Graham Warns Christians Of Persecution

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said Tuesday night he felt he should "warn the American church the day may come when those who live for Christ may suffer persecution."

"It may be soon," Graham told an overflow audience of 19,200 in Madison Square Garden.

He said the godless, anti-Christian forces of communism are making steady advances every day and "we now see Syria going behind the Iron Curtain and a heavy Communist vote in Indonesia."

Shifted to Russia

The Russians now have a terrible intercontinental ballistic missile capable of destroying any city they choose, including New York, he said.

"Many in Washington believe the balance of power has shifted to Russia. The men in the Pentagon are worried. It is time we woke up to our citizenship duties as well as... the necessity for living a Christian life."

Many Americans are pretending to live Christian lives, but in reality are far from salvation, the revivalist said in a sermon on spiritual rebirth.

"The only difference between those Hollywood people whose stories are being discussed in court and many of you here tonight is that their sins are being exposed," Graham said.

"Your sins will be exposed too, not necessarily here on earth, but before the court of God."

New Resources

When a person gives his life to Christ, Graham said, he becomes "born again" and God gives him "new resources to help overcome temptation."

"New birth is a gift from God. A new nature," he said. "God takes out your spiritual heart and gives you a new one. Being born again means Christ breaks through your soul and the Holy Spirit takes up residence there."

Plans for a five or six weeks' evangelistic crusade in nine countries in the Caribbean area were announced by Graham's headquarters. The New York crusade closes Sunday with a Times Square rally.

Damage Suit Filed By Pampan

A $65,000 damage suit was filed yesterday afternoon in District Court against the Monarch Lumber Co. and Richard (Dick) Hughes.

Plaintiff in the suit is Clyde Van Sickle in behalf of his minor son, Terry Lee Van Sickle.

Van Sickle is suing for damages in connection with the death of his wife, Ida, who was killed when her automobile collided with a Monarch Lumber Co. truck on July 9.

The accident occurred at about 5 p.m. that date on Brown street when Mrs. Van Sickle's automobile rammed the back of the Monarch truck which was stopping to make a left turn. No ticket was given by investigating officers.

The Van Sickle's son, Terry Lee, was riding with his mother at the time of the accident, but was not seriously hurt.

Van Sickle charges several counts of negligence on the part of the truck driver.

He is also asking $972.50 in damages for funeral and hospital expenses of Mrs. Van Sickle.

Lockett Addresses Jaycees

Pampa's head football coach, Jack Lockett, was principal speaker yesterday at the Jaycees weekly luncheon in the Palm Room of City Hall.

After giving a run-down on the Harvesters lineup and schedule, Lockett pessimistically predicted the team "... might win two or three" this season.

Lockett rated the Amarillo Sandies as the best in the state.

With Lockett were assistant coaches Deck Woldt, Norman Phillips, Gene Chance, Frank Craig and Eurol Ramsey.

Fred Wilkinson was presented for membership at the meeting. The special committee in charge of making arrangements for the tri-regional convention to be held here this winter told the Jaycees it had tentatively set the date for the first or second week end in February.

Johnny Campbell, president, said the Jaycees would take on a project to encourage merchants to fly flags on Labor Day. He said that on the Fourth of July holiday, many had been lax on this,

Adjournment Near

Solons Expected To Speed Work

By JAMES BAAR

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate conferees called today to compromise on the foreign aid money bill and legislation aimed at protecting FBI files. Fast action was expected.

The House itself was ready to go home on short notice. But the southerners were expected to drag out the debate over civil rights for two or three more days—possibly into next week.

At the same time, this was the status of other major legislation:

Immigration: The House called up its so-called hardship immigration bill for action. It would open American shores to thousands of additional immigrants. The Senate has passed a similar bill.

Pay: The Senate passed by top-heavy votes bills that would fatten the pay envelopes of 1,488,000 postal and federal white collar workers by an estimated $18,640,000. Both bills — already sped through the House—went to the White House. Republicans predicted both would be vetoed as inflationary.

Postal: The administration's postal rate boost bill that would bring in an extra half-billion a year in revenue appeared firmly shelved in the Senate Post Office Committee. The House has passed it.

Crowds filled the galleries intermittently as the 85th Congress struggled through the final days of the session.

Thousands of spectators gathered to watch the House pass the new compromise civil rights bill Tuesday and rush it to the Senate. But only a scattering of on-lookers watched the Senate debate it Tuesday night until nearly midnight.

Early in the evening an ailing old man was helped to the Senate floor by two aides. Sen. Matthew M. Neely (D-W. Va.) left a hospital bed to vote for the federal pay boost bills.

Southern Democratic Senators gave no sign so far that their fight against the civil rights bill would be turned into a filibuster. They appeared content to settle for a few days of speeches and delaying tactics.

Other congressional news:

Four Fire Calls Are Reported

The Pampa Fire Department reported three car fires and one fence and shed fire which occurred yesterday, with no more than slight damage resulting in any of the cases.

At 11:25 a.m., the carburetor ignited on a 1955 Chevrolet belonging to George Darby, but was put out with no damage to the car. The fence and shed fire was reported at 3:35 p.m. at 317 N. Christy, and was put out at 4 p.m. with "slight" damage resulting.

The second automobile fire occurred at 4:48 p.m. at 804 N. Gray in a 1955 Chevrolet belonging to Wayne Madden. The blaze was also in the carburetor and was put out with damage being done only to the hood of the car.

At 5:06 p.m., the third car blaze was reported in a 1947 Studebaker belonging to J. A. McLein. The fire was quenched without harm to the car.

Reformatory Riot Quelled; 1 Man Dies

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (UP)—A small band of guards charged into a mob of 100 rioters at the Colorado Reformatory Tuesday night and quelled the disturbance within an hour.

Warden James Thomas said he couldn't understand the outbreak of violence which left one inmate dead and two others gravely injured.

"The only reason we've heard is that the boys thought they were worked too hard," Thomas said.

Most of the 380 inmates, some teen-aged first offenders and others with extensive criminal records, work on farm land and are now in harvest season.

Everesto Gomez, 23, of Denver, who touched off the riot by attacking guard Robert Allinger with a table leg, was shot to death.

Gov. Steve McNichols ordered an investigation today of what Thomas called the first major outbreak at the reformatory "to my knowledge." Thomas has been warden here for 13 years.

The warden said "everything had been normal and quiet. There had been no indication that a riot was impending."

He said it was started by eight or nine ringleaders, all of a hardened type, but punishment will "wait until the governor investigates."

Richard Benjamin, 19, and Jerry Troxell, 21, underwent surgery for gunshot wounds in the back and stomach at Rio Grande Hospital at nearby Salida, Colo.

Rites Are Pending For Mrs. Kitchings

Mrs. R. H. (Doc) Kitchings, 701 E. Francis, died at 7 p.m. Tuesday from a heart attack.

Mrs. Kitchings, who was born July 28, 1886 in Slayton, Minn., had attended schools in Minneapolis, Minn., and was graduated from a catholic college there. She had been a resident of Pampa since 1926.

She is survived by her husband, R. H. Kitchings; three sisters, Mrs. Pete Wall, Riviera, Calif.; Mrs. Clyde Green, Grenada, Minn.; Mrs. Perry Cook, Inglewood, Calif.; three brothers, Carl Erickson, Edinburg, N. D.; Albert of Slayton; and George of Minneapolis.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Duenkel - Carmichael Funeral Home.

House Passes Measure

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate went back to extra-hour sessions today to give southern Democrats a chance to register last-gasp protests against the civil rights bill.

Although some of them were snarling under criticism from their home states, there was no immediate sign that the southerners would filibuster against the compromise measure given final approval by the House Tuesday.

However, speeches and perhaps other dilatory tactics were expected to keep the Senate tied up for two or three days and possibly into next week.

As soon as the bill was laid before the Senate Tuesday night, Sen. Strom Thurmond (D - S.C.) offered a motion to refer it to the Judiciary Committee. Although he apparently had not consulted his fellow southerners, they supported his motion. The Senate, however, voted it down, 66 to 18, shortly before 10 p.m. The 18 were all from the South with one exception — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

The House voted 278 to 97 to approve the compromise bill which was accepted last week by House and Senate leaders of both parties. The compromise was close to the version passed by the Senate after it had softened an earlier House-approved bill to make it more palatable to the South.

The bill provides for a bipartisan commission to investigate alleged violations of civil rights, a new assistant attorney general to handle civil rights cases and authority for the Justice Department to seek injunctions to protect voting rights.

As the bill passed the Senate, violators of a right-to-vote injunction could be charged with civil contempt of court and jailed by a judge, without a jury trial, until he complied with the court order. An offender would be entitled to a jury trial if charged with criminal contempt for allegedly willful violation of an injunction.

The compromise agreed on by the leaders allowed a defendant to ask for a jury trial if a judge sought to impose a sentence of $300 fine.

If the bill becomes law and the law is enforced, an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said it would result in the election of large numbers of southern

Production Of Flu Vaccine Increases

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney forecast today that between 80 and 85 million doses of Asian flu vaccine will be produced by Jan. 1.

That is enough to inoculate about half of the U.S. population. The vaccine is the only known protection against the flu epidemic which is expected to sweep the nation this fall or winter.

The new forecast represents an increase of more than 50 per cent over the vaccine production rate previously announced by the U.S. Public Health Service. Earlier official estimates called for production of about 60 million doses by Feb. 1.

Burney, head of the Public Health Service, gave the revised estimate to reporters as he met with state and territorial health officers for the windup session of a two-day conference on flu epidemic preparations.

Work was begun at the north end of town on Duncan, proceeding down through Starkweather and then Barnes. After completing this, the work crews started on north 23rd street, then turned and are coming down Russell.

The erection of the signs comes as a result of a city ordinance passed some time ago.

When work is completed the signs will be standing in every section of the city.

Some of the old signs will be replaced by the newer reflectorized type. Before work began, Pampa had 274 stop signs, and the additional 206 will bring the total to 480.

Police asked this morning that motorists give special attention while driving in Pampa and watch for the signs.

October Draft Call Down

AUSTIN (UP)—An October draft call for 338 Texans, down slightly from 387 in September, was announced today by Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state director of selective service.

The October quota for Texas is the state's share of a national call for 7,000 men.

A Failure!

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Wu Chia-ying of Pingtung in southern Formosa considered himself a failure today because he was still alive.

Police said the 32-year-old government employe in this order: Took a heavy dose of sleeping pills... Swallowed a box of sulphur match stick heads... Tried to hang himself, but the rope broke... Finally jumped out a third floor window... He suffered two broken legs and was recovering at a hospital.

Democrat Is Elected In Wisconsin

By RAY DOHERTY
United Press Staff Correspondent

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Democrat William Proxmire, Wisconsin's upset choice to replace the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, asked state officials today to cut unnecessary red tape so he can get to Washington immediately.

The 41-year-old baldish Proxmire defeated former Gov. Walter Kohler, an Eisenhower Republican, by a whopping 116,000-vote majority. The state Democratic Party called the election of Wisconsin's first Democratic senator since 1932 "an earthquake victory."

Returns from 3,359 of 3,361 precincts gave Proxmire 435,467 votes and Kohler 318,894. Three other independent candidates never were in the running and got fewer than 25,000 votes combined.

Proxmire asked the Wisconsin secretary of state to accept unofficial returns and certify him as the state's newly-elected senator. "I'm anxious to get to work," Proxmire said.

His victory increased the Democrats' ratio in the Senate to 50-46. Democrats in the state and nation hailed Proxmire's election in this traditionally Republican state as a "revolt" of farmers and small businessmen against the Eisenhower administration.

Proxmire was ahead of Kohler in the balloting from the start. A trend was evident shortly after the polls closed when returns from traditionally GOP precincts gave Proxmire the edge.

His lead mounted steadily. At 10:12 p.m. e.d.t., he claimed victory and 25 years of Democratic frustration was ended.

At his home in Kohler, Wis., Proxmire's foe, who had beaten him twice in gubernatorial elections, refused to comment.

Sights Full Term

Telephone calls to the Kohler home went unanswered and the house was dark. Kohler, who had never lost an election, was heavily favored and apparently took the setback hard.

Milwaukee attorney Howard Boyle, who campaigned as a "McCarthy Republican," got 20,451 votes; Douglas Wheaton, an "Always America First" candidate, got 2,260, and Mrs. Georgia Cozzini, a Socialist Laborite, got 762.

Kohler's expected strength in rural areas never materialized. Proxmire won 56 of the state's 71 counties. He also nailed down populous Milwaukee county, which had been viewed as pivotal.

Proxmire will serve out the remainder of McCarthy's term, which ends in January, 1959. Even as the vote totals came in, Proxmire was looking ahead to campaigning for the full six-year term.

Proxmire said he overcame three obstacles in defeating Kohler: "President Eisenhower's personal endorsement of Kohler... Kohler's status as three-time Wisconsin governor... and the Wisconsin GOP majority in the state."

New Stop Signs Are Going Up

Some 206 new reflectorized stop signs will soon be standing on many Pampa street corners.

Under direction of the City Engineer's office, work started Friday on the project and, according to Jiggs Cook, public works director, it will continue for several weeks.

Work was begun at the north end of town on Duncan, proceeding down through Starkweather and then Barnes. After completing this, the work crews started on north 23rd street, then turned and are coming down Russell.

The erection of the signs comes as a result of a city ordinance passed some time ago.

When work is completed the signs will be standing in every section of the city.

Some of the old signs will be replaced by the newer reflectorized type. Before work began, Pampa had 274 stop signs, and the additional 206 will bring the total to 480.

Police asked this morning that motorists give special attention while driving in Pampa and watch for the signs.

New Highway Patrol Officer Due Here

Sgt. E. G. Albers Jr. of the Texas Highway Patrol, has been stationed in Pampa to take command of patrolmen over a nine county area in the northeast Panhandle.

Albers, who was on the Pampa police force from April, 1946, until April, 1949, will fill a new office. Previously all direction has come from the district office in Amarillo. Now, Albers will set up a "branch" office here and report to the Amarillo office.

There will be 10 patrolmen in this area under his command. Albers comes to Pampa from Houston where he was with the highway patrol. Previously he had been stationed in Amarillo.

At the present, Albers' biggest problem is finding a house to move his wife and two children, Ed, 12, and Cathy, 5, into.

Albers office will be located in the highway patrol room in the first floor of the Gray County Courthouse.

His assignment becomes effective Sept. 1.

Final Russian 'Nyet' Is Expected, However

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (UP) — Harold E. Stassen still hopes "something can be salvaged" from the disarmament conference here despite Russia's repeated rejections of Western arms reduction plans, it was reported today.

Sources said the U. S. delegate will seek Soviet acceptance of his "minimum open skies" proposal — covering air inspection of the Arctic — when the arms talks resume today.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister V. A. Zorin, who flatly rejected Stassen's "maximum" air inspection plan Tuesday, brushed off the minimum proposal at the same time as something that could "hardly be regarded seriously."

Sees Further Discussion

Stassen was said to feel that left the door open to further discussion of the issue.

Meanwhile, the Soviet propaganda machine was blasting out Russia's claim to have tested a successful intercontinental ballistic missile. A Radio Moscow broadcast today said the claim "ought to cool off Western hotheds."

"Never since the U.S.S.R. built its hydrogen bomb has Russian defense made such a gigantic step forward," the Soviet radio said. "This ought to cool off hotheds like Gen. (Lauris) Norstad, who planned to attack the U.S.S.R. from four sides."

The broadcast said Russia will continue to "work unflinchingly" for a disarmament agreement — on Soviet terms.

Russia's Claim Uncertain

The key to Russia's disarmament proposals is a demand for a ban on atomic weapons and a halt to nuclear tests, which in effect would remove the only effective force opposing the huge armies of the Communist world.

Despite the spate of words pouring out of the Kremlin about Russia's "super-long distance multi-stage intercontinental ballistic missile," Western experts were still unable to determine exactly what Russia is claiming.

One Soviet official said at an embassy reception Tuesday night that Russia's missile would have a range of 3,000 miles "if tested on one side of the U.S.S.R." and 6,000 miles "if tested on the other."

Western experts could extract nothing intelligible from this except the assumption that he meant the Soviet weapon had a maximum range of 6,000 miles.

The missile claim lent ominous weight, however, to increasing indications that the Russians are about ready to say their final "nyet" in the arms talks that have been dragging on here for months.

'Confidential' Libel Trial Continues

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Defense attorney Arthur J. Crowley today resumes his efforts to establish that Confidential magazine articulated its spicy yarns and rejected "vicious" stories about such big names as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Marilyn Monroe.

The defense strategy in the Confidential criminal libel trial Tuesday was directed at attempting to show the so-called scandal magazine printed only the truth and rejected falsehoods. The key defense witness was New York attorney Albert De Stefano.

De Stefano was expected to end his testimony in today's session. He is a member of the New York law firm of Becker, Ross and Stone, which was hired to check potential Confidential stories for libel and obscenity.

The attorney testified that an article submitted about Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the late president, his firm because it was "a vicious was turned down on the advice of Editor Howard Rushmore carried on a "running battle" with him in an attempt to get the story printed.

Rushmore appeared earlier in the trial as a prosecution witness. He testified that he quit Confidential when the magazine "began specializing in pornography."

De Stefano said he had many arguments with Rushmore over changes in stories.

"We also argued about a story dealing with Marilyn Monroe and a photographer named Sam Shaw," De Stefano said. "I rejected it because it was written on hearsay."

Crowley, prior to calling De Stefano to the stand, launched an all out battle against prosecution testimony that Mrs. Marjorie Meade, co-operator with her husband of Confidential's movieland listening post, tried to "blackmail" film producer Paul Gregory. Gregory testified earlier in the sensational trial that Mrs. Meade demanded between $750 and $1,000 to keep a story about him out of Confidential.

The defense called four surprise witnesses in an effort to impeach the producer's testimony. The angered Crowley made it clear he was out to obtain a perjury indictment against Gregory.

US Intelligence Doubles Efforts On Red Rocket

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. intelligence efforts redoubled today to learn the truth behind the Soviet claim to have fired an intercontinental ballistic rocket.

Statements from highest government levels showed that so far the government doesn't know what really happened.

Experts have said the Russian claim could mean much or little.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Tuesday that the Soviets neglected to mention whether their rocket hit a large or small target. He said U. S. intelligence agencies would make a careful study of the announcement.

Acting Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles said in carefully-mediated military significance of the so-called (Missile) race has been greatly exaggerated.

His statement came a few hours after Dulles told a news conference that Russia's announced test of such a missile would have no immediate effect on the world balance of power.

Final Protests Against Rights Bill Due

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate went back to extra-hour sessions today to give southern Democrats a chance to register last-gasp protests against the civil rights bill.

Although some of them were snarling under criticism from their home states, there was no immediate sign that the southerners would filibuster against the compromise measure given final approval by the House Tuesday.

However, speeches and perhaps other dilatory tactics were expected to keep the Senate tied up for two or three days and possibly into next week.

The compromise agreed on by the leaders allowed a defendant to ask for a jury trial if a judge sought to impose a sentence of $300 fine.

If the bill becomes law and the law is enforced, an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said it would result in the election of large numbers of southern Negroes to city councils, state legislatures and to Congress.

Southern Democrats in the Senate, who had doubted that they could defeat civil rights legislation by resorting to their traditional filibuster weapons, had believed they achieved great success in watering down the House bill.

Then some of them began hearing complaints from home because they had not tried to talk the bill to death. For that reason, there were some vague hints that a filibuster might be launched against the final version on the eve of adjournment for the 1957 session.

Every new mother needs to give extra time to her looks. It's best to start as soon as possible after she brings the baby home. It's easiest then to get her figure back into shape. And it's also the time when babies tend to sleep the most. This young mother follows exercise with a relaxing stretch in the tub. She uses (left) a semi-stiff body brush on knees, elbows, hands and nails. The brush removes both grime and dead skin. She refirms abdominal muscles (center) by tossing a deck of cards into the air, then getting down on hands and knees to pick each one up separately. This crawl will do wonders for her figure. She combines her own grooming with baby chores (right) as she dries her hands after sterilizing the baby's bottles. Here, she pushes back cuticle before she tosses towel into hamper. Then she uses a protective hand cream.

Baby Is Cute, But Mama's A Wreck Needs Time To Fit In Beauty Routine

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

Has that heavenly bundle you've brought home from the hospital played havoc with your beauty routine?

Most new mothers, especially if they have no additional help, find themselves in a whirl of extra work, with little time to devote to keeping themselves attractive.

Since young babies sleep a good part of the day, the wise young mother will map out a routine that will enable her to use some of the time while her infant is napping to improve her own appearance.

It's a lucky and rare gal whose figure hasn't been affected by the birth of her baby. Exercise is needed to tone muscles that have become slack. There are two that are excellent. The first is to get down on your hands and knees and crawl around the floor for a few minutes. Sounds silly, per-

The second is the old dance kick for getting the waistline back into shape. Stand against the wall with your back absolutely straight and your arms spread out. Move away from the wall and kick your right leg up so that it touches the left hand. Repeat with the left leg and right hand.

When you have become accustomed to having your baby at home with you, you will have become well enough organized to know whether it's more convenient for you to bathe or shower in the morning or at night. But whatever you do, don't put it off. It's not only necessary for personal cleanliness, but it's wonderful for getting rid of the kinks that develop from bending and stooping to take care of baby.

If you take showers, your weekly shampoo can be managed at the same time. The shower is a good place in which to give your hair a good sudsing lather, for it not only saves time, but permits a much more thorough rinsing than any other method.

It's a cinch that mother's hands will be clean with a new baby around. And with her hands in water so often, it would be a good idea for her to gently push back the cuticle occasionally after she dries her hands. She should have her nails smoothly filed, too. Not only will they look pretty, but she won't risk scratching baby with a rough nail.

The young mother who takes pride in her own appearance will be rewarded amply by her husband's pleasure in his pretty wife.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE (Mrs. Muriel Lawrence is on vacation. In her absence, noted psychiatrist Eric Fromm discusses six frequently asked questions on child-parent relationship. His answers are condensed from his book, "Man For Himself," published by Rinehart and Co.)

Q. Is "mother love" different from other kinds of love? A. Motherly love is the most frequent and most readily understood instance of productive love; its very essence is care and responsibility.

During the birth of the child the mother's body "labors" for the child and after birth her love consists in her effort to make the child grow. Motherly love does not depend on conditions which the child has to fulfill in order to be loved; it is unconditional, based only upon the child's request and the mother's response.

But not so evident is the connection of care and responsibility with individual love; it is believed that to fall in love is already the culmination of love, while actually it is the beginning and only an opportunity for the achievement of love.

It is believed that love is the result of a mysterious quality by which two people are attracted to each other, an event which occurs without effort. Indeed, man's loneliness and his sexual desires make it easy to fall in love and there is nothing mysterious about it, but it is a gain which is quickly lost as it has been achieved.

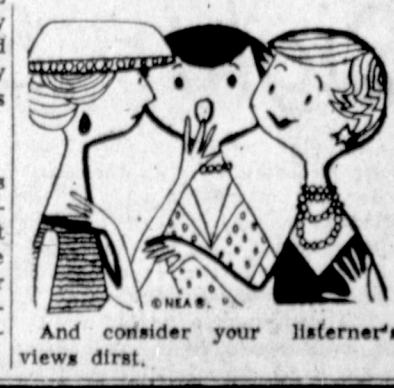

One is not loved accidentally; one's own power to love produces love — just as being interested makes one interesting. People are concerned with the question of whether they are attractive while they forget that the essence of attractiveness is their own capacity to love.

To love a person productively implies to care and to feel responsible for his life, not only for his physical existence but for the growth and development of all his human powers.

While it may be said that love for man differs from motherly love inasmuch as the child is helpless and our fellow men are not, it may be said that even this difference exists only in relative terms. All men are in need of help and depend on one another. Human solidarity is the necessary condition for the unfolding of any one individual.

There are scores of "touchy" subjects around these days. Consider them before you speak.

And consider your listener's views first.

'Dem Bones' Right Key To Brow Line

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

Using an eyebrow pencil correctly for the best effect is a trick that puzzles many women. So they end up with a hard line or a badly slanted line or an arch-ed line that gives them a perpetually surprised expression. Actually, finding the right brow line for you is easy.

Simply trace the bone structure with your fingertips. This will show you just where to sketch in the fine hairs to simulate your own brows. For some obscure reason, your own eyebrows and your bone structure may not be one and the same. This is why your natural brow line may be one that's unbecoming. But you can achieve an artificial brow line that's equally unbecoming if you ignore the bone structure. Once you've traced it, it takes seconds, literally, to put on your new brows since the sweep of line is indicated for you.

Teen-agers who learn the right skin care from the beginning are the ones who will have glowing complexions in later years. To begin with, be sure that you use your washcloth with an upward motion. Never scrub downward. There's a sound reason for this. When you use facecloth or towel in a downward motion, you're encouraging facial muscles to sag. Nothing will show up in your teens, of course, but later on you'll get the unpleasant results.

The same thing applies when and if you use a face cream or lotion. Use it with gentle upward strokes and take it easy on that fine, thin skin around the eyes. Don't try to make an expressionless mark of your face in order to avoid wrinkles. But on the other hand, don't grimace and make faces needlessly since this is a dandy way to pick up permanent frown and squint lines.

Women who brush their teeth once a day, just before breakfast, are not brushing away possible decay. They're just delighting in a nice toothpaste taste. Best time to brush your teeth, of course, is after each meal. But if this isn't possible, then rinse out your mouth with cold water. And be sure to brush your teeth before you go to bed at night.

If you're really serious about cutting down on tooth decay, make use of dental floss once a day, preferably at bedtime. The toothpaste you pick isn't important since they're all good. But the time that you make use of it is important.

A Few Cues For Teen-Agers Ready For New World Of Fashion "Firsts"

NEW YORK — Should a teen-ager wear black?

How high should a girl's first "heels" be?

What does a girl wear to her first formal dance? Teen-agers who this year are ready for a whole new world of fashion "firsts" will find their clothes questions answered in the September issue of Seventeen Magazine. The publication's 30-page fall fashion portfolio features suggested "firsts" in black dresses, formal gowns and shoes with heels along with newly introduced styles in officer's coats, daytime and date dresses and blouses.

To take a girl on that thrilling first college weekend, Seventeen shows slim sport dresses in red and taupe tones; short dance dresses in lace with a wool plaid cummerbund and jacket or a ribbon-trimmed bodice; and leopard-trimmed fave fur suit jackets, linings and overboots.

FIRST BLACK DRESS

A teen-ager definitely can wear black if it is softened with white or color, says the September issue of Seventeen Magazine. In-ner black creates the best effect when it is not sleek, not sheath, not sophisticated — as in the full-skirted black wool jersey shirt-dress chosen by the publication to epitomize this young look. A lace-trimmed, white linen Puritan collar and matching cuffs on long sleeves add an aura of ladylike innocence.

FIRST FORMAL GOWN

A girl should whirl around the floor at her first formal dance (and all others, too) in a short, bouffant dress, its waist dramatically defined by a wide sash or cummerbund. Bodice styles can range from bare to quite covered-up. One strapless dress featured in the September Seventeen is molded of embroidered rayon taffeta. Back interest is provided by a bustle attached to a contrasting taffeta sash.

FIRST HEELS

One of the most exciting times in a young girl's life arrives when she dons a pair of high-heeled shoes for the first time. She wants them to be low enough to manage gracefully, slender enough to look high. The September issue of Seventeen Magazine shows five such pumps, all with slim, mid-high heels and tapered toes, that are ready to step out on any dress-up occasion.

Wide bows appear on the round throats of two suede pumps with curved heels. Suede pumps with skinnier, middling heels are seen in pearl buttoned and leather tabbed styles. A small, rhinestone-buckled version of the ultra-fashionable T-strap is found on an elegant, tapered- toe shoe.

OFFICER'S COATS

The "big" young coat of the year will be a feminized adaptation of the officer's coat, according to the September Seventeen. Brass buttons, high collars and raised belts trademark this new coat style. One mohair plush shown has a high turtle neck tuffed in gilt and a flared back laced with an Empire belt. Another version of the officer's coat is semi flared with a button-trimmed Empire front belt. The cover coat is buttoned in brass on the cowl collar, down the front and on the panel back.

DRESSES

Blue with white icing will take the teen-age girl daytime places this fall, reports Seventeen this month (September). This perennial Spring favorite now arrives as a top-year-round favorite. One easy column of woven argyle wool jersey is drawn in at the waist by a narrow patent belt; white is added in a linen collar trimmed with black braid. A full skirted, tweed textured rayon is wrapped at the waist with velvet ribbon; a linen collar provides the touch of white.

The newest dressy fabrics shown for teen-age wear this fall are so-called "textured" fabrics like velveteen and wool. Drapable crepe is seen in a date dress which meets the figure only at the self-belted waist. Hem-length gath-ers descend from a front and back yoke. The essence of simplicity is one self-belted sheath in print velveteen; the neck is high, round and collarless, the sleeves long.

BLOUSES

A young girl's wardrobe should be brimming over with blouses this year, and Seventeen's September selection includes a septet of newcomers for fall and winter, shirts, unusual neckline styles, middies and overblouses. Silk broadcloth falls into a three-quarter sleeved, ladylike shirt with tucked front and yoke back; fill in the neckline with gilt or pearl ropes and it can go on any "little" evening. Elegant satin shapes a three-quarter sleeved overblouse with small Puritan collar.

Just about every shirt style imaginable is shown in printed cotton, some drip dry and some combined with Dacron. One is a convertible collar, three-quarter sleeves and yoke front and back; another has a small pointed collar and long sleeves with adjustable buttoned cuffs and a third has a button-on pleated jabot, long cuffed sleeves and silver buttons. A broadcloth blouse with pleated front comes with a button-on kerchief for monogramming. The sound of the sea is heard in a mildy overblouse with embroidered stars on the contrasting border of the sailor collar. The drawing waist ties on each side.

After class is over, a girl can get into shirt and tapered slacks for her leisure hours on the campus. This coed wears washable orion-and-wool jersey shirt in moss green with tapered slacks in a plaid of moss green. Slacks are orion-and-wool; are also washable.—By GAILE DUGAS, NEA Women's Editor.

Cleopatra Would Revel In Sprays

The famous beauties of history could not command any of the beauty aids that any one of us can buy today on a budget. Cleopatra and Marie Antoinette had luxurious palaces but they had to spend hours beautifying themselves with beauty helps that we wouldn't even consider using.

Cleopatra, in her Roman bath, attempted to scrub herself clean with a natural soda. She had nothing as luxurious as soap and bubbling bath crystals. She had perfumes, true, but they were crude forms wrung from flower petals by her slaves.

It would be interesting to see her reaction to a sparkling spray cologne, one that would envelope her instantly in a cloud of subtle and sophisticated fragrance.

Today, such cologne is for every one of us. It's inexpensive, beautifully packaged, delightful to own and to use. And if you like, you can match its scent in bubbling bath crystals, dusting powder, hand and body lotion. Cleopatra never had it so good.

Will America's Plane Builders Dominate New Age Of Travel?

First of Four Dispatches By GLENN STACKHOUSE United Press Staff Correspondent SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—In the mahogany-paneled battlefields of international commerce, a bare-knuckle scrap is shaping up over whether America's airplane builders will dominate the new age of turbine travel.

Union, obviously preparing to equip the jet airlines of the Communist bloc.

Competition Spurs Work This upsurge of foreign competition has made itself felt. Figures of one year ago showed that of some 5,000 transport aircraft in service throughout the world, 85 per cent were American-built.

Negro Day Nursery About Ready

Mrs. Rufus McDuffie, president of the Negro Women's Council, has announced that the Day Nursery for colored children is almost ready for use.

Both planes were behind the British Vickers Viscount, the smooth turbo-prop plane that has been in airline service now for more than a year.

But in turboprops, it's Britain's Vickers and Bristol firms with 258 orders to only 189 for America's Lockheed and Fairchild.

There is still an urgent need for used baby-beds and linoleum floor-covering. Anyone wishing to contribute towards these items, were asked to call Mrs. McDuffie, MO 4-112, for pick-up.

As of today, American manufacturers have yet to roll out their Douglas Aircraft, deeply involved in getting out its long-range DC8, is already thinking of a DC9 model for the short range field.

Latest word from the British front came recently from Sir Miles Thomas, former chairman of BOAC and currently head of a committee to study British air transport.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (UP)— Stocks pushed their recovery ahead at a good pace early today with gains ranging past a point in most leading groups.

Only decreased activity put a damper on the move, generally considered a technical recovery lent added impetus by the belief Russia's claim to the intercontinental ballistic missile will result in a speed-up of the U.S. missile program.

Standouts included Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak, up around two points in the chemicals; Boeing, Martin, United and Lockheed, up close to a point in the aircrafts; Lukens and Youngstown Sheet & Tube with gains of around a point in the steels; Reynolds Metals, Magna Copper and National Lead up over one each in the metals; Goodyear, a point higher in the tires.

International Utilities ran up 2 1/2 points, Minneapolis Honeywell 3 1/4; Hertz, International Paper, American Home Products, General Electric, Bath Iron Works and Amerasia around a point or more.

There was one collision reported to Pampa police during the past day.

Every new mother needs to give extra time to her looks. It's best to start as soon as possible after she brings the baby home. It's easiest then to get her figure back into shape. And it's also the time when babies tend to sleep the most. This young mother follows exercise with a relaxing stretch in the tub. She uses (left) a semi-stiff body brush on knees, elbows, hands and nails. The brush removes both grime and dead skin. She refirms abdominal muscles (center) by tossing a deck of cards into the air, then getting down on hands and knees to pick each one up separately. This crawl will do wonders for her figure. She combines her own grooming with baby chores (right) as she dries her hands after sterilizing the baby's bottles. Here, she pushes back cuticle before she tosses towel into hamper. Then she uses a protective hand cream.

Baby Is Cute, But Mama's A Wreck Needs Time To Fit In Beauty Routine

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

Has that heavenly bundle you've brought home from the hospital played havoc with your beauty routine?

Most new mothers, especially if they have no additional help, find themselves in a whirl of extra work, with little time to devote to keeping themselves attractive.

Since young babies sleep a good part of the day, the wise young mother will map out a routine that will enable her to use some of the time while her infant is napping to improve her own appearance.

It's a lucky and rare gal whose figure hasn't been affected by the birth of her baby. Exercise is needed to tone muscles that have become slack. There are two that are excellent. The first is to get down on your hands and knees and crawl around the floor for a few minutes.

Sounds silly, perhaps, but it will do a lot toward removing aches in the sides and back, because it helps to bring all of your muscles into their proper places.

The second is the old dance kick for getting the waistline back into shape. Stand against the wall with your back absolutely straight and your arms spread out. Move away from the wall and kick your right leg up so that it touches the left hand. Repeat with the left leg and right hand.

When you have become accustomed to having your baby at home with you, you will have become well enough organized to know whether it's more convenient for you to bathe or shower in the morning or at night. But whatever you do, don't put it off. It's not only necessary for personal cleanliness, but it's wonderful for getting rid of the kinks that develop from bending and stooping to take care of baby.

If you take showers, your weekly shampoo can be managed at the same time. The shower is a good place in which to give your hair a good sudsing lather, for it not only saves time, but permits a much more thorough rinsing than any other method.

It's a cinch that mother's hands will be clean with a new baby around. And with her hands in water so often, it would be a good idea for her to gently push back the cuticle occasionally after she dries her hands. She should have her nails smoothly filed, too. Not only will they look pretty, but she won't risk scratching baby with a rough nail.

The young mother who takes pride in her own appearance will be rewarded amply by her husband's pleasure in his pretty wife.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE (Mrs. Muriel Lawrence is on vacation. In her absence, noted psychiatrist Eric Fromm discusses six frequently asked questions on child-parent relationship. His answers are condensed from his book, "Man For Himself," published by Rinehart and Co.)

Q. Is "mother love" different from other kinds of love? A. Motherly love is the most frequent and most readily understood instance of productive love; its very essence is care and responsibility.

During the birth of the child the mother's body "labors" for the child and after birth her love consists in her efforts to make the child grow. Motherly love does not depend on conditions which the child has to fulfill in order to be loved; it is unconditional, based only upon the child's request and the mother's response.

But not so evident is the connection of care and responsibility with individual love; it is believed that to fall in love is already the culmination of love, while actually it is the beginning and only an opportunity for the achievement of love.

It is believed that love is the result of a mysterious quality by which two people are attracted to each other, an event which occurs without effort. Indeed, man's loneliness and his sexual desires make it easy to fall in love and there is nothing mysterious about it, but it is a gain which is quickly lost as it has been achieved.

One is not loved accidentally; one's own power to love produces love — just as being interested makes one interesting. People are concerned with the question of whether they are attractive while they forget that the essence of attractiveness is their own capacity to love.

To love a person productively implies to care and to feel responsible for his life, not only for his physical existence but for the growth and development of all his human powers.

While it may be said that love for man differs from motherly love inasmuch as the child is helpless and our fellow men are not, it may be said that even this difference exists only in relative terms. All men are in need of help and depend on one another. Human solidarity is the necessary condition for the unfolding of any one individual.

Manners Makes Friends

There are scores of "touchy" subjects around these days. Consider them before you speak.

And consider your listener's views first.

'Dem Bones' Right Key To Brow Line

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor Using an eyebrow pencil correctly for the best effect is a trick that puzzles many women. So they end up with a hard line or a badly slanted line or an arched line that gives them a perpetually surprised expression. Actually, finding the right brow line for you is easy.

Simply trace the bone structure with your fingertips. This will show you just where to sketch in the fine hairs to simulate your own brows. For some obscure reason, your own eyebrows and your bone structure may not be one and the same. This is why your natural brow line may be one that's unbecoming. But you can achieve an artificial brow line that's equally unbecoming if you ignore the bone structure. Once you've traced it, it takes seconds, literally, to put on your new brows since the sweep of line is indicated for you.

Teen-agers who learn the right skin care from the beginning are the ones who will have glowing complexions in later years. To begin with, be sure that you use your washcloth with an upward motion. Never scrub downward. There's a sound reason for this. When you use facecloth or towel in a downward motion, you're encouraging facial muscles to sag. Nothing will show up in your teens of course, but later on you'll get the unpleasant results.

The same thing applies when and if you use a face cream or lotion. Use it with gentle upward strokes and take it easy on that fine, thin skin around the eyes. Don't try to make an expressionless mark of your face in order to avoid wrinkles. But on the other hand, don't grimace and make faces needlessly since this is a dandy way to pick up permanent frown and squint lines.

Women who brush their teeth once a day, just before breakfast, are not brushing away possible decay. They're just delighting in a nice toothpaste taste. Best time to brush your teeth, of course, is after each meal. But if this isn't possible, then rinse out your mouth with cold water. And be sure to brush your teeth before you go to bed at night.

If you're really serious about cutting down on tooth decay, make use of dental floss once a day, preferably at bedtime. The toothpaste you pick isn't important since they're all good. But the time that you make use of it is important.

A Few Cues For Teen-Agers Ready For New World Of Fashion "Firsts"

NEW YORK — Should a teen-ager wear black? How high should a girl's first "heels" be? What does a girl wear to her first formal dance?

Teen-agers who this year are ready for a whole new world of fashion "firsts" will find their clothes questions answered in the September "Your Wonderful World" issue of Seventeen Magazine. The publication's 30-page fall fashion portfolio features suggested "firsts" in black dresses, formal gowns and shoes with heels along with newly introduced styles in officer's coats, daytime and date dresses and blouses.

To take a girl on that thrilling first college weekend, Seventeen shows slim sport dresses in red and navy tones; short dance dresses in lace with a wool plaid camisole and jacket or a ribbon-trimmed bodice; and leopard-trimmed fur for suit jackets, linings and overblouses.

FIRST BLACK DRESS A teen-ager definitely can wear black if it is softened with white or color, says the September issue of Seventeen Magazine. Ingenious black creates the best effect when it is not sleek, not sheath, not sophisticated — as in the full-skirted black wool jersey shirt-dress chosen by the publication to epitomize this young look. A lace-trimmed, white linen Puritan collar and matching cuffs on long sleeves add an aura of ladylike innocence.

FIRST FORMAL GOWN A girl should whirl around the floor at her first formal dance (and all others too) in a short, bouffant dress. Its waist dramatically defined by a wide sash of cummerbund. Bodice styles can range from bare to quite covered up. One strapless dress featured in the September Seventeen is molded of embroidered rayon taffeta. Back interest is provided by a bustle attached to a contrasting taffeta sash.

For the more covered-up look, the magazine chooses a nylon sheer formal with sleeveless, surplice-neck bodice. A gathered velvet cummerbund draws a tiny waist above a circular pleated skirt.

FIRST HEELS One of the most exciting times in a young girl's life arrives when she dons a pair of high-heeled shoes for the first time. She wants them to be low enough to manage gracefully, slender enough to look high. The September issue of Seventeen Magazine shows five such pumps, all with slim, mid-high heels and tapered toes, that are ready to step out on any dress-up occasion.

Wide bows appear on the round throats of two suede pumps with curved heels. Suede pumps with thin, mid-high heels are seen in pearl buttoned and leather tabbed styles. A small, rhinestone-buckled version of the ultra-fashionable T-strap is found on an elegant, tapered-toe shoe.

OFFICER'S COATS The "big" young coat of the year will be a feminized adaptation of the officer's coat, according to the September Seventeen. Brass buttons, high collars and raised belts trademark this new coat style. One mohair plush shown has a high turtle neck buttoned in gilt and a flared back laced with an Empire belt. Another version of the officer's coat is semi flared with a button-trimmed Empire front belt. The cover coat is buttoned in brass on the cowl collar, down the front and on the panel back.

DRESSES Blue with white icing will take the teen-age girl daytime places this fall, reports Seventeen this month (September). This perennial Spring favorite now arrives as a top-year-round favorite. One easy column of woven argyle wool jersey is drawn in at the waist by a narrow patent belt; white is added in a linen collar trimmed with black braid. A full skirted, tweed textured rayon is wrapped at the waist with velvet ribbon; a linen collar provides the touch of white.

The newest dressy fabrics shown for teen-agers wear this fall are soft crepe and floral-print velveteen and wool. Drapable crepe is seen in a date dress which meets the figure only at the self-belted waist. Hem-length gathers descend from a front and back yoke. The essence of simplicity is one self-belted sheath in print velveteen; the neck is high, round and collarless, the sleeves long.

BLOUSES A young girl's wardrobe should be brimming over with blouses this year, and Seventeen's September selection includes a print (a newcomer for fall and winter), shirts, unusual neckline styles, middles and overblouses.

Silk broadcloth falls into a three-quarter sleeved, ladylike shirt with tucked front and yoke back; fill in the neckline with gilt or pearl ropes and it can go out on any "little" evening. Elegant satin shapes a three-quarter sleeved overblouse with small Puritan collar.

Just about every shirt style imaginable is shown in printed cotton, some drip dry and some combined with Dacron. One has a convertible collar. Three-quarter sleeves and yoke front and back; another has a small pointed collar and long sleeves with adjustable buttoned cuffs and a third has a button-on-pleated jabot, long cuffed sleeves and silver buttons.

A broadcloth blouse with pleated front comes with a button-on kerchief for monogramming. The sound of the seas is heard in a middie overblouse with embroidered stars on the contrasting border of the sailor collar. The drawing string waist ties on each side.

CANNED MEAT TIP Chill canned meats for easier slicing and more attractive appearance.

After class is over, a girl can get into shirt and tapered slacks for her leisure hours on the campus. This coed wears washable orion-and-wool jersey shirt in moss green with tapered slacks in a plaid of moss green. Slacks are in orion-and-wool; are also washable.—By GAILE DUGAS, NEA Women's Editor.

Cleopatra Would Revel In Sprays

The famous beauties of history could not command any of the beauty aids that any one of us can buy today on a budget. Cleopatra and Marie Antoinette had luxurious palaces but they had to spend hours beautifying themselves with beauty helps that we wouldn't even consider using.

Cleopatra, in her Roman bath, attempted to scrub herself clean with a natural soda. She had nothing as luxurious as soap and bubbling bath crystals. She had perfumes, true, but they were crude forms wrung from flower petals by her slaves.

It would be interesting to see her reaction to a sparkling spray cologne, one that would envelope her instantly in a cloud of subtle and sophisticated fragrance.

Today, such cologne is for every one of us. It's inexpensive, beautifully packaged, delightful to own and to use. And if you like, you can match its scent in bubbling bath crystals, dusting powder, hand and body lotion. Cleopatra never had it so good.

Can You Use It?

Man, when you've just got to have $480 to meet some unexpected expense, like hospital or dental or a car overhaul or something that can look like $480,000, can't it? But wait, now. Just get on your bicycle and get yourself down here, and let US consolidate those bills. We know all about your kind of troubles—we see 'em all day long. And LOOK: $24.85 is not a lot of money, is it? Well, $24.85 repays that $480 S.I.C. loan (24 months) — of course, subject to usual credit regulations. Will America's Plane Builders Dominate New Age Of Travel?

By GLENN STACKHOUSE
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—In the mahogany-paneled battlefields of international commerce, a bare-knuckle scrap is sniping up over whether America's airplane builders will dominate the new age of turbine travel.

The piston engine era is coming to a close. American plane builders have swamped the field for 30 years.

The jet era is opening, and the British and French have declared themselves in for a fair piece of it. In the shadows is the Soviet Union, obviously preparing to equip the jet airlines of the Communist bloc.

The battle of slide rules, sales charts and high finance is a quiet one so far as the public is concerned. But the more observant man-on-the-street saw part of it earlier this year when two shiny new foreign-built airliners toured the United States.

Britannia Broke Ice
First came the British-made Bristol Britannia, a huge, four-engine turboprop luxury job dubbed "The Whispering Giant."

Behind it came the French twin-jet Caravelle, burning almost as much champagne as it did gasoline as it hopped from city to city.

On both occasions, American builders watched glumly as the visitors offered free rides to airline executives while smiling salesmen poured cocktails and propaganda.

Both planes were behind the British Vickers Viscount, the smooth turbo-prop plane that has been in airline service now for more than a year.

The pure jet plane is powered by the thrust from its propeller-less engines. The turboprop gets its power both from the propeller and the thrust from the engines' exhausts.

As of today, American manufacturers have yet to roll out their first production jet airliner. Great Britain's De Havilland Co. flew the four-jet Comet II five years ago.

Competition Spurs Work
This upsurge of foreign competition has made itself felt. Figures of one year ago showed that of some 5,000 transport aircraft in service throughout the world, 85 per cent were American-built. Today there are about 1,225 jet and turboprop aircraft on order by the world's airlines—and only about 74 per cent will be American.

This is not exactly causing chaos in American circles. As Boeing, Douglas and Convair close in on their delivery dates, their jet sales are holding brisk. Their orders for the next four years total 722 jets compared with 56 orders of the Comet IV and the Caravelle.

But in turboprops, it's Britain's Vickers and Bristol firms with 258 orders to only 189 for America's Lockheed and Fairchild.

British aviation experts believe, and rightly so, that the emergence of the Caravelle and Comet IV in the short-to-medium market may force American manufacturers to speed their own activity in that field.

Douglas After More Models
Douglas Aircraft, deeply involved in getting out its long-range DC8, is already thinking of a DC9 model for the short range field, while Boeing recently announced it was adding a smaller 717 model to supplement its long range and intercontinental 707 series.

Latest word from the British front came recently from Sir Miles Thomas, former chairman of BOAC and currently head of a committee to study British air transport.

Sir Miles recommended that Britain immediately start work toward the supersonic era and develop a 3,500 m.p.m. jet airliner to capture the "blue ribbon" London-to-New York traffic.

He suggested a futuristic, vertical take-off plane which would fly at 60,000 feet with 125 passengers and make the trans-Atlantic hop in two and one-half hours.

"We are satisfied from expert evidence that this project is a practical proposition within the next few years," he said.

Syria May Be Smuggling Weapons
By MURRAY BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent
An authoritative Western source said today Syria is smuggling arms to subversive elements in pro-Western Jordan and Lebanon.

"We have definite proof of this," the source said in Istanbul.

The statement came even while U.S. Undersecretary of State Loy Henderson prepared to leave Ankara for Beirut to confer with Lebanese officials on the Syrian crisis.

Henderson, who was urgently dispatched to the Middle East last weekend, said his talks with Turkish leaders and the rulers of pro-Western Jordan and Iraq were "extremely hopeful."

The source is privy to the latest intelligence crossing pro-Western and Western diplomatic desks.

He said the Syrians are concentrating on stirring up dissident army officers. King Hussein already has accused Syria of helping to foment the abortive leftist plot against him last spring.

In Lebanon, the source said, the Syrians are trying to whip up the Moslem population against Christians.

In London, meantime, British government sources said Russia already has poured hundreds of tanks and scores of planes into Syria. A large number of Soviet "technicians" also are pouring in, stirring fears the Syrians may eventually try aggression.

Negro Day Nursery About Ready

Mrs. Rufus McDuffie, president of the Negro Women's Council, has announced that the Day Nursery for colored children is almost ready for use.

An open house will be held Friday from two until five in the afternoon. The public is cordially invited to see the product of their interest and co-operation, she said.

There is still an urgent need for used baby-beds and linoleum floor-covering. Anyone wishing to contribute towards these items, were asked to call Mrs. McDuffie, MO 4-4112, for pick-up.

The United Church Women, who have worked with the Women's Council in this project, join with them in expressing their appreciation and thanks to the following persons who have contributed in various ways: Acme Lumber Co., Lynn Boyl Lumber Co., Panhandle Lumber Co., Highland Lumber Co., Monarch Hardware and Lumber Co., Jansy Furniture Store, Rod McDonald Furniture Store, and the Acme Mattress Co.

To those organizations and individuals who have helped in the project, the Women's Council and United Church women, also, expressed their appreciation.

Canadian Cop Slays Three Children, Self
QUEEN CITY, Que. (UP)—A high-ranking police official Tuesday night hurled two of his children to their deaths in the St. Lawrence River, then leaped to his own death clutching his third child.

Authorities said Roland Masse, 42, chief of the detectives in the Quebec City police force was walking along a pier when he suddenly flung his son, Richard, 4, and a daughter, Micheline, 8, into the harbor.

The third child, Lisette, 12, ran along the pier, screaming hysterically for help. But, as bystanders looked on in horror, Masse caught the child when she tripped over a coil of rope. He then leaped into the water clutching her in his arms.

Crewmembers of a ship tied up nearby threw life buoys into the water in a futile rescue attempt.

Authorities said Masse had appeared depressed the last two months. They said he left his office Tuesday evening, went home and told his wife he was taking the children for a drive in a police cruiser.

The children were walking along the pier with their father as darkness was setting in when he suddenly turned on them.

Authorities said it probably would be at least two days before any of the bodies could be recovered because the tragedy took place during an ebb tide.

Two were in San Antonio. Anita Fay Malone, eight months, drowned when she fell into the bathtub of her San Antonio home. David Oliver Payne, seven months, was being washed in the bathtub by his mother. She left the room for a moment and returned to find him floating face down. He was dead on arrival at a San Antonio hospital.

Delva Jane Williams, ten months, of Plainview, suffered the same fate as Payne. Her mother left her in the tub to attend to another child and returned to find her dead.

Condemnation Hearing Held
Some nine landowners were involved in a land condemnation hearing this morning in the County Court room.

The Natural Gas Pipe Line Company, the other party in the suit, wants to get clearance for pipe lines through several Gray County farms.

Last Friday, the medication board, which was appointed by County Judge Bruce Parker, heard the suits of two landowners and awarded them $7 per rod for the land taken by the pipe line.

If the land owners and the gas company do not agree to the board's decision, the case is taken to County Court.

At press time today the hearing was still in process.

400 Expected At Picnic
An estimated 400 persons will attend the annual Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association picnic tomorrow evening on the Rube Thompson place, located four miles east of Miami on Highway 60.

The affair will begin at 5 p.m. with registration, followed at 6 with a barbecue dinner.

The program will consist of an address by Durwood Levator, commercial feed lot operator from Lubbock.

George Washington Carver discovered more than 300 uses for the peanut.

Ike Expected To Veto Bills

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republicans predicted today President Eisenhower will veto an inflationary Congress-passed pay boosts for $1,488,000 federal workers.

The two big pay boost bills would "tatten the pay envelopes for postal and government white collar workers an estimated $16,640,000 a year."

The Senate Tuesday night overwhelmingly approved both bills despite strong administration objections and persistent forecasts of presidential vetoes. The bills—already easily cleared through the House—were sent to the White House.

The President has repeatedly denounced the bills as inflationary. Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland flatly predicted Eisenhower would veto both of them. Others echoed the prediction.

The legislation cleared the Senate by a top-heavy vote. The postal pay bill was approved by a roll call vote of 69-17. The vote on the raise for white collar Civil Service employes was 63-22.

The postal pay bill would affect about 518,000 letter carriers and other Post Office Department field workers and would cost an estimated 279 million dollars a year. Their average increase would be $546 a year.

The companion measure would give an average raise of $515 a year to 960,000 Civil Service workers at an estimated cost of $537,640,000 annually. The maximum raise would be $1,000 and employees earning more than $16,000 would not be affected.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks pushed their recovery ahead at a good pace early today with gains ranging past a point in most leading groups.

Only decreased activity put a damper on the move, generally considered a technical recovery lent added impetus by the belief Russia's claim to the intercontinental ballistic missile may result in a speed-up of the U.S. missile program.

Standouts included Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak, up around two points in the chemicals; Boeing, Martin, United and Lockheed, up close to a point in the aircrafts; Lukens and Youngstown Sheet & Tube with gains of around a point in the steels; Reynolds Metals, Magma Copper and National Lead up over one each in the metals; Goodyear, a point higher in the tires.

International Utilities ran up 2 1/2 points, Minneapolis Honeywell 3 1/2; Haver nearly two points; Hertz, International Paper, American Home Products, General Electric, Bath Iron Works and Amerada around a point or more.

One Collision Reported Here
There was one collision reported to Pampa police during the past day.

At 1 p.m. yesterday in the 600 block of S. Cuyler, 75 feet north of Thru street, a 1956 Ford sedan driven by Joyce H. Noyes, 1315 Ripley, collided with a 1951 Pontiac sedan driven by Curtis W. Lester, Willows, Calif.

No tickets were issued by the police, but damage to the Ford amounted to $75 while the Pontiac suffered $50 in damage.

Crispus Attucks led the anti-British demonstration which resulted in the Boston Massacre on March 5, 1770.

Berra Clouts 3-Run Homer To Roll Yanks Over Sox

Braves Bounce Giants, 4-3

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
Yogi Berra claims he's having a "lousy year," but it's still plenty good enough to give the Yankees a pennant lift every time they seem to need it most.

By most standards this hasn't been a particularly good year for Yogi. He's batting only .248 and that figure hardly appears to command the $65,000 the Yankees are paying him this year.

The White Sox, however, are convinced he's worth every penny of it, especially after what he did to them Tuesday night. Berra batted in six runs, breaking Chicago's back with a three-run homer in the eighth inning that snapped a 4-1 tie and powered the Yanks to a 12-6 victory.

who collected his 32nd homer and a single in four trips to the plate, raising his league-leading average to .380.

Burdette Gets 14th
Early Wynn scattered eight hits in notching his 14th victory at the expense of the Orioles and Jack Urban of the Athletics held the Senators to three hits in beating Camillo Pascual.

Home runs by Red Schoendienst, Eddie Mathews and Frank Torre carried the Braves to their victory over the Giants.

Lew Burdette registered his 14th victory of the season for the Braves with the help of rookie Don McMahon, who retired the last six batters in order. It was Milwaukee's fifth victory in the last seven games.

Texans In Amateur Golf

NEW YORK (UP)—Qualifying tests for the U.S. Amateur golf championship at Brookline, Mass., Sept. 9-14 produced a flock of headaches today and only one darkhorse for the title won the last two years by Harvie Ward of San Francisco, who is sitting out a year's suspension for accepting "improper" expense money.

Darkhorse Dick Foutche of Charleston, W. Va., led the nation by a wide margin with 67-66-133 at Huntington, W. Va., as all but four of 200 match play berths in the tournament were filled by trials in 21 cities.

Among the missing at Brookline will be crooner Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, three-time finalist Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Western Amateur champ Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., 1951 U.S. runnerup Joe Gagliardi of Mamaroneck, N.Y., veteran Jim Frisina of Springfield, Ill., John P. Ward of Syracuse and Clarke Hardwick of Los Angeles.

HE'LL MISS IT—Stan Musial nearly took the Polo Grounds apart on his last visit to the former home of the New York Giants and he gave the place a final salute. He always hit well in the park—and Ebbets Field, too.

Steelers Sign Buddy Parker As Head Coach For Five Years

By SELWYN FEINSTEIN
United Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers signed Buddy Parker last Tuesday to a five-year contract as head coach to replace sizzling pilot Walt Kiesling.

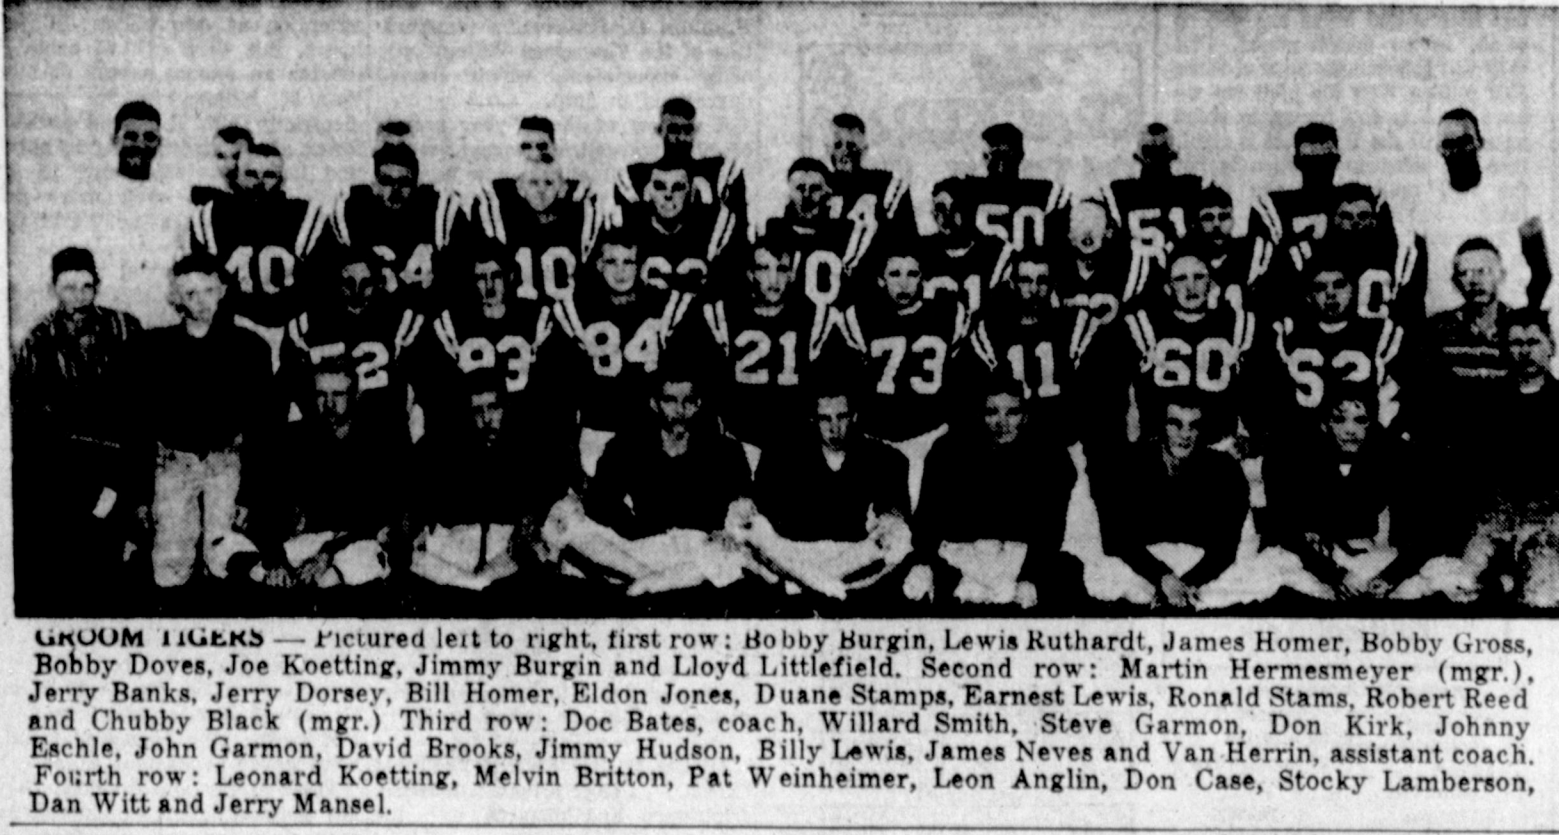

"He was our only choice. He was Walt's choice."
No "Pressure" Involved
Rooney said the decision for Kiesling to step down after four years at the helm was "completely his own—he was never under any pressure."

Parker came to terms with Steeler President Art Rooney just two weeks after he started the sports world by announcing at a fan banquet that he was quitting his $30,000 post as coach of the Detroit Lions.

Kiesling was ill most of last season with a kidney condition and spent a week in a Minneapolis hospital while his team prepared for a game on the West Coast.

"Wait asked to be relieved so I talked with Parker," Rooney told the United Press here in a telephone conversation from his Atlantic City, N.J., hotel room.

Rooney said Kiesling would be retained with the Steelers "at his present salary" in an advisory position. "That's what Parker wanted."

Shunned Davis Cupper Is Now The Hot Dog King Of Brazil

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO (UP)—The United States left a tennis player named Bob Falkenberg off its Davis Cup team 10 years ago and it was a decision which not only altered the course of the young man's life but in the process introduced the hot dog stand to Brazil.

Bob and his brother, Tom, were ranked among America's top stars in 1948 when Bob was snubbed by the selection committee to go "down under" and recapture the love set silverware. So Bob married a Brazilian, met and married one of the local belles, wound up playing on the Brazilian Davis Cup team and finally went into the short order restaurant business.

Williams Gains Over Mantle

DETROIT (UP)—Ted Williams has opened a four-point lead over Mickey Mantle in their blazing battle for the American League batting championship.

Williams bagged two hits, including a homer, in four at-bats for the Red Sox in Tuesday night's 7-5 victory over Detroit while Mantle had only one hit in four at-bats for the Yankees in their 12-4 victory over the White Sox.

Today he is the hot dog king of Brazil.

"Of course I miss the states," explained the towering young man who still retains his boyish exuberance. "But the business opportunities are here and I have three places which are going great guns."

Williams batted .376, and the previous two-point margin between them was doubled.

Here's how the two sluggers stand.

Groom Opens 1957 Season Against White Deer, Sept. 6

(Editors Note: This is the first in a series of articles that will appear on area football teams.)

The Groom Tigers will begin defense of their district title Sept. 6 when they meet White Deer, a class "A" team, on the Bucks home ground.

Outstanding linemen for the new season should be Steve Gorman, a 190-pound sophomore guard; Johnny Gorman, a 180-pound senior tackle; Dan Witt, a 146-pound senior center; and Leon Anglin, a 205-pound senior end.

Coach Doc Bates begins the new season with a young and inexperienced team, having lost 11 men through graduation. Of the youngsters, however, Bates has some excellent prospects.

Bolstering the team for the 1957 season will be seven returning lettermen, of which six were among last year's starters.

As to expectations for the district season, Bates stated that he imagined the Tigers would end in third or fourth place. As to the district winners, he figures it will be a toss-up between Darouzett and Spearman.

Patterson Named Fighter Of Month For Second Time

NEW YORK (UP)—Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson was named "Fighter of the Month" today for an unprecedented second straight time by Ring Magazine, which announced its monthly ratings of boxers of the world.

Patterson drew the accolade for his knockout title defense over Pete Rademacher.

Also in the heavyweight division, the magazine moved Zora Folley up to the No. 2 contender's slot behind Eddie Machen, as Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson dropped from No. 2 to No. 3 as a result of his defeat by Patterson. A two-round knockout of Bobo Olson moved Pat McMurry up from ninth to seventh as Bob Satterfield and Ingemar Johansson dropped one place each.

Prospects for the next few years should look bright, however, as this year's squad has only eight sophomores and eight freshmen. The Groom team will field 34 uniformed men this season, with two managers. There are only 40 boys enrolled in the school, which leaves only four men not participating.

From out of town will be John Farquhar of Amarillo, Frank Wharton of Dallas and John Paul Cain of Sweetwater, all of whom have been winners in tournaments during the current season.

At least two former Top-O-Texas Champions will be back in the running this year, with C. F. McGinnis, 1945 winner, and Grover Austin Jr., 1955 champion.

Monopolies

There is a healthy recognition in the minds of most Americans that a monopoly poses a danger in the economic world. Dedicated as so many are to the concept of competition, a monopoly appears as a contradiction. However, there is considerably more to the matter of monopoly than at first comes to view. And perhaps a discussion of its nature would not be amiss.

Generally, it is acknowledged that a monopoly would exist whenever a particular individual or firm cornered the market on a particular item. In the real world in which we live this is more a boggy than a prevalent possibility.

Take any commodity you care to, steel, automobiles, radios, overstuffed chairs, tomatoes, toothbrushes or thread. The chances of a real monopoly occurring are so slim as to be negligible. Unless there is a real monopoly in land, there could be no real monopoly in any product which is related to the land.

Then, let us consider the motivations for monopoly, if any exist. These motivations would concern profit, would they not? In theory, if a man or a firm could become the only supplier of steel, automobiles, radios, etc., then he or it would be in a position to demand any kind of a price he wanted and thus make all kinds of profit. This is the theory, isn't it?

And it would immediately be admitted that if a monopoly could exist naturally, that it might be an evil thing. If only one firm controlled all steel, for example, might not the prices of steel be forced up until most people could no longer afford steel?

If we overlook the nonsensical nature of this phenomenon ever occurring naturally in the market place, we would still say that such a monopoly in appearance would not be a monopoly in fact. For what would it profit the single steel firm to raise prices to the point that people could not afford to buy steel? If they cannot afford to buy steel they will not buy it. And if the steel firm has no customers it will either go out of business or reduce its prices in order that it will have customers.

There is no actual danger that a monopolist will force his own product off the market by raising the price. If he were so foolish as to attempt it he would be forcing himself out of business. No business can exist without customers. This is a fact that monopoly dreads fail to consider.

Steel to be sold, must have uses. And if the price of steel becomes too high, then the same uses will be accomplished by other metals or by other substances. Even if there is only one steel company, assuming that a free market is in existence, then manufacturers of aluminum, tin, titanium, plastics, glass and other substances will have a field day. These competing producers, although not immediately in steel production, will still go to work to whittle the steel company down to size. And the higher the steel prices go, the more incentive there must be for the non-steel producers to whip the steel producer at his own game.

The same can be said of any other product or substance. For competition occurs, not only in identical fields but in all related fields. And the chances for a single commodity to become a monopoly, while infinitely remote, becomes fantastically absurd when we consider the number of similar products or substances which can substantially perform the same functions.

Automobiles, for example, compete with trains, bicycles, motorcycles, airplanes, boats and motor scooters. And if the prices for automobiles rise excessively people simply will stop using them.

There is only one place where a monopoly can exist in fact. This place is discovered when a particular manufacturer or producer goes to the government and secures a law or a ruling which grants him an exclusive position as a supplier of any particular item. But at this point we lose the benefits of a free market and find ourselves in a market controlled by force and violence. By means of aggressive force, the choices of the customers are reduced or eliminated. And it is only when force is applied to the market place that a real monopoly can occur.

Every monopoly ever to come into existence in all of history has been sponsored by the monopoly which is government. There is no other way for a monopoly to be sustained. People should begin to understand this fact and to worry about the monopoly of government, which is very real and present, and to forget their worries about business monopolies which are in a completely free market, virtually impossible.

"Don't Worry, I'll See That He Gets Them"

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hoiles
Source Of Rights

I can think of nothing that would help promote peace and prosperity and goodwill more than to have people understand the source of man's rights and what these rights and responsibilities are. With this idea in mind, I want to quote from an article appearing in "Dawn" magazine, written by Frank Chodorov.

Frank Chodorov has helped straighten me out in my thinking in several instances on our natural rights and the functions of a government. He is a man who seems to me to be able to explain things very clearly. So for the next couple of days I'll quote how Frank Chodorov explains the source of our rights. From here on Chodorov is speaking:

"The axiom of what is often called 'individualism' is that every person has certain inalienable rights. For example, 'individualism' holds that property as such obviously has no rights; there is only the inherent right of a person to his honestly acquired property. . . .

"The axiom of socialism is that the individual has no inherent rights. The privileges and prerogatives that the individual enjoys are grants from society, acting through its management committee, the government. That is the condition the individual must accept for the benefit of being a member of society. Hence, the socialists (including many who do not so name themselves) reject the statement of rights in the Declaration of Independence, calling it a fiction of the eighteenth century.

"In support of his denial of natural rights, the socialist points out that there is no positive proof in favor of that doctrine. Where is the documentary evidence? Did God hand man a signed statement endorsing him with the rights he claims for himself, but denies to the birds and beasts who also inhabit the earth? If in answer to these questions you bring in the soul idea, you are right back to where you were in the beginning: How can you prove that man has a soul?

"Those who accept the axiom of natural rights are backed against the wall by that kind of reasoning, until they examine the opposite axiom, that all rights are grants or loans from government. Where did government get the rights which it dispenses? If it is said that its fund of rights is collected from individuals, as the condition for their membership in society, the question arises, where did the individual get the rights which he gave up? He cannot give up what he never had in the first place, which is what the socialist maintains.

What Is Government?

"What is this thing called government, which can grant and take away rights? There are all sorts of answers to that question, but all the answers will agree on one point, that government is a social instrument enjoying a monopoly of coercion. The socialist says that the monopoly of coercion is vested in the government in order that it may bring about an ideal social and economic order; others say that the government must have a monopoly of coercion in order to prevent individuals from using coercion on one another. In short, the essential characteristic of government is power. If, then, we say that our rights stem from government, on a loan basis, we admit that whoever gets control of the power vested in government is the author of rights. And simply because he has the power to enforce his will. Thus, the basic axiom of socialism, in all its forms, is that might is right.

"And that means that power is all there is to morality. If I am bigger and stronger than you and you have no way of defending yourself, then it is right if I thrash you; the fact that I did thrash you is proof that I had the right to do so. On the other hand, if you can intimidate me with a gun, then right returns to your side. All of which comes to mere nonsense. And a social order based on the socialistic axiom — which makes the government the final judge of all morality — is a nonsensical society. It is a society in which the highest value is the acquisition of power — as exemplified in a Hitler or a Stalin — and the fate of those who cannot acquire it is subservience as a condition of existence.

"The senselessness of the socialistic axiom is shown by the fact that there would be no society, and therefore no government, if there were no individuals. The human being is the unit of all social institutions; without a man there cannot be a crowd. Hence, we are compelled to look to the individual to find an axiom on which to build a non-socialistic moral code. What does he tell us about himself?"

'Liberal' Platform

How does the following sound as a platform for "liberal" politicians, the A.D.A., many churchmen, and welfare-staters, in general?
" . . . the development of rural electrification"; "financial and other support for agricultural cooperation and for all forms of collective production in the rural districts (cooperative societies, communes, etc.); "every encouragement to be given to consumers' cooperatives"; "the centralization of banking; all nationalized big banks to be subordinated to the central State bank"; "reduction of the working day to seven hours"; "social insurance in all forms (sickness, old age, accident, unemployment, etc.) at State expense"; "comprehensive measure of hygiene; the organization of free medical service"; "the establishment of state organs on the management of industry with provision for the close participation of the trade unions in this work of management."

Now, if you don't believe the so-called liberals are spiritual communists, and working for the same program as the latter, take good note that the above platform is quoted from the Program of the Communist International adopted by the Sixth World Congress, September 1, 1928, at Moscow. The great threat to our liberties comes not from the external aggression of the Communists against our country, but from these wrongly-called "liberals" who are working objectives within our own country. Moreover, they are wrapping it up in a program which appeals to the desire of all right-thinking men and women to relieve distress and help the unfortunate. It is all very effective bait that has deceived the very elect into working with great zeal to lead America into the trap which will destroy our freedom, our prosperity and our self-government.

THE NATION'S PRESS

A SAD VIEW OF THE WORLD

The Wall Street Journal

One does not ordinarily expect Presidents to talk of extraordinary sessions of Congress except to meet grave situations. And what is it that has provoked President Eisenhower into hinting at a special session this fall?

The provocation is Congress' action on the Mutual Security Program. The President asked for an authorization to spend another $3.9 billion for aid to other countries. The Congress authorized $3.4 billion and it may appropriate less. This difference caused the President to call an impromptu press conference and warn that he may have to call Congress back.

Mr. Eisenhower offered "the really prayerful hope" that $3.4 billion would be enough, "but there is no disguising the fact that the effects (of the $500 million cut) will be serious." Reductions in foreign aid, he said, may put the interests of the United States "in real jeopardy." Then he would have no recourse but a special session.

Now this is grave talk indeed. It is the kind of talk that would certainly be appropriate if an irresponsible Congress had left the Government without funds for our armed forces; in view of the President's opinion about foreign aid, it might have been expected from him if Congress had suddenly abolished the whole program.

But this is not what happened. Three billion dollars, and more, is no small sum. And Mr. Eisenhower is not merely arguing that more would be better. He is saying that even a few millions less can be a life-and-death-matter for our national interests, a question of such great urgency that it may not wait between August and January.

It is almost impossible to find this credible.

But if the President is right, if somehow that is actually the case, then it seems to us he has raised far graver questions than whether foreign aid should be $3.4 billion or $3.9 billion or some other sum.

Consider: In World War II the United States had to support its allies to the extent of something like $50 billion, over and above the billions spent on our own forces. Since World War II we have levied upon ourselves to the extent of some $60 billion—the exact figure is lost in a welter of budget categories — to give aid to other non-Communist nations.

This post-war money has gone not only to help these countries repair war torn areas and to give them guns against a next war. It has gone also to bolster their currencies, irrigate their farms, develop their resources and thus make them economically strong so they can be dependable members of the alliance against Communism.

Yet the inescapable implication in the President's grave view of the situation is that in all of this we have not improved our position a whit. What he now says about the urgency for foreign aid is hardly altered from what President Truman said when pleading for a temporary foreign aid program in 1947, a full ten years ago.

This is indeed a sad view of the world. For the inescapable conclusion must be that all our treasure has bought practically nothing of value. If after all those billions our friends and allies are still so weak, or so undetermined, that they will collapse for want of some $500 million then the platform we have built is too flimsy to stand on at all. If the President is right, then the thing to question is not the $500 million but the whole thing.

Fortunately for our own peace of mind, we do not really believe that all is so dire; the tail-end of Congressional sessions is the season for political arguments to become ultimatums. But if the world is in so sad a shape as Mr. Eisenhower says, then a few hundred millions more of foreign aid offers no remedy.

On Sept. 17, 1859, at Cincinnati, Ohio, Abraham Lincoln said this about the Supreme Court: "The people of the United States are the RIGHTFUL MASTERS of both Congresses and courts, not to overthrow the Constitution but to overthrow the men who PERVERT the Constitution."

Cooks Resent Hank Asking For Recipes

By HENRY McLEMORE

LUCERNE — I suppose a man shouldn't fuss at his wife for collecting recipes when her aim is to be able to set a better table for him when they get home.
At the same time, there must be a point where a husband is justified in refusing to walk into a strange kitchen in a strange land, and ask a strange cook in a strange language, for a strange recipe for a strange dish.
I believe I have just about reached that justifiable point, and that the next time Mary sends me on such a culinary errand I will shake my napkin in her face and say, "Try going yourself for a while."
Since we have been in Europe I have been in many kitchens than a delivery man. Every time we taste a new dish in a restaurant, Mary exclaims, "Don't let us get out of here without finding out how that cook fixed that!"
Her use of the word "us" is a bit ridiculous, because she means "Don't you get out of here, etc." She wouldn't go in on a bet, but for some reason she feels that I was born with a liking for invading foreign kitchens and button-holing cooks.
A great many cooks don't like to be buttholed by a stranger while they're busy. In fact, I believe I would be safe in saying that none of them does. Certainly busy ones don't, and that's about all I ever see.
A few days ago we had a meat dondoo, in which small chunks of tenderloin are speared on a fork, dipped in piping hot oil in a chafing dish on the table until cooked to one's satisfaction, then dipped again in a sauce before eating.
Mary just had to have the recipe for that sauce.
We'll never get it right, at home," she said. "You'll say there are things in it that aren't, including Tobasco sauce, so please go back and ask the chef how he does it."

I did, but this trip was the straw that broke the camel's back. To start with it was a rush-hour, and the place was packed, and when I got to the kitchen it was packed, and everyone was busy. And I don't speak Swiss, and couldn't pronounce the dish we were having.
Add to that the fact that at least ten men looked like chefs, what with tall white hats and aprons, and you'll have some idea of my problem.
The first reaction of the kitchen staff was that the fool American had wandered into the wrong room looking for another room altogether, and I had to resist being shown to where it was felt that I wanted to go.
Then, unable to tell in French or German what I wanted, I had to use sign language, and if you don't think trying to make a busy chef understand that you want the makings of a certain sauce by the use of your hands is difficult, I advise you to take my word for it. In the middle of my gesticulating one member of the kitchen staff must have thought that I had an itch I couldn't reach, because he started scratching me between the shoulder blades.
About that time a man (he must have been the manager) came in and seeing us all gathered together and no work being done, yelled a command, and everyone scurried back to work, leaving me standing all alone and looking, I imagine, like a fool.
That finished me off. I left without the recipe. I don't suppose we'll ever get it, but I'd rather suffer along with a sauce we can make up ourselves, even if it has a dash of turpentine in it.
I've been in my last kitchen until I get back home to my own.

Industry, Consumers Reap Benefits Of FDR's TVA

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Despite exploding arguments over the question of government competition with the private utilities, today's "electrical age" really began with Franklin D. Roosevelt's inauguration of the Tennessee Valley Authority experiment, which started operations in 1940.
A review of the 17-year results of his "yardstick" threat, which has special timeliness now because the private versus public power controversy on Capitol Hill has virtually ended, shows enormous benefits for millions of old and new consumers, and for the private utility industry. The fierce battle has wound up in a draw that seems generally satisfactory, despite grumbling by extremists on both sides.
Other factors, of course, have contributed to this miraculous development. Vast new sources of electricity were needed for World War II, which could have been lost without their contribution. There has been a tremendous increase in population and unparalleled industrial growth. Every home has gone electrical from kitchen gadgets to radio and television sets in the living room.

Private utilities — Oddy enough, in view of its original fears and fights over F.D.R.'s "invasion" of their field with the "TVA experiment," as well as the construction of Bonneville and Grand Coulee systems in the Northwest, the private utilities were never in sounder shape. Their profits and dividends have not suffered. The executives and managers are now known as enterprising operators. They are giving better service. Privately, the more enlightened utilitarians admit that they needed the 1940-TVA "shot in the arm."
They have survived the New Deal threat. Now, and it is their chief concern, they aim and hope to prevent Uncle Sam from taking over the field of atomic power, even though that source of electricity will not become generally available for another generation.

MUCH MORE ENERGY FROM COAL

The private industry, frightened and inspired by the "yardstick" competition, fought for survival by innovations and improvements which brought down the price of electricity. It gets three times more energy from a ton of coal than it did 17 years ago. It rid itself of speculators like Sam Insull and substituted for him a Wendell Willkie.
The statistics tell the story. In 1940, when TVA made its timid entry into the power field, the total consumption of electricity was only 160 billion kilowatt hours. Today, it is 500 billion. Few farms were then electrified, mainly the great corporation holdings. Today, more than 90 per cent of rural homes and farms are so equipped.

ELECTRICAL COSTS LOWER

— Mass production and consumption have lowered electrical costs. In 1940, the average price for a kilowatt hour was 3.84 cents, against 2.59 cents in 1956.
Based on an annual total consumption of 500 billion kilowatt hours, this drop of 1.25 cents indicates an annual saving of more than $6 billions in the nation's electricity bill. It should go even lower as air conditioning in homes and factories, especially in the south, becomes even more general than it has since World War II.
The average annual bill in 1940 was $36.56 for nonfarm consumers, as against about $78 today. In view of the cut in unit costs, the increase here reflects the greater use of electricity by both urban, farm and industrial users. There are almost as many television and radio sets and electrical appliances in the wide open spaces as there are among city dwellers.

Equivalent to a 30-story skyscraper, it will represent the atomic structure of an elemental iron crystal enlarged 160 billion times. The Atomium consists of nine gigantic steel spheres, each 59 feet in diameter, interconnected by a series of 95-foot tubular passageways. The structure, with an overall weight of 1,400 tons, will rest on a base sphere with additional support from a trio of rigid steel pylons buttressing the three lower spheres.

The Feud Between Ike And Truman

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and former President Truman have spoken out individually to try to save the foreign aid program from deep slashes. But the two men still aren't speaking to each other about foreign aid—or anything else.

Observers believe that the feud, after more than five years, is intensifying instead of diminishing. Many efforts to patch up their differences have failed.

Eisenhower made it clear a few days ago that he isn't making any new move to clear up things with his Missouri predecessor. When he called newsmen into his office to make his foreign aid plea, the President talked about how successful the foreign aid program had been since its start back in 1947.

"Greece and Turkey," he recalled, "started it."

Truman Not Mentioned
The President did not mention that the aid program was initiated by the Truman administration, or that the Greek-Turkish aid program has long been known as the Truman Doctrine.

The Eisenhower-Truman split goes back to the days before the 1952 campaign when Eisenhower decided to take a shot at being the Republican standard bearer. This startled Truman, who once pictured Eisenhower as a possible Democratic runner.

Truman's memoirs bring back a meeting between the two men at the White House in 1948. Truman asked General Eisenhower whether he might ever run for the presidency. According to Truman, Eisenhower promptly produced a copy of one of his letters which read, "The necessary and wise subordination of the military to civilian power will be best sustained when life-long professional soldiers abstain from seeking high political office."

When Things Got Worse
Confidantes of both Eisenhower and Truman believe their split really shifted into second gear in August, 1952. This was in advance of the election, which Eisenhower won. Truman invited Eisenhower

Quotes In The News

LOS ANGELES — Teamsters President Dave Beck, on his run-in with the Senate Rackets Committee:

"These committees could be the downfall of the United States government."

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), on the Soviet claim to have tested successfully an intercontinental ballistic missile:

"I don't think we can take this too lightly—but no doubt the Russians are going to use the announcement for propaganda purposes in light of the situation of Syria as they seek to blackmail our allies."

LONDON — Radio Moscow, quoting the Soviet news agency Tass on the intercontinental ballistic missile test:

"The results obtained show that it is possible to direct rockets to any part of the world."

NORFOLK, Va.—A Coast Guard spokesman, on the sinking of the submarine Tarpon while being towed unpowered to a junk yard:

"We think the gal just wanted to the White House for a conference. Eisenhower turned down the invitation. He said he wanted to be free to analyze publicly the policies and acts of the present administration whenever it appears to me to be proper and in the country's interest."

In a long-hand letter, Truman shot back saying, "I'm extremely sorry that you have allowed a bunch of screwballs (politicians) to come between us." He signed the cryptic note, "From a man who has always been your friend and who always intended to be!"

The two men have met each other only twice in the last five years—and those meetings were almost five years ago. They met Nov. 18, 1952 at a White House briefing session after Eisenhower was elected, and again on Inauguration Day, 1953.

As things stand now, it appears that only a real national emergency will heal the rift between the two.

Would It Offend You If Census Taker Asked About Religion?

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Would you be offended if a census-taker asked "What is your religion?"

The Census Bureau is debating whether to include that question on the forms that will be used by its 200,000 enumerators when they call at every home in America in 1960.

Dr. Conrad Taeuber, assistant director of the bureau, said "vigorous discussions" are still underway within the bureau staff, and "no final decision has been reached."

He said some census officials feel strongly that the bureau should collect factual data on the religious affiliations of Americans, while others are convinced that "it would be a bad mistake."

One problem that has particularly concerned census officials, he said, is how the average American is likely to react to a question about his religion. No such question has ever been asked in a nationwide census.

Previously had endorsed the question, did an about-face early this month. It asserted in a letter to Census Bureau Director Robert W. Burgess that it would violate the First Amendment to the Constitution "to ask anyone questions about religion or membership in a religious body."

Cites Amendment
The First Amendment says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The American Jewish Congress pointed out in its protest that refusal to answer official census questions is a federal crime. It said the Supreme Court has "expressly and repeatedly held that under the First Amendment, the government has no power to compel any person to profess a belief or disbelief in any religion."

Burgess said he has referred these complaints to government legal experts for a ruling. He said his own reaction, as a non-lawyer, is that there is no constitutional problem if purely factual information is sought, and the question is properly worded.

Paul Blanshard, author of several books on church-state relations, and the Christian Century Magazine have suggested that the Census Bureau eliminate any hint of compulsion, giving each person his choice whether to answer the question about his religion.

Census officials said it might be necessary to ask Congress for special legislation to put a census question on a voluntary basis.

Last Week Was Significant In The Automobile Industry

By JIM KLOCKENKEMPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
DETROIT, Aug. 24 (UP)—In the auto industry it was a significant week because the five-millionth vehicle of the year was built and the period of changeover to 1958 models was at hand or nearly so in auto factories.

Edsel division of Ford has been building its 1958—and first—model cars for several weeks, American Motors Corp. started turning out 1958 models this week and Studebaker-Packard shut down for model changeovers.

The major auto makers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—all will introduce 1958 models late in October or early in November and their factories will halt 1957 production in mid-September.

It has been a year of great success for Chrysler and Ford, spotty at best for General Motors and another losing battle for the "little two" car makers, Studebaker-Packard and American Motors.

But it would be unfair to count out the "little two." Both have consolidated their operations—Studebaker-Packard at South Bend, Ind., American Motors at Kenosha, and Milwaukee, Wis.—and thus cut their costs.

Both the "little two" have stopped trying to act and spend like members of the big three, and they've zeroed in on certain market targets ignored by the big three.

Studebaker-Packard will step up promotion and distribution of its economy Scotsman, to satisfy people who don't want to pay for the glitter and power of other-make new cars. S-P also will widen its line of sports car models for Packard dealers.

Ward's Automotive Reports said Chrysler Corp. production through this week was 909,700, already ahead of its entire 12-month output for 1956.

Last fall, when Chrysler brought out its 1957 lines, the corporation was making another "comeback," the second in three years. Chrysler's 1955 models had battled it out with the other red-hot lines in that high-selling year, but its slightly altered 1956 cars had failed.

The success of the "three years-ahead" Chrysler line justified the big investment.

Ford also made its big 1957 model changeover pay off, and already has built 77.8 per cent as many cars as in entire 1956. Ford will kill two birds with a single stone by using its new Edsel lowest-priced line bodies for the 1958 Fords, also.

HAS IT HAPPENED TO YOU?

You're a businessman. You've owned your business for a number of years and have been moderately successful, even if you do say so yourself. You have a lovely wife and a wonderfully happy family. You're proud of your home and are looking forward to a mortgage burning party in February, 9 years from now.

You're proud of your ability as a provider and business leader. Several others have noticed your ability too, for you've been asked several times to head up the fundraising committee at your favorite civic club.

You're sitting with the others, enjoying your weekly luncheon meeting. The program has been completed, and the chairman starts the business session. You've enjoyed the meal and program, and you're leaning back, relaxed, with your favorite brand of cigar. Then your name is mentioned!

They want you to stand and state your views about raising funds for the next project! You sit there chilled and numb. The cigar drops from trembling fingers. Your dinner partner jabs you in the ribs and says, "Hey, you're on!" Your heartbeat sounds loud enough to resound throughout the entire hall. Your legs feel like water and try as you will, you can't move. You stare over the group with glassy, unseeing eyes. Your face is frozen in a grimace of horror. Your tongue is thick and swelling. You reach for your waterglass thinking perhaps a sip will calm your nerves and quench the raging fire in your throat. Your stiff, shaking, unfeeling hand hits and overturns the glass, spilling its contents into your lap. Everyone is laughing at you! You jump up and hasten from the room soaked, embarrassed, and knowing, as all your friends now know, that you're a failure at expressing yourself before a group.

HAS IT HAPPENED TO YOU?

You'll be surprised at how quickly you can develop the ability to speak effectively in business conferences, before clubs and organizations, even though you cannot now do so. In just fifteen short weeks you can be transformed into a person who honestly enjoys speaking before a group. Thousands felt exactly as you did until they joined the Dale Carnegie Course in effective speaking, human relations and leadership training. Why don't you investigate the Dale Carnegie Course, presented in Pampa by Western Sales Institute of Amarillo, Texas? A demonstration meeting will be held on Monday, September 10, 7:30 p.m., at the Palm Room, City Hall in Pampa. You are cordially invited to attend without obligation to see how you may benefit from Dale Carnegie training.

Orders Trial Runs
To sound out public sentiment, the Census Bureau ordered two "trial runs" of the religion question. One was conducted last fall in four Wisconsin counties. The other test was held this spring, and involved a random sample of about 35,000 Americans in all parts of the country.

In both tests, Taeuber said, the census-takers found "very few" people who protested the question or seemed reluctant to answer it.

The main argument for including the question in the 1960 census is that it would provide, for the first time, reliable official figures on the size and distribution of various religious groups. Present statistics on church membership are notoriously inadequate. In many cases, they are little more than estimates by denominational officials.

It is significant that among those urging the Census Bureau to include the religion question are two men who probably know more about church statistics than anyone else in America. They are Dr. Benson Y. Landis, editor of the Protestant-sponsored Yearbook of American Churches, and Thomas B. Kennedy, editor of the Official Catholic Directory.

Accurate Figures Valuable
Accurate census figures on America's religious population would be of obvious benefit to religious bodies in determining their areas of strength and weakness, and in planning the location of new churches.

But Taeuber said many groups besides churches have asked the Census Bureau to collect religious statistics. Among them, he said, are governmental planning agencies responsible for location of schools and hospitals; social welfare groups; housing agencies; and business firms whose markets are affected by religious holidays or dietary customs.

Opposition to the "what is your religion?" question has been registered by the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Jewish Congress.
