Ladies Love Luxury-Look Of Lingerie But Want Cool And Practical Designs

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK NEA — The prettier summer lingerie, the more practical it's likely to be.

Women love a look of luxury in lingerie. But (and this is particularly true in the heat of summer) they don't want to spend hours taking care of it.

That's why filmy batiste that's a blend of Dacron, nylon and cotton is a solution most women like. It's cool and soft. A swish-through soapy suds, a quick rinse and it can drip to dry smoothness.

This summer, there are miniature flower prints as well as the pale, solid pastel colors. The pastel colors frequently are enlivened by embroidery.

Fine pleatings and laces are used as trim. The laces appear in appliques, edgings and openwork. There's ribbon, too, used in beltings and shoulder straps or simply as that artful feminine accent, the bow.

For really torrid weather, there's the brief pajama. And for cooler nights, the rather formal and elegant full-length gown. Most gowns, whatever the length, have matching peignoirs for cool comfort while you sip your morning coffee.

Those little quilted cotton squares that are handy for removing make-up and applying it, too, can go into a glass apothecary jar from the five-and-ten-cent store.

HD Club Planning Ice Cream Party

Mrs. A. P. Coombes, president of the Goodwill Home Demonstration Club, conducted a short business meeting held July 18 in the home of Mrs. Boyd Maule, east of Pampa.

Plans were made to have an ice cream social and domino party at the next meeting in the home of Mrs. James Smathers, east of city, on August 13 at 7:30 p.m.

It was decided by the members present, that any member, who could not attend a meeting, is to call the hostess in advance.

The white elephant prize was drawn by Mrs. Smathers.

The program on "Lighting the Kitchen" was discussed by Miss Helen Dunlap, county Home Demonstration agent. "The main essentials of good lighting," Miss Dunlap said, "is 1) adequate light; 2) free from glare; 3) absence of shadows and spots. To prevent glare, shadows, and spots, light shades should be used.

"See-ability lighting puts the bulbs to work where they will do the most good; not just in the center of the ceiling. Separate lights should be used for each working area, such as, over the sink, range, etc. One general diffusion light is needed for each room, though. A glass bowl shade is preferred for the kitchen, and the minimum diameter should be 12" with 100-150 watt bulbs."

"The texture and color of the paint are important factors in lighting. A shiny surface will reflect the light in the eyes; therefore, walls tend to have a dull finish. Lighter colors give more light, whereas, darker colors give less. White walls will give 85 per cent light, whereas, some of the dark blues and greens give 10-15 per cent."

"When using filament lamps, the frosty or milky bulbs give better light than the clear or colored ones. Fluorescent lighting gives the best light and is cheaper to use."

Refreshments were served during the social hour by the hostess, Mrs. Maule.

Members present were Meses. A. P. Coombes, Boyd Maule, J. M. Hahn, and James Smathers.

RUTH MILLET

A young mother who received her high school diploma this June — three years after she dropped out of school to marry — says she learned more about the value of a high school diploma after she quit school.

In the early days of her marriage she wanted to work to help her young husband with the family finances. But everywhere she went to look for a job she was asked, "Are you a high school graduate?"

She is now, though it wasn't easy to manage being wife, mother and high school student all at once. She had the grit, determination and ambition to make the grade.

Her advice to other girls is: "Think a long time before you decide to quit high school to get married."

Parents tell their daughters this. But all too often a girl thinks her parents are just old-fashioned, or that they don't realize how long a year or two seems to a young couple in love.

That's why I'm quoting this advice from a 20-year-old who found that a high school diploma is mighty fine insurance for a girl.

Her advice may carry more weight than anything an older person might have to say, though the older person said the same thing in the same words.

I sometimes think that high schools ought once a year to bring back students who have quit without finishing to tell those still in school what their experiences have been in trying to earn a living.

I don't think the schools would be taking much of a risk. Surely, nine out of 10 former students would give the same kind of advice as this young mother:

"Think a long time before you decide to quit high school to get married."

tape. He proceeded to bind Longergan's hands and feet with it. Then he taped his eyes.

The stranger ordered the girl into the rear seat. He taped her wrists behind her, from his kit box, he withdrew a chain or metal shackles with which he bound her feet.

The girl struggled violently. The man struck her, blackening one of her eyes.

Then, she said later, he attacked her twice.

Removing a pair of scissors from his kit, the man cut off the girl's hair almost to scalp level. He beat her with his belt.

"Scream!" he exclaimed. "Yell that it hurts! I want to hear you scream with pain!"

Burned Her
He burned her arm and back with a cigarette. Then he sat still for a long time, possibly a half-hour.

"I'm going to give each of you an injection," he said finally. The couple felt a flick of pain, but they believed it was from the point of the man's knife. Then the man walked away.

earlier telegrams from the court of last resort and the one he received today.

Similar Stories
O'Neill last week approved shepherd's plea for a lie-detector test following Wedler's statements in DeLand, Fla. Wedler's story was similar in many details to Shepard's story of how Marilyn Shepard was killed in 1954.

Shepard is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary here for second degree murder.

Cuyahoga County Coroner Samuel Gerber, meanwhile, prepared to fly to DeLand with a law official from the county to interview Wedler. Gerber contended the convict has "not proven that he was in the Cleveland area at the time" of the murder.

O'Neill said one previous wire stated there was "no slightest evidence of deception" in Wedler's statements while undergoing a lie detector test.

The latest telegram, O'Neill said, "uses the language 'or just plain deception'."

Conflicts Increase
The governor said earlier message said also there were only discrepancies in "minor details" of Wedler's story.

"Now the Court of Last Resort says there are some very important major conflicts in his story," O'Neill said.

"On that basis," the governor told a hastily summoned news conference, "there will be no test given until the alleged confession in Florida is established as the truth."

"Who will determine when Wedler's confession is established as the truth?" a reporter asked the governor.

O'Neill replied, "When I am convinced."

The governor said he based his earlier decision to permit the test on the basis of information from the Court of Last Resort that Wedler apparently was telling the truth.

"That's the only basis that a lie detector test can be given to Shepard," O'Neill said.

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truth expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Wholly Consistent

There is an important aspect of consistency which is often overlooked. We make the claim to be one of Texas' five most consistent newspapers. We do not claim to be wholly consistent. We are human, and like any human being we are subject to the conditions of the world in which we live, as well as being subject to our own failings, shortcomings and bad judgment.

Intellectually, we do attempt a total consistency. In action, we frequently fall short of this attempt. For example, we are opposed to the heavy graduated income tax. We believe this tax law is iniquitous, that it is a part of the Communist conspiracy, that it ought to be repealed. This is our intellectual position.

We speak against the evil attendant upon the federal government building vast new highway systems. We believe there is a better way. But when we wish to drive from one place to another, we use the government roads, either the federal, the state, the county or the city roads as the case may be. We don't like it. But we have no choice. We must use what exists, or we must stay in one place forever. Our actions and our arguments are far afield.

We could go on through a long list of similar situations. Philosophically, we point out the evil of taxation, calling it legalized plunder, which is what it is. Physically, we pay our taxes.

Philosophically, we point out the evil of government schools, government roads, government utilities and so on. Physically, we make use of most of these things. As libertarians, we hold it our bounden duty to come as close to truth as our understanding will permit. We conduct our reasoning on the basis of principles. We find the use of aggressive force and violence wholly reprehensible and immoral. But, it can be said: "Your arguments may be consistent, but the manner in which you live up to your own arguments is faulty." We will immediately admit of the fault.

However, we do feel this way. If our choices had not been eliminated in these connections, we would choose something other than the government mails, the government roads, the government utilities. For example, if there existed here, two mail systems, a private one and a government one, we would prefer to patronize the private one, even though it cost us more. If there were two highway systems going, wherever we wished to go, we would prefer the private system as against any government system, even though there might be a toll attached to such private usage.

But, in truth, we are much collectivized. Our choices have been curtailed and in many respects eliminated. If we elect to write a letter, we use the ONLY means available to transport that letter to its destination. Our choices are reduced to a simple alternative. We MUST use the government mails, or we must abstain from writing.

We must pay our taxes, or failing that, find that our money is confiscated by force and violence.

This is the unhappy dilemma which faces all of us who love liberty. We may know what is right and moral. But we are forced by guns and bayonets to do as we are told. Who, then, is wholly consistent? We would claim that anyone who would attempt to live according to the pure libertarian concepts of this particular time, would be soon dead. Thus, we confine ourselves to speaking the truth as nearly as we can come to that truth, hoping that by so speaking, the truth will spread.

And in the realm of action, we come as close to following that truth as we can, whenever such a choice is open to us. When the choice has been removed, we do the best we can.

KIDNEY STONES OFTEN ARE DISCOVERED ACCIDENTALLY

Mrs. W. inquires about the treatment of kidney stones and whether they can be dissolved. It is easiest to answer the second part of the question first. There is no medicine which can be counted on to dissolve a kidney stone safely.

Actually they are not "stones" at all, but are chemical compounds which have crystallized out of the urine because the latter does not hold them in solution and eliminate them in that fashion.

They form in some part of the kidney, usually in a sort of open space in that organ known as the kidney pelvis. Generally they grow slowly as the chemical is added to the outside of the stone.

Consequently, symptoms from kidney stones may be absent for years. They are quite often discovered accidentally in observing an X-ray film which may have been taken for some entirely different reason.

There are several kinds of chemicals which can precipitate out of the urine and form stones. If a stone is removed or passes, it should be analyzed carefully to find out its nature so that the proper diet or treatment can be

Faith In Freedom Judging from the increase in laws, local, state and federal, that interfere with our liberty and our freedom, fewer people have faith in freedom.

I think I have faith in freedom. By freedom I mean absence of fraud or aggressive force being used against an individual by other individuals or groups, and by him against other individuals. I am using the word "freedom" as synonymous with "liberty."

It seems to me that all man's progress comes from having faith in freedom. I can think of no blessings that are not the result of having faith in freedom. The great benefactors and philosophers have always had faith in freedom. Remember, Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall set ye free," and St. Paul contended that "Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

The Founding Fathers in the Declaration of Independence pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to support their declarations having faith in life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Very few people, however, actually believe in freedom and liberty, if we are to judge them by what they sanction and advocate, rather than by their lip service that they believe in freedom.

If my definition of freedom is correct, then anyone who believes in collective bargaining and strikes and picketing, which aim to take away from an individual his freedom to make an individual bargain, does not have faith in freedom. Anybody who believes in tax-supported, gun-run schools does not have faith in freedom, because they are supported on an involuntary basis by the use of aggressive force or the threats of same.

Anybody who believes in tariffs, immigration quotas, subsidies, drafting soldiers and taxation does not have faith in freedom. In other words, they do not have faith in the divinity of their fellowman. They do not have faith that their fellowman is smart enough to be willing to protect his own interest. That is, to be willing to use defensive force against aggressive force when necessary.

Nothing has developed before the Byrd Monetary or Kefauver Antitrust Committees to justify this theory, although voluntary changes are envisaged even by President Eisenhower. Despite a profusion of testimony by the so-called experts, no satisfactory explanation for the current inflationary trend has been vouchsafed.

The knowledgeable gentlemen have agreed to disagree, without regard to ideologies and political affiliations, on one of the most important problems confronting the American people today. It has been, in a sense, a painful exhibition.

LIKE COUNSELS SELF-CONTROL There has, however, been a generally accepted thesis stems from these surveys: It is that the nation's industrial, business and economic structure has become so big that it is not responsive to the controls over money and credit now exercised by the Treasury, Federal Reserve System and other governmental agencies.

President Eisenhower, in accord with his philosophy, counsels self-control by management, labor and consumers. The concurrent increases of steel prices and wages suggest that his request has been disregarded. But the White House feels that the $6-a-ton boost for steel would have been much greater save for his warning.

POSSIBLE CREATION OF CONSULTATIVE BODY The most significant effect of these Congressional X-rays may be the creation of a consultative body, consisting of representatives of the government, employers, labor, farmers and consumers, for a voluntary and persuasive management of the economy — production, productivity, market demands and prospects, in 1930 at a White House conference, and which became a necessity during World War II, would not attempt to solve this increasingly critical problem in a democratic and American way.

Such an arrangement, which Herbert Hoover tried to set up as another compulsory Blue Eagle or N.R.A. affair, it would be an attempt to solve this increasingly critical problem in a democratic and American way. It would be the answer to the Kefauver Antitrust Committee's

Federal Control Over Economy, Partisan Issue

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — An economy managed and engineered by Uncle Sam underlies the thinking of numerous Democrats now investigating and attacking the Administration's monetary and financial policies.

They would have the Federal government "administer" production prices and wages as it did during part of the Roosevelt-Truman years.

Bicycles Necessary For Self Defense Nowadays

By HENRY McEMORE

COPENHAGEN — My first official act this morning was to rent a bicycle — not for pleasure, but for self-defense.

A few days here having proved to me that there was no beating the Copenhagen bicyclists, so I decided to join them.

There are tens of thousands of cyclists in Copenhagen, and they dominate highways, byways, and sidewalks. Also country paths.

For a tourist to challenge them on foot is foolhardy. The cyclists are as quick as flashes and can overtake the nimblest pedestrian. To be caught in the middle of the street, with scores of cyclists bearing down on you, is to know real fear. Five, six, and eight abreast they ride, and as deep as a Roman legion.

Until I started walking Copenhagen's streets, I had always believed that Amsterdam and Rotterdam had the most fearsome bicycle traffic. Holland's is alarming, to be sure, but the Dutch are a more stolid race, and pedal slowly and surely. They are inclined to pursue a straight course.

The Danes on the other hand are a vigorous race and given to impetuous twists, turns and bursts of speed. There is no guessing the right way to jump when a Danish cyclist comes tearing toward you.

They are as agile on their bikes as polo ponies, and can follow a pedestrian as surely and as swiftly as a pony does the ball, and there is teamwork among them. If one misses you, another will swoop in like a two-wheeled avenger.

PROBLEMS TOO COMPLEX FOR DEBATE President Eisenhower's statement on the relationship between steel wages and prices indicates that he has given thought to this kind of solution. Certain leaders of labor and industry, who must exchange ideas in collective bargaining negotiations required by law, have shown a receptive attitude. They cannot afford to neglect public or political sentiment.

Save for a few heavy protagonists on and off Capitol Hill, the current inquiries demonstrate that the problems facing the government, industry, business, farmers and workingmen — in short, the American people — are far too complex, critical and complicated to remain as matters for selfish, self-serving and partisan debate.

Almost 30 years ago — 1930-1933 — several Congressional investigations led to revolutionary changes in the relations of the Government and the various economic elements from lessons learned during the great depression.

The testimony at all the Congressional studies today indicates that another overhaul of the economy is long overdue.

WITH THIS JOB I NEVER KNOW WHETHER THEY'RE WHISTLING FOR A RIDE OR A DATE.

What are we to do? You tell us! A recent poll indicates that "most people like to be told what to do. There are innumerable followers for every leader. . . . People today would much rather have someone else do their thinking for them." This is highly disturbing since the cost of individual freedom is individual responsibility. To be sure, parents owe their children moral and intellectual guidance, plus a good example, but if Teenagers refuse to accept personal responsibility for their actions then they must forfeit any personal freedom. Also your letter goes beyond a plea of "Tell us" to one of "Make us!"

Can we really MAKE you read hardest at school, or associate good books and shun the trash? With only worthy persons, or use your imagination constructively. Can we MAKE you respect your body and your mind, or hold true to your highest ideals no matter how great the temptations to betray them? Of course, we can't MAKE you! We can urge and guide and steer and beg, but you will be the chooser and the doer, and that is why, in the end, each of us is what he has chosen to be.

Again, you plead: "Give us God and His Commandments, or give us atheism and sin. Give us one or the other, but not both, for God and sin do not walk hand in hand." If by this you mean: "Teach us one or the other," your plea is justified. But if you mean: "Remove temptation and sin from our reach," your plea is impossible for we cannot. From the day God planted a forbidden tree of temptation in the Garden of Eden, each human soul has been faced with a life-long, lonely battle of low to get you just when you are heaving a sigh of relief. Yesterday I made the mistake of trying to cross from one side of a bridge to the other. I did not know that it was the bridge over which as many as 55,000 cyclists have crossed in an hour.

I happened to cross at a near peak time. I have handlebars and tire tread marks all over me. But with my rental of a bicycle all my troubles ended. I am one with the cyclists. Cyclists never run into one another. It is an unwritten law. Only pedestrians are fair game.

I quickly got into the spirit of the thing. Grazing a pedestrian is most exhilarating, and to make one jump three feet and lose his hat is sport at its highest.

In Denmark, as in every other country in Europe, the cyclist is a law unto himself. There is a rule for everybody else but him. He can swoop in front of cars without signaling, and woe unto the motorist who damages him. He can challenge a motorcycle for the right of way, and know that the motor cyclist must give way, or else be punished.

I wouldn't be surprised to learn that bicyclists have the right of way at railroad crossings, and that engines must come to a halt when a cyclist elects to pedal in front of them.

Riding a bicycle after years of abstinence from the sport is not too easy. You pant quite a lot, and on inclines your legs turn to stone and the muscles of your back send out distress signals every second on the second. Your feet slip off the pedals all the time, too, and this results in your ankles getting grated until you are tempted to say unbecoming things.

The chain chews at your trouser legs every once in a while, and you soon realize that a bicycle seat is not the last work in solid comfort.

But riding is much safer, and more fun than it is to his loved ones, and as safe as possible — not to mention his own self.

choosing between good and evil every step of the way. Life is rugged for Teenagers, as it always has been, and you have a right to expect adult help, but you should also understand that life is tough for adults too. Many of us had to find our first jobs during the Depression. Don't think it was easy then to earn a living, or get married, and start raising kids, but we did it. Some of us scrimped and sacrificed and saved too, mostly for your future, only to see those savings lose half their value through inflation. We blessed our parents too — for the mess we inherited, but some of our own youthful dreams have taken quite a beating in the past two decades, and we are now more tolerant and less starry-eyed than we were. Someday, your own Teenagers will make you understand us better.

You underestimate your power, Teenager, when you say: "We have little influence!" Why — you are loaded with power. Popular music, and movies, and T.V., and fashions, — are mostly aimed at you. Parent complaints are brushed off with: "The kids like this, and we're giving them what they want." If you want something better, all you have to do is stand up and demand it — and mean it!

You also have the great power of youthful energy and idealism. Why not put them to work RIGHT NOW instead of asking adults to shoulder the whole load? All over this country, kids like you are banding together, thrashing out and solving teenage problems, launching service projects, organizing hobby groups, establishing High School Honor Codes, and becoming Junior American citizens in earnest. They are not helpless, waiting for adults to act. They're taking the ball in their own hands and heading for their own Goal Posts.

And you know what? Some of them are shaming adults into joining them. With idealistic Youth as the sparkplug, weary old timers are beginning to believe in their lost dreams again. So don't say: "It's up to you!" For it's up to both of us — together!

BETTY KNOWLES HUNT (LETTER TO TEENAGER)

Dear "Teenager": I have read your very moving public plea to adults (in an Eastern newspaper) to clean up the literary filth that surrounds you, and to raise the moral standards of the age in which you are growing up. As the mother of three teenagers, plus a smaller child, I both understand and sympathize with your tremendous problems. I also accept the indictment you hurl at us, for we deserve it!

But I find myself disturbed by some of your attitudes. You write: "Remember — we are what you make us, good or bad. It's up to you!" This is not only a destructive idea, it is also false. Nobody can MAKE you be anything you are determined NOT to be. Bad kids come from good families, and good kids from bad ones. Parents can help or hurt you, and they can be a good or bad influence, but they cannot force you to follow their pattern if you choose otherwise.

You write: "What are we to do? You tell us!" A recent poll indicates that "most people like to be told what to do. There are innumerable followers for every leader. . . . People today would much rather have someone else do their thinking for them." This is highly disturbing since the cost of individual freedom is individual responsibility. CHIP THERE'S A SPECIAL PLACE IN HEAVEN FOR GOOD BOYS PERHAPS...

BUT I'D RATHER GO WITH YOU

SHAPE-UP — With the West Side Tennis Club Stadium in Forest Hills as a backdrop, Pancho Gonzalez, left, and Pancho Gonzalez discuss their tour to start in January. Hoad proved Sunday that he was king of the pros by defeating the newcomer 5-0. Hoad, who repeated as the All-England amateur titleholder at Wimbledon, recently turned pro and is to tour with Kramer's pros.

Lionel Hebert Takes PGA Championship

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
DAYTON, Ohio (UP)—The biggest gamble Lionel Hebert ever made paid off today — with the PGA golf championship.
The 29-year-old golfer from the bayou country of Louisiana gave his job as a club pro at Erie, Pa., a year ago, determined "to make a name for myself."
He did it Sunday when he defeated the 27-year-old Dow Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, 3 and 1, in the 36-hole final match for the $5,000 first-place money that goes to the winner of this five-day match play grind.
And he did it like a champion, too. Having breakfast with his brother Jay, who is five years older, on Wednesday before teeing off in the first round, he promised, "I'm going to win this one."
He did — while Jay finished seventh — a difference of $6,000.
"But I owe anything I'll ever be in golf to Jay," Hebert added. "He encouraged me and kept me going. Then I decided being a club pro was never going to make me rich so I gave up my job in Erie, because it limited me to playing only the winter tour, and decided to go all out. I decided I'd make a name for myself in this game I love and if I didn't, well, I could always go back to bookkeeping."
He chose golf over both music and bookkeeping, and today he's glad he did.
Driving well, and using a putter which he only picked up after arriving in Dayton on Monday, he was six under par as he closed out the lanky Finsterwald Sunday over the sun-baked 6,773-yard Miami Valley golf course.
Finsterwald evened the match when Hebert trapped his approach on the 30th. But on the 145-yard 31st, Hebert put his eight iron tee shot 18 feet from the cup and sank the putt. Finsterwald, also using an eight iron, was 15 feet away and missed the putt.
The Cuban fireballer registered his sixth triumph against a lone defeat Sunday as he checked the Miami Marlins on four hits, enabling his Havana mates to walk off with a 5-2 victory, Miami took the opener, 12-1.
Cuellar, only in his first season of organized baseball, had an ERA of 2.19 in the last official listing. He is one of the leading candidates for the rookie of the year award and is a shoo-in to make the All-Star team.

Boy Who Wouldn't Stop Swinging Now PGA Champ

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
DAYTON, Ohio (UP)—This was 20 years ago in a barnyard in the little town of Lafayette, La., and the big, skinny kid was mad.
He was milking the cow, the bucket was almost filled and he needed another pail. To make it worse, his chubby little brother had swiped his one and only golf club—a beat-up driver which was his most precious possession—and was hitting stones with it.
"Hey," 14-year-old Jay Hebert shouted at 9-year-old Lionel. "You put down my club and get me another pail."
Lionel just kept on swinging, called over his shoulder. "Let me be, I'm playing golf."
"Get me a pail," the big brother yelled, "cause if I stop this darned cow won't give any more milk. If you don't, I'm gonna catch you and whup your tail."
Lionel ignored him and kept on swinging. Jay eventually filled the bucket, stopped milking and caught little Lionel and, as promised, whupped his tail.
Still swinging
But Lionel Hebert, 29 years old now, is still swinging — as the newly-crowned PGA champion. Only this time he "whupped Jay's tail."
For Jay finished no better than seventh as Lionel Sunday captured the most coveted championship of his profession by beating young Dow Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, 2 and 1.
Lionel is a husky 185-pounder now, a handsome, dark-haired man who still retains a certain amount of that boyhood chubbiness on his five-foot, eight-and-one-half inch frame. He has two children of his own now, a son, Glen, seven, and a daughter, Jacqueline, five. And he has come a long, far piece from that barnyard in Louisiana.
This victory, worth $5,000, boosted him to 15th among the year's money winners with earnings of $10,968, and assured him a coveted spot on the Ryder Cup team. All of which is a payoff on his decision to "make a name in this game or give up."
Played Trumpet
He had been in LSU, as a trumpet-playing music major when he went into service for two years in 1946. Jay has been a Marine captain wounded in the legs at Two Jims. Lionel was a sergeant in the medical corps and was stationed in Japan.
Returning to LSU after his hitch, he switched to a bookkeeping course at Southwestern Institute but then turned golf pro in 1950 and worked with Johnny Bulla at Pittsburgh for four years. Finally he got his own club, Kakhwa Country Club in Erie, Pa., but after three years gave it up last fall to take his dreamed-of shot at the full tour.
Things weren't too good for him up to this point. He picked up "keep going" money here and there but — until Sunday — had never won a single tournament.
Two things earned it for him. He had a good short game but his putting went sour. When he arrived for the PGA, he found a good-putting putter in the pro shop and it helped him home.
The other was mental. "I figured I could do it," he says with quiet conviction.

Gonzales Proves He's Tennis King

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—Pancho Gonzalez proved again that he is king of the pro tennis world and now promoter Jack Kramer can only hope that big Kramer doesn't turn out to be a financial prophet, too.
Gonzales completed a 5-0 clean sweep in Kramer's "Tournament of Champions" Sunday by whipping Jack's new rookie gate attraction, Lew Hoad of Australia, 9-7, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.
That was the third beating in five matches in the tourney for fair-haired Hoad. And Kramer must remember painfully that Gonzalez warned him this might happen. Pancho didn't want to play in the tournament because he thought losses suffered by Hoad might hurt the gate for the Gonzalez-Hoad world tour starting next winter.

Stan's Game Streak Remains

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The game that would end the consecutive game streak of Stan (The Man) Musial remains uncompleted to date, leaving official records in a state of suspension.
The veteran Cardinal first baseman appeared in the first game of a double-header against the Pirates Sunday, bringing his National League record streak to 862 games. However, he didn't play in the nightcap, which was suspended in the ninth inning because of Pennsylvania's 7 p.m. Sunday curfew.

Hobbs gained a game on Southwestern League leading Ballinger Sunday night.
The Sports whacked Ballinger 7-1, the only game played. Threatening weather forced postponement of Carlsbad at Midland. Hobbs poured over five runs in the sixth inning, largely on the strength of Gene Taylor's grand slam homer. The Sports grabbed a two-run lead in the fourth as Sam Hernandez doubled, and scored on John Spicuzza's triple. Spicuzza came home on a sacrifice fly.
Frank Coffey homered in the seventh for Ballinger's only run. The victory brought Hobbs to within seven and a half games of the lead.
The schedule is the same tonight, Carlsbad at Midland and Ballinger at Hobbs.

Twin Win Puts Reds Back In Fight

All-Stars Split Double With Philblack

The old adage that turn about is fair play was demonstrated here yesterday in a softball doubleheader between the Philblack team of Phillips and Pampa's All-Stars when the two work-horse pitchers each managed one win and one loss from the fray.
Delbert Daniels, pitching in both games for the All-Stars, received the loss in the first game, but got credit for the victory in the nightcap while his mound opponent, Juby, of the Philblacks won the first and lost the last.
Collecting 11 runs on 14 hits and two errors, the Philblacks took the opener by a 11-1 margin. Philblack coasted in with eight extra-base hits. The All-Stars got their one tally on four hits. They committed one error.
Gene Brown relieved Daniels in the third, but it was Daniels who took the defeat. Bob Patterson and Jimmy Cox shared the catching chores. Hubbard caught for the Philblacks.
Rebounding, the All-Stars took the nightcap, 3-1, with Jimmy Cox's home run clearing the path. The All-stars gleaned their three runs on three hits. They were charged with three errors.
Philblack got one run on four hits while being guilty of two miscues.
Juby got the loss on this one, while Daniels came on strong to chalk up a win.
Hubbard of Philblack whacked a double for the visitors in the second game.

Crawford, McCarthy Make Baseball's Hall Of Fame

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UP)—Ex-Yankee Manager Joe McCarthy and former Tiger outfielder Sam (Wahoo) Crawford received today the highest honor baseball can bestow — induction into the Hall of Fame.
Shortly after McCarthy and Crawford make their acceptance speeches and plaques of them are placed in the shrine, the Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals met before a sellout crowd on pictureque Doubleday Field.
The 70-year-old McCarthy, who quit baseball in 1950 to retire to his farm in Amherst, N.Y., not far from Buffalo, gained most of his fame while managing the Yankees from 1943 to 1946, winning eight pennants and seven World Series during that span.
A mediocre minor league infielder, who never played in the majors, McCarthy made his major league managerial debut with the Chicago Cubs, whom he piloted from 1926 to 1930. After leaving the Yankees, he also managed the Boston Red Sox from 1948 to 1950.
Crawford, dubbed "Wahoo" because he came from Wahoo, Neb., played in the majors 19 years, four years with Cincinnati and 15 with Detroit.
Now 77 years old, the former outfielder had a lifetime batting average of .309 with a total of 2,964 hits.
One of Crawford's former Detroit teammates, Ty Cobb, will be among the Hall of Famers on hand for today's ceremonies. Others scheduled to attend are Carl Hubbell, Ray Schalk, Home Run Baker and Frankie Frisch.

Dallas Halfs Double With Shreveport

By UNITED PRESS
Dallas divided a "doubleheader" with Shreveport Sunday night but still stretched its Texas League lead to nine games over Houston.

Tebbetts' 'Patchwork' Pitching Fails To Buckle

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
The Cincinnati Redlegs were being counted out of the National League race a week ago but they're right back in the thick of it today because of their surprising ability to cope with doubleheaders.
The experts figured Birdie Tebbetts' "patchwork" pitching staff would buckle under the pressure of the bargain bills.
The Redlegs, however, roared back into solid contention when they whipped the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2 and 6-4, Sunday and now show a remarkable .818 won-lost record for doubleheaders.
The latest sweep — giving the Redlegs seven wins in nine games since they ended a seven-game losing streak on July 12 — lifted the Redlegs into fourth place, two places behind the first — Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2 and 6-4, Sunday and now show a remarkable .818 won-lost record for doubleheaders.

Courchesne, Bell Battle Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Bobby Courchesne and Bobby Bell, two hard-luck featherweights, trying desperately to smash back into the winning column, met tonight in a 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Betting is at "seven m o n e y." Courchesne of Holyoke, Mass., is the harder puncher; but Bell of Washington, D.C., has advantages of speed and skill.
Each lost his last three bouts. Courchesne, 22, registered a surprise victory over lightweight Johnny Busso on Jan. 7. But he suffered cuts in his next two bouts and was stopped by Isidro Martinez and Ruse Tague, and he lost a decision to Lulu Perez. Bell, 28, lost three straight decisions to Rudy Garcia, Paul Jorgensen and Cherif Hamia of France.

How would you explain it to a child?

What do you tell him after the crash — "Daddy isn't coming home any more?" Does that explain even one death... let alone 40,000 in traffic accidents last year?
BACK THE ATTACK ON TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS
Here's how you can help:
1 Drive safely, courteously yourself. Observe speed limits, warning signs. Where traffic laws are obeyed, deaths go DOWN!
2 Insist on strict enforcement of all traffic laws. They work for you, not against you. Where traffic laws are strictly enforced, deaths go DOWN!

Pampa Marine Reserves End Training Stint

CORONADO, Calif. — It was a tired, weary and veteran Pampa Marine Reserve outfit that boarded their plane Friday at the Naval Air Station and headed back to loved ones, friends and civilian jobs as their 1957 summer training program came to a close.

The Pampa Leathernecks were weary from the intensive and fast paced two-week training program at the Landing Force Training Unit, and they were veteran in the fact that they now had wet their feet in an amphibious landing such as has made the Marine Corps the efficient and well-trained fighting organization that it is today.

A weapons demonstration was held for the Pampa Reserves which featured firing machine guns, hand grenades, and Browning Automatic rifles.

Also included in the week's training were helicopter tactics. The Reservists were formed into heliteams and were trained in the various tactics necessary to launch a helicopter operation. All personnel were given rides in the helicopter after which they landed and then formed into units for the assault. The helicopter assault is one of the most important functions of the Marine Corps in the atomic age.

Before leaving, Maj. Max Cohen, USMCR, the company's commanding officer, commented, "The instruction our unit received while at Landing Force Training Unit was highly satisfactory and I believe that all hands learned a great deal from the stay at Coronado."

"And," he added, "in view of the excellent recreational activities afforded by the area, I feel sure that everyone enjoyed the time spent on liberty."

WARTON, England—English test pilot Rowland P. Beaumont, after unofficially breaking the world speed records at speeds well beyond 1,100 m.p.h. in a new super-secret electric jet fighter plane: "It is a pilot's airplane... without vices... it obviously is going to be a very potent fighting weapon."

Ex-Pampa Woman Has Pet Project

By JOEL R. COMBS

Pampa News Managing Editor A former Pampa woman, Mrs. Witt (Prissy) Springer, has gained nation-wide publicity in recent months for her venture into the "hotel management" profession.

The occasion for Mrs. Springer's (she was Mrs. W. B. Hamilton while a resident of Pampa) publicity was her purchase of Conrad Hilton's first hotel in Cisco, Hilton, who has expanded his business cope across the nation and overseas now, purchased the Mobley Hotel in Cisco as his first such business.

Mrs. Springer came to Pampa in 1926, when her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Guinn, lived here on Russell Street. She lived in Pampa, as Mrs. Hamilton, until 1933, when she moved away for two years. She then returned. Her only child, now Mrs. Jerry Hamilton Sloan, was born here and attended school here.

Mrs. Springer married Witt, a drug specialty man, in 1941. Springer owned the City Drug in McLean for 15 years.

Her purpose in buying the old Mobley Hotel in Cisco, where she grew up, was to convert it into a "hotel for senior citizens."

She bought the hotel from Hilton in June of last year and has been hard at work directing renovation of the almost-obsolete building since that time.

Mrs. Springer says, "I want to operate a place where older people can be happy and do the things they want to do. It's not a 'home,' but a hotel, I will call it the 'Golden Age Hotel.'"

Mrs. Springer's project has been worked over and thought through extensively, she believes. She has talked to persons and organizations all over the state interested in the welfare of senior citizens. The City of Cisco and its residents are equally as enthusiastic about Mrs. Springer's hotel. The city has been boosting the project and recently a group of residents staged a "painting party" to help Mrs. Springer in her efforts to get the hotel back in working order.

She has re-worked the gas pipes, floors, plumbing and "everything has been completely redone," she says.

Mrs. Springer plans to open the Golden Age in November. Her aim is to provide a place of peace and serenity for older persons, not for the ill or infirm or wealthy, but for those citizens reaching their golden years with a desire to maintain independence and purpose and enjoy the company of others.

DEAD GIVEAWAY

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UP)—Thomas Pyle, Cedar Rapids, didn't come clean so he was charged with breaking and entering. A dye had been put on an envelope in a safe robbed last Sunday. Pyle apparently couldn't get the dye off his hands and was spotted... by police.

DELAND, Fla. — Donald Joseph Wedler stating he was in a "mental fog" from narcotics after he bludgeoned a Cleveland housewife who must have been Marilyn Sheppard:

"I didn't know I killed her until I read about it. All that I could bring to my mind after reading about it, was that there couldn't be any other answer."

SAN ANTONIO (UP)—First Lt. William S. Hughes suffered undetermined injuries when his F-84 Sabrejet crashed while making a landing approach at Randolph Air Force Base Tuesday. Hughes, 23, was pulled from the wreckage by three passing airmen.

Brush No-Roach On Shelves To Keep Insects From Foods

No-Roach has been proven effective again and again for keeping crawling insects away from foodstuffs.

Just recently, stores in Miami, Fla., which has been plagued for years by weevils infesting spaghetti products and rendering them unusable, tried a coating of No-Roach in certain shelves. On the treated shelves there was no infestation of any kind, all season long! But, on the untreated

In exactly the same way today's No-Roach can mean reassuring protection against roaches, ants and other crawling insects in your own kitchen.

No-Roach is a liquid which you apply with a brush. Within minutes it dries to form a colorless, odorless contact insecticide, that stays effective for months.

Cockroaches

Apply No-Roach to cupboard walls, baseboards, near sink and cabinets, on pipes, and wherever you see cockroaches. Can be used on rubber and asphalt tile, too.

Ants

Brush No-Roach around table legs and counter tops, across window sills and door sills, and across ant trails. Ants will not cross the coating. Pour a few drops into ant hills.

No-Roach is also effective against resistant roaches, bedbugs, silverfish, waterbugs, spiders, and other crawling insects.

Common Sense Way

Remember, when you use Johnson's No-Roach, you don't have to move dishes, pots and pans, or breathe harmful vapors, as you must with contaminating sprays. Apply No-Roach just where you want it, the invisible coating stays effective for months. No-Roach, the brush-on insecticide, is preferred by good housekeepers.

Dr. Charles W. McCullough, Southern Baptist Missionary to Jamaica, will be the mission speaker at the final two weeks of the Pan Fork Baptist Encampments beginning July 22. Two weeks of camps have already been conducted, during which time Dr. McCullough's wife was the featured speaker.

Dr. McCullough is a native of Comanche and a graduate of Howard Payne College and Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary. Other personalities on the program for the first week are: Rev. J. H. Allison of Claude, Rev. Sam Ogan of Buna Vista, Rev. Jerry Speer and J. R. Stroble of Pampa.

DO-IT-YOURSELF GLIDER—Here's one glider that won't have to hitch a ride from an airplane. The retractable engine makes it the only self-launching glider in the world. Ted Nelson of San Leandro, Calif., engineer-industrialist, invented the "Hummingbird" glider. Nelson shows, upper left, how the engine looks fully extended. At upper right, Nelson starts retraction. At lower left, Nelson has engine in place and, lower right, closes cover to complete quick task. The 40-horsepower engine is used mainly for take-offs but can be restarted in mid-air. The engine for the $10,000 Hummingbird carries enough fuel for an hour's flight, but uses only about five minutes' worth on a four to six hour hop.
