Humphrey Bogart Dies Of Cancer

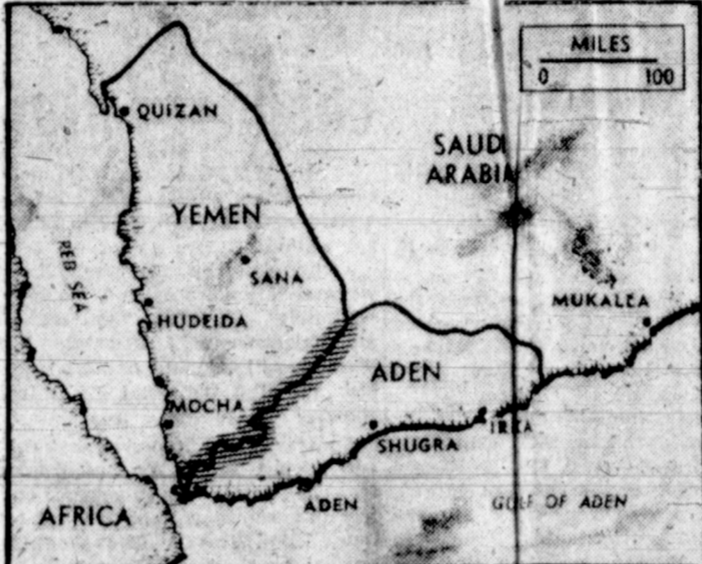

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actor Humphrey Bogart, 57, veteran movie tough guy and one of Hollywood's most colorful characters, died at home of cancer today with his wife, actress Lauren Bacall, at his bedside.
The Academy Award winning actor, who had been operated upon a year ago for throat cancer, succumbed during a coma at 5:10 a. m. (est), Dr. Maynard Bransma said.
A spokesman for the family said funeral services will be conducted Thursday.
His sole immediate survivor is his sister, Frances Rose Bogart.
Bogart was still talking to everybody, Saturday night, Dr. Bransma said. "Sunday morning he went into a coma. He went to sleep and just didn't wake up."
"Early this morning he took a deep breath and died."
The doctor said Bogart was a victim specifically of carcinoma, a general spread of the original cancer.
"Bogey," as the actor was nicknamed, had turned 57 last Christmas.
The end for the lovable, Academy Award-winning actor came at his Holmby Hills home where he had been recuperating from a hospital stay he took last month in an effort to alleviate pain from scar tissue formed after an operation for throat cancer a year ago.
His doctor said he had been "in some pain for the last few weeks."
His actress wife said she preferred that no flowers be sent to the funeral but that contributions be made to the American Cancer Society instead.
Bogart had been married since 1945 to the sultry Miss Bacall, and their marriage was one of the few between actors and actresses that was successful. They had two children, Stephen, born in 1949, and Leslie, born in 1952.

The veteran actor's bout with cancer came to light last March when he was operated upon for removal of a two-inch growth from his esophagus. At first Bogart said the growth was not malignant, but in later months he confirmed rumors the trouble had been cancer.
Following the delicate operation, Bogart remained in the hospital in pain for several weeks and then recuperated at home. Despite nationwide rumors he had lost his voice, the actor's speech never was impaired.
Bogart made his stage acting debut in "Swifty," described by the elite critic Alexander Woolcott as "inadequate." But the actor overcame his bad notices to act in such Broadway successes as "Saturday's Children" and "Hell's Bells." His role in "The Petrified Forest" was repeated in the movie version in 1932, and Bogart became a screen star.
He moved into a field dominated by Paul Muni, Edward G. Robinson and James Cagney to become a tough guy in Warner pictures of the 30s. "Kid Galahad," "Angels with Dirty Faces," "Bad Sister," "Dark Victory," "Virginia City," "They Drive by Night," "High Sierra," and "The Maltese Falcon" were among his popular pictures.
His more recent films included "Key Largo," "Knock on Any Door," "Deadline, U.S.A.," "Beat the Devil," "Sabina," "We're No Angels," "The Desperate Hours" (See BOGART, Page 8)

President Gets Personal Glimpse Of Drought Area

Doctrine Okay To Senate

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles shifted from the House to the Senate today in his fight to win congressional approval of the Eisenhower Doctrine and to keep Democrats from watering it down.
Dulles, who argued for the President's Middle East plan before the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week, went before a joint meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees today to plead the same case.
But several Democrats on the committees in both Houses were working on sharply toned-down substitutes for the Eisenhower plan.
Four members of the Senate foreign relations group who have expressed reservations about the President's original proposal conferred informally last week on a possible substitute. The four—Sens. J. William Fulbright (Ark.), Mike Mansfield (Mont.), Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) and John J. Sparkman (Ala.)—were ready to subject Dulles to some critical questioning today.
Chairman Thomas Gordon (D-Ill.) of the House committee called that group's Democratic members to a closed meeting today to decide how they stand on a substitute. Zablocki (D-Wis.)
Zablocki's proposal would merely state that Congress stands united behind the President in his attempts to bring peace to the Middle East.
Mr. Eisenhower was seeking much more than that.
He has asked Congress to give him statutory authority to use U.S. troops in the Middle East, if necessary, to resist any Communist aggression. He also wants approval of a $400 million program of economic and military aid to strengthen Middle East nations.

MacMillan Holding On To Lloyd

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP) — Prime Minister Harold MacMillan, in retaining Selwyn Lloyd as foreign secretary, served notice Britain has no intention of backing down from its firm Middle East policy, political observers said today.
The appointment of Lloyd to the cabinet post he held under Sir Anthony Eden came as a surprise. There had been demands for a new team to repair the Anglo-American relations damaged by the British Suez venture.
But instead of making the expected clean break with the ministers who most actively supported Eden's intervention policy, MacMillan retained or promoted them.
The new 18-man cabinet MacMillan submitted Friday for Queen Elizabeth's token approval included 12 ministers who served in the Eden government.
Only important Eden man to be dropped was Anthony Head. He was succeeded as defense minister by Duncan Sandys, 48, a son-in-law of Sir Winston Churchill. Head served as housing minister in the last government.
Another switch in the defense team saw Viscount Hallam, 49, the outspoken first lord of the Admiralty, shuffled to the Ministry of Education.
R. A. Butler, 54, majority leader in Commons who was passed over for the premiership, became home secretary. He retained his previous nominal cabinet post of lord privy seal.
Board of Trade President Peter Thorneycroft, 47, was promoted to chancellor of the exchequer, the post MacMillan held under Eden.
Most diplomats and political observers frankly expressed surprise at the "Eden look" in the MacMillan government.
Observers said the new prime minister deliberately gambled with American support of his administration to show the Middle East there is to be no retreat from Britain's basic demands.

Ike's Tour To Include 4,500 Miles Of Stricken Southwest

By GAYLORD F. GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER — President Eisenhower, who is seeing for himself what one of the greatest droughts in history has done to the Southwest, went out into the barren West Texas countryside today to talk to farmers who haven't made a decent crop in seven years.
Mr. Eisenhower is on a plane and automobile tour that will cover some 4,500 miles of drought-stricken land in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Kansas. San Angelo, Texas, was the first stop.
After spending the night at Goodfellow Air Force Base, at San Angelo, Mr. Eisenhower got an off-the-record briefing from 40 agricultural leaders at breakfast. Then he climbed into an automobile for a 22.6-mile drive through the dusty farmland southeast of San Angelo.
Introduce Farmers
D. W. Williams, vice chancellor of the Texas A&M College system and County Agent Ed S. Hyman of Tom Green county rode with him to introduce farmers and ranchers to the President and to explain their plight.
It has been 1950 since farms Mr. Eisenhower saw produced a decent crop and 1949 since they produced a good crop. The rainfall last year was 7.41 inches, compared with a 50-year average of more than 20 inches.
It was cold and partly cloudy and a brisk wind was sweeping the flat countryside. Most of the land the President saw was plowed. Unless it gets rain, the first winds of spring will strip off more and more of the topsoil.
To keep their cattle alive, farmers and ranchers have resorted to such extremes as burning the spines from prickly pear, a form of cactus, with blow torches and feeding it to their stock.
Prickly Pear Displayed
There was a display of prickly pear in the before and after states for Mr. Eisenhower at Goodfellow Air Force Base. A sign on it for the benefit of eastern White House correspondents who aren't familiar with inch-long spines of prickly pear said "Beware — hands off."
Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton also went on the tour southeast of San Angelo.
Benson and Seaton are the top government officials who deal directly with problems of crop and livestock production, soil conservation, reclamation and relief.
On the San Angelo itinerary arranged by Tom Green County Agent Ed S. Hyman were the farms of Andrew Braden, L. K. Batla, and Cal McGowan. Braden hasn't had a crop in more than four years.
Cotton farmer Batla also has been waging a losing battle for that long. McGowan has had to feed prickly pear cactus to his cattle to keep them alive. (See PRESIDENT, Page 8)

Farm Families In San Angelo Area Hold On

By CARTER BRADLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UP) — Farm families along a 22.6-mile route where President Eisenhower got his first look at the Southwest drought disaster area today are representative of a group that hasn't given up hope despite seven years of crop failures.
Typical of families in the area are the Andrew Bradens, who lease a farm at the far corner of the presidential route. Their son, Elmer, and his wife and four sons, stayed overnight with the elder Bradens, so they could see the President go by.
Elmer Braden helps his father on the lease farm and also operates an irrigated farm of his own six miles west, along South Concho River.
The elder Braden's farm is typical of dryland farms in the drought area. His crops have been complete failures for the past four years.
Rainfall, which has been spotty at the best over the past seven years, was only 7.41 inches in this area last year, compared to a 50-year average of more than 20 inches.
The President's tour across the prairie near Goodfellow Air Force Base where he was headquartered the first night started down U. S. 277 toward Christoval, Tex.
Farmers along the route were pinned down for an hour starting at 8:15 a. m. because no traffic was allowed on the route while the President was under way.
Spectator parking was arranged along the last four miles of U. S. 277 leading into San Angelo, with all parking completed before 8 a. m.
A few minutes drive took him to the parched 10-acre lease where L. K. Batla, a 56-year-old cotton farmer, has waged a losing battle with mother nature for several years.
"In the past three years I've raised one bale of cotton and had one slight feed crop," Batla said. "I've done a little better on my other farm, which I own."
Batla's own farm, not within sight of the presidential party, is 145 acres near Wall, Tex., 12 miles southeast of San Angelo.
"I raised a little out there in 1955 and I did make some crops," Batla said. "But I'm not making a living by any means."

Pampa Youth In Worthless Check Charge Is Released

A sixteen-year-old boy was released in the custody of his parents and his case is being held in abeyance until he reaches the age of 17, which will be next month. At that time the youth may either enter the service, or his case will be brought up for a thorough hearing.
The boy was being held for forgery in connection with the passing of several worthless checks. His parents, however, made restitution for the checks, and Judge Bruce L. Parker, in view of the fact that this was the boy's second offense, and that he is within a few weeks of service age, decided to pit the case off and give the boy a chance to enlist in military service.
Were the boy to be tried and given any kind of a conviction now, Parker remarked, it would narrow his chances of being accepted into the service since he would have an unclean record.
In this case the boy will be given the chance to volunteer in the service of his choosing, and if he does not, the case will be brought up again, and definite action taken.
The boy was arrested last week in connection with the forging of several checks. He had, at that time, expressed no remorse over his actions whatsoever, and even remarked that he did not care what the judge did with him. The youth had been picked up before on a similar charge.
In this case his parents paid the amount of the checks and the boy was released in their custody until his 17th birthday.

Report Five Collisions On Week End

A total of five collisions were reported over the week end up until early this morning by the police department.
The first collision took place at approximately 9:25 a. m. Saturday on N. Ballard at a point 100 feet south of Kingsmill, when a 1955 Chevrolet driven by A. G. Garcia of Pampa collided with a 1953 Dodge driven by Kenneth L. Kirkland of Canyon. There was an estimated $25 damage to the Chevrolet with none reported on the Dodge.
The second collision reported Saturday occurred at 11:30 a. m. on N. Cuyler, 70 feet north of Foster, when a 1950 Buick driven by Zehna E. Dougherty of Pampa collided with a 1953 Pontiac driven by Jewell Stone Greer of 321 Perry. Damage was estimated at $75 for the Buick and $35 for the Pontiac.
Another collision was reported at 5:25 p. m. on S. Somerville where a 1955 Mercury driven by Beverly J. Wilburn of 202 W. Tuke collided with a 1948 Mercury driven by Carter Martin of 818 N. Frost inflicting $45 damages on the Mercury.
Early this morning a collision was reported at the intersection of Wilkison and Decatur when a 1954 Ford driven by Floyd Kenneth Byers of 1547 Bell collided with a 1950 Studebaker driven by Don Lee Louton of 615 N. Faulkner. Damages were estimated at $300 for the Ford and $200 for the Studebaker.
The last accident reported early this morning involved three cars and took place at the intersection of Hobart and Wilks.
A 1949 Dodge pick-up driven by Dan McDonald of 729 S. Gray hit a 1954 Oldsmobile driven by Shirley Stinnett Dumas of 125 N. Sumner, knocking the Oldsmobile into a 1947 Chevrolet driven by Horace Rile Ridings of 418 Nalda.
Damages in this one were estimated at $200 for the Chevrolet, $700 for the Oldsmobile, and $250 for the pick-up.

Stolen Car Is Found By Owner

A '41 Chevrolet, owned by Donald Holland, 632 E. Craven, was reported to have been stolen sometime between midnight Saturday and 1 p. m. yesterday, according to local police.
By the time all officers in the area were alerted to be watching for the car, it had been found on Highway 152 by the owner.

Threats Of Execution Set Off New Red Terror Reign

By CHARLES W. RIDLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA (UP) — A new Red reign of terror was threatened in Hungary today where workers faced death by execution for opposing the Communist regime.
A ruthless move that virtually abolished the right to strike, the Janos Kadar regime threatened rebellious workers with summary death sentences and set up kangaroo courts to help military tribunals mete out swift "justice."
The drastic measures went into force in an additional clause added to the martial law decree issued last month. It was clearly aimed at warding off the threat of a new "total strike." In the wake of the shooting of unarmed workers by Communist Hungarian militiamen in Budapest last Friday.
Reports reaching Vienna indicated workers at Budapest's Csepel Island Iron and steel complex were on the verge of calling a new strike when the decree was published.
It was not likely any worker leader would now invite certain death by calling for a nationwide work stoppage. But the mood of the workers was such that the likelihood of a "spontaneous" national slowdown could not be ruled out.
The decree was seen as a desperate attempt by the puppet Kadar regime to break the back of organized labor resistance which has forced Hungary into economic chaos.
Mrs. Simonton has been out of town for the past three months and the exact time of the break in is not known.
Investigating officers reported that entry to the house was obtained by breaking a window in the basement. The contents of the house were ransacked but according to the son, nothing was missing.
The break in at a small house used for ceramics which is located behind the residence of Mrs. G. M. Walker, 821 N. Hobart, was reported at 7:36 last night.
Officers reported that apparently nothing had been taken but that one item was broken.

Commerce Heads In Meeting Today

There was to be a meeting this afternoon of the Board of Directors of the chamber of commerce at which time discussion on the program of work for the coming year will be discussed, and reports from the various committees heard and approved.
Reports from the committees will involve activities undertaken in the past few weeks as well as the appointment of new committee chairmen, which will be read for the board's approval.

Two Breakins Reported

A break in at the residence of Mrs. C. C. Simonton, 614 Carr, was reported to the police department at 10:05 yesterday morning by her son, E. A. Simonton, 112 S. Nelson.

Outlawed Irish Army Leaders Go To Prison

DUBLIN, Ireland (UP) — Police outlawed the Irish Republican Army today, a government spokesman announced.
Earlier police had reported the arrests of five men they described as "heads of the Irish Republican Army."
The men were taken to Bride-well Prison to join 14 others arrested since the new outbreak of border violence erupted last December. The 14 are charged with offenses against the state, including membership in an illegal organization.
The government spokesman said the five men were holding a secret session in a downtown hotel when police raiders broke in early this morning. The men were identified as Sean Cronin, Laurence Grogan, Charles Murphy, Thomas McGahan and Thomas McCurtain.
They were hustled off to Bride-well under heavy guard and will be charged in court Tuesday, the spokesman said.
Premier John A. Costello and minister of external affairs, Liam Cosgrave, repeatedly had warned that armed attacks on Northern Ireland must end or the raiders would have to bear the consequences.
Costello ordered Irish police and troops to the border Dec. 1 in an attempt to halt the hands of armed raiders crossing into Northern Ireland to attack British military and other installations.
The action came in the wake of two raids on explosive dumps in the republic. Sources said police and government officials feared members of the IRA were re-stocking their depleted army in preparation for further attacks against Northern Ireland.

Communists Suffer Defeat In France

PARIS (UP) — Communists in France's strongest Communist district suffered heavy defeat in their first elections since the Hungarian revolt, results of a National Assembly bi-election showed today.
Voters in the largest single electoral district in France went to the polls Sunday to elect a successor to Radical lower house member Vincent de Moro - Giarferri, who died in November.
The first official count of the votes gave a wide majority to Julien Tardieu, 60-year-old company administrator and municipal counselor, running as an independent.
He received 101,293 votes, compared to only 62,787 for Communist candidate Lucien Monjaux, although the Left Bank district comprising 547,690 voters normally swings heavily to the Communist candidate in any election.
Political observers interpreted the results as indication that French Communists have become bitterly disillusioned by Russia's intervention in the Hungarian revolt.
It also indicated popular support of Premier Guy Mollet's controversial Algerian policy.
Tardieu embodied Mollet's firm policy in approved Algeria, although he opposed the socialist leader's economic policy.

Killer Placed On FBI List

WASHINGTON (UP) — The FBI Monday placed Alfred James White, alias "The Killer," on its list of 10 "most wanted fugitives."
White, 33, has been sought since he fled from West Hamlin, W.Va., in June, 1954, to escape prosecution for firing at a state police officer during an attempted lumber yard robbery.
The FBI said White, who also uses aliases of Alfred White and Al Whiting, is a master safe-cracker and daring gunman with a police record dating back to 1922. It includes convictions for auto theft and bank robbery, and one jail break.
White was identified as one of two robbers who tried to hold up the West Hamlin lumber yard.
The FBI said White, flushed from a lumber shed, opened fire on an officer and then escaped by diving fully clad into a nearby river and swimming 400 yards downstream.
Born in Mt. Sterling, Ohio, White was described as 5 feet, 8 1/2 inches tall, 165 to 170 pounds with brown hair and eyes, an oblique scar in the center of his forehead, a mole on the right side of his face, and scars on his fingers.

Hungarians Admit Holding American

BUDAPEST (UP) — The Communist-Hungarian government today admitted American free-lance photographer Georgette Dickey Meyer-Chapelle is under arrest in Hungary.
Mrs. Meyer-Chapelle, about 35, was shooting pictures for the International Rescue committee.
Thelegation-spokesman said American officials had made frequent representations to the Janos Kadar regime since Mrs. Meyer-Chapelle vanished.
Friends said she crossed into Hungary without a visa in an attempt to reach Budapest. It is believed she never reached the Hungarian capital but was picked up by Hungarian or Soviet security forces.
Mrs. Meyer-Chapelle had arrived in Vienna Nov. 18.

Cars, Trucks Run Better With Culberson Tune Ups

RIGHT! AT CULBERSON CHEVROLET IT'S GOT TO BE RIGHT — Bill Oler (left) uses the Sun Testing Machine to check the engine of this car, and Hank Roberson makes an adjustment on the engine as they Tune Up this automobile for better, smoother, more economical motoring. Culberson Chevrolet, 212 N. Ballard, MO 4-4666, has teamed with General Motors in the continuing training program by which experienced service men study up-to-the-minute methods for auto service. Culberson then backs up this training with the most modern equipment, machines, genuine Chevrolet parts, and recommended tools to help you keep your car or truck in the best operating condition. This program is another Culberson step to keep improving automotive service for all makes and models of cars. Drive in today, 212 N. Ballard.

The engine Tune-Up has become increasingly important to the modern automotive engine with its vastly improved power and performance. Because it is so important, Culberson Chevrolet, 212 N. Ballard, MO 4-4666, takes special steps to provide precision Tune-Ups for best engine performance. With the higher compression ratios, improved electrical systems and other advances in design, today's engines have become more sensitive to usage and operative conditions. All of these factors have a decided effect on power and performance.

Correct All Trouble
Since the modern engine is admittedly more temperamental and sensitive to adjustment, some means must be devised to put back into the engine the standard of performance and economy of which it is capable. It is seldom advisable to attempt an improvement in automobile engine performance by correcting only one or two items. You normally will save time and achieve lasting results by having Culberson's service department perform ALL adjustments affecting power, performance and economy.

Culberson Chevrolet does the Tune-Up in two parts. The first part consists of visual and mechanical checks and adjustments. The second part consists of an instrument check out with one of the modern, compact Sun units available for this purpose at Culberson Chevrolet.

Skilled Mechanics
You will save — on money and in driving pleasure — by having one of the Culberson Chevrolet Tune-Up mechanics do a scientific Tune-Up on your car or truck. Tune-Up mechanics are Hank Roberson, Henry Kolb, Bill Oler, Keith Russell and Joe Cook.

Ready to help you are these mechanics and others like Archie Bullard, Floyd Pyeatt, S. W. Daugherty, John Wheelchel — all trained, experienced men; and Perry Franklin, a skilled mechanic and service manager.

Best Equipment
To save time and your bill — they use Culberson equipment like the Sun Distributor, Generator and Motor Testing machines; the Bear Frame Straightening Machine; the Hunter Wheel Balancer; the Merrill Electronic Balancer; the Elam True Buff Tire Truer; plus all tools recommended by car manufacturers.

Another Culberson Chevrolet — and General Motors policy saves for you in your car service. Culberson actively participates in the GM auto maintenance training program. For instance, at Oklahoma City-GM has class rooms and work shops equipped to provide the finest facilities for improving and extending the skills of experienced service men.

Culberson mechanics regularly get the latest in service aids and skills from expert teachers. At the training center they familiarize themselves with the newest tools, and they study the newest methods of car maintenance and repair.

Culberson recognizes that even skilled mechanics need education on the advanced engineering of modern cars and on the use of the newest tools and techniques.

New Auto Features
For instance: Chevrolet offers new and smoother automatic transmission, better safety power brakes and V-8 engines stepped up in thrust by increased compression ratios. Culberson mechanics received special instruction in these features to service your car better.

Chevrolet offers better, safer, power steering, front end suspension and the new box frame. Culberson's John Wheelchel has studied and improvements and thereby can provide better service for your car.

Culberson's offers the best trained body men, Jim Seegid and Rusty Golden, to give you the best in body and fender repair, glass replacement and refinishing of the new Chevrolet Lucite Paint, as well as the conventional type paint.

Has To Be Right
Culberson's Glenn Kenemer is your specialist in lubrication. Alvis Sanders has been trained to polish or porcelainize your car and bring out the true color again.

"The good job we do for our customers is fundamental to all the progress we have ever made or can ever hope to make." That statement summarizes Culberson's insistence on doing the job right.

Drive in to Culberson's Chevrolet, 212 N. Ballard, MO 4-4666. Have your car adjusted, repaired, over-hauled by only skilled, experienced mechanics and technicians. Learn how quickly and economically they can make your car run like new.

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet.
Anthony Eden, victim of his own invasion of the Suez Canal zone, resigned as prime minister of Great Britain. He was succeeded by his friend Harold Macmillan, who had served him as chancellor of the exchequer and who supported his Suez policy in a split cabinet.
President Eisenhower sought quick congressional approval of his plan — the Eisenhower Doctrine — to use American forces in event of armed Communist aggression against a Middle Eastern country.
Soviet Russia and its puppet leaders in Eastern Europe hardened their policy in an attempt to stop the trend toward "independent Communism."
Eden's resignation after a distinguished parliamentary career of more than 30 years was a personal tragedy. He cited bad health as the reason. But there was no doubt that it also was due to the British-French attack on Suez. This action angered President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It brought British-American relations to the lowest point in many years. It brought the condemnation of the United Nations. It split the British cabinet. In addition, the military operation itself was a failure. The British-French hope of unseating President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt backfired. Nasser was strengthened, not weakened. The closing of the canal when Nasser scuttled ships in it was a severe blow to British economy.

Chinese Churchwoman Concocts Sweet And Sour Shrimp Delicacy

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
The Chinese of New Orleans like shrimp just as well as everyone else in that town. For example the ladies of the Chinese Presbyterian Mission turn out some fine examples of shrimp cookery at their monthly suppers served in the ultra-modern Mission House on Bienville Street.

This recipe for sweet and sour shrimp comes from Mrs. Helen Fong Howe, of the Chinese Mission. She generously made it for us in her own home kitchen and served some of it to her son before he left for kindergarten.

Chopped garlic flew. She likes to use them as cooking utensils and stirred everything with them, even the sizzling shrimp in the deep fryer. This sweet and sour affair is an unusually attractive dish — amber sauce full of reds, greens and yellows, over golden-brown deep-fried shrimp.

SWEET AND SOUR SHRIMP
(Serves 6-8)
Two pounds fully peeled, deveined, raw-frozen shrimp — medium size; 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup water.
Defrost the shrimp. Slice each through the back and spread out "butterfly" fashion. Dip in batter and fry in deep hot fat (400 degrees F.) to a golden brown. Place in a serving dish and cover with sweet and sour sauce.

SWEET AND SOUR SAUCE
One and one-half cups vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon soy sauce, 2-3 cup canned pineapple wedges, 2 medium red-ripe tomatoes, cubed; 3 small sweet pickles, sliced (or use 1 tablespoon sweet pickle relish); 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons water.
Heat vinegar; add sugar, soy sauce, pineapple wedges. Simmer 1 minute. Add tomatoes, pickle slices or relish and return to a boil. Dissolve cornstarch in water and gradually add to vinegar mixture. Cook 1/2 minute or just until sauce becomes glossy and smooth. Pour sauce over fried shrimp and serve immediately with fluffy rice.

Ruth Millett
No wonder it's hard for a woman to understand a man.
He'll insist he is too tired to go to a movie or have the Browns over for an evening of bridge and then putter around in his workshop until after midnight.
He'll claim he can't afford a new suit when he really needs one and then spend twice the cost of a suit on a gun or trading the old outboard motor for a new one.
He'll never bother to put anything where it belongs and then blame his wife when he can't find one of his possessions.
With a straight face, he'll tell his wife how hard his secretary works and how he doesn't know what he would do if she quit. At the same time, the wife puts in twice as many hours a week at the secretary and relieves him of a lot more decisions and responsibilities, and everything she does is taken for granted.
He complains that his wife feeds him too well every time he steps on the bathroom scales. But if she gives him a dinner of lean meat and salad he is raiding the refrigerator within an hour after he leaves the dinner table.
He'll whistle when he sees the bill for the hat his wife picked out for herself but if she takes him with her to shop he'll grandly insist on her getting whatever looks best, without regard of the price tag.
He'll take off breezily in the evening for any kind of meeting or masculine get-together but look like a lost soul if his wife leaves him alone in the evening for any reason at all.
He'll make fun of women's clubs even though he belongs to half a dozen men's organizations.
Men claim women are inconsistent, but could they possibly be any more inconsistent than men?

Gulf Fishermen Report Good Catches

Ample fish supplies will be on the market this month and February. In fact, stocks of frozen ocean perch filets are so large that they are on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's January plentiful foods list in every part of the country. For the past two months, cold-storage holdings of ocean perch filets have established successive all-time record highs. Quality of the fish is exceptionally good this year.

Research shows the frozen fish filets rate high with homemakers because they are so easily prepared and there is no waste to them. Frozen filets of haddock are almost as plentiful as ocean perch. Gulf coast fishermen report good catches of catfish, mullet, groupers, red snapper, sea trout, crabs, oysters and shrimp.

Faith Class Meets With Mrs. Lynch

The Faith Class, Central Baptist Church, held its January party recently in the home of Mrs. Floyd Lynch, 1000 E. Jordan. Mrs. Gerald Vaughn, president, led the meeting. The devotionals were presented by Mrs. Kenneth Osborn. Refreshments of cookies, punch, and coffee were served. Present were Misses James Lancaster, Jack Cullison, Wayne Cobb, Gerald Vaughn, Bill Farnsworth, Virginia Greer, George Long, L. C. Bevel, N. R. Owe, H. J. Crawford, Norman Sublett, Kenneth Osborn, Charles Carter, Betty King, Carole Tollison and Floyd Lynch.

Theta Rho Girls To Install New Officers

The Theta Rho Girls will have their semi-annual installation of officers Jan. 15 at 7 p.m. in the IOOF Hall, 210 W. Brown. New members, which have been admitted membership, are Misses Sandra Lawley, Beverly Albritten, Frances Kay Wilcox, Betty Shryock, Sue Kirkpatrick, Gayle Mapples, Vicki Calvert, Lavenna Follis, Jeannie Lee, Lynda Boyd, Linda Hyatt, Jerry Hoyt, Dianna Nail, Jeanette Nail, Brenda Stevens, Sallie May Parsley, and Nancy Jean Frye. Rebekahs recently initiated are Misses Myrtle Johnson, Virginia Beard, and Bertha Chambers.

Make Friends Manners

If you are giving a buffet supper be sure to plan to have enough food so that guests can go back for "seconds." Many of your women guests won't be most of your men guests probably will. At a buffet meal these are usually only a few dishes served, so it is important that there be plenty of each thing offered.

So let's rejoice in Mrs. L.'s "ungratefulness" to her mother. Sooner or later, she'll know she has more to offer. Jane and Reuben than her mother. The minute she's sure of this, she'll be able to react her authority without hurting anyone. That is the minute to wait for, not in discouragement but in faith.

A child displaced by a baby will solve the strain of new adjustments by reverting to thumb-sucking. Like Mrs. L., you and I may solve the strain of a divorce's new adjustment by reverting to childish dependence on other people. Our solution, like the thumb-sucking child's, is only prolonged if we're made ashamed of it.

In using canned foods, spice them with a little imagination. Canned peas, for instance, taste better with the addition of onions and butter.

Miss Beverly Brown Honored With Party

LEFORS (Special) — Miss Beverly Brown was honored with a party on her 11th birthday in the Lefors Civic Center. Hostesses were Mrs. Bob Brown, Brenda Brown, Margie Nichols, and Mrs. A. D. Baker. Party games were played and refreshments of cake, sherbet, nuts and mints were served. Guests were Kenneth Minter, Jeanne Atkinson, Richard Bull, Bill Nichols, Danny Hill, Joy Howard, Shireen Cable, Diana Gragg, Joyce Jernigan, Jimmy Hill, Freddie and Kay Lynn Uphaw.

YOUNG IDEAS
from Polly Ponder

Q: This is my first year for formal dances and I would like to look my best. Could you give me any ideas?

A: Here are a few hints you might find helpful:
When you're wearing a gown that shows your shoulders and your skin is a bit spotty... use a tinted liquid foundation to conceal those blemishes. Apply it evenly from hairline to neckline and set it with a light pat of dusting powder.

Wear a brighter darker lipstick than you do during the day because electric lights wash out color. Touch perfume behind your ears in the hollow of your neck and in the crooks of your arms.

If you have more darts than dresses, you can change a simple basic gown by making a detachable net overskirt gathered to a three inch ribbon with streamers that tie in the back. Several of these in different colors will add glamour to your wardrobe.

Not Conservatives

The conservative, politically speaking, is a strange creature.

By his very name, we judge he is seeking to conserve something. But, in view of current political shenanigans, it becomes a debatable point if the true conservative really wishes to conserve the present political debacle. And if he is not anxious to conserve what we have at present, the use of the term conservative, in his connection, is a misnomer.

We have a great affection for those who today call themselves conservatives. But our affection stems from the fact that few who call themselves conservatives, actually are conservative.

What the true conservative is getting at is a conservation of his country and his government as he thinks they ought to be, not as they are. In his mind's eye is the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the fundamental principles of liberty and integrity. But these things have long been breached and to a large measure obrogated.

So, in strict usage, the so-called conservative is a radical who is aiming to upset the status quo for a re-institution of moral and spiritual truths. And the only real conservative today is yesterday's socialist who has seen his collectivized schemes fulfilled and now wishes to keep them in force. He it is who wants to conserve the status quo, since what we have is socialism, writ large across the face of our original intentions and obliterating the lofty aims and purposes thereof.

Perhaps in the new year we will see a clarification of political terminology. Those who believe in the Constitution with its Bill of Rights will be self-identified as the new radicals seeking to advance to the state of human liberty originally vouchsafed to all Americans. And the conservative, as such, will contain the present political hegemony, dedicated to confiscatory income taxes, social security, a soil bank, federal aid to education and a thousand other schemes of wealth sharing.

It is ever thus.

Each generation produces both its revolutionary and its reactionary forces. The revolutionists wish to overthrow the existing order for one they deem more worthy. The reactionaries seek to conserve the existing order.

And it must be, that with the passage of time, the radical element, if successful, becomes tomorrow's conservative element, as the revolutionary trends are entrenched and made a part of the existing order.

Thus, today, from the standpoint of true definition, the present conservatives wish to conserve all the socialist and progressive ideas put into law during the preceding two score years and ten. Thus, if we wish accuracy in our terminology we must call the communist, the socialist, the New Dealer, the pragmatist and the allegedly progressive educator, all conservatives and reactionaries.

And the radicals must be defined as the Constitutionists, the Bill of Rightists, the libertarians and those who wish to fight communism and socialism with all their power.

With collectivism largely in the saddle, it will take the new radical, nee conservative, to do the job.

It is time for the current crop of radicals to drop the name conservative.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

There is an immense amount of the confusion about blood groups and what they mean. This is not at all astonishing since the subject is a complicated one; there are many different blood groups and their names are meaningless.

One cannot tell by looking at a person what his blood type is. Neither does the particular blood type or group which a person carries have any direct bearing on general health or chances for a long life.

All of us have blood belonging to one of four major classifications: O, A, B and AB. The O and A types are the more common among us. Forty-five per cent of us have O blood and 45 per cent A blood. This leaves only eight out of 100 people with B blood and four of 100 who have AB blood.

THREE BLOOD GROUPS are of importance primarily when we are to receive or give a blood transfusion. The reason is that, if a person with one of these types of blood receives blood from a person with a different type it may cause a serious reaction, commonly known as a "transfusion reaction." Anyone who is to receive a transfusion should have his or her blood type determined before he gets it. The donor's blood type should also be known.

It is an interesting fact that group O blood does not usually produce harm in a transfusion, even when given to a person with a different blood group. For this reason a person with O type blood is sometimes called a "universal donor."

transfusion in order to make doubly sure of avoiding a hazardous reaction.

The other blood type which is of particular interest today apparently has no relation to the groups just mentioned, but is commonly referred to as the Rh factor. This was discovered much later than the four groups mentioned. With concentrated study, it has been found to consist of several sub-types. It is important, both from the standpoint of blood transfusion and from the standpoint of childbirth, and therefore it is commonly tested for today.

BID FOR A SMILE

A teacher who had been hailed into court charged with picking a man's pocket. The complaint was for a pair of shoes and a hat. The teacher was not the one who stole the shoes. The judge, faced with the lack of evidence, was forced to discharge the alleged pickpocket. When the man stood there, as if he didn't comprehend the meaning of the judge's words, the judge repeated the words which dismissed him. Judge — All right, you're free to go. You may leave. You are judged not guilty. Go on. Man — Does that mean that I can steal a watch?

Teachers Flunk Simple Arithmetic Problems

In the last issue I was quoting from an article in "The Freeman" magazine showing the schools are not giving much instruction in arithmetic.

The article was written by Henry E. Belden, Manager of the Southern California-Arizona Branch of The Union Central Life Insurance Co. He writes:

"In June 1956 the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J. published a booklet, Problems in Mathematical Education. This report opens with a quotation from the New York Times of June 30, 1955:

"At the grassroots of our society, in the schools where our young people are being trained for their responsibilities tomorrow, there are dry rot and decay which threaten not only the bright economic prospects of 20 years but even our ability to remain strong and defend ourselves. We need scientists, mathematicians, and engineers as never before, yet many teen-agers with the ability to assume such roles are simply not being given a chance to get the essential training. The statistics make plain that great mistakes have been made in thousands of communities throughout our land."

The report continues: "This is a serious indictment. It charges that the schools are falling down on an important part of their job, that at the very time we are increasingly dependent on competence in mathematics, many capable youngsters are denied the training they need. Recent studies tend to fortify this conclusion. Complaints from businessmen emphasize that even the most elementary skill, facility in ordinary arithmetic, is in short supply."

"The report of the Educational Testing Service then takes up the question of 'The Learner.' In this section we find: 'According to a recent national survey of high school seniors, 12 per cent of them had never taken any algebra or geometry; 26 per cent had quit studying mathematics after only one year, and another 30 per cent had dropped the subject by the end of the second year...6 per cent of the brighter seniors (the top 30 per cent of mental ability) do not give either algebra or geometry a try and another 41 per cent never get beyond the elementary phases.' 'The section of the report headed 'The Teacher' is so important that I quote from it at some length: 'One study showed that of 211 prospective elementary school teachers...nearly 130 had a long standing hatred of arithmetic. This state of affairs may not be unrelated to a lack of ordinary competence with numbers. A random sample of 100 dates for elementary school positions faced this question on an examination: 'The height of a letter in a certain size of print is 3/4 inch. If the following are the heights (in inches) of this letter in other sizes of print, which one is the next larger size? (a) 5/16 (b) 1/4 (c) 3/16 (d) 1/2 (e) 7/16' Half of the 370 candidates picked a wrong answer. 'There have been numerous studies of teacher competence in arithmetic. If they can be believed, it seems pretty clear that many elementary school teachers have a hard time keeping even half a jump ahead of their pupils. 'Elementary teachers, for the most part, according to one observer who has taught them, "are ignorant of the mathematical basis of arithmetic; high school teachers assigned to teach mathematics fall in this category also." 'This ignorance is scarcely surprising, for little knowledge of mathematics is expected, even officially, of prospective school teachers. In the majority of cases an individual with ambition to teach in an elementary school matriculate at a teachers' college without showing any high school mathematics on his record. He can graduate without studying any college mathematics. And in this condition, he can meet the requirements of most states for a certificate to teach arithmetic. The certification requirements for high school math teachers are only a little stiffer: nearly one-third of the states will license them even though they have had no college mathematics at all, and the average requirement for all states is only 10 semester hours. 'In the absence of data, let us accept the assumption that a teacher who has a solid understanding of mathematics himself is more likely than not to develop a similar understanding in his pupils. Where does such an assumption take us? In a vicious circle, apparently—and in reverse—for it has been shown that "solid understanding" frequently absent in teachers. Future teachers pass through the elementary schools learning to despise mathematics. They drop it in high school as early as possible. They avoid it in teachers' colleges because it is not required. They return to the elementary school to teach a new generation to detest it."

Star in Lower Grades "A great majority of the recent efforts to combat the mathematical manpower shortage have been directed at the collegiate level. While such activity is good, the problem will be solved only if attention is directed to mathematical training at every level of education, starting at the very lowest grades. The college or university student who decides to pursue a career in science or mathematics will find he is unable to follow through with the idea, if he has not received and absorbed adequate primary and secondary school mathematics. Also, there is low ratio of probability that a worth-while or serious scientific or mathematical desire if his interest has not been aroused at the lower academic level. 'Parents should demand that their children receive adequate drill in addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division and that old-fashioned teaching techniques be returned to usage in the instruction of these important elementary subjects."

NEW YORK — I heard a sermon on hope lately which left me cold because you can't win a crusade if you can't even mount a crusade.

Bracken Lee of Utah, has great courage and I assume that he has faith in his own case against the income tax. But he has no forum. He can't catch the public ear, and the people, meaning all the people, ought to rally to him, ignore him because they don't care.

There is a small cult of patriots who oppose this tax. They include Corinne Griffith, a professional beauty of the silent films and still a beauty, who spends a good deal of her own money and her time and energy barnstorming around the country, clamoring for absolute repeal of Sixteenth Amendment.

There are many unrecognized dangers in our midst these days which nobody can crusade against because they are taboos. There have been martyrs to faith in ages past who were stoned and scourged and driven forth to live in halcyon skins in caves. But to suffer and die for God is not exactly the same as to endure abuse and horrible injustice for a mere political cause.

Dickens was a great crusader, but he had a luxurious time of it and public sympathy went with him in his attacks on the British adequate primary and secondary school mathematics. Also, there is low ratio of probability that a worth-while or serious scientific or mathematical desire if his interest has not been aroused at the lower academic level.

NEW YORK — I heard a sermon on hope lately which left me cold because you can't win a crusade if you can't even mount a crusade. He can't catch the public ear, and the people, meaning all the people, ought to rally to him, ignore him because they don't care. And almost unanimously, they never heard of him. That may apply to you, too, so I am not conceding when I identify Lee as the ex-governor of his state who staked his political existence on a moral issue, and lost. I imagine that he is finished, too.

They include Corinne Griffith, a professional beauty of the silent films and still a beauty, who spends a good deal of her own money and her time and energy barnstorming around the country, clamoring for absolute repeal of Sixteenth Amendment. But now even Gailmore is coming back. He addressed a group of Rabbis a few weeks ago who seemed to have forgotten that he once repudiated their religion for pieces of silver from the American Broadcasting Company and brought disgrace on his cloth by his crimes.

Not so long ago a friend counseled me to forget Communism as a personal issue involving individuals. To oppose Communism of itself was safe if it were done in a general way. Tito, I gather, is still a rat, being overseas. But Americans who were "misted" when they were in college under Roosevelt are extremely sensitive and many of them now occupy positions in which they can hurt crusaders who reveal the errors of their troubled youth. My own youth was not too comfortable either, but I never thought of turning against my country and conspiring with enemies to destroy the United States.

There are many crusades which I would like to wage, but the forums are closing one by one. I cannot believe that this function of journalism has been totally performed. Now and again I turn to an old book by St. Bent, a historic reprobic, once of the Kansas City Star, entitled "Newspaper Crusaders," and hope rekindles. I may not be here when that day comes, but for my country's sake, I hope it is not too long delayed.

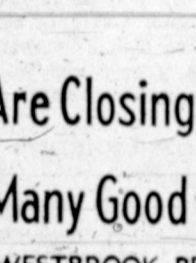

Not long ago I received a letter from a friend of mine who is an actuary. He had just attended the Annual Meeting of the Society of Actuaries where, as he wrote me, he found that "some of the young fellows... were ready to be courageous... but they could not tell what they wanted to be courageous about."

Well, there, I think, lies the great hope for the future of America. Not so many years ago youth seemed pretty sure as to what it wanted to be courageous about — it would "do or die" to promote "liberalism" or even undisguised Socialism. If youth is not so cocksure now that "liberalism" or Socialism is worth "doing or dying" for, that is certainly a sign of progress. It is now up to us who believe in freedom under God to help give these young fellows an ideal worthy of their courage. If we can succeed in doing this, America will have a new birth of freedom which will enable her to throw off the shackles of collectivism that now threaten to destroy her.

Eisenhower Has Not Waited For Congressional Approval

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has not waited for Congressional approval of his new Middle East policy to take the offensive against the Moscow-Cairo Axis, and to check Communist penetration of that area.

In several seemingly unrelated but concerted and deliberate thrusts, he has acted to isolate Egypt from her Arabian Allies, and to damage Russia before the bar of world opinion. He has also stepped up the strategy of weakening the satellites ties with Moscow, especially in the economic field.

His aggressive course is based on diplomatic and newspaper dispatches. They report that the Polish and Hungarian revolts are symptomatic of distrust and discontent in all the puppet countries and within the Soviet itself. They inform Ike that Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser, although a hero to Arabian masses, has become extremely unpopular with his rulers.

King Saud's visit to the White House late this month furnishes an illuminating revelation of "behind-the-scenes" turbulence in the Middle East, and of Ike's undercover operations. Nasser's nominal ally would not have accepted the invitation at this time, if he were in full accord with the Egyptian dictator.

Together with other Arabian rulers, King Saud will suffer severe financial losses from the blockade of the Suez Canal. His income from oil amounts to $258,100,000 a year. Iraq derives $169,200,000 annually from the same source, while Iran straggles down, $98,000,000 from only partial operation of the wells and refinery.

The total annual income enjoyed by the oil-producing area amounts to $1 billion a year. Nor does this figure include several hundred million paid out for wages, purchases and internal improvements connected with petroleum production.

These governments have not yet felt the financial pinch because payments of oil royalties lag about six months behind delivery. But King Saud and his royal brethren will be running short of funds within a few months. They will blame Nasser if his intrigues prevent a prompt opening of the waterway.

Other influential visitor on the White House calendar is Foreign Minister Charles Malik of Lebanon, a former Ambassador here, he was extremely popular in official and social circles. He has shown scant sympathy with Nasser's hate and defiance of the West.

According to advance diplomatic advices, King Saud and Malik favor the new Eisenhower Middle East policy. In fact, they may tell Ike that, if the United States will go further by joining the Baghdad Pact, they will become members of the alliance against Russia. Should they sign up, it would split the Egyptian coalition down the middle.

Other Eisenhower moves are designed to detach the most powerful Arab states from Nasser. Ike has strengthened himself in this area by his continued chilliness toward Britain, France and Israel because of their surprise attack on Egypt. While still refusing to give audience to Prime Minister Eden, he will welcome King Saud and Malik.

He has insisted that the Israelis withdraw from the Gaza Strip, not believing that they should profit from aggression. Instead of showing his predecessor's partiality toward Tel Aviv, he regards Israel as only another nation to be involved in a general Middle East settlement.

As a result of this strategy, the last ditch anti-West coalition in the Middle East may be reduced to three of the weakest and shakeliest states — Egypt, Syria and Jordan. They will hardly provide a solid or dangerous beachhead for Russia in this turbulent sector.

Meanwhile, Washington is badgering and harassing Moscow at every turn. We have offered to sell food to hungry Poland. At our suggestion, the United Nations will censure Hungarian refugees on Communist barbarism in that country. And this intervention in satellite affairs forces the Kremlin to anger the world by reverting to Stalin's policy of naked terrorism and subjugation.

MUNICH (Delayed) — As brave as they are, the Hungarian refugees here have two fears: One is that they will be separated from the meager possessions with which they escaped. The other is that something will go wrong, and they will not reach the land of their dreams — America.

The refugees here at the Army's processing center hang on to their luggage — if it can be called that — with a passion akin to ferocity. One soon learns it is useless to try to help them with their bundles, even when they are burdened with children in their arms.

Any effort to assist them by carrying one of their packages is met by a look of alarm, and then a possessive clutching of the miserable little bundles. Most of refugees' possessions are done up in dirty brown paper, and twisted in paper sacks.

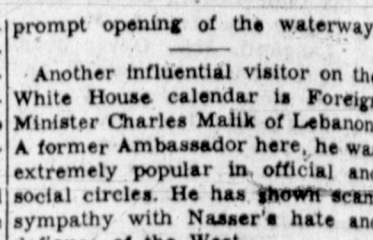

When they stop to rest they place the bundles between their feet and press them close. When they go to bed on their cots, the bundles are stowed away beneath them. I have never seen the inside of these shabby parcels, but a GI who had seen several of them rearranging their possessions, said they mostly contained letters, pictures, and what looked like brick-a-brack from a home.

One guesses that this fierce protection of the bundles is due to the fact that they contain the escapees' last remaining reminders of a homeland they will never see again. America is their dream, yes, but Hungary is their home.

The refugees pale, shake, and in some cases go into hysterics when the even flow of their processing is broken, and they are forced to drop out of a line — any kind of line. I first noticed this touching and pathetic fear when I met my first train from Vienna.

If a soldier halted a marching line of them, until another bus could pull up, the ones stopped would almost panic. One could see that they felt something had gone wrong, and they were to be allowed to go no farther.

Once he is on a bus, a refugee is almost impossible to remove. His fear of being turned back makes him as stubborn as a mule. And when one gets on a plane and has to be taken off because of a mix-up in loading, there is always a scene. The interpreter has to explain over and over again that the

I hope the archeologists of the future don't think those new forty-one and a half inch high bird cages were used for confining husbands or that our ornamental rhinestone eyeglasses were brassieres. Figuring out the bird cage how will the scientist of the future know that in the Helicopter Age in the middle of the twentieth century stylish birds were expected to fly up and down (bumping their heads on the tops of cages and waiving their feet on the bottoms), instead of just flopping through the air horizontally as they had in less enlightened centuries? If some tallish bird clods remain, the scientists may think the cages contained canned ostriches and they'll keep wondering how we moderns got the lid down. Actually, the only ostriches I ever saw in an American living room were stuffed ostriches in the silent screen version of "The Magnificent Ambersons" and they were put there by the director to indicate that a new rich family had had taste. His idea worked.

Harvesters, Shockers Face Week-End Action

Both the Pampa Harvesters and Shockers wait until the latter part of the week to see more basketball action this week.

The Harvesters have an open date Tuesday night and then they battle the tough Lubbock Westerners at Lubbock Friday night in another District 3-AAAA basketball contest. The Shockers' only game this week is slated for Saturday night when they play the Childress B squad.

Also on the Saturday night schedule are the Pampa Reapers and the Childress Junior High squad. The junior high battle starts at 6:30 with the other game to follow around 7:45 p. m.

The Harvesters go into the final month of play with a 3-1 district record and a mark of 16-1 for the season. Pampa holds down second place in the 3-AAAA race while Borger's Bulldogs are first with three wins in as many games.

Last week the Harvesters toppled Monterey, 87-49, while Borger beat the Westerners, 70-66. Palo Duro beat Plainview to gain a fourth-place tie with the latter while Amarillo's Sandies, who were idle over the week end, fell from second to third with a 2-1 mark. Lubbock with one victory in three games and Monterey with a 0-2 mark follow in that order.

Iowa May Be Big Roadblock In Top-Ranked Kansas' Way

By UNITED PRESS
Tonight could tell the tale on whether Kansas, the nation's No. 1 basketball team, will go through the season unbeaten.

Putting a perfect 12-0 record on the line, Kansas invades Ames, Iowa, tonight for a meeting with Iowa State. It was able to defeat by only 54-37 on a neutral court last month in the Big Seven pre-season tournament. If the Jayhawks can get by this one, they'll have only 10 games to go for a perfect season with another game against Iowa State (but this time in Kansas on Feb. 2) and two tilts with Nebraska looming as the chief obstacle. North Carolina, the nation's No. 2 team and the only other major college still on the unbeaten list, faces only nine more hurdles to the end of the regular season. And the Tar Heels' biggest test also may come this week, Tuesday night, when they visit arch-rival North Carolina State.

Local boxing coaches are putting the finishing touches on their fighters and tournament officials are getting everything in line for the big event of the boxing year. Winners of the meet here will compete in the regional tournament to be held in Amarillo on Jan. 29-30 and Feb. 1-2.

Teams from Pampa, Borger, Wellington, Guymon, Okla., Dodge City, Kans., and other surrounding cities are expected to enter. An estimated 75 boxers or more will take part in the annual tournament.

Weight-ins and registration will start at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the junior high gym and continue until 5 p. m. Pairings will be made following the final registration.

Six Pampa Optimist Club fighters boxed at Borger Saturday night for their final warm-up bouts before the tournaments begin. Wellington is also holding its district meet this week with the tournament to start Thursday. The number of entries will determine the length of the event. Borger's tournament will be held next week end.

Pampa victories went to James Snider, Clovis Shipp and Gary Wilhelm while Charles Snider, Kenneth Wood and Tommy Larson lost their bouts. Snider defeated Dale Christy of Cameron Junior College, Shipp defeated John Lyrie of Cameron and Wilhelm defeated Scooter Darden, former outstanding Borger boxer and now representing the Cameron Aggies.

Two of the three Pampa losers dropped bouts to Cameron fighters. Charles Snider lost by decision to Shelly Lynch, a 1956 state champion, Wood lost to Wayne Tedder and Lamar lost to Darrell Bledsoe of Guymon.

Four of the six Pampa fighters will fight in the open division while James Snider and Clovis Shipp will compete in the high school bracket.

Southwestern League Will Open With 10

The Pampa Oilers, by way of Community Baseball Association president G. F. Branson, notified the Southwestern League that it plans to operate this season. The action came yesterday at the Class B League's winter meeting in Clovis.

All ten teams voiced their intent of operating this season and seven of the clubs put up their league and national deposits of $1,500.

Nine of the 10 clubs were present at the meeting presided over by W. J. Green, the league president. El Paso representatives had car trouble and instructed Green to cast its vote by proxy.

The league voted to increase the number of veterans to six, a jump of two over last year. The circuit will also have seven limited-service players and three rookies on its roster. The roster of 16 men must be cut to that number by opening day of the season, April 23.

A 144-game schedule will be played this year with the season to finish on Sept. 12. The league will meet again on Feb. 10 at Midland to adopt one of two proposed schedules. The Oilers will probably open their schedule on the road for six days and then move back home for a three-day stint.

Directors also agreed that all clubs must make their national and league deposits by midnight of Feb. 1 or automatically drop out of league. Members of each club also made a gentlemen's agreement to go with the younger veterans and cut down the salaries this year, thus eliminating many of the older veterans.

Clubs represented were Pampa, San Angelo, Roswell, Clovis, Midland, Plainview, Ballinger, Carlsbad and Hobbs.

Texas Western In Border Lead

By UNITED PRESS
Texas Western puts its Border Conference basketball lead on the line this week, but it won't be until Saturday night.

The Miners (3-0) have won all of their loop contests at home, but now they go on the road against one of the two teams tied for second place, New Mexico A&M (2-1) in one of two league games set for the final night of the week.

In the other week-end, Hardin-Simmons (2-1) entertains West Texas (0-2) at Abilene. The only other league action finds Arizona State (0-1) at West Texas tonight. Only one non-conference game is on tap — Hardin-Simmons vs. Texas Tech at Abilene Tuesday night. Arizona is idle all week.

Rice, Texas Get Spoilers' Chances With Leading SMU

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer
Rice and Texas, the teams generally expected to challenge champion Southern Methodist for the Southwest Conference basketball crown, get their chances to spoil SMU's unblemished league record this week as the race hits its first big showdown stage.

While Coach Doc Hayes' SMU champions get their chance to all but sew up a stranglehold on their third straight title, there'll be some bitter-struggling going on elsewhere as Texas, Arkansas and possibly Rice strive to stave off elimination as title contenders.

Texas and Arkansas, along with Texas Christian, already have dropped two games and can ill afford to have another defeat tagged onto their records. They open the week's action against each other tonight at Fayetteville.

Rice, Baylor Meet
Rice and surprising Baylor, which have lost only one game, meet each other in Houston Saturday night and Rice may go into that tilt-tale game with a second loss after trying to subdue SMU in Dallas on Tuesday.

Baylor is expected to hand the Texas Aggies their fourth straight loop setback at Waco on Tuesday night to set the stage for the Houston showdown with Rice.

Texas, after facing the always formidable task of beating Arkansas at Fayetteville, must then tackle at SMU at Austin on Friday. It is conceivable, then, that Baylor team but SMU, idle TCU and either Rice or Baylor will have three losses by the time the week is out and before the race is even half over.

Jay Hebert's Crosby Win Is First Big Golf Triumph

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UP)—Jay Hebert, a Louisiana Frenchman who licked the Japs at Iwo Jima but never before could conquer the touring golf professionals, headed south of the border today with the first golfing victory of his career behind him and the position as the leading money winner of the young 1957 tour.

Hebert, 33, won the $15,000 Bing Crosby pro division of the $150,000 Bing Crosby pro and collected $2,500 for that. He and his partner, amateur Roger Kelly of Los Angeles, finished second in the pro-amateur division and he picked up $575 extra there. That gave him $3,375 for the weekend.

So that he headed for the California Open at Tijuana with winnings of $7,125.

Hebert shot a two-under-par 70 that gave him a 213 total for the 54-hole tournament.

That was two strokes better than the 215 posted by defending champion Dr. Cary Middlecoff, who posted an even par 72.

Middlecoff, who had won the pro division twice in a row, came in second and got $1,500 for that. The doctor was paired with amateur Ed Crosley of Los Angeles and San Francisco to win the pro-amateur division and picked up another $1,500 there—so he fared well. Their best-ball score was a record-shattering 157.

West Pro Stars Nip East, 19-10

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The West enjoyed revenge today after downing Eastern members of the National Football League, 19-10, in the seventh renewal of the pro bowl game in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

The victory put the West ahead 4-3 in the annual charity rivalry staged by the Los Angeles Publishers Assn.

Halfback Bert Rechichar of Baltimore sparked the victory booting four field goals, one of them a record-tying 52-yarder that put the West convincingly ahead in the final period. It tied an earlier boot by the East's Sam Baker in the third quarter that broke the pro bowl field goal record set by Lou Gross in 1956.

Rechichar was voted the outstanding back of the game by sports writers and the East's Ernie Stautner of Pittsburgh won the award as outstanding lineman.

Takes Early Lead
The West jumped into an early lead in the first period when linebacker Joe Schmidt of Detroit recovered a fumble by Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals on the East's 12. Rick Casares of the Chicago Bears punned 10 yards in two plays and Brown sneaked it through into the end zone from the one-half yard marker. Bobby Layne kicked the extra point.

The East tied the score in the second quarter on a 40-yard drive. New York's Frank Gifford fumbled into the end zone on an attempted plunge through the line but New York's Kyle Rote recovered. Sam Baker converted.

Rechichar kicked a 41-yard field goal in the last second of the second quarter. The East tied the score at 10-10 with a field goal by Baker in the third period.

Bianca Pass Interceptions
The West forged into a 13-11 lead by driving 32 yards in 11 plays to put Rechichar in position for a 44-yard boot and another field goal. The final two field goals came in the last quarter with a 44-yard boot which followed an 18-yard power run by Alan Ameche of the Baltimore Colts.

The clinching field goal, the 52-yard boot, came after Jack Christiansen of Detroit intercepted a Chuck Conery pass.

The losing coach, Jim Lee Howell of the New York Giants, blamed the loss on pass interceptions. "It was a terrific game. We gave up six passes on interceptions, however, and you can't win a game that way."

Tag Battle Featured On Mat Show
A tag team match with Dory Funk and Rip Rogers going against Leo (The Lion) Newman and Tokyo Joe is the main event feature on tonight's Pampa Sports Club wrestling show at the Top o' Texas Sportsman Club.

Matches will begin at 8:15 p. m. Tickets are on sale at Modern Pharmacy and will be placed on sale at the box office. Admission is $1.50 for ringside seats, $1.25 for reserved seats, 90 cents for adult general admission and 50 cents for children.

The semifinal attraction has John Tolias going against newcomer Don Curtis in the second bout. The main event is slated for two of three falls with a one-hour time limit. The semifinal match is 15 minutes shorter.

Rogers takes on Tokyo Joe in the 20-minute opening match.

Houston Eying Owens And Giese

HOUSTON (UP)—Jim Owens, assistant coach at Texas A&M College, was a strong contender today for the vacant coaching job at University of Houston.

A school source said Owens had a tentative date with Houston Athletic Director Harry Fouke for a campus visit sometime this week. Fouke talked to Owens twice during the NCAA meet in St. Louis.

Owens is a good boy and a pretty good prospect," the source said.

Houston grid mentor Bill Meek quit two weeks ago for a more attractive contract at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

South Carolina Football Coach Warren C. Giese is among some half-dozen candidates for Meek's job listed for campus interviews this week.

Fouke said he expects to weed out the three top choices among the applying coaches this week for second conferences next week. Giese was due in at 5 p. m. today from Columbia, S. C. He left the South Carolina city by plane early today and said he plans to "ask a lot of questions" about the vacant coaching job.

PRESIDENT

grass withered long ago because of lack of water.

Tell Drought Story

Braden, Batla and McGowan were ready to tell the President their personal drought situation. There are thousands of farmers like them throughout the southern Great Plains.

Mr. Eisenhower made the first of his automobile tour south-east of San Angelo at 39-year-old Wilbert B. Block's farm. His car, with the presidential flag on it, pulled up in Block's driveway.

Shake Hands With Eisenhower

Mr. and Mrs. Block and their three children—Diana Marie, 7, Michael, 6, and Jean Ann, 4—walked forward to meet Mr. Eisenhower and shake his hand.

Block showed the President about his farmyard, explaining that in eight years he had made only three crops.

"I am delighted to see you with your chin up," Mr. Eisenhower said. "Everybody will do his best."

"This looks like Nebraska in the 30s," Seaton, who was governor of Nebraska before he became secretary of interior, said.

Comparing notes with Block as a fellow farmer, Mr. Eisenhower said that on his own Gettysburg, Pa., acres, "we didn't get much rain all summer."

Trouble With Stock Water

Block told him that he was even having trouble providing drinking water for his stock, and Mr. Eisenhower said, "where I farm you get so much rain sometimes you can't get into the fields."

The President's stop at the Block farm took 20 minutes, leaving him little time to stop at other farms and ranches around San Angelo. He did stop at the edge of Earl Byrd's 17,000-acre ranch.

Byrd feeds his cattle 400 - 450 pounds of de-spined prickly pear a day. His herd was standing by a barbed wire fence along the highway and ranch hands were burning the needles off of prickly pear.

On the next ranch, other hands were singing the spines from prickly pear for a flock of Rambouillet sheep. Mr. Eisenhower had to pass up some scheduled stops.

At one point along his route, school children lined the road with a sign 60 feet long which said, "Fairview school children say 'howdy' to you, Mr. President."

He stopped and waved.

The last three miles of his return route to Goodfellow AFB was lined solidly with spectators.

He is expected to hear similar stories from farmers and ranchers near Woodward, Okla., and Clovis, N. M., later in the day.

Mr. Eisenhower's main purpose is to find out if drought-area residents are getting adequate help, and the kind of help that will encourage them to weather through until the rain comes. Benson and Seaton and their experts will be there to hear, too.

BOGART

Bogart was married four times, to Mary Phillips, Helen Mencken and actress Mayo Methot. He and Miss Methot were separated shortly after he met a green-eyed model from New York, Lauren Bacall, when they co-starred in "To Have and Have Not." Miss Methot sued Bogart for divorce May 10, 1945, and the actor and Miss Bacall were wed at the home of writer Louis Bromfield in Mansfield, Ohio, 11 days later.

Won Oscar in 1951

But Bogart, who won an Oscar in 1951 for his performance in "The African Queen," was not able to return to his top roles in motion pictures because he was unable to regain immediately the 50 pounds he lost during his hospital stay.

His doctors finally decided

A Record Program For Oil Industry

CHICAGO (UP)—The free world's oil industry will have to carry out a record $60 billion capital investment program over the next five years—with nearly half invested abroad—to meet the tremendous prospective demand for its products, a Texas Company official declared today.

A. N. Lilley, vice president and a director of Texaco, said this $60-billion figure is comparable to that spent in the 10 years, 1946-1955, when $40 billion was invested in the United States and $20 billion abroad.

Lilly told the National Credit Conference of the American Petroleum Association that while the Suez Canal crisis temporarily had disrupted the flow of Middle East oil to world markets, the outlook for international oil "beyond the morning's headlines" was encouraging.

Over the past five years, he noted, demand in the U.S. has been increasing at the rate of about 5 per cent per year, while in Europe, growth has been around 12 per cent annually.

The Texaco executive pointed out that five years ago total free world demand was about 11 million barrels a day.

FARM

covered a cultivated area where naked fields have been plowed in deep furrows in an effort to prevent wind erosion—blowing dust.

Some six miles south of San Angelo, the touring group saw a cattle country—virtually without cattle. Ranges are flat for a dozen miles west of the road where years ago a lush growth of native buffalo grass grew. Now the ground is bare. Even the numerous mesquite trees are brittle dry and barren.

The tour route turned east over a chalky rural road lined with mesquite and barbed-wire fence. A short distance away a scrawny herd of hungry cattle could be seen. The rancher, Cal McGowan, has been attempting to keep his herd alive on prickly pears, which has to be dried and the thorns burned off before cattle can eat it. Lion barrels daily of which one third was outside the U.S., while in five years hence, total world demand is expected to reach 21 million barrels daily, with fully half of it outside the United States.

he would not gain weight because of appetite-killing pills he had to take to relieve the pain from scar tissue that formed around the operation area. Bogart entered St. John's hospital in Santa Monica for five days beginning Nov. 26 for treatment to dissolve the scar tissue so he could gain weight. At the time his doctors emphasized no further cancer had been found.

The colorful, franky-talking Bogart enjoyed a unique career of being a top box-office star for nearly 20 years. Besides his Oscar, he won three other Academy nominations—for "Casablanca" in 1943, "Treasure of Sierra Madre" in 1947 and "The Caine Mutiny" in 1954.

US Seeks Plans For Weapons

By BRUCE W. MUNN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States today proposed a five-point disarmament plan providing for peaceful use of all future nuclear production and aiming at the ultimate prohibition of atomic and hydrogen test explosions.

Outlining the program to the United Nations main political committee, U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. also proposed a cutback in manpower to 2.5 million for the United States and Russia and 750,000 for Britain and France; control of outer space satellite tests and safeguards against surprise attack.

The disarmament proposals, he said, would be inspected only under an effective inspection system. In the case of armed forces, such inspection would include President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan for aerial reconnaissance as well as utilizing ground inspection teams.

Lodge summarized these five objectives for the U.S. arms reduction plan:

- "1. To reverse the trend toward larger stockpiles of nuclear weapons and to reduce the future nuclear threat.
- "2. To provide against great surprise attack and thus reduce the danger of major war.
- "3. To lessen the burden of armaments and to make possible improved standards of living.
- "4. To insure that research and development activities concerning the propulsion of objects through outer space is devoted exclusively to scientific and peaceful purposes.
- "5. To ease tensions and to facilitate settlement of difficult political issues."

Ingrid Bergman Returning To United States Saturday

United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)—Ingrid Bergman is going back to the United States Saturday for the first time in almost eight years.

She will be there less than 36 hours, long enough to accept the New York film critics award for her performance in "Anastasia." But she may be in for a public ordeal and she knows it.

If she is worried, she doesn't show it. She is in gay spirits, excited about the trip and quite frankly ready for questions about a famous Hollywood actress who left her husband and daughter to live with another man and bear his child.

"Let them ask," she said. "I will answer them."

"Sometimes people start to ask me something and stop because they think they will embarrass me. You had better warn people who ask me questions on television or radio or in press conferences. I give answers."

I talked with Miss Bergman in a quiet and very expensive suite of a hotel, in the shadow of the Arc de Triomphe. She was stretched at elegant length on a chaise longue, watching an armful of handsome kids tumbling about on the floor.

Her four-year-old twin daughters Isabella and Ingrid, brought me two toy animals to examine. I remarked that the grave little girls were beauties, though they look nothing like their blonde Swedish mother.

"Roberto No. 2"

"And my son?" she asked proudly.

Seven-year-old Roberto was completing a modernistic drawing to have ready for his father's return. He signed it, painstakingly, "Roberto No. 2." Like his sisters, he speaks only Italian and French. Like them, he is dark-eyed.

"Very good looking," I said.

"He'll be a heart breaker," smiled his mother.

The ripple of laughter followed Miss Bergman's words as we talked. Life, she said, was good. She had just spoken to her husband, Roberto Rossellini, who is filming in India. She said the telephone connection was so good she could hear the kisses crackling on the wire.

"Are you and Rossellini happy?" I asked.

Ingrid stood up, a full five feet, 10 inches, and acted out her reply in Oscar-winning style.

"Whenever people ask me that," she said, "I usually say: 'We are separated.'"

"Then their faces light up (she demonstrated) and they exclaim: 'Tell me all about it.'"

"And I say: 'Yes, separated (sadly). He is in India and I am in Paris.'"

Family Joke

She laughed gaily. It is apparently a Rossellini family joke.

"Do you ever hear from your ex-husband?" I asked.

"No, never."

"And your daughter, Pia? I understand she has taken the name Jenny."

"We write to each other all the time."

"Are you going to see her again?"

Dallas Scene Evangelistic Conference

JUMP 34 - Dallas Scene... FORT WORTH (UP)—An estimated 10,000 Baptists began gathering in Fort Worth today for the opening of what is termed the world's largest annual evangelistic conference.

The largest single gathering of the three-day conference is expected Tuesday night when evangelist Billy Graham will address some 15,000 at Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum.

Baptist leaders say the conference will bring to Fort Worth the largest group of outstanding evangelistic speakers ever assembled for a single meeting in Texas.

The conference opens tonight at 6:30 p. m., with 10,000 Baptist ministers and laymen expected to attend. In addition to the 15,000 expected for Tuesday's meetings, another crowd of 10,000 is expected to attend the Wednesday sessions. The meeting ends at noon Wednesday.

The conference has adopted the theme, "Adorn the Doctrine of God Our Saviour."

Explosion In Cave Injures Two Boys

HOUSTON (UP)—A flash explosion in a boys' cave believed to have been booby-trapped by a rival gang seriously burned two teen-agers Sunday.

The boys engaged in a hassle with a rival band of youths were Leonard Batts, 15, and Woody Baldridge, 16. They were in fair condition with second and third degree burns.

Police said the two boys went to the cave—built by other neighborhood boys two years ago under a vacant lot—with the idea of closing the cave mouth and ending the dispute over "privileges."

The cave has a five-foot deep shaft connecting with a tunnel that leads to a "meeting" room. The boys said they were going to close the shaft entrance but when they smelled gasoline fumes they investigated.

One of the boys threw a lighted match down the shaft and it exploded with a "put" of flame. Then the boys figured it was safe to enter. They threw another match into the closed "meeting" room and flames enveloped them.

Several other boys who accompanied the pair ran for help.

Bill Breeding Takes Top Honors In Livestock Show

MIAMI (Special)—Bill Breeding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Breeding of Miami, Roberts County's top 4-H showman for the past three years took the grand championship in the Roberts County Livestock Show Saturday with his medium weight calf.

Russell Maddox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Maddox, of Miami, took reserve championship in the show with his medium-weight calf.

Breeding, 15, has shown championship steers for the past three years having won the Pampa show, reserve championship at Amarillo, and grandchampionship at the Texas State Fair in Dallas. This year, once more, his steer was bred by Clyde McGee of McLean.

Maddox, who is nine years old, showed his first calf this year. His calf was bred by his father, Wayne Maddox, of the Maddox Hereford Ranch in Miami.

Bill Ed O'Loughlin was winner of the best groomed calf and Russell Maddox won showmanship. The champion barrows in the swine show were shown by Henry Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Turner, who won grand champion and reserve champion. These were bred by Cecil Pierce.

Larry Rogers took the showmanship award in the swine division. M. R. Calahan, head of the West Texas State College, division of agriculture, judged the show. Awards were presented by the Men's Service Club and other individuals. Victor Joyner, county agent, and J. W. Dunn, vocational agriculture teacher in the Miami schools, assisted the boys with their stock.

- Awards given for top calves are as follows:
- Heavyweight Class: First Place - Alan Thompson; Second Place - Randy Day; Third Place - Bill Breeding.
 - Medium Weight: First Place - Bill Breeding; Second Place - Russell Maddox; Third Place - Paul Thompson.
 - Lightweight Class: First Place - Paul Thompson; Second Place - Charles Christopher; Third Place - Russell Maddox.
- Awards for top swine are:
- Heavyweight Class: First and Second Prize - Henry Turner; Third Place - Larry Rogers.
 - Lightweight: First Place - Tommy Seitz; Second and Third Place - Billy Land.
- There were a total of 16 calves and eight pigs entered in the show.

Commissioners Okay Business

The commissioners court met this morning in the court room of the County Court House for the purpose of paying bills, okaying the announcement of bank depository bids, investing of the county's money, and the fixing of fees for the petit and grand jury of both county and district courts as well as for the jury commission.

Also taken up at this meeting will be the beginning of paper work for the entering of the Perry-LaPorte Airport into the soil bank program.

Court To Decide About FPC Power Challenges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—The Supreme Court is expected to decide Monday whether it will accept challenges to the Federal Power Commission's price-policing powers over 4,000 independent natural gas producers.

The contests were brought by eight oil companies and two state trustees. Specifically they question the legality, under the 1938 Natural Gas Act, of the commission's famous order 174-A, which set up ground rules for pricing all gas sold in interstate commerce. The order resulted from the Supreme Court's June, 1954, decision that all such gas is subject to FPC regulation.

If the court accepts the cases for review it will schedule arguments soon and later hand down a written opinion. If it rejects them a decision of the fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Houston last June will be left standing.

Not Definitive

This tribunal, with Judge John R. Brown dissenting, held that it lacked jurisdiction in the cases because 174-A "is not a definitive order" under the Gas Act. It said it was merely a set of regulations "not binding upon a producer or changing his present or future status."

The complainants appealed to the Supreme Court on grounds all such orders are "judicially reviewable." They say the circuit court's position was contrary to previous Supreme Court edicts on similar orders issued by two other quasi-judicial federal agencies.

The original appellants were Magnolia Petroleum Co., Ohio Oil Co., Superior Oil Co., and an individual, Wesley West. These were joined later by Union Oil Co. of California, Texas Co., Hunt Oil Co., Continental Oil Co., Humble Oil and Refining Co., Ralph E. Shank, trustee of the Nelson Bunker trust estate, and Roy Lee, trustee for the Hassie Hunt estate.

The circuit court heard 36 such cases. It said order 174-A was merely a procedural framework for applying the Gas Act, with the status of individual companies left to later findings when they apply for rate increases or other contractual arrangements.

Questioned Authority

The companies argued that they were not the type of producers subject to regulation and questioned the FPC's authority to dictate changes in rates or customers.
