HOUSTON (AP) - Sixteen years ago, Nina Mizzetis hand-stitched a wedding gown fit for a fairy-tale princess.

And when the dress was presented to then-Lady Diana Spencer before her marriage to the Prince of Wales, the 19-year-old's face lit up the room, Mrs. Mizzetis recalls.

"It was really exciting," said Mrs. Mizzetis. "She, her face was really happy. Very happy."

The 79-year-old seamstress, who now lives with her son in Houston, says she spent three months in 1981 sewing the silk ivory tafetta that became one of the most famous wedding dresses in history.

Mrs. Mizzetis, pronounced miss-EH-sis, says the creamy ivory was chosen as the color of the wedding dress because it went well with Diana's complexion.

The train was so long — 25 feet — the fittings had to be held in Buckingham Palace because the dress shop was too small, she recalls.

Mrs. Mizzetis says she cannot believe the princess she helped dress is dead.

"Oh my God, I couldn't sleep," Mrs. Mizzetis said, recalling how she watched television reports of the princess' death early Sunday in a car crash in Paris. "I still can't sleep. It's been a big shock for me."

Reduced tax rate included in new budget

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

The Gray County Commissioners Court adopted the 1998 county budget Tuesday, lowering the tax rate from 43.92 to 43.79 cents per every $100 dollars in property evaluation for the coming year.

Commissioner Jim Greene made a motion to pass the new tax rate after commissioners made amendments to — and adopted — next year's budget.

While only a small reduction, Gray County residents will see a decrease in the overall money they will be spending for county taxes in 1998.

For example, county taxes paid on a $70,000 home with no exemptions will decrease from $307.44 a year to $306.53 per year under the new 43.79-cent rate. A small savings of .91 cents.

In the effort to "maintain what we have and build up our reserve," County Judge Richard Peet said the commissioners were able to decrease the tax rate slightly after the proposed appraisal value went up $43 million this year.

The appraisal district submits a figure to the county annually which then becomes part of the county's projected revenue.

In the last two years, the appraisal district revenue went down compared to previous years.

However, although the figure increased this year substantially, the county commissioners also had to consider other matters.

The total expected revenue in the 1998 budget is approximately $6.5 million, but total county

PEDC incentives will allow local firm to expand

One local business, Billy Scribner Welding Inc., will expand its services thanks to an incentive package offered by the Pampa Economic Development Corporation, which is pending approval by city commissioners.

The expansion of Scribner Welding will cost approximately $300,000. It will include the purchase of the Enron building, located on Highway 60 and Price Road.

"In the present facility we're in, we're just bumping elbows," said Scribner at the PEDC special meeting last night. "We don't have any room to park our equipment."

Scribner told board members the cost of repairs and purchase of the Enron building was approximately half the cost of constructing a new facility. Other locations, he also said, had a price tag of over $450,000.

Members of the economic district's board of directors approved the incentive package — with the exception of Jerry Foote, who abstained from the vote, and Wayne Stribling, who wasn't present — during a special meeting yesterday afternoon. In the package, Pampa's economic district has agreed to pay all interest on a $200,000, five-year loan from National Bank of Commerce. The first year's total will be $16,685, and the estimated total interest for all five years is $77,000.

In addition, the economic corporation has agreed to invest $25,000 into a Panhandle Regional and Planning Commission revolving loan fund, which would allow Scribner to borrow up to $100,000.

The PRPC received a grant for the revolving loan fund 18 months ago, said Doug Nelson, who oversees the PRPC project. It has been

Pipeline spill gets clean up

By LAURA HALEY

Final inspection last week of a 225-barrel oil spill on the Red River determined the site was clear, said Kim Peterson with the Texas Railroad Commission.

The spill, located on the Saunders lease about half a mile east of Lefors, was reported July 25 by an airplane flying over the area. Initially, it was thought only 100 barrels had leaked from a 4-inch steel Phillips Petroleum pipe line, said Peterson. However, upon closer inspection it was determined the final amount of oil lost was 225 barrels, he said.

After the initial report, Phillips was contacted and the corroded line was clamped, said Peterson. A contractor, hired to remove the oil, spent two days trying to clean up as much oil as possible, he said.

One local resident, Vicki Hathaway, was upset when she spotted the oil spill.

Bill and Lynn Reeves (left) join Lyda and Les Darsey in a meadow along McClellan Creek as the two couples get ready for the National Chuckwagon Cookoff in Lubbock this weekend. The team has been competing in chuckwagon cookoffs with Darsey's wagon since 1994. Last year, they were second at the National Cowboy Symposium cookoff in Lubbock and won first at the cowboy symposium in Ruidoso. It takes about a week to prepare for a chuckwagon cookoff, Les Darsey said. "I spend half a day in the grocery store," Lyda said.

Cookin' up a storm Alanreed chuckwagon readied for competition

An Alanreed chuckwagon will be among the record setting 32 entries scheduled to compete in the National Cowboy Symposium championship chuckwagon cookoff in Lubbock this weekend.

Les Darsey of Alanreed was polishing up his cooking skills today as he loaded his historic chuckwagon for the trip to Lubbock.

Darsey is one of 32 chuckwagons entered in the National Championship Chuckwagon Cookoff Saturday in Lubbock.

"In so far as we know," said Alvin G. Davis, chairman of the annual symposium, "the 32 entries in our event this year set a new national record for the number of entries in a chuckwagon cookoff."

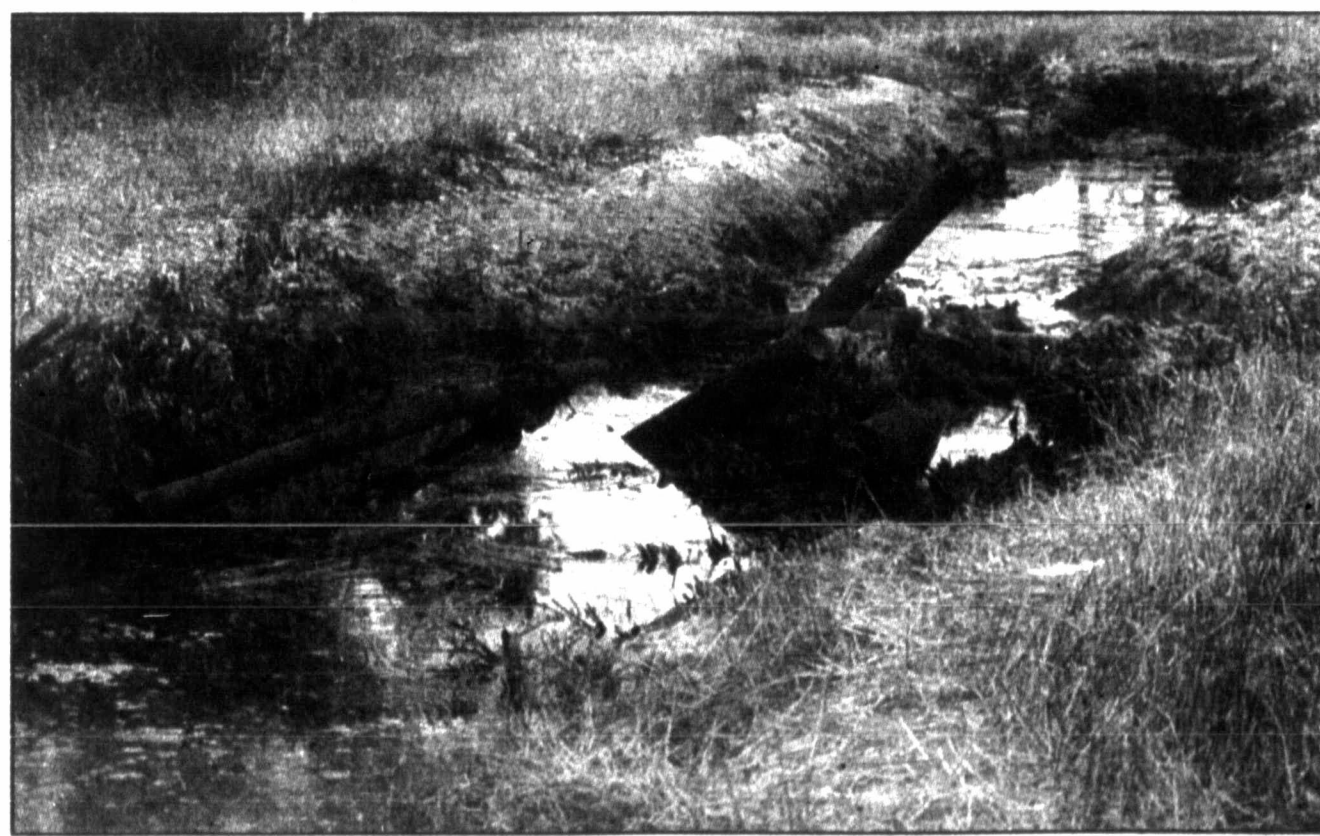

Other chuckwagons are from across Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The chuckwagons will compete in either the ranch or trail division of the cookoff. Darsey will be competing in the trail division.

A limited number of tickets are available for chuckwagon dinners for the cookoff at noon Saturday. There will also be a chuckwagon breakfast served Sunday morning.

Other activities at the National Cowboy Symposium include a trailride Thursday; a parade of horses on Thursday; cowboy music, poetry and stories all day Friday and Saturday; a square dance Thursday night; cowboy dances Friday and Saturday night; a horse training demonstration by Craig Cameron; western wear style shows, and a performance by the 4th Cavalry Memorial Regiment Quadrille and West Texas Native American Association Dancers on Saturday.

Davis said six stages, five inside and one outside, will provide concurrent performance sessions throughout Friday and Saturday.

BUDGET

expenses increased approximately $400,000 this year compared to the 1997 budget.

According to department proposals, Sheriff's Department expenses alone increased $200,000.

This doesn't mean that the Sheriff's Department is doing a bad job, Peet said, but the expenses have to be considered. An increase in the prisoner population means more personnel, more food, and more medical expense. For example, the cost of food for the jail inmates was $29,000 last year, he said.

In addition to balancing projected county expenses and revenue, while considering departmental monetary proposals, commissioners must also plan for the future.

The amount of money in reserve has increased substantially in the last few years, according to Peet.

While there was approximately $647,000 in reserve last year, the amount has increased in this year's budget to approximately $759,000. This has been the trend over the last three years, and the commissioners are making it a priority to continue building up the county's reserve, while saving tax payers money.

What if there's a tornado, or some disaster, Peet said. They say you should have three to six months operational cost saved up, and we spend about $500,000 a month, he said.

The county budget is expected to be completely revised and finished by Wednesday afternoon. Peet said he will place a copy in the library. "This is public information," he said.

was remaining in the river and explained that earthen dams were built in the river to help trap the oil. Pipes were placed underneath the dams to keep the freshwater flowing downstream. Oil, he explained, floats on top of the water.

Once a week, cleaning crews would visit the site to vacuum oil collecting on the top of the river in the dammed areas, said Peterson. All oil removed from the site was pumped to Palmer Station, five miles west of Lefors. A total of 200 barrels of oil has been removed from that portion of the river, he said.

"I think Oklahoma got the remaining 25 barrels," said Peterson.

With recent rains and bacteria, which break down and consume the oil, the remaining 25 barrels have been dispersed and poses no threat, he said. Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission and Texas Parks and Wildlife were also on-site to observe the clean-up.

PEDC

operating for less than a year, and the application by Scribner Welding is the first loan in the program, if approved, said Nelson.

"We're very excited about this," he said.

The revolving loan fund has $500,000 available for use in economic development. The $25,000 invested by Pampa's economic district is not returned upon full payment of the loan but continues to stay in the revolving loan fund for use with future projects, said Nelson.

For example, with Scribner Welding, $100,000, which is 1/3 of the expansion cost (the maximum amount allowed by the revolving loan fund), will be loaned jointly through the PRPC and economic corporation. The PEDC's matching $25,000 (1/4 of funds from the revolving loan must be matched by an economic district), and $75,000 expended by the PRPC brings the total loan amount to $100,000. That loan, over time, is paid back with interest, further raising the amount of funds available in the revolving loan program.

Because of the initial $25,000 matching funds, the PEDC can request future loans up to $100,000 without any further contributions. Any future requests without additional contributions, however, cannot be made until the first loan has been repaid.

If the economic corporation would like to increase a loan amount request to the PRPC to $200,000 in the future, only a $25,000 contribution would be required to obtain the 1/4 matching funds provision.

"The reason we're doing this is to provide economic development for the outlying areas with low-interest loans," said Nelson.

In addition, the project also saves economic district revenues, as the one-time investment guarantees the PEDC at least $100,000 available for future projects. Of course, each application must be approved by the PRPC.

But, it is these type of resources that Executive Director Lew Mollenkamp is hoping to use more often for local economic development.

"It's really the kind of deal the organization needs to do more of. It takes advantage and maximizes the local resources out there," he said. "It gives us an opportunity to invest our money where there's a return and that's with local companies."

The expansion of Scribner Welding will help retain about 50 jobs in the Pampa area and could create as many as 20 to 50 more in the long-term, said Mollenkamp.

Investigators are waiting for the sole survivor of the crash, Trevor-Rees Jones, to recover enough to tell his story. He may have to write down what happened — hospital sources told Le Figaro that his jaw was damaged in the crash and that his lips and tongue were torn away. Jones remains hospitalized in Paris in critical condition.

In London, meanwhile, officials said the capital's huge squares and regal boulevards may not be big enough to hold the throngs of mourners expected at Diana's funeral Saturday. The lines of grieving admirers continued to swell today, three days after Diana died in the automobile crash in Paris.

To keep swimmers from swamping the capital, Buckingham Palace said today that giant TV screens will be set up in Hyde Park. The palace also announced that the coffin would follow a 77-mile route back to Diana's family home in northwest England to let as many people as possible pause and pay their respects.

Princess Diana's friends want Elton John to be invited to sing at her funeral. Buckingham Palace officials were to say later today if he'll be asked; the Times of London reported that some in Buckingham Palace fear it would not set the proper dignified tone.

The Daily Telegraph quoted Diana opera star Luciano Pavarotti as saying he was invited to sing but is too upset and turned down the invitation.

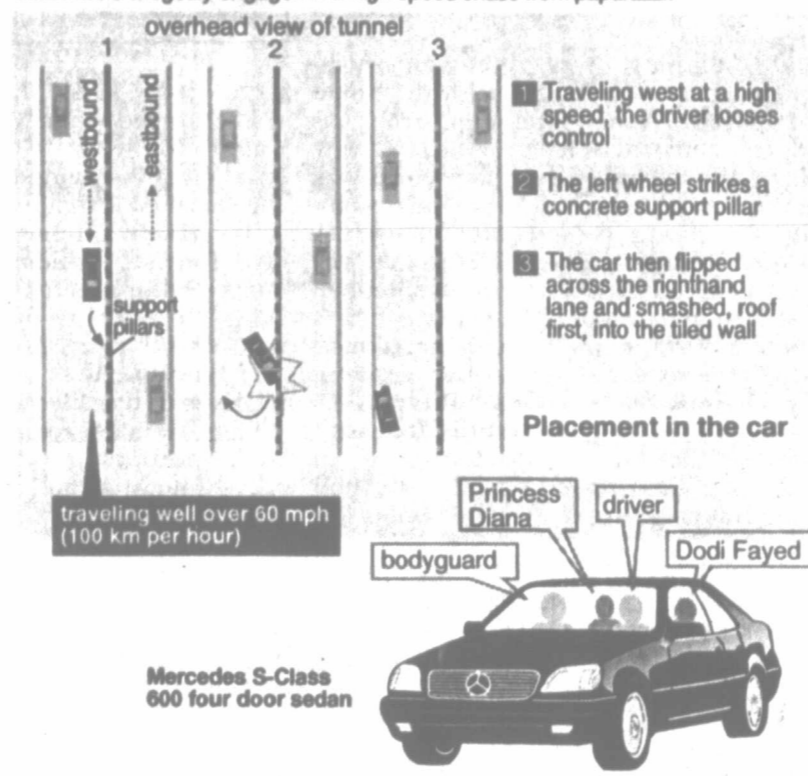

Paris lead police reports from the crash site to the claim that some among the six photographers and one motocyclist may have not only failed to assist the victims, but impeded those trying to do so. The seven could be charged with involuntary homicide, among other crimes.

"They pushed back and blocked the officer from coming to the aid of the victims," the police report said, according to Le Figaro.

Investigators are examining the photographers' mobile telephones, which electronically record the most recent numbers

Paris on vacation and had been returning to his hotel when his taxi happened upon the scene about five minutes after the crash said the photographers swarmed the wreckage "as if they were mosquitoes ... taking photos from every conceivable angle."

"There was no movement of one human being trying to help another human being in a tragedy," said Jack Firestone, 42, who talked to reporters after arriving home Tuesday from Kennedy Airport with his wife, Robin, and their 12-year-old son, Brandon.

One of the photographers, Jacques Langevin of the Sygma agency, told French radio today that he tried to do his job as quickly and unobtrusively as possible and stayed out of the way.

"I took some pictures with a telephoto lens from 10 or 15 meters (yards) away. I did my work normally — I didn't throw myself on the car," he said.

PARIS (AP) — New details on the photographs' alleged role in the crash that killed Princess Diana emerged today, with a police report saying paparazzi pushed back the first officer on the scene as he tried to reach the victims.

Until more police arrived to help him, all the officer was able to glimpse of Diana was "a blonde head," the daily Le Figaro reported, quoting from the first reports scribbled by investigators 20 minutes after the crash. It did not name the photographers involved in the scuffle.

who covered the Tiananmen Square standoff in Beijing and other stories, told the daily Liberator that he was disgusted by what other photographers were doing at the scene and left after taking just five or six pictures.

While the driver of the car that was carrying Diana and her boyfriend has already been accused of speeding and being legally drunk at the time of the crash, there are indications that he was even more intoxicated than previously thought. According to a second toxicology test, Henri Paul's blood-alcohol level was almost four times the legal limit, judicial officials said on customary condition of anonymity.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:
The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on good Samaritan child:
When eight-year-old Jawanza Jones found a wallet in the restroom of a Gainesville, Fla. supermarket, he did not even open it. He took it to his mother, Betty Mann, and she turned it in to the store manager.

Ms. Mann and her three sons are living in a homeless shelter in Gainesville. But they proved that dire financial straits do not mean a lack of character and dignity.

The wallet, which had $60 and credit cards, among other things, belonged to Jeruener Froberg, who had not even realized that it was missing when the manager called her.

She gave Jawanza $15 for a reward, and he said he hoped to buy a bicycle with it. A good used bicycle would have been difficult to find for $15, but it never came to that. A citizen who was impressed by the boy's honesty brought a new bicycle to the homeless shelter for Jawanza.

Other people sent clothes, school supplies and other things. Ms. Mann was offered reduced rent on an apartment until she can get back on her feet.

Ms. Mann is rightfully proud of her son's honesty, but we think some of the credit should go her way.

First, she had taught her children to return property that was not theirs to the rightful owners. Second, she followed up on those words with the proper deed. In so doing, she taught honesty to her children. That will be far more valuable to them than any reward they would receive.

We are pleased that the public is recognizing her efforts to raise her children right. However, it is interesting to note that the fuss - including ours - is being made over people who only did the right thing. But it is something that all too few people in their position would have done.

Don't lumps us all together

We all did it. None of us did it. If we're all to blame, then who's to blame? More importantly, how can it be corrected? Or can it be?

Princess Diana and her boyfriend Dodi Fayed were killed last weekend in Paris when their Mercedes careened out of control and crashed into the wall of a tunnel. Press reports say they were being chased by paparazzi, photographers who make a living taking pictures of celebrities.

By Sunday morning, press critics were brushing photographers everywhere with the broad brush of murder. A news photographer was attacked by construction workers in New Zealand. By the evening news, the world was blaming the media as a whole. The press establishment was trying to separate themselves from the sleazy supermarket tabloids that pay top dollar to paparazzi. On CNN, even Stephen Coz of the National Enquirer was saying there's a new breed of paparazzi, which he termed stalkerazzi, that would go to any lengths, including chasing celebrities like Princess Di down Paris streets, to get a picture. It wasn't until Monday that we learned the driver of Princess Di's car was drunk. Officials estimated the car was traveling in excess of 100 miles per hour.

Coz was quick to point out that the Enquirer had quit buying such pictures. Sure. Janice Min of People was outraged that Coz accused her magazine of getting into bidding wars with the tabloids for such photographs. Bernard Kalb was outraged when Min refused to say that her publication would NOT run pictures reportedly taken of the dying Di, lying blood-covered in the smashed sedan.

Everybody is pointing a finger at everybody else. I'm not to blame. He is. If one husband beats or murders his wife, do we out law marriage? To my way of thinking, it's the people who spend their money on publications that carry such pictures. Are our lives so boring that we have to live them through celebrities?

Pictures taken earlier this summer of Di and Dodi vacationing in the Mediterranean reportedly brought a million dollars. Di is supposed to have had an arrangement with the British tabloids concerning those pictures and was reported to have visited with photographers just prior to having them taken. Apparently, she didn't have an arrangement with the photographers who chased her Saturday night.

Press organizations are already worrying about new laws being passed to limit reporting, but there are already laws that protect people from being stalked and assaulted.

Personally, I think there are enough laws on the books. I don't pretend to understand French law or the Napoleonic Codes, but I would think that if there is evidence that photographers were responsible for the deaths of Di, Dodi, a chauffeur and an injured body guard, then they ought to be brought to trial. The guillotine ought to make good, if distasteful, photos.

The question is not taste. The question is not the privacy of celebrities. The question is simple economics.

If nobody paid for lurid pictures of celebrities, who would shoot them? If nobody wanted to see these pictures, who would publish them?

I've often wondered about people who bought supermarket tabloids. I always thought there was something wrong with them. Maybe there's something wrong with me. Sales of the tabloids are going up, while sales of most daily newspapers in this country are sliding. In an effort to increase circulation, some newspapers have started copying the tabloid's style and content (or lack of it).

If there is a demand, no matter how unseemly, there will be someone who will look to make a buck on it. Remember that when you pick up a tabloid at the supermarket to see the pictures of a dying Princess Di.

I guarantee you they will be there.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 3, the 246th day of 1997. There are 119 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 3, 1783, the Treaty of Paris between the United States and Great Britain officially ended the Revolutionary War.

On this date:
In 1189, England's King Richard I was crowned in Westminster.

In 1658, Oliver Cromwell, the Lord Protector of England, died.

In 1939, Britain and France declared war on Germany, two days after the Nazi invasion of Poland.

In 1943, the British Eighth Army invaded Italy during World War II, the same day Italy signed a secret armistice with the Allies.

In 1967, Nguyen Van Thieu was elected president of South Vietnam under a new constitution.

In 1967, motorists in Sweden began driving on the right-hand side of the road instead of the left.

In 1967, the original version of the television game show "What's My Line?," hosted by John Charles Daly, broadcast its final episode after more than 17 years on CBS.

In 1970, football coach Vince Lombardi died in Washington, D.C.

In 1976, the unmanned U.S. spacecraft Viking 2 landed on Mars to take the first close-up, color photographs of the planet's surface.

In 1978, Pope John Paul I was installed as the 264th pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church.

In 1979, Hurricane David struck along the central Florida coast, leaving several people dead and millions of dollars in damage.

Ten years ago: A Soviet prosecutor accused West German pilot Mathias Rust of seeking "cheap popularity" by landing a private plane in Moscow's Red Square, and demanded that Rust be sentenced to eight years at hard labor. Rust was convicted, but freed the following August.

Five years ago: An Italian relief plane was shot down by ground-to-air missiles outside of Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina. Baseball owners voted 18-9-1 to ask commissioner Fay Vincent to resign.

One year ago: The United States launched 27 cruise missiles at "selected air defense targets" in Iraq as punishment for Iraq's invasion of Kurdish safe havens.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Kitty Carlisle Hart is 83. "Beetle Bailey" cartoonist Mort Walker is 74. Country singer Hank Thompson is 72. Actress Anne Jackson is 71. Actress Irene Papas is 71. Time magazine contributing editor Hugh Sides is 70.

Newt: Undercredited, underestimated

Frederich Nietzsche once remarked, "What fails to kill me makes me stronger." Newt Gingrich can attest to that. A year ago, the House speaker came to San Diego where he played only a minor role in his party's national convention - not the least because his public approval rating was only slightly higher than O.J. Simpson's.

Through much of the fall, Gingrich was pilloried by Democrats in thousands of television commercials that aired throughout the country. This prompted a number of Republican candidates to distance themselves from the speaker.

At the beginning of this year, Gingrich pleaded no contest - in effect - to charges of ethics violations, agreeing to pay a $600,000 fine. Meanwhile, a few outspoken Republicans, like Rep. Peter King of New York, suggested that Gingrich renounce his speakership.

All was quiet in the speaker's chambers until Gingrich was caught unaware by a mutiny of his House Republican colleagues. At least two members of Gingrich's leadership team - Dick Armey and Tom DeLay - were prepared to go along with mutineers until they had a last minute change of heart.

Having endured such a trying speakership so far, one might expect Gingrich to be crestfallen. To be secretly wishing - maybe - to be relieved of the burden of his high office.

But in fact, the opposite is true. Gingrich is unbowed, as he evidenced during a return visit to San Diego. And he is, arguably, a stronger speaker today than he was when he assumed the exalted position two years ago.

Indeed, when Gingrich led House Republicans out of the political wilderness in 1994, after 40 years of minority status, he wasn't fully prepared to govern. His situation was not unlike the guerrilla leader who suddenly finds himself thrust into power.

Joseph Perkins

Joseph Perkins is a columnist for the San Diego Union-Tribune and is a commentator for MSNBC.

But for all Gingrich's regrettable comments (like telling reporters he was holding up the 1995 budget negotiations because Clinton snubbed him on Air Force One), lapses in judgment (like signing a questionable $4.5 million book deal with HarperCollins Publishing) and political miscalculations (like shutting down the federal government in 1995), the House has amassed a legislative record under his leadership that compares favorably to any House speaker of the past half-century.

During the first 100 days that Gingrich wielded the speaker's gavel, House Republicans made good on their 1994 pledge to vote on the 10 planks of their "Contract With America," which included, among other items, a balanced budget, welfare reform and tax cuts.

Not since the New Deal era, at least, had there been a three-month period during which either house of Congress was so productive.

And despite attacks on the contract by Democrats and liberal pundits (who derisively termed it a "Contract on America"), the public liked what Gingrich and his fellow Republicans accomplished. That's why the voters returned a GOP majority to the House for the first time in 60 years.

Gingrich learned from his first two years as speaker. He recognized that it is a shallow victory to pass legislation in the House if it is never signed into law. And that is what happened to some key planks in the Republican contract.

So this year Gingrich vowed to be more of a statesman. And it is because he set partisanship aside in favor of consensus-building that Congress and the Clinton White House enacted the first balanced budget since 1969 and the first tax cut since 1981.

Now, there remain some Republicans, mostly conservative, who grouse about the job Gingrich has done. They believe the speaker has abandoned core principles, that he has been too quick to compromise. But they forget that politics is the art of the possible. And with a Democrat in the White House, there's only so much a Republican speaker can do.

In fact, Gingrich has accomplished more, under Bill Clinton, than his Democrat predecessors Tip O'Neill, Jim Wright and Tom Foley did under Republican presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush. He has even accomplished more than Foley did during his two years working side by side with fellow Democrat Clinton.

Had Gingrich not dug himself such a huge hole early on in the eyes of the public, he probably would be receiving the credit he is due. Maybe even his own party members would recognize that he is one of the most effective speakers Congress has had in recent history.

Medical notes...

Healthy eating is lifelong commitment

HOUSTON — It is never too late to benefit from a healthy diet. With increased age comes an increased risk of developing heart disease or suffering a stroke. However, maintaining a well-balanced, low-fat, low-sodium diet can lessen the risk.

"Dairy products are among the most important foods for the elderly," said Lynne Scott, a registered dietitian at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Foods such as low-fat milk, yogurt, cheese and frozen yogurt are the best sources of calcium. Calcium is particularly valuable for maintaining bone density and assisting in the healing process as we get older."

Guidelines developed by scientists who met at the National Institutes of Health recommend that people over 51 consume 1,500 milligrams of calcium a day — that is about five eight-ounce cups of milk.

While foods high in calcium are vital for the elderly, eating a variety of foods can keep your diet from becoming stale and also ensure that you are getting the necessary vitamins and minerals.

Fall is not too early to think about flu

HOUSTON — Even though peak influenza season is not until November or December, September is a good time to start thinking about flu shots.

The reason? People at risk for possibly fatal flu complications should not be caught unvaccinated just in case the flu season begins early.

The largest group at risk is the elderly, but people younger than 65 with chronic health problems, particularly those involving the heart or lungs, have a high risk of hospitalization during the annual flu outbreak.

"As soon as the vaccine becomes available, usually in September, people in the high-risk groups should get inoculated," said Dr. W. Paul Glezen, epidemiologist at the Influenza Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

According to Glezen, the vaccine is about 85 percent effective in helping people avoid the flu.

Senior companions can be friends for life

HOUSTON — Senior companions represent a new and creative way to provide assistance and social connections to a booming senior population. These care givers help with light housework, cooking, cleaning and making sure their senior companion partner takes proper medications.

"The programs help seniors who are homebound," said Carole Ashendorf, a geriatric social worker with the Huffington Center on Aging at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "People over 60 are recruited from the community from organizations such as the Alzheimer's Association and the Visiting Nurse Association."

Perhaps the most important part of the program is the interaction between both people. Playing a game of cards, working on a puzzle or doing some gardening together can help turn senior companions into lifelong friends. That improves the quality of life for both individuals. There is no cost to those receiving help, and both men and women are involved.

For information about senior companion programs, contact a seniors' assistance center or an area agency on aging in your community.

Study finds American youth have harmful eating habits

CHICAGO (AP) — Hold the chips and pass the broccoli! Only 1 percent of American young people ages 2 to 19 eat healthy diets, a study found.

On average, young people in that age group receive 40 percent of their energy from fat and added sugar rather than eating well-rounded diets of a variety of foods, according to the study published Tuesday in the September issue of the journal Pediatrics.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends eating six to 11 servings of grain each day, three to five servings of vegetables, two to four of fruit, two to three of dairy products and five to seven ounces of meat. The guidelines call for 10 percent or less in fat and added sugar.

Sixteen percent of 3,307 young people surveyed for the study did not meet any of the federal guidelines on nutrition. Only 30 percent met the dietary recommendations for fruit, grain, meat and dairy, while 36 percent ate the recommended amount of vegetables. Only 1 percent met all five requirements.

Bad eating habits in childhood can lead to disease later in life, including heart problems associated with too much fat, and osteoporosis from low calcium intake, said Dr. Kathryn Munoz, one of the study's authors.

A poor diet can also lead to obesity.

"It is in early childhood when you have the groundwork as to what foods will become favorite foods," said Jo Ann Hattner, a nutritionist at Stanford University Medical Center who was not involved in the study. "Parents need to set an example and remember they are in charge of the food purchased."

There was some good news: Boys ages 12 and 19 had the highest consumption of recommended food groups. The down side may be that girls eat less to lose weight, Ms. Hattner said.

White children were closer to meeting the food group recommendations than black or Hispanic kids. For example, white children averaged 2.2 servings of dairy products compared with 1.7 for blacks and 1.9 for Hispanics.

Parents can help by giving children 1 percent or skim milk, replace soda with juices and encourage young people to eat vegetables and fruits with low fat, yogurt-based dips instead of mayonnaise-based dips, experts said.

Study: Young doctors fail to detect abnormal sounds with stethoscopes

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctors who were almost finished with their training for primary care succeeded only 20 percent of the time at identifying major abnormal heart sounds using a stethoscope, a study found.

The findings suggest that generalist doctors — the ones who control many patients' fate under managed care plans — are losing a valuable skill as they increasingly rely on technology, authors said in Wednesday's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Salvatore Mangione and Linda Nieman of Allegheny University of the Health Sciences in Philadelphia, who headed the study, said effective use of the old skills can help save money. A doctor who doesn't know by listening that a heart murmur is harmless is forced to order tests.

"And so in a sense, the loss of these skills ... may lead to increasing reliance on expensive technology," Mangione said.

That conflicts with the goal of managed care, which relies on the bedside skills of primary care physicians to determine when expensive specialization is needed.

In the study, residents — medical school graduates in training on hospital staffs — were incorrect four out of five times in identifying abnormal sounds and did not improve with years of training, Mangione said.

"Third-year residents were not any better than the first-year residents, and ... were not significantly better than a group of medical students," he said.

The study involved 453 residents and 88 medical students from a total of 31 programs in family practice and internal medicine in the mid-Atlantic states.

Subjects listened to 12 types of heart sounds that had been directly recorded from patients and identified them by multiple choice questionnaire.

Two experts not associated with the study said its findings are cause for some concern, but should not alarm patients.

Dr. Marc A. Weinberg, director of cardiac rehabilitation at Huntington (N.Y.) Hospital, said doctors currently get training in using echocardiograms, an ultrasound test that is much more definitive than any stethoscope exam.

He said the risk-free, pain-free test, which costs $250 to $600, is as superior to a stethoscope exam as the automobile is to a horse and buggy.

And Dr. David E. Steward, chairman of internal medicine at Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, said heart sounds through a stethoscope are "a little piece to a real big puzzle."

"I'm a primary care physician myself. I've never had an audio tape walk into my office. It's always a person, with symptoms ... with other things that help you make decisions about them," Steward said.

Four Amarillo physicians disciplined

Four Amarillo physicians were among 62 Texas doctors who were disciplined during the Aug. 7-9 meeting of the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

They are:

- George Martin Cole, D.O. An agreed order was entered requiring him not to perform any invasive surgical procedure as defined under the agreed order until he appears before the board and receives permission to do so. The action was due to failure to practice medicine in an acceptable manner consistent with public health and welfare.
- Freddie P. Marasigan, M.D. An agreed order was entered assessing an administrative penalty of $1,000. The action was due to failure to practice medicine in an acceptable manner consistent with public health and welfare.

- Darel Ray Morris, D.O. An agreed order was entered publicly reprimanding him. Action due to abetting the unlicensed practice of medicine.

- Henry Norrid, D.O. An agreed order was entered publicly reprimanding him. The action was due to failure to practice medicine in an acceptable manner consistent with public health and welfare.

Program Smooths Physical Scars Of Domestic Violence

DEAR ABBY: Recent letters from "Sick and Tired," and "In the Trenches in Philadelphia" have spotlighted the very serious problem of domestic violence. One aspect of this problem often overlooked, however, is that while many of these victimized individuals have fled their abusive spouses and sought treatment and counseling, they are still left with the physical scars. The emotional healing may have begun, but the smashed cheekbone, the twisted nose or the cigarette burn on the face serves as a constant reminder of a painful past. Unfortunately, the majority of victims scarred by acts of domestic violence are not financially able to correct the damage caused by their abuser's rage.

We would like your readers to know that there is help available. The American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery (AAFPRS) sponsors a program called Face to Face. The National Domestic Violence Project, which matches victims of domestic violence with facial plastic surgeons for consultation and reconstructive surgery at no charge.

AAFPRS and the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NCADV) are proud to offer this service to an often overlooked segment of society. With just a phone call, these individuals can begin to gain the confidence to look in the mirror and smile again. Thank you, Abby, for helping us to spread the word so that we can help them.

PETER A. ADAMSON, M.D., PRESIDENT, AAFPRS, AND RITA SMITH, NATIONAL COORDINATOR, NCADV

DEAR DR. ADAMSON AND MS. SMITH: I'm delighted to inform my readers about this effort. What a generous gift! My congratulations to you and your organizations for conceiving such a compassionate and life-changing program. I wish you much success.

Readers, the Face to Face program can be accessed by calling 1-800-842-4546, the toll-free number operated by the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence.

DEAR ABBY: I have been engaged since late last year. My fiancé and I are planning our wedding for next summer. We decided to have a long engagement because we want to save and pay for the wedding ourselves.

The problem: My sister wants to have a family portrait taken with her husband and children, my mother and me. Our father is deceased. I politely asked if my fiancé could be included in the picture, but my sister argues that he is not part of the family until he says "I do."

Our mother loves my fiancé and considers him a son because of all the help he offers around the house, but she refuses to get in the middle of our discussion. My fiancé and I do not live together; we are going to remain with our parents until we get married. I know that legally he is not part of the family, but emotionally he is. What do you think?

PICTURE PERFECT

DEAR PICTURE PERFECT: Your sister has a point. A family portrait should include family members only. Although your fiancé is accepted by your mother, many things can happen between now and the wedding date. Your sister may not want to risk being stuck with a "photographic memory" all of you would rather forget.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Thursday, Sept. 4, 1997

A dynamic friend might bring fortuitous circumstances into your life once again in the year ahead. This time your pal may even be luckier for you than he or she was in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tasks with which you have to contend could be rather vexing today. Focus on your anticipated rewards and let the positive aspects lighten your burdens. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, you may operate in close proximity with a person who makes you feel ill at ease. However, you will have the upper hand this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A negative condition that has settled upon your household recently could have some converse aspects, but its power is diminishing. Keep smiling.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have ample friends upon whom you can draw today. Select amicable companions and ignore acquaintances who tend to make waves.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you've made a major purchase and today discover you could've bought it cheaper elsewhere, don't hesitate to demand an adjustment from your supplier.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You and your mate might not agree where minor issues are concerned today, but in significant matters, you'll be on the same wavelength.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might suffer some inconvenience today as a result of another's problem. You should not mind, because he or she would do the same for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, avoid involvements with a clique that includes an abrasive person who makes you uncomfortable. Associate with friends who let you be yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Commit yourself to seeing a project through to completion today. Gratifying results can be achieved if your tenacity equals the assignment's.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you encounter socially today might arouse your ire. Let your better judgment prevail and ignore the agitator.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Occasionally, one must spend a little money in order to make money. Do not be afraid to prime the pump today if your instincts direct you to do so.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Suppress inclinations today to negatively prejudice the outcome of events. Let nature run its course; you might be much luckier than you realize.

FOOTBALL

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Buffalo Bills defensive end Bruce Smith was convicted of drunken driving after a police officer found him asleep in his Mercedes and the star defensive end failed a sobriety test.

Smith received a 30-day suspended jail sentence, was fined $250 and had his license suspended for one year. He appealed the traffic court conviction to Circuit Court, with trial set for Oct. 23. He remains eligible to play Sunday against the New York Jets.

NEW YORK (AP) — Attendance at NFL games for the opening week of the season was up by more than 5,000 fans per game over last year.

Total attendance at the 15 openers was 933,647, an average of 62,243. The first week of the 1996 season drew 928,263, an average of 61,884.

The biggest crowd, 79,139, was at Rich Stadium, where Minnesota beat host Buffalo. The smallest crowd attended Tennessee's debut in the league. Just 30,171 were at the Liberty Bowl in Memphis to see the transplanted (from Houston) Oilers beat Oakland.

BASEBALL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — New York Yankees ace David Cone felt pain during a simulated game and was sent back to New York to receive a cortisone shot in his sore shoulder.

Cone had hoped to start Sunday against Baltimore, but was unable to finish his three-inning workout. Manager Joe Torre said he hopes the shot will alleviate the pain Cone is feeling from tendinitis in the shoulder. Cone probably won't throw another simulated game for about 10 days.

BOSTON (AP) — The player's association is investigating whether Boston Red Sox pitcher Steve Avery was demoted to the bullpen so the team could avoid a $3.9 million contract option for 1998.

Players can be demoted due to performance, but not to prevent them from earning contract incentives. Signed over the winter to replace Roger Clemens, Avery is making $4.85 million this year, with an option for '98 that he could exercise if he made 18 starts.

Avery, 6-6 with a 6.57 ERA in 17 starts, has lost his last four with an 18.47 ERA over 12-2-3 innings.

OLYMPICS

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Stockholm and Cape Town were warned by the International Olympic Committee for possible bid violations in their attempts to entice members who will vote for the site of the 2004 Olympics.

The reprimands came three days before the IOC selects the 2004 host. The other candidates in Friday's vote are Rome; Buenos Aires, Argentina; and Athens, Greece.

The Swedes were warned for organizing a recent visit to a furniture store in Stockholm for IOC members. Cape Town was scolded for allegedly offering to pay for the air fare of the spouses of African IOC members traveling to Lausanne.

GOLF

LONDON (AP) — Miguel Angel Martin was replaced on the European Ryder Cup team by Jose Maria Olazabal after refusing to play 18 holes of golf to prove his surgically repaired wrist had recovered enough to allow him to compete later this month.

Martin, who earned the final automatic spot on the team, hinted he might legally challenge the move. The Spaniard has not played since the British Open in July and was operated on Aug. 5. His doctors said he could not even begin chipping balls until later this week.

PHS tennis players hold their own in tourney

WICHITA FALLS — The Pampa High School varsity tennis team competed in the Pepsi-Dr. Pepper Wichita Falls Team Tournament last weekend and came away with impressive performances.

PHS defeated Vernon, 9-8, by virtue of games in a dual ended by the time limit in the Harvesters' opening match. Vernon, the No. 1 ranked team in Class 3A, later defeated Class 4A's No. 9 and No. 12 ranked team in Class 3A, later defeated Class 4A's No. 9 and No. 12 ranked teams, Texarkana Texas High and Burkburnett, handily, in the tournament.

The Harvesters then dropped the first in a series of heartbreakers, losing to Lubbock High, 9-9 (22-21 on sets won). PHS then dropped a narrow 9-9 (174 to 160 games won) decision to Class 4A No. 8 ranked and district favorite Dumas before barely falling to Odessa High, 9-9 (162-159 games won).

Dumas also handily defeated Texarkana Texas High while Odessa High downed

Burkburnett.

While PHS only went 1-3, they are expected to crack Class 4A's Top 20 in the upcoming state rankings due to these performances. The girls' squad led the way by winning 30 of their 35 completed matches.

"I was very impressed with the way we opened our season in what was without question the most competitive tournament that I have ever coached in," said PHS head coach Larry Wheeler. "Our girls' play was stellar, but our guys showed a need for improvement in several areas," added Wheeler.

Players for the week are senior Jason Vickery and junior Mandy Wells. Wells was undefeated in four singles matches while Vickery won two of four.

The team next plays at the Amarillo Team Tournament this Friday and Saturday.

Lady Harvesters win volleyball triangular held at Perryton

PERRYTON — Pampa defeated Hugoton, Kan., 15-5, 15-5 and Perryton, 16-14, 15-10, in a volleyball triangular Tuesday night.

Against Hugoton, Katy Cavalier led the Lady Harvesters in hitting, 8 of 9 with 2 kills, while Lisa Dwight was 7 of 8 with 3 kills.

In serves, April Lopez was 11 of 11 with 8 points and 2 aces; Keili Earl 9 of 9 with points 1 ace; Kimberly Clark 6 of 6 with 5 points, and Brooke Petty 4 of 4 with 3 points and 1 ace.

In setting, Lopez was 12 of 14 with 5 assists; Deidre Crawford 10 of 10 with 4 assists, and Clark 10 of 10 with 1 assist.

Against Perryton, Dwight led Pampa's hitting attack with 17 of 21, including 8 kills. Tiffany McCullough was 12 of 14 with 6 kills and Cavalier was 10 of 13 with 4 kills.

In serving, Cavalier was 11 of 11 with 7 points and 1 assist; Earl 11 of 13 with 7 points and 2 assists; Lopez 11 of 12 with 6 points and Dwight 8 of 9 with 5 points.

In blocks, McCullough had 5 solo blocks and 5 assists while Dwight had 5 solo blocks and 3 assists.

In passing, Earl was 10 of 10. In digs, Lisa Kirkpatrick was 15 of 17, Jessica Maddox and Earl 9 of 11 each.

In JV action, Pampa defeated Hugoton, 15-2, 15-12, and Perryton, 15-5, 15-11.

Lindsay Scribner turned in an outstanding all-around match while Cassie Scott was the defensive standout as she came up with numerous digs. Mary Grace Fields led Pampa JV's from the service line.

The Lady Harvesters meet Palo Duro at 10:15 a.m. Saturday in the first round of the Amarillo Tournament at Palo Duro Activity Center.

Fan favorites disappear from United States Open

NEW YORK (AP) — The tennis at Arthur Ashe Stadium is taking on the look of a Magic Show.

Fan favorites Andre Agassi and Monica Seles disappeared Tuesday. And Michael Chang pulled off his latest escape.

Welcome to the 1997 U.S. Open, where, without mirrors or wires, the latest sleight of hand tricks were performed by Patrick Rafter, Marcelo Rios and Irina Spirlea, and the newest smash hit is Venus Williams.

Today, sixth-seeded Lindsay Davenport attempted to join Williams as the only Americans in the women's singles semifinals. Davenport, the 1996 Olympic gold medalist faced No. 3 Jana Novotna.

Tonight, top-seeded Martina Hingis, who is seeking her third Grand Slam tournament title of the year, plays No. 10 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, the 1994 U.S. Open champion, for the last women's berth in the semifinals.

The men are looking for the last berths in the quarterfinals. Two of the sport's biggest hitters — Britain's Greg Rusedski and Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands — face off before giant-killer Petr Korda takes on Sweden's Jonas Bjorkman in the last match of the night.

"Betty Crocker was waiting for me there," said Agassi, describing how he was almost cooked after two sets. Still, he wouldn't quit, and he made it a memorable match.

"I had my chances, but I didn't serve well and didn't return well," Agassi said after falling to the 13th-seeded Rafter 6-3, 7-6 (7-4), 4-6, 6-3. "I let it slip away. At the end he did what he needed to do.

"It was a beautiful opportunity," Rios was the first to cash in on his opportunity, defeating No. 7

"People talk about favorites. Every match is tough. You can't come out here and expect a cakewalk in any match."

— Michael Chang

Sergi Bruguera 7-5, 6-2, 6-4. Spirlea, the women's No. 11 seed from Romania, then bounced Seles, seeded No. 2, 6-7 (7-5), 7-6 (10-8), 6-3.

That left the stage for Chang, who trailed 5-2 in the fourth set, trailing two sets to one. Somehow, Chang survived in an escape that would have made Houdini proud. And when the fifth set finally ended, Chang was in the quarterfinals with a 6-3, 0-6, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1 victory over Wimbledon finalist Cedric Pioline of France.

"People talk about favorites," Chang said. "Every match is tough. You can't come out here and expect a cakewalk in any match. If you don't come out here and play your best tennis, you're going to fall short."

Then came Williams, who made her U.S. Open debut in Arthur Ashe Stadium when it opened for the first time 10 days ago. Most felt that appearance was scheduled because Williams is a talented young black player who first began to play tennis in the inner city.

There is no question why she is playing on Stadium court now: She has earned it.

With a 7-5, 7-5 victory over Sandrine Testud, Williams became the first woman to reach the U.S. Open semis in her debut since Pam Shriver in 1978.

Brewers hand Astros sixth straight loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Gerald Williams didn't take the easy way out of his hitting slump.

The Milwaukee outfielder hit Darryl Kile and Billy Wagner's best pitches for RBIs and helped the Milwaukee Brewers move up in the AL Central.

Williams, who entered the game with six hits in his last 49 at-bats, drove in the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning Tuesday night as the Brewers moved within 2 1/2 games of first-place Cleveland in the AL Central with a 4-2 win over Houston.

In the seventh, Williams hit Kile's curve ball for a sac fly to tie it 2-2.

"He's an outstanding pitcher," Williams said. "I'd never faced him before. It's easy to see why he's won a lot of games. This was a very big win for this team."

Williams gave the Brewers the lead in the ninth inning with a sacrifice fly off Wagner, who was throwing fastballs in the high 90s. "We were well aware of his pitch selection, but we also understand that he has one of the best breaking balls in the league," Williams said. "I was sitting on his fastball and not worrying about the curve ball."

The Brewers won for the eighth time in 10 games.

"This was a good game for me to have and a good week for this team," Williams said. "We're having fun right now and we want to keep having fun."

The Astros dropped their sixth straight and saw their lead in the NL Central shrink to 1 1/2 games over second-place Pittsburgh, which beat the Indians 6-4.

"This happens a lot in baseball," said Houston's Billy Spiers. "But the position we're in, it's magnificent. But it should be magnified. We're the ones who put ourselves in this position and this is the time of year you have to come through and play your best."

Houston has scored just 13 runs during its losing skid.

Milwaukee handed Kile (17-5) his second straight loss after the right-hander had won 10 straight decisions. Kile allowed four hits in 8 1-3 innings.

"He pitched great," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "It was a shame we couldn't have helped him out. I don't think we can make it without Billy Wagner."
