ROBBER KILLS SAN ANTONIO MAN

Pilot Says Pampa Needs Airport and Map Designation

HENLEY TALKS TO LIONS CLUB ON HIS HOBBY

Declares Football Field Is Almost Ideal for Plane Use

HOPS TO TULSA EARLY TODAY

Noted Pilot Introduced by Charlie Andrus Last Night

To a flier, a city is no better than its airport, declared Al Henley, noted pilot, in speaking to Pampa Lions and guests last night.

"When Bob Garland of the Operators Oil company told me yesterday to get ready for a trip to Pampa, I asked him where Pampa was—I couldn't remember having seen it on the air maps," said Henley, speaking slowly in his characteristic, reticent manner. "He said it was about 60 miles east of Amarillo, and I said 'All right, we'll soon be off.'"

"We came through in good shape and V. N. Johns, our third man aboard, had landed on the Pampa field before, so we had no trouble in locating it. You have an almost ideal spot for an airport from every standpoint, and if you will spend just a little sum for leveling that field off and designating it Pampa will be known far and wide for its fine airport."

Johns Knows of Field

"When I prepared to make this trip today I could not find Pampa in the air maps, and but for Mr. Johns' presence I would have had to hunt a level spot on some ranch, or pass on to some other city. When you start planning an air trip you must know where the landing fields are and something of their size and condition. And for night flying even more complete information is necessary.

"You can put the surface of the local field in good condition for less than $500, which is no more than many cities are paying per acre for their airports. The city that takes the leadership now is going to become the aviation center of any territory.

Enjoys Visit Here

"I have certainly enjoyed the reception that has been given me in Pampa, and I hope to see this city get the airport and take the lead in aviation."

Henley piloted a Ryan, a four-passenger cabin plane through the heavy wind, landing on the football park easily, with the wind just right to permit use of the longest dimension of the field. Had the wind been such as to cross the sewer ditch, landing would have been more difficult, the pilot said. However, when the ridge of earth settles and is leveled off the field will accommodate the largest planes.

The Ryan monoplane, built by the Southwest Ryan Airlines, Inc., of San Diego, Calif., is an exact duplicate of "The Spirit of St. Louis," except that Lindbergh used all passenger space for gasoline. Mr. Johns, himself an experienced flier, is general sales manager for the Ryan corporation in this territory, and has headquarters in Fort Worth and Tulsa. Mr. Garland, president of the Operators Oil company, came here to see his No. 2 Jackson gusher, which is making about 100 barrels an hour.

To Try For Record

Pilot Henley, one of the leading fliers of the country, has attempted two endurance flights, suffering slight mishaps both times, and was an entrant in the Dole flight to Honolulu. Recently an endurance flight takeoff at Fort Worth, owing to a rough field resulted in slight damage to the landing gear of a plane similar to the one flown here. The ship is being repaired, and another try for an endurance record likely will be made within the next two weeks in "The Fort Worth."

Henley, well under 30, is small, rather dark, and more interested in aviation than anything else. He knows his subject, and gets hard-boiled when asked what he considers an absurd

Morrow Brings Controversy Over Oil Laws to End

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—(AP)—The dispute between Mexico and the United States over the oil laws today was considered to have ended with the signing of new regulations by President Calles.

Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador, who is regarded as having brought the controversy to an end, said the regulations showed the Mexican government's determination to "recognize all the rights held by foreigners in oil properties prior to the adoption of the 1917 constitution."

These laws, which have been a cause of friction between the two governments for ten years, were changed as the result of conferences extending over two months in which ambassador Morrow, President Calles and Luis Morones, minister of industry and commerce participated.

The three important points of the new regulations are:

Titles legal before 1917 confirmed.

This confirmation is valid in perpetuity, removing the 50 year confirmatory titles for rights held prior to 1917, which the United States government considered confiscatory.

"Positive acts" or physical works upon lands necessary for retention of titles and mineral rights on the land are defined more liberally.

On November 17, 1927, the Supreme Court decided that the cutting down of the oil companies' rights to a fifty year period was unconstitutional.

After the decision, President Calles asked Congress to modify the law to conform to the constitution as interpreted by the court and legislation designating this was passed on December 26, 1927 and promulgated January 10, 1928. The regulations now issued make this effective.

Failure to Find Poison Points to Barber's Guilt

JACKSBORO, March 28.—(AP)—Failure to find a trace of poison in the chemical analysis of the viscera of seventeen-year-old Lura Mae Stricker of Perrin, substantiates the State's theory that the girl died as the result of an act of another person. County Attorney J. P. Simpson of Jacksboro stated Wednesday, Grand jury investigation of the girl's death a week ago began Wednesday while Robert N. Crow, Jr., 22, Perrin barber, was being held on a murder charge.

Announcement that the chemical analysis, taken by the Terrell laboratories of Fort Worth, failed to show poison was made by Sheriff W. F. Middleton of Jack county. The examination was made by the State to substantiate its theory that the girl did not die from poison, self administered, or accident or as a medicine.

County Attorney Simpson said the complaint against the young barber charges that his acts were responsible for the girl's condition which causes her to die suddenly.

Included among the 12 witnesses called for testimony before the special session of the grand jury is Dr. J. B. Woods and Dr. C. C. McClure of Jacksboro, who testified at the inquest that had the girl lived she would have become a mother.

President Diaz of Nicaragua Asking Cabinet Resignation

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 28.—(AP)—The resignations of his entire cabinet were in the hands of President Diaz today so that he might have a free hand in selecting men who would unanimously support his policy for American supervision of the presidential elections.

Diaz asked for the resignations which will probably be accepted as effective April 1. Some of the cabinet had been mildly opposing the president's course in providing for the supervision.

Cumberland President Is a Visitor Here

Dr. Stockton, president of the Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn., visited with John Studer, county attorney, and H. Otto Studer, here yesterday while on a tour of the southern states in the interest of the college.

The Studer brothers were graduated by the law school of Cumberland university at the time Dr. Stockton was dean of the college.

Mine Owners Admit Others Run Business

This picture was taken shortly after John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Charles M. Schwab, owners of vast mining enterprises, told the Senate Committee investigating strike conditions in the Pittsburgh district that they knew little of the operation of the mines, leaving that to officers who are running the industries. The committee recently found adject poverty and almost unbelievable social conditions in the Pittsburgh area where miners have been on strike for nearly a year. Shown here, left to right, are (seated) Senator Frank B. Gooding of Idaho; Charles Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation; Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, chairman of the coal hearing committee; John D. Rockefeller, Jr.; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and (standing) Senator W. B. Pine of Oklahoma; Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana; Senator Frederic M. Sackett of Kentucky, and Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island.

Girl Gun Toter May Face Wood Shed or Court After Her Display

LONGVIEW, March 28.—(AP)—Contrite apology from the leading actress, Mildred Malone, 13-year-old school girl, was the first sequel to a melodramatic scene in a school room here yesterday in which the girl held pupils and teachers at bay with a .45 caliber revolver until told by Principal J. I. Hefner to go home. Whether there would be further sequels in the woodshed or the courts, where the girl is charged with disturbing the peace and carrying a prohibited weapon, was problematical.

Further developments in the affair, which the principal said he believed was prompted by a desire to avenge previous disciplinary measures, awaited the return of the child's father, J. N. Malone, railroad man, from the run on which he left shortly after the incident occurred. Mr. Malone told officers and school officials, he would talk with them on his return today. He said he regretted the affair very much.

The roomful of pupils scattered screaming when Mildred appeared after recess with the "six-shooter." Many of them covered in corners or under desks while the girl brandished the weapon, ordering them to summon Principal Hefner and other teachers.

"And don't call the officers," she added. Mr. Hefner entered and faced the girl and her huge firearm. "The best thing you can do now is to go home," he said sternly. Mildred looked around, dropped her air of defiance and left, still carrying the pistol, to be met just outside the building by her father, who had been told by her mother that she had been home and had taken the pistol. Mildred will not attend school today, said Superintendent Henry Foster, at whose office she apologized. He did not say whether she would be suspended from school.

Aged Engineer Is Taking Blame for Collapse of Dam

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—(AP)—A pair of aged but unflinching shoulders today carried the burden of blame for the collapse of St. Francis dam.

Looking straight into the faces of the members of the coroner's jury here, William Mulholland, 72-year-old chief engineer of the Los Angeles Bureau of water and power, yesterday accepted the responsibility for whatever mistakes in engineering may have led to the breaking of the dam.

And in so doing he flung a challenge to the report of the state investigating commission, made public yesterday, blaming foundation of the dam for the catastrophe.

The State's report was to the effect that the natural foundation upon which the dam was built was incapable of sustaining it because of its susceptibility to water seepage.

"Don't blame anybody else," pleaded the gray-haired engineer. "Whatever fault there was in this job, put it on me. If there were any errors in judgment—and its human to make mistakes—the error was mine."

Shrine Club to Have Dance Soon

The newly organized Shrine club will hold a dinner dance at the Plamor auditorium April 6, commencing at 7 o'clock, for all members of the club with their wives and friends. The evening will be spent with a cabaret dinner from 7 to 9 o'clock, followed by a dance lasting until 11 o'clock.

The regular meeting of the club will be held tomorrow night at the Schneider hotel when the membership drive will end. The captains of the two teams are Ed Blinson and A. A. Gordon.

Hamer Called to Prove Charges of Bandit Frame-Ups

AUSTIN, March 28.—(AP)—Ranger Captain Frank Hamer was subpoenaed by telephone Wednesday to appear before the Upton county grand jury in connection with his recent signed allegation that a "murder ring" has been spawned in Texas after the State Bankers association posted $5,000 rewards for dead bank robbers.

Informed that the grand jury would probably call him, Hamer recently declared he was "willing, anxious and rarin' to go" and added "if I can't prove what I've charged, I'll sign a 'lie bill' as long as my leg."

Ranger where slayings were recorded some time ago in connection with an alleged attempt to enter a bank, is in Upton county.

Big Bill Haywood Reported Very Ill

MOSCOW, March 28.—(AP)—William D. Haywood, more generally known in American labor circles as "big bill," is critically ill in the Kremlin hospital from diabetes.

Physicians consider his case grave. "Big Bill" Haywood, one of the founders of the industrial workers of the world and for many years prominent in the United States, fled to Soviet Russia in 1920 after his conviction in the United States on charges of violating the espionage act. Haywood was under sentence of twenty years in prison and a fine of $20,000.

CROWD SEES MAN ESCAPE

Kansas Woman Shoots Husband to Protect Herself

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—(AP)—Harry W. Karotkin, owner of a jewelry and watch company, was shot and killed at his place of business today.

Two persons saw the man supposed to have assailed Karotkin leave the store a moment after a pistol shot had attracted their attention. Carl McCranie, a customer, was entering the store when a thin-faced man dressed in gray with blood on his hands and clothes crowded past him into the street. The man was also seen by the manager of a sewing machine company nearby who had started to investigate the shot. The supposed slayer hurried around the corner and disappeared.

Karotkin's body was found in the lavatory. His feet had been tied together and a bullet had been fired at close range through his mouth.

Police believe that his assailant intimidated him and tied his feet before starting to rob the store. Some move of Karotkin's must have led the robber to believe that the owner was about to call for help, and the shooting is supposed to have followed.

LIBERAL, Kans., March 28.—(AP)—Because she was threatening her with a knife, Mrs. Loraine Moore Horton, 19, shot and killed her husband, Jack Horton, 30, the young woman told officers who were called to the coates hotel here following the shooting about midnight last night. Mrs. Horton herself up, but was not held in jail.

Horton and his wife's father, Clarence Moore, were joint owners of the hotel.

Brother Hunts a Brother as Slayer of His Sweetheart

WALLKILL, N. Y., March 28.—(AP)—Brother was pitted against brother in a police search today for the slayer of 19-year-old Merle Terwilliger.

The girl was shot and killed as she stepped from the doorway of her home yesterday and police were seeking as her slayer Harry T. McHugh, postmaster of this village an elder brother of Jesse McHugh, the girl's reputed sweetheart.

His brother's friendship with Miss Terwilliger, of which he disapproved, is cited. Jesse joined in the search for his brother, but police believed Harry drowned himself in the flood waters of a creek that runs through the village.

MEN'S WORK—"The good that men do lives after them."

From California comes the word that some of the last wizardry of the late Luther Burbank is in full bloom. Five large lilacs, double white and double purple, are described as among the most beautiful in existence.

No more beautiful example of life in the death of a great man comes to mind; none is more typical of the unfolding of a busy, brilliant residence upon this earth.

Burbank's labor brought results which won acclaim for him during life, but many geniuses have not lived to see their work flourish or their theories accepted.

The figure, however, applies not merely to men of science and genius. In a measure it is the yardstick of all human existence.

The business man often lays in store the good will and integrity which become the foundation of greater structures than ever his mind conceived.

The ordinary citizen may not see in his life much more than the fruition of nature's own plan. But a life well lived is a contribution to society which cannot be measured in three score years and ten. Heredity is something to be honored from the standpoint of future stability of the race.

Many parents get their greatest pleasure through watching the progress of their children, seeing their success in the lives of their offspring, their flowers. The teacher, humble molder of lives, rears no majestic skyscraper to admire, yet seeds of thought and sterling character, implanted by example and instruction, develop in a way to satisfy the most ambitious.

For the work that men do lives after them, both good and bad.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Republican national conventions have a reputation for being tame, harmonious affairs where all the real fighting, dirty and otherwise, is done off the floor and behind closed doors.

Democrats, on the other hand, are supposed to stage their little Armageddons in full view of the world, dirty fighting and all, crawling only to the seclusion of hotel rooms for a patched peace after the gladiators are too weary to fight any longer.

It may happen again that way this year, but it is possible to remark at the moment that arrangements for the Democratic convention at Houston are proceeding in a manner calculated to tickle all concerned, whereas the situation facing the Republicans at Kansas City has thus far produced more or less dissatisfaction—also among all concerned, if one is to believe information from advance scouts.

The delegates themselves must be depended upon to kick up trouble at Houston and sweet harmony at Kansas City.

Mr. Clem Shaver, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, beams proudly and contentedly. He has been able to announce the squaring of the party debt and now can promise the 10,000 or more Democrats whom he couldn't squeeze into the Jackson Day dinner here a good chance to see the Houston show—and a fair chance of

Pitchers Will Be Given More Work by Texas Managers

DALLAS, March 28.—(P)—Texas league managers are hard put to check the wave of slugging that has swept over training camps lately, and are calling for help on their hurlers especially the veterans.

While not unhappy at the prospect of imminent development of a flock of lousy hitters, they believe the time has come for the pitchers to beat down as they shortly must do when the season opens.

Voicing the apparent attitude of more than one pilot, Manager Jake Atz of Fort Worth yesterday declared "the seasoned pitchers ought to buckle down and take more work," and he backed up his opinion as to what the veterans need by sending a corps at the Cat camp through a grueling infield workout.

Manager Del Prat likewise concentrated on his Waco moundsmen and backstops, sending them through more than two hours of carefully supervised drill. At the end of the session, he said he was satisfied with the Cubs' condition.

In two exhibition games, the hurlers looked good, and in one not so good. Wichita Falls and San Antonio pitchers appeared to have lots of stuff while Beaumont's seemed at the mercy of their opponents.

The Exporters, however, had the toughest opposition of the day in the Minneapolis Millers who battered Beaumont for fourteen hits and won 13 to 1.

At Wichita Falls, three Spudden tossers, Ovensros, Brower, Roberts and J. Jones; held the Oklahoma City Indians to seven safeties, while their mates hammered out eleven, and the Wichitans were victors by a 10 to 5 score.

Playing the weakest opposition of any Texas league team, the San Antonio Bears beat Schreiner, 15 to 0. Hinkle and Andy Nessenger allowed the Collegians but three hits, while the Bear sluggers gathered fourteen, including a home run.

At Dallas, the Steer regulars defeated the Yammigans, 5 to 4, in a well-played game featured by the hitting of Morse and Gross.

Shotton Is Claiming Best Double Play Combination Extant

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 28.—(P)—Homeward bound Manager Shotton of the Phillies made one claim for his team today.

"We have the champion double play combination in baseball," he said. "Thompson at second and Sand at short are the best men at reeling off double plays I have ever seen. This pair doubles up runners with apparent ease. Both are demons on ground balls, they have first rate throwing arms and neither one wastes a second's time in handling the ball. They should pull the Phillies out of many tight places this season."

Heilman Works To Break Jinx of Even Years

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—(P)—The tendency of the major league batting champion, Harry Heilman, Detroit Tiger, to lift baseballs out of the southern baseball fields this spring has led to the belief that Harry is priming down to a jinx.

Recently in an exhibition game the big fielder lifted two four-base drives and has been contributing other extra base hits consistently.

During the past eight seasons Heilman has captured the American league batting championship in the odd years.

Connie Mack Says Cobb's Legs O. K.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 28.—(P)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has dropped the role of "the silent leader," temporarily at least.

Today he made it his personal business to brand as a canard a story going around that Ty Cobb would not be back with the Athletics this year because his legs had given out after nearly a quarter of a century in the big show. "Not a thing to the yarn," Mack declared. "Cobb will be with us just as soon as Mrs. Cobb, who has been ill, regains her health. So far we are concerned, Ty's legs are all right."

ELLIOTT AND HARRISS, PITCHERS, BIGGEST MEN IN MAJOR LEAGUES

All sizes go in baseball, but the pitchers appear to come tallest and heaviest. "Jumbo Jim" Elliott (upper left), Brooklyn hurler, leads all the major leagues with his 235 pounds, while "Slim" Harriss (center), Red Sox moundsmen, is first in altitude with six feet six. Jack Quinn (upper right) of the Athletics, another pitcher, is the oldest big league player at 42. "Sparky" Adams (lower left) of Pittsburgh, five feet four, and Jack Tavener (lower right) of Detroit, 142 pounds, both infielders, are the shortest and lightest players respectively.

NEW YORK (P)—Football needs its heavyweights and basketball favors the tall boys but baseball takes them all sizes so long as they can play the game.

Ranging all the way from the six feet six inch altitude of "Slim" Harriss of the Red Sox to the five feet four of Pittsburgh's newly acquired second baseman "Sparky" Adams, and from the 235 pounds of Brooklyn's "Jumbo" Elliott to Detroit's 142-pound shortstop, Jack Tavener, the 1928 big leaguers run the gamut of shapes and types.

They vary almost as widely in age, for there is a place for the fiery youngster as well as the canny veteran. The dean of them all is old Jack Quinn of the Athletics with his 42 years, while the rookies include several youngsters still in their teens.

On the firing line there seems to be a premium on height and weight as the pitchers in general come heavy and tall. Elliott, 235 and six feet three, the heaviest, and Harriss, 185 and six feet six, the tallest, of the present crop, both are moundsmen as are Gerland Buckeye of Cleveland, 225 and six feet one, and Eppa Rixey, Cincinnati, 210 and six feet five, their respective runners-up.

James Wright, young semi-pro pitcher from California who gets a trial with the Browns, ranks among the heaviest with his 220 pounds on a six feet two inch frame.

Others who run to generous dimensions are Stalman, 210 and six feet one, a husky young catcher who goes up to Cleveland this season from Wilkes-Barre of the New York-Pennsylvania league; Walter Brown, Cleveland pitcher, 210 and six feet two and Floyd

Herman, Brooklyn infielder, who weighs 180 and is six feet four inches tall; another of the giants is the well-known George Herman Ruth who packs 215 pounds and stands six feet two in his socks.

In the infield the premium seems to be on agility and speed rather than size and it is there the smallest men in the game are found. Adams is only five feet, four and a half and weighs 151 while Tavener weighs nine pounds less and is half an inch taller. They look a whole lot bigger than they are to batsman trying to drive one through their positions.

One of the shortest yet one of the heaviest is the redoubtable "Hack" Wilson, the Cubs heavy-hitting outfielders. Built close to the ground, Wilson weighs 185 but is only five feet seven inches in height.

A somewhat surpassing feature is that the two oldest players in the majors are pitchers. Despite the steady strain of years of mound work, Quinn and Grover Alexander, of the Cards, who is just turning 41, still are whipping them over the plate.

At the other end of the age scale are such young players as Mel Harder, 18-year-old Cleveland recruit pitcher; Keller of the White Sox; McCoy and Hill of the Browns; Lopez of Brooklyn; Ott of the Giants and Wheat of the Phillies, all of whom are but 19 years old.

Marathon Racers Beat Sand Storm Through 47 Miles

LOS LUNAS, N. M., March 28.—(P)—Having successfully fought a desert sandstorm, runners in the cross country marathon moved across the Rio Grande today toward their twenty-fifth control, at Seven Springs, a distance of 37 miles. Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, who led the van through the 49-mile battle with the sandstorm yesterday from Old Laguna Pueblo, was expected to set a grilling pace today in which Albuquerque was to be skirted. Gavuzzi's elapsed time for the 85 miles covered from Los Angeles to Los Lunas was 147:02:46.

Gavuzzi displaced by a few minutes Andrew Payne of Claremore, Oklahoma, who has been second in elapsed time. Payne now ranks third.

Holding first place with an elapsed time of 144 hours, two minutes, Arne Suominen, Detroit, started off at his swinging gait when the runners left Los Lunas today.

Sisler and Judge Still Fight Over First Base Job

TAMPA, Fla., March 28.—(P)—With the major league season opening just two weeks away, the Sisler-Judge dispute over Washington's first base job still is up in the air.

George continues to start every exhibition game and is hitting as of old. Joe has come through in two successive pinches, including yesterday's game which the Senators lost to the St. Louis Nationals, 6 to 5.

COVELESKIE GOING GOOD

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28.—(P)—Stanley Coveleskie, veteran of 13 major league campaigns, looks like an addition to the Yankees' pitching staff. Manager Huggins observed his 48th birthday yesterday watching Covey's famous spitball blank the Reds through four innings. Covey allowed only three hits but after he had left the game, the Redlegs turned on the Yanks and whacked out a 6 to 4 decision.

A somewhat surpassing feature is that the two oldest players in the majors are pitchers. Despite the steady strain of years of mound work, Quinn and Grover Alexander, of the Cards, who is just turning 41, still are whipping them over the plate.

At the other end of the age scale are such young players as Mel Harder, 18-year-old Cleveland recruit pitcher; Keller of the White Sox; McCoy and Hill of the Browns; Lopez of Brooklyn; Ott of the Giants and Wheat of the Phillies, all of whom are but 19 years old.

MANUSH SWINGS HEFTILY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 28.—(P)—Heinie Manush, big ex-Detroiter, is able to swing his bat again. The St. Louis Browns, here today for two games with the chicks of the southern league, rejoiced in the way Manush handled his bat in the 18 to 7 victory over Birmingham yesterday. He swung healthily three times and missed each time. But this fact was eclipsed by the way he swung. It showed clearly that his right arm, wrist and hand, have regained their strength again. He injured them in a fall in Detroit some time ago.

LIKES DOUBLE OUTFIELD

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 28.—(P)—Manager John McGraw likes his project of a double set of outfielders. Against righthand pitching, he intends to use O'Doul, Roush, and Harper but when southpaws occupy the peak, he will substitute Mann for Harper. Jahn for O'Doul, while Roush will be elected to replace himself.

GIRL ALONE

BY ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Sally Ford is left at the state orphanage when she is four by a woman who says she is the mother, but who never returns. At 16, Sally shows a genius for setting which sets her apart from the other girls in the orphanage. She is "farmed out" for the summer to Clem Carson, a farmer.

She meets David Nash, a handsome young student who is working on the farm during the summer. Pearl, Clem's daughter, hates Sally because David is plainly fond of the little orphan and determined to make Pearl and her crowd accept Sally as their equal.

One Sunday morning Sally is left alone in the kitchen while the Carson family goes to church. David sits on the back porch, book in hand, studying. They are surprised when Pearl returns suddenly from church and accuses Sally of having stolen her diamond pin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Sally stared at Pearl, color draining out of her cheeks and out of her sapphire eyes, until she was a pale shadow of the girl who had been glowing and sparkling under the sun of David's affectionate interest.

"I haven't seen your diamond bar-pin, Pearl," she said at last. "Honest I haven't!"

"You're lying. I saw you stoop and pick something up in front of the sofa last night. I was crazy not to think of my bar-pin then, and I remembered all right this morning, when it was gone off this dress, the same dress I was wearing last night. See, David!" she appealed shrilly to the boy, who was looking at her with narrowed, level eyes. "It was pinned right here! You can see where it was stuck in! Look!"

David said nothing, but a slow, odd smile curled his lips without reaching those level, narrowed eyes of his.

"What are you looking at me like that for?" Pearl screamed. "I won't have you looking at me like that! Stop it!"

Slowly, his eyes not leaving Pearl's face for a moment, David thrust his right hand into his pocket. When he withdrew it, something lay on the narrow bar of filigree white gold, set with a small, square-cut diamond. Still without speaking, he extended his hand slowly toward Pearl but she drew back, her eyes popping with surprise and—yes, Sally was sure of it—fear.

"Where did you get that?" she gasped.

"Do you really want me to tell you?" David spoke at last, his voice queer and hard.

"No!" Pearl shrieked. "No! Does she—does she know?"

"No, she was telling the truth when she said that she hadn't seen the pin," David answered, flipping the pin contemptuously to the kitchen table.

"But next time I think you'd better put it away in your own room. And Pearl, you really must try to overcome this absentmindedness of yours. It may get you into trouble sometime."

Pearl shivered, seemed to shrink visibly under her fussy pink georgette.

"Oh!" she wailed suddenly, her face crumpling up in a spasm of weeping. "You'll hate me now! And you used to like me, before she came! You—oh, I hate you! Quit looking at me like that!"

"Hadn't you better go back to church?" David suggested mildly.

"Tell your mother you found your pin just where you'd left it," that contemptuous smile deepening on his lips.

"You won't tell Papa, will you?" Pearl whimpered, as she turned toward the door. "And you won't tell—her?" She could not bear to utter Sally's name.

"No, I won't tell," David assured her. "But I'm sure you'll try to make up to Sally for having been mistaken about the pin."

"She's all you think of!" Pearl cried then, sobbing wildly, she ran out the kitchen door.

"Guess I'd better not bother you any longer, or they'll be blaming me if dinner is late," David said casually, but he paused to pat the little hand that was clenching the table.

Sally was so puzzled by the strangeness of the scene she had witnessed so tormented by brief glimpses of something near the truth, so weak from rejection, so stirred by gratitude to David that she was making poor headway with dinner when Clem Carson, who had not gone to church, came in from the barn, dressed in overalls in defiance of the day.

"Got a sick yearlin' out there," he grumbled. "A blue-ribbon heifer calf that Dave's grandpa persuaded me to buy. I don't believe in this blue-ribbon stock. Always delicate—got to be nursed like a baby. I give her a whooping dose of castor oil and she slobbered all over me."

He took the big black iron teakettle from the stove and filled the granite wash basin half full of the steaming water. As he lathered his hands until festoons of soap bubbles hung from them, he cocked an appraising eye at Sally, who was busily rolling pie crust on a yellow pine board.

"Dave been hanging around the kitchen this morning, ain't he?" Sally's hands tightened on the rolling pin and her eyes fluttered guiltily as she answered, "Yes, sir."

"Better not encourage him, if you know which side your bread's buttered on," the farmer advised laconically. "I reckon you know by this time that Pearl's picked him out and that things is just about settled between em. Fine match, too. He'll own his granddad's place some day—next farm to this one, and the young folks will be mighty well fixed. I reckon Dave's pretty much like any other young whippersnapper—ready to cock an eye at any pretty girl that comes along, before he settles down, but it don't mean anything, understand?"

"You're lying! I saw you stoop and pick something up from in front of the sofa."

"Yes, sir," Sally murmured.

"I reckon any fool could see that Pearl's mighty near the apple of my eye," Carson went on, as he dried his hands vigorously on the Sunday-fresh roller towel. "And if she took a notion that maybe some other girl from the orphanage would suit us better, why I don't know as I could do anything else but take you back. And I'd hate that. You're a nice pretty little thing, real handy in the kitchen, but, yes sir, I'd have to tell the matron that you just didn't suit. . . Well, I got to get back to that yearlin'."

Somehow Sally managed to finish cooking the big Sunday dinner before the family returned from church. Out of deference for the day she decided to change from her faded gingham to her white dress before serving dinner. Surely she had a right to look decent! Clem Carson couldn't construe her humble "dressing up" as a bid for David's attention.

In her little garret room she scrubbed her face and hands, pinned the heavy braid of soft black hair about her head and then reached under her low cot bed for her small bundle of clothes, in which was rolled her only pair of fine-ribbed white lisle stockings. As she drew out the bundle she discovered immediately that other hands than her own had touched it; the stockings had been unrolled and then re-rolled clumsily, not at all in her own neat fashion. Then suddenly full comprehension came to her. The pieces of the puzzle settled miraculously into shape. It was here in this bundle, that David had found the bar-pin. Somehow he had seen Pearl slip into the room that morning, had guessed that her secret visit boded no good for Sally! had spied on her, and then later had retrieved the bar-pin from the bundle in which Pearl had hidden it.

If David had not seen—But she could not go on with the thought. Trembling so that her teeth chattered she dressed herself as decently as her orphanage wardrobe permitted, and then went downstairs to "dish up" the dinner she had prepared.

Immediately after dinner David went across fields to call on his grandfather, a grouchy, sick old man who almost hated the boy because he would soon own the lands which he himself had loved so passionately. He did not return for supper, and at breakfast on Monday there was no time for more than a smile and a cheerful "Good morning," which Sally, with Clem Carson's eyes upon her, hardly dared return.

Sally wondered if David had been warned, too, for as the days passed she seldom saw him alone for as much as a minute. Perhaps he was being careful for her sake, suspecting Carson's antagonism, or perhaps, in spite of the shameful trick in which he had caught her, he really cared for Pearl. Evenings he sat for a short time in the living room or on the front porch Pearl beside him, chattering animatedly; but he was always in his room studying by 10 o'clock, a blessed fact which made her own isolation in her little garret room more easy to bear.

On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock David appeared at the kitchen door an axe in his hands.

"Will you turn the grindstone for me while I sharpen this axe blade Sally?" he asked casually, but his eyes gave her a deep, significant look that made her heart flutter.

Mrs. Carson, standing over her bubbling preserving kettles, grumbled an assent and Sally flew out of the kitchen to join him.

The grindstone, a huge heavy stone wheel turned by a pedal arrangement was set up near the first of the great red barns. While Sally poured water at intervals upon the stone, David held the blade against it, and under cover of the whirring, grating noise he talked to her in a low voice.

"Everything all right, Sally?"

"Fine!" she faltered. "I get awful tired, but there's lots to eat—such good things to eat—and Pearl's given me some dresses that are nicer than any I ever had before, except they're too big for me—"

"Isn't she fat?" David grinned at her, and she was reminded again how young he was, although he seemed so very grown-up to her. "She wouldn't be so fat if she worked a tenth as hard as you do."

"I don't mind," Sally protested, her eyes misting with tears at his thoughtfulness for her. "I've got to earn my board and keep. Besides, there's such an awful lot to be done, with the preserving and the canning and the cooking and everything. Mrs. Carson works even harder than I do."

David's eyes flashed with indignation and a suspicion of contempt for the meek little girl opposite him. "You're earning five times as much as your board and room and a few old clothes that Pearl doesn't want are worth. It makes me so mad—"

"Sal-lee! Ain't that axe ground yet? Time to start dinner! I can't leave this pie! I'm making," Mrs. Carson shouted from the kitchen door.

"Wait, Sally," David commanded. "Wouldn't you like to take a walk with me after supper tonight? I'll help you out of the house, except to the garden. You haven't even seen the fields yet. I'd like to show you around. The moon's full tonight—"

"Oh, I can't!" Sally gasped with the pain of refusal. "Pearl—Mr. Carson—"

"I want you to come," David said steadily, his eyes commanding her.

"All right," Sally promised recklessly, her cheeks pink with excitement, her eyes soft and velvety, like dark blue pansies.

Braving the wrath of Carson, Sally goes to meet David. In the next chapter.

Mrs. Goodhue Now Is Mentally Alert

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 28.—(AP)—The condition of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, 78-year-old mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, remained virtually unchanged today.

The patient, who had been delirious much of the two preceding days, was alert mentally yesterday and chatted with her daughter during three visits.

THREE FOUND DEAD.

NEWARK, N. J., March 28.—(AP)—Frank S. Warren, 45, his wife, Edith J., and their 13-year-old son, Jackson S., were found dead in their beds today when firemen entered the Warren home here after extinguishing a fire which burned out a portion of the interior of the house.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Warren were so badly burned that authorities said they could not determine the cause of death until an autopsy was performed.

LINDBERGH IN AIR

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh took off from Bolling Field at 10:50 a. m., for New York City. He was accompanied by his personal attorney, Henry Breckenridge, Captain Emory Land, assistant chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the Navy, and Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commandant of Selfridge Field, Michigan.

TOWN FIGHTS FLOOD

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 28.—(AP)—The 200 residents of Nicholas, 2 1/2 miles north of here, today were fighting to keep the swollen waters of Feather river from breaking through a levee protecting the town.

Reports last night that the levee had broken, isolating the town and sending a flood down the wide valley toward Sacramento caused some alarm before it was determined that the water had not raced out of bounds.

Reinforcements were being applied to the levee in the hope that the threatened overflow could be stemmed.

Young Aviator Tries for Record in Plane Flight

ST. PAUL, March 28.—(AP)—Hopful that he would succeed after three failures, Gene Shank, 22-year old St. Paul aviator, cruised over the municipal airport today in a monotonous circle seeking the world's flight endurance record.

Shank, who once held the world's mark of 515 for looping the loop in a plane, hopped off on his new flight at 7:14 o'clock last night. He carried a load of 143 gallons of gasoline. Plans have been made to refuel him in the air from another plane.

By refueling several times, he hopes to stay up long enough to beat the world's endurance mark of 52 hours 32 minutes, held by the Germans. Shank's first efforts a week ago after 12 1/2 hours when a gas line feed broke. He was forced down a second time when gasoline and oil flooded his engine.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 28.—(AP)—Gene Shank, St. Paul aviator, ended his third unsuccessful attempt to establish a new world's endurance flight record here at 7:24 a. m. today when a plugged gas jet forced him down after 13 hours and 10 minutes in the air. He took off at 7:14 o'clock last night.

Captain George Haldeman, of Atlantic flying fame, and Eddie Stinson, builder of the plane, took off from the beach runway at Jacksonville, Fla., this morning, twelve hours later than Shank.

At Curtiss Field, Long Island, Charles A. Levine has had his plane prepared for days with the announced intention of joining those who seek to prolong their lazy circling of the airports to the point of triumph.

To win the title, the fliers must exceed by one hour the present time of 52 1/2 hours. That mark was set by a motor, in another plane, which now powers the monoplane Bremen, waiting at Baldonnel airbase, Ireland, for weather favorable for a trans-Atlantic flight.

BAIL ALLOWED FRED NAVE

Fred Nave, arrested in Noelton last September and charged with the murder of Jack Morgan of Childress in December, 1926, yesterday was allowed bail of $5,000 when the State asked to have the case continued in Clarendon, where it was transferred from Wellington.

Nave is represented by Judge S. D. Stennis and H. Otto Studer of Pampa. Bail is being prepared for Nave's release, the lawyers reported upon their return from Clarendon this morning.

Lions Club Has Enjoyable Time as Ladies Attend

Ladies' night at the Lions club was an interesting occasion last night, and levity of speeches was intermingled with discussions of the proposed airport.

Al Henley of Fort Worth, noted aviator, told the club of his impressions of Pampa, and how the football field could easily be converted into an ideal airport.

District Judge Newton P. Willis was in a happy mood, and his extravagant discourse on the present and future of Pampa drew much applause. Mrs. Willis and J. D. Merriman of Wheeler accompanied him here.

The enjoyable entertainment program included vocal solos by Prof. R. E. Fisher, whistling by Lula Hutchins and piano solos by Mrs. Marvin Lewis. Short talks were made by F. M. Gwin.

Road and Bridge Election in Precinct 1 To Be April 1st

Precinct No. 1 will vote on its $750,000 special road bond election April 1. The election petition was presented to the commissioners court January 23 and approved at a called meeting in LeFors February 19, when the date of the election was set.

The money is to be used for the maintenance of roads in the precinct and the erection of three bridges. One bridge is to be across the Red river, at the J. S. Morse crossing north of McLean in section 62, block 25; another is to cross the river three miles east of LeFors on the M. B. Davis ranch in section 1, block B-2.

The third crossing is a half mile west of the old courthouse. The petition was signed by M. B. Davis and 56 other residents in the precinct.

J. M. Dodson, and W. L. Woodward. Local Lions will go to Clarendon on the evening of April 10 for a return inter-city visit.

Night Owls Bridge Club Is Entertained in Lutz Home Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lutz were host and hostess to the Night Owl bridge club Tuesday evening. Their home was artistically decorated with spring flowers, and carried out a color scheme of yellow and white. High scores were won by Mrs. Frank Shaw, and L. M. Williams at the site of six most interesting bridge games. Mrs. B. J. Renshaw was awarded consolation.

During the serving of a lovely three-course luncheon, a good radio program from New York was enjoyed. The following members and guests were present: Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Miss Esther Thomas and Ben D. Ward Are Married Monday

Miss Esther Thomas, and Ben D. Ward were united in marriage Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Amarillo. The Rev. L. N. Stuckey, pastor of the Methodist church performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Ward is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Thomas of Concrete, Okla., and during her recent residence here has made a number of friends. Mr. Ward is well known in this section as a prosperous wheat farmer and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ward of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Ward will make their home in the vicinity of Pampa.

Three Weddings Are Performed in Pampa Tuesday Afternoon

The marriage ceremony of Miss M. J. Johnson of Dallas, and W. A. Chapman of this city was performed Tuesday afternoon by Judge T. M. Wolfe. This is the first wedding to take place in the temporary courthouse in Pampa. Miss May Willard and William H. Dorsey, both of this city, were united in marriage Tuesday afternoon by Judge T. M. Wolfe. Miss Grace Johnson and J. E. Watson were married Tuesday evening at six o'clock at the Baptist parsonage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. H. Truhitte. The young couple will make their home in Kingsmill of which both are residents.

RED CROSS HEAD DIES.

BASEL, Switzerland, March 28.—(AP)—Dr. Bohmy, president of the International League of Red Cross societies, is dead here. During the war he was in charge of the arrangement for the exchange and transport in Switzerland of the wounded prisoners of all armies.

New Independent District Created for Two Schools

A new independent school district was created in Gray county when district No. 2 at LeFors and district No. 6 at Sand Creek presented a petition to consolidate into a new independent district.

The county trustees, Siler Faulkner of precinct 2, Will Paris of precinct 1, W. W. Formatt of precinct 3, and Charles Carpenter of precinct 4, met with County Judge Wolfe in the temporary court house and approved the consolidation. There are two schools in these two districts, one at LeFors and the other at Chapman ranch, with a total of more than 70 pupils and three teachers. Two of the teachers are at LeFors.

In the near future an election will be held to elect seven trustees, which will be followed by a bond issue to erect a school to accommodate the pupils of the district.

Coach Butler of Amarillo Dies of Heart Rupture

AMARILLO, March 28.—(P)—Hugh L. Butler, well known football coach and Baylor university athlete, died here today of a ruptured heart, resulting from a severe attack of hemorrhoids following an especially severe case of chicken pox.

Coach Butler came to Amarillo a year ago, and led the Amarillo high school Golden Sandstorm to a district championship. He formerly had been coach at Sherman high, where he built up one of the most powerful eleven in the state.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Wendt Butler, formerly of Sherman.

Two Die When Freight Plows Stock Train in Kansas

BONNER SPRINGS, Kas., March 28.—(P)—Two men were killed and five injured, three dangerously, when a Rock Island freight train crashed into the rear of a Rock Island stock train at Loring, three miles west of here, early today. The dead are Charles A. Lass, Riley, Kas., and R. E. Maxwell, Smith Center Kas., both stock men.

The stock train had stopped at Loring because of a hot box. The second train, carrying freight, was flagged, but the engineer was unable to stop in time and the engine plowed into the caboose and injured were sleeping. The caboose and a car ahead, carrying merchandise, were destroyed by fire.

HENLEY TALKS---

question about his hobby. He gives the impression of being "hard as nails" and when he gets within sight of his plane conversation is off and the pilot gives his whole attention to the sturdy-looking, silver creation and its Wright Whirlwind motor.

Couldn't Talk, But—

While declaring to Charlie Andrus local oil man, and the editor of The News that he couldn't make a speech and, furthermore, wouldn't. Henley yielded to persuasion and surprised even himself in speaking to the Lions. He was introduced by Mr. Andrus, moving spirit in agitation for an airport who declared that the airplane is today what the automobile was a decade ago. He asserted that within a short time a city without an airport will be comparable to one without a railroad. He predicted that Pampa soon will have an airport, will have a diagram of the field in the air maps, and that planes will map their courses by way of Pampa because of this fact.

Off to Tulsa

About 7:30 o'clock this morning, Henley, Garland, and Johns, accompanied by local oil and newspaper men, gathered at the football field where the Ryan plane was anchored. Henley warmed up the motor, Garland and Johns stepped into the roomy cabin, and the throb of the motor literally became a whirlwind of sound. The silver bird taxied evenly to the southeastern corner of the field, turned facing northwestward after the fashion of a caterpillar tractor, by braking one wheel. Then the motor roared, dirt and grass began to fly back, and with one short accelerated sweep the plane took the air in little more than 500 feet.

Henley got his elevation quickly, veered sharply to the southeast, and soon was lost in the rising sun—due in Tulsa in about two hours.

Legion Goal of Membership Set at Four Hundred

Although it was a called meeting more than 50 members of the local American Legion post attended the session last night at the Home. Further plans for the membership drive were completed and other important matters discussed.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the introduction of W. T. (Tangle) Strange of Lubbock, who was a visitor here yesterday. Mr. Strange was to have been here several weeks ago at the opening of the new home, but because of press of business could not be here. He expects to be here next Tuesday night for the social evening planned by the post.

He made a short address to the members last evening, congratulating them on the cooperation shown at the meeting and the way the members supported their commander in putting things across.

It was decided to close the membership drive May 1 and the quota was set at 400 members. Lewis O. Cox and C. E. Cary are the captains of the two teams.

The winner of the car given away by the American Legion will be made known tonight at 8 o'clock at Albert square.

RADIO BILL SIGNED

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(P)—President Coolidge signed today the bill extending for another year the life of radio commission and providing for the allocation of wave lengths among broadcasting stations in various sections of the country in proportion to the population.

Four Men Out For Three Places on School Board

Tomorrow is the last day to file applications for the placing on the ballots of names of candidates for school trustees in this independent district. Joe Smith, business manager of the system, is receiving applications.

G. F. Buckler and R. S. McConnell have filed for re-election, and J. M. Dodson and Robert Woodward have entered their names. Three trustees are to be chosen.

The election will be held on Saturday, April 7.

LICENSE FEES INCREASED

During his two-day stay here last week, W. B. Guhrle, state highway traffic officer for his territory, made a check-up on the carrying capacity of trucks and as a result $1,000 worth of additional licenses were taken out with Deputy Ray Wilson. He also made a check on cars operating with 1927 licenses which there were several in the city.

He was assisted in his work by W. Kelly of the Lubbock district.

FACTS

-AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.
