British Call For Ike, Macmillan Parley

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
LONDON, Jan. 19 (UP) — British lawmakers Saturday called for a conference between Prime Minister Sir Harold Macmillan and President Eisenhower, preferably in London.
Calls for an invitation to the President rose as the government announced that Macmillan's new defense minister, Duncan Sandys, son-in-law of Sir Winston Churchill, will go to Washington next week to brief American officials on drastic cutbacks in the British armed forces.
Sources said these cuts eventually will amount to a saving of $480 million a year for financially pressed Britain.
But primary emphasis on Parliament is in easing the strain on Anglo-American relations caused by Sir Anthony Eden's unsuccessful venture in Egypt.
Formal Question Drawn Up
M. P. Wing Commander Eric Bullus, a Conservative, drew up a formal question to be presented to Macmillan when Parliament meets again Tuesday after the Christmas recess, asking whether the prime minister will invite the President to London for talks.
Bullus had considerable support among fellow members of Commons for his proposal that such a conference be arranged.

Eden, prior to his resignation for reasons of health, reiterated that he was willing to "go anywhere and see anyone" in the cause of peace, Washington chose to ignore the hint for a conference with Mr. Eisenhower.
But with Eden out, the United States is believed receptive to a top-level meeting of the two heads of state, although not necessarily in London.
No Apology Called For
However, a strong current of opinion in Britain maintained that Macmillan should not fly to Washington to "know" to the President. Rather, the argument runs, it is about time the President came to London.
Rightwing Suez diehards in the Conservative party insist that Britain need not apologize to the United States for its Egyptian actions.
Macmillan himself has said "we don't intend to part from the Americans and we don't intend to be their satellites."
He also expressed a desire for closer Anglo-American relations. Sources said a top-level meeting wherever held — could be the first step towards that goal.

Four Nations To Oppose Move In 'Mideast Vacuum'

Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia And Jordan Make Agreement

By W. G. LANDREY
CAIRO (UP) — Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Jordan agreed Saturday to oppose any foreign power trying to fill a "Mideast vacuum."
The four-state agreement was a sharp answer to the "Eisenhower doctrine." It also could be read as a warning to Russia as well.

Egypt, Syria and Arabia also agreed to replace Britain as the financial backers of Jordan, paving the way for elimination of Jordan's last ties with the West.
President Gamal A. Nasser of Egypt, Premier Sabri El Assali of Syria and King Saud of Arabia and Hussein of Jordan signed the agreement pledging the three nations to make up the subsidy of $35 million a year that Jordan will lose by closing down British bases on its territory.

Nixon Sees New Need For Ike Doctrine

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday the belligerent Moscow declaration on the Middle East "underlines the necessity" for President Eisenhower's program of new U.S. military and economic support for the area.
Nixon, who rarely speaks out on pending legislation, said the Moscow pronouncement "coming as it does at this time dramatically illustrates why the free world must not leave a military or economic vacuum in that area of the world."
Russia and Communist China, in a joint declaration in Moscow Friday, denounced Mr. Eisenhower's Mideast proposal and promised "necessary support" for Middle East countries to oppose "aggression and interference in their affairs."

Gomulka Warns Of Election Dangers

WARSAW, Jan. 19 (UP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka, "liberal" Communist party chief, warned Polish voters Saturday night that to vote against his candidates in Sunday's parliamentary elections would be to "cross out Poland from the map of Europe."
In a nationwide radio broadcast directed against both old-guard Stalinists who seek to oust him and the anti-Communist opposition, Gomulka warned that voters must support him to retain the "most vital" friendship of the Soviet Union.
Opponents of his regime said, "are well aware that only Socialist Poland can figure on the map of Europe as a sovereign and independent state."
He thus brought his country to the Communist crossroads. Some 15 million voters, taking part in the first "free" postwar election in the country, must choose between Gomulka and his followers and the diehards who would restore the old iron-disciplined Stalinist regime.

His Backing of Church
Gomulka had the backing of the Roman Catholic church in his efforts to continue his internal "democratization" program.
His address delivered just 11 hours before the polls open Sunday morning, emphasize that his Polish United Workers (Communist) party is "the first guarantor of Poland's independence and at the same time of friendship between the Polish nation and the Soviet Union."
His hard-hitting speech was aimed at whipping up enthusiasm for the party list in Sunday's general election, in the face of apathy among the voters.
Although the country was quiet and appeared to have little political fervor there were undercurrents and could spell trouble. (See GOMULKA, Page 3)

She Knew The Answer

CHICAGO (UP) — George Schwartz, a printing press operator, stirred up interest in his neighborhood when he decided to place a fur coat over his car hood to keep the motor from freezing.
Schwartz found the coat in the basement of his home after a previous coat — only cloth — was stolen.
"I know it looks funny," said Mrs. Schwartz, "but my husband insists it helps keep the car from freezing."

Hungarian Leaders Are Executed

By CHARLES W. RIDLEY
VIENNA, Jan. 19 (UP) — The two top leaders of the Hungarian rebellion were executed Saturday, Budapest Radio announced.
The radio said Jozsef Dudas, former chairman of the all-Hungary Revolutionary Council, and Janos Szabo, his right-hand man, were put to death after a six-day trial. It said they were found guilty of "trying to overthrow the Hungarian peoples democracy by organizing an armed uprising."
The executions were part of the crackdown ordered by puppet Premier Janos Kadar to smash the last elements of resistance to communism in Hungary.
Extends Campaign To Newsmen
Since a martial law decree went into effect more than one month ago, a number of "counter-revolutionaries" in the Oct. 23 uprising have been executed after trials before military tribunals and civilian kangaroo courts.
The government extended its campaign Saturday to newspapermen, ordering the dissolution of the National Association of Hungarian Journalists.
Shortly after the journalist association was disbanded, the radio announced the trial and death by hanging of Dudas and Szabo who were the civilian chiefs of the rebellion.

7 p.m. Monday is the magic "Switching" hour.
That is the hour the Mothers' March for the Polio Fund in Pampa will begin.
That is the hour it is hoped that all porch lights in Pampa will be switched on so that the mothers will know that you want to make a contribution, large or small, to the March of Dimes Campaign.
Mrs. L. L. Milliken, PTA City Council president, has announced that the Parent-Teacher Association, in cooperation with the March of Dimes Committee, chair-manned by Rev. Edwin Hall, will form the working teams. Each school PTA will furnish a team of workers captained by their PTA president.

Each mother will be carrying a container, properly labeled and will have personal identification as to her mission. In return for your contribution, she will leave with a record card with information about the Salk vaccine, so that accurate data may be kept of polio shots.
So, at 7 p.m., Monday, will you turn your porch light on and light the mothers' way to your door?

Daniel Calls For Support

AUSTIN, Jan. 19 (UP) — Gov. Price Daniel Saturday called for Texas newspapers to back his programs for a law enforcement commission, freedom of information, water conservation, traffic safety and school improvement.
Daniel spoke at a luncheon meeting of the 10th annual mid-winter session of the Texas Press Association.
The governor said newspapers can do more to assure a successful administration during the next two years than any other group outside the government.
"I believe in the power of the press and the power of the pen," said Daniel, publisher of a newspaper at his home at Liberty.
Must Get Information
The governor said the people must be given information about the government before they are able to govern themselves intelligently.
"There still is too much of the people's business being conducted behind closed doors," Daniel said. He said that in 1953 when he went to the U.S. Senate he urged President Eisenhower to relax some of the secrecy in the federal government.
The governor praised the TPA legislative program, and said he has always been a champion of the "right to know."

UN Approves Resolution For Israel To Leave Egypt

By BRUCE W. MUNN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Jan. 19 (UP) — The General Assembly voted almost unanimously Saturday for a new resolution calling again on Israel to quit Egypt and the Gaza Strip entirely.
The resolution, ambiguously worded, requested Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to submit a compliance report within five days.
It was adopted by a vote of 72-2 with two abstentions. Israel and France opposed it. Costa Rica and Cuba abstained.
As soon as the usual Saturday session ended, Hammarskjold contacted the Israeli and Egyptian delegations and told them he would be available Saturday afternoon.

Two Men Fined By County Court

Billy Wayne Kinsey of 1004 Gordon was fined $5 plus costs yesterday morning in County Court after pleading guilty to a charge of swindling with a worthless check.
The charge was filed on a check for $20 given to Wards Super Market.
Tried on a charge of driving while intoxicated was Wirt Edward Ellis, of 728 N. Nelson. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 plus costs and given three days in jail.
Officials stated that this was not a first offense, and that a previous charge had been filed against Ellis in 1954 which had not come up yet, since he had pleaded not guilty at that time.
As a result of this latest arrest the other case was also discussed, and Ellis was given a five year probationary sentence for it.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 19 (UP) — George B. Silvey, 56, of Nacogdoches, Tex., was charged Saturday with counterfeiting coins.
Police and federal agents arrested Silvey Friday in a Hot Springs bar. Police Chief John Erney said Silvey admitted coining counterfeit money.
Federal agents confiscated bogus nickels, dimes and quarters and molds for making the coins from Silvey's rooms.
Erney said it was the first case of counterfeit coins in Hot Springs since the early 1930s. Silvey told police he learned the technique from his uncle in Texas in 1931.
Silvey had been living in Hot Springs since November working as a house to house salesman. Federal agents were called in on the case several weeks ago, when the telephone company noticed bogus money being used in pay tele-phones.

Presidents Are Fast Men With A Buck

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt was what the Broadway crowd would call a fast man with a buck. That means he was a big spender.

FDR's fat peacetime spending programs of $7 or $8 billion and thereabouts in a single year panicked the financial community.

President Harry S. Truman came along after that and set new spending records. And now, President Eisenhower is spending at a peacetime rate which makes FDR and HST look like pikers.

On the basis of estimates for the current fiscal year, the Eisenhower administration will have a four-year spending total of $267.9 billion. That is for Mr. Eisenhower's first term. He has begun his second with budget estimates for continued big spending; in fact, record peacetime spending.

FDR served three full terms and spent in each of them, respectively, $29 billion, $37 billion and $306 billion. Mr. Roosevelt's $306 billion tops Mr. Eisenhower's first term expenditure, but FDR's spending was largely for World War II. Mr. Roosevelt was in the red every year during his presidency.

HST Also Had Deficits
Mr. Truman spent $172 billion in the four-year term he inherited on FDR's death in April, 1945. HST was in the red more often than not. World War II spending was being tapered off then, but not much. Mr. Truman won a presidential term in his own right in the 1948 elections and he loosened the purse strings thereupon.

In HST's second term, government cost $223 billion, plus a considerable accumulation of deficit spending which must be paid sometime by somebody. If Mr. Eisenhower's spending record is shadowed a bit by FDR's World War II spending, the present administration has a clear spending lead over Mr. Truman.

While he was spending that $267.9 billion, Mr. Eisenhower was with any church. "In the end the spiritual power of the church will die when it lays hold of civil power to assure its security."

Among specific lines of action adopted at the church here was a program to circulate "Liberty," the denomination's journal on religious freedom.

streak of anti-Semitism has cropped up. "Hooliganism" is on the rise.

Outward Calm
(Radio Moscow Saturday charged that anti-Soviet "scum" were becoming "unprecedentedly active" on the eve of the election.

But outward appearances all was calm. There were only two crowds in Gomulka's home district where he is running for one of the 429 seats in the Sejm (parliament).

As of Saturday night, there had been no reports of late pre-election demonstrations against the "national front" ticket which is composed of members of the United Workers (Communist) party, the peasant and Democratic parties. The latter two are nominally non-Communist.

Most Communists
There were 723 candidates, just over half of them Communist party members, and all picked by a Communist-dominated election committee. The Communists cannot lose the election.

But there is a question whether the people will give Gomulka the overwhelming majority he needs to continue his "democratization" policies against the opposition of old-line Stalinists who opposed his accession to office in the bloodless revolt of Oct. 20 and have since tried to cut down his power.

The people have become confused by the situation, particularly since Gomulka has announced Polish support for Soviet policies.

But it appeared the elections would be quiet, guarded by members of the workers militia.

Union Leader Proposes Three-Month Vacation

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19 (UP)—A three-month vacation every five years for production workers was proposed by President David J. McDonald, of the United Steelworkers Saturday as a brake against machines replacing men in the age of automation.

In all address before more than 200 union leaders from 10 western states, McDonald said the cost of such a plan would be reasonable and that it would actually increase employment rather than merely hold present lines.

The union leaders met here Friday and Saturday to discuss present and future labor contracts in the steel, aluminum, iron ore, non-ferrous and fabricating industries.

The meeting is one of several scheduled across the nation as part of a program adopted by the steelworkers at their convention in Los Angeles last year.

The vacation plan was one of three suggestions McDonald offered as a means of meeting what he called the "challenge of automation."

The alternate plans were a four-day, 32-hour week or a five-day, 30-hour week.

A Family Of Real Ambassadors Have Been Passing Through Here

By BOB PEREZ

Dear Al:
I guess you remember my constant spiel about the mess of bums that were being sent around the countries of the world claiming American citizenship, and being sent courtesy of Uncle Sam, bringing to the American people the kind of publicity which I said I didn't feel we actually deserved or should be getting when you consider the amount of money that those free loaders were costing you and me?

Well, pally, I guess I'm going to have to take a little of that back. Last week, I met a fellow, his wife, and their three kids which proved to me that not all Americans "good - will ambassadors," bring upon us the wrath of the poor opinion of the ordinary people of the world. He happens to be a tech. sergeant in the Air Force. He and his family are just passing through Pampa here on their way to his new duty assignment in France.

Before you start wondering just what I'm talking about in the first place, I may as well point out now that this fellow's wife happens to be a French gal he met while serving in France with the Air Force, and his three children are all Japanese kids whom he adopted while stationed in Japan.

I won't back down from my original statement that too many of the "representatives" we send overseas are not representatives at all, and have been raised with blinders on them to think that if a person doesn't speak English why he's not really a person at all. This much I still firmly maintain.

However, what I'm trying to point out, pally, is that this fellow is one of the really good "representatives" which we have sent overseas, and which, through some shortsightedness of either policy or thinking, we have not sent enough of.

He is T-Sgt. Willy Barnett USAF, and he hails originally from Sayre, Okla. He's been in the Air Force now for fifteen years, and most of those have been spent in theatres of operation both in the South Pacific and Europe.

ed he found himself assigned to duty in France. There, in a town called Compiègne, about 60 kilometers from Paris, he met his wife Jeanne. After what might be termed as a whirlwind courtship they were married, and she returned to the states with him.

At this point, buddy, I'd like to say that I'll bet she's done more travelling around—these United States than many born Americans have, I'm not sure of the exact date of marriage, but it was in 1946.

After being married for a while, they found out that they couldn't have any children of their own, so they decided to adopt a child. Unfortunately, the tariff on adopting a kid here in the states is too often based, not on the ability of the prospective parent to give that child the love and attention which we all need, especially during the early years of life, or sense of values which that prospective parent possesses, and might be able to instill in the child; but rather the tab is usually, the mere whim to have a child, accompanied by a fairly sizeable balance in the bank.

Once again, old boy, before you start flipping your lid, and classifying my observations as bigoted opinions, I'll qualify the statement that this isn't always the case, but it is too often the case. At any rate, as I started to say, Al, unfortunately the Barnetts possessed every bit of the former, but not much of the latter qualifications. So life here in these United States, was still swell to them, but they could not have a child.

Well, I guess that somebody up there must certainly have liked them, for not very long after they had been frustrated in their attempts to adopt a child, Willy was transferred to duty in Tachikawa Air Force Base in Japan. This, however, was in 1954. What happened in between these movements is, to coin a term, "immaterial," since this is not intended to be a Mary Noble, Backstage Wife presentation, but merely a small account of how one fellow not only talked about this equality stuff, but actually believed and practiced it.

Anyway, while they were in Japan, they found the opportunity to adopt a child, and they did so. One girl was adopted from an orphanage in Tokyo in November of 1954. Her name is Frances Jean, and she is now 30 months old. The second was the son of a Japanese cinematographer and an American, who, incidentally gave us another black eye by returning to the states, and never contacting his wife again. (They had been legally married.)

This child was brought to Willy and his wife by his mother. She explained to them that she could do one of two things. She could either leave her job to take care of the child, in which case they could both starve together, or she could continue her career as an actress in which case she could not properly give the child the care and attention which he deserved. So the sarge and Mrs. Willy Barnett went through the necessary action and adopted the child. He is now 35 months old and his name is Roy Lee.

With two children, they adopted another girl who had been left at the door step of an orphanage in Oasi. She is now 10 months old, and her name is Dianna Betty.

I guess the only real problem in keeping this wonderful family together, almost occurred when Willy was ordered back to the states for reassignment. When they tried to bring the three children with them, they were informed that regulations did not permit the taking of more than two adopted children out of Japan, for any one family. However, the fact that the boy's father had been an American came into focus, and the whole story was changed.

It seems, (and this I didn't know myself until the sarge told me) that if a child is born to an American citizen, even while overseas, he is automatically an American citizen, providing both parents were legally married.

So this obviated the chance of one of the children being taken away from them.

Well, pally, this should end my epistle, and I've probably gone on too long already. But I think I'll just add the fact that this Thursday, Jeanne, the sarge's wife will go down to Fort Worth, where she will take her citizenship examination. So long for now, and smile the while.

INTERNATIONAL FAMILY — Shown here is the international family of T-Sgt. Willy Barnett. The family has been staying in Pampa while enroute to the east coast from where he will go to France for an indefinite tour of duty. They are, left to right, Willy, and Frances Jean, Roy Lee, Mrs. Barnett and Dianna Betty. The family is quite popular with most Japanese who have read about them quite often in Japanese magazines. Bellhop Held In Theft

FORT WORTH, Jan. 19 (UP)—A 27-year-old Lubbock bellhop was held Saturday for the theft of $38 in cash and narcotics valued at about $5,000 on the underworld market. They were taken from the Scott Drug Company in Riverside. The bellhop was caught Friday when his car smashed into a pile of dirt after a 90-mile an hour chase in which 16 shots were fired at him.

she'll make it, and I certainly am happy that she will, for we sure can use ambassadors like her and her husband, Willy.

Shortly after she comes back from Fort Worth, the family will proceed on to New York where they will embark for France where the sarge will spend another indefinite tour of duty. That's about the story in a nutshell.

So long for now, and smile the while.

Good And Bad Of The Week's News

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

Chinese Red Premier Chou En-lai visited Poland and Hungary, in Soviet Russia's behalf, trying to establish a new united party line in the Communist countries of Eastern Europe.

Reports came from Eastern Europe that Nikita S. Khrushchev, the Russian Communist leader, might soon take over the prime ministry. In that event it was suggested that Nikolai A. Bulganin, the present premier, would be made chairman of the presidium of the Soviet Union, or figurehead president of Russia.

Harold Macmillan, Britain's new prime minister, completed his cabinet. He received a cordial message of good will from President Eisenhower.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser announced the "Egyptianization" of all British and French banks and insurance companies in his country. His decree meant the virtual seizure of the companies.

Chou En-lai

Chou En-lai's mission to Poland and Hungary was a confession of Russia's anxiety over the situation in satellite Eastern Europe. Chou was called urgently to Moscow for consultation.

Chou then went first to Warsaw, then to Budapest, on what constituted a "trouble-shooting" mission.

He spent five days in Warsaw, conferring with "independent" Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. It took him but one day to fix things up in Budapest with Puppet Premier Janos Kadar.

Chou succeeded in working out a formula under which Moscow is supposed to remain the fountainhead of Communist doctrine.

The most significant thing about Chou's mission, however, was a joint declaration which he and Gomulka issued. This declaration said that Communist countries were "independent and sovereign" nations. It thus upheld Gomulka's freedom from Russian dictation.

Khrushchev

The reports that Khrushchev might become premier implied that he retained the No. 1 position in Russia's collective leadership. If he took the post, Bulganin would succeed Klementi Voroshilov, who at 75 is ready for retirement. Sooner or later, former Premier Georgi M. Malenkov seemed likely to replace Khrushchev as Communist party chief.

Macmillan

The first move toward restoration of close Anglo-American relations was made promptly after Macmillan's assumption of the prime ministry. President Eisenhower sent him "warmest congratulations" and expressed "warm admiration" for him.

New Land Tax Appraisal System Proposed By ARS

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN—WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (UP)—The Agricultural Research Service (ARS) has proposed a new land tax appraisal system based on the earning power of the soil. The system would be fair to landowners and would eliminate guesswork by the tax assessor.

The average assessor has an easy job fixing the value of a home or other personal property but evaluating farm land is difficult.

Agricultural Economist W. F. Hughes studied the appraisal problem under a research assignment. He suggested "a systematic and flexible approach providing a high degree of uniformity in appraisal." He worked out the problem in cooperation with the Texas experiment station.

Owners Questioned
To arrive at a net return per acre, Hughes classified by types soils in a given area. Local landowners were questioned and soil surveys were studied.

Crop yields, production requirements, use of cropland, and cost of materials were determined. The yield figures reflected soil variations. The production requirements reflected quantities of seed, fertilizer, and insecticide needed to produce crops. Use of land included a breakdown of net returns from predominant crops. The prices paid for various materials, services, and equipment were obtained. Pasture values were estimated by a similar method, taking into account the number of grazing days per acre.

Net return per acre was converted to an economic index, with all soils rated percentage-wise against the land yielding the highest return. Those ratings were transferred to a soil map to show the relative earning capacity of all land classified in the area.

Hughes said the map provided a basis for equitable valuation.

Jet Noise
Agriculture department researchers are attempting to find out what happens to livestock exposed to prolonged jet aircraft noise. Specifically, they want to know:

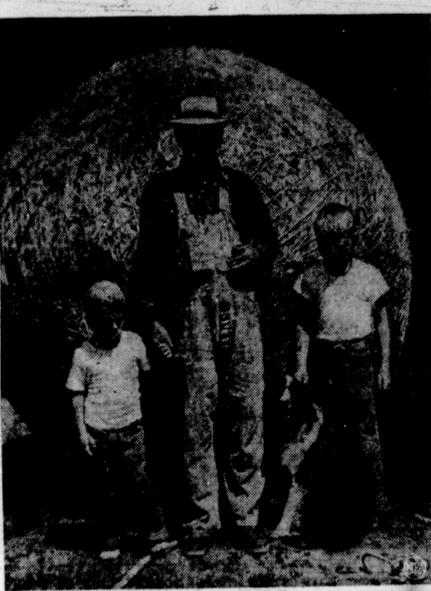

"Does the noise cause a drop in egg or milk production? Does meat animal production go down? Does feed efficiency decrease? Do any actual physiological changes occur?"

ARS scientists are doing the work at the request of the Air Force in the wake of complaints that airplanes bothered stock.

The scientists selected pigs as the "first subjects" because they grow rapidly and have shorter life-cycles than larger animals. The experiments are being conducted at the research center at Beltsville, Md.

No Changes
Work so far shows that exposed animals display no outward symptoms and undergo no anatomical changes. Under present testing procedure, six pigs in each of three pens are exposed at intervals during the day—6 a.m. to 9 p.m.—to the recorded sound from both the jet and the conventional piston-type aircraft flyovers. Another pen with six control animals is located outside the range of noise.

Sound is piped into the test pens

HE'S A STRING-SAVER—In less than two years, Frank Stoeber, of Cawker City, Kan., has collected the huge ball of binding twine seen above. It is seven feet, five inches in diameter and weighs 4035 pounds. He uses his tractor to wind the ball. Friends and neighbors save twine for him and he thinks nothing of driving 25 miles to get a trunkful of broken twine. Pictured with him are his two grandsons, Richard and Arnie Collins, of Crescent City, Calif.

during the 12-hour period at intervals ranging from only a few seconds to 10 to 12 minutes. Sound intensity varies from 110 to 135 decibels. Maximum intensity one mile from a jet airfield is about 120 decibels.

Some of the pigs were born right into the jet-noise environment. Researchers hope to discover whether life-long exposure to this sound may be a factor in determining tolerance.

Outwardly, the pigs do not appear to be affected. The only visible reactions are a momentary pause in eating, an occasional start, or wagging of the ears.

Fort Worth Grain

FORT WORTH (UP) — Weekly cash grain prices at southwest markets moved within a narrow range this week, reports the Agricultural Marketing Service.

Milo, wheat and white corn went up 1c a bushel. Barley was steady to 1/2c higher. Yellow corn held steady. White oats lost 1/4c a bushel.

These are net price changes from Friday through Friday based on wholesale carlots, Texas common freight rate points.

The trade reports a fair demand for only a fair supply of wheat and barley. Demand picked up a little on oats, and sorghums, but very little of either was offered, this week. Trading was generally in a rut, says the trade.

Some of the firmness in the wheat market can be traced to the good export demand and the continued serious drought in the winter wheat belt. No. 1 hard closed at $2.32 1/2 to $2.38 1/2.

No. 2 white corn brought $1.90 a bushel, ordinary protein content, closed at $2.52 1/2 to $2.58 1/2. No. 2 white corn brought $1.90 to $1.93 and No. 2 yellow $1.66 1/2 to $1.68 1/2. No. 2 milo was quoted at $2.45 to $2.50 per 100 pounds. No. 2 white oats brought $1.02 to $1.06 and No. 2 barley $1.51 to $1.54.

In Oklahoma, cash wheat was up a penny, ranging from $2.05 at Guyton and Hooker to $2.19 at Frederick. Wheat brought $2.09 at Alva, Enid, El Reno and Medford; $2.10 at Kingfisher. Vicil and Clinton and $2.12 at Edmond.

Oklahoma milo was unchanged. Prices spread from $2.05 per 100 pounds at Guyton to $2.37 at Ada. It sold at $2.15 at Frederick; $2.20 at Hobart; $2.30 at Clinton and $2.35 at Enid and Yukon.

Water-Short Texas Towns Awaking To Opportunity

TEMPLE, Jan. 20 — Water-short Texas towns are waking up to the opportunity of adding to their water supplies through the Department of Agriculture watershed protection and flood prevention programs in the Trinity and Colorado watersheds and in local projects assisted under Public Law 566.

State Conservator H. N. Smith of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service reports growing interest on the part of municipalities eager to pay added costs to provide needed water storage behind floodwater retaining dams.

Smith explained that the dams are designed as detention structures primarily. Their purpose is to slow down floodwaters and release them automatically at a rate stream channels can hold. Each dam must first be justified on the basis of its usefulness in flood prevention. Water storage for any purpose other than flood prevention must be secondary and in keeping with state law.

Applications for SCS help under the comparatively new Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act (Public Law 566) now total 113, Smith reported. Modification of the Act has made it easier for municipalities and special purpose districts to make use of the program in meeting local water needs.

In the new watershed protection program, municipalities or other authorized organizations can build water storage into a floodwater retaining structure by paying the difference in cost, Smith explained. The city of Kaufman, in the Kaufman-Van Zandt Soil Conservation District, was the first Texas city to take advantage of the water-storing opportunity.

Added capacity of 1834 acre feet was built into a floodwater retaining structure on Big Cottonwood Creek, a small watershed in the big Upper Trinity flood prevention program.

The 1834 acre feet of storage, nearly 600 million gallons — was provided at a cost to Kaufman of $18,114.

Smith said construction has started on a similar project near to $1.93 and No. 2 yellow $1.66 1/2 to $1.68 1/2. No. 2 milo was quoted at $2.45 to $2.50 per 100 pounds. No. 2 white oats brought $1.02 to $1.06 and No. 2 barley $1.51 to $1.54.

In Oklahoma, cash wheat was up a penny, ranging from $2.05 at Guyton and Hooker to $2.19 at Frederick. Wheat brought $2.09 at Alva, Enid, El Reno and Medford; $2.10 at Kingfisher. Vicil and Clinton and $2.12 at Edmond.

Sidedress to Better Small Grain Yields

College Station — Generally, the value of using a nitrogen fertilizer for increasing the yields of cotton and corn is well known, but according to M. K. Thornton, extension agricultural chemist, small grain producers who fail to give their crop an application of this same plant food are passing up an opportunity to increase yields.

From now until mid-February, farmers in the area south of Waco should apply the nitrogen sidedressing. Those to the north of the area should make the application by March 1 or not later than March 15.

The specialist emphasizes that demonstrations conducted for the past several years have shown that small grain yields can be increased from 25 to 30 per cent through the use of nitrogen fertilizers.

Generally, Thornton says, an application of 150 to 200 pounds of ammonium sulphate or 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate an acre is ing help and reimburse the agency.

Smith explained that the objective of the locally sponsored watershed program is to give protection to land, crops and property against flood damage. Soil conservation treatment of land in the watershed is fundamental. It insures a long period of usefulness for the floodwater retaining structures by reducing sediment carried off by runoff into streams and reservoirs. It also benefits the farmer and rancher through more efficient use of land and available moisture.

GRAY COUNTY Soil Conservation District News

By HARRY MCWEN
Soil Scientist

Erosion on the Great Plains has become, during the drought years, more serious. Water and wind erosion have increased in proportion to the decrease of cover. Cover on our rangeland and farmland will resist the erosive forces of wind and water. Cover and the decaying plant material increase the production of our land. Decaying plant material and our soils will increase the amount of water taken into our soils and reduce the amount of run-off water from our soils.

Vegetative cover on our soil will reduce the erosion of wind. The speed of wind is reduced by cover. Cover lies between the soil and the wind and cover in sufficient amounts will reduce wind erosion. As cover increases in density, water forces become weaker. As custodian of soils, we must combat all harm to this soil.

It is our responsibility to get cover on the soil. Soil productivity is our responsibility. Use the agencies, experiment results and agriculture knowledge to increase your ability to protect all of your soil.

Contact your local soil conservation district office to receive help to plan a conservation program on your farm.

sufficient if applied with in the suggested dates. The increased yields will more than pay for the plant food and labor required to put it on the crop. Too, he adds, increased yields are needed now to replenish the short stocks of farm held small grains in Texas. Of course, he says, cooperation from "mother nature" in the form of badly needed moisture will materially aid the cause of production.

For more detailed information on the use of all types of fertilizers, Thornton suggests a visit with the local county agent.

All You Have To Do Is To Be Beautiful

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20 (UP)—Nothing combines the glamour, humor and pathos of movieland so much as an audition for chorus girls. Latest call for chorus cuties got underway this week when a trade paper ad proclaimed: "Girls, all you have to be is beautiful. If you can dance... great. If you can even walk... it will help." Payoff, however, was the salary listed at $220 per week. This is an all-time high for girls who dance and prattle off a few lyrics, while the star makes a costume change. Some 200 curvaceous females turned up at the famed Mocambo on the Sunset Strip in answer to ad. The job promised to be a steady one at Las Vegas' new $15 million Tropicana hotel, scheduled to open sometime in March. Blondes, brunettes and redheads tramped it to be judged by producer Monte Proser, and his staff. They came dressed in light-fitting leotards, bathing suits, swimsuits, bikinis and shorts. Some were eye-fillers, but most of the prettiest girls in town already had jobs. A great number of the hopefuls were just plain babes. "Some were fat, others lean, still others too tall or too short. Half-a-dozen aspirants were in their fifties. Sharply contrasting were a handful of teenagers—some chaperoned by their mothers. At one point an outraged voice outside the door was heard to cry: "I must get in there. My poor daughter's inside alone!" Inside the girls lounged around waiting their turns to strut their stuff. They chatted about past jobs—some bemoaning the fact that they hadn't worked in months. Others criticized the figure faults of those being interviewed. "I've seen better figures in the financial columns," one girl cracked. "She hasn't worked since the George White Scandals of 1930," another quipped. During the proceedings glamour girl Jayne Mansfield showed up as "a sort of guide to the kind of figure we have in mind," Proser explained. Then in groups of three and four the girls lined up on the tiny stage while Proser looked them over. Each girl was given a printed form to fill out. After two hours of judging the field was narrowed to ten girls—four blondes, five brunettes and a dazzling redhead. The other 190 or so were told bluntly over a public address system, "sorry girls, that's all. Thanks for stopping by."

Joe Frisco 'Loaned' Out To Movies For Comeback

By ALINE MOSBY HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Sapia Anita has "loaned" Joe Frisco—the horse-playing, stuttering comedian—for a comeback to the movies. But so far the morose Joe sees two drawbacks: Early hours and strong critics. "The old-time stage and vaudeville star is a comics' comic, but often a non-working one. The big stars from Bobe Hope to Jack Benny break up when they're around Joe and borrow his gags, but who gives him roles?" Joe hasn't worked in pictures since Bing Crosby's "Ridin' High" nine years ago. But this year will be Joe's year. He has a dramatic part in "Sweet Smell of Success" starring Burl Ives and Tony Curtis. He's scheduled to play himself in "The Jazz Age" and appear in a movie on Jack Dempsey's life. Paramount is dicker for his life story. To see Joe away from the horse tracks and before the camera at Hecht-Hill-Lancaster productions is a novelty. "They gave me dollar cigars to smoke in this scene—too strong," mourned Joe. "I asked them to go get me 15-cent cigars." "And if I could get up at 12 o'clock this would be a wonderful job." "These hours remind me of when I was traveling through Kansas playing nightclubs. I couldn't find a hotel so a farmer let me sleep in his attic if I'd help him with the chores the next day. "He raps on the door. It's 4-d-d-dark. He says, will you help me for an hour hoeing the potatoes. I say, what time is it? He says 3 a.m. What do you have to do, I say, sneak up on the potatoes." Joe waved his cigar and sipped on a Manhattan for lunch after

Borge Wins Team Title In Pampa Gloves Meet

By DICK COLLINS
Pampa News Sports Editor

Seventeen champions were crowned and the Borge Jaycee team took team honors as the annual District Golden Gloves Tournament drew to a successful and spirited close here Saturday night in the junior high school gym.

Little Kenny (Tiger) Powell, the 85-pound peewee champion, was named the "Fightingest Fighter" of the three-day meet and was presented with a trophy.

Borge, coached by T. J. Watt and Lee Palmer, took nine of the championships to edge out the host

Pampa Optimist Club team which finished with six titles. Guymon captured two titles.

Saturday's championship bouts were the finest of the three days of competition. Three of the 17 contests ended in technical knockouts but the others were surprisingly close.

Six fighters won championships uncontested. They included James Morse, 90 pounds, Pampa; Jesse Ring, 125 pounds, Pampa; Barney Ward, 176 open, Borge; Bill Bledsoe, 126 open, Guymon; Kenneth Wood, 147 open, Pampa; and Don Rouse, 160, Borge.

The small crowd that watched the fights went home talking about the Gary Wilhelm - Kenneth Wood, Kenny Powell - Carson Watt, Jerry Gibbs - Dickie Wills, Gary Watt - James Snider and Lucky Dunham - Durwood Williams scraps.

Wilhelm and Wood, both of Pampa, staged an exhibition contest that turned out to be the most spectacular of the tournament and one of the best of recent years. Both boys, chief open division contenders for regional honors in Amarillo two weeks, fought a classical battle. Wood almost floored Wilhelm in the middle of the third round with a sizzling left hook. But Wilhelm, though his knees were buckling and his legs sliding out from under him in opposite directions, managed to stay up and he finished out the round and the fight as though he had never been hit. The crowd applauded it as the top attraction of the night.

Kenny Powell well-earned his "Fightingest Fighter" award after deciding to fight Carson Watt of Borge, a seasoned veteran yet only weighing 85 pounds.

The battle was toe-to-toe from start to finish. Powell used a stinging left hook and an occasional slapping right to win the officials' decision. The match was one of the top crowd-pleasers.

Wills and Gibbs both took plenty of punishment. Wills used a hard right to the head to floor Gibbs as the bell ended the first round. Dickie - used an overhand right and a series of short rights to the body but he left himself open too much and Gibbs took advantage of this to win the decision. More hard punches were thrown in their match than in any other battle.

James Snider stunned Watt in the first and second rounds with long, hard rights to the head but the Pampa fighter began tiring in the third and took plenty of punishment. Both fighters used overhand rights in the third to stun each other.

TKO wins went to Bobby Williams, Joe Gutierrez of Borge and Robert Williams of Borge. Darrell Bledsoe of Guymon won his open division middleweight fight by default after Bobby Campbell of Shamrock failed to show.

The Borge tournament opens at the Sports Arena next week with the same fighters expected to battle it out over there for district titles. Winners go to the regional meet beginning Jan. 26.

PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL MAY BE THE BIG SPORTS NEWS NEXT WEEK WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT A NEW OILER BUSINESS MANAGER AND A PROMOTION MAN HAVE BEEN SIGNED. BASEBALL HAS BEEN PRETTY MUCH IN THE BACKGROUND UNTIL NOW BUT IT'S GETTING TO BE THAT TIME AGAIN.

Baseball is like every other sport. Months of preparations must be made ahead of time in order for the sport to be a success. And Pampa officials believe that this year for success after several years of depression. We're glad to welcome Ben Niblock to Pampa and wish him lots of luck. He's a young guy just out of baseball school with plenty of optimism. That's a big factor in the success of baseball. Ben came by the office yesterday to let us know that the real work will start immediately and by mid-April everything should be shaping up pretty good.

The Oilers have nine men on the roster including A. B. Cross who has verbally agreed to manage the Pampa team again this year. The club plans to sell Lynn Tucker and others on the roster and start with a new bunch of players which Cross plans to get from the major league spring training camps in Florida. Cross will visit many of the major league sites in late March and early April in an effort to secure players.

Taking Golden Gloves and professional baseball away from Harry would be like taking food away from a starving man.

NOTES FROM THE CORNER FILE - Lou Ambers, former world boxing champion, lives off his $250 a month pension in Phoenix. On the other hand, Jack Dempsey's monthly annuity is in five figures. Sal Maglie is growing a goatee at the Niagara Falls home. The beard will be shaved off at a high price before the television cameras. There's a big difference in waiver prices for athletes in these three sports: in hockey it's $15,000, baseball is $10,000 in the majors and in basketball it is $500.

St. Louis Hawks coach Slater Martin, former University of Texas cage star, will take his home town, Houston, to play the Syracuse Nationals in a league game. Michigan State basketball coach Ford Anderson has his squad practice with a plastic ball that has no bounce to discourage excessive dribbling. The six top sports in which the most money is spent on admissions are golf, horse racing, bowling, billiards, baseball and roller skating. Although ice hockey is believed by most people to be a sport played mostly in the northern states, Louisville, Ky., has the largest seating capacity for the sport in the country. It's Freedom Hall which holds 16,901.

The Dodgers did not want to trade Jackie Robinson to a club outside of New York for fear he would quit. He was sold to the Giants but he quit anyway. National television of hockey may lead to the formation of major leagues from border to border. Rev. Bob Richards said he would quit pole vaulting competition after winning the Olympic gold medal recently but he's entered in the Knights of Columbus meet in Boston Saturday. Stan Mustel, one of the richest ballplayers in the majors, says he would quit if he was traded. Pampa's basketball game with Borge Feb. 1 will be played to help benefit the March of Dimes. Residents of both cities will compete in a "Points For Poles" race.

Harvesters Roll To Easy 77-64 Win Over Lubbock

By BOB DIXON

With the display of a well-balanced attack, the Pampa Harvesters rolled to their 17th win in 18 starts by downing an in-and-out Lubbock Westerner team, 77-64, in a district 3-AAAA contest staged Friday night in Lubbock.

The Harvesters started slow and did not score before two minutes had passed by in the initial quarter. Bill Brown got the locals off to a good start by scoring a basket which was followed by Jerry Pope's initial two-pointer. The Westerners came right back and tied it at four-all but from then on it was the Harvesters' game.

Pope was top man for Coach Clifton McNeely's cagers as he

Niblock New Oiler Business Manager

Ben Niblock, 26-year-old native of North Carolina, has become the new business manager of the Pampa Oilers, it was announced Saturday.

Niblock arrived in Pampa Friday and immediately began work on the 1957 Oiler plans. He is living at 405 E. Kingsmill and has his baseball office in the Pampa Hotel. The office will be moved to Oiler Park when the weather warms up.

Tentative plans for the signing of Niblock were made at the minor league convention in Jacksonville, Fla., last month by G. F. (Pinky) Branson, president of the Pampa Community Baseball Association, and George Cree Sr., member of the board of directors.

The two Pampa men talked to Niblock in Florida and were impressed in their talks with him. When the board of directors voted to continue professional baseball in the Class B Southwestern League this season, Branson called him and made the agreement.

Big Klu Signs Redlegs Pact

CINCINNATI, Jan. 19 (UP)—A slimmed-down Ted Kluszewski signed his 1957 contract calling for a modest raise Saturday and promptly predicted the Cincinnati Redlegs would win the National League pennant this year.

Terms of Kluszewski's contract were not disclosed but it was believed he will receive $33,000 this season, an increase of $3,000 over his last year's salary.

Kluszewski appeared to be in the peak of condition. "I've lost about 15 pounds since the end of last season," the big slugger said, "and I expect to report for spring training at Tampa, Florida, weighing less than 230 pounds."

"I'm confident I'll have a good year. I've never felt better. I intend to take a couple of weeks of preliminary conditioning at Hot Springs, Ark., before going to Tampa. I think the Redlegs have an excellent chance to take the pennant in 1957 and I hope I can do my part to reward the loyal Cincinnati fans."

Shockers, Reapers In Wins

The Pampa Shockers won their 18th victory of the season here last night by lopping the Childress B team, 93-33. The Pampa Junior High Reapers won another easy victory over the Childress Junior High squad, 66-34.

Coyle-Winborn paced the Shockers with 20 points to be followed closely by Charles Minor with 18, Bobby Murray with 16 and Bobby Gindorf with 14. Larry Lane had 16 for the Childress team.

Sh Shockers allowed the visitors only two points in the first quarter to take a 22-2 lead. At the half it was 46-21 and Pampa led 73-32 after three quarters following: Childress only one point in the last period. The Shockers hit 32 of 57 shots from the field.

Horned Frogs Upset OCU Quintet 86-84

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 19 (UP)—Texas Christian upset highly ranked Oklahoma City University 86-84 Saturday night in a frantic double-overtime intercollegiate basketball game.

Sophomore Roy Davis, who had spent most of his time on the TCU bench prior to Saturday night, made a 25-foot shot in the last 23 seconds of the second five-minute overtime to give the Horned Frogs the victory.

Davis also kept the Frogs in the heat of the game with four other long shots in the second half of regular play.

TCU's Derrill Nippert scored a tip-in with 25 seconds to go to give the Frogs a 72-72 tie at the end of the regular game. Oklahoma City's Hubert Reed, a sixteen-point man, made a layup in the final seconds of first overtime to tie it again, 80-80.

Reed's 27 points were high for the evening. He received superb help from Lyndon Lee who made 26 points.

TCU three times overcame eight-point deficits to tie it and

Nebraska Romps Over Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 19 (UP)—Red hot Nebraska mixed a rugged zone defense and a sharp outside attack to romp over Missouri, 84-65, Saturday night, and hold on to a part of second place in the Big Seven.

Coach Jerry Bush's Huskers employed a sliding four-man zone with little Gary Reimers running loose to halt Missouri's outside shooters, Lionel Smith and Sonny Sibert.

The Nebraska, led by 6-4 forward Don Smidt, and Reimers, who each hit for 23, did some outside shooting of their own to run up a 15-point margin midway through the second period.

All You Have To Do Is To Be Beautiful

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20 (UP)—Nothing combines the glamour, humor and pathos of movieland so much as an audition for chorus girls.
 Latest call for chorus cuties got underway this week when a trade paper ad proclaimed:
 "Girls, all you have to be is beautiful. If you can dance... great. If you can even walk... it will help."
 Payoff, however, was the salary listed at $220 per week. This is an all-time high for girls who dance and prattle off a few lyrics while the star makes a costume change.
 Some 200 curvaceous females turned up at the famed Mocambo on the Sunset Strip in answer to ad. The job promised to be a steady one at Las Vegas' new $15 million Tropicana hotel, scheduled to open sometime in March.
 Blondes, brunettes and redheads tramped it to be judged by producer Monte Proser, and his staff. They came dressed in tight-fitting leotards, bathing suits, sunsuits, bikinis and shorts.
 Some were eye-fillers, but most of the prettiest girls in town already had jobs. A great number of the hopefuls were just plain janes.
 Some were fat, others lean, still others too tall or too short.
 Half-a-dozen aspirants were in their fifties. Sharply contrasting were a handful of teenagers—some chaperoned by their mothers.
 At one point an outraged voice outside the door was heard to cry: "I must get in here. My poor daughter's inside alone!"
 Inside the girls lounged around waiting their turns to strut their stuff. They chatted about past jobs—some bemoaning the fact that they hadn't worked in months. Others criticized the figure faults of those being interviewed.
 "I've seen better figures in the financial columns," one girl cracked.
 "She hasn't worked since the George White Scandals of 1930," another quipped.
 During the proceedings glamour girl Jayne Mansfield showed up as "a sort of guide to the kind of figure we have in mind," Proser explained.
 Then in groups of three and four the girls lined up on the tiny stage while Proser looked them over. Each girl was given a printed form to fill out.
 After two hours of judging the field was narrowed to ten girls—four blondes, five brunettes and a dazzling redhead. The other 190 or so were told bluntly over a public address system, "sorry girls, that's all. Thanks for stopping by."
Coogan Plays Coogan
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Jackie Coogan is not playing himself in "The Jackie Coogan Story" but a Coogan is, the former child star announced today. Coogan, who is filming his life story, as an independent production, said his 4-year-old daughter will portray him as a child.
 A modern high priced car today has more light bulbs than the average American home. One model car has 37 bulbs as standard equipment and with all the available accessories, may have as many as 48. The average home has 22 light bulbs.

Joe Frisco 'Loaned' Out To Movies For Comeback

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Santa Anita has "loaned" Joe Frisco—the horse-playing, stuttering comedian—to a comeback to the movies. But so far the morose Joe sees two drawbacks: Early hours and strong cigars.
 The old-time stage and vaudeville star is a comical comic, but often a non-working one. The big stars from Bob Hope to Jack Benny break up when they're around Joe and borrow his gags, but who gives him roles?
 Joe hasn't worked in pictures since Bing Crosby's "Ridin' High" nine years ago. But this year will be Joe's year. He has a dramatic part in "Sweet Smell of Success" starring Bud Abbott and Tony Curtis. He's scheduled to play himself in "The Jazz Age" and appear in a movie on Jack Dempsey's life. Paramount is dickering for his life story.
 To see Joe away from the horse tracks and before the camera at Hecht-Hill-Lancaster productions is a novelty.
 "They gave me dollar cigars to smoke in this scene—too strong," mourned Joe. "I asked them to go get me 15 cent cigars."
 "And if I could get up at 12 o'clock this would be a wonderful job."

Borger Wins Team Title In Pampa Gloves Meet

By DICK COLLINS
Pampa News Sports Editor
Seventeen champions were crowned and the Borger Jaycee team took team honors as the annual District Golden Gloves Tournament drew to a successful and spirited close here Saturday night in the junior high school gym.

Pampa Optimist-Club team which finished with six titles. Guymon captured two titles.
Saturday's championship bouts were the finest of the three days of competition. Three of the 17 contests ended in technical knockouts but the others were surprisingly close.

Six fighters won championships unopposed. They included James Morse, 90-pound, Pampa; Jess Ring, 125 pounds, Pampa; Barney Ward, 176 open, Borger; Bill Bledsoe, 126 open, Guymon; Kenneth Wood, 147 open, Pampa; and Don Rouse, 160, Borger.

The small crowd that watched the fights went home talking about the Gary Wilhelm - Kenneth Wood, Kenny Powell - Carson Watt, Jerry Gibbs - Dickie Wills, Gary Watt - James Snider and Lucky Dunham - Durwood Williams scraps.

Wilhelm and Wood, both of Pampa staged an exhibition contest that turned out to be the most spectacular of the tournament and one of the best of recent years. Both boys, chief open division contenders for regional honors in Amarillo in two weeks, fought a classical battle. Wood almost floored Wilhelm in the middle of the third round with a sizzling left hook. But Wilhelm, though his knees were buckling and his legs sliding out from under him in opposite directions, managed to stay up and he finished out the round and the fight as though he had never been hit. The crowd applauded it as the top attraction of the night.

Kenny Powell well-earned his "Fightingest Fighter" award after decisioning tough Carson Watt of Borger, a seasoned veteran yet only weighing 85 pounds.
The battle was toe-to-toe from start to finish. Powell used a stinging left hook and an occasional slapping right to win the officials' decision. The match was one of the top crowd-pleasers.
Wills and Gibbs both took plenty of punishment. Wills used along, hard right to the head but the Pampa fighter began tiring in the third and took plenty of punishment. Both fighters used overhand rights in the third to stun each other.

Harvesters Roll To Easy 77-64 Win Over Lubbock

By BOB DIXON
With the display of a well-balanced attack, the Pampa Harvesters rolled to their 17th win in 18 starts by downing an in-and-out Lubbock Westerner team, 77-64, in a district 3-AAAA contest staged Friday night in Lubbock.

had passed by in the initial quarter. Bill Brown got the locals off to a good start by scoring a basket which was followed by Jerry Pope's initial two-pointer. The Westerners came right back and tied it at four-all but from then on it was the Harvesters' game.

came through with 10 fielders and 5 free throws for a night's total of 25. Most of his shots came on taps and lay-ups. Dick Mauldin was second high for the Green and Golders when he accounted for 18 on seven field goals and four free throws. The district's leading scorer, Max Hood of the Westerners, added to his point total by canning 20, which was high for the Hub City crew.

The game still leaves the Harvesters trailing the Borger Bulldogs by one full game as the 'Dogs' downed the Amarillo Sandies 65-60 in a contest at Borger.

Niblock New Oiler Business Manager

Ben Niblock, 26-year-old native of North Carolina, has become the new business manager of the Pampa Oilers, it was announced Saturday.
Niblock arrived in Pampa Friday and immediately began work on the 1957 Oiler plans. He is living at 405 E. Kingsmill and has his baseball office in the Pampa Hotel. The office will be moved to Oiler Park when the weather warms up.

Niblock is a native of Statesville, N. C., and a graduate of Harding College in Searcy, Ark. He recently graduated from the Florida Southern University school of baseball administration.
The Pampa job will be Niblock's first duties as a baseball manager and his first position in professional baseball. This is his second trip to Texas. Ben worked for a construction company in 1945 in Abilene between school terms.

Pampa's Fred Woods Helps Pace Rice Owls Over Bears

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 19 (UP)—Stellar play of guards Jerry Thomas and Fred Woods led the Rice Owls to an important 75-62 victory over the Baylor Bears before 3,800 fans here Saturday night.
A Baylor victory would have put the Bears in a tie with SMU with 4-1 records in conference play. However, the loss left the Bears with a 3-2 record back of both SMU and Rice.

limiting them to a combined total of 20 points, well below their per game average. But fine outside shooting countered the strategy for Don Suman's club. Thomas had 17 points and Woods, switching from forward to guard for the first time, hit eight field goals for 16. Jerry Mallett paced Baylor with 16 points, although kept fairly well in check by the defensive play of Woods most of the night.

Big Klu Signs Redlegs Pact

CINCINNATI, Jan. 19 (UP)—A slimmed-down Ted Kuszewski signed his 1957 contract calling for a modest raise Saturday and promptly predicted the Cincinnati Redlegs would win the National League pennant this year.
Terms of Kuszewski's contract were not disclosed but it was believed he will receive $33,000 this season, an increase of $3,000 over his last year's salary.

Kuszewski appeared to be in the peak of condition. "I've lost about 15 pounds since the end of last season," the big slugger said, "and I expect to report for spring training at Tampa, Florida, weighing less than 230 pounds."
"I'm confident I'll have a good year. I've never felt better. I intend to take a couple of weeks of preliminary conditioning at Hot Springs, Ark., before going to Tampa. I think the Redlegs have an excellent chance to take the pennant in 1957 and I hope I can do my part to reward the loyal Cincinnati fans."

Horned Frogs Upset OCU Quintet 86-84

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 19 (UP)—Texas Christian upset highly ranked Oklahoma City University 86-84 Saturday night in a frantic double-overtime inter-sectional basketball game.
Sophomore Roy Davis, who had spent most of his time on the TCU bench prior to Saturday night, made a 25-foot shot in the last 23 seconds of the second five-minute overtime to give the Horned Frogs the victory.

Davis also kept the Frogs in the heat of the game with four other long shots in the second half of regular play.
TCU's Derrill Nippert scored a tip-in with 25 seconds to go to give the Frogs a 72-72 tie at the end of the regular game. Oklahoma City's Hubert Reed, a six-foot pivot man, made a layup in the final seconds of first overtime to tie it again, 80-80.
Reed's 27 points were high for the evening. He received superb help from Lyndon Lee who made 26 points.
TCU three times overcame eight-point deficits to tie it and

PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL MAY BE THE BIG SPORTS NEWS NEXT WEEK WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT A NEW OILER BUSINESS MANAGER AND A PROMOTION MAN HAVE BEEN SIGNED. BASEBALL HAS BEEN PRETTY MUCH IN THE BACKGROUND UNTIL NOW BUT IT'S GETTING TO BE THAT TIME AGAIN.

Baseball is like every other sport. Months of preparations must be made ahead of time in order for the sport to be a success. And Pampa officials believe that this is their year for success after several years of depressions.
We're glad to welcome Ben Niblock to Pampa and wish him lots of luck. He's a young guy just out of baseball school with plenty of optimism. That's a big factor in the success of baseball. Ben came by the office yesterday to let us know that the real work will start immediately and by mid-April everything should be shaping up pretty good.

Taking Golden Gloves and professional baseball away from Harry would be like taking food away from a starving man.
NOTES FROM THE CORNER FILE — Lou Ambers, former world boxing champion, lives off his $250-a-month pension in Phoenix. On the other hand, Jack Dempsey's monthly annuity is in five figures. Sal Maglie is growing a goatee at his Niagara Falls home. The beard will be shaved off at a high price before the television cameras. There's a big difference in waiver prices for athletes in these three sports: in hockey it's $15,000, baseball is $10,000 in the majors and in basketball it is $500.
St. Louis Hawks coach Slater Martin, former University of Texas cage star, will take his home town, Houston, to play the Syracuse Nationals in a league game. Michigan State basketball coach Fordy Anderson has his squad practice with a plastic ball that has no bounce to discourage excessive dribbling. The six top sports in which the most money is spent on admissions are golf, horse racing, bowling, billiards, baseball and roller skating. Although ice hockey is believed by most people to be a sport played mostly in the northern states, Louisville, Ky., has the largest seating capacity for the sport in the country. It's Freedom Hall which holds 16,901.
The Dodgers did not want to trade Jackie Robinson to a club outside of New York for fear he would quit. He was sold to the Giants but he quit anyway. A nationwide television of hockey may lead to the formation of major leagues from border to border. Rev. Bob Richards said he would quit pole vaulting competition after winning the Olympic gold medal recently but he's entered in the Knights of Columbus meet in Boston Saturday. Stan Musial, one of the richest ballplayers in the majors, says he would quit if he was traded. Pampa's basketball game with Borger Feb. 1 will be played to help benefit the March of Dimes. Residents of both cities will compete in a "Points For Poles" race.

THE GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT concluded last night with the naming of 17 champions and the meet was a success except for the attendance. Pampa Optimist Club officials use the profit from the attendance to build its future boxing programs. It must buy equipment, pay transportation and other expenses for teams that compete in out-of-town tournaments as well as building the summer baseball program. They just barely broke even with the junior high gym only half-filled every night.

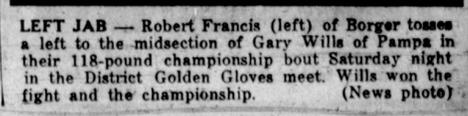

Actually, there were more than 17 titles decided. Two championship matches were held Friday night and five other fighters won titles uncontested. Trophies were presented to both the winners and runner-ups. Most of the high school and open entries at the district meet here will enter the regional tournament in Amarillo on Jan. 29-30, Feb. 1-2.
Harry Gilstrap, executive sports editor of the Amarillo Globe-News, was over every night to cover the meet. He's one of the biggest Golden Gloves boosters in the state.

Nebraska Romps Over Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 19 (UP)—Red hot Nebraska mixed a rugged zone defense and a sharp outside attack to romp over Missouri, 84-65, Saturday night, and hold on to a part of second place in the Big Seven.
Coach Jerry Bush's Huskers employed a sliding four-man zone with little Gary Reimers running loose to halt Missouri's outside shooters, Lonej Smith and Sonny Sibbert.
The Nebraska, led by 6-4 forward Don Smith, and Reimers, who each hit for 23, did some outside shooting of their own to run up a 15-point margin midway through the second period.

Tatum To Put In Bid For Indiana Job

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19 (UP)—Jim Tatum, football coach at the University of North Carolina, was scheduled to arrive here Saturday night to put in his bid for the vacancy at Indiana University caused by the resignation of Bernie Crimmins.

Tatum's wife, reached at her Chapel Hill home by the Indianapolis Times, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, said she did not know the nature of her husband's trip. But she said "that's a good guess" when asked if he may be going to Indiana to discuss the coaching job.

Hogler officials would not comment on the matter. The university board met until midnight Friday. Unofficial sources said the selection had been narrowed to Tatum, Phil Dickens of Wyoming, and Warren Giese of North Carolina.

Tatum had a poor season at North Carolina last year when he won two, lost seven and tied one. Previous to moving to North Carolina, Tatum had a successful career at Maryland where he turned out several undefeated teams and accepted several bowl bids.

Philly Writers To Honor Tubbs

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19 (UP)—Jerry Tubbs, All-American center on the University of Oklahoma football team, Saturday was named College Lineman of the Year by the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association.

Tubbs, the overwhelming choice in a poll taken of the nation's leading football coaches, will be honored at the association's 53rd annual banquet here on Jan. 28. He is the third Oklahoma gridders honored by the sportswriters in the past four years.

Guard J. D. Roberts won the lineman of the year trophy in 1953 and center Kurt Burris was the winner the following year.

Bob Pelligrini from the University of Maryland, now with the Philadelphia Eagles, was honored last year.

Tubbs recently was honored by the United Press and the Washington Touchdown Club as Lineman of the Year and by the American College Football Coaches Association as the Player of the Year.

Shamrock's Irish fell to the Samnorwood Eagles, 54-43, in another Friday contest. John Stevenson led Shamrock with 15 and Jim Putnam had 15 for Shamrock. Shamrock won the girls' game, 51-50.

SMU Slates Ohio State

DALLAS, Jan. 19 (UP)—Southern Methodist University Saturday announced arrangements for a football game with Ohio State in Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 24, 1960 and revealed changes for the 1958, 1959 and 1960 schedules.

The 1960 game will be the fourth meeting between SMU and Ohio State. SMU defeated the Buckeyes 32-27 in 1950 and lost a 7-0 game in 1951. The teams also have a Sept. 27, 1958 date in Columbus.

Athletic Director Matty Bell revealed that the 1958 Rice-SMU game has been moved to Dallas instead of Houston and that there, after the two teams would play in Dallas in the even-numbered years and in Houston the odd years.

He also disclosed that beginning in 1959 Texas Tech, a new member of the Southwest Conference which starts competing for the football title in 1960, would play SMU in Dallas in odd years and in Lubbock in even years.

Sportswriters Honor Mantle

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (UP)—Mickey Mantle, New York Yankee center fielder, and Philip K. Wrigley, president of the Chicago Cubs, shared the major awards announced Saturday by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The chapter chose Mantle to receive the Sid Mercer award as 1956 "Player of the Year." Wrigley, oldest club owner in the National League in point of service and vice-president of the circuit, was selected to receive the William J. Stocum award for "long and meritorious service" to baseball.

Both will receive their plaques at the annual dinner and show of the New York writers Feb. 3. Winning the Mercer award gives Mantle, the 25-year-old switch hitter from Commerce, Okla., a virtual sweep of 1956 baseball honors.

Rawls Clings To Tampa Lead

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19 (UP)—Defending champion Betsy Rawls clung to her two-stroke lead Saturday in the Tampa-Women's open golf tournament after a water hole ruined Patty Berg's hopes of pulling into a third round tie.

Miss Rawls, the slender professional from Spartanburg, S.C., and Miss Berg, the chunky veteran of St. Andrews, Ill., were tied going into the 18th when Miss Berg's approach shot plopped into the hazard.

Standing ankle deep in the chilly water, Miss Berg played her ball where it lay but she still needed three strokes to get down for a double-bogey seven. Miss Rawls took a five to wind up with a 76 and a five hole total of 224.

Miss Berg's 76 put her in second place at 226. She had caught Miss Rawls after a birdie three on the well-trapped 15th and by gaining a stroke when her opponent landed in a trap and bogeyed the 16th. Both then tensed up and went one over on the 17th. "I putted badly," Miss Rawls moaned. "I even missed a one-footer."

Betty Dodd of San Antonio pulled into third place with a 77-230. Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., who shared second place honors Friday with Miss Berg, soared to an 81 and wound up in fourth place with a 231.

Faye Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay, the opening day leader, came next with 232, which was snatched by Marilyn Smith of Wichita, Kan.

The Tech party will fly to Texas Christian Wednesday and Oklahoma Thursday.

In the party will be Marshall Pennington, vice-president and comptroller; Dr. J. William Davis, faculty athletic chairman; DeWitt Weaver, athletic director and head football coach; E. I. Urbanovsky, Tech landscape architect; Nolan Barrick, College architect; and Jimmie Wilson, business manager of athletics.

Architect Wyatt Headrick of Fort Worth and W. G. McMillan of Lubbock, building contractor, also will make the trip.

But Burke denied throwing a club.

"I stuck the head of an iron into the ground in disgust," said Jackie. "I don't plan to pay a fine unless Raynor asks me to. On the other hand, I might pay $100 just to see Bob pay his fine."

Miami, Fla. (NEA) — A horse track is designed to clip people. So barbers at Hialeah Park have gotten into the act. They've raised prices to $10 to have a thoroughbred's winter coat trimmed.

But Burke admitted he threw the clubs and claims he fined himself.

"As chairman of the good conduct committee, I fined myself," and Tommy. "Now, Jackie threw a club, too. Why can't he, confess and pay a fine, too?"

But Burke denied throwing a club.

"I stuck the head of an iron into the ground in disgust," said Jackie. "I don't plan to pay a fine unless Raynor asks me to. On the other hand, I might pay $100 just to see Bob pay his fine."

Tommy says he won't pay his fine unless Burke pays his.

Burke claims there is a fine line of demarcation on just when a man can be assessed a fine.

Philly's overhyped choice in a poll taken of the nation's leading football coaches, will be honored at the association's 53rd annual banquet here on Jan. 28. He is the third Oklahoma gridders honored by the sportswriters in the past four years.

Panhandle Outdoor Life

By S. V. WHITEHORN
 How many times per year do bobcats produce young? When asking questions of this nature, you are apt to come up with almost any sort of an answer if you seek information from the average man on the street. Not long ago I asked a man, "How many times per year do bobcats produce and how many per litter?" "Well," he said, "They are just about like housecats and they raise 'em year around."

All the information with a grain of salt, as far as I know, is that the bobcat could be perfectly correct. However, in reading the January issue of the Texas Game and Fish Magazine it is noticed where these cats usually raise from two to four young per year and these are all in the same litter.

The article on cats further states that the bobcat prefers to do his hunting after dark, but occasionally strays out in daylight. Although he prefers the fange of dense forests, he is equally at home in the desert. When anyone gathers information from the Texas Game and Fish Magazine they can be assured that the information is correct.

Most of the articles are written by wildlife biologists who have spent years in the field studying wildlife habits.

The beaver is America's largest rodent, usually tipping the scales between 30 and 50 pounds when mature. He combines strength, engineering skill and thrift to become one of Texas' most interesting and valuable fur bearing mammals. His coarse, rich, deep-red-brown pelts is valuable in the manufacture of "beaver" hats and coats.

The two most fascinating features in the beaver's anatomy are his heavy, bright orange teeth, which serve as his "wood-chisels," and his broad, flat tail, which serves as a rudder, and with which he warns other members of his colony of the approach of danger.

The beaver is thought by authorities to mate for life and this only when they reach three years of age. Two to five are born in April or May.

Evidently the Panhandle beaver population is remaining about the same. There have been beaver in this country ever since it was settled. For while the population dropped greatly, the last few years the beaver has about satisfied the natural beaver range.

Most of the above information was taken from the January issue of the Texas Game and Fish Magazine.

Now that the off-season is on for bird dogs, it's not quite as important to feed the dogs such a well-balanced diet as it was when the animals were being worked regularly. One good idea, in my opinion, for feeding dogs is to place a five-gallon can in the dog house and keep it filled with your favorite dog meal. Then have a can of water on the outside.

The average dog being accustomed to being hand fed will lose a certain amount of weight for the first few weeks. However, it doesn't take a dog long to get in the habit of eating dry meal or cubes. The dog will do just as well off dry feed as they do on being hand fed. Self feeders, via a five-gallon bucket is my route.

Every once in a while, once or twice a week, feeding dogs a pound or so of pork liver will add to their stamina. Dry meal alone isn't adequate, in my opinion, but a few handouts of choice table scraps and fresh bones, together with the dry meal method, will lessen the amount of time consumed in seeing after an animal.

Cats and Dogs
 A few years back, before Joe Knittle got me interested in the bird dog game, I had always wondered why a cross between an airedale and a black-an-tan coon hound wouldn't make about the best all-around hunting dog.

While talking to Jim Pond, veteran cat hunter and state game warden of the Laredo country, a few years back, Jim related that he once owned this combination. "Had to get rid of him, got too vicious," was the remark.

Jim stated that the dog would meet a bobcat coming down from a tree and kill the animal single-handed.

Mr. Pond further related that in the same Rio Grande country there was another cat hunter that owned a rather large red-boned hound that had the reputation of whipping almost every dog in the county. "This hunter had been itching to go out with me and take the dog for about a year and finally we got on a cat hunt. The pack of hounds bayed a cat in a white brush thicket and the hunter spoke up, "You had better catch your airedale, Old Red is in there."

"Before they had time to catch the airedale, if they intended to, the two went together. White brush was a flying as well as the dust from the thicket. The two dogs had decided to scrap a few rounds. After some ten minutes, which was plenty of time for Red to kill the airedale, a streak of canine laid down a trail of dust going south. Red was in the lead with the airedale in hot pursuit. Jim got so tickled telling of the

Monday's Wrestling Card Has 5-Man Battle Royal

Anything could happen — and probably will — when five glib, husky wrestlers get into the ring at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club in the Pampa Shrine Club's mat show.

Scheduled to battle in a battle royal are Dizzy Davis, Leo (The Lion) Newman, Tommy Phelps, Mario Llanes and Tokyo Joe. The big match starts at 8:15 p.m.

The first wrestler to be eliminated will be out for the rest of the show. The next two men pinned in the battle royal will come back in the semifinal event scheduled for two of three falls and a 45-minute time limit.

The last two men left in the ring will come back for the main event. The main event is slated for one hour with the best two of three falls.

Tickets for the Monday night show are on sale at Modern Pharmacy and will be on sale at the Sportsman Club box office before experience that it was a bit difficult for him to tell the story.

Airedales are used in that country as "cow dogs." These dogs help greatly in assisting in the roundup and other general work.

Many Seeing Hockey For First Time On TV

EDITORS NOTE: This year, for the first time, hockey is being televised nationally throughout the United States. Many are seeing the game for the first time. The following was prepared by Clarence S. Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, to help new viewers enjoy the game.

By CLARENCE S. CAMPBELL, President National Hockey League
As Told To United Press
MONTREAL (UP)—Hockey is one of the easiest of all games to watch and understand and the finest of all spectator sports.

Its object is to produce 60 minutes of sustained speed and action and the unlimited substitution "on the fly" is one of its most outstanding features.

Essentially it is a simple game. Those watching it for the first few times should not be too much concerned with the colored and dotted lines and circles on the ice. They all have their special function which the spectator will absorb quickly.

Basically it is a contest between two teams, using six players each at any one time — each trying to put the "puck" into the opponents' "goal" by means of their sticks which they employ with wizardly skill.

Awesome To Witness
 The first impression the new fan will get in his closeness to the action will be his personal identification with the actions of the players. At first he will be struck by the constant surging of play from one end to the other, the crashing of bodies and the heavy thud of the puck off the boards and the goaltender.

Gradually he will recognize the sheer artistry of the goalkeeper as he uses different tactics and maneuvers to keep the puck out of his net and "clear" it for one of his own players in an effort to launch a counter attack.

The goalie has two defensesmen to protect him. Their chief job is to prevent the opponents from maneuvering into a scoring position by riding off or steering them into the corners and intercepting the puck by anticipation, "poke-checking" the puck off his opponent's stick.

The arts of the three forwards are directed primarily to scoring goals and to do this they must have speed, deception of movement, stick-handling ability and a hard accurate shot. Most of all they must be able to work as a unit. To get maximum results a forward must be able to make fast, accurate passes and receive them from an angle while traveling at top speed. Watch how he will pick up a pass with his skates when he is unable to reach it with his stick.

Note Faking Movements
 Watch also how the puck carrier will use his body or the puck to deke (decoy) an opponent into the first move in an effort to pass him.

The forward must also be a good checker, adept in taking the puck away from the other team, either with his stick or by body-checking him.

Throughout the constant attack and counter-attack will also appear the strategy of the coach. His ingenuity in substituting his players to get his strongest line against the other team's weakest checkers, or juggling his best checkers against the opponent's strong line when he is ahead and trying to protect the lead, is all part of the battle of wits between the coaches.

But above all to get the maximum enjoyment from hockey, you should be partisan. The only non-partisan fellows are the three men in the striped shirts — the referee and the two linesmen.

Tiger Jones Clamoring For Fullmer

CLEVELAND (UP)—Third-ranked contender Ralph (Tiger) Jones clamored for a match with new middleweight champion Gene Fullmer today on the strength of a sound but scientific thrashing he handed Hardy (Bazooka) Smallwood Friday night in their televised bout.

Jones, at 156½ pounds, was a 4-1 favorite going into the bout and proved the odds were right with his unanimous decision over the willing and eager Smallwood, who was two pounds heavier.

The Yonkers, N.Y., veteran said he wanted first crack at Fullmer if Sugar Ray Robinson, whom Jones beat soundly in Chicago, does not press his request for a rematch with the champion. Jones' near upset of Fullmer here last April added weight to his claim.

Rose, Giammalva In Tennis Finals

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 19 (UP)—Mervyn Rose, the Australian Davis Cup star, won nine games in a row Saturday to sweep by Johann Kupperburger of South Africa, 4-5, 6-0, 6-4, in the semifinals of the Coral Gables-University of Miami tennis tournament.

Rose meets Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Tex., in the finals Sunday afternoon. Giammalva defeated Don Candy of Australia in the other semi-finals match Friday.

Pronovost Leads Red Wings Past Chicago Black Hawks

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (UP)—M. A. Pronovost bagger a third period goal Saturday to give the Detroit Red Wings a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks in an afternoon television game.

The Detroit defenseman's short shot with less than five minutes remaining the final period captured the win for the second place Red Wings, after the high production duo of Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay collaborated on a game-tying score.

Chicago moved ahead briefly in the second period when the Hawks' leading marksman, Ed Litzenberger, picked up Eric Neerenko's pass from the corner to beat Detroit goalie Glenn Hall.

Red Kelly, Detroit's defenseman, tied the match 2-2 seconds later, driving in for a head-on shot at the Chicago goal after a pass from Howe.

The Red Wings' drive to catch the league-leading Montreal Canadiens appeared lost when Nick Mickowski slapped in his ninth goal of the season for the Hawks with three seconds to go in the middle period.

Howe and Lindsay, kept in check by the Hawks' defense, broke loose at 12:28 of the third period to tie the match when Lindsay passed to his teammate for Howe's 26th National Hockey League goal, tops in the circuit.

The Wings deserved victory. Throughout they controlled the puck and blasted repeatedly at Al Rollins, who was forced to stop 43 shots, compared to only 26 for Hall.

A cleanly played game saw only five penalties, and was witnessed by a crowd of 4,745 in addition to home viewers who saw it on the CBS-TV nationwide network.

If you think today's hand was overbid, we'll agree with you. South didn't have an opening two-bid, and he had the chance to stop short at five spades. Despite all this, South would have made his contract against the average defender.
West opened the nine of diamonds, and declarer won in dummy with the ace rather than risk the finesse. He continued by cashing the top clubs and returned to dummy with a trump in order to discard the losing diamond on the South, the clubs broke evenly and this discard was made safely.

South now had to ruff a diamond in order to reach his hand. He drew the rest of the trumps, leaving three hearts and the jack of clubs in dummy.
By this time it was clear that South had no losing cards except in hearts. When declarer led the king of hearts, West played low without apparent thought. South continued with a low heart, and West again played low as though he had no problems at all. South had to guess whether to play the queen or the ten of hearts from dummy, and he guessed wrong. The finesse of the ten lost to East, and South had to lose a second heart trick for a one-trick defeat.
West should be congratulated on his expert defense. The average player would take the act of hearts as soon as it was offered and there would be no further defense. South would easily reach dummy with discard on the jack of clubs.

Peg O' Pampa

OLD MAN WINTER really settled down over Pampa this week . . . and the streets were nearly deserted . . . in the residential areas, no children out playing and running about . . . and downtown, just those who had to work about . . . the Junior High School area, usually milling with youngsters during the noon hour, was nearly deserted . . . just a few of the kiddos hurrying for the door of the school, all bundled up and red-faced from the cold . . . sure is invigorating, though . . . Peg hasn't had so much get-up-and-go in a long time . . . although she didn't stick her nose out of the door more than was necessary . . . and that white, flaky stuff that fell for a short while Wednesday was an unusual sight . . . Peg wishes there had been more of it . . . and that it had been wetter . . . it takes so much snow for such little measurement of moisture. One thing nice about this cold weather is the beautiful furs it brings out . . . Peg finally got hers out of the closet for a good dusting and pranced around elegantly . . . much to the delight of her youngest, who loves to stroke it and murmur "Nice doggie!"

Self-reliance and self-respect are about as valuable commodities as we can carry in our pack through life. (Luther Burbank)

GATHERED HERE AND THERE . . . Adrienne Foster has been a mighty busy girl lately . . . more so than usual . . . she just returned last week from attending the furniture market in Chicago, Ill. . . and then went to Borger this week for a district meeting of the Cancer Society . . . Understand Inez Carter took a trip lately . . . to Denver . . . and really had a good time . . . Peg also heard Bunny Behrman planning a trip soon . . . believe he is going to market, too . . . a group of Pampa High School girls have been talking excitedly about their coming ski trip . . . believe they left this weekend . . . they're members of Marian Osborne's Senior Girl Scout Troop . . . and none of them has been on skis before . . . Peg sure does envy them . . . they should have a marvelous time skiing and ice skating . . . Peg has been hearing ever since the holidays about the search by Vera Andis and Crystal Hankhouse for pink Christmas trees . . . since the end of the holiday season usually marks the complete lack of interest in such things, Peg has been highly intrigued . . . this week she discovered the reason for this unusual activity . . . seems the Rainbow Girls are having a special ceremony soon . . . Peg thinks it's an installation . . . and Vera and Crystal, who work with the girls, plan to use the pink trees for a forest background . . . very clever and unusual . . . Peg is willing to bet it will be beautiful and very effective . . . people do think of the cleverest things!

Neither esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect. (Marcus Aurelius)

PEG LEARNED this week that Ruby Morrow (Mrs. Hugh) is working at the Amarillo Air Force Base Hospital as Red Cross recreational director . . . Ruby is positively stunning in her blue and white uniform, Peg understands . . . all the news is that she is doing an exceptional job of arranging parties for the patients in the Day Room . . . the Junior Red Cross of Pampa sponsors a party for the patients the fourth Wednesday of each month . . . other parties have been sponsored by the Sub Debs, Kit Kats, Las Cresas members and the PHS Speech Club . . . Lending his talents for one of the programs was Pat Carter who presented his slight-of-hand show . . . and Peg believes the Star Dusters, a Pampa orchestra, will present the program this month . . . Peg thinks it is wonderful of all these people to give of their time to give pleasure to others . . . and all without fanfare.

Resolve to be thyself; and know, that he who finds himself, loses his misery. (Matthew Arnold)

THERE IS MUCH EXCITEMENT in many Pampa-homes this week as the Girl Scouts and the adult workers in the program prepare for the annual banquet . . . Peg's informant says it promises to be quite an occasion . . . each troop is making a table decoration . . . and some troops are also making displays . . . all on an Americana theme . . . depicting the various stages of American history . . . and the program, to be given by the Scouts, will include songs representing the history of the country from the Indians to the present day . . . the new Girl Scout Council board will be installed . . . with gracious and capable Martha Holt going in as president . . . Promises to be a grand affair.

THE MARCH OF DIMES . . . being ramrodded by Rev. Edwin Hall . . . is really off and running as the month is just slightly past the half-way mark . . . some unusual things planned this year . . . the selling of blue crutches last week by members of the Opti-Mrs. Club, which, by the way, is really an up-and-coming little club that has managed to accomplish a lot in the short time it has been organized . . . the club volunteered for the project . . . didn't wait to be asked . . . and the Sub Deb group aided by selling bags of peanuts for the March . . . and many, many of the women in town will take part Monday night in the Mothers' March . . . a yearly and very effective event . . . the radio marathon is planned this afternoon, simultaneously over both Pampa stations . . . the marathon associated-for so many years with the March . . . and always so much fun . . . Jack Miller is doing a fine job with this . . . Rufe Jordan is a yearly performer . . . someone always calls in for him to sing . . . and Peg really enjoys his renditions . . . most unusual this year will be the Pampa-Borger basketball game . . . Pampans are being asked to promise to the March of Dimes so much per point that the Pampa team makes and the Borger people are doing the same . . . each city will receive the promised donations, no matter who wins or loses . . . of course, if Pampa wins, the Pampa March will get the most, provided Pampans promise as much per point as the Borger people do . . . Peg thinks this is a wonderful idea . . . we Pampans can't let Borger get ahead of us, now can we? . . . speaking of the March of Dimes . . . Inga Pratt, whose daughter was stricken with polio over a year ago, is another volunteer . . . she offered to speak to all the women's clubs in town . . . quite an undertaking when you consider how many of them there are . . . and her talk is wonderful . . . she really brings the plight of polio victims home to the audience.

IT'S THAT TIME again for this week . . . be seein' ya around!

As ever,
Your Peg

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend
The new year is such a good time to try to change old habits etc. perhaps it would be a good time to seek advice in regards to a problem.

My husband's mother, who is a widow, lives back east in a large house which she owns, along with her daughter, son-in-law and their children. They have been with her for many years. A few years ago my husband was recalled to service and we moved here and bought a home. Prior to that we lived in a small house about 10 miles away from here.

My husband was overseas for awhile after we moved here and I wrote his mother and asked her to come out and spend a month when he got home. She came—and left 10 months later!

My husband is rather spoiled and inconsiderate normally but when she comes and stays he gets terrible and seems to do everything to irritate me and her. She knows it but continues to visit and to make a yearly thing of it.

The last time she was here he got very rude to her and she tried to ignore it until she realized how evident it was to me too. She point-blank asked me one day if he was nicer when she wasn't here. Since she asked me I very tactfully told her the truth and I know she hurt her feelings.

I suggested she sell her home and buy a small one near us and have her daughter move nearby too. That way she could be near both of her children. Her excuse is that she doesn't want to put her poor daughter "out of her home." Her daughter has two incomes. Her husband has a steady job and she has a business. Her daughter's family pays no rent but buys the groceries and pays the utilities so it's that she is poor and has to live there.

Also my mother-in-law has widowed sisters in Canada and I had Christmas cards from them and they mentioned they hoped she would come and spend some time with them.

Now my mother-in-law is writing about coming out again. Personally I don't think it is fair because it upsets us all, children included as she wants to rear them differently than my husband and I do.

If she had no home or income I would put up with it for six months out of the year but it isn't like that.

What would you suggest? I would appreciate any advice.

Mrs. E. S.

Dear Mrs. S.
Write your mother-in-law and tell her that you will be happy to have her near you and as you are using the extra bedroom you will find her a small apartment in the vicinity. And do it! Suggest that since she will have to pay rent on the apartment, it might be well to have her daughter pay her rent for the home while she is out here. Or better yet, have your husband do it since it is his attitude towards his mother which creates the problem.

Probably not being in your home all of the time will keep her from interfering in the rearing of your family also. And yet you can see her and visit with her in such ways that the visit will prove enjoyable rather than be a burden.

MRS. LOY TAYLOR
MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

When company comes to dinner, Edith, aged 14, and Sis, 11, wash and dry the dishes. Later their mother puts them away.

One evening after a company dinner that included leg of lamb, Edith decided not to wash the roasting pan. Coldly greasy, it looked so disagreeable that she didn't want to touch it. So she left it on the stove, hoping her mother would not find it until she's gone to bed — and then wash it herself.

But her mother found it before Edith went upstairs. Calling her, she asked, "What's this pan doing here unwashed?"

"I thought you might want to save what was left of the gravy in it," Edith said.

This answer was what psychologists call "rationalizing" — the attempt to make ourselves acceptable to the other fellow by denying what we are. It's purpose is evasion of criticism. By rejecting herself as a girl who dislikes nasty chores and appearing as one virtuously concerned only with her mother's wishes, Edith hoped to avert attack for the unwashed roasting pan.

She didn't succeed. As usual, her mother was irritated by her evasiveness and snapped, "Don't give me that! You just didn't want to wash it!"

Irritation with the "rationalizing" child's evasiveness does not help him outwit it. All it does is suggest that we are his moral superior — and force him to insist on his false virtuousness more aggressively than ever.

If we want to teach him how to give us the less pleasant truths about himself, there's only one way to do it — give him the less pleasant ones about us.

As we prepare to wash that roasting pan ourselves, we say to Edith, "I don't blame you for not wanting to scour this pan. It's a horrid chore. I'd like to avoid it myself. The only difference between us is that I'm older than you. I've had longer to learn that it's silly to avoid what has to be done."

Children learn "rationalizing" from us. If our youngster goes in for it, we should be glad to know he's probably got the trick from us. Our resentment at him is our resentment against the moral values that have forced us to "rationalize," pretending we like nasty chores we dislike, that we always do everything right and have no more progress to make in this earthly experience.

It can be the best thing that ever happened to us when a child shows us the absurdity of our claim to faultlessness by "claiming it himself."

True Beauty Is Acquired By Getting Proper And Essential Rest Each Night

A beauty who was still lovely at fifty was once asked how she had kept her looks. Her answer was that she spent twelve hours sleeping each night.

Most of us can't sleep that much time away, but there's something in what she says. That is, we spend too little time resting, under the impression that we are using our time importantly.

Hobby Club Has Hobo Dinner Meet

Mrs. A. W. Calvert, 1912 Banks, entertained members of the Highland Hobby Club with a "hobo" dinner at 6:45 in her home on Thursday evening.

Members, whose interests are doing creative handicraft and who all live in the 1900 block on Banks, came dressed as hoboes. They were seated at a table covered with a gunny-sack and a kerosene lantern as the centerpiece. The glossy pages from a well-known catalog were used as napkins.

The dinner menu consisted of corn-bread, turnip greens, boiled turnips, pinto beans, onions, chow served in pie-pans, and coffee served in shining partially-labeled tin cans.

Members present were Mmes. Jack Magie, Roy Davis, Robert L. Henninger, Houston Nail, Dean Monday, Bob Huey, Alvie French, Walter Hurst, R. D. Holmes, Ray Laycock, John Moore, and a special guest, Mrs. Elsie Straughan. Two members were unable to attend, Mrs. Joe Autry and Mrs. Iva Hutsell.

"Your Child Of Seven" Topic Discussed By Speaker At Parent Education-Meet

"Your Child of Seven" was the topic discussed by Mrs. Zenus Deer and Mrs. Solon Blundell at a recent meeting of the Parent Education Club held in the home of Mrs. Robert Vail, 2016 Mary Ellen, with Mrs. Tom Rose as hostess.

"The seven-year-old is in what is known as 'middle childhood,'" was Mrs. Deer's initial comment. "Up until now the child has led a somewhat sheltered life in the home and immediate neighborhood. But the school-age child is now increasing his independence and widening contacts with other children and adults outside his family. He is no longer content to stay in the back yard, but is ready to explore the entire neighborhood." Mrs. Deer went on to say, "Parents need to relax their controls in order to allow the child to develop in self-direction as a preparation for more complete responsibility when he is older."

Mrs. Blundell continued the topic with, "We can't look at a child without looking at his parents, and yet we are so closely associated with our own children that we cannot get a complete view of our parent-child relationship." "Because we are anxious to give our children the love and training needed for happy worthwhile lives," Mrs. Blundell said, "we find ourselves searching for rules, watching patterns of behavior, reading books and discussing our problems with friends, wanting answers that will assure us that we can guide our children day by day in the best possible manner."

"It is not easy," Mrs. Blundell went on, "to find a device that measures accurately the progress of our children, but here are a few of the essential qualities of an emotionally healthy child:

- He must be able to play, to work in school; 3) remain free from incapacitating symptoms, and 4) make and keep friends.

During the business meeting, new officers for the coming year were elected. Those elected to serve during the 1957-58 club year are, Mrs. Homer Johnson, president; Mrs. Solon Blundell, vice-president; Mrs. A. L. Smalley, secretary; Mrs. Myron Marx, treasurer; Mrs. Tom Rose, parliamentarian; Mrs. Harold Meador, reporter.

In the interest of the March of Dimes, Mrs. Bruce Pratt spoke to the group concerning the experiences of her daughter, Jean, who was stricken with polio shortly before Christmas in 1955. Mrs. Pratt related the case histories and personal experiences of several persons of all ages to illustrate the crushing blow dealt by polio, not only to its victim but to other members of the family.

"The Foundation comes to them," she said, "Families do not have to make an appeal. The National Polio Foundation is ready with every available aid from the moment the patient enters the hospital. Only a millionaire could stand the cost of polio care. That is why we must support the national organization."

The club voted to contribute $25 to the drive.

Mrs. Gene Fatheree reported that the Pampa Council of Clubs had gone into the Pampa Council of Social Agencies with Mrs. Jess Clay as representative.

A committee was named for the purpose of planning means of raising money to finance the club project, which is purchasing recording equipment for the use of blind children at Lovett Memorial Library.

During the social hour, refreshments were served to the 20 members present.

Most of us who dislike milk as adults, dislike it simply because it was forced on us as children. By now we should be able to see what lies behind the attitude and to understand that the reasons for drinking milk are good.

Are you careful to include some milk in your daily diet? Even as an adult, you need it both for health and beauty.

If you can't drink it any other way, take it half-and-half with coffee in a large cup in the morning. Or use it in making puddings and desserts. But see to it that you get it down and that you make a regular habit of it.

Now again, when you feel the urge for a mid-afternoon snack, make it a milkshake or a malted milk rather than a sundae.

EVERYDAY SPLENDOR

One of the most heartwarming selectivity of furnishings and accessories of our time is the growing tendency to find adventure and splendor in our daily lives . . . and this trend is being reflected in homes of every size and style today. There is evidence of a deliberate determination by home owners everywhere to find delight in the small things that make up the home, as well as in the large. This new attitude toward daily living boils down almost to a compulsion to enjoy life more fully in our own way. For instance, once, and not so long ago, for many of us, eating in the kitchen was an expedient to save steps and time . . . serving only company and special-occasion meals in the dining room. Today, we plan our eating areas as part of the kitchen (or adjacent to it) and we appoint the entire setting with meticulous care and the utmost

Mrs. Charles Hickman Presents Talk To TC Allegro On Jeffersonian Series

Twentieth Century Allegro met in the home of Mrs. Ben Fallon, 2234 Charles, with Mrs. J. E. LeVerich as co-hostess. "Light and Liberty" of the Jeffersonian Heritage series was the topic of the program given by Mrs. Charles Hickman Jr.

The club has been conducting an adult education study on the Jefferson Heritage series, which brings out interesting highlights in the times and lives of men of that era. In Mrs. Hickman's discussion, she stated that in the age of specialization of today, it is hard to believe that the learned men of Jefferson's time had so many interests, but it was characteristic of that day for intelligent men to have interests and knowledge of many fields. None, however, she said, had touched on so many subjects

(with the possible exception of Benjamin Franklin) as Thomas Jefferson. Besides law and history, he was vitally interested in agriculture, architecture, botany, and practically every known branch of scientific knowledge. He had supreme faith that human intelligence could unfold the physical secrets of the universe and enable man to master nature, if that intelligence could be fully liberated. Here, Mrs. Hickman stated, are the clues to his lifelong struggle for freedom. He spent his life trying to remove ignorance, superstition and prejudice from the minds of men.

A discussion period followed Mrs. Hickman's talk.

Mrs. Bruce Pratt talked to the group about the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis and urged everyone to take advantage of the Salk vaccine.

Mrs. James Evans presided during a brief business session. Those present were Mrs. Clifford Braly, Bill Craig, George Cree Jr., Bill B. Davis, Joe Franklin, John Frisby, H. C. Grady Jr., Robert Karr, Jack O. Miller, George Rosel, J. E. Thompson, Floyd Watson, and Don Cain.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

While Karen put her crayons away in preparation for bed, her baby sitter Edna glanced through a new picture magazine.

"Isn't this something? Look at this knockout necklace they've found buried with these old Egyptian mummies." And she showed four-year-old Karen the vividly colored photographs of ornaments, painted coffins and swathed figures with monstrous heads.

Later, Karen couldn't sleep. She tried to remember that Daddy was with Mummy and could be trusted not to let anyone put her into a painted coffin. Nobody, she told herself, would treat her Mummy like an Egyptian one, stuffing her into horrid bandages along with her pearl beads and new earrings.

But her mother's absence remained full of menace for her. She stayed awake until her parents got home when she burst into tears, crying out, "Mummy, come here! Oh, please come here. . . ."

The next night, she was again overwhelmed with fear that her mother's absence might mean disappearance into a painted coffin. The moment her mother left her to go downstairs it began to threaten her.

After five minutes, she couldn't stand it; and began to make the demands that would force her mother to bring back her reassuring presence. She wanted more water. She wanted her blanket tucked better. What was the dark thing outside her window? But of her fear, she did not speak at all.

So her mother couldn't explain that Egyptian mummies were not mothers at all, but ancient kings and queens. Not knowing why Karen feared her absence, she could not deal with her little girl's terror of losing her into a painted coffin. But she could register the fact that somehow her absence had become terrifying to Karen — and undertake to restore its innocence and familiarity.

So what she did was to lie down beside Karen and tell her the story of her evening's plans. She said, "When I go downstairs, I'll turn on the lamp beside my chair. I'll sit down, open my sewing basket and take out that blue skirt of yours I'm making longer for you. How cozy and safe I'll be! As I thread my needle, Daddy will say, 'Listen to his honey' — and begin to read to me from his newspaper. . . ."

Like Karen, small children are often unable to tell us what's happened to make our good night suddenly frightening. If we remember that their fear of our absence is fear of abandonment by us, we can begin the work of comfort.

We can begin to make our absence harmless and trustworthy again by describing our reassuring evening activities.

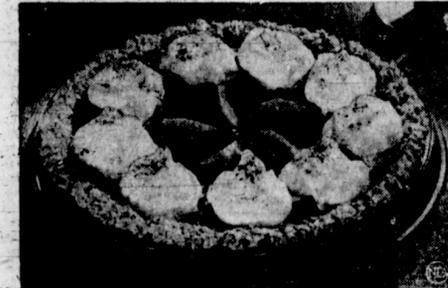

Manners

Make Friends

If a woman meets a couple at a party she shouldn't spend a lot of time talking to the husband and paying no particular attention to the wife. It's important not to pay so much attention to either a husband or wife that the other feels left out.

If you talk to one for any length of time, make a point of talking to the other.

Fluffy White Whipped-Cream Clouds Make Heavenly Dessert Of Angel Pie

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

Ever eat "pipe crust" made of beaten egg whites, mixed with sugar, salt and chopped nuts? Here's your chance — an exclusive apple pie recipe from the Pacific Northwest where all-purpose winesaps will be in excellent supply for two months at least.

APPLE ANGEL PIE
(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

Nut Crust — One egg white, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups nutmeats, finely chopped.

Beat egg white until stiff, but not dry. Add sugar and salt gradually and beat until stiff and satiny. Add nut meats and blend well. Press onto bottom and sides of a well-greased 9-inch pie plate with a fork. Prick bottom and sides of crust. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 12 minutes. Let cool.

Apple Filling — Four to six medium sized winesap apples, 3 cups water, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon instant coffee, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ cup whipping cream, whipped.

Pare and core apples, and cut into uniform slices. Bring 2½ cups water to a boil. Add sugar, instant coffee and cinnamon which have been previously combined, to make a syrup. Simmer apple slices in syrup slowly until tender, 3 to 5 minutes. Carefully remove from syrup and allow to cool, reserving liquid. Combine cornstarch with remaining ¼ cup cold water; add to syrup with the butter or margarine. Cook slightly. Arrange apple slices in nut crust and carefully pour syrup over them. Chill. Serve with puffs of whipped cream which have been lightly sprinkled with instant coffee.

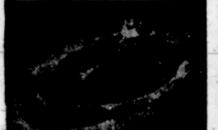

Tomorrow's Dinner — Creamed tuna and olives, fluffy rice, canned peas, toasted muffins, green salad, French dressing, winesap angel pie, coffee, tea, milk.

Decorating With Proper Balance Gives Rooms Harmonious Atmosphere

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA-Staff Writer

If a room or two is in need of a fresh coat of paint, this is a good time of year to approach the project. During the winter you have more hours to spend on indoor work if you do your own painting.

If you want a professional to do the job for you, it's easier to hire one now than it is in the rush seasons.

Although much has been written on choosing colors, I think it's difficult to make a decision.

Thanks to the "simplified" can-and-tube process of mixing custom-made hues, you can step up and select any one of about 1,322 colors.

And that isn't easy for me. Recently I've been walking around the living room with a fistful of color chips trying to make up my mind. After all, once the job is done you're going to be living with the results for some time. If you know exactly what shade you want, or have a piece of fabric to match, tube-packed colorants make it possible to match without error.

But if you're not so positive, perhaps the suggestions I received from William Clark, former member of the Color Council for Home Furnishings and one of the nation's foremost color experts, will help.

Proper color-balance gives a room a harmonious atmosphere, says Clark. Decorating a room, he says, is like painting a picture, should give vital attention to depth. Strong colors, which give depth, are those which also "seem to advance" and should be used when one wants to bring some feature of a room into prominence.

Color weight is another important consideration: Very light or high-value colors appear light in weight while low-value colors appear heavy. A room, like a picture, says Clark, will remain upright if you keep the color "weight" on the bottom.

It is wiser, according to this expert, to have the weight of the lower areas, including floor covering and furniture, darker than the color weight of the walls including windows, doors and trim. The ceiling should be lighter than the walls unless it is too high.

Color strength of the walls should not be too pronounced as this area is usually large compared to the other units in the room. If the color is too strong or bright, it will require too large an area of balancing colors at the same brightness to hold the balance.

Keep the strong, vivid colors for smaller areas. Remember, too, says the expert, that dark colors reflect very little light. Only about 20 to 25 per cent is reflected from extremely dark colors, as compared to 90 per cent reflection from white. If you select dark colors for walls, you may want to offset them with light areas and trims.

In rooms which will be lived in much of the time, keep color contrasts low and soft. To reduce the number of angles in a room, paint the trim the same color as the walls. And Clark also advises us to keep the value of the different

Cook's Book
By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Around New York the story goes that in World War II, a Ranger, taken prisoner, kept himself alive on a 600-mile forced march just by dreaming of mountains of broiled steak. His name is Gil Blum, and he kept his vow to eat all the steak he wanted if he ever got home (185 pounds when he enlisted — 85 pounds when liberated).

So he owns a steak restaurant now, called Johnny Johnston's Charcoal Room on Second Avenue and the customers can broil their own steaks; if they want to at a huge charcoal grill in the center of the place.

Gil loves to watch people eat steak.

His chef gave us a few hints on broiling steak:

1. Rare — the steak that is broiled until it's hot throughout and the juice is red. The outside may be very charred or just lightly browned, depending on individual taste.
2. Medium — the medium steak is broiled a little longer than it takes to heat the meat through. The juice is darker red and the inside of the meat is pink.
3. Well Done — the steak is well done when the juice is brown though the meat may still be pink on the inside.

He tests steaks for doneness right on the coals by pressing them with a fork. The more solid the meat feels the more well done it is. A rare steak will be soft to the touch of the fork and a well-done will resist the pressure.

At the Charcoal Room, steaks are not seasoned before broiling because each diner has different preferences. Some people prefer no seasoning. And, of course, the charcoal flavor is its own best seasoning, whether indoors or out.

He also advises turning the meat as little as possible, for then it retains the natural flavors and tenderness — one turning is best.

Items in a room separated, citing as an example draperies which will show off much better if they are lighter or darker than the walls.

Applying these suggestions to my situation, I settled on a color about two shades lighter and grayer than I'd originally intended and a good thing, too, because the finished effect is plenty deep enough. We painted the trim the same color — a soft, slightly rose beige and limited the accent to the narrow brick border around our old-fashioned fireplace. This, we painted a flat black.

Pastel Colors Lead In Spring Fashions

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Color gets a new slant for spring in shades both pale and vivid.

There's no doubt about the importance of the violet shades both in ready-to-wear and in accessories. Gray, a pale shade, is also a big color this year and lends itself beautifully to accessories in sharp or muted colors.

There's a new emphasis on the pastels — the very pale blues and pinks and beiges — an emphasis usually not felt until summer. These, like gray, will continue into summer, of course, helped out by white, which looks particularly good for evening wear.

The off-beat color combinations are many this year. A good example is pink and red. Red takes on a bluish tone for spring-into-summer and there are many blue-greens to choose from.

Taupe is a member of the brown family that keeps important company with beige, particularly in the accessory field.

Baskets are not, this year, confined to evening. They're good the clock around and in sportswear, too.

There Is Salmon In This Souffle

SALMON SOUFFLE

- 1 7-ounce can salmon
- 1 can condensed cream of asparagus soup
- 2 ounces can grated Parmesan cheese (1/2 cup)
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
- 3 egg whites
- 3 egg yolks

Drain salmon; flake with fork. Heat soup in a large saucepan. Add grated cheese and mix well. Remove pan from heat. Stir in cayenne and salmon. Beat egg whites until stiff, egg yolks until thick. Add beaten yolks to fish mixture. Fold in beaten whites. Pour into buttered, floured 1 1/2 quart casserole. For a decorative pattern, top with a few fish cut-outs made from cheese slices. This girl, who got a good French perfume as a Christmas gift, knows that using it is far wiser than saving it. Balance in perfume changes with time and "saving" it means wasting it.

Use Your Perfume; Don't Put It Away

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Getting one of the well-known French perfumes for Christmas is exciting.

But, unfortunately, many women don't know what to do with, perfume once they have it. They know it's expensive and therefore feel that it ought not to be wasted. So they put it away without using it.

Unfortunately, this allows the perfume balance to change so that when they do get around to using it, they might as well not bother.

True, good perfume shouldn't be used carelessly. But definitely — it should be used.

It should be used, either with a spray or by direct application to pulse spots: inside wrists, elbows, throat, temples and behind the ears. The heat of the body keeps

STAFF NOTES

JOEL R. COMBS, managing editor

I got "buck fever" last Monday watching the secret service men who surround President Eisenhower. In all the crush and milling around that took place when approximately 200 newsmen jockeyed for positions near the when he toured a farm near Clovis, N. M., the secret service men never once got harried themselves or lost control of the situation.

Once, when the President halted to chat with farmer Raymond Worrell, the photographers encircled him five or six deep and one or two high. I happened to notice one of the secret service men and I have never seen a man's eyes glaring at him and never noticing what the President was doing. We were so cramped in that finally to get a picture, I yelled at Ray Cullen of KGNCTV to duck, which he did and I managed to get the shot you saw in Tuesday's paper. Cullen jumped right back up and started shooting (pictures) again and the SS man's eyes never halted.

Those fellows never see the President it seems, yet they move when he moves, stop when he stops and at the same time never let anyone out of their sight.

Once, the President walked by a car and the secret service men didn't have room to walk between him and the car. He proceeded to run, not walk, around the car and a dozen members of the press, to regain his protective position near the Chief Executive. After the tour, the Presidential party returned to the officers club at Clovis Air Force Base. Jim Hagerty, the President's press secretary, was supposed to hold a press conference while Eisenhower conferred with business men, farmers and ranchers in another part of the building.

While waiting for Hagerty to put in an appearance, I started looking for the men's lounge. I brazenly poked my head through a curtained door to see if it was in that section of the building. Immediately a heavy hand fell on my chest and a near giant SS man asked, "Where you going, sir?" I sheepishly replied, "I was just looking for the men's lounge." And he said, "It's right there," pointing to a door clearly marked "Ladies."

I said, "You mean there where it says 'Ladies'?" He said yes, and in I walked to find several other members of the press, all male. When I came out, I must have been a little red faced for he winked and smiled as if to say, "Ain't it awful?" I still don't know if the President was occupying the men's lounge or if they were just trying to be conservative, but anyway, it served the purpose.

DORIS E. WILSON, women's editor

Random Thoughts... one month as Women's Editor on the Pampa News... it has been a month crammed full of new and interesting things to learn... and not the least among these is that people are gracious, friendly, helpful, and patient. The streets, though, with all due respect to the town planners, I have never, in all my life, seen so many angling, curving streets that leave off one block with one name and pick up in the very next block with a new one.

The past week I had several outside picture appointments and each one had a Grand Adventure in trying to find the correct address. One was in the 1000 block of S. Dwight. I know where Dwight is, so I went to the intersection where North Dwight ends and South Dwight begins, but can I go directly down South Dwight to the 1000 block? No! It only goes so far I found, so I had to go back east along the railroad tracks, cross them, go back west along the tracks again, and turn approximately where I had left Dwight across the tracks and by process of eliminating all the other streets in that neighborhood, I finally found 1013 S. Dwight.

Yes, we do have a street map here in the office, but that would make it too easy! I'm getting to see and know Pampa this way!

The Pampa News had a nice shock the early part of this week, when our New Yorker, Bob Perez, walked into the office, wearing of all things a new pair of cowboy boots and whistling "The Eyes of Texas." Never, never, never thought that would happen.

Our managing editor, Joel Combs, who spent the early part of the week with the President's tour and vacationed the latter part, will be back Monday. (Note to Ed: While the cat was away, the mice did NOT play!)

Can you look back into the past and picture the year 1937? The wind is blowing at hurricane force and the black dust is so thick over the Great Plains area that you dare not go outside for fear of getting lost in the nightmare of choking particles.

Maybe you shudder when you think about those days 20 years ago. But if you consider for a minute the happenings that led up to that dreaded drought period you'll realize that 1937, just 20 years later, bears a remarkable resemblance to that era. And you will shudder even more.

The Southwest area is experiencing its worst drought conditions in 20 years and only a deluge of rain can solve the problems of the parched and withered land about us. Between now and next summer these plagued states may turn into a dust bowl as bad as the thirties.

Barring the miracle of a down-fall of rain, the swirling dust could reach the East Coast as it did 20 years ago. There has not been a big duster yet but the condition of the land is riper than it was 20 years ago, the agriculture department states.

Texas is one of half-dozen states hard hit by the drought conditions. All but about a dozen of the 254 counties have been designated as disaster areas eligible to receive federal aid. Only the eastern section of the state has received rain hit. Rainfall has been below normal for 40 out of 48 months and water is low or completely dry in many stock tanks. Texas is 11.83 inches below normal rainfall.

President Eisenhower and agriculture secretary Benson made a rush-trip through the Southwest area last week to revue the drought conditions but nothing is expected to come from their findings anytime soon. The visit is likely to bring about plans for long-range action, however.

Recently I have been writing what I believe to be more than Pampa's share of stories involving the younger generation being in trouble.

It seems that more of the youths of this city are getting into trouble. Recently several boys and girls of extremely young age have made the news by breaking into stores at night, stealing, driving while intoxicated and other serious offenses.

There are many different theories about how to solve the problem but I think the best one yet is what County Judge Bruce Parker told the Lions Club week before last.

The judge told the Lions that it was the failure of our whole society. It was the fault of the parents, the citizens, the civic clubs, the churches and the schools, he explained.

He also stated that a new approach was being tried by the Juvenile Authorities. He said that instead of working against the youth they were now "trying to work with them."

He reported that the youth of Pampa graded, and organized more organized outlets for their energy.

Several of the local civic clubs and churches have projects along this line but it seems that these projects need to be expanded and that other groups need to help fill the gap.

"How about all of us getting behind this new approach to the situation before I have to write a story about your kids and mine being in trouble."

Several weeks ago I read the following statement, "If you want to know how many experts there are in the world, get a job as a newspaper editor."

Well, I've had the job of editor on this paper for over a week while the editor was on vacation and I know how the person who wrote that gem of thought felt. I have had more headaches and did more things wrong in the past week than I ever thought was possible.

I can truly say that I am glad that the past week is over and that the "boss" will be back tomorrow and I can go back to my usual duties, whatever they were before this happened.

To anyone who hasn't experienced the pleasures of pure foot comfort, I'd just like to say that they don't know what the word means until they've purchased themselves a pair of western boots.

However, there's more to this bit of wearing a western boot than would meet the eye. In fact, it could be called an art.

I happen to have bought a pair of said boots, and I never realized the experience I was letting myself in for until I started wearing them for what I figured would be an everyday occurrence.

The first day, I had to put chunks of cotton secured to my leg with adhesive tape in order to smooth the chafing which the top of the boot, (I guess it has a name, I haven't found out yet,) was inflicting on the inside of my leg.

Since then I have found out that there are many rather unconventional sounding ways of making this roping slipper the last thing in foot comfort.

For one, I was advised by a friend, whose word I have not the slightest reason to question, that about the best way to smooth out the fit of these boots is to get a rather large pan and put some hot water in it. (How much, I'm not sure, I don't believe he mentioned that part.) Next, put your boots on and just stand in the water until it just starts seeping through the last.

Then, (and it's supposed that apartment, you had previously put some bur-lap bags on the floor,) step out of the water, and walk around on some bags or other floor-saving devices until most of the actual wetness is gone.

I say this is just one of them; for surely I've been told at least twelve. I have tried only three of them, not to mention an added one, which I thought of myself, or just taking it to a cobbler and having it stretched.

But seriously, I hate to make it sound as though western boots can ever be at all uncomfortable. They are in fact, quite soothing to the feet, and offer far more support to the arches than is afforded in the best ordinary shoe. But, then again, I shouldn't have to tell anyone about this here, since most of you have long ago found out, and know what I'm talking about.

So without wasting your time any further, I think I'll slip my foot into its tortuous prison and limp home.

And Not A Scratch!

WASHINGTON (UP)—A true son of the Old West never parts with his shootin' iron, unless he wants to walk into the gallery of the U.S. Senate. But the doorkeeper made them check their six-shooters.

The square variety, he declares, is more easily moved and stored. He's not entirely happy about the new shape though: "I still think the round cheese tastes a little bit better."

More Internationalism

The appointment of Governor Herter of Massachusetts as under-secretary of state to succeed Herbert Hoover Jr. and the strong reports that he is being groomed to succeed Secretary of State John Foster Dulles who is advancing in years and declining in energy — is a matter which those citizens of the United States who dislike embroilment with international politics should view with suspicion.

Mr. Herter, it may be recalled was the gentleman who was put forward by Harold Stassen as the man to replace Richard Nixon as Republican nominee for vice president, and Mr. Stassen is unquestionably one of the most active internationalists in the Eisenhower administration. It is beyond the realm of political possibility that Mr. Herter would be of a contrary ilk to the circle in which Mr. Stassen perambulates and that seems to be dedicated to the cause of entwining the United States in overseas affairs that it will cease to be sovereign free agent.

There is little question that Mr. Hoover was not happy in his post surmounted as he was by diplomats whose interests seem more centered on the welfare of foreign states than in a foreign policy beneficial not only to the United States as a sovereign state but to the citizens of the American states. It is reliably reported that he took a bleak view of many of our adventures in internationalism. Not only the fact of his departure from the State Department but the identity of his successor, indicates that there is to be no diminution of our interference in foreign affairs and, of course, our financing of operations by foreign powers.

The fact that there were a few upper echelon officials in the Eisenhower administration who did oppose an all-out internationalist foreign policy held some hope that the center of authority — President Eisenhower — was not entirely dedicated to the cause of internationalism. The departure of Mr. Hoover from the State Department kills this hope.

A President is no different than other men, other executives. He is limited in his action by the information available to him and he is subject to the influence of the advisors around him. A President who finds himself surrounded with men, all of whom are of like mind about foreign affairs, is not likely to get from his advisory corps the truest picture nor the most honest advice. There is great value in the availability of men of different views to debate and clarify problems that arise. When such men are permitted to fade into outer darkness by a political administration it is a fairly safe presumption that frozen convictions have been reached.

There is other evidence that the Eisenhower administration is contemplating no withdrawal from its busybody international activities. Until recently Vice President Richard Nixon was not closely identified with the international clique. The British, for example, held an active dislike for him and some of the comments from their journals disclosed last October and November that their greatest regret was they were not eligible to vote against him.

Yet, in recent days, Mr. Nixon says the United States must assist Great Britain with further dollar help because of her monetary plight resulting from the Suez war.

What a paradox this is! Not long ago the President of the United States was verbally cursing the British and French for their assault on Egypt. Now the Vice President of the United States asserts we'll have to bail the British out of the mess they created.

Does this mean we are going to pick up the tab for the mess the French are in? The Israeli? The Egyptians? Perhaps in the months to come we can also evolve out some excuse for ameliorating the financial losses incurred by the Russians in their barbaric crushing of the Magyar revolt!

There seems little hope of surcease from foreign aid programs and foreign entanglements from the Administration. Perhaps some ray of light will shine in the next Congress.

Morality Of Capitalism III.

Since the Declaration of Independence is the spirit of the Constitution, it is of the utmost importance that more and more people come to realize the ideologies it sets forth. I confess that for years I stumbled over the self-evident truth that all men are created equal. It seems that the writers of the Declaration of Independence did not make that statement very clear. It did not mean, of course, that all men had equal talents, equal abilities, physically and mentally. It meant, simply, they had equal inalienable rights, among these life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

William Henry Chamberlain's 'The Morality of Capitalism,' under the heading of 'False Banner of Equality,' as published in the January Freeman, pretty well explains what this clause means. I quote:

"In the Constitution, which still stands as the sheet anchor of the American ideal of liberty under law, although it has been subjected to some severe strains and stresses in the last quarter of a century, one cannot find a line that would authorize the leveling conception of equality, enforced by the power of government authority. The Declaration of Independence asserts that 'men are created equal'; but the authentic American idea is that this equality is an equality only of opportunity, the right of every man to go as far as his character, industry, and ability will carry him. It emphatically is not that everyone should go equally far, with artificial handicaps for the more capable and industrious, and unlimited state aid for those who lag behind. There is no warrant in early American political thought and legal enactment for the practice of pillaging the thrifty for the benefit of the thrifless."

Thomas Jefferson would probably have been called a Leftist, if the term had been known in his time. But, as his correspondence shows, he fully agreed with the conception of a natural aristocracy, as put forth by his political opponent, John Adams, in the following words:

"There is a voice within us, which seems to intimate that real merit should govern the world, and that men ought to be respected only in proportion to their talents, virtues and services... Few men will deny that there is a natural aristocracy of virtues and talents in every nation and every party, in every city and village."

Jefferson's agreement with this view is expressed in a letter to Adams from Monticello, dated October 28, 1813.

"I agree with you that there is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds of this are virtue and talents. The natural aristocracy I consider as the most precious gift of nature, for the instruction, the trusts and government of society. And indeed it would have been inconsistent in the social state, and not to have provided virtue and wisdom enough to manage the concerns of the society."

"It was on this basis of individual opportunity that the American Republic was founded. And this principle not only provided the mainspring for a mighty development unmatched in history; it also promoted morality by leaving the individual, subject to the restraint of the law, free to make his choice between good and evil."

As Others See Us
"The most brilliant, lucid, and discriminating foreign visitors to the United States, Alexis de Tocqueville and Lord Bryce—the former observing America in the eighteen thirties, the latter near the end of the century—both, on balance, found the moral fruits of the American experiment good, although both were keen and perceptive as to flaws and weaknesses. Lord Bryce, viewing America with the background of a widely traveled Briton, devotes a chapter to 'The Pleasantness of American Life.' As elements in this pleasantness he mentions 'the general prosperity and material well-being of the mass of the inhabitants, social equality,' and describes the Americans as follows:
"Good nature, heartiness, a readiness to render small services to one another, seem to be everywhere in the air, and in those who breathe it."

"I recently heard of another tribute to America from a much less distinguished person, an unknown Italian woman. A European-born American professor and his wife, motoring through Italy, stopped to pick up an Italian family stranded by the roadside on a rainy day. There was nothing about the car or the dress of the professor and his wife to mark them as Americans and they were talking in the language of their native country. But after a time the Italian woman said: 'You must be Americans. Only Americans would be kind enough to pick up complete strangers as you did.'"

"In the United States, as everywhere else, there are bad people as well as good people, swindlers, hypocrites, hoodlums, gangsters, and whatnot. But under the American system of a free economy and free political institutions there is no moral compulsion on anyone to be a scoundrel. People succeed or fail morally on their individual merits or demerits."

Demos, GOP Pledge Aid To Education

By Thurman Sensing

Both the Democratic and Republican platforms in the 1956 campaign contained planks pledging federal aid for school construction. Apparently, such a measure will be vigorously pushed early in the 85th Congress — and apparently, too, backed by the majority membership of both parties.

Nothing worse could happen to the educational system of this country than to have its control pass into the hands of centralized bureaucracy.

In this connection, it is worth noting that the official voice of the Communist Party in America, The Daily Worker, is pushing strongly for federal funds for schools. If the other organizations taking a similar stand, such as the Americans for Democratic Action, the AFL-CIO, and the National Education Association can get any comfort from being associated with this group, they are welcome to it. But the communists are smart enough to know, if these other organizations are not, that it is much easier to infiltrate and subvert centralized education than it is to infiltrate and subvert education completely controlled by the 48 states of the union.

In the second place, federal aid to education is simply another illustration of the whole fallacy of federal aid. Under our Constitutional republican form of government, the Federal Government has no powers not granted to it by the several states. Neither does the Federal Government have any money that does not come to it from the people of the several states.

How, then, can the Federal Government help the states when it must get the money with which to help them from the people who live in those states?

Not long ago, the Governors of the two richest states in the union, New York and Michigan, declared they must have federal aid for several purposes; one of them being school construction. Where will the Federal Government get the money with which to help these states? Well, where else can it get the money except from the other 46 states, including the two supposedly poorest states, Mississippi and Arkansas?

Surely these proponents of federal funds for schools cannot believe their claim that local governments can retain complete independence and control of their schools under any such system, cannot believe that if the various states lack the resources needed for their schools that the money can be furnished by the Federal Government!

No, it is simply an effort by the advocates of centralized government and federal control to get their "head in the tent," knowing that once it is in, local self-gov-

The CRACKER BARREL

The idea behind an International Court to try individuals as well as nations has its appeal in these troubled times. But it is more ominous than it sounds. ALL GOVERNING CLASSES SEEK TO PERPETUATE THEMSELVES IN POWER.

In America, the Constitution has circumvented this for almost two hundred years. But that Constitution would have no force before the proposed world court. Let us see, from established fact, what the character of that court would be — and is! Last year eleven American employees of the U. N. took refuge behind the Fifth Amendment and refused to tell the Un-American Activities Committee whether or not they were Communists. As a result of this, they were fired. They took their case before the International Court of Justice at Geneva. It ordered that all eleven be reinstated in their jobs and that $123,000, taken from the pockets of American taxpayers, should be paid to them in back bonuses. Now how can the downtrodden patriots of Hungary, Poland (or anywhere else) be benefited by having such a court be accepted as the SUPREME ARBITER of world justice?

LET'S SEE NOW, COMB, COMPACT, CURLERS, COOKIES, COFFEE, CAMERON! HERE'S THE LETTERS!

Senator Bricker says he's going to reintroduce his amendment at this session of Congress. This would make it impossible to alter American internal law without the consent of the people or their representatives in Congress, as is provided by the Constitution. I hope he gets it passed. There's not much difference between "illegal" and "ill eagle". When we violate the Constitution, we have a pretty sick national bird on our hands.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Without a point of reference outside ourselves, "enlightened self-interest" tends to quickly deteriorate into cynicism and savagery. The fact that we have once seen the path we should take does not mean that we can stay on it with only the flickering flame of "enlightened self-interest" to show us the way. The fact that our country was founded on the rock of religious faith does not mean that it can endure if it shifts over to the sand of "practical ethics". The only truly practical ethics there is is that which makes the same distinction between right and wrong that God makes; and the only truly enlightened self-interest there is is that which is illuminated by Him who said, "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

American Cuisine Does Not Get Proper Credit

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK — When a man's waistline reaches the proportions mine has, he shouldn't eat food, think about food, or even write about food.

But after six or seven months in Europe, during which time I have eaten dishes from the Suez to Sevgia, only a few days at home were enough to convince me that American food doesn't get anywhere near the credit due it.

One of the most universally accepted untruths is that American cooking is inferior, and that for a really fine meal one must stretch his legs under a Continental table and order from a menu printed in a language other than English.

It just isn't so, and while I don't speak as a gourmet, I also don't speak as a Georgian whose taste buds were smothered at a tender age by turnip greens and Hoppin' John, or one who wouldn't appreciate a dish unless it were fried until given up for dead.

In the past 45 years I have eaten in all classes of restaurants — high, low, and the middle — in lots of places in the world. I've had peacock in Kashmir, chili in dives along Route 60, shrimp in Hong Kong, venison in Johannesburg, steak in Buenos Aires, oysters in Sydney, lobsters in Maine, and a few things in Istanbul which I couldn't even identify.

To that you can add trout in Paris, steak and kidney pie in London, herring in Holland, chicken mull in Savannah, salmon in Seattle, and shoo-fly pie in Pennsylvania.

You can also throw in caterpillars in Mexico, octopus in Sorrento, hot dogs in Yankee Stadium, and paella in Madrid. Also rattle-snake in Florida, mountain goat in Catalina, and bear in North Carolina.

With this as a background, if anyone should ask me what country, day in and day out, serves the best food, I would answer, "The United States."

That's not my stomach waving a flag, either. It's my stomach telling the truth. Take meat, for one thing. There isn't any country that has as good meat as ours. If you're a steak lover, you'll discover that before you have been away from home long enough to order it once.

French food is good, yes, but not many people would want it as a steady diet. The French people, even the great chefs, are said to cook simply in their homes, but travelers don't eat in French homes. They eat in restaurants, and a Frenchman can't bear to leave foods alone, or serve them plain. He must dress them in sauces until only their eyes show, or soak or float them in wine until one can't tell whether he is eating beef or fish.

I can just hear some of my readers saying, "Oh, that dreadful ignorant man. He should have stayed in Georgia and stuck to his fried chicken and grits." There have been many times, I'll admit, when I wish I had.

As for Germany, I have yet to eat a meal there that was cooked as well as Luchow's cooks. German food. And I have yet to find a restaurant in Italy that serves as fine Italian food as Leone's in New York or Chianti in Hollywood; to name a couple.

It is in the medium-priced restaurants, though, that the United States wins in a walk. In the great majority of foreign countries there is no middle ground in eating; you either eat at expensive, first-class restaurants or in rock-bottom establishments where the food is terrible.

Here at home the down-the-middle restaurants are in every block, featuring good, if not great, fare. If you don't believe it, just cross the Atlantic, or the Pacific, and eat there for a few months.

BEFORE THE DISHES ARE DONE

By BETTY KNOWLES HUNT
INFORMATION PLEASE!

It is a bit difficult to understand the new "Eisenhower Doctrine" as proclaimed in the President's opening address to both houses of Congress, but from a first glance, it seems to be inconsistent, vague, and not very practical, to say nothing of expensive and dangerous.

In requesting "stand by" authority to use American troops, if necessary, to block Soviet aggression in the Middle East, the President seems to be asking for the right to take unilateral, military action, without consulting Congress or anyone else, although — only a few weeks ago — he denounced and rejected the right of other nations to take such unilateral military action.

Also, the President does not define what he means by "Soviet aggression". We are assured that any nation which does not want our protection or defense has authority to say so, which is all very nice and proper, but this obviously means that Syria, or Egypt can welcome Soviet aid and influence hardly define such a voluntary procedure as "aggression", nor can we block it by any "military action".

Perhaps this is where the other half of the new doctrine comes in — the request for an appropriation of some $400 million to be spent for a Middle East foreign aid program. Spokenmen for the Administration have said that this expenditure is essential to fill the "power vacuum" caused by the fall and decline of British power and prestige in the area. That unfortunate phrase, "power vacuum" has already irritated, if not outraged, most of the Middle East countries, most of whom have been struggling for years to get rid of foreign power and domination. The President's proposal sounds as if he wants the United States to fill the "power vacuum" in this area, and thereby substitute American domination for European, and this intimation has already wiped out a large part of the good will and faith these countries were feeling toward us when we denounced European aggression a few weeks ago.

As to this idea of "more foreign aid as a panacea," Publisher John Knight of The Chicago Daily News, writes: "The use of foreign aid as a policy vehicle is a dubious form of diplomacy, and especially questionable in this instance. John Foster Dulles seems again to believe that great visions of Nile Valley and Jordan River Authorities will soothe the passions of the Middle East, despite his own improbable adventures with Egypt's Col. Nasser. Others, like widely traveled Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, report that we are already 'spending too much' in many areas of the world. From my own personal observations, I would agree with Sen. Gore."

From almost any point of view, the Middle East is a tremendously complex hodge-podge of conflicting ambitions, aspirations and problems. Almost anything we attempt to do for one nation arouses resentment and anger in another nation, and perhaps no area in the world seems less able to come to major common agreements about mutually-beneficial programs and policies. The whole area is a tinder-box of emotions, hatreds and jealousies, any combination of which could start a military upheaval, in which the United States would not want to be involved on any side!

Thus, it would seem advisable if Congress studied the situation and "blank check" proposals with fine-tooth comb before approving.

Good And Bad News In Ike's Budget Message

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (UP) — President Eisenhower's budget message this week contained good and bad news for the oil industry, mostly good.

Industry spokesmen said the best was his call for re-passage of the Harris-Fulbright Bill to exempt 4,000 independent natural gas producers from federal regulation. "Arrogant" lobbyists had caused him to veto the measure last year.

The worst-for domestic oil operators was his failure to ask for import curbs on foreign oil. But this pleased the big importing companies which are vigorously resisting import quotas.

Dismal Outlook
No one was happy over his dismal outlook for tax cuts but this was tempered by omission of a request for redeductions on the 27-1/2 per cent income tax depletion allowance which the industry regards as its lifeblood.

In fact, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey said at a budget seminar that the provision "has worked out all right at the present level" and "that's what I'll tell Congress if they ask me." He said a long treasury study had shown the allowance "practical in relation to increasing consumer demand."

Industry leaders were displeased by the President's request for protection to the government on big mergers but other found solace in his program of aid for small business. This includes some independent refineries.

One Stipulation
Aside from the merger legislation, the President suggested no punitive measures. He made only one stipulation in passage of a gas exemption bill. This was that the consumer be protected. He said that so long as the Federal Power Commission retains jurisdiction

Harry Belafonte Wants No Part Of New Craze

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Harry Belafonte, riding on the crest of the new calypso craze, wants no part of it.

"Listen, I'm a singer, period. I sing all types of folk material—English, Irish, Israeli, from every section of the world. I don't believe in being 'cultish' and I don't want to be known as the guy who put the nail in the coffin of rock and roll," he said.

"As a matter of fact, my two big records right now aren't calypso at all—even though everybody seems to have hung that tag on them. One, 'Jamaica Farewell' is a West Indian folk ballad. The other, 'Day-O' is a West Indian work song."

It's no secret in the trade that Belafonte, who has been around for 10 years, suddenly has emerged as No. 1 challenger to Elvis Presley for the title of hottest singer in the business.

Records Are Big Hit
According to RCA Victor, Belafonte's recent album of calypso in the LP and EP versions has gone over the million point in sales, a phenomenal mark for a long-playing waffle. Each of his other albums—"Mark Twain" and "Belafonte"—has moved past the half-million pole.

What's more, within the past few weeks, Belafonte has hit the charts with three best-selling singles—"Jamaica Farewell," "Mary's Boy Child" and "Day-O," the last a tune which other performers have cut under the title, "The Banana Boat Song."

"Calypso, true calypso, is a healthy music," said Belafonte. "It treats of topical events with a healthy irony and has a free-swinging style. It's a kind of living newspaper."

Afraid of Fast Buck Guys
"The trouble is, I'm afraid the same thing is going to happen to calypso that happened to so-called rock and roll. It's going to become a caricature of itself once the fast buck guys hop on it."

"We have had a lot of sham calypso in the past, said Belafonte. "You remember the Andrews sisters' 'Rum and Coca Cola'? That was supposed to be calypso," snorted Belafonte. "But it was just synthetic."

Borrower Strikes Back At 20 Loan Companies

HOUSTON (UP)—A 66-year-old railroad worker who borrowed from Peter to pay Paul has struck back at 20 loan companies he claims have involved him in a maze of debt.

Elmer D. Clepper, who said he originally borrowed $300 to go into a cattle business that failed, filed a cross-petition charging 19 out of 20 loan firms with operating illegally in Harris county.

The action was filed in a suit pending in county court-at-law in which First Southern Finance, Inc., asks foreclosure on a promissory note for $500.

Clepper claimed he borrowed and received only $300 and that he was illegally induced to sign and execute a chattel mortgage in the amount of $801.

Conspiracy Charge
Clepper's petition also accuses

the companies of acting in conspiracy and individually in conducting "a course of wrongful collection efforts and harassment" against him and his 70-year-old wife, including "threats."

The petition charged that Clepper borrowed approximately $50 from each of the Fair Finance Service, Star Finance Co., Ideal Finance Co., Alamo Finance Co., Credit Finance Co., Service Finance Co., Big State Loan Co., Foley Finance Co., Model Investment Co., Atlantic Finance Co., Reliable Loan Service, Employees Finance Co., First Finance Co., Lincoln Loan Co., Diamond Investment Co., Community Finance Corp., Texas Finance Co. and Kenmar Finance Co.

Clepper's petition said in return for the $50 borrowed from each company he had paid back about $200 each, so far, or a total of about $3,000.

Clepper claimed that all but one of the firms—the Fair Finance Co.—had failed to file an affidavit in the assumed name records of the county and were thus operating illegally.
