JUNKERS SHIP AZORES BOUND FROM LISBON

French fliers to try for Brazil, 2,000 miles away

LITTLE NEWS ON RUTH ELDER

American Girl Broke Distance Record In Effort

(By Associated Press) LISBON, Oct. 14—The Junkers hydro-airplane, D-1230, piloted by Frederick Loose, left today for the Azores in continuance of its flight from Germany to the United States.

HARTA, Azores, Oct. 14—The plane D-1230 arrived here this afternoon from Lisbon. Lilli Dillenz, actress, was aboard.

(By Associated Press) DAKAR, Senegal, Oct. 14—Dien-denne Coste and Lieut. le Brix, French aviators, hopped off today on the trans-Atlantic section of their flight from Paris to Buenos Aires. Their immediate destination is the port of Natal, Brazil, a distance of about 2,000 miles.

PARIS, Oct. 14—Forced down at sea after battling storms and mechanical trouble, Ruth Elder and George Haldeman were safe today on the Dutch tanker Brendrecht steaming for the Azores and due there tomorrow morning.

When forced to alight they had covered 2,600 miles from New York in the longest flight ever made over water, but fell short of the European continent by some 600 miles and Paris, their goal, by 1,200 miles. A little more light was thrown on their flight in the message from the captain of the Brendrecht. This showed that they had encountered the storm zone as predicted by weather experts.

Fighting storms for eight hours, they emerged triumphant but found themselves far south of their course. The oil line was broke, but they continued to fly for five hours. About 350 miles northeast of the Azores, the Brendrecht was sighted. They headed for her and alighted.

Sailors rescued the fliers, but in attempting to salvage the plane an explosion occurred causing the craft to burn.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 14—Georgia's first triple execution was performed at the state prison today where three negroes went to the electric chair within a space of 38 minutes. All three confessed their guilt before the current was applied.

Mississippi Stages Comeback in Commerce

Tonnage being carried on the Father of Waters by the packet boats and barge lines has increased so in the last few years that commerce is again almost as great as in the glorious '80s when the river was the chief carrier of the Mississippi valley. Here are pictured steamboats at the St. Louis levee, about to depart for points along the river from Keokuk, Ia., to New Orleans. Last year more than 1,000,000 tons of river freight moved through St. Louis alone.

Style Show Is Very Pleasing in Seasonal Display

Seasonal style and garment shows of surpassing beauty, attractive models, and clever entertainment made last night's style show at the Rex theatre one of unusual merit. The stage was prepared after an all-night effort by the decorators, and the show was very pleasing from every standpoint.

A most elaborate display of fall and winter fashions was effectively modeled by local men and women, while the music and program between showings were enjoyed by the large audience.

The fashions shown included men suits, coats, and hats, snappy sport dresses, street dresses, elaborate afternoon and evening dresses, and a beautiful line of dainty lingerie. A striking display of jewelry novelties attracted the attention of many.

Eight local merchants took part in the event. They are: Kees and Thomas, Mitchell's Store, Gordon Stores company, Barnard's, L. T. Hill and company, Diamond "C," Murfee and company, and Cross Dry Goods company.

Much local talent appeared in the entertainment, which included "Old Fashioned Garden," by Frances Campbell, Ann Sedalia McNamara, and Joe Isabell. An enjoyable bit of humor was given by Gene Murfee and Janice Purviance in "I'll Not Play." "Crystal Gazer," given by Mrs. E. E. Fisher and Miss Ruth Ann Mitchell, and a delightful toe-dancing performance, The Balloon Dance, by Louise Walstad and Melba Graham proved enjoyable successes.

The music, furnished by Harrison's Texans orchestra, and the beautiful stage decorations, perfected a picture of a rose garden surrounding a lovely mansion.

Those who modeled for the merchants are: Kees and Thomas, George Gill and Wynne Caldwell.

Mitchell's store, Mrs. James Eastland and Mrs. John Studer. Gordon's Store, Miss Kate Archer and Miss Mary Ford. Barnard's store, Mrs. P. B. Carlson, and Mrs. Morris Johnson. Diamond "C" Miss Catherine Ferguson, and Miss Helen Commons. Hill's Department store, Miss Juanita Fulbright, and Miss Ruth Hill. J. E. Murfee store, Mrs. Wade Duncan, and Miss Louise Elston of Panhandle. Cross Dry Goods store, Miss Lucille Mooney, and Miss Edna Baird.

Supt. S. M. N. Marrs Commends City for Honoring Memory of Judge B. B. Baker With School

In a letter to the Daily News, S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent, expresses his appreciation of the receipt of a recent issue containing a picture of Judge B. M. Baker and the school building named to his memory here.

Supt. Marrs said, in part: "I had the privilege of a personal acquaintance with Judge Baker when he was State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and his chief clerk, Mr. A. S. Thweatt, is at present the efficient bookkeeper in the free text book division in the state department of education.

"As stated in the sketch, Judge Baker was the first state superintendent under the present constitution, and rendered good service to the cause of education. I wish to congratulate the people of your community for bestowing this honor upon his name.

"I am transmitting the copy of your paper to Mr. Thweatt, who will appreciate it very much."

This is but one of a large number of messages received congratulating the Pampa Independent district upon its new school dedicated to Judge Baker.

Final Paving Is Being Rushed to Completion

No time is being wasted by the Stuckey Construction company in completing the final program of the Pampa paving. Five blocks remain to be paved in the extensive program.

Grading has almost been completed on West Foster, where the extra two blocks are to be paved, and the curb and gutter will be set the latter part of the week. The company is all set to lay the base on Francis avenue in front of the high school as soon as a shipment of cement arrives.

The base on the two blocks and intersection of Ballard street was laid in two days and two hours while the brick will be placed next week. This will finish the paving on the east side of Cuyler street.

Albert Lewter Is Given Good Mention in Baylor Newspaper

Albert Lewter, Pampa football star now attending Baylor university at Waco, is getting much favorable mention in the Daily Lariat, Baylor newspaper.

Sam Withlow, sports editor of the Lariat, declares Lewter "looks for the world like Tunney." "Chunk" is out for a halfback position on the Freshman squad. He punts well and is being closely watched.

Another write-up says that "Lewter is the driving type of back that picks a small hole with the idea of enlarging it by a hard drive."

Coach Verde Dickey of Central high is confident that the local boy will place on the Baylor squad next year.

Ruth Taylor accepted a position as stenographer in the office of Drs. Mc. Kean and Connor.

No Water Found in Big Delaney Gusher Today

Reports today in Amarillo papers that there is encouragement of water in the Delaney No. 1 Jackson in section 33, block B-2, has been vehemently denied by officials of the company.

Tests made by the Toronto and Humble pipeline companies, who are hauling the oil, show that there is less than one-half of one per cent water in the oil, and that it still retains its high gravity.

The well is making 225 barrels an hour.

Gas broke in around the casing in the Amogray Oil company's No. 1 Chapman in section 9, block 26, and temporarily shut off the flow of oil. The most accurate report obtainable gave the well as making 8 barrels an hour of 48 gravity oil.

Drilling has been resumed on the Donley Gray Oil company's No. 1 Gordon, in section 79, block 3, at a depth of 3,520 feet. A show of gas was reported at 3,450 feet with the first oil showing at 3,470 feet. The well is about one mile east of the Pampa townsite location, which is shut-down to set casing.

The Texas Oil company has made a location to drill a well in section 51, block 25, Gray county, on its Chapman lease. The well is an offset to the Shamrock Oil company's No. 1 Chapman, in the same section.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Suspicion falls on Miss St. Clair but Vance demonstrates by measurements at the scene of the shooting that the murderer must have been approximately six feet tall. Pfyfe tells Markham that Leacock had threatened to kill Alvin Benson. Major Benson admits having heard the threat, too. Leacock denies that he owned a Colt .45 and resents Markham's questions about Miss St. Clair. Markham begins to think Leacock guilty.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

"What a perfect ready-made set of notions you have, Markham! Don't you know that an innocent man, when he comes under suspicion, is apt to be more nervous than a guilty one, who, to begin with, had enough nerve to commit the crime, and, secondly, realizes that any show of nervousness is regarded as guilt by you lawyer chaps?"

"My strength is as the strength of ten because my heart is pure" is a mere Sunday-school pleasantry. Touch almost any innocent man on the shoulder and say "You're arrested", and his pupils will dilate, he'll break out in a cold sweat, the blood will rush from his face, and he'll break out in a cold sweat, and the blood will rush from his face, and he'll have tremors and dyspnoea.

"If he's a hysteric, or a cardiac neurotic, he'll probably collapse completely. It's the guilty person who, when thus accosted, lifts his eyebrows in bored surprise and says, 'You don't mean it, really,—here have a cigar.'"

"The hardened criminal may act as you say," Markham conceded; "but an honest man who's innocent doesn't go to pieces, even when accused."

Vance shook his head hopelessly. "My dear fellow, Crile and Voronoff might have lived in vain for all of you. Manifestations of fear are the result of glandular secretions—nothing more. All they prove is that the person's thyroid is undeveloped or that his adrenals are subnormal.

Vance

"Well, it looks like we'd got hold of something workable. I went to this Captain Leacock's apartment-house last night, and here's the straight of it:—Leacock was at home the night of the thirteenth all right; but shortly after midnight he went out, headed west—get that!—and he didn't return till about quarter of one!"

"What about the hall-boy's original story?" asked Markham. "That's the best part of it, Leacock had the boy fixed. Gave him money to swear he hadn't left the house that night.—What do you think of that, Mr. Markham? Pretty crude—huh? . . . The kid loosened up when I told him I was thinking of sending him up the river for doing the job himself."

Heath laughed unpleasantly. "And he won't spill anything to Leacock, either."

Markham nodded his head slowly. "What you tell me, Sergeant, bears out certain conclusions I arrived at when I talked to Captain Leacock this morning. Ben put a man on him when he left here, and I'm to get a report tonight. Tomorrow may see this thing through. I'll get in touch with you in the morning, and if anything's to be done, you understand, you'll have the handling of it."

When Heath had left us, Markham folded his hands behind his head and leaned back contentedly.

"I think I've got the answer," he said. "The girl dined with Benson and returned to his house afterward. The captain, suspecting the fact, went out, found her here, and shot Benson."

"That would account not only for her gloves and hand-bag, but for the hour it took her to go from the Marselles to her home. It would also account for her attitude here Saturday, and for the captain's lying about the gun. . . . There, I believe, I have my case. The smashing of the captain's alibi about clinches it."

"Oh, quite," said Vance airily. "Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing."

Markham regarded him a moment. "Have you entirely forsown human reason as a means of reaching a decision? Here we have an admitted threat, a motive, the time, the place, the opportunity, the conduct, and the criminal agent."

"Those words sound strangely familiar," smiled Vance. "Didn't most of 'em fit the young lady also? . . . And you really haven't got the criminal agent, y' know. But it's no doubt floating about the city somewhere. . . . A mere detail, however."

"I may not have it in my hand," Markham countered. "But with a good man on watch every minute, Leacock won't find much opportunity of disposing of the weapon."

"I'm glad, at any rate, it hasn't to do with international politics," returned Markham good-naturedly.

He glanced at his clock. "You won't mind if I get to work? I've a dozen things to attend to and a couple of committees to see. . . . Why don't you go across the hall and have a talk with Ben Hanlon, and then come back at 12:30? We'll have lunch together at the Banker's Club."

"Ben's our greatest expert on foreign extradition, and has spent most of his life chasing about the world after fugitives from justice. He'll spin you some good yarns."

"How perfectly fascinating!" exclaimed Vance, with a yawn.

But instead of taking the suggestion, he walked to the window and lit a cigaret. He stood for a while puffing at it, rolling it between his fingers, and inspecting it critically. "Y' know, Markham," he observed, "everything's going to pot these days. It's this silly democracy. Even the nobility is degenerating. These Regie cigarets, now; they've fallen off frightfully. There was a time when no self-respecting potentate would have smoked such inferior tobacco."

Markham smiled. "What's the favor you want to ask?"

"Favor? What has that to do with the decay of Europe's aristocracy?"

"I've noticed that whenever you want to ask a favor which you consider questionable etiquette, you begin with a denunciation of royalty."

"Observin' fella," commented Vance drily. Then he, too, smiled. "Do you mind if I invite Colonel Ostrander along to lunch?"

Markham gave him a sharp look. "Bigsby Ostrander, you mean? . . . Is he the mysterious colonel you've been asking people about for the past two days?"

"That's the lad. Pompous ass and that sort of thing. Might prove a bit edifyin', though. He's the papa of Benson's crowd, so to speak; knows all parties. Regular old scandalmonger."

"Have him along, by all means," agreed Markham.

Then he picked up the telephone. "Now I'm going to tell Ben you're coming over for an hour or so."

(Monday, June 17: 12:30 p. m.) When, at half past twelve, Markham, Vance and I entered the grill of the Bankers' Club in the Eutaw building, Colonel Ostrander was already at the bar engaged with one of Charlie's prohibition calm-broth-and-Worcester-shire-hance cock-tails. Vance had telephoned him immediately upon our leaving the district attorney's office, requesting him to meet us at the club; and the colonel had seemed eager to comply.

(To Be Continued) The Daughters of Scotia, which has just closed its twenty-ninth annual convention at Detroit, reported a membership of 20,000 women of Scottish ancestry or descent.

Women Bankers Survey Reveals Women Active

HOUSTON, Tex.—A survey of the careers of officers in the Association of Bank Women, which holds its annual convention here in October, reveals the extent that women have become entrenched in modern business.

All of the women officials have come to their positions of responsibility in New York and Chicago banks after adventures in the business world ranging from Wall Street to a Red Cross hut in France.

Miss Jean Arnot Reid, president of the association is manager of the women's department of the Bankers Trust Co., New York. She formerly was an artist and a member of both American Association of Miniature Painters and the National Association of Painters and Sculptors. During the War she was in charge of a Red Cross hut at Vitte, France, and it was her financial statement rendering account of this hut's activities that won her the offer of her present position. The statement was seen by one of the bank's officials, who promptly sought her out.

Miss Mina Bruere, recording secretary, has had 14 years banking experience, seven of which were in Wall street. She is assistant secretary of the Central Union Trust Company of New York and serves the women department at the midtown office of this company on 42nd street.

The corresponding secretary of the women bankers' organization is Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson, director of the service department of the North River Savings Bank, New York. She studied domestic science and economics, was active in Belgian relief work during the war, and later was in an export firm. She spent three years on Wall Street and finally undertook direction of the service department for the North River bank. She is chairman of the woman's committee of the American Institute of Banking.

Miss Nina Carter, vice-president, and Miss Louella Ensworth, treasurer, both of Chicago, have had similar careers.

Although only six years old, the association of bank women represents virtually every state and more than 100 cities in a total membership of 190. The membership is restricted to women officers in banks, managers of departments whose business brings them into daily contact with the customers of their banks. The convention will be held simultaneously with the American Bankers Association convention.

Oil Royalty Field Fertile for Fraud

NEW YORK—The field of oil royalties, rendered attractive by the success of reputable oil producing companies, has been found by fraudulent promoters to be a fertile pasture—for the promoters.

Reported losses in fraudulent oil royalty enterprises by investors who believed standard companies were actively interested has led the National Better Business Bureau to survey of the field. The royalty has been recognized by oil district banks as security for loans and there has been an increase in the number of royalty companies, which pay landowners in cash for oil rights and retain the royalties for their shareholders, often issuing securities against pooled royalty holdings.

Fraudulent concerns are so like the legitimate that proper appraisal is difficult, the bureau says, but as royalty company assets are largely rights that constantly are shrinking, the reserve fund provide to meet this depletion is, among other factors, regarded as indicative of the company's future.

What Does It Matter?

The rival major leagues are fighting for winning the world series. Magnates seem to think that the title of world champions adds much to the prestige of the victorious league.

That may or may not be true. I have always been of the opinion that the fans, while much interested in the series as an outstanding sports event, soon forget all about the winner.

In other words, I have always had my doubts as to whether or not it meant a great deal at the gate for a league to boast the world champions. I am positive it means far more to have a colorful star like Ruth as a magnet to pack them in.

Yet, I can see why the American League magnates were more than anxious that the New York Yankees beat the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Was Class of League

New York, champions of the American League almost from the start of the season, had outclassed the rest of the field. After July 4 it was merely who else would finish in the first division to trail the Yankees.

In capturing the American League pennant, New York set a new record for victories in the organization by winning 110 ball games. Only once during the season was the club shut out. Never did it lose more than four games in a row.

Washington, Philadelphia and Detroit are mighty good ball clubs. Chicago wasn't a bad ball club. St. Louis and Cleveland were fair and Boston promising. However, the Yanks distanced the other seven.

Most American League managers expressed the belief that New York should be in a league all by itself. In some quarters this was taken as an alibi.

Yanks Belittled

The experts in doping the world series outcome in the 1927 classic, particularly those who had a leaning toward the National League, rather discounted the strength of the Yankees on the theory that the rest of the league was below standard.

"New York is a good club, but not a superb-club, as the records would make one believe. Its great showing has been made possible by the weakness of the other clubs."

That was the consensus of the critics, who favored the changes of the Pirates to beat the Yankees and sought a reason to explain their belief.

The opinion generally held was that the Pirates had won pennant in a league that was far better balanced than the American.

Was Tribute to Game

Such a condition explains why the American League magnates probably pulled harder for a victory this year than at any time since the world series was inaugurated.

If Pittsburgh should outclass the Yankees in the world series, decide it in four or five games, it would make the American League look like a minor organization. It would make all the complimentary things said about the Yankees sound like mere piffle.

That New York should trounce the Pirates in four straight games bears out the contention of the American League managers that New York is a super team and should play in a league by itself.

"I am sure the seven other managers in the National League, aside from Donie Bush, can now appreciate what we are up against in playing the Yankees all summer. Those babies are sure tough," was the way George Moriarty, manager of the Detroit Tigers, put it.

PURDUE'S HERO

Here's Ralph Welch, Purdue's sophomore halfback, who was the big gun in Purdue's sensational 19-0 victory against Harvard last Saturday. Welch got his chance at stardom because of the inability of the injured Captain "Cotton" Wilcox to play and made good in every respect. He is a Texan.

Army Equipment at San Antonio Being Greatly Improved

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 14.—Results of the army's better housing project and the air corps expansion program are becoming very apparent in San Antonio where almost every military camp is being improved or expanded.

At Ft. Sam Houston two enormous modern buildings are being constructed, one to serve as regimental headquarters and office building and a barracks and the others to serve as barracks for an entire battalion. The other battalion barracks are to be built later. These buildings, 400 feet long by 90 feet wide, will be the most modern and comfortable of any barracks here.

In spite of the fact that planes have been ferried from the flying fields here to most of the national guard units, and that a large number of planes have been sent to new flying fields, the personnel of all the flying fields is being expanded and the training planes are being replaced by a large number of de Havillands which the army is now concentrating here and at March Field, California.

Kelly field is to have an entire band for the first time in three years and 40 noncommissioned officers and 50 privates immediately. Later 45 privates will come to the field for training to reconstruct the fifteenth observation squadron at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. The twelfth observation squadron at Ft. Sam Houston is also due to receive additional men.

Railroad stations in Georgia and Alabama will be marked with electric signs on the roofs in order to guide fliers confused as to their location when flying at night.

Fight Expected over Headquarters for the E. T. C. of Commerce

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 14.—A lively fight is anticipated when the South Texas Chamber of Commerce holds its first annual convention in Brownsville next month and selects a permanent headquarters.

When the body was organized last year temporary headquarters were established in San Antonio with the understanding that permanent headquarters would be selected at the first convention.

Eight cities have made formal application for the headquarters already and a number of other towns are expected to get in the race. Those which have applied to date are Corpus Christi, Flatonia, Robstown, Beeville, Sugarland, Pearsall, Victoria, and Cuero.

One of the most interesting features of the convention, which opens November 13, will be a concert given by a massed band of South Texas. The Bands will attend the convention to take part in a band contest sponsored by the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

NEW NASH MODEL

Something new in Nash has arrived in the city and is the only one in the southwest. The Boggs-Horn Nash dealers have received one Nash standard cabriolet or convertible coupe. The coupe may be converted into a sport roadster or a five-passenger sport touring.

The new creation sells at $1,185 complete and will be followed later by two new and different models. The new car is not on display at the Dallas fair, the one received here being the only one shipped to this territory.

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car

SONS OF GRID STARS FOLLOW PATH MADE BY FAMOUS FATHERS

Three sons of former football stars are aspirants for similar honors. They are Fielding H. Yost, Jr., (left) son of the noted Michigan coach; Frank "Buck" O'Neil, Jr., (upper right) heir of the oldtime Williams College star, and William Heston, Jr., whose father was named "All-American Halfback" three successive seasons.

(By Associated Press)

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Three sons of dads famed in football annals are proving real "Chips off the old block" this year at Manlius School, a military academy near here.

They are William Heston, Jr., son of the famous "Willie" who two decades ago gained distinction as All-American halfback on three successive University of Michigan teams and was named by Walter Camp as the All-time All-American back; Fielding H. Yost, Jr., whose father, "Hurricane" Yost, is still serving the University of Michigan as director of athletics after having guided the destinies of its grid squad for 20 years, and Frank O'Neil, Jr., to the fame of the "Buck" O'Neil who starred on one of the greatest Manlius eleven's and then at Williams college, and finally took over the coaching work at Syracuse University.

Names mean nothing to the Manlius, however, and the three youths are being put through their paces as any other candidates would be. Yost attended Manlius last year, making a good record in the backfield on the junior team.

Young Heston has gained considerable distinction in his own right, having served last season as captain of the Northwestern High School of Detroit team and been named as All-State halfback of Michigan high schools for 1926.

O'Neil, described by the school athletic officials as having "a good idea of the game and splendid spirit," is not regarded as a finished star, however, was assigned to the junior squad until he has gained more experience.

GIVING—"I hold that every man owes something, besides his taxes to the community in which he lives. The more he has been favored mentally and materially by fortune, the more he owes. In discharge of that debt, he is under obligations to do for the community something that he does not get paid for, something that he does not make money by."—Samuel Insull.

It is often pointed out that purely governmental agencies are held to the minimum, that laws should be as few as possible, and that many city-building activities are out of the scope of official bodies. The above quotation is, therefore, a statement of the necessity for community service beyond that for which remuneration is provided.

Public officials are of two types: those who are given a stipulated sum or fees, or both, for their work, and those who are on duty officially only at intervals and whose service is gratuitous. Of the latter, the prestige connected with the offices varies, and politicians enter more or less in proportion to the prestige and power inherent in the position.

Elective offices, because they are positions of honor, are held to be such that, once elected, a public servant should make some sacrifice if necessary. City offices have been too much of this type, for they have forced business men either to sacrifice beyond the point of wisdom, or have caused men of ability to shun an elective office. Use of the city-manager system, which is coming into wide use in the progressive Panhandle cities, is retaining the best men as commissioners, but is shifting the administrative responsibility where it belongs—upon a man who gives his time and his life to the myriads of little details which make up modern city government.

There are many opportunities for community service out of the official family. Civic clubs, Boy Scouts, bands, churches, sports, Chamber of Commerce, and other agencies provide many opportunities for the man who would give something to his community for which he is not paid. It is a service to build a nice business in a city, yet if every business man did this alone, the city would not progress enough to make business profitable. There are many competent merchants willing to build good stores—so many that merely being a good merchant does not distinguish a man in his community. Fortunately for Pampa, this city has an unusual percentage of men of all ages who are readily willing to take this second step of unremunerative service. This spirit is building, and will continue to push forward, the Greater Pampa.

DAIRYING — Hale and Swisher counties are making rapid strides in dairying. Progress makes the industry more and more stable, and enables it to better the methods used. This item from the Tulsa Herald is suggestive: "J. I. Stark has been appointed by Texas A. & M. as tester for dairymen of Hale and Swisher counties. Mr. Stark reported for duty on the afternoon of October 11. He is a graduate of the dairy division of A. & M. college, and is prepared to offer valuable suggestions on the feeding and management of dairy cattle, as well as officially to make production tests of butter fat.

"Mr. Stark began testing work in the herd of Joe Vaughn, and will get to other members of the Cow Testing association as soon as possible.

Milk, both as a public necessity and as the chief product of a big industry, is something to be regulated. Milk ordinances are essential to public health, although what is necessary as a safeguard to health is one place is not absolutely needed in another. But there are minimum requirements which every city should study, codify and pass. Negligence in this regard is dangerous.

Cows as productive machines may be culled readily by an expert, much to the profit of the dairyman, large or small.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The leading Republican politicians are more afraid of Al Smith than of any other Democrat. Time was when the impartial analyst wondered how much of that oft-repeated assertion could be traced to Smith propaganda. But because of the way the Republicans themselves have acted, it's hard to doubt it any more. Privately, some of them admit it.

They appear to have been figuring on Smith's nomination for a long time back. They hope the Democrats will tear each other to a frazzle before they name him, but they see how the nomination can be kept from him in the end and they believe that Smith will give them a hard campaign in which they will win by no great margin at best.

There is of course, some difference of opinion among the G. O. P. pals, too, but in his own party perhaps a majority of those who publicly oppose Smith believe that he has the best chance of election.

The sincerest dries deny this, but it can't be helped. The fact that Smith is the party's strongest candidate for nomination may be—and doubtless is—a peculiar commentary on the party, its leaders, the American political system and the intelligence of the electorate, but that's no consolation to the anti-Smith crowd.

Smith's great weakness from any altruistically intelligent point of view is the fact that he has never expressed himself upon any broad national or international issue save the prohibition question. But from the standpoint of the professional politicians, there lies his greatest strength. His only opposition comes from the dries and the religious intolerant.

The weakness of Jim Reed, from the nomination standpoint, lies in the fact that he has tackled the national issues so vigorously and made himself so many enemies. He has made the dries hate him worse than they hate Smith, he incurred the absolute loathing of loyal Wilson men and he excited the enmity of the farmers by his anti-farm relief speeches, just to mention a few things.

If it were not for these factors Reed might now be stronger candidate for nomination than Smith. If you correspondent were the Republican candidate—and probably the reader agrees with him—he would infinitely rather campaign against Smith than a human bolt of lightning like the hot Senator Reed. And it may be that many Republicans are thankful that it looks more like Smith than it looks like Reed. But there will be no hallelujahs from them in either event.

The Republicans will nominate someone who has few enemies. If the Democratic party were like the G. O. P., it would do likewise, as in 1920 and 1924. But unless it desires to be bogged worse than ever, it must nominate a man with popular appeal over a wide area. If Reed hadn't made himself so many enemies he would be better off. Or, to put it in any other way, if Smith had made as many enemies as Reed has he would be sunk.

TWINKLES

It is reported that a local minister may hold services at a large duck pond for the men of his congregation Sunday morning.

PRESS FORUM

Slowly, one by one, our most cherished illusions are being torn to pieces by a sophisticated intelligentsia. The latest blow at valorous ignorance came from Cardinal O'Donnell, archbishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Boston. He condemns the song, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" as a funeral hymn, calling it 'trashy' and 'insane' and 'vulgar.' Then he forbids its singing at funerals in the churches over which he has jurisdiction. The cardinal has ample Protestant support in his assault on this old-time favorite tear-jerker. A Baptist, a Congregationalist, a Methodist and others have expressed their dislike of the song. One called it "twaddle," another said it was "verged on the maudlin" and a third called it "meaningless" and "wholly vague and empty of spiritual thought."

These are harsh words about a song that has been popular for thirty years. Nobody discovered anything especially sinful or maudlin until the clergy took arms. It has been recognized as highly sentimental, of course, but an innocuous and pleasant sort of sentimentally. Beside some of the jazzy, sloppy hymns that you hear in church today, it is a masterpiece of clarity, spiritually and sanity.

"Somewhere the load is lifted, close by an open gate; somewhere the clouds are rifted, somewhere the angels wait" isn't a bad paraphrase of Scripture—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me. . . . for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

Now that the movement has begun, let us hope it extends to a large number of other hymns popular in our churches just now—meaningless, jazzy, puerile and maudlin songs that turn some of our churches into semblances of music halls.—Abilene News.

Probably neither party is considering Babe Ruth as a presidential candidate, but it begins to look as if he could carry New York.—The Oklahoma City Times.

The meeting opened with a prayer led by Mrs. D. H. Truhitte. It was decided to change the class name from Dorcas to T. E. L. meaning Truth, Encourage, and Love, in order that we might do better and more efficient work.

We have a real organized class with a teacher who has all the seal and who has post-graduate work. Come and be with us Sunday, and we will give you a hearty welcome.

CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Beginning Sunday mornings, we will have a nursery in the Bible school annex for the little folks during the morning service. Two of the girls of the intermediate department will be in charge. These girls are experienced in and understand the handling of children. Parents can safely trust their children to the care of these girls, and be undisturbed during the hour of worship and service.

The Bible school begins promptly at 10 o'clock. There are departments for all members of the family. The Men's Bible class meets in the Crescent theatre.

Three young people's meetings are held at 6:30 o'clock in the Bible school annex. Parents are urged to encourage the young people in attending these meetings.

The minister will be in the pulpit at both the 11 o'clock and the 7:30 o'clock services, and will discuss some present day problems in the light of God's Word. Nothing spectacular or sensational at any time. The preaching is educational and inspirational.

Come and think sanely and constructively of life as taught in the Scriptures.

James Todd, Jr., Minister.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Thrilling experiences in China, along with an accurate statement of China's needs will be given at the Baptist church Sunday by the Rev. Rex Ray.

Rev. Ray, whose work is in Wuchow, China, will come here under the direction of the home board of the Southern Baptist Convention. As a missionary, he was in great danger during the revolutions and trouble with foreigners, and was captured near Wuchow by Chinese bandits and held for $70,000 ransom. He escaped after three weeks. This experience will be told Sunday, and Rev. Ray will also discuss the Chinese family, using costumes which he carries. He will speak at 11 and 7:45 o'clock.

Sunday school begins promptly at 9:45 a. m., and the B. Y. P. Y.'s have their meetings at 6:30 p. m.

The training school now in progress at the church is going well, with an enrollment of more than 200. There have been a number of additions to the church. Visiting ministers spoke at the evening service this week.

Next week the pastor, assisted by E. Otis Allen of Shawnee, Okla., will preach twice daily in an intensive evangelistic campaign. Mr. Allen is in charge of the music and study courses.

B. Neisler of Wichita, Kansas was in Pampa Thursday on business.

The morning worship and sermon begins at 11 o'clock. The subject of the message is "The Hope of the Soul."

The evening worship and sermon begins at 7:30 p. m., with "The Call of Christianity" as the subject.

We will have special music at both services. Mrs. Ernest Eslick will sing at the morning service, and for the evening service R. W. Butterfield and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fisher will sing.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Grapes, cereal, cream, ham toast, oven toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Potatoes baked and stuffed, celery hearts, date bread, baked quinces with cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Savory tongue, rice, potatoes, corn croquettes, tomato and cabbage salad, Spanish cream, milk, coffee.

Quinces, being kin to the apple family, can be used in almost any of the ways apples are used. Of course the texture of the quince is coarser than that of the apple so it will require longer cooking. Baked quinces are pared and cut in quarters and simmered in boiling water until tender but not broken. They are then placed in a baking dish, sprinkled with sugar and baked in the water in which they were cooked until the sirup is thick and the fruit is a rich red.

Savory Tongue

One fresh beef tongue, 1-2 cup seeded raisins, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 cup strained tomato juice.

Cover tongue with cold water and bring to the boiling point. Skim and add salt. Simmer until tongue is tender. Remove from kettle and peel off skin. Roll in flour and brown quickly on all sides into a casserole, sprinkle with raisins and pour in lemon juice and strained tomato. Cover and bake forty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve on a hot platter with any of the sauce remaining in the casserole. Slice crosswise to serve.

Mrs. D. H. Hunt, Mrs. H. E. Nicholson, Mrs. Narwood Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Watson of Wheeler were visiting and shopping in Pampa Thursday. They were the guests of Mrs. Hunt's sister, Mrs. P. O. Sanders.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gilliland were business visitors in Pampa Thursday.

Al Stewart of Woodward, was in Pampa Thursday in interest of the Shapleigh Hardware company.

The leaf stalks that grow around a head of cauliflower are palatable if properly cooked. They should be washed, cut in short lengths and boiled until tender. As this will take longer than it takes to cook the flowerets, the stalks should be started about 10 to 15 minutes earlier if they are to be served at the same time.

BABY'S LIBRARY

BILLIE BROWNIE had gone again to call on Charles Norman. Charles Norman was now about a year old—well, he was a little more than a year old, and strange as it may seem he was collecting books.

"I'm going to have a big library," he told Billie Brownie. "Of course, I won't bother about reading now, and then I'll have to be read to before I'll read to myself. At present I'm too busy with other matters."

"What other matters?" Billie Brownie inquired.

"Well, I'm interested in drinks of water and drinks of milk and rides in he is all of four weeks younger.

"Of course, I cry at times. Then my mother soothes me, but my daddy speaks to me sternly in a very manly way. When I don't cry my daddy keeps calling me, 'You darling little thing,' over and over again.

"So that by way of variety and change and to have him say something else to me, I cry once in a while. That's one of my reasons, anyway. Another is that it is expected of me to cry just a little bit.

"But I don't cry much. It's a waste of time, and as I told you of all the other things I have to keep me busy, you will realize that I haven't much time in which to cry.

"I was going to tell you about my library. Well, as I told you at one time, I have any number of beautiful garments—just quantities of clothes. If it were not that I am so busy and that a baby would be out of place keeping a store, I really believe I'd set up a store and I'd have everything for customers with babies.

"But at the same time I don't need the money from a store, for I've got a bank account. Dear me, yes, Billie Brownie, I've a bank account!

"And then some one gave me a book. Well, my mother showed it to me and I grinned and made little 'talky sounds,' she said, and she also told me I'd been especially good after receiving it. She said books made people contented and happy and pleased.

"And she said I thanked the one who sent me the book by sending a 'friendly and gummy grin, much fast waving and enthusiasm.' Yes, she said all this. I do love the way my mother expresses herself and talks. It's not just like every one else. It's always interesting.

"But I'll tell you, Billie Brownie, the book itself wasn't anything much. It gave my mother an idea, though, to start a library for me while I was young so I'd have quite a fine one when I grew up, and while growing up.

"So I have a library and quite a number of books now. When I'm a bigger boy I shall just have the best time in the world with my library.

"It is a good idea to start a library when one is only a baby. It gives one a good running start!

"And now I must bid you a polite good-by, Billie Brownie, and do come and call on me again soon. My grandfather is coming to call on me now and I must give him my entire attention—he is very important and learned and I'm a wee bit afraid of his importance."

So Billie Brownie went on in the best of spirits for he had had a chat with his dear little friend, Charles Norman.

"What Other Matters?" Billie Brownie inquired.

my carriage and in sweet sleep and sunshine and out-of-doors and my mother's society and my daddy's society and all such important things.

"My daddy takes care of me all the time he is home from the office. He loves to do that and I love it, too—well, that takes up all that much time.

"And when my daddy is at his office my mother is constantly with me if I am not asleep on my sunny porch—and that takes up all that much time. Then they sit and look at me and chuckle with delight about me and I chuckle, too, so as to be polite. Really, I enjoy it hugely, too.

"They say I am decidedly boyish in my looks, which is fine, for I am a boy, of course.

"I have a small boy cousin, too. He is younger than I am, however. Yes,

Jersey Cow Sends Boy to College

Thayne Smith of Tillamook County, Oregon, and the Jersey cow which is piling up a bank account for him. Young Smith will use the money to go to college.

WASHINGTON (AP)—There are 177,980 farm boys and girls in the United States earning their own money every year because they like animals.

The figure is an actual census of 4-H Club members enrolled in livestock enterprises. Advised by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and state agriculture colleges, these young stockmen tone a youngsters' natural reaction to animals with profitable business methods.

They follow new, improved theories in feeding and management and keep a record of receipts and disbursements which at any moment makes it possible to calculate profit or loss.

Such an embryonic farmer is Thayne Smith of Tillamook County, Oregon. He is a composite example of 4-H Club purpose and practice. His project involves the care of a purebred Jersey cow. Every detail of her existence lies in his ready hands. In return, she is going to send him to college. He deposits the profits from her milk in a bank.

Since his escape from the presidency, the lieutenant has remained in Lisbon and has been seen at night clubs and on the streets.

When the police were informed of the dinner party in his honor at the marquis' palace on one of the northern heights of Lisbon, a whole police brigade surrounded the place. Dancing was going on and the palace was brilliantly illuminated. Scouts, however, had evidently been placed outside, and the alarm was given. All the lights were suddenly put out. A

Night Club is Attended as The Police Wait

(By Associated Press)

LISBON, Portugal—Portugal regards Lieutenant Moraes Sarmento as a reincarnation of Robin Hood, D'Artagnan and Leonidas.

Every officer in Portugal is looking for him, from President Carmona down, yet he had the temerity to attend a dinner party given in his honor at the palace of the Marquis de Fronteiros, and made his escape after the palace had been surrounded by police.

Lieutenant Sarmento is sought for his connection with a bloodless revolution which sought to place Commander Filomeno da Camara in the office of vice president. He has been hunted since he drew two revolvers when taken to the presidency, fired a round from each and dashed away.

He has threatened to shoot anyone who attempts his arrest, and says he reserved two bullets for the president himself.

Every other principal in the revolutionary plot has been arrested, including Dr. Fidelino de Figueiredo, director of the national library.

First Woman Was Hired by Gas Firm Forty Years Ago

HOUSTON, Oct. 14—Gas men of the Southwest meeting here October 31 and November 1 for the annual convention of the Southwest division, Natural Gas Section, American Gas Association, will be reminded that it was just 41 years ago that the first woman was hired by a gas company.

In this day when thousands of women are employed by public utilities in positions ranging from messengers to managers and presidents, the history of Miss A. M. Volgesang now of Washington, D. C. is interesting, according to the gas men.

Miss Volgesang started to work for the gas company in St. Louis, Mo., in 1886. Her duties were much different from those of woman today. She kept all the company's books, kept the time of all the men at the gas works, made up the pay roll, tested the illuminating power of the gas manufactured made the usual frequent tests for sulphur and ammonia, and other chemical analyses.

The practice of employing women in the gas industry has grown by leaps and bounds, according to Alexander Forward, managing director of the American Gas Association. "Today we find women holding many important positions," says Mr. Forward. "One company, the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company of Coney Island, N. Y., can rightly be called a 'womans' gas company' because it has the only woman president of a gas company, Miss Mary Dillon, and a woman secretary and assistant treasurer, Mrs. Helen Smith Steere."

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Heiskell, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Jameson, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Reynolds, Miss Cassie Ledrick, Sterling Williams, W. M. Merten, Dude Balthrope and C. V. McKinney, all of Pampa, attended the funeral of S. B. Saulsbury at Jester, Okla., yesterday.

door in the basement opened and four figures emerged into the darkness had fled, firing on the police who pursued them. A waiting motor car took the fugitives out of reach. A raid was made on the palace at dawn and Lieutenant Sarmento was not to be found. Two cavalry squadrons and a motor-lorry full of police scoured the Serras without avail.

Really Seemed Time

for "Beau" to Depart

Some racy stories of Beau Brummell, "King of the Dandies," at the height of his glory a century ago, are told by Lewis Melville in "George Efray Brummell: His Life and Letters," recalled a writer in the Kansas City Times. It was said of this beau that "women admired him, but men almost revered him." He never married, but that he was not indifferent to the charm and companionship of the ladies, there is plenty of evidence.

"I must leave here this morning," he said unexpectedly to his host when staying at a country house.

"But," the other expostulated, "you were not going until the end of the week."

"True, quite true," the beau concurred, "but I really must be off."

His host, however, was not satisfied, and piled him with questions until at last Brummell, in desperation, blurted out:

"Well, the fact is, I am in love with your wife."

"Why, my dear fellow, so was I twenty years ago," remarked the lady's husband, hoping to put his guest at his ease. Then a thought struck him and he inquired:

"Is she in love with you?"

"I—I believe she is."

"That alters the case," the host said with decision. "I will send for your post horse immediately."

Solving One Problem

of the Crowded City

"I shall be glad to see Hector, your big Saint Bernard, again," said the visitor to the suburbs as the fluster rolled along.

"Had to get rid of that dog," said the modern suburbanite crisply.

"Bite somebody?"

"No, but he took up too much space. Saint Bernard's almost as big as a calf. Belongs to past age, when people had barnyards and real estate wasn't so valuable. A one-family dog house is economic waste nowadays."

"One-family dog house? You don't mean to say—"

"Surely do. Had dog house remodeled when I got rid of Hector. Found, as I expected, that if I got a compact terrier there'd be a nice apartment for a still smaller dog on the top floor. Got good top-floor tenant for my own house; rent out half of garage; why not make dog house pay its own way?"

"And does it?"

"You bet it does. Let top floor to a Pekingese. Belongs to man down street who hasn't room even for a bird cage."—Ladies' Home Journal.

As Small Boy Saw It

It is well to be sure that your child knows wherein he lies, otherwise your punishment or your admonition is likely to go astray. Ellis Parker Butler told a charming story illustrating this in the Delinquent. A child was being asked where a piece of cake had gone. "To the amazement of his questioner," he replied with a tale about a "accross" that had flown in at the window and eaten the cake. His father, coming home that night, took matters into his own hands; he lectured the child on the sin of telling stories that were not true, and accompanied this lecture with a dissertation on the habits and limitations of rhinoceroses. The child was then spanked and put bed. Presently the father climbed the stairs to see whether his little boy was repentant. "Why were you spanked?" he asked. "Cause noceroses can't fly," came the answer.

Humane

John came running into his father's study with nose bleeding copiously, and, while first aid was being rendered, explained that he had received a blow from another boy.

"Well, did you hit him back?" inquired father.

"No, father, you see, he was smaller than me."

Father's heart warmed at such chivalry.

"And, besides, he was a poor boy."

Father's face beamed at such magnanimity.

"And you can never tell what those poor boys can do."

The Past Is Present

What reply shall we make if our past can only whisper: "Your success has been wholly due to injustice and falsehood, wherefore it behooves you once more to deceive and to lie." No man cares to let his eyes rest on his acts of disloyalty, weakness, or treachery; and all the events of bygone days which we cannot contemplate calmly and peacefully, with satisfaction and confidence, trouble and restrict the horizon which the days that are not yet are forming far away.—Maeterlinck.

Gratitude

Missionaries are accustomed to receive some strange letters from natives. Here is a letter of gratitude which arrived a short time ago at a well-known medical mission hospital in India:

Dear and Fair Madam—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will no longer be under your care, she having left this world on the 10th inst. For your kind attention I shall ever be most gratefully remembered.

Markets

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—Early predictions of smaller fall marketings of cattle are being borne out by the decreasing supplies reaching the markets following the cleanup of the grass cattle run. A well sustained demand indicates that a continuation of the general upward trend in price or at least the maintenance of a strong position may be looked forward to. This being, of course, a continuation of the general cycle which we have been passing through in the past three years.

The demand for feeder cattle is reported about the same as a year ago with somewhat higher prices but the situation is different in that heavy cattle to go in for short feeding periods are in broader demand than light weight cattle. The price levels prevailing for heavy cattle should increase the marketing of short fed offerings but on the other hand the good ranges this season will have a tendency to hold back large numbers of well bred cattle for re-stocking.

There seems to be no question but that the number of cattle marketed this fall will be smaller than for this season during the past five years and it is even now being predicted that marketings next year will show a further decline. This situation, of course, will balance itself up to a certain extent, as when beef prices reach a certain level other food stuffs come in direct competition with beef and through the switching of the demand to other commodities a reaction in the market is brought about. It was recently pointed out in this connection by a close observer that it is not a satisfactory condition to allow beef animal prices to reach the point where the price of the finished product is out of line with other commodities which are more or less competitive.

There is always danger in a situation like this in two ways. One is that high price levels will encourage too great an expansion in production so that the producer might be confronted by the situation of having an ample supply of cattle with a decreased demand, as when the taste of the consumer swings from one food stuff to another some times it is not so easy to bring back the per capita consumption to normal.

It is evident that more Canadian cattle will be marketed in the United States within the next few months than in preceding years, attracted to these markets by higher price levels.

There doesn't seem to be anything alarming in the trend toward a reasonably increased beef cattle production as the bulk of the expansion is taking place in the hands of producers who are re-stocking their herds to make up the substantial decreases resulting from the Post War liquidation period.

However, two items worthy of consideration from the producers' standpoint are that every effort should be made to gauge production reasonably to meet the requirements of the consumer and that price levels, above a certain point, do not represent a permanent healthy situation as the reaction is likely to be bad on the per capita consumption of beef which after all represents the consumer demand which plays so important a part in the production of meat food animals.

Medina Dam Project Now in Texas Hands

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO.—The Medina dam irrigation project, one of the most valuable irrigation projects in this section of Texas has passed out of the hands of foreign capitalists and is due for intensive development after fifteen years of uncertainty.

J. E. Jarrett, local investment banker, and several associates have purchased the properties, which include the dam and 40,000 acres of land, and are preparing for intensive colonization. The consideration was not named, but the properties were originally valued at more than $10,000,000.

The dam was financed largely by London capital and a huge artificial lake was formed in Medina county about 30 miles from San Antonio. The irrigation possibilities were bright and four towns were laid out and farming begun. The war hindered development of the project, however, and the properties went into receivers hands after Dr. R. S. Pearson, the engineer, went down with the Lusitania.

Two years ago a trust company was formed to take the original company out of receivership for the London Company. The new company headed by Mr. Harratt will be known as The San Antonio Suburban Irrigation farms. Associated with Harratt are C. H. Kearney, San Antonio engineer, H. V. Wheeler, a Wichita Kan., banker and C. F. Ladd, colonizer.

An irrigation project embracing lands in Medina, Atascosa and Bexar counties covers the project. The new owners have assumed two and one half million dollars worth of 40 year bonds on these lands which individual lands will assume.

Upon retirement of the bonds the irrigation district will own the bonds.

TEXAS WILL MEET CAMBRIDGE IN DEBATE

The English team will be in Austin November 15. The visiting team will be composed of a representative from universities in England, Scotland and Wales. Their subject will be "Resolved: That the power of the press has increased, is increasing and ought to be diminished." The Texas debaters will represent the negative side in the argument.

TEXAS ENROLLMENT IS 4,908 STUDENTS

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—Enrollment for the long session of 1927-28 at the University of Texas has reached 4,908, according to the latest available figures at the office of the University Auditor. There will probably be a few more students who will register in the semester. The enrollment for all of last year totaled 5,143. During the first week of registration at the University this year there were 4,811 and for the same period last year there were 4,542.

Texas, with its long coast line of "sun-warmed waters" is the greatest producer of shrimp, according to Will J. Tucker, state game, fish and oyster commissioner.

President Coolidge will visit Florida in January if he decides to attend the Pan-American conference at Havana, Cuba, to which he has been invited by President Machado.

Commissioners to Consider the Bus As Common Carrier from a Federal Viewpoint in Meeting

DALLAS, Oct. 14—A possible conflict between Federal and state authorities over regulations of motor buses, involving the question of whether the motor bus is to be considered an interstate common carrier, is to be the pivotal question for deliberation before the 39 annual convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners here October 18-21.

It is probable the commissioners will seek legislation which will assign control of interstate operators to the states. The call for the meeting, as received by the Texas Public Service Information Bureau, states: "It behooves every commission to be thoroughly informed so that it can advise Congress of its views and do whatever is possible to promote the passage of a bill which will assure to the states control within their boundaries of interstate operators."

The convention announcement says this question of interstate operations, especially of the lines engaged in interstate operation, is of the most urgent questions of the day and one of interest to every state in the Union.

The problem declares the announcement says this question of interstate operations, especially of the lines engaged in interstate operation, is of the most urgent questions of the day and one of interest to every state in the Union.

There also will be an address by Henry Swift Ives, vice-president of the Casualty Information Clearing House of Chicago, on the question of providing proper insurance for this class of carriers. The question will be thrown open for discussion.

The convention will draw some of the leading state commissioners and public utility men of the country. John J. Esch, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has promised to address the meeting if he can get away from Washington. United States Senators Pittman of Nevada, and Mayfield of Texas have accepted invitations to speak. E. A. Farrar, president of the Investment Bankers' Associations, will be heard. Chief Justice Cureton of the Texas Supreme court will be a principal speaker at the convention banquet. Senor Alejandro P. Carillo, Mexican consul general at San Antonio will speak, and a high official of the National Railways of Mexico also will make an address.
