New Civil Rights Group Starts Work

WASHINGTON (UP)—The historic new Civil Rights Commission today begins its task of insuring the voting rights of American Negroes and other minorities.

The six-man commission, headed by President John A. Hannah of Michigan State University, was to be sworn in (at 11 a.m. e.s.t.) in a White House ceremony presided over by President Eisenhower. Then they will adjourn to a nearby conference room to sit down together for the first time.

Administration officials said Eisenhower would take a hands-off and its work and the members would be on their own from the start.

The President selected three northern and three southern commission members to implement a section of the Civil Rights Act passed by Congress last year.

The panel's job is to investigate alleged violations of voting and other civil rights and to propose whatever legislation it believes is needed to safeguard those rights.

It will report to the President and Congress by Sept. 9, 1959, two years after the 1957 civil rights bill became law. Then it will pass out of existence.

Hannah was appointed Dec. 23 to succeed former Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed as chairman, who quit to avoid possible involvement as a still active jurist.

Besides Hannah, the group includes former Florida Gov. Doyle E. Carlton; former Virginia Gov. John S. Battle; the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University; Assistant Secretary of Labor J. Ernest Wilkins; dean of the Law School of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex.

The three northerners are on record as opposing racial discrimination; the three southerners as defenders of segregation. But all have the reputation of being moderates within their respective areas.

Teacher Has Home Nurse Instruction

Miss Edith Krall, faculty member of the Home Economics department of Pampa High School has finished a three week course in Home Nursing. Some 39 students were enrolled in the three classes which have recently been completed with all the members finishing the course receiving official Red Cross cards for Home Care of the Sick and Injured.

Girls taking the class learn the fundamentals of home care of bedfast or slightly ill patients. Equipment designed from material found in the home is used throughout the course in order to make the care as economical and easily done as possible.

Methods for feeding a bedfast patient and simple home routines are taught and demonstrated in the course of study.

A home care class will be taught in the near future for the public with phases of child care and other helpful sessions to be taught. Any interested person has been asked by Mrs. Libby Shotwell, executive secretary of the Pampa Chapter, to call the Red Cross office.

Trans-Antarctic Race Ends As Hillary Reaches South Pole

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Sir Edmund Hillary radioed today he had reached the South Pole—the winner of the historic trans-Antarctic race and the first man to make the overland trek since Scott in 1912.

Hillary and four other New Zealanders won a desperate gamble against deep snow, treacherous crevasses and brutal weather to plant their country's flag at the Pole before a second British expedition made it.

A radio message announcing the success of their 1,200-mile journey was received at the headquarters of the New Zealand International Geographical Year committee here today.

Not since Britain's Capt. Robert F. Scott marched to the South Pole in 1912 had it been reached by land.

Scott and his party died on the way back after discovering Norwegian Roald Amundsen had beaten them to the world's southernmost point only a month before.

Hillary, 38-year-old conqueror of Mount Everest, had set out from Scott Base at McMurdo Sound with the original aim of setting up a supply base 500 miles from the pole.

The base was to be used by Dr. Vivian Fuchs, who is leading a British expedition to the other across the South Pole.

But Hillary encountered so much better traveling conditions than Fuchs—which is not saying much for Antarctica—that he arrived at the supply point ahead of schedule.

On Christmas Day, his supply base established, he messaged to Scott Base, "heading hell-bent for a pole. God willing and crevasses permitting." That made a race of it.

With a minimum of supplies he and his compatriots coaxed snowcat tractors 500 miles over some of the most difficult and treacherous surface on earth.

They hit relatively good weather at first, but earlier this week it got so bad Hillary radioed that he was almost beaten.

Then, Thursday night conditions improved and the tiny band completed its momentous journey to-

Soviets Stage Massive Manhunt For Fugitives

BERLIN (UP)—Russian refugee groups reported today that six Soviet soldiers deserted in Communist East Germany Dec. 31, and four of them beat their way to the West through a ring of Soviet troops.

The emigre said one deserter was shot and captured and another still was at liberty.

The escape plot, coming while the Communists were celebrating their biggest holiday touched off unprecedented activity by Soviet troops on the borders of Berlin.

The Soviet troops rushed to border posts Wednesday night and conducted an intensive manhunt in the Soviet sector of Berlin. They kept it up until about noon today when they turned the posts back to the East German Communist guards.

Pampa Gains 52 Businesses In Two Years

"There are 52 more business concerns in Pampa today than there were 2 years ago," says Wayne A. Clark, manager of the Amarillo office of Dun & Bradstreet. Being his facts upon the figures in the current January, 1958, Reference Book, Clark points out that in 1956, 540 businesses were listed by Dun & Bradstreet; today there are 592 enterprises in Pampa.

The Reference Book lists only manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, and some service companies, such as laundries and gasoline service stations. It does not include some of the service and "professional" businesses, such as a barber and beauty shops, real estate and stock brokers. Thus the figure for businesses in Pampa would actually be higher than the 592 quoted above.

Better than 95 per cent of all commercial transactions in the United States are made on credit terms and the buyer and the seller are brought together by means of credit information.

When the owner of a business or his accountant returns his financial statement to Dun & Bradstreet, the owner has taken the first step in establishing his responsibility as a seeker of credit.

The statement becomes a part of the credit report on his business along with a financial analysis, a description of what the business does, and a record of how it pays its bills. On the basis of the information in the report, a rating is assigned and the businessman (See PAMPA, Page 3)

Budget Gets Final Check Before Going To Congress

WASHINGTON (UP)—Cabinet officers take a last look today at President Eisenhower's defense-heavy 1958 budget before it goes to Congress.

Officials said the huge spending program, expected to be near 74 billion dollars and include 40 billion to meet Russia's missile threat, was finished except for some defense items.

In addition to discussing these items the President planned to go over his State of the Union message in the two-hour meeting (at 9 a.m. e.s.t.) with the cabinet.

Before winding up his busy 24-hour visit to the capital and returning to his Gettysburg farm for more work on next week's message to Congress, the President was scheduled to preside over the swearing in the new six-man Civil Rights Commission.

Fire Does Heavy Damage At Continental-Emsco Co.

A fire at the Continental-Emsco Co., 519 W. Atchison, last night resulted in extensive damages to the pump room and warehouse of the firm.

The fire was reported to the fire department at 6:30 last night and pumps from the Central Station and the North Station were used to supply water to fight the fire. The new aerial ladder stood by at the scene of the fire but was not used after firemen were able to confine the fire to the interior of the building.

The fire was brought under control at approximately 7:30 last night but firemen remained at the scene throughout the night extinguishing embers.

Fire Chief Ernest Winborne said that the fire started in the vicinity of an overhead heater in the pump room of the firm. He said that the fire remained in the ceiling of the building until it engulfed stock near the center of the warehouse area.

Firemen were hampered in fighting the fire due to the nature of the materials that were burning. The building contained paint, rope, hose and other items made of rubber, rags, paper, grease and many other inflammable articles, the chief said.

Items that were not destroyed by the fire suffered extensive smoke and heat damage. Smoke and heat collecting in the office at the front of the building resulted in damage to nearly all of the office fixtures and equipment. No damage was reported to records of the firm.

Late this morning the damages had not been estimated and a company spokesman reported that they were waiting for company officials and insurance adjusters to arrive before any attempt was made to begin salvage operations.

It is believed that some of the stock, mainly pipe fittings, could be salvaged, the spokesman said.

Four other fires were reported to the fire department, in addition to the fire at the oil field supply firm, during the past 24 hours.

The first of the alarms was received at 5:20 p.m. yesterday when a leak in a gas line on the Skelly Oil Co. Cullin lease, 6 1/2 miles northwest of town, caught fire. No damage was reported from the fire.

At 6 p.m. a fire in a Dempster Dumpster, located in the alley behind the Jerry Boston Superette Market, 210 N. Ward. The fire was extinguished without damage, the fire department reported.

A car on fire at the intersection of Wilcox and Fields resulted in a run for the South Station at 9:55 last night. The fire, caused by the carburetor, was out when the fire truck arrived.

The last of the fires was reported at 9:32 this morning. A bulldozer, digging a slush pit on the Phillips Thompson lease, three miles northwest of town, cut a high pressure gas line, according to Fire Chief Winborne. He said that the resulting fire destroyed the bulldozer.

As Congress Convenes:

Near-Impossible Task Faced To Keep Spending Down With Strong Defense

By FRANK ELEAZER, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress, reconvening Tuesday, faces what looks like a near-impossible task in trying to keep the government in the black while shoring up the national defense.

Present indications are that neither congressional nor administration action can assure a balanced budget for the new fiscal year starting July. Only a swelling return from taxes can do so, and that is problematical.

Even for the current fiscal year, a projected surplus is fast dwindling and by June 30, when the year ends, many lawmakers think the balance sheet may show a deficit.

Congressional wrestling with this possibly insoluble problem will be complicated by a threatened recession. Some congressmen, as well as some administration officials, consider a balanced budget a minor asset, or even a liability, in a period of economic downturn.

Key Is Defense

In Congress last year the big thing was economy, looking toward a tax cut. In the new session the key will be national defense, at whatever price. A general tax cut is now out of the picture unless a major recession develops.

I predict Eisenhower will ask sources say he will get, enough added defense appropriations to boost missile and related defense spending to about 40 billion dollars in fiscal 1959. This is about 2 billion more than now is expected to be spent during the year.

Initially Eisenhower talked of offsetting this added spending by cuts elsewhere in the federal budget. Not so much is being heard about this now, and there are reports the administration may be reconciled to a bigger overall budget, and possibly even a deficit, as part of a campaign against economic recession.

Cuts Not Expected

But whether or not Eisenhower calls for spending cuts at the expense of farmers, veterans, and public works projects—as forecast earlier—it becomes increasingly evident that Congress won't buy much of this.

With government expenses on the way up, the total budget probably will rise to about 74 billion dollars, from the current rate of about 72 billion.

Guatemala May Get Commie Rule

By NEIL MACNEIL, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Tension and Communist-ridged Guatemala is receiving the "very, very close" scrutiny from the State Department and members of Congress, it was learned today.

The only country ever to overthrow a Communist regime now appears in danger of falling once again under Communist influence.

Ever since Guatemalan President Carlos Castillo Armas was assassinated last July by a Communist sympathizer, exile Communists and Communist sympathizers have been returning to the Central American republic in increasing numbers.

"We have been very concerned about it," a State Department official said.

Investigation Likely

A similar concern was voiced on Capitol Hill. An investigation by the House Foreign Affairs Committee appeared likely.

Rep. Albert P. Morano (R Conn.), who last year visited Guatemala with a five-man House foreign affairs subcommittee, told the United Press that Castillo Armas' assassination was "a tragic setback for freedom" and has "given the Communists a new foothold in Guatemala and officials hope the forthcoming national elections in Guatemala Jan. 19 will halt the trend toward Communism by giving a clear-cut victory to the anti-Communists. Three separate parties have offered candidates for the Guatemalan presidency, two of them strongly anti-Communist. The third was reported to be a target for Communist infiltration.

Classes Resume In Local Schools

Classes in Pampa schools resumed yesterday after a two week vacation for the Christmas holidays. No activities are planned for the near future due to a heavy sports schedule and approaching semester examinations.

The 958 school census started yesterday, according to Knox Kinard, school superintendent.

Kinard stated that cooperation of the parents is requested in taking the census of all school children from six to seventeen years of age inclusive in the Pampa Independent School District Area.

Party Isn't Over When Guests Leave, Cleanup Antidote For After-Party Woe

BY KA YSHERWOOD
 NEA Staff Writer

When the door closes on the last holiday party guest, don't kid yourself that the ball is over. A view of the room that was so epic and span a few hours ago testifies kitchen.

Whether to leave the mess until morning or pick it up at once is the wearying question. I've tried it both ways.

The disadvantage of waiting until morning is that the mess looks just as bad and takes longer to clean up, working around the ordinary household routine and with the questionable help of the children.

A few minutes spent in organized effort at night slicks up the room presentably and your cleared conscience may enable you to sleep that much later in the morning.

TO PREVENT time-wasting trips back and forth to the kitchen take a large tray or kitchen cart to the living room.

Empty ash trays into a silent butler or closed metal can. Stack trays and collect glasses, plates, coasters, napkins, and leftover snacks.

Don't forget to look at the floor beside chairs and tables for glasses and ashtrays, and down between cushions for paper napkins. Open the door briefly to air the room.

Put the debris to the kitchen and put glasses to soak in a sinkful of warm water. If you've served egg nog or mixed fruit drinks, the soaking will lessen the amount of scrubbing you'll need to do.

While the dishes soak for a minute or two, return to the living room to check for spills and rings from glasses that might have slipped their coasters on your coffee table or occasional tables.

Glass, marble or tile-topped tables can be wiped clean with a damp sponge or cloth.

Wipe up dampness promptly from wood-table tops and you may prevent a white ring from forming.

A white watermark may respond to this old-fashioned erasing trick: rub the ring with a little salad oil or mineral oil and salt.

Let the treated spot stand overnight, and wipe off excess oil and salt in the morning.

The dishes by now will be ready to be rinsed and dried or lined up in the drainer.

NEXT, EMPTY ASH TRAYS into a metal can and place it outdoors overnight, or dump contents immediately in incinerator. Take no chances on fire from smoldering butts.

An easy and effective way to clean ash trays and rid them of stale tobacco odors is to use baking soda during the cleaning operation.

Shake the soda over the tray and in the grooves where cigarettes have lodged. Scrub lightly over the soiled surface with an old vegetable brush.

Baking soda acts as a mild detergent and deodorizer. I've found it particularly helpful when used on certain types of metal and ceramic trays which hold sooty stains and tars very tenaciously.

When the food is put away and paper is stowed in the wastebasket, you're ready to retire. The carpet probably still shows signs of the party, but it can be vacuumed in the morning.

Baking soda acts as a deodorizer when cleaning ash trays. Sprinkle tray with soda, scrub lightly and rinse.

Everyone is calorie conscious today, and if you're a cheese lover you'll be delighted to know that compared to other natural cheeses, Gouda is low in calories and high in protein. Use it as a perfect dessert, teamed with fresh fruit. Or combine Gouda cheese squares with fresh garden vegetables to serve up a filling lunchtime treat.

Mrs. Martin To Speak To League

Mrs. Herbert C. Martin of Amarillo, member of the state organizational committee, will be the speaker at the monthly luncheon meeting of the League of Women Voters on Monday in the City Club Rooms. Mrs. Martin is one of the state's most outstanding speakers on League activity and an able interpreter of political events.

Monday's luncheon will also be the kick-off for the "Pay Your Poll Tax" campaign. Mrs. Travis Malone and Mrs. Isla Campbell, co-chairmen, will announce plans for the campaign.

A mock election will be held at the luncheon and voting boxes will be in the form of sputniks with voting booths as islands from outer space. A New Year's theme will be carried out.

The first meeting of the year will be in the home of Mrs. Campbell, 2412 Charles on Jan. 7 at 9:30 a.m., under the direction of Mrs. Carl Axelson, at which time the state constitution will be studied.

Reservations for the lunch on Monday may be made by calling 4-4629 or 4-7173.

Blackheads may seem to be permanent with some women and only occasional with others. They are an accumulation of dirt and oil from your own glands under the skin. Once you spot a blackhead get rid of it while it is new and easy to dislodge.

Be gentle when working to rid your face of blackheads. A steamy washcloth applied to the blackhead area will open the pores. With a soft towel over your fingers, press, but don't squeeze, the blackhead out and apply rubbing alcohol or witch hazel to the spot.

Telephone Strike May Start Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—A nationwide long distance telephone strike may begin at midnight tonight unless agreement can be reached on a new contract for 25,000 employees of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. before that time. Elaine Gleason, national director of the Long Lines division of the Communications Workers of America, said the possibility of a strike any time after the union's current contract expires at midnight "is very promising."

Nearly complete returns on a strike ballot taken Thursday indicated that the union membership was "overwhelmingly" in favor of striking, she said.

Bargaining talks were scheduled to resume at 10 a.m. e.s.t. Both sides reported that some progress was made in day-long talks Thursday. A company spokesman said wage agreement had been reached in more than 50 per cent of the geographical areas affected by the contract, but Miss Gleason gave a more pessimistic report.

She said the company was asking for a no-strike clause, elimination of a maintenance of union dues clause, and an increase of working hours for administrative workers in 24 cities. She said AT&T wanted these employees to increase their weekly work load from 35 and 37 1/2 hours to 40 hours.

"Things do not look good," Miss Gleason commented. The union is seeking a $3-a-week increase for operators and $3 to $5 for plant workers at company installations in all states except New Hampshire, Vermont, Delaware, South Dakota, Montana, and Nevada, where the union is not represented. Plant workers earn $43.50 to $119 a week and operators earn $43 to $70.50, with wage scales varying in different sections of the country.

PAMPA

(Continued From Page 1) is listed in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book. This makes it possible for his suppliers and insurance underwriters, who use the book, to look him up and in this way he is assisted in getting his goods and insurance.

In other words, should a manufacturer or wholesaler receive an order for merchandise from a merchant in Pampa the listing and the rating of the merchant can be checked in the Reference Book. And it makes no difference where the seller is located. The listing of the Pampa businessman appears in every issue of the Reference Book in the United States.

A Reference Book listing contains the name of the business and the rating. The rating consists of two symbols. The first, a letter of the alphabet, indicates financial strength or capital. It is the difference between what the business owes and what it owns. The second symbol, a numeral, reflects a composite of financial stability and payment record.

Democratic Leaders Accused Of Playing Satellite Politics

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Ralph E. Flanders accused the Senate Democratic leadership today of playing politics with the investigation of the nation's missile and satellite programs. The Vermont Republican's charge was prompted by a call for a closed-door meeting Tuesday of all Democratic senators to discuss the investigation. The inquiry is being conducted by the Senate preparedness subcommittee under the chairmanship of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.).

Flanders, a member of the subcommittee, told reporters such a meeting is premature because insufficient information has been gathered so far "to form an effective and useful judgment." He said he could interpret the Democratic caucus "in no other way than as a political maneuver." He added he found it difficult to reconcile the meeting with "the many expressions of nonpartisanship in undertaking this important investigation."

Several congressmen involved in military affairs at the same time were urging close scrutiny of proposals to put all the armed forces under a single commander.

Government Explanation Of Rome Opera Fiasco Asked

ROME, (UP)—An Italian deputy demanded a government explanation today for the fiasco that was the opening of Rome's new opera season. The fiasco was brought on when temperamental soprano Maria Meneghini-Callas walked out on the gala first night.

While the press and radio rose up in wrathful indignation against Miss Callas socialist Deputy Luigi Renato Sansone formally asked Premier Adone Zoli what action the government planned against the opera house for allowing such "an unbecoming incident."

Miss Callas walked out on President Giovanni Gronchi, screen star Gina Lollobrigida, party giver Elsa Maxwell, the diplomatic corps and a record opening night crowd in what newspapers called "spiteful action" against a handful of boos by non-Callas fans. She was singing the leading role in Vincenzo Bellini's "Norma" but got no further than the first act. A chorus of boos, catcalls, whistles and a rash of fistfights followed. Riot police restored order but new demonstrations broke out early today in front of her hotel.

All Rome buzzed with speculation as to why the prima donna locked herself in her dressing room and refused to sing another note. Some said it was the boos that echoed from "paradise," the low-priced gallery seats. Others said it was temperament. Some accepted the 34-year-old singer's explanation that a hoarseness which brought on a "lowering of the voice" was actually responsible. But all were astounded at the shambles which followed — and the boos, catcalls and fistfights.

New York's "fighting soprano" has been embroiled in many incidents, but never because of a challenge to her singing ability. It is accepted by many opera lovers that her rendition of the aria "Casta Diva" in "Norma" can scarcely be bettered. There is a diaphragm corps who thinks her arch rival soprano Renata Tebaldi is infinitely better. And it may have been they who sent boos and isolated whistles down from paradise to the stage.

District Court To Convene On Monday

America May Join Treaty Group

Foreign News Commentary By CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Staff Correspondent The United States appears to be edging toward full membership in the Middle Eastern Treaty Organization.

The State Department has said that there is no plan for the United States to join "METO"—the so-called Baghdad Pact—"at this time."

That undoubtedly is true. There are good reasons why the United States should not enter fully into the alliance right now. One is that Allied relations with Egypt, which opposes the pact, are improving. The decision of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to attend the annual meeting of METO foreign ministers at Ankara, Turkey, on Jan. 27 seems to be another of several moves which the United States has made toward full membership.

The Baghdad Pact was concluded in 1955. Its members are Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Great Britain. It links the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to form a chain of alliances extending from arctic Norway to the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand.

Television In Review: The 'Kraft Theater' Drama

By WILLIAM EWALD United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—There is this comedian, see? His name is Bill Brogan and for seven years his TV show has been tops (Nielsen 42.9). This Brogan has knocked over everything the other network has thrown at him—quiz shows, other comedies, the North Atlantic war games, King Farouk and his talent scouts, let's all sing with Charlie Chan. This Brogan is so big he could probably introduce Ed Sullivan from his audience.

Well, finally that other network gets smart and decides to fight Brogan with a crooner named Danny Smith. He is a relaxed crooner, but not too relaxed—after all, who can relax opposite a 42.9 Nielsen? Anyway, this is about the way the lines were laid last evening, in "the battle for Wednesday night," an NBC-TV "Kraft Theater" drama about the TV business.

Now for some reason I got this creepy feeling that in what they call real TV life I had encountered a situation before roughly like this Brogan plot. ("Mr. Wizard" versus "Joe and Mabel," you say? No, not quite. But you're getting warm.)

It all ended happily, of course, with the comic and the crooner friends and the crooner and the girl singer all mushy about each other and me with a bacon and noodle sandwich on orange muffins.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

By Woodrow Adcock
First Methodist Church

ALL THINGS NEW

"And He sat upon the throne sad, "Behold, I make all things new." Revelation 21:5. With the beginning of a new year it is good for us to know that God can make all things new within our hearts. He can forgive us of our sins and failures of the past. We can make a new start in life. We need not continue in a life of sin and failure. By God's Grace we can be transformed into new persons with new attitudes and new dispositions. We can become radiant with joy and gladness and the fullness of life which Christ makes possible for all who will believe and trust in Him. Some things are essential for us to do if we would have the new life which Christ offers to all. They are as follows;

1. Confess our sins and our need of His help.
2. Resolve to do His will, walking with Him by faith every day.
3. Make prayer a vital part of our lives every day.
4. Worship regularly in the fellowship of other Christians.
5. Witness for Christ by telling others the good news of what He can do.
6. Share in the work of the Kingdom by giving talents, services, and money to its support.

Hoover Warns Us

Bitter words, indeed, are those of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in the November issue of the American Legion Magazine, who tells us that "... the same old Communist crowd is doing business at the same old Communist stand in the same old subversive way."

He then added that in spite of the efforts of Communist leaders to put on new smiling faces, the threat of Communism has not weakened, its philosophy is the same and its danger just as great as it ever was.

Other people who have been investigating the present status of Communism report that the Communist Party, U.S.A., "is exulting that it has received a renewed lease on life."

As Hoover points out in his article, the American people must learn to recognize Communism in whatever form it happens to present itself.

"The tactics of Communism do not change! Hypocrisy, guile, deceit, and subversion are the hallmarks of Communism today as they were yesterday. Here in America every walk of life has been infiltrated by the fanged salesmen of subversion cloaked in the lamb's wool of glowing promises." Mr. Hoover declares. "Division and disunity are Communist weapons. It pits race against race, worker against manager, group against group. It muddies the waters of peace while shouting 'Coexistence!'"

If Hoover's views are valid, and he is in a better position to know the Red enemy better than almost anyone, then we ought to be giving some long and careful looks at some of the practices of Communism that we are condoning right here at home. Anytime we approve of governmental action that says that the rights of the state are paramount over the rights of individuals we are following the Commie line.

The question of "what will happen to the union?" when the Congress goes back to work in January will get increasing discussion as the time for the legislators to appear in Washington grows closer.

The probe of the Senate subcommittee, headed by Sen. John McClellan, has revived talk of reprisal legislation against unions to "bring them into line" and with this talk has been the point that unions should no longer enjoy immunity from the monopoly features of the Sherman Anti-Trust laws.

The warped type of thinking that has permitted this inequity to exist since the early days of the New Deal is clearly given in a hearing by Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel for the CIO.

Said Goldberg:

"It is, therefore, improper and misleading to apply the concepts of 'monopoly' and 'restraint of trade' to organizations of working men. The law frowns on combinations among businessmen to raise the price of their products, but it does not and should not frown upon the combination of individual workers into unions to raise the price of their labor. When a monopoly exists in business an individual corporation or a group of corporations fixes the level of production and prices which will maximize profits. On the other hand, when workers band together in a union they do so for the purpose of increasing their wages and improving their living conditions. These practices are in the interest not only of the workers, who band together but of the economy as a whole, since as wages and living standards improve, our economy expands in contrast, as business monopolies increase and grow strong, the economy contracts."

It seems to us that not even a congressman or a union member ought to be taken in by such a piece of nonsense.

Maybe this point can be illustrated with this example: the minimum wage law now sets the price of a worker at one dollar an hour. If Goldberg is correct in his economic viewpoint, all we need to do is pass a law saying that the minimum wage shall be ten dollars an hour and we shall all be ten times as rich.

When "workers band together in a union... for the purpose of increasing their wages and improving their living conditions" they can only do so one of two ways: they can increase their production and thus increase their wages or they can increase their wages at the expense of other workers. The nation's economy has not expanded one iota unless there has been an increase in production.

An employer who is forced by a union to increase wages must get the money from some source in order to do it. He can take it out of his savings account, for instance, which means that the lending agency which has been using the money no longer can lend it for additional production. He can take it out of personal or corporate money set aside for expansion and the jobs that would have been added are lost. He can take it out of his customers in which case he adds the cost of the product to all the rest of the economy in order to benefit the few in the union. And so forth.

But if a general wage increase is granted for any reason other than that there has been increased production and subsequent lowering of the unit cost of the product, somebody has to pay for it, for nothing has been added to the national economy and there has been no improvement of living conditions.

Unless we recognize this simple economic truth we are just kidding ourselves and will continue to do so until we have learned it the hard way.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hollis
"An Interpretation Of Social Economic Evolution."

I want to continue to quote some gems from Ludwig van Mises' book "Theory and History," or "An Interpretation of Social and Economic Evolution."

After pointing out how a division of labor was necessary to develop a high standard of living, he observes:

"...Ricardo's law" (of association) "has shown that co-operation under the principle of the division of labor is favorable to all participants. It is an advantage for every man to co-operate with other men, even if these others are in every respect — mental and bodily capacities and skills, diligence and moral worth — inferior. From Malthus' principle one can deduce that there is, in any given state of the supply of capital goods and knowledge of how to make the best use of natural resources, an optimum size of population. So long as population has not increased beyond this size, the addition of newcomers improves rather than impairs the conditions of those already cooperating."

It seems to me that this part about Malthus' law of population is rather vague. Who knows how many people could be supported at an ever-higher standard of living in this world if there were no intervention by government or groups interfering with a free and unhampered market. If labor was freely divided and creative energy was respected, this fear of over population is something that need not be considered as things look today, provided there is no intervention preventing free men from using the natural resources of this earth.

Different Kind Of Sciences

He explains that there is a difference between sciences of human action and the sciences of dealing with material things. Science in dealing with the natural elements can be experimental and predictions can be definitely made, but because men have free will and they are constantly changing and no two men are alike, the science of human action, has to be handled from a probable standpoint rather than from an exact science. He puts it this way:

"The sciences of human action by no means reject determinism. The objective of history is to bring out in full relief the factors that were operative in producing a definite event. History is entirely excluded by the... of cause and effect. In retrospect, there is no question of contingency. The notion of contingency as employed in dealing with human action always refers to man's uncertainty about the future and the limitations of the specific historical understanding of future events. It refers to a limitation of the human search for knowledge, not to a condition of the universe, or of some of its parts."

Laissez-Faire

"The laissez-faire liberals asserted: If the old laws establishing status privileges and disabilities are repealed and no new practices of the same character — such as tariffs, subsidies, discriminatory taxation, indulgence granted for nongovernmental agencies like churches, unions, and so on — to use coercion and intimidation are introduced, there is equality of all citizens before the law. No body is hampered in his aspirations and ambitions by any legal obstacles. Everybody is free to compete for any social position or function for which his personal abilities qualify him."

In explaining the difference between the socialist and the free private property economy, he puts it this way:

"This socialist or communist doctrine falls entirely to take into account the essential difference between the conditions of a status or caste society and those of a capitalistic society. Feudal property came into existence either by conquest or by donation on the part of a conqueror. It came to an end either by revocation of the donation or by conquest on the part of a more powerful conqueror. It was property by 'the grace of God,' because it was ultimately derived from military victory which the humility or conceit of the princes ascribed to special intervention of the Lord. The owners of feudal property did not depend on the market; they did not serve the consumers; within the range of their property rights they were real lords. But it is quite different with the capitalists and entrepreneurs of a market economy. They acquire and enlarge their property through the services they have rendered to the consumers, and they can retain it only by serving daily again in the best possible way. This difference is not articulated by metaphorically calling a successful manufacturer of spaghetti 'the Spaghettil King'."

New North-South Feud Is Stirred In House

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The overenthusiastic friends of Representative Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas have needlessly and prematurely stirred a new North-South feud among the House Democrats on the eve of the opening of Congress. Only fulfillment of the wishes which Speaker Sam Rayburn got on his New Year's cards — "a long and merry life" — can stall it off for long.

As a result of the death of Representative Jere Cooper of Tennessee, Mills has become Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is, perhaps, the most powerful body on Capitol Hill. It originates all legislation affecting taxes, tariffs, social security and kindred financial matters. It has its hand in every American's pocketbook.

Its 15 Democratic members constitute a so-called Committee of Committees. As such, they name the men who shall represent the party on all House committees, which gives the 15, and especially the Chairman, enormous power.

Besides building a personal machine through distribution of favorable committee assignments, he can actually affect policy by the kind of men — conservatives or liberals — whom he selects to frame legislation for presentation to the House.

MILLS BEING BOOSTED FOR SPEAKERSHIP — In short, Mills' new position makes him possibly the third most influential legislator on Capitol Hill, after the Vice President and the Speaker. In any event, depending on the ability and forcefulness of other House-Senate leaders, he ranks among the top six. And Mills is both able and forceful.

His new post and his qualifications immediately inspired his friends to boost him for the Speakership, whenever "Mister Sam" retires. With a fanfare of publicity, they have advanced him as the "logical choice."

But they have reckoned without the ambitious and aggressive "Boston boy" and his supporters — House Majority Leader John W. McCormack. He has been working and politicking for the Speaker's job for many years, and he stands in direct line of succession. Moreover, he is a 26-year veteran, whereas Mills has served only 18 years.

The CRACKER BARREL

Last week the paper said King Saud of Arabia was going to marry a nineteen year old girl. And then it said he wasn't. This led some folks to think the King was fickle and this is mighty unfair. Saud, according to reliable reports, already has four wives and eight concubines. A picture of each of these ladies is mounted on the headboard of the King's bed. And beside each picture is a buzz-er. In order to marry this new girl, the King would have to divorce one of the existing four wives. Not only that — he'd have to rip out the old headboard and have the whole board rewired. Since the King's income is only a million dollars a day, he may hesitate to become this deeply involved with electricians.

Mac's Resolutions For The New Year

By HENRY McEMORE

MADRID — This morning, for the first time since I was nine — going-on-ten, I sat down and made a list of New Year's Resolutions with every intention of keeping them.

I should have been making and keeping resolutions every blessed year since then, because never have I been so superbly behaved as I was during that year of my boyhood.

My department in school went up from F to D. Mama used up only two peach trees instead of the usual three in procuring switches with which to make me straighten up. I filled two Sunday School Attendance cards with gold stars.

Subscribers on my paper route praised me for not throwing their papers in water puddles. My hours for staying after school to beat erasers and water flower pots were cut in half. I gave the family budget a boost by tearing only half the usual number of trousers from sliding into second and sliding down trees.

The family was warmer because there was always kindling in the firebox. My legs grew stronger because I ran twice as many errands instead of hiding out when I heard my Mama or Papa call.

For a year, while true to my boyish imperfections, I was closer to boyish perfection, and my family worried about it.

Now, I thought to myself this morning, I am in much greater need of straightening up than I was in those bygone days. So why not get out pencil and tablet, lick the end of the pencil to get it good and black, and make myself a set of resolutions for 1958?

Here are a few of the resolutions I have made for the year 1958:

To have the run-down heels on my shoes fixed before they are so nearly gone that I list like a distressed ship.

To accept graciously the seat at the table which requires that I straddle a leg, and not duck around trying to paw it off on someone else.

To send my insurance premiums on the next to the last day of the month instead of the last.

To have Mary's birth date tattooed on my forehead so I won't forget it for the fourth year in a row.

To learn to change a typewriter ribbon in fewer hours and with less blasphemy.

Not to pout and feel cheated when I have to take the outside seat on a train, plane, or bus.

To admit my real collar size.

To learn to like a poached egg, or any sort of egg that's runny.

To quit getting annoyed when a man twenty-five and thirty years old addresses me as "Sir."

To try and quit trying to get by without shaving every day.

To try to remember that for every fault most people have I have three, and to be more tolerant.

To make a hard effort to raise one dog in my lifetime without slipping him tidbits at the table.

The list goes on and on, but this will give you an idea of how one man is going to try to improve himself and make himself a more valued member of the community.

The American Way

GALLOPING SOCIALISM

By GEORGE PECK

We've read and heard a lot about "Creeping Socialism" — the kind of totalitarianism that sneaks its way into the economy of a nation, so disguised and camouflaged that an unsuspecting public doesn't recognize it.

A splendid example of "creeping socialism" was the Tennessee Valley Authority. Under the guise of flood control and irrigation to get Uncle Sam into the electric power business. Sounded very plausible — dams said to be built to hold back the flood waters, so why not use the overflow waters of those same dams for developing hydro-electric power.

So far, the taxpayers of the U. S. A. have poured approximately 1 1/2 billion dollars into TVA. That ain't even in these days of wild government spending and inflation. But all that 1 1/2 billion wasn't spent on hydro-electric power development. You see, socialism in the Tennessee Valley got up off the floor — it ceased to creep and started to walk. That came about when the great "yardstick" added steam production of electric energy to its hydro-electric production. No matter how the socialists may try to figure it, there is no flood control of irrigation hooked up with the production of electricity from steam.

And now if the citizens of this country don't act and act fast, TVA is going to stop walking — it is getting ready to gallop. And it surely will gallop if the Davis Bill (H. R. 4266) is passed by the Congress.

This Davis Bill (H. R. 4266) would remove what few restrictions now encompass TVA — it would turn this socialistic agency loose from all control of the Congress. It would permit the TVA to issue its own revenue bonds — with NO LIMIT — it would cunningly exclude such bonds from the Federal Debt Limit — it would invite cancellation of the obligation of TVA to repay to the Federal Government the money it has already spent — it would permit TVA to expand its service area (again no limit) and raid the customers of its tax-paying power company neighbors.

During the last session of Congress this Davis Bill (H. R. 4266) was referred to the House Rules Committee, where it was rushed through after inadequate hearings by a narrow margin. It was then approved by the House Rules Committee. It will be scheduled for the next session of Congress for a full House vote.

Surely TVA is an evil thing for the taxpayers under the present laws. It pays no federal taxes. It pays no State or local taxes except for a measly token amount in lieu of such taxes. It pays no interest on the capital which the taxpayers have invested in it. It keeps all its profits. It is free of the Federal, State and local regulations under which investor-owned private utilities rightfully must operate. And most damnable of all: it lures business away from other areas where taxes must be paid by all.

The TVA was to have been a "yardstick" — a measuring rod to determine a fair price to be charged for electric current. It is doubtful if anything ever conceived in this country, or any other, has slipped as far short of its proclaimed intent. The rates charged by TVA, while giving a bargain to customers in its service area, unfairly put an impost on all of the electric customers outside its area. One of my associates has dubbed the TVA as being a "stick-up" — not a "yardstick." With that dubbing I most thoroughly agree.

This further grab for "power" by the TVA, which the Davis Bill (H. R. 4266) would give that agency must be nipped in the bud. A powerful lobby will be on the job working around the clock to push this Bill through the Congress. That lobby must not be allowed to prevail. It can be checkmated. How? By the voters taking a few minutes to sit down to write their Congressman and their two United States Senators (if and when a companion bill hits the Senate) to vote against a legislative proposal that would result in the liquidation of congressional authority over a Federal agency.

The TVA WAS "Creeping Socialism" — IT IS NOW "Walking Socialism" — IT WILL BE "Galloping Socialism" if Bill H. R. 4266 becomes law. Let's not let that happen!

HE'S INSURED—Sputnik-conscious J. Richard Feeley peers skyward from a second-story window of his Amesbury, Mass., home to see if he can catch a glimpse of either of Russia's space travelers. Feeley, an insurance broker, is the first American to insure his property against damage by a falling Sputnik, and he hopes to be the first salesman in this country to sell such insurance. Lloyd's of London insured Feeley's home and two other dwellings on the single lot for $10.50 for a 12-month period. His property adjoins the homestead of Quaker poet John Greenleaf Whittier.
