Terror Remains The Top Weapon Of Soviet Chief

NEW YORK (NEA) - Terror is still a weapon of Soviet foreign policy despite Premier Khrushchev's campaign against the ghost of "Stalin the Terrible."

A 30-year-old Soviet citizen, Bogdan Stashinsky, will go on trial in West Germany next month for the 1959 murder in Munich of the prominent Ukrainian nationalist leader, Stefan Bandera,

The young Russian, by his own confession, was an agent of A. N. Shelepin, former chief of Russia's dread State Security Committee (KGB) and one of Khrushchev's trusted party lieutenants.

As is usual in real-life cloakand-dagger dramas, many facts about the murder of the exiled Ukrainian leader remain obscure, Much of the information about the activities of Moscow's secret police in West Germany and other non-Communist countries is not likely to be revealed even at the

However, Stashinsky's voluntary confession throws additional light on Khrushchev's new "liberal" policies which are now being hailed by the usual gullible "progressive" intellectuals of the Stashinsky's first assassination in West Germany, as revealed by Bonn's police and press, was carried out successfully in October. 1957, when he murdered Dr. Lev Rebet, another prominent exile from Russia. At that time the notorious Gen, Ivan Serov was still chief of the KGB. But in 1958, as agesture of Moscow's political "thaw,"- Serov was replaced by Khrushchev's confidence - m a n,

Red propaganda hailed Shelepins appointment as another sign that Khrushchev has discarded Stalin's terrorist methods. The non-Communist world was told that the KGB would henceforth employ "legal" methods of persuasion and indoctrination:

Yet several months after Shelepin took over, Stashinsky, according to his confession, carried out his second assignment - the murder of Stefan Bandera,

Those who believe that the Russians are "infallible" and make no mistakes would do well to follow Stashinsky's case as it will unfold in the West German court,

Khrushchev's fair - haired boy, Shelepin, was so impressed with the assassin's second success that he awarded him the much-coveted Order of the Red Banner,

However, Shelepin also showed the danger of allowing Communist Party bureaucrats to meddle in intelligence by committing a breach of standing orders: he permitted the assassin to marry a German girl.

It was this marriage which, according to the German press, led to Stashinsky's desertion and conconfession. He was all too familiar with Soviet methods. He thus feared that sooner or later he would also be "liquidated" by the KGB as a man who knew too

At the last Congress of the Russian Communist Party, Shelepin - the man responsible for the killing of Bandera and his agent's defection - was even "elected" a secretary of the Party's Central Committee.

It is possible, of course, that had Stashinsky's confession been given worldwide publicity earlier Shelepin might not have been promoted. It is certainly surprising that a man who not only organized political murder but also bungled the aftermath should be given a top place in Khrushchev's own secretariat.

The spirit of Stalin remains very much alive in the foreign section of the KGB. The hypocrisy of using the late dictator's methods while denouncing him in every speech is one of the striking aspects of Khrushchev's policies.

All this makes it reasonable to suppose Bethune has exposed in all nakedness the working partsof psychosomatics which give untold millions of people end less trouble, to say nothing of the physicians they befuddle with their mind-indiced physical ailments. The mind believes its body to be ill, you see, and the body accommodates with symptoms.

The best-known and most-studied examples of this are in certain skin diseases. The ugly eruptions are on the surface for anyone to see. No one could possibly dispute the physicalness of the ailment. Yet it has been proved that people can produce the symptoms with their minds. Bethune was working in the main scientific stream of psychosomatic investigations in his laboratory at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. A current theory is that "organ inferiority," either inherited or acquired, is involved. This "inferior organ," whether skin or stomach or some other part, becomes the target of misdirected emotional "high drive." Bethune and his associate, Dr. Cecil B. Kidd, applied his laboratory feats to four persons with plainly physical skin diseases which had persisted for years. Some had relatives given to the same diseases and one could sup-

The four were hypnotized one by one, By suggestion made to them in their hypnotized states, the scientists endeavored to divert the emotional "high drive" away from the target organ, the skin. They tried to do it by distorting the perceptions of the four of themselves. In all four the "cure" worked - the skin eruptions

Now, these skin diseases have been "cured" by hypnotic suggestion before but the method has never shown consistent results. That is, it works in some but fails in most. The scientists emphasized in reporting to the technical journal, The Lancet that they did not claim real cures.

BE SURE HEALTH ADVISERS ARE REALLY QUALIFIED MEN

By DR. HAROLD T, HYMAN When that traffic cop chugs up and motions you to pull to the community that pays his salary from tax revenues contributed by you and your fellow citizens for your common protection.

Now there are times when you must assume personal responsibility for self-protection, in particular with reference to those who set themselves up as advisers on matters of health.

Let me illustrate what I am driving at by calling your attention to a pair of news stories that appeared recently. The first con cerned a "doctor" who conducts a daily radio program on nutrition and allied subjects and who wrote a book on whose front cover he was listed as a "foremost nutritionist.'

birth dates of two great leaders, Lincoln and Washington. Two Americans who have won the undying love and reverence of their countrymen. One as Founder, the other as Preserver of the American nation. In these precarious times we think of these two great men who gave so much to our country. As we remember these words, a part of Lincoln's second Inaugural address, we think what a truly great man he was: "With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive to finish the work we are in, to do all which may achieve and cherish, a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." And he said also, "Let rever-
