

Ghosts and goblins invade Pampa tonight

Boo!

Chief gives safety tips for spooks

With hundreds of trick-or-treaters expected to roam the streets in celebration of Halloween tonight, Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman is cautioning motorists and youngsters and their parents to be extra careful.

Ryzman said trick-or-treaters should wear light-colored, flame-retardant clothing and should choose masks that do not hinder their vision. He said that for their own safety, little goblins making rounds tonight should choose houses with porch lights on.

Parents should make sure they know where their children will be or, better yet, drive them through Pampa neighborhoods, the chief said.

"I encourage the parents to go with their kids," Ryzman said.

If parents choose to

High Windy escapes again

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

For nearly 100 years, High Windy, the building that housed the first school and the first Lutheran church in Gray County, has survived blizzards, tornadoes, dust storms and moves to seven locations.

Thursday morning, the hardy 19 by 30 foot structure survived a fire that blackened its interior and destroyed most of its contents, including decorations for a Friday night Halloween party.

But the exterior of the building, now the clubhouse for the Pampa Trap and Skeet Club on the Top O' Texas Rodeo Grounds, remains virtually unscathed.

"You wouldn't know there was a fire there by just looking at the outside," said Robert Broggin, owner and caretaker of the property. "It will have to be re-floored, re-paneled, refurnished, rewired. And there would have to be a lot of work on it."

Broggin said club members can take care of the repairs.

The fire, which started about 7 a.m. Thursday, apparently was ignited by a floor furnace, located in the center of the main room. However, investigators with the Pampa Fire Department couldn't pinpoint the cause. Two units from the Fire Department remained at the scene for about one hour to put out the blaze.

"The Pampa Fire Department did a real good job," Broggin said. "They got it out. If it had been another 30 minutes, the building would have been gone."

But 93-year-old Anglus B. Davis had a different reaction.

"I'm surprised they didn't let it burn," said Davis, one of the first students to attend the one room school house back before the turn of the century.

Davis walked through the charred interior of his school Thursday. He didn't have much to say. The building has gone through so many changes since he last attended there in 1906.

The school was built in 1888 when settlers in northeastern Gray County decided they needed a school for their children. As one story goes, while men were building the school, a dust storm came up and blew away some lumber that had been stacked in the building. Some of it landed a mile and a half away. Hence the name High Windy.

The building was a one-room structure, furnished with one table, one chair, several double seats and a long recitation bench. The building was heated by a coak stove with water drawn from a nearby cistern.

"We didn't need electricity and we didn't have any candles," Davis recalled. "We went to school (during) the three summer months."

Davis recalled some of his classmates: "John Talley, he still lives in Miami. Wheeler Earis, he's 101 and lives in California. Addie Mae Lard, died about a week ago. There were some more, but I don't remember."

As the population moved, so did the school.

Pampa primed for expansion

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Pampa abounds with so many "plus" factors that the TEXCEL resource team member who visited the city this week said she wouldn't mind living and working here.

During the last two meetings Thursday with civic, business and industry leaders, Cheryl Pink of the Texas Economic Development Commission presented her impressions of the city with a very positive report.

"Pampa is an absolute lovely community," she said at the noon luncheon in the Pampa Community Building.

Addressing a town hall meeting earlier Thursday, she said, "Overall, on the quality of life, I think Pampa is very impressive."

Pink said it was hard for her to find any real negative aspects or disadvantages to mention in her analysis.

"You are a desirable community," but it will take sustained effort to maintain the already good quality of life and to make the city an even better place for people to live and work, Pink said.

Among the "plus" factors she cited were a "very fine" parks system, good school facilities, post-secondary educational opportunities with Clarendon College, a good hospital and good doctors and medical facilities, a good auditorium that is being managed professionally, friendly people, a varied range of pricing for housing, a strong retail base, and local industries and people who recognize the importance of economic development through participation in the Main Street Program and TEXCEL (Texas Cities for Economic Leadership).

"I look forward to seeing your progress," Pink said, adding that Pampa is "going to be a super community to watch."

At the town hall meeting, Pink

U.S. House race focuses on oil, farm issues

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

The two men talk about many of the same issues and seem to have many of the same goals.

But the challenger calls the incumbent a total failure, while the congressman tells of his successes and future hopes.

Democrat Doug Seal, a Wellington farmer and former state Democratic Party official, is hoping to upset 13th District U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, a Republican seeking his second term after beating five-term incumbent Jack Hightower in 1984.

But Boulter, 44, an Amarillo attorney and former city commissioner, seems to have the advantage, having raised more than $650,000 in campaign funds in the past two years. Seal, also in his early 40s, has raised only about $30,000 for his campaign drive.

Seal has attacked Boulter as a failure in such regional economic concerns as the petroleum and agriculture businesses, trying to attach much of the blame for current economic problems on the congressman.

Boulter recognizes those are serious concerns but contends he has made President Reagan and other administration and congressional leaders aware of the need to find workable solutions that will benefit his constituents.

Seal says the 13th District congressman needs to represent the people of the district and not blindly follow the party line. He said compromises might have to be made at times to gain influence with other leaders in Washington to better help the district in the long run.

He claims Reagan's national policy has led to many of the economic problems facing this region while Boulter has stood idly by, allowing the oil and agriculture sectors to fall apart.

The Wellington candidate said an oil import fee is needed, with import and export policies developed to revamp the farm program. He thinks Boulter has generally been ineffective in these areas.

Boulter, however, cites his close involvement in bringing oil and farm problems to the attention of the President and his advisers.

"I think we need a coherent, national energy policy," Boulter said in a recent interview, with efforts made to stabilize prices. He feels a properly structured oil import fee, with no exemptions for any country, should be imposed, if not by Congress then through Reagan's administrative powers.

Boulter also believes incentives should be given to oil and gas producers for further exploration, drilling and production efforts, with other tax credits offered to help marginally producing wells be more profitable to operate.

"I am the recognized leader" in the House "for pushing for those issues," Boulter contended. He said he has been the most effective congressman in getting the administration's attention focused on those matters, citing various proposed bills and conferences and meetings with Reagan and his advisers. Such meetings have taken Reagan "a long way" toward realizing the seriousness of the petroleum industry's economic problems, Boulter said.

Boulter has been appointed to an interagency task force to present an oil import fee study in December. He said the president also has endorsed an energy packet Boulter helped prepare.

The packet calls for repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax, the Fuel Use Act and of incremental pricing of gas. It also mandates that Canadian import gas be priced with U.S. natural gas, mandates carrying natural gas through pipelines without any discrimination favoring Canadian gas and calls for studies on the impact of imported crude oil and the effects of an oil import fee.

Seal has flailed at Reagan's policies for creating the current agriculture depression, with land values down 40 percent and the lowest parity in years.

He has supported a competitive rate of return to farmers comparable to that earned by other American industries. He also feels the family farm remains "as central to the success of the American agriculture as ever."

"Boulter has done nothing to help here," Seal said, adding that the incumbent either has no influence or is not using it correctly.

But Boulter countered that "the first thing to realize is that we have never recovered from the farm embargoes imposed by President Carter." Carter's embargoes made the U.S. an undependable supplier, with markets lost to other nations, Boulter claimed.

Boulter also noted the U.S. government has been subsidizing foreign farm nations "so they can get money to pay back U.S. banks." But that policy has created a situation in which "our farmer is losing markets to the very nations we've been subsidizing."

Seal

Boulter

He noted he has helped introduce the Foreign Agricultural Investment Reform (FAIR) bill "to eliminate subsidizing our competition." Boulter said the bill has passed in the U.S. Senate, but he and other supporters have not been able to get the Democratic-controlled House to bring the bill up for a vote.

"We need to free the U.S. farmer from restrictions" that prohibit more competitive policies, he said. "We need to do whatever it takes to get our markets back." Then farm prices will go up as will profits, Boulter said.

Farmers have been "a victim of government, a hostage of government policy," he declared. "They have been bludgeoned by bad government policy in the past." Boulter said the government drive, he said, they should not block traffic but instead get out of their vehicles and walk the blocks with their youngsters.

Ryzman also advised parents to look closely at all candy their young ghosts and witches receive, and discard that which appears to have been tampered with or simply looks unusual.

"Any candy that does not appear top-notch in any way, shape or form, throw it away," he said.

Danny Lance, the department's school liaison officer, reminded parents that Coronado Community Hospital will be X-raying candy for metal objects at the hospital from 6 to 8 p.m. tonight. He said the hospital provides an extra opportunity for parents to be safe but cautioned that X-rays will not detect poison or other non-metallic objects.

Lance and Ryzman also recommended that parents take their youngsters to "controlled" Halloween functions such as haunted houses, church parties or merchants' candy giveaways, where

High Windy

Trustees actually moved the building to where the most students were living. The school saw four locations in its 40 years of existence.

The name changed also—from Plaines, to Snowden Lake to Davis School. But it always kept its nickname—High Windy.

With the 1920s oil boom drawing residents to town, the school closed in 1929.

The building was reborn in 1943, to house the new Lutheran congregation that had been established in Pampa two years earlier. The Lutherans moved the church one more time to 1200 N. Duncan. They added 12 feet to the rear of the building for a pastor's study, a kitchen and a small restroom and built a small entryway in front.

They had made so many changes to the interior that Brogdin feels that the historic value may have been harmed.

they can be better assured their children are having safe fun.

Lance plans to talk to youngsters about safety at the conclusion of this afternoon's Halloween parade, slated to begin at 5:30 in front of Lovett Memorial Library. The parade will wind up at the Central Fire Station, where youngsters will be given treats and shown cartoons.

Other safety tips provided by police include:

- making sure costumes are not so long that the child could trip.
- placing reflective tape on all costumes.
- carrying a flashlight and walking on sidewalks, not streets, or, if there are no sidewalks, walking on the left side of the street, facing traffic.
- crossing streets at corners only after looking both ways and never running between parked cars.
- keeping children away from lit jack-o-lanterns, particularly if their costumes are flammable.

When the congregation chose to build a new sanctuary, members decided to sell and move the building rather than have such a historic structure torn down. The building was moved for the last time in April 1983, to the rodeo grounds to house the Pampa Trap and Skeet Club.

Brogdin believes that, through volunteer work, the building can be restored.

"It's been moved eight times, and it's still in pretty good shape," he said.

Ironically, the building's shell was not the only thing that escaped the flames. The fire didn't even touch some chocolate candy bars in a bowl of Halloween candy.

While tables burned, ceramic pumpkins broke and plastic melted, the chocolate bars remained intact, the HERSHEY'S logo still legible.

said it's important for people to know economic development is not just a new location of a business in the community. She stressed the city should work with the existing business base for expansion, noting the retail base offers strong potential.

"You have the potential for being a regional market center for outside towns" in the surrounding area, she observed. She said the community should concentrate on the local retail sectors and get more people shopping here instead of going to Amarillo.

"Paying attention to the service sector is also important," Pink said. Outside visitors get impressions of the city more often from service station attendants, waitresses, hotel and motel employees and other service personnel, she noted.

It's important that those people enjoy living in the city and realize how they can affect others' impressions of Pampa by their service, attitude and comments.

"We are each public relation personalities for visitors to the community," Pink said. Residents need to realize that aspect, "talk up Pampa more and be more positive," she added.

now needs to protect the farmer until he gets back in good shape.

Disputing Seal's claim that he has been a failure, Boulter said there must be realism in how much he and the other Texas congressmen can achieve in a short period.

"Northeastern liberals, controlled by Democrats, look to Texas for only two things: taxes to run their giveaway programs and cheap fuel," he said.

It takes a lot of hard work and consistent efforts to persuade others to come around to finding the solutions needed to help the ailing oil and agriculture sectors, Boulter noted. And he feels he has been doing that.

Questions raised about nuke dump

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Four congressmen have asked the Department of Energy to explain documents that studied the possibility of using only one site to hold all the nation's high-level radioactive wastes.

In a letter sent Wednesday to Energy Secretary John H. Herrington, the congressmen allege that the Energy Department may have violated the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 by authorizing the studies.

Under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, two sites are to be selected. Three western sites have been chosen as finalists for the first repository, which would be restricted to 70,000 metric tons of uranium until the second repository is named. A metric ton of uranium is about 2,200 pounds.

"If you don't like living in Pampa, how can you sell it to others?" she asked, saying the community should take the good qualities it already has and work to make the city even better for people already living here.

Manufacturing and other industries "are nice to have," she said, but that sector is in a decline for producing additional jobs. Those firms are becoming more automated and requiring less people to work, a trend likely to continue over the next 50 years, Pink said.

Those businesses are also going overseas for inexpensive labor, cutting back on the opportunities for low-skilled labor to find a secondary income source for many families, she noted.

"You're going to see more success in this area by helping local businesses expand," she said. Businesses and firms with 20 employees or less are growing fast. "We're likely to see more small operations than ever before," Pink stated.

"Production and manufacturing can't be your whole focus," she warned, again noting that economic development is "far broader than bringing in outside bill. Seal said he has not looked at all the details yet but feels increased funding is needed to control the national borders. He also expressed reservations about sanctions against immigrant farm labor in this region.

Boulter said, "I am totally against it (the bill). It's a horrible thing for America." He said the bill's cornerstone is amnesty for immigrants already in the U.S., with it now being legal for them to bring in their families within five years, doubling the immigrant population and adding to welfare and education expenses.

"We could have had total immigration reform," he said.

Boulter also attacked the passed sanctions against South Africa as "about the most stupid thing" Congress has done during his term.

Board recommends private funds for WTSU overrun

AUSTIN (AP) — West Texas State University has to come up with $211,000 in private funds to cover part of the cost overruns on its new $991,000 president's home, the College Coordinating Board has decided.

The man now living in the home at the Canyon campus told the board the school does not have the money.

"We don't have money on hand through private sources at this time," WTSU President Ed Roach told the board Thursday.

The 18-member board, meeting as a committee, Thursday supported its staff's recommendation to make WTSU pick up some of the overrun costs. A final vote was set for today.

In October 1984, the board OK'd $494,900 for the new house. WTSU officials said they spent the additional money without coordinating board approval because they misunderstood board construction cost policies.

"Our board believed in the beginning, and continues to believe, that that project is a good and valuable addition to our campus. In retrospect, we believe our interpretation of coordinating board procedure left something wanting," Roach told the board.

After Roach's brief presentation, coordinating board members, with two dissenting votes, recommended approval of the staff proposal that said $185,700 of the $991,000 spent on the home could be attributed to related projects that did not need board approval.

The recommendation as approved by the board said WTSU should have been allowed to spend $593,880 on the house because of board policy that allows approval of overruns up to 20 percent.

Roach, who moved into the 7,301-square-foot home with his family last summer, told the board that a "significant portion of that house is for guest quarters which we think will enhance our ability to bring key figures to the university."

Board member Ray Clymer of Wichita Falls said there was no basis for claims that the board's policies on construction costs were unclear.

"This form clearly defines the definition of what should go into the cost," he said, adding that the form called for the "total budget required to occupy the new facility."

"I fail to find out where the misunderstanding is," Clymer told Roach.

After the meeting, Roach read a brief statement that said, in part, "The coordinating board has now acted on this matter. Our next step will be to take the coordinating board's action back to our board of regents."

Roach declined to answer reporters' questions. The two dissenting votes came from board members Jess Ben Latham of Amarillo and Philip Warner of Houston.

Latham said WTSU students might suffer if the funds have to be raised privately.

"There are funds available to fund the difference in what we recommended and what was spent. Regardless of the merits of the arguments, West Texas will now have to end up raising those funds privately. Those private funds could go to other student uses. My feeling is it ends up more of a punitive situation than what I felt was practical," Latham said.

Warner said he had concerns about whether the state should pay any portion of the cost overruns.

Houston wooing Democrats for 1988 National Convention

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Mark White and Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire insist the nation's fourth-largest city is prepared to host the 1988 Democratic National Convention.

"We plan to convince the Site Selection Committee there can be no other choice," Mrs. Whitmire said Thursday night at a $1,000-a-plate fundraiser kicking off four days of briefings and dining for 56 delegates from around the country who will decide on a site for the convention.

"We have full buildings and not so full buildings," White said. "We're ready for you. You are in the city of the future."

"We also have the spirit that we will translate victory in that convention to victory in November (1988)," he said.

"It's not just the civic leadership of Houston, but the eyes of Houston are upon you," added U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. "No state in the union will extend more hospitality. Even though times are a bit tough, Houston has its head up and colors flying."

Democratic National Committee Chairman

Paul Kirk said White's re-election to a second term next week, while a factor in the decision, would not be the major item in the process.

"It helps," he said of White's bid for a second term. "But I think it will be a moot point," he added, predicting a White victory over Republican challenger Bill Clements.

"Every city has its pros and cons," he said. "We'll weigh all the factors and take an accounting. Until that time the process is wide open."

Kirk, however, criticized Republicans for what he called a limp-wristed policy on trade, callous policy on agriculture and no policy on energy.

He said Clements was "looking at the future through a rearview mirror."

"I'd like to think Mark White is making some tough choices today to invest in the future," Kirk said.

The Site Selection Committee and its entourage, which with party officials and guests swells to about 120 people, already has visited Atlanta and Kansas City. Other inspection tours are slated for New Orleans, Washington and New York.

Man who kept dead mother in chair kills self, officials say

HOUSTON (AP) — A reclusive man who kept his dead mother propped in a rocking chair for more than a year probably killed himself after he was forced to realize she was dead, the man's brother said.

The Harris County Medical Examiner's Office ruled Thursday the death of John Parks, 67, a suicide, spokesman J.F. Ebdon said.

Authorities found Parks Wednesday in a bedroom with a gun in his hand after they obtained a court order to check on his mother.

Ann Morgan, his mother, was found in a rocking chair in the front room, wearing a night gown and rubber boots, investigators said. Air fresheners surrounded the body, officials said.

A preliminary medical report on Thursday indicated she had been dead for more than a year, said Daniel W. Turner, police spokesman. An autopsy was pending Thursday, he said.

"She looked just like a mummy," Turner said. "She was nothing but a skeleton."

Officials said Parks shot himself about two or three days before he and his 89-year-old mother were found in their apartment near Rice University.

"It is rather bizarre," police spokesman J.C. Mosier said.

City approves fire contract

Pampa city commissioners Tuesday approved an annual fire contract with Gray County calling for four installment payments in 1987.

The contract calls for an annual $85,000 payment for city fire service and related emergency services into unincorporated areas of the county.

Gray County will make four installment payments of $21,250 each in March, June, September and December next year.

The Gray County Commissioners Court has already approved the 1987 contract.

Meeting in the newly remodeled City Commission Room on the third floor of City Hall, commissioners also:

- authorized warrants of payments to Traffic Signals Inc. for $5,700; Wagner and Klein, $2,175; Kelley Engineering, $7,231; and Lewis Construction Co. Inc., $93,991, regarding street and City Hall projects;

- approved an annual contract with Gray County for fire service at $85,000, with payments to be made in four installments;

- awarded a bid of $17,370 to Factory Sales for the purchase of city employee uniforms;

- approved a change order for landscaping of Somerville Street medians and City Hall, substituting 2-inch pecan trees for originally specified 3-inch pecans, at a savings of approximately $1,400;

- approved the appointment of Mrs. David E. Holt to the Lovett Memorial Library Board;

- declared surplus items and set Nov. 8 as the date for an auction of the items; and

- approved two accounts payable.

Two city employees received special recognition for their services to the public.

Policeman John Goes was given a PRIDE certificate for a letter written by a woman praising Goes for his "courtesy and kindness" in a time of need concerning the death of the woman's mother.

Firefighter Ted Cain was given a Superlative Performance Award for his assistance in calming a child who recently had his hand caught under a train. The recommendation was made by Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman and Lt. Jess Wallace.

Directories list wrong number for emergency ambulance calls

A number of callers telephoning Pampa Medical Services for ambulance service have been dialing the wrong number, PMS Operations Manager Chris Black said Tuesday.

Black said all four telephone books serving Pampa list Pampa Medical Service's business number under "ambulance service" in the white pages, not the emergency dispatch number, causing some citizens to contact the office number when trying to call for an ambulance.

The correct emergency number, listed on the inside front cover in three of the four books, is 665-0077.

"We're getting more and more calls at that office number," Black said. "A call to the incorrect number may cause unnecessary delays in dispatching an ambulance. These delays could cause the loss of life or limb.

"We encourage everyone to make note of the emergency number, 665-0077, in their phone books or near their phones," he added.

Black said emergency ambulance calls placed in Pampa are routed through the Amarillo Communications Center, where they are dispatched by Panhandle Emergency Medical Services Systems.

The four phone books serving Pampa are a city directory published by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., an area directory published by High Plains Telephone Directories Inc. of Amarillo, The Panhandler, published by Spring Publications of Amarillo, and a Pampa-Borger area directory. All list the business office number in their white pages.

POW-MIA trek

Joyce Lynch of Littleton, Colo., a supporter of the POW-MIA movement, walks along U.S. Highway 87 north of San Angelo Thursday as part of the "Texas Trek." The trek is a more than 1,000 mile walk from Colorado to

San Antonio by Vietnam veterans and supporters to raise public awareness of the fact that over 2,000 servicemen who fought in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos are still unaccounted for.

Aerial survey shows few spots of red tide remain in Texas Gulf

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An aerial survey showed few traces of the red tide that has plagued Texas' Gulf Coast for two months, prompting some state officials to say conditions are returning to normal.

"We're reluctant to say it's over but the sea is clear and green," said Hal Osburn, harvest program leader with the Coastal Fisheries Branch of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Things are looking a lot better in the bays." The aerial survey on Thursday from Matagorda Bay to Port Mansfield showed only traces of the red tide in the Corpus Christi Bay and the Upper Laguna Madre Bay, just south of Corpus Christi, Osburn said. Some blooms of the red tide also were found in Port Mansfield, he said.

"It could have basically run its course, used up its nutrients, other organisms could have been preying on it," Osburn said. "There are a number of things that could have caused its demise. A little bit cooler temperatures could have helped."

He speculated strong currents could have pushed the red tide into Mexican coastal areas.

Red tide is an explosion of microscopic organisms that release a toxin that suffocates fish and irritates the mucous membranes of humans.

The tide first appeared near Galveston in August and then flared with a large fish kill on Brazoria County beaches in early September. Earlier this month, red tide could be found from Matagorda Bay to the state's border with Mexico.

Osburn estimated the red tide killed at least tens of thousands of fish and maybe as much as millions.

Can We Talk?

I would like to discuss some little known facts about my husband, Buddy Epperson. In 1982 The Pampa Chamber of Commerce asked Buddy to organize a group of people to build a public golf course for the Pampa Area. He responded to the Chambers request, even though he could play golf anytime he wished on the Celanese Golf Course, of which he is now a life-time member.

Buddy is definitely not a quitter! For almost four years he has fought diligently for a commitment made to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, which later became a commitment to the citizens of the Pampa area. During this time he has suffered many setbacks from past chamber and city officials and the county, but he refused to back down.

There have been personal attacks on his integrity and he has been accused of being in it only for personal gain, when his desire was to follow through with a commitment to make the Pampa area a more desirable place to live. Now in his bid for Gray County Commissioner, he has been accused of being a one issue candidate even though the fate of the golf course lies solely in the hands of the voters in 1987.

Buddy has been a dedicated family man, employee (Celanese Chemical Co. 30 years) and community worker, (Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees, 7 years) and Gray County should have a dedicated full time County Commissioner. I know he is the best man for the job. Gray County, you do have a choice. Join me in WRITING IN BUDDY EPPERSON, COUNTY COMMISSIONER PRECINCT 4.

*Sincerely,
Joyce Epperson*

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Nobel prize winner grasps the problem

For those who believe in the efficacy of market processes, the decision by the Swedish Academy of Sciences back in 1969 to begin awarding a Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences has been gratifying.

Among economists who have done original work reflecting the highest academic standards, most in our era understand market processes; they have developed a needed skepticism toward government attempts to manipulate or "fine-tune" the economy.

The most recent recipient of the Nobel Prize in Economics is James McGill Buchanan, now teaching at George Mason University in Virginia and a director of the Center for the Study of Public Choice. The name of the center reflects the signal contribution Buchanan and some of his colleagues (most notably Professor Gordon Tullock) have made to a more sophisticated understanding of how choices are made in "public" bodies.

Civics-class mythology holds that government officials and agencies make disinterested, rational and altruistic decisions in the "public interest" that guide economic activities for the benefit of all. Buchanan understood that, in the words of the Nobel citation, "Individuals who behave selfishly in markets can hardly behave wholly altruistically in political life. This results in analyses which indicate that political parties or authorities that... acting out of self-interest will try to obtain as many votes as possible in order to reach positions of power or receive large budget allocations."

Or as Buchanan himself put it recently: "Public choice is little more than the insight that politicians and bureaucrats are ordinary people just like the rest of us."

The professor is too modest. He has applied that insight systematically to analyses of government decision-making processes, helping to explain why governments make decisions that so often seem counterproductive or irrational. Given the kind of institution government is, say public-choice theorists, such irrational decisions are not surprising at all. Buchanan says that he tends toward a libertarian view back to James Madison.

James Buchanan has been developing and refining his insights and explicating their implications for a long time. His contributions along the borders between economics and politics have been enormous. He is truly a worthy recipient of this honor.

Spending cuts require guts

Last December, after several years spent avoiding measures to reduce the federal deficit, Congress passed a bill to make itself take those measures. With the chaotic business of approving a budget for 1987 completed, it's time to consider the question: Has Gramm-Rudman been a success or a failure?

The law was a devilishly clever way of relieving the constant pressure to increase federal spending without forcing taxpayers to cough up more money to pay for it. It established a stern deficit limit for each fiscal year, starting with $144 billion in 1987 and shrinking to zero in 1991.

Congress and the president had the choice of reducing spending or raising taxes, or both, to meet those limits. If they failed, the president would have to implement across-the-board cuts in federal outlays, a process known "sequestration," which was designed to be even worse than it sounds. The prospect of those indiscriminate cuts, it was hoped, would make it easier for the politicians to choke down their medicine.

There were plenty of reasons to expect failure, starting with a Supreme Court ruling which excised the heart of the law. The court said it was unconstitutional to give the comptroller general, who is removable by Congress, the power to estimate the deficit for each fiscal year and — if his estimate exceeded the limit — to order the president to cut spending.

That decision removed the threat of the automatic cuts, which were the one thing Congress presumably would fear more than reducing the deficit. All the members have to do now to overrule Gramm-Rudman's limits is to vote to do so. That is no stricter a discipline than having to raise the government's total debt ceiling, which is an annual routine.

Actually, as was proved this year, they don't even have to do that. They simply can decree the coming year's deficit to be within the ceiling, even if everyone knows it isn't. Without the check provided in the original law, who's going to stop them?

No one, that's who. The 1987 deficit was set at a maximum of $144 billion, with a $10 billion margin of error. But although Congress claims to have hit the $154 billion target, less biased experts put it closer to $180 billion.

To make up look like down, the lawmakers had to pull out tricks they didn't know they had. One, used for revenue sharing and Medicare, was breathtakingly cynical. Instead of counting this year's spending as part of this year's budget, Congress charged it to last year's account — which reduced real outlays not at all.

Another ploy was to sell off assets, including Conrail and $4 billion worth of federal loans to small business, farmers and students. These reduced the deficit for 1987 while raising the deficit for 1988, 1989 and beyond.

As a matter of policy, it makes sense for Washington to turn these over to the private sector, which can administer them more efficiently. But they aren't what Gramm-Rudman was supposed to induce. If you cut Social Security spending this year, you build in savings for every subsequent year. If you sell Conrail, you get a one-time windfall. Next year, you have to find ways to save that amount all over again. But the cynical view isn't the whole story. One reason Congress had to find gimmicks like these was the pressure of Gramm-Rudman. It is now the practice on Capitol Hill that anyone proposing a new spending program also recommend a way to pay for it — by taking the money from another program or by finding new revenues. In the Senate, any member can block a bill if it violates Gramm-Rudman, with a three-fifths vote required to overrule him.

The results are tangible. The real deficit won't be $154 billion, but neither will it be $230 billion, as it was last year. This year's outlays are expected to be only 1 percent or 2 percent above last year's — the smallest increase in 20 years. In the past 10 election years, the average increase in spending was 11.4 percent. A coincidence?

Still, nothing would do more to restore Gramm-Rudman's potency than to resurrect the threat of automatic cuts, which could be done by giving the Office of Management and Budget the authority formerly lodged in the comptroller general. Without the change, it's hard to imagine Congress will meet the even tougher 1988 limit of $108 billion.

Though the Senate voted to do that this year, the House balked. If House members are as serious about the deficit as they claimed to be last December, they hardly can justify their refusal.

It may be, as Sen. Lowell Weicker, D-Conn., complained last year, that this approach is "a legislative substitute for the guts we don't have to do what needs to be done." Until Congress comes up with real guts, does anyone have a better substitute?

Returning to the old ways

Pity the Secretary of Agriculture — any Secretary of Agriculture.

Agriculture has become too many things for any one policy or panacea.

Farming in some states is mostly catfish, for heaven's sake!

But Gene Logsdon found one Ohio farmer who was able to "shuck right down to the cob."

He said, "Farming started to go downhill the day they put lights on tractors. Since then we go out and work all night like a bunch of fools and produce twice as much as we need."

"If they'd melt down every tractor that could pull more than a three-bottom plow, you'd get rid of the big-cash grain farmers and the surplus and the subsidies."

Is it as simple as that?

We hear most about the 9 percent of American farmers going broke, some selling out, but 42 percent of Ohio's farmers are not only solvent, they owe nothing, have no debt at all.

Logsdon, who grew up on a farm near Upper Sandusky, wonders if we might ever find our way home to the farms of our childhood — or if we want to.

That farm had a passel of children underfoot, a barnyard crammed with cows, horses, pigs, sheep, chickens, ducks, geese, cats, dogs and bees.

From woodlands were harvested pheasant, squirrel or just the song of the meadowlark.

Orchards groaned with fruit. Truck patches included potatoes and strawberries. Kitchen gardens overflowed with vegetables. Smokehouses were full of meat. There were fish in the creek and in the horse tank.

Every nook and cranny of the farm pulsated with life.

And while this life pressed us with an eternal round of chores it also provided a kind of circus atmosphere of entertainment.

Above the cackles and mooings and squeals of the barnyard, a visitor would also hear whistling in the haymow or a feminine voice singing in the kitchen.

If our lives back then were as drab and dull and endlessly toilsome as the sociologists would have the modern world believe — why were we always singing?

The singing began to stop when farming went wholesale, when farming came to mean more mortgage to buy more land so's to drive bigger tractors.

With a banker on our tail, groves and orchards were cut down to make way for more cash grain. The plow licked closer to the dooryard every year in a piteously vain effort to wring a few more dollars' worth of grain from the land. Who needed orchards and gardens when Kroger was there?

But then came wet years or dry years and low prices and high interest and a vast wasteland of rusting John Deeres and shiny Coors cans.

Is there a way back? Yes. We could retrace our steps. We may have to.

Popular opinion stomps court's integrity

By Robert Walters

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — The political campaign originally launched as a right-wing vendetta against the chief justice of California's Supreme Court now threatens the integrity of the judicial system in California and elsewhere.

Chief Justice Rose Elizabeth Bird is virtually certain to be deposed when Californians vote in early November on whether to extend her tenure an additional 12 years. Indeed, no recent survey of public opinion suggests that she has any chance to survive the election.

The court's conservative critics are also seeking to unseat two of the other eight justices. No member of California's highest court has ever been dumped from office, but the expected success of the conservative campaign against Bird is likely to embolden ideologues elsewhere to mount political campaigns against judges with whose decisions they disagree.

Retired California Supreme Court Justice Otto Kaus likens judges' fears about public reprisals over unpopular rulings to living in a house with a crocodile in the bathtub.

"You cannot forget that you have a crocodile in the bathtub," he notes. "You keep wondering whether you're letting yourself be influenced and you do not know."

A more immediate threat faces three of the six justices whose continued tenure must be approved by the voters this year — Bird, Cruz Reynoso and Joseph Grodin.

All have been targeted by the court's organized critics and are cited by name in a television commercial that stars the grieving mother of a 12-year-old girl killed in the late 1970s by a convicted sex offender.

"The man who kidnapped and killed her is still alive," the mother says in the ad. "Rose Bird, Cruz Reynoso and Joseph Grodin overturned her death sentence, as they have for so many other brutal killers. Your vote can stop them from letting other killers escape justice."

That murderer's conviction was overturned on a relatively technical point — the Supreme Court held that the trial court judge erred when he allowed prosecutors to introduce evidence of the defendant's prior convictions for molesting young girls.

But the advertisement conveniently ignores the fact that the murderer has been retried, has been convicted a second time and again faces a death sentence.

The principal criticism of Bird is that she has voted to reverse the convictions in every one of 57 death penalty cases to come before the court during her tenure. Not mentioned by the critics are two important facts: She voted with the court majority in 54 of the 57 cases and in no instance has a convicted killer been freed because of a court reversal.

After the election, what will remain is that "alligator in the bathtub" — the subconscious concern among judges in California and other states that could cause them to care more about popularity than fairness in rendering future decisions.

Natural gas producers seek ease of controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas producers feel they could take a $5 billion bite out of the federal trade deficit annually if the government eased price controls and mandated access to the country's interstate pipeline network.

Figures released by the Commerce Department on Thursday showed the trade deficit for September was $12.6 billion, with oil imports accounting for $3.1 billion, or about $12 billion a year.

Nicholas J. Bush, president of the Natural Gas Supply Association, said in a prepared statement that at least $5 billion could be cut from the oil import figure each year with greater deregulation.

"The inability of natural gas producers to get their gas to markets has been an important contribution to the U.S. balance of payments deficit since 1982," Bush said, citing a study prepared by his organization.

The NGSAA study concludes government price controls on natural gas cannot react keep up with the rapidly fluctuating prices of the global oil market. Foreign producers have no such restraints and so can undercut U.S. producers.

Price controls on domestic natural gas apply only to fuel produced before 1978, called "old gas," according to Robert Isaac, a spokesman for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The Department of Energy has asked FERC to look into rule changes that would ease those controls in order to give domestic gas producers more freedom on the open market, Isaac said.

Bush's study also blames restricted access to interstate pipelines for choking off the sale of natural gas equal to 1 million barrels of imported oil per day.

"In 1985 alone, U.S. imports of petroleum products cost the country $52.4 billion, while over 2 trillion cubic feet of domestic gas, which could have replaced imported oil was 'shut in' for lack of access to markets," Bush said.

Isaac said current federal law asks that pipeline companies voluntarily provide access to transport natural gas, but doesn't require them to do so.

But Ray Courage, spokesman for the Interstate Natural Gas Association, said pipelines are in the business of carrying gas and have been carrying as much as they can handle.

He said 80 percent of the country's pipeline companies have filed with the FERC for "blanket certificates to be open access pipelines."

"They call it voluntary, but it's closer to mandatory," Courage said.

Isaac said before deregulation of the natural gas industry in 1978, the pipeline companies traditionally served as both the purchaser and transporter of gas, but that has changed in recent years.

"Since deregulation in 1978 there has been a shift in the market. Users have started going to the producers and buying, then going to the pipelines for transportation," Isaac said.

Ag Department vows war on forest narcotics growers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials, backed by tough new law enforcement powers, are vowing to wipe out thousands of tons of marijuana grown on clandestine plantations deep in the national forests.

A 500-member unit will investigate marijuana growers representing a "highly organized criminal element" and guarding their forest enclaves with snipers, attack dogs and lethal traps, officials said Thursday.

Agriculture Department agents will be equipped with see-in-the-dark spy scopes and other high-tech devices in the war on growers who produce $1 billion worth of marijuana in the national forests annually, amounting to 20 percent of the U.S. crop, the officials said.

They said the danger to tourists and forest rangers from the growers has become so great that 940,000 of the national forest system's 191 million acres are now under "constrained management," meaning federal workers try to avoid them and warn tourists they are too dangerous to enter.

"I consider this to be an intolerable situation," Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng told a news conference that included a videotape of agents in camouflage combat fatigues launching a military-style assault on a hut surrounded by forest.

It also depicted agents ripping out cannabis plants and feeding them into a fire that produced clouds of smoke. It showed another group tacking up a "pot-buster" poster showing a green marijuana leaf with a red line through it and warning that growing it was illegal.

"Our goal is a very simple one — we hope to make the national forests free of marijuana," Lyng said.

The National Forest Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department, made public a map showing heavy marijuana growing activity in Northern California, Southern Illinois and the Ozarks, among other places.

George Dunlop, the assistant secretary of agriculture for natural resources and environment, told the news conference that the growers were part of a "highly organized criminal element."

"These aren't just casual counterculture-type folk who are back in the woods," said Dunlop, a former Marine and one-time aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Dunlop will spearhead the drive, which was authorized at a level of $20 million by the newly minted anti-drug law.

On hand to demonstrate booby traps that have been removed from the national forests was Special Agent Ed Few, who worked in California until recently.

Government will honor plea bargain in Walker spy case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department intends to honor its plea bargain with convicted Soviet spies John and Michael Walker although some officials believe polygraph tests show John Walker has not told the whole truth about his 17-year-long spy ring in the Navy.

Two government sources, who declined to be identified by name, said Thursday that top Justice officials have decided the Walkers should be sentenced as planned on Nov. 6 under an agreement calling for John Walker to receive a life prison term and his son, former Navy Yeoman Michael Walker, to get 25 years in prison.

To obtain these sentences, the Walkers pleaded guilty and promised to tell all they knew about the spy ring that allowed the Soviets to read 1 million classified Navy cables.

Nevertheless, the sources said polygraph tests of John Walker and his brother, former Navy Lt. Cmdr. Arthur Walker, also convicted in the case, have produced suspicions about when the spy ring began, who started it and whether others were involved besides the four already known.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell refused to comment on the case, but the sources said the department would let today's deadline for any motion to back out of the deal pass without action.

The bargain was attacked publicly by Navy Secretary John Lehman as too lenient, because John Walker could be considered for parole in 10 years. It is considered virtually inconceivable that he would be granted a release then, however. Michael could be considered for parole in eight years and four months.

New polygraph tests were completed Wednesday and Thursday at the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., where John Walker is being held. "He's not changed his story," his attorney Fred Warren Bennett of Baltimore said Thursday.

"For myself and my client we're elated and very pleased if it's true" that the government will not challenge the plea bargain, Bennett said. He added that he expected to get an official notice by the close of business today.

One government source said the benefit of the doubt has to be given to the plea agreement unless the evidence is sufficient to outweigh it.

Government investigators still have suspicions about John Walker's candor, but they are not substantial enough to outweigh other considerations, this source said.

Pentagon is free to stop burning U.S. coal at West German bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 25 years, the Defense Department is free to stop shipping U.S. coal to West Germany to heat U.S. military bases, a program critics have charged is one of the government's oldest boondoggles.

The department still will have to buy 302,000 tons of Pennsylvania anthracite a year, but it no longer is barred from converting bases in West Germany to other fuels.

"We win and the Germans win," Jeffrey Jones, director of energy policies at the Pentagon, said in an interview Thursday.

West Germany has been insisting that U.S. bases comply with its air pollution laws, which Jones said would have meant "millions and millions of dollars" in pollution controls on coal-burning facilities.

The Pentagon could not switch from coal, however, because of a congressional mandate that banned converting the West German bases to other fuels.

In the face of the West German air pollution demands, the Pentagon last year proposed a trade: If the congressional restrictions on fuel-switching were dropped, the Pentagon would burn more coal at bases in the United States.

Oil prices surge with Yamani firing

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices for crude oil and refined products rose significantly after Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani was fired as oil minister of Saudi Arabia.

At the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for December delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed Thursday at $15.04 per 42-gallon barrel, up $1.31 from Wednesday's $13.73 close.

Prices for November delivery of refined products were also up significantly. Heating oil closed at 39.57 cents a gallon, up 2.8 cents, while unleaded gas sold for 40 cents a gallon, up 2.15 cents,

A Juarez city fireman walks past what is left of the Mercado Cuahatemoc, the old city market, which was gutted following an early morning fire Thursday.

Blaze destroys Juarez market

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Authorities are investigating a fire that destroyed a city-owned market, leaving smoldering ruins of a structure that had served as a central place to sell goods for almost a century.

Fire broke out early Thursday in the 81-year-old Mercado Cuahatemoc, causing an estimated $125,000 in damage, Fire Chief Manuel Calderon Sanchez said.

It was the second fire in the market's 81-year history.

The fire broke out shortly before 7 a.m. (6 a.m. El Paso time), Calderon-Sanchez said. No injuries were reported in the blaze, which was put out in two hours by about 30 firefighters.

Calderon Sanchez estimated about 100 million pesos ($125,000) in structural damage to the building, which sustained major damage on the roof and all three floors.

Bystanders looked on as a wrecking crew brought down what remained of the brick and cinder block walls.

Twisted, blackened metal girders criss-crossed the sky above what used to be the front entrance; the market's distinctive mural of the fierce Aztec ruler Cuahatemoc was obliterated.

Caged chickens, turkeys and parrots rescued from the fire squawked outside.

Inside, water dripped in steady sheets from the roof, forming puddles on the lower level around the legs of lunch counter stools.

A firefighter sloshed through the water in knee-high boots, biting into an apple he had taken from one of the stalls.

"We haven't had breakfast," he said. Soaked fruits and vegetables and other goods crammed tables everywhere.

Marta Elena Ramirez de Gonzalez said she was in the building when the fire broke out. She said she heard a popping sound and saw flames on the top floor. She and two others ran out and called for help.

She was one of about 75 merchants who gathered in a meeting hall nearby to discuss their future. Ramirez de Gonzalez said she had been assured by Juarez Mayor Jaime Bermudez Cuaron that the market would be rebuilt within six months.

In the meantime, merchants will be allowed to set up a temporary marketplace across the street from the ruins.

Addressing the others, she said, "It was a short circuit on the floor where the pinatas were." Her voice broke. "So that you know what happened. Friends, don't blame anyone because we are all family."

Andres Barraza Martin, the market's secretary general, urged the merchants to believe in the city's promise to rebuild the market. He asked them not to speculate on the cause of the blaze.

Thursday evening, fire Capt. Manuel Solis said investigators were still trying to determine the cause of the fire.

Hasenfus goes before the People's Tribunal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — U.S. mercenary Eugene Hasenfus gets a chance today to tell his side of the story to a revolutionary tribunal trying him for terrorism and conspiracy for his role in aiding Contra rebels.

The 45-year-old former Marine from Marinette, Wisconsin appears before the People's Tribunal, composed of a lawyer, truck driver and laborer, to respond to the leftist Sandinista government's charges and to examine the evidence against him.

It is his first appearance at the tribunal offices, a half mile from the U.S. Embassy, since he was arraigned on Oct. 20. He is being held in a prison outside Managua.

Hasenfus was a crewman on a rebel supply flight shot down Oct. 5 over southern Nicaragua by Sandinista forces. He was captured the next day and faces 30 years in prison if convicted. The other three crew members — two of them Americans — died when the C-123 cargo plane crashed.

The tribunal's decision to have Hasenfus appear was announced Thursday afternoon, after Attorney General Rodrigo Reyes asked that he brought to the court.

The tribunal said it would hear Saturday from Jose Fernando Canales, the Sandinista soldier who shot down the aircraft with a shoulder-held surface-to-air missile, making him an instant national hero.

Next week, the tribunal is to hear from various Sandinista military and Interior Ministry officials and will view a videotape of the CBS program "60 Minutes" in which Hasenfus was interviewed by Mike Wallace.

President Daniel Ortega, in separate appearances before three labor groups Thursday night, made no mention of Hasenfus, limiting his remarks to domestic matters. However, at the close of the third rally, Ortega led a crowd of hundreds in a popular chant that has become the Sandinista battlecry, "Here, there, the Yankees will die." The chant rhymes in Spanish.

Over the weekend, the president hinted at the possibility that Hasenfus, whose conviction is considered extremely likely, might eventually be pardoned by the Sandinista government.

The tribunal has been studying about 130 pieces of evidence submitted by the prosecution on Wednesday, and awaited more documents and statements from witnesses.

Reyes said he asked Reynaldo Monterrey, tribunal president, to call Hasenfus, to be accompanied in court by his Nicaraguan lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borgen.

The court has eight days, counting from Wednesday, to receive evidence from the prosecution and defense. It may extend the period by four days.

Reyes said he is waiting for the court to act on his Wednesday request to name experts to help in determining the authenticity of the identification cards, flight maintenance log and other papers found in the wreckage of the C-123 or carried by Hasenfus and the two American pilots.

Hasenfus has said he took part in 10 CIA-coordinated arms drops to Contra rebels from Ilopango military base in El Salvador and the U.S.-built Aguacate base in Honduras. Tons of arms were stored at Ilopango for shipment to the rebels, he has said.

Waldheim denies he was a witness to mass killings

By The Associated Press

Austrian President Kurt Waldheim denied fresh allegations that he fought Yugoslav partisans during a Nazi military operation and that Soviet intelligence tried to blackmail him into becoming an agent by threatening to charge him with war crimes, according to his spokesman.

Gerold Christian, the spokesman, made the comments after The Washington Post reported Thursday that Waldheim acknowledged after months of denial that he did serve in Kozara, the site of a brutal Nazi "pacification" operation.

Thousands of Yugoslavs died there during the operation in the spring and summer of 1942. The Post said Waldheim was recommended for a German army medal for his role.

It said that, in a 13-page memo sent to the Post in April, the former U.N. secretary-general denied he was involved in the operation to remove 80,000 residents, including 3,500 armed partisans, from Kozara, in the western part of Bosnia province.

Christian, who said Waldheim was in the Kozara area for a short period, quoted the president as saying he was not directly involved in fighting and did not witness mass killings.

Waldheim "never was present during combat action," Christian said. "He was unfit for the front and never had a rifle to shoot with. . . ."

"Waldheim never took part in any way in actions against partisans or Jews," Christian said.

Organ restorer captures its music on tape

By PETER M. GIG LIOTTI
The Chambersburg
Public Opinion

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — When William E. Black plays his music, he often wears ear-plugs and everyone, even the cat, leaves the room.

Black's music isn't pop or rock or Big Band, but it and its mechanical maker are big, very big.

Black restores Wurlitzer military band organs, mechanical makers of musical memories more familiar as the oom-pah-pah sound of merry-go-rounds, skating rinks and carnivals.

He has also started a business to sell nearly 60 cassette tapes, each with about 25 songs that grab the listener with almost tangible memories of youthful rides on merry-go-rounds, sawdust underfoot and the smell of cotton candy.

Black restores organs which can weigh up to 3,000 pounds and have up to 212 pipes.

The paper roll-playing organs — he says that makes them cousin to a player piano — are so loud that he limits summer playing of his basement-cluttering finds because he doesn't want neighbors who open windows during hot months to complain.

They're wood and a bit of leather combined with some electrical power to bring joy to the listener in a process that's relatively simple, but with great results. The motor spins, the roll rolls and the bellows pump, all to make the brass or wood pipes breathe music.

Black, 49, a dentist since 1964, wants to preserve the instruments and their music. "It would be sad if they were lost," he says of the military band organs not produced by Wurlitzer since the early 1930s.

Those that remain face a dim future of fewer and fewer skilled repair people and replacement by recorders that just play. Surviving organs, he said, are mostly found in larger parks for their nostalgic value or in small parks where they're kept by their owners out of love.

Black, who has five Wurlitzers and a French fair organ, said the organs, like other antiques, were worth only what someone was willing to pay.

His humidity-and temperature-controlled basement is filled with organs in various states of repair. Changes in those areas can cause wood to swell or shrink and ruin months of work.

Some gleam with a new-found soundness, their history told easily by Black as he pulls an extension cord to power an organ for an impromptu concert. Others, works in a pile, wait to function again. Their soundboards are broken, their pipes askew, and only an optimist could see and hear what they might be.

Black's fascination began in 1954 when he got a summer job at Hersheypark as a concession stand cashier within earshot of a merry-go-round.

"The following year I asked if I could work the merry-go-round. I was there for seven years." During those years he recorded other parks' organs for home play.

In 1971 he bought his first organ, a Wurlitzer Model 146, through a catalog from a North Carolina dealer. It was from Nebraska, where it was a caboose for a man who used his train engine-decorated car in parades. It was traded for another organ.

Model W155, built in 1909, is his rarest and the oldest non-modified model of that style. The other existing two were modified. Only 17 music rolls for the model exist. He has all 17.

His largest, Model 165, was Wurlitzer's largest production model. It was built in 1915 and is the oldest of that style for which the Cincinnati, Ohio-based Wurlitzer has records, Black said.

Others have come from Washington, D.C., Florida and France. His 1910 Gasparini was bought gutted, its Dutch owner's name and address still inside. Differences in models include number of pipes, size and musical capability.

Black said Wurlitzer's roll-playing mechanical machines had remained popular until introduction of the phonograph record.

Black, who played cornet in marching bands, says musical training helps, but most work is mechanical. Organs are reviewed in one piece, disassembled, cleaned, and rotted or missing wood pieces replaced and re-finished.

Governor campaigners call race close

AUSTIN (AP) — Two top opposing staffers in the Texas governor's race agree that they have done some things right, and some things wrong, in marketing their candidates this year.

Mark McKinnon, campaign press secretary for Democratic Gov. Mark White, and Karl Rove, who is in charge of Republican Bill Clements' direct mail campaign, also agreed Tuesday's election would be close.

"I think down to the wire," McKinnon told an audience of professional communicators Thursday.

"We are ahead comfortably but you have to win in Texas — if you are a Republican — by 2 or 3 percentage points or get it stolen. And this election has every opportunity to get it within the margin where it could be stolen," Rove said.

McKinnon was asked if he had similar fears, and he said White supporters are "concerned about this whole ballot security program ... Scaring off minority voters has been a pattern of Republican behavior for years."

Rove was asked to respond, and he said Republicans will have "poll watchers in precincts in which Republicans have had a consistent history of little or no votes."

McKinnon, subbing for White campaign manager John Painter Jr., and Rove spoke to a luncheon meeting of the Austin chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators.

Both staffers were asked what they thought they had done right and what they would have done differently for their candidates if they had it to do over again.

"We could in our media campaign have been tougher in the primary ... We took a lot of negative heat ... I think we've done an effective job of taking the makeup off Bill Clements," McKinnon said.

"Early on, Bill Clements, Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance signed a compact which basically said they would not say anything nasty about each other, and really before the ink was dry that sealed Bill Clements' victory. I'm sure in hindsight Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance would rethink the wisdom of that particular compact" since they lost without a runoff, McKinnon said.

Rove said, "The compact, like so many things, is a myth. ... There were extremely nasty things Hance and Loeffler said about Clements after the so-called agreement — there was no signed document."

Rove said one goal of the Clements' campaign had been to focus on the fact that there are "in people's minds generalized good feelings about four years that Bill Clements was governor and generalized or deeply specific dislike of what's gone on under Mark White."

"We should have earlier explained why Mark White is running such a dirty, nasty, negative, malicious, slanderous campaign. ... each day it reaches new depths. ... brings a new trashy load to the White campaign," Rove said.

McKinnon said, "Karl is trying to build an image (of Clements) of a benevolent businessman who served during Camelot days. The Clements campaign is trying to paint us as a politician — tax and spend you out of your existence."

YMCA teacher sentenced in sex abuse case

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A second El Paso YMCA preschool teacher has been sentenced to life in prison for sexually abusing students.

Gayle Stickler Dove, 42, was sentenced to life and three 20-year sentences after being convicted of sexually abusing four of her pupils.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated four hours Thursday in assessing Mrs. Dove's punishment. State District Judge Sam Callan said the 20-year terms will be served concurrently.

The trial was moved from El Paso, where authorities are investigating the sexual abuse of 16 children at the YMCA.

An El Paso jury in March sentenced another YMCA teacher, Michelle Noble, to life imprisonment and 311 years.

Defense attorney John Langford said he will file an appeal in Mrs. Dove's case.

Mrs. Dove, who was calm and composed during the 1½-week trial, hung her head and cried quietly during the punishment phase.

She wept as her husband and sister told jurors they would help Mrs. Dove comply with any court stipulations if she were granted probation.

Joe Dove told the jury he would do "anything, absolutely anything" to help his wife.

Langford told jurors he was disappointed in their verdict. He insisted Mrs. Dove was innocent in asking jurors to grant her 10-years' probation on all six counts.

"It may have been that she possibly was used or manipulated by someone else," Langford said.

He tried to blame the crime on Mrs. Dove's fellow teacher, Ms. Noble. "Perhaps she's guilty of bad judgment," Langford said. "Perhaps she's guilty of her friendship with Mickey Noble."

Assistant District Attorney Debra Kanof accused Langford of trying to make jurors feel guilty because of their verdict.

"But, there's only one person responsible for this, and that's Gayle Dove," Ms. Kanof said.

Group seeks to debunk female 'myth'

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You may have read about the large number of women who are dropping out of fast-track jobs at major corporations to start their own businesses so that they can spend more time at home raising families.

That reported trend, however, is probably a myth, says a research group that is seeking to debunk it.

Evidence to support the notion of the female dropout is circumstantial at best and depictions of such women seem to be based on selective surveys of a few of them chosen to prove the original premise, the group, called Catalyst, said in a recent report.

"One should be skeptical," said Arlene Johnson, a vice president of Catalyst.

"To say that they are leaving primarily for family reasons is to raise that old stereotype that women are less committed to their careers and are more oriented toward their families," Ms. Johnson said in an interview.

"They have the same career motivations as men and are more like men in career goals than unlike men," she said.

However, Catalyst — a not-for-profit organization that fosters the career and leadership development of women — doesn't offer much evidence to support its own contention.

Reliable statistics are not yet available on the dropout rate of managerial women, whether they do or do not go on to found new businesses, Catalyst said.

But, according to an unpublished Michigan State University study of mobility patterns at Fortune 500 companies, only a slightly higher percentage of corporate women than men bail out, the group said.

It's misleading to overlook the fact that for every woman who does leave the corporate sector there are many, many more who opt to remain, the group said.

It also makes sense that as women have begun to enter management in greater numbers, women also have elected to become self-employed in record numbers, Catalyst said.

And while American women are currently starting businesses at a rate nearly four times that of men, Catalyst said, that does not necessarily prove an exodus from the corporate sector.

In addition, statistics suggest that most of those who do leave, aren't doing it to raise families.

Catalyst cited a January 1984 study which reported that the "typical" woman entrepreneur does not start her own business until the age of 40 or later — after she has married, had children and worked outside the home for a number of years.

Catalyst interviewed 18 former corporate managers who were self-employed and said it found that some of their reasons for leaving the corporation were similar to the classic motivations of any small-business owner, male or female.

Overall, however, the major problem for women who decide to leave may be the lack of a good "fit," the reasons for which are hard to pinpoint and harder to remedy, the group said.

DEEP AS THE SEA

Standing in the sand, looking at the sea, one cannot help thinking of the boundless, fathomless love of God toward us. Oh, how he loves us, uplifts us, protects us and encourages us. There comes to mind many of his precious promises and the heart swells with gratitude. Recalled first of all, perhaps, are verses like these:

"Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee: yea, I will help thee."

"Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee." Jeremiah 31:3.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

"For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved." John 3:16, 17.

Many more words of comfort await you in the Bible and in the Church as His words are proclaimed from the pulpit. We invite you to attend church this week. You will be glad you did.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv. Ser.

LCC chorists to perform at Pampa church

The Lubbock Christian College Meistersinger Chorus will present a program of sacred music at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

The Meistersingers are widely known for their high standards in choral excellence and their Christian ministry through song.

The chorus has performed in 44 states, Canada and several European countries. In addition to concert tours, the Meistersingers have made numerous recordings through the years.

The program will include works by the masters, hymn arrangements and spirituals, according to Charles E. Cox, director of the chorus for 25 years.

Two ensembles will be featured during the concert: a men's quartet and a women's octet. A special feature will be the "Sermon in Song" with narrations and color slides.

Lubbock Christian College was founded in 1957 as a junior college. Full accreditation as a senior college came in 1972. More than 1,000 students are enrolled in programs ranging from the liberal arts to continuing education.

The LCC Music Department offers a bachelor of arts degree in music and a bachelor of music education degree for those desiring to teach.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: But I, by your great mercy, will come into your house; in reverence will I bow down toward your holy temple. (Psalm 5:7 NIV)

I grieve for people who are missing the blessings of a church home.

During an intensely painful experience, my emotions were rubbed raw; my thoughts were like hurling shards of broken glass.

Hurting and confused, I went home — home to my church. In the silent solitude of the immense, vacant church sanctuary, I spent time alone and uninterrupted with my God.

As my oldest daughter approached adolescence, she became interested in helping in the church bus ministry. The adult workers in the bus ministry "adopted" her.

The influence of those loving, Christian friends who helped raise her has continued with her into adulthood. She carries with her fond memories and strong Christian convictions and leaves behind her the same beautiful people who are patiently nurturing new youngsters in faith and service.

During my husband's stay in the hospital, he and I "went to church" together through the wonder of television. Confined to a stark, sterile intensive care room, we were warmed and lifted by the familiar faces and voices of our own church staff and church family and were transported emotionally and spiritually to a better place.

One bright Sunday morning, I knelt on the church lawn with a little girl. With her hands clasping mine tightly, my spirit soared as she, with a child's words and faith, stepped into an eternal relationship with Jesus Christ.

I grieve for people who are missing the blessings of a church home. How great their loss!

Religion Roundup

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board has voted not to give financial support to any woman who is a pastor of a local church.

Under Baptist practice, a local church can ordain whomever it deems fit, and more than 200 women have been ordained, despite opposition to such ordinations by fundamentalists.

The board's action came amid growing fundamentalist power in the denomination.

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 2,500 Roman Catholics cheered and applauded as a succession of speakers at a conference here urged full equality of women in the church, including their ordination as priests.

The conference was sponsored by a private agency that organizes educational events on Catholic topics.

Benedicting Sister Joan Chittister of Erie, Pa., the keynote speaker, urged Catholics to "swamp the chanceries and offices of the world with petitions for change" until "sexism is seen for the sin it is and repented."

Catholic women's council to have 50th convention

The 50th annual convention of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women (DCCW) will be in Pampa on Tuesday, Nov. 18, at the Coronado Inn.

In addition, a leadership workshop also will be offered Monday, Nov. 17, at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church.

Keynote speakers will be Sister Celine Thames of Amarillo and Michelle Ann Goodwin of Oklahoma City. Also speaking will be Bishop Michael J. Sheehan of Lubbock.

Theme for the convention is "One Heart, One Mind, In One Spirit." The Pampa Deanery Council of Catholic Women will be hosts for the one-day meeting.

Sister Thames is the newly appointed chancellor of the diocese and diocesan director of the Renew Process. She will speak on the Renew Process in general.

Goodwin is an art and drama major and has been very active in various ministries in the Archdiocese of Oklahoma. She will speak on personal renewal and relationship with God.

Bishop Sheehan was appointed the first bishop of the Lubbock Diocese by Pope John Paul II on June 17, 1983. He will discuss the renewal of others by evangelization.

The Nov. 18 convention will begin with registration and refreshments from 8:30 to 9 a.m. at Coronado Inn. Pat Meiwes of Hereford, DCCW president, will call the convention to order at 9 a.m. in the Barritz Room. Father Gary Sides of St. Vincent will give the welcome. Following announcements by Kathy Bertrand of Groom, candidates for DCCW offices will make their speeches.

Sister Thames will speak from 9:45 to 10:45 a.m.

Mass will be held from 11 a.m. to noon at St. Vincent Church, with Bishop L.T. Matthiesen of Amarillo as the principal celebrant and homilist. Msgr. Francis Smyer will present the Woman of the Year Award, selected from parish nominees.

From 12:15 to 1:45 p.m. voting will be conducted in the main floor lounge area of the inn, with lunch in the Garden Room. Goodwin will speak during the luncheon session.

Bishop Sheehan will speak in the Barritz Room from 2 to 3 p.m. Meiwes will preside at the business meeting starting at 3:15 p.m. The meeting also will have commission updates on Church Communities, Family Affairs, International Affairs, Organizational Services and Community Affairs. Installation of officers also will be held.

Deanery meetings will be held from 4:15 to 4:45 p.m., with a 50th Anniversary reception in the Crown Shield Room beginning at 5 p.m.

Deadline for all reservations is Friday, Nov. 7. Registration fee is $4, with the luncheon at $6. All women, priests and sisters in the diocese are invited to attend.

Registration forms should be mailed to Mrs. Frederick Dunn, 124 E. 27th, Pampa, TX 79065. All fees and meals must be prepaid.

On Nov. 17 the first in a series of leadership workshops for Catholic women in the Amarillo Diocese II be held at 2 p.m. in the St. Vincent conference room.

The first session deals with the individual as a leader and stresses the importance of good communication. The series will include leadership style, communication skill, personal problem-solving and building positive attitudes.

Meiwes said the workshops aim at the need to develop well-trained, effective leaders as the role of women in the Catholic Church expands. The leadership series is a three-year program to enhance and advance the leadership traits which women possess, she added.

Those wishing to attend the workshop should contact Meiwes at Route 4, Hereford, TX 79045 or Mrs. Dunn.

Gospel group to be at Calvary Assembly

The Crystal River Band, a dynamic music group specializing in a unique Southern Gospel sound, will minister in a special evening of song, music and worship at 6 p.m. Sunday at Calvary Assembly of God, Crawford and Love, according to Pastor R.G. Tyler.

"This group embodies not only a great talent for music but manifests a tremendous spirit of ministry," Tyler said.

"This special time promises to be a great opportunity of blessing and inspiration," he added.

Pastor Tyler extended "a warm invitation" to the Pampa community to attend the special service in the church's sanctuary.

Calvary Baptist plans Revival Weekend

Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, is making plans for a Revival Weekend for Nov. 14-16 led by Steve Dietzel of Baton Rouge, La., with music directed by Gary Covin of Pampa.

Dietzel is the son of renowned football coach Paul Dietzel of Louisiana State University, West Point and South Carolina.

He had a promising athletic career at Furman University cut short by a serious auto accident. But because he was reared by committed Christian parents and had for all his life been associated with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, he simply looked for and found another direction for his life in evangelism.

Dietzel holds bachelor of arts and master of education in counseling degrees from the University of South Carolina and a master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth.

Covin presently works as a sales representative with a local insurance firm. His experience in music goes back to his early life.

He has served as music director in several churches and is presently active in Revival-Renewal Evangelism and Lay Renewal.

COVIN

The congregation extends an invitation to the public to attend the revival. A nursery will be provided for all services.

Jacks to minister for local church

Tim and Darla Jack will be ministering in music at 7 p.m. Wednesday at New Life Worship Center, 318 N. Cuyler.

The Jacks are one of the nation's "most thrilling gospel music teams," said John Farina, pastor.

The couple will be ministering with a combination of music, a great anointing, powerful voices and their personal miracle experiences, Farina said.

The Jacks have appeared on The Jim and Tammy Bakker Show and Pat Robertson's 700 Club. They also have a continual ministry with the Trinity Broadcasting Network.

They have toured the nation many times and have reached other parts of the world with such groups as The Sparrows, Festival of Praise and The Continental Singers.

"Together, Tim and Darla have incredible impact as they combine their experiences, talents and anointing to encourage people to turn to the one who makes life really count — that one is Jesus," Farina said.

"If you enjoy good gospel music and desire the best in gospel artists to come to Pampa, we encourage you to attend," the pastor said.

You are invited to see and hear the inspirational...

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Nov. 1, 1986

You may take it upon yourself to make an important change in direction this year. You will be bold, enterprising and successful in areas where you previously have experienced defeat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be lucky at this time with original ventures. Do as much as you can on your own, free from the influences of others. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Those who have gone out of your way to help have not forgotten your kind deeds. As of today, they will begin repaying you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you've been feeling that your friends have been taking you for granted lately, this is all about to change. Soon, you're going to be the leader in your social circle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Challenges that you thought were too tough to tackle will no longer appear so intimidating. Soon, your achievements might amaze even you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today marks the beginning of a very hopeful period for you. Something you've been wishing for could become a reality.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something advantageous is developing today, and it will benefit others as well as yourself. You must be visionary, however, to see it for what it is.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone whose cooperation you need still hasn't decided whether to step into the breach. This person can be convinced today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may soon become involved in a sideline that has profitable possibilities. There is a strong chance that you might begin to do some of the basic spade work today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's going to be an important change in your social life that you will find rewarding and exciting. Someone you encounter today may precipitate it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Get out and check all of your sources today if you have been thinking about moving your residence. Chances of finding what you want are good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Plans that you formulate today have excellent possibilities of coming out the way you envision them. Be patient so they have adequate time to jell.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) As of today, you are entering a new, favorable financial cycle. Before it is over, you should be in pretty good shape.

Have a safe Halloween!

Pictured is the Halloween poster of Mindy White, a kindergartener at St. Vincent's Elementary School, one of three chosen as winners in the Pizza Inn Halloween poster contest. Also winning were Scott Rose who drew a fanciful moon and pumpkin around a haunted house and Juan Campos's monster-peopled haunted house. These and other posters by St. Vincent kindergarteners will be on display at the local Pizza Inn through Nov. 3. From sundown until 10 p.m., tonight any child, 12 and under, dressed in costume can come to the Pizza Inn for a guaranteed "safe" treat.

Neighbor who lends helping hand ends up getting burned

DEAR ABBY: I felt sorry for my neighbor, so I let her use my telephone when hers was "out of order." She would come over here as early as 7 a.m. and as late as 11:30 p.m. and talk sometimes for an hour or more.

She had no consideration for my rest and privacy. I have a 3-year-old child and am expecting again in two months.

I finally got fed up with her coming over here at all hours to talk on my phone, so I made excuses, lied and finally refused to let her in my house. I thought my troubles were over. I was wrong.

I just got my phone bill and found out that the telephone calls she made on my phone were all long distance. Her phone wasn't out of order; the telephone company disconnected it because she failed to pay her bill.

Now I am stuck for over $200 — an expensive lesson for a woman in my circumstances. Although I could take legal action against her, she's living on welfare and has nothing.

Please warn your readers, Abby. I wish somebody had warned me.
SOFT TOUCH

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

The one I loaned to you so gladly is now the one I need so badly. For whose return I had great hope. Just like an optimistic dope. For dollars loaned to folks like thee

Are not returned to fools like me.
HAROLD MCKNIGHT,
NOVA SCOTIA, CANADA

DEAR HAROLD: Thanks for the witty ditty. I'll bet a lot of folks who have been clipped will be clipping this one.

DEAR ABBY: A number of years ago Life magazine had a story about a decapitated rooster (chicken) that lived a number of days after being decapitated, delaying a Sunday dinner that had been planned by the person who decapitated it. To everyone's amazement, the rooster lived for two days with its head chopped off.

I read this in a doctor's waiting room in the early '50s. I have repeated this story to several people, and the way they looked at each other, I am sure they thought I was nuts or the world's biggest storyteller.

How can I get a copy of this magazine, or some information in support of this story, which I am absolutely sure I read in Life magazine? Please help. My reputation is riding on this. Maybe one of your readers remembers it, and can back me up.

NEEDS PROOF IN JACKSON, MICH.

DEAR NEEDS: Life magazine ceased publication in 1972, but if anyone out there can provide me with any information on the decapitated rooster, it will be something to crow about.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.G.K.: When a man says he doesn't want to get married, believe him. If you should finally "win" him in the end, what will you have? A man who didn't want to get married in the first place. So don't be surprised if he's slightly selfish, headstrong, and not as committed to marriage as you are.

DEAR ABBY: I just received your booklet, "How to Be Popular," and have read it through twice. It is excellent for older people as well as young. I think it should be in every home and high school library. I am not a teen-ager; I am a retired school teacher. Keep up the good work.

MILDRED BARTELL,
ANN ARBOR, MICH.

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Miami presents classic plays

MIAMI — Theatergoers are in for a different type of entertainment this weekend as the Miami High School Drama Department presents three classic one act plays.

Performances will be at 7 p.m. Saturday and Monday at the old MHS gym.

MHS drama instructor David Thweatt said the three plays will be presented in the round, meaning the audience surrounds the players.

Eugene Ionesco's The Bald Soprano begins the evening of one acts. This absurdist play is a slap in the face of haughty English society. It will feature Eric Gillis and Kristine Barnes as Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Max Seymour and Tracey Stauff as Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Alicia Walls as Mary the Maid and Kristi Klaverweiden as the Fire Chief.

Stauff and Gillis pair off again in Bertolt Brecht's The Jewish Wife, in which Stauff plays — obviously — the Jewish wife of a German doctor, in the turmoil before World War II.

Anton Chekhov's The Brute concludes the trilogy. Christy Lynn Searle plays Mrs. Popov, a widow who vows never to remarry. Enter Mr. Smirnov (Andrew Kaul), a bill collector who vows he doesn't like women. Max Seymour plays Luke.

DEAR SOFT: Thanks for the message. Readers, if your neighbor wants to reach out and touch someone, make sure it isn't you.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for people who loan money to others and never get it back. Send them this poem:

I think that I shall never see
The dollar that I loaned to thee;
A dollar that I could have spent
On many forms of merriment

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Are you "stuck" on a family lineage?

The best way to get a fresh start and provide yourself with new clues is to compile family group sheets.

I am guilty of trying to work direct lines without concern for the children only to find after doing the family group sheets I had additional information all the time.

Take the oldest generation and compile a sheet on each child. Include all names, initials, dates, places of birth, etc. I use a pencil for this until I have proven the information and then I transfer it to ink or highlight that data.

If you find a middle name that could be a last name, consider the possibility that it was the maiden name of the mother. Go back to the census records and check for that name in the census nearest to the date of marriage of the parents.

If possible, a next step would be to check for a will of that person if you are beyond 1850 to see if a married daughter is mentioned by her husband's name.

If you have several different birthdates or places of birth, do not assume a correct one but try to prove it. A common error in the census is the place of birth, but usually the earliest record is more accurate than the later ones.

Another common error is the interchanging of the names JAMES and JOSEPH. This occurred because of misreading the abbreviations JAS and JOS used by some of the census takers in 1860 and 1870.

I have received several letters recently where researchers have wasted time due to a simple mistake in reading the census and have researched the wrong line for several years.

If you find a child in the census records under one name and then the following census another name is given, try to find the family in another document to determine the correct name. This could be a middle name or a different person altogether.

Genealogy is a lot of hard, painstaking work but at the same time lots of fun and rewarding. Happy hunting!

Historical Commission accepting contest entries

The Texas Historical Commission (THC) is now accepting entries for its 1986 T.R. Fehrenbach Publications Contest.

Designed to encourage the original research and publication of material that preserves, records and recounts the prehistory of history of Texas, the contest is open to any scholarly work on Texas history published in an edition of at least 200 copies.

The contest is named in honor of well-known Texas author and THC member T.R. Fehrenbach. A committee of THC members will serve as judges for the contest. Winners will be announced next April at the commission's Historic Preservation Conference in El Paso.

Persons interested in nominating a publication must request an official guidelines sheet and nomination form from the THC. For this year's contest, eligible books must have been published between Jan. 1, 1986 and Dec. 31, 1986.

Deadline for all nominations is Dec. 31.

Books will be judged in one of six categories: county histories, community histories, organizational histories, biographical and family histories, ethnic and minority histories or women's studies, and specialty books.

An award also will be given to best overall entry.

Copy of contest guidelines and nomination form may be obtained from Publications Dept., THC, P.O. Box 12276, Austin, TX 78711, telephone 1-512-463-6100.

Warren Hasse

Halloween should turn into Christmas tonight for either Pampa High or Dumas High. With both winless through seven starts this season, surely the game won't end in a tie and not provide some pleasure for at least one team.

The Harvesters' losing streak has now been extended to 10 in a row, only six short of the school all-time record of ineffectiveness. And if they can't turn the trick tonight into a treat, prospects look good for the third all-losing season in history. The Green and Gold went 0-10 in both 1960 and 1967. After tonight, Pampa hosts Canyon and travels to Estacado, not especially hopeful winning challenges.

Dumas could recover and close the season with three victories, if it can knock off PHS. The Orange and Black had a very tough schedule this year, the seven opponents they have lost to having a combined 37-11-2 record. After Pampa, only Frenship and Dunbar remain.

With 23 lettermen returning off a 2-8 team last year, Coach Barry Coffman expected better. But the surprising strength of the schedule foiled that hope. Like Pampa, the once proud Demons have come on hard football times. Pampa's last playoff appearance was 1971, Dumas 1972. The northern Panhandle folks had become pretty well adjusted to winning, having been dominant in football, basketball, baseball and track in the early and mid-Sixties. Included were back-to-back football titles and a basketball crown to accompany in 1962.

The series romps through 20 games, Pampa holding a 10-9-1 edge, or Dumas holding a 10-9-1 edge, depending upon whether you win the swing game on the field or off. Pampa blasted the Demons 28-7 in 1979, only to later forfeit the game when it was revealed at least one player had gotten into the game in the late stages after having played in a junior varsity contest the night previous. That incident also contributed to making Danny Palmer a one-year head coach at PHS. Included in the series is a 69-6 shellacking, worst defeat in Pampa High history, absorbed in 1967.

Pampa girls to host basketball scrimmage

The Pampa Lady Harvesters' basketball team will hold their first scrimmage Monday at McNeely Fieldhouse.

Pampa hosts Wheeler and Panhandle in a 3-way scrimmage, beginning at 5 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

"I want to urge the people to come out and see these three teams," said PHS coach Albert Nichols. "Both Wheeler and Panhandle were in the playoffs last year."

Wheeler returns all its starters, including 6-1 Marlo Hartman, from last season.

"She is an outstanding player. Coaches from Wayland Baptist, the University of Texas and other colleges were scouting her last year," added Nichols.

Nichols feels he has Hartman's equal in 5-10 senior Jackie Reed, who is Pampa's only returning starter.

"I feel that Jackie can play right with her," added Nichols.

The Lady Harvesters open the season Nov. 18 against Amarillo Caprock in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Hearing scheduled for Mets' players

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling and second baseman Tim Teufel are scheduled to return to Houston for a January trial on charges of assaulting two off-duty police officers at a Houston nightclub in July.

Darling, 25, and Teufel, 28, were arrested July 19 outside Cooter's nightclub in Houston along with Mets pitchers Bob Ojeda, 28, and Rick Aguilera, 24.

Darling and Teufel pleaded innocent to a charge of aggravated assault on a police officer — a third-degree felony that carries a maximum 10-year prison term and $5,000 in fines.

Mixed league champs

A-1 Controls won the Pampa mixed league slow-pitch softball championship this fall. Team members are (front, l-r) Jo Karbo, Kathy Tyrrell, Cheryl Moultrie, Whitney Davis and Terri Tyrrell; (back, l-r) Ed Ferrell, Kent Karbo, Artis Bettis, Ruth Brown, Jeff Skinner and Kerry Ammons. Not pictured are Wayne Gross, Gary Tyrrell and Sheila Ledbetter.

John Kendall owns a 2-1-1 record against Dumas, including a 33-6 crushing of the Demons at their homecoming last fall. Gary Jernigan scored four times, as the Pampa defense caused four turnovers and had a shutout working until late in the fourth period.

Can the Harvesters pull off the same tricks for a treat tonight? And isn't Halloween a night for Demons? Despite the miserable combined 0-14 record, it should be an interesting contest.

CHAFF: Big district 1-4A game tonight has surprising Berger at Canyon. But the unbeaten (in district) Bulldogs have Estacado and Hereford left to play. "There are six of my starters," Levelland Coach Gene Mayfield said last Friday, nodding toward three strong looking athletes leaning against the dressing room wall. None was in uniform. "They start both ways, offensively and defensively. We had really been building for this season, and expected great things," said the disappointed Mayfield. "I'm sure they haven't, but it appears all PHS fans have given up cigarettes. None have been noticeable in the football home game crowds, only a couple of pipe smokers. That's a fine example for the young people. Caprock vs Tascosa tonight and Palo Duro vs Amarillo High tomorrow should be tremendous contests in 3-5A. If you've never seen a six-man game, catch one at Miami or Lefors tonight. Volleyball goes to Estacado tomorrow, closing out the 1986 season. The Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee, headed by Randy Harris, is working hard on the Thanksgiving weekend basketball tournament, and also extending invitations to area football teams to come to Pampa for first-round playoff games.

Despite the relative geographical closeness, Pampa and Dumas never met in football until 1961. And in the first three meetings, Ray Hopkins coached Dumas against three different PHS coaches, Curfman, Holiday and Ramsey. John Welborn was most successful, beating the Demons four out of five games.

Only four of the NFL's 16 teams with winning records face losers this weekend. The three clubs with 7-1 records, best in the league, play rugged opposition, and there are two critical divisional meetings. Denver, the New York Jets and the defending champion Chicago Bears are the 7-1 outfits. The Broncos are in Los Angeles Sunday to play the Raiders, who have won five straight. The Jets travel to Seattle, where they have never won, and the Bears are at home Monday night against the Rams, 6-2, in a battle of divisional leaders.

While Denver and the Raiders duel in the AFC West, Dallas is at Giants Stadium in the NFC East. Both the Cowboys and Giants are 6-2, tied with Washington, which also has a difficult chore against Minnesota, 5-3.

Atlanta, tied for second with San Francisco in the NFC West, is at AFC East runner-up New England in another matchup of winning teams. The 49ers are at New Orleans, 3-5.

Like San Francisco, successful NFL teams who oppose losers this Sunday are Cleveland, 5-3, which hosts winless Indianapolis; Cincinnati — also 5-3 and tied with the Browns for first place in the AFC Central — which travels to Detroit; and Kansas City, 5-3, which is at San Diego, where Al Saunders debuts as head coach of the Chargers.

NBA opener Limping Rockets host Lakers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers open their NBA seasons in The Summit Saturday but it won't be just another opener.

"There will be a little adrenalin flowing from that series (Western Conference finals last year)," Lakers forward James Worthy said. "It's the first game of the season. It's a big game for them, it's a big game for us."

"We lost to them in the series last year and that may give us a little more incentive. In fact, I'm sure it will. We didn't like losing and they feel they have to gain respect right away."

The Rockets, who lost to the Boston Celtics 4-2 in the NBA finals, will start the season with 7-foot-4 forward Ralph Sampson on the injured list and guard Robert Reid slowed by a knee injury.

Jim Petersen, who missed part of the Rockets' training camp as a contract holdout, will start for Sampson.

Allen Leavell started most of Houston's exhibition games and Coach Bill Fitch also could use rookie Conner Henry at Reid's point guard position.

The Rockets placed Sampson on the team's injury list Thursday with a sprained ankle. He'll be sidelined for five games and can't return until Nov. 12 against the Dallas Mavericks.

The Rockets also cut veteran guard Craig Ehlo, a third round draft pick from Washington State in 1983, to get down to the NBA 12-player limit.

The Rockets will open the season with four new players. They are first round draft choice Buck Johnson of Alabama, second round pick Dave Feitl of Texas-El Paso, fourth-round pick Henry of California Santa Barbara and free-agent Richard Anderson.

The Rockets earlier traded Granville Waiters and cut Hank McDowell, both members of last year's title team.

The Rockets defeated the Lakers 4-1 in last season's playoffs to capture the conference title. They have hopes of a repeat.

"We can win it," Rockets center Akeem Olajuwon said. "But we still have to go out and do it."

With Sampson and Reid injured, the Rockets already have fallen short of forward Rodney McCray's criterion for a successful season.

"If we stay healthy, this team is capable of winning 60 games," McCray said. "We're deeper this year and we're determined. It's not enough to just get there. We want to get there and win it all."

The Lakers will return the same lineup that won the NBA title two years ago, led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson.

Lakers backup center Petur Gudmundsson, who has been plagued by back spasms throughout preseason, will travel with the team but it is doubtful he will play.

Forward A.C. Green, who tore a tendon in his finger in the Lakers' final preseason game, had his cast removed Thursday and will be fitted with a protective device. He will accompany the team to Houston, but it is doubtful he will be able to play.

On the injured list...Rockets' Ralph Sampson.

NFL roundup Tossup matches highlight weekend

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The NFL heads into the second half of the season with a delicious treat — six games featuring confrontations between the league's elite.

Only four of the NFL's 16 teams with winning records face losers this weekend. The three clubs with 7-1 records, best in the league, play rugged opposition, and there are two critical divisional meetings.

Denver, the New York Jets and the defending champion Chicago Bears are the 7-1 outfits. The Broncos are in Los Angeles Sunday to play the Raiders, who have won five straight. The Jets travel to Seattle, where they have never won, and the Bears are at home Monday night against the Rams, 6-2, in a battle of divisional leaders.

While Denver and the Raiders duel in the AFC West, Dallas is at Giants Stadium in the NFC East. Both the Cowboys and Giants are 6-2, tied with Washington, which also has a difficult chore against Minnesota, 5-3.

Atlanta, tied for second with San Francisco in the NFC West, is at AFC East runner-up New England in another matchup of winning teams. The 49ers are at New Orleans, 3-5.

Like San Francisco, successful NFL teams who oppose losers this Sunday are Cleveland, 5-3, which hosts winless Indianapolis; Cincinnati — also 5-3 and tied with the Browns for first place in the AFC Central — which travels to Detroit; and Kansas City, 5-3, which is at San Diego, where Al Saunders debuts as head coach of the Chargers.

In games involving teams with losing re-game, Buffalo is at Tampa Bay; Philadelphia visits St. Louis; Houston goes to Miami; and Green Bay is at Pittsburgh.

The Raiders and Jets are the league's hottest teams, with five-and six-game winning streaks, respectively. For Los Angeles, a victory would tighten the AFC West considerably, but a Denver victory, combined with a Jets victory in Seattle, could blow apart the divisional race.

"To say this is a big ballgame is an understatement," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "The Raiders can't afford to drop three games behind at this stage."

The Broncos beat the Raiders 38-36 in the season opener and the series between the bitter rivals has not resulted in a split in nine years.

After a 6-0 start, the Broncos were beaten soundly by the Jets and played sporadically in beating Seattle last week. The Raiders, meanwhile, dropped their first three (to Washington and the Giants after losing in Denver) before reeling off the five straight victories.

"They may be the best team in football right now," Reeves said. "The Raiders always seem to get better as the season goes along. If we're going to be beat them, we have to play much, much better than we have in the last two weeks."

The Jets haven't been beaten since Week 2, but they are a hobbled bunch heading into the Kingdome. Linebacker Lance Mehl, New York's leading tackler, wrecked his knee last Sunday and won't be back this season. All-Pro nose tackle Joe Klecko has knee cartilage damage and is extremely doubtful for the game, while running back Johnny Hector has a sprained thumb that figures to limit his effectiveness.

And the Jets are 1-7 lifetime against Seattle, which will switch quarterbacks, from Dave Krieg to second-year pro Gale Gilbert. Krieg had started the last 48 games.

"We felt we needed a change to give somebody else a chance to make some plays we haven't been making," Seattle Coach Chuck Knox said. "Gale Gilbert's got a strong arm and he's got the ability to stand in the pocket. It's just a feeling I have as a coach that now is the time to do it."

For the third consecutive week, ABC has an excellent matchup for its Monday night game, a rematch of the 1985 NFC championship.

Los Angeles running back Eric Dickerson has been terrorizing defenses once again and is on a pace that exceeds the one which got him 2,105 yards in 1984. Dickerson has 1,030 yards on 199 carries.

But the Bears, who have allowed an NFL-low 97 points, surrender only 85.4 yards a game on the ground. Dickerson is averaging almost 129.

"It's no secret that you have to stop Eric Dickerson to beat the Rams," Bears Coach Mike Ditka said. "If you let him get going, let him get his yards, you're in trouble."

Chicago could be in trouble if Jim McMahon can't start at quarterback. The Bears have won the last 22 games he has started but have been shaky on offense when McMahon isn't available. McMahon has been plagued by shoulder and back problems this season.

Cowboys' Walker loves what he's doing

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — He was a fifth-round draft pick, and only starts when somebody is injured. He plays six different positions, yet he leads the NFL in combined receiving and rushing.

What could the Dallas Cowboys' Herschel Walker do if he started fulltime and concentrated on just one position?

Halfway through the season, Walker has rushed for 483 yards and caught 40 passes for 415 yards.

"He's picked up the offense quicker than anyone we've ever had," Dallas coach Tom Landry says. "He's been amazing."

What makes Walker run? Certainly not the money. He's very rich thanks to his lucrative USFL contract with Donald Trump and the New Jersey Generals — not to mention the $1 million a year he's getting from the Cowboys.

"I don't need to play, I want to play," Walker says, with emphasis on the "want."

"I'm not here to prove anything," he says. "I just enjoy what I'm doing."

However, he quickly points out, "They said Herschel couldn't play at Georgia because he came from a small high school, then they said he couldn't play in the USFL, then they said he couldn't play in the NFL."

Walker, who won the Heisman Trophy his junior year and then opted for the USFL, continues, "Then they said Herschel couldn't catch the ball, although I had 80 catches with the Generals. Then they criticize the USFL..."

You get the point. Walker, who doesn't drink or smoke, says "Yes, sir" and "No, sir" and gives thanks to the Lord for his success. He also is driven to succeed by his own set of standards.

"I want to be known someday as a great all-around player," Walker says. "I want people to say 'You know, Herschel was a great player.'"

Walker says new offensive coordinator Paul Hackett's innovative schemes and his relationship with Jesus make for his relaxed, confident appearance on the field.

"So far I've given myself an 'OK' on the report card, and I want to thank Coach Hackett for devising an offense where I get to play with Tony Dorsett," Walker says. So far, he has only started when Dorsett was injured.

Amazingly, after eight games in the NFL, some teams still single-cover Walker on pass routes, which he runs from flanker, tight end and halfback.

Pampa, Dumas football game rated even by Harris

As expected, the Pampa-Dumas game tonight is rated a tossup by the Harris Football Rating System. Both teams enter tonight's 7:30 p.m. game at Dumas with 0-7 records.

In other Harris picks, it's Canyon over Borger by 2 and Levelland over Frenship by 8. Lubbock Dunbar has an open date. Lubbock Estacado was picked over Hereford by 15 and the Matadors won, 28-18, in a Thursday night game.

Pampa has the edge over Dumas in points scored and points allowed in all games this season. The Harvesters have scored 81 points, compared to 63 for the Demons. Defensively, Pampa has given up 146 points to 223 for Dumas. In five district games, however, Dumas has the edge offensively, 57-54. Pampa wins out defensively, 111-168.

The Estacado-Hereford showdown ranked as one of the biggest games in the state this week. Estacado was 6-0-1 and ranked second in the state by Harris. Hereford was 8-0 and ranked No. 20.

In area games, Harris has Wheeler over Booker by 25; Phillips over McLean by 20; Groom over Kress by 35, and Canadian over Wellington by 21. White Deer has an open date. Wheeler, 6-1, is ranked eighth in Class A.

Gettin' her goat

Amie Greene of Pampa finished second in goat tying during a recent collegiate rodeo at Texas Tech in Lubbock. Greene, who is a member of the Frank Phillips College rodeo team in Borger, was also first in go-around and tied for second and third.

Greene competed against 45 contestants from Texas and New Mexico in the four-day meet. Frank Phillips placed fifth in team competition. Greene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Greene.

Bock's score Mets' boss returns to Japan

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The last bit of World Series confetti has been combed out of his hair and now Davey Johnson is in Japan to manage a major league all-star team that begins a seven-game series in Tokyo Saturday.

This is a sentimental journey for the manager of the Mets, who spent two seasons near the end of his career playing for the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants.

Johnson was an aging infielder being squeezed out at Atlanta when he opted to go to Japan in 1975. This was before free agency created economic mayhem in major league baseball and the offer of $100,000 tax free and a place to live was appealing.

"It was good money," he said. "The only problem was the door frame kept hitting my forehead."

That is part of the adjustment Americans playing in the Orient must make. Johnson recalls it vividly.

"My first year I had a terrible year," he said. "I had trouble with the language. I would speak very slowly, over and over. 'Do ... you ... understand ... me?' You would get up in the morning and your brain would say, 'Go ... brush ... your ... teeth.' It would drive you crazy."

The Japanese provide the gaijins — foreign players — with interpreters. This, however, did not help very much.

"The first one quit after three days," Johnson said. "He said he couldn't handle the job. Number two quit a week later. He said there was too much pressure with all the media and cameras. We were under the microscope. You couldn't walk to the bathroom without somebody taking your picture. Number three was fine. The only problem was he couldn't speak more than broken English.

"The Japanese language has 20,000 characters. I didn't master them, but there were a few things I could say. Gohun is rice. Sushi is raw fish. They say a lot of baseball words in English. In the infield, I talked it up in English. You know, 'Honey baby, honey boy.'"

Johnson could not sweet talk American pitcher Clyde Wright, though.

"Crazy Wright," Johnson said. "One game, I was playing third base. There was a bunt. I called him off, but I dropped the ball. Then there was a bloop single and the interpreter came out to change pitchers."

"Wright stormed off. He said, 'I'm gonna call the commissioner. You can't do this to an American. I want $25,000 more to keep quiet.' They gave it to him. I told him I should have made three errors. He'd have been a rich man."

The quick hook for a pitcher experiencing the most minimal of trouble was typical of the Japanese approach, Johnson said.

"Their game is very regimented. There is one way to swing, one way to field. If you're a Diamond Glove shortstop — their equivalent to Gold Gloves — and you make an error early in the game, they'll send out another guy out who's not half the fielder you are."

Wade named Maryland coach

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Wade has produced star players for 10 years at Baltimore's Dunbar High School. Now, he faces much different tasks as the successor to Lefty Driesell as basketball coach at the University of Maryland.

Wade, a basketball and football coach as well as athletic director at Dunbar, was named Driesell's replacement Thursday by university Chancellor John B. Slaughter. One day earlier, Driesell resigned to become an assistant athletic director at the College Park campus, ending 17 years as Terrapin coach. Criticism about his program, the athletic department and the university fell on Driesell's shoulders after All-American Len Bias died of cocaine intoxication June 19.

"He can handle it," Wade's wife, Carolyn, said in an interview. "He's a very strong person and he's going to give it his best shot."

Accompanied by his wife and one of his two sons, Wade said the elevation to the college level represents "something we looked forward to all of our lives."

"I hope this will be a tremendous marriage between Bob Wade and the University of Maryland," Wade, who told reporters he would answer questions about his plans at a news conference in two weeks, said.

"Since June 19 until yesterday, we've had few things about which we can celebrate," Slaughter told reporters. "Today represents a major change in our fortunes."

Slaughter already has begun implementing several suggestions by a university task force to shift athletic priorities to academics from sports.

WBA suspends South Africa

By TOM GARDNER
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A divided and emotional World Boxing Association has suspended South Africa from its organization until the country abandons its policy of racial apartheid.

"From the bottom of my heart, I can tell you it has been a very painful decision," WBA President Gilberto Mendoza told the South African delegation following Thursday's 30-18 vote.

Under the suspension, Mendoza said South African boxers would continue to be ranked by the association and would be able to have options to WBA title fights outside South Africa, but no bouts would be sanctioned in that country.

The ouster followed impassioned speeches by boxing promoters Don King and Butch Lewis in favor of the action and equally strong pleas by South African association members asking to remain a part of the organization.

"We can no longer hide our eyes to the horror of apartheid," King told the delegates. "We must take this step toward the total abolishment of this inhuman form of human degradation."

"Apartheid has been tried, found guilty and sentenced to death. It only awaits its execution. We want to be one of its pallbearers."

Lewis, who urged outright expulsion of South Africa rather than suspension, told the group: "If we cannot convince the WBA to rid itself of South Africa, the WBA subjects itself to total self-destruction. It is an issue that has absolutely no room for compromise."

Michael Mortimer, one of South Africa's representatives at the meeting, said the country's boxing association had been a leader in the fight against apartheid and had provided hope for the nation's boxers, 80 percent of whom are black.

He said South African boxing had not only pioneered blacks and whites together in the ring, but at the judging table and in the audience as well. Lewis "wants to cut off the legs of our black boxers ... on political principles," he said.

"It's boxing that has abolished apartheid," Mortimer continued.

The vote to suspend the country from the WBA followed more than five hours of debate in both Spanish and English.

Castella favored in NY marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — For Rob de Castella, being ranked the world's No. 1 marathoner was not a comfortable position. It is a spot, however, he could regain this year.

De Castella attained that lofty position in 1983, when he won the Rotterdam Marathon and the World Championship marathon at Helsinki, Finland. From that point until this year, he failed to win a marathon, finishing fifth in the 1984 Olympics at Los Angeles, and third in America's Marathon-Chicago in 1984 and 1985.

This year, de Castella has rebounded to win the Boston Marathon in a personal-best of 2 hours, 7 minutes, 51 seconds and the Commonwealth Games marathon in 2:10:15.

"It was a more important period for me psychologically when I didn't win," said de Castella, who will try for a sweep of his three 1986 marathons Sunday, in his first appearance in the New York City Marathon.

"I was favored going into Los Angeles and I didn't win. I was fifth and then I had the two third-place finishes. It made me reassess my attitude. ... And I've been able to learn from the good times."

"Now, I will be able to cope with being No. 1 again."

A victory Sunday, against a field that includes two-time defending champion Orlando Pizzolato of Italy and Robleh Djama of Djibouti, who finished second at Chicago last year, just ahead of de Castella, undoubtedly would vault the 29-year-old Australian back into the No. 1 position among the world's marathoners.

Despite the strong opposition, de Castella is considered an overwhelming favorite. He downplays the role.

"It's misleading to put me down as the only favorite," he said. "Robleh Djama has to be a major favorite. He beat me in Chicago last year. And I'm also expecting Orlando (Pizzolato) to be a major contender."

The men's and women's winners will receive $25,000 each, plus a new Mercedes-Benz car. In addition, there will be performance bonuses, including $10,000 for breaking the men's course record of 2:08:13, set by Alberto Salazar in 1981, and $50,000 for lowering the world best of 2:07:12, set by Carlos Lopes of Portugal in 1985.

"I think the course has been lengthened since Alberto did it," de Castella said.

Salazar's time, the fastest ever by an American, was not accepted, because it was discovered that the course was short.

As for beating the times by Salazar and Lopes, de Castella said, "I think anything someone else has done, I can do better."

De Castella will be inspired by the presence in the race of his father, Rolet de Castella.

"He's been somebody very special to me," the elite runner said. "He started me running years ago. He's been an inspiration to me. His attitude has influenced me training-wise, nutrition-wise and attitude-wise."

De Castella recalled that his 62-year-old father suffered two heart attacks a few years ago "and was pretty much an invalid."

"And now, he's running marathons."

Aggies hope to overcome jinx

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Defending Southwest Conference football champion Texas A&M is riding high going into Saturday's meeting with Southern Methodist, but the Aggies have to overcome their Texas Stadium jinx to stay on top of the league race.

The 10th ranked Aggies are 0-3 in Texas Stadium since SMU moved its home games from the Cotton Bowl. SMU hasn't lost a homecoming game since 1978 when the Mustangs fell to the Aggies.

It was four years ago in Texas Stadium that Aggie Coach Jackie Sherrill, after his team was shelled 49-7, said "the other teams in the conference had better get their licks in now. Our day is coming."

The last three A&M-SMU games have been decided by a total of 13 points. SMU downed A&M 10-7 in 1983 and nicked the Aggies 28-20 in 1984. Last year, Eric Franklin's 48-yard field goal with less than two minutes to play gave A&M a 19-7 victory.

A&M is rated a four-point choice over the Mustangs in their 2 p.m. clash.

In other SWC games, Arkansas is a 27-point choice over Rice on homecoming in Little Rock at 1 p.m.; Texas Tech was a 1-point favorite over Texas in a noon (Raycom TV) game in Lubbock; and Houston was a 4-point nod over TCU in a 7 p.m. game in the Astrodome.

Texas A&M is unbeaten in SWC play while SMU is coming off a 27-24 loss to Texas. The Mustangs are on NCAA probation and ineligible for the SWC title or a bowl game.

Texas and Arkansas each have one SWC loss. The Longhorns will be facing former defensive coordinator David McWilliams, who is the Red Raiders' new head coach.

Tech, which upset Arkansas 17-7, is coming off a week of rest. With two losses the Red Raiders are eyeing a possible bowl bid.

"It's a very important game for both of us," McWilliams said.

Gymnastics meet here this weekend

Gymnastics of Pampa and the Pampa Dust Devils are hosting the District I championship gymnastics meet Saturday and Sunday.

Approximately 200 gymnasts from Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene, Amarillo, Odessa, Midland, El Paso and Pampa are expected for the meet. The meet is sanctioned by the U.S. Gymnastics Federation and is part of the Junior Olympics program. The meet starts at 10 a.m. Saturday and the public is invited free of charge.

Members of the Dust Devils competing in the meet are Hillary Ybarra, Ashley Childress, Carrie Whiterly, Jamie Smith, Jennifer Ward and Tamara Fly in class four; Joana Barbaree and Laura Gilbert in class three. Barbaree is one of four state champions the Dust Devils have turned out. Barbaree won the Class Three state title in 1983 in the 15 and up division.

Other state champions include Jenny Roden, who won the gold medal in the 1986 Special Olympics in Austin. Christa West won the 1984 Class Three state crown in the 12-14 division with a record-breaking all-around score of 36.70. Kristi Hughes was Pampa's first state gymnastics champion, winning the Class Three 12-14 year-old division title in 1981.

Fred Hughes, coach of the Dust Devils, was recently elected president of the Gymnastics Association of Texas during the G.A.T. convention. The G.A.T. is an umbrella organization which covers the Texas branches of the U.S. Gymnastics Federation, both men's and women's programs.

Perot says General Motors top management out of touch

DETROIT (AP) — If General Motors Corp. is serious about trimming the excess from its operations, the automaker's largest individual shareholder suggests GM start by cutting back on its executive suite and executive dining rooms.

"Our top people are isolated, insulated," Dallas computer tycoon H. Ross Perot said. "Just a trip to the 14th floor (executive suite in Detroit) is depressing. That's a time warp."

Perot, GM's largest individual shareholder, a director and chairman of its Electronic Data Systems Corp., told Ward's Auto World that GM is uncompetitive and its top management is out of touch with the marketplace.

GM is hindered by its own bureaucracy, by a corporate compensation system that rewards political skills instead of successful competition in the car and truck market and by its financially oriented top management, Perot told the trade publication.

"This place cries for engineers with greasy hands who know how to make cars to making the policy and motivating every member of the GM team," Perot said.

"In my opinion, we need to do a number of symbolic things to signal a new day at GM. For example, I'd get rid of the 14th floor; I'd get rid of the executive dining rooms," Perot said.

"I would urge the senior executives to locate their offices where real people are doing real work. Live with them, listen to them... find out straight up what it would take to win, and do it."

Perot also suggested that GM eliminate the many levels information must filter up, or down, before reaching its destination.

"It takes months or even years to fix some Mickey Mouse thing relating to a gasket or a brake or a transmission," he said.

Other suggestions: Reduce capital spending, force management to deal directly with customers and employees and change the way management is compensated.

"Let's say you're 50 years old and suddenly you can't get your $1 million bonus by being a good politician," Perot told the magazine. "The only way you can get it is by building the best cars in the world and beating the competition."

"That will reprogram your sense of priorities pretty fast."

GM lost more than $338 million on its car and truck operations in the third quarter of 1986 and its net income slipped to $264 million, nearly 49 percent less than third-quarter 1985.

Report recommends against landfills for waste disposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas needs a new state policy to outlaw landfills in hazardous waste disposal, says a report of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Proven, cost efficient alternatives to land disposal exist today," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told a news conference Thursday "and a concerted effort by industry and the state can move us away from outmoded, dangerous, expensive land disposal methods."

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, said the Senate Committee on Natural Resources would meet in Lake Jackson Nov. 19 to begin making recommendations for the 1987 Legislature.

"Clearly, the state has a duty to make sure these dangerous materials are disposed of in a safe, environmentally-responsible manner," said Santiesteban who is the committee chairman.

Hightower and Santiesteban noted that Texas has the dubious record as the No. 1 producer of hazardous wastes in the nation.

"Texas produces 38 million tons of hazardous waste every year, which is 5,000 pounds for every man, woman and child in the state," Santiesteban said.

A 60-page report prepared by the Texas Department of Agriculture said that up to now about 99 percent of all hazardous waste in Texas has been disposed of "on-site" — buried in landfills, placed in surface impoundments or injected into deep wells.

"Groundwater contamination is now being found at dozens of currently operating, regulated waste disposal facilities in Texas," the report said.

The TDA report said the alternatives include waste volume reduction measures, recycling and treatment and destruction measures.

Hightower said the disposal of wastes is a particularly serious problem for rural parts of the state.

"Applications for permits in urban areas meet community opposition, forcing more and more of the sites into the rural areas, he said.

Hightower said the Legislature has already made a move toward improved disposal of wastes by the passage in 1985 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act.

"But while it's encouraging that both federal and state policies are to move away from land disposal toward alternatives, in Texas we still have no program to implement this urgently needed transition," he said.

"Our job is to convince those persons manufacturing, shipping and disposing of the hazardous waste materials it's in their best interests to work with government in leading the way to these alternatives," Hightower said.

Moratorium declared in forest burn

AUSTIN (AP) — Crushing and burning of trees and undergrowth in a choice section of the Sam Houston National Forest will stop for at least a week beginning today, the U.S. Forest Service said.

The moratorium was announced Thursday after Attorney General Jim Mattox asked for time to determine the environmental impact.

The Forest Service said the work halt in the Four-Notch section of the forest will begin at 5 p.m.

"The U.S. Forest Service agreed to stop crushing the trees, which has been going on seven days a week at about 30 acres a day, and not to napalm any of the crushed trees acreage during the moratorium," Mattox said.

The agency has been crushing the trees to rid the forest of pine beetle infestation.

"We felt it was quite a legitimate request," said Mike Lannan, supervisor for U.S. forest lands in Texas, at Lufkin. "This will give him an opportunity to look into it."

Mattox told a news conference Thursday that the Forest Service was crushing and burning 2,600 acres of timber in the Four-Notch area near Huntsville.

He said he was asking a delay of seven to 10 days to allow his Environmental Protection Division time to investigate. If the federal agency did not stop work, Mattox said, he would ask a federal court order to stop them.

To The Voters Of Gray County:

My retirement, as Gray County Treasurer, will become effective December 31, 1986.

I want to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the voters of Gray County for your loyal support and consideration during my tenure of office.

These years have been both pleasant and rewarding and I am most grateful to you.

My chief deputy, Lodema Mitchell, has been employed in this capacity since January 1, 1971. She has proven to be dedicated, honest and efficient in all her work. She is concerned about your tax dollar and will be conservative in the management of the office.

She is a candidate for the position of Gray County Treasurer. Your vote November 4th for LODEMA MITCHELL would be most appreciated.

Sincerely,
Jean Scott

Attorney says suspect innocent

GILMER, Texas (AP) — An attorney for Jerry Walter McFadden says his client did not kill a Hawkins teen-ager and the state will have a tough time proving the accusations.

McFadden, nicknamed "Animal," is charged with capital murder in the strangulation death of 18-year-old Suzanne Harrison. She and two friends disappeared during an outing to Lake Hawkins in May.

The trial was to have started Monday in Bell County in Central Texas. But State District Judge Virgil Mulanex granted a motion by defense attorney Vernard Solomon Thursday to delay the start of the trial until early next year. He said he would consider a prosecution request to start the trial Feb. 2.
