator place the call.

Lillie Rogers Circle Has Mission Study

The Lillie Rogers Circle, First Baptist Church, met Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Joe Foster, 421 Magnolia. Mrs. Owen Johnson presided during the business meeting. Mrs. E. L. Anderson led in opening prayer.

Mrs. Ed Rallsback presented the program on "Stewardship and Missions." Mrs. Mary Hoppe, mother of Mrs. Foster and special guest, gave a reading. Others participating in the program were Mmes. D. R. Morris and L. V. Hoppe.

Closing prayer was led by Mrs. J. A. McLain. The next meeting will be with Mrs. L. V. Hoppe. Nine members were present and three guests, Mmes. E. W. Voas, A. C. Tanner, and Mary Hoppe.

that perhaps you've never attempted because of problem bulges.

Other interesting statistics brought out by Mr. Newberry were that there are 2,000,000 telephones in the State of Texas at the present time; by 1965 there will be 10,000,000; in 1975, 22,280,000 are anticipated. Visual telephones will not be possible for several generations.

A tongue-in-cheek prediction was given by Mr. Newberry when he stated that at some future time, babies might be issued a telephone number at the hour of their birth and carry that number throughout their lives, stamped on their spanking place.

Senior Citizen members asked how blind people could use the dial system, and Mr. Newberry stated that usually their dialing was more accurate than a person with sight, because they were more accurate and took more time in selecting their numbers. Fast dialing does not always assure correct dialing.

An interesting observation made by Mr. Newberry at the conclusion of this talk was that even with the elaborate dial system now in use that it would eventually have to be replaced, because it takes up too much space in a telephone building.

A spring flower arrangement consisting of yellow jonquils and blue iris was centered on the blue and yellow cloth, which covered the refreshment table. A miniature pay phone and cradle phone were focal points in the table decoration.

Mmes. Olga Gregory, Marie Thornburg, Jay Flanagan, Vera Lard, and Mrs. Adrienne Foster were Altruus Club hostesses for the afternoon. Transportation was furnished by the Gray Ladies.

During the brief business session, Senior Citizens were urged to register for the coming election. Even though they will not be required to pay poll tax, they must be registered to cast a ballot.

"Women Of The World" Introduced At Twentieth Century Culture Club Meet

Twentieth Century Culture met recently in the home of Mrs. Warren Hase, 1704 Christine, with Mrs. E. E. Sheilhamer as co-hostess. In cooperation with the March of Dimes drive, Mrs. Bruce Pratt spoke to the club relating case histories of individuals helped by the National Polio Foundation. The club voted to subscribe money to the Points for Polio basketball game to be played Feb. 1.

Mr. H. H. Hahn began the program with the devotional, a poem, "Transient Things."

In her discussion of "Women of the World," Mrs. E. L. Henderson conducted the members on a personal visit with a representative woman in several countries.

First visited was an American woman, who, Mrs. Henderson reminded the members, received equal legal rights with man in 1920. Since that she has struggled to be wife, mother, career woman, to develop her cultural interests, and to become a community leader.

In Spain, Culture members were introduced to Mercedes Fornica, who is a modern woman in a still backward country. She has become a powerful influence for change and moderation of the legal rights for women in Spain.

Mrs. Henderson introduced Omar, an Indian social worker. In India, it takes great courage for the high-born woman to deliberately walk into ugliness and reality. Through her lectures, Omar has done much to improve the living conditions of the Indian laborer. In France, England, China, and Malaya, Mrs. Henderson illustrated typical women. Her talk was concluded by saying that woman does not wish to be the same as man, but must take advantage of her traits of tolerance, patience, and faith to become first-class citizens of the world in her own right.

During the social hour, refreshments were served to Misses J. L. Chase, C. W. Conley, G. L. Craddock, J. R. Donaldson, J. W. Edminister, H. H. Hahn, L. H. Hart, Warren Hase, E. L. Henderson, V. L. Hobbs, Rufe Jordan, Doyle Osborne, E. E. Sheilhamer, N. D. Steele, Michael Wilson, and L. J. Zachary.

Mrs. M. L. Foster Is Honored With A Stork Shower In The Macdonald Home

Mrs. M. L. Foster was honored with a Come and Go Stork Shower in the home of Mrs. Rod Macdonald, 108 W. Browning, hostesses were Misses Wallace Bruce, R. F. Macdonald, and Earl D. Champion, who was unable to attend due to the illness of her mother.

Each guest wrote a note to the mother - to be with a guess as to the new baby's statistics; the date and hour of birth, length, sex, weight, color of hair and eyes. The notes are to be sent to the mother while in the hospital and the one having the nearest correct number of guesses will receive a gift from the new mother.

The refreshment table was covered with an ecru cloth over pink centered with a miniature, white cradle trimmed in pink and blue net containing pink carnations and two little panda bears.

Cranberry and ginger ale punch with white cake decorated with pink and blue booties were served to the guests. Jellybean pacifiers and pink candy - cups, shaped like baby - buggies, were given as favors.

Mrs. Foster was presented a corsage by the hostesses made up of

Pancakes Put Back On Breakfast Menu

Pancakes long have been considered by most men as one of their favorite "at home" meals. Pancakes with maple syrup are a traditional breakfast dish with American husbands.

Despite this, however, the average housewife in the last few years has tended to serve pancakes much less often than did housewives in grand-dad's day.

The reason is that "flapjacks" just don't appeal to the palate unless they are freshly made. With mother each morning having to serve two or three breakfasts - to herself, to day before he leaves for work, and then to the youngsters before they leave for school - it often has been almost impossible, and always inconvenient, to serve fresh pancakes. Now, however, Arvin Industries of Columbus, Ind., with its electric grill, has brought convenience back into the baking of fresh pancakes. Mother can put this attractive grill in the center of the breakfast table, mix a full batch of batter, and prepare pancakes for herself. Then, while she turns to other early morning chores, she keeps the batter in the refrigerator. When dad is ready for breakfast, he can get the prepared batter from the refrigerator and bake a fresh "stack of wheats" for himself right at the table. The same applies to the youngsters. Not only is it a convenient arrangement, but it's fun for each member of the family to prepare his own meal. And it's so much easier on Mom, too.

Union Fights Union

The Jamestown Sun is purportedly a newspaper. Its owner, however, is the International Typographical Union, which, has a habit of launching newspapers in cities and towns where legitimate dailies refuse to knuckle under to union domination and control. So whether or not the Sun is actually a newspaper, is a matter for debate.

I.T.U. itself refers to newspapers it finances as "strike weapons." So apparently in the minds of the union bosses, there is a question as to the real purpose of such a paper.

While the citizens of the community in which such a paper exists are frequently forgetful of the causes for its existence, and also tend to overlook the nature of the ownership, the fact must remain that such a newspaper is NOT run for the purpose of furnishing a legitimate medium of news and advertising, but is there for the purpose of harassing and injuring an already existing business. The Sun, for example, is the extended picket line for the Jamestown Post Journal.

But today, the false philosophy of unionism is so widespread, and the sophistry of its merits so patently believed, that even such a paper as the Jamestown Sun, owned as it is by the I.T.U. can come a cropper at the hands of the union itself.

It seems that only recently, the editorial employees of the Sun decided they ought to have a raise in pay. Now, the I.T.U. does not seek to represent the editorial departments of a newspaper, which is ordinarily handled by the Newspaper Guild. The I.T.U. corals printers and typesetters. So, when the Newspaper Guild demanded a wage increase from the owners of the Sun, the I.T.U. at first decided not to go along.

Consequently, the New York State Labor Relations Board moved into the picture and ordered the I.T.U. to do business with the Newspaper Guild.

This interesting impasse has any number of amusing overtones.

The Guild for example, has charged that the I.T.U. is unfair to organized labor; that it has refused to bargain in good faith; and that it has practiced "discrimination"—a nasty word in the union lexicon—against a particular reporter who covered the city hall beat.

After the state L.R.B. moved onto the scene, Woodruff Randolph, taking a page from the notebook of his victims, insisted that he would not do business with the Guild until such time as the Guild dropped its charges.

To this, the state L.R.B. says: "Rather, the charges should have spurred respondent (I.T.U.) to even greater efforts to negotiate in good faith with the union. Yet, respondent insisted that the charge be withdrawn as a condition of further negotiations and the signing of a contract when terms were finally agreed upon."

"An employer's unilateral imposition of such a condition precedent to negotiations is unlawful in itself and constitutes a clear refusal to bargain as required by the act."

So here is one union, the I.T.U., conducting itself in a manner which is clearly non-union, in that it refuses to negotiate with another union, the N. G.

Yet, this is precisely the charge that the I.T.U. has brought in innumerable instances against legitimate businessmen who are only trying to make ends meet and keep their businesses from being engulfed by union extortionists.

To the unbiased observer in our midst, it must now appear that unionism has come a full circle from the time of its incidence. When one union must go to court to compel a second union to come to terms, we have reached a place where the wild beasts of the jungle are devouring each other. And this can only mean that other game is scarce, for surely no carnivore hankers after meat ripped from its own kind.

From our point of view, this type of cannibalism couldn't happen to a pair of finer unions. And we can only say that we hope both of them get exactly what they deserve.

CAL PUC vs. ICC

(Pacific Air & Truck Traffic)
Not so long ago, the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered the California Public Utilities Commission to grant the rail carriers' petition to advance intrastate rates 15 per cent, the same as the I.C.C. had authorized under Ex Parte 175 for interstate rates.

In this instance, the federal agencies found the rail carriers' request justified. The State Commission, presumably upon the same factual evidence, found the rail carriers had failed to prove a need for increased rates. Either one or the other was obviously in error.

If the rail carriers did not need the 15 per cent in Ex Parte 175, they should be no more wallowing around in excess profits. To the contrary, however, rail carriers have subsequently proven to the I. C. C. in Ex Parte 196 (December 1955) that they required 6 per cent more than the 15 per cent authorized in Ex Parte 175. And, again, the California Commission found that rail carriers failed to prove the need for the same increase on intrastate traffic. Thus, in recent months, the Cal. P.U.C. has found that the I.C.C. has granted 21 per cent more revenue than the rail carriers actually need.

If it is an interesting thing that, in the face of constantly increasing costs and the filing of a petition for a third round of increases (Ex Parte 206), the California Commission rejected any further increase on intrastate rail carload rates.

Last December 17th the I.C.C. issued an order in Ex Parte 206 authorizing an additional 30 per cent increase on western interstate rates. The day following, the rail carriers petitioned the Commission, requesting that it issue an order requiring the State Commission to up the intrastate rates 6 per cent, an amount comparable to that authorized in Ex Parte 196.

The Cal. P.U.C. contends that increased intrastate rates are authorized without benefit of adequate records of the opportunity of a full public hearing. The implications of all this may mean that the I.C.C. recognized managerial discretion and greater freedom from regulation than does the State.

TALK ABOUT CRUST

(N. Y. Daily News)
Three untraced U. S. ex-soldiers who finally got a bellyful of Red China and came home are suing the government for pay and allowances from the time they were captured in Korea till the Army socked them with dishonorable discharges.

We thought at first that this was tops in crust, and still think it comes close.

But then we got to pondering the Federal Bar Association's current bleeding heart move to water down the so-called Hiss Law. A 1954 result of Alger Hiss' conviction, this statute jerks retirement and other benefits from federal government employees convicted of felonies.

The F.B.A. now wants the law modified so that the President or an agent of his can reduce or remove the forfeitures without Presidential pardon. This is an attempt to make the taxpayers reward crimes, including treason, committed by their federal servants. As such, we call it tops in crust up to now.

What Tax-less Schools Can Teach

In the last few issues I have been discussing what tax-run schools dare not teach because if they were successful in teaching moral laws, their reputations as teachers might be shattered. Too many teachers in tax-run schools are more interested in their reputations as teachers than in what they are teaching and whether they are influential in developing trustworthiness, self-reliance and integrity in their pupils. You will note I said, "what they are teaching."

I am inclined to think the grade schools would be more likely to teach moral law in schools that are not supported by taxation than higher independent colleges. Colleges are interested in getting pupils from tax-run schools so they are afraid to discuss tax-run schools from the standpoint of ethics and morals and justice.

"Tax-less schools, of course, can teach the spirit of the Constitution as set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

They can teach successfully that governments derive their just power from the consent of the governed because they are not using aggressive force to get their support.

They can teach that all men are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among these life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, because they are so endowed by their Creator and not by the state or the agents of the state, as tax-run schools must teach in order to be consistent.

They, of course, can teach the belief in liberty because they are practicing liberty. They are not using aggressive force.

They can teach, of course, the Golden Rule because they are operated in harmony with the Golden Rule.

They can teach a single standard of rightness because they are in harmony with liberty and justice and goodwill and the Golden Rule.

They, of course, can teach successfully the First and Second Commandments because they're not subservient to the state. They are not bowing down to the state.

They can teach discipline because the teachers are relying on their own ability to render service so that parents will voluntarily pay their salaries.

They can teach independence because they are operated independently from the state.

They can teach respect for human initiative because they are responsive to the needs of the people.

They can teach humility and meekness because they are humble enough and meek enough that they do not believe they have a right to force people to pay for their services.

They can teach the difference between the moral laws of the ages.

They can teach that love and charity and persuasion are better than the use of aggressive force because they are practicing love and charity and not using aggressive force.

They can teach the belief in peace because they are operated on a peaceful method without initiating force.

They can teach how the government should be supported because they are being supported on rendering service well enough that their patrons want to pay for it.

They can teach that God's will should prevail in preference to arbitrary will of man.

They can teach honesty and justice because they are operated on the principle of honesty and justice.

They can teach frankness and sincerity because they owe no obligations to the politicians and the state.

They can teach intellectual courage because they are rendering service so valuable that people want to support them voluntarily.

They can teach patience because they are not in such a hurry to get to the people's money that they are willing to use a policeman's club to get it. They can see that in the long run patience and persuasion and the pen are more powerful than the sword.

There is nothing more important for parents than their duty to train fairly and have an opportunity to learn from schools that can teach these great moral principles and axioms.

It is not the money we're wasting in our tax-run schools that is so important, but it is the fact that our children are not being taught the moral laws that tax-less schools can teach.

It is because children can be taught what is right in tax-less schools and they cannot be taught in tax-run schools that I am obliged to do what little I can to get parents to see that they are not doing their duty to their minor as we are you, to clip this editorial and send it to your U. S. Senators, with an urgent request to act as above suggested.

People Are Cashing-In More Bonds Than They Are Buying

By Thurman Sensing

THE BETRAYAL OF THRIFT

The Federal Treasury is much concerned because people are cashing in more U.S. savings bonds than they are buying. In the last seven months of 1956, they cashed in $100 million more of these bonds than they bought. In the month of December alone, they cashed in $29 million more than they bought.

Such a development should not surprise anyone who knows how thrift has been betrayed by the Government of this country for past quarter century. What is happening is that our chickens are simply coming home to roost—chickens that have been let out in great quantity over this whole period of time.

It usually takes a good while for people generally to realize they are being duped by their government. That would be especially true of the people of the United States, because generally speaking throughout our whole history until recent years the Government has played fair with the people so far as protecting the value of the dollar is concerned. But once they do find out there is nothing that will stop them from taking flight from the dollar—and that, in effect, is what they are doing when they cash in their Government bonds.

There is no question, of course, but that the Government will always pay off in dollars the face amount of the bond when it matures. The question is what will the dollar be worth at that time!

Ever since our Government disregarded all moral principles in 1933 by going off the gold standard and robbing the thrifty of forty per cent of their savings, it has been inevitable that we should have continuous inflation until the principles violated at the time were once again recognized and respected. That has not been done. There is still nothing tangible back of our dollar except the Government's promise to pay, and government being what they are that, is not enough, even with our own Government.

But all the days since 1933, the Government has been urging the people and appealing to the people on the basis of patriotism and imploring them in every way they could think of to buy Government bonds—the "safest investment on the face of the earth."

We repeat again—the investment was safe all right so far as the number of dollars to be received at bond maturity was concerned, but it was in no manner safe so far as the value of these dollars was concerned. The Government urged the people to buy the bonds, knowing full well that the total of dollars invested plus the total of dollars in interest received on the investment at the time of maturity would, by no means be worth as much as the dollars invested at the beginning.

The people generally did not realize this however, and over the years they have bought approximately $50 billion of these bonds. Now they are beginning to cash them in, and if there should develop any sort of "rush" to cash in, the effects on our economy would be most serious.

Institutional, commercial and banking investors were the first to realize that their dollars would be safer elsewhere than in Government bonds—due perhaps to the fact that such organizations have the best investment brains at their service—and they have been exchanging their Government holdings for equities at a rapid rate. The same thing is now happening in the case of individuals.

Where does this leave the Treasury? In order to make Government bonds more attractive to investors, the Treasury is now having to pay a higher interest rate than at any time in twenty-five years. But even a higher interest rate is not going to solve the problem if people decide that inflation is going to continue and that investment dollars plus interest dollars will still not be worth at maturity what the investment dollars were worth in the beginning.

Moreover, a higher interest rate adds further to the troubles of the Treasury. It is already paying out $72 billion a year as interest on the national debt, and continuous increase of this figure will eventually become more than the taxpayers can bear.

The solution: Return to a gold standard—and economy in government that will permit payment of the nation's debt.

FOR REFLECTION

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETTEN President, Spiritual Mobilization

At a recent symposium in New York City on "Moving Frontiers of Science" sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Michael Polanyi of Victoria University, Manchester, England, assertedly declared that he feared things had gone wrong in the social sciences in the past forty years.

"Social science studies now have very little bearing to the great problems with which we are confronted today," Dr. Polanyi reportedly said. "It is of paramount importance that social sciences not rely too much on 'scientific' techniques which have 'worked' in the physical sciences."

Well, that ought to bring us up short and cause us to do considerable reappraising. Man is not simply an "economic unit" as the collectivists wishfully posit him to be. Neither is he merely a "higher animal" as the materialists apparently wish that he were. He can't be reduced to figures in a ledger, or be corralled and branded and bred like cattle.

Man is a curious creature, "a little lower than the angels" but with his heavenly attributes corrupted and stained. Which of us can understand even himself? And, if we cannot understand ourselves, how can we have the audacity to try to classify and pigeonhole the rest of the race?

No, the "scientific" techniques which have worked in the physical sciences simply won't work with man. And the sooner we stop trying to treat man as a sort of a physical accident and start viewing him as a spiritual being, the sooner we'll start making real headway toward solving his problems.

Court's Ruling Effects States' Prosecutions

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court's overriding of Pennsylvania's Anti-Communist Statute in the famous Steve Nelson case has had the expected effect of preventing States' prosecution of violators of the Pure Food and Drug and the Federal Anti-Narcotic Acts.

These lawbreakers must now be prosecuted only in Federal Courts, with the accompanying delays of several years before a final decision. Meanwhile, the 48 States are powerless to protect their citizens against foods harmful to health or against drugs acknowledged to be fertile sources of the most dangerous crimes.

Legal records show that State Courts dispose of such serious prosecutions in far less time than it requires in the Federal Judiciary.

Numerous State jurists have complained against this far-reaching and threatening effect of the Steve Nelson decision in letters or visits to Capitol Hill. They have urged their Representatives to sponsor remedial laws preventing the high tribunal from what they call an "alarming invasion of State sovereignty." They now know how their Southern colleagues feel on the question of the Warren abolition of school segregation.

Representative J. Howard Smith of Virginia, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, introduced such a measure because, as the author of the Federal Anti-Communist Law, he felt that the Supreme Court had misread and misinterpreted the intent of Congress. But so far he had not been able to persuade the House Judiciary Committee to act or report on it favorably.

Representative Emanuel Celler, of Brooklyn, head of the Judiciary Committee, is an enthusiastic champion of Civil Rights Bills, and a bitter foe of the Virginia Congressman's attitude on this question. And the Brooklyn Democrat, like all committee chairmen, carries his group around in his vest pocket.

Nobody on Capitol Hill remembers when there has been such severe criticism of and indignation against the Supreme Court on the part of State judges. The revolt amounts to an act of judicial heresy, which is why the names of the leaders cannot be listed here.

Legal and judicial circles were shocked when the Supreme Court held that Steve Nelson could not be prosecuted by Pennsylvania merely because Congress had passed the Smith Act for action against suspected Communists and subversives. They did not dream that this "upside down" doctrine would be invoked by lawyers and jilted by the Supreme Court in such vital and everyday matters as health and crime.

Soon after the overriding decision, members of the Medical Society of a great Eastern State consulted Representative Smith. They explained that they felt that a certain drug being sold in their state was deleterious to health, and they set out to investigate its ingredients.

But the manufacturers objected successfully on the ground that Congress had stripped the State of jurisdiction by passing the Pure Food and Drug Act about 50 years ago. The makers took the position that the State statute had been repealed, not by the State Legislature, but by the Supreme Court. The drug is still being sold.

The State of Alabama faced the same sort of defense when it sought merely to inspect a stock of renovated butter considered below health standards. Here again, the Supreme Court held that Alabama did not have the right to confiscate the butter or to prosecute the manufacturer, or to "inspect" the product.

The Supreme Court's prohibition of mere "inspection" by medical and State authorities has an especially dangerous result, and it cannot be exaggerated. The Federal government, as in prohibition days and due largely to Congressional niggardliness on appropriations, does not have enough agents to check on violators of these protective laws. It

BEFORE THE DISHES ARE DONE

INFLATION HERE TO STAY!

President Eisenhower couldn't be righter than in his State of the Union address to Congress on "the dangers of inflation." He called it "the thief that can rob the individual of the value of the earned and Social Security he has earned during his productive life." The trouble is that this thief not only "can," it already "has!" Just ask any retired person trying to live on 50 cent dollars! Inflation has been robbing "all of us" for years, with the greatest of ease and encouragement, and the sad prospect is that it will go right ahead in the future.

It is all very well—and good to sound the alarm, but who is supposed to man the gates and "lock the doors?" It is fine and dandy to hear the President state that the government must live "within its means," "carefully measuring" expenditures against need, and searching "additional ways to save money and manpower," but talk is pretty useless when government goes right on acting in the same old way.

Government warnings that private citizens are buying too much on credit, and piling up too much debt, are a bit ironic when the government itself is by far the worst and biggest culprit in this department! Some of us remember a dust-collecting Hoover Report which pointed out in sober detail how billions of dollars could be saved by streamlining government functions and paring of the surplus fat that feeds the very inflation the President now warns us about.

Yes—the Administration is not exactly rushing to put these recommendations into effect. The President also urges business and labor leaders to use restraint in raising wages and prices unrelated to productivity, but where was the President last year during the steel strike, when everybody knew that a substantial wage increase would be followed by a price increase which would affect our entire economy? The President was in the White House, in command of our Ship of State, but he couldn't see the danger at that crucial moment when the Thief of Inflation was standing in full view, just waiting to bite another chunk out of our standard of living. Nature was simply allowed "to take its course," which merely means that in a major strike, the strikers must be paid off, and the consumer must be handed the subsequent bill.

It seems only yesterday that the President was engaged in a national election campaign, but we recall no important speeches by either presidential candidate advocating the curtailment of government spending. Quite the contrary! The campaign pitch was lopsided with rosy promises of how much more the government must do for all the people in every area of life, and no reference was made to whose pocketbook would be picked to pay for all these new government blessings.

Little children conceive of Santa Claus as a good fairy with an endlessly overflowing pack of gifts on his back. This is a fairly harmless delusion for a four year old at Yule time, but it is a highly dangerous and infantile conception for adults to apply to their government. It is bad enough when Americans begin to picture the federal government as a philanthropic Kist Kringle, but we are rapidly approaching the point where the entire world population is hanging up its collective stockings in the happy belief that St. Nicholas of Washington will soon be there to fill them!

The average American daddy doesn't mind financing Santa for a few years, but there comes a day when Junior has to be told the facts of life, and from that day forward, Junior's sugar-plum dreams have to be cut to fit daddy's budget, or Junior's earning power. Unfortunately, somebody has neglected to tell daddy that his own happy illusion about Santa on the Polomac is just as imaginary as Junior's. He might be hurt and shocked to discover that he's the financier of this Santa Claus too, but if Junior must face the facts of life, then—so must Papa!

INVASION OF THE MOON?—In eerie light that suggests the mountains of the moon, Italian paratroopers descend toward a 7,500-foot-high plateau amid the forbidding crags of the Italian Alps at Conca Di Corvavo. Marking a new era in mountain warfare, the drop was made in sub-zero temperatures.

Good And Bad Of Week's News

Foreign News Commentary By CHARLES M. MCCANN, United Press Staff Correspondent

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

Soviet Russia warned free countries all over the world that they would risk attack by nuclear weapons, in the event of war, if they let the United States station atomic military units on their territory.

Wladyslaw Gomulka, Polish independent Communist leader, won a landslide victory in a national parliamentary election which was regarded as a critical test of the strength of his regime.

Defying the United Nations, Israel announced it would refuse to evacuate the Gaza Strip and positions on the Gulf of Aqaba which it occupied in its attack on Egypt.

It was feared that Egypt, in turn, might stop the clearing of the Suez Canal which it blocked when Britain and France attacked the canal zone.

Warning Russia's warning on establishment of American atomic weapon units in foreign countries mentioned specifically Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Turkey, Iran and Japan.

President Eisenhower had said in his budget message to Congress on Jan. 16 that the United States intended to establish atomic bases abroad.

The Russian warning, issued through the official news agency Tass, was regarded as directed primarily against the new Eisenhower Doctrine to combat Communist aggression in the Middle East.

It was one of many such Russian blasts. But it showed the concern of the Soviet government over the doctrine and the vast system of American bases all over the world.

Communists There was a threat that both Communists who oppose Gomulka's independent attitude toward Russia and anti-Communists who want a complete break with Moscow might boycott the Polish general election.

But 94.14 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls. Of these, 98.4 per cent voted for Gomulka's candidates.

It was a singular situation in which the Roman Catholic clergy urged support of a Communist. Had Gomulka failed to get a big vote, his regime would have been dangerously weakened. As it is, he has been strengthened against attacks by those Communists who want to get Poland back under the thumb of the Soviet government.

The U.N. had given Israel until Thursday midnight to evacuate the Egyptian territory it occupied in its invasion of the Sinai Peninsula.

A few hours before the deadline, Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion announced that the Israeli forces would hold the Gaza and Aqaba Gulf areas unless he received guarantees that they would not be used by Egypt for attack.

Egypt had threatened that unless the Israelis got out it would stop the work of clearing the Suez Canal, and thus further delay resumption of oil and other shipments.

Squawk Ruled Talk HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A parrot named Tony won a heated dispute and $80 a day additional salary for his owner concerning his status as an actor. Tony has a role in Kim Novak's new film "Jeanne Eagles."

and the script demands that he squawk at the actress. The question was whether he was to be paid as a silent actor or an actor with lines.

CROWNED AGAIN — Comely May Louise Flodin, of Gothenburg, Sweden, seemed destined to wear a beauty queen's crown. A while ago she was crowned "Miss World." Now she's the "International Art Queen," after winning a contest at Cypress Gardens, Fla.

TV Stars Are Nameless After Show

By WILLIAM EWALD, United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP)—Consider these names: Phil Abbott, Harry Townes, Frank Overton, Mary Welch, Kathy Maguire, Andy Dugan, Jason Roberts.

The chances are none of them evoke a response even though the faces attached to those names have poked their way into your living room on dozens of occasions.

All are practitioners of the TV acting trade and as such, all suffer from a common occupational ailment — lack of public recognition.

One of Nameless Group—Robards, one of this nameless group, will appear this Sunday as the lead in a Goodyear Playhouse cowboy epic, "Nobody's Town." A gaunt, faced, tweedy customer, Robards has competed in some 300 teleplays on such showcases as the Alcoa Hour, Studio One and Armstrong Circle Theatre.

He has tackled a range of roles running from mental patient to newsman. If this gamut strikes you as rather limited, Robards, it might be pointed out, also has donned the cloak of weatherman, field engineer, T-man and villain, in a variety of guises.

"It's a strange thing about TV," Robards ventured. "This business of not being known by the public. Unless you're in a series where you're exposed week after week, nobody outside the business really knows you."

Different in Movies "You can do a teleplay one night and the next day you're forgotten by the people who are watching."

"In the movies, it is different. There, the stars become personalities as well as actors. The publicity, I guess, has a lot to do with it, and nothing to do with competence — I know from working with Hollywood stars on TV shows, that in most ways they just don't measure up to the competence of most of our TV actors."

"I've been on TV sets where Hollywood stars have stormed and charged about upsetting everybody and when the final play came off, they made it badly anyway."

LADY-B-LOVELY

Ingrid's Visit Didn't Stir This Writer

By DOC QUIGG, United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP)—Sometimes it seems to me that our public hysteria spasms are getting back to the mass lunacy of the 1920s.

I don't know how it has been in your town, but there has been a heavy hullabaloo in our town recently over a Bergman named Ingrid.

After 34 highly and neatly publicized hours in New York, Miss Bergman departed these shores "weary but smiling," as the papers said.

If you ask me personally I say I couldn't care less what Ingrid does — whether she comes, goes, stays put, or shilly-shalles. What earthly difference does it make?

Miss Bergman is an actress — a pretty fair one, with a lovely face and a fetching accent — who had a child by one man while still married to another man. This comes under the category of forthright action, if nothing else.

I do not come before you today to discuss morals, religion, or the law. For all I know Miss Bergman may be a paragon of virtue, with the rectitude of a New England church steeple. I believe, however, that she has been quoted as dubbing her action a "mistake." And she said it's how people act after their mistakes that counts.

My interest is in the terrible tizzy thrown by this burg on the occasion of her brief visit. You'll have to pardon me, but I just don't get it. I saw the red engines, but I didn't see the fire.
