Congress still sparring over budget talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — With bipartisan budget bargaining about to enter its third week,
Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said today that he probably would oppose any additional Medicare savings offered by the Clinton administration.

Daschle said he has been assured by White House officials that they will not propose additional savings beyond the $100 billion over five years that they already offered during budget talks with Republicans.

Democrats involved in the talks, speaking on condition of anonymity, have said that offer might increase if a budget-balancing deal draws near. Republicans have been insisting on savings from the health insurance program for the elderly in the $110 billion to $130 billion range.

"I'd be inclined today to oppose" Medicare savings beyond $100 billion, Daschle told reporters.

He also said he likely would oppose a package that exceeds $100 billion in tax cuts over five years. President Clinton proposed $98 billion in reductions. Republicans initially proposed twice that amount, and bargainers have been discussing figures in the $140 billion range, participants said.

Daschle's comments reflect a restiveness among congressional Democrats concerned that White House bargainers are prepared to accept deeper cuts in social programs.

Daschle also dismissed Republican insistence that a deal come this week, saying, "I don't think there's any reason to throw down another deadline."

A day earlier, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott said the "magic moment" has come for a budget deal with the White House but that it could quickly disappear without progress by midweek.

Lott, R-Miss., said Sunday that after months of stop-and-go negotiations, compromise was possible on the size of tax cuts and the two sides were close on the level of Medicare savings — two of the decisive issues in the quest for a plan to balance the budget by 2002.

"I believe the iron is hot. This is the magic moment," he said on CNN's Late Edition.

The Republican leader also cautioned that without progress, on Wednesday he will begin putting together a Senate budget plan that would bypass the White House. House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, said Saturday that the House also would start writing its own plan on Wednesday or Thursday.

GOP leaders for several weeks have threatened to break off talks with the White House and craft their own balanced-budget plan, but signs of some movement last week kept the talks alive.

Senate Budget Committee
Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said on Fox News Sunday that negotiators "made some headway last week" and the discussions were serious.

"We're working very hard at it. I don't think it's a question of who's going to blink first," he said.

Daschle said on NBC's Meet the Press that he also was pleased by the progress. But he refused to be pinned down on when an agreement could be reached, saying it would be in the "not-too-distant future."

Congressional Democrats have voiced concern that the White House not compromise too much in such areas as Medicare and education to reach an agreement with the Republicans.

Supreme Court rejects appeal on women's athletics discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a closely watched dispute over sexual equality, the Supreme Court today let stand rulings that said Brown University illegally discriminated against its women athletes.

The justices, without comment, rejected an appeal in which the Ivy League school's lawyers said lower court rulings could require schools nationwide to offer varsity opportunities for women based on a "stark numerical quota."

In other actions, the court:

— Turned down the government's effort to force Texaco to pay at least $1 billion more in taxes on Saudi Arabian oil it forced the federal government to pay Hughes Aircraft Co. more than $100 million for unauthorized use of a satellite-technology patent.

The justices ordered a federal appeals court to re-study the dispute in light of their ruling last month that clarified a key element of patent law.

— Refused to free ABC television from a $1 million libel award it was ordered to pay over a news report on a Georgia county's troubles with its garbage-recycling machine.

The dispute over women's sports dates back to 1991, when Brown imposed university-wide budget cuts.

Probationers worked most of Saturday to clean up the debris of a house at 810 Locust which burned in February. Eleven workers showed up to meet the requirements of their probation and help clean up the site.

Courts use more community service projects in sentences for offenders

More and more often judges are sentencing offenders who come before the courts to a certain number of hours of community service, including those in Pampa.

Community service is often administered as part or in lieu of fines, restitution, or probation.

Offenders sentenced to community service perform a variety of city or county projects. They clean the highways, parks and community centers. They paint city facilities and plant trees in an effort to conserve the natural beauty of the land specified as natural wilderness.

Judges often hand out community service hours to juvenile or first time offenders in hopes of making the offender understand the importance of giving back to a community.

This past weekend a group of 13 people, needing to fulfill the community service hours of their sentence, met at 810 Locust to remove the rubble left after a February fire destroyed the home and took the life of 47-year old Princess Frances Gardner.

The 11 probationers, under the supervision of Clint Craft and James Watson, Community Service and Restitution (CSR) coordinators, and with the help of a backhoe from the Davis Ditching company, leveled the burnt out dwelling and removed the rubble.

The city of Pampa donated the use of a large dump truck to help remove blackened debris while the workers used their own trailers to help speed the process.

The use of the backhoe was necessary to help break up the foundation and the last of the floor and roof which were not completely destroyed in the fire.

All that remains is minor litter to be picked up later this week and to rehang the fence, which had to be removed so the backhoe could maneuver.

Watson said, "Projects like this are a win-win situation. Everybody gains and everybody feels good when the job is done."

Craft said he would like to get more of these kind of projects that would help get the city cleaned up.

"I'll meet them halfway. If people will let us know about this kind of work we will see if we can work out something of mutual benefit. There's only so many times you can do a high-way project. I would really like to see our people get more involved with this type of project," Craft said.

Community service workers will be at the Village Community Center cleaning and sprucing up the area on May 3, and on May 17 others will repaint the Lions Club building in McLean.

Grand Forks plagued with continued flooding, downtown fire

Flooding in the northern plains

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Senior Airman LeeLynn Nearing stared at the icy, brown floodwater as the Coast Guard boat cruised past silent buildings in the watery ghost town that has become Grand Forks.

"I'm looking for a new world," sighed Nearing, who has taken refuge with a friend at the Air Force base 15 miles west of Grand Forks. A block from her abandoned apartment building, three downtown blocks were guttured by fire, leaving charred skeletons standing amid streets flooded 5 feet deep.

This morning, water from the battered Red River covered 75 percent of the 10 1/2-square-mile city, and 90 percent of the 50,000 inhabitants had fled, said
Fire Department spokesman Jerry Vein.

The fire started Saturday and raged until it was put out Sunday by helicopters hoisting 2,000-gallon buckets of water and fire trucks that were ferried through the flood atop flatbed trucks.

"There's not a heck of a lot salvageable," Deputy Fire Chief Peter O'Neill said.

The cause of the fire was unknown, but officials said today they had cut off electricity to the downtown and riverside residential areas as a precaution.
During the night, firefighters put out two small house fires.

Among the buildings that burned were the 1st National Bank building, an office building, an apartment building and the newsroom and offices of the Grand Forks Herald.

"It makes me feel like I want to cry," said Jenelle Stadstad, manager of the newspaper's library.
"I feel helpless." File cabinets that held much of the town's history in brittle clippings and yellowed photos were lost.

"Our microfilm went back to 1879, our first paper," Stadstad
said.

The newspaper had special editions printed Sunday and today on the presses of the Saint Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press. The paper was being distributed free at evacuation shelters and elsewhere.

While Nearing collected what belongings she could, clothing, financial records and the wedding ring of her late sister among them, authorities braced for more water.

The river, moving slowly across the flat terrain, was expected to crest today at 54 feet, 26 feet above flood stage. By 6 a.m., it had edged up to 53.98 feet, the U.S. Geological Survey said. The National Weather Service was moving its staff out of the city.

The city has no water for taps, toilets or hydrants. Power was cut off to areas within about a half-mile of the river, and there have been problems with gas and telephone service. The University of North Dakota canceled classes for the rest of the semester, along with graduation, and sent 11,000 students home.

Pampa residents are encouraged to take the temporary access roads, shown above, to access the Masonic Lodge and the Coronado Healthcare Nursing Home while repairs are being made to a portion of West Kentucky Street.

Alternate routes set for Kentucky repairs

The city has constructed two temporary roads to the Masonic Lodge and the Coronado Healthcare Nursing Center while repairs continue on West Kentucky Street.

A portion of Kentucky Street running from Larry Beck Electric to the Church of Christ will be closed to through traffic beginning Tuesday. Residents needing access to the Masonic Lodge are encouraged to take the temporary access route off of Wells Street, and those needing access to the nursing home are asked to take the temporary access road in front of Larry Beck Electric.

Members of the Church of Christ and other businesses on towards the west end of the street will have access on Kentucky from Price Road, which is now open to the public although the road is not yet paved.

The construction on West Kentucky Street is expected to take at least 60 days, said Donny Hooper, a city engineer.

Paving of the road will be completed after the entire street, from Price Road to Hobart, is finished.

City commissioners to hold meetings Tuesday

Pampa city commissioners will discuss removing a Canadian River Municipal Water Authority tank top and the Marcus Cable billing process at their workshop meeting Tuesday.

There are two options being presented to the commissioners concerning the top removal of regulating tank number 11 in the CRMWA. The first proposal suggests removing the tank top and replacing instrumentation at a cost of $16,373. The second proposal suggests removing the tank top and reinstalling the existing instrumentation at a cost of $16,077. The money for this project, said City Manager Bob Eskridge, is budgeted every year as maintenance for the project.

Marcus Cable's district manager will also be on hand at the workshop meeting to discuss billing policy changes. Instead of billing customers throughout a 20-week cycle each month, bills will be sent out on the first and 15th of each month.

The workshop meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in the third floor conference room at City Hall. The regular meeting will follow at 6 p.m. in the city commission chambers in City Hall.

Items for approval in the regular meeting include:

- Bids for the city's liability insurance coverage, the park attendant position at Recreation Park, the purchase of a sanitary landfill compactor and for tax assessment and collection services.

- Appointments to the Cable Advisory Board, the Electrical Board, the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Advisory Board, the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, the Plumbing and Mechanical Board, the Panhandle Elderly Apartment Corporation Board and the Pampa Housing Finance Corporation Board.

• An ordinance providing standards for curb construction.

Commissioners will also vote on the consent agenda, which includes the second and final reading for an ordinance amending the 1996-97 budget, the second and final reading for an ordinance establishing a catastrophic leave bank policy for city employees, a resolution establishing a $50 fee for mowing private property, a resolution adopting the city mission and value statements, a resolution authorizing the city to submit a grant to the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs and March disbursements.

Hubbell called to White House for meeting with Clinton, senior aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — The day before Webster Hubbell quit the Justice Department's No. 3 post under a cloud, President Clinton's Whitewater lawyer was summoned to the White House living quarters for a meeting with the first couple and senior presidential aides.

Attorney David Kendall joined some of the Clintons' most trusted political trouble shooters at the March 13, 1994, meeting, which is now embroiled in prosecutors' investigation of White House-inspired payments to Hubbell after he resigned as associate attorney general.

Three weeks after the meeting, Kendall also made a telephone call to Hubbell, message logs indicate. The contacts could have legal ramifications for the Clintons' personal attorney in the Whitewater case, making him a potential witness in the current grand jury probe. The attendance of others at the meeting also could preclude the Clintons from claiming attorney-client privilege of matters they discussed with Kendall that day, legal authorities say.

Clinton and his wife, Hillary, have said they were unaware at the time that Hubbell was under criminal investigation by Whitewater prosecutors for fraudulent billings at the Arkansas law firm where he had been a partner with Mrs. Clinton.

The contacts also occurred shortly before presidential aides began to make calls to secure work and financial assistance for Hubbell. Investigators now want to know whether that effort was designed to affect Hubbell's cooperation with prosecutors.

Officials have declined to provide many specifics about the 1994 meeting, or to say whether any notes exist from it.

White House spokesman Lanny Davis said the meeting was called to discuss a host of legal issues surrounding the transition in the White House counsel's office, which Lloyd Cutler had just been named to head, replacing Bernard Nussbaum.

But neither Nussbaum nor Cutler was present for the meeting, Davis acknowledged last week.

Instead, the president and first lady were joined by some of their most trusted advisers in the Whitewater affair — Kendall; Mrs. Clinton's chief of staff, Margaret Williams; then-presidential chief of staff Mack McLarty and then-deputy chief of staff Harold Ickes. Davis said Bruce Lindsey, the president's closest personal adviser, does not specifically recall being at the meeting but that others remember him attending.

Kendall declined to discuss the meeting or a telephone message slip indicating he called Hubbell at his Justice Department office on April 4, 1994 — a few weeks after the meeting and just days before Hubbell left the department.

Davis said Kendall's participation was consistent with a meeting designed to address issues in the counsel's office.

The Whitewater affair and other controversies were heating up in spring of 1994 and decisions needed to be made as to which issues would be handled by White House counsel and which by Kendall, Davis said.

"Numerous legal issues were on the table, some of which involved the personal representation of the Clintons that Mr. Kendall was responsible for," Davis said.

Stephen Gillers, professor of legal ethics at New York University School of Law, said the participation of Kendall in a meeting could interest prosecutors in addition to affecting the Clintons' ability to claim attorney-client privilege.

Bill would make unreturned library books criminal action

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Legislature is seeking to get tough on violent criminals, welfare fraud and, yes, people with overdue library books.

Rep. Tony Goolsby, R-Dallas, has sponsored a bill that would make failing to return public library materials a misdemeanor crime, punishable by a maximum fine of $500.

"If I came in your house and stole something, you wouldn't like it," Goolsby said. "That's what they're doing."

The measure puts library material under the Theft of Service section of the state's criminal code, treating the materials like video rentals.

Patrons still have the opportunity to pay for the book and pay smaller fines, but for those who ignore notices, libraries would have increased enforcement power.

The state's libraries lose roughly $14.5 million in books not returned each year, according to a Texas Library Association survey of 200 of the state's 500 public libraries.

Harris County libraries lose $200,000 a year in long overdue books, while El Paso loses $273,000, according to the association. Long overdue books are those missing at least a year.

The measure is intended as a deterrent for those who check out expensive or out-of-print books with no intention of returning them.

"I think that's probably a good idea," said Gary St. Clair, a patron of the Austin Municipal Library. "I guess it does make sense to do that if people were using the library to obtain books they couldn't obtain in any other way."

Others weren't so sure about the bill.

"I couldn't agree with a misdemeanor. That's much too harsh. I think there's always an alternative to a criminal type thing for a book. People forget," Jeff Arambula, of Austin, said.

A House committee has approved the measure, and the full House is expected to vote on the bill this week.

City libraries now have the option of taking borrowers to small claims court or prosecuting under a city ordinance, but county libraries don't have that option.

Scotland to be allowed greater freedom if Britain's Labor Party triumphs in election

STIRLING, Scotland (AP) — After nearly 300 years of union with England, Christine Holden thinks it's about time the Scots "had a wee say in our own affairs."

They'll probably get it after national elections May 1.

The front-running Labor Party promises to give Scotland its own parliament, a move that embattled Conservative Prime Minister John Major warns will be the first step toward shattering the United Kingdom of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Mrs. Holden, a shopkeeper in Cambusbarrow, a picturesque village on a hill overlooking estates of local lairds, or landowners, has no big quarrel with Michael Forsyth, Stirling's high-profile Conservative Party legislator.

"What I don't like is that just about everything that is done in Scotland needs permission from England," she says.

That sentiment adds a dimension to the election in Scotland. For English voters, the choice is between the Conservatives and Tony Blair's "New Labor," the once-socialist Labor Party that has shifted to the center on tax and spending issues, blurring the differences between the two.

But on Britain's unwritten constitution, the mass of law and custom that defines the nation and Scotland's role in it, the gulf between Conservatives and Laborites is enormous. Labor would strip the hereditary aristocracy of voting powers in the House of Lords and allow regional legislatures in Scotland and Wales.

Scotland's main competition in Scotland, in fact, is the leftist Scottish National Party, which wants nothing less than full independence.

Labor would give the 129-member Scottish parliament sole authority over education, health and legal affairs. Wales, which unlike Scotland doesn't have separate legal and school systems from England's, would get a less powerful assembly.

In addition, in the fall, the five million Scots would get to vote on whether the Scottish parliament gets tax-raising powers. The Conservatives campaign against the whole idea by deriding the "Tartan Tax" that would be added to the taxes Scots already pay.

The Conservatives contend Scotland has strong representation in the Cabinet from the secretary of state for Scotland — a post held by Forsyth, 44.

A forceful politician, he is one of just ten Conservatives — compared with Labor's 49 — among the 72 legislators from Scottish districts in the 651-member House of Commons.

As Scots' disenchantment with the Conservatives has grown — in the mid-1950s the Conservatives held a majority of Scottish districts — Forsyth's 14-year hold on Stirling has withered.

He hung on by just 703 votes in the 1992 national election, getting 40 percent of the vote to Labor's 38.5 percent and 13.7 percent for a Scottish nationalist.

On this knife-edge hangs a district which, legend holds, is the key to controlling Scotland. The town is dominated by an ancient castle and a 220-foot monument commemorating William Wallace's defeat of the English army at Stirling Bridge in 1297.

Smith County sheriff unveils armored unit

TYLER (AP) — What more could a sheriff with 238 employees, crowd control-trained horses, a 40-hour search team and a lake patrol complete with boats and jet skis want?

How about two armored personnel carriers?

That's the latest addition to Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith's crime-fighting arsenal.

Smith unveiled the 13-ton military surplus vehicles — which once carried a $1 million price tag — last week. The department got them free under a government surplus equipment program and will make them available to law enforcement throughout the East Texas area.

Initially, the sheriff rejected the idea of accepting the carriers used in Desert Storm, assuming his department would have no use for them. But they found one. "Someone said they'd be good for the SWAT team, so here they are," Smith said.

The vehicles will be used as a last resort in instances where armed suspects refuse to surrender inside residences, Smith said.

The sheriff believes that possibility will have a "psychological effect on the crooks."

Report: Death row inmates share certain characteristics

DALLAS (AP) — Few condemned prisoners take the death penalty seriously. Most began their criminal careers as juveniles. And overwhelmingly, they had troubled childhoods.

Those characteristics are shared by condemned inmates, according to a survey by The Dallas Morning News. More than 700 of the approximately 3,000 men and women on death rows throughout the United States responded to the survey, described as the most extensive ever of that population.

The newspaper found that most death row inmates share certain characteristics in their backgrounds and beliefs: —Seven out of 10 began their criminal careers as juveniles, and went on to commit serious crimes before they landed on death row. Almost four of 10 said other members of their families, typically fathers and brothers, also have been convicted of serious crimes.

Inmates: State prisoner who died did nothing wrong

DALLAS (AP) — An inmate who died after he was restrained by guards at an Abilene state prison unit had done nothing wrong and was the victim of brutality, two fellow inmates told The Dallas Morning News.

Gary Lee Crenshaw, 31, was a prisoner at the Robertson Unit when he died earlier this year.

Prison officials said corrections officers restrained Crenshaw on Jan. 27 when he became violent during a routine search of his cell. Crenshaw lost consciousness and later died in an Abilene hospital.

Autopsy results found that Crenshaw died of asphyxiation when oxygen was cut off from his brain.

An administrative review at the prison found that excessive force was not used, and internal affairs investigation has so far found that evidence is "inconclusive."

Treasury Department official under investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department's internal watchdog is coming under scrutiny herself after arranging a no-bid contract for a longtime acquaintance who had recommended her to the White House for her job.

Shortly after taking over as Treasury inspector general, Valerie Lau chose auditor Frank Sato to conduct a management study of her office, documents obtained by The Associated Press show.

She made the recommendation on Dec. 11, 1994, just one day after Sato sent her a proposal for the study — and her contract borrowed much of the language directly from it, the documents show.

Lau asked that the contract be a "sole source procurement" that would not be competitively bid, citing an "unusual and compelling urgency," according to the documents.

Treasury quickly approved a $113,000 contract for Sato & Associates. The firm ultimately was paid $90,776, the documents say.

A year earlier, Sato had written the White House personnel office to recommend Lau "very highly" for an inspector general's job, saying he had known her since 1980 and found her to be "a uniquely qualified person with high integrity and character."

Treasury officials say Sato was chosen for the contract because he was a former federal inspector general "uniquely qualified" to review Lau's office and make recommendations to make it more efficient.

But the arrangements are now under congressional investigation — a rare twist for an inspector general usually charged with reviewing the conduct of others and guarding against waste, fraud and abuse.

It also marks the second time in a week that Lau's conduct has come under scrutiny. Last Thursday, she acknowledged giving inaccurate testimony to Congress but blamed the error on her staff.

"At best, in this case, there is an appearance of impropriety that undermines the public confidence in this IG. This watchdog needs to be watched," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, chairman of an investigative subcommittee.

Lau declined to be interviewed. But in written answers to Congress, she acknowledged she developed "professional acquaintances" with Sato and another partner in his firm over the years while they served as government auditors.

Her answers, however, did not mention Sato's letter of recommendation to the White House. Treasury spokesman Howard Schloss said Lau was aware of the letter but had not solicited it.

Federal ethics regulations advise employees to avoid actions that "give rise to an appearance of ... giving preferential treatment" to someone with whom they have an outside relationship.

The regulations advise that "an employee whose duties would affect the financial interests of a friend, relative or person with whom he is affiliated with in a nongovernmental capacity" should consult with a third party to avoid the appearance of a conflict that would make a "reasonable person" question their impartiality.

Lau told Congress she chose Sato's firm because she knew he and his associate had "unique qualifications" as former inspectors general to provide "expertise in the area of audit, investigations and managing" her office.

Treasury officials could not say immediately whether Lau consulted a third party, disclosed her outside relationship with Sato or reviewed the ethics rules before proceeding with the contract.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Music helps us lead better lives

Gordon Shaw at the University of California's Irvine campus has devised experiments to demonstrate, with a degree of scientific credibility, that music makes us smarter.

A study Shaw organized in 1993 showed that college students who listened to Mozart for ten minutes scored higher on a standard IQ test than students who had not been similarly Wolfganged. Another of his studies showed that three- and four-year-olds who had a year of piano keyboard lessons solved puzzles better than youngsters in three control groups. This is said to be a sign of good "spatial reasoning," or the ability to see the world accurately, form mental images and recognize variations among objects.

It's good to know this. But the ancient Greeks - who considered music and mathematics the same discipline, to be studied together - had some notion that all types of knowledge are interrelated, and that music just might be an important key to all kinds of mental gyrations.

Indeed, Plato, perhaps the first systematic philosopher of statecraft as soulcraft, keenly recognized the immense and mysterious power of music. "The introduction of a new kind of music must be shunned as imperiling the whole state; since styles of music are never disturbed without affecting the most important political institutions," grumped the old avatar of benevolent despotism.

There have been other celebrated comments about music, of course, that didn't involve regression analysis. Here is one penned by the great bard, William Shakespeare:

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils.
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted."

James Fenimore Cooper, early in our history, deplored the fact that Americans then knew little of music, "one of the most elevating, innocent and refining human tastes, whose influence on the habits and morals of a people is of the most beneficial tendency."

The French anthropologist Claude Levi-Strauss believed that almost everybody relates to music but few can create it, "the musical creator is a being comparable to the gods, and music itself the supreme mystery of the science of man, a mystery that all the various disciplines come up against and which holds the key to their progress."

Scientist Lewis Thomas thought that "music is the effort we make to explain to ourselves how our brains work. We listen to Bach transfixed because this is listening to a human mind."

Can music make you smarter? Probably. Can it make you a better, more decent, more joyous and fulfilled human being? Certainly, if you let it.

Berry's World

Networks copy Fox's style

Ten years ago this month, the Fox network began broadcasting, and since then, prime-time entertainment television hasn't been the same. Though Fox has almost always trailed NBC, CBS and ABC in the overall ratings, it has been the most influential network of the four, blazing a trail of vulgarity and obnoxiousness that the others, fearful of losing a large chunk of their audience to the upstart web, soon followed. And that Fox has aimed its vomit at the young-adult audience makes its impact that much more disturbing.

A March 30 Los Angeles Times article on the network's anniversary notes that from the very beginning, Fox wanted to be different. Its guiding force was Fox Inc. chairman Barry Diller, who, as Rick Du Brow wrote in the Times in 1990, "virtually willed (it) into existence and epitomized its independent tone." Jamie Kellner, Fox's first president, recalled in the March Times piece that in the network's early days, he and programming head Garth Ancier told producers, "We'll let you do the show you want to do that the other networks won't let you do."

The show that Ron Leavitt and Michael Moyer wanted to produce turned out to be Fox's first weekly series, the gross Married... With Children, a deliberate lampoon of what Leavitt and Moyer considered saccharine family sitcoms. (Its working title was "Not the Cosbys.") In terms of popularity, Leavitt and Moyer's unsavory stew of sexual and toilet humor succeeded: A small following of brainless people was identified, but so loyal is this market that Fox still broadcasts new episodes of Married, and syndicated reruns are seen in dozens of cities. It certainly opened the door for Roseanne and other less successful but equally squalid efforts.

L. Brent Bozell

A few of Fox's subsequent shows, such as the comedies Martin and In Living Color, maintained the high raunch factor of Married. Beverly Hills, 90210 and Melrose Place upped the steam quotient. Instead of sex gags a la Married, 90210 and Melrose featured plain sex, sex and more sex - usually pre-marital, occasionally adulterous and hardly ever within marriage. Both of these soaps air during the former family hour, at 8 p.m. (7 p.m. Central and Mountain), another Fox "innovation." Fox also introduced the dysfunctional family cartoon The Simpsons and broke new ground, dismissing the concerns of millions of families with the violent X-Files. Always the approach is the same. Forget majority sentiment, and aim to capture the avant-garde minority.

This fare added up to what was, in effect, a Fox network personality, usually described with words like "envelope-pushing," "risk-taking," "edgy," "sexy," "innovative." (These are euphemisms for another word: "tasteless.") Fox changed the face of television marketing," according to Peter Chernin, the network's head programmer in the late '80s and early '90s. "They did an amazing job of creating a brand image. It's one of the major brands of the last 10 years, and it forced the other networks to do the same. 'Must See TV' on NBC came out of Fox."

Chernin is correct. Look at NBC's schedule for the fall of 1996, about six months before Fox went on the air. The programming included The Cosby Show, ALF, Matlock, Highway to Heaven, Family Ties, The Facts of Life and 227 - all family shows. It was a time when parents did not live in fear of what television was doing to their children. And today? NBC offers almost nothing for the family audience, even between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tune in to Friends, The Single Guy, Chicago Sons or any number of other shows and you'll be floored by the obscenities, vulgarities and sexual content. It's "Must See Garbage" and little more.

Meanwhile, back at the Fox, life is good. Many of the executives, producers, writers and actors are rolling in millions, the toast of the town at celebrity gigs. But working on the assumption that these people have a conscience, how must they feel about their work? Can Barry Diller, who left Fox in 1992, honestly tell himself he's proud of his accomplishments there? What about actors like David Faustino (Bud Bundy on Married... With Children), who's made a living playing a sexual pervert for ten years? Will he be proud to show these clips to his children? What of Katey Sagal (Peg Bundy), who has spent the past ten years publicly begging for sex? Or Ed O'Neill (Al Bundy), who has spent ten years being an idiot? Or Christina Applegate (Kelly Bundy), a slut?

Maybe it's best that they not have consciences after all.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, April 21, the 111th day of 1997. There are 254 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 21, 1918, Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the German ace known as the "Red Baron," was killed in action during World War I.

On this date:
In 1649, the Maryland Toleration Act, which provided for freedom of worship for all Christians, was passed by the Maryland assembly.

In 1789, John Adams was sworn in as the first vice president of the United States.

In 1836, Texans led by Sam Houston defeated the Mexicans at San Jacinto, assuring Texas independence.

In 1910, author Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, died in Redding, Conn.

In 1940, the quiz show that asked the "$64 question," Take It or Leave It, premiered on CBS Radio.

Sexual abstinence can be taught

The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., is usually the home of the wealthy and successful. But recently, the center played host to a crowd that doesn't get there much. Inner-city girls from the ages of nine to 18 gathered to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Best Friends, an abstinence program that works.

The conventional wisdom is familiar - it is simply not possible to teach kids to abstain from sex. Their hormones forbid it. Yes, indeed, hormones surge through kids these days as they never have before in the whole history of the human race.

Elayne Bennett, founder of Best Friends (and wife of former Education Secretary William Bennett) decided to challenge the conventional wisdom with a program for girls that would stress abstinence from sex and drugs, positive role models, and self-respect.

That's self-respect, not self-esteem - the current fad in public education. The self-esteem crowd hopes to boost the confidence of kids by teaching imaginary history of their ancestors' glorious empires. The Best Friends message is a bit closer to home: that each child has it within her grasp to achieve a good and even a noble life. Everything depends upon the decisions she makes. A casual observer might suppose that the Best Friends program is about dance, or camaraderie, or fitness, or knowledge, or community service. But the girls know that it's really about character. Nine-year-old Katie Pantoja of Kagel Elementary school in Milwaukee, Wis., told the Kennedy Center crowd that Best Friends means "enjoying being a child, not raising one."

Mona Charen

Best Friends provides a range of activities and instruction for girls starting in the fifth grade. They are taught how to distinguish a good friend from a destructive one, how to make a realistic plan for their futures and work toward goals, and, most of all, how to handle the delicate matter of boys.

Elayne Bennett and the other teachers in the program are not anti-male. But they approach the issue of sex with humor and detachment. The Best Friends curriculum includes a list of "lines" boys have been known to use to persuade girls into having sex. Here's a sample: "What are you afraid of? Don't be a baby." "You're awfully uptight. Sex is a great relaxer." "If you really loved me, you would."

Thus armed, the girls are ready when boys come importuning for sex. Some of the boys do leave when they discover that abstinence is the order of the day. But those who stay respect the girls' integrity. "I've never seen boys this age (13) act like such gentlemen," marveled Angela Rice, a Best Friends teacher in Washington, D.C., "as when they escorted the Best Friends girls to a concert."

Following its success in the capital, Best Friends expanded to 14 other cities including Newark, N.J., Milwaukee, Wis., and Charlotte, N.C.

According to a 1995 survey of the Best Friends program in Washington by David Rowberry, only four percent of Best Friends girls had had sex by age 15, compared with 63 percent of girls in the District of Columbia generally. Among girls who participate in Best Friends, only one percent become pregnant - compared with 26 percent of their peers in the district school system. A 1996 survey of 1,100 Best Friends girls nationwide found that 96 percent were drug free and sexually abstinent throughout their school years.

Alma Powell (wife of Colin), Renee Pouissant of ABC and Donna Britt, a Washington Post columnist, have been among the many successful black women have taken the time to visit Best Friends and answer questions about their lives (Powell is also on the organization's board). Bennett has even organized tours for the older girls to TV stations, ballet companies and newspapers to fire the girls' imaginations about possible careers.

This program works. It is demeaning to treat teenagers as mere bundles of hormones unable to control themselves. Best Friends regards these girls as what they are: human beings who need clear guidance but who possess a divine spark and an infinite capacity for good. In the words of Yasmin Rice, a Best Friends graduate, "When the time comes for me to leave home, I want my parents to say, 'I wonder what my daughter will become?' not 'What will become of my daughter?'"

New immigration law is fair and firm

"No Human Being is Illegal."
"We Want Amnesty Now!"
So read the placards carried by demonstrators in Newark, N.J. They were protesting the new immigration reform law, which took effect last week. Similar rallies took place in other cities throughout the country.

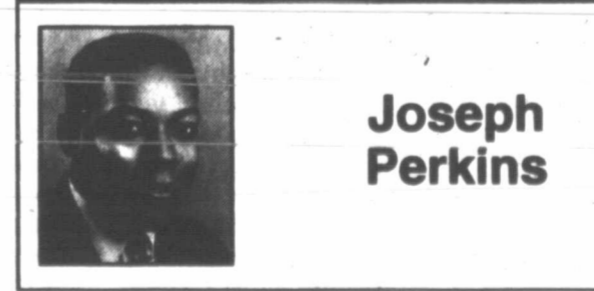

These placards reveal the mind-set of immigrant advocacy groups. They would have the United States adapt a de facto "open border" policy. In other words, once foreigners set foot on U.S. soil - legally or illegally - they would be entitled to stay forever.

Moreover, they would be entitled to same rights and benefits as U.S. citizens. The very day their plane landed in a U.S. airport, their boat docked in a U.S. harbor or their car crossed the U.S. border, they would be eligible for food stamps, Medicare, Supplemental Security Income and other government benefits, though they'd paid absolutely no American taxes.

Well, Congress did not feel that the United States should be such a benevolent host. So last fall, lawmakers enacted immigration reforms that not only crack down on illegal immigration, but also curb some of the abuses in legal immigration.

Under terms of the new law, the nation's five million illegal immigrants have six months to get legal; otherwise they must leave the United States and, thereafter, apply for legal admittance. If they remain illegal in this country after Sept. 30, then they can be deported and barred from returning for at least three years.

The new law also requires that the U.S. sponsors of legal immigrants (usually relatives) uphold their sworn commitment to economically support those immigrants once they arrive in this country. Now, sponsors often bring family members to the United States, promising that they will not become a "public charge," then renege on that promise, costing taxpayers billions of dollars a year in benefits to noncitizens.

Immigrant advocacy groups argue that these and other provisions of the immigration reform law are Draconian; that they will pose a hardship to noncitizens. And since they failed to dissuade Congress from passing the law, they are trying to get the courts to delay implementation of certain provisions, or strike them down.

Indeed lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union and the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights recently persuaded U.S. District Court Judge Emmet Sullivan to order a four day stay in enforcement of the new reform measures. He was promptly overturned by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C.

Now the ACLU and the Lawyers' Committee are filing another lawsuit challenging the immigrants law's provisions concerning immigrants arriving in this country with false or no documents, claiming political asylum. They warn that refugees will be sent back to their homelands to face "possible death and persecution."

But this is just more disinformation by the foes of immigration reform. It's no more true than wild claims that the five million illegal immigrants in the country are in danger of immediate deportation. Or that the several hundred thousand legal immigrants who are now on the public dole, receiving such benefits as SSI and Medicaid, are subject to immediate cut-off. The reality is that the new immigration reform law is far from Draconian. The United States will continue to admit a half-million or so legal immigrants a year, more than any other nation on earth. American taxpayers will continue to spend more than $1 billion a year subsidizing noncitizens.

The most dramatic change will be in the government's treatment of illegal immigrants. No longer will hundreds of thousands of foreign nationals be able to steal across the U.S. border every year, with no danger of punishment if apprehended.

Now, there will be consequences for breaking U.S. immigration laws. If illegals are caught, they not only will be returned to the country from whence they came, they may also be barred from re-entering the United States for a period of years.

The point is to send a message to those who would immigrate to this country: Come one, come all. But come legally.

Air Force likely finds missing warplane

EAGLE, Colo. (AP) — Eighteen days after an Air Force warplane broke formation and disappeared over Arizona, scraps of paper on a 2-mile high peak in Colorado led a helicopter crew to the plane's apparent crash site.

The paper was spotted first among wreckage that looks to be the missing A-10 Thunderbolt, officials said. There was no sign of the 32-year-old pilot, Capt. Craig Button, who could have ejected without the Air Force's knowledge.

High winds prevented a ground crew from being sent in immediately to examine the wreckage, stuck in the snow high above old gold and silver mines.

Maj. Gen. Nels Running, search commander, said a special helicopter that can withstand high wind was to be flown in today. The hope is to lower a four-person recovery team on the site today.

The plane has been missing since April 2, when Button took off from a Tucson, Ariz., base on a routine training mission and veered north, heading to Colorado with four bombs aboard.

An Army National Guard helicopter crew spotted the wreckage while hovering above an unnamed steep cliff near New York Mountain and Gold Dust Peak, 15 miles southwest of Vail.

A close-up look revealed pieces of gray painted metal that could have been from the plane's interior and several smaller pieces of metal, Running said. Yellow-green paint used as an anti-corrosion coating inside the airplane was also visible.

Helicopter pilots Richard Rugg and Dale Jensen, both chief warrant officers were surprised at what they saw.

"The first thing we saw was just a couple pieces of paper," said Rugg, who added it was unusual to see that at such a high altitude. "Then something just caught my eye."

Dryer, calmer weather was expected later today, but possible storms threatened to prevent the search from taking place. Running said it could take several days to do a thorough search.

Rugg and Jensen battled winds to position their Huey within 30 feet of the site after spotting paper. A-10 pilot Capt. Chuck Mitchell was flown by in a helicopter to verify that it was a Thunderbolt.

Families want loved ones rescued from sect

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Gerald Shaw is among a growing number of people who are turning to the courts in hopes of extracting their loved ones from a religious sect near here known as the House of Yahweh.

When Shaw saw his eight-year-old daughter three months ago, her hair was cropped, her clothes shabbier and her name had become Hawkins.

"I started crying when I learned that," the Boston accountant told the Abilene Reporter-News, "and then I wanted to put my fist through the wall."

"They've taken my little girl's identity. She treated me like one of the unclean, an enemy. God knows how she'll treat me next time."

The girl and her mother, who left Shaw a year ago, changed their last names to Hawkins like more than 250 others have done in Taylor County alone. That is the last name of the sect's "pastor and overseer," Yisryal Hawkins, formerly Buffalo Bill Hawkins when he was an Abilene policeman.

Shaw regrets giving his wife custody of their daughter now that he knows more about the House of Yahweh, and he's seeking to reverse that decision. But like many others, he's learning courts are reluctant to get involved.

His attorney has told him judges are unwilling to challenge a religious preference just because it is unusual.

Shaw and others say the name changes are plenty of cause to worry.

"If he can make them change their names, what else can he make them do?" Shaw said.

A Michigan woman trying to win custody of her seven-year-old sister said her mother, a physician, tried to talk a colleague out of joining the House of Yahweh but ended up joining the sect herself.

Her sister has been forced to go along with it all, she said, and complains that people are mean to her, preach to her about "death and destruction" and make her drink wine.

"That was like the last straw for me," the woman said. "She just doesn't want to be around them."

No one answered the telephone at a residential listing for Yisryal Hawkins or the House of Yahweh late Sunday. The newspaper said leaders of the sect refuse to return telephone calls to reporters.

Philip Arnn of the cult-watch group Watchman Fellowship in Arlington has researched Hawkins and the House of Yahweh.

"This man (Hawkins) has manipulated lives from Washington State to New York State," he said. "People put their houses up for sale and plan to move to Abilene, and they're taking their children with them."

Cops Made Out To Be Bad Can't Do Kids Any Good

DEAR ABBY: I am a police officer who spends many hours in local school programs trying to get children to trust police officers. It breaks my heart and angers me to hear an adult tell a child, "See that officer? If you don't behave, he's going to put you in jail."

The last time I heard a mother say this, she was talking to her 3-year-old son! This child then walked up to me almost in tears and asked, "Are you really going to put me to jail?"

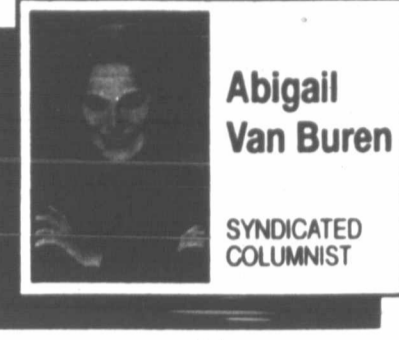

That form of "discipline" is not fair to us or to the child. First of all, it's lying to the child. And someday if the child should get lost he will think, "I can't ask a police officer for help because he will put me in jail—Mommy and Daddy said he would."

Law enforcement officers are there to help parents and children, but parents using us as threats thwart our efforts to protect these little ones. Please, parents, do not alienate your children from us.

RICHARD K. TEAR,
BALCH SPRINGS, TEXAS

DEAR OFFICER TEAR: I have published a number of such letters in the past, but this important message cannot be repeated too often.

Parents, it is essential that children be taught to respect the law and trust its officers, because not only do they fight crime, they also offer aid in times of crisis.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: I have enjoyed your columns for many years but have never written to you before.

For a long time I have been concerned and embarrassed because someone in my family, whom I love very much, is a habitual liar. No matter what we say or do, he can't stop lying. He has told so many outrageous stories about the family that he has been disowned many times, but then given a second, third, fourth chance, ad infinitum. Please advise on what might help. Please don't print my name or town.

CARING IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR CARING: When people lie compulsively, low self-esteem is often the root of the problem. Your family member may need the help of a psychologist to determine the cause of the problem and eliminate this destructive compulsion. I have been told that antidepressants are somewhat effective, but the cure is psychotherapy.

Show him this column and offer your support if he agrees to seek professional help. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the proud parents of five children, ages 8, 5, 3, and twins who are nearly a year old. My dilemma begins when I take my children shopping. Abby, you wouldn't believe some of the comments I get: "You sure have your hands full!" "I wouldn't want to pay your grocery bills." "Better you than me." "Lady, you have too many kids!"

I'm beginning to dislike going shopping, and now become automatically defensive if someone approaches me.

My question is, should I respond to these insensitive people? If so, what do I say? I don't want to be rude, but I can't tell you how fed up I am with strangers minding my business. Yes, occasionally there is a good comment, but the negative greatly outweighs the positive.

SEETHING IN OAKDALE, CONN.

DEAR SEETHING: It would be the better part of wisdom to just smile and keep walking.

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This might not be the right day to sort out complicated financial matters. Postpone them until you're more attuned to money matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your independence will be most important to you today, so take care to avoid individuals

HOCKEY

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Seemingly helpless against Andy Moog and Dallas' smothering defense for the first 56 minutes, the Edmonton Oilers suddenly could do no wrong to the amazement of the confused Stars.

Down 3-0 late in the third period Sunday night, the Oilers tied it on goals by Doug Weight, Andrei Kovalenko and Mike Grier and skated off with a 4-3 victory on Kelly Buchberger's goal at 9:15 of overtime.

"The guys never quit to the bitter end," Buchberger said. "Dallas came out quick and really took it to us for most of the game, but we have a young team that never says die and that showed tonight."

Weight swiped a backhand by Moog at 16:00, Kovalenko snapped a shot through the goalie's pads on a power play at 17:44, and Grier tied it just 12 seconds later, tipping Dan McGillis' shot past the screened goalie.

BASKETBALL

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Houston Rockets, two-time NBA champions in the '90s, have been here before. Rookie guard Matt Maloney has not.

So while his Rockets teammates appeared more relieved than excited about their 103-99 season-ending victory Sunday over the San Antonio Spurs, Maloney treated the occasion as a dress rehearsal for his first postseason as a pro.

"It's been something I've been trying to do for about the last month and a half, staying focused and playing each game like it was a playoff game," he said.

Maloney, who finished Sunday's game with 14 points and four assists, hit four second-half 3-pointers that helped the Rockets put the tough contest away.

"I had a feeling it wouldn't be easy today," said Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich, whose team trailed 23-21 after the first quarter. "We've been in this position before and failed. It was just mind over matter late in the game."

"Now we start from zero." Houston wrapped up home-court advantage through at least the first two rounds of the playoffs. The Rockets are the third seed in the Western Conference, but would have home court advantage against Pacific Division champion Seattle in the second round because they won the season series 3-1.

First, though, Houston must get past playoff newcomer Minnesota, which the Rockets swept in four regular-season games.

The series that begins Thursday in Houston presents an intriguing challenge for Maloney, who will be matched up against fellow rookie Stephon Marbury of the Timberwolves.

"Anytime you're at this level, you'll be playing against a good player," Maloney said. "But Stephon is a special player."

Sunday's loss ended the Spurs' worst season in its 21 years as an NBA franchise.

Longhorns' Mackovic stresses defense

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas managed to win the first Big 12 football championship with a defense that finished 86th nationally against the run and 65th in total defense.

Those facts astound coach John Mackovic.

"It's an unbelievable tribute to our team because that just doesn't happen," Mackovic said. "But we found a way to win."

To remedy the situation, Texas has changed from a 3-4 to a 4-3 defense under new coordinator Bobby Jack Wright, who was promoted from special teams coach after Gary Darnell took the head coaching job at Western Michigan.

But the problem won't be up front, where strong performances by freshmen at linebacker and on the line last year gave the Longhorns reason for hope.

The problem is in the secondary, where all four starters have graduated, including cornerback Bryant Westbrook, who was taken by Detroit in the first round of the NFL draft.

But the corners are up for grabs. In fact, former halfback Chris Butcher, who averaged 4.7 yards per carry, has been converted to a corner. And a starter could well emerge from a group including senior Quinton Wallace, junior Tony Holmes — both recovering from injuries — or from three freshman recruits.

"Looking ahead, our first 10 days of the training camp will be real important to see where the rookies fit in," Mackovic said. "Several of the newcomers will be counted on to contribute right away."

The front seven, however, give Mackovic reason for excitement. Defensive lineman Cedric Woodard, Will Goodloe, Casey Hampton and linebacker Aaron Humphrey — all freshmen last season — will be the heart and soul of the Texas defense next year.

"We moved Aaron Humphrey to the middle linebacker spot and he showed immediately that he could play there," Mackovic said. "I think Aaron is the best of our linebackers, so we need to position him in the position that is best for him and build around that."

With Hampton, Woodard, Goodloe, junior Gray Mosier, senior Chris Akins and the arrival of 6-foot-6, 330-pound freshman Leonard Davis, Texas will have a line filled with "big physical players who can really play with a lot of athletic ability," Mackovic said. Tuning up the run defense and changing "the perception of satisfaction within our defense" were the top priorities in spring practice, Mackovic said.

"We had several tackles for loss in the final scrimmages and we're getting a great deal of penetration," Mackovic said.

"I think there were times in the past years where defensively we were satisfied to hold teams to short gains when we could have thrown them for losses."

On offense, the strengths are clearly on the line, at quarterback and running back.

Mackovic said quarterback James Brown has evolved into a well-rounded leader.

"At first, James would go back and if something was open, great, if not, he would take off," Mackovic said. "Then he went through a period where he was pushing himself to be a passer. Now, I think he's at a point where he knows he can be all of that and use it all together."

On Ricky Williams, who was converted from fullback to halfback, Mackovic said, "He has shown a great ability to run the ball and we can certainly use him as a pass receiver at the halfback spot."

The concern is at receiver. With the graduation of wideouts Mike Adams and Matt Davis as well as All-America tight end Pat Fitzgerald, there will be new faces in the starting lineup.

Wideouts Wane McGarity and Dustin Armstrong, the projected starters, missed the spring with injuries.

"After Wane McGarity, we are really young (at receiver)," Mackovic said.

Rangers hammer Blue Jays

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When Texas' Dean Palmer gets hot, there might not be a tougher out in baseball.

Warning to the Detroit Tigers, who face the Rangers tonight: Palmer is heating up.

Palmer hit a grand slam and a solo home run Sunday as the Texas Rangers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 10-5. Palmer now has four homers this year, all in the last four games.

He started the year slowly while trying to fill in for Juan Gonzalez as Texas' cleanup hitter. Since being bumped down to fifth last Monday, he's hit .346 with a slugging percentage of .885 and nine RBIs.

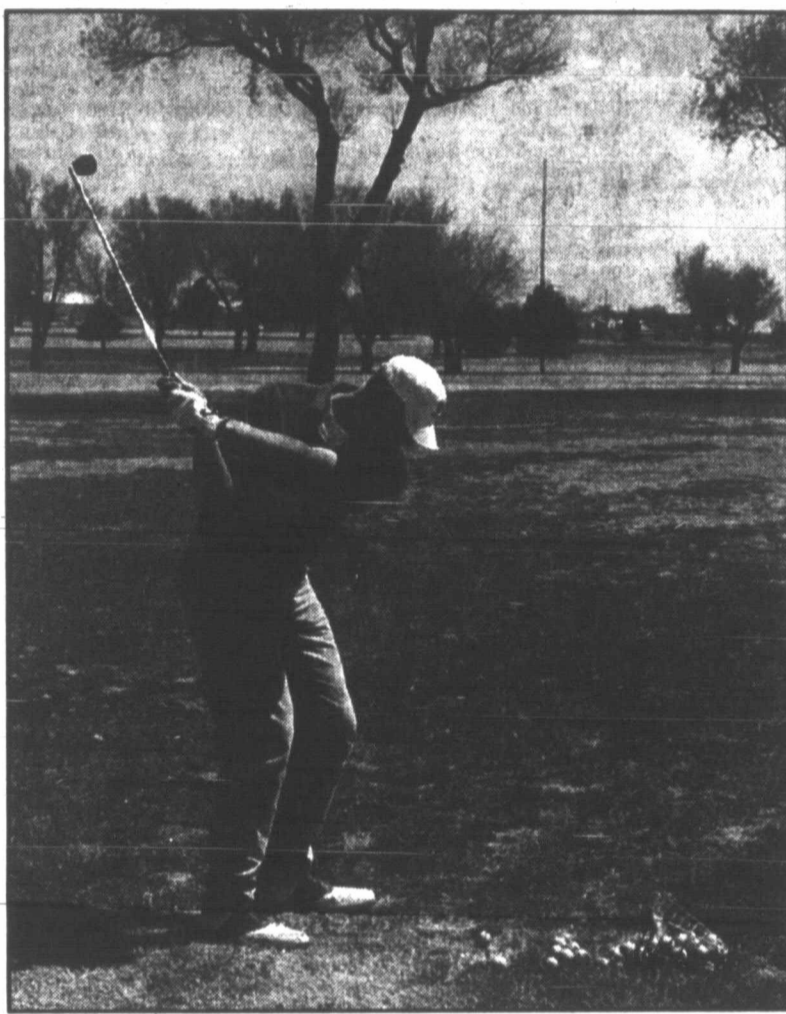

"The last few days I've been feeling better," Palmer said. "Hopefully I can get into a groove and keep it up."

Last year, Palmer had two-homer games on April 19 and 21 during a season-opening .325 streak. He hit .455 over 18 games in June and .328 over another 18 games in July.

"I've always been kind of streaky," said Palmer, whose two-homer game Sunday was the 11th of his career. "That's something I'd like to change. I'd like to become more consistent."

The rest of Texas' lineup had been slumping all year until Sunday's eruption of 10 runs.

Pampa's Mike Smith gets in some practice at the PCC course last week before the Region 1-4A Tournament, which teed off today in San Angelo. Both the Pampa boys' and girls' teams are entered in regionals. The top two teams and top two individuals will play in state tournaments in two weeks. Smith tied for second-place medalist in District 1-4A.

Groom sends slew of athletes to Region 4-A spring contests

GROOM — Groom will be well-represented at regionals this week in three spring sports.

Groom sends six athletes to the Region 1-1A Tennis Tournament, which begins today at South Plains College in Levelland. Heading the list is District 4-A champion Jessica Friemel in girls' singles and district runnerup Brad Sustaie in boys' singles. Daniel Treadwell-Josh Evenson and Toby Burgin-Evan Crowell are participating in boys' doubles.

Both the Groom boys' and girls' teams are entered in the regional 1A golf tournament, which is Wednesday and Thursday with the boys playing at Sundown and the girls at Levelland.

Girls' team members are Maggie Thomas, Brenda Field, Tami Ashford and Cari Davis. Thomas was the district medalist.

Boys' team members are Josh Evenson, Caleb Pool, Sam Thomas, Toby Burgin and Sean Crowell.

Groom sends 10 athletes to the regional track meet Friday and Saturday, also in Levelland. They include Alberto Vega, Josian Scott, Justin Ritter, Trae Kepley, Abdon Carrillo, Othon Carrillo, Brad Sustaie, Sean Crowell, Jason Prather and Dusty Crump.

Ritter is entered in five events for the Tigers. Groom has two relays teams entered, the 400-meter relay (Sustaie, O. Carrillo, A. Carrillo, and Crowell), and the 1600-meter relay (O. Carrillo, A. Carrillo, Vega and Ritter).

Stephanie Ollinger, Mary Huttsell, Karen Conrad, Sara Britten, Jessica Kepley and Carrie Davis represent the Tigerettes' track team.

All six girls make up the 800-meter relay and the 400-relay teams.

Ollinger, Huttsell, Conrad and Britten are on the 400-relay team.

Lone Star Park turns into Upset City for trainer, jockey

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — Trainer Bob Baffert and jockey David Flores made two $250,000 races at Lone Star Park their own personal daily double.

In the inaugural $250,000 Texas Mile, Flores rode Isittingood to an upset victory over Eclipse Award winner Skip Away.

Then Kentucky Derby hopeful Anet outlasted Frisk Me Now and Wild Wonder to win the $250,000 Lone Star Derby for 3-year-olds.

"I'll cherish this day," said Baffert. "It's nice to have these two wins and be a part of history at Lone Star Park."

Isittingood, owned by Terry

Henn and Michael Pegram, drew away to a wire-to-wire three-length finish over long-shot Spiritbound with Skip Away, last year's 3-year-old champion and Eclipse Award winner, coming in third.

The winner, coming off a runner-up performance to Atticus in the Oaklawn Handicap on April 5, paid $5.40, $3.60 and $2.10.

"I kept looking for Skip Away," Flores said. "But when I found him, I saw he wasn't dangerous. My horse had plenty of gas. He was responding like a good car."

Isittingood won in a quick 1:34 2-5 over the mile on Lone Star Park's much-acclaimed springy surface.

Pegram said his horse's next race would probably be at the Pimlico Special.

"We decided to run against Skip Away when they raised the purse to $250,000," Pegram said. "When this horse is on his game, he's tough to beat."

Shane Sellers, jockey on Skip Away, said: "I could see we were in trouble halfway through the race. He wasn't gobbling horses up and we just couldn't make up any ground."

Speed horse Anet, owned by Donald Dizney, won the 1 1-16 mile Lone Star Derby by 2 1/4 lengths after outdueling Frisk Me Now, Holzmeister and Wild Wonder down the stretch. The winning time was 1:40 4-5 and paid $7.80, $4 and $3.40.

Dizney and Baffert will ship Anet to Churchill Downs and will enter him in the Kentucky Derby if the horse responds well.

"We'll see how he comes out of this race, and if he's not knocked out we'll enter him in the Derby," Baffert said. "If he's training up to it like he trained for this race, then I would say definitely, yes, to the Derby. He was running away from the end and Frisk Me Now had been running against good Florida horses. He doesn't get tired. He's amazing."

"I've got Derby fever," Dizney said. "But Bob will decide if we run."

Baffert said "this is a tough little peanut of a horse. He's not who once guided the Miami Hurricanes to a national title, backed his words with action. He selected Hurricanes wideout Yatil Green with his first choice.

Joining the party was Seattle coach Dennis Erickson, who won two championships with the Hurricanes. He traded up to No. 6 overall to get Walter Jones, a tackle from Florida State. Erickson's seventh-rounder was defensive back Carlos Jones of Miami.

"He's got to come in and play," Erickson said of the inexperienced Jones.

The Florida feast began with the fourth pick, after massive tackle Orlando Pace of Ohio State went first overall to St. Louis, followed by defensive tackle Darrell Russell of Southern California (Oakland) and Ohio State cornerback Shawn Springs (Seattle).

Baltimore went for Seminoles DE Peter Boulware and, after Detroit grabbed Texas cornerback Bryant Westbrook, Seattle drafted Jones.

Then came Florida wideout Ike Hilliard, who went to the New York Giants, a team that hasn't had a game-breaking receiver in two decades.

Zybach improved his record to 3-2.

Fort Elliott won the second game, 4-2, with Donnie Barr (4-2) picking up the mound win. Barr also had a home run and two RBIs.

The Cougars improved their record to 8-5. The Cougars host Hartley at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

PAMPA — It could be the final week of the baseball season for the Pampa Harvesters, who visit Randall to play the second-place Raiders at 4:30 today.

The Harvesters finish the regular season with four games on the schedule.

The Harvesters, 3-5 in District 1-4A, need to win every one of them to have a shot at the playoffs.

Sunshine rains down on this year's NFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The power source in college football has become the main pool of talent for NFL teams.

If this year's draft proved anything, it was that Florida is the place to turn to stock a roster. Nine of the first 18 choices came from either national champion Florida, Florida State or Miami. Overall, 19 picks were from those schools.

"We've seen it coming," Tampa Bay Buccaneers general manager Rich McKay said. "It's not as if that's something that happened this year and not in years past. I think in the last five to seven years Florida has become the place."

McKay's first two choices, 12th and 16th overall, were running back Warrick Dunn of FSU and wide receiver Reidel Anthony of Florida. At one point in the opening round, three of four picks were from Florida schools. A bit later in the round, an astounding six of seven came from them.

"When you get a football player from one of those three schools, you're going to get one of the better football players in the United States," Miami Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson said. Johnson, Dizney said Baffert predicted the victory over Frisk Me Now, who had won the Nutcheson Stakes and the Flamingo Stakes.

"He called me and told me I had a winner," Dizney said. "But I didn't believe him and I didn't bet the horse."

Anet was a nine-length winner in the Rushway Stakes at Turfway Park in late March.

"We didn't have it," Robert Durso, trainer for Frisk Me Now, said. "We may go to the Preakness from here."

A crowd of 24,200 attended the first Sunday of racing at Lone Star and had an on-track handle of $1,692,090.

WEATHERFORD, Okla. — Deena Michelle Bridges of Pampa was among 88 high school seniors attending the second of five freshmen orientation clinics April 11 at Southwestern Oklahoma State University at Weatherford.

A total of 311 high school seniors have enrolled at Southwestern for the 1997 fall semester with three more clinics scheduled April 23, June 6 and Aug. 15 respectively.

At the clinics, students spend the day on campus, meet individually with academic advisors and enroll in classes for the 1997 fall semester. The students, along with parents, hear presentations about services and activities at the university.

PLAINVIEW — Shanna Jameson, a Pampa High School student of Pampa, Texas, and Jennifer Light and Debra Williams, both Miami High School students of Miami, Texas, recently attended Wayland Baptist University's "Big Weekend." More than 350 students participated in the weekend's events.

The weekend began with a fast paced game of tag using laser technology called Laserstorm.

The Pioneer Baseball team played a double header with Southern Nazarene in which Wayland triumphed in both of the games in five innings.

Students packed into the Harral Auditorium for the Rebecca St. James "It's All About God" Concert. Directly following the concert students were invited to attend a Late Night Breakfast served by faculty and staff members. A movie was scheduled after the meal.

The students also attended seminars for financial aid, admissions and student activities. Pioneer Fest was held in the cafeteria during lunch to introduce the prospective students to Wayland's different organizations. Tryouts were held for various teams and organizations.

Pampa native Tracy Bruton will travel and perform with Hardin-Simmons University School of Music's Concert Choir on a seven-city, two state tour, April 15-20.

The choir will be in concert on April 21 at 8 p.m. in the Woodward-Dellis recital hall. The tour will include Corsicana, Texas, Alexandria, La., Lake Charles, La., Nederland, Clear Lake and Houston.

AUSTIN — Alexander Rapstine, a 1995 White Deer High School graduate and son of Doug and Jennifer Rapstine of White Deer, was inducted into Gamma Beta Phi on March 2. Rapstine is a student at the University of Texas majoring in radio, television and film.

To be eligible for the national honor society, sophomore students must carry at least twelve or more semester hours and rank in the top 15 percent of the student body.

Rapstine has also been invited to join the National Society of Collegiate Scholars at U.T. This group was organized to recognize high ranking first and second year students and to give them the opportunity to be involved in community service, develop leadership skills and facilitate special workshops for high school juniors and seniors.

An induction ceremony will be held April 23 on campus.

Nation briefs

Nightmare comes true in town after missing boy found

BEAUMONT, Calif. (AP) — Two trees in the front yard of Anthony Martinez still bore yellow ribbons of hope the day after the body of the ten-year-old boy was found below circling vultures.

With the boy's mother and stepfather secluded inside their home Sunday, police vowed to catch the man who offered Anthony a dollar to help find his cat and then killed him, they say.

The boy's nude body was found Saturday half-buried near the desert of Berdoo Canyon, 90 miles east of Beaumont, more than two weeks after he was kidnapped at knife-point. His hands and feet had been duct-taped together.

The fourth-grader was grabbed in a Beaumont alley April 4 as he played with his younger brother and two friends. The man had pulled up in a car saying he needed help finding his cat.

Authorities did not give a cause of death and police and sheriff's officials wouldn't discuss whether there were signs of trauma on the body.

Boy killed, six others injured as roller coaster 'malfunctions'

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Amusement park officials say a roller coaster was inspected just two weeks before an accident that killed a 14-year-old boy and injured six others.

One of the cars on The Wildcat was being pulled to the top of an incline Sunday night when, just before reaching the crest, it slid 45 feet back down the track and collided with another car, said

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — Authorities were attempting today to determine if the body of a girl found in a field matches the description of a 12-year-old Friendswood girl missing since April 3.

Laura Kate Smither has not been seen since that morning when she left her home for what she said was a jog.

The gruesome discovery was made Sunday afternoon by a man and his son training a dog in the field.

Witnesses said the boy who died was in the front car. He was ejected, hitting his head on one of the ride's metal bars.

Bell's Amusement Park was packed as visitors enjoyed a 25-cent-per-ride promotion. The park remained open after the accident.

The ride was inspected two weeks ago by the Oklahoma Department of Labor, park president Robert Bell III said. He said all rides are inspected once a year.

Two 14-year-old boys were in serious condition today at St. Francis Hospital, spokeswoman Lisa Ingram said. A father, two of his daughters and another young girl who was a family friend were treated and released.

Sprint cutting international telephone rates
ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Sprint is set to lower weekend rates for telephone calls abroad as consumers benefit from the elimination of trade barriers and increased traffic on the international network, USA Today reported today.

Sprint's announcement today will cut rates to as low as 10 cents per minute on the weekend, making a call to England as cheap as a domestic call, according to the report. Sprint had been charging 45 cents a minute.

Weekend calls to Germany, Italy and France will fall to 30 cents a minute, from 45 cents now.

Weekday rates are higher.

AT&T and MCI charge 12 cents a minute for calls to Britain, seven days a week, 24 hours a day. All three carriers impose a $3 monthly fee for discount rates.

Goodyear workers go on strike

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — About 12,000 striking workers have set up picket lines in seven states outside plants of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., the largest tire-maker in North America.

Discussions between Goodyear and the United Steelworkers of America broke down late Saturday night just before the contract expired at midnight, said union spokesman Curt Brown.

The company and the union agreed to resume talks today in Cincinnati. Goodyear has vowed to continue operations at its plants.

The first strike against the Akron-based company since 1976 involves negotiations on a new three-year contract that began March 6.

Contract issues include wages and benefits, but the union also wants all contracts covering Goodyear's 20,000 union employees to expire at the same time. The average Goodyear production worker makes about $18 an hour.

Mike Runyon, a Goodyear worker for 14 years in Lincoln, Neb., said he and his fellow 1,700 union workers were prepared for the long haul.

"All we're asking for is to be treated fairly and equitably like any U.S. worker, and to enjoy a standard of living that any American worker should enjoy," he said.

The union has targeted Goodyear and its Kelly-Springfield Tire & Rubber Co. as a basis of this year's negotiations with all its tire and rubber industry labor contracts.

Police compare body with description of missing girl cited unidentified sources as saying the body was that of a white girl between ages 7 and 15. Laura is white.

The body was found partially submerged in a retention pond at the mouth of a metal culvert, Pasadena police Sgt. Kelly Payne said.

Dallas aquarium's dolphin plan sparks debate

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas World Aquarium's proposal to capture and display threatened Amazon river dolphins has touched off an international outcry.

U.S. officials are considering a plan by the combination aquarium-restaurant in downtown Dallas to display four of the South American mammals, which have a poor record of surviving in captivity.

The Dallas World Aquarium says the project would educate the public and let scientists study the dolphins in a controlled environment.

"Ultimately, the goal of this ... program is to educate as many people as possible about the importance of the rain forest ecosystem and to help instill in them an awareness for the need to preserve and conserve the world's resources," aquarium owner Daryl Richardson said in a statement.

At least 13 groups or individuals from the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Colombia and Finland have written to the aquarium to protest the plan to include Amazon river dolphins. They say they'll fight the aquarium's permit application that's before the National Marine Fisheries Service.

"I don't think you can learn much about dolphins in the wild by studying them in downtown Dallas," said Mark Berman of the Earth Island Institute, a San Francisco-based environmental group.

"The capture methods are violent and inhumane," Berman wrote to Richardson. "The targeted cetaceans are chased by a boat, separated from their families, netted and dragged against their will onto the boat."

"This is done repeatedly until the 'ideal' animal is captured, and many times individuals are drowned or die of capture shock. This is not protection of a threatened or endangered species, but is only a means to satisfy human greed."

The fisheries service will open a 30-day public comment period once the application is in order, said spokesman Gordon Helm.

It is then up to service officials whether to issue a permit to the facility under the Marine Mammal Protection Act.
