County lifts burn ban

Randall only county in Panhandle to have ban still in effect ...

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

The burn ban for Gray County which has been in effect since Jan. 3 was lifted Friday morning by county commissioners at their meeting in the county courthouse. Commissioners took no action on an emergency disaster declaration, which had been renewed at several previous meetings.

"I actually think it would expire today without any action taken," said Precinct 1 Commissioner Joe Wheeley. "We could look at it again at the next meeting."

Precinct 2 Commissioner Gary Willoughby moved, and Wheeley seconded his motion, to lift the ban "with a caution to residents" to take care when burning household trash or other items in rural areas.

The lifting of Gray County's ban leaves Randall County as the only Panhandle county still under a burn ban, said County Judge Richard Peet.

Hoover Volunteer Fire Chief Joe Millican said that anything other than household trash which rural residents planned to burn must first be reported to the sheriff's office.

Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad shut down train lines between California and Chicago for about two hours Thursday due to a fire in an engine on its tracks on the north side of Highway 60, near Celanese. Twelve firefighters and four trucks from Hoover Volunteer Fire Department responded to the electrical fire at 11 a.m. and remained until 2 p.m. Celanese's emergency response team assisted, as did BNSF personnel from Amarillo, according to HVFD Chief Joe Millican.

WHITE DEER — The Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District board of directors approved the sale of two tax delinquent properties and approved 12 drilling permits last week.

The district delayed taking action on the resignation of one member of the board until their August meeting.

Potter County board representative John McKissack submitted his resignation, citing an increased workload at his place of employment with Baptist-St. Anthony's.

C.E. Williams, general manager of the water district, said the board would probably take action on McKissack's resignation next month.

Park chief says 18 parks may close

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials are warning that 18 state parks may close if lawmakers don't spare the struggling agency from mandatory budget cuts ordered by Gov. Rick Perry. Dozens of full-time jobs may also vanish and local parks would suffer $4 million in cutbacks if the department complies with Perry's request for state agencies to trim budgets by 10 percent, executive director Robert Cook said Friday. "I'm not (saying) this because I want to scare anybody — but these are some of the things we're seriously looking at," he said.

DENVER (AP) — A date with Jessica Biel will be up for bid next week to help raise money for a teenager who lost her leg in a prom night limousine accident, Denver newspapers reported.

The event dubbed "Mollypalooza" to help Molly Bloom's family with medical expenses is scheduled for Tuesday at the Rock Island Club, organizers told The Denver Post and Rocky Mountain News. The News described the date as a lunch date.

In an audio message posted on the Internet, Esquire's "The Sexiest Woman Alive" urges listeners to support the event and says: "I intend to submit a very special auction item as my contribution to the evening."

"Come on, it's Jessica Biel. What guy wouldn't want to win a date with her?" said Dmitri Lee Natali, 19, a friend and former classmate of Bloom, 18, who lost a leg in the May 13 accident. "My mom happened to be able to contact (Biel's) parents, and they had heard about Molly's tragedy. They said 'Yeah, I bet she'll do that.'"

Biel, a Boulder native who is on location filming the movie "Next," won't be at the fundraiser Tuesday, the actress said in her message.

Bloom was run over and dragged about 38 feet by a Hummer stretch limousine, police said. Limousine driver Stanley D. Sample, 38, faces a misdemeanor charge of careless driving resulting in serious bodily injury.

Bloom is undergoing rehabilitation at Denver Children's Hospital.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Spike Lee was at the Venice Film Festival in Italy watching on television as Hurricane Katrina tore through New Orleans last

August. "I was just really mad and sad," he said. "I said, 'This is going to be a major moment in American history, and I want to do something about it.'"

The result is a four-hour documentary called "When the Levees Broke: A Requiem in Four Acts" airing Aug. 21-22 on HBO. It shows how New Orleans survived Katrina against a backdrop of performances by Wynton Marsalis and Terence Blanchard at the Superdome, the French Quarter and the levees.

"What I was really amazed by was the spirit of the people of New Orleans," Lee said this week at the Television Critics Association's summer meet-

All definitely not quiet on the Southern front ...

Waves of illegal immigrants are the least of Steve McCraw's problems. Texas has the longest border with Mexico, and McCraw, the state's director of homeland security, has the difficult job of trying to keep some very nasty criminals and potential terrorists from crossing it.

Appointed by Gov. Rick Perry, McCraw, 52, is a former FBI intelligence expert who oversees state and local police resources that have been deployed to make Texas safer and help the U.S. Border Patrol. I talked to him recently by telephone from his offices in Austin:

Q: What is it you are supposed to be doing?

A: The focus, as the governor has laid out, is deterrence and prevention. This started in 2005 as part of a five-year strategic plan that identified that our most significant threat, the porous 1,240-mile Texas-Mexico border, didn't constitute just a national security threat but was a public safety threat as well. There has been an escalation over the years.

About a decade ago, the drug-trafficking organizations that pretty much dominated the cocaine and marijuana business have really evolved into extremely powerful and ruthless organized crime groups. The fact is, they control the northern Mexico border. This affects places like Pittsburgh. In fact, the governor has argued that what's on the Texas border and the southwest border affects the rest of the nation. Mexican drug-traffic organizations now dominate the lucrative U.S. drug market, also the human smuggling market, which is the national security side of things.

Q: So you're not concerned with illegal immigration?

A: First of all, what we are not dealing with is immigration policy. The position of the governor is that until we secure the border, immigration policy reforms, though very well-intentioned, will not be effective in the long run or even the short run. It's been said that, well, if you are able to address the demand for immigrant labor, that you've in fact increased the security of the border. Well, you really haven't. If you decrease the demand for labor, criminals and terrorists will still come through an insecure border. They're not motivated by jobs. What the governor wants to focus on are terrorists and criminals. But in order to do that you really have to focus on securing the border between the ports of entry. Until you do so, there is no homeland security.

Keep in mind — and this is not any kind of rock-throwing at anybody back in Washington — but this has been an under-investment for decades. But what's different now than decades ago is 9/11. We all know al Qaeda has intentions of exploiting the southwest border as a way of entering resources undetected into the United States ... Middle Eastern countries have often used this as a corridor to get into the United States. You can't think of a place they haven't come from — the Philippines, Saudi Arabia. Four Iraqis were captured the other day by Mexican officials. Syria — who would think we are a pathway for Syria?

Q: Is it realistic to think that the Texas border can be closed and guarded?

A: You say "closed." We're not going to close legitimate commerce, OK. Nor do we care who comes through the ports of entry legitimately. It gives the U.S. government the opportunity to vet these people and use biometrics or whatever the case may be. But is it realistic? Certainly, you can accomplish anything if you have the will to do it. And certainly this nation can do anything it has the will to do.

Bill Steigerwald
Columnist

country, you're at risk. We just can't afford not to know or be in a position not to deter or disrupt their ability to move seamlessly into our society. Keep in mind, these Mexican organized crime groups are very good. They're very sophisticated. They couldn't be better financed. They employ former Mexican military commandos, former Guatemalan special forces, gangs — MS-13, Texas Syndicate, Texas Mafia — to do hits. They are extremely violent and as long as they have that pathway and control those points, there is a national security problem and a public safety problem as well.

Q: Does it make sense in your mind to do it?

A: The answer is yeah, of course. It's absolutely worth it. You can argue it from either way — from a public safety or national security threat. As long as you allow criminals and terrorists unfettered access to this

A: It's a federal responsibility, OK. There's no question about it. (The feds are) responsible for protecting the sovereign border of the United States. But right now, they need help. It's going to take a while before they can recruit, train and field additional Border Patrol. We're not going to see those resources for some time. Our men and women of the Border Patrol do a tremendous job and risk their lives night and day.

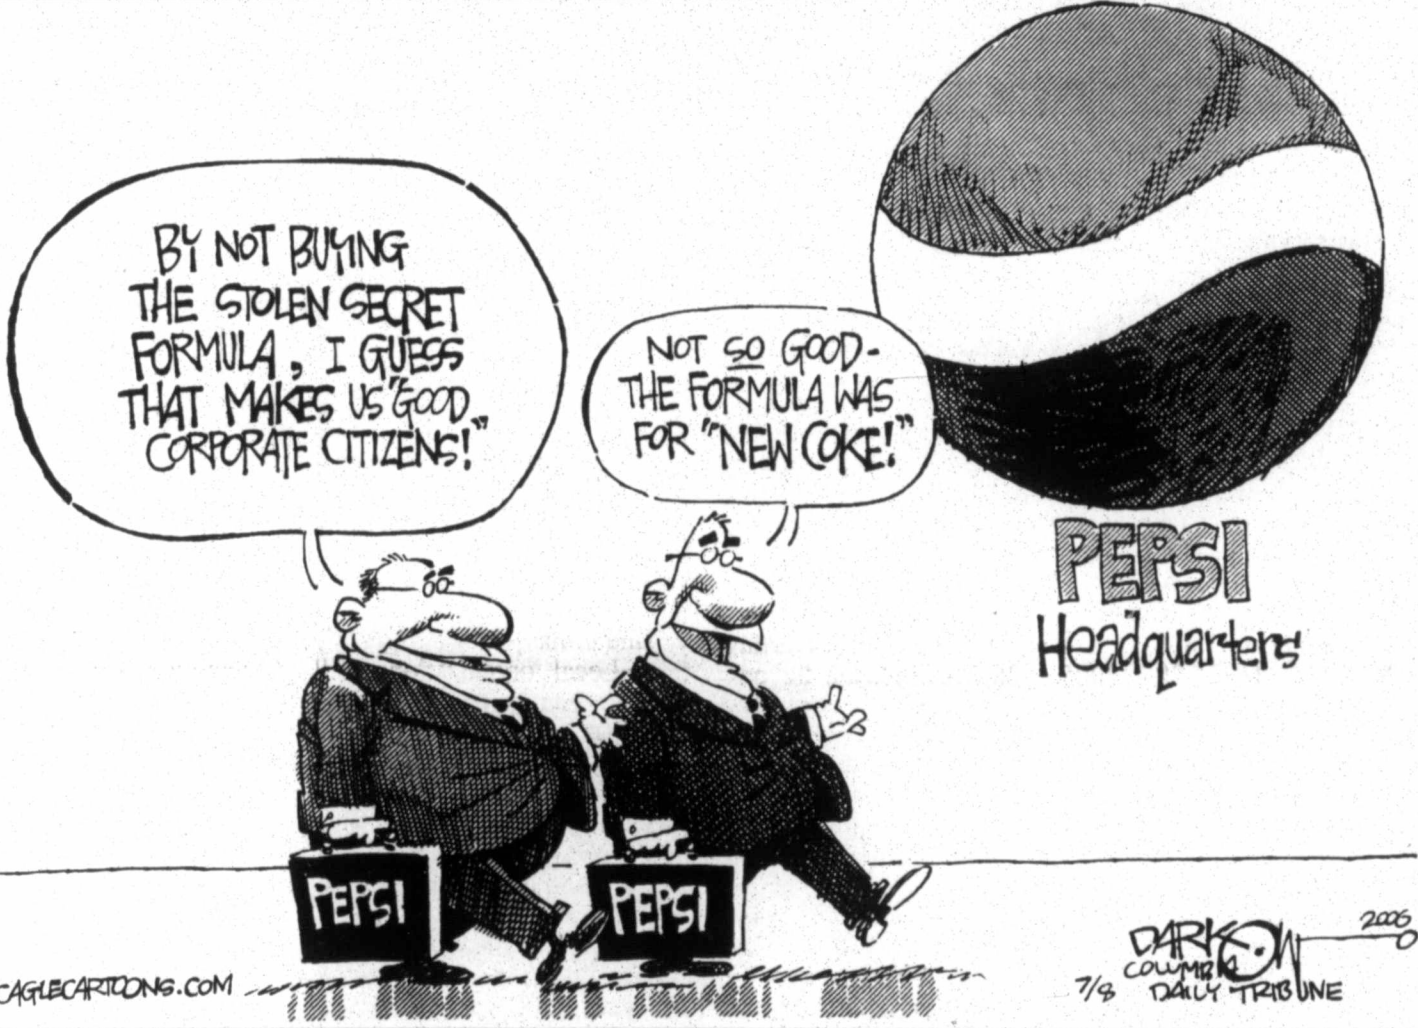

Q: If you could snap your fingers and get all the money you need to direct toward this problem, what would you do?

A: I'll tell you what the governor would do: invest in local and state law enforcement so they could be partners with the Border Patrol and increase our patrol presence at those high-threat areas between the ports of entry and also increase the capacity in the near-border counties.

You want to increasingly make it inhospitable for these crime organizations. People will argue that they will still try other areas. They'll try the Canadian border. But you don't know what event or major operation you're doing today that has prevented operatives from getting into the country undetected. We have an aggressive defense. There's no offense here. The offense has to be done by the government of Mexico. Until the government of Mexico regains control of those areas by taking out or dismantling those organized crime groups, we have no offensive capability. But we can have an aggressive defensive capability — and we must.

Our readers write

Past Pampans credit to our future ...

When I look back at Pampa in the 1940s, I see my husband, Richard Brantley, who brought help to an ailing and slow Pampa.

He was a young man who joined the U.S. Navy at 18 during World War II. He came to Pampa to establish the Cabot Corp., to produce the necessary pumpjacks and equipment needed for the boom of the oil fields here, provided by the Pampa foundry.

He, along with Herman Darby and Floyd Emil, president of Citizens Bank, worked together and the town blossomed.

There wasn't any $3 gas price. Our young people raided a lot of drip gas to burn, but that wasn't so bad, compared to trashing M.K. Brown swimming pool or stealing cars and slashing tires these days.

As I remember back, he was never given any consideration for all the good things he tried to do for Pampa. He was a credit to all the oil fields and invested in Yucca oil leases.

He loved music and played the fiddle and piano. He passed away in 2001.

This is for consideration to a good and faithful man and Christian person. He was a credit to our future.

The Idle American: As random as it gets Back in the day, linotype operators at newspapers large and small laboriously hammered out "lines of type" (hence the name) that were arranged in galleys before page placement for publication.

Editors loved to have "overset," a term describing excess lines. Usually, they were timeless and short items to complete pages in future issues.

My files bulge with little items I've tucked away, like unto overset. They are not stand-alone column topics, but nuggets too good to toss aside. You may wish to call it potpourri; I don't have a clue whether it's more "pot" or more "pourri." (Columns may rarely get more random than this, but here goes. ...)

I join legions of Dallas fans whose eyes still moisten at recollections of how close the Mavericks came to winning the National Basketball Association championship.

Rumor has it that Dallas diehards may press for a recount in Florida, but — chad-hanging and rim-hanging aside — Miami still wins.

I'm not sure that Dallas had the best team in the NBA, but will always believe the Mavs to be better than Miami. Alas, the scoreboard says otherwise. ...

Some years ago, "Packer Jack," the bearded host of a children's TV show in Austin, committed a major faux pas. There was a gallery of youngsters on hand for the live productions, and one day, the kids grew quiet for a scary story. Thinking the camera and microphone to be in "off" positions, he said, "That ought to hold the little urchins for a while." (This same "goof" has befallen numerous personalities whose shows never seemed the same following the stumbles.)

I feel the same way about the current show called "The View." The "love one another" ambience was blown to smithereens and millions of feathers were ruffled when Star Jones Reynolds decided to go out swinging rather than go down quietly.*

ABC brass may decide "keeping up with the Joneses" was a heap easier than getting rid of same. ...

Good news sometimes arrives in most unexpected ways. It was a massive heart-warmer to millions when Warren Buffett announced that 85 percent of his fortune will be entrusted to fellow multi-billionaire Bill Gates for philanthropic distribution. That's mighty close to tithing in reverse!

When a gesture involves the transfer of nearly $40 billion, friendship, confidence and generosity are re-defined.

A while back, on a journey to look up something else, I learned that Mr.

Buffett, during student years at the University of Nebraska, authored many of the old "Burma-Shave" ditties on signs that dotted America's highways for three decades. He's probably the only rhyme-maker to wind up a billionaire.

It's hard to imagine his gift ever being surpassed, unless it's accomplished by the family entrusted to spread it around. ...

One item popping up in "weird news" recently saddened me. It revealed that dentists are so difficult to schedule in Great Britain, "do-it-yourself-crown-and-cap replacement kits" are flying off shelves at the rate of 6,000 a week. If I resorted to such, I'm not sure if there'd be "stars in my crown," but there would definitely be cracks.

A while back, I called my dentist, Dr. Marshall Brown, at home on a Saturday morning.

"Marshall, if I told you I have a toothache, would you see me this morning?"

Without hesitation, this gentle, generous, capable and unpretentious health professional answered, "I'm on my way."

"No, stay put," I said. "I don't really have a toothache, but it comforts me to know that if I did, you'd treat me right now. ..."

There's much to be said for 500th anniversaries. The matter has come up twice in recent days. During a recent visit to Puerto Rico, many residents were atwitter about plans to observe San Juan's 500th birthday in 2008.

At the Vatican, numerous events this year will commemorate the 500th anniversary of the Swiss Guard protecting popes. That's putting a lot of faith in 110 men who constitute the world's smallest army — and with the smallest of knives.

Fear not, though. This hearty group has served well, except when Napoleon plundered the Vatican back in 1778, when two popes were abducted in successive years.

Since then, the young men have been able to keep the peace 24/7, change the guard, pose for pictures and point the way to restrooms for millions of tourists annually.

Thus endeth "potpourri overset." Or you can call it "hash," but please, not "re-hash. ..."

*Maybe stars of "The View" need to take a look at a billboard spotted in the Deep South: "That part about 'love thy neighbor' — I meant it." Signed: God Commissioners rescinded Minute Order 06-160 from their June 30 meeting. The item consisted of passage of a motion to allow the 31st District attorney to use forfeiture funds to supplement the salaries of her assistant district attorney and investigator.

The motion was invalid, said County Judge Richard Peet, because the investigator was not included in the agenda item for the June 30 meeting, and therefore no action could be taken concerning that person.

Commissioners then passed the motion again. Both the assistant DA and investigator were included in the item listed on Friday's agenda.

Persons in charge of offices in which there is not an elected official were designated as responsible for records retention in those offices.

Tax bids on six vacant lots in Pampa which were tax delinquent properties were all accepted by commissioners. Accepted bids were $125 by Jason Miller of Austin for 632 S. Somerville; $250 by Miller for 421 Crest; $105 by Miller for 520 Barnes; $110 by Shanea Selby of Las Vegas, Nev., for 1068 Varnon Drive; $110 by Scott Lindsey of Las Vegas, Nev., for 805 S. Gray; and $110 by Lindsey for 902 Clark.

John West of R-CALF United

Stockgrowers of America presented commissioners with a donation of $1,810 to be used for ranchers who suffered losses in the March 12 wildfire that burned parts of Gray County.

The donation brings the total funds available for fencing and livestock losses to $46,810, with another $12,000 to be used for household expenses and rent for wildfire victims, said Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright, who is chairing a committee to distribute the funds.

Commissioners also approved the county treasurer's report, two line-item transfers and payment of bills totaling $113,966.62 and salaries of $227,754.76.

County Auditor Elaine Morris submitted her monthly report on county deposit corrections. The current report lists 17 corrections involving $40,626.33.

Precinct 4 Commissioner James Helvey was absent from Friday's meeting.

Goal

Building a new Pampa Junior High School would run about $23.7 million. Renovating the old junior high for office space and storage would cost about $2.1 million.

Those costs alone would bring the needed funding from a proposed bond issue to $47 million.

The goal had been to try and limit the bond issue to $39 million.

Through cost-cutting measures, such as excluding renovations to the high school's vocational building, auditorium and fine arts building and doing only minimum work on McNeely Field House, the architects were able to reduce the estimated cost of renovation and expansion to the high school from $21.2 million to $17.8 million, lowering the overall total to $43 million from $47 million.

Lee Porter, the school board member chairing the facilities committee, said that some of the items the architects had addressed during three days of meetings in Pampa concerning school district facilities needed to be handled by the school board as maintenance issues, such as re-roofing the elementary schools.

"We owe it to the taxpayers to take care of the buildings we have," Porter said.

He noted that the roofs would be good for only about seven years, and it didn't make sense to pay for them over a 25 or 30 year period of a bond issue.

In order to further lower the need for funding from the proposed bond issue, architects recommended only minimal renovations to the football stadium and track.

Porter suggested exploring the possibility of corporate and private donations to improve the sports facilities to further lower bond funding needs.

Still, the funding needs appear to extend beyond the goal of a $39 million bond issue.

Edwards noted that there may be some funding from the state, but the program that has provided such funding would depend upon the State Legislature's decisions next spring when they meet in regular session.

The Legislature capped property tax rates for operations and maintenance budgets during the last special session for school finance at $1.33 per $100 valuation, down from a $1.50 cap. The $1.33 rate will drop to one dollar in 2008.

The cap does not apply to interest and sinking funds for capital improvements, however.

The PISD tax rate for interest is now about 5.5 cents per $100 valuation based on the outstanding debt of $6 million for renovation of the elementary schools a decade ago.

An increase of 34.4 cents in the interest tax rate to pay off a new proposed bond issue to finance the renovation and replacement of school district facilities would bring the interest and sinking rate to 40 cents.

Coupled with the lower property tax rate of one dollar plus four cents that school boards may add at their option for their maintenance and operations budgets, that would bring the total tax rate to $1.44, less than the present $1.55 tax rate.

"You would pay about the same tax rate as you have now," Edwards said, "but 40 cents of that would stay in Pampa to build schools."

Fund-raiser nets more than $2,000 for CASA

CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) of the High Plains recently involved the city's four main elementary schools in its second annual "Change" a Child's Life Campaign.

The elementary schools participated in a penny competition to see which class could raise the most money. First Bank Southwest counted the funds which will be used to help CASA recruit and train volunteers.

Combined, the schools raised $2,820.45 for CASA. First place winners were treated to a pizza party with the help of Dominos Pizza. Second place winners enjoyed an ice cream party donated by United Supermarkets.

Winners are as follows:

First place. Mrs. Hoover's class (Woodrow Wilson Elementary School); Ms. Stucker's class (Travis Elementary School); Ms. Beck's class (Lamar Elementary School); Ms. Rice's class (Austin Elementary School).

Second place. Ms. Gilliland's class (Wilson); Ms. Hale's class (Travis); Ms. Morse's class (Lamar); and Ms. Sherrill's class (Austin).

CASA assists the courts with children placed with Child Protective Services through abuse or neglect. Children served are between the ages of 0 and 18.

Advocates are assigned by the presiding judge in each case.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been cross-eyed my whole life. I have had surgery, worn an eye patch, special contacts, and have worn bifocal glasses ever since I was 2. Now that I am 21, my "lazy eye" is less noticeable than before; however, it still crosses when I must focus on something tiny. It causes me to have severe double vision. I work in a medical office, where I work hands-on with patients. While doing so, I tend not to wear my bifocals because my eyes only cross when I have to read small print. (And, being only 21, it's incredibly uncool to be wearing Coke-bottle glasses.) Is there a nice way I can respond when older co-workers ask me to read small numbers at the front desk for them? Because I am younger, they often ask me to bring my "young eyes" to rattle off patient phone numbers. Although they are all aware of my problem, they pester me anyway, even though they know it's hard on my eyes. (The truth is, while they may have poor vision themselves, I am the only one with severe diplopia.) Is there a nice way to get these old grannies off my back without having double vision for the rest of the day? -- DOUBLE-VISIONED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR DOUBLE-VISIONED: The magic words are, "Sorry, I can't help you. I'm not wearing my reading glasses." Then suggest to the "grannies" that they ask the office manager to buy a large magnifying glass to keep at the front desk.

DEAR ABBY: Ring, ring! Cell phone etiquette question. Certainly there must be some. Every time I have one particular family member over, she brings her cell phone and normally has the ring tone on loud. Regardless of the volume, her calls always turn into a long, drawn-out conversation with one of her friends or other relatives. The volume of her cell phone isn't what bothers me as much as the fact that her visits are disturbed by her social life. If it were a call from work, or some emergency she was expecting to hear back about, or even a child that needed attention, perhaps it wouldn't seem so offensive. I have my own phones at the residence but, unless I am expecting an important call, I normally don't answer it when I have guests over. What can I say to people who think it's OK to take all their calls at my house during our visits, short of not inviting them and their phones into my home? - "HUNG UP" IN SEATTLE

DEAR HUNG UP: Yours isn't a question about cell phone etiquette as much as it is about basic good manners. Explain to your family member how insulting it is when she carries on long, involved conversations while you sit there. A quick "I'm at my ()'s, and I'll call you later," is permissible. You could also post a sign on your front door that reads, "No Cell Phone Zone." Others have done it with some success.

DEAR ABBY: My brother is ticked off at me because I sing songs all the time. I sing a few lines, and he yells, "Stop!" Each time I make a little noise, he also demands that I stop. It seems like everything I do he tries to stop me from doing. My parents try hard to get him to stop yelling at me, but he won't. I'm getting really frustrated. How can I solve this problem? (I'm 7.) -- FRUSTRATED IN BERKELEY

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Ignore him. The more your brother yells, the louder you sing. And when your parents get tired of the sound of his yelling, they'll figure out a way to put a stop to it. Parents always do.

Extension advisory board to host workshop

AMARILLO — A Historically Underutilized Business (HUB) vendor training seminar will be offered to women and minority businesses owners on Aug. 10 by Texas Cooperative Extension-Potter County Leadership Advisory Board. "West Texas Business Connections HUB Forum" will include a light supper at 5:30 p.m., followed by training instruction from 6-9 p.m. at the Potter County Extension offices, 3301 E. 10th Street. Edmond Esparza, contract procurement center coordinator for Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, will facilitate the training, said Sue Church, Extension family and consumer sciences agent in Potter County. Ann Caraway, director of purchasing and inventories at West Texas A&M University, and Ruben Gonzales, director of HUB operations at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, will present the program. By becoming HUB certified, the participation in state agency procurement opportunities are facilitated for these individuals, Church said. Certified HUB vendors listed in the State of Texas HUB Directory, receive exposure to the state agencies and their procurement processes. Participants are asked to register in advance by calling 806-373-0713. A $5 fee will be charged and the training will be limited to 40 individuals. At the training, participants will learn about the HUB vendor program, the HUB mentor protégé assistance program, and the process for having their business added to the Texas Building and Procurement Commission Centralized Master Bidders List. Individuals wanting assistance to make application for HUB certification will be offered the opportunity to meet with advisors, on a one-to-one basis, on Aug. 11. Five-year-old Jakan Reeves smiles as he holds the beautiful rainbow trout he took while on a family vacation at Lake Vallecito near Durango, Colo., recently. Reeves, son of Darian and Christy Reeves, caught the fish, which weighed in at just over four pounds, using salmon eggs. He also proved that fish really don't care what you use to get the bait and hook to them as the young angler bagged his trophy with his $10 Scooby Doo fishing pole. Joining him at the time along with his parents were brothers Dathan, Barak and Abe Reeves, grandparents Ken and Carolyn Hall, uncle Thorban and aunt Alecia Weaver, and cousin Hudson Weaver.

Newman on pole

LOUDON, N.H. (AP) — Ryan Newman won the pole at New Hampshire International Speedway for Sunday's Lenox Industrial Tools 300.

Jeff Burton was the runner-up, followed by Brian Vickers, Kyle Busch, defending race winner Tony Stewart, series points leader Jimmie Johnson and Jeff Gordon, last week's winner at Chicagoland Speedway.

GLADEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dan Wheldon will start in front of Marlboro Team Penske rivals Sam Hornish Jr. and Helio Castroneves in Saturday night's Firestone Indy 200.

Owens claims to tell all in book

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Terrell Owens says plenty in his new book. Except for one word he now claims he didn't say.

But making a big deal of an apparent misquotation - despite the sentence being written in the first-person - is the kind of media nitpicking Owens would lament in his 242-page book that mostly offers his side of two tumultuous seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles.

In "T.O.," which debuted last week, Owens likens former teammate Donovan McNabb to a bully who spat in his mouth as a teenager while he innocently slept on a school bus.

The new Dallas Cowboys receiver also devotes pages to his perceived vilification in the press and described his quick comeback from a leg fracture in 2004 as, "If you'll forgive me for saying so ... nothing short of heroic."

But forgive him or not, Owens said Thursday during a book signing near the Cowboys' headquarters that it was "T.O." co-author Jason Rosenhaus who invented that particular phrasing.

Rosenhaus is the younger brother of Owens' agent, Drew, who Owens credits in "T.O." for the three-year, $25 million contract he got from the Cowboys in March. Jason often works with his brother on contracts.

ACADEMY SEXUAL ASSAULT

Jurors hear taped phone call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors at the military trial of a former Naval Academy quarterback listened Friday to a tape of a phone call in which the player apologized to a female midshipman he is accused of raping in her dorm room.

On the tape, Lamar Owens Jr. spoke in a soft voice and apparently wept at times. He said he considered committing suicide after the encounter and told the woman he "didn't do it for long" and that "you weren't awake."

Owens never used the word "rape" in the conversation, nor did he respond when the woman asked, "Why don't you call my dad, tell him you raped his daughter?"

The defense wanted to prevent the jury from hearing the tape, arguing that the call had been scripted by investigators. They said Owens only agreed to take the call because he believed the woman had reported the incident to authorities and was afraid of antagonizing her.

But Navy Cmdr. John Maksym ruled that Navy investigators had followed proper procedures.

Barbaro has a good day after several bad ones

KENNETT SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — Barbaro was given a walk in the intensive care unit by his veterinarian, perhaps a sign the ailing Kentucky Derby winner was responding well to treatment for an often fatal condition in his left hind leg.

And after spending 2 1/2 hours visiting Barbaro on Friday, jockey Edgar Prado came away feeling much better about the colt's chance to survive a severe case of laminitis and a reconstructed right hind leg that was shattered in the first few yards of the Preakness Stakes on May 20.

"He looked much better than I thought he would," Prado said after leaving New York at 4:30 a.m. and visiting the colt who gave him his first Derby victory. "I fed him, walked with him and he put his head on my shoulder and fell asleep."

For a day at least, there was hope at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center. The mood swing came a day after chief surgeon Dean Richardson delivered the grim news that Barbaro had laminitis, 80 percent of his left hoof wall had been removed Wednesday and that chances of survival were poor.

Barbaro's prognosis went from guarded to stable Friday, with Richardson saying the 3-year-old colt's vital signs, including heart rate and pulse, remain good.

"We are treating his laminitis aggressively, and he continues to respond well and is acceptably comfortable," Richardson said. "Our goal is to keep him as comfortable as possible, and clearly that comfort level will be a major indicator for our treatment decisions."

The nugget of good news followed more than a week of distressful updates: surgeries and cast changes on Barbaro's injured right hind leg - the one that sustained three broken bones in a horrific misstep shortly after he left the gate at the Preakness. And then, the onset of dreaded laminitis.

The colt, who has fiberglass casts on both hind legs, also has been fitted with a sling to prevent sudden movements. Laminitis is usually caused by uneven weight distribution in the limbs.

While his condition is stable, Richardson said "it remains extremely serious."

"We monitor his condition very closely because signs can change quickly," he added.

Assault

"There's no way I can imagine how it made you feel," Owens said on the tape.

Later, he apologized to the accuser, saying "When I woke up the next day and I called you, I really wanted to kill myself, and I still feel that way."

The tape was made Feb. 8; the alleged rape took place Jan. 29.

As the recording was played, Owens sat at the defense table and showed no visible reaction. Afterward, the prosecution rested its case.

Owens, 22, of Savannah, Ga., is charged with rape, conduct unbecoming an officer and violating a military protective order. If convicted, he could face up to life in prison.

The woman has testified that Owens came to her room as she slept and forced himself on her. She said she resisted him and did not consent to the sex.

Maksym rejected defense requests to throw out the charges Friday but indicated he did not believe the prosecution's case was strong on the rape allegations. He said his opinion was "based on the credibility, or in some instances, absence of credibility" of the accuser.

Owens' attorneys have said the woman invited him to her room and that the sex was consensual. They said Owens broke it off when he realized the woman, who was drunk, had passed out in bed.

The former football standout led Navy to an 8-4 record that included victories over military academy rivals Air Force and Army and a victory in the Poinsettia Bowl over Colorado State. He was the team's most valuable player.

Bonds legal team readies slugger for indictment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Barry Bonds' legal team is preparing for the San Francisco slugger to be indicted as soon as next week and has begun plotting his defense.

Attorney Laura Enos told The Associated Press on Friday that Bonds, second on the career home run list, could be charged with tax evasion and perjury.

Enos, Bonds' personal attorney, also said the lawyers believe the grand jury investigating the star player will expire next Thursday.

"We are very prepared," Enos said. "We have excellent tax records and we are very comfortable that he has not shortchanged the government at all."

Also Friday, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to free Bonds' personal trainer, Greg Anderson, from prison. A federal judge on July 5 ordered Anderson jailed until he agreed to testify before the grand jury investigating Bonds.

Anderson was one of five people convicted in the Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative scandal. The Burlingame-based nutritional supplement company was exposed as a steroid laboratory for top athletes.

The grand jury is probing Bonds for allegedly lying to a different grand jury that led to Anderson's conviction.

Bonds testified in 2003 that he never knowingly used performance-enhancing drugs and said Anderson had given him flaxseed oil and arthritis balm, not steroids. The BALCO probe netted calendars and other documents connecting Bonds to the lab.

Former girlfriend Kimberly Bell is a key witness in the case and has testified that Bonds told her of his steroid use and flew into rages she attributed to steroid use, according to grand jury testimony obtained by the San Francisco Chronicle.

Enos said Bonds denies those allegations and will argue that Bell's testimony amounts to "pillow talk."

"It's a 'he said, she said' thing," Enos said.

The grand jury also is believed to be investigating Bonds for tax evasion in connection with cash he allegedly gave Bell to buy a house. The money came from sales of Bonds' signatures on baseball memorabilia, and the income allegedly was not reported to the IRS.

Enos said that claim - based upon the ex-girlfriend's testimony and the allegations of childhood friend and former business partner Steve Hoskins - was untrue. Enos said Hoskins gave Bell the cash to curry favor with Bonds and to thank the slugger for helping him become rich by putting him in charge of a lucrative memorabilia business.

Enos said Hoskins also bought Bonds a $350,000 Bentley Rolls Royce, which she said Bonds paid $150,000 in gift taxes.

"The guy without Barry didn't have a penny," Enos said.

Hoskins recently has surfaced as another key government witness in the investigation of Bonds. He was a boyhood friend who went into business with the baseball star, selling such memorabilia as signed jerseys, bats and baseball cards. The two had a falling out in 2003, which Enos said was over Bonds' accusations that Hoskins forged the slugger's signature on at least two endorsement contracts and sold Bonds' gear without his permission.

Hoskins' lawyer, Michael Cardoza, said he was "laughing" at Bonds' defense.

"I'm laughing because I love this defense. Tell them to think of a better story," he said. "Tell them to put that defense on and to keep believing their client. They're going to get it shoved down their throats."

Bonds hit 12 home runs in the first half of this season to give him 720 for his career, 35 from tying Hank Aaron's record of 755. Bonds passed Babe Ruth and moved into second place on the career list with No. 715 on May 28.

He's batting .249 this season with 38 RBIs, and has missed 20 games because of knee problems.

If charged with perjury and convicted, he could face up to five years in prison. He could face another five years if charged and convicted of money laundering.

NEXTEL CUP

Kenseth and Gordon still play blame game

LOUDON, N.H. (AP) — Matt Kenseth and Jeff Gordon have forged an uneasy peace in the wake of a brief face-to-face meeting.

The two former NASCAR champions spoke briefly on Tuesday during a Nextel Cup test session in Indianapolis, but the chat apparently did little to settle their differences.

"He almost acted like he was mad at me," said Kenseth, spun out by Gordon late in last Sunday's Nextel Cup race at Chicagoland Speedway.

"I thought we were OK but, obviously, we weren't," Kenseth said Friday at New Hampshire International Speedway. "I don't think we'll be going out to dinner tonight."

"We talked after Indy but, honestly, when we talked about it, it was kind of one of them things where he came over and apologized but wasn't very apologetic, if you know what I mean."

Asked about Kenseth's comments, Gordon shrugged and said, "I did all I could. I pretty much left it up to him."

Kenseth had dominated the Chicagoland race. But, Gordon, who obviously had the faster car in the closing laps, got impatient and tried to get past with four laps to go by bumping Kenseth up the track. The result was a spinout at about 180 mph for Kenseth and a victory for Gordon.

Since it was Kenseth who spun out Gordon on the way to a third-place finish earlier this season in Bristol, payback was the immediate thought. Gordon insisted last week's incident was only hard racing and only to move him up the track, not to spin Kenseth.

But Gordon said he can certainly understand why the Roush Racing driver is upset.

"I look at the Bristol incident and this incident is so similar," said Gordon, who was penalized $10,000 and placed on probation until Aug. 30 by NASCAR for shoving Kenseth when he came up to apologize after the Bristol race. "He came up to me and said he was sorry and didn't mean to do it, but I was fuming for a long time after that."

"All I do know, and people can believe me or not believe me, that wasn't payback. It really wasn't. It was racing hard and it just happened to be a guy that I had an incident with earlier in the season."

The four-time series champion said he has watched video replays of the Chicago incident and that it was obvious to him that after the two leaders slowed to drive under the lapped car of Casey Mears, he simply got back on the gas faster than Kenseth did.

"That's going to be something we might disagree on right now but, at the same time, if we don't both move on from this, then it's going to cost both of us a chance at the championship," Gordon said.

Gordon pointed out he had more to lose by bumping another car right now than Kenseth, who is second in the season points and probably has a spot in the Chase for the championship sewn up. Gordon's Chicago victory moved him tenuously into 10th, the cutoff spot for the 10-race playoff with eight races remaining.

Still, Gordon accepted responsibility for the accident.

"Any time a guy gets in the back of another guy, you have to take responsibility for it, and I certainly will," he said. "But the clear thing is here that it was not intentional and that's what we're all talking about and we need to move on from because it's over."

"Now we're at New Hampshire and we're here to race on Sunday and there's going to be plenty of action to talk about after this race, I'm sure."

Kenseth said nothing is going to change for him because of what happened in Chicago.

"My team is doing a great job this year and, to get caught up in something else and take away from your performance or to take away from the goal of trying to get in the Chase and trying to win a championship would be silly," the 2003 champion said.

"I'm certainly going to let it go and just race as hard as we can," he added. "But, are we buddies and is everything cool? Not really."

Rangers use solid pitching to nip Orioles, 2-1

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Texas Rangers aren't all about hitting anymore. These guys can also pitch, as evidenced by their first two games after the All-Star break.

Kevin Millwood and three relievers combined on a six-hitter Friday night, and the Rangers capitalized on one shaky inning by Kris Benson to slip past the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

It was the second straight game Texas limited Baltimore to just one run.

"The last two games, we have to give them credit. Their pitching has been tremendous," said Baltimore designated hitter Javy Lopez, who went 0-for-3 with a strikeout.

After scoring 15 runs one night earlier, the Rangers got their only runs on fourth-inning sacrifice flies by Michael Young and Mark Teixeira. That, however, was enough to provide Texas with its third straight victory.

"We scored a lot of runs yesterday, and today we scored just enough," Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "There was little margin for error."

Baltimore got its lone run on a sacrifice fly by Melvin Mora.

Millwood (9-5) allowed one run and four hits in six innings to earn his first win in four starts since June 16. Pitching for the first time since July 2, when he left a game against Houston with arm tightness, the right-hander was lifted after 78 pitches.

"I was tired," Millwood said. "The extra time off, I missed my last start, and then having the All-Star break is definitely good for your strength but not good for your stamina."

Former Oriole Rick Bauer worked a perfect seventh, Francisco Cordero gave up two singles in the eighth and Akinori Otsuka closed it for his 18th save.

"To get those three shutout innings from our bullpen, and have (Otsuka) finish the relay race - the baton pass - it's impressive," Showalter said.

The Rangers have allowed four runs or fewer in eight straight games, the longest current run in the majors. They are 6-2 in that span.

"Tonight, for sure, they pitched pretty well against us," Orioles manager Sam Perlozzo said.

Marlins 3, Astros 1

MIAMI (AP) — Rookie Anibal Sanchez has been alive a little longer than Roger Clemens has been in the major leagues.

The 22-year-old Sanchez, who was about 3 months old when Clemens made his major league debut in 1984, outdueled the seven-time Cy Young Award winner on Friday night to lead the Florida Marlins to a 3-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Sanchez said he wasn't nervous facing the 43-year-old Clemens. But he said his wife was probably nervous for him, just like when he won his major league debut in Yankee Stadium on June 25. Sanchez said his relatives were monitoring the game on the Internet from Venezuela.

"Today, everybody talked to me because everybody knows who is Roger Clemens. ... I don't know who was more excited," Sanchez said. "I'm really happy. ... He's a great pitcher and I have a lot of respect for him."

Sanchez (2-0) was making his third career start and first at Dolphin Stadium. He didn't allow a hit until pinch-hitter Willy Taveras singled to lead off the sixth. Sanchez pitched seven shutout innings, giving up two hits while striking out two and walking one.

"He just faced one of the all-time greatest pitchers and he beat him," said Marlins manager Joe Girardi, Clemens' former teammate with the New York Yankees. "It's got to be a big win for him."

Logan Kensing pitched the eighth for the Marlins, and Joe Borowski earned his 17th save despite allowing a run in the ninth.

The Marlins broke a three-game losing streak, while Houston has lost three of its last four road games.

Clemens (1-3), making his fifth start of the season, lasted five innings, giving up two runs and seven hits with seven strikeouts.

Edward Jones ranks tops study

The financial-services firm Edward Jones ranks highest, according to a press release, in full-service satisfaction for the second consecutive year in the J.D. Power and Associates 2006 Full Service Investor Satisfaction Study.

Three Edward Jones offices are located in Pampa.

The study found that strong customer service representative performance, convenience, account set-up/offers, account statements and product and service offerings combined with competitive investment performance drive the firm's first-place finish.

Edward Jones does particularly well serving its more affluent clients, the survey said.

"As a firm, all of us are committed to providing outstanding client service," said James D. Weddle, managing partner of Edward Jones. "Our clients are the true judges of our service, and these surveys show that our clients think highly of the firm and their relationships with the local investment representatives and branch office administrators. Their satisfaction is reflected by the fact that they would recommend Edward Jones to their friends, as reported in the study results."

According to the study, satisfaction translates into advocacy, and Edward Jones clients recommend their investment representative more often than other firms.

Meeting face-to-face with one's investment professional is the best way to increase satisfaction, the survey said.

"We believe that individual investors prefer to conduct business face-to-face in offices that are conveniently located," Weddle explained.

"We treat our clients the way we would want to be treated, and we appreciate the honor that they bestow upon us."

Edward Jones ranked highest by J.D. Power and Associates in 2005 and highest in 2002 when the study began. Recently, Edward Jones in Canada announced the firm's highest ranking in J.D. Power and Associates' Canadian study.

STATE OF MIND

FAMILY FEATURES

Bare feet in the sand, wind-blown hair and soft, easy-to-wear clothes evoke a kicked-back vacation state of mind. Most people believe that this way of thinking is reserved for escapes to a tropical island. Not so say the folks at Caribbean Joe, creators of casual clothing for men and women. It's possible to adopt this attitude every day, whether vacationing at a beach, relaxing at home or heading out for a night on the town.

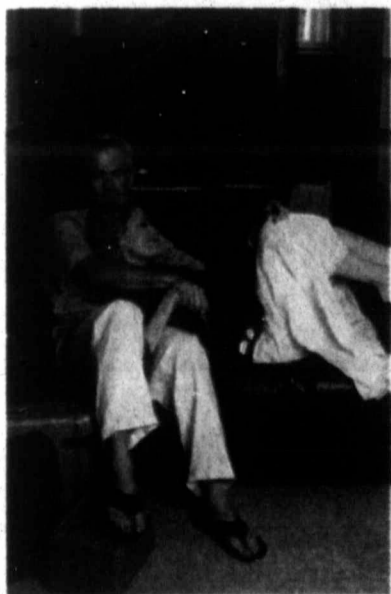

HOW TO WEAR IT BACK

There is nothing like that feeling you have during your first few days back from vacation — your mind is clear and your mood is elevated. One way to keep the vacation attitude going, advises Caribbean Joe, is by mixing vacation wear with everyday clothes.

- Use a great pair of khaki-colored micro-fiber golf or drawstring linen pants to dress up a camp shirt in a silky material or dress down a collared polo shirt.
- Layer lighter-weight pieces with vests and sweaters. A solid polo adds a splash of color when it peeks out from under a crew-neck top.
- Pair whites with darker shades such as browns and grays for a toned-down, citified feeling.

A camp shirt is a look that works 12 months a year. These roomy shirts offer style and comfort for a range of venues whether on an island getaway, at the office or for an afternoon wedding.

Whether lounging together on a beach chair or relaxing at home on a comfortable leather couch, clothes can help keep that vacation spirit alive. Here a white flounce skirt and some white linen drawstring pants are paired with the darker, earthier tones of grey and brown to provide a civilized look that still offers all the comfort and style Caribbean Joe is known for.

A roomy patterned flounce skirt worn with a dark tank and matching chunky jewelry turns a summer skirt into a glamorous evening look.

HOW TO PACK

Tom Westman, winner of CBS's "Survivor: Palau"

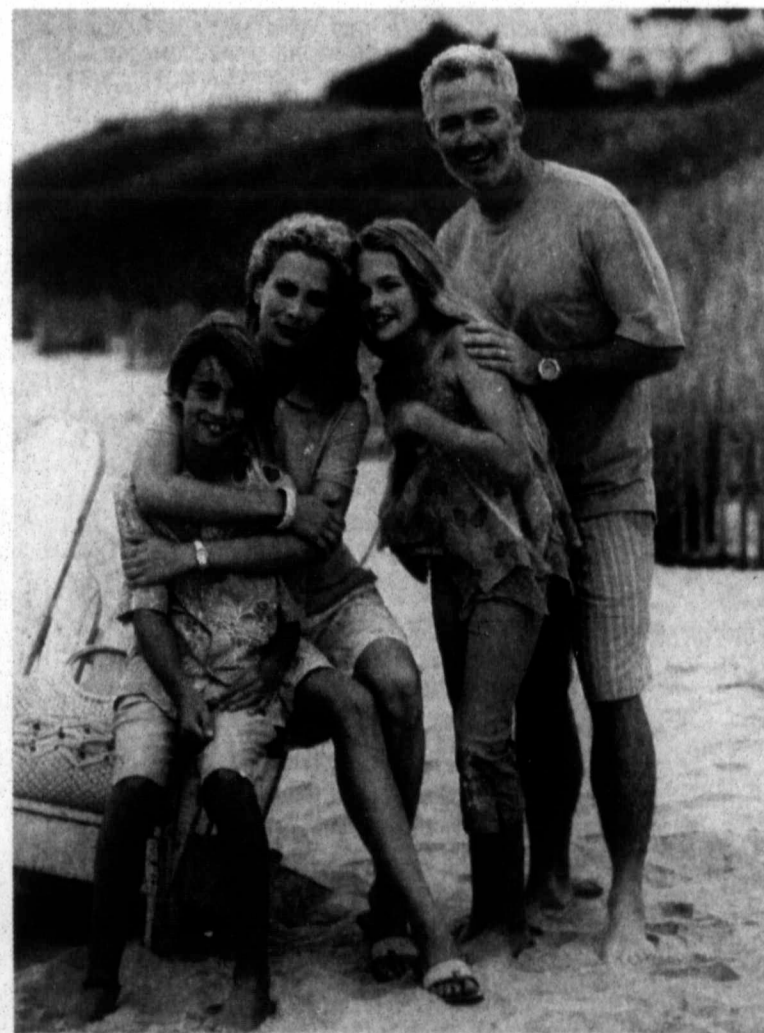

and New York City firefighter, personifies this easy attitude. Tom drew national attention when he not only survived Palau in style, but was also named one of TV Guide's "Sexiest Men." With classic rugged looks he's most comfortable in a T-shirt and shorts, but he also knows how to dress for style without sacrificing comfort. When vacationing, he wants a simple way to look and feel great. His secret? It's all in the packing.

- Most people pack too much. Avoid checking a bag if you can — that removes a lot of variables from your trip. If you need to check baggage, make sure you bring essential items for each family member in a carry-on. If your bags get lost, you don't want to be without a change of clothes, medicines, bathing suits, etc.
- Take less than you think you need. Lay out everything you plan to pack on a bed, then eliminate redundancies. Take only one pair of jeans. Make sure they're nice enough to go with a jacket, yet comfortable enough to dress down. Have a blazer or sport coat that you can wear on the plane. If you usually end up buying a T-shirt from the dive shop, or a polo from the golf shop, pack two fewer items in your bag.
- Do your research. Dress like the locals. In most countries, shorts are only worn by boys under 10 or men on a soccer field. Try to blend in.
- Leave the beret, sombrero, kafia and fez in the country in which you found them. There is always one piece of foreign clothing that you think will transition well into your everyday wardrobe. Resist the urge.

WHAT TO WEAR

Whether lounging at the shore, sipping drinks at a barbecue or stepping up your style while maintaining comfort at home, the key to looking great is in the details:

- Opt for timeless, classic shapes and the relaxed, roomy cut of camp shirts, drawstring pants, full skirts and tank tops.
- Pick soft, sensual fabrics in all linen or cotton or in one of the easy-care blends that are soft and maintain color over time. These fabrics usually improve their look and feel with wearing and washing.
- Select deeply saturated, natural colors that are easy on the eyes or clean, bright whites.
- Look for great details such as etched, authentic shell buttons and finely finished seaming.
- Choose clothes that can be laundered — not dry cleaned — such as Caribbean Joe fashions for both men and women.

Keeping allergies at bay possible, says Academy of Allergy, Asthma, Immunology (NAPSA) — Seasonal allergies affect over 35 million people in the United States, according to the American Academy of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology. To keep your allergies at bay, the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC) recommends these tips for a fresh, pollen-free indoor environment.

- Keep windows closed. If needed, use air conditioning, which cleans, cools and dries.
- Keep entryways clean and create a shoe regimen.

Sweep, dust or vacuum outside entryways to avoid tracking pollen and debris into your home. Wipe your feet on the doormat when entering your home or leave shoes by the door.

- Use high-quality vacuum equipment. A HEPA-type filter bag and brush agitation are more important considerations than the vacuum's price. A good vacuum should easily remove dust and particles before they become embedded in the carpet. Replace bags when half full.
- Have furnishings professionally cleaned annually. The IICRC recommends hiring reliable, qualified professionals for deep extraction cleaning. To locate an IICRC-Certified Firm in your area, visit www.certifiedcleaners.org or call 1-800-835-4624.

The Legacy Scholars program grants annual awards of up to $5,000 to full-time undergraduate students pursuing a liberal arts education at any of the 17 colleges or universities affiliated with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Recipients select a volunteer service project and are required to complete at least 48 hours of service annually. PICK A THEME Busy as a bee? Serve Banana Bumblebees at your child's party.

Planning a party to remember ...

(NAPSA) — Birthday parties are everyone's favorite reason to celebrate and a great opportunity to create a one-of-a-kind original event. One fun way to plan a memorable birthday party for your child is to start with a theme. A theme can inspire the food, activities and invitation design, neatly tying everything together.

Select a fun theme tied to the child's interests such as favorite toys, books or hobbies, and allow him/her to assist in party planning and preparation.

Plan an activity that gets all the party guests involved and serve something scrumptious, such as Banana Bumblebees. For additional fun recipes, visit www.pillsburybaking.com.

Despite lure of Japanese trade, many U.S. beef plants opt out

By JOSH FUNK
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — When Japan banned U.S. beef in 2003 because of mad cow fears, the industry braced for a big financial hit, with job losses spilling into Midwest feedlots, supply companies and retail businesses.

So when Japan agreed to lift the ban — contingent on Japanese checks of U.S. beef plants — many assumed that the inspectors would be welcomed everywhere with open arms.

But while 35 American beef processing plants are submitting to the inspections, thousands of other plants have opted out, deciding not to bother with exporting.

"There are a lot of guys who don't want to go through the hassle of these inspections," said Deven Scott, executive vice president of the North American Meat Processors Association.

Japanese inspectors began visiting U.S. beef processing plants on June 24 after an agreement was brokered to restore the once-lucrative beef trade with Japan that used to account for about $1.4 billion a year and 10 percent of U.S. beef sales.

The one-month audit will tour 35 meatpacking plants to ensure the facilities comply with Japanese import regulations. Inspectors will also review procedures at ranches, feedlots and mills. The Japanese inspectors will visit seven beef processing plants in Nebraska.

While many of the small and mid-sized processing plants Scott represents would like a taste of the export market, most smaller plants lack the resources needed to comply with international trade regulations and don't produce enough beef to be competitive with large meat processors like Tyson Foods Inc.

"You certainly can't ship 5,000 pounds of steak to Japan for the same price Tyson can ship 5 million pounds of steak to Japan," Scott said.

The Japanese inspections are scheduled to continue through July 21, and U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman Ed Loyd said U.S. officials hope Japan will lift its ban within weeks of the completion of inspections.

The ban was first lifted at the end of last year. But in January, Japan again halted imports of American beef after one shipment was found to contain prohibited parts of cows believed at risk of the disease.

In June, Japan agreed to lift its ban again, but only after thorough inspections of U.S. meat-processing facilities.

Opening up additional export markets should help the entire beef industry regardless of how many plants actually export meat, because beef demand and prices will likely increase, said Janet Riley, spokeswoman for the American Meat Institute, which represents about 1,100 companies.

Steve Sands, chief executive of Premium Protein, said he's expecting a thorough review when the Japanese visit his company's plant at Hastings, Neb., but the higher prices export markets offer for certain cuts of meat make the process worth it.

"That economic incentive is worth the extra effort and extra record keeping," he said.

Some products such as beef tongue are valued highly in Japan, but hardly sell in the United States, Sands said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, July 16, 2006:

You find yourself more involved or responsible than you might want to be. Make a difference in your finances by putting in extra hours. You will make investments that could take longer to come to fruition than you think. Be conservative in your choices. If you are single, you might meet a lot of people, though you could be slow to jump into a relationship. If you are attached, you might need to talk more and not make too many assumptions. ARIES demands responsible actions.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You have an even, mellow, innovative tone to your ideas, plans and interactions. You might be quite tuned in to what works and what doesn't. You might want to do something differently, but have difficulty convincing a loved one or child. Tonight: As you like. This Week: Monday is your best day. Deal with finances Tuesday on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ You might want to talk to someone, but to get the results you desire, delay the conversation. Others might close down, and so might you in a different sense. You have the wherewithal to make a difference, but you need to think first. Tonight: Get some extra R and R. This Week: You make your mark.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Aim for more of what you want to happen. Sometimes you might not be as sure of yourself as you would like to be. Your unsteadiness could cause you to encourage a stronger sense of what works. Tonight: Dinner and chat with a favorite person. This Week: Use Monday for action.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, July 17, 2006:

You might experience a lot of tension during this birthday year. You might want to work on different ways of relaxing. You will want to assume more responsibility, but not at the cost of your well-being. Think in terms of gains and growth. You will gain and be OK as long as you keep the big picture in mind. If you are single, a relationship or potential suitor easily could knock on your door. Get ready for a substantial romance. If you are attached, your relationship will warm up considerably if you just stay open and caring. Accept changes. TAURUS makes a great friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ Though you could encounter a big bump or two, for the most part you are on cruise control. Confusion marks your next few moments. You are high energy. Trust your instincts, as you can and probably will reverse any hassles. Tonight: Act as if there is no tomorrow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Tension could define your day, but the smart action will be to do nothing other than work through stress. Your sense of what is going on could change as you gather more information. Observe and listen — for now! Tonight: Nap and then decide.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Friends have some great ideas, but they could cost you a pretty penny if you aren't careful. You might want to rethink your budget, but don't decide to Think and reflect Tuesday on.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Your finances encourage you to step back and think. You could be overwhelmed by what heads down your path. Recognize your liabilities with a problem person. He or she demands a lot from you. You might not be up for it. Tonight: A must appearance.

This Week: You get what you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You could be overly serious. Take in the big picture, and you'll make strong decisions. Think twice before you decide something is difficult and could put you at the end of your rope. Tonight: Make nice.

This Week: Assume the limelight. It is your rightful place.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ You want to understand more of what is happening and get to the bottom of a problem. You might rethink a situation involving a special partnership. Be willing to share more of what you want. Tonight: Togetherness.

This Week: Work with a partner. Detach and gain more information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★★ Others make it clear how much they want your company. Listen to what is being said about a situation. Defer to others and get to the bottom of what might seem like a tight connection. Talk turkey. Tonight: Discuss what you want.

This Week: Others run with the ball.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ Relax and take your time handling what could be a problem. You need to think before you launch into action. You only have so much time and so much energy. Honor your personal needs. Tonight: Easy does it.

This Week: Tuesday on, you make your mark.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You are lively and unpredictable. You know what you want and expect. Getting there might take closing off an option or a change of plans. An in-law could mean well but cause a problem. Tonight: Make the most of the moment.

This Week: Easy does it. All work and no play will make you grumpy!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Know what works, and you will be a lot happier with the end results. You might want to think before you take action. A decision with a partner could be a tad off. Stick to basic issues. Understand what you want. Tonight: Close to home.

This Week: You are full of ideas. Try them out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ Discuss what is on your mind. You might want to get past a problem with a difficult individual. Basics make a difference and need to be your guideline. Though you might be bohemian, you have good values. Tonight: Favorite spot for dinner.

This Week: You might want to take several days off.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Expenses could be overwhelming. Try to do anything you can to cut cost. You will be much better off if you do. A sense of being overwhelmed could make you more tired than you need to be. Easy does it. Tonight: Treat yourself to a favorite meal.

This Week: Network away.

Some 'senior moments' could be more

CHICAGO (AP) — A study found that in a disturbing number of cases, embarrassing "senior moments" such as forgetting a recent conversation or drawing a blank on someone's name may really be a sign of Alzheimer's after all.

Chicago scientists reached that conclusion after autopsies on the brains of 134 older people who had appeared to be mentally normal, apart from some subtle forgetfulness.

Occasional forgetfulness is often written off as a normal part of growing old and nothing to get alarmed about. And in most cases, that is probably true.

But the scientists found to their surprise that the brains of more than one-third of the participants were riddled with waxy protein clumps and other signs of degeneration that are hallmarks of Alzheimer's disease.

The study "questions the acceptability of minor episodic memory loss in older adults as normal," said Dr. Carol Lippa, director of the memory disorders program at Drexel University College of Medicine in Philadelphia. She had no part in the study.

The study appears in a recent issue of Neurology, the American Academy of Neurology's scientific journal.

Dallas Anderson, an Alzheimer's scientist at the National Institute on Aging, which funded the research, called the results "very plausible and hopeful." Anderson noted that scientists are trying to pinpoint the earliest point in the Alzheimer's disease process, which could lead to earlier treatments.

Participants in the study had amounts of brain deterioration similar to those found in Alzheimer's patients who were severely debilitated by the mind-robbing disease before their deaths. The researchers said that raises the question of why some afflicted people but not others can function normally.
