Fireworks blamed in range land grass fire

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Pampa Fire Marshall Tom Adams has expressed fear that this

Fourth of July will produce a rash of grassfires similar to 1980, when a heat wave combined with fireworks to produce 200 fires in one 24-hour period.

Unfortunately, Adams' fears are being realized a week early.

Firefighters from six cities were called out Thursday afternoon to battle a huge prairie fire that consumed 10,000 acres of range land north of Pampa in southern Roberts County.

Gray County Sheriff Jim Free said today that officials found a bottle and bottle rocket near where the fire started, on the north side of Hwy. 282 near the Little Red Schoolhouse.

Firefighters from Pampa, Miami, McLean, White Deer, Lefors, Skellytown and Canadian were joined by employees from Enron, B&I Tank Trucks, Triangle Oil, Chase Oil Field Service, 2-B Ranch and B&M Oil in battling the blaze, which lasted from 4:28 to 10:45 p.m.

A strong, gusting wind out of the south pushed the fire away from Pampa and almost as far north as the Canadian River.

Firefighters said they were able to control the burn finally by "directing" it into a canyon comprised mainly of rocks, where it finally burned out.

Tankers from Gray and Roberts counties joined private haulers in carrying water to the fire scene, which spread 16 miles north, as well as west into a section of Hutchinson County.

Ranch hands at the 2-B, owned by T. Boone Pickens, said the fire never reached their property, but engulfed range land on the Hayhook and Carter Ranches.

Fortunately, all houses and structures along the path of the fire were saved by wetting that area down heavily. Firefighters said no cattle were killed or injured in the fire.

What kind of economic impact the fire would have on cattlemen whose property was burned was not immediately known.

However, Joe VanZandt, Gray County Extension agent, said this morning, "They had grown good grass up to now, and until we get some good, soaking rains, they're not going to get any new grass."

Rural residents with houses near the fire scene spent most of the evening with garden hoses, wetting down their property in case the blaze spread near their homes.

Lt. Don Wildish of the Pampa Salvation Army said contributions of food from the Coney Island, McDonald's and Hardee's, along with cases of Gatorade from Furr's Emporium, allowed the organization to assist firefighters in battling heat and fatigue in the 102 degree weather, compounded by the intense heat of the fire.

'Until we get some good, soaking rains, they're not going to get any new grass.'

In all, around 50 firefighters and volunteers fought the fire for over six hours.

Officials said irresponsible use of fireworks could cost the Panhandle millions of dollars in damage over the next week because of dry conditions and the fire hazard that hot weather and no rain have produced.

Free said his department is working to educate area residents that any fires started by pyrotechnics are the responsibility of the person who started them.

Both the city of Pampa and Gray County are planning to prosecute anyone who uses fireworks in a dangerous or illegal manner.

Fire Marshall Adams has said bottle rockets are against the law in Texas.

President defends tax accord for reduction of federal deficit

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said today he jettisoned his no-new-taxes campaign pledge in hopes of reaching an accord with the Democrat-controlled Congress on a plan to reduce the deficit and reinvigorate the economy.

"I knew I'd catch some flak on this decision," said Bush, who has been sharply criticized by many lawmakers in his own Republican Party. "But I've got to do what I think is right."

Speaking at a White House news conference, Bush said budget talks with congressional leaders are "a make or break effort at responsible government." He said the negotiations are going well and expressed hope there could be an agreement within a few weeks.

Bush won the White House in 1988 by campaigning as an ardent foe of new taxes. "Read my lips, no new taxes," was the most memorable line of his successful drive for the presidency.

But the president today likened himself to Abraham Lincoln. "I'll think anew," he said, when faced with a deficit he said was worse than "any of us visualized" when he made his pledge.

Many Republican congressmen have made it clear they feel betrayed by the president's reversal on a winning campaign issue.

"Arrows have been flying, back, front, sideways, but that's what I get paid for," he said. "I can totally empathize with what they're going through."

Bush's declaration earlier this week that "tax revenue increases" were an essential element of any deficit-reduction package jump-started budget negotiations with Congress.

The president spoke shortly before leaving for a brief vacation at Kennebunkport, Maine. Next week, he travels to London for a meeting with NATO leaders, then on to Houston for the annual economic summit of industrialized nations.

Asked about a Western package of economic aid for the Soviet Union, Bush cited "the difficulties we have" with such a proposal. "There has got to be economic reform there... all kinds of changes I believe (Soviet President Mikhail S.) Gorbachev wants to see take place. But they have to be in place in order for aid to go forward."

Bush also said he was reviewing a letter from Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir proposing severe restrictions on which Palestinians that Jerusalem would negotiate with.

"I'm concerned about a deadlock in the peace process," he said. "There's got to be discussion with the Palestinians."

Bush suspended an 18-month dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization last week until the PLO condemns a failed terrorist raid on an Israeli beach.

The president also defended his son Neil, whose connections with a failed Colorado savings and loan have come under scrutiny by federal regulators and congressional investigators. "I have... what dad wouldn't... full confidence in the integrity and honor of my son," he said.

The news conference was dominated by questions about the volatile tax issue.

Without a deficit-reduction agreement, Bush said, automatic spending cuts totaling $100 billion could take effect Oct. 1, with "draconian" reductions in defense and domestic programs such as student loans.

The deficit for next year could total $150 billion, not counting the cost of cleaning up failed S&Ls.

In accepting the Republican president nomination in 1988, Bush said:

"And I'm the one who will not raise taxes... My opponent won't rule out raising taxes. But I will.

"And the Congress will push me to raise taxes, and I'll say no, and they'll push, and I'll say no, and they'll push again. And I'll say to them: Read my lips. No new taxes."

Bush was asked how he could have made his no-tax pledge in 1988 when the deficit was already at record levels. "The budget deficit is bigger, far bigger. I thought I could do a better job of getting spending down," he said.

Bush refused repeatedly to discuss specific tax increases.

"I'm not saying what's on or off," he replied when asked whether he would consider an income tax rate increase.

"I have got strongly held preferences that people are familiar with," he said. "More important than my posturing or protecting from arrows coming from one direction or another is getting a deal that is fair and good for the American people."

Barry's defense seeks to discredit ex-model

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI frantically tried to keep Marion Barry in a hotel room with ex-model Rasheeda Moore to avoid the collapse of its undercover sting operation against the mayor, Barry's lawyer said today in federal court.

R. Kenneth Mundy zeroed in on the FBI videotape which was played Thursday at Barry's cocaine and perjury trial showing the mayor smoking crack cocaine Jan. 18 at the Vista Hotel.

On the tape, when Barry announces that he was preparing to leave Moore's hotel room, an female FBI undercover agent telephoned Moore.

"You told the agent you were coming downstairs and the agent said 'No, no, no, don't,'" suggested Mundy.

"That's correct," said Moore.

"The plan was to keep Mr. Barry in the hotel room," said Mundy.

"That is correct," said Moore.

"The plan was not to let him get down to the lobby," said Mundy. Moore agreed.

After the agent's call, the undercover agent known as Wanda Moore delivered crack to the room and Barry smoked it. Wanda was posing as a friend of Moore's.

Barry told Moore, "I don't smoke no more, honey" and the undercover agent left the room. But Barry told Moore to call her back.

"Go get some. Go get it," the mayor told Moore, and the deal was consummated, with Barry paying for the drugs.

Barry and Moore each wanted the other to be the first to smoke the crack.

"I thought you bought this because you wanted to take a hit," Moore told Barry on the videotape.

"Aw, naw, you do it," the mayor replied.

Senate keeps arms curbs in crime bill

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police groups who have campaigned against semiautomatic assault rifles are getting the credit following a narrow vote by the Senate to maintain curbs on nine such weapons in an omnibus anticrime bill.

"Why we won is that law enforcement did a better lobbying job than the National Rifle Association," Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Thursday after the Senate voted 50-48 to maintain the curbs.

Tougher penalties for federal firearms violations, sexual abuse of children and selling the new narcotic drug "ice" also went into the bill as senators worked past midnight this morning.

The Senate also rejected efforts to drop numerous death penalty provisions in the anticrime bill. It did vote to let Indians decide for themselves whether to impose capital punishment for murders committed on reservations.

Central provisions of the bill call for capital punishment for 30 federal crimes and streamline the appeals process with an eye to ending delays of up to a decade in carrying out executions.

The Senate, adjourned until after the Fourth of July recess, plans to vote on passage of the overall anticrime package when it returns.

Forty-two Democrats and eight Republicans voted to uphold the ban on import or manufacture in this country of the nine semiautomatic assault weapons while 36 Republicans and 12 Democrats voted against.

The result was a further blow to the National Rifle Association which has been fighting the restrictions.

The Fraternal Order of Police, the International Association of Chiefs of Police and an array of other law enforcement groups have been campaigning against assault weapons. They say the military-style rifles and semiautomatic pistols are too dangerous to be on the streets.

The anticrime bill had appeared dead when the gun provisions survived previous moves to scrap them and the threat of an unbreakable filibuster materialized. Two weeks of bargaining, however, produced agreement to resurrect the bill once part of President Bush's anticrime package but now largely rewritten.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, led off Thursday's debate with a plan to scrap the assault weapons provisions in favor of mandatory sentences ranging from 10 years to life for firearms-related federal crimes and the death penalty in some gun killing cases.

"The sad, cold reality is that drug felons that are smuggling tons of illegal drugs into the country will smuggle firearms," said Gramm. "They are going to have guns. The question is, are we going to have the stiff, mandatory sentences for those who violate the law?"

"We are talking about crime control on one hand and criminal control on the other hand," Gramm said.

The Senate's 50-48 vote to uphold the gun curbs came on a DeConcini move to combine both the restrictions and Gramm's tougher penalties.

The success of that effort frustrated the move to delete the restrictions and the Senate then quickly adopted both the restrictions and the tougher penalties.

Pampa Lions Club members praised for their charitable service projects

His comments came during the annual installation banquet for officers at the Pampa Country Club Thursday night.

"This district encompasses the 26 counties of the Panhandle and there are 68 clubs," Cunningham said.

"We've had an increase in membership for the year. Our contribution to the Girl's Town Coat and Shoe fund was about $15,000.

"We contributed about $12,500 to the Crippled Children's Camp Bunkhouse fund, $3,000 to getting the Canadian High School Choir to St. Louis to represent Texas.

"They will represent the 40,000 Lions of the state of Texas at the international convention as the official state band."

Other contributions the Lions have made include helping with seeing-eye dogs, Lions Eye Bank and tornado relief efforts in Spearman.

"We find that the programs we espouse do really work," Cunningham said.

He congratulated the local club for doing an "outstanding job meeting the motto we have of 'We Serve.'"

The local club donated over $11,000 during the past year to 12 different organizations or needs, club officials said. That included over $1,000 to buy Christmas presents for needy children in the area.

Tom Spencer, new Lion Boss, was also named Lion of the Year for his work with the group.

"He exemplifies the things we think of in Lions Club," said Dr. Jay Johnson, outgoing Lion Boss, "active in all phases of community service, dedicated to bettering the community and a leader in the club."

Spencer said he felt honored to be a Lion. He is an 18-year employee of Southwestern Bell and a native of Amarillo.

"Lions are very active and we have a lot of projects going," he said. "That allows us to do what needs to be done in the community. Through projects you find out what needs to be done."

"It's a good group of men and I joined because I found they do the things that need to be done in the community."

Other officers installed during the banquet include Larry Baker, first vice president; Gene Barber, second vice president; Dr. Bill Horne, third vice president; Carl English, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Ralph Depee, Lion Tamer; Greg Brown, Tail Twister; and Jeanne Townson, assistant Tail Twister.

Directors for the organization are Ray Boring, Dr. Fred Simmons, Dough Carmichael, Dr. Bob Tyle, Sam White and Weldon Holley.

Japanese company 'offended' by Pickens

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese auto parts manufacturer has angrily accused its largest stockholder, Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens, of "slandering and false charges" that "deeply offended" company officials.

The Koito Manufacturing Co. withdrew an invitation to Pickens to visit a company plant today, a day after a messy confrontation with Pickens over his efforts to win seats on the company's board of directors.

The debate between Pickens and Koito has come to symbolize for many Americans the difficulties faced by U.S. investors in Japan at a time when many Japanese companies are buying up American companies and real estate.

The debate points up the fundamental differences between the way Japanese and U.S. businessmen operate and how they accumulate wealth.

Pickens, accompanied by 32 other American investors, had come to Japan for the Japanese auto parts company's annual stockholders meeting.

He again raised his demand for four seats on the 20-member board of directors, and presented proposals for changes in company policy.

Pickens and the other Americans stormed out before voting on his proposals was finished, claiming that Koito was taking his suggestions lightly and discriminating against foreigners.

"It was a sham, an absolute farce," he told reporters. "Here today, Koito completely showed the world what it's all about in corporate Japan."

Koito President Takao Matsuura, in a statement sent Thursday night to Pickens' hotel, said the charges were "completely baseless and untrue," adding: "Koito is deeply offended by your public remarks."

Pickens declared that he would take his case against corporate Japan's "closed system" to Washington and to the upcoming Houston summit of advanced industrial democracies.

"We're going to tell it just like it is," he said. Pickens, who now owns 26 percent of Koito's shares, has insisted that as its largest stockholder, he has a right to influence its policy.

Koito officials say they doubt Pickens is a long-term investor with a genuine interest in helping manage the company.

In the weeks before the shareholders meeting, Pickens had undertaken a publicity campaign to convince individual Japanese shareholders of his sincerity in advocating shareholders' rights.

Matsuura said after the meeting that Koito had taken pains to answer Pickens' questions and had carried out procedures agreed to during meetings with a court-appointed inspector.

"While we were prepared to extend you every courtesy, we will not allow Koito employees, shareholders and management to be crudely insulted as part of your continual harassment of the company," he wrote.

Barry

"If you don't do it, I'm not going to do it," said the mayor, who finally walked over to a dresser and inhaled twice deeply from an FBI-supplied crack pipe.

Moments later as Barry and Moore prepared to go downstairs, FBI agents burst into the room and arrested the mayor.

Jurors also saw Barry attempting to rekindle what Moore has described as a longtime sexual relationship. "Can we make love before you leave, before we leave town?"

the mayor asked. She resisted, and he asked her twice, "I can't caress your breasts?"

Barry, 54, has pleaded innocent to 10 misdemeanor cocaine-possession charges, one misdemeanor cocaine conspiracy charge, and three felony charges of lying to a grand jury about his alleged drug use. One possession charge stems from the night of his arrest on Jan. 18.

Barry acknowledged a month ago that he smoked crack that night, and said federal prosecutors were trying to kill him by providing a potentially lethal dose of the drug.

Defense attorney R. Kenneth

Mundy contended that Barry was entrapped at the Vista International Hotel by an overzealous FBI that had been pursuing the mayor for five years.

During cross-examination of Moore after the videotape was played, Mundy told her that when she started cooperating with the FBI a few months before the sting, "you had reached the bottom as far as money and finances."

"Yes," agreed the former model. Moore bought drugs with welfare money that was supposed to go for her children's care, Mundy said in an accusatory tone.

Study: Candidates, parties get $11.6 million from S&Ls in 1980s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fund-raising committees and individuals tied to the savings and loan industry contributed nearly $12 million to congressional candidates and political parties in the 1980s, according to a study.

Common Cause, which conducted the study, said the contributions helped influence legislation and other actions that loosened regulation of the S&L industry. The industry now is subject to a government bailout estimated to cost $300 billion or more.

Common Cause, a public interest group seeking to overhaul campaign finance laws, said Thursday the flow of S&L money into campaign coffers demonstrates the need for a ban or tighter restrictions on contributions from political action committees.

Using Federal Election Commission data, Common Cause said it identified 157 political action committees and 1,074 individuals associated with savings and loans.

The PACs contributed $6.2 million to congressional campaigns and party organizations in the 1980s and the individuals provided $5.4 million, it said. Current members of Congress received $6.7 million, of which $3.8 million went to Democratic incumbents and $2.9 million to Republicans.

Political parties received $2 million from S&L interests in the 1980s, Common Cause said, including

$1.1 million that went to Republican committees and $891,000 to Democratic coffers.

Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen received more than $154,000 from fund-raising committees and individuals tied to the savings and loan industry in the 1980s, third highest of any congressional figure.

Texas' other senator, Republican Phil Gramm, received $86,098, ranking sixth in a Common Cause study of such contributions. The study, released Thursday, covers donations made from Jan. 1, 1981, to April 30, 1990.

More thrift failures have occurred in Texas than any other state.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, led the Texas House delegation in receipt of thrift-related contributions. He received $38,400 to rank No. 13 on the list of House members.

Rep. Steve Bartlett, D-Dallas, was next at No. 28 with $27,048. He is a member of the House banking committee. Its chairman, Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, received $3,025.

Five senators are under ethics committee investigation for intervening on behalf of Charles H. Keating Jr., the owner of a failed California S&L whose rescue is expected to cost the government more than $2 billion.

Keating and his wife donated $97,950 in their names to candidates and political party committees during the 1980s, Common Cause said. Keating also helped raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for a handful of candidates.

Four of the so-called Keating Five were among the top 10 senators in receiving S&L-related donations in the 1980s, according to the Common Cause analysis.

According to Common Cause:

— Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. and chairman of the Banking Committee, received $200,900 from S&L interests in the 1980s, the second-highest total among senators.

— Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., $143,700, fourth.

— Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., $84,200, seventh.

— Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., $80,393, eighth.

The fifth member of the group, Ohio Democratic Sen. John Glenn, ranked 30th among senators, receiving $32,600 from PACs and individuals associated with S&Ls in the decade, Common Cause said.

The overall Senate leader in such receipts was Republican Sen. Pete Wilson, now California's GOP gubernatorial nominee. Common Cause said S&L-related contributions to Wilson in the 1980s totaled $243,000.

On the House side, the top six incumbents in terms of S&L-related contributions in the 1980s all were from California.

According to Common Cause, they were:
 — Republican Rep. William Lowery, $85,088.
 — Republican Rep. David Dreier, $75,150
 — Democratic Rep. Mel Levine, $69,250.
 — Democratic Rep. Richard Lehman, $68,090
 — Republican Rep. Norman Shumway, $67,425.
 — Democratic Rep. Esteban Torres, $60,950.

Not included in the FEC data analyzed by Common Cause were so-called soft money contributions to political parties. Because these contributions ostensibly are used for party building and not spent on specific candidates, they are not reported to the FEC.

President Bush benefited from $600,000 in soft-money contributions to the 1988 Republican presidential effort from six wealthy individuals with ties to the S&L industry, including Keating.

The group said President Bush's campaign received $100,000 each in soft money contributions from two men who bought thrifts during a government "fire sale" at the end of 1988.

Robert M. Bass of Fort Worth took over the failed American Savings and Loan Corp. of Stockton, Calif., and Ronald Perelman bought five insolvent Texas thrifts.

Unknown hepatitis perplexes Stormie's doctors

By TARA BRADLEY-STECK
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stormie Jones, the world's first heart-liver transplant recipient, walks a medical tightrope as she battles a perplexing infection attacking her second transplanted liver, doctors say.

"We have no silver bullet for this type of hepatitis. We don't have a specific drug that we can give," Dr. Andreas Tzakis of Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh said Thursday.

Stormie, 13, of White Settlement, Texas, received her first injections Wednesday of a protein-type substance that bolsters the immune system to fight the unknown type of infectious hepatitis that threatens to destroy her liver.

Doctors slightly reduced the anti-rejection medication that suppresses the immune system so her body can combat the hepatitis.

If the anti-rejection medication is reduced too much, though, it may lead to organ rejection Stormie has struggled with in the past.

"She's not in imminent danger of (losing) her life," said Tzakis. "She's well. She's eating. She wants out of here. But six months from now we want to make sure she's well. If we let this continue, it will destroy her liver."

In what they called a "wastebasket diagnosis," doctors determined Stormie developed the same type of hepatitis that damaged her first transplanted liver in February. How she contracted the disease is a mystery, said Dr. John Fung.

Fung said injections of a protein-type substance will help the cells "that are not infected with the virus to protect themselves."

"We hope we can stabilize, if not reverse, the damage done by the ... virus," he said. "Once the infection is arrested, we don't know what the long-term outlook is."

Stormie received the world's first heart-liver transplant in February 1984 at the age of 6. She received a second liver transplant six years later but returned to Children's Hospital last month after routine tests showed she apparently was rejecting that liver.

Doctors gave her more FK-506, an experimental anti-rejection drug approved for use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration only at Children's and nearby Presbyterian-University hospitals.

She returned to Pittsburgh Saturday after tests showed higher enzyme levels, indicating infection.

Stormie also felt fatigued.

"At this moment, she's not at a great risk of transplantation," Tzakis said. "The damage is such that she can completely recover. She's not jaundiced. She's feeling well. She's actually bored being here in the hospital."

Her mother, Lois "Susie" Purcell, said her daughter is somewhat distressed over the latest trip to the hospital from suburban Dallas.

"It's a day-to-day thing. When we have blood work every day for two weeks, we know there's a problem ... and we don't plan any further ahead than that," Ms. Purcell said. "She's depressed. Her boyfriend's in Texas."

Doctors said they will probably discharge Stormie within a few days but want her to stay in Pittsburgh until the infection is controlled.

Holding their Emmies as best actress and best actor in daytime soap operas are Kim Zimmer, left, and A. Martinez.

Joan Rivers, 'Santa Barbara' gain daytime Emmy Awards

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A tearful Joan Rivers reached the end of a long road back when she stepped forward to accept her first Emmy Award.

"Two years ago I couldn't get a job in this business ... people said I wouldn't work again," she told the audience at Thursday's 17th annual Daytime Emmy Awards, recalling how Fox Broadcasting dropped her late-night talk show.

Rivers won the Emmy for best daytime talk show host for her syndicated The Joan Rivers Show. She wept when she alluded to the suicide of her husband, producer Edgar Rosenberg, in 1987.

"It's so sad that he's not here because he ... always said, 'You can turn things around,'" she said. "I'm so sorry he's not here."

NBC won four Emmys for its soap opera Santa Barbara, including best directing team and, for the second consecutive year, outstanding dramatic series.

A Martinez, who plays Cruz Castillo on the show, won the best actor Emmy, and Henry Darrow, who plays his father, Rafael, won as best supporting actor.

Susan Lucci, nominated for best actress a record 11 times as the bad-tempered Erica Kane of ABC's All My Children, came up a loser for the 11th time.

That Emmy went to Kim Zimmer, the Reva Shayne Lewis of CBS' Guiding Light, who told the audience she's leaving the show. "I will be back some day," she said, without elaborating. The show also won for best writing.

Julia Barr, who plays Brooke English on All My Children, won for best supporting actress.

In the juvenile performers category, Cady McClain won best actress for her role as Dixie Martin on All My Children and Andrew Kavovit won outstanding young actor as Paul Stenback on All My Children.

Alex Trebek of the syndicated Jeopardy! won the best game show host Emmy for the second consecutive year, but shared the honor with Bob Barker of The Price Is Right. Jeopardy! also won the game show Emmy.

PBS' Reading Rainbow won for best children's series, and a CBS Schoolbreak Special titled A Matter of Conscience won as best children's special.

Two ABC shows, Beetlejuice and The New Adventures of Winnie the Pooh, shared the Emmy for best animated program.

A lifetime achievement Emmy went to game show producer Mark Goodson, 75, whose shows include What's My Line, To Tell the Truth, The Match Game and The Price Is Right.

The Sally Jessy Raphael Show, a competitor of Rivers' show, won the Emmy for best daytime talk show. Raphael, who won last year's Emmy for best talk show host, was asked whether she would ever run out of topics.

"When the world runs out of love stories and people run out of their need for each other, we'll run out of topics," Raphael said.

Greyhound allowed to continue using operating revenues

McALLEN (AP) — Bankrupt Greyhound Lines Inc. will be allowed to use its income to continue operating, but must supply creditors with weekly cash-flow reports, according to a court order.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Richard S. Schmidt approved Greyhound's request Thursday to pay its bills with the cash it takes in while the company reorganizes under federal bankruptcy laws.

Thursday's order allowing Greyhound to use operating revenues "in the ordinary course of business" while arranging to pay off creditors followed a similar temporary order the judge approved at a June 7 hearing in Brownsville. But use of operating revenues remains "subject to the continuing consent" of the creditors, according to the order.

It also requires Greyhound Lines Inc. and its companies Trailways Commuter Transit Inc. and Eagle Bus Manufacturing Inc. to provide separate cash flow statements to the creditors every week.

Greyhound also must supply creditors with other periodic financial reports, according to the order.

Dallas-based Greyhound Lines on June 4 filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in Brownsville, where its Eagle Bus Manufacturing Inc. subsidiary is based. The company has suffered financially since a walkout March 2 by its 6,300 bus drivers.

Greyhound's June 4 bankruptcy filing included a list of debt holders stretching over 1,800 pages, who were owed a total of about $540 million.

Greyhound attorney Oscar Cantu estimated the corporation takes in "from $1 million to several million in revenues daily."

Cantu said he thought the order approved Thursday would benefit the company as well as its creditors. "It permits us to pay our bills, our wages, etc., on an ongoing basis," Cantu said after the hearing, which lasted about a half-hour.

Union attorney Harlin Womble of Corpus Christi, representing the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions, also had no quarrel with the order to allow the company to use revenues to conduct business.

"We're very interested in contin-ing the operations of the corporation in the interim," Womble said.

Judge Schmidt also temporarily approved Dallas law firm Gardere & Wynne's application to represent unsecured creditors of the nation's largest bus transportation company and its subsidiaries.

David Snodgrass, an attorney with Gardere & Wynne, said the law firm filed an application in Corpus Christi on Thursday to represent the committee of unsecured Greyhound creditors. The U.S. Trustee's office established the creditors committee after the June 7 hearing.

Schmidt authorized Gardere & Wynne to represent the creditors until a July 12 hearing in McAllen, at which he said he would take up the matter again.

IRS says Willie's mind was not always on taxes he owed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Willie Nelson didn't always have the IRS on his mind when he rose to music fame in the 1970s and early 1980s.

A settlement Nelson reached with Internal Revenue Service over disputed taxes dating back to 1972 found him in violation of tax code sections on negligence, failure to file a tax return and failure to pay taxes.

Nelson will pay $6.5 million in personal and business taxes and penalties, according to U.S. Tax Court documents made available Thursday.

Among Nelson's best known songs are "You Were Always on My Mind," "On the Road Again," "Mama, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys" and "My Heroes

Have Always Been Cowboys."

Nelson did not return phone messages left at his motel in Powell, Wyo., where he will perform tonight. Nelson's attorney, Charles Meadows Jr. of Dallas, said he would not discuss the case.

Tax Court Judge Mary Ann Cohen approved the settlement June 6.

Nelson's tax trouble began in October 1984 when Internal Revenue Service investigators alleged he owed $1.6 million in back taxes for 1972 through 1978. In May 1988, the IRS charged he owed another $9.4 million for 1979 through 1983. The IRS assessed hundreds of thousands of dollars in penalties both times.

The singer disputed the charges in lawsuits filed in U.S. Tax Court in 1985 and 1988.

Documents indicate Nelson must pay $5.8 million in personal taxes and a penalty of about $500,000. His music company must pay about $139,000 in taxes plus a penalty of about $29,000.

The IRS initially charged Nelson with civil tax fraud, saying he understated his taxable income through unreported earnings and improper deductions.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Let us soar toward space privatization

It was quite a ride for a rocket and payload from Orange County, Calif., earlier this month. In Cape Canaveral, Fla., a Delta rocket built by McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif., lofted into orbit an Insat satellite made by Ford Aerospace of Newport Beach, Calif.

The satellite will send weather information to a center in New Delhi, India. When analyzed by supercomputers, the satellite's data could save thousands of lives on the Indian subcontinent. Just two years ago, a monsoon killed 2,000 people in neighboring Bangladesh and made 30 million homeless—equivalent to nearly twice of Texas' population—sending millions of Bengalis streaming into India for refuge. Better weather prediction could have prevented much of the misery.

The satellite itself is owned by the government of India. And most American space activity remains under the control of our government's space bureaucracy, NASA. But as more private launches take place—hopefully, someday, from lands and companies in Texas—costs will drop and profits will rise. This will relegate government space operations to political projects, but will rocket private space ventures into the final frontier.

The new private space-launch industry should also ease the transition from defense production to post-Cold War peace production. This is especially good news for areas with strong reliance on defense industries. After all, the technology needed to make an ICBM is pretty much the same as needed to make a private rocket.

We should leave to Indians how they forecast their country's weather. But in the United States, weather forecasting is ripe for further privatization, according to Jeffrey C. Smith, executive director of the Commercial Weather Services Association. He said that this burgeoning industry has been around for 40 years, but only since the early years of the Reagan administration has there been a "push to get private companies out there."

The new industry has grown "in leaps and bounds since 1980, at least 10 percent a year." Private and government weather information are about equally accurate, but government is slow. "More and more businesses are finding that they need timely weather and accurate forecasts that only the incentives of private industry can provide," Smith said.

An example: "If you're pouring concrete, you need to know if it's going to rain. You need to be able to call, hour by hour, for accurate weather information."

It's time for government to get entirely out of the space and weather business. From satellite and rocket production, to launch pads and satellite operation, the entire space effort should be privatized. The man in the moon is not a government bureaucrat; he's an entrepreneur.

The organization of hatreds

WASHINGTON—It was a part of the education of the historian Henry Adams observed, we learn something of the art of politicians. He put it this way: "Politics, as a practice, whatever its professions, has always been the systematic organization of hatreds." Let us consider the National Endowment for the Arts.

Congress soon will face the issue of reauthorizing the NEA, perhaps for only one year, as some members have proposed, or perhaps for the usual five years. The two sides are becoming increasingly polarized.

At one extreme are those who would abolish the agency root and branch. At the other extreme are those who would continue the NEA unchanged, with no restrictions upon its discretionary powers.

The two sides actively flout one another, and just as Henry Adams observed, we are witnessing here the organization of hatreds. It is the old war of the Philistines against the literati, the common man against the snobs. Members of the House and Senate tell me that no issue since Vietnam has evoked greater outpourings of emotional mail.

As readers know, I am at heart a root-and-branch man. I would abolish the NEA altogether, but not because of the peripheral issue of funding for "obscene" works of supposed art. Put in perspective, that issue is trivial. Forget it, or at least put it to one side.

The larger issue has to do with the nature of our national government. The issue is as old as the Convention of 1787 and as current as today's debate on the NEA. Does Congress have only those powers delegated to it by the Constitution? Or does Congress have unlimited "inherent" powers to do whatever it wishes?

I hold with Madison (in Federalist 45) that "the powers delegated to the federal government are few and defined." Some of the delegated powers are extensive, such as the power to regulate commerce. Some are awesome: the power to declare war.

One delegated power is of uncertain magnitude. It is the power to lay and collect taxes to provide for the "general welfare of the United States."

Now if that is a grant of plenary, unlimited power, then the enumeration of particular powers makes no sense. A good part of the Constitution becomes mere surplusage. But the provision may be sensibly interpreted if prudent meaning is given to that word "general."

Back to the National Endowment for the Arts. If the tax funds appropriated to the NEA truly are expanded for the GENERAL welfare of the United States, a plausible constitutional rationalization may be advanced.

For example, the NEA funded a $100,000 grant to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts to mount an exhibition of 120 paintings by Renoir. More than half a million people attended. Grants to established symphony orchestras, dance companies and theater groups also might qualify under this reasoning. I don't accept the argument, but I am trying to present it fairly.

But if such organizational grants meet the criterion of promoting the GENERAL welfare, what is to be said of the hundreds of grants to individual artists? There plainly is no constitutional authority—not even dubious authority—for these. And these individual awards are the troublemakers.

The NEA annually gives grants of $20,000 each to 50 poets. In 1988, the last year for which data are available, the NEA gave similar grants to three "jazz masters." Under the heading of "jazz study," the NEA gave awards of $1,500 to $5,000 to 45 individual musicians to support their "intensive one-on-one study" with their teachers. Sixty photographers won grants ranging from $5,000 to $15,000. And so on.

Were these individual grants for the general welfare of the United States? The notion is absurd on its face. The grants surely benefited the select poets, musicians and photographers—lucky for them!—but only by the most tortured reasoning can it be argued that such grants meet the constitutional criterion.

Could the warring sides find a compromise here? Suppose agreement were reached to continue large grants to cultural institutions that serve major constituencies.

Suppose, further, that individual grants were abolished entirely. This would not satisfy the root-and-branch opponents, and it surely would not quiet the outcries of the literati, but it might be something that both sides could live with.

A few aspiring poets would suffer every year, but their suffering, believe me, is a burden society could easily bear.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 29, the 180th day of 1990. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 29, 1767, the British Parliament approved the Townshend Revenue Acts, which imposed import duties on glass, lead, paint, paper and tea shipped to America. Colonists bitterly protested the acts, which were repealed in 1770.

On this date:
In 1776, the Virginia state constitution was adopted, and Patrick Henry was made governor.

In 1946, British authorities arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine in an attempt to stamp out alleged terrorism.

In 1949, the government of South Africa enacted a ban against racially-mixed marriages, and suspended the automatic granting of citizenship to immigrants.

In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission voted against reinstating Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer's access to classified information.

In 1967, Jerusalem was reunified as Israel removed barricades separating the Old City from the Israeli sector.

Intolerance in name of tolerance

Newsday columnist Jimmy Breslin was suspended without pay because of his rude remarks to a fellow reporter, a Korean-American woman.

The Asian-American Journalists Association, New York City chapter, objected vehemently.

Sadder to me than his unprofessional and cruel outburst was my learning that there is an Asian-American Journalists Association.

It reflects a re-polarization of our melting-pot population that I find unbecoming and inappropriate.

After painful years of homogenization, this seems to reflect an uncomfortable re-segregation.

Elsewhere you can find intolerance in the name of tolerance.

There is no more vocal group demanding tolerance and "equal opportunity" than our college students.

Yet, at the University of Northern Colorado, Greeley, some students managed to get Linda Chavez disinvented as commencement speaker because they disagreed with her (support for official English).

At Wellesley, 150 students signed a petition protesting a campus appearance by Barbara Bush because she does not epitomize feminism, having accomplished prominence through marriage.

Paul Harvey

The Wall Street Journal recently editorialized that it is entirely permissible for anyone to discuss race, gender and homosexuality if that individual holds "the approved point of view."

The "approved point of view" presumably reflects the sympathies of most Americans.

But if the "majority" is to determine right and wrong, we are on dangerous ground. It was a majority that crucified Christ.

The essence of American freedom allows

"diversity," "tolerance of opposing views."

Yet, here we have people opposing bigotry while imposing a new orthodoxy of their own.

Emory University, Atlanta, among other schools, has now banned certain kinds of speech. Emory prohibits "discriminatory harassment," which it defines as "conduct, oral or written, graphic or physical, directed against any person or group."

That policy is ambiguous enough to fit any prejudice.

At Harvard Law School, Prof. Derrick Bell, who is black, has gone on strike until a minority woman is named to the faculty. Half of Harvard's recent appointments have been minorities or women, but Prof. Bell wants what he calls "a role model" for the school's women students. Obviously, if his demand is met, merit would be secondary to race and gender.

American universities are the best in the world, especially in the hard sciences. But censorship in the name of free speech and intolerance in the name of tolerance reveal our undergraduates to be more educated than wise.

You cannot have the 'truths' both ways

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

One of humanity's most endearing characteristics is the desire to have something both ways—to "have one's cake and eat it too."

Presumably conservatives are just as prone to this failing as liberals, but it so happens that the two spectacular instances of it that I have recently come across were both perpetrated by liberals. Or, more precisely, by interest groups closely associated with liberalism: the farther-out feminists and people opposed to the death penalty.

Ladies first. We all watched with fascination last month as the students (all female) of Mills College in Oakland, Calif., rose in their righteous feminine wrath and forced the trustees to reverse their decision to admit men—men!—to that sacred single sex preserve.

Whether their case was right or wrong, it was certainly clear. As The New York Times editorialized in their support, the Mills students "cited studies showing that women educated in single-sex colleges go on to better jobs than their coeducated counterparts and expressed their fear that men might overpower women in classroom discussion... Americans who cherish diversity in education will hope that the women of Mills College meet their goals."

Attentive Times readers, however, must have felt that they had somehow wandered into a time warp, because for the past quarter of a century the great cause of feminism has, on the contrary, been devoted to forcing the all-male colleges of America to become coeducational institutions. And the arguments for doing so have been precisely the reverse of the ones quoted above.

To take a recent example, listen to Lisa Eichhorn, a 1987 graduate of my old college, Princeton, which was strong-armed into accepting women as students 'way back in the late 1960s. In a letter to Princeton's alumni publication, she is now demanding the admission of female students to the few remaining all-male "eating clubs" on the campus:

"(A) valuable part of one's education as a human being is the lesson that members of both genders are people. Cloistering oneself (however boisterously) with members of one's own gender simply postpones this lesson. Life is coed. If Princeton students haven't figured this out by the time they graduate, we're all in trouble."

Except, presumably, the graduates of Mills College. Now, I happen to sympathize with their desire to keep Mills a single-sex institution; but what, then, about all the Eichhorn-type guff concerning the superiority of coeducation that has been shoved down our throats in the past quarter century? The ladies can't have it both ways.

Or take the battle over the significance of IQ tests. In recent decades politically minded psychologists have forced an all but total shutdown of efforts to measure intelligence scientifically, because they fear that such measurements will reveal significant permanent disparities in the average scores of the various races, thereby strengthening the case for "racism."

These politicians in white smocks have denounced IQ tests as almost totally worthless. They measure, it is said, only a small part of the full spectrum of human mental abilities, and they are in any case inevitably skewed by their "cultural bias"—usually toward the values of white societies.

Very well, but then why did many of these same liberally minded souls, who bitterly oppose the death penalty, tell us just last month that a prisoner slated for execution in Louisiana had "an IQ of only 76, which is on the borderline of being retarded," and therefore shouldn't be executed at all? If IQ tests are so worthless, what can they tell us about the true mental abilities of a brutal murderer? The scientists can't have it both ways.

No, but they can try. And these days the best shot of such people is usually disguised as an unarguable "scientific" truth—the precise reverse of the one they were citing yesterday.

Prince Aya, left, and Princess Kiko leave the Imperial Palace Friday after they officially reported the marriage to Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko in Tokyo.

Japanese prince takes commoner as his bride

By ERIC TALMADGE
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Sipping sacred rice wine in a shrine to the sun goddess, Emperor Akihito's youngest son and his college sweetheart were wed today as millions of Japanese watched on television.

Flanked by imperial ritualists, Prince Aya, 24, and Kiko Kawashima, 23, knelt together in the Imperial Palace shrine to the goddess Amaterasu, from whom legend says the royal family is descended.

Miss Kawashima, a graduate student, is the second commoner to marry into the royal family, and the marriage was seen as another step in bringing the imperial palace and Japan's people closer together.

The ceremony also was being hailed as the public's first taste of the new imperial era, called Heisei or "achieving peace," which began with the death of Emperor Hirohito on Jan. 7, 1989.

The new emperor, Akihito, has been credited with trying to create a more open, softer image for Japan's often distant and mysterious imperial family.

Still, much of today's wedding ceremony was in line with Japanese traditions going back more than 1,000 years.

The prince, speaking the classical Japanese used by priests of Japan's indigenous Shinto religion, recited vows to the sun goddess. The couple sealed their nuptial bonds by sipping sacred rice wine from a white ceramic cup.

Aya was clad in a black silk robe and cap with an arched tailpiece signifying his royal rank. The bride wore a green, maroon and orange kimono, nearly a dozen layers thick and reportedly weighing 50 pounds.

The princess' preparations for the wedding, which began before dawn, included a purification ritual and the coiffing of her hair in the elaborate court fashion of a thousand years ago.

Police say that because of threats from leftist radicals, 9,000 officers were assigned to guard the wedding activities, though most were being held at either the Imperial Palace, which is surrounded by a moat and forbidding stone walls, or the Akasaka Palace, the well-secured residence of the emperor and empress.

The wedding was the first for an imperial family member in six years, and the first in three decades for a prince of Aya's rank. Aya is second-in line to the Chrysanthemum Throne after his elder brother, Crown Prince Naruhito, 30, who has yet to marry.

Empress Michiko became the first commoner to marry into the family when she and Akihito, then crown prince, wed in 1959.

In keeping with tradition, the emperor and empress were absent from the ceremony at the shrine, but were receiving the couple later at the palace.

Japan's television networks preempted regular programs to carry the ceremony and related events live.

Kawashima has won public affection with her warm smile and quiet manner. Because of her relatively humble background — her father is an economics professor at Gakushuin University, a former peers school — she was called a modern-day Cinderella.

She was also dubbed the "Apartment Princess" because she lived with her family in faculty housing on the Gakushuin campus, where she is working on her masters degree in social psychology.

Fires continue to rage out of control in California

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A fire that engulfed 567 homes and businesses in Santa Barbara County still raged out of control today. But cooler temperatures and milder winds helped firefighters contain other Southern California blazes that burned more than 90 homes.

Wildfires, most set by arsonists, charred more than 14,000 acres by Thursday in a six-county area north, east and south of Los Angeles. Arson was blamed for the Santa Barbara fire.

Losses could surpass $500 million, a Santa Barbara County supervisor said.

"You're just lucky to have your life," said Kay O'Brien, who fled her home with her husband carrying only family pictures and a retirement watch. The home and all their possessions were lost.

Elsewhere, firefighters controlled blazes in Utah and at Yellowstone National Park in Montana, but large fires raged in Arizona, Texas and Colorado. In Arizona, where six firefighters died Tuesday, a lightning fire in the Tonto National Forest destroyed a cabin built in the 1920s by Western novelist Zane Grey.

In California, Gov. George Deukmejian declared states of emergency in the Santa Barbara and Glendale areas. The governor also authorized separate $50,000 rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonists in both blazes.

No deaths were immediately reported. One person was severely burned in Santa Barbara and three firefighters were seriously injured in An unidentified woman stands Thursday amid the charred ruins of what was once a home in Santa Barbara.

Riverside County, authorities said.

Late Thursday, in the suburban community of Claremont, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, an arson-suspected blaze burned out of control along brush-laden hillsides and consumed 400 acres, authorities said. Police blocked several residential streets although no homes were evacuated.

An arson blaze in the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale was contained after destroying or damaging 66 hillside homes Wednesday.

"It's just a disaster. Everything just exploded," said Dennie Gill, a produce wholesaler whose home was destroyed.

Witnesses said they saw one of two young men in a car toss a butane lighter into the brush off the road where the fire started, said Chris Gray, a Glendale Fire Department battalion chief.

The 4,000-acre arson fire that broke out late Wednesday in a valley between Santa Barbara and the nearby town of Goleta was one of the worst on record here. Damage to homes alone was estimated initially at $190 million, and the figure was expected to top $500 million, said county Supervisor Bill Wallace.

No more homes appeared threatened today.

Authorities have said an incendiary device was found at the fire's origin, but they haven't given details.

Fire officials estimated the blaze may be brought under control by Saturday if temperatures do not rise again. Santa Barbara, which posted a record 109 degrees Wednesday, was only 83 degrees milder Thursday. Winds throughout the region also eased.

Detroit gives tumultuous welcome to Mandela

DETROIT (AP) — Nelson Mandela received a tumultuous welcome in the nation's industrial heartland, revitalizing the South African anti-apartheid leader's U.S. tour after political leaders in Miami rebuffed him.

In Florida on Thursday, Cuban-American mayors snubbed Mandela because of his support for Cuban leader Fidel Castro. But later in the day, Detroit showered Mandela with affection and at least $1.5 million to support his dream of a racially united South Africa.

"We appreciate your efforts, especially in this time of industrial retrenchment. In the face of your problems and difficulties, you have not forgotten us. We will never forget you," Mandela told a crowd of 49,000 at Tiger Stadium.

Detroit was the sixth stop on Mandela's eight-city U.S. tour and the only Midwestern city. He was scheduled to speak at a news conference this morning before heading for Los Angeles later today.

Weary from the rigors of his tour, Mandela, 71, seemed energized by the wildly cheering crowds that greeted him in Detroit, which he called "Motor Town."

"Thank you for giving us your support when we need you most," Mandela said at Tiger Stadium.

"Right now, I wish I could climb down from the stage and join you in the stands and embrace you, one and all."

Many who glimpsed Mandela shared that wish.

"He has touched my life in an unforgettable manner and has made me so proud of our heritage," said Wynetta Frazier of Chicago, a professor at the University of Illinois. "I've never felt that before."

In his first stop here, Mandela donned a United Auto Workers jacket and cap as he addressed about 1,300 people at a suburban Ford Motor Co. assembly plant.

"The man who stands before you is not a stranger," Mandela told cheering auto workers. "I am a member of the UAW; I am your flesh and blood. I am your comrade."

It was the first ceremonial shutdown of the assembly line since a tribute to mark the death of Henry Ford II in 1987.

Mayor Coleman Young, Detroit's first black mayor, predicted before Thursday that Mandela would leave Detroit with at least $1 million for his African National Congress, which is pressing for an end to South Africa's apartheid system of racial segregation.

But at least $1.5 million had been raised by Wednesday, with more expected after donations given at Tiger Stadium were counted, Young spokesman Bob Berg said.

Mandela continued to urge economic sanctions against South Africa.

"We don't want apartheid to survive even one more day," he said. "So long as it survives, it will continue to shed the blood of our people, including children."

The warm reception in Detroit, where Young and Gov. James Blanchard greeted Mandela as he stepped off the plane, was in sharp contrast to Miami.

Angered by his statements last week praising Castro, Palestine Liberation Organization head Yasser Arafat and Libya's Moammar Gadhafi for their aid to the ANC, mayors of the Miami area's major cities refused to greet Mandela.

However, about 2,000 supporters gathered outside the Miami Beach Convention Center and along his route.

Join Us In Worship

In The Church Of Your Choice

hot day—long cool drink

Sometimes there seems to be literally nothing to equal the refreshment of a tall cool glass of tangy fresh lemonade on a hot still day; it truly perks up a tired body. How good it is that we have such refreshment. The good news of the Gospel is that there is also refreshment for a tired life. A decision to trust in God and the life which He gives one moment by moment is like a refreshing breeze in dusty, dry life. Life, no matter how tired, or discouraged, or wrapped in despair, can be renewed by knowing and trusting God's love. Go to the Church and hear the story of that Love which is eternally yours.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love to man and so His demand for man is to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this knowledge in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long preserve and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Because the however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it is the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Independence celebration set at local church

The First United Methodist Church at Foster and Ballard streets will observe its annual Independence Day service beginning at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

The service will open with a processional featuring eight large American flags. The music, under the direction of Steve Ross, will include the anthem entitled, "An American Portrait."

The Rev. Kenneth Metzger, pastor, has chosen as his sermon topic, "Is There Any Word From God?"

The chancel choir will close the service with the familiar "Battle Hymn of the Republic." It will be accompanied by Tracy D. Cary at the organ, Jennifer Scoggin at the piano and Jim Duggan and Art Owen on trumpets.

The public is invited to share in the worship service.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Instead, speaking the truth in love, we will in all things grow up into him who is the Head, that is Christ. From him the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, grows and builds itself up in love, as each part does its work. (Ephesians 4:15-16 NIV)

This spring, I planted some new plants in my flower bed. I planted several hardy primroses and a red Rhododendron. I planted the primroses first, and because of the shock of transplanting, they are struggling just to survive.

Some are slowly putting out new growth, but most are barely alive. The rhododendron was in full, magnificent bloom when I transplanted it; the blooms are now spent, but the plant is thriving well and promises another display of beauty next season.

When I ordered the primroses, I received a gift of four hardy gloxinias. These freebies were something of a curiosity to me because I had never heard of such a thing. Since I hadn't ordered them, I didn't have an ideal place picked out for them, so I planted them wherever I could find an open spot of ground. They have proven a pleasant surprise. They have grown and bloomed amazingly quickly and continue to produce abundant, sturdy blooms.

All of the plants ... the flashy rhododendron; the steady sturdy gloxinias; the tender, timid primroses; even the sick and dying ... all of them are part of the garden whole.

God's kingdom also is composed of diverse personalities, abilities, and needs. Some Christians are remarkably talented and lift the rest of us to inspiring spiritual heights; they thrive spiritually and promise more inspiration to come. And they are the ones we admire and wish we had their talent.

But God didn't design us for corporate duplication of service and produce. Fortunately he does not restrict his creative powers to our small, conforming minds, but blesses us instead with unimaginable horizons through personalized uniqueness.

Most of God's children are the sturdy plodders, the ones who grow, serve, and produce steadily and surely. Some are timid and tender in faith, but they are struggling to gain strength. Some are sin-sick and dying and are in desperate need of immediate and heroic soul-saving ministry.

All of us ... together though different ... we are all part of the kingdom whole.

Religion roundup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A second printing of 100,000 copies of a new Presbyterian Hymnal has been ordered to meet demand.

The first copies from an initial printing of 250,000 rolled off the presses in late May, and were used for the first time at the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)'s General Assembly in early June.

SPRING GLEN, N.Y. (AP) - The outgoing president of the Rabbinical Council of America has urged efforts to stop the "suicide machines."

Referring to a recent case in which a Michigan doctor helped a woman take her own life, Rabbi Max N. Schreier told an annual convention representing Orthodox rabbis that Jewish law forbids suicide.

He called use of the suicide device "symptomatic of the lessening of the sanctity of life in American society."

Rabbi Marc D. Angel of Manhattan's Shearith Israel, a Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, was elected the new president, the first Sephardic rabbi elevated to that post.

Couple continues missionary work at retiring age

By ROY A. JONES II
Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE (AP) — Dr. Roy Palmer and his wife, Jaxie Palmer, have led a very productive life.

Make that a leading a very productive life. At an age when they've earned the right to sit back and revel in the achievements of their eight children and 15 grandchildren, the Palmers are off serving as volunteer foreign missionaries again.

Palmer, 71, and his wife, 72, are teaching Bible training in Zimbabwe. It's a homecoming for them because in 1957 they helped organize the Church of Christ Bible training school in which Palmer is now teaching.

Much has changed since then. The country, a former British colony, was known as Rhodesia during the 15 years of their first tour there. But the spry pair was looking forward to a challenge like a couple of brand new missionaries when they left Abilene this spring.

This summer will mark the 50th anniversary of the couple's graduation from Abilene Christian University, and they have been working for the church in one way or another ever since, serving two Christian colleges and churches on three continents.

They put their eight children through ACU — a feat no other parents have matched. In 1984, ACU selected the couple as "Honor Family" during the annual Parents Weekend. Their children are: Geraldine Palmer of Austin, class of 1963; Carroll Jean Duvall of Sterling Heights, Mich., 1965; Mary Etta Hobbs of Grand Prairie, 1972; Rebecca Michaud of New Hampshire, 1974; Charles Allen Palmer of North Carolina and Ricky Palmer of Dallas, both 1980; and Phillip Palmer, now a minister in Oklahoma, 1982. Another son, Roy Virgil Palmer, a 1966 ACU graduate, died of cancer in 1983.

Depending on how much work there is for them to do in Zimbabwe, the Palmers plan to be back in Abilene later this year to welcome the third generation of their family to ACU, their oldest granddaughter who plans to attend this fall.

Roy and Jaxie Palmer both grew up in San Antonio, but didn't meet until their freshman year at ACU. She was working for her board, waiting tables in the dining room, when she first saw him.

It was love at first sight, she said. He was impressed, too.

"She said, 'Roy, would you like some coffee? I was so startled that she knew my name, I said, 'Oh, yeah.' She didn't find out until later I didn't drink coffee," Palmer said with a grin.

Both had grown up in Church of Christ homes and had chosen ACU with a ministerial career in mind. A missionary they heard during the annual Bible Lectureship series influenced them toward missions.

Midway through his senior year, Palmer, a music, education and Bible major, took a job as a band director at Canyon High School.

"As soon as I got a paycheck, I sent for her and married her there in Canyon," he said. They returned to ACU the following summer and graduated together.

They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last December.

Mrs. Palmer earned her degree in physical education and taught school while Palmer was earning his master's degree in New Testament from Pepperdine University and his Ph.D. in higher education from the University of Michigan.

In 1947, they became some of the first Church of Christ missionaries in West Germany after World War II.

Palmer helped found the Frankfurt School of Preaching and also served as its dean during their six years there.

In 1955, he returned to ACU as an associate Bible professor, staying six years as an associate Bible professor, and interspersing in some mission work in Africa. Between 1957 and 1977, the couple spent 15 years in Rhodesia.

He helped found the Nhowe School of Preaching.

Jaxie Palmer wanted to have eight children. "He said he wanted to have 12," she said of her husband.

Ricky's birth in 1957 may have been what caused Roy to lower his expectations.

Ricky was born in a station wagon on a desolate Rhodesian road.

"It was 90 miles from the school to the hospital. I thought I could make 90 miles easy, but I just made 45," Mrs. Palmer said, laughing.

Luckily, an African woman was there to spare Palmer the job of delivering his son.

The last child, Phillip, also was born in Africa.

"We made it to the hospital that time," Palmer quipped.

This is their sixth mission trip since "retirement."

Jehovah's Witnesses plan summer district conventions

Amarillo officials of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society have announced completion of plans for a series of 142 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in the United States during the summer of 1990.

Spokesman Pat Shropshire said in Amarillo that 59 separate facilities would be used to accommodate 1,412,000 delegates expected for the four-day district convention meetings.

Shropshire said the convention program would be presented in nine languages.

In addition to English they are: Spanish, Chinese, French, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Korean and Portuguese.

Shropshire said 2,300 delegates would represent the congregations from this area at the four-day convention ending on Sunday at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Language has been a divisive factor in human relations for centuries, Shropshire said. "Language is only one of the reasons for divisions among men, however," he said. "Others are nationality, race, education, and social status."

"But Jehovah's Witnesses are working internationally to overcome all these divisive factors and become truly united."

The convention theme for 1990 is "Pure Language." The program will stress that the "pure language" is one of truth and will endeavor to show the practicality of making the Bible the dominant force in uniting people worldwide.

By means of talks, demonstrations, symposiums and dramas, the theme of international unity will be emphasized, Shropshire said.

Religion roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — A Dutch Christian Woman, Marion P. Pritchard, presented with the "Courage to Care Award" by the Anti-Defamation League for saving Jewish lives from occupying Nazis in World War II, said "I could not have done what I did" without the help of others.

She told how a neighboring farmer brought her a liter of milk each day for three Jewish children she was hiding during a wartime famine in Amsterdam.

"He could have made a lot of money on the black market with his milk but he brought it to me," related Ms. Pritchard, now of Vershire, Vt.

"He never asked for payment, he never asked any questions, he just did it."

Parish pulls together to build new church

By ANN KATE
The Orange Leader

ORANGE (AP) — The Rev. Timothy Deeter of St. Helen's Catholic Church in Orangefield knew his parishioners could not come up with the money needed to build a new church.

He also knew they could build it for a lot less if they furnished their own labor.

But the bishop of the Beaumont diocese, the Most Rev. Bernard Ganter, was adamantly opposed to them building it themselves, instructing them to use a construction company instead. So, Deeter resorted to using a little subterfuge to get the job done his way.

They used Orange developer Tony Dal Sasso's construction company name and equipment, hired one of the company's former employees, Leo Bland, a member of the parish, and went right ahead with building the structure themselves.

According to Deeter, when the bishop came to check on progress he was so impressed with their work he relented and said, "You made a believer out of me."

Demographic studies determined the fate of St. Helen's, which serves this unincorporated community about 10 miles west of Orange and 15 miles east of Beaumont in Southeast Texas.

With another Catholic church only three miles away in Bridge City, and families moving out to find land in the rural areas to the west of both Bridge City and Orangefield, the bishop asked church members to move to another location.

The church bought seven acres of land on a farm road that now is being extended north from Bridge City to Interstate 10, which cuts through Orange County, while Paul Cormier, church member and local businessman, donated 15 adjoining acres.

Deeter designed the basic layout, and a subcommittee of 35 people came up with the final plans.

With the labor contributed by volunteers from the church, the cost will only be $275,000 for the 12,000 square feet in the first phase. The second phase, which they will begin in August, will be another 12,000 square feet, and will cost around $200,000.

Deeter said area companies also gave them breaks. They managed to buy $2,000 worth of steel for $65. And, they were able to buy a secondhand refrigerator and sinks for the kitchen. Bland is a professional builder and knows others in the building trade, so his expertise has been valuable and saved expenses.

The free labor has made up most of the difference in cost, however. Bland laughingly refers to his retired workers as the "Medicaid group," and those under 65 the "Ben Gay group."

The youth and women of the church are involved also. Recently they worked on and made the duct work, shaping the box-like structures for the air conditioning-heating system. The 45 or so teen-agers in the youth group mix mortar, sweep and perform all types of tasks, sometimes with a little bribing from Deeter.

"Outsiders" poured the slab, did three-fourths of the sheetrocking and put in the glass, Deeter said. But everything else is being done by volunteers from the church.

Deeter said, "We don't have a lot of control over how many come" to join the work crews. The average is 10-12 a day. About 75 are involved, but Deeter wants everyone in the church to come out and work at least once so they will be able to say they helped build their church.

All the extra work has meant a "lot of sacrifices," Deeter said. There are bricklayers who work five or six days a week on their own jobs, and then work at the church weekends. But it has also given church members working on the project a sense of camaraderie.

"The people cannot believe they're building something so large and nice," he said.

Financing for the undertaking has come from contributions, fundraisers such as festivals and dinners, and donations.

"I don't really have to preach about money," Deeter said. He told members at the beginning that if they supported the parish financially he wouldn't have to speak from the pulpit about money — "and I don't," he said.

"I'm real proud of the people — not only because of money, but also time," he added.

Members of the Comanche Nation will honor the 25th anniversary of Lake Meredith and Alibates Flint Quarries with a 1 1/2 hour exhibition of traditional tribal dances on Saturday, June 30 beginning at 8 p.m. at the Fritch Fortress Amphitheater.

The Amphitheatre has recently been restored by the Magic Plains Arts Council, one of the sponsors of the event and the National Parks Service.

The performance is being directed by Susan Parker of the Quannah Parker Descendants Club from the Walters, Okla. area near Lawton. Members of the group have danced for the Smithsonian Institute and through out Europe.

The program will include the Grand Entry, the Lord's prayer in sign language, the Flag Song, Blanket Dance, Two Step, Snake Dance, quitting dance and intertribal dance.

The group will be assisted by the Adobe Walls Dancers of Borger. Tickets will be available at the door.

pistol range; and a boat parade beginning at 3 p.m. at Lake Meredith Marina.

Breast cancer screening offered in Lefors

The Breast Cancer Screening Program of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital of Amarillo are continuing outreach clinics for early detection of breast cancer.

A clinic will be held in Lefors on Friday, Aug. 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lefors Civic Center. Exams are done by appointment only. For more information about the clinic or to make an appointment, please call the Harrington Cancer Center at 1-800-274-4673.

Early detection of breast cancer is the major goal of cancer control for each woman seen in the clinic. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a registered nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self examination and a mammogram.

Currently the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer.

The guidelines are: (1) Learn and perform self breast self examination every month. (2) Have a physical examination of the breasts every year. (3) Have a mammogram according to recommendations by age: 35 to 40 - one baseline mammogram; 40 to 50 - a mammogram every 1 to 2 years; over 50 - yearly mammograms.

Observers get an eyewitness look at our 36th president in new book

By The Associated Press

"He was many things: proud, sensitive, impulsive, flamboyant, sentimental, earthy, mean at times, bold, euphoric, insecure, magnanimous, the best dancer in the White House since Washington, but temperamental, melancholy, and strangely ill at ease as well.

"He had an animal sense of weakness in other men, on whom he could inflict a hundred cuts."

This is how Bill Moyers, who served President Lyndon Baines Johnson as press secretary, describes the president in the book "LBJ: The White House Years." The oversized volume has text by Harry Middleton, a member of Johnson's staff who now serves as director of the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library and Museum, Austin, Texas. It contains 345 photos, many of them published for the first time.

Publication of the book commemorates the 25th anniversary of Johnson's inauguration as the 36th president. The book also serves as a companion volume to a photo exhibit of the same name, featuring 120 of the photos, which will first go on view at the International Center of Photography in New York from May 18 through July 15.

The collection of photos presents the 1960s from the perspective of a man who helped shape that tumultuous era. The photos present a broad view of some of the moments — historic as well as comic, victorious as well as anguished — of Johnson's public and private life.

They are primarily the work of Yoichi Okamoto, who served as principal photographer and head of the White House photo staff during Johnson's administration.

Middleton points out in his preface that "Johnson was the first Chief Executive to give White House photographers virtually unlimited access to him and his daily routine. With that passport into public times and private ones, the gifted Okamoto and his enterprising team pioneered in compiling a pictorial record of a Presidency." As a result, "LBJ" offers what may be the most comprehensive and intimate visual record of any president's administration.

The book opens with a photo of Johnson taking the oath of office aboard Air Force One, flanked by the new first lady and the bereaved Jacqueline Kennedy. The staff of photographers went on to capture Johnson as he forged civil rights legislation, sought to create his "Great Society," and decided, in the midst of the Vietnam War era, not to seek re-election.

Here, too, is a photo that created quite a stir when it appeared — the shot of Johnson lifting his pet beagle by its ears.

Through the photos of "LBJ," observers get an eyewitness look at some of the country's moments of peril and triumph. Portrayed are the president visiting Appalachia to assess the condition of poor families in the region, in preparation for his "War on Poverty"; at work on the passage of the Voting Rights Act; appealing to black leaders in the wake of the Detroit riots; and responding to the Tet Offensive.

Meetings with some of the country's most influential people, including Robert Kennedy, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Thurgood Marshall, Dwight Eisenhower and Gen. William Westmoreland, are chronicled in some of the collection's photos.

The private life of the president is revealed in photographs that show him relaxing at his ranch and playing with his grandchildren. One photo shows comies Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna giving the delighted Johnson a private White House hoofing demonstration before the two entertainers were to take their show on the road to U.S. troops overseas.

A section is devoted to Lady Bird Johnson, the energetic first lady, whose campaign to beautify America proved her to be a committed activist. Reminiscences from Mrs. Johnson, Moyers and Clark Clifford, as well as remarks excerpted from Johnson's speeches, accompany the photos.

The exhibit was organized in collaboration with the Johnson library in Austin, and was sponsored by the Professional Photography Division of Eastman Kodak Co.

After its New York premiere, the exhibition will tour nationally for two years. Venues and dates are still to be arranged but the Austin library is among presidential libraries already on the show's itinerary.

Wedding prank doesn't rate toast

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married in a lovely church wedding with all the trimmings. All went well until the time drew near for the bridal couple to leave the reception for their honeymoon. Their car had been decorated inside and out, when a friend tipped us off that a man was hiding in the backseat of the car — well-covered with balloons and planning to jump up and surprise the newlyweds when they were well on their way!

My husband and I thought this was in bad taste so we decided to ask the man to get out of the car. (He was not a close friend of the newlyweds.) The word spread rapidly among the guests, and my husband and I were criticized for having ruined what some people perceived as a hilarious, harmless prank. Needless to say, it spoiled the rest of the evening for us.

Please tell us if you think we did the right thing. We need an outsider's point of view.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

PARENTS OF THE BRIDE

DEAR PARENTS: I think you acted wisely. The so-called hilarious, harmless prank could have had a tragic ending. Had a man jumped up and surprised the couple as they were driving along, the driver could easily have lost control of the car and hit another car or a pedestrian, or missed a turn. Have no regrets. Exposing the prankster rates a thumbs-up from me.

went sour, so she got a divorce. She has a child to raise, so she came to live with us, saying it would only be until she got on her feet.

Well, it's been five years, and she and our grandchild are still here. My wife doesn't go anywhere. She says, "Who will take care of our granddaughter?" (Abby, there's excellent day-care available.) My wife and I used to go places and do things, but now we don't go anywhere. Our daughter has it made with this setup and she refuses to move. She has a good job and makes good money, so it's not as if she would be out on the street. I feel that we are being taken advantage of. How do we get out of this trap?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Tell your daughter that she must absolutely find another place to live because you and your wife want to be free to travel and enjoy whatever time you have left. Plan a trip. Sig., up for one of those tours you've been wanting to take, then tell your daughter she has to be out of your house by a designated date — and no ifs, ands or buts!

Lendl, Navratilova devour opponents

By ROB GLOSTER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Ivan Lendl returned to his roots to describe his passion for winning Wimbledon, and gave more signs that the dream may be about to become reality.

Lendl needed just 78 minutes to defeat Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 Thursday to reach the third round. Both winner and loser said Lendl had improved on grass — and Lendl said he could get even better.

"I can definitely make more first serves, I know that," said the top seed, who added his game should improve as the courts get harder and quicker during the two-week tournament.

Unsuccessful in 10 previous trips to Wimbledon, Lendl has devoted his spring to winning this year, skipping the French Open to get more practice on grass courts.

Uncomfortable with English words such as obsession or fixation, the world's top tennis player looked to his native language for a proper term to express his desire.

Try "zazrany," he said, offering a word Czechoslovaks use to describe an ingrained yearning. That, he said, is how much he wants to capture the only major title to elude his grasp.

Zazrany, which is pronounced za-zhra-nee, is based on the verb "zrat" that describes the way an animal devours its food. That pretty well describes what Lendl did to Hlasek.

Lendl lost just four games, the fewest he has given up in a match in his 11 years at Wimbledon.

"He made me look bad because he played so good," Hlasek said. "I really felt helpless on my serve. The returns came very short and very fast and I was always taken by the speed. I missed a lot because I was just too late."

Martina Navratilova, the women's second seed, also returned to her roots. She made her first appearance of the year on Centre Court, where she has captured a record-tying eight singles crowns.

Wimbledon

Navratilova, a Czechoslovak native who has a touch of zazrany in her quest for a coveted ninth title, swept past Anne Smith 6-2, 6-3.

"This is just the second round, you don't want to get too excited," she said. "But at the same time this is the court that every tennis player dreams of playing on. So you don't want to get too overwhelmed by the occasion."

Seven other seeded players advanced Thursday with Lendl and Navratilova to the third round.

Fourth women's seed Gabriela Sabatini needed a tiebreaker to finish off Anke Huber 6-2, 7-6, while seventh seed Katerina Maleeva lost only five games to Japan's Kimiko Date. Other successful women's seeds were No. 11 Natalia Zvereva and No. 14 Judith Wiesner.

Rosalyn Fairbank of San Diego was the only losing women's seed, falling 6-4, 6-3 to Amy Frazier, a 17-year-old American who took three months off from the tennis tour to graduate from high school.

Among the men, third seed Stefan Edberg defeated Miloslav Mecir 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, but 15th seed Henri Leconte of France fell in five sets to Austria's Alex Antonitsch.

Ninth seed Jim Courier strolled past Jason Stoltenberg in three sets. Michael Chang, a baseline player ranked 13th, scooted past Jim Pugh, also in straight sets.

Czechs hang favorite's tag on West Germany

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

ROME — Just whose side is this guy on, anyway?

Czechoslovakia coach Josef Venglos says West Germany, whom his team plays Sunday in the World Cup quarterfinals, is the best team in the tournament. He praises virtually every player and German coach Franz Beckenbauer.

He gives his players the chance to sightsee in Italy. He admits their position in the final eight is a surprise.

Psychological warfare, perhaps? Or just plain old trash talk?

"Oh no, I truly believe West Germany is a great team and the favorite in this World Cup," Venglos said Thursday. "Franz Beckenbauer is an excellent manager."

"But I hope that the strong quality of the opposition will improve the quality of our players, too. It will be a competitive game. Our players will play with full confidence."

They should. After a four-game losing streak in exhibitions just before the World Cup, the Czechoslovaks have looked like another team in this tournament.

They routed the United States 5-1 in a game the Americans claimed was their best chance for victory. They beat Austria 1-0 and, after an impressive effort in a 2-0 defeat by Italy, Czechoslovakia routed Costa Rica 4-1 in the second round as Tomas Skuhravy scored three times, giving him the World Cup lead with five goals.

"Skuhravy and (Ivo) Knoflicek form a pair of very good strikers. However, we are very confident," Beckenbauer said. "If we play as good as against Holland, we will win Sunday's match."

"Czechoslovakia has been very offensive-minded in recent matches.

I think they will resort to different tactics against us because we have more than one Skuhravy in our lineup."

Indeed, the Germans have Lothar Matthaus, Juergen Klinsmann and Andreas Brehme, who have had spectacular performances. But they will be without striker Rudi Voeller, who is suspended.

"He is a very good player, of course, but the Germans still have plenty of high-quality players," Venglos said.

Klinsmann most impressed the Czechoslovaks.

"From what I saw on TV, it was the best performance of his long career," Venglos said of Klinsmann's play against the Netherlands after Voeller was ejected. "I don't think he played that well in the 1988 European Championships."

Sunday's game in Milan will feature the two highest-scoring teams in the championships. West Germany has scored 12 goals in four matches, Czechoslovakia 10.

"It will be a very special game," Venglos said. "But we're not the favorites. We'll just try to do our best."

Despite the monumental challenge ahead, Venglos has done his best to make sure his players have been able to enjoy Italy.

"We've been able to do some sightseeing in Italy," he said. "We've been in Florence, Rome, Bari and Como."

If they are successful in Milan, they get to see Turin, where the winner plays in the semifinals next week.

In the other quarterfinal game on Sunday, it will be England against Cameroon at Naples. On Saturday, defending champion Argentina opposes Yugoslavia at Florence, while Ireland faces Italy at Olympic Stadium in Rome.

Rangers slap 7 doubles to beat Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When opponents make all the timely hits or the rally-killing catches, Texas Rangers pitcher Bobby Witt sometimes wonders if there's any other kind of baseball luck besides bad.

His teammates, however, provided both Thursday: A team record-tying seven doubles and Cecil Espy's homer-robbing grab of Kirby Puckett's fly ball to carry the Rangers over the Minnesota Twins 8-6.

Three of the seven doubles — by Jack Daugherty, John Russell and Mike Stanley — came in the Rangers' five-run, six-hit second inning. Daugherty collected four hits in the game, including another double and a triple.

Espy's catch of Puckett's near-homer in the fifth inning, on which the center fielder jumped and snared the ball from beyond the fence, preserved a 7-1 lead at the time and inspired the man on the mound.

"Cecil's catch on Puckett ... that was awesome," Witt said. "It pumped me up and pumped up the whole team. When I was going bad before, that would have been a home run. Maybe things are turning around for me."

Earlier, Espy drove in his first run since Sept. 25, 1989, with an RBI single in the second inning. It was his second RBI in 65 games.

Witt started the season 0-3 with a 6.75 ERA in his first three starts — dismal enough numbers for Texas manager Bobby Valentine to send Witt to the bullpen on April 26. He resurfaced in the starting rotation on May 6, and in his last nine starts before Thursday's game was 3-5 with a 4.92 ERA.

His last start before facing the Twins, however, was his shortest of the season — 3 2-3 innings in an 8-6 loss.

He rebounded with seven innings of one-run ball against the Twins before turning over the game to the ineffective hands of relievers Jamie Moyer, Brad Arnsberg and Kenny Rogers, who gave up five runs in the final two innings.

"The No. 1 difference (between his last two starts) is I got five runs right off the bat," Witt said. "It made it easy to go out there with a lead like that. My location still wasn't where I'd like it, but every time I had to make a pitch to get somebody out, I did it."

Bobby Valentine and the Rangers are smiling again after back-to-back wins.

Pampa whips Fritch in Babe Ruth action

Pampa downed Fritch, 19-6, in Babe Ruth 16-18 action Wednesday night.

Winning pitcher was Brandon Knutson, who allowed two runs on two hits while striking out six and walking two in three innings. Kevin Mayfield and Chris Archibald pitched in relief.

Knutson was three-for-three, including a two-run homer to lead Pampa's hitting attack. James Bybee and Steve Sanders had two hits each. Mayfield, Archibald and Russ Stephens had one hit each.

Pampa hosts Borger in a double-header Saturday, starting at 4 p.m. at Optimist Park. Pampa travels to Dalhart for a twinbill Sunday, starting at 3 p.m.

Glo-Valve Service overcame a 6-1 deficit to defeat Dyer's Barbeque, 8-6, to remain the only undefeated team in the Optimist Major Bambino city tournament Wednesday.

Winning pitcher Todd Finney gave up four runs in the first inning and two in the third, but came back to retire the last 10 in a row as Glo-Valve mounted its comeback.

Briefs

Casey Danner greeted Finney with a double to open the top of the first inning for Dyer's. He later scored on a hit by Adam Clark, who plated a run after a homer by Matt Utzman. Randall Mobbs scored Dyer's fourth run of the inning.

Pete Jimenez crossed the plate in the bottom of the first for Glo-Valve to make it 4-1.

Clark scored Dyer's fifth run in the third inning on a double by Utzman, who came in to score on a throwing error.

Glo-Valve added four runs in the bottom of the third to move within one, 6-5. Todd Harrison walked, advanced to third on wild pitches and scored on a fielder's choice by Jimenez. Rayford Young was hit by a pitch to reach base and stole home for a team career record of 31 steals. Manning tripled and scored on a hit by Aaron Davis, who later scored on an error.

Glo-Valve still trailed by one when Finney was hit by a pitch in the bottom of the fifth. He scored the tying run on a double by Manning, who scored the game winner on a wild pitch. Davis scored when the catcher's throw to the plate missed the mark.

Finney improved his pitching record to 9-0, giving up three earned runs on five hits. He struck out 16 and walked only one.

Utzman pitched four innings for Dyer's, surrendering four earned runs, two hits and five walks while striking out five. Eddy Pickett came on in relief in the fifth, allowing two earned runs on one hit.

Glo-Valve, the defending city champions, will play for the championship against a team still to be decided.

Cooler Walking

Folks who enjoy walking and jogging at the Pampa High School track can now get a little relief from the heat. Beginning this week, PHS athletic director Dennis Cavalier has been turning on the lights at the track from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. so walkers can exercise in the cooler night air.

Quotable

"I still have the speed and desire to play. All I need now is a call — and the ball."

— Tony Dorsett, who says he is planning a comeback after retiring from the Denver Broncos last season.
