Jayne Mansfield, Husband Picked Up Safe On Island

Trio Is Stranded During Night On Tiny Coral Reef

Actress Panicked From Fear Of Attack By Sharks

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI)—Actress Jayne Mansfield, bedraggled and suffering from "severe exposure," was taken to a hospital today after rescue from what her husband said was a boating accident brought on when his wife panicked because she thought sharks were near.

The 28-year-old actress was spotted by plane early today with her weight-lifter husband, Mickey Hargitay, and a hotel promotion man on a narrow sand island about 15 miles from this British resort town.

The fishing boat Blades II brought them here this morning and Hargitay told a harrowing story of their boat overturning and all three spending the night on a tiny coral reef with the tide lapping toward them.

Dr. Meyer Rassin, of the Rassin Hospital where Miss Mansfield was taken, said she had suffered "quite severe exposure and the effect of bites from numerous mosquitoes and sand flies."

The buxom actress, whose publicity exploits are legend in Hollywood, was said to be in calm emotional state although she was sobbing when she first came off the rescue boat with a blanket and blue flannel dressing robe covering her blue and white striped bathing suit.

Their 17-foot motorboat was found floating overturned off Rose Island Wednesday evening. This morning a U.S. Coast Guard amphibian "buzzed" the island and spotted the three on its eastern end.

Miss Mansfield would say only that it was an "awful shock" but Hargitay told a detailed story of what had happened.

Hargitay said both he and Jayne were on water skis behind the boat with Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hotel man Jack Drury "at the wheel when his wife took a spill into the water about one mile and a half offshore from "an island."

"I went after her," he said. "She complained that her leg hurt. Then Jack saw some sharks and hollered at us."

"That's all you have to do with Jayne, just mention the word 'shark.' She went frantic and got excited."

Hargitay said that Drury circled the boat around them and twice they tried to lift Jayne into the boat. On the second attempt, he said, it "flipped over."

Hargitay said he managed to scramble atop the overturned boat while Drury stayed in the water trying to hoist Jayne up.

"During this attempt she fainted," Hargitay said.

He said all three finally got on the boat and that they drifted for about an hour. Just as dusk was falling," he said, they floated in toward a small coral reef which measured about 50 feet all around and they got onto it.

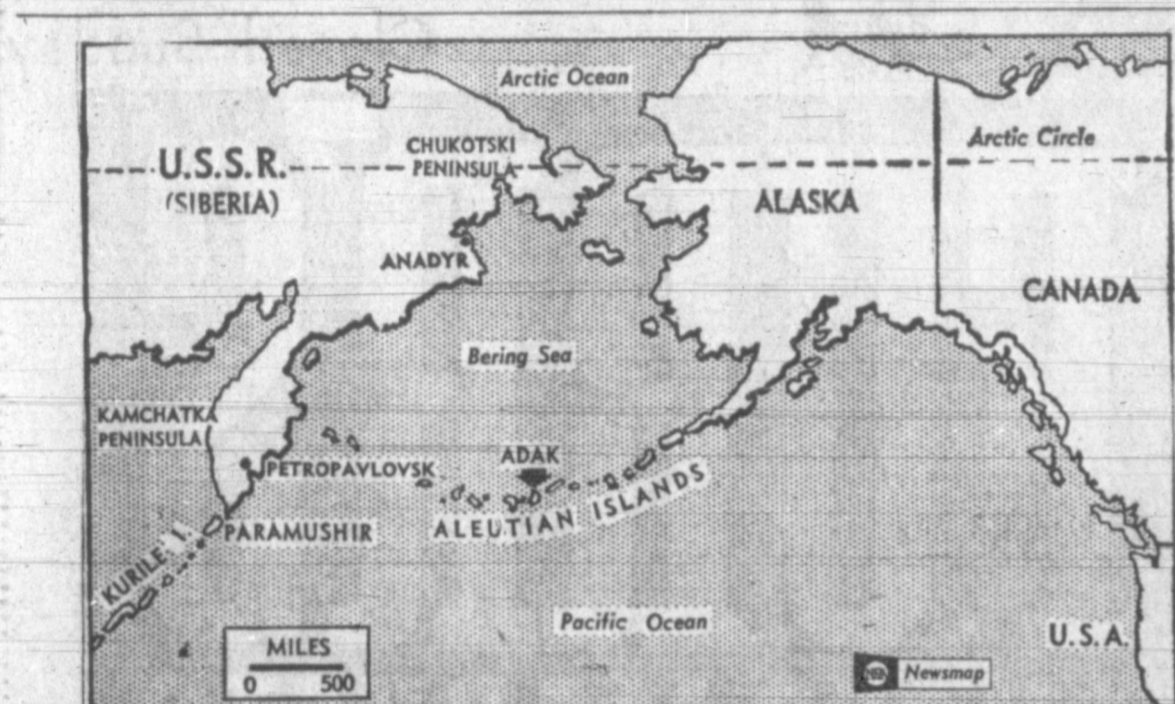

Hargitay said his wife was still (See MANSFIELD, Page 4)

Jayne's Parents Hear Good News

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—"Thank God she's safe," said Harry Peers today when he heard his step-daughter, actress Jayne Mansfield, is safe.

Peers said his wife had not slept all night but was "so excited and relieved she doesn't know what to do."

Peers said he was talking to Ray Straight, Miss Mansfield's agent in Los Angeles when Straight heard a radio bulletin that the actress, her husband, Mickey Hargitay and Fort Lauderdale hotel promotion man Jack Drury were found safe.

ARTIC SPEARPOINT — Adak, lonely U.S. outpost in hostile environment of the subarctic Aleutian Islands, faces Soviet airfields and missile bases in nearby Kurile Islands and on the Siberian coastline. U.S. forces took Adak without opposition in 1942 and used it the following year as jumping-off place for recapture of Kiska and Attu from the Japanese. Today, Adak is an exceedingly valuable electronic sentinel on the path that Russian planes and missiles would follow in case of any attack on the United States.

Paris Streets Under Armored Car Patrol Following Terror Bombing

PARIS (UPI) — Armored cars mounted with cannon patrolled the streets of Paris for the first time today to quell a new outbreak of plastic bombings attributed to Secret Army Organization (OAS) fanatics.

At the same time, French authorities poured an estimated 20,000 troops and police into the area around Algiers to cope with a student demonstration called to protest the killing of two European high school youths. The youths were believed assassinated by Moslems.

President Charles de Gaulle's government ordered five of the menacing, rubber-tired armored cars out of a garage in nearby Versailles and through the Latin Quarter following nine explosions throughout Paris Wednesday. Seven persons were injured in the blasts.

Each of the cars carried two machineguns and a 37mm cannon. About 70 more and 35 tanks remained standing by as they have since the small armada was poised outside the capital Jan. 27.

Most of the bombs went off during a cabinet meeting called to discuss how to crush the OAS, the outlawed European organization determined to keep Algeria French.

One of them rocked the home of Andre Malraux, France's minister of culture and one of its most famous writers. Malraux was not at home but the blast injured a woman and a small girl.

Interior Minister Roger Frey briefed the ministers on anti-OAS measures "and the results obtained." No details of any new security measures were announced but soon after the arm-poured cars appeared, convoyed by motorcycles and jeeps.

In Algiers, the "forces of order" mobilized to guard against a demonstration by students, one of the most volatile groups in favor of the "French Algeria" cause.

Some student protests in the past have turned into violent riots in which Moslems have been lynched in the streets.

The fatal attack on the two students Wednesday occurred outside a high school located between the Moslem Casbah and a workers' suburb. The Algeria students' association immediately called for thousands of pupils to demonstrate for better police protection.

Soldiers, Police Placed On Alert

ALGIERS (UPI)—Thousands of students boycotted their classes today and French authorities alerted 20,000 soldiers and police to be ready for street demonstrations.

Ten robbers staged a bold raid on an Algiers bank that netted $28,000 despite the troop patrols and police said the holdup appeared to be another raid by members of the underground Secret Army Organization (OAS) seeking to replenish their battle-chest.

The strikers had been called out by a students' organization to protest the killing of two European youths at the hands of Moslems and to demand better police protection. Many teachers backed the action.

Authorities feared a street demonstration might erupt into a lynching rampage.

Boy Dies Of Old Age Although He Was Only Eleven

WATSONVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—Arthur Balido died of old age Wednesday—although he was only 11.

Dr. Thomas Schmida said the youth died of progeria, a rare disease which causes premature aging. He said that only about 50 cases have been reported in medical history, including one which resulted in a similar death in Italy about a month ago.

Young Balido first was discovered to have progeria at the age of five, but Schmida said the child did not have much trouble until a year ago when he weighed only 30 pounds.

"We know very little about the disease except that it is not hereditary," said Schmida, adding that the boy's internal organs developed an "old age pattern."

Bill To Bolster Control Of Welfare Gets Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House-Senate negotiators are expected to have little difficulty working out a compromise bill to strengthen federal controls over welfare and employ pension funds covering nearly 90 million workers.

Both Houses passed legislation Wednesday that differs only in minor details.

The rapidly growing union and company-employe trust funds have estimated assets of $58 billion and are expected to grow to $100 billion in the early 1970s.

Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy had urged legislation to strengthen the 1958 Pension Disclosure Act.

The House approved its bill on a non-record standing vote of 191-85 after first defeating an effort to send it back to committee. The Senate passed a similar measure a short time later by voice vote.

The nearly identical bills give the Labor Department strong new powers to force the filing of detailed financial reports, require bonding of fund officials, and prescribe stiff new criminal penalties for mismanagement of trust monies.

Other congressional news: FEBC—A slim possibility arose that a fair employment practices bill would get through the House Rules Committee. Some Republicans are hoping to convince GOP leadership that party support for FEPC—especially in the committee—would offset charges that it would justify the West in re-summing nuclear testing "for military reasons."

While this did not represent a final decision by the President to start atmospheric tests again, he strongly indicated at his news conference Wednesday that this will be his ultimate decision.

The announcement clearly reflected Anglo-American hopes for reviving the stalled nuclear test ban negotiations. The eighteen-member disarmament committee is scheduled to begin meetings March 14 at Geneva.

The Anglo-American statement urged that Khrushchev join Kennedy and Macmillan in assuming "a direct and personal interest in these negotiations."

Although he was not personally invited to today's showdown session, McNamara appeared in person. He intervened when a Pentagon subordinate Willis D. Lawrence was directed by subcommittee Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., to answer a question posed in testimony more than a week ago by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C.

After reading the President's letter, McNamara made it clear that he was "invoking the executive privilege."

Britain And U.S. Call For Foreign Ministers' Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Macmillan today proposed elevating the forthcoming disarmament conference in Geneva to the foreign minister level in an effort to halt the nuclear arms race.

The proposal was addressed to Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

It also was announced by the British and U. S. governments that British-held Christmas Island in the central Pacific was being made available to the United States for nuclear testing.

A joint statement issued here and in London said recent massive Soviet atmospheric tests "would justify the West" in re-summing nuclear testing "for military reasons."

Steelworkers Put Job Security First On List

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The United Steelworkers Union primed today for the opening of negotiations next week on a new contract, placing job security and fringe benefits above a wage increase.

The opening of bargaining next Wednesday marks one of the earliest starts in the history of formal industry-union steel negotiations. The present three-year contract expires June 30, leaving negotiators about 20 weeks to reach agreement.

Most significant in the demands drawn up Wednesday by the 170-member Wage Policy Committee was the fact the union subjugated a wage increase to a secondary role. In past years, the union had demanded substantial wage increases in job security were needed.

David J. McDonald, president of the million-member USW, said an earlier start was being made on bargaining at the request of President Kennedy. McDonald indicated that job security was perhaps the most important facet of the coming negotiations.

"We must provide a system of job security," he said, "and provide some way of solving unemployment among steelworkers."

McDonald and R. Conrad Cooper of the U. S. Steel Corp., who will head the industry bargaining team, issued a joint statement which said that because of the "national interest" an early start was in negotiations was "very desirable at this time."

Cooper admitted that improved demands in job security were needed.

Resumption Of Atmospheric Nuclear Tests Believed In Immediate Offing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy appeared today to be preparing the country for an announcement soon that the United States must resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere because of the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries.

Formal word was expected today or Friday, here and in London, that Great Britain has agreed to let this country use Christmas Island in the Central Pacific for a new U.S. test series. In exchange, this government has agreed to let Britain use U.S. facilities in Nevada to conduct underground atomic tests.

Meantime, American scientific and military agencies rushed to completion a study ordered by Kennedy to determine whether Russia's series of 40 to 50 tests last fall make it necessary for this country to resume atmospheric test shots.

The President told his news conference Wednesday that the study should be completed this month. His final decision on test resumption will follow shortly thereafter.

Kennedy seemed to leave little doubt that the decision, however reluctant, would be to resume atmospheric tests. He emphasized repeatedly Russia's ability to "prepare in secret and then test at will" even while going through the motions of discussing a test ban and calling for general disarmament.

The Chief Executive announced late last year after Russia began conducting atmospheric tests again that the United States had no choice but to start the long preparations for test resumption.

Officially of the Saarland-Mine Commission said at least 263 miners were known dead in an explosion. They said the toll probably would mount even higher because an unknown number of miners still was trapped a quarter of a mile beneath the ground.

By early this morning, 252 victims had been brought to the surface. Ten bodies were located deep in the pit and one miner died in a hospital during the night.

The Luental Mine, which is just outside Saarbrücken in the village of Volklingen, was turned into an incinerator by a gas explosion Wednesday shortly after a crew of nearly 480 miners descended into the shaft to begin their day's work.

Mine commission officials said about 200 of the miners clawed their way out. They said 85 men were injured, 13 of whom died on the way to or in hospitals.

The rescue operations were carried on throughout the night as grief-stricken relatives and fellow miners waited in a cold, driving rain for any word of the men trapped below the ground.

The explosion which ripped the mine was believed to have been touched off by an overheated engine driving a conveyor belt. A spark, probably from the engine, ignited the mixture of gas and oxygen, officials said.

The death toll was the highest in a West German mine disaster since 1946, when 412 miners were killed in a Ruhr explosion.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The hatbox-shaped Tros-4 was launched today for the fourth of seven experimental flights to pave the way for the Tros satellite to photograph world's first regularly orbiting earth's weather from nearly 500 miles in space.

Space officials announced shortly after launch that the second and third stages of the rocket had apparently fired on schedule and indications were the satellite was fully successful, the new satellite would keep tabs on weather conditions for the orbital rocket mission.

Experts said there was a "good likelihood" that, if the shot was fully successful, the new satellite would keep tabs on weather conditions for the orbital rocket mission.

Tros-4 was scheduled to take its first pictures as it passed over the eastern United States after one orbit. The satellite was designed to photograph cloud covers above earth with its two TV cameras, store the information on magnetic tape and relay it on command to ground tracking stations.

Kennedy Invokes Doctrine Of Executive Privilege In Censor Case

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy today invoked the historic doctrine of executive privilege and instructed the Defense and State departments not to tell a Senate subcommittee which censured specific speeches.

A Feb. 3 letter, signed by the President and disclosing the instructions, was read by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to the special Senate armed services subcommittee which has been investigating alleged military muzzling.

The President declared that disclosure of the information would be contrary to the public interest. In instructing McNamara not to divulge the information, Kennedy said he is acting in accordance with legal precedents set by his predecessors "from the first to the last."

The doctrine was first used by George Washington. Kennedy served notice at his news conference Wednesday that he and McNamara agreed the speech reviewers should not be subjected to "harrassment" simply because they were carrying out administration orders.

Although he was not personally invited to today's showdown session, McNamara appeared in person. He intervened when a Pentagon subordinate Willis D. Lawrence was directed by subcommittee Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., to answer a question posed in testimony more than a week ago by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C.

After reading the President's letter, McNamara made it clear that he was "invoking the executive privilege."

It was the first time that this has been done by the present administration, Kennedy's letter stressed that McNamara had given full cooperation to the subcommittee, provided a mass of documentary material and offered to supply detailed data himself on the deletions made in individual speeches.

In an allied development, Gen. David M. Shoup, Marine Corps commandant, said the action of Senate investigators in giving a questionnaire on communism to 21 Marines in the Washington area was detrimental to morale.

He also expressed doubt any useful purpose was served when subcommittee aides similarly questioned Marines at San Diego and Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The question facing Lawrence was: Who, among Pentagon speech reviewers, handled a statement prepared last February by Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau for presentation to the House Space Committee.

Although the subcommittee voted unanimously Wednesday to recall Lawrence and press the question, Kennedy and McNamara may well have the upper hand in the dispute.

'Tim Tugbutton' Irrked By Waste Of Federal Funds

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Hon. Timothy Tugbutton came storming into the office today yelling for blood or, anyway, a court-martial.

Tugbutton's rage had been boiling up for nearly a week since he had read in his hometown paper, the Alton, Kan., Empire, that some Navy knucklehead, an admiral no doubt, had been wasting the taxpayers' dollars.

"Three million, two hundred thousand bucks," the old man shouted. "They oughta keelhaul the varmint. How'd a critter as dumb as that ever get to be an admiral, anyway?"

"Maybe he wasn't an admiral, Tim."

"Of course he was an admiral," Tugbutton insisted. "They don't let lieutenants, captains and such spend that kind of money."

Tugbutton spread his copy of the Empire on the news desk and indicated the paragraph that had enraged him, a United Press International story, as follows:

"The General Accounting Office charged yesterday that the Navy wasted $3.2 million buying new aircraft engine parts during a recent 18-month period when it had plenty of excess aircraft engines in storage from which the parts could have been obtained."

Tugbutton said he had had his eye on the Navy for a long time and that the spare parts incident was not the first such snafu.

"Things like that happen all the time," the old man shouted. "And I'll tell you something else and don't forget it, the Army and the Air Force are just as bad, maybe worse."

"This feller Campbell (Joseph Campbell, comptroller general of the United States) has been turning 'em up for years. This Campbell checks all of the spending and the contracts made by the government. His checkers look for deals in which the government gets gypped or gypps itself and mighty often they find 'em. Then this Campbell reports to Congress and that's the end of it."

"Congress ought to be ashamed of itself. They don't pay any more attention to these reports than if they were talking about Confederate money. Less, maybe. I'm gonna vote against my congressman from here on out and everybody ought to do the same."

"It would be a shocker if Congress or this Campbell would just take these reports for one year and add up all the wasted money. Everybody ought to write to their congressman and demand to know how much money the Army, Navy and Air Force have wasted in the last 12 months on these spare parts and other sucker deals."

Tugbutton was building up a head of steam. He banged his cane on the news desk, kicked over a basket of Teletype tape and swept the paste pot to the floor.

"This feller McNamara, what's he going to do about these generals and admirals? Nothing, most likely. That wasn't the way he ran the Ford Motor Co., I betcha. And if he had, young Henry would have given him the sack. That's what President Kennedy ought to do, too, if this McNamara can't make his generals and admirals take better care of the people's money, can him and get another boy!"

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Under former President Eisenhower and continued under the the Kennedy Administration the United States has been carrying on a determined campaign to "save the dollar."

It was based on the simple fact that for years the United States has been spending more abroad than it was taking in, and was draining off its gold supplies at the rate of more than $3 billion annually.

Biggest single item on the expense sheet was the annual $4.5 billion foreign aid bill.

Another important item was the $2 billion spent abroad annually by U. S. tourists.

Orders went out to "buy American."

Armed services post exchanges were ordered to discontinue purchases of European goods, including Scotland's most exportable product, Scotch whisky.

The State Department cut out its foreign aid procurement purchases in 18 nations and Hong Kong, most seriously affecting Japan.

U. S. tourists were limited to $100 in duty-free purchases they could bring back from abroad, instead of the former $500.

Altogether, the savings were expected to amount to more than $1 billion annually, and the United States sent eloquent spokesmen abroad to explain its actions.

But if this nation had eloquent spokesmen, other nations also had theirs.

In New York, in an office 12 floors above Fifth Avenue, a ruddy-faced, cigar smoking Frenchman speaks the case for his industry.

He is Henri J. Lesieur, general manager of Air France for the North American, Central American and Caribbean division.

He points out that his firm has spent $180 million to equip itself with American jet airliners and spends $30 million annually just for spare parts and other related expenses within the United States.

He feels that while France is being asked to follow an open-door policy, the United States itself is following a protectionist line.

Foreign businessmen understand the need for the "save the dollar" campaign, but they feel the accompanying "buy American" campaign if applied indiscriminately also can lead to retaliation, whether it be in bicycles, watches or travel.

As the European Common Market grows in size and strength, with trade barriers of its own, the problem will become more acute. It is with this in mind that President Kennedy is pressing his own program of liberalized trade.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Wind whipped a fire through the Service Compress and Warehouse plant Tuesday night. The president of the company said damage might amount to $750,000.

The sheet metal building housed expensive compresses and about 1,900 bales of cotton. The building collapsed shortly after the fire broke out. The plant was near the western edge of Lubbock.

Wind gusts of 20 miles an hour fanned flames. Eleven units of the Lubbock fire department worked for four hours before the fire was controlled.

Powers Must Serve 10 Years

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (UPI)—U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers has been told he must serve his full 10-year prison sentence because of the "gravity and seriousness" of his spy flight over Russia, his wife said today.

Mrs. Barbara Powers said her husband wrote her that a Soviet official told him there would be no clemency. After three years in a Soviet prison, Powers must serve seven years in a prison camp, Mrs. Powers said.

Powers' high-flying plane crashed in Russia in May 1960, and during a Soviet trial he pleaded guilty to espionage charges. He was sentenced to 10 years "deprivation of liberty."

Mrs. Powers said she has sent letters to the military council of the Soviet Union "offering to meet with them any time, any place, anywhere in the world to ask for clemency," but the letters never were answered.

She said she has requested permission to see her husband and will visit him this summer if allowed by Soviet officials.

The 1962 season of the Panhandle Plains Section of the American Chemical Society will open in Amarillo Saturday at a 6:45 p.m. dinner meeting in the Colonial Cafeteria, in Wolflin Village.

After dinner, Dr. Helmut A. Abt, staff astronomer at Kitt Peak National Observatory, will speak on "The Evolution of the Stars."

Dr. Abt did his undergraduate work at Northwestern University, majoring in mathematics and physics, then earned his PhD in Astronomy at the California Institute of Technology. During a six year tour of duty at Yorkes Observatory, University of Chicago, he took leave of absence to assist in field work on the selection of the site for Kitt Peak National Observatory.

His talk will explain the modern viewpoint as to how the stars originated, what happens to them when they age, and the changes which occur as stars age. For example, some dying "White Dwarf" stars have condensed to a very dense 4000 tons - Cubic Inch material which has lost its outer electron shells. Hargitay said they stayed on the reef all night and that the tide started coming in and "the island started shrinking until water was lapping almost at our feet."

At daybreak, Hargitay said, they saw that Rose Island was nearby so that they could "walk, wade and swim" to it. He said they had to swim "about two blocks" with Jayne supported between the two men.

The plane spotted them shortly afterwards, he said.

An air-sea search involving more than 400 men had been launched at daybreak with a flotilla of yachts and small boats joining the Nassau air-sea rescue squadron and police craft which had searched all night.

Miss Mansfield's rented 17-foot boat with a 40-horsepower motor had been found by fishermen late Wednesday. The three had put out Wednesday morning for a few hours of water-skiing.

British Parliament Stirred By Dispute Over Catnapping

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's Parliament was embroiled yesterday in a new dispute over an age-old problem — the public catnap.

The issues were clear cut: Did John Rankin, a Labor MP, snore in the House of Commons? And if so, was Conservative MP Gerald Nabarro correct in calling it to the attention of the speaker?

During question time Tuesday, Speaker Sir Harry Hylton Foster skipped to the next member when Rankin did not answer when his name was called.

Rankin immediately jumped up, protesting that he had been overlooked. At this point, Nabarro said: "Is it in order for an MP to go to sleep and miss his question? Are you not aware that Mr. Rankin was snoring so loudly we could not even hear you, Mr. Speaker?"

Nabarro's comments drew some gawfaws, but Rankin was not in a laughing mood. He said later that Nabarro's insinuations — are untrue. I was more awake than he."

Then he wrote a letter to Nabarro, asking him to make a personal statement in Commons withdrawing the remark about snoring.

The Daily Express quoted Nabarro as saying he will "ignore the letter."

Rankin's wife denied that her husband ever slept in Commons, although she admitted that he does snore.

"All husbands do," she snapped.

Rankin immediately jumped up, protesting that he had been overlooked. At this point, Nabarro said: "Is it in order for an MP to go to sleep and miss his question? Are you not aware that Mr. Rankin was snoring so loudly we could not even hear you, Mr. Speaker?"

Nabarro's comments drew some

Glazed Pork Roast Rates High Honor

Pretty to look at, delicious to eat and little effort to prepare is a pork loin roast that makes a gracious platter for a special meal. When all decked out in a glamorous glaze and accessorized with sugar frosted grapes, this tender roast will reap applause for your culinary talents.

The fruit glaze is easy to prepare and spread on the roast. PINEAPPLE-APPLESAUCE GLAZE

- 1/2 cup applesauce
- 1/4 cup pineapple preserves
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon lemon rind

Combine all ingredients. Spread mixture over roast 1/2 hour before it is done. Return roast to oven and continue cooking until meat is done and glaze is set.

The carving task will be much simpler if, when you purchase the roast, you ask the meat retailer to loosen the backbone from the rib side. After roasting it can be quickly removed before placing the meat on the platter. The carving can easily slice between the ribs.

For the pretty frosted grapes, use the seedless, light green variety and break them into small clusters. Beat 1 or 2 egg whites until foamy. Dip the grapes into the egg whites and coat with granulated sugar. Then chill. It is a delectable garnish that will dress up any meat platter.

Spareribs Become Glamour Sandwich With Addition Of Cherry-Rice Stuffing

How cleverly milady's culinary technique can wake up the appetite for spareribs. You might even call this unusual entree a sparerib sandwich because the ribs are cut into individual servings and stuffed with Cherry-Rice mixture.

- SPARERIBS
- CHERRY-RICE STUFFING
- 4 pounds spareribs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 can (16 ounces) red, sour pitted cherries, drained
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2-3 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2-3 cup cherry juice

Cut spareribs into pieces of approximately 2 ribs each. Season with 1-teaspoon salt and 1/2-teaspoon pepper. Mix together cherries, rice, celery, 1/2-teaspoon salt, sugar and egg. Spread one half of the sparerib pieces with stuffing, using about 1-3-cup for each. Cover with the remaining sparerib pieces, turning rib ends down. Place spareribs on a rack in an open roasting pan and roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 1/2 hours.

Mix together sugar and cornstarch. Add cherry juice and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Spoon half the cherry glaze over the spareribs and continue cooking 15 minutes. Add the remaining glaze and cook for another 15 minutes or until glaze is set and meat done. 6 to 8 servings.

Lumps Don't Hurt Evaporated Milk

Q-Sometimes evaporated milk is lumpy. Is it safe to use?

A-Yes. The lumps occasionally found in evaporated milk are formed by the solids settling during storage. They do not harm the milk. Shake or frequently turn cans of evaporated milk during storage to prevent lumping. U.S.

Psychologist Claims It's All In The Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — A psychologist has invented a new kind of "game" for which all of life is the "playing board" and the "men" are the players themselves. It is called "Family Constellation." If learned correctly, it can disclose much about the participants, especially whether they are suitably married. Under the "rules" a man who grew up with a younger sister, for example, stands the greatest chance of marital happiness if his wife had an older brother. Another potentially perfect match would be that of the youngest brother of a sister or sisters with the oldest sister of a brother or brothers. One of the worst possible combinations, according to the rules of the game, would be that of an older sister of sisters to an older brother of brothers. Both might tend to be too bossy. Walter Toman, former psychology teacher at the University of Vienna and Harvard and now associate professor at Brandeis University, worked out the "rules" for Family Constellation in 10 years of study of the family relationships of more than 400 persons. He concluded that all the relationships one attempts during his life are conditioned largely by the structure of his family and his place in it. The closer later associations come to the earlier experiences with mother, father, brothers and sisters, he decided, the greater the likelihood will be that these adult experiences will be successful. Toman has described his "game" in detail in a book titled "Family Constellation" issued by the Springer-Publishing Company. He outlined eight basic sibling positions — the oldest brother of brother(s), the youngest brother of brother(s), the oldest brother of sister(s), the youngest brother of sister(s), the oldest sister of sister(s), the youngest sister of sister(s), the oldest sister of brother(s), and the youngest sister of brother(s). "Suppose the older brother of a sister marries the younger sister of a brother," Toman wrote. "They are getting in marriage precisely the relation that they had at home. He is used to a girl his junior, and she to a boy her senior. Hence there should be no conflicts over their seniority rights. And both of them are used to the other sex. Hence they

Christmas Island May Be Base For Nuclear Testing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Britain has given the United States permission to use Christmas Island in the central Pacific to conduct atmospheric nuclear tests if President Kennedy decides to resume such experiments, informed sources said today. They also said the United States agreed several months ago to let the British use U. S. facilities in Nevada to conduct underground nuclear tests. Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed at Bermuda last December to make preparations for a resumption of atmospheric experiments in view of Russia's tests. They did not definitely decide such tests would be resumed.

Villagers Forced To Dig Own Graves

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (UPI) — The Katanga government charged today that central Congolese troops forced the residents of a village in northern Katanga to dig their own graves and then buried the entire population. A communique said the alleged atrocity occurred at the village of Rutuku in the area of Albertville. There were no other details of the incident, nor any idea of the population of Rutuku.

Parkinson Hates IRS Form 1040

By JERRY SHEEHAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — If Prof. C. Northcote Parkinson never existed, taxpayers would have to invent him. As his American lecture tour nears completion, Parkinson emerges as the champion of that benighted group which struggles yearly with form 1040. Parkinson, the portly enunciator of the "Laws" which bear his name, elegantly consumed a dish of chicken imbrogio at a fancy uptown Italian restaurant and expounded in a portly British accent on the evils of the annual Internal Revenue squeeze play. Between cups of espresso coffee he also revealed how Goy's painting of the Duke of Wellington landed on the auction block. As an Englishman ("The English invented the income tax," Prof. Parkinson feels more taxed than most people. "Living as I do on the Isle of Guernsey," said the professor, "I have the unique and dubious privilege of paying — in addition to other taxes — an ancient feudal tax, called a poultage, to the Queen of England. It meant originally two chickens — now converted to precisely one pound, 15 shillings. "I inquired a couple of years ago if I could merely send two live chickens to Buckingham Palace to satisfy the annual assessment. I was told by an official with a perfectly straight face that I was prevented from sending the birds by a parliamentary act of 1928." European and American sales of "Parkinson's Law" and "The Law and the Profits," (both published by Houghton Mifflin Co.) now total about 225,000 copies. As a result of this success, the balancing and irreverent scholar feels the long arm of the U.S. tax office each year about this time. "Excessive taxation means the absolute destruction of the society. This is all explained by Parkinson's Second Law. Namely, that supply creates demand," he said, quoting himself. "For a long time, economists thought the reverse to be true. Applied to taxes, it means that the government will spend just as much or more than it collects from the citizens. "Instead of the need determining the taxation, the government gets the money and looks around to spend it on something."

54th YEAR THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1952 7
Asked about the differences between American and English tax collection, Parkinson snorted: "I hate them both." As an example of the bitter game of taxation, Prof. Parkinson cites the story of the Duke of Leeds, who was living outside of Britain when he became seriously sick. "He was taken to a London hospital, and pulled through a series of treatments," related the professor. "At the end of 90 days — while he was recuperating — he was set upon by the tax collectors. "I picture them standing three deep around his hospital bed, informing him that he was considered at that point a legal resident of England. Taxes due the Crown totaled something like 140,000 pounds. It's a wonder the poor devil didn't have a relapse. "To satisfy the tax collectors," he sold his "Duke of Wellington" by Goya to the London Museum for the exact sum. A week later the picture was stolen. "There's a grim irony here somewhere."

'Nobody Here But Us Alligators'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—San Antonio police said today this game of putting alligators into apartment house swimming pools has got to stop.

A six-foot, 150-pound gator was found Tuesday night lounging on the steps of a swimming pool at a fashionable apartment house.

Amos Villaneuva, 45, employed by a wrecker service, slipped up on the alligator, grabbed its jaws and put a rope around them. After a tussle, Amos won.

The reptile was taken back to the alligator gardens at Brackenridge Park. Police said three of them have been stolen from the gardens in the past two weeks and placed in swimming pools.

Walter Rogers Reports Trend To De-Urbanization Sets Up Growing Problem

Much has been said and written about the problems and difficulties of the urban population. It has been repeatedly pointed out in economic reports that the decrease in our farm population means that there is a corresponding increase in the city areas. I believe it is now estimated that 70 per cent of our population resides in the urban or metropolitan areas of the country. This trend has been obvious for years to statisticians, but its physical impact on the economy of the country and on the political makeup of the country is just now beginning to be felt. It is an assumed fact of human nature that a great many of Man's problems are caused by over-congestion. The social ills of the past were primarily the result of over-crowding in Eastern cities. It provided a fertile field for the exploitation of Man by Man on an economic basis. It was the breeding place for crime that subsequently developed into national and international syndicates of crime. It created innumerable other problems associated with the greed of man. As the population continues to increase at the rate of some three plus million per year (an increase which will in itself increase), the problems become accordingly greater. The migration from the rural areas into the metropolitan areas has not eased it but, in fact, appears to be increasing.

Only recently it was estimated that by 1980 our population will have increased by 65 million people. This will mean that we will have some 240 million people in the United States. Yet, in 1950 the experts estimated that by 1975 we would have 175 million people. They also estimated that it would be almost impossible to feed that many people. It shows how wrong experts can be. The fact is that the migration from the farms to the cities is caused by the increasing difficulties encountered by farmers in making a living, especially small farmers trying to operate family-sized farms. It is presently estimated that although the population will increase to some 240 million by 1980, 50 million less acres will be required to feed the population. Some argue that the farmer has advanced technologically so fast and so well that he has virtually put himself out of business. Be that as it may, the more rural people who move into the cities, together with the natural increases in the populations of the cities, the more social problems we are going to be faced with in this country, and the more and greater the demands for legislation to solve them. It will necessarily follow that the demands for such legislation will be to the Federal Congress in most instances, rather than the State Legislatures. The reason being that most States undertaking to meet the problems posed by this great influx of the population to the metropolitan areas are now bankrupt or on the verge of it. They do not have tax sources from which to acquire the funds to meet the demands. Most of their taxing powers have already been stretched to the breaking point. Hence, these cities are turning more and more to the Federal government, as a number of them have done in the past, and as others will do in the future. The end result will be complete centralization of the government of this country. It will mean the ultimate destruction of the dual sovereignty form of government and could well do much damage to the basic separation of powers theory.

Several years ago a group of us in the Congress undertook to place a "dispersal amendment" on authorization and appropriation bills for defense expenditures. This would have set up machinery for expenditures by the Federal government to be spread out through the country and contribute to the dispersing of the population. This amendment was repeatedly defeated because of the greater number of Representatives from the areas designated as industrial areas of the nation. Had the amendment passed I feel that the people of those areas, or perhaps their children, would have been much better served. Although it may have been necessary for them to have removed from one geographical location to another geographical location within the United States, it could be assumed that this would have been to their benefit rather than their detriment. Certainly it would have avoided the declaration of many of these areas as distressed areas, to be the recipients of negotiated contracts to keep employment up, and Federal welfare grants.

In short, it is my feeling that emphasis should be placed on de-urbanizing our population if we are to solve the problems of health, of social justice, of freedom from exploitation, of crime, and create an opportunity for the freedom which many of the people have never tasted. They might like it.

First Week Donations To Home Fund Total $16,000

CANADIAN (Sp) — Contributions and pledges totalling more than $16,000 were received from Hemphill county citizens during the first week of an appeal for funds to build a $100,000 convalescent home for elder citizens to serve the northeast Panhandle area.

And in response to many inquiries, the finance committee of the Edward Abraham Memorial Home Fund made it clear this week that gifts and pledges from people of neighboring counties would also be welcomed.

"This is not strictly a Canadian or Hemphill county project," Harry Wilbur, Jr., chairman of the finance committee, pointed out. "The home is intended to serve this entire area, and first preference will always be given to people of this and adjoining counties. Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts, Gray and Wheeler counties in Texas and Roger Mills, Ellis, and Beckham counties in Oklahoma.

The Memorial Home fund was launched shortly before Christmas with a gift of $50,000 from the Abraham families of Canadian, the only provision being that the people of this community and the surrounding area contribute a matching fund to build and maintain a modern convalescent home in Canadian for the elderly people of this area who need nursing home care.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce was named by the Abrahams to administer the fund and to provide the trustees for operation of the home. The gift was made in memory of the late Eddie Abraham, who was, at the time of his death last October, heading a Chamber of Commerce committee investigating the possibility of establishing just such a convalescent home.

The home is not a county project, and will have no political ties with any governmental agency or unit.

Contributions are being accepted in the form of cash donations, memorial gifts for persons named by the donors, and pledges payable at the donor's option in lump sum or in installments over a two-year period.

ADVOCATES "CAVEMAN" DIET

LONDON (UPI)—A British nutrition expert said Wednesday people would be much better off if they went back to a "caveman" diet.

Prof. John Yudkin told the Royal Society of Arts that a cure for modern food habits which lead to obesity would be a return to the manly meat and protein diet of our caveman ancestors.

The professor said that too much food, particularly carbohydrates, and too little exercise lead to overweight problems and poor health. He said too many "sweets" were eaten which cause only harmful, overweight effects and help produce tooth decay.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (UPI)—A growing flu epidemic which already has closed most of the city's schools Wednesday night prompted officials of the home for the aged to bar visitors.

Officials of the Davey Home for the Aged said there were between 30 and 35 cases of influenza among the staff and residents.

Flu has affected about one-third of the city's 42,000 population and has forced 34 of 52 public schools in the area to close.

Glamour Apparel From Shirt Off Dad's Back

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

What to do with the "perfectly good" clothes that are no longer wearable as-is? Some may have a more interesting future than that of the rummage sale table if you're willing to experiment with home dyes and simple sewing.

A good example is your husband's old shirt. If the collar and cuffs are frayed, he'll consider the shirt "old" even though the body fabric is in A-1 condition. My spouse, thrusting such shirts at me, muttered something about turning them into smocks for the children.

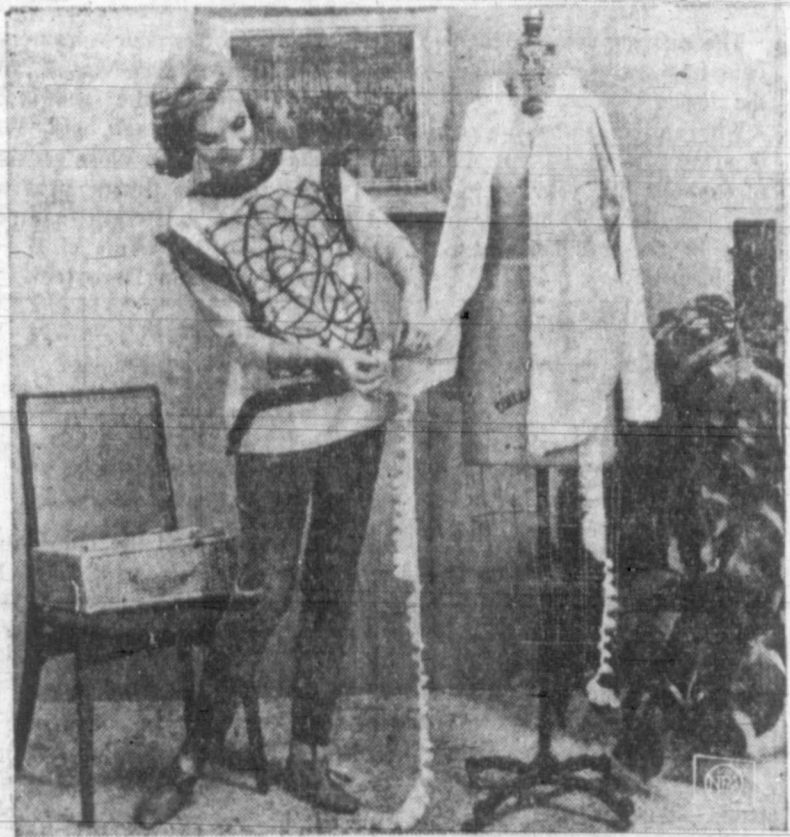

Well, the saturation point for kindergarten painting smocks is reached rather rapidly when you have only one child in kindergarten and she objects strongly to flapping around in her father's shirt.

With four "perfectly good" shirts on my hands, I was a push-over for some timely suggestions for what to do with them. The suggestions come from the Tintex color council, which I had consulted about the home-dyeability of certain fabrics.

The all-cotton shirts take to home dyeing like a whiz, and colors are true and clear. Synthetic fibers are more difficult to home-dye and some, such as Dacron, may be impossible to dye satisfactorily at home. If your old shirts, like mine, are the garden variety white cotton, you won't have any trouble getting the tint, light or dark, you want.

A man's shirt can be converted to a cobbler's apron, and a fancy one at that. The shirt may be dyed a bold, bright color. Remove the collar, neckband and sleeves. Turn the shirt backward, and take in sides under arms to fit. Turn up the shirttails to make pockets in front. Bind neck, armholes and pockets with fringe, bias tape or decorative binding.

You can go one step further and "print" a pattern on the fabric with concentrated dye mixtures. This pattern - printing technique can be used for many types of articles. For this, mix fabric dye in one or more different colors in a small pan using only one cup of water (very hot water).

Home dyes and simple trims transform dad's old shirts. Cobbler's apron has abstract print done with concentrated fabric dye solution. Ruffle-trimmed "shortie" nightie is for daughter.

Place shirt flat on the table and stuff with several layers of newspaper so dye will not soak through and mark the back of the shirt. Use a one-half-inch wide paint brush and paint on the free-form pattern. Paint over a pattern a second time to be sure the dye seeps into fabric. Let dry.

Another shirt conversion trick turns it into a short nightie for yourself or a teenage daughter. Dye the shirt first. (Incidentally, dyeing a single shirt or two is a simple matter, and should be done by hand rather than in the washing machine.) After the shirt has dried, remove collar and cuffs or sleeves (if you want a short-sleeved gown).

Hem sleeves and gather with an elastic band. Edge sleeves, each side of button tab, neck band and shirttails with eyelet-ruffling two inches wide.

Similar changes can turn a shirt into a pagoda-red-mandarin jacket with "frog" closings instead of buttons and short, elbow-length sleeves trimmed with wide embroidered red tape. Make a wide tape banding for the neckline, too.

'Little Nothing' Dress Becomes 'Something'

Spring opens with a new feminine fashion image: Soft, pretty, beguiling. The understated "little nothing" dress is gone. In its place is the "something dress," the dress that makes a statement. Clothes are more elaborate — in basic construction, in detail, in shape. And the shape is no longer based on the straight lines of the rectangle. It moves, it flows, it sways. It clings to the body through bias inserts. It is unmistakably feminine.

These fashion trends for spring, 1962, have been summarized by Women's Wear Daily fashion editors after reviewing manufacturers' spring collections.

Some components of the new shape: Little jackets that float, ripple, flutter, some shaped like a capulet with the sleeves worked in, some true capes, some panels that form capes in the back alone. In the same feeling are backs that blouse or backs that are draped.

Ruffles are a strong softening ingredient, setting up a storm at the hemline (balancing the explosion at the shoulders), climbing up a skirt from hem to waistline or even shoulders. Others trail around in horizontal tiers or extend vertically bordering a jacket or a bodice. And along with the ruffles are godets, low flares, deep flounces.

Pleats are strong. Women's Wear Daily finds. Some hang crisp and straight, breaking open only in motion. Others are diaphanous, set up their whirl at the hint of a breeze or a gesture.

The majority of skirts flare gently, sometimes echoing the flare at the top. Many feature fullness under the control of a wide, soft front panel, many have fullness set low, reinforced by the ruffles and frills. Skirts are often worked on the bias so the figure is not concealed by a tent of fabric, but the fabric clings, no matter what its width.

Costuming takes many forms, planned to constitute a related whole or to stand on any of its parts, each part with a specific purpose. There are full-length coats that not only complement a dress but can serve as a dress itself. There are overblouses, tunics, the new little fly-aways that provide a dress with its own wrappings, frequently a change of pace.

Fabrics have never been so this, so drenched with color, so supple. Crepe stars, made for the softness of the hour and lending itself to the gentle flow of fabric, not only in black but in pale colors

Dear Abby... One Home Wouldn't Be Large Enough!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We are not young folks. We have married children. Three years ago my husband learned that a school-time sweetheart, whom he never ceased to love, was living in an eastern city. While on a business trip, he drove some distance to spend the week-end at her home. He told me all about it.

They have corresponded ever since. Now her husband recently passed on and she wrote that she would like to move to our city because she has "no one." My husband thinks we should ask her to live with us for a while. To me, this is ridiculous. What shall I say?

DEAR ABBY: Worried? Say, "Nothing doing!" If she wants to move to your city, you can't stop her but, under the circumstances, you'd be foolish to share your home with her—even for a while.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who pushes the button down on the telephone right in the middle of his daughter's conversation?

DEAR ABBY: My problem is too much advice. I work with a wonderful, middle-aged man with whom I have fallen in love. He has been married twice, and has four children. He is presently free, and has asked me to be his third wife. I am twenty, and two of his children are older than I. The other two are very bratty.

and have made it plain that they don't like me. He has custody of all his children.

My clergyman, family and friends have advised me against this marriage. I love this man, and know what I am up against, but I am willing to take the chance. Shouldn't this decision be mine?

DEAR WILLING: The decision is yours, but don't ignore the advice of those who have only your best interests at heart. Marriage is forever, not something on which you "gamble." Your letter indicates that you are still seeking advice. I say the chances for a happy, lasting marriage with this man are poor.

DEAR ABBY: Just the thought of getting into hot water keeps some people clean.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Less Income Tax Pain If Health Care's Tallied

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Take time to jot down the cost of pain in the pocketbook when health care nibbles at your folding money.

It helps to take the headache out of income tax calculations, James R. Williams, manager of the Health Insurance Institute said in an interview.

The dividend in being orderly about your health care expenditures: You won't short-change yourself when making out your income tax.

What's more, Williams said an analysis of a record kept for the previous 12 months helps you to more accurately forecast the extent to which health care expenditures will eat into your cash in the next year.

Unless you can make such a forecast, your budgets wind up as shots in the dark or educated guesses: If they're too far off, you'll plunge into the red.

Plan Recommended — Institute economists recommended the following plan for meeting health costs:

—Do an annual accounting; base it on a record of your family's health care expenditures over a period of 12 months or longer — include a budget allocation that copes with expected costs, provides for adequate health insurance for the big bills, and also fat-tens an emergency fund for situations that may not be covered by health insurance.

The income tax gets into the act for this reason: A record of health care expenditures is required if you elect to itemize deductions in this category on your income tax return.

Williams said you are allowed to deduct medical expenses only to the extent that they exceed 3 per cent of your gross income after the required one per cent of income write-off on drugs and medicines — if you have expenses for drugs and medicines.

Rule Waived — If either taxpayer spouse is 65 years of age or over, the 3 per cent rule is waived for both. Medical expenses you pay for your mother or father, or your mother-in-law or father-in-law — provided either is 65 or older — also may be claimed without a 3 per cent reduction.

Better than one out of three families in the United States elects to itemize expenditures on their federal income tax returns, according to Williams. He said more than half of these include deductions for medical and dental expenses.

Williams said the tax laws generally provide that people who itemize returns may list amounts spent for the prevention, cure, diagnosis, correction or treatment of a physical or mental defect or illness. This includes transportation if it is primarily for and essential to medical care.

Many of the items purchased for the family medicine chest — excluding toilet articles and cosmetics — are properly deductible within the limits of federal and state income tax laws by those who itemize returns.

The Internal Revenue Service noted in its booklet — "Your Federal Income Tax," 1962 edition — that vitamins, iron supplements and other articles of that type "prescribed or recommended by your doctor" are medicines or drugs.

In your record keeping don't forget also that premiums paid on health insurance policies covering hospitalization, surgical and medical expenses are deductible items.

Williams said you should keep a tally of the bills paid by health insurance also since compensated expenditures are not deductible.

Villanova Cards Victory Over Duquesne Cagers

United Press International
If you can't join 'em, beat 'em!
Villanova, refusing to believe the state of Pennsylvania has room for two top teams, rebounded into tournament prominence Wednesday night with an 82-63 victory over Duquesne.

The Wildcats from Philadelphia lost a two-point decision to sixth-ranked Duquesne of Pittsburgh last week, which helped grease the skids for a fall from the first 10.

But Villanova, aware of a potential at-large bid from the NCAA or selection by the NIT for post-season play, vaulted right back with an aggressive zone defense and a hot-shooting 54.8 percent from the field.

The Villanova cause was helped by the ejection of two Duquesne ferals. Sophomore sensation Willie Somerset left the game with 7:02 remaining after he had scored 26 points. Earlier, at 3:23 of the second half, Mike Rice was sent to the sidelines on five fouls. Rice had been Duquesne's high scorer in the victory over Villanova at Pittsburgh.

Hobie White led Villanova's scoring with 25 points as the Wildcats raised their season's record to 16-4.

A college scoring record set by Wilt Chamberlain was equaled when Mike Wroblewski of fourth-ranked Kansas State netted 46 points in a 91-72 victory over Kansas. Chamberlain had set the Big Eight single game mark while playing for Kansas. Wroblewski also cracked his school's team record of 45 points that Bob Boozer had set in 1958.

Jesse Nash of DePaul hoped his first collegiate game was just the start of a long line of scoring records. His 19-point output against Louisville brought DePaul a 79-78 surprise victory, but what was most impressive was Nash's coolness in the clutch when he sank a pair of free throws in the last 14 seconds of the third overtime period.

Loyola of Chicago, which travels at a better than two-point-a-minute clip as the nation's major college scoring leader, defeated Western Michigan, 102-79. Jerry Harkness collected 32 points for the winners.

St. Joseph's (Pa.) had to rally in the final 10 minutes to down Georgetown, 81-70, while West Virginia continued its mastery over Pittsburgh by beating the Panthers for the 12th straight time, 80-76.

Tom Wynne's 26 points and Jimmy Lynam's 20 helped St. Joseph recover from a half-time deficit. Bob Sharpenor of Georgetown set a season's mark for a visiting player at Philadelphia's Palestra with 40 points.

Rod Thorn, recovering from an ankle injury, tallied 24 points for West Virginia. Pittsburgh closed to within 78-76 but couldn't come up with the equalizer.

Toledo stopped 10th ranked Bowling Green, 70-59.

In other major games, John Speaks contributed 30 points in North Carolina State's 88-68 rout of Virginia; Loyola of the South defeated William and Mary, 67-62, with Ed Kennedy leading the way on an 18-point spree; Richmond edged VMI, 82-81, in overtime; Xavier (Ohio) slipped past Dayton, 72-71; Air Force dropped New Mexico, 62-56; Army whipped Colgate, 70-63, and Navy topped Penn Military, 76-40.

Palmer, Littler Are Favorites At Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The favorites are Arnold Palmer and Gene Littler in the $35,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament starting today—but the big names better not look back or they may see National Amateur champion Jack Nicklaus closing in on them.

Nicklaus turned in his finest performance since turning pro when he fired a seven-under-par 64 to deadlock with seasoned Lionel Hebert Wednesday for top place in the pro-amateur tournament.

And he figures he finally has his putting touch working.

"I'm trying out a new putter," said Nicklaus after his round, "and it seems to be working out okay."

Ever since he learned to play golf, the 290-pound, 21-year-old Ohio State athlete has been using an old hickory-shafted affair. Tuesday he started practicing with a mallet-head. And Wednesday he gave it the test.

All he did was: Sink a 20-foot putt for an eagle on the first hole; tank one from 25 feet for a birdie on the second. Then he got six more birdie putts from distances up to 10 feet. He did, however, three putt one green.

"But I'm playing real well," he added. "I missed four-foot putts on both the eighth and ninth holes. I just hope this putter helps me."

After he turned pro, Nicklaus said he expected to make a minimum of $20,000 on the tour his first year—or he would call the initial outing a disappointing campaign. But in the first five tournaments he won only $1,250 and stands 49th on the list of 1962 money winners.

However, most of the pros contend that he'll be a big money winner after he gets over his youthful jitters. It may be that Phoenix is the place he can turn the trick.

Palmer had a 71 Wednesday and Littler a 74. However, they were just testing the course for size and weren't too interested in winning money.

Nicklaus and Hebert each collected $225 for their efforts.

Palmer is the defending champion of the tournament, but he won last year on a different course when the tourney was played on this Phoenix Country Club in 1960, it was won by Jack Fleck. Fleck had a solid 69 Wednesday.

Uelses Says He Can Make Steel Mark

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI)—John Uelses, the first man to pole vault 16-feet in competition, has answered his critics by saying he can hit 16 feet with either fiberglass or steel poles.

The 14-year-old Marine corporal, criticized because he used a fiberglass pole, said during a news conference at his base here Wednesday, he could clear 16 feet with a steel pole if given two months practice.

"After about two months' practice," Uelses said, "I can hit 16 feet just as I have with a fiberglass pole."

"Everytime someone sets a new record with a new recognized device," he continued, "members of the old school always bring up some sort of argument."

One of his chief critics was Don Bragg, who holds the indoor record Uelses topped. Bragg said Uelses' two 16 foot vaults were chiefly the results of his fiberglass pole.

Asked about Bragg's criticism, Uelses, a German by birth who came to live in Miami in 1949, admitted he got "three times as much snap" from the fiberglass pole.

With fiberglass, he said, "you don't have time to think what's happening — one, two, three and it's over."

Ginsberg Leading Dixie Golf Meet

MIAMI (UPI)—Roger Ginsberg of Alpine, N.J., held the hottest putter and a one-stroke lead today starting the third round of the annual Dixie Amateur Golf Championship.

Ginsberg birdied six holes, the last four consecutively, for a four-under-par 67 Wednesday and a 36-hole total of 139. The tournament over the Palmetto County Club course ends Friday.

Dudley Wyson of McKinney, Tex., shot 73-70 for a 143.

Final Results
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Rodolfo Diaz, 187, Argentina, stopped Tony Alongi, 198, Miami Beach (10).

Mobeetie In Wins, Losses

Mobeetie girls won both of their final games of the season last week while the boys were dropping their final pair of cage contests.

The girls won Tuesday night, 48-47 over Allison. Anna Mae Guggel had 24 and Mary Helen Guggel had 16 to lead the winners. Giddens had 21 and Childress 14 to lead the losers.

In Friday night's contest, with Wheeler, the girls won 72-54. Anna made 38 and Mary Helen managed 23 to lead the winners from the floor. Ruby Barton scored 29 to pace the Wheeler attack.

The Mobeetie boys lost their Tuesday night tussle to Allison, 74-45. Ray had 20 and Garland 19 to pace the losers. Begert had 20 and Richardson 16 to pace the winners.

In the Wheeler game Friday night, the boys dropped a decisive 92-69 decision. Garland poured in 28 and Ray 15 to lead the losing attack while Callan had 30 and Hunter 27 to cop scoring honors for the winner.

Mobeetie will take part in the District tournament this weekend.

All Cubs In Fold As Players Holding Out

By United Press International
Up and down the baseball beat, all the general managers tell you "everything is going along smoothly," but don't believe it because it's just a lot of pre-season propaganda.

The only major league general manager who can make that statement and mean it is John Holland of the Chicago Cubs. All of his players already are signed.

But now you take some of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Nothing ruffles Buzz. He takes things in stride and says he expects "no trouble" even though he's having quite a bit of it with nearly a dozen unsigned Dodger players.

Larry Sherry, Sandy Koufax, Stan Williams, Frank Howard, Wally Moon and Willie Davis are among those asking for more money.

No doubt all will sign eventually, but Koufax for one, insists he and the club are a long way apart.

The Boston Red Sox claim everything is going smoothly, too, but only 33 players under contract out of 38 indicates the signing procedure is proving rougher for them than they're really letting on.

The New York Yankees signed two of their players Wednesday, pitcher Bill Stafford and outfielder Bob Cerv, although nary a word was heard from their big problem, Roger Maris, plus 14 others, including Elston Howard. Cleveland is having its problems also trying to satisfy Gary Bell, Jim Perry, Chuck Essegian and Ken Aspromonte along with four others, and no progress was reported by the Detroit Tigers in their negotiations with Al Kaline Norm Cash and Rocky Colavito.

Orlando Cepeda looks as if he may be a tough nut for the San Francisco Giants to crack, and for all the money they're spending, the New York Mets have yet to satisfy 13 of the 35 players on their roster. They did, however, sign two Wednesday in first baseman Ed Bouchee and pitcher Sherman (Roadblock) Jones.

Possibly the most refreshing signee was uninhibited Dick Stuart, who accepted a substantial raise from the Pittsburgh Pirates because as he put it, "I deserved it." You can't argue with figures, Stuart, who will draw an estimated $35,000 this year, drove in 117 runs last season, hit 35 homers and batted .301.

Veteran catcher Sherm Lollar and rookie pitcher Mike Degerick agreed to terms with the Chicago White Sox, who still have 15 unsigned players, while southpaw Don Farrarrese, outfielder Ken Walters and second baseman Leo Burke signed their contracts with the Philadelphia Phillies. Still unsigned though are Art Mahaffey, Jim Owens, Dallas Green, John Callison and Tony Gonzalez.

Others who signed Wednesday were Ken Hunt, Eddie Kasko and Joe Gaines of the Cincinnati Reds; Lu Clinton, Wilbur Wood, Bob Tillman and Bill Spanwick of the Red Sox, and Phil Ortega, Jack Smith, Tim Lincecum, Ken McMullen, Dick Tracewski and Dick Smith of the Dodgers.

Loop Scoring Race Is Forever Changing Now

The district scoring race this year has really been a lulu, to say the least.

Whereas in some district there is always a clear cut leader throughout the year in loop scoring, the same thing doesn't hold true in the torrid 3-AAAA scoring battle.

This sportswriter remembers when Chester Dunavin of Amarillo was leading the loop-in-scoring not too long ago, with Wayne Kreis of Pampa a close second.

And then, as things progressed through the blistering campaign, a fellow by the name of Bruce Francis of Palo Duro took over the individual statistics with his booming point totals. Jackie Swanner of Plainview, meanwhile moved up to take Kries' spot as number two man in the business of manufacturing points in the district race.

And now, after all the facts and figures were rummaged through and the adding machines working overtime, it was found that Swanner is the new leader in the scoring department. Tuesday night, the Plainview sharpshooter fired in 31 points while Francis was horsecollared with a big zero total. It was even more interesting since Plainview battled Palo Duro and the two "giants" in the scoring race met face to face for the second time this year.

Randy Matson, who was tied with Dunavin for the number three spot, dropped down again to 10 points while the Amarillo cager was pouring in 22 points during a Sandie victory over Lubbock.

As a result, Mr. Dunavin has found himself back in the number two spot in the loop scoring with three games yet to play.

Speaking of Matson, the 6-6 post man needs only 27 more points in the Harvesters remaining three contests to tie his point total for loop play of last year when he fired in 212 points to lead the locals in scoring. So far, he has 185 points with a 17.3 average before Tuesday night's contest with Borger.

Randy may have a little bit of trouble in the scoring department against top dog Monterey Friday night, but should eclipse his old mark against Amarillo and Plainview in the final two games of the year for the Harvesters.

Who will cop the scoring title this year? No doubt someone who hasn't even been ranked up to now.

Richards Forsees Houston Contender

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Paul Richards, credited with building pennant contenders in the American League, believes it will take him "from three to five years' hard work and some luck" to turn the same trick with the Houston Colts of the National League.

Richards stopped in New Orleans Wednesday with several Colt players and the club's executive vice president, George Kirksey, to stir up interest in Houston's entry in the National League. The Colts open play this season.

Richards, with successful records at Chicago and Baltimore, said he intends to build a sound defensive team with the emphasis on pitching.

He also commented on problems facing professional baseball. He said he doubted pro football would replace baseball as the nation's national pastime.

"How well is pro football known in places like Hondo, Tex., Billings, Mont., and Honolulu?" he asked. "That's your answer."

Richards said he believed baseball did the right thing in curbing large bonuses paid to rookie players.

The New Orleans' stop was part of a 24-city junket planned by the Colt management to gain regional fan interest in the team.

Snead Cops Golf Tourney Victory

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Sam Snead had his revenge and $2,000 to boot today for his five-stroke victory over 14 top women professional golfers in the Royal Poinciana tournament.

Snead finished the two-day, 72-hole tournament over the Palm Beach par three course Wednesday with a pair of one-under-par 53s in the last two rounds and a 211 total.

Blonde Mickey Wright of Dallas finished second at 216, Marilyn Smith of Tequesta, Fla., third with 219, and Ruth Jessen of Seattle fourth at 221.

The 14 women split the $4,200 purse evenly, giving each of them $300. But Snead collected a $2,000 guarantee for his performance.

Mainly, though, Snead wanted to win to avenge his defeat in the same tournament last year by Louise Suggs of Atlanta. Snead admitted it had been a "long, long year" of ribbing by his fellow male pros between the defeat and his revenge.

Heading into the final 18 holes, Snead was two strokes behind Miss Jessen and a stroke in front of Miss Wright. Miss Jessen collapsed to an 11-over-par 65 in the round but Miss Wright moved into a tie with Snead on the 11th hole.

Slammin' Sam, however, wasted no time getting back his lead, banging a six iron to within six feet of the pin on the 168-yard 12th hole and dropping the putt for a birdie while Miss Wright took a bogey four.

He gained two more strokes when Miss Wright bogeyed the 16th while he canned a birdie putt, and won a fifth stroke advantage on the 18th with a par. Miss Wright three-putted for a bogey.

"I thought one of us could beat him," disappointedly said Barbara Romack of Sacramento.

"This shows how close women can play to men — on a short course," said Snead.

Travelers Find Many Good Buys At Free Ports

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most people go traveling to see the new, the unfamiliar or the strange in this country or abroad — but don't discount the number of free port bargain hunters among them. Many vacationers keep a watchful eye toward hitting duty-free, or at least bargain, ports when planning their itineraries. For example:

—A Briton living in Hong Kong recently remarked ruefully that "the trouble with most Americans is they land and head right for the shops on Nathan Road, and never see anything" in that fantastic Oriental city.

—A cruise director swears that two women on a Caribbean cruise argued bitterly over whether the ship had stopped at a certain port. The argument ended when one pointed out to the other: "Remember, that was the place where you bought the perfume."

—A husband and wife riding a Copenhagen sightseeing bus spent a good deal of the time discussing with companions the better places to buy furniture to have shipped back to the United States. No economy class, weight-watching plane travelers, these.

The traveler on a shopping binge, coupled with the outflow of American gold to redeem the dollars spent on buying abroad, prompted the legislation last year that cut the duty-free allowance Americans can bring home to $100.

Which only serves to focus attention more onto cut-rate shopping at free ports, or free port areas in cities, of which there are many more than people realize. In fact, foreign-bound Americans can do duty-free shopping for such things as tobacco and liquor at major gateway airports in this country — such as New York's Idlewild and Miami's International — with their purchases delivered on the plane after take-off.

And now there's duty free shopping at two places just across the border in Canada in two popular vacation areas, which means that travelers don't at least have to cross the water to do tax-free shopping. (Of course, the requirement still applies that you must be out of the country 48 hours to escape customs duty.)

A Canadian corporation (International Resort Facilities, Inc.), opened the duty-free centers at Niagara Falls, Ont., and at the Thousand Islands Bridge in Ontario. These operate somewhat differently than free ports, where the buyer usually takes his purchases along with him. At the Canadian centers, selections are made from displays and the items are mailed direct to his home from bonded warehouses.

The U.S. Virgin Islands, which have been a free port since 1775, are $100 up on everywhere else. The law reducing the duty-free allowance set the figure at $200 for someone coming home from the islands to help along the economy of this American territory.

One of the least heard about bargain spots is Panama. For example, a gallon of liquor that might cost $14 in New York is marked at about $8.50 in one of Panama City's duty-free stores. Additionally, at least one store invites the buyer to sit and sample for as long as he likes before making his choice, which is then delivered directly to the plane or ship.

Shannon Airport, Ireland, is probably the best-known of European free ports. It even goes after the business of the traveler who doesn't land there — by way of a colorful booklet listing bargains which Americans can order duty-free by mail from anywhere they are outside the U.S. on a trip.

Europe has many other free port and duty-free centers, for example, at Zurich Airport, where the piece of cigarettes (17.5 cents) seems right from a pre-1952 historic age, or at Copenhagen Airport, crammed with enough buys to make the homeward-bound traveler wish he had saved more money for a final fling.

From New York to Tokyo, and back around, more and more tax-free centers are opening — a decided aid to the traveling shopper wanting to get the most from the $100 allowance (which can be stretched some because for duty purposes, the wholesale price is applicable, not the retail price).

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployed workers got a record $3.970 billion in unemployment benefits from federal and state programs last year, according to the Labor Department.

Mass Pill-Taking Becomes Sort Of National Pastime

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The forward-and-upward-march of man has been rather loosely divided into "ages" that mark certain periods of development.

Among them are the Stone Age, the Bronze Age, the Iron Age, the Jazz Age, the Age of Reason, the Age of Consent, etc.

The two most recent epochs are the Atomic Age and the Space Age. But I doubt that either of those will be recognized 100 years from now.

When historians of the future write of the current era, my guess is that they will refer to it as the Pill Age.

This conjecture is based in part on the drug investigation being conducted by Sen. Estes Kefauver, Tuesday, for instance, the Tennessee Democrat accused someone of "selling drugs, like apples and bananas."

Although the allegation was denied, I am convinced that pills, at least, have been selling like hotcakes, if not like fruit.

Evidence of this can be found in my family's 1961 pharmaceutical expenditures, which I have just finished adding up as part of a plot to petition the government for an income tax rebate.

The number and variety of pills purchased by just this one small group for the treatment of only minor maladies was enough to make me sick.

During the 12-month span covered by Form 1040, we bought pills to make us sleepy and pills to keep us awake. (Take one of each at bedtime and let them fight it out.)

We bought pills to pep up when our energies were flagging. We bought pills to calm us down when worries began nagging.

We bought pills to make us eat more, and pills to curb our appetites. We bought pills to make us quit smoking, although they didn't work.

We bought pills to prevent car-sickness, seasickness and airsickness. We bought pills to combat hangovers, hangnails and halitosis.

Even so, we didn't begin to cover the field. We could have bought pills to make us virile and pills to make us sterile.

I might be more disturbed about this than I am if it weren't for the fact that a lot of other healthy people bought more pills than we did.

Mass pill-taking has become so commonplace that one couple I know make a little ritual of it. Just before they retire for the

Still No Evidence Of Flying Saucers From Outer Space

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force said today the only flying saucers it has discovered in outer space came from earthmen's launching pads.

The Air Force's "Project Blue-book" task force, assigned to unidentified flying objects, said in an annual summary that it started 488 investigations last year and completed 483 of them.

Of the 483 completed, the Air Force said 55 turned out to be artificial earth satellites, a new hazard for flying saucer watchers.

It brought the total of investigations since 1947 to 7,369, and the Air Force said it has yet to come up with any evidence that the saucers exist or that any were launched from outer space.

Of the 483 objects investigated last year, the Air Force had to leave 10 in its "unidentified" classification. Another 99 were put in the "insufficient data" category.

Welch Says Red Conspiracy Got Start Long Ago

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The groundwork of a Communist conspiracy aimed at taking over the United States was laid during the Democratic administration of President Woodrow Wilson, John Birch Society founder Robert Welch said here.

Two "fundamental plans, in Marxist strategy" were instituted during Wilson's presidency, Welch said. He cited the graduated income tax and the Federal Reserve bank system.

"The election and administration of Woodrow Wilson, he said, "enabled the Communists to carry out some tremendously basic plans for the communization of the United States."

He described the bank system as "socialism," but said he came not to attribute any motivation on Wilson's part for these moves.

Welch spoke before a capacity audience of 2,300 at a meeting of the Freedom Club of the First Congregational Church in the main sanctuary. His remarks were heard by several hundred others on a loudspeaker system piped to other rooms.

Welch called the World War I Wilsonian slogan, "Make the World Safe for Democracy," a "catch phrase." He said it was "a brilliant and colorful psychological weapon of the Communists from which we've suffered and are still suffering today."

Congress Asked To Save Eagles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department asked Congress yesterday to outlaw killing of the golden eagle in order to preserve the bald eagle.

The trouble is, according to department spokesmen, that hunters can seldom tell the difference between a bald eagle and a golden eagle until the bald eagle is four years old.

When it reaches that age, it develops the characteristic white head and tail feathers.

It is illegal to kill the bald eagle, the national emblem. But hunters, the department said, often shoot bald eagles thinking they are golden eagles.

Progress Finally Comes To Tiny Village In New Mexico

CANADA DE LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (UPI) — Villagers here for the first time had ice cubes in their drinks, listened to the world's events on radios, and read by the light of an electric lamp.

Progress finally came to the village of 16 families, about 15 miles southeast of Santa Fe, when lines were strung from power lines two miles away.

The Episcopal church, which owns about 13,000 acres of the hilly barren land, plans to make the area a retreat and conference center.

Thus, the village's history of darkness was ended by electricity. The Public Service Co. of New Mexico felt the area would be developed in the future, both by the church and an expanding Santa Fe. It extended its power lines to the village as the villagers were unable to afford the installation themselves.

The Rev. Henry Seaman, rector of the Church of the Holy Faith, thinks it will be some time before the area is developed, but his plan is gaining support.

The village soon may have an electric pump for their community well, and another new invention, the telephone.

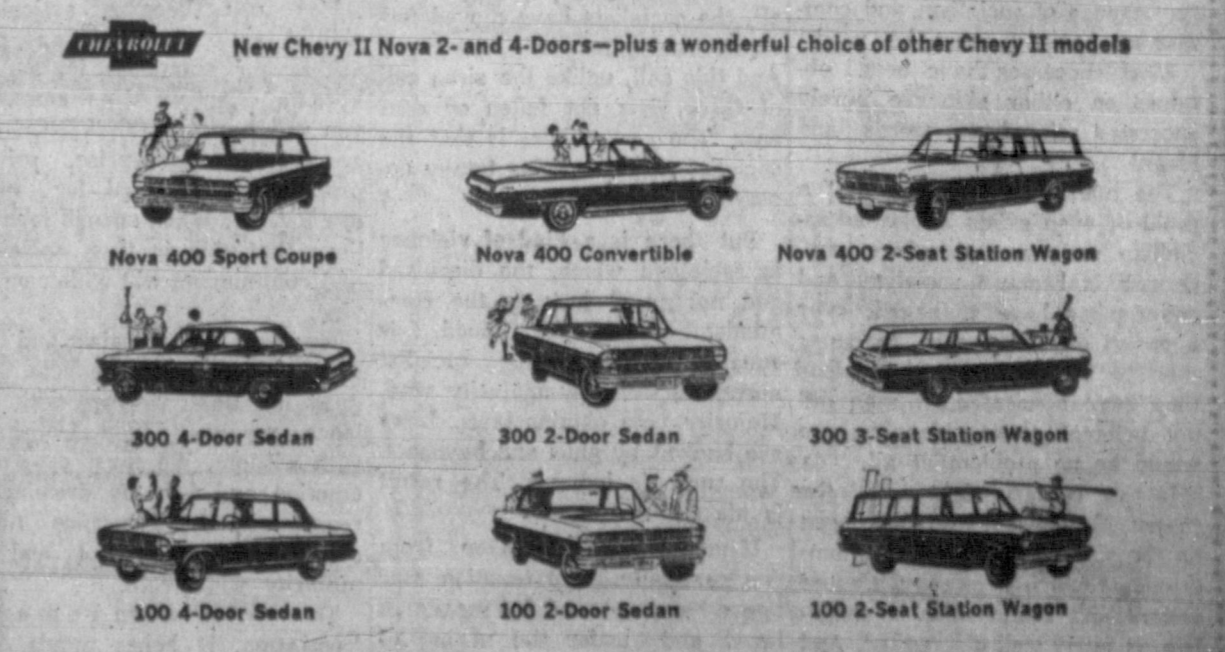

A joint agreement between the electric company and the Mountain States Telephone Co. was made for telephone lines to be strung on the power poles, as soon as someone here applies for telephone service.

Are You Frustrated

A couple of weeks ago we had the pleasure of talking to a lady who, we fear, became rather exasperated with us. The lady expressed herself pretty much as follows:

"I've been fighting communism for years. But you never tell us what to do. And we want to take action. Aside from telling us how to vote, what constructive suggestion do you have? All you do is talk words, words and more words."

"Something has to be done to reach the masses of people who favor socialism or communism. We're only talking to ourselves. You don't have to convince me that I should be opposed to communism or socialism. I am opposed. I've been opposed for 30 years. I've probably been opposed to these things longer than you have."

"Action is what is needed. But you don't suggest action. Tell us what to do."

"Since this line of thinking is, we believe, rather prevalent in a number of quarters, we think it may be helpful to examine this somewhat emotional conclusion."

First of all, it is apparent that the lady didn't know what to do. There would have been no reason for her to demand a course of action outlined by us, if she had one for herself. It was obvious that she was experiencing a deep frustration. So, we can conclude that in spite of years of effort at "opposing communism," she felt rather strongly that she was not being effective.

And when we couldn't produce a program of action which would remove her frustration, she apparently felt an even deeper frustration and perhaps an exasperation at us personally, as we have indicated.

The problem here is rather obvious. The lady was convinced that communism and socialism was something that affected OTHERS. And she wanted to make these others over into something she would be able to approve. No wonder she felt frustrated.

Nature has ordained that none of us CAN make anyone else over, however much we desire to do so. And, therefore, if fighting communism is to be predicated upon a remodeling job we are supposed to inflict on humanity, there's going to be one great mountain of frustration with which to cope.

As a matter of fact, this IS the communist format. It is the entire purpose of the communist concept that human beings must be remodeled. They must be taught to believe that possession of property is grossly immoral and that all properties should thus be owned and managed by the state.

Since this is contrary to human nature, and all people, including communists, really do want to own property, the entire communist and socialist program reverts to force. The idea is that if people want to own property privately, they will be prevented from owning property by force. This is where the government comes into the picture. Communism as a practical program is merely a bad dream until it is implemented by political force and violence.

So, here we see the real emergence of the communist program. It is to remold humanity into a property-less mass. And the theory runs, when people have managed to get along for a long enough time without owning anything privately, the day will ultimately come when they won't WANT to own anything privately. This is the red millennium. Nirvana will have been attained.

It will follow, of course, that persons wanting to oppose the communist objective (destruction of private ownership) will inevitably be tempted to make use of communist methodology (the use of the force of government to compel either conformity to conservative views or at least obedience to conservative objectives).

And herein is the root of the frustration which is experienced by both communists and conservatives when they seek to rely on force. Force, tho it has often been relied upon to obtain a particular end in view, is a poor tool.

Human beings will not forever permit themselves to be forced. This is the principal reason why communism is a hopeless failure. It cannot be made to occur naturally in harmony with human nature. But anti-communism, if it, too, is to rely on force, will have no greater success.

How To Take Action

The contest between socialist economic theory and free market experience and principles is only possible when it is realized that the battleground is one of IDEAS. The use of force in the hands of either group is conducive only to a greater use of force by the opposition.

This is why so much talking must be done. This is the real importance of WORDS. Words are the garments of ideas. To defeat the menace of socialism and communism, words must be used. What successes have been obtained on either side are purely successes related to words and ideas.

The reason for the fact that a problem even exists insofar as socialism or communism are concerned, is because socialists and communists have managed, over a period of many years, to cause men to BELIEVE in the ideas they have advocated. If men did not believe these ideas, there would be no problem at all.

In this country right now, the major ideological gain has been on the side of the socialists. Communism, which is merely a more violent and direct form of socialism, is fairly well discredited. And once again we see the fallacy of any attempt to use force to compel masses of people into any particular kind of action or belief.

The reason communism is so discredited is because most people recognize its inherent violence. And this they don't like. The anti-communists, who have been quite as vigorous on occasion in calling for ACTION (if not outright violence against communists) are not warmly received, either. Universally, people are distrustful of any program which is predicated upon forcing others, even for their own "good."

But as communists and anti-communists have squared off and called for direct and immediate action to force everyone into the mold they believe will be best for all, the socialists have moved forward, calling for their program. And this call, unlike the siren call of Circe, has not fallen on deaf ears. The reason here is that the socialist poses as being totally opposed to violence.

But there is a kind of violence in socialism which, tho disguised and not as obvious as the communist clamor for blood, is equally vicious. The socialist moves forward by majority vote. Majority vote obtains laws. Laws are backed by guns and bayonets. The route is indirect. The result is identical.

If your property is taken from you gradually, thru taxation (for "good" causes) and by means of laws, and under the urging of charity and kindness and relief and welfare, you may not be conscious of the end result until too late. But you have been robbed just as certainly as the members of the Communist Party had descended on you with drawn guns and forcefully ejected you from your holdings.

The result in either case is,

The Doctor Says:

TESTING OF BODY REACTIONS CAN AID YOUR DOCTOR

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Q—I am 25 years old and have three children. Since the birth of the youngest a year ago I have had pains in my chest and lower ribs very often. I've had X-rays and have seen my own doctor and several specialists and they all agree it's "just nerves."

This really has me down, especially since the last specialist I saw said he wouldn't do any more tests or see me again because he'd rather have me spend my money on my children than on any more investigations. I still have pain and I'm not really a nervous woman. Isn't there something I can do?

A—I should not, perhaps, presume an opinion about your distress but I am tempted to go out on a limb and suggest that you press the painful areas and see if you can discover a "trigger point."

Not too infrequently the spread of the lower ribs, especially in the eighth month of pregnancy, and the later readjustment that takes place after childbirth result in dislocations of the "floating ribs." Then, under certain circumstances such as bending over in an awkward position, the rib ends clash, producing acute pain. Often you can reproduce that pain by pressure.

If you can, injection of a local anesthetic solution may help solve your problem. Anyway, I hope it proves so. The diagnosis of "just nerves" is one that's justifiably resented by most patients.

Q—For three years I have suffered from sore gums and a burning tongue. I've had all sorts of tests, including blood counts and all sorts of diets and vitamin shots but I'm no better. Sometimes I think I'll go crazy for I get no relief between meals and each meal is agony. Have you ever heard of anything like this?

A—If, as you say, all your examinations are normal, including blood counts, and nothing has given relief, there may be the possibility that you are allergic to something that enters your mouth—dentifrice mouth wash, lipstick, denture, etc. If it hasn't previously been suggested, why don't you eliminate all these for a few days to a week and note the effects? If you are improved restore the different products one at a time. If a flareup occurs, you'll know what the culprit is and you can scratch it off your list.

A letter that might help some of you:

"Some time ago you wrote about iritis and the various conditions that may cause it. I thought you might like to tell your readers about my experience. After several attacks, my doctor suggested the attacks might result from something to which I was exposed in my work as a furrier. I changed jobs and haven't had an attack since."

YOU NO LONGER OWN PROPERTY.

How do you TAKE ACTION to prevent this result?

There is only one kind of action of which we are aware that is effective. This action is to be given with your own mind, which you can learn to discipline and control. You can begin to study and to understand the truth respecting both economic law and moral law. And having learned these things yourself, you can begin to explain to others just what these things are and how they work.

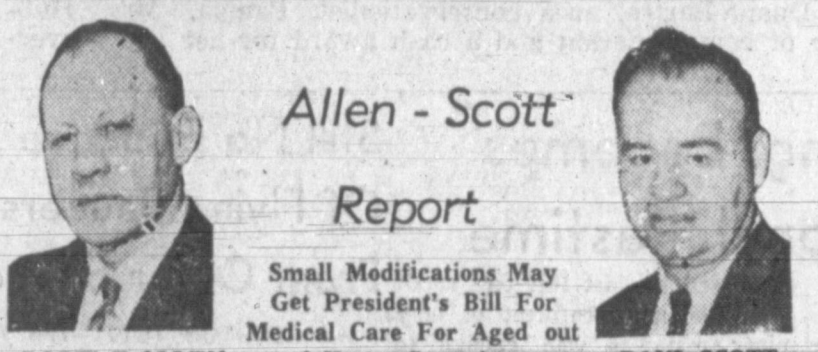

You can become articulate, skillful, rational. You can put aside your emotional fears and become effective. You can and you will begin to CONVINCe others that free enterprise, private property and reward for merit are RIGHT. When enough men believe that this is true, socialism and communism will wither on the vine.

We must get to cause and not simply deal with effects. We must not fight violence with violence, we must fight foolishness with wisdom. We must oppose emotion and fear by drawing on reason and the assurance that comes with experience and familiarity with truth.

This kind of action removes frustration. It hones minds and sharpens intellects. And best of all, it has and does convince.

And so, to our lady critic, we must say: KNOW, EXPLAIN and, most of all, NEVER SEEK TO FORCE ANYONE THRU ANY KIND OF PROCEDURE. Action of the mind is what is needed, not action at the polls, or behind the barricades.

Small Modifications May Get President's Bill For Medical Care For Aged out of House Committee

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy has better than a fighting chance to get a modified version of his medical care plan for the aged out of the House Ways and Means Committee.

A carefully screened survey made under the personal direction of White House aides shows that the long-stalled proposal can be pried out of the death-like clutches of that committee if the President is willing to make some compromises.

These aides, headed by Larry O'Brien, the White House's chief legislative legman, reported to the President that his medical care plan in its present form now has the support of 11 committee members.

This is two more backers than the nine that supported the legislation in last year's showdown test.

However, 13 votes are needed to turn the magic trick. President Kennedy is being told that these two additional votes can be obtained if he will agree to a small number of changes, none of which will radically change his plan to put the program under the social security system.

For instance, one of the most important of these proposed changes involves the financing of the program and its bookkeeping procedures.

The suggested change calls for the establishment of a special account in the social security trust fund from which the medical care benefits would be paid out.

This fund would be financed by a tax of one-half of one percent on the first $5,200 of an individual's earnings — one-quarter percent paid by the employer and one-quarter by the employee, or the full one-half percent, by a self-employed person.

Under the President's present proposal, medical care benefits would be paid out of the regular social security trust fund from which retired persons now receive their pension payments.

These new medical benefits would be financed by the same increase in the social security tax provided under the compromise plan. However, in addition to these funds the medical care benefits under the Administration's plan would be financed from the net gain to the social security system from raising the tax base to $5,200.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE — Another proposed change would permit persons under social security

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Sooner or later, and at the pace of development it would seem to be a matter of sooner, the economy and the labor rolls of the United States must come to a head — on collision with an inevitability of the future called automation. No important responsible public official has spoken out plainly in meeting about it and no major labor leader has done more than skim the surface of the problem. But it is here, more of it is coming and in the end, or before, it will drastically and frankly have to be faced.

The most forthright study of the problem has been made by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. The study was conducted by Donald N. Michael, formerly of the Brookings Institution. Mr. Michael's report is to the point — he foresees a vast job loss, and a dislocation of the economy. The very title he has used in his report betrays its gravity — "Cybernation: The Silent Conquest."

Cybernetics, the word generally used by those who have development of automation as their profession, pertains to the processes of communication and control in men and machines. It is a new profession generally speaking. But one has only to look into factory after factory, into transportation, into business office mechanization to see how swiftly the use of the machine is engulfing jobs. It was a development foretold as early as 1905, received its major acceleration during World War II in the quick manufacture of ships and planes, and has burgeoned like a gasoline-fueled bonfire since that time.

Mr. Michael foresees entire job categories erased — in factories, farms, banks and even middle-level executive jobs in business. This is a flat, cold statement from which one flinches since no government anywhere has even begun to cope with the implications of it, nor has any government anywhere even started to think in terms of what to do with people idled by machine-controlled industry and clerical services.

Only recently, the City of New York automated a subway train running the short tunnel between Grand Central station and Times Square. Forthwith, the Transport Workers Union insisted upon one motorman riding each such trip. As things have turned out since the first automated train began to move, the TWU was right. At least twice in the first few days the theoretically uncrewed train developed collywobbs and the live motorman had to take over and bring things back to normal.

For several years it has been possible to punch out on a tape the direction and management of an airplane on a given flight and successfully bring that plane to its planned destination. The tape, with holes in it much like the holes in the music rolls of an old-fashioned player piano, does the pilot's job almost all the way.

Mr. Michael sees severe displacement in the so-called blue collar workers — from docks, factories, mines and so on. He details automation growths in the telephone, elevator, dry-cleaning and home maintenance operations. No one can deny that extensions of the automatic dial system will turn over to machines the work done by, traditionally, women in the telephone service. Automatic elevators are growing like mushrooms in cities — in apartments, small office buildings and the like where human supervision is not imperative. He foresees similar take-over of jobs in the ranks of bank tellers, statisticians, salesmen and retail clerks.

Two of these categories — tellers and retail clerks — seem to this commentator to be far out of reasonable line, since the personal, human participation is almost essential. You scarcely can buy a coat or a necktie from a machine and count the transaction happy. But, as we all know, we ARE buying a myriad of things from automatic coin machines, which, once dispensed only hard, brittle, state chewing gum sticks or stale, tasteless, salted peanuts. Now whole meals, hot and tasty, come from machines, as do underwear, hosiery and similar staples all the way up to men's shirts. I don't think the day is near, however, when you can stuff three thousand dollars into a slot, push a button and achieve a milk coat.

One facet explored by Mr. Michael is fairly new — professional people in the automated age will be overworked. No machine can ever be a good doctor, no machine can do more than be a calculating aid to a scientist from whom original thought must come.

'Marty' Took Pride In Humane Work On Earth

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Self and wife are neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McDermott, the Third. His grandfather was in the coal business and the old gentleman, may he rest in peace, got elected alderman way back when they had horses on the fire engines. Old Marty had a God-given knack for always getting the contract to sell the city coal for the fire engines, and the fire barns and the city hall and the schools and the police stations. We had 10 police stations even then. And coal is always subject to wear and tear by shrinkage, especially in the winter where the carts go through under-privileged neighborhoods. About 100 pounds a ton on the average, because old Marty McDermott had a gruff exterior but a heart of gold, especially for minorities.

Marty always gave Christmas baskets to the needy, with a turkey-neck hanging out of the basket with the head on with the eyes shut in eternal rest. Celery sticking out, too. People used to say in a joking way when the needy lifted the cloth off of one of those baskets they would find a pound of chuck steak at the other end of the turkey-neck. But I do not care for such coarse humor. It seems like blasphemy. Nil nisi mortuorum, as the fellow says.

The papers would print the old gentleman's picture and some times needy children would get a sweater or some overhoes and a shawl for their aged grandmother. The same at Thanksgiving. Then the whole family would vote for Mr. McDermott for alderman, again and again.

In those days the coal business also sold hay, grain and feed, naturally the fire horses chewed up a lot of hay, grain and feed. Mr. McDermott also sold a ton of salt to the city by the rock for icy sidewalks in winter. It broke his heart for elderly old ladies to break their hip on the ice.

Marty was very progressive. When they started automobiles for fire engines he got the gasoline contract and fuel oil for the public buildings. You can see McDermott trucks all over town today. That is my neighbor, Marty the Third. But before automobiles, the city was growing like a house afire and the streets were getting to be a "mess." They had mostly Irish with white wings then. They were poor but honest people but pretty soon there came into our town a lot of poor but honest Eyetalians but they could not speak English. Just foreign jabber, like tomato-banano - spaghetti.

And there was an Eyetalian agent for the steamboat company, named Mike Carozzo, and he would collect instalments out of their pay for their steamboat tickets and he rented an old ice-house down by the Monon and boarded and roomed them, like army barracks.

Well, after a while, Marty McDermott went to Mike. He said, "Hey, Padrone, I do not like to believe false witness against anybody, even foreigners but rumor hath it that you are cutting five inches out of every foot of the meagre wages of these God-fearing whitewings for your personal gain, and I just want to say thank the Good Lord for honest Clem Healy, the State's Attorney, he is God's own shalalah-to-eh-doers."

So they formed a union to protect the workers from unscrupulous exploitation, with Mike for union president. And Marty Mc-

Derrott incorporated the Mar-moitt Sanitary Facilities Corp., and his friend, Alderman Otte Schultz from the 5th Ward, put a bill in the council for an exclusive contract for Marty for the street cleaning. After that, every two years, Mike would threaten to strike and Marty would tell the Council the poor Eyetalians deserved a raise, their condition was pitiful with the cost of living so high. Then the Council would boost Marty's contract for preventing unsightly street conditions. The grateful toilers would unanimously vote Mike a $10,000 raise in salary. They even bought him a winter home on Miami Beach, they were so grateful.

So that is how Mike got elected to be president of the ALF-OCI. And his daughter, Elena, married Emmett Walsh, and the old gentleman's heart almost exploded with pride when Emmett Walsh got elected president of the United States. So Emmett appointed old Mike to be Secretary of Labor.

And he named the Presidential fall-out Palace the El Palacio del Martin McDermott, 5,000 rooms, complete with room - service around the clock, bath, teevy in every suite.

Good old Marty has passed on, may he rest in peace but I know he takes great pride in his humane works for the needy here on earth.

And still you hear some lousy, stinking, middle-of-the-road extremists (not all but a few) knocking Democracy. It makes my blood boil.

Today is Thursday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of the year with 326 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history: In 1587, Mary, Queen of Scots, was beheaded after being charged with plotting the murder of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II.

In 1946, every 10th person was shot in two villages near Warsaw, Poland, in reprisal for the deaths of two German soldiers.

In 1949, an Air Force jet bomber flew across the U.S. in three hours, 46 minutes, then the fastest transcontinental flight in history.

In 1955, in a surprise move, Soviet Premier Malenkov resigned as chief of state.

A thought for the day: Greek story teller Aesop said: "It is easy to despise what you cannot get."

World's first mechanically frozen ice skating rink was the Glaciarium in London, built in 1878. It was a studio-type room, with an ice surface of 40 by 24 feet, frozen by means of a mixture of glycerine and water running through copper pipes and chilled by ether.

Scientists Go All Out To Keep Things Clean

ZIONSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Caretakers of a structure here housing laboratories which produce biologicals and vaccines claim they maintain the "cleanest building in the world."

The building — the Tissue Culture Center of the Pitman-Moore Co. — covers about 11,000 square feet. Atypical six-room house, by comparison, has about 1,500 feet.

Scientists, working with experts of the U.S. Army and the Public Health Service, took three years to design the cleaning system. The main objective was to keep even the most minute viruses from going astray where it could contaminate vaccines and other products that are injected into humans to combat diseases.

Under the building's cleaning system, every single light bulb which goes dead is decontaminated before it leaves the building and the new bulb is made totally aseptic before it is put into use.

Every employe who works in vaccine production areas must first change from street clothing, take a soap shower, then dress in specially designed sterile suits with hoods resembling spacemen's outfits.

A plastic seal system built into double-block walls keeps tiny viruses from entering or leaving the building.

Air flowing through the building is passed through an 85 per cent absolute filter, an ultraviolet light bank, and a 99.97 absolute filter. Air is exhausted through special chambers on the building's roof and dispersed into upper air currents at high velocities.

Equipment brought into the production area is sprayed with a disinfectant periodically, and the wheels of special hand trucks used for transferring materials are bathed in ultraviolet light as well as the sterile floor.

EX-QUEEN'S PLEA — Framing an appeal to her former husband to see her daughter, ex-Queen Dina of Jordan is shown in her home in a Cairo suburb. Before her is a portrait of Princess Alia, now six years old. The former queen is protesting that since King Hussein divorced her in 1957 she has not been allowed to see Alia. She asks "every normal woman's right of free access to her child."

Cox Says Kennedy, Johnson Worried About Texas GOP

FORT WORTH (UPI)— Jack Cox of Breckenridge, Republican gubernatorial candidate, says that President Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson are badly worried about GOP strength in Texas.

Cox said the November general election results in Texas will have a "tremendous political impact" nationally, and that "Texas can change the course of American political history."

Cox, who has two opponents in the May 5 Republican primary, got 616,000 votes in 1950 when, as a Democrat, he ran against Gov. Price Daniel. The 41-year-old oilman said he became a Republican to help "restore constitutional government" and to fight a liberal philosophy which is "destroying individual freedom."

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

NO WILL? WHO INHERITS PROPERTY?

What will happen if you should die without executing a legal and proper will? Who will inherit your property? Your husband, wife, mother, father, children, your wife's relatives? The best way you can say who will have it is to provide a will which will protect your rightful beneficiaries and dispose of your property in accordance with your wishes.

When a deceased has no will, or dies "intestate" as the law calls it, the property of that person is distributed according to a detailed formula fixed by law. In some cases this may be the way you yourself would divide it—but in many cases it is not.

The provisions of the law concerning the distribution of the property of a person who dies without a will are rather complicated, and all of the possibilities cannot be covered by a general statement.

There are different rules for real estate and for personal property, for community property and for separate property, for homesteaded property, and for all of the many possible combinations of surviving relatives. Each situation must be carefully studied to determine the correct distribution of the property.

For example, here is a general idea of how the community property which you and your spouse have accumulated will be divided if you do not make a will prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and there are no children, the surviving spouse receives all of the property.

If, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of deceased children, they will divide one-half of the property, while the surviving spouse will receive the other one-half.

Of course, grandchildren do not share in the estate unless their parent who would inherit is deceased. And when descendants of previously deceased children do inherit, they receive only the portion that the child would have received, regardless of the number of such descendants.

An odd note, perhaps, is that the surviving spouse already owns one-half of the community estate prior to your death, and the law adds nothing to this share where there are children surviving.

When there are only children and their descendants surviving, they divide the entire community estate between them.

Research with bats indicates that a hibernating man might live 20 normal lifetimes, or 1,400 years.
