Flu keeps physicians, PRMC busy

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Many Pampa and area residents had an unwelcome visitor in recent weeks—the flu.

Approximately 1,000 patients with flu symptoms are estimated to have visited local medical providers during the past month, according to Dr. Craig Shaffer, Gray County Health Officer. And he said probably one-half of the people with the symptoms aren't visiting the doctors. "Those with less serious symptoms are not coming in, but are treating themselves," he said.

Shaffer said he is seeing approximately 17 patients per day with flu-like symptoms in his private practice offices, and predicts other local physicians are seeing about the same.

Pampa Regional Medical Center inpatient census has been much higher than usual, said Nan Gregg, chief nursing officer at the local medical facility.

She said the number of inpatient admissions has reached as high as 62 due to the high number of flu and pneumonia diagnoses.

Gregg said the emergency room has been "tremendously busy" seeing patients with upper respiratory conditions and pneumonia. Numerous hospital staff members have also become victims of the current flu and pneumonia outbreak, she said.

The flu is no respecter of victims as it has struck children, teenagers, babies, elderly, young adult as well as middle age, according to medical personnel.

Dr. Shaffer said the influenza causes muscle aches and headaches, and the main difference between the flu and a cold is the severity of muscle aches as much more with influenza. He also said the flu doesn't provoke a runny nose, but causes patients to run a high fever—usually 102 to 103.

The flu is a virus, usually starting in the lungs, and requires antibiotics. It is characterized by extreme fatigue. Cold sufferers usually have no temperature and require rest and plenty of fluids. The current virus is distinguished by its quick onset and its affect over an entire body.

Local schools have not seen a sharp increase in absenteeism since school reopened last week from the Christmas holidays.

Roy Thornton, assistant principal at Pampa Middle School, said on Wednesday the school had 19 absentees while there were 24 on Thursday and 32 on Friday. He said with 818 students at the local school the absentee percentage rate on Friday was 3.9 percent. About 50 percent of the absentees have been reported to be flu-related, he said.

Thornton said the 96 percent attendance rate is a good attendance statistic. He said the absentee rate was higher before the

Mom looks for daughter

Alice Appleton replaces a flyer of her missing daughter someone had torn down at the Cigarette Store on Alcock Friday.

Mom complains 'missing' flyers being pulled down

Alice Appleton wants to find her missing daughter and is placing flyers around town to aid in her search.

But, she says, two men are wandering around Pampa tearing down her flyers that she's placed flyers at many Pampa businesses asking for help finding her daughter Monica.

Monica Appleton disappeared Oct. 13, according to her brother Pampa Police Officer Denny Brown.

The worried mom has written a prepared statement for those tearing down her flyers: "Whoever is taking the flyers on Monica down PLEASE STOP. I am trying to find my daughter. You will know first hand because the paper will have the story, when she is found."

Appleton said she believes the two men were tearing down the flyers because they believe that Monica is dead.

If you have any information, contact Officer Connie Lockridge or Lt. Pickering at 806-669-5700.

City eyes new golf carts, course green fee increase at Hidden Hills

Golf cart repair/replacement, Hidden Hills Golf Course fees and a discussion of the city's landscape ordinance top tomorrow's 4 p.m. public work session of the Pampa City Commission. The regular meeting, also in City Hall, follows at 6 p.m.

Commissioners will discuss the pros and cons of trading in and buying 40 new golf carts over the next four years versus the merits of repairing them.

Cart rental fees, according to a memo in commissioner's packets, have grossed $404,745 in the past four years averaging $10,199 per cart. A new cart costs $3,000.

On the fee side, the Hidden Hills Golf Course Advisory Board voted unanimously to recommend to the commission that fees be raised.

The weekday fee will rise from $9 per round to $10 and the weekend fee will rise from $12 to $13 if the commission gives its approval. The cart fee would rise from $17 plus tax for 10-18 holes to $18 including tax.

The discussion of the city's landscape ordinance, which applies to commercially-zoned property, will center around the appeals or variance process.

Currently, variances are approved by the Board of Adjustments and Appeals but a request has been made to consider changing this process to utilize the City Commission on variance requests instead.

On the action agenda, there is a proposal to adopt a resolution amending the personnel policies to provide for police officers accruing holidays. This has been the practice but the action has not been formalized.

Also to be considered is a proposed ordinance setting forth a formal drought management plan.

$250,000 bond in robbery, injury to disabled man

A Pampa man was in Gray County jail today in lieu of a quarter of a million dollar bond after being arrested over the weekend on a warrant charging him with aggravated robbery and injury to a disabled individual.

Bobby L. Dorsey, 36, of 1000 Huff Road, was arrested following a routine traffic stop in the 900 block of N. Sumner.

Dorsey was being sought by law enforcement authorities in connection with the robbery and assault on a Kansas man New Year's weekend.

Police said a 65-year-old Kansas man was beaten and robbed about 1:30 a.m., Sunday, Jan. 2, in the 1000 block of Huff Road.

Officers said the Kansas man was driving and a woman was sitting the front seat with him. Another man was seated in the back seat behind the driver. The Kansas man said the person in the back seat reached around and began choking him. The woman yelled at him to give them his wallet and the man in the back seat would stop choking him. The Kansas man said the man in the back seat then began hitting him in the face.

Investigators said the victim suffered bruises around one eye. The robbers reportedly made off with the victim's wallet containing about $800.

Police arrested Cheryl Renay Foster, 31, of Letors, last week on a warrant charging her with aggravated robbery.

Mom facing 'pot' charge now in jail

A mother accused of giving her 2-year-old boy marijuana prior to his murder has turned herself into Hemphill County authorities and was being held in jail there this morning in lieu of $25,000 in bonds.

Caryn Brown, 18, turned herself in about 10 a.m. Thursday, Hemphill County Sheriff Dean Butcher said today.

Brown, who was charged Wednesday in a district attorney's felony complaint, had been living with her sister in Amarillo for the past few months, the sheriff said.

She is charged with endangering a child and abandonment and endangering a child. Bond on the first charge is $10,000 and $15,000 on the second.

The charges stem from an investigation into the murder last May of her son Brendon Tyler Brown.

A coroner's autopsy report noted the presence of marijuana in the boy's system, according to the complaint. The report also said the boy's body was marked with bruises and burns.

Leland Milburn, identified as Brown's boyfriend at the time, was indicted on June 23, 1999 on capital murder charges for the boy's death.

Milburn's $2 million bond was lowered by an Amarillo court of appeals to $100,000 and he is free on bond and awaiting trial, Butcher said.

Moose Lodge burglary nets about $900 in cash

Police were investigating today a weekend burglary at the Pampa Moose Lodge.

Officers said it appears that someone broke into the Paternal Order of the Moose Lodge #1385 at 401 E. Brown in the early morning hours of Saturday, stealing almost a $900 in cash and causing several hundred dollars in damage to the building.

J.D. Roth, 74, administrator of the lodge, told authorities he left the lodge about 11:30 p.m. Friday and returned Saturday morning to discover the burglary.

Officers said it appears someone broke into the building between midnight Friday and 10:40 a.m. Saturday.

Authorities said about $860 in cash was taken. The burglars also apparently caused about $600 in damage to a file cabinet, window, cash register and cabinet doors.

Investigators said the burglars appeared to have entered the lodge through a window on the east side of the building that was broken. The burglars are thought to have left the building through a back door on the northwest corner of the building.

Husband Looking for Job Is Advised to Start Truckin'

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to "Totally Lost in North Carolina," whose husband cannot or will not keep a job. She said he didn't like to work and "somehow he always messes up and gets fired or quits."

I had similar problems with my husband. He would keep a job no more than six months maximum. He finally heard about a program called "Operation Improvement." The people there gave him an aptitude test, suggested a job he would never have considered on his own — truck driving — and paid for his training.

He's been driving a truck for six years now and loves his job. I'm not suggesting truck driving for this gal's husband, but he should take an aptitude test and find something he'll be happy doing. If he doesn't, he'll continue to go from job to job and create stress for the whole family. I wish them the best of luck, and as much happiness as my husband and I (and our kids) now have.

LISA IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR LISA: Thank you for caring enough to share your personal experience. When I read the letter from "Totally Lost" about her struggle to cope with her husband's unwillingness to hold a job ("He doesn't like to work") and her valiant efforts to keep the family from going under ("I work for two companies and do extra work on the side ... make good money, but not enough to pay all the bills"), I felt sympathy for her. She said she'd like to throw him out, but was afraid he wouldn't leave. I told her to draw the line; from my perspective, she'd have one less mouth to feed.

Abigail Van Buren

I see marriage as a partnership, with the division of labor agreed upon by both parties. I also thought she was being taken advantage of. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My very intelligent, considerate husband has adult attention deficit disorder. One of the symptoms is difficulty holding certain jobs. He has finally found his "niche" as a talented photographer and an outstanding teacher. (Two jobs!)

Perhaps there's another choice for "Totally Lost" other than evicting her husband, and another reason for his problem other than irresponsibility.

FAITHFUL READER IN DELAWARE

DEAR FAITHFUL READER:

You have insight, and I agree that the husband should be evaluated for adult attention deficit disorder before any decisions are made about ending the marriage. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter about the husband who "doesn't like to work" — there may be an underlying cause or causes for his occupational failures. I offer three possibilities:

1. He may be functionally illiterate. Many people work in low-level, nonskilled jobs that are unsatisfying because these are the only jobs that don't require reading skills. When confronted with work that is equal to their intelligence but beyond their level of literacy, they are unproductive and either get fired or quit.

2. He may have adult attention deficit disorder and not know it. Many adults carry this problem from childhood into adulthood and suffer because of it, not realizing the underlying reason for their lack of achievement.

3. There may be health problems underlying his apparent laziness.

HOPE THIS HELPS, GARLAND, TEXAS

DEAR HOPE THIS HELPS: It hadn't occurred to me that the husband might be suffering, too. Thank you for pointing it out in a helpful letter.

Kids Q&A

African-Americans at high risk for glaucoma

HOUSTON — Research has shown African-Americans are four times more likely to develop glaucoma than whites and eight times more likely to go blind from the disease.

"We do not yet know why there is such a dramatic difference in African-Americans," said Dr. Ronald Gross, an ophthalmologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "It tends to come on earlier, it tends to be more aggressive with more damage at the time of diagnosis, and is often more difficult to treat."

More than two million Americans suffer from glaucoma, the leading cause of blindness in the U.S. Glaucoma occurs when fluid buildup causes increased pressure on the eye and damages the optic nerve, which is responsible for sending visual images to the brain. Any persons over 40 should be routinely tested for glaucoma, especially if there is a family history.

January is National Glaucoma Awareness Month in the U.S.

Battling dry, winter skin

HOUSTON — Adopting a simple skin care routine can be the solution to dry skin during the cold weather months.

"Dry, itchy, flaky and scaly skin is a common winter complaint," said Dr. Sylvia Hsu, a dermatologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "This condition usually continues through the winter months when the humidity is low."

The condition is called xerosis. It mostly affects the lower legs, hands and arms and can usually be controlled with a few changes to the daily routine. Avoid long, hot showers during the winter because hot water will dry out the skin. Instead, take lukewarm showers or baths that last less than five minutes. After bathing, pat the skin dry with a towel and apply moisturizer within 30 minutes.

If the skin becomes cracked, severely inflamed or infected, see a dermatologist.

Don't forget to folate

HOUSTON — Eating a diet filled with plenty of folate will help mothers-to-be a good defense against birth defects.

"Folate is a water-soluble vitamin that helps prevent neural tube defects, of which, spina bifidda is the most common," said Joan Carter, a dietitian with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "If a woman has plenty of folate in her body at the time of conception, she can reduce the risk of delivering a child with a neural tube defect by 50 to 70 percent."

Mothers-to-be are encouraged to consume at least 400 micrograms of folate a day. Folate can be found in orange juice, lentils, black and pinto beans, spinach, asparagus, and broccoli.

New tests help physicians read Pap smears

HOUSTON — Two new approaches might make it easier for physicians to more accurately read Pap smears.

A Pap smear is a sampling of cells taken from the cervix that helps physicians detect cervical cancer, which affects some 15,000 American women annually.

"One of the new approaches, the automated screening system, allows physicians to take a smear and put it through computer screening," said Dr. Raymond Jaufman, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Procedures are set up to weed out the smears that have abnormal cells."

Using the Thin Prep System, cells are prepared in a solution that distributes them more evenly along the smear, making it easier for physicians to find the pre-cancerous cells.

Annual Pap smears cut down on the number of mis-readings. It is recommended that a woman have a Pap smear every year beginning at age 18, or when she becomes sexually active.

Teenagers need to take AIDS seriously

HOUSTON — Teens who think the AIDS epidemic is no longer a serious health threat should think again.

"The availability of new drugs to treat AIDS and HIV like manageable chronic diseases tend to give one a false sense of security," said Dr. William Shearer, professor of pediatrics at Baylor college of Medicine and medical director of the AIDS Center at Texas Children's Hospital in Houston.

Although better medications have reduced a number of AIDS-related deaths, most patients have to endure lifelong treatment. A typical teenager with HIV will have to take up to 70 pills a week just to keep the virus under control. Potential side effects of these medications include cosmetic changes, such as shrinkage of facial skin. Some patients might also develop diabetes or high levels of triglycerides, a type of fat.

During the past several years, the incidence of HIV has increased from 11 to 17 percent in adolescent and young adult women, especially minorities.

Q: How much juice is too much for my 4-year-old? I thought juice was healthy, but my mother tells me that I'm giving my son too much.

A: Serving 100 percent fruit juice is a great way to help children get their recommended five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day. But, too much juice could dampen a child's appetite for milk and other nutritious foods, says Dr. Debby Demory-Luce, a registered dietitian with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Both fruits and fruit juices are rich in vitamins and minerals like vitamin C, potassium and folate, but whole fruits offer some nutritional advantages. Fresh, canned and frozen fruits are generally a good source of fiber, but fruit juices are not. Ounce-for-ounce, whole fruits also tend to be lower in calories. Many fruit juices contain between 60 and 75 calories per one-half cup, which is 35 and 60 percent more than the calorie count for the same-size portion of whole fruit.

To keep juice a healthy part of your son's diet, avoid serving more than one or two four-ounce servings per day, keep an eye on your son's overall appetite and calcium intake, avoid offering juice before mealtime, and check food labels to be sure you are buying 100-percent fruit juice. Fruit punches and drinks can contain as little as 10-percent juice. Although these products may be fortified with vitamin C, most are low in minerals and high in sugar, which could contribute to tooth decay.

Q: My doctor has suggested that always nursing my daughter on both sides at every feeding could be contributing to her irritability and fussiness. Is this possible?

A: Yes, it's possible, says Dr. Judy Hopkinson, a lactation physiologist with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Unlike infant formula, which stays the same from first drop to last, the composition of breast milk changes over the course of a feeding. The late milk, called hindmilk, is richer in fat. This fat not only provides your baby with needed calories, but also slows the passage of nutrients into her intestines. This allows her stomach plenty of time to digest the milk sugar lactose, which is important because undigested lactose could be the source of the problems you describe.

If your daughter isn't receiving any hindmilk, her stomach could be emptying too quickly, leaving much of the lactose undigested. Because lactose pulls water into her intestines, loose stools can result. Lactose is also a favorite food of intestinal bacteria, which produce irritating gas.

Fortunately, if this is the problem, the solution is fairly simple. To ensure your daughter receives some hindmilk at each feeding, allow her to completely empty one breast before switching sides. Although doing so might result in her being less interested in taking the second breast, don't worry. Your baby knows what she's doing. Just let her nurse until she's satisfied.

Q: How nutritious is lettuce? My husband says that lettuce isn't worth eating because it doesn't have any nutrients.

A: Providing only six to 20 calories per cup, lettuce and other salad greens should be considered a nutritional bargain and a great way to get in one of your five servings of fruits and vegetables each day, says Janice Baranowski, a research dietitian with the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. One cup of raw salad greens counts as a serving of vegetables in the USDA's Food Guide Pyramid.

As a rule of thumb, the outer leaves as well as lettuce varieties that are dark green and reddish in color are the most nutritious. But even popular, but pale, iceberg lettuce provides water, fiber, folate and small amounts of other important vitamins and minerals like zinc and potassium.

To bump up the nutritional quality of the salads you serve, try tossing in some deeply colored salad greens. Spinach, watercress, Lamb's lettuce, and dandelion greens are loaded with beta carotene, a pigment our bodies can convert to vitamin A. Dandelion greens, endive, chicory, romaine, and spinach also provide plenty of folate, a vitamin many consider an important nutrient for cardiovascular health. Darkly hued leaf lettuce, spinach, lamb's lettuce and mustard, beet and dandelion greens are rich in iron. Also, don't forget nutritious additions like vitamin C-rich tomatoes, broccoli and green pepper, beta carotene-rich carrots, nuts, seeds and raisins.

Just keep in mind that the calories in dressing-drenched salads and those loaded with cheeses and meats can add up quickly, making portion-control of high-fat add-ons essential. Consider using low-fat and fat-free dressings, lean meats and fat-free cheeses.

Send your nutrition questions via U.S. mail to: Kids' Nutrition Q&A, USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine, 1100 Bates Street, Houston, TX 77030; or via e-mail to: cnrc@bcm.tmc.edu. Questions of general interest will be answered in this column.

Pap alternative might reduce cervical cancer deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — A test for the human papilloma virus that doesn't require a pelvic exam may soon rival the Pap smear as an accurate way of screening for cancer and precancerous conditions, researchers reported recently in the Journal of the American Association.

However, the two studies found that the new test produced far more false-positives than the Pap smear, causing many more women to need further testing.

Whether the HPV test's widespread use will ever be feasible, affordable and effective at reducing cervical cancer deaths remains to be seen, said an expert who was not involved in the work.

As a screening technique, the test may be most applicable in developing countries, where pelvic exams and lab exams of cervical cells are often unavailable, said the expert, Dr. Jack Cuzick of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in London.

But the lead author of one of the studies said the test's false-positive rate may be much lower among U.S. women — and similar to that of the Pap smear — because they have much lower rates of sexually transmitted diseases than African and Central American women studied.

"I think for women over age 35 to 40, HPV testing will end up, in the near future, replacing a regular Pap smear," said the author, Dr. Thomas Wright Jr. of Columbia University.

The HPV test is now licensed in the United States only as a follow-up to an abnormal Pap smear. It has not been approved for routine screening, though it is available for that purpose in other countries.

The test is based on the discovery that the sexually transmitted human papilloma virus, or HPV, causes almost all cases of cervical cancer.

HPV infects an estimated 40 million Americans and many more worldwide. Though most of HPV's 80 strains cause no permanent harm, perhaps 1 percent of infected people get a strain that can cause cervical cancer.

Worldwide, almost 360,000 cases of cervical cancer were detected in 1990, with 190,000 women dying of the disease.

The Pap smear, which costs $25 to $35, is the most widely used screening test. It requires a skilled professional to do a pelvic exam and scrape cells from a woman's cervix. The cells are then analyzed under a microscope.

"A single Pap smear misses about 40 percent of cervical disease, which is why women are told to have yearly Pap smears," Wright said.

In HPV testing, which costs $45 to $60, women themselves can collect a sample of cervical tissue at a clinic or doctor's office using a small brush or cotton swab. The tissue is then analyzed for DNA from 13 types of HPV considered to be the main culprits in cervical cancer.

Wright's team and colleagues from AVSC International and the University of Cape Town screened and followed 1,365 black South African women ages 35 to 65. The researchers found that the HPV test identified 37 of 56 women with high-grade cervical disease or cancer, for a detection rate of 66 percent.

The Pap smear identified 38 of the 56 women, a rate of 68 percent. But the false-positive rate for the self-collected HPV test was 17 percent, vs. only 12 percent for the Pap smear.

In the other study, led by Dr. Mark Schiffman of the National Cancer Institute, researchers screened 8,554 women in Costa Rica ages 18 years and older. A total of 138 cases of high-grade cervical disease or cancer were found, with the HPV test detecting 88 percent and the Pap smear 78 percent. But HPV had almost twice the rate of false-positives, 11 percent, vs. 5.8 percent for Pap smears.

Fiber diet may help prevent obesity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A high-fiber diet, already linked to preventing heart disease and cancer, also appears to help fight obesity, according to a new study published in a recent Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study found that young adults who ate at least 21 grams of fiber per day gained, on average, eight pounds less over a 10-year period than those who ate the least amount of fiber.

"At all levels of fat intake, individuals eating the most fiber gained less weight than those eating the least fiber," according to the study presented at an American Medical Association conference for science reporters.

The new study involved more than 2,900 adults who consumed 15 grams to 25 grams of fiber daily (a bowl of high-fiber cereal can contain 25 grams).

In the study, fiber consumption also seemed to provide a more accurate gauge than fat consumption when predicting weight gain, blood cholesterol levels and other risks for cardiovascular disease.

Triplets born to 54-year-old grandmother

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — A 54-year-old grandmother was in good spirits this morning after giving birth to healthy triplets over the weekend.

"I am feeling good. I am recovering better every day," Arcelia Garcia said through a translator today on CBS' "The Early Show."

The baby girls — named Ariana, Brianna and Cecilia — remained in intensive care following their births Saturday, but were breathing normally on their own. Mrs. Garcia was recovering in the hospital's family birthplace unit.

Dr. Diana Smigaj, who delivered the triplets, said today the babies are healthy.

"There was one that was smaller, but we were watching very, very carefully and she was growing and they're doing great," Smigaj said.

It's extremely rare for a woman in her 50s to bear triplets, especially without the aid of fertility drugs, said Tom Easterling, a maternal and fetal medicine specialist at the University of Washington Medical Center.

But Mrs. Garcia and her husband, Guillermo, 60, have been overcoming odds most of their lives.

They left Michoacan, Mexico, in 1976 and settled in Sunnyside, about 30 miles southeast of Yakima, making their way as farmworkers and raising eight children. In 1996, Mrs. Garcia became a U.S. citizen.

The couple farm their own land now with the help of three grown sons, and Mrs. Garcia said she plans to return to her farm work as soon as her health and the health of her triplets allows.

"We are a large family, and we just got larger," eldest son Miguel Garcia, 35, said after the delivery.

Etheridge tells tots' father's identity — fellow rocker Crosby

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock star Melissa Etheridge has revealed the paternity of the two children she shares with her lesbian partner, and it turns out he's a two-time rock hall of famer.

In a cover story for Rolling Stone magazine, Etheridge says David Crosby, the singer and songwriter from Crosby, Stills and Nash, fathered her toddler children with filmmaker Julie Cypher via artificial insemination.

Etheridge, 38, had long refused to disclose the paternity of 3-year-old Bailey and 1-year-old Beckett, prompting speculation on the biological father's identity. Gossips speculated on celebrities such as Brad Pitt and Tom Hanks.

The couple revealed the secret in grand fashion — posing on the cover of Rolling Stone with the two children, Crosby, and his wife, Jan. The article was released to the media on Sunday; the magazine hits newsstands on Friday.

"We just got so tired of this secret," Etheridge told the magazine. "It wears you out. And keeping this big secret goes against how we are choosing to live our lives — very openly."

Cypher, 35, carried the children. Crosby, who is 58 and the father of three other children, doesn't plan to help raise Bailey and Beckett — which is fine by Etheridge and Cypher.

"If, you know, in due time, at a distance, they're proud of who their genetic dad is, that's great," said Crosby.

He had his first hit ("Mr. Tambourine Man") in 1965 as a member of the Byrds, and is in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland as a member of the Byrds and as one-third of Crosby, Stills and Nash.

The Grammy-winning Etheridge said Crosby's wife first suggested the idea when the two couples chatted during a vacation in Hawaii a few years ago.

"It came from her, which was the best, most perfect way," Etheridge said. "For one, he's musical, which means a lot to me, you know, and I admire his work. And he has his own life, has his own family."

Cypher and Etheridge live in Los Angeles.

Convicted murderer, child molester captured in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A tip prompted by the television show "America's Most Wanted" led to the arrest Sunday of convicted child killer from North Dakota, who escaped authorities by crawling through the roof hatch of a prison transport bus.

Kyle Bell, 32, whose escape enraged North Dakotans, had lived in a northeast Dallas apartment since October, the same month in which he fled, the FBI said. He was being held without bond Sunday night at the Lew Sterrett Justice Center pending extradition to Bismarck, officials said.

Rick Wilson, an employee at the apartment complex, said he recognized Bell on the television program Saturday night and called in a tip.

"When I saw his face, my chin dropped to the ground," Wilson told The Dallas Morning News, adding that he didn't know the severity of Bell's criminal history until after police captured the escapee.

"It's very scary," Wilson said. "It's totally shocking."

FBI agents and Dallas police arrested Bell around 1 a.m. at his apartment. Bell didn't struggle during the arrest, but he wasn't eager to go, FBI Special Agent Lori Bailey said.

"He was a little angry and a little bit belligerent," she said. "He was compliant, but he would never admit to his true identity."

Bell showed a fake driver's license that identified him as Chris Larson, she said. Authorities confirmed his identity through fingerprints and tattoos on his chest.

In North Dakota, where Bell had been convicted for the murder of an 11-year-old girl, Gov. Ed Schafer announced the capture at a news conference.

Schafer said Bell had shaved his mustache and cut his blond hair short, noting his appearance was markedly different from the pictures authorities had distributed.

A $50,000 reward had been offered for information leading to the capture of Bell, who also is a convicted child molester. Schafer said the tipster apparently was unaware of the reward.

Bell had worked at temporary jobs including plumbing and as a parking attendant, Bailey said. He was living with a woman who had five young children and who apparently did not know Bell prior to his arrival in Dallas.

Officials would not identify the woman Bell had been a fugitive since Oct. 13, when he escaped from a prison transport bus while it was stopped at a fuel station and restaurant at Santa Rosa, N.M.

He was being hauled by a private company, TransCor America Inc. of Nashville, which the state of North Dakota had hired to take him to a maximum security prison in Oregon. Bell apparently freed himself from handcuffs and leg irons with a key smuggled in his shoe, then crawled up a roof hatch on the bus.

TransCor guards did not notice Bell was gone for at least nine hours. The circumstances of his escape angered North Dakota lawmakers and prompted an interim legislative committee to question TransCor executives and state corrections administrators about their procedures.

Schafer said he would seek to have TransCor pay authorities' expenses in tracking down Bell.

Bell was convicted last August of murder in connection with the disappearance of Jeanna North, 11, of Fargo, who has not been seen since June 1993. Bell was once a neighbor of the North family.

At the time he was convicted in that case, Bell was serving a 40-year prison sentence, with 10 years suspended, in two unrelated child molestation cases. He had been serving that sentence at a Wisconsin prison.

Who wants to marry a millionaire?

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Dozens of women showed up at the Brat Stop tavern here hoping for a shot at marrying a mysterious multimillionaire.

Friday's event was one of several held around the country to narrow the field to 50 the number of finalists who will compete in upcoming Fox network special, "Who Wants to Marry a Multimillionaire?"

"It would change my lifestyle," said Nicole Milem, 23, a cosmetologist from Fox Lake, Ill. "It would be fun to share millions with someone. I want my future kids to have everything they want."

The unidentified bachelor then will make his choice, and the wedding will be shown before a live television audience.

"I'm just tired of working three jobs, and I have nothing to lose," said Genny Marquez, 39, a commercial bank worker from Waukesha.

"If the man is repulsive, you could close your eyes. I mean, with that much money, you could always say, 'I'm going on a trip.'"

Not what you'd expect in a net

OXFORD TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — When Lisa Cookingham found an owl in her daughter's soccer net, she didn't know who to turn to.

Cookingham and her 13-year-old daughter, Kalyn, noticed something strange about the new net last week when they got home.

"It looked like a garbage bag stuck in the net, so we went out there. Kalyn said 'It looks like a bird,' and all of a sudden his head did a 180 and looked right at us," Cookingham told The Oakland Press of Pontiac Saturday. "We both screamed and ran ... We looked like Laurel and Hardy."

After having to repeat herself several times, Cookingham managed to convince the police dispatcher of the bird's plight.

Officers managed to cut the male great horned owl from the net and the bird was recovering under the care of a licensed wildlife rehabilitator.

Soccer practice will be hampered for a few weeks, but it's a small price to pay, Cookingham said.

"They cut a hole in our new soccer net, but at least we saved an owl," she said.

Search on for oldest person

ALLEN TOWN, Pa. (AP) — The search is on. Now that the Allentown woman listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as being the oldest person with a verifiable date of birth has died, the publication is on the lookout for a new holder of that distinction.

But it's not an easy task, especially since some past claims of longevity have turned out to be phony. The publication now requires a birth certificate or other undisputed proof of age.

The oldest person with authenticated records is 107-year-old Marget Eaton McHowat of Brechin, Scotland, said Louise Wilson, Guinness World Records assistant brand manager.

Researchers are now trying to track down a 118-year-old woman in Poland and a 111-year-old man in Oregon.

Sarah "Sadie" Clark Knauss, the previous record-holder, died Dec. 30, at age 119.

The oldest person ever with authenticated records was Jeanne Calment of France, who died Aug. 4, 1997, 122 years and 164 days after she was born, according to the Gerontology Research Group.

Woman raising stink is cited

HANOVER, Va. (AP) — A woman raising a stink over plans to discharge treated sewage into the Pamunkey River here has in return received a zoning violation notice for a line of commodes set up on her farm.

Frances Broaddus Crutchfield admitted last week the 11 porcelain toilets represent a protest, but disputes the conclusion by a Hanover County zoning inspector that they amount to an illegal sign.

"I am wondering, does Hanover County interpret everyone's toilets to be signs, or just mine?" she asked.

Richard R. Johnson, administrator of the agricultural county a few miles north of Richmond, said the ruling was based on how the toilets were set up and their purpose.

"It is not meant to indicate that a toilet any and everywhere is a sign," he said.

The county is still seeking regulatory approval of the discharge next to Crutchfield's farm.

"I am not a crook"

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — If he's ever caught, the robber of convenience store may well use Richard Nixon's famous five-word defense: "I am not a crook."

The Sonoma County Sheriff's Department says a robber wearing a mask of the late president entered the Pit Stop shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday, produced a weapon, demanded cash and got away.

The suspect is described as a 5-foot-6-inch man who weighs about 160 pounds.

Sheriff's officials would not say what kind of weapon he used or how much money he took.

Nixon uttered the famous "crook" quote when defending himself against Watergate allegations, which eventually forced him to resign the presidency.

Marino still has some football magic left

Notebook

FOOTBALL

DALLAS (AP) — Inside linebacker Zach Thomas was one of three Miami Dolphins named to The Associated Press All-Pro Team.

"I feel like that's the main poll for showing your success," said Thomas, who starred at White Deer and Pampa high schools and was an All-American at Texas Tech. "A lot of guys say the Pro Bowl is a popularity contest, which can turn into, but you never see that with The AP. That's why I'm very happy with that."

The NFL's 36-year-old career passing leader, playing in the shadow of speculation he is about to retire, pulled off some of his old magic to keep the Miami Dolphins in the playoffs Sunday with a 20-17 over the Seattle Seahawks in the final football game in the Kingdom.

He did so by orchestrating an 11-play, 85-yard drive capped by J.J. Johnson's 2-yard run for the winning score with 4:48 left. Marino was 4-for-7 for 84 yards on the drive, including completions of 23 yards to Tony Martin on third-and-17 from his 8, and a 24-yard third-down completion to Oronde Gadsden at the 5-yard line that set up Johnson's game-winner.

It was the 37th fourth-quarter comeback of Marino's career, second only to John Elway, and it sent the Dolphins (10-7) to Jacksonville for a second-round AFC playoff game with the Jaguars next Saturday.

Marino, who was 17-of-30 for 196 yards and had a 1-yard TD pass to Gadsden, didn't do it alone as Miami won on the road in the playoffs for the first time since a victory in Pittsburgh in 1972.

The defense sacked Jon Kitna six times, three by Trace Armstrong, and held the Seahawks to just 171 yards, 32 in the second half. Two of Armstrong's sacks came on one series after the go-ahead TD, and Armstrong almost got a fourth — Kitna got a 1-yard gain, so it wasn't a sack.

This game was hard work for both struggling teams — like Miami, Seattle lost five of its last six regular-season games. It backed into the AFC West title and was struggling on offense coming in.

Seattle's biggest play was by the special teams, an 85-yard kickoff return by rookie Charlie Rogers tied Marino's pass to Gadsden after the game at 10 in the third quarter. Even that was flawed — Rogers bobbled the ball before picking it up and racing for the touchdown.

The 38-year-old Marino, 4-6 in 10 starts in the regular season, remained alive for his first Super Bowl ring; he hasn't been there since his second season, 1984.

This game also may have prolonged the career of coach Jimmy Johnson, who stepped down for 12 hours a year ago before reconsidering.

The rift between coach and quarterback was pretty clear Sunday, too: Johnson ran several times on third-and-long instead of having Marino throw.

He also showed some of his old tricks. After Olindo Mare's 50-yard field goal in the third quarter, he tried an onside kick. It worked, but typically, the Dolphins went three and out.

Seattle led 10-3 at halftime as its defense limited the Dolphins to just 69 yards.

The Seahawks scored on their second possession on a 9-yard pass from Kitna to Sean Dawkins at the end of an eight-play, 47-yard drive.

Miami's only first-half scoring drive resulted in a 32-yard field goal by Mare after Johnson declined to go for a first down on fourth-and-1 at the Seattle 13.

Todd Peterson's 50-yarder with 45 seconds before intermission was the other score.

But Miami opened the second half by almost doubling its yardage output, going 60 yards in 10 plays, capped by Marino's 1-yard TD pass to Gadsden. Marino, who was just 5-of-8 for 28 yards in the first half, was 6-of-6 for 55 yards on the drive.

Then came Rogers' return, which stood up until Marino demonstrated his old magic.

GOLF

PAMPA — Hidden Hills Golf Course hosted a Senior Four Man Scramble Wednesday, January 5.

Placing first with a score of 65 were Travis Taylor, Howard Wells, John McGuire, Jim Osborne and Bill Brown.

Placing second with a score of 66 was Bob Conway, Harvey Malone, Bob Moyer and Bob Brandon.

Placing third with a score of 67 were Travis Johnston, Larry Heard, James Lee and Gene Winegeart.

Closest to the hole: Harvey Malone, No. 15.

BASEBALL

BALTIMORE (AP) — George W. Bush isn't the only one who thinks he blew it by approving a baseball trade that dealt future home-run slugger Sammy Sosa for designated hitter Harold Baines.

Baines agrees, too. "Yeah, that's true," Baines told a reporter who bumped into him Sunday at a newsstand at Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

"I can see why he got out of the business," a smiling Baines joked.

During a debate Friday in South Carolina, Bush and his rivals for the Republican presidential nomination were asked to name the biggest mistake they had made as an adult. The Texas governor offered a lighthearted response.

"As you may remember, I was in the business world at one time, I was the ... managing general partner of the mighty Texas Rangers. I signed off on that wonderful transaction: Sammy Sosa for Harold Baines," Bush deadpanned.

The audience laughed and cheered the wry response.

In the baseball world, Baines continues to be a solid performer, even at age 40. He is the career RBI leader among active players, and is 27 home runs short of 400. He recently signed a new $2 million contract with the Baltimore Orioles.

But his achievements have been eclipsed by Sosa, who as a rookie outfielder was traded from the Rangers to the Chicago White Sox in 1989.

With the Chicago Cubs in 1998, he went on to captivate the baseball world with his home-run duel with Mark McGwire of the St. Louis Cardinals.

McGwire ended up winning that year, hitting 70 home runs and breaking the single-season record of 61. Sosa had 66.

Last year, Sosa finished second again, with 63 home runs to McGwire's 65.

Award winner

Linebacker Nathan Arnn was a co-recipient of the First American Bank-McKinney Memorial Award at Friday night's Pampa High football banquet. Running back Ramon Martinez, the other recipient, was not available for a photograph. Each player received a $500 scholarship. The annual award goes to a senior player.

PHS teams host Dumas, Estacado

PAMPA — Pampa will be looking to get past a strong Dumas team in a District 3-4A girls' game at 7:30 Tuesday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Lady Harvesters, 11-5 for the season, opened district play with a 69-58 win over Caprock last Friday night.

Caprock was unable to contain Emily Hartman, Pampa's 6-3 junior who had 30 points on 9 of 22 field goal attempts and 12 of 17 free throw attempts. Hartman also collected six rebounds, including five on the defensive boards. Joy Young added 9 points and was 5 of 6 from the foul line. Jennifer Lindsey chipped in 8 points, including a pair of 3-point goals. She was also 2 of 2 from the foul line.

"We had a good evening out of these three young ladies, as we did everybody else," said Pampa coach Mark Elms. "I'd like to urge everybody to come out and watch these young ladies in action Tuesday night."

The Demonettes finished non-district play with an outstanding 16-4 record, but they lost their district opener to Hereford 52-36 last Friday night.

Dumas' main threat is 5-10 senior Bethany Ratliff, who can score from inside and outside the paint. Last year, she helped lead the Demonettes to their first playoff spot since 1988. Kasi Womble, a 5-3 senior, is an adept ballhandler who can also score.

CHILDRESS — Pampa slipped by Childress 56-54 in a non-district boys' basketball game Friday night.

With the score tied at 54-all, the Harvesters avoided overtime when Jesse Francis put back his own missed shot at the buzzer.

Pampa's record is 6-11 while Childress is 7-5.

Gary Alexander led Pampa in scoring with 15 points while Victor Brooks had 11 and Francis 10.

Michael Briscoe had 20 points and Cody Bishop 14 to lead Childress.

Others scoring for Pampa were Kirk George 6, Russell Robben 6, Derek Williams 5, and Casey Owens 3.

The Harvesters host Lubbock Estacado at 7:30 tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse.

MCLEAN — Brett Montgomery scored 20 points to lead McLean past Samnorwood 63-52 in a District 9-1A opener last weekend.

Chris Hauck added 15 points for the Tigers.

Bill Waters led Samnorwood with 29 points. Paul Wright followed with 11.

Samnorwood slipped by McLean 45-41 in the girls game.

Candace Brewer was high scorer for Samnorwood with 16 points. Lacy Decker chipped in 11.

Lacey Steel topped McLean in scoring with 12 points. Annie Weaver had 9.

Big night for Longhorns is looming

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A big slice of prestige will be on the line tonight for the Big 12.

No. 15 Texas, the Big 12's defending champion featuring player-of-the-year candidate Chris Mihm, is at No. 5 Connecticut. If the Longhorns pull off the upset starting at 8 p.m. CST on ESPN, it would give the league's ranked teams a clean sweep of Saturday-Monday games.

Everybody but Texas and Baylor got their conference seasons under way on Saturday. Kansas, which moved up to No. 8 in the rankings released today, had a big second half to swamp Colorado 84-69 for its 1,700th all-time win.

No. 16 Oklahoma outshot and outbounded youthful Texas A&M and pounded the Aggies 78-53. And No. 14 Oklahoma State showed off its depth by whipping Texas Tech 55-47.

Elsewhere in the Big 12 Saturday, Kansas State had a hot hand and sailed past Nebraska 97-79 and Iowa State tied a school record with its 10th straight win while beating hapless Missouri 86-81.

Kansas beat Colorado for the 21st straight time and joined Kentucky and North Carolina as the only schools in major college basketball with 1,700 wins.

"That means there's been a lot of winning going on here," said forward Nick Bradford. "There's a lot of tradition. And it feels good to be a part of that."

The Jayhawks trailed by four at halftime, but took control quickly in the second half as Jeff Boschee scored all 13 points after intermission.

One of Kansas' primary defensive goals was to stop Colorado guard Jaquay Walls, who totaled 45 points in two meetings last year with the Jayhawks. Walls could hardly have had a more miserable shooting night, going 0-for-9 from the floor and finishing with nine points.

Colorado was led by Jamahl Mosley and Kyle Williams, each with 16 points.

Oklahoma State showed off what coach Eddie Sutton said may be its greatest asset — depth. The Cowboys got only three points from leading scorers Desmond Mason and Glendon Alexander, who has been averaging nearly 14 points off the bench. But Brian Montonati came through with 14 points and 14 rebounds, his sixth double-double of the season. Alex Webber, who was in danger of losing his starting job because of recent poor play, had 11 points.

"They did what a great team will do," Tech coach James Dickey said. "They had four guys in double figures and when their stars were not scoring, they had other people step up."

Oklahoma forced 24 turnovers from the young Aggies, who start three freshmen. But one of those, Bernard King, had 18 points.

"Oklahoma's pressure really wore us down," A&M coach

Melvin Watkins said. "They played a physical game. We had a hard time handling their pressure."

Iowa State's Stevie Johnson scored 20 points and Marcus Fizer added 18. But it was Jamaal Tinsley who stole the show, getting 12 points, 11 assists and 12 rebounds for the second triple-double in school history.

Dallas' playoff slide continues

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mistakes, miscommunication and muffs. My, how the Dallas Cowboys have changed.

Dallas, the team that won three Super Bowls from 1992-1995, has now lost three straight playoff games after its 27-10 defeat at Minnesota on Sunday.

And, after a game in which they lost the ball four times and dropped countless passes, the Cowboys (8-9) were left wondering where their dynasty has gone.

"I think this was pretty reminiscent of the year we had," said quarterback Troy Aikman, who threw for 286 yards but no touchdowns. "You get in a game like this and it comes down to a few plays."

"Today's game symbolized the whole season," running back Emmitt Smith said. "It's like a roller coaster — up and down, up and down."

Smith, who rushed for 99 yards and became the NFL's career leading rusher in playoff history, said the Cowboys, who lost four of their top five receivers since training camp, underachieved.

"I never would have dreamed how inconsistent we would be," Smith said.

"We had our chances and we let them get away," Aikman added.

Last year, Aikman threw three interceptions in a first-round 20-7 loss at home to Arizona in the first round. The Cowboys lost their previous playoff game 26-17 to Carolina in the 1996 season.

Taking advantage of opportunities is exactly what Dallas prided itself on in dominating the mid-90s, with a 49-15 regular-season record from 1992-1995. The last four years, however, the Cowboys have been a much different team at 34-30.

Missing this season with neck injuries were wide receiver Michael Irvin and fullback Daryl Johnston, and in their place were wide receivers Jason Tucker, Chris Brazzell and fullback Robert Thomas. Irvin went down in the first game of the season and Johnston missed the entire year.

"I think we have a lot of inexperienced players and a lot of young players that may not understand truly what it means to be a professional athlete," Smith said.

"I'm trying to let the players know there are small things that go along with being a professional athlete to give you that mental edge," Smith said. "If you don't have that mental edge you're going to get defeated almost every time."

It was one of Dallas' veterans that made the first big mistake on Sunday.

Deion Sanders' muff at his own 30-yard line of Mitch Berger's punt in the first quarter led to Minnesota's first field goal. Thomas' fumble with 11:44 left in the second led to the Vikings' first touchdown.

"That's not acceptable in a game of this caliber," Sanders said of his drop.

Sanders, whose contract is up this season, said he was unsure if he would be back next season.

"I can't tell you if that was my last game in a Dallas Cowboys' uniform," Sanders said. "I would love to come back."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has to decide whether his organization can afford the $10 million average salary and minimum $15 million signing bonus likely required to keep the cornerback.

Jones continues to sidestep whether he now believes Coach Chan Gailey will remain his choice to strengthen the franchise.

"It's not appropriate to talk about coaching changes right now after we've lost a playoff game," Jones said Sunday.

But he said he would speak on Gailey's status this week.

The Cowboys lost their final eight road games, even though they led in each of them.

During their glory years, Smith ran behind his behemoth offensive line and Aikman threw to Irvin to keep defenses from stacking up the line of scrimmage to stop Smith.

The Cowboys would then turn to their quick defense to close out games.

On Sunday, they went ahead 10-3 but couldn't hold on, giving up the game's final 24 points.

"If you make that many mistakes, and there were different types — there were turnovers, there were dropped passes and mental mistakes — you don't give yourself a great chance to win," Gailey said.

"I thought we played hard, but we didn't put ourselves in position enough to win."

Bearcats back on top

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Cincinnati, which has won six straight since its only loss of the season, moved back into the No. 1 spot in the AP college basketball poll today, replacing Stanford after a run of three weeks.

The Bearcats (14-1) were No. 1 for five weeks until losing to Xavier. That's when Stanford (12-1) moved in, and the Cardinal held it until losing to Arizona on Saturday.

"It's just a ranking. It's not special," Cincinnati forward Pete Micek said Saturday night when it was obvious the Bearcats would move back on top.

Coach Bob Huggins was non-committal about his team's standing in the poll.

"You can take Stanford, Connecticut, possibly Arizona right now and probably us and shake 'em up," Huggins said. "I don't know that there's a whole lot of difference."

Cincinnati received 62 first-place votes and 1,740 points from the national media panel, while Arizona (13-2) jumped three places to second after the win over Stanford and received five No. 1 votes and 1,640 points.

The Cardinal dropped two spots to third. Auburn, which was No. 1 on two ballots, held fourth place.

Connecticut, the preseason No. 1 which won 10 straight after the season opener, fell from second to fifth after losing to Notre Dame.

Duke, which opened the Atlantic Coast Conference with road wins over Virginia and Maryland, moved up two places to sixth. Syracuse (11-0), the only remaining unbeaten Division I team, stayed seventh, getting one first-place vote.

Kansas and Indiana moved one spot each to eighth and ninth, while Florida, which lost at Vanderbilt last week, dropped from sixth to 10th.

Michigan State led the Second Ten for the second week in a row and was followed by Tennessee, North Carolina, Oklahoma State, Texas, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Maryland, Tulsa and Kentucky.

The last five ranked teams were DePaul, Illinois, Temple, LSU and Louisville.

Temple returns to the Top 25 after a one-week absence, and Louisville moves in for the first time since last season.

The Owls (8-3) finally got point guard Pepe Sanchez back after he missed eight games with a sprained ankle, and they opened their Atlantic 10 season with easy wins over Rhode Island and St. Joseph's.

Wowie Maui: Woods wins again with spectacular finish.

KAPALUA, Hawaii (AP) — Even by Maui's standards, Tiger Woods is riding an incredible wave.

Pushed into a heart-stopping playoff by two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els, Woods kept alive golf's longest winning streak in 46 years Sunday with a 40-foot birdie putt on the second sudden-death hole to win the Mercedes Championship.

It was his fifth consecutive victory, the most since Ben Hogan won five straight tournaments in 1953, and inched Woods a little closer to the record once thought untouchable — 11 straight by Byron Nelson in 1945.

With a spectacular finish to the first tournament of the year, Woods and Els matched eagles on the 18th hole to force the playoff, and Woods made a 6-foot birdie putt on the same hole 20 minutes later to keep the playoff going.

He ended it with his 40-footer on the first hole, stepping off to the side as it got closer and unleashing a fist pump as it fell. Els tried to keep the thriller alive, but his 35-footer stopped about a foot short of the hole.

Along with $522,000 — enough to move him to No. 3 on career money list at the ripe old age of 24 — Woods won a Mercedes SL500 Sport that sells for $88,000 and a blazer made of cashmere and silk valued at $3,300.

He also sent a scary message to the rest of the PGA Tour. It will likely take a superhuman effort to beat him.

"We were both out there grinding our butts off," Woods said. "To make a putt like this, that's all you can ask for."

Els outplayed Woods from tee to green, but missed two short putts on the back nine that might have sealed the victory before it reached the 18th hole.

"At least I pushed him to extra time," said the South African known as the "Big Easy."

Woods gave Els new hope when he missed the green on No. 17 and lipped out a par putt. What had been a great display of golf only soared to another level.

Both players bombed their drives on the 663-yard closing hole, Els a few yards longer. Woods hit first, a 3-wood that hit softly on the right side of the green and caught the slope, rolling closer to the hole until it stopped 8 feet away.

As he had done all day, Els was up to the challenge. His 3-wood hit short, bounded onto the green and stopped 6 feet away. Both gave each other a thumbs-up and a smile as they walked to the green.

Woods again put on the heat by making his eagle putt, worthy of a trademark pump of the fist. The Big Easy didn't blink, and rolled his eagle putt on top of Woods to force a playoff.

Els again hit the 18th green in the playoff with a 3-wood from 323 yards, while Woods' approach stayed right of the green. His 60-foot effort came up 6 feet below the hole, and Els thought he had it won until his 30-foot eagle putt veered off to the right at the last turn.

Woods made his birdie, then clinched the 16th victory of his young career on the next hole.

Woods and Els both finished with a 68 for 16-under 276.

Defending champion David Duval had a 68 and was four strokes behind.

Woods now has won eight out of his last 11 PGA events, an astounding display of dominance. It also was the 14th time he has won worldwide when he has had at least a share of the lead after 54 holes.

Mike Weir made five straight birdies on the back nine and had a 67 to finish fourth at 285, along with Jim Furyk.

That Woods and Els were the only players to break par all four rounds was a testament to their play this week, considering the trade winds out of the northeast were strong all four days. The winds were tolerable Sunday, and 18 players broke par. Carlos Franco had the best round, a bogey-free 67 that left him at 287 with Jesper Parnevik.

But everything gave way to a thrilling duel between Woods and Els, staged on the hilly terrain above the Pacific Ocean as humpback whales frolicked below.

Tied at 11-under to start the final round, Els drew first blood with a 5-iron on the 218-yard second hole that stopped 3 feet by the hole for a birdie. Woods stayed in the game with two crucial 6-footers, one to save par on No. 2 and another on the par-5 fifth for birdie after his approach found the bunker.

Woods pulled even with a 12-foot birdie on No. 6, but then he three-putted from 30 feet on the next hole to slip one back. Both missed birdie chances on No. 8, and both closed out the front nine with birdies.

Els said it would come down to the back nine Sunday, and he could have easily backed down from the head-to-head challenge against the No. 1 player in the world. The South African made only his second score worse than par all week — a bogey on No. 10, and saw Woods take a one-stroke lead by making a 5-foot birdie putt.

But Els answered, hitting the flag with his tee shot on the par-3 11th and making the 2-footer to pull into a tie.

He also made a nice par save two holes later, but wasted a chance to take the lead when he missed a 4-foot birdie putt on No. 14, and missed another chance with a 6-foot birdie that lipped out on No. 16.

Woods is not interested in The Streak. By his account, it ended with his four straight to end the 1999 season in Valderrama — also won in a playoff against Miguel Angel Jimenez.

But it will follow him until he loses. The next stop is likely four weeks away in Pebble Beach, when he starts his West Coast swing that eventually will take him to the Masters.

Even in loss, Els proved something to himself. He had said on Thursday that he wasn't even in the same ball park with Woods. But he outplayed Woods in the third round to pull into a tie, and went blow-for-blow with under the pressure of the final round.

Still, Woods figures to be around to meet any challenge every week. Not only is he 8-of-11 since June — a statistic more suitable to free throws than golf — he has finished no worse than seventh in his last 15 tournaments.

Highlights of the century

A bus carrying children who were members of a Lubbock, Texas, church group was traveling home on U.S. 82 west of Artesia, Texas, after a week-end retreat in the mountains May 2, 1999. On a narrow section of the highway, a pickup towing a fifth-wheel camper strayed across the center line of the highway. The front of the camper tore into the side of the bus, injuring the driver of the bus, then ripping the side of the bus open. Six girls were killed; 20 were hurt. Still rolling, it collided with a small pickup that had been following the church bus, killing an Albuquerque man.
