DEPRESSION CAN'T CURE ITSELF

The American people are being given the chance this summer to make one of the most colossal mistakes imaginable.

Business is reviving more rapidly than we had thought possible. Factory chimneys are smoking again, trains are moving, men are going back to work; and the very speed with which all of this is happening carries with it a danger which is very real even if it is not obvious.

Our chance to make a mistake lies simply in this: Because things are picking up so rapidly, we may conclude that the alterations which have been outlined for our inherited economic framework are unnecessary.

We may, in other words, delude ourselves into thinking that the "normal processes" of business recovery will put people back to work, restore buying power and bring back prosperity unaided.

According to the classical theories of economics, that is precisely what ought to happen. But already it is becoming evident that unless our industrial machine is held under strict and intelligent control, we shall merely be gathering momentum for a new plunge into the ditch. And one more plunge would just about finish the machine, and its riders as well.

The successful working of our traditional system depends entirely on the impetus supplied by the profit motive. In the last few weeks the profit motive has impelled industry to adopt certain tactics which must inevitably betray any recovery which is made.

Retail prices are rising faster than wages. Production is outstripping employment. Manufacturers are hurrying to pile up surplus stores of goods before higher wages go into effect. The diehards are preparing to fight or organized labor. The business pickup has caused certain industries to grow cold on the industrial control plan.

Now these developments do not indict the individuals responsible; they indict the traditional economic system under which these individuals have to operate. They reveal in it flaws which must be fatal unless they are corrected.

If we let ourselves be persuaded that the depression is going to end automatically, so that these correctives are not needed, we shall have nothing but trouble. We need to remember every minute that the dawning recovery cannot be permanent or healthy unless a very real restraint is put upon the scramble for profits.

"I wrote it because I need the cash," says Senator Huey Long, referring to his new autobiography. Apparently, here is a man who wants very little credit for what he has done in life.

BARROW BROTHERS PARDONED BY STERLING AND 'MA' FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—A plea made by Buck Barrow's wife, about to become a mother, who hitchhiked to Austin to see the woman governor—Miriam A. Ferguson—helped win clemency for the man who since has left a trail of crime across several states. Mrs. Barrow hitchhiked to Austin, leaving three children at home. Gov. Ferguson's immediate predecessor, former Gov. R. S. Sterling, released Buck's brother, Clyde, from the Texas penitentiary on a general parole. Before Mrs. Ferguson, when she acted on Buck Barrow's application for clemency, were letters from a number of prison officials recommending that he be pardoned, in which the now desperado was described as "a model prisoner." Prison officials urging the governor to give Buck Barrow his freedom were V. G. Isevek, director of the penitentiary laboratory; E. W. Anderson, medical supervisor of the prison system, and by his successor, W. B. Veazy; C. E. Garrett, Methodist prison chaplain; W. W. Wald, warden, and R. H. Baughn, assistant warden. W. W. Heath, secretary of state, and Henry Owsley, of the state department reviewed the application of Buck Barrow for clemency and recommended the pardon to the governor. Buck Barrow was sentenced from Denton county to 4 years imprisonment for burglary and felony theft. He escaped March 8, 1930, but voluntarily returned on December 27, 1931. He received his pardon on March 20, 1933. Clyde Barrow, sentenced to 14 years imprisonment for burglary and theft, had served two years and four months of his term when given a general parole by Governor Sterling on January 27, 1932. On November 17, 1932, Governor Sterling revoked the parole, but Barrow never could be apprehended. The parole was revoked by Governor Sterling after he received a letter from J. W. Freeland, sheriff of Hill county, advising that Barrow was wanted in Hill county for murder, in Oklahoma for murder, in Dallas county for highway robbery, in Grayson county for robbery with firearms, in New Mexico for kidnapping and in Wharton, Texas, for assault to murder. Governor Ferguson was powerless to act with reference to Buck Barrow since an unconditional pardon cannot be revoked. NEW SHE KNOWS BETTER DALLAS, Tex. Sheppard Speaks Against Repeal In Texas Village

HUGHES SPRINGS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Senator Morris Sheppard, father of the eighteenth amendment, opened the first of a series of addresses against repeal of the amendment here today at 10 a. m. After luncheon with a group of Hughes Springs residents, the senator left for Longview where he will speak tonight at 8 o'clock. The opening talk of his state-wide campaign dealt largely with his reasons for believing the eighteenth amendment should be retained in the constitution. He spoke in Spring park and was introduced by Mayor C. E. Goolsby. Delegations from Arkansas and Louisiana as well as from neighboring counties were present. NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Aubrey Barbour, an attorney, told Judge A. M. Caldwell "unofficially" but probably won't believe me but nevertheless this excuse for tardiness is an honest one." He said he was driving his automobile to court when a tire blew out. He hailed a cab but a tire blew out on it, too. So he called another cab and just as he put a foot on the running board, a tire went flat. So he walked. And he tripped and lost the rubber heel of a shoe on the way.

BILL TO LIMIT AD VALOREM TAX RATE TO 67 CENTS VETOED; RATE THIS YEAR TO BE THE MAXIMUM

AUSTIN, Aug. 2 (AP)—It was said to have been a blow for Rep. George Moffett of Chillicothe when he learned Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had applied the red pencil to a bill to limit the state ad valorem tax rate to 67 cents for 1933 valuation, 12 cents below the constitutional maximum.

Moffett had worked strenuously to get the bill passed and said he felt reasonably assured it would be signed. The previous legislature had limited the tax rate to 69 cents and Moffett had tried to further reduce this to 57 cents, agreeing to the 67-cent rate only when it became clear his proposal of the lower rate could not be made law.

As a result of Governor Ferguson's action the state automatic tax board was left with little discretion in the matter of fixing the ad valorem tax rate. The tax board is directed by statute to fix the ad valorem rate at a figure that will be considered, together with revenues from other sources, keep the state on a cash basis.

The state is several million dollars in the red in its three main funds and it is apparent that a rate of even 77 cents, all other revenues considered, will not be sufficient to balance income and expenses for some time to come.

In vetoing the bill, Governor Ferguson said the legislature should have provided additional revenues to offset the loss from the ad valorem tax if it wanted to make a tax reducing gesture. Her veto message was one of the few vigorous criticisms leveled at the legislature by the chief executive.

The action left nothing for the board to do but set the general fund and school tax at 35 cents and the confederate pension tax at seven cents. As the governor pointedly stated, even this rate will make little impression on the steadily mounting deficit.

This year's assessments were further reduced because of the home-stead exemption amendment which relieves homesteads to the value of $3,000 from all state taxation. This exemption was extended to all counties except those in which state taxes previously had been remitted to allow them to make improvements resulting from a calamity.

Famous Editor, 'Boss' Lord Of Sun, Succumbs

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP)—Chester S. Lord, former managing editor of the New York Sun and chancellor of the board of regents of the state of New York, died early today at his home, 105 Fifth street.

He was 83 years old. Lord was on the staff of the Sun 42 years, from 1872 to 1913, and was managing editor of the paper from 1880.

"Boss" Lord, as he was known to two generations of New York newspapermen, was one of the figures of metropolitan journalism who was responsible for shaping modern newspaper methods.

Born in Romulus, N. Y., the son of a minister, Lord first thought of following his father's profession, but after a year of study in that direction turned to newspaper work after editing a series of articles to the Utica, N. Y., Herald.

Having definitely given up preaching for writing, Lord went on the Cawego (N. Y.) Advertiser in 1871 as an associate editor.

He stayed a year and then made the plunge into New York newspaper work by starting with the Sun at $10 a week.

After five years in the city room of the Sun, he bought an interest in the Syracuse (N. Y.) Standard, but when minority stockholders called his notes six weeks later after disagreeing with his editorial policy, he went back to the Sun. Three years later, in 1880, he became its managing editor.

He retired from the Sun in 1913.

PAMPANS TAKE LEAD IN FOURTH AND HOLD IT

The Pampa All Stars took on some fast competition yesterday in the Swift & Company team from Oklahoma City and gave a good account of themselves by handing the visitors a 7 to 3 defeat.

The All Stars gave a good account of themselves in the field also. They were guilty of two errors, but neither figured in the scoring. Clemmons momentarily fumbled a grounder by E. Thomas in the third and Lefty Thomas collided with Austin in trying to catch Bowers high fly in the fifth.

The All Stars took a one run lead in the fourth without the aid of a base hit and never needed another after that. Caddy was safe on Ragan's error and went to second on Austin's sacrifice. Stokes struck out for the second out, Thomas was safe when Anderson fumbled his binky grounder and went to second and Caddy scored when Pendexter threw to the coach at first instead of Holt. Coburn ended the frame with a strike out.

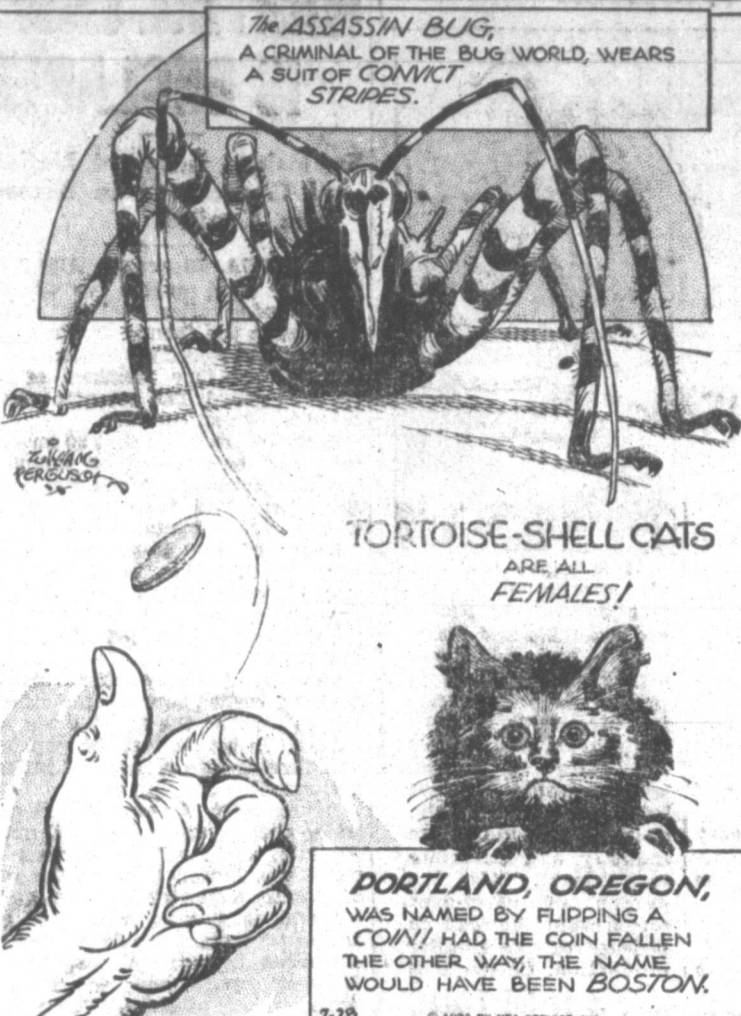

The All Stars added two more runs to their lead in the sixth. Cady was safe on Walker's fumble. At this point the visitors decided to shake up their lineup and made several shifts. Walker went to left, Ragan to second, and E. Thomas to short. Austin singled to right, sending Cady to second. Stokes struck out, but Thomas came through with a clean hit which never hesitated Caddy but Austin was out trying to make third on the hit, Walker to Payne. Thomas going to second on the play. Coburn doubled to left.

'DREAM GAME' WAS TRIUMPH FOR BABE RUTH—NOT LEAGUE

Big Test Raises Question Whether Players Are As Good As In Waddell Age.

The test, long awaited by baseball fans, to determine whether the American or National league was the stronger, individually and collectively, has been made.

The game was a spectacle comparable to the world's series, but the keen edge that would have been given to such a contest three decades ago had been dulled by the years.

A game between composite teams of the two leagues 30 years ago would have stirred sharper interest but, in the judgment of one veteran fan, would not perhaps have so nearly established league superiority as the recent game.

Hildebrand Is Suspended For Temper Display

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2 (AP)—Oral Hildebrand, leading pitcher on the Cleveland Indians, was under the ban of an indefinite suspension today and ordered by Manager Walter Johnson to pay a $100 fine for a temperamental display of temper in St. Louis Monday.

The fine was ordered when Hildebrand hurled the resin bag to the ground in disgust at being removed from the box after he walked three men and allowed one hit in the wild seventh inning 8-run rally that enabled the Browns to win 12 to 8.

I hope this fine will make him see he has to subordinate his feelings to the good of the team, Johnson said.
