For CASA, an increase is bad news

BY MARILYN POWERS
STAFF WRITER

Pampa's court-appointed special advocates (CASA) program executive director, Janet Watts, is chagrined that demand for her agency's services is on the increase.

"Thank goodness we're here to serve these kids. Unfortunately, it's so sad that we're needed to serve these kids," Watt said. "Our goal is to not be needed. What's best for kids is to grow up in their own homes, safe and protected."

CASA is a group of trained volunteers who act as advocates for children in child abuse and neglect cases in which the child is removed from their home. They review all material in a Child Protective Services case file on the child, monitor the family's compliance with a CPS service plan, visit with anyone who can give them information about the child, visit with the child if the child is old enough to respond, and prepare reports for each court hearing involving the child.

They are also required to see the child monthly if the child lives within a 150-mile radius. Their court reports include recommendations on what they feel is in the best interest of the child.

The CASA program in Pampa began 10 years ago. Eight volunteers served 14 children from five counties in the first year. The original five counties were Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts and Wheeler, Ochiltree and Hansford counties were added later to Pampa's CASA territory.

The caseload has grown for the agency, which last year served 121 children of the 128 in CASA's seven counties who were the legal responsibility of CPS. Gray County represented the largest percentage of that total, with 113. The next highest client count in the seven counties is Wheeler County.

"We didn't serve all 128 last year because some had been in care for a long time," Watt said. CPS has created a permanency plan for those children which will likely not be changed until the children reach legal adulthood.

It has been a challenge to have enough volunteers to cover the caseload. CASA currently has 39 volunteers, including seven who completed training in February. All seven were immediately assigned cases, Watts said.

"Right now we have four new cases, all babies, that we don't have volunteers for. Our biggest increase is in newborns. Most of the babies have been removed from the hospital where they were born, due to the mom or baby testing positive for drugs. Of our kids, 63.5 percent are age six or younger," Watts said.

The agency tries to limit each volunteer's caseload to one case, but some have two cases, especially if one of the two is a case that is about to be dismissed or transferred into permanent managing conservatorship, in which the child will remain the legal responsibility of CPS until adulthood.

"Our volunteers can devote a lot more of their time and attention to each family, where a CPS worker may have 40 families to deal with. The way we are unique is our focus only on the

Tulia busts may prompt congressional hearings

AMARILLO (AP) — A member of the House Judiciary Committee is calling for hearings on funding for drug task forces such as the one in Tulia that led to the arrests of more than 40 people — most of them black — in the now-discredited busts.

U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Michigan, is calling for the hearings before the committee, where oversight of federally funded programs will be a key topic.

"We want to get a better idea from people who are directly involved with what went on in Tulia, and how that occurred through a program that was run with federal funding," said Keenan Keller, counsel to Conyers, the ranking Democrat on the committee.

Forty-six people, 39 of them black, were arrested in the small, mostly white Panhandle town of Tulia in 1999 following one undercover agent's 18-month operation. In August, Gov. Rick Perry pardoned most of those prosecuted.

The American Civil Liberties Union and the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, both of which have been active in the fight against Texas' drug task forces, brought the issue to Conyers' attention, Keller said. Keller hopes hearings will begin in the next few months.

Vanita Gupta, an attorney with the defense fund who represented many of the Tulia defendants, said the federal Byrne grants that fund such task forces lack oversight and accountability.

Spring forward!

Set clocks ahead one hour Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — It'll be a sleepy Sunday morning for millions of Americans, who will lose an hour's sleep this weekend with the return of daylight-saving time.

Officially, clocks for most of the country change at 2 a.m. Sunday. People who fail to spring forward will be an hour late for church, work or other activities.

Daylight-saving time brings an extra hour of evening sunshine until Oct. 31, when standard time returns.

Safety advocates say it's also a good time to replace batteries in smoke detectors.

Some parts of the nation don't observe daylight-saving time. They include Arizona, Hawaii, the part of Indiana in the Eastern time zone, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands and American Samoa.

Muslim cleric condemns mutilations, but doesn't criticize killing Americans

FALLUJAH, Iraq (AP) — At weekly prayers on Friday, a cleric condemned the mutilation of four slain American contractors in this conservative city, but did not criticize the killings. The U.S. military announced the combat deaths of a soldier and a Marine.

In the capital, a roadside bomb killed an American soldier and wounded another early Friday in the city's Mansour district. A U.S. Marine also died as a result of hostile action west of the capital a day earlier, the military said. The Marine was killed in Anbar province, of which Fallujah is the most populous city.

Near the northern city of Kirkuk, three people were killed after a bomb they were planting exploded prematurely on Friday, police said.

The three were planting the bomb at the entrance to a town hall in Riyadh, 16 miles west of Kirkuk, police Col. Iyad al-Jabouri said. Earlier, police had said a suicide bomber detonated explosives at the town hall entrance, killing himself and two other people.

A police official in Kirkuk also said earlier that U.S. soldiers had been in the town hall, but al-Jabouri said no soldiers were in the building.

In Fallujah, Sheik Fawzi Nameq addressed 600 worshippers gathered at the Hmood al-Mahmood Mosque, which is opposite the mayor's office and a few blocks from the scene of the deadly ambush Wednesday.

"Islam does not condone the mutilation of the bodies of the dead," the cleric said. "Why do you want to bring destruction to our city? Why do you want to bring humiliation to the faithful? My brothers, wisdom is required here," said Nameq, who refrained from making a judgment on the killings. Clerics in Fallujah strongly oppose the U.S.-led occupation and often use sermons to criticize American authority.

The charred remains of the four Americans were dragged through the streets for hours after insurgents ambushed their vehicles at the heart of Fallujah. Two of the corpses were hung from a bridge as people beat them with shoes and a pole. Iraqi police eventually collected their remains at the request of American troops.

Senior Fallujah cleric Sheik Khalid Ahmed had said that Muslim preachers in mosques across the city would tell their followers in Friday sermons that the mutilation of the bodies was wrong.

child. "Our volunteers are an extra set of eyes and ears for the judge," Watts said.

Court reports prepared by the volunteers include outlines of their contacts and information learned concerning the child, plus their recommendations on what they feel is in the best interest of that child.

Legal cases involving CPS and CASA volunteers, except for those in Hansford and Ochiltree counties, are heard by Judge Phil Vanderpool of the Northern Panhandle Child Protection Court.

"A CASA report is considered very closely by the judge," Watts said.

"There are only two times we've been the only ones opposed to a child going home, and both of those times, the kids were sent home and wound up back in substitute care," she said.

In addition to the volunteers, there are three salaried staff members. Funding for the agency comes from the United-Way and state grants.

The need for more volunteers has prompted the agency to plan another training schedule. Those interested in becoming CASA volunteers may attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, April 5 at Cornerstone Baptist Church, 1301 N. Banks. They must complete required training, which includes the initial meeting such as the one scheduled for Monday.

Potential volunteers also must fill out an application, provide three references, agree to a criminal history check and CPS background check, and answer questions in a personal interview. Training sessions are usually held two nights a week for two weeks, plus one Saturday in between.

Volunteers average eight to 10 hours per month on each case, "and that's usually at the beginning of a case to learn the case," Watts said.

For more information, call 669-7638. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer may attend Monday's meeting.

"We think it's time to take a systemic look at how the Byrne grant funding is being used," Gupta told the Amarillo Globe-News in Thursday's editions. "I think once people really come to understand what happened in Tulia and what's going on in other parts of the country, people are going to want to have systemic reform for this program."

Byrne grants were established by the 1988 Anti-Drug Abuse Act to help fund state anti-drug efforts. The grants were named for slain New York City police officer Edward Byrne. According to the U.S. Department of Justice, which supervises the program, Byrne grants for fiscal year 2003 totaled about $500 million.

Texas' share of that money was around $31 million, some of which went to the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force. Tom Coleman, the undercover agent in the Tulia busts, was assigned to this task force.

Coleman, who is white, is no longer in law enforcement and next month is set to stand trial on perjury charges related to testimony he gave in 2003 hearings related to the busts.

Last month, the city of Amarillo agreed to pay $5 million and disband the task force to settle a civil rights lawsuit filed by two of those arrested.

Police storm disputed Jerusalem holy site, tense standoff with thousands of worshippers ensues

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hundreds of Israeli police in riot gear stormed a disputed holy site Friday, firing tear gas, stun grenades and plastic bullets to disperse Muslim worshippers throwing stones and shoes at them.

After the initial clashes, thousands of Palestinians barricaded themselves in two mosques in the walled compound for about two hours, before police agreed to let them leave without threat of arrest.

More than 20 Palestinians were hurt and at least nine arrested in the most violent confrontations at the Al Aqsa Mosque compound, known to Jews as the Temple Mount, since the outbreak of Israeli-Palestinian fighting in September 2000.

Hours earlier, Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said in published interviews that Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Lebanese guerrilla chief Hassan Nasrallah could become targets for assassination. Sharon's threats were the most explicit yet against his arch foes.

Sharon said he would withdraw from all of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank settlements of Ganim, Kadim, Homesh and Sanur, for the first time revealing the scope of his unilateral "disengagement" plan. His spokesman confirmed the remarks. Sharon said the withdrawal would be under way within a year.

Commenting on the bribe-taking suspicions against him, Sharon said: "My hands are clean." Israel's chief prosecutor has recommended he be indicted, but the final decision is up to the attorney general who is expected to rule by the end of May.

The confrontations at the Jerusalem holy site revered by both Muslims and Jews erupted after Muslim noon prayers.

Initially, several Palestinian youngsters threw stones at police deployed nearby. In response, hundreds of officers with helmets and plastic shields burst into the walled compound, shooting tear gas, stun grenades and plastic bullets, witnesses said.

The crowd of stone throwers grew to several hundred, and worshippers also threw shoes at the baton-wielding officers. More than 20 Palestinians were injured, Muslim clerics said, and police said they arrested nine Palestinians. An Associated Press Television News cameraman was injured in the ear when a stun grenade went off nearby, and he required stitches.

After the initial clashes, thousands of Palestinians barricaded themselves in two mosques in the compound. The Islamic Trust, which administers the Al Aqsa Mosque compound, negotiated with police to allow worshippers to leave. After about two hours, the standoff ended peacefully.

Sharon's interviews with the Maariv, Yediot Ahronot and Haaretz dailies, given ahead of next week's Passover holiday, were seen as the opening of his campaign for the withdrawal plan.

Maariv quoted him as saying Israel would withdraw from all of Gaza, only retaining control over a patrol road between southern Gaza and the Egyptian border, to prevent weapons smuggling. "He said very clearly we are not going to stay in Gaza," Sharon's spokesman Raanan Gissin said Friday.

Sharon initially considered retaining three settlements in northern Gaza. There had also been debate over how many West Bank settlements to evacuate, and it appears Sharon settled for the smallest proposed number of four.

"We need to get out of Gaza, not to be responsible any more for what happens there," Sharon told Maariv. "I hope that by next Passover we will be in the midst of disengagement, because disengagement is good for Israel."

The prime minister told Yediot that after the withdrawal Israel would consider cutting off water and electricity to Gaza if attacks against Israelis continue.

Asked by Haaretz whether Arafat and Nasrallah are targets for assassination, Sharon said: "I wouldn't suggest that either of them feel immune ... Anyone who kills a Jew or harms an Israeli citizen, or sends people to kill Jews, is a marked man. Period."

Sharon told Maariv that Arafat "has no insurance policy." Sharon added that "today, everyone knows Arafat is the obstacle (blocking) any progress."

Woman, four children found beaten to death in Detroit house; suspect in custody

DETROIT (AP) — A 13-year-old girl escaped from the house where a woman and four children were tied up and beaten to death, and led authorities to a suspect in the slayings.

A 33-year-old woman, a 16-year-old boy and three girls, ages 9 to 14, were found dead Thursday in this city, which already had been shaken by a surge of killings this year.

Officers arrested a man seen running through a vacant lot across the street from the house. Investigators were interviewing him Thursday evening but he had not been charged, Sgt. Eren Stephens said.

Police gave no motive for the slayings and released no other information on the victims or the suspect, but relatives said he was the father of one of the victims.

Deputy Chief Cara Best said police found the weapon they believe was used, but she would not say what it was.

Family members and friends of the five killed trickled to the gray bungalow throughout the morning and early afternoon, weeping as they learned of their loved ones' deaths. Paramedics were summoned to treat at least two women who collapsed.

One young man ran across the field yelling, "Where's my sister? Where's my sister?" After talking briefly to a group of people near the police tape around the scene, he threw himself on the wet grass and sobbed.

Officers draped a white sheet across the porch of the house and loaded the bodies from the house to a van.

William Parker Sr., who showed up at the scene, said three of the children killed were his: William, Wancee and Wendell Parker. He said the other child was the suspect's daughter.

Police said they did not know when the killings occurred.

Tyann Shelton said the 33-year-old victim was her sister, Lisa Shelton, and that the 13-year-old survivor was Christina Knott, also their sister. She said police told her the victims were beaten with a pole.

"We have no money to bury them," Shelton said.

The girl who survived told the Detroit Free Press she was shut in a closet, where she listened to the cries of her sister and nieces and nephews.

After nearly two days trapped in the house, she said she kicked open the closet door, which had been blocked with a chair, and escaped.

West Texas A&M altering course-numbering system

CANYON — Each new academic year brings a significant number of changes, but next fall students at West Texas A&M University will see a change in the numbers.

Beginning with the fall 2004 semester, West Texas A&M University will change its course-numbering system to comply with the Texas Common Course Numbering System to help facilitate transfer of freshman- and sophomore-level academic work.

TCCNS is a voluntary, co-operative effort among Texas community colleges and universities to provide a shared, uniform set of course designations for students and their advisers for determining course equivalency and degree applicability of transfer credit on a statewide basis.

"The four-digit designations also provide more information about each course," Anita Loshbough, WTAMU registrar, said. "The new system will simplify the number of hours a course has by the second digit. But the main reason for going with four-digit course numbers is because it's a transfer-friendly system that benefits the University and transfer students at the community college level."

WTAMU students also will notice some changes in the "rubrics" or prefixes that accompany the new four-digit course numbers. For example, courses in English have long been identified by the rubric ENG. Next fall, that will become ENGL, which also complies with TCCNS. A few other rubrics will change at WTAMU as well.

For more information about registering for classes at West Texas A&M University — including Summer Session I, for which registration is June 1 — contact the Office of the Registrar at (806) 651-4911.

New allies join NATO talks

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Soldiers from seven Eastern European countries raised their national flags outside NATO headquarters Friday in a ceremony marking the biggest expansion of the alliance in its 55-year history.

Foreign ministers from Romania, Bulgaria, Slovakia, Lithuania, Slovenia, Latvia and Estonia joined their colleagues from the other 19 allies as a NATO honor guard played the newcomers' national anthems.

"From now on, 26 allies will be joined in a commitment to defend each other's security and territorial integrity," said NATO Secretary General Jaap de Hoop Scheffer. "This is the strongest, most solemn commitment nations can undertake."

NATO's expansion will be followed in a month by the European Union's absorption of 10 new members — twin moves seen as representing an end to decades of Cold War division in Europe.

"This morning a dream has been fulfilled ... This is truly a moment to be enjoyed like no other," said Foreign Minister Rihards Piks of Latvia. "Now Latvia stands shoulder to shoulder with 25 other nations ... sharing values and ideas that unite us."

The seven new NATO members have been under the alliance's collective defense umbrella since they formally joined on Monday in a ceremony in Washington.

'Radio' offers lesson in priority-setting

By the time that this article runs in the paper I'm sure that most of you will have seen the movie "Radio". But just in case you haven't go rent it ASAP. I promise that it will bless your life.

Near the end of that movie there is a scene which takes place in a local barbershop. Now I won't tell you too much so as to spoil watching the movie, but I will mention just this one thing. In that meeting the main character, Coach Harold Jones, says something like this: "When I was a young man I had a football coach who said, 'Boys, its important to have the right priorities. Once you know what is really important, push everything else to the side and go after it.'"

In the movie the coach has to make an unbelievably difficult decision between two things - one is the love of his life and the other is "what is right." How could he possibly give up the dearest thing in his heart for "what is right?" Well, watch the movie and you'll see what happens.

Minister's Musings

HI-LAND CHRISTIAN CHURCH

But this does bring up the subject of priorities and how we deal with things that are "the most important." Here are a few scriptures from Proverbs that give God's opinion of what our priorities are supposed to be.

As you read them, ask yourself if these are really your priorities? If they aren't, it isn't God who boo-booed.

— 4:7-8: Wisdom is supreme; therefore get wisdom. Though it cost all you have, get understanding. Esteem her, and she will exalt you; embrace her, and she will honor you.

— 12:15: The way of a fool seems right to him, but a wise man listens to advice.

— 16:8: Better a little with righteousness than much gain with injustice.

— 19:1: Better a poor man whose walk is blameless than a fool whose lips are perverse.

— 21:3: To do what is right and just is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice.

— 22:1: A good name is more desirable than great riches; to be esteemed is better than silver or gold.

Is God really #1 in your life? If He is, then these verses describe many of your priorities. If these aren't some of your top priorities, then He isn't #1 in your life.

Isn't it funny how with our words we say what our priorities are, but with our actions we prove what they really are. Would your family faint if they heard you say that they were one of your top priorities? Does God almost faint when He hears you say that He is? Our actions always reveal what our priorities really are.

May we all examine our lives and see if He really is #1. And may we follow in Coach Harold Jones' shoes: When we find the right thing to do, may we always be willing to pay whatever price is necessary to do it. God bless.

RELIGION NEWS IN BRIEF

Pope recalls genocide
ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II called for greater international efforts to bring peace to Africa's Great Lakes region as he marked the 10th anniversary of the genocide in Rwanda.

During his weekly appearance last Sunday in St. Peter's Square, the pope recalled that fighting broke out April 7, 1994, between Hutus and Tutsis, in which "barbarically hundreds of thousands of people were killed."

"We pray to the Lord that such a tragedy never repeats itself," he said.

"To you dear people, to you religious and civil leaders, and to all of you in the international community generously committed to bringing peace in the beloved Great Lakes region, I say: Don't get discouraged! Be builders of a civilization of love, filled with the word of the Lord," he said.

More than 500,000 people were killed during Rwanda's 100-day genocide, most of them minority Tutsis and politically moderate members of the Hutu majority.

Africa's Great Lakes region includes Congo, Rwanda, Uganda, Burundi, Kenya and Tanzania. Congo and Burundi are both emerging from years of civil war; fighting continues in eastern Congo despite peace deals.

Former seminary student organizes gay-rights rally

WACO (AP) — Nearly 200 people attended a gay rights rally organized by a former Baylor University seminary student who lost his scholarship to the Baptist university because he is homosexual.

Matt Bass said he dropped out of Baylor's George W. Truett Theological Seminary in December after administrators confronted him about his sexuality and then revoked his financial aid.

Bass and other homosexual students and alumni say they have faced discrimination at the university. They say they don't expect the private school to abandon Baptist belief that gay sex is a sin, but they want an anti-discrimination policy for gay students.

"I believe I am gay and that God made me that way," Bass said last Saturday.

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

School Lunch is no Picnic After Girlfriends Break Apart

DEAR ABBY: My friends and I are in eighth grade. This is our last year together. We'll be going to different high schools in the fall.

"Allie," "Betty," "Carol," "Diane," "Emma," "Fran," "Gail," "Hannah," "Ivy" and I sit together at lunch. The table is pretty crowded, so we took a vote that two people should leave the circle. Allie and Betty had to move to another table. After lunch, Carol said she didn't think it was fair to vote friends out of the circle. I realized she was right, so I passed a note to Diane about not wanting to break up the circle and what Carol had said. I said we should all sit at the same table again. Diane said OK.

The next day, we all got together at our regular table, but Emma and Fran got into a fight. No one liked anyone anymore. The circle was officially broken. Now four of the girls sit at the original table; the rest of us sit at a picnic table. I'm the only one who's friends with everybody from the circle.

It hurts me to see my friends separated at lunch time. Will you please print this letter and let them know it was wrong to break up the circle? I want my friends to reconsider. Remember who your friends are. Think about the good times we've had and that I'm all of y'all's friend! -- BROKENHEARTED IN FLORIDA

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: Your mistake was in taking the vote in the first place. I'm printing your letter in the hope that your circle can be mended. If it can't be, console yourself by understanding that, much as we might wish it, not all friendships last forever. As people mature, they sometimes change or have less in common.

P.S. You have a wonderfully upbeat personality. If you also have an affinity for languages, you'd be a natural for the diplomatic corps.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman and live at home with my family. My boyfriend, "Stan," and I have been dating for over a year. We're deeply in love and want to be married someday.

However, I have a huge problem. I'm afraid to stay overnight anywhere other than my house. I get scared and homesick whenever I try to stay overnight somewhere else. I know this isn't normal, and I'm afraid I won't be able to marry Stan because of my fear of living away from home. Please help me. -- HOMESICK IN OHIO

DEAR HOMESICK: You may be suffering from a mild form of agoraphobia. Please consult a doctor, because your fear is not that uncommon and you can be helped through therapy and/or medication.

DEAR ABBY: My 7-year-old son was adopted when he was 3. He'd had a difficult life until then. My wife and I had read stories about older adopted children sometimes having difficulty bonding to new families, and this was a concern for us.

Last week, when he and I were riding in the car, he asked if his grandparents were going to have an Easter egg hunt for him and his brother as they had in previous years. I replied, "Yes, it's a family tradition." He then remarked, "I know what a family tradition is." I asked him to explain. He said, "It's when you do the same old thing -- only it's still fun."

To my mind, that is the best description of a family tradition I've ever heard. Hope you agree. -- MICHAEL IN MARYLAND

DEAR MICHAEL: I do. And it appears that your son feels very much a part of your loving family.

Five Harvesters named to all-district team

PAMPA — Rugged play inside by the Bowers twins, Chance and Collin, helped Pampa reach the basketball playoffs this season.

The Bowers brothers, both 6-1 seniors, were honored for their accomplishments by being named to the second-team All-District 3-4A Team by district coaches.

Senior guard Jed Martin, junior forward Brittin East and junior guard Clayton Hall represented Pampa on the honorable mention list.

The Bowers both averaged around 10 points and 7 rebounds per game in district action. They will be competing for the East team in the Golden Spread All-Star Games April 8 at 8 p.m. in the WT Event Center in Canyon. If the East wins, they will play again at 8 p.m. April 10. If they lose, they play at 4 p.m. on April 10.

Martin and Hall gave Pampa stability in the backcourt. Martin was an accurate 3-point shooter who averaged around 12 points a game. Hall was the assists leader, and averaged about 7 ppg.

East, a 6-2 muscleman off the football team, averaged 5 points and 5 rebounds.

The Harvesters finished third in the district race this season to qualify for the playoffs.

The Harvesters will be honored at the annual basketball awards banquet at 7 p.m. April 6, at

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys offensive lineman Larry Allen is reportedly a no-show two weeks into the team's off-season program.

Even though participation at the Cowboys' Valley Ranch headquarters is voluntary, Allen's absence hasn't gone unnoticed.

Team vice president Stephen Jones, at the National Football League meetings in Palm Springs, Fla., told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Friday's editions that Allen has not attended the off-season workouts.

"We don't get into who shows up and who doesn't. It stays in-house," said team spokesman Rich Dalrymple.

Allen repeatedly clashed with Cowboys coach Bill Parcells during training camp last season over his conditioning and even contemplated retirement.

And for some time, it's been known that the Cowboys might have to make decisions about high-priced veterans such as Allen.

He received a $13 million signing bonus as a part of a six-year, $37 million contract extension in 2002. His cap figure for 2004 is $5.5 million, including a $3.5 million base salary.

Pampa Green takes second at Extreme Classic

BORGER — The Pampa Green, a group of 5th and 6th grade boys, recently placed second in the annual Extreme Classic Basketball Tournament.

On Friday night, defense was the name of the game as Pampa crushed the Perryton Warriors 65-21.

On Saturday, Pampa won a close game against the Amarillo Bulls 41-35. Pampa led by as much as 12 points early in the fourth quarter, but a late run by the Bulls brought them within four points with a little more than a minute to play. But thanks to some outstanding defense near the end, Pampa held on for the six-point victory.

Pampa would not be as fortunate the next game. Playing against an aggressive Borger team, the Green team found themselves trailing 12-0 early in the first quarter. Pampa played hard, but Borger was too much and they pulled away for a 50-38 victory. That loss dropped Pampa into the loser's bracket, which led to a game against Grover.

Grover had the lead most of the way, but with under a minute to play, a 3-pointer by Pampa's Alex Clendenning tied the game. Grover in-bounded the ball, drove to half-court and called a time out hoping to set up a final shot. But the in-bounds was intercepted by Clendenning, who drove in for a layup, giving Pampa a 47-45 lead with 20 seconds to go.

Grover had one final chance to tie things, but failed to convert and Pampa walked away with the two-point victory that would set up a rematch against Borger for the championship. In the championship game, Pampa played hard and kept the score close, trailing by only three at halftime. But the rested Borger team came out aggressive in the third quarter and pulled away in the second half and won the title 47-32.

Pampa Green is coached by Ben Martinez. The team is entered in the Panhandle Tournament this weekend.

Transfers find home with Sutton at Oklahoma State

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Eddie Sutton was a fallen coach and recovering alcoholic when he arrived at Oklahoma State almost 14 years ago.

He found a program that needed rehabilitation almost as much as he did.

Sutton eventually turned the team around in Stillwater, rebuilding it and his tainted reputation by welcoming players in search of a second chance — just like the one given to him. It's a philosophy that has served him and Oklahoma State well over the years.

The Cowboys, a team with seven transfers on its roster, have advanced to the Final Four with a hodgepodge of talent most elite programs have little use for. Connecticut, Duke and Georgia Tech have a total of four transfers among them, and only two see any significant playing time.

Oklahoma State (31-3) will face Georgia Tech (27-9) on Saturday in the first semifinal. Connecticut meets Duke in the other game.

"I think he's never going to hold mistakes against people, especially someone who makes one at a young age," said Sean Sutton, his middle son and assistant coach at OSU. "He thinks that people who make mistakes shouldn't be penalized for the rest of their life, or even later in life."

"It's always about giving guys a second opportunity, a second chance."

Eddie Sutton understands the importance of starting over better than most.

He was forced out at Kentucky in 1989 after an NCAA investigation uncovered 17 violations, resulting in three years of probation and a two-year ban on NCAA tournament appearances. His final season, 1988-89, concluded with a 13-19 mark — Kentucky's first losing record in 61 years.

He battled a drinking problem during that time, too. He was treated at the Betty Ford Center and was out of coaching for a year, hoping he'd get an opportunity to coach again.

Sutton wound up at his alma mater, which had been to the NCAA tournament only once in the previous 25 seasons. Since then, the Cowboys have gone to the tournament in 12 of the past 14 years, including the 1995 Final Four.

Sutton knows his past struggles helped Oklahoma State become a haven for transfers. Those problems and the plane crash in 2001 that killed 10 members of the school's basketball family changed his outlook on life.

"I think the fact that some of us had gone through the tragedy with the airplane, my personal problem, what we had at Kentucky, I think that I was maybe able to relate to" them, Sutton said.

Dozens of transfers during the past decade have rescued their careers under Sutton — players such as Brooks Thompson from Texas A&M, Doug Gottlieb from Notre Dame and Victor Williams from Illinois State became stars at Oklahoma State.

The team's preseason media guide even dedicates a page to the 17 Division I transfers who've come through Sutton's program.

"We've had great success in getting those players," Sutton said. "If we could recruit all the high school players, like Mike (Krzyzewski at Duke) does, we wouldn't go after junior college players, we wouldn't go after transfers."

"But we don't have that luxury of being able to compete at the national level with high school players. So we have an open door. It's amazing how many transfers call us and want to come, and we turn down a lot of them."

This year's starting lineup has only one player who didn't start his college career elsewhere — fourth-year junior Ivan McFarlin.

John Lucas III wanted to escape the scandal-plagued Baylor program. Joey Graham and his twin brother, Stephen, left Central Florida hoping for a chance at a high-profile program with better fan support. Daniel Bobik transferred from BYU after spending two seasons on the bench and two years on a Mormon mission. Leading scorer Tony Allen arrived at Oklahoma State after spending time at two junior colleges.

"That medley of transfers has turned the Cowboys into the unlikely of Final Four teams — preseason media and coaches polls picked the Cowboys to finish fifth in the Big 12.

Instead, Oklahoma State relied on its experience and maturity — the average age of the starters is 22 — to clinch its first outright conference title since 1965 and first-ever Big

Crappie plentiful at McClellan

Even though the water level is still low, there's plenty of crappie in Lake McClellan, according to lake manager Terri Walker.

"It's been good fishing for all kinds of crappie, but the catfish have been slow. We still have water below the dam, but not enough to support fish," Walker said. "We are expecting more rain, and hopefully, that will build it back up."

Walker speculated that the additional crappie were coming from farm ponds since the lake hasn't been stocked by fisheries yet.

12 tournament championship.

"Everybody coming from different backgrounds and the different places that they've played, we adapt because we have so many different and versatile players on our team," Joey Graham said. "It makes it easier when it comes to a game situation."

Of course, the one who brought them together was Sutton. The best way to repay the 68-year-old Sutton for the opportunity, they say, is to win him his first national championship.

"We have so much love and respect for him and the coaching staff," Bobik said. "There's no doubt we want to win it for him. He's kind of a second father to a lot of us."

Walker said the lake is currently open for business, but customers need to use the pay station to gain entry.

"We don't have a bait license yet, so people will have to get their license somewhere else," she said.

Lake McClellan is located 25 miles south of Pampa in southern Gray County. Besides fishing, facilities are also provided for picnicking, camping, fishing and boating.

If more information is needed, call 779-2092.

All-District soccer team is announced

Three players off Pampa's championship team have been named to the All-District 3-4A boys' soccer team.

Senior forward Sammy Silva was a unanimous first-team pick for the Harvesters. Silva finished with the season with 11 goals and 1 assist.

Senior defender Jason Brown was also a first-team pick. He had 4 goals and 1 assist.

Nick Robbins was named to the second team. Robbins scored 4 goals.

Making the honorable mention list were senior goal keeper Carlos Medina (80 saves, 1 goal, 1 assist), senior mid-fielder Justin Jouett (2 goals, 1 assist); senior mid-fielder Eddie Palma (2 goals), junior defender Andrew Fraser and junior defender Adam Brown (1 assist).

Luis Garcia of Palo Duro was named player of the year. PD's Eddy Turner was named coach of the year.

Three Pampa players made the girls' all-district team. Katlin Passini was a first-team pick. Kori Dunn and Adeena Dallas were named to the second-team.

Troy Nolte of Randall was named player of the year. Richie Sanchez of Caprock was named coach of the year.

With McCarville, Minnesota's getting plenty from the post

Women's Final Four

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—

Janel McCarville has become one of the best post players in country, and Minnesota probably wouldn't be headed to the Final Four without her huge contributions in the NCAA tournament.

"The way she's playing right now, nobody can stop her," teammate Shannon Schonrock said.

The attitude adjustment McCarville made at the beginning of last season has been a major factor in her success, as well as Minnesota's.

"It took her a few months," coach Pam Borton said. "But she finally bought in to what we were trying to do with her."

Minnesota (25-8), which plays two-time defending champion Connecticut in the national semifinals Sunday night in New Orleans, was given a No. 7 seed after a late-season slump caused mostly by the absence of star guard Lindsay Whalen.

One the tournament began, the Gophers beat the top three seeds in the Mideast Region — Duke, Kansas State and Boston College. That's mainly because Whalen is back in form after a broken hand, but McCarville's performance has been just as critical.

In four games, the 6-foot-2 junior is averaging 19.8 points, 17 rebounds and 4.8 assists. In the regional semifinal victory over Boston straight.

"She brought me back down," McCarville recalled. "She's unbelievable."

Whalen said. "We always knew she had it. She would dominate in practice all the time. Now she's taken it to the national level."

McCarville, from Stevens Point, Wis., was the Big Ten's Freshman of the Year in 2001-02 under Brenda Oldfield, who's now coaching at Maryland under her maiden name, Frese.

When Borton was hired as Minnesota's next coach, she immediately began challenging McCarville — to improve her defense, to become more of a power player than just finesse and flash and to be more committed to conditioning.

The admittedly stubborn McCarville met Borton's edict with skepticism.

"Why do I need to change? Why do I need to do anything different, because I was already successful," Borton said, summarizing McCarville's reaction. "Well, you've got to take that next step as a player, and I think that's what we were trying to get her to do."

McCarville, also affected last season by a hip pointer, would often call home to complain. It was her mother, Bonnie, who helped set her found the absence of the Gophers' senior leader difficult for a few games.

It took another deep discussion with the head coach to set things straight.

"I just felt like there was a lot on me," McCarville said. "I felt like everybody needed me to step up."

She has, indeed, and Minnesota is a dangerous team now that Whalen has returned.

"If people were surprised, they haven't seen me before," McCarville said.

No, McCarville has never been short on confidence — or personality.

Her teammates call her "Sha," and on Thursday someone asked if her recent rebounding prowess should suggest a nickname more along the lines of a different NBA great — like Charles Barkley.

"I'm making a name for myself, pretty much," she said with a smile. "I want to rebound like Janel."

Plainview is early golf leader

Plainview is the early leader in the District 3-4A boys' golf tournament. The Bulldogs shot a first-round 292 yesterday at Comanche Trail to lead second-place Randall by 13 strokes.

Pampa shot a 332 to hold down sixth place in the 13-team field. Weston Teichmann led the Harvesters with a 77, followed by Taylor Fatheree (82), Braydon Barker (86), Wesley Broggin (87) and Aaron Pepper (101).

Randall's Cole Young is the individual leader with a 71. Plainview's J.J. Brumley is one stroke behind.

The second round of the district tournament will be played Tuesday at Dumas, with the final round set for April 13 at Palo Duro Creek in Canyon.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, April 3, 2004.

You have much more energy this year than in the past. You also express a certain style that draws others toward you. Your charisma and ability to communicate add to your popularity. Still, work and your daily life prevent you from socializing as you might like to. You will succeed professionally by October. Expect more money coming in. If you are single, you will be like honey to a bear, especially after October. Others clearly want you. If you are attached, together you can make this a banner year. Spend time talking and working through any issues. Remember, there are no problems, just solutions. VIRGO can get fussy.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-Soso; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You have a way with words that could make others jealous. You also will be more willing to learn other styles of communicating. Consider signing up for a workshop. Meanwhile, relax and get into a spring project or two. Tonight: Just make it relaxing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Your frisky and fun ways could force your hand financially. Yes, your checkbook will see red if you aren't careful. You are vulnerable to wanting to spend money on yourself and other "things" that might be important to you. Tonight: Romp until you are too tired.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 With Venus and Mars in your sign, others are attracted to you like a magnet. Your charisma speaks to such an extent that you could evoke jealousy among those around you. Be sensitive to a family member or roommate. Tonight: Order in.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Visualize more of what you want. Don't keep your wild ideas to yourself right now. You might decide to take off with a friend and do something unusual. Right now, secrets need to be kept secret. Enjoy the moment. Tonight: Be naughty.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Your strong desire to party and enjoy life cannot be suppressed. Stop and put yourself on a budget before you go hog-wild. You will be a lot happier in the long run. Throw a spontaneous party or encourage friends to have a fun get-together. Tonight: Relish the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Your smile and sunny way melt others' resistances, especially someone whose opinion you care a lot about. Dance the night away. Paint the town red, but whatever you do, make sure you are enjoying yourself to the max. Tonight: You wild thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Lying back doesn't mean you won't have a good time. In fact, you'll have a veritable party with whomever you vanish with. Get out of your routine and go somewhere new. Explore a quaint town or new spot you haven't been to. Tonight: You don't need to be accountable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Friends push to have you come along. You might feel restricted by finances, but expect a fast change. Set your limits, and you'll find out just how easy it is to have a good time on a low budget. Tonight: Opt for some togetherness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Your mood might impact others. However, you are unlikely to get what you want. In fact, you might push a loved one or friend away. Know that this scenario doesn't have to happen. Just let go of a problem and live for the now. Tonight: A must appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Continue to enjoy yourself -- explore other views, meet new people and take advantage of different opportunities. You could be delighted by what will go down if you stay open. Someone wants to teach you a new hobby or sport. Why not? Tonight: Listen to a different type of music.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Your lovable ways come out when dealing with those in your immediate surroundings. If you are single, others find you to be fun, flirty and irresistible. If attached, you hold a similar magic over your sweetie. A friend could be put off by your detachment. Tonight: Love the one you're with.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Others seek you out, but you actually might have more fun at home with a loved one or with friends. You can find a way of mixing the two without giving yourself additional work. Ask others to bring their favorite junk food. Tonight: Let others take the initiative.

Economy: Hiring going at rapid rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate bumped up to 5.7 percent in March while companies added 308,000 new jobs — the most in four years, providing long-awaited evidence that the weak jobs market may be gaining steam.

The Labor Department report released Friday showed widespread hiring in industries across the economy at a time when President Bush's re-election campaign, counting heavily on a pickup in hiring, jumped into high gear.

For the first time in 44 months, the nation's factories did not shed jobs. But they weren't hiring either. March's figures show zero gains and losses for industries hammered by the economic downturn that began three years ago. The only sector losing jobs last month was information services, where companies cut about 1,000 jobs.

Revisions to payrolls showed a stronger jobs market than previously thought. Companies added 205,000 jobs in January and February, instead of the 118,000 reported last month.

The civilian unemployment rate, however, ticked up 0.1 percentage point from 5.6 percent in February. That occurred because more job seekers renewed their searches last month, but were unsuccessful.

The health of the nation's economy, especially the job climate, is a major issue in this year's presidential race. The economy has lost almost 2 million jobs since Bush took office in January 2001.

The economy rebounded strongly after the 2001 recession and terrorist attacks.

Condoleezza Rice to testify before Sept. 11 panel on April 8

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Sept. 11 commission will hear next week from National security adviser Condoleezza Rice as she tries to defend the Bush administration against criticism for how it handled the terrorism threat before the 2001 suicide hijackings.

The commission also wants an explanation as to why President Bush has refused to allow the panel's investigators to examine thousands of pages of classified and counterterrorism documents from the Clinton administration.

The panel hopes its 2 1/2-hour session next Thursday with Rice will provide added insight into what Clinton administration officials told the incoming Bush White House about al-Qaida, as well as what the new administration did with the information.

"We really want to find out about the transition, what they learned, and what changes in policy the Bush administration decided and what focus there was on terrorism," Thomas Kean, the commission chairman, said in an interview.

But Bruce Lindsey, former President Clinton's legal representative for records and a long-time confidant, told The Associated Press that the commission's attempt to get a full picture of Clinton's terrorism policies has been hampered because the Bush administration won't forward all of Clinton's records to the panel.

Lindsey said the White House has turned over only 25 percent of the 11,000 records requested by the commission.

The White House says it has fully met the panel's information requests.

"Whether documents from the Clinton administration or the Bush administration, we have worked to ensure the commission has all the information it needs to get its job done," Taylor Gross, a White House spokesman, said Thursday.

Rice's testimony could have enormous implications for Bush's re-election campaign, which rests significantly on his national security credentials. Bush's former counterterrorism chief, Richard Clarke, testified last week that the administration prior to Sept. 11 did not consider al-Qaida an urgent threat despite his repeated warnings.

Citing legal concerns, the White House had insisted that Rice would only meet privately with the commission, but it relented to mounting political pressure after assurances that the appearance of a senior presidential adviser would not set a precedent applicable to other congressionally appointed panels.

In related developments Thursday:

—The White House released portions of a top-secret document, finalized Sept. 4, 2001, that directed the Pentagon to draw up plans for attacking al-Qaida and Afghanistan's ruling Taliban.

The National Security Presidential Directive called on Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld to plan for military options "against Taliban targets in Afghanistan" and recommended plans "against al-Qaida and associated terrorist facilities in Afghanistan, including leadership, command-control-communications, training and logistics facilities."

—The State Department's counterterrorism coordinator testified on Capitol Hill that Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida organization "has been put under catastrophic stress." Cofer Black told a House International Relations subcommittee that 70 percent of al-Qaida's leadership was dead, under arrest or in detention.
