

JAPS, LUCKLESS, RUSHING TROOPS

Nebraskans Ignore Garner's Wish and Enter His Name in Primary

We've been neglecting the war, and look what is becoming of it. The Japanese have suffered reverses and they are in an ugly frame of mind. And Secretary Stimson keeps on saying things which mark him as an un-diplomatically anti-Japanese.

We Agree
We agree with Representative Fish of New York that had Stimson not issued a hot note every time the Japs made a move early in the Shanghai dispute, he would be in much better position to do something permanent now. The good offices of this country are in such a prejudicial light as to be almost useless.

We Could, Tho
Somebody is going to have to tame the Japanese, who are jingoistic because their leaders encourage them to be so. Japan commercially is "on the spot" and any attempt to boycott her will lead to war. But we would prefer for Russia and Japan to fight it out in Manchuria if there is to be war. The Far East is a long way west from America. . . . And, by the way, if we are going to keep our hands across the Pacific, we are going to need the Philippines permanently.

Dreams Shattered
All the fine dreams of world peace by League of Nations arbitration look pretty flimsy now. And a strong navy would look consoling. It is humiliating to patriotic Americans to think of going to war with inferior equipment. This country may as well build up to treaty specifications at all times, and serve notice to this effect upon the world—then work for lower treaty limits in the future. The meaning of might is still the only one some peoples seem to understand.

We Disapprove
Husband calling contests do not have our approval. They indicate inequality of the sexes socially and domestically. They do not imply mutual respect. They signify undignified raising of the voice, with grating inflections. Call the hogs, if you must, but if the husband is wnted, ring a bell or honk a horn. That's our stand in the matter, and we hope Pampa will do no husband howling.

POPULAR VOTE ON SPEAKER IS NOW ASSURED

HE IS NOT FORMALLY IN CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENT

MURRAY CHIEF "BLUE"

OIL MAN SAYS TEXAN TAKES PLAY FROM OKLAHOMAN

OMAHA, Feb. 25. (P)—Members of the executive committee of the Nebraska Garner-for-President club today decided to disregard a request that the house speaker's name not be entered in the state's presidential primary. His name will be filed and submitted to popular vote.
Grenville B. North of Omaha, president of the club, announced the decision after Representative Sam Rayburn (D. Tex.), wired the request that Garner's name not be filed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (P)—Supporters of Speaker Garner for the democratic nomination of the Nebraska Garner-for-President club asking that his name not be entered in that state's presidential primary.
Rayburn reiterated that Garner is not an active candidate, but he did not close the door to all efforts in his behalf. He said the speaker undoubtedly would accept the nomination if it were tendered him.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25. (P)—The man who voluntarily drafted Governor Murray's "presidential prospectus" and mapped his early campaign plans for the nomination today predicted the re-election of President Hoover.
C. A. (Wildcat) Owens, oil promoter, who admitted he wrote some articles for the Blue Valley Farmer, Murray's personal newspaper, characterized his early efforts in Murray's behalf as "just another dry hole."
He declared Speaker Garner of Texas "has taken the play away from Murray."

City to Furnish 500 Hours' Work to Welfare Board

City Manager F. M. Gwin told the Welfare Board yesterday afternoon that he would give approximately 500 hours of city work to Pampa's unemployed.

Two men with teams and four other men were put to work immediately. Two more men with teams and other single laborers were started to work this morning. Additional men will be added as the work progresses, the city manager said this morning.
In addition to the 2,100 hours promised by County Commissioner Lewis O. Cox and more than 1,000 additional hours promised through efforts of the drive being sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce, many of Pampa's unemployed men will be given work instead of groceries.
Several hundred hours of work have been promised for next month. The drive will continue until there is no more work to be had in Pampa, according to Jim Collins, chairman of the committee.

New North Fork Bridge Is Begun

Construction of the new bridge across the North Fork of Red River near LeFors was started this afternoon when workmen began removing the burned and charred portions. It will be necessary to rebuild all except 58 feet and the two panels comprising this length will have to be repaired. The bridge will be 997 feet long.
It will cost about one-half as much as the one that was burned a month ago by incendiaries. The new structure will be rushed to completion, County Engineer A. H. Doucette said.

The North Miami road will be opened to traffic a week from next Saturday, it was announced. Travel is now being routed over the LeFors road but the highway's shoulders will not be finished until after this week.

TOP-SPINNING CRAZE GRIPS EVEN HIGH SCHOOL, THOUGH TRACK PRACTICE INTERVENES

LIKE DAD

NEA Cleveland Bureau Katherine Coxe, above, granddaughter of General Jacob Coxe of "Coxey's Army" fame, hopes to march into the Ohio state capitol at Columbus as state representative. Miss Coxe, whose home is in Massillon, where her father is now mayor, has started circulating petitions for her candidacy.

Not in the memory of Pampa's school teachers has there been such a top spinning craze as the one raging here now. The teachers have expressed that opinion, individually and collectively, in the last two days.
Practically every boy in not only the grade school and junior high but in Central high school has at least one top and sometimes two or three. Teachers are becoming anxious regarding one phase of the top spinning. Several of the youngsters have black eyes and bruises where the tops bounced up and nicked out skin. Sometimes it's not safe to walk across Central campus what with the bouncing tops. During the noon hour it is necessary to dive, dip and sway in order to dodge the tops.

One of the most enthusiastic top spinners who is not exactly in the juvenile crowd is Albert Lard, Pampa's late, great footballer. Siler Faulkner Jr., also spins a vicious top—one that is equalled perhaps by H. L. Ledrick's. Opening of the track season helped makers a lot. Most of the high school boys gave away their tops when they donned running trunks.

Scout Executive Is Seriously Ill

C. A. Clark, executive of the Adobe Walls Boy Scout council, is seriously ill in his home in Panhandle. He became ill with influenza Monday.
Mr. Clark and the Rev. A. H. Hyde of Pampa, president of the council, were scheduled to leave yesterday on a trip through the north section of the council which includes the north Panhandle counties and the Panhandle of Oklahoma. The trip will be made next week if Mr. Clark is able to go.

Term of Court Is Nearing Close

Judge E. F. Ritchey is winding up business in 114th district court today. He is due to pass on a number of motions and six judgments before the term closes Saturday night.
Today, a jury commission composed of E. A. Vance, Clarence Bowers, and P. O. Sanders, is selecting jurors for the next term of court. Judge W. R. Ewing of Miami will open 31st district court here in another week.

Injunction Given McLean Dissolved

An injunction restraining the gas company at McLean from charging over 30 cents per cubic thousand feet for gas was dissolved by the Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo yesterday. Defendants were Ed Stover, A. J. Tillery, and other officials of the gas company.
The injunction was granted in 114th district court last summer. The plaintiff, the town of McLean, was granted the restraining order on the ground that a city ordinance automatically reduced the rate from 50 cents to 30 cents per cubic thousand feet.
The gas company contended that the district court had no jurisdiction, and that the matter could be passed on only by the railroad commission. Action of the court in dissolving the order was regarded as a tacit admission of its jurisdiction in the case.
Mrs. M. Heath was discharged from Pampa hospital on Wednesday.

FISHER AGAIN SCHOOL HEAD

Economy Program Is Being Drawn by Trustees on Basis of Inquiries

Re-election of Supt. R. B. Fisher for next year was announced today by the school board of the Pampa Independent district.

In taking this action, the board was complimentary of the work done under Mr. Fisher's supervision. No other appointments were made, the board choosing to study comparative salaries and expenses as shown in reports from many other schools of this size, and from the state department, and from the National Education association. Mr. Fisher's salary, and that of other administrative officials and teachers, will be based upon this study. Reductions are contemplated, and it is believed that the number of teachers can be reduced next year by possibly 10 per cent.
Supt. Fisher is serving his third year as head of the local schools. He also was principal of the high school two years.

CONFESSION STUDIED

DALLAS, Feb. 25. (P)—A robbery suspect's confession to participation in the burglary of a bank at Richardson, Texas, Thanksgiving day, was being investigated by police today. His statement implicated five other men, all under arrest.

Mrs. A. F. Neal of Panhandle underwent a minor operation at Pampa hospital this morning.

Miss Ruby Adams is supervising a garden demonstration at the home of Mrs. W. A. Glass in the Alarwood community today.

AMARILLO COMMISSION BEGINS STUDY OF BELL TELEPHONE AND DIFFERS ON "GOING" VALUES

AMARILLO, Feb. 25. (P)—The Amarillo city commission today was studying a new appraisal and earnings report of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company which showed a net annual income of 6.68 per cent. The report was based on reduced rates put into effect four months ago.
A rate hearing, which was postponed February 9 because of the illness of the telephone company's local attorney and reset for today, had been postponed again.
Mayor Ernest O. Thompson commented when the report was made that the company's appraisal of $1,894,893 was $542,227 higher than the appraisal made by the engineers employed by the city. He also brought up again the company's appraisal of $210,433 for "going concern" or good will.
It was not known when a conference on rates would be held, but Mayor Thompson said the city wanted "to straighten out the matter before time to grant a new franchise in June." He said the city would insist that the rates be written into the franchise.

Amendment Topic of Doctor's Talk

WEBB RECALLS FACTS OF CITY GOVERNMENTS

PROPOSED CHANGE TO BE DESIRED, HE DECLARES

IS GOOD BUSINESS PLAN

WASHINGTON'S LIFE IS OUTLINED; PUPILS PERFORM

Meritorious aspects of commissioner-manager city government, and of the proposed charter amendment to be voted on in Pampa next Tuesday, were discussed at the Pampa Lions club today by Dr. R. A. Webb, local physician and war veteran.

Dr. Webb opened his talk by recalling that the commission form of government grew out of the emergency occasioned by the Galveston flood. A commission of citizens was appointed to guide the city back to normalcy, and later was retained. Hundreds of cities have since adopted the commission plan, together with that of employing a city business manager.

The speaker added that scores of cities had adopted the plan of electing commissioners proposed in the charter amendment, that is, electing one new man each year so as always to have in office men familiar with the city's business affairs. To inaugurate this plan in Pampa, the citizens in the April election would elect a mayor for two years, commissioner No. 1 for two years, and commissioner No. 2 for three years. Next year, a mayor would be elected for 2 years, the following year commissioner No. 1 would be named for 3 years, and the next year commissioner No. 2 would be elected for 3 years. Thereafter, one of the three officials would be chosen in each April, instead of electing all three officials every two years.

In the opinion of Dr. Webb, the amendment gave the city a business basis doing away with citizenship-splitting politics every two years. The speaker declared that a city divided by politics cannot make rapid progress.

Another speaker today was Olin E. Hinkle, who gave many facts about George Washington's life and achievements, with an analysis of colonial politics and subsequent birth of the American republic.

Entertainment was furnished by the harmonica band of Horace Mann school, directed by Miss Lou Groom. They today were David M. Warren, C. M. Smith of Plainview, Ernest Zahl of Amarillo, and J. A. O'Keefe of New Orleans.

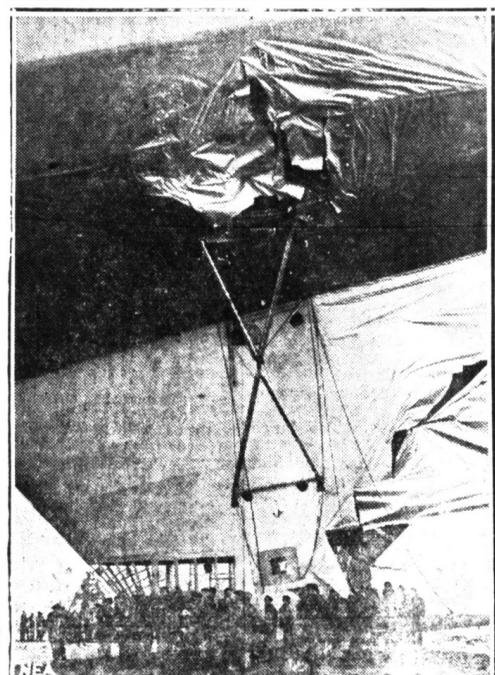

Racketeer Exposed in Postal Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (P)—The sinister trail of the racketeer through the United States mails was described vividly today before the house post office committee.
From mid-west cities, particularly St. Louis and Chicago, came the cry for a weapon to deal with threatening letters.
Kidnaping, intimidations of jurors and frightening of important witnesses in criminal cases were cited as proof that the mails have become a powerful influence in perpetration of crime.

School Officials Postpone Banquet

The Gray county superintendents and principals banquet has been postponed from March 2 to March 5 on account of the Lions minstrel and revue, March 3-4. It was announced this morning.
The banquet will be held at the high school cafeteria.
The program will deal with Texas Independence day, March 2. R. A. Selby, principal junior high school, is in charge. He said history teachers will present a play portraying Texas' fight for independence. Other features will be presented. All principals and superintendents in Gray county are invited to attend the function.

AFTER THE AKRON MISBEHAVED

Hoisted in a wide arc by a sudden gale, Sam's biggest airship—the U. S. S. Akron—was swept loose from its strong moorings at Lakehurst, N. J., with the resultant damage pictured here. While members of a Congressional inspection committee stood by, waiting to take a ride, they saw the huge sky liner's lower stabilizing fin and an extra control gondola smashed and the bottom of the ship's covering fabric ripped off in enormous, dangling patches. Several weeks will be required to make the craft airworthy again, navy officials said.

CROP PRODUCTION LOANS TO BE AVAILABLE HERE SOON

Gray county farmers will soon be eligible to receive crop production loans out of the fifty-million dollar fund recently created by Congress.

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas today announced appointment of the Gray county committee to approve loan applications. This committee is composed of C. S. Barrett of Pampa, L. L. Palmer of Eldridge community, and R. R. Cook, McLean. This group will meet as soon as necessary supplies are received, and will announce readiness to receive applications.

Full details of the arrangement have not been received, but little more delay is expected.

TAKE OVER OIL

AUSTIN, Feb. 25. (P)—The Texas Railroad commission today assumed regulation of the East Texas oil field. A formal order was issued by it as administrator of conservation laws replacing exclusive military rule invoked by Governor R. S. Sterling October 13 last. The new arrangement will become effective immediately.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS DECIDE LIONS CAN SING; SOME QUITE WELL, OTHERS QUITE "AWFUL"

The Lions club's musical revue, minstrel, for which reserved seat and general admission tickets are on sale at Fatheree Drug No. 4, is going to be a funny-though performance.
Or so say the high school girls who are in the chorus of the show. The girls say they are enjoying their part in the practices—and they are very prominent, too. Questioned, the girls said they found the Lions congenial and not unmusical. However, they confessed that some of the voices were "terrible," mentioning particularly a few on the back row. The end men afford the entire cast many a laugh. Dr. Wilder's song is in competition with C. H.

Relatives Will Claim Two Men Shot to Death

LOVINGTON, N. M., Feb. 25. (P)—Relatives of Walter Carlocke, of Healdton, Okla., and John O'Dell, of Hobbs, N. M., who were killed yesterday in a gun battle with Deputy sheriff J. M. Clifton of Lea county, notified officers they will come here to bury the two men.

Funeral services for Clifton, who died aboard an airplane en route to a Lubbock hospital, will be held late this week.

The shooting occurred at Cross Roads, N. M., when Clifton stopped Carlocke and O'Dell to question them concerning the robbery of a hardware store here Tuesday night. Carlocke was wanted in Waurika, Okla., for bank robbery. Officers said, and O'Dell was tentatively identified as an escaped convict from the Oklahoma State penitentiary.

CHINESE TAKE BACK NEARLY ALL OF AREA

ASTOUND ENEMY WITH ATTACK AFTER SHELLING

QUICK VICTORY IS VITAL

NIPPON OFFICIALS ARE FRANKLY WORRIED BY DELAYS

TOKYO, Feb. 25. (P)—Japan's decision to send a stronger, heavier force against the Chinese at Shanghai is being rapidly translated into action (which the censors forbid foreign correspondents to describe) and there is supreme confidence that the decisive blow can be struck before the Chinese can be reinforced.

The great majority of Japanese officials and laymen alike are convinced the only solution to the admittedly grave situation at Shanghai lies in the vigorous use of irresistible force at the earliest possible moment.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS
Associated Press Staff

Correspondent SHANGHAI, Feb. 25. (P)—Hammered all day long by a terrific Japanese bombardment, the Chinese army in the Kiangwan sector swarmed out of its trenches tonight, launching a surprising counter-attack, and won back nearly all the ground it had lost during the day. In the afternoon the Japanese threw their full force on the handful of defenders northwest of Kiangwan village, beat back the Chinese first line and drove it into a disorderly retreat.

The attack swept forward around the village, ripped through the line and virtually surrounded the Kiangwan garrison. The artillery pounded the Chinese second line and 40 Japanese planes rained 250-pound bombs on the defenses.

Then the attack halted for a time while the heavy guns continued their withering fire on the Chinese rear.

The counter-attack appeared to have taken the Japanese by surprise, for it carried the Chinese back across the shell-torn ground and tonight Kiangwan was still in their hands.

There were reports that two to three Japanese drives would begin early next week.

Dispatches from Tokyo disclosing that the Emperor had talked with General Yoshinori Shirakawa was taken here to mean that he would supercede Kenkichi Ueda in command of the army at Shanghai.

PLENTY OF WORK

The difference between depression and prosperity means tragedy to many millions of people—and yet, amazingly enough, the actual gap between the two states is exceedingly narrow.

A writer in the current Magazine of Wall Street quotes figures compiled by the American Federation of Labor which show that there is in the United States today enough work to employ every worker in the nation—for 35 hours a week.

That is to say, if a seven-hour day and a five-day week were suddenly installed in every industry, unemployment would literally vanish. There is, it seems, plenty of work in America for everybody—if only it were divided up equitably.

The normal working week in most industries is 48 hours, scaling down to 44 in many cases. Between that and the 35-hour week there is no great gulf. And yet that small gulf is enough to throw something like a quarter of all our wage-earners out of work and put long columns of red figures in the ledger of innumerable businesses.

Before the depression came we had had several years of high prosperity. During those years something might have been done to pave the way for hard times. Working hours might have been readjusted, for instance, to spread work out over a large number of workers. The high profits that were being made could have enabled industries to do this without greatly diminishing the individual worker's income.

But, as the writer in the above-mentioned magazine points out: "Too small a proportion of the earnings of 1919-1929 went into consumption. Too large a proportion went to swell the unpendable incomes of a minority of machine owners. Too much was ploughed back into additional capital investments to swell producing facilities which had already run beyond the consuming abilities of the mass population."

Now, however, we must look ahead to future opportunities, not back to ones that were missed. What are we going to do to narrow the gap? The man who presents a sane and logical program will do his country a tremendous service.

The week-end accident toll will soon be showing up.

Hard on 'Em

Young men's fancies still turn to love in the spring, but the depression is tempering those fancies with trouble. Imagine the difficulties of young men and young women finishing college at this time and expecting to be gainfully employed.

More Gifts

We are happy to announce receipt of additional contributions to the school cafeterias. Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Stowell have given us $5 to be divided between Baker and Horace Mann schools. Much obliged.

LOCAL WRITER POINTS OUT ROMANTICISM OF HIGHWAY 41 IN RELATION TO OLD BATTLES

By F. J. ALDREDGE

It is the purpose of this article to show the great possibilities and romance of the old highway No. 41 in connection with the pioneer Indian warfare of the country immediately adjacent.

No. 41 is destined to be one of the very greatest and most popular inter-state highways of the West. The country through which it traverses is rich in Indian lore of the most recent date. The Custer Indian battle on the Washita on November 27, 1868, where Major Elliott and 18 other white men lost their lives in the inevitable struggle between opposing civilizations. The Adobe Walls battle of June 27, 1874, and the Buffalo Wall-battle of September 12, 1874, were so near this great highway, and of such recent date, that it makes No. 41 at once the most romantic and popular road in the West.

T. J. ELDREDGE, other white men lost their lives in the inevitable struggle between opposing civilizations. The Adobe Walls battle of June 27, 1874, and the Buffalo Wall-battle of September 12, 1874, were so near this great highway, and of such recent date, that it makes No. 41 at once the most romantic and popular road in the West.

It will be recalled that in the spring of 1875, Fort Elliott was established for the purpose of moving the base of supplies for the United States army further out on the frontier in its Indian warfare against the hostile tribes that were so active in their depredations against the whites at that time. When the fort was established, it was named in memory of Major Elliott, who lost his life in the Custer Indian battle on the Washita on November 27, 1868. And morning of November 27, 1868, and now there is a move on foot to place a suitable monument on the site of the old fort. This worthy movement is being led by the seer of the plains, that matchless road builder, F. P. Reid of Pampa. The writer ventures to make this suggestion. It will be recalled by those who have observed that just a very little distance to the west of the sight of the old fort, nature has grown a most beautiful park, trees grow in great profusion on the head waters of the Sweetwater creek, just right for a most beautiful park. Ten or fifteen acres of land could be chosen so as to cover the trees and the old fort, making a splendid public park.

We owe much to the brave pioneers of such things, Jim Swanner, 319 N. Purviance, hews a specimen 6 1-4 by 7 1-2 inches, without a double yolk. The hen was an English Leghorn.

From Dalhart, the highway swings off along the fringe of the Rockies toward Denver, the wonder city of the West. From Dalhart east the highway takes almost a bee line for the mystic city, the capitol of Oklahoma, then on toward the sun rise to Fort Smith, Arkansas, then slightly south to the great radium spring at Hot Springs, health resort of the world.

If this park is established, the thousands who may travel this great interstate highway, may pause rest and think. A nice printed sign giving important information would be read with great interest. Those coming out from the crowded cities of the East would enjoy a rest at the old historic fort before plunging out to the plateau of the great West.

It is to posterity that we owe it to posterity to mark the site, for should we fail there will always be a gap of lost opportunity pointing its non-progressive finger toward us.

Millions Involved

When Hilton Howell, above, takes the bench as special justice of the Texas supreme court, in place of C. M. Cureton, who has disqualified, millions of dollars worth of securities in trust in Texas banks will be indirectly involved. In the case, the First National bank of Dallas was made sole trustee of a securities company, yet holders of only $14,000 in bonds upon which interest was in default, asked that a receiver be appointed and a district court granted the request. After two adverse decisions, the bank is taking the case before that the airship was unsafe. Representative Delaney (D., N. Y.) read the committee's prepared statement that the giant airship damaged at Lakehurst last Monday soon would be as airworthy as ever.

APPROVAL IN 10 SECONDS WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—The expected unanimous approval of the nomination of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York as associate justice of the Supreme Court was given by the senate without any more than the bang of a gavel. It took ten seconds at the close of yesterday's session to ratify President Hoover's choice of a successor to the venerable Oliver Wendell Holmes, who retired under the weight of great age.

Hundreds of people attended the opening of the new home of the White House Lumber company yesterday, and everybody, apparently, was delighted. Rubber aprons were given women visitors, and cigars were listed in the men. Officials present at the opening included Judge H. E. Hoover, president; B. F. Tepe, vice-president; L. T. Records, secretary-treasurer, all of Canadian; and R. W. Lane, local manager.

Visitors, including life-long friends of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Tepe, were in the offices and yard at the corner of Ballard and Foster during most of the day.

The name of J. W. Sanders should have been among the directors of the company who were listed in the NEWS last Sunday. It was unintentionally omitted.

STIMSON STATEMENT IS SEEN AS FREEING UNITED STATES OF PACTS IF JAPAN KEEPS COURSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Secretary of State Stimson's frank letter to Senator Borah outlining American policy in China was seen today as a definite effort to inform world opinion and stop the barrage of notes between Tokyo and Washington.

The letter to Senator Borah calls for no reply from the Japanese foreign office and does not invite international controversy. But it lets all powers interested in the International Settlement at Shanghai know the United States believes existing treaties sufficient, if strictly adhered to, to protect the interests of China, as well as those of all other nations which signed the nine-power treaty, framed at the Washington conference in 1922.

By this indirect method, Japan's suggestions that there should be treaty revisions or at least treaty interpretations to permit of foreign intervention because of Chinese inability to maintain domestic peace and safeguard foreign interests, are definitely rejected by the United States without giving Japan a direct rebuff.

Congressional sentiment is aligned strongly behind the new Stimson statement. Individual leanings color the interpretations placed on the letter but no note of objection has been voiced.

The forceful reminder by Stimson that the treaties fixing ratios are interdependent with the nine-power pact for the preservation of China's territorial integrity and her free trade and that this pact is threatened by the present conflict, was seized on by big navy advocates as fuel for their fire.

They saw in it an inescapable inference that the United States would feel no longer bound to the treaty-imposed fleet limits or the pledge against further fortification at Guam and in the Philippines, if it decides Japan has violated the nine-power pact. Senator Johnson, California welcomed an "implication that we are free now to pursue our own course."

Strong believers in the power for peace inherent in treaties and international co-operation refused to see any such implication, leaning instead on the strong Stimson declaration that the United States stands firmly by the nine-power pact, the Kellogg peace pact, and all solemn international treaties for peace.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

NEARLY every home maker learns, in time, how difficult it is to cater to an invalid or convalescent who cannot have the food that is prepared for the family.

Hearty, savory dishes made of meats and vegetables as well as such desserts as pastries and hot puddings have no place on the sick room tray, but many families demand these concoctions for every-day fare. This, of course, means that special dishes must be prepared for the invalid.

The returning strength of a person who has been ill often depends vitally upon a good appetite, so that every effort should be made to tempt the invalid to eat well and regularly. Time spent in preparing dainty and nourishing food should not be considered wasted effort but part of the program necessary for the complete recovery of the convalescent.

Variety and the element of surprise are highly important. Meal times are veritable oases in the monotony of the invalid's day, but if eggs and toast always appear in the same form, the patient has little to anticipate. With the exception of the so-called "liquid diet," quite a wide choice of foods is permitted. Consequently it's not necessary to repeat the same foods meal after meal.

Dessert Adds Nourishment
The dessert made with milk and eggs adds quite as much nourishment to the meal as the "main dish," although the dessert should always be very dainty and appetizing.

Use the utmost care in flavoring. Too sweet or too highly flavored dishes will not please an invalid whose sensibilities are unusually acute in every respect. Remember that the temperature of foods has considerable effect upon the highly sensitized appetite and be sure that hot foods are hot and cold foods are cold.

Never serve a sick person anything that is not perfect in its way. If the custard is over-baked and seems watery, don't serve it. Let some well member of the family eat it to "save it" but prepare a fresh one for the invalid.

Try not to crowd the tray. Serve the meal in courses if possible, for used dishes are unsightly and unappetizing.

Mrs. Judd, Now in Prison, Likely To Tell Much More

ARIZONA STATE PRISON, Florence, Ariz., Feb. 25. (AP)—Sentenced to hang May 11, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk" murderer, today occupied a cell in condemned row, hopeful her attorney's may yet save her from the gallows.

Mrs. Judd was brought to the state prison from Phoenix late last night, having left Phoenix a few hours after Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman denied her a new trial and sentenced her to death.

Although the execution date was set for May 11, state authorities said it was not likely she would be hanged for at least 15 months.

Under Arizona law, an appeal to the state supreme court is mandatory in all cases where the death penalty is set. If the defense does not make an appeal, the state must ask for a review of the evidence. Because this appeal must be made the execution can not take place for more than a year.

Sheriff J. R. McFadden, who accompanied Mrs. Judd to the prison from Phoenix, said the convicted woman was in "very jovial spirits" on the trip, singing several Spanish songs.

McFadden said he questioned Mrs. Judd during the automobile trip regarding the details of the killings of Mrs. Agnes La Roi and Miss He/ig Samuelson, but that she declined to answer most of his questions.

In answer to the query, "Did you have an accomplice?" the sheriff said Mrs. Judd replied: "Yes, I had an accomplice." She refused, however, to name that person.

When she was placed in her cell, Mrs. Judd shuddered and remarked, "I visited a lot of dark caves when I lived in Mexico and wasn't afraid, but this dark place scares me to death."

Be very careful not to fill dishes too full. Bouillon and soup spill very easily when carried on a tray and can spoil the daintiest effect.

Don't use chipped or cracked china and glassware and be sure the silver is bright and shining. The tray cloth and napkin, too, should be immaculate. All these things mean much to anyone who has "nothing to do but get well" and who consequently notices every detail pertaining to his comfort.

Use the utmost care in flavoring. Too sweet or too highly flavored dishes will not please an invalid whose sensibilities are unusually acute in every respect. Income Taxes to Be Much Smaller

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Treasury experts, who in years past have forecast almost exactly the amount of income tax the government collect each March 15, find themselves in a quandary this year and unable to find a basis on which to estimate tax receipts next month.

The sharp decline in incomes in 1930, which caused income tax collections last year to drop off $50,000,000, was continued in 1931. In addition, tax payers will write off losses this year, it is feared, in greater amounts than last year. The deductions which will be taken for losses have been the stumbling block to making accurate estimates of the amount that may be collected from the first installment of tax on 1931 incomes. This is due the fifteenth of next month.

In all, probably less than 2,000,000 persons will pay income tax this year. In normal years the number was reduced from around 4,000,000 to 2,500,000 through broadening of exemptions but the decreased business is expected to take about half its million persons off the list because their incomes have dropped below the taxable amount.

If the government collects $250,000,000 from income tax payments next month officials will feel they are lucky. Last year the March 15 payments amounted to $334,830,000.

Russia's Proposal Quickly Rejected

GENEVA, Feb. 25. (AP)—The world disarmament conference today voted down Russia's proposal for immediate total and universal disarmament throughout the world.

The proposal was presented by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, at the opening of today's session. When the vote was taken, only Turkey and Russia supported the proposal.

"The special interests of the munition makers," Litvinoff said, "are stronger than the pacifist groups. Civilization would not suffer much if all the fighting in the far east were done with bare fists."

Good Weather Lowering Rivers

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 25. (AP)—Fair weather has brought renewed hope to the flood-swept lowlands of the lower Mississippi valley.

Monroe, La., which waged a heroic battle against the swollen Ouachita, has started to dislodge the levee workers who aided residents in protecting the city.

The Coldwater, Tallahatchie and Yalobusha rivers, rampant in the Mississippi delta since before Christmas, have ceased to rise in Quitman, Paula and Tallahatchie counties and rivermen said if fair weather holds, they should soon fall.

At Natchez, Miss., the Mississippi river itself rose but a tenth of a foot yesterday and observers called the outlook encouraging.

Youngsters Are Playing Billiards

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. (AP)—Youth was having its fling in the special all-star three cushion billiard tournament today.

Jay Bozeman, sensational young cueist from Vallejo, Cal., led the veteran field with a record of four victories and one defeat, apparently unmindful that he was ahead of such stars as Willie Hoppe, Augie Kieckhefer, Welker Cochran and Arthur Thurnblad.

He went into the lead yesterday with victories over Thurnblad and Cochran. Kieckhefer, winner of the 1932 world's title, was in second place with three victories and two defeats.

Dalhart Editor Is Given Award For Enterprises

WACO, Feb. 25. (AP)—The Baylor university department of journalism announced today the award to John L. McCarty, editor of the Dalhart TEXAN of first place among 23 Texas editors enrolled in the Baylor community service contest.

The contest was waged to determine which editor could sponsor and carry through the largest number of worth-while community enterprises in 1931.

B. E. Broiles, editor of the Mexia DAILY NEWS, and L. R. Wade of the Polk county ENTERPRISE, Livingston, were selected for second and third places, respectively. The exhibits were judged by professors of journalism at the university of Texas, Southern Methodist university and Texas Christian university.

The awards, consisting of a service medal in journalism for first place and cash prizes for the other two, will be formally presented at the Texas Press Association convention at Mineral Wells in June.

Get Experience But Lose Plane

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25. (AP)—Two young licensed pilots went up in the air yesterday for more experience and came down with more than they bargained for.

The two, Walter Hawkins and L. T. Dutcher, went up in Hawkins' plane and, 5,000 feet up, Hawkins put the plane into a tailspin. He was unable to bring the plane out of the spin and he and Dutcher leaped with parachutes to safety. Each received a sprained ankle. Hawkins' plane was ruined.

Americans Are Loathe to Leave Zone of Danger

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25. (AP)—All Americans who live at the Astor House hotel, one of the landmarks of Shanghai facing Soochow creek, were cautioned today by American officials to leave there and retire to a safer location. Most of them declined.

The advice was given because of waters would be taken over to the apparent danger from Chinese transport the American citizens.

Right-of-Way Being Donated

More than two-thirds of the property owners on Frederic street have donated approximately 10 feet of additional right-of-way so that highways 33 and 152 will pass in front of their property. Several others believe they should be paid for the footage.

Property owners met with City Manager F. M. Gwin, City Engineer C. L. Stine and P. P. Reid last night and discussed the matter.

The men objecting to giving the land claim that a certain amount of money was set aside in the county-wide bond issue for the purchase of right-of-way. The county commissioners will be consulted and a future meeting called.

ROMANCE—EXCITEMENT
PATHOS—HAPPINESS

BOY CRAZY

by Grace Perkins

SYNOPSIS: Hope Ross and Dickey Dale are happily unceremonious with the future when they run away and get married on a rainy night. Dickey calls up his father, "Hickey," theatrical manager and "the grandest guy in eight states," and Hickey tells them to come over to his apartment to be scolded and congratulated. Hope's father, however, is not expected to prove so cooperative. In fact, Hope expects him to create a riot and her mother to have hysterics for weeks. The Ross family has not approved of Dickey, mainly on the ground of Hickey's social inferiority. Hickey has promised to call up Mr. Ross to try to smooth matters over, but Hope is dubious. Meanwhile, she and Dickey and a newly-arrived white kitten have breakfast.

Chapter 14
NOBLE IDIOTS
"The devil take wills," growled Dickey as he poured the coffee. "The devil take all—"
A knock at their door interrupted them.
As Dickey opened the door, one Mr. Andrew Hall walked in, and greeted the golden haired child sitting in a white velvet evening gown with a white kitten in her lap. He announced himself as the manager of the hotel who had just talked to Mr. Dale, the theatrical producer, and Dickey's father.
Let him be the first to congratulate the young couple, said Mr. Hall.

"I must make one demand," Hickey said.

Excitedly Hope phoned this Madame Renee, giving her size and asking what were the possibilities in the current wardrobe of the shop. In a haphazard brown covert suit, peach satin blouse, brown shoes and brown felt hat, Hope was tucked into the car beside her Dickey and made good-by to Mr. Hall, Madame Renee, and a bill of a hundred and twenty-seven dollars. It was a glorious morning. A teasing, spring morning that seemed to be laughing at their fears. Good morning Mr. and Mrs. Are you happy? Terribly in love?

"You'll stick by me no matter what?" Dickey demanded as they flew through the main street of the town that was Hope's home.
"No matter what!" she vowed. And meant it.
On and on they traveled. Talking, at traffic stops, of the future. Of how Dickey would go to work. Real work. And write plays on the side to make a fortune for them. And how they would take a little studio apartment. And live within Dickey's means. No more college for Dickey. Life was serious now.

So serious!
Hickey met them at the door of the hotel suite that he called home; and that, indeed, he had made home, by a mad collection of trinkets, reminiscent photographs, pieces of stage furniture, tapestries, curios, innumerable books, framed programs, and a huge Great Dane, who, from a pup, had been Hickey's solace in the lonely months when his son was off acquiring an education. The Great Dane, called Dobson after the play that had made Hickey's first great success on Broadway, was Hickey's ever-faithful shadow.
Hickey greeted them solemnly. Kissing Hope and calling her "daughter." With remarkable dignity in that word—"daughter."

Agriculture Groups To Meet Tomorrow
The first meeting of the 1932 agriculture committee of the Pampa Board of City Development will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the chamber of commerce rooms.
Plans for the year will be discussed. Travis Lively, chairman, will preside. Other members are Ralph B. Thomas, Roy McMillan, C. S. Barrett, Lawrence Taylor, Irvin Cole, and J. L. Lester.
Plans for holding the third annual vocational judging contest will be made. The Gray county free fair, soil survey and other important matters will come before the meeting.
Mr. Lillybridge of Amarillo made one of his frequent trips to Pampa yesterday.

SYNOPSIS: A quarrel, a fight and a mad motor ride end in the apartment house. Hope Ross and Dickey Dale. Hope is seventeen and Dickey is still in college, but they have decided to settle down seriously. The decision might not have been so abrupt if Hope's father had not forbidden her to have Dickey in the house. The Ross family, outstanding in Westchester county society, considers Dickey an outsider. Now the difficulty is to tell Mr. and Mrs. Ross about the marriage. Hickey has volunteered the runaway, but states that Dickey must not leave college to work, as he wishes. He will finance the couple while Dickey studies. Hope and Dickey have vowed to "stick by, no matter what." Hickey promised to telephone Mr. Ross, and Hope is anxiously waiting to hear his report.

Chapter 15
PANIC TRAILS HOPE
"I do see it," nodded Hope breathlessly over her coffee. "I want Dickey to finish college, too. I trust upon it. And it'll be lots of fun to live up in Harmouth."
This last Hickey dismissed as "beyond him."
"So much for my end," he explained. "I'm very fond of Hope and proud of her. I'll do anything to make you two kids happy. As long as you square with each other and with me."
"Now—don't thank me. We have other matters to consider. Hope's family. They are dreadfully upset. It's only natural. Half the night they've been searching for Hope. Some one named Crandall came back with the story of how you were drunk Dickey."
"I was not!" denied the bridegroom hotly. "I had a couple of drinks—because I was mad with Hope, but I—"
"Well, I didn't think you were drunk," J. Hickson Dale shook his head and held up a restraining hand. "But the Crandall fellow evidently was in a fight with you, and this morning is suffering with a broken eardrum!"
"Oh, poor Rusty!" murmured Hope, nearly upsetting her coffee.
"That's only a minor issue. You're to do the main thing there, Dickey, whatever it is. I don't know what your fight was about. At any rate, we'll foot his doctor's bills, if it comes to that."
Hope snickered openly. Imagine the Crandalls letting anyone foot the doctor bills for Rusty! Imagine the supreme disgust, the outraged insult of listening to old Hickey offering to pay for a broken eardrum inflicted by his rowdy son.

"The really important matter is still in a state of suspense," continued Hickey. "You two have got to go and see Mr. Ross. Right now. He's at home, waiting for you."
"I was not!" denied the bridegroom hotly. "I had a couple of drinks—because I was mad with Hope, but I—"
"Well, I didn't think you were drunk," J. Hickson Dale shook his head and held up a restraining hand. "But the Crandall fellow evidently was in a fight with you, and this morning is suffering with a broken eardrum!"
"Oh, poor Rusty!" murmured Hope, nearly upsetting her coffee.
"That's only a minor issue. You're to do the main thing there, Dickey, whatever it is. I don't know what your fight was about. At any rate, we'll foot his doctor's bills, if it comes to that."
Hope snickered openly. Imagine the Crandalls letting anyone foot the doctor bills for Rusty! Imagine the supreme disgust, the outraged insult of listening to old Hickey offering to pay for a broken eardrum inflicted by his rowdy son.

"Will you come with us?" asked Hope timidly.
"If you want me to. I think it would be better if you stood on your own, and didn't have me around to fight your battles. Besides, my Irish is not always calculable. I might break into a rash and commit melodrama. After what I heard on the phone, I'm sure I would."
"You two had better go alone and do the square thing. After that, come back to me. Because I'm for you, and I'll be right here to take care of everything. Try to make peace. Don't lose your temper, son. Remember, you had no right to do what you did. No right in the world. So it's up to you to make amends, and take your medicine. Take your medicine, and don't flinch. Only remember one thing! By God, you're no gutter pup, and you can make as fine a husband for Hope as the next one! Come back to me, and we'll show them. Eh, Hope?"
Hickey's voice had risen to a pitch of cholera that showed how truly his spirit had been shaken by the treatment Papa Ross had evidently seen fit to hand him.
Hope's heart sank. She understood—swiftly and clearly. She had a swift vision of her father, with a grim, angry, unreasoning stare. Her fingertips grew cold. Even as she gathered Sassy up at Dickey's command and prepared to leave. Even as she flung her arms, kitted and all, around Hickey's neck and kissed him on the ruddy old cheek, telling him she was proud to be Mrs. Dale.

The ride back to the suburbs was ticklish. Dickey's mind was not on his driving. Urgently, agreeing on everything. They mustn't be too quick or insolent with Papa Ross, because Hope understands him, and Hope knew it was best to let him steam it all off first—and then talk! Agreed! But anyway they would stick together. . . .
If they expected an armed array to meet them at the doorway of the Ross estate, Hope and Dickey were sadly disappointed. The huge colonial house was frozen silent and quiet. Almost as if someone were dead—or seriously ill within. A breathless suspense seemed to hang over the May gardens.

The roadster chugged up the gravel-way, and stopped with a hacking cough. Without a word Hope and Dickey climbed out, and mounted the steps hand in hand.
Rang the doorbell.
Hope—ringing her own doorbell, fear and tears in her throat. Standing, heart agog, before the same door where but nineteen hours ago she had hurried gaily by, dressed for dinner at the Country Club. . . .
Not a sound from within. . . . They rang again.
And almost simultaneously the door opened!

John Howard Ross himself opened the door. Tall, white, scarcely silent. Opened the door so quickly that both kids lost speech. Grasp of Hope's arm and fairly yanked her inside the old hallway.
Slamming the door in Dickey's face!
"Stick together, will they? With Dickey on one side of the huge iron doorway, and Hope on the other?"
"Dad! Dad!" cried Hope frantically, almost dropping her kitten in her panic. "Let Dickey—"
"Not a word out of you!" roared her father. "Go upstairs to your room!"
"I won't! I won't! Dad, you've got to listen to me! Dickey—"
"Go upstairs—instantly!"
Hope caught her breath. She felt herself go weak. There was something close to insanity in the fury of her father's eyes! Where was good old Papa Ross—the big bluff who could always be kissed into reason? In his place stood some mighty stranger—some grim, towering creature who was the vice-president of two banks and who was used to being obeyed!
Her eyes closed. To blot out the vision of a father who looked as if he might kill! She turned, frightened, and started up the stairs.
Made straight for her room, gasping with terror. Where was everybody? Where were Mama and Goody? Why was the house so still and deathlike?
In her room, she closed the door. Maybe Papa Ross considered this man-to-man stuff. Maybe after talking to Dickey, he would speak to her. Maybe he and Dickey would fight. . . . Oh, dear heaven, don't let them fight, because Dickey is much the stronger and wouldn't remember his strength. . . . Wouldn't it be awful if Dad had a broken eardrum too?
Voices jerked her out of her panic. Dropping Sassy to the floor, she hurried over to the window. Her room was at the back of the house for its eastern exposure. She couldn't see then. Not a thing. But she could hear. She could hear men's voices. Voices of the two men she loved.
"I want my wife!" she heard Dickey's yell of anger.
She tried to make out the answer. Papa Ross's voice was too strained, too harshly pitched to understand. . . . Again Dickey's voice—getting savage!
For some inexplicable reason Hope found herself crying. Panting with great, choking sobs, as she fell to her knees by the window and called out to Dickey—stretching out her arms to the hills of Westchester. Where there was no Dickey to see or hear; for Dickey was on the front steps, doubling his fists and bursting with the desire to swing a swift and unarguable uppercut.

Through her own sobs and calls she heard—heard a strange and fearsome noise that made her heart stand still. Struggling to her feet, she flung open her door and stumbled down the staircase, almost tripping at the landing so blind she was with tears.
And then in the hall she came face to face with her father. Her father, who was closing the door behind him with an enormous and thundering slam!
"Where are you?" she stammered, and then suddenly went voiceless.
The chug of a car answered her unfinished question.
For a moment, Hope stared through her tears at the immovable face of her father.
Her thoughts whirled around and around crazily. Where was Dickey going, and why had he left? Was he after the police? Was he hurt? Why was Papa Ross standing so stiffly, his arm limp at his side. . . .
Hope finds herself a prisoner tomorrow and challenges her father in a frantic encounter.

Beaty Supports Gas Sales Tax

A manufacturers' tax at the proposed two per cent rate would be a source of revenue that would grow with the recovery in business, he

INSANE AND MEDIEVAL IDEAS
WITH a shriek Hope rushed past her father to the window.
Tearing back the curtains to see what she couldn't believe was true—to see the unholy, lovable, outrageous roadster disappearing around the bend of the driveway—off down the road!
"Dickey!" she screamed. "Dickey!"
Slowly, Hope turned back to face her father. Blood of the same blood; each with the same granite will and imperious pride, they faced each other. Both were pale, with eyes that seemed to have forgotten love in this, their greatest moment of conflict.
"What did you do with him?" she demanded throatily. "Where did he go? What did you do to him?"
Strangely still stood John Howard Ross, his thin pale lips twitching, his eyes unblinking and almost glittering as he stared steadily at her.
A slight groan escaped his lips, and his right hand went up swiftly to the limp arm.
"Dad! You're hurt. Daddie, what is it? You're hurt!"
All softness and sympathy she had turned toward him. But his right hand went up as a barrier.
"Go to your room!" he repeated as if forcing each word through his teeth.
So noisy was Hope's refuge in weeping when at last she reached her own be-tattered and canopied bed, that she didn't hear a key turn in her door. For centuries she lay, face downward, a fanciful wreck of a bride; finding only one warm and living comfort. Sassy eventually smuggled close to her hot cheeks, mewling intermittently, his white fur becoming entangled in her yellow curls, as she clasped him to her grubby face and told him over and over—that it wasn't fair, and it couldn't go on. Dickey would return soon, and probably bring Hickey, and surely her father would come to talk to her and then she'd explain just how it had happened.
But dusk crept over the hills of Westchester, and it did go on, and Dickey didn't appear, nor did her father come to talk to her.
Eventually Hope bathed and dressed afresh, marveling at so much heartache as she gazed into her own bewildered, reddened eyes in the mirror.

At length she gained courage and with a quiet determination she walked to her door.
But the door of her bedroom was locked!
A wave of fury swept through Hope. And with the fury came the end of tears and repentance!
If only there were a telephone in her room! So often she had thought of asking for one. And now—! If only she could hear Dickey's voice! If only she could know where he was, and what he was doing. . . .
At eight o'clock that night, the key turned in her lock and her door was flung open. On the threshold stood her father. Silent. Never glancing at her. Past him came Dill, the cook, bearing a tray which she deposited on the end table beside Hope's pet armchair.
"Good evening, Miss Hope," mumbled Cook from sheer necessity to greet the forlorn figure standing at the window.
Hope started. Her eyes had been on her father's unapproachable countenance. Now her little jaw grew square and her lips curled.
"I'm not Miss Hope," she said quite nastily. Oh, very nastily indeed. "I'm Mrs. Dale, Cook."
"That will do, Dill," said Mr. Ross sharply.
"Yes, sir. Good night, Mrs. Dale!"
Hope smiled with sour triumph as the cook creaked sedately through the doorway. But the smile faded as her father followed the servant swiftly, closed the door and turned the key once more in the lock.
"Dad!" she called, and flew to the door, beating it viciously with her small fists. "I won't have it! You can't treat me like that! I won't have it, you hear? I'm not a baby any longer. Listen to me!"
But if Papa Ross was listening on the other side, no sound or murmur came through the door to quiet her anger.
"Treat me like a prisoner!" Hope cried. "I never heard of such insane, medieval, outlandish, downright cruel ideas in all my whole life!"
But a worse situation follows tomorrow, when an important scene is staged by Dickey, Mr. Ross and Hickey—with Hope absent.

"Dad! You're hurt. Daddie, what is it?" Hope cried.

Hope struggled valiantly—between the fear of a little girl before the father she had been trained to obey and respect, and her own desperate faith in a new love. Struggled to swallow the welter of tears that were straining at her throat, and the very hungry, very faint and very helpless feeling that was stealing over her.

"I want you to know, Dad," she said with deadly certainty, "that nothing can keep me away from Dickey. I love him, Dad. Don't look at me like that! I love him—and I'm married to him. Daddie! Don't look at me like that!"
She was crying now—bawling openly like some three-year-old—her hands pulling at her dress. . . . "I'm sorry," she wailed. "Sorry I did it—like I did. I shouldn't have, I suppose. But Mama was so mean to him, and more of you understand him, and Daddie, I love him so. I'm sorry. I didn't realize how I would hurt you. . . . But now, Daddie, or a million years from now, last night or years to come in church with a veil—it would be Dickey with me. Always!"
Still the unchanged expression stared stonily down on her, lips twitching. Still the silence, despite the fact that in her earnestness she had caught at the lapels of his coat, tugging to emphasize each swollen half-strangled word.
She flung herself, breathless, into a huge high-back needle-point chair. In echoing silence she cried until her sobs expended themselves in her anger and fear.
A sharp, stern voice cut in on her quivering breathlessness.
"Go to your room," said Papa Ross.
She waited until she could see him plainly. See the grim, taut face that had spoken those unfeeling words.
"Slowly she got to her feet.
"Listen, Dad," she managed hoarsely. "You're not fair. Not to listen or even speak to me. I didn't mean any harm. We haven't done any harm, except to—"
"Go to your room!"
Without another word, Hope started past him. Because she couldn't quite clearly see, and because she expected him to step aside for her to reach the staircase, she bumped awkwardly against him.

EXPOSURE IS FATAL
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25. (P)—The exposure of roaming nude through thickets and bushes on a cold winter night during a mental lapse was tentatively assigned by authorities today as the cause of Miss Elsie Flothmeier's death.
The body of the 22-year-old college student, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Flothmeier, was found in a clump of brush in the northeast section of the city late yesterday. She had been missing since she left her father to take a walk in a park 24 hours previously.
Bobby Tubbs was admitted to Worley hospital last night for medical attention.

STUDIES PROPOSED AIRLINE
OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25. (P)—R. F. Danmer returned here today after completing a preliminary survey to determine feasibility of an air line between Oklahoma City and Wichita Falls, Tex. He said a definite decision had not been reached.

WHOLESALE INSULT
"WHO wants their damned old food?" demanded Hope. "I wouldn't touch it, if I was dying of thirst! The birds can have it—and the worms!"
Whereupon with one energetic and somewhat muscular gesture, Hope picked up the tray of tempting, steaming food on dainty Wedgwood dishes, and flung the whole thing, into a clattering, smashing pile, out of her window!
Which greatly relieved her nerves—until she suddenly realized that it left her without a drop of cream or a crumb of food for the dolefully mewling Sassy.
And until—some two hours later—she realized how pitifully hungry she really was!
Late into the moonlit night, Hope paced up and down her room, her imagination working overtime. Packing her bags, and dressing so that she would be ready for travel. For surely Dickey would come! What could be delaying him? Had he really hurt Papa Ross—and what was going to happen? She mustn't ask questions that couldn't be answered. The same questions bawled over and over in her mind. . . . She must have faith. Dickey would come, and there must be some good reason why he hadn't arrived before this. Whatever the hour, she would go with him—if she had to leap out her window and into his arms to make it! Why on earth were her bedroom windows directly over the bubbling brook and the sunken garden? One couldn't very well tie a sheet and jump the rest of the way down there—only to land soaked and wet to the skin! No indeed! She'd run away if she had to, but that would be silly now, because ten to one she'd pass Dickey on the way, and besides, Papa would be watching the garage, and how could she get any distance without a car before being caught?
Better, anyhow, to wait until Dickey and his father arrived, and then leave, with perfect dignity, haughty and proud. . . . They had said they'd stick together no matter what, hadn't they? Oh, but surely Dickey would help them like he said. . . . And some day Dad would be sorry. . . . And see things in the right light. . . .
Why were the walls of the house built so soundly? Why such silence—such ghostly, gruesome silence everywhere, with only the faint tinkle of the phone in Papa's study ringing every few centuries? What was the matter with everybody? Had they gone crazy?
Was that the sound of a car on the driveway? Oh, why couldn't she see the front of the house? Who was coming—or who was leaving, and for where?
Dawn crept into the rose and apple-green bedroom, and found Hope Fairfield Ross sitting by her open window, dressed in a blue velvet suit, her hat fallen to the floor, her yellow head bent against the window ledge in the sleep of exhaustion. Asleep—but still dressed and ready for the slightest sign, the barest sound of love to call for her and carry her away to happiness. . . .
Long before Hope had succumbed to exhaustion, three men faced each other in the enormous billiard-room below the house.
If only the bride could have seen or heard Hickey, with Dobson at his feet, and Dickey by his side, pale and disheveled. John Howard Ross, before his huge cobblestone fireplace, one arm stiff in his sleeve, and the other raised with a vehement gesture that punctuated the snarl of his words.
"And the behavior of the boy," he repeated with a nasal sting that robbed his voice of any human quality, "has only proven my statements. Drunk at the Country Club an hour before he ran off with my child! Drunk, and in a fit fight that has put one boy in the hands of a surgeon today with a broken eardrum! He should be sued! I ought to have him arrested! I wouldn't soil my family name by entering into a court brawl with him! My family will suffer enough as it is with the publicity of this whole disgraceful affair!"
"I shan't leave until I see Hope, just the same!" growled Dickey with white and glowering obstinacy.
"She doesn't want to see you! She doesn't want ever to see you!"

Papa Ross fired the words back into the boy's face.
"I'll have to hear that from her own lips!" insisted Dickey for the fourth time in the last hour.
"Drunk you were!" shouted Papa Ross not to be outdone in a little matter of repetition. "Drunk, I say, which you dared to run off with a girl who isn't old enough to know her own mind! Ignore her family, and never so much as notify us of her safety or her whereabouts. Her mother is seriously ill as a result—from a heart attack early this morning that has put her in a very grave condition. And as for your behavior when at last you got around to bringing my daughter home—"
With a speechless, almost flabby twitching of his dry lips, Papa Ross pointed to his own injured left arm.
"I'm sorry—dreadfully sorry and ashamed—but you didn't give me a chance!" cried Dickey hotly. "I've got some rights. You wouldn't even—"
"You've got no rights!" raged his father-in-law with a snap of his jaw. "You're nineteen and she's seventeen. You're minors! Infants! You have no rights, either one of you, and I'll never give you a chance!"
"And I'll never believe Hope doesn't want to see me, until—"
But old man Hickey turned and put his hand on his son's shoulder. "That will do, boy," he said tersely. "Then with a weary straightening of his huge square shoulders under his loose-fitting tweed coat, the producer turned sadder eyes on the banker.
"I have, sir," Hickey spoke with slow deliberation and a careful dignity to mask the unmanageable tightness of his throat, "come here, with nothing but good-will—nothing but apology, and with a desire to meet you half-way—all the way—in order to keep these two children from ruining their lives. I have—"
"Half-way!" snorted Papa Ross fiercely. "Half-way! With nothing but good-will and apologies, eh? With no thought to the inheritance perhaps that is Hope's—"
With sudden clenched fists, Hickey squared off, in a flash of uncontrollable anger.
"God-damn you, sir!" he roared, his throat easing for the first time in that hour with the relief of a good, round, wholesome fury.
At his feet Dobson growled a warning, showing his pointed white teeth, as he planted himself immovably before Hickey's patent-leather shoes.
"No! No thought of money!" repeated Papa Ross, bringing his good right fist down on the edge of the billiard table until several scattered little white and red balls clattered dolefully. "You, with your four fops last season! You, with your son-a-parasite on his college! Free tuition, because his brains are in his feet and he is able to kick a goal for his team! Don't think I don't know you. I've looked you up. I know everything you've done."
Like a streak Dickey was across the eight feet between them, while his father cried out a protest and bent to hold Dobson by the collar. But Dickey wasn't sane enough at the moment to listen to any protest. Dickey was blind with anger—with wholesale insult.

But not a second time was Papa Ross to be caught by the boy's unthinking rage. Before he fairly realized what he was doing, Papa Ross had grasped a billiard end, lifted it high in the air, his right arm freed in the swing of vengeful anger, descending with a blow that crashed mightily downward, across Dickey's face and shoulder, felling the boy with the stroke.
For one dry-eyed moment, Papa Ross gazed down at his feat, realizing the extent of his own truly understanding vaguely in the back of his mind, why the boy himself had twice been driven to physical attack. . . .
Then—
"Get out and away before I lose the dog on you!"
John Howard Ross stared over at the straining Great Dane tearing at Hickey's grasp.
"Get out of the room, I say!" shouted Hickey with something close to murder in his own eyes as he lanced the man opposite him with one glance.
Perhaps it was a sob that escaped Papa Ross's lips as he dropped the billiard end, and covered his face with his hands. Half seeing, he made his way out into the hall, leaning against the door and listening to the sounds that emerged from the room.
What is going on in the next room? Mr. Ross learns to his dismay, tomorrow.

MARCH HARE PARTY IS LIVELY CLASS ENTERTAINMENT

FIRST SPRING MONTH GIVES "MAD" THEME

FIDELIS MATRONS ARE FAVORED IN HOME OF MRS. YOUNG

The breezy, blustering month of March was the background for a Mad March Hare party given by the Fidelis Matrons class, First Baptist church, at the home of Mrs. L. S. Young, 515 N. West street. Mrs. Young and members of group I were hostesses.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. T. Morrow and Mrs. Marvin Lewis. On the dress of each person was pinned a green wild March hare, and each was given a green mad cap to be worn during the afternoon.

A short business session, with Mrs. R. E. Gatlin presiding, was held before the social hour. Reports for the month of January were given by officers, and talks were made by Mrs. R. W. Tucker, teacher, and Mrs. C. E. Lancaster, guest.

Furniture and decorations were arranged as fantastically as possible, with some chairs upside down and others facing the corners. Pictures faced the walls.

Mrs. R. L. Edmondson opened the social hour with a story of the "Mad March Hare" and Mrs. Marvin Lewis conducted a Baby Bunting contest. Mrs. Morrow introduced "Swing Wild Oats" and table stunt contests. A mad March hunt led to the refreshments, which "rabbit," olives, animal crackers, and Pandemonium punch.

SOFT-BALL TWILIGHT LEAGUE TO BE FORMED IN PAMPA

NO EXPENSES ARE INVOLVED IN THIS PLAN

SEVERAL TEAMS HAVE ALREADY BEEN ASSURED

Organization of a soft-ball league will be undertaken in the near future, according to enthusiasts here. A meeting of those interested has been suggested and a date will be set soon. Firms interested in sponsoring a team are urged to notify the sports department of the Pampa News. Players also are urged to send in their names.

There will be little or no expense in sponsoring a team. The only expense will be balls and bats. Good softballs are obtainable at local hardware stores for $1. Bats may be had for the same price or less. Uniforms are not necessary, and tennis shoes are suitable. The league will be twilight. Several suitable diamonds have been located close to the downtown section.

At least four teams are assured. The Pampa Daily News, Blair Motor company, Western Building & Loan, and the First National bank have already signified their intention of sponsoring teams. It is hoped that an eight-team league will be organized. Sunday games could also be played.

It has also been suggested that an inter-city league be organized including Panhandle, White Deer, Borger, Amarillo, and other cities. The suggestion has also been made that a Gray county league be organized. All suggestions will be considered at the meeting.

Eight Golfers in Houston Tourney for Quarter Finals

HOUSTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Eight men, the elect from a starting field of 117, were paired off today from quarter-final championship play in the Houston Country club's annual golf invitation.

Willie Maguire, Jr., 16-year-old son of the club's professional, had astounded the experts by remaining in the running, despite his slight strength and his youth.

Reynolds Smith and Gus Moreland, two Dallas youngsters, were in the group, too, as were Johnny Dawson of Chicago, Edwin McClure of Shreveport, W. C. Hunt of Houston and Jack Dold of Houston, and E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma City, all seasoned campaigners.

Maguire had McClure, Dawson-Hunt, Moreland-Rogers and Dold-Smith.

Dawson was left among the championship contenders yesterday only by recourse to an unshakable calm. In the longest match ever played in the tournament's history he defeated Glenn Crisman of Houston one up in 23 holes, after Crisman's extraordinary putting on four of the extra holes had put everybody on edge save the Chicago golfer.

Moreland survived yesterday's play without having to extend himself, save in the morning where 15-year-old Freddie Borsodi of Houston carried him to the 20th hole. In the afternoon round Moreland, the defending champion, downed A. L. O'Leary of Houston, 4 and 3.

Maguire defeated W. A. Stone in the afternoon round, 5 and 4; McClure turned back Charlie Dexter of Dallas, 2 and 1; Hunt beat Joe Russell of Houston, 4 and 3; Rogers defeated Ben Calhoun of Houston, 2 and 1; Dold took I. S. Handy of Houston, 7 and 6; Smith beat Dick Nauts of Houston, two up.

Handball Meet Is Under Way

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25. (AP)—Eight contenders for the national handball singles championship continued tournament play here today. Twenty-three others fell by the wayside yesterday and last night.

Two easy victories kept Sam Atcheson, of Memphis, Tenn., the present title-holder, among the survivors. Merritt Bates, of Dallas, the 1930 champion, and Al Hobelman, of Baltimore, stayed with him. The other five survivors, however, were all of Cleveland.

Hurdles Also Missing in Ranks of Harvesters As Training Starts

Weight men are almost nil and hurdles are at a premium this year at Pampa high school. Coach Odus Mitchell is putting his boys through workouts every afternoon in an effort to find some new material. Dash men look good and are numerous while the distance boys appear few but promising.

WALKING RACE IS DEvised IN YANKEE CAMP

ROOKIE ENTHUSIASM IS VERY PROMINENT THIS YEAR

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 25. (AP)—Joe McCarty, manager of the New York Yankees, has devised a new training stunt that has proved highly effective in bringing out a free flow of perspiration.

McCarty has his men engage in a series of walking races around the bases, starting one man at the home plate and another at second to make a complete circuit. When the players thought they had enough walking, Joe staged another series of races, but this time they ran.

Howley has not been talking much but two facts were apparent: He counts on St. Johnson to be his pitching ace this season, and Mickey Heath has first call on the first-base job despite the presence of the veterans, Heilmann, Hendrick and Grantham.

Rookies Are Strong

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 25. (AP)—Five ambitious rookies with possibly only two mound jobs to work for give promise of producing some keen competition in the Washington Senators' camp next week when Manager Walter Johnson gives them the word to start showing their steam.

The new rule reducing to 23 the player limit has made the running a bit closer for these young hopefuls as six of the eight or nine mound berths are considered well provided with Crowder, Marberry, Brown, Fischer, Burke and Weaver.

Frank Ragland, Lynn Griffith, Robert Frederick, Michael DeLaney and John Boyle are the aspiring young moundmen.

Ferrell Is Ready

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25. (AP)—Wesley Ferrell, ace of Cleveland moundmen, freshly-arrived at the spring encampment, looks almost ready for the season's start. He reported yesterday, just two days after his arrival at the close of the last campaign.

Only five minutes of easy hurling was allowed the 16 pitchers yesterday.

BILL BILL JOINS THE FOLD

And once again big Bill Terry is a member in good standing of John McGraw's New York Giants. Terry, left, met his boss in New Orleans at McGraw's request and they proceeded to settle the "signus trouble" that annually afflicts the Giants' first baseman. Neither would reveal the terms of the contract that Terry is shown signing. The Giants' star will report for spring training at Los Angeles March 1.

DEMPSEY DRAWS BIG CROWD AS HE SPEAKS TO SOLONS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25. (AP)—Negotiations are under way to sign Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, as one of the principals of the annual derby eve fight card here May 6.

Dempsey went to Chicago today after receiving a commission as Kentucky colonel from Gov. Ruby Laffoon at Frankfort. The fighter drew more of a gate to hear his speech yesterday before the Kentucky legislature than turned out for addresses by four democratic presidential prospects who have spoken at Frankfort.

Promoters of Dempsey's fight here Tuesday, in which he whipped Frankie Wine, Butte, Mont., believe the former champion would draw a record crowd here Derby eve. His signing is understood to hinge on prospects of obtaining a suitable opponent.

Although an X-ray showed the arm was good as ever, Haines said he isn't taking any chances on a flareback from the injury he suffered toward the end of last season which kept him out of the world series. He doesn't expect to do any pitching for a week.

LONGHORNS IN FLOOR VICTORY IN OWL GAME

RICE GIVES UP THE TILT ONLY FOLLOWING HARD FIGHT

AUSTIN, Feb. 25. (AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns took a Southern conference basket ball game from the Rice Institute Owls 28 to 19 here last night.

After getting an early lead, the Longhorns were forced to battle in earnest during the second period. Once Rice tied the count at 16-16. Close guarding by Texas and some accurate goal shooting toward the end of the contest finally gave the Longhorns the advantage.

Stribling Will Seek Knockout

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. (AP)—"Pa" Stribling has instructed his fighting son, W. L., to go out after a knockout and to nothing less when he tangles with Ernie Schaaf, hard punching Bostonian, in their 10-round battle at the Chicago stadium tomorrow night.

"My boy's future depends on the result of this match and a mere decision victory will not be satisfactory to us," the father-manager of the Georgian said.

Schaaf, who will have Jack Sharkey in his corner, has exactly the same battle plan mapped out—a knockout. He expects to outweigh Stribling by 20 pounds, scaling around 208 to Strib's 188.

Brix to Lead Track And Field Man

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. (AP)—Led by Herman Brix, Los Angeles athletic club star who will attempt to regain his national record in the 16-pound shotput event, many of America's greatest track and field stars will compete in the annual service men's meet at the 124th field artillery armory tonight.

Brix has held the 16-pound shot put record five times but the mark was bettered with a toss of 52 feet, 8 3/8 inches last week by Leo Sexton in New York.

Roosevelt's Strength Will Be Tested in Primaries of March

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—Plans for a searching three-way analysis of the vote-pulling power of Franklin D. Roosevelt are nearing completion in the testing laboratories of the democratic party.

In closely-spaced primaries in March the New York governor's presidential aspirations must meet three separate challenges. On March 8, in New Hampshire, his opponent is Alfred E. Smith, on March 15, in North Dakota, the state Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray. On March 23, in Georgia, he contends with Speaker John N. Garner.

Thus, in the space of about two weeks, almost at the outset of the pre-convention campaign, Roosevelt will undergo the extraordinary ordeal of running against an easterner in the East, a westerner in the West, and a southerner in the South. Furthermore, the easterner is a former national standard bearer; the westerner is building a far-flung campaign on western issues; and the southerner is endowed with the prestige of the speakership of the House.

If this test of nation-wide popularity appears too severe, there are in each instance offsetting considerations.

In New Hampshire, Roosevelt was in the field far ahead of Smith, and has committed to him much of the local leadership of the party. He has a carefully-chosen slate of Roosevelt delegates, without contests among themselves, whereas Smith's delegates overlap and are running in some cases against each other.

In North Dakota, too, Roosevelt has the endorsement of the party managers, and Murray is dependent largely on the fruits of a catch-as-catch-can campaign.

Indians Expecting To Turn Native

EAAGLE PASS, Feb. 25. (AP)—The pressure of modern living has led a large number of Oklahoma Indians to seek relief in sparsely-settled areas of Coahuila, Mexico.

Chief H. F. Brown, Jr., of the Creek and Cherokee tribes, and Chief Ben Chandler of the Cherokees, passed through here yesterday enroute from Sapulpa, Okla., to investigate feasibility of settling some 3,000 Indians in Coahuila.

Chief Brown explained that while oil made many of his countrymen rich, it had not always brought happiness and there were many who wished to return to the mode of living of their forefathers.

The Indians were promised support by Mexican officials at Piedras Negras, across the border from Eagle Pass. They also were feted at a banquet.

Japan in Denial of Stimson Plea

TOKYO, Feb. 25. (AP)—A high foreign office official, after reading press dispatches quoting excerpts from Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's letter to Senator Borah on the Sino-Japanese situation, today questioned the validity of Secretary Stimson's assumption that America's naval concessions in the Washington treaty were predicated on guarantees embodied in the nine-power act.

The terms of the naval agreement, he said, actually were completed at the Washington conference before the powers began a real consideration of Chinese problems and Japan had agreed to the naval terms, leaving many problems of the utmost importance to her for settlement to later stages of the conference.

Japan, he asserted, accepted 60 per cent battleship ratio early in the conference, thereby leaving the Japanese delegation open to a charge of having laid all their trump cards down early in the game. Had Japan wished to bargain naval terms against matters embodied in the nine-power treaty, he said, she certainly would have delayed agreement indefinitely.

BILL MURRAY, FIGHTING MAD, WILL "TELL GEORGIA THINGS"

GARY, Ind., Feb. 25. (AP)—William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, says he is "fighting mad" so he is going "to take a run down to Georgia to tell the people there about the skull-duggery used to keep me out of the preferential primary in that state."

The Oklahoma governor, an aspirant for the democratic presidential nomination, speaks at Fort Wayne and Indianapolis today, completing his Indiana tour. He talked here last night. Before leaving for Fort Wayne, he received word he could not mandamus Georgia officials to put his name on the ballot. Previously he had been informed his entry was received too late for filing.

"It was there in plenty of time," the Oklahoman said. "That is, it was there unless the mail system has broken down, like lots of other things. They knew I'd beat Roosevelt in that state just like I'll beat him in North Dakota. That's why they don't want me in that primary."

"All right I'll fix 'em. I'm going down there just as soon as I fill my North Dakota speaking dates. I'll tell my friends there about the skull-duggery and get them to scratch Roosevelt's name off as a protest if they can't write mine in."

Murray said he would go to Georgia early in March.

The governor reiterated his statement that he would refuse to accept a vice-presidential nomination. "I don't want it," he said. "Do you think I would want to be in that office if the lid blows off? I don't want to be shot. But the presidency is different. If I get that job I can keep the lid on."

"Pampa's Busiest Store"

WATERING OF ROSE PLANTS IS DISCUSSED

By V. S. HILLOCK

Written for the Associated Press
The Southland produces a very fine fertilizer for roses, manure from a feed lot where stock has been fed cottonseed meal. This manure should never be used until it is two years old and it is better if it is three years old when applied.

After cold weather arrives, if any, the manure should be spread over the bed. The plants gain nothing from actual contact with the manure and some damage may arise. Winter rains carry such sustenance as has remained in the manure down into the soil. Spring cultivation mixes the manure with the soil itself. The manure should be applied each year. A depth of one inch is sufficient for most soils.

The amateur rosearian who can fill his rose beds with virgin soil before planting is fortunate. Virgin soil will not pack until the supply of humus that nature has stored within it has been exhausted with the passing years. The application of manures to used soil is mainly for the purpose of replenishing the exhausted stores of humus, without which the plant can not flourish.

Concentrated commercial fertilizers are usually beneficial if used sparingly. Very sparingly. But they can not re-supply the soil with humus. This must be done with vegetable matter in bulk. The application of thoroughly rotted manures to rose beds should never be left undone because commercial fertilizers have been used.

Ashes from soft coal have no place in a rose bed. Wood ashes are beneficial if used in reasonable amounts. They supply potash.

Compost piles supply valuable humus. Grass clippings, table scraps, chips, pieces of bone, etc., should go into the pile. Leaves from trees should not go in unless they are given two years to decompose. Tin cans should go in. They supply iron and also give acids in the pile an opportunity to expend themselves upon them.

Rose foliage is stronger and healthier when watering is not started in the spring so long as natural rainfall is sufficient for reasonable growth. Cultivation is a powerful influence for good.

Watering should start when rainfall becomes deficient. The rain that failed to arrive should be supplied through a hose. The ground be thoroughly soaked to root depth or below. As soon as the soil becomes tillable after watering, the surface of the soil should be mulched. Likewise after every rain during the growing year.

If excess evaporation is thus prevented through cultivation, one real watering should be sufficient for a week or ten days, depending on the season. When the first buds of each successive burst begin to show color, the soil should be plentifully supplied with moisture. Rapid growth is then the order of the day.

When roses are watered in the evening, care should be taken lest the foliage be wet. Wet foliage in the night time is a fertile field for spores of mildew and blackspot. Morning watering, if possible, is to be preferred.

Daylight watering should always be accomplished through flooding. In such manner roses may be watered at any time during the morning before the soil becomes heated. Until near mid-summer, roses can usually be so watered without damage until almost noon.

Unorthodox? To be sure. Yet there is no law against rain in the daytime. So many long-held misconceptions have no basis other than tension on the diaphragm.

The honorable diaphragm, so frequently used as guide, counselor and instructor in rose culture, is altogether untrustworthy.

SOVIET TROOPS MOVING

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 25. LOCAL PACKERS PAY $55,000 TO GRAY COUNTY FARMERS LAST YEAR; EMPLOYES EXPERIENCED

More than $55,000.00 was paid to Gray county farmers during the past year for cattle, hogs, chickens and feed by the Pampa Packing company, Inc., according to officials of the company.

The company was formerly the T. C. Ward Packing company, but was purchased last year by Stockstill Bros. and E. E. Reynolds and incorporated under the new name.

The total amount paid for cattle was $26,346.67, hogs $22,526.80, poultry, eggs, etc., $5,160.02 and $1,646.70 for feed.

Emery Stockstill is manager of the plant. Modern fixtures and equipment for every department makes it one of the finest and most sanitary in this section of the country.

E. F. Madorin is foreman of the sausage kitchens, where all kinds of fancy sausage are made. Mr. Madorin has had forty-five years experience in the business and has been in charge of sausage kitchens for the largest packers in the East and North.

Roy Hunter is in charge of the slaughter house. Morris Madorin takes care of the wholesale division, Howard Zello cures the bacon and meats, A. J. Herring is salesman in surrounding towns, Cliff Gough is in charge of the poultry department and Pete Zello is cattle buyer. E. J. Pafford is bookkeeper for the company.

From 80 to 100 cattle and 175 to 250 hogs are killed and sold in this territory each month. Only healthy stock from Gray county ranches are bought and sold by the firm.

"Big Chief" bacon and "Mesquite smoked products" are retailed by markets and stores throughout this territory. The firm has found that the smoke from mesquite gives their products an added flavor that no other wood will produce.

MISS ARNOLD VISITS EPISCOPAL GROUP WEDNESDAY

Grade for the Fort Worth and Denver railway from Childress to Pampa should be completed through Gray county by March 15. H. H. Durston, general executive, said yesterday during a brief visit to Pampa. He was accompanied by A. P. Briggs, chief engineer. The men left this morning for Childress over the right-of-way.

The bridge across the north fork of the Red river about 21 miles east of LeFors will have to be built following the completion of the grade. Grade has been completed from Pampa east of LeFors, where the steam shovels and teams are making fast progress. Teams are also at work east of the river and they are expected to finish to the river first. Grade is being thrown up inside the city limits. Houses are being moved or torn down to make way for the road.

"I like a Fair Fighter"

THAT'S one of the things I like most about Chesterfields... the attitude of the people who make them. They positively lean over backwards to be fair and square.

"I've been watching their advertisements for years. And do you know the thing that struck me most forcibly? They're so reasonable! Just a plain straightforward statement of facts. No wild claims... Nothing that's hard to believe!

"I wouldn't want to be a competitor of Chesterfield! They make too good a cigarette! I really believe they're the mildest I ever tasted.

"I can smoke Chesterfields any hour of the day or night... They're so mild, I don't even bother to keep track of how many I've smoked. They must be purer, too... they certainly taste better to me!"
