Doc Quigg On Newspapers

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—A London newspaper is offering a big pile of money for the first man to reach the moon and return in the next 10 years, regardless of nationality.

The prize is 50,000 British pounds, which works out, at the present exchange rates, to about $140,000—or, I hasten to add, 500,000 rubles.

The paramount thing to remember in case you plan on entering the contest, is that in order to enjoy the money you ought to try to come back alive.

Another London newspaper recently offered to give away a man as the prize in a circulation contest. It did, too. And, as near as can be established on this side of the ocean, there have been no complaints heard from the prize-winner on the serviceability of the prize.

Last Wednesday's edition of the London Daily Mirror—the largest daily newspaper in the world in point of circulation—offered something Americans will find remarkable.

The Daily Mirror is tabloid size. Its entire front page was filled with a huge headline that started at the top with underlined italics and got bigger and heavier as it progressed. It said:

"Wake up, Britain! We're living in the past. We're too slow, too sleepy..." (and then, in black block capitals) "Too D a n Smug!"

Then the reader was directed to the two center pages in which the editor slammed down his thoughts, starting out this way:

"This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England is not the place it was. This sceptered isle is deluding itself. This happy breed is backward..." At the top of the long editorial a headline said, "If this shocks you, Britain will win," and at the bottom, "If this doesn't shock you, we've had it!"

Flossie Seeks Mate

In the same edition, in the letters department, a lady signing herself "Flossie" from Aberavon, Glamorgan, complained that "my husband, who is crazy on darts, can always 'lose' himself if there is a chance of a game anywhere." She said she gave him a rolling pin for his birthday, and every darts night she leaves it on the table near the door for him to see when he comes home from

NEW ORLEANS — Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La.), on General Motors Corp.'s offer to repay $9.7 million which Hebert said they had overcharged the government for jet fighter planes:

"The American people can draw their own conclusions... In the history of this committee, it is the first time I have ever heard of a corporation making such an offer in cold cash."

WASHINGTON — Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), in saying he thought the use of federal troops in the Little Rock racial crisis set a precedent that may plague the present or future administrations:

On the rolling pin she has engraved this verse: "Your supper is on the hearth, dear—a pipe and a book that's new. Your all-pers are by the fire, dear. But where the hell are you?"

"If every time a court order is disobeyed, we decide to enforce it by sending federal troops in to do the job at the point of bayonets, then we are leading to... a military government in this country." It is not certain what good it does by stretching the muscles and helping the blood to circulate; it may also make a person sleep.

Ski Clothes In Trend To Cling Closer To Wearer

United Press Women's Editor
By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Today's well-dressed skier wears the one-way stretch-ski pants which fit so snugly a two-way stretch (that's a girdle, fellows) underneath helps a girl.

The stretch, which goes up and down, dominates most of the domestic and imported collections, a check of manufacturers and retailers showed. It is managed with the same principle which in recent years has made everything from children's wear to men's socks fit any size—a wool and nylon yarn with a permanent spring built in. Most popular pants fabric is gabardine.

This "snow bunny" (the active skier's derisive term for the fire-side skier) took a look at what's new for the slopes, because several sources pointed out skiing is one of the fastest growing participation sports in the United States. Sports Illustrated Magazine estimated from three to five million persons ski. The magazine Ski Time said the sport has spread to 28 countries.

sky blue, mauve and peat gray. Ohrbach's collection included turquoise, coral, coffee, lemon yellow and white.

Parkas Are Reversible
Many of the new parkas are reversible—printed poplin on one side, solid shade on the other. Some have drawstring bottoms, for a "blouson" effect, seen in regular feminine apparel. They also are shown in printed silks. Most sweaters are bulky.

White Stag introduced a new cape for wear on the ski lift, a loden gray job which looks like the cover-up worn by a bench-bound football player. It was dubbed the "warm-up."

After-ski wear this season includes the leopard, worn alone with sweater top, or with a wrap-around skirt.

What goes under the outerwear? "Well, silk has been added this year because it is a warm material," said White Stag. "Or red flannels."

Stretch Pants Snug
"There are two schools of thought on how stretch pants should fit," said a spokesman for White Stag, the nation's largest manufacturer of ski-wear. (The company president, a Dartmouth man, and his whole staff of designers all ski.)

"One is championed by the girl who thinks they should fit like other apparel, neat," the spokesman explained. "The other is represented by the girl who also wears tight sweaters and tight skirts. You can see every muscle and every ounce as she comes down a slope."

Whatever the school, all ski pants are slimmer than in other seasons. Most taper all the way to the ankle, but a few manufacturers are plugging knickers. These are neater, though, than the golfer's plus-fours which inspired them. Ohrbach's showed knickers in heavy suede cloth which looks like velveteen. But these, imported from Western Germany, are styled after pants worn by Tyrolean peasants.

Black is all-time color favorite for pants, but other bolder shades are moving in. Sid Buchmyr's, a Manhattan ski shop, featured royal blue, orange, red, moss green,

First Baptist Speaker Was Outstanding Scholar, Athlete

The First Baptist Church is having as its speaker this week a widely known and traveled man in Dr. Forrest C. Feezor, executive secretary of the Texas Baptist General Convention, which has its headquarters in Dallas.

DR. F. C. FEEZOR ... revival speaker

Dr. Feezor, because of his work, is limited to two evangelistic meetings each year, and is scheduled to conduct his second at Easter in the Hayes-Barton Baptist Church in Raleigh, N.C., which he pastored for 11 years.

While training and studying for the ministry, Dr. Feezor visited the Holy Lands on two occasions, spending time in Palestine, Egypt and Damascus, Syria. He has traveled in European countries three times and returned last year from an extensive visit in the Orient, touring Japan, Bangkok, Indonesia, Formosa, Okinawa and Hawaiian Islands.

In past posts, he has been head of the Bible department at William-Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., president of the North Carolina Baptist Convention and president of the Texas Baptist Convention.

In 41 years in the ministry, Dr. Feezor has served two past governors, J. M. Broughton of North Carolina and Pat M. Neff of Waco.

Receiving his education at Wake Forest, he was outstanding both as a scholar and an athlete, having played four years of varsity basketball, captaining the 1923 team, and three years of football. During his football years, he played guard next to tackle Felix Blanchard, whose son later became the famed fullback of the Army team.

In higher education, Dr. Feezor holds an honorary doctorate from Wake Forest and Baylor University, along with a THM from the Louisville Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

At present, Dr. Feezor's duties with Texas Baptist Convention are to coordinate and direct the phases of Baptist institutions in Texas, which include nine schools, eight hospitals and four orphanages.

The convention itself is the largest protestant church body in Texas, containing 380 churches and 1,500,000 members. In recent action, it passed a missionary budget of $10,500,000.

Dr. Feezor will speak twice daily through Sunday, with services being held at 9:30 each morning and at 7:30 each evening, with the exception of the regular Sunday morning service, which will begin at 11.

Improperly placed warning flares at the site of a bridge out on the Bowers City road, three miles west of Letors, last night was given 12:10 a.m. today in which two men as the cause for an accident at McLean men received slight injuries.

Injured were Dean Yates and James E. Terrill, both of McLean. According to the investigating highway patrolman, the 1951 Ford, driven by Yates, drove into the gully where a bridge had been removed due to the construction work on the road. He reported that the flares, placed as a warning, were not far enough back from the bridge to allow a car to avoid the gully at night.

Yates and Terrill were treated at a local hospital for minor injuries and were released.

Adlai Tackles Proposals For NATO Conference

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, working in a borrowed office in the State Department, today tackled U.S. proposals for the NATO conference in Paris next month.

The twice-defeated Democratic presidential candidate is working without pay, expenses or title as a consultant for the administration of his old political foe, President Eisenhower.

Stevenson planned to leave for New York later in the day and then go to Chicago. He is expected to return to Washington in a few days to devote as much time as possible on plans for the mid-December meeting.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Monday gave Stevenson a tentative administration blueprint for strengthening the free world against Russia's missile threat.

The titular head of the Democratic Party promptly settled down to study the proposals and to submit his comments in such a way as to be "as useful as possible."

The main item on the agenda for the meeting Monday night will be the presentation of nominees and naming the date and place of the next meeting at which the newly appointed committeemen will be named.

The Hale-Aiken program was adopted by the last legislature of the State of Texas and was designed to make a survey of Texas schools upon the basis of counties, according to Burt Nuckols, county superintendent.

Nuckols has been appointed temporary chairman of the groups from each school in Gray County and is in charge of basic plans.

The schools to be organized into the program are: Letors, Pampa, Hopkins, Grandview, McLean and Alanreed.

Presidents of all school boards in the county along with the superintendents of schools will meet for a planning session in the McLean Elementary cafeteria Monday Nov. 23 at 7 p.m.

Names of nominees for the Hale-Aiken committee will be submitted by each school's representatives at this meeting. Large Number Parent-Teachers Attend Baker PTA 'Dad's Night' Program

The B. M. Baker PTA executive board meeting was called to order by Mrs. R. A. Mack, president, in the office of John Evans, school principal, on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30.

Mrs. D. L. Martindale reported that $57.62 had been netted on the Fun Night project.

Mr. Evans read the proposed budget, which was approved by the board.

Publications chairman, Mrs. Dan Selman, reported that there is two "National Parent Teacher" and one "Texas Parent-Teacher" subscriptions in the Baker unit.

Mrs. J. H. Trotter, city council delegate, reported on the council's last meeting. She said that one of the main points of the meeting was the discussion of business procedure in the local units. It was stressed that the business in general meetings should be shortened and several ways of doing this were suggested.

Mrs. Evans Jones, Jr. and Mrs. Selman were elected as alternate delegates to attend the state convention in Galveston on Nov. 20-22.

Mrs. Glen Dearborn, hospitality chairman, discussed plans for Dad's night. Those in attendance were Mrs. R. A. Mack, Elmer Darnell, Dan Selman, J. H. Trotter, Glen Dearborn, Carlos Grissom, Evans Jones Jr., D. L. Martindale, Don Haynes, Warren Jackson, and Mr. Evans.

The annual Dad's Night meeting was held on Thursday evening in the Baker school. Doors were opened at 7 p.m. in order to allow parents time to visit the classrooms and view the work of the children.

After visitation, more than 600 parents, teachers and children assembled in the auditorium for the program.

Following a short business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Mack, the program was presented by Mrs. Warren Jackson, who introduced Gary Jones as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Those participating on the program were Donna Kay Haynes, song and dance, "I'm Ready For the Show Tonight"; Wayne Lyles, piano solo, "Dance of the Rosebuds" and "The Toreador Song"; Mary Ann Mack, reading, "The Smallest Blessing"; Patricia Lambright, song and dance, "Show Time."

The program was concluded with selections by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Claudie Gallman, accompanied by Miss Ekie Seright at the piano with Gary Don Keel as the announcer. Among their selections were "America, The Beautiful," "The Modern Choir," "The Crooked Man," "Oh, Dear, What Can The Matter Be," and "In The Plaza."

The final number was "The Three Little Maids," presented as a drama. Those cast in roles were Ann Christy, Fat Maid; Charlotte Standifer, Lean Maid; Katrina Spencer, In-Between Maid; and the Handsome Farmer Boy was played by Wayne Lyles.

Due to the large number in attendance, Mr. Evans announced that room-count winner could not be given until a later date.

Mrs. Selman was winner of a chocolate cake baked by Mrs. Mack.

A social hour was held in the cafeteria with Mrs. Glen Dearborn and Roy Jones, hospitality committee, as hostesses.

dew tell!

We've just come across a clever idea for those ladies-in-waiting, whose favorite song hit will soon be "Rock-A-Bye, Baby." We've learned that hubby's shirt can be standard equipment for mothers-to-be. Pretty maternity over-busies may be slipped on for dinner or special occasions, but a sturdy washable man's shirt does daytime duty for household chores.

A girl's morale is important, however, even when she is alone in the house and a man's shirt is not noted for chic, but local sewing center experts offer a few tips for dressing up Dad's shirt to make it attractive and feminine without sacrificing its practical virtues.

First thing to do is to cut off the tails to a becoming length. Put in a neat hem and border of bias binding.

Even though the sleeves are too long, you can achieve a becoming alteration. Simply put binding in detail without making major alterations. Simply put binding on the cuffs... add a little bow, too, if you like... and push the cuffs to the elbow for a pretty lantern-sleeve silhouette.

Now for the collar. Just take it off, and stitch round the opened seam at the neckline. Make a square yoke effect with the binding... this is all-important near-the-face emphasis, to draw attention away from your waistline. Add ribbon to the front banding, too. This disguises left to right buttoning.

Now add a jaunty bow just at the neckline and you have a trim and pretty blouse. You can buy an inexpensive man's shirt for this project and the total cost would be less than buying a maternity blouse. Or you can use a shirt with a worn collar and cuffs. Either way, the man of the house is sure to admire your ingenuity. He might even feel that the shirts looks better on you than it ever did on him.

The date was Nov. 16; the place, Norman, Okla.; the time, three minutes fifty seconds, fourth quarter. The result, OU-6 and Notre Dame-7. It was a beautiful ball game, beautifully played. The weather, matched the game, it was beautiful, too. That is, up until the last three minutes fifty seconds in the fourth quarter, when dark clouds from the north came rolling in to darken the skies, and the Big Fighting Irish Team from the north began rolling and darkening the hearts of thousands of OU fans. It was an inevitable event that stunned OU-dom, but it was, also, the day that Bud had been telling us about.

We had dinner Saturday evening in the Shawnee Country Club in Shawnee, Okla., with Jim and Maylene Matlock, former P & M-pans and with Cecil and Joan Tedrow from here. The cashier at the club wore a black chiffon veil that covered her face, and the white-coated waiters wore mourning-black arm-bands. The next morning at breakfast in a restaurant in Oklahoma City, we had an adjoining table-companion, a funeral parlor owner, who talked nothing but damaged caskets and who he had on the slab that day. 'Twas not exactly a gay week end.

OU is scheduled to play Notre Dame again in 1961, perhaps, in 1960. If the schedule can be worked out, there is a slight rumor going round that it might be Army or California next year. But between now and 1960 or 1961, OU will be working on another string of victories that will make the Irish fight their hearts out again.

Graceful new lamps take the spotlight. The fluted, tapered urn base of lamp at left is scaled for desk; it has taller companion for room corner. Shade is flecked tortoisian. A Ming dynasty vase design inspired the tall lamp (center) which measures 41 inches to balance low contemporary table. Finish is gold luster against gray. The textured finish of the gourd-shaped lamp base (right) is white stoneware over cocon. Shade of this 31-inch lamp is gold-banded white plastic.

Queen Elizabeth's Recent Visit Lesson To Never Relax In Our Beauty Search

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

There's a whole new approach to beauty on its way. It's in the early stages yet but it's definitely here. It's beauty from the inside rather than from the outside.

This doesn't mean that you'll abandon face creams or make-up or your hair brush, but it does mean that you'll probably be swallowing capsules at some time in the future that will affect your beauty favorably.

You'll check with your doctor before you do, of course. And you'll find that the capsules have a wonderful effect on your hair, your skin, and your energy.

Right now, many women take plain gelatin or gelatin capsules regularly for the fine effect they have on nails and hair. This sort of thing will be stepped up and increased in the future.

To tint or not to tint? It all depends on you. Some women find it well worth the money and effort to keep their hair a particular shade, either that of their youth or the shade they'd like their hair to be. Others feel that they'll go along with gray hair, that it's both soft and flattering. There's something to be said for each.

But once you start to tint your hair, don't feel that you're committed to it for life and don't tell everyone that you do. Tint, true, tinted hair is gaining same acceptance as make-up but why make it the subject of conversation? Tint these days are so natural that it's your secret if you want to keep it. Even if you change the color of your hair from one shade to another, you owe no one an explanation for the change. It is your hair. And most people accept changes quietly and without comment if there isn't a great deal of fuss about them.

Queen Elizabeth's recent visit to this country holds a lesson for all of us on looking lively with no time to spare.

True, the Queen had attendants to help her with the changes of her costumes, but the fact remains that changes had to be made, help or not. Often, they had to be made in as little as seven minutes.

And hair had to be perfection, make-up light and natural and skin glowing. The one thing we can deduce from the Queen's almost impossible schedule is that she is marvelously fast and efficient at her job. She knows, too, that her appearance is important and she never relaxes in her beauty program.

Wonderfully flavored and not too hot — that's the description of cooked Beef Slices in Onion Gravy.

Homemakers are constantly pursuing cookbooks for different and unusual ways to serve left-overs. Cooked beef slices from yesterday's standing rib roast of beef lend themselves admirably to this recipe.

A well qualified meat expert, Reba Stagg, comments that canned onion soup and a teasing touch of horseradish adds just the right flavor note to cooked beef slices. This recipe would make especially good news for a hot lunch.

BEEF SLICES—ONION GRAVY

1 pound cooked beef slices
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 can (10 3-ounce) onion soup
Combine water and cornstarch. Add butter, horseradish and soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add beef slices and cook until heated through. Yield: 4 to 8 servings.

Bentley's
a nice place to shop

TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE is the way we Dodge dealers feel about competitors' efforts to match the Swept-Wing 58. They lowered the roof some, but left the sides high. Their windshields got smaller while ours got bigger. So much for styling. Then, for another important comparison, take ride. Here's Dodge with Torson-Aire suspension that just about everybody admits is the greatest advance in sway-free, dip-free, silent going that any car offers. So what do these other cars do? They borrow an air suspension system that's been used in buses for two years! (Costing well over $100.00 extra.) And most of 'em still don't have push-button driving — much less Dodge TorqueFlite — the proven automatic transmission. If you're a little disappointed in the '58 version of your car, come on in and see our Swept-Wing 58. The others are catching on — but they can't catch up.

Woman Shoots Child's Mother, Grandmother

HUGO, Okla. (UP)—Mrs. Rachel Warren today told authorities how she shot and killed her four-year-old grandson's mother and maternal grandmother to keep them from taking him away. Mrs. Warren admitted shooting Mrs. Joann Kappleman Warren, 24, San Antonio, Tex., and her mother, Mrs. Ethel Hunter Kappleman, 50, of Blanco, Tex. She said they were cutting their way through the back screen door of her farm home when she shot them down with a .38 pistol. Sheriff Ed Thornton said the elderly Mrs. Warren's son Charles was divorced from Joann Warren and had received custody of the child. (The father took custody of the child at San Antonio, Nov. 4 and Deputy Sheriff Charles Garcia recalled today that he had to take the child by force from the mother's arms. He said further that he escorted the father and child out of town because H. O. Kappleman, grandfather of the boy, was "very upset and angry.") The child, Charles Jr., was sick and in bed when his grandmother killed the two women.

Thornton said he planned to file no charges against the woman. County Atty. Ralph K. Jenner, however, said he planned to question Mrs. Warren today and did not know yet whether he would file charges.

Called Before
Thornton said Mrs. Warren called him late Monday and asked him to come to her white frame home 12 miles southwest of Hugo. She said her son's former wife and mother-in-law were coming from San Antonio to take the child by force.

Thornton went to the Warren farm and spent about half an hour to an hour there. Finally he left, telling Mrs. Warren to call him if the women came.

About half an hour after he left, Mrs. Warren said, the two women came to the back door and demanded entry. She said she told them to leave or she would shoot.

She said her former daughter-in-law then began cutting her way through the screen with a butcher knife. She fired five shots, each of which found its mark in one of the women. Thornton said when he arrived after the shooting, the women were lying side by side on the back porch. The younger woman still had the butcher knife clamped in her hand.

Investigating Rumor
Jenner said he was investigating a rumor that others accompanied the two women to Hugo. In Blanco, authorities said H. O. Kappleman, husband of the older dead woman, and three more of his daughters had accompanied the two women when they left Blanco. The authorities said they understood Kappleman was armed.

In San Antonio, Mrs. Warren's landlady, Mrs. B. R. Watson, said Mrs. Warren "seemed very nice." She worked at a San Antonio used car lot.

Guard Kills VA Officers; State To Ask For Death

RENO, Nev. (UP)—The government will ask the death penalty, a prosecutor said today, for a former chief guard who stomped into a Veterans Administration hospital Monday with two guns and killed two VA officers.

Another officer was critically wounded by Eliza W. Eaton, 62, before he was disarmed by a fourth prospective victim. Officers said Eaton had resigned his job as chief security officer of the hospital last March after making a series of complaints about its administration.

Assistant U.S. Attorney H. F. Ahlswede said the government will ask a first degree murder indictment which carries the penalty of death in Nevada's gas chamber on conviction unless a jury specifically states its verdict is "without capital punishment."

The 6-foot, 3-inch Eaton first walked into the engineering office and fired at Earl A. Lombardi, 39, the hospital's engineering officer. Lombardi fell to the floor, critically wounded. Eaton pushed past his unconscious form and shot dead the assistant engineering officer, Phillip I. Keables, 39.

Eaton then took a self-service elevator to the second floor, and entered the office of personnel officer Arthur R. Small, 48, and killed him.

He walked back into the corridor and shoved the shotgun into the mid-section of assistant VA manager James R. Harrison. Harrison grabbed the barrel and the blast went harmlessly into the wall.

Eaton pulled a .38 caliber pistol from his holster. Before he could shoot, Harrison shot him.

His mother was not held. Jenner said a purse belonging to one of the women contained clippings of newspaper stories on the divorce and child custody proceedings.

Survivor Of Crash Hailed As Hero

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—Three survivors of a B-29 crash today hailed as a hero the fourth survivor, S. Sgt. Calvin A. Campbell, 34, San Antonio, who forgot his own safety and comfort to go to the aid of his injured buddies.

Campbell, the only man uninjured in the Friday crash which killed six crewmen on a rugged Alaska mountain peak 100 miles from here, galvanized into action "like a mother hen with a brood of chicks," one survivor said.

Details of Campbell's heroism were related at the Air Force hospital today by S. Sgt. Robert McMurray, 32, East Berlin, Conn., 1st Lt. Clair Johnson, 24, Crosby, Minn., and T. St. Manuel Garza, 35, Midwest City, Okla.

Pulled from Blister
"Campbell pulled me from the left blister of the plane where I was pinned between the fuselage and observation post," McMurray said. "I was in such pain he could not get me into a sleeping bag. So he wrapped me in parachutes instead."

McMurray, a radar scanner, suffered a broken leg and ribs. Garza, a flight engineer, was trapped inside the forward section of the plane when it broke off on impact and splattered 500 feet up a mountainside.

"I was knocked out by the impact," he said. "I remember waking in the wreckage. My leg and arm were broken. Then Campbell came up and helped me down the mountain. He put me in a sleeping bag. If it wasn't for him I wouldn't be here. He should get a medal."

When Campbell arrived at Garza's side, Garza's first words were "Campbell, look at my instrument panel."

"You just look at the rest of the plane," Campbell retorted.

First Lt. Clair Johnson told how he had just moved from the cockpit where the six crewmen who perished were located and was moving into the rear section of the fuselage when the plane hit the mountain.

Snow Blew In Face
"I must have crawled from the plane because the next thing I knew I was lying on the ground with snow blowing in my face. Campbell wrapped me in a sleeping bag. We owe our lives to him—he was just like a mother hen with a brood of chicks."

Campbell, a veteran of 11 years in the Air Force, was modest concerning his achievement in keeping the survivors alive for more than 12 hours before rescue came. "I think every one of those men would have done the same for me," he said.

Airman Prepares To Give Kidney To Twin Brother

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Lt. Sam Merriman, his active Air Force career apparently ended, went ahead today with skin tests preparatory to giving one of his kidneys to his twin brother.

Merriman entered the Veterans Administration hospital here Monday night for doctors to make final tests to definitely establish he is an identical twin. Physicians said this is necessary for the operation to be a success.

Air Secretary James H. Douglas last week said that "under no circumstances" would the 28-year-old pilot trained by the military to give up his commission because of his "humanitarian" act.

But Merriman, on arriving here from Hondo Air Force Base, Tex., said he has been told he will be discharged.

He will retain his commission, according to orders he received before leaving Hondo, but as a civilian in the Air Force Reserve on an inactive basis, with no pay or duties.

"Everybody's pretty well confused about it," Merriman said. "It all depends on how they interpret it."

Merriman's twin, Bill, a Navy veteran, is suffering from Bright's Disease, and doctors say he can survive only a matter of months without the operation, which is tentatively scheduled to take place about Dec. 1 in a VA hospital in Richmond, Va.

Merriman, who is still in the Air Force, flew here on emergency leave in an Air Force trainer plane.

waking in the wreckage. My leg and arm were broken. Then Campbell came up and helped me down the mountain. He put me in a sleeping bag. If it wasn't for him I wouldn't be here. He should get a medal."

When Campbell arrived at Garza's side, Garza's first words were "Campbell, look at my instrument panel."

"You just look at the rest of the plane," Campbell retorted.

First Lt. Clair Johnson told how he had just moved from the cockpit where the six crewmen who perished were located and was moving into the rear section of the fuselage when the plane hit the mountain.

Snow Blew In Face
"I must have crawled from the plane because the next thing I knew I was lying on the ground with snow blowing in my face. Campbell wrapped me in a sleeping bag. We owe our lives to him—he was just like a mother hen with a brood of chicks."

Campbell, a veteran of 11 years in the Air Force, was modest concerning his achievement in keeping the survivors alive for more than 12 hours before rescue came. "I think every one of those men would have done the same for me," he said.

French Loyalty To N.A.O. Expected

NEWS OUTLOOK
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Paris reports that NATO headquarters the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

NO WALKOUT
It's a safe bet that France will remain firmly — and loyally — in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization despite national anger over the Anglo-American arming of Tunisia. And far from weakening Premier Felix Gaillard, the diplomatic dust-up may strengthen him by rousing French national spirit.

COLONELS AGAINST KINGS
There's a reason why King Saud of Saudi Arabia has not defended King Hussein of Jordan more vigorously against the attacks of Egypt and Syria. Saud, as a fellow king, is all on Hussein's side. Reports say Saud is alarmed over the ferocity of the attacks and doesn't want to stir things up. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt toppled King Farouk from the throne. A like-minded colonel, Abdul Hamid of Syria, is the behind-the-scenes strong man in Syria. Saud doesn't want to start any battle of colonels against kings — the young revolutionary Arab nationalists against the old ruling houses. Saud might be next on the list.

STATE AGAINST DEFENSE
It hasn't burst into print yet. But Tokyo reports there's a grim fight between the State and Defense departments over future control of the island defense bastion of Okinawa. State is pressing hard for the appointment of a civilian governor. It says that would weaken the Communists, who already have elected a mayor for Naha, the island's capital. Defense is just as determined that the governor shall remain a military man. Its stand is that Okinawa's only value is as a military base and that a military man should run it.

UNREST
The East German Communists are steadily stepping up arrests of student and worker leaders to combat growing unrest. The only means by which the Communist regime could diminish dissatisfaction would be to raise the standard of living. That they are unable to manage. Western intelligence agents see no sign of an uprising. But they say that if the Reds try to isolate West Berlin, as they threaten to do, and thus shut off the flow of refugees from East Germany, there could be an explosion.

SPORTS OUTLOOK
European sports experts expect major athletic feats by the Russians next year. In Iran last week, the Russians won six out of seven titles at stake in the world weightlifting championships. The week before, they entered three athletes in the World Pentathlon in Sweden and placed one-two-three.

Get the Best of Both:
1 Get European small car economy, handling ease
2 Get American big car room and comfort
Get all-new jet stream styling, all-new push-button features. Get easiest driving, parking, garaging. Get a '58 Rambler, that costs least to run, brings most when you trade!

Prolonged Use Of Certain Drugs Damaged Rat Brains

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—In rats (and presumably in people, too) the prolonged taking of certain drugs which are in common use causes brain and nervous system damage from which the rats never recover.
Proof of this was presented to the current fall meeting of the National Academy of Sciences by Dr. Curt P. Richter of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.
Dr. Richter cited indirect evidence for a presumption that what these drugs did to rats, they are capable of doing to people—if taken steadily over long periods.
But people can't be experimented with as rats are, of course, and so those ultimate—and dreadful—effects on people are presumed rather than proved.
By Prescription Only
Although in common use, all the drugs belong to chemical families for which all physicians have the greatest respect. They are "prescription drugs" strictly, and any physician who prescribed them for prolonged use would not only be considered incompetent by his colleagues but also out of his head.
The chemical families were: (1) the sulfa drugs, represented by sulfamerazine; (2) drugs which suppress secretion of the thyroid gland, represented by propylthiouracil and thiouracil; (3) the barbiturates (which often are prescribed as sleeping pills), represented by barbital; (4) fever-reducing drugs represented by aminopyrine; (5) sex hormones represented by estradiol and progesterone.

The one thing these drug families have in common, in the main, is that all act on the system of internally secreting glands which regulates body metabolism and keep all bodily systems functioning together in harmonious balance.
Dr. Richter fed them to rats in doses which were the proportionate equivalents of the doses usually given to people. He maintained these daily feedings for one to four months. These time intervals when translated from the normal life span of rats to the normal life span of people represent two to 8 years in the life of a man.
Results Were Disturbing
The resulting damage to the rats was invisible. Indeed, the rats seemed to be normal. But when their activity and food and water intakes were measured over long periods, the damage was evident in a "marked disturbance" in the harmonious functioning of their bodily systems.
For 14 to 58 days the animals would run incessantly in their treadmills, and eat and drink enormously. This cycle would be succeeded by a cycle of almost total inactivity, and food and fluid intakes dropped drastically. That cycle would be ended by a return to the first. "Such cycles have never been seen in a normal rat," said Dr. Richter.

He suggested that the damage most probably had been done in the hypothalamus which is a regulatory section of the brain that many scientists believe is the boss of the whole system of internally secreting glands. Either cells of the hypothalamus had been hit directly by the continuing intake of the drugs, or they had been exhausted by their efforts to restore the harmonious balance disturbed by drug intake, Richter suggested.

Raising Interest Rate Was Big Administration Concern

THE NATIONAL DEBT
Even B.S. (Before Sputnik), it was the general consensus of opinion in Washington that the Administration would request the Congress to increase the statutory limitation on the national debt. This debt ceiling presently stands at 275 billions of dollars. A few years back, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey undertook to get this ceiling lifted to 290 billions. This move by the Administration did not meet with success.

The Congress did authorize a much smaller increase on the debt ceiling, but on a temporary basis. This was done in order for the government to meet its obligations which were falling due at a time when tax collections were at a low ebb. However, it was provided that this increase was to meet a temporary crisis. The crisis was met, and the high point in tax collections during the spring of the year solved the problem and brought the debt under control below the 275 billion statutory ceiling.

It has been anticipated for some time that the government could not meet its obligations after the first of the year without borrowing more money. Some people feel this had quite a bit to do with the resignation of Secretary Humphrey and his replacement by Texan R. B. Anderson.

It was generally accepted that such a request would be highly unpopular under the circumstances and that it should be avoided if at all possible. It was my personal feeling that, if anyone could work us out of the dilemma, it would be R. B. Anderson, a very astute and able gentleman. He took on a tremendous job—probably one of the toughest in the history of this country. He was making good headway, I am told.

However, the advent of the Russian sputnik relieved the pressure. It seems to be generally conceded now that Congress will raise the debt ceiling, when and if asked to do so. Such action will be due to the votes of many who will be voting for the increase solely on the basis of national security.

If it were not for the national security reasons, the Administration would have tough going. Many of us, including yours truly, do not believe it is right to increase the national debt simply for the purpose of using the money to pay such items as higher interest rates on the present debt. On Nov. 7, 1957, the daily statement of the United States Treasury reflected that interest on the public debt, since July 1, 1957, amounted to 1 billion 805 million 476 thousand 235 dollars and 98 cents.

During the same period in 1956, the interest on the national debt was 1 billion 402 million 354 thousand 261 dollars and 28 cents. This was an increase of 403 million dollars in less than 5 months, while the amount of the public debt, itself, was approximately the same.

In other words, the American taxpayers were required to pay almost 3 million dollars additional each day during the fiscal year of 1958, which began on July 1, 1957, than they were required to pay for the same amount of money during the fiscal year of 1957, which began on July 1, 1956. At this rate, increased interest alone will consume approximately 1 billion dollars for 1958.

Most interesting when compared with the amount that we have been spending on research and development of long-range ballistic missiles. According to recent reports from high officials, the expenditures for this program have been approximately 1 billion dollars per year. In other words, the INCREASE in the interest rate alone on the national debt may amount to more than has been spent on research and development of the long-range missiles program.

This caused one fellow to observe that, if high government officials in this country had been concerned about raising a sputnik as they were about raising interest rates, we would still be ahead of Russia.

Stock Issue Is Released By Zale

A public offering of 125,000 shares of common stock at $13 per share, was released Monday by Zale Jewelry Company, Inc., largest retail jewelry firm in the United States.

Zale's, which owns and operates 85 stores in an area extending from Columbus, Ga., to Seattle, Wash., reported sales of $35,843,310 for the fiscal year ending last March 31. Net earnings for the year after taxes amounted to $2,254,150.

The stock issue is the first public offering in the history of the 33-year-old company. Managing underwriter is Eppler, Guerin & Turner, Dallas-based investment banking firm.

Proceeds will be used to acquire the assets or capital stock of additional stores and to continue expansion of the company's operations. President Ben A. Lipshy said. The company has pursued an accelerated expansion program in the past five years, during which the number of stores has more than doubled. Thirteen stores have been added to the organization during 1957.

To serve its expanding market, Zale's maintains its own jewelry design and production shops in New York City and a worldwide buying organization.

The nation's largest diamond retailer, Zale's buys thousands of diamonds each week in Europe and New York and sets them in rings and watches. The company also assembles and markets its own watches under the brand names Baylor and Paul Reynard.

Diamonds and watch sales account for approximately 57 per cent of the company's volume.

Zale's executive offices and accounting, advertising, printing and store design divisions are situated in Dallas.

Officers of the company, in addition to President Lipshy, are Al Gartner, vice-president; Melvin P. Berns, Sidney Lipshy and Leon F. Clazon, vice-presidents and division supervisors; James L. Wilson, vice-president and director of advertising; and Esir Wyll, secretary.

Zale's board of directors, headed by Morris B. Zale as chairman, includes Lipshy, Garner, William Zale, M. E. Gimp, Jacob Feldman, Sam R. Bloom and Dean P. Guerin.

Inspection One-Tenth Completed

With only one-tenth of the motor vehicles in Texas inspected for the year 1958, automobile and truck owners were urged today to obtain their new inspection stickers before the holiday season.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, called upon motorists to obtain their 1958 inspection stickers as soon as possible in order to alleviate the last minute rush on the 4,200 inspection stations in Texas.

Garrison said only about 460,000 of the four million registered vehicles in the state have been inspected and approved.

"While this number exceeds that for the same period last year," he said, "the present rate of inspection will not prevent inspection stations from being rushed again during the last few weeks of the inspection period ending April 15, 1958. Vehicle owners who complete their inspections before the holiday period will avoid the inconvenience of waiting at the inspection stations."

The state police director also said that early inspections will be of benefit to motorists who plan trips during the Thanksgiving to New Year's period by eliminating mechanical defects.

Courts Did Japanese Unheard Of Thing In Girard Case-Hurried!

By LEROY HANSEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO (UP)—Japanese courts did an almost unheard of thing for them, in handling the manslaughter trial of Army specialist William S. Girard.

They moved fast.

The controversial trial went through the court in 85 days. While this would be considered a dragged-out affair in the United States, it's virtually a speed record of sorts over here.

Some cases have dragged on for years and years. Judges schedule one hearing, and several weeks may go by before another is held. Delay upon delay can hold up a formal verdict.

Stepped Things up

Judge Yuzo Kawachi of the Maebashi district court which tried Girard stepped things up, however, aware perhaps that the eyes of the world were upon him. Including the first court session Aug. 26, Kawachi held 16 hearings during the 85 days, including 13 in the courtroom and three at the scene of the incident.

One of the major reasons for such a tempo is a problem that plagues courts over the entire world—crowded dockets.

But the psychology of the judges themselves also is a factor.

Japanese judges go even further than the Japanese saying: "Ishibashio tataite wataru (strike a stone bridge at each step while crossing)." Before stepping on the bridge and making doubly sure of everything, they hesitate and examine the situation to make sure it really is a stone bridge and not, perhaps, a wooden one. Caution, examination, reflection are the bywords of Japanese judges.

Slowness is one of the few complaints foreign observers have made of the Japanese judicial system, which is based on continental rather than Anglo-Saxon law.

Important Considerations

So-called mitigating circumstances are important considerations. One of the most common of these is drunkenness at the time of the crime.

Recently, an American serviceman was acquitted of murder because he was drunk at the time he shot and killed a Japanese youth. In another case, a young Marine received a comparatively light five-year sentence for the rape-murder of an elderly Japanese woman when he was drunk.

But the prosecution appealed the sentence and the Marine ended with a 12-year sentence.

The defendant also has a better chance in a Japanese court if he exhibits the proper amount of remorse. Usually this takes the form of "sympathy money" paid to the injured party or to the survivors. It can also take the form of prayers.

Barrymore Name Didn't Help This Aspiring Performer

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Ethel Barrymore Colt was born into the most famous theatrical family in the world. But so far as her career goes, she would have been better off as plain Emma Schultz, she says today.

"The Barrymore name is a ter-starting out in the theatre," says Miss Colt, a 45-year-old blonde who achieved a comfortable measure of recognition as a concert and operatic artist only after an arduous struggle.

Miss Colt's mother, Ethel Barrymore, is the subject of an NBC-TV "Command Performance" tribute this Saturday, a one-hour ceremony to which Miss Colt will contribute her filial genuflection. She will be joined by a curious collection of other Barrymore admirers including Tallulah Bankhead, Joseph Cotten, Vic Damone and Roy Campanella.

Terrified at Debut

"I knew that when I went into the theatre as an actress 20-odd years ago, it was a nerve-wracking experience just to step out on the stage," said Miss Colt with a sigh. "I could hear the audience whispering—that's her, but she doesn't look like her mother. And she doesn't sound like her."

"I was torn apart with fright and complexes. And when the critics saw me they said the talent in the Barrymore family had when I wanted to die.

"Of course, Mother was wonderful. She tried to protect me from the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. She could back up my courage, but, you know, she couldn't play my parts for me."

However, being a Barrymore did have one advantage. "It gave me taste, it gave me standards," continued Miss Colt. "I knew what was good and what was bad. So at least when I walked out on the stage, I knew I was lousy."

Turned to Singing

Eventually, she turned from acting to singing. Five years ago Miss Colt (who is Mrs. Romeo Miglietta in private life) decided to change her professional name to shake off the burden of her Barrymore handle.

"I became Louisa Kinlock," she said, "and suddenly, my whole career began to open up. In fact, since Louisa Kinlock, I've done over 500 opera and concert dates. I think that pretty well proves that as Emma Schultz I probably would have done well much earlier without the heartbreak."

"In fact, I proved it so well to myself and got so much confidence from Louisa Kinlock that I gave up the name a couple of years ago. I feel that now I'm pretty much accepted for myself."

Michigan's state police was first such organization to use radio, setting up the system in 1929.

Party Honors Mrs. Daniel

(Special to The News)

LEFORS — The Young Adult Class of the First Methodist Church honored one of its members, Mrs. Wesley Daniel, wife of the local minister, with a birthday party last Wednesday night after services at the church.

The event, which was a complete surprise to the honoree through the "scheming" of her husband, Wesley, and oldest daughter, Thel, was held in the basement of the church. The honoree, aware there was a party in the making, but not suspecting it was for her, walked in with her husband and as she entered the group sang "Happy Birthday, Beth."

Entertainment consisted of several games including "Tick, Tack, Dough," a peanut game, contests and relays.

A gift was presented to the honoree by the class, and refreshments were served.

Those present were Messrs. and Mrs. W. D. McBee, Jay Busell, A. W. Shoffit, Bill Teel, Wesley Daniel, and Mmes. L. E. Spence, Raymond Barnes, D. D. Willis, J. E. Jinks, Bill Mullins and Earl Atkinson.

He's one of the big attractions of an ice revue playing in the Windy City, and it's easy to see why. Louis doesn't actually skate on the blades; he lifts the skates in the air and slides along on his forelegs, right. Onlookers are usually so intrigued by his antics that they fail to notice exactly what the pup is doing, or how he does it.

LOOK AT THAT SHINER—Four-year-old Terri Kay Schalnat sported a huge black eye and an even bigger smile after being hit by a bat during a baseball game in Dayton, Ohio. Terri was standing a bit too close to the batter and was hit by his follow-through. But she still loves the game.

Michigan State Tops UP Ratings; Ags, Sooners Drop To 4th, 5th

Unbeaten, Untied Auburn Remains In Third Place

NEW YORK (UP) — Michigan State took over the top spot in the United Press college football ratings today in the wake of week-end upsets that dropped Texas A&M to fourth place and Oklahoma to fifth.

—on the strength of its stunning 7-0 upset victory which snapped Oklahoma's 47-game winning streak.

Mississippi was another newcomer in this week's top ten advancing from 11th place to sixth. Navy, Iowa, Notre Dame and Army rounded out the select group in that order.

Rice, which produced a major shocker Saturday by beating last week's top-ranked Texas A&M, 7-6, was placed 18th in the weekly ratings of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press board.

Auburn, 6-0 conqueror of weak Georgia, attracted the most first place votes from the coaches. Coach Shug Jordan's unbeaten and united powerhouse had 14, compared to 13 for Michigan State and seven for Ohio State.

SW Teams Take Rest

By UNITED PRESS
Three Southwest Conference clubs saw no action Monday while others held rigorous workouts.

Texas and Texas A&M, which end their seasons Thanksgiving Day at Austin, took the day off. Rice had what Coach Jess Neely called a "well-earned and much needed" rest, watching movies of its upset of the Aggies and listening to scouting reports on Texas Christian.

Arkansas drilled in the rain, working on defenses for Texas Tech. Coach Jack Mitchell said Saturday's game will mark the end of a "disappointing season" for the Razorbacks.

Coach Sam Boyd kept Baylor working after dark on pass defenses for Southern Methodist. The Bears also worked on their passing game and expect to be in the best physical condition of their season for the game.

Texas Christian worked without pads. Dale Walker moved into starting right end Jim Oze's spot as Oze was suffering from flu.

STICKOUTS—Big Red Jimmy Phillips, left, Auburn's 6-2 1/2, 215-pound end, is faster than 90 per cent of the country's halfbacks. Tommy Lorino makes most other halfbacks look slow.

Schoolboy Ratings:

Sandies Remain In Top Place; Abilene Eagles Take Second

By UNITED PRESS
Abilene's defending state champion Eagles displaced Corpus Christi Ray in the No. 2 spot in the United Press coaches board Class A-A.A. schoolboy football ratings today.

Amarillo, which sewed up its playoff berth with a 64-0 rout of Borger, earned eight first-place ballots to seven for Abilene, which romped to its 47th straight victory by a 41-0 margin over Midland to also sew up another visit to the playoffs.

Ray, which got two first-place ballots a week ago, polled only one this week despite a 34-0 breeze past Corpus Christi Carroll.

Highland Park was idle last week, but Wichita Falls romped over Arlington 45-7. Texarkana bounced Marshall 40-6. Jefferson crushed San Antonio Tech 42-0, and Paschal beat Fort Worth Poly 40-19.

SMU'S Passer Gains On King Hill

By UNITED PRESS
Don Meredith, Southern Methodist's late-blooming quarterback, is making a strong bid to overtake Rice's King Hill as the Southwest Conference's top passer.

Meredith's performance against Arkansas Saturday, 19 connections out of 25 for 230 yards and 67 more rushing, brought him from nowhere to third place in total offense. He has 625 yards compared to 1,020 for Hill and 876 for Jimmy Shofner of Texas Christian. He can hardly challenge Hill in the total offense column due to his late start.

But in passing, he shot into second place, only one completion behind Hill's 39. Hill still holds a commanding lead in passing yards, however, with 740 yards to Meredith's 466. But the SMU star's 38 completions out of 53 attempts — a .717 average — is by far the best.

Shofner picked up 49 yards against Texas to bring his leading total to 578, compared with 535 for Gerald Nesbitt of Arkansas and 502 for Larry Hickman of Baylor.

Halfback Charley Johnson, Meredith's favorite target, caught seven passes last week to tie with Baylor's three ends — Earl Miller, Bill Anderson and Jerry Marcontell — as runnerup to Rice's Buddy Dial in pass receiving. Dial has caught 16 and the others 13.

Bobby Lackey of Texas leads the conference interceptions with five against Texas A&M's John Crow with four.

Wrestling Results
Hans Schnable took the top half of the main event match at Sportsman Club last night as he downed Tokyo Joe in the two-out-of-three fall, one hour contest. Both wrestlers had one fall when the third and final fall made the match victory to Schnable.

In the second half of the top event, Judy Grabe defeated Rita Cortez in the feminine division, in another three-fall battle.

The first event went to Paul of France over Great Bolo in a one fall match which was limited to 20 minutes.

The wrestling is held each Monday evening at 8:30, sponsored by the Pampa Shriners. Sportsman Club is located one mile south of town on the Letford highway.

Other individual leaders held their own. SMU's Dave Sherer led in punting with a 45-yard average.

Area Teams Swing Into First Post-Season Battles Friday

Three area teams who gained berths in the bi-district playoffs will swing into action again Friday night for the first round of the post-season play.

In class A, the White Deer Bucks, representing 1-A, will clash with Letford Pirates of 2-A in White Deer Friday night at 7:30. The two teams met in an early-season encounter in which the Pirates fell by 20-7. White Deer carries a record for the season of nine victories and one defeat. The lone loss came at the hands of Friona, 35-17. In scoring, the Bucks have 301 to 145 for their opponents. Letford carries a 6-4 record, having scored 146 points compared with 121 for opponents.

Class AA will get under way Friday afternoon as the Perryton Rangers, champions of 3-AA, will battle Seymour of 4-AA in Childress Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. The Rangers have an 8-2 season compared with a perfect record for Seymour, who is unbeaten and untied in ten starts. Perryton has a record 239 points while allowing 99 and Seymour has tallied 317 against 106.

Groom will carry the "B" class battle to Childress Friday night as they meet the Matador Matadors, who downed Wheeler last Friday for the 2-B crown. Matador's ten game season has only one blemish, that being to Crowell of Class A, while Groom finished with a 7-2-1.

The winner of the game Friday will have only one to go, with conference "B" going only through regional play.

Arkansas Takes Cross Country From Texas U.

WACO, Tex. (UP) — Defending champion Arkansas upset Texas to retain its Southwest Conference cross country championship Monday.

Sophomore Ray Dyck edged Joe Villarreal of Texas by two seconds with a time of 9:13. National champion Walter McNew of Texas finished third with a time of 9:17, but behind him came three Razorbacks — Tommy Oakley, Allen Rennick and Earl Bond to give the Hogs a 30-50 victory.

Texas Christian was third with 73, Southern Methodist fourth with 88, Texas A&M fifth at 127 and Baylor last with 142.

What Happened To Sweetser

Whatever Happened To... JESS SWEETSER
By UNITED PRESS
In 1926, Jess Sweetser dropped a bomb on the golf world by becoming the first American ever to win the British Amateur championship. He had won the U.S. crown in 1922 and played on numerous Walker Cup teams before and later, but his British victory was a shocker to the experts on the other side of the Atlantic. Unluckily for Jess, his reign was short-lived, for an amateur named Bobby Jones happened along about that time.

Whatever happened to Jess Sweetser? Today, he's a vice president of a huge aircraft manufacturing company at Baltimore and finds time for golf at a noted spot near Washington called "Burning Tree."

Yankees Fast In Swapping For Comeback Next Season

NEW YORK (UP) — The de-throned New York Yankees, losing little time in an attempt to get back on the winning track, already have offered four of their "expensibles" in the hope of coming up with another front-line pitcher for 1958.

Harry Simpson, Tommy Byrne, Enos Slaughter and Joe Collins all were offered to various clubs during the past few weeks and there is a chance two or three of those four may figure in a deal during the Major League meetings at Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 2-7.

The Baltimore Orioles are especially interested in Simpson, whom Paul Richards feels can help his club at first base.

Simpson came to the Yankees from Kansas City last June in the Billy Martin deal.

Stengel had his eye on two of three pitchers with the Orioles and the one he probably would like most is Billy Lush, who came on to record a 12-7 record with Baltimore this year after being abandoned by the Dodgers.

Slaughter, Byrne and Collins no longer figure in the Yankees' plans because of their age. Slaughter is 41, Byrne will be 38 next month and Collins will be 35 in two weeks.

General Manager George Weiss and Stengel always feel they can use more pitching and there are a number of hurlers in the league who appeal to them. Among those they would like to land are Dick Donovan of the White Sox, Ray Hoefs of the Indians, Billy Niekirk of the Tigers and Camillo Pascual of the Senators.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UP) — The University of North Carolina retained its team title in the fifth annual Atlantic Coast Conference cross-country meet Monday although South Carolina's Billy Latham won the event with a 23:22.8 clocking.

Irish Toughened By A Rough Schedule — Sooners Weren't

By HARRY WISMER (Written for the United Press)
NEW YORK (UP) — The mighty Irish have fallen, and now both Oklahoma and Texas Aggies have to pick themselves up and get going again. Rice's defeat of Bear River, the Irish was a notable one, but it was completely overshadowed by Notre Dame's brilliant effort at Norman, Okla., an effort seldom equaled in the annals of intercollegiate sport.

The preparedness of the Notre Dame team was impressive. Whoever scouted the Oklahoma team had done a thorough job, and Brennan and company had been masterful in instructing the winners, especially on defense. Notre Dame played fundamental football. The Irish tackled and blocked in the line, and while Williams, Lynch and Pietrosanti grabbed the headlines, you've got to take your hats off to the forward wall. It was strictly a team effort.

Irish Had Rough Schedule
One thing the victory emphasized, you find your best and your toughest football in the Midwest West, taking it week in and week out. The Irish had been toughened by a rough schedule; the Sooners hadn't. That was the basic difference. The win made the season for Notre Dame.

The bowl situation is pretty well wrapped up. Ohio State's win over Iowa gave the Buckeye's the trip to the West and killed the hopes of Michigan State. Oregon will provide the so-called Rose Bowl opposition, it's Duke and Oklahoma for the Orange Bowl; Mississippi and probably Texas or Rice in the Sugar Bowl; Texas Aggies have to beat Texas for the Cotton Bowl and if Navy beats Army, the Middles go there. After that

Mobeetie's Bi-District Playoff Set For Harvester Park Friday

Pampa will host a slightly different type of football in Harvester Park Friday night as the Mobeetie Hornets will engage Union High school in a six-man bi-district playoff, slated to begin at 7:30.

The Hornets represent the championship in 1-B, and Union, near Brownfield, comes from District 2-B.

Mobeetie has been representing district champion four times during the past five years, while the game marks the initial stab for the Union gridder. Record wise, however, Mobeetie stands one behind with a 5-1 season record while Union is unbeaten in nine starts.

The Mobeetie team is coached by Paul Kitchens, an ex-Mississippi State footballer, who is in his first year as head mentor for the Hornets.

Generally recognized as a fast and furious brand of ball, the six-man variety has even been tagged as more dangerous, featuring faster moving plays with concentration on speed rather than power.

The Harvester Park field will undergo a slight remodeling for the one game, as the six-man field is dimensioned 40 yards in width and 80 yards in length, with 15 yards needed for first downs in a series of four plays.

Of the six men, at least three must be on the line, and every play from scrimmage must have at least one pass or lateral. Extra points kicked result in two points, whereas the running or passing variety receive only one.

If the Hornets can manage a win over Union Friday, they have only one game remaining, as the six-man conference is played only through region.

Army-Navy Game Is Thought Of Throughout The World

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — They sat there together, the picture soldier and the lym-eyed sea-dog, and as they looked back into the past you knew what the Army-Navy game means to those in Army posts around the world and aboard all the fighting ships at sea.

"The one that sticks in my mind," said Lt. Gen. Gar Davidson, superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy, "was a dark one, any way you look at it." Rear Adm. Bill Smedberg, the Naval Academy superintendent, nodded silently.

On Big Retreat
"We were on the big retreat from North Korea," continued the handsome, white-haired Davidson, the bitterness of that memory plain in his voice. "We had dug in on the north side of P'yongyang and I had just gone to bed when they routed me out and told me division wanted us to pull back farther before we were pinned down."

It was a bitter cold night in December of 1950. A knife-like wind keened over the snow. Enemy guns might open up at any moment from the towering hills on both sides of the rutted road. But Gar Davidson, the one-time Army star and coach at West Point, thought fleetingly as the convoy retreated down the valley:

"The game should be just about over at home."
They stopped after a while, stamping their feet in the snow to restore the circulation, and a dark man ran up to Gar in the darkness and puffed:

"More bad news — Navy won it, 14 to 2."
Davidson straightened in his chair and a slight smile touched his lips.

Cup of Woe Overflowed
"That night," he said, "my cup of woe ran over."
Smedberg nodded again and then began to speak.

"You can't help thinking about the game, no matter where you are, when you know it's going to be played. Like the one in 1942 when I was on destroyer patrol off Savo Island."

That was another bad period in our nation's history of blood and battle. We had lost four cruisers in a slugging sea fight off Savo and now men like Smedberg, on his own in a gallant little destroyer, defied the enemy in one-ship sorties aimed at cutting the Japanese supply lifeline to island-entrenched troops.

Sad Confirmation

One of the saddest reports we have noted in recent days has come via the Associated Press from the Universities of Pennsylvania and Chicago. It relates to our compulsive government school system.

Last March, Phillip E. Jacob of the University of Pennsylvania released a study concerning the inner guideposts of American college students. Following this study, Jacob W. Getzels, an educational psychologist at the University of Chicago, completed a similar study in the nation's high schools and verified the findings provided earlier.

It seems that students in attendance both at high school and college go through their principal educational experiences without having their inner convictions altered in the least.

"The high school score," said Getzels, "seems to add up to no runs, no hits, no errors—this is, of course, if not influencing children's values during four years of educational effort is considered no error."

We would be among the observers of our educational scene who would hold that this is a major error. If there is any one thing that a school ought to be able to do, it would be to instill deeply within each student a set of basic principles which can be relied upon as an inner guide for all of the various trials and tribulations which life affords.

Yet, these parallel studies confirm the fact that our government supported institutions of indoctrination do no such thing. The student arrives in school with certain inner convictions, which convictions he has acquired either in the home or in grade school or in church. Or perhaps he has acquired them from the gang that hangs around the corner drug store, from his contemporaries or from the reading of some pretty lurid books and magazines, and from the viewing of certain questionable movies or television.

Whatever these influences may have been, by the time he reaches high school, and then, also, by the time he graduates from college, no change occurs. For better or for worse, the student thinks and feels precisely the way he did when he entered these institutions, as he does when he leaves.

ASTOUNDING, you say? No. Deplorable though it may be, it is not surprising. This is the case because for many years, the schools which have been managed in large measure by governmental policy, supported by tax money which is wrested in ever greater amounts from the public at large, and in the main are run as agencies of government, have concentrated upon empire building rather than upon education with the emphasis on eternal values.

The government employees who control the schools have contented themselves with the mass mind, and with mass mind studies. They have played down all indications of individualism, extolling "democracy" as a sacred virtue, and emphasizing "socialability" in lieu of hard work as the key to success. Thus, the student is made to feel that if he can only be popular, everything can be made easy for him. Popularity is the summum bonum of modern life, according to the present inner convictions carefully nurtured, both in the school and in the home. No wonder there is little if any change to be noted during the final polishing process.

It should be observed here that the studies conducted by these two universities did not exclude research into what we call the private school. And it should also be explained that there was virtually no difference in the findings in both government and private schools. But the reason is easy to understand.

The private school, as it could exist, is virtually not in existence today. Even those institutions of learning which are not government run and paid for by taxation, are compelled to bow before the demands of the accreditation committees and perform must employ much the same standards or lack of them so prevalent in the government schools.

Conformity is the curse of modern education in both independent and government education. Nor will this lack be remedied until certain intrepid educators throw caution and conformity to the winds and stand forth fearlessly holding aloft the torch of wisdom and truth, regardless of government committees, accreditation committees, scholastic prudery and everlasting mediocrity.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Holles
I want to relate some of the questions asked by the school administrators at a talk I gave before the Orange County Elementary Administrators' Assn. on educational problems.

One administrator asked how the boy or girl from the family of small income and where the parent could not read or write would have equal opportunities to get an education if there were no tax-supported schools.

The question is misleading because it implies that it is possible for government schools to give everybody equal opportunities to get an education.

"Opportunity," according to Funk & Wagnall, means "a time or occasion attended with propitious or favoring circumstances; fit or convenient time; favorable or advantageous chance or opening."

Certainly the child who is born in a home where integrity and trustworthiness are characteristic of the parents and where they have more than average talents and means has a much better opportunity to get an education than those who are born in a home that is not governed by moral law and with little means.

Again, the youth of the land who attends a voluntary school where the teachers get their compensation on a voluntary basis and thus can teach respecting the inalienable rights of each and every individual, has a much better chance to get a real education than the pupil who goes to school that is supported by force rather than on a voluntary basis.

In order to make the opportunities more nearly equal, we would have to outlaw voluntary schools and prevent the parents of integrity from imparting moral principles into the minds of their children. And if the individual, whether he be parent or not, does not have the right to give assistance to youth in developing his faculties as he sees fit, then we have departed far from the ideologies set forth in the Declaration of Independence. Then we are adopting a socialistic or communistic policy rather than a policy of justice.

The question implies that one person getting a better education than another is harmful to those who get less assistance in gaining understanding than another. That, however, is not the case. One pupil advancing and better understanding natural law than another does not injure the less fortunate. In fact, it is of great assistance to everyone. Just as a man who produces wealth benefits everybody in the world, so the pupil or the man who better understands the law of nature benefits everyone in the world.

This equal opportunity is a myth. It would require breeding of men and women by some authority to even approach equal opportunity in life. And education is just a means of knowing how to live and have reverence for life.

Another question one of the administrators asked was whether there was any other nation that was better educated than the people of the United States.

That is a rather difficult question to tell because we would first have to define education and then there are no statistics on the subject, unless education simply means being able to read and write, whether the individual understands what he reads or not.

And the question is unimportant at that, because we do not want an education that only equals the education where the government controls their educational system. We want an education that promotes liberty, self-reliance, individual responsibility, and a better understanding of the laws of nature and the reverence for life. The standard should be eternal improvement, not a comparison with another static nation.

Another question was, why were we so prosperous if we were not being properly educated?

The answer to that is because we more nearly, until the last 44 years, lived in harmony with a definite limited government. The one serious exception to this statement was the law permitting slavery. But the love of liberty finally corrected that serious law that was based on might-makes-right, that one man had a right to govern and dominate and plan the life of another. In short, our higher standard of living is due to the fact that in former years we more nearly had reverence for creative energy than any other country in the world. However, this degree of our more nearly respecting creative energy has been lessening since we passed the graduated income tax, Federal Reserve System and the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

One school administrator asked whether one newspaper could stop anybody from starting a competing newspaper in that field. My answer was that there was no law that interfered with anyone starting a newspaper who wanted to.

That starting a newspaper did not require any individual to get a license from the state to start printing a newspaper or a magazine or a book, as is required to start to practice law or medicine or many other businesses. All that is required is the capital and initiative to start in the publishing business.

The educational problems will be reduced, not solved, to the degree that more and more people think and discuss with each other these educational problems. The more light we have on it, the better our education will be.

By HENRY MCEMLERE

LONDON — I have never been in England when something or other wasn't in full bloom.

Sometimes it is iliacs, sometimes it is anemones.

Right now long drawers are in bloom.

The windows of all the shops, with the exception of jewelers', display practically nothing else but woolen drawers and vests, as the English call undershirts.

There are long ones, short ones, and medium-size ones. Some are the plain standard scratchy kind, and others are spun as fine as silk and cost like the devil.

The predominant color in long drawers for men this year is beige, with only two or three pearl buttons to relieve their severity.

Englishmen are always chiding Americans for their love of central heating and dependence on it. They intimate that we are sissies to have rooms kept at temperatures between 55 and 70 degrees in winter.

They stoutly maintain that only thin-blooded are uncomfortable in a room only a few degrees above freezing, and that one fireplace is more than sufficient to keep a house at a comfortable temperature.

The superb display of long drawers now to be seen in thousands of London shops is a sound clue to the Englishman's socialism in the face of cold. His blood is no thicker than an American's, and were he deprived of his winter underclothes he'd shake and shiver and turn blue the same as do the visitors to his country.

Americans associate long underwear with cold, cold days outside the house. The Englishman thinks of them as much a part of inside living as a collar or shirt.

The Englishman, with all his self-admitted scorn for central heating, does not stop with heavy underwear. There are probably more woolen scarves, manufactured, sold, and worn in this country than in half of the rest of the world. Once the air develops a chill, the Englishman wears a scarf or muffler as often as he does a tie.

Q — I am 70 and blessed with good health, except that I am considerably bothered with dryness in my mouth, especially at night. Can you discuss this? — H. L.

A — A deficiency of the secretion of saliva frequently accompanies a number of diseases such as diabetes, Bright's disease and fevers. Sometimes, however, people are troubled with this symptom without any obvious cause.

The procedure, therefore, in Mr. L.'s case is first to make sure that he does not have any disease which can be responsible. If none is found, he can try to obtain relief by mouth washes, possibly containing glycerin, or by small doses of certain drugs. Since these drugs are potent, they should not be tried without professional advice.

Q — I have read that there is a definite connection between food coloring, or dyes, and cancer. Also I have heard that plastics, especially plastic dishes, are a cause of cancer. Would you discuss this? — Sara.

A — So far as I know, there is no definite evidence that coloring matter currently used in foods are directly related to the production of cancer. There is, however, an increasing amount of study going into this subject aimed at determining the safety of so-called food additives. So far as plastic dishes are concerned, there is even less likelihood of their causing cancer.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

THERE are several important comments which should be made on today's first inquiry.

Q — Please write something about hypoglycemia. When I become very tired I eat a piece or two of candy and that pep me up so I can continue my work. — G. H.

A — Hypoglycemia means a lower than normal amount of sugar in the blood. It can only be determined by chemical testing of the blood and not by any symptoms. Furthermore, it is only one of several possible causes for fatigue. There are several varieties of hypoglycemia which do not all require the same treatment. It is important not only to determine the blood sugar from a sample taken before breakfast, but also to find out what is responsible. In one variety, for example, the treatment consists of small frequent meals high in protein foods and not in candy or similar starches. Thus, Mrs. H. may be making a great mistake in the way she is handling her fatigue.

The American Way

By George Peck

During World War II, a distinguished, internationally-minded economist of German birth, said: "History will record America's industrial achievement as the outstanding miracle of the war."

No truer prophecy ever has been made. American factories were the one bright spot in the rather dismal picture that existed in the months following Pearl Harbor. Asked to do the almost impossible, America's industries not only met the challenge, but exceeded it.

Commenting on this miracle of production, the top executive of one of the nation's leading industries, gave forth as follows: "But you ain't seen nothin' yet."

Here was another prophecy, couched in American language, that came to pass. American industry went on to even greater miracles of performance.

And what made this possible? Why were our factories able to turn from peacetime production to war production almost more quickly than you could say, "Adolph Hitler"?

There is only one answer to these questions. It was possible because of our American Capitalistic System of Competitive, Free Enterprise, under which a resourceful management force had been trained to think and plan so as to be able to cope with an emergency that might present itself. These men operating under an economic system that allowed them to galvanize that training, thinking and planning into quick action, were ready to jump into the breach when the Japs made their unexpected, unprovoked and sneaky assault upon Pearl Harbor.

Previously, many of these industrial executives had been held up to ridicule and subjected to unwarranted persecution by the "planning boys" who infested our nation's capital. But now, they were summoned to Washington to take over the nation's war production. In America's hour of need, these "Economic Royalists," these "Princes of Privilege" were drafted by an administration which knew just where to turn and wisely did so.

We owe a debt of gratitude to Donald Nelson and other patriotic businessmen, who for the duration of World War II relinquished all thought of personal gain; disrupted their family lives; worked not only 40 hours a week, but often 70 to 80 hours, without adequate financial compensation. They undertook a thankless task to direct our all-out war production, in a mesy and even feared by our friends. Holding such extreme and unsympathetic views, Stevenson could hardly be expected to take part in any program for revision of our alliances with the Europeans.

DEMOCRATS' POLICY SPLIT— In this connection, it is also recalled that he accepted membership on the Democratic National Advisory Committee organized by National Chairman Pat M. Butler. Senator Johnson and Speaker Rayburn refused to join on the ground that the Party's policy should be fixed by Democrats in Congress between conventions.

Again, Stevenson disagreed. He retorted that "Democrats" should be an effective opposition, must have a broader base than the Democrats in Congress." He added that Governors, Mayors and local Party officials should be consulted and informed on a national level.

BIGWIGS SIDE WITH STEVENSON — The most significant aspect of this widening disagreement is that so many Democratic bigwigs, including 1950 Presidential prospects, side with Stevenson. They comprise Harry S. Truman, Governor Averell Harriman of New York, Governor Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, Governor C. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., of New York and other liberals.

However, save for a few Party rebels, the majority of the Democrats on Capitol Hill support the two Texans in their spirit of moderation and co-operation in the current crisis. This division, along with the split over Civil Rights, threatens a more serious and possibly permanent separation during the next Congressional session and at the 1960 national convention.

DENOUNCED MOVES — In contrast, Stevenson has denounced the Administration's foreign policy, especially in the Middle East, with unusual bitterness for him. He has also condemned the White House for not accepting his proposal for a cessation of A and H-bomb tests as an invitation to Russia to restrict the use of nuclear materials only to peaceful purposes.

Stevenson said only a few months ago that "The Administration's rock-and-roll diplomacy had brought the United States close to disaster." He described the Eisenhower Doctrine as a "military blank check to fight in the Middle East."

Referring to the Administration's conduct at the time of the Suez invasion, he said: "The President is evidently trying to fill the vacuum his own policies helped to create before Russia does. He rebuffed Britain, ignored France and rebuked Israel. He courted and then insulted Nasser. We are mistrusted

IRISH EYES?

This is a year-old studio picture of actress Anna Kashfi, recent bride of Marlon Brando, who declares she is an Indian and is NOT the daughter of William Patrick O'Callaghan, of Cardiff, Wales, as he claims. Hollywoodites say that if she really is Irish, she's a better actress than they ever suspected.

Zsa Zsa, Wearing Bold Dress, On Gobel's TV Show Tonight

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Television gets a Las Vegas shot in the arm tonight when Zsa Zsa Gabor alinks onto the George Gobel show in the most daring gown ever to dazzle the TV tube.

Gobel may earn his "Lonesome George" tag if nervous network censors and the Federal Communication Commission decide to flip a switch sending organ music over the air.

The next-to-nothing gown is a $6,000 flesh-colored chiffon—the stuff that's as transparent as a wolf whistle. It gives Zsa Zsa the appearance of being nude. Zsa Zsa calls it "my thing dress."

Pinned by Sequins
The peek-a-boo bit of fluff is held together by strategically placed sequins, and was created by Charles Lemaire, wardrobe designer at 20th Century-Fox.

There is very little gown, and very much Zsa Zsa.

"It may not pass the censors," the town's number one glamour girl avows, "but I never had any complaints about it in Las Vegas."

Be that as it may, the NBC boys aren't taking chances. They've arranged a special on-camera preview of the dress just before the show goes on the air.

John Bushnell, in charge of the network's continuity acceptance department (TV talk for censor), is cracking his knuckles in anxiety.

No Set Regulations
"There are no set regulations about how little or how much a girl can wear on television," he said. "A lot depends on how well-endowed the girl is. And Zsa Zsa is blessed with all the charms any girl could hope for."

"I'll be right there to see that the dress isn't too hot to handle," Zsa Zsa limits her TV appearances carefully. When she does agree to a guest spot it usually ups a show's ratings several points.

It's a cinch Gobel's rating will jump when Zsa Zsa and her sexy outfit hits the microwaves.

LAUNCHING SITE — News-map locates Tarpon Springs, Fla., where a missile-launching station, to work in conjunction with the Cape Canaveral missile base, will be constructed. Air Force authorities said the facility would employ about 150 persons and would be operated by Vitro Laboratories.
