Texas Professor Disappears on Lake Michigan Boat

WIFE DID NOT KNOW HE WAS NOT IN WACO

Son of R. H. Wilson With Church in Amarillo

Only a Letter Gave Clue To Man's Relatives

(By The Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, July 21.—Disappearance of Prof. R. N. Wilson, 55 years old, Texas school teacher, from a lake steamer somewhere between Holland, Mich., and Chicago still baffled police today.

The mystery was given an added touch when it was learned that Wilson's wife did not even know that he was in this part of the country.

Wilson's disappearance became known when the boat docked here yesterday without the professor's claiming valuables he had left with the ship's purser.

Mrs. Wilson, who is visiting in Amarillo, said she had received a letter from her husband three days ago, mailed from Waco. She had no intimation that he was away from that city.

Prof. Wilson's son, H. G. Wilson, lives in Amarillo and is educational director of the Central Presbyterian church. The teacher left Waco July 15. He boarded the steamer Puritan and left with the purser a gold watch and $30 in currency, and an envelope addressed to his wife at Amarillo. The failure of Wilson to claim the valuables resulted in the discovery that his berth had not been occupied.

Prof. Wilson attended Baylor university, and later taught in Kentucky and Texas schools. He has not completed plans for his next teaching position, but was considering Bryan.

Joe Sneathen Hurt When Truck Is Forced Off Road

While near Miami yesterday afternoon, the Wright Bakery truck driven by Joe Sneathen was crowded off the road by a large car and turned over the bluff. Sneathen was rendered unconscious for some time, and his little son, who was with him, was cut.

Sneathen was taken into Miami for treatment and later brought to Pampa. He was cut and bruised about the body and received severe head injuries. His little son was cut and bruised, but not seriously.

The accident occurred about 4 o'clock and it was believed at the time that someone had run into the bakery truck. The sheriff here was notified. A car, answering the description of the last car seen to pass the Pampa truck before the accident, was held here, but when Sneathen became conscious he told Miami authorities that he had not been hit. The car held here was allowed to proceed.

At a meeting of the city council last night it was decided to extend the city's contract with the McCall Engineering company to continue its work on the installation of the new water system for which the bonds were voted Tuesday.

H. C. McCall is in the city and this necessary material to start the extension work.

City Engineer A. H. Doucette expects the work to be finished in about two months' time, when water will be adequate to supply all parts of the city. New fire plugs will be added which will lower the fire hazards in Pampa.

This plan will prevent delays.

The Ranger is an officer of long experience and is one of the few state officers left in the neighboring city. The grand jury has been called in special session to investigate the case.

Bates was not injured, with the exception of receiving a blackened eye.

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, July 21.—The first hearing of the suit for divorce brought by Doris Stevens, woman suffrage leader, against Dudley Field Malone, international attorney, was held today before a court tribunal of the Seine department.

The hearing came as a surprise, because a week ago Miss Stevens flatly denied that she had filed suit against her husband.

Scout Troops To Be Formed Soon; To Train Leaders

Curry, chairman of the activities committee, has called his workers together for a meeting this afternoon to discuss plans for launching a community boys' training conference in Pampa for fathers and those interested in Boy Scout work. This school will be to train those who are willing to take a part in Scout work as Scout patrol leaders, assistants, and executives.

There is a wide field here for Scout work and much interest is being taken by the boys of Scout age in Pampa. Tom Nelson, Panhandle area executive, is in the city and will form the troops before leaving here for other fields.

Farm Crops Require Varying Labor Hours

A government study of crop labor reveals that the corn belt, where large machines are used on level fields, can produce a bushel of corn with about one-half hour of labor. Certain southern states require 2.5 hours.

Tobacco usually requires more labor per acre than any other major crop grown in the United States. An acre of Burley, yielding from 800 to 1,000 pounds, requires from 350 to 400 hours of labor from planting to marketing. Eastern cotton averages from 100 to 125 hours of labor per acre, whereas 35 to 40 hours suffice in western Texas.

It normally takes 65 to 100 hours to produce an acre of potatoes. In the Pacific Northwest wheat requires 0.3 hours of labor per acre, and, in some of the southern states, 2.5 hours.

BLOODY SHIRT ONLY CLUE IN STRANGE CASE

Hearing Brings Out Facts On Youth's Absence

CAR HAS ALSO DISAPPEARED

Companions Believed "Hotshot" Mayes Harmed

A bloody shirt, nearly shredded in places by a sharp instrument, provides either a very positive or a very misleading clue to the fate of W. H. "Hotshot" Mayes, who disappeared from the Wilcox off pool last week.

Finding of the shirt in a tub on the premises of a man with whom Mayes is said to have been seen on the day preceding his mysterious disappearance has caused an energetic renewal of the search made early this week.

At a hearing held here late yesterday in the office of I. S. Jameson, justice of the peace, neighbors and acquaintances of the young man gave evidence which has spurred officers to an investigation based upon the assumption that Mayes may have been either killed or badly injured. They would like to know where Mayes' parents live, and where, if the young man should be scared away from here by assailants, would he likely go. They would hold for questioning the man with whom Mayes was last seen, and who, neighbors told in the hearing, left on the same night that Mayes disappeared.

Mayes' car left with him, and foul play was not as apparent on his disappearance as it now seems since his shirt, badly slashed as if with a knife, was identified as the one he wore which last seen.

Whether the case will be solved by the finding of the missing man unharmed, or will develop into a nationwide search will soon be determined. Mayes has a Pure Oil company check and other money awaiting his appearance. Men with whom he formerly roomed, feel sure that the young man's disappearance is forced, and are assisting officers in every way possible to solve the mystery.

"Double Threat" Fists Have Punch

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—There is a story back of Paul Berlenbach's attempted comeback to the light heavyweight championship of the world.

Knocked out last January by Mike McTigue, the ex-champion left the ring and settled down to a peaceful life. Then he married. Proud of her fighter-husband, young Mrs. Berlenbach urged Paul to go back and "show the world." Paul's mother agreed with her daughter-in-law. The comeback opened with a one-round knockout of Charles Rammel, Austrian heavyweight.

Although he is still a light heavy, Paul's "double threat" fists menace the heavyweight division, too, since his weight is very close to the 175-pound limit. Paul has proved that he still has the punch. The question now is, can he take it? The two Mrs. Berlenbach's, his "managers," say he can.

Crack Train Race To Chicago Suburb

CHICAGO (AP)—The Twentieth Century and the Broadway Limited, crack Chicago-New York passenger trains, run a race every day from their Chicago terminals to Whiting, Ind.

The tracks of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroad run parallel along that leg of the run, diverging at Whiting. At 12:40 p. m. the Century pulls out of the LaSalle Street station and at exactly the same minute the Broadway Limited leaves the Union station, just across the river.

The passengers always watch the race," says C. A. Pinney, conductor on the Broadway limited, "and there is much speculation among them on the winner. Honors are just about even, with a good many dead heats."

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Chile's foreign minister, Colorado Rios Gallardo, will tolerate no spirit of "Manana" in the functioning of his department.

The minister points out that frequent employment of the word "manana" in Latin American countries has led to ridicule in the United States and England, where it is taken as a symbol of Latin American indolence.

What American League Pitcher Will Win 30 Games This Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Will an American League pitcher succeed in breaking into the 30-game victory class this season?

That's a question going the rounds as the teams in the Johnsonian organization swing into the final half of the big campaign.

Not since "Big Jim" Bagby turned in 31 triumphs for the Cleveland Indians back in 1920 has a hurler in the junior wheel reached the "thirty" figure. That's a span of seven years.

The three best records in the interim were hung up by Urban Shocker, then with the Browns, Eddie Rommel, of the Athletics and George Uhle of Cleveland. Each won 27 games; Shocker did it in 1921, Rommel in 1922 and Uhle last season. Rommel's effort bordered on the sensational in that he established it with a seventh place club.

This year Ted Lyons of the White Sox stands the best chance of reaching the coveted 30-win brigade. With the chase half over, Ted had topped 14 frays. He'll have to better that gain slightly in order to make the grade. Al Thomas of the same team and Waite Hoyt, Yankees, stand out as the only other American League hurlers with a chance to break into the uncommon class.

While the 30-victory stunt is much out of the ordinary these days, it wasn't an unusual piece of work 15 or 20 years ago. In fact, two twirlers in the American circuit reached the 40-win mark in the days when pitchers didn't spend most of the week squatting on the bench.

In 1904 Jack Chesbro, famous spit-baller of the Yankees, chalked up 41 successes for the league's premier winning record. Four years later Ed Walsh of the White Sox turned in 40. Walsh was on the mound in 66 games that season, working the remarkable total of 464 innings.

Although Chesbro and Walsh boast the largest number of victories for a single season, the best average belongs to Joe Wood. In 1912 while pitching for the Red Sox Wood compiled a record of 34 wins against but five defeats for an .872 performance.

The following campaign Walter Johnson of the Senators achieved his greatest percentage, winning 36 and losing seven, an .837 average. Incidentally, Walter issued by 33 passes in 346 innings that year.

During the last few seasons but comparatively few Johnsonian runners have turned in as many as 20 triumphs in a chase. Last year there were but two—Uhle with 27 and Herb Pennock of the Yankees with 23 while the year previous just four got in—Lyons and Rommel with 21, Johnson and Coveleskie with 20.

Johnson is the only American League pitcher to chalk up 20 or more victories in two consecutive campaigns during recent seasons. Walter got 23 in 1924, following with 20 the next year.

Officials Favor Motorists' Mailbox

(By The Associated Press.)
HOUSTON, July 21.—A sidewalk mailbox for motorists, an idea born of exasperation, has been tried out here and recommended to postmasters in other cities by John H. Bartlett, assistant postmaster general.

"Why don't you put a mail box on the sidewalk and keep a space clear around it so motorists can mail their letters without getting out," a Houston man who had difficulty in finding a parking space near the postoffice wrote Postmaster Roy B. Nichols a year ago.

Nichols liked the idea. He procured an ordinary postoffice package box, anchored it to the edge of the cement sidewalk at one side of the postoffice, painting a "no parking" zone on the pavement, christened it a "courtesy mail box" and awaited results. A ten-inch metal handle with a chain was affixed to the drop.

Motorists adopted the idea at once. They found they could drive to the box, pull the lid down with one hand and deposit a letter or package with the other without leaving their motor cars.

Each mail collector takes mail from the box every time he comes into the postoffice and it has resulted in a minimum of 17 collections daily. In one day a count revealed 800 motor cars had stopped at the box.

Postmaster Nichols made a report on the box to Washington and the idea so highly commended itself to officials there that Bartlett has recommended it to other cities throughout the country.

"HEROES DOWN BELOW" ARE VITAL IN MAKING TRANS-OCEAN FLIGHTS

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—There are "heroes down below" in trans-oceanic flights as well as in naval battles.

"Ground fliers" they are, engineers and mechanics, twentieth century groomers to the steeds of the air, who sometimes must travel 3,000 miles by water so that the trans-oceanic plane may fly back again. Two such men, typical messengers of modern times, sailed for France recently to help recondition the trans-Atlantic plane, Columbia, for its return flight with Maurice Drouhin, French aviator, and Charles Levine.

One was Thomas Harold "Doc" Kinkade, who as field service engineer for the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, helped tune and groom the America, Commander Byrd's plane. The other was John Carisi, chief mechanic of the Columbia Aircraft Corporation, who toiled to prepare the Columbia, flown by Chamberlin and Levine.

During and after the flights, both had to be content with only such pale rays of reflected glory as came their way. But probably the aviators themselves worked with no more eager enthusiasm than they. Remaining on land they shared the suspense of the fliers at sea, in much the same way as the trainer of the racehorse watches the jockey race his mount.

Carisi went to France by sea, in the wake of the machine he helped make ready, carrying spare parts for its repair. Kinkade, grievously disappointed when he could not stow away on Byrd's flight, sailed to help recondition the America, holding the hope that he might fly back. He was doomed to disappointment again. Later he was commissioned

Roving Barbers Avoid Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—Like other trades, the tonsorial ranks include practitioners who are rolling stones. But few of them are encountered in Washington.

One visit to the capital is usually sufficient for their roving colleagues, resident barbers assert. The rolling stone, often a capable worker, not only itches to be gone, they explain, but likes his rest, and the Capital has no Sunday closing law. As a result, when he learns that jobs here require at least a half-day of work Sundays, he decides to stay only long enough to limber up his fingers and get money enough to be on his way.

New City of Dead Found In Ukraine

KITCHKASS, Ukraine (AP)—A hill in the neighborhood of Kitchkass where a great hydraulic station is being constructed, has yielded what is declared to be the European counterpart of Karakto, the "City of the Dead." The latter was discovered some years ago by the Russian explorer, Colonel Kozloff, in Mongolia.

Ancient tombs in which he buried apparently important personages of the bronze and stone ages have been found, as well as numerous prehistoric caves containing relics of those ages.

Above are graves believed to belong to the Scythian period, and still higher, coffins of the Huns, of the Attila period. The topmost stratum reveals bones and objects apparently belonging to the Zaporozsk Cossacks, an independent organization of bold plunderers of the 16th and 17th centuries.

RATS DAMAGE CANE

TOKYO (AP)—Advises from Formosa state that a new and exceptionally large variety of rats is doing considerable damage to sugar plantations by eating the young cane.

One of the large sugar companies is paying bounties of ten sen (about five cents) for every rat killed. The rodents are so large and vicious that cats are afraid to tackle them.

GOOD WRITING IS HARD TASKMASTER

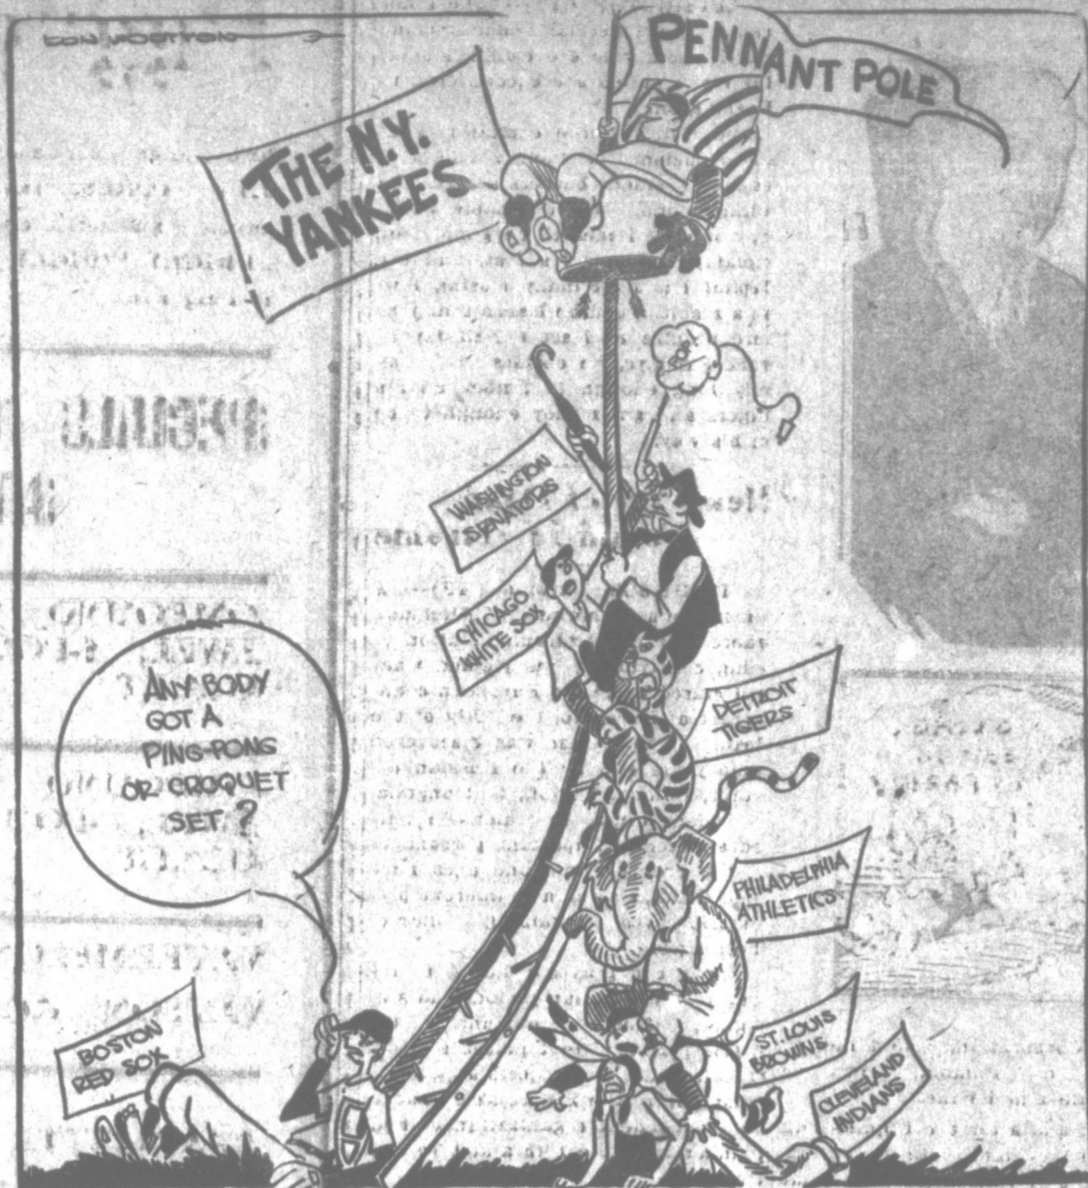

The Panhandle Penwomen are anxious to develop Panhandle writers. They don't like the fact that outside talent is beginning to exploit the Panhandle-Plains setting and to get all the credit.

This is an admirable desire, but there are conditions which must be changed before this region can be properly represented by its own writers. About the only writers active on the Plains are the newspaper men and scattered club women.

And those who have leisure must use it in more literary occupations than a fiction bridge to produce the literature desired; not that bridge is undesirable, but that writing is a hard master.

Another factor to be considered is the growing number of college trained young men and women who are returning to live in the Panhandle communities.

The Champion Long Distance Flagpole Sitter

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON. — These are the days when Washington lets down. The wheels of government turn, but ever so slowly.

It has been a comparatively cool summer for the capital, thanks apparently to Herbert Janvrin Browne, the long distance weather forecaster, but the hot muggy days that do come require a spell of recuperation between each other.

This is the time of year when government officials welcome visitors to their offices. In case one finds them doing a little actual work, they are invariably tickled to death to leave off, settle back in a chair, plant their feet on their desks and chin awhile.

The eyes of the capital rest longingly on President Coolidge as he keeps cool in the Black Hills. The gossip, too, turns to him most frequently.

The latest morsel retailed to your correspondent is the one about the two groups of American bankers fighting about the president's renomination.

It seems, according to this yarn, that the international bankers are opposed to a Coolidge third term, while the commercial bankers over the country, supported by the business interests, are very much in favor.

One of the props of this

Justice is the only weapon effective against factions such as this case, brings into the news. Injustice and sympathy alike encourage them. Communications now make it possible for vicious cliques all over the world to profit by the fortune of their kind.

supposition is that the international bankers are admittedly in favor of a low tariff which would enable European creditors to pay off their debts. Other bankers and the manufacturers are opposed. The administration is high tariff.

One is advised that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler was appointed to break the ice and crats and progressive Republican anti-third term sentiment. Butler has also been proposing a coalition of Democrats and progressive Republicans to lower the tariff. The international bankers, so the gossip runs, would like to see Butler a candidate at the next national convention, backed by wet delegates. Butler could not obtain the nomination but his party might be a good anti-Coolidge bloc for trading purposes.

is on par with the champion hot dog eater and the imbecile who dances longer without stopping than any of his fellow imbeciles have done, and he has equalled, so far as benefit to society goes, the more dangerous lunatic who, handcuffed to the steering wheel of an automobile, has driven a car for more consecutive hours than any of his fellow lunatics has done.

It is nothing strange that there are a lot of more or less harmless lunatics running around at large; the thing at which to marvel is that millions of people who do not consider themselves lunatics should interest themselves in the performance of one of those worm-eaten nuts simply because he has found a new way of convincing people that he is more of a fool than they had credited him with being.

And yet the nut at the top of the flag pole in Chicago attracted the attention of more people than President Coolidge would do, even if he visited that city clad in the now historic chaps and 10-gallon hat, all of which causes the philosophically minded to conclude that not all the nuts in the world are to be found sitting at the top of flag poles. — Blackwell Tribune.

PRESS FORUM

FEAST FOR SQUIRRELS

Friday evening a man slid down from the top of a flag pole on top of a 30 story building in Chicago. Awaiting descent were an ambulance, doctors, nurse, masseurs, a reception committee, and, later in the evening, a banquet.

During the time he occupied his lofty perch more "looks" were turned toward him than greeted Lindbergh in Paris. Hundreds of thousands of people looked at him every day of the 12 days he remained at the top of the flag pole. Some saw him but once, but hundreds of thousands went out their way, if necessary, in order to see him every day, and tens upon tens of thousands were not satisfied if they did not see him several times each day.

Finally he slid down the pole. What had he accomplished? He had a new non-stop sitting record at the top of a flag pole. What then? That's all, until some other publicity hunting lunatic sits at the top of a flag pole for 13 days.

He is the same kind of hero as the fellow who swills down more cups of coffee within a given number of hours than any other fellow with more paunch than brain had ever swilled in the same time. He

An idea with some people is a long sermon; to others the beginning of a flood of unrelated words; and a few people can state the thing in a few sentences or a verse of poetry.

Mad Indians are scalping cattle in California, which is some better than the former custom in scalping.

Sharkey fans are at least better informed than Dempsey fans, knowing their favorite and the former champion, too.

Keep imagining, folks; the public square is taking shape already.

Crash of Oil Company Involves Millions

LOS ANGELES, July 21. (AP)—Receivership proceedings that threw the Julian Petroleum corporation into the courts developed into a so-called "$100,000,000 stock scandal."

Prominent business men of the southwest are among those indicted on various charges, including usury, conspiracy to defraud and illegal acceptance by bankers of bonuses for making loans.

The defendants include men well known in banking, brokerage and insurance and the motion picture and oil industries. Among them are C. C. Julian, organizer and first president of the Julian corporation; S. C. Lewis, who succeeded him as president, and Charles F. Stern, president of the Pacific Southwest

Young Child Plays Beethoven Sonata

CHICAGO (AP)—The musical world of Chicago has found a sensation in four-year-old Dorothy Johnson, whose mother brought her here from Honolulu for a musical education.

Taken before Mossalye Boguslawski, pianist, the child launched into Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and followed with Bach's "Prelude in C Major."

Dorothy's mother, a music teacher, said the girl just "picked up" the compositions, and Boguslawski called hers the most remarkable imitative talent he had ever seen. Dorothy proved the genuineness of her ability later before a committee of judges, skeptical of her first performance.

Woman Mail Carrier Rides 40 Miles Daily

FRESHO, S. D. (AP)—Over the roads and trails of western South Dakota Mrs. Mary Mang, the state's only woman mail carrier, rides 40 miles daily with letters for farm and ranch homes.

She usually travels the route with a light mail wagon and a team, taking along her large greyhound and her youngest daughter, Evelyn, for company.

But sometimes the snow is too deep or the roads too muddy—and when Mrs. Mang "goes it alone" on a pony, carrying the mail in saddlebags. She wouldn't trade jobs, she says, with anybody.

Soumi Sheng's Deeds Stir Paris Students

PARIS (AP)—Young Chinese nationalists who are studying in Paris have taken as model Miss Soumi Cheng, the woman who was appointed a magistrate of the Canton courts when nationalists took that city.

Miss Cheng formerly was a student at the University of Paris where many Chinese students of the nationalist party are studying.

SHIP IS SINKING

LONDON, July 21. (AP)—A Reuter dispatch from Bombay says that a wireless message has been received that the American freighter, Hemstead, is sinking off the Malabar coast as a result of damage caused by a storm. The British steamer, Aungban, has reached the Hemstead.

Making Woman's Work Easier Aim of Home Equipment Survey

OAKLAND, Neb. (AP)—A Nebraska farm woman, with plumbing facilities available at her very door, carries water 400 feet for the family washing—20 feet from the well to the house for heating it and 200 feet back to the wash house by the well.

This is one of a number of findings made to the people of Nebraska through the home equipment survey, which the General Federation of Women's Clubs has just completed. Nebraska was the first state to complete its survey. It was also the first to get under way the campaign for the improvement of conditions and the raising of standards of living within the state.

Mrs. William E. Minter of Oakland, president of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, is the moving spirit in Nebraska's campaign for better homes. She has developed a program into which she has drawn cooperation and assistance from public utilities companies, the state agricultural college and other institutions and organizations.

"The day is at hand," said Mrs. Minter, "when the conservation of woman power will become as vital a consideration as the piping of water to the chicken yard, the hog lot and the barn."

HINTS FOR FARM and HOME

In purchasing a dairy cow attention should be given to age, soundness, size, disposition, length of teats, ease of milking, milk and butterfat records and the condition under which these records were made, also at the age at which they were made.

A total of 874 cities and towns have ordinances which require tuberculin testing of cattle furnishing milk for their use. In addition, 375 others provide an option between the tuberculin test and pasteurization.

Aspen, basswood, cottonwood, willow and yellow poplar can be marketed in many communities for excellent.

Bakers are using honey in manufacture of whole wheat bread, not only because of its value as a sweetener but for its properties of keeping bread soft and moist for several days. One of the problems in distributing whole wheat bread has been the difficulty in keeping it palatable until it reached the consumer.

The open herding and bedding out system of handling sheep is applied on 60 per cent of the National Forest ranges.

It provides for open, quiet herding throughout the day, holding the leaders in check and using dogs as little as possible. The sheep are taken to shade during the heat of the day and bedded at night where night overtakes them.

Under this method very little area is covered each day. Sheep have fresh feed very morning when they leave the bed ground, and they do not run off any flesh which the forage puts on. There is an increase in the grazing capacity of the range, cleanliness and larger wool production, and a heavier weight among lambs.

Production of fruits and nuts on irrigated land has become an important part of the agriculture in the western states.

Miss Betty Blue and sister, Miss Miss May Blue returned Wednesday from a short visit with relatives at Hollis, Okla.

Life Saving Teams Will Compete At Petroleum Meeting

(By The Associated Press.)

TULSA, Okla., July 21.—The saving of life and the relief of suffering in oil field and refinery accidents and disasters will be given primary consideration at the 1927 International Petroleum exposition, which will be held here from September 24 to October 1. It is announced by President W. G. Skelly of the board of managers of the exposition and head of the Skelly Oil company.

The afternoon of September 24 will be devoted entirely to the annual first aid contest of the safety division of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association. Mr. Skelly states. First aid teams from all the principal refineries and from many of the principal oil leases in the mid-continent area will take part in the contest, he declared.

The first aid contest is considered one of the feature events on the program this year. Many lives have been saved through the efforts of teams which are expected to be entered in the contest. Mr. Skelly said, and demonstration should be of great value in further preventing suffering in oil field accidents.

German trade in the Far East, particularly in China, is experiencing an unprecedented boom as a result of Chinese nationalist propaganda against Britain.

BRAZILIAN SEARCH PARTY TO SEEK MODERN LIVINGSTONE

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 21.—An exploring mystery paralleling the famous disappearance of David Livingstone in the heart of darkest Africa in 1866 has forced a call for volunteers to seek Colonel P. H. Fawcett, British explorer, who vanished two years ago in the depths of uncharted Brazil while searching for traces of the world's oldest civilization.

Colonel Fawcett was last heard of at Bakairi Post, in the Province of Mato Grosso, from where he "jumped off" to carry out his inspection of the central plateau. He hoped there to find relics and treasures of bygone civilizations that would prove his theory that the American continent peoples were as culturally important as those of Egypt and ancient Greece.

Livingstone was rescued after being missing five years. The Stanley expedition which brought Livingstone back to civilization is one of the great epics of exploration. The Brazilian territory in which Colonel Fawcett disappeared is inhabited by cave men who eat human flesh, by impenetrable forests, ferocious animals, poisonous insects and great reptiles.

Colonel Fawcett was accompanied by only two white men, his son, Jack Fawcett, and R. Rimmel, another young Englishman. His expedition planned to live on the country and was furnished instruments by the Royal Geographical society.

"Don't count on any more dispatches," said his last message. Colonel Fawcett advised his friends not to worry unless he was not heard from for at least two years. That time has passed and Mrs. Fawcett, who lives with her daughter at Torquay, is greatly distressed at the absence of news from her husband.

The Royal Geographical society has offered the proposed search party all possible help, but points out that while the Brazilian government will probably give every assistance in its power, it does not pretend to exert any control over the wild interior of the country, with its untamed tribes, which was the goal of Colonel Fawcett's adventure.

Montmartre Queen of Cooks Famed for Chicken Dishes

PARIS (AP)—Men of the sword and pen and all lovers of lobster and chicken reverently prepared know Ninny of Montmartre.

Ninny refuses to divulge her surname. Nearing 60, she still bustles about among her brilliantly shined copper pots and pans in her little "Vieux Chalet" just off the Place du Tertre, the highest situated square in Paris.

"This is not a restaurant," Ninny asserts, her massive fists clamped aggressively on her equally massive hips. "It is a house where one comes to dine. Order the night before if you want to be well served. Old friends, however, can order their dinner by telephone—if they call before ten in the morning."

Ninny, like all good French cooks, does her own marketing. If a tradesman tried to pass off an anemic lobster on her let him stuff his ears with cotton. For Ninny's language, when aroused, is strong.

The Hundred Club, aggregation of Paris gourmets, has consecrated Ninny queen of chicken. Roasted, sauted, done in cream or hunter style, the barnyard biped becomes her masterpiece. And Ninny knows the proper wine to bring out its flavor. If you disregard her advice on that subject it is better not to come again.

When Ninny likes her guests she joins them at coffee and song. A night when Elsie Janis and Ninny did their sister act in "What Arrives Monday" is historic in the annals of "Vieux Chalet."

Ninny was hostess to many American soldiers and war correspondents in 1918. She scorned food rationing restrictions when hungry men in olive drab knocked at her door.

Luclen Gaudin, champion fencer of France; the Merignacs, father and son, and other famous foilsmen have "trained" at Ninny's table. Swordsmen and knights of the typewriter are her favorites, although she will condescend to serve mere bankers if they provide her with the big cigars she loves to puff once her kitchen work is done.

Increases, however, were shown in Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Galveston, Port Arthur, San Antonio and Shreveport, La., he said.

The total in the tenth reserve district was about the same as in May, 1926, but a 13.3 per cent reduction was seen in the eighth district.

Bahamas Get Water From Shallow Wells

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wells must be shallow to produce drinking water in the Bahama Islands; otherwise they will yield only sea water.

That explains why Nassau, capital of these British possessions off the Florida coast, is driving hundreds of shallow wells in groups in order to provide itself a water supply.

As outlined in Commerce department reports, the Bahamas' problem is not unusual for small islands of low elevation surrounded by the sea. Part of their rainfall is conserved in the upper strata of their soil, but underneath the briny flood seeps in and a well driven too deep penetrates it.

LONDON SHIPPING SHOWS BIG INCREASE

LONDON (AP)—During the fiscal year just ended the London port handled more traffic than ever before, the total tonnage being 49,995,610, compared to 47,064,000 in 1925.

It is estimated that 1,000 ships of all sizes pass Gravesend every 24 hours. London's network of docks, wharves and warehouses spreads over 50 miles of river bank. Virtually 60,000 men are registered as dock workers.

QUEEN MARY DEPLORES CHANGES IN CHELSEA

LONDON (AP)—The Chelsea Society, recently formed to "protect and foster the amenities of Chelsea," has a staunch supporter in Queen Mary. Her Majesty paid a surprise visit to the Chelsea Town Hall where the organization is exhibiting paintings and etchings of Chelsea, London's Bohemian quarter, and expressed sorrow at the way Chelsea is changing. She said she hoped the society would succeed in preserving beauty spots.

Many of the artists and writers who brought fame to the quarter are being forced out by the invasion of Mayfair. The Bohemian crowd is going across the river to Battersea.

RAT CATCHERS REPORT FINANCIAL SUCCESS

LONDON (AP)—Rat catching has become a profession in London. A number of firms are making money at it, according to the annual report of the medical officer for the City of London. One firm of professional rat catchers caught 26,713 rats last year.

"Rat catchers and poisoners," the medical officer states, "are engaged on contract in many of the city's tea-shops, restaurants, hotels and business premises. I think it can safely be said that the number of rats in the city is being kept down, but the old English black rat seems to outnumber the so-called sewer rat by at least three to one. Old city men have said that 30 or 40 years ago they were unable to enter their offices in the morning until the rats were cleaned out. We hear of nothing so alarming nowadays."

That London is still living up to its reputation for soot is shown by a statement that 73 tons of dirt, washed down by rats, fell last year in the square mile which constitutes the area of the city of London.

HOPPY, THE LINKMAN, STILL CARRIES CANDLE

LONDON (AP)—A familiar person in attendance at all the big parties and other evening functions of the social season is "Hoppy" the linkman.

This top-hatted figure, with gleaming silk wig and red waistcoat, carries a square lantern with a lighted candle in it. His duty is to open the doors of arriving automobiles and usher guests to the door of the mansion they are visiting.

The real name of this old time lantern-bearer, who might be a figure straight out of a Dickens novel, is Richard Trebilcock, but to many people, including the Prince of Wales, he is familiarly known as "Hoppy". His candle lantern is a direct link with days when London was ill-lighted and when guests, making their way to and from receptions, were accompanied by boys with torches.

"Hoppy" today as the best known and most eagerly sought after linkman in London. His father was a linkman before him. Not until he has seen the last guests into their automobiles is "Hoppy's" task ended.

MYSTERY BUILDING HOUSES STRANGE, HOODED FIGURES

LONDON (AP)—London has its "mystery house," little more than a mile from Piccadilly, out towards the open country. After nightfall, mysterious veiled figures may be seen issuing from the house and wandering about the neighboring parks.

These figures are not ghosts. The house is headquarters of a famous beauty specialist. While women patients are in course of having their faces altered, they do not permit themselves to be seen abroad in daylight. Fresh air, however, is necessary and at night they stroll in the park of the private hospital, hooded and mysterious.

BRITISH FASHIONS LEAN TO FEATHER TRIMMING

LONDON (AP)—Fashion is following a very feathery way in England this summer. All sorts of feathered dress details, especially ostrich feather boas and shoulder wraps, are being worn by those who wish to help the hard hit African ostrich feather business.

Queen Mary is leading the way in the revival of the feather boa. She has a number and usually wears one to match her dress and hat.

The new boas are made in all colors, chiefly pastel and sweet pea colorings. The colored boa has completely displaced the black, white, and gray boas of 20 years ago. Sometimes a feather muff is carried for decoration with the boa. The feather influence affects other articles of women's attire. The very latest use for ostrich feathers is to have silk stockings delicately fringed with matching fronds up the back seam. Parasols are wholly or partly made of soft feathers.

Famous Naval Yacht Starts for Junk Heap

NICE (AP)—After 29 years continuous service with the American navy in European waters the yacht "Scorpion" has started for home and the junk pile.

Objections by Washington economy experts against employing a yacht for navy affairs are reported to be responsible for the recall.

Since the early days of the war the "Scorpion" has been stationed at Constantinople under the command of Admiral Mark Bristol, the United States High Commissioner. Before the war it was the only possible meeting place for American and Turkish officials to settle disputes. The Turks refused to board an American warship, but the "Scorpion" was classed as a yacht.

Arkansas Hen Breaks World's Egg-Laying Record

(By The Associated Press.)
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., July 21.—Establishing a new world record for egg laying, Lady Lindy of Inglenook, a single-comb white Leghorn, recently completed her marathon with a record of 149 consecutive days, in the 13th Egg Laying contest conducted by the Experiment Station, College of Agriculture, University of Arkansas. The new champion broke the former record of 141 consecutive days, established by a hen owned by Homer Collins of Ozark, Mo., entered in the National Egg-Laying contest at Mountain Grove, Mo., in 1925.

Lady Lindy is one of a pen of five hens entered in the university contest, and is officially listed as hen No. 367, Pen 28, in the contest which includes 30 pens of five hens, each entered by the poultrymen of the state. S. R. Stout, assistant professor of animal industry, is in charge of the annual affair, and is authority for the record made. The white Leghorn pullet's foundation stock came from D. Tankred, Kent, Wash.

The former Arkansas egg-laying record for consecutive days was held by the C. L. Moore and Son's white Leghorn of Rogers. She laid for 121 consecutive days in the 11th contest. In that contest the Moore hen was in a pen of five pullets that established a national production record of 1,475 eggs, the record based on the five highest hens in the pen.

One of the particular features of the remarkable run of consecutive days of laying by Lady Lindy, is the fact that for the first 60 days she laid at 8:30 a. m. each day. Then for a time she postponed her laying until later in the day, returning to "regular schedule" sometime after. Near the end of the marathon, which has attracted national attention, the record-holding bird began laying later in the day, and on the final day of the "winning streak" she did not lay until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

BUSINESS GROUPS INCREASE

It is estimated that at present there are approximately 12,000 functioning farmers' business associations in the United States, with an aggregate membership of more than 2,700,000 and an annual volume of business exceeding $2,400,000,000.

Fifteen large scale cotton marketing associations have an aggregate membership of almost 300,000.

Texans Again Are Defeated, Failing To Hit In The Pinches

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 21.—The hard-trying Texans fell short on hits here yesterday, and in two big innings—the first and the eighth—the Indians clinched the game.

Sanders for the Texans did not show up as well as on some other occasions, and his ten hits were badly bunched.

Five Flying Heroes Back Home

OWNER OF OLDEST HOLSTEIN HERD STILL ACTIVE IN IMPROVING STOCK

(By The Associated Press.)
PETERBORO, N. Y.—Gerit Smith Miller, the man who revolutionized milk production in the United States, is still on the job as a dairy farmer near this village.

Although more than 80 years old, he is still active in improving the Holstein-Friesian breed. His stock is the oldest herd of Holsteins in this country.

In 1859, with three cows and a bull from Holland, Miller made the first day-to-day record of milk production. He raised the first heifer registered in the first Holstein Herd Book of America, which now has more than 1,000,000 entries.

When Miller took the first production record, nearly 60 years ago, the yield of a good cow was estimated at 3,500 to 4,000 pounds annually. He found, however, that his imported Dowager gave 12,681.5 pounds in one year. This mark was regarded as astounding. The present world's champion cow, Sergis Prospect, which traces to the Miller herd, has a record of 37,000 pounds of milk in twelve months.

The herd today numbers about forty. All have in their veins blood of either the original importation or of the three which Miller made shortly after 1859. Kriemhild Herd—it has long gone by this name—boasts no champions at present, largely because its owner has ceased to try for records. Yet six heifers are milking from 45 to 50 pounds daily with their first calves, while Pledge Clothilde Onyx Henserveld VI has milked as high as 89 pounds—more than a canful—on ordinary farm care.

In recognition of his achievements Harvard University, in 1925 awarded Miller the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

BUILDS DAILY PAPER FROM WEEKLY WHILE CARING FOR HER CHILDREN

MRS EDITH O'KEEFE SUSONG

GREENVILLE, Tenn., July 21. (AP)—A woman can find time to rear children—mend their clothes, cook them pies—and yet have spare hours to build a struggling country weekly into a thriving daily newspaper.

So believes Mrs. Edith O'Keefe Susong, publisher of the Greenville Democrat-Sun, who has succeeded in doing this.

Mrs. Susong is president of the state Federation of Women's clubs and of the Tennessee Press and Authors' club and participates in numerous other activities, including those of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association.

"Eleven years ago," she relates, "when little Martha Arnold, my youngest child, was only 17 months old, I was faced with the problem of making a living the best I could for myself and children. Atex, the other child, was four years old."

"I had never had any business experience, but I determined to buy the little weekly—the Greenville Democrat. We had only a handful of worn type, virtually no equipment and a thousand things to look after."

"I started with the newspaper, under a $3,000 mortgage, printing once a week. I served as editor, business manager, pressman, advertising solicitor, circulation manager and sometimes typesetter. After my day's duties in the dingy office were over I'd go home, clean up the house, cook for the children and can blackberries.

"My payroll then was $27.50 a week. The paper was located in the basement of a dilapidated building on an old side street. I paid $50 a year rent—and, my, but that was hard to get!

"As soon as could I bought an old linotype machine. In the meantime I had instituted business principles and refused to accept vegetables and other farm products in exchange for circulation and advertising."

Mrs. Susong was "running along pretty well" with her paper until one of the two other weekly papers in the town started publishing daily. One of the weeklies soon went out of business and then the daily failed. She bought it and started the Daily Democrat-Sun.

"We now own our two story brick building downtown," she says. "My mother writes the editorials, and I am just publisher. I have a capable staff for the other departments."

"I started in the newspaper game for a living. Now I've found it so exciting and interesting I love it almost as well as my children and wouldn't give it up for anything."

Parisian Chef Works, Writes To Benefit Cooks and Cooking

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS—The favorite chef of French politicians is Francis Carton, president of the cooks' society of Paris.

In his restaurant opposite the Church of the Madeleine he receives them all, from the Left to the Right, as they come out of the senate or chamber of deputies. They forget their party squabbles over the dishes Carton has a unique way of adorning with cheese, mushrooms and thyme. Herriot becomes benign and Painleve, with a reputation as the most absentminded of ministers, actually concentrates on what is before him.

Carton, who is 48, comes from the valley of the Allier near Vichy. As soon as he began to attain fame he devoted himself to bettering the lot of his kitchen-companions. His cooks' society has 5,000 members, with a capital of 8,000,000 francs. The organization pays out large amounts annually to aged or infirm members of the fraternity. It looks after cooks' widows and orphans and provides free medical aid and hospital care.

Carton is the author of a cook book called "La Cuisine." He also publishes "The Culinary Review," a periodical devoted to gastronomic matters.

The department of technical education of France has made him ambassador extraordinary of French cooking.

He is one of the few first-class chefs who speak English fluently. In order to enable his fellow-workers to cope with the increased tourist trade of France he inaugurated a language school for cooks and waiters.

Sacrifices Business For Good Roads' Sake

TOPEKA, Kans. (AP)—John W. Gardner of Marion, Kansas, made a sacrifice to the cause of good roads when he became state highway director.

He disposed of his interest in a lumber firm because a law specifies that no person may be appointed state highway director if he profits from the sale of building materials.

"I shall lose money because of the job, even if it does pay $5,000 a year," Gardner said when he became boss of the 8,690 mile state highway system. "But I have become so enthusiastic about better roads for Kansas that I am willing to make a sacrifice for the good of the state."

Mounds similar to the one in which the bones were unearthed are common in the state.

The bones have been sent to the Smithsonian Institution for further examination.

Smoking In Theatres Bothers Londoners

LONDON (AP)—London newspapers are printing scores of letters from persons protesting against smoking in theatres, a custom freely permitted here.

One man said he was unable to see the stage at a recent performance because of the smoke. He formed his program into a tube and blew a hole through the smoke so that he could see. The smokers ahead objected that he was making a draught on their necks, and he replied that if smoking was permitted, so was blowing.

Another writer says his eyes became so watery from the volumes of smoke in the theatre that he either sees double or not at all. Another writes that coughing caused by smoking was all he was able to hear at a play.

An actor writes that he is frequently forced to imagine that he has an audience, being unable to see them because of the smoke rising before the footlights.

Theatre-managers reply that if they discourage smoking the patronage of their theatres will fall off.

Chicken Thieves Get 40 Hens, But Caught In Borger

Chicken-thieves stole about 40 choice hens from the farm of John McKamey sometime last night.

Local officers and the sheriff's department were notified and they in turn phoned nearby towns. This morning the thieves were arrested in Borger with the stolen fowls. Officers are in Borger today after the men.

Sixty thousand dollars, a donation of the American Red Cross, for the rebuilding of schoolhouses in Letcher and Perry counties, Kentucky, destroyed by the flood of last May, has been received.
