Etheredge in custody despite bond reduction

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

After a day filled with legal wheeling and dealing, former Bethany Trust head Thomas Etheredge remained in the Gray County Jail this morning with his bond significantly reduced to $350,000.

Etheredge, 32, is charged with misapplying funds and misleading investors in the trust company, which was shut down in April 1985, after state banking examiners could not verify $10 million in assets.

Investors, most of them from the Kansas City area, lost about $1.3 million when Bethany fell.

Etheredge has maintained that investors would have received their money back had the state not interfered with his trust company.

Prior to a pre-trial hearing Wednesday on motions filed by the financier's court-appointed attorney, John Mann of Amarillo, Etheredge's bonds had totaled nearly $2 million.

Mann called the $2 million in bonds "oppressive" during arguments Wednesday before 223rd District Judge Don Cain.

Cain heard pleas to reduce the bond from three members of Etheredge's family — and testimony from a Pampa service station owner who said he would give Etheredge a sales job on commission — before trimming the bond. The judge also quashed two securities indictments that Mann said were faulty because they did not specify the amount allegedly taken from the investors named in the indictments.

Following Cain's action, which disappointed neither Mann nor Assistant District Attorney

David Hamilton, Etheredge's total bond stood at $310,000. But the legal maneuvering was not quite through.

As Etheredge prepared to leave the courtroom, he was greeted by Gray County sheriff's Deputy Doug Davis, who served him with papers charging him with the same offenses Cain had dismissed earlier in the day. The complaints were signed by Michael Hartsock, investigator for the district attorney's office, who left the courtroom periodically during the hearing and apparently filed them with the sheriff following Cain's decision Wednesday morning.

Etheredge was taken to the office of Justice of the Peace David Potter, who set bond at $20,000 on each charge, raising the total bond to $350,000. Etheredge asked Potter to consider lowering bond on the refiled charges, but Potter refused.

"This is a political ploy by David Hamilton to try to keep me in custody a longer time," Etheredge said in protesting Potter's decision.

Mann had asked for his client's bond to be lowered to $123,000, an amount both of the defendant's parents said was the maximum they could make.

"It's all that we have," said George Etheredge, 65, of Kingsmill, the defendant's father.

Both parents testified they do not think their son, who traveled to England and Belize before being apprehended in Canada in February, would disappear before his scheduled trial date Jan. 5. George Etheredge said he and his wife were willing to put all they have on the line.

"I don't think there's any likelihood at all, know-

Bogus officer steals jewelry

A 74-year-old Pampa woman is probably wondering whom she can trust these days following an incident at her home on North Wells Wednesday afternoon.

The woman was swindled out of nearly $2,700 worth of jewelry by a man who showed up at her doorstep claiming to be a police officer.

According to police reports, the suspect appeared at the woman's home shortly after noon Wednesday and said three prisoners had escaped.

The bogus police officer told the elderly woman that he expected her home to be burglarized, reports said. The man displayed a badge, the elderly retiree told police.

The man said he needed to come inside the woman's home to mark her jewelry for identification, reports said.

Police said the woman did not realize her jewelry was missing until later in the afternoon.

She reported the incident to police about 3:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Items reported as missing include: two gold bracelets, two diamond necklaces, a diamond cluster dinner ring, ruby and diamond birthstones and a gold, diamond-studded wristwatch.

The woman described the man as being white with short brown hair, about 40 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighing about 200 pounds.

She said he was wearing a dark suit and tweed pork-pie hat and sported a mustache.

Police compiled a composite sketch of the suspect.

Area rig count increases by 2

From staff and wire reports

The number of working oil rigs in the United States dropped this week to 813, down one from the 814 total posted last week, Hughes Tool Co. officials said.

Last year at this time, the count was 1,839, officials said.

In the Texas Panhandle, the rig count was up again by two for the third week in a row, according to Doris Harrison of the Oil and Gas Reporting Service in Pampa.

Twenty-two rigs were listed last week, up to from the 20 reported for the previous week. The week before that the count was 18.

"I don't know whether that's good or bad," Harrison said. "We'll have to play like it's good," adding that the larger numbers indicated some increased activity in the Panhandle.

Nationwide, the rig count had hit an all-time low of 663 in July. It was on an upswing before it dropped to 727 in late August, according to officials of the oil toolmaker, which has kept industry statistics since 1940.

More than 1,000 rigs have been idle since December, when oil prices began to decline, falling as low as $9 a barrel. Since Dec. 23, the rig count had dropped steadily from 1,995 before showing another upswing last month, officials said.

In contrast, 4,500 rigs were active in December 1981.

Petroleum Information Corp., a Denver-based data resources firm, reported that U.S. oil and gas drilling activity during the first nine months of 1986 was about 28 percent below the level of the same period last year. Petroleum Information said 25,029 wells were drilled with official 1986 completion dates during the first nine months, compared to 34,854 during the year-earlier period. The success rate for all categories of completions was 67.2 percent through the third quarter of this year, compared with 68.1 percent during the 1985 period.

Campaign trail winding closer to polling places

Steele facing Muns in Precinct 1 race

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Concerning where the office of the Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace should be, both candidates for the position have definite opinions.

Democrat Pat Steele, of Lefors, feels the office should definitely remain in Lefors. Her opponent, Republican Bob Muns of Pampa, feels just as strongly that the office should be moved to Pampa.

Precinct 1 includes northwest Pampa and northeast Gray County, including the communities of Lefors and Laketon.

The justice of the peace office has been vacant since March, following the resignation of 15-year veteran Margie Prestidge, who moved to Pampa to run as a write-in candidate for the job in Precinct 2.

Steele argued that Lefors is centrally located in the precinct and added that she fears if the office is moved, it will never return to Lefors. She said the office gives Lefors law enforcement it otherwise would not have without a police department.

"Lefors is a central location," she said. "I realize there's a good deal of Precinct 1 in Pampa, but Pampa has the enforcement. If Laketon was centrally located and I had to drive that far, I would (drive) for the office."

She said she believes most people in Lefors believe the office should remain there.

"Anybody that's ever lived in a small town can understand why," she said.

Muns said moving the office to Pampa would better justify and maximize taxpayer dollars spent on the Precinct 1 position, by allowing the justice of the peace to combine workloads with the busy Precinct 2 position. He said he realizes his stand may be unpopular in Lefors but "I just feel like it would be better located in Pampa."

"I have no ax to grind with anyone," he said. "I

Surveyor's race features useless office

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The county surveyor's job hardly seems worth the $50 filing fee to seek it.

The job doesn't pay anything. The job holder, in this county at least, isn't asked to really do anything other than have custody of county land survey records. And in most Texas counties, Gray included, the county clerk takes care of such records.

The current surveyor, Democrat Gene Barber, remembers only a few instances in which he was called to interpret a land survey or explain to people how to get surveys.

The office never has generated enough interest for anyone to run against Barber, who's held the job for 24 years.

That was before Lynn Bezner came along. Bezner, president of Bezner & Webb Associates surveying firm, is the Republican candidate for surveyor. And as far as he's concerned, there will be something for him to do if he's elected.

"I would like to see all proper indexing of the records," he said. "And if — when, I have to think positive — I'm elected, I will see to it that it's done.

A majority of the records are in the county clerk's office, but they're incomplete. And it takes a considerable amount of time to find a record of a parcel."

"Indexing will reduce the time spent looking for a record," he said.

Bezner feels that a different county clerk may make a difference, "but it is the surveyor's responsibility to make them available."

Barber believes the current clerk deputies are doing all right and that the indexing Bezner is calling for is not necessary.

"The books have indexes to them," Barber pointed out.

"In most cases, the surveys are not a lot of value to a common person," he said. "Generally, the girls at the clerk's office handle it in their line of work. I've only been called to interpret it a time or two."

Barber explained that the county surveyor can keep the land records at his own office.

"Before I took office, they were kept in the private office. But at my insistence, they were moved to the county clerk's office," he said.

The 43-year-old Bezner admits he couldn't think ing that he's going to put Mom and I down the drain," he said.

Both testified Wednesday that their son was out of the country for the 10 months after Bethany fell on the advice his Dallas attorney, Doug Mulder, and was trying to raise money for investors.

"He felt like this was on the advice of counsel," George Etheredge said. "I understand his lawyers told him they had hopes of getting this whole situation corrected and as a result of that, 'Stay out of sight.'"

He added that his son had hired the most competent lawyer he could afford and would have been "stupid not to take his advice."

Debbie Etheredge, 29, the defendant's wife, who faces three felony indictments in connection with the operation of Bethany, also testified Wednesday that Mulder had advised the couple to stay out of the country and that she and her husband were trying to raise money to repay investors with an alio vera farm in Belize. She said Mulder told them if they could raise enough money to repay investors, the matter could be settled.

"It was such a blown-out mess, and it was getting so out of hand and that if we let some time go by it could all be settled," she said. "We had reason to believe that we were doing best. We were working feverishly to try to take care of the investors."

Hamilton countered that the Etheredges hoppedchotch from country to country to avoid facing charges they knew were pending in Gray County.

"He (Tom Etheredge) ran not only from Belize, but across the entire North American continent to Canada," Hamilton argued in pleading against the bond reduction.

But Debbie Etheredge testified that she and her husband had no reason to run from justice, other than the advice of their attorney, because "we want to sit in front of David Hamilton as bad as he wants to stand in front of us."

"We want the truth to come out," she testified before Judge Cain.

Mrs. Etheredge said her husband's incarceration has deeply affected the couple's three children. She said her 10-year-old son holds his father and cries whenever visitation is over because Etheredge cannot leave the jail.

"Tom is an excellent father, probably a better father than most men in this courtroom," she said.

"Contrary to what some people believe, we're a very close family."

Mrs. Etheredge claimed no knowledge of the status of a $5.6 million Swiss bank account purportedly maintained by Etheredge and said the family's only assets are her own savings account, which totals slightly more than $1,000.

Also testifying was Mike Trimble, owner of Trimble's Shamrock Service at 1600 Duncan, who said he has offered Etheredge a commission sales job should the defendant be released from jail to await trial.

"I believe that, even with the stigma attached to Tom's name, that he had demonstrated that he is a capable enough salesman to overcome it," Trimble said.

In his closing argument before the judge, Hamilton, who offered no witnesses, called the hearing "carefully orchestrated."

"We've done everything but wrap the flag around Mr. Etheredge today," Hamilton said.

The prosecutor told Cain he could not take into account testimony about Etheredge's children or concerning how much bond the defendant's parents could raise in making his decision because bond is to be determined solely to ensure that the defendant shows up for trial.

But Mann accused Hamilton of a "charade" designed to further the prosecutor's political career. He said indicting Etheredge 28 times is an "abuse of sacred power" worse than what his client had done, even if he were guilty of all charges against him.

"Bail is to be set high enough to assure his appearance but not so high as to be oppressive," Mann said. "If $100,000 would not be enough to go and bring him back, then no amount would."

"They don't give a capital murder indictment this high a bail," he added.

Asked what he thought of the judge's decision, Hamilton replied: "It's all right—$300,000 is still a lot of money."

Mann said he was satisfied with Cain's ruling. He said he plans to talk to a bail bondsman he thinks may provide enough money for Etheredge's bond.

Cain ordered Etheredge to remain in Texas and report to the sheriff's office every 10 days, if he makes the reduced bond.

don't want a retirement job. I don't want to be a retired JP."

Muns added that a majority of the filings in Precinct 1 are filed in Pampa anyway, with the Precinct 2 justice of the peace.

The candidate said he would hold court one or two days a week in Lefors, depending on the need.

Muns, currently manager of Con Chem Co Inc., an industrial weed control firm in Pampa, cites years of law enforcement experience as his major qualification for the job. He spent 12 years working in Washington as a fingerprint technician with the FBI and as a member of the U.S. Park Police, from which he retired in 1970 at the rank of detective sergeant. He said he specialized in narcotics, juvenile matters and evidence investigation.

"I have a feeling for the field of law enforcement," he said. "I feel it would put me in a position to look at the overall picture."

He said his work as justice of the peace would be guided by his philosophy that the magistrate must be fair and impartial to all concerned. He stressed that he does not feel the justice of the peace should act as an arm of law enforcement.

Steele, who manages the Shop-A-Minit convenience store in Lefors, said her experience in dealing with the public will assist her if elected. She also cited bookkeeping experience, noting that she has kept books for her husband.

Like her opponent, Steele said she would be guided by a philosophy of honesty and fairness if elected.

Barber admitted he's surprised at this first-time opposition.

"I think it's a case of the Republicans wanting to fill the ticket," he said. "I'd rather think I'm a free thinker and not vote a straight party line."

"I feel that world events will decide whether people will go for a Republican or a Democrat, not whether you're a county surveyor. I just hope they

Officer charged in shooting

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A police officer has been indicted on a murder charge in the shooting death of his former partner, the subject of an investigation into allegations that he had executed suspected criminals and was plotting to assassinate city officials.

A Bexar County grand jury Wednesday charged officer Farrell Tucker in slaying of Stephen Richard Smith, 31, who was shot five times as the two drove through Smith's neighborhood Aug. 18.

Smith was Tucker's best man at his wedding and the two had met at the police academy. Tucker, 35, approached Assistant Police Chief Frank Hoyack in August and said he had information, supplied by Smith's wife, that Smith planned to assassinate Hoyack, Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap and Deputy Police Chief Robert Hueck.

In addition, Tucker said Smith may have been involved in the executions of five suspected criminals.

Smith was no stranger to suspicion. He was the subject of two FBI civil rights investigations and had been indicted on a charge of criminal brutality after beating a shoplifting suspect.

Police had also questioned him about smear letters written to the local papers which accused Hoyack and Hueck of being child abusers and he had been questioned about vandalizing other police officers homes.

Tucker said Smith blamed Hoyack, Hueck and Millsap for his troubles and his frustration at legal limits on police behavior.

The meeting broke up after Tucker told them he was meeting with Smith that night and would like to tape their conversation.

Fearing that work might get back to Smith if police issued the recorder, Millsap stopped at a store and bought the voice activated recorder Smith would wear.

The meeting occurred in Smith's car as the two drove through Smith's neighborhood.

Tucker said as they drove he told Smith what he knew about the vigilante acts and plans to assassinate city officials. Smith listened carefully then pulled a gun, Tucker said.

Smith made him surrender his service revolver but Tucker pulled a hidden .357 magnum from his belt and shot his one-time friend five times in the head.

As quickly as the incident ended, holes began to surface in Tucker's account of the meeting.

The recording of the meeting was garbled. Investigators speculated that Tucker may have intentionally spoiled the recording.

Medical examiner Vincent DiMaio said his autopsy indicated Smith was not killed at Tucker when the bullets struck him near the ear. Instead, he said the wounds indicated Smith was looking out the window.

"There are problems with the story if you make a couple of assumptions," DiMaio said in September. "Such as if you're holding a gun on someone you're looking at them."

Investigators also questioned why Smith, a 7-year veteran, would not ask Tucker for his hidden revolver since it was no secret that street cops often carry two guns.

Rating that Yankee

I had a weekday off for a change. I wasn't able to sleep in, however — through some weakness of foresight, I had agreed to help a friend move to a new apartment.

And without any consideration of my desire to rise with the setting sun at least one day in my life, he had decided to move during the early morning hours. I might as well have been getting up to go to work.

Still, soft touch that I am, I drove over to his place. When I walked in, he was listening to the radio and taking notes on a pad as he sat amid his already packed boxes.

"So what are you doing? Making a list of everything?"

He looked up at me. "Shhhh! I'll be with you in a minute."

Some guy was talking on the radio. Still trying to wake up, I at first thought it was some advertisement for a restaurant. It took me awhile to realize it was that transplanted Yankee who thinks he can rate Texas foods.

Fortunately, I was at the tail end and the show drifted off into some other area.

But my friend continued to make some marks on his pad for a few moments. Then he slapped the pencil down and held the pad in the air.

"I got him!" he cried.

"Where?"

"I've devised a system that rates that Yank on how he rates the menus."

"Oh," I yawned.

"Here. Let me show you how it works."

"Uh, well, I'm sure it's great," I answered, seeing the moving job stretching out longer and longer.

"Just give me the highlights."

"Well, let's say he uses the same so-called jokes we've heard him use the last time an item appeared on a menu. Like, 'And what color gravy? Brown gravy, of course.' That's minus two points."

"Why not take off points on a cumulative system? You know, like one point for every time you've heard it."

"Too complicated. He'd always end up in the minus column on the gravy bit alone."

"Oh," I muttered. "Proceed."

"Then we take off a point for every time he mispronounces a food item. Two points if he's mispronounced it before."

"Like what?"

"Like 'scoan-nee' for scone."

"Oh, yeah. I remember that one."

"Then," he continued, "we subtract a point for his repetitious remarks made when he's trying to be funny. Like saying, 'meat-LOAF, meat-LOAF, meat-LOAF' within a space of five seconds when once was more than enough. Or repeating 'plum good cake, folks, that's plum good cake.'"

"Wait a second," I said. "That'd still put him in the minus column every week. There's only 10 points on his rating scale."

"No problem. I'm rating him on a scale of 100. There's limited items on the menus but not on his remarks."

He continued.

"Then we can take off five points for every time he shows his obvious bias toward those good foods we Texans eat proudly, like black-eyed peas, squash or okra."

"What about broccoli and cauliflower?"

"We'll allow him the benefit of a doubt there. Not even all Texans can stomach some of those items. So no points lost there."

Looking down at his pad, he remarked, "And there are some other points we can take away for remarks like, 'Better brown bag it today, kids' or 'Maybe you'd better plan on not being home today' or 'Eat something good before you go.' And..."

"Okay, okay, I think I get the system," I interrupted him. "So how did he rate today?"

He picked up a calculator from off the floor and shook it.

"I'm not sure. I think my calculator's on the blink. It came up minus 2,352."

"Well, that's okay," I said. "His calculator apparently never works right, either."

Padlocks are ordered on Otwell school

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district court has ordered the Rev. W.N. Otwell's school for boys in Fort Worth padlocked, except for the little church, because Otwell would not get a state license.

"It is a spurious claim that the state has been trying to regulate religion," State District Judge Paul Davis said Wednesday after a brief hearing.

Davis also ordered Otwell, who fled the state earlier this month, to pay $67,000 in fines for contempt of court and $2,685 in court costs.

"Reverend Otwell has defied not only this court but the entire judicial system," said Assistant Attorney General Sue Berkel.

At Attorney General Jim Mattox's suggestion, Davis' padlock order will not apply to the church sanctuary on the school grounds, the headquarters of the Community Baptist Church or to Otwell's personal living quarters.

However, state officials will make frequent checks of the sanctuary and the other two buildings to be sure they are not used to carry on the school.

Mattox told reporters he would be willing to ask the court to forgive the fines if Otwell would ask and obtain a state license to operate the school.

Otwell fled the state after Davis held him in contempt of court on Oct. 6 for not getting a license for the school. He was ordered to pay a fine of $100 a day and his church $500 for each day of violation. The order said church property could be sold to pay the fines.

Otwell and his supporters have claimed that requiring state regulation of a church school is a violation of the separation of church and state.

"I just want to cry," said Hank Thompson, pastor of the Capital City Baptist Church in Austin and one of Otwell's supporters. "The licensed homes are full of abuse. What have licensed homes ever done? They're saying that worship is only going into the pulpit and preaching. Worship is a life, helping people. This is part of our worship."

Davis said in making the ruling that the Texas Supreme Court held in a similar licensing case involving the Lester Roloff homes at Corpus Christi that the state had "a compelling interest to protect children. Protecting children was the purpose for this law."

"We are trying to have the least amount of intrusion into any kind of religious activities," Mattox told reporters after the court session. "We do not intend in any way to interfere with the religious instruction that is taking place on this property, and I would hope this property would remain open."

Mattox said his department and the Department of Human Services would study the judge's order before giving any specific time for the padlocking.

He said the property would be surveyed immediately to determine if some of it can be sold to pay the fines.

Mennonites to become citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six years after Sen. Lloyd Bentsen guided a bill through Congress granting permanent resident status to 653 Mexican Mennonites, he will be guest of honor at a mass citizenship ceremony at the group's adopted West Texas hometown of Seminole.

Citizenship will be conferred on 151 members of the Mennonite community during the Oct. 31 ceremony in Gaines County, a remote patch of Texas prairie along the New Mexico border.

"I'll never forget the fight we went through on this one," Bentsen said in a statement released in Washington today.

The fight began in 1977 when the Mennonites — evangelical Christians who eschew modern conveniences for a more basic way of life — were told they had to leave Texas after fleeing Mexico, fearing their land would be confiscated by the government there.

The group had entered the United States through El Paso on 60-day visas and traveled to the base of the Panhandle where they bought land — believing those purchases would entitle them to remain, a government study indicates.

Later in 1977, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service told them they would have to leave the country.

When Bentsen learned of the situation, he compiled a bill giving the entire Mennonite group permanent residency status.

"We had a community of people who had been misled into thinking they were entering this country legally, who were welcomed with open arms by the people of Seminole and I just could not allow their mass deportation," Bentsen said.

The then-junior senator worked from 1977 through most of 1980 to block the mass deportation, finally winning in October 1980 when former President Jimmy Carter signed his bill granting the clan residency.

"Members of Congress would come to me and say, 'I never heard of granting residency to this many people in one piece of legislation.' But they became convinced, as I was convinced, of the uniqueness and equity of this case."

Most of the Mennonites settled in Seminole, where 550 remain today. Some 70 more live in Boley, Okla.

Bentsen will be the keynote speaker at naturalization ceremonies in the junior high school gym in Seminole at the invitation of Carlos Neuschwander, a community leader.

Olga Smirnova, a member of a college debate team from Russia, argues her point to a crowd of about 1,000 Baylor students Wednesday night.

Baylor debate team hosts Soviets in polite exchange

WACO, Texas (AP) — The Soviets said if Americans would only trust them, the world would be safer.

The Americans said a Star Wars defense system must come before talk about trust.

The two debate teams met in a polite, unscored exchange at Baylor University Wednesday in what was billed as a forum to further the understanding of both countries.

It drew a standing-room-only crowd at the Bill Daniel Student Union.

The Soviet team, made up of three students of language and philosophy, said it was "urgent" for their country to gain our trust.

"The view of the Soviet Union is old-fashioned and negative," said Maria Mamonova of Moscow.

When Paula Denney of Baylor suggested that Soviets could be exiled to Siberia for criticizing their leaders, Olga Smirnova maintained that it wasn't so.

"We may say whatever we want in our country," she said. "The question is whether you believe us or not."

Then it was Mrs. Smirnova's turn to be corrected. She waved a newspaper article about what she thought were protesters getting arrested in the United States, only to learn later the charge was for blocking traffic.

Both sides said they were for peace but disagreed on the ways to achieve it.

Eugeniy Bobkov said he was against a strategic defense initiative, nicknamed Star Wars, because he feared it could be converted into an offensive system and "kill a person."

Octoberfest to be held Saturday

Pampa area civic clubs and associations will be selling items Saturday at the Pampa Mall's annual Octoberfest.

The Octoberfest is a community service provided by the mall, Salyer said.

The clubs will be selling such items as arts and crafts, handmade articles, Christmas cards, baked goods, painted pumpkins, candy and other items.

The Octoberfest will open at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Organizations participating in the event include Gray County Association for the Retarded, Junior Service League, Pampa Evening Lions Club, New Life Worship Center, Pam Home Demonstration Club, Pampa Shrine Club, Stepsavers Home Demonstration Club, Progressive Home Demonstration Club, Kappa Alpha Sorority and the Pampa High School chapter of Distributive Education Clubs of America.

Band to crown its sweetheart

The Pampa High School "Pride of Pampa" Harvester Band will crown its Band Sweetheart during halftime ceremonies at the Friday night football game with Levelland.

The sweetheart is chosen by band members from four nominees. Nominated this year are seniors Delma Jara, Anne Colwell, Cindy Whitmarsh and Erika Adams.

In a pre-game show, the Pampa Middle School Patriots Band will perform with the Harvester Band. The middle school band also will march in the halftime show, presenting its contest show.

Drug test shows spiced tea was a narcotic

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A college student who was almost arrested after a police drug test mistakenly identified a package of spiced tea as hashish has filed a lawsuit against the manufacturer of a drug testing kit.

The suit was filed against Becton, Dickinson & Co., whose Public Safety Products Division manufactures the suit.

Elizabeth Horn, a Paris County Junior College Student, said in the suit she has been defamed and slandered and her good name tarnished by the incident. The suit does not ask for a specific amount in damages.

The incident began last week when police were alerted by school authorities who discovered a brown substance leaking from a package addressed to Miss Horn.

When Miss Horn picked up the package from the school post office, school personnel thought she acted suspiciously.

A school security officer took a sample of the powdery substance to the Lamar County Sheriff's office for testing. The test said it was hashish.

At 3:45 p.m. Thursday, three officers with a search warrant went to Miss Horn's room and searched all of her belongings.

"I couldn't believe these guys were going through my room. I was really scared. They went through everything — every drawer, all my makeup. My adrenaline was really pumping," she told the Dallas Morning News.

Police decided not to arrest her after Miss Horn made an impassioned plea of innocence.

"Normally, they would have, but under the circumstances the officers felt they would do some further checking on it," said Lamar County Sheriff James Parker.

The package was actually nothing more than a care package of chocolate, bubble bath and vitamins from her mother in Chicago, Miss Horn said.

After police searched her room she called her boyfriend, Mike Flanary, who promptly notified his father, Paris lawyer Bill Flanary.

Baylor gets research grant to study comet dust

WACO, Texas (AP) — NASA has awarded a $7.5 million research grant to Baylor University physicists to study comet dust and perhaps give weather forecasters a better handle on when and where rain will fall.

The grant is the largest in Baylor's history and one of the largest awarded in the Southwest, Gary Carter, director of research administration, said Wednesday.

Dr. Merle Alexander, professor of physics and director of the Institute of Environmental Studies, will be the chief investigator for the 10-12 year study.

Co-investigators are from Martin Marietta Corp., Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., the University of Canterbury in England and several research groups in Germany.

Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio also will be part of a proposed $350 experimental effort by NASA in a proposed Comet Rendezvous Asteroid Fly-By.

Alexander is considered one of the country's premier experts on comets. Earlier this year, he played a key role in a European Space Agency mission that successfully studied Halley's comet.

His proposal to study various aspects of comet dust was selected from a field of several hundred submitted to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration last fall.

Nine grants were awarded for experiments to be conducted on the mission titled Comet Rendezvous and Asteroid Flyby, set for the 1990s.

Alexander said the study of comet dust may help determine when rain will occur. Although it is not proven, Alexander said he believes some rainfall is caused by comet dust when it hits the moon, forming craters and spewing out other material.

Alexander has gotten several NASA grants during the past 15 years, but none more than $1 million. He served as director of the astrochemistry section for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center from 1959 to 1967. He has designed instruments used on more than 20 satellites, beginning when he was a graduate student at Oklahoma State University.

The comet study will require Alexander to design an instrument that can be attached to a spacecraft — the Mariner Mark II.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Superfund program accomplishes little

When a government program is an abysmal failure, the usual procedure is not to bother with troublesome analysis of where it went wrong, but to find somebody to blame, shed a tear or two, shrug the political shoulders, gird up the legislative loins and go out and do the same thing over again, only more so.

The pattern is holding with the environmental Superfund, which has been an expensive — $1.6 billion — failure and a source of almost endless scandal and pointless litigation.

Over the last five years, although 2,000 hazardous waste dumps were considered priority items and 19,000 were in possible need of clean-up, the Superfund got around to six — that's right, six — relatively simple site clean-ups and did some superficial clean-ups at ten more sites. And the Office of Technology Assessment has some doubts as to whether even those six were done properly. Furthermore, an audit by the Government Accounting Office turned up sloppy management and cost overruns that have made the Pentagon look like a tight shop by comparison.

The reasons for such poor performance are not difficult to discover. Superfund was financed by a special tax on all chemical companies, assessed regardless of how responsibly the company had disposed of its waste. This method of taxation offered no incentive to dispose of waste responsibly, since responsible and irresponsible companies were taxed on the same basis.

Having assessed companies as if they planned to run something like a "no-fault" clean-up service, however, Superfund lawyers and managers, once they got around to particular sites, became virtually obsessed with the idea of assessing fault and determining liability. They cast the liability net widely, suing companies that had already been taxed to pay for the Superfund. They reacted negatively, and set their own lawyers to work. The result has been something of a full-employment act for lawyers, with little or no clean-up resulting.

So what does Congress do? Without making any substantial changes in the way the Superfund program operates, it proposes to give the managers five times as much money — $8.5 billion over five years. Will the money be raised by making irresponsible companies pay more? Of course not. The revenue net will simply be cast wider, including $2 billion to come from companies with earnings above a certain level whether they have anything to do with chemicals or not.

The Superfund concept is deeply flawed. It would be better to take the time to do it right or to facilitate a private-sector clean-up program than to waste any more money on a program that had demonstrated it is designed to fail.

Summit was doomed to fail

WASHINGTON — The trouble with Reykjavik was that the two principals failed to abide by Kissinger's law. That diplomatic axiom, fashioned by Henry Kissinger from the legacy that Talleyrand left him, may be summarized as follows: "Before two heads of state sit down to talk, let them be prepared to stand up."

During his career as secretary of state, Kissinger took a cool view of summitry. He had a good deal of confidence in Nixon's ability to take care of himself in the ring, but even so, professionals as a breed mistrust amateurs as a breed, and Henry was ever the consummate pro. He believed in preparation, preparation, preparation. Once Kissinger told a luncheon guest the story of two European ambassadors who met at the border between their hostile nations.

"If my government were to propose this, that, and the other thing," asked the first diplomat, "what would be the response of your government?"

"If your government were to make such a proposal," came the reply, "my government would respond in this fashion ..."

Whereupon the first ambassador produced a letter of intention, and the second ambassador whipped from his pocket a reply, and their principals subsequently sat down at a summit. They were prepared at the outset to stand up at the end.

There was no way the meeting at Reykjavik between Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev could be camouflaged. It was variously described as a "mini-summit" or a "presummit" or even a "summitette." Hukom! It was a summit meeting if there ever was one, and Kissinger's Law should have been respected. The two adversaries should have discovered, through the preliminary mazes of private diplomacy, that the president's Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) was an absolute barrier to a public pronouncement on arms reduction. For want of such preparation, the meeting would end in disarray. Reykjavik, said one of the TV pundits, "will be widely viewed as a keen disappointment."

Widely viewed, perhaps, but not universally viewed. Some of us who believe devoutly in dramatic arms reduction are much more concerned with the end than with the means. We are skeptical — justifiably skeptical — of formal treaties, accords, agreements and protocols with the Soviet Union. Civilized nations may be honorably bound by ribbons and bows and sealing wax, but the Kremlin views punctilio with scorn. The Helsinki Accords — remember them? — were signed with great solemnity and pomp, but the ink had not dried before the Soviet Union tore that pretty package to shreds.

This is not to discount the usefulness of getting something in writing; it is merely to suggest that we not get so absorbed with form that we lose sight of substance. The object is not to get "an agreement." The object is to reduce the infernal weapons of nuclear warfare by half, and then by half again. An elaborate treaty, adorned with legalistic curlicues, is not necessarily the best or only mechanism to achieve that end. To insist upon such a formality is to risk getting pricked on what Warweick described in "Henry VI" as "these nice sharp quillets of the law."

Who was disappointed by the outcome at Reykjavik? Doubtless the two principals felt deflated, but this too will pass. The failure to come up with a document that could be toasted in Washington next year was not a catastrophic failure. By demonstrating his resolve on SDI, the president may even have improved the prospects for significant arms reduction — not now, but perhaps in months to come.

The basis for a mutual understanding, if not for a lawyers' contract, emerged from the snows of Iceland. On the key matter of strategic defense, the president is plainly on sound ground. His program of research, development and testing threatens no one. His offer to postpone actual deployment for 10 years is a reasonable offer, subject to contingencies that no one can foresee.

We have to assume that the Soviets are deeply engaged in parallel research and development of their own. They see a race to devise a stronger shield as a race to hone still sharper swords, but both sides agree that their swords are sharp enough now. The opposing nuclear arsenals are quite simply obscene. Each superpower has the capacity to reduce the other to smoldering embers. The whole faceoff is insane.

Let us be of good cheer. The abortive, ill-prepared meeting at Reykjavik brought us no closer to the brink of Armageddon. Reagan and Gorbachev may not have reached an agreement of minds, but they gained some understanding of a clash of wills. Nothing ventured, nothing gained. Let it go at that.

Help those who fall down

I felt sorry for Nancy Reagan when I heard she fell out of her chair in the East Room of the White House while listening to her husband, the president, say nice things about Vladimir Horowitz, the piano player, who had just given a recital.

I bring this up as a part of my continuing crusade to help those poor clumsy individuals — like myself — who fall down a lot.

These people are terribly misunderstood and often have to face unwarranted humiliation. Although it is 1986, and we have become much more sensitive to people with certain defects, many of us still harbor prejudices against those who fall down.

Falling down when you are a child is OK. We expect children to fall down. But when you reach the age of uprightness — that is, when the girls in your class have started wearing training bras — falling down becomes something to avoid at all times.

Falling down is terribly embarrassing. Falling down — even on a pair of snow skis while trying to get down a steep slope without killing yourself — indicates to bemused onlookers a certain sign of weakness.

Once, I saw a woman fall down in a department store. It was Christmas and she was carrying many packages.

Everybody in the store stopped to look at the red-faced woman, who quickly gathered herself and her packages and began walking away.

Just then, a wisecrack said to the woman, "I'm sorry, ma'am, but you have to go back to where you fell."

"Why on earth?" she asked.

"Because," the smart aleck, likely a frustrated football referee, replied, "that's where your knee touched the ground."

I fell down once in a supermarket. I was carrying a jar of mayonnaise at the time. A kid said to his mother, "Look, mom, that man fell down." Then, the kid began laughing.

I would have thrown the jar of mayonnaise at the little brat, but it had broken during my fall. I had mayonnaise in my hair. I had mayonnaise in my shoes.

"My attorneys will hear about this!" I screamed at the top of my voice as I ran out of the supermarket, which was the only way I figured I could leave without having to pay for the broken jar of mayonnaise.

Nancy Reagan isn't the only famous person who has fallen. Gerald Ford, who used to be president, fell all the time. You can't have a president who falls, and I am certain that's the real reason Ford lost the White House to Jimmy Carter in 1976.

Not only that, but Chevy Chase built a comedic career pretending he was Gerald Ford on television and falling down while a naiton laughed its fool head off.

Being prone to falling is a horrible affliction and should not be laughed at. It can happen to anybody.

Besides, Nancy Reagan couldn't have avoided what happened to her.

Not only had she sat through Vladimir Horowitz, she also had to listen to violinist Itzhak Periman and cellist Yo-Yo Ma.

If that isn't enough to knock you out of your chair, I don't know what is.

Hazardous blobs leaking from the deep

By Robert Walters

PORT HURON, Mich. (NEA) — When large oily blobs were discovered last autumn 30 feet beneath the surface of the St. Clair River, a diver was dispatched to examine and identify them.

The diver's mission was a failure, however, because his mask literally dissolved in front of his face as he approached the corrosive globs of chemical waste on the river bottom between Port Huron, 50 miles northeast of Detroit, and Sarnia, Ontario.

The blobs subsequently were identified as agglomerations of dioxins, furans and dozens of other highly toxic industrial chemical wastes. They had been left years earlier by means of a disposal technique frequently utilized yet potentially devastating to human health and safety.

This little-known method, deep-well injection, involves pumping hazardous waste under pressure into wells under the Earth's crust. These wells are usually from 1,300 to 5,300 feet deep.

But underground faults and fractures can allow the chemicals to migrate, especially when vast amounts of contaminants have been pumped into the ground and place great stress on subsurface reservoirs.

Along the banks of the St. Clair River, for example, more than 2.1 billion gallons of hazardous waste were pumped into underground wells between 1958 and 1976 by industrial firms whose plants line the Canadian shore.

In the late 1960s, several water wells in Port Huron were found to be contaminated with phenols and hydrogen sulphide. In the early 1970s, an abandoned well at Sarnia produced a green liquid containing phenols, chlorides and hydrogen sulphide.

The disposal technique "is a way for corporations to rid themselves of toxic residues — without encountering the rigid governmental restrictions or public clamor associated with more visible methods of disposal," says the Natural Resources Defense Council, a New York-based environmental organization.

An NRDC report entitled "Deeper Problems" argues convincingly that both injection and monitoring techniques are inadequate to protect the public and that federal regulations governing deep-well disposal are pitifully weak.

Almost 60 percent of all hazardous waste generated annually — about 10 billion gallons — is disposed of through injection in deep wells. Only 35 percent goes into sealed drums for permanent storage in clay-lined pits and other surface impoundments.

The globs in the St. Clair River were cleaned up by the Dow Chemical Co. That firm abandoned deep-well injection in 1983 after acknowledging that there is no way to determine what happens to the hazardous waste — but numerous other companies still rely upon the discredited technique.

Police back Meese's anti-porn campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Law enforcement officials already are rallying in support of Attorney General Edwin Meese's national assault on hardcore pornography, but an executive in one group says it will take time to bring results.

At the same time, a civil liberties group said it feared the anti-porn program Meese announced Wednesday could encroach on constitutional rights.

Even before Meese's long-awaited plan was unveiled, the National District Attorney Association's board had approved a policy statement urging its 6,000 members — all city and county prosecutors — to vigorously enforce obscenity laws.

The endorsement, made at a recent conference, encourages state and local law enforcement officials to initiate cases involving child porn and obscene material depicting sexual violence. And the subject of pornography is expected to come up again at the association's meeting next month.

But the complexity of obscenity case investigations and the press of other law enforcement priorities make it unrealistic to expect that any anti-porn campaign will have a significant impact immediately, says Curt Wolfgang, director for inter-governmental affairs for the district attorneys' group.

"This policy statement is encouragement to local prosecutors and nothing more," Wolfgang said Wednesday.

"The policy (on whether to pursue porn cases) is going to vary," he added. "There will be a different policy for every local elected prosecutor around the country."

Still, Wolfgang called the statement a positive step, noting that the group's board is composed of 100 of the most influential local prosecutors across the country.

The policy statement also calls for "a dedication of federal resources" to prosecute cases involving interstate transportation of obscene materials. Meese on Wednesday promised to provide that effort.

At a news conference, Meese said he will create a task force of prosecutors in the Justice Department so the $8 billion smut industry can be "pursued with a vengeance and prosecuted to the hilt."

Meese announced he would implement most of the recommendations put forward in July by the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography.

Among other things, he will create a center for obscenity prosecution in the Justice Department's criminal division to train attorneys in obscenity cases and to advise state and local governments. He also will push a legislative package that would allow prosecutors to go after the illegal proceeds of obscenity crimes and make it a felony for porn producers to use performers who are under age 21.

The targets of the campaign will be child pornography, and movies, magazines or other pornographic depictions of sado-masochism and violent or degrading sexually explicit conduct.

The announcement delighted anti-porn activists and angered civil libertarians.

"We are very impressed with the attorney general's response," said the Rev. Jerry Kirk, president of the National Coalition Against Pornography, a group of religious leaders.

But Barry W. Lynn, legislative counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union, said at a separate news conference that Meese's proposals "may curtail the right of Americans to read and see what they want about American sexuality."

Administration says FBI will benefit from Soviet spy ouster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leadership of the Soviet spy network in the United States is being expelled this fall in a move administration officials say will ease the FBI's job by forcing the Soviets to promote inexperienced street agents to management jobs.

These officials anticipate that the ouster by Nov. 1 of 55 spies from the Soviet Embassy here and the Soviet consulate in San Francisco, coupled with the recent expulsion of 25 spies at the Soviet United Nations mission in New York, will set off a fight between the Soviet Foreign Ministry and the KGB spy agency.

The two Soviet agencies are expected to vie over how many of the 251 posts remaining in the embassy and the consulate will go to legitimate diplomats and how many to spies.

Because the United States specifically named the 80 who must leave, there are no legitimate diplomats in the group, the officials said.

In Moscow, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev denounced the latest U.S. expulsion as a "wild" action that led him to question Washington's reliability as a partner in arms control efforts.

But U.S. officials saw positive paybacks for American intelligence from the move.

"This is the end of an era," said one of three Reagan administration officials who briefed reporters Wednesday on condition they not be identified.

"The Soviets operated the largest spy network in the world in the United States, but no longer will they have a massive, unchallenged, bloated number of intelligence officers here," one official said.

"They will have to take case officers, operations officers, from the street to be managers," he said. Another official added, "This use of inexperienced managers should make the FBI's job a lot easier."

The officials said that in Washington, San Francisco and New York, the resident, or station chief, for the GRU, Soviet military intelligence, and his deputies for administration and operations have been expelled.

They said all three KGB residents are being ousted, as are the KGB Line X, Line PR and Line KR chiefs in each city. Line X is the KGB term for the squad that gathers scientific and technical data. Line PR is the political and economic intelligence squad, and Line KR is the unit assigned to penetrate the CIA and the FBI.

Before the expulsions, the Soviets had about 300 spies under diplomatic cover in this country, they said.

"It has to be a crushing blow to their intelligence operations," one official said. "But it will not end Soviet espionage."

They said the Soviets would find it hard to replace the managers because: it takes years of training and experience to learn to operate in the West; a year of special training in Moscow is required to become a line chief; and another half year of special training is necessary to become a resident.

The United States can deny visas to spies sent here posing as diplomats. Experienced Soviet spies identified by U.S. intelligence in other regions have occasionally been rejected when transferred here, they said.

The officials acknowledged the Soviet response will pose new problems for U.S. counterintelligence.

They predicted the Soviets will mount greater efforts against U.S. facilities abroad, seek more help from Warsaw Pact spies here, and add some so-called illegal agents — spies who do not operate under the cover of phony diplomatic jobs.

Baker and Hughes Tool will merge in $456 million deal

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Two struggling oilfield-services companies — Baker International Corp. and Hughes Tool Co. — say they plan to merge in a stock-swap deal valued at $456.5 million.

Separately, Houston-based Hughes Tool posted a third-quarter loss of $41.4 million on revenue of $158.8 million.

The merger was "dictated by the depression in the industry," Hughes Tool spokesman Don King said Wednesday. "The basic reason for merger is to let both organizations enjoy the benefits of consolidation and cost reduction."

The agreement, approved by both companies' directors in separate meetings Wednesday, would create a new company named Baker Hughes Inc., which would be headquartered in Houston.

To lock up the deal, each company granted the other the right to buy 18.5 percent of the other's stock, and Borg-Warner Corp., which owns 18.6 percent of Hughes Tool's stock, agreed to vote in favor of the deal.

Under the agreement, each share of Hughes Tool would be exchanged for four-fifths of a share of the new company. Each Baker share would be swapped for one share in the new company.

Hughes has about 55 million shares outstanding and its stock closed Wednesday at $7.75 a share, up 12 1/2 cents, in New York Stock Exchange composite trading. Baker, based in Orange, has about 70 million shares outstanding, and its stock closed at $10.37 1/2, up 12 cents.

Both Baker and Hughes Tool have been hurt by the depressed oil industry.

In the first nine months of its fiscal year, Baker posted a deficit of $250.3 million on revenue of $1.23 billion. That included a pre-tax writedown of $410 million on the value of property, plants and equipment.

Results of Baker's fiscal fourth quarter, ended Sept. 30, are to be released early next month.

Baker showed profits of $87.7 million in fiscal 1985 and $70.6 million in fiscal 1984, but it had a loss of $63.5 million in fiscal 1983.

Baker has been cutting costs by closing operations and laying off workers. It currently has about 14,500 employees, compared to 20,000 at the end of 1985 and a peak of about 33,000 in mid-1982.

Hughes Tool's results in recent years have been even more dismal as it slashed its workforce to a current 9,000 worldwide from a 1981 peak of 19,500.

The company's third-quarter loss brought its deficit for the nine months to $507.5 million. The loss included an after-tax writedown of $402.4 million on the value of plants, equipment and inventory.

It posted a modest profit of $4.1 million in 1985, but lost $133.8 million in 1984 and $90.9 million in 1983.

Baker Chairman E.H. Clark Jr. would become chairman of the combined company, while Hughes Tool Chairman W.A. Kistler Jr. would become vice chairman.

Baker's president and chief executive, J.D. Woods, would retain those positions in the new company.

Consumer prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed 0.3 percent last month, with a 2.5 percent rise in gasoline costs accounting for most of the increase, the government reported today.

The gain followed a 0.2 increase in August. Through last month, prices this year have increased at an annual rate of just 0.6 percent.

Analysts predict retail costs will be up about 2 percent for the full year, far less than the 3.8 percent increase for all of 1985.

Today's report means that 37.4 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 1.3 percent increase in their checks in January. That's the smallest rise since the government tied benefits to the Consumer Price Index in 1975.

Effects of lower commodities prices on farm exports unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration still hopes the downward drift in commodity prices will trigger a recovery in lagging U.S. farm exports, but no one is predicting the turnaround will be quick.

The Agriculture Department has not yet issued a forecast for 1987, but officials say next year should bring a pickup in the quantity of grain and other farm products sold to foreign buyers.

A drawback, however, is that the lower prices — embodied in the reduced federal price supports authorized in last year's Food Security Act — will mean little or no increase in the actual value of commodities exported in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The department's Economic Research Service hedges on export expansion, noting that any improvement over the next few years will be affected by the size of foreign harvests and the reaction of foreign governments to the new programs aimed at lowering prices to make U.S. products more competitive.

Some private analysts are less constrained and are predicting that it may take years for American farmers to come out of their export slump. Even then, some contend, there is little to suggest that farm exports will return to the glory days of the 1970s.

After rising to record levels in 1980-81, including a value peak of $43.8 billion and an annual export volume of more than 160 million metric tons, the trade figures have sagged. In the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, farm exports dropped to a nine-year low of $26.5 billion and a volume level of 108 million tons.

Fred H. Sanderson, a senior fellow at the National Center for Food and Agricultural Policy, said the volume of U.S. agricultural exports may rise by 25 percent over the next three years, while their value may go up only 6 percent. The center is operated by the private research organization Resources for the Future.

According to those projections, that would put the volume of exports at about 135 million tons in the 1989 fiscal year and their value at $28.1 billion. Both would be far less than the record levels of the early 1980s.

Sanderson, writing in the organization's current issue of Resources magazine, cautioned that the projections will be subject to pressures.

"Whether the United States can achieve even this much will depend on how U.S. competitors react," he said. "In the European Community, export subsidies will go up automatically to match U.S. export prices. Then the question becomes, which government has the deepest pockets?"

Soviets deal blow to U.S. Embassy staff in response

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin hit back in the superpower tit-for-tat by applying Washington's own limits to U.S. missions in the Soviet Union and stripping away vital local staff who do everything from serve cheeseburgers to wrestle with the Soviet bureaucracy.

The Soviet retaliation, announced by Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov at a news conference Wednesday night, will reduce the flow of American diplomats into the country and make it harder for U.S. officials to bring guests to the Soviet Union.

It also leaves the U.S. Embassy faced with having to reduce its diplomatic staff to fill secretarial, custodial, maintenance and other non-diplomatic posts once occupied by an inexpensive Soviet labor force.

The Reagan administration also may be hard-pressed to retaliate, if it decides to take such a step, since the Soviets operate their Washington embassy and San Francisco consulate with few American employees.

Gerasimov warned that any new steps by the United States will be matched by the Kremlin, and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said in a nationally televised speech that his government "will not put up with such outrageous practices."

In terms of simple numbers, the Soviets have stopped far short of the U.S. expulsions that began with an order that 25 Soviet diplomats at the United Nations leave the United States.

In response, the Kremlin ordered five American diplomats out of the Soviet Union. The United States then kicked out 55 Soviets — five in direct retaliation and 50 in what the Reagan administration said was an effort to even Soviet and U.S. diplomatic representation.

That was to leave 225 Soviets in Washington and 26 at the Soviet Consulate in San Francisco, equal to the Americans at the Moscow embassy and Leningrad consulate.

On Wednesday, Gerasimov said the Soviets were ordering another five Americans out of the Soviet Union, which apparently left the score at 80-10 in Washington's favor.

But Gerasimov then unveiled the meat of the Soviet response, a carefully crafted series of restrictions that hurt the U.S. Embassy far more than the expulsions of 10 diplomats.

The biggest stroke appears to be a Soviet decision that all 260 of the Soviet personnel working in Moscow and Leningrad must leave their jobs immediately and can only be replaced with Americans.

But, Gerasimov said, the United States cannot exceed its own limit of 225 staffers in Moscow and 26 in Leningrad.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner said Wednesday that the embassy is already at that limit, including the 10 diplomats under order to leave.

That means the U.S. government would have to reduce its diplomatic staff to replace the Soviet employees — a professional and financial burden.

The locally hired staff works for far less than the Americans — as little as one-fifth or one-tenth U.S. wages — and provides its own housing.

The American dependence on the Soviet staff is long-established and the embassy has been under congressional pressure to reduce local staff.

Hasenfus' attorney to plan defense today with Bell

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The attorney for captured American Eugene Hasenfus said he and former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell would begin planning a defense today against Sandinista charges which include terrorism and violating Nicaraguan security.

Enrique Sotelo Borgen refused to say how he would plead Hasenfus' case before the People's Tribunal, which under Nicaraguan law must be done today. The tribunal of a lawyer and two laymen refused Wednesday to give him more time to prepare his case and enter a plea.

"There are some things we will deny. I will not say what," Sotelo Borgen told reporters following a two-hour meeting Wednesday with Hasenfus at the tribunal offices a half-mile from the U.S. Embassy in Managua.

Sotelo Borgen stopped short of saying how his client would plead, telling reporters, "We have not resolved that yet."

The Sandinistas, who overthrew the right-wing government of President Anastasio Somoza in July 1979, set up the People's Tribunal in 1983 to prosecute those accused of counter-revolution. Foreign reports of its conviction rate range as high as 99.8 percent.

Bell, attorney general under former President Jimmy Carter, was scheduled to arrive in Managua later today. Bell, of Atlanta, volunteered last week to defend Hasenfus, but by law the chief defense lawyer must be Nicaraguan.

Sotelo Borgen said he and Bell would "analyze the case deeply and establish a defensive strategy."

Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette,

Wis., is accused of acting on behalf of the U.S. government when the C-123 cargo plane on which he was a crew member was shot down Oct. 5 in southern Nicaragua. It carried supplies for U.S.-backed rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government. He faces up to 30 years in prison if convicted.

Three other men aboard were killed — two Americans and one who has not been identified. Hasenfus was captured by Sandinista troops the following day.

Hasenfus has said he participated in 10 of the flights and they originated from a U.S.-financed base in El Salvador and a U.S.-constructed airfield in Honduras.

Meanwhile, another former U.S. attorney general, Ramsey Clark, arrived here Wednesday night "to find out as much as possible about the role of the United States government in the flight that was shot down."

Clark, who has been active in a variety of liberal causes since leaving office in 1969, said he was not representing any group during his visit.

Speaking briefly to reporters at the Sandino International Airport, Clark said, "He (Hasenfus) seems to believe that he was working for the United States government and if that is true, it should not deny him now."

After the Wednesday meeting with his lawyer, Hasenfus was escorted by four soldiers who pushed through waiting reporters and put him inside a green patrol vehicle, apparently to return him to prison.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Alberto Fernandez said Wednesday the Nicaraguan government has "been consistent in ignoring Mr. Hasenfus' legal rights."

Walesa seeks guaranteed re-entry before U.S. trip

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said he would go to Los Angeles to receive a humanitarian award if the Polish government guarantees he will be allowed to return home.

Walesa said he was told to report to the Interior Ministry office in his hometown of Gdansk today to learn whether a passport to travel to the United States would be issued.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban, asked Wednesday whether the government had given its assurances that Walesa would be allowed back into Poland, repeated a statement he gave at a news conference Tuesday that the government never makes such guarantees.

Walesa said representatives of the California-based John-Roger Foundation, which named him one of three recipients of its annual "Integrity" award, told him that officials at the Polish Embassy in Washington assured them Walesa would be allowed to return to Poland.

He has demanded such a guarantee from Polish authorities before agreeing to go to Los Angeles for an awards ceremony

Friday night.

"If I get some kind of confirmation (about the assurances) from the United States or from here, I will go," Walesa said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

U.S. officials said if Walesa receives a passport he could be issued a visa in time to leave Poland today. It would be Walesa's first trip to the United States.

Walesa won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983 for his leadership of Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's first free trade union. Solidarity was outlawed in 1982 while Poland was under martial law.

John-Rogers Foundation representatives informed U.S. Embassy officials in Warsaw by telephone about the assurances they had received from the Polish Embassy, U.S. officials said on condition of anonymity.

But the U.S. officials said they had no direct contacts with Polish officials in Warsaw or Washington about the matter.

Michael Feder, a foundation representative, said he had been in Poland since Monday trying to arrange Walesa's trip to Los Angeles.

No major social programs, but relief for poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 99th Congress did not create any major new social programs, but lawmakers did extend health benefits to needy Americans, took 6 million working poor off the tax rolls and eliminated mandatory retirement.

The just-ended Congress resisted Reagan administration attempts to eliminate or drastically cut a number of social programs and extended several existing ones to previously ineligible Americans.

Congress abolished the mandatory retirement age, allowing most Americans to work as long as they are qualified to hold their jobs. Lawmakers also voted to require employers to continue making pension contributions for workers after the age of 65.

They passed election-year legislation guaranteeing that retirees get a Social Security cost-of-living hike this year despite minimal inflation.

As part of budget reconciliation legislation, Congress voted to limit the increase in the Medicare Part A deductible to $28 instead of the $80 hike announced by the Reagan administration.

Under the legislation, elderly Medicare recipients would pay the first $520 of a hospital bill.

States were given the option to provide Medicaid health benefits to working poor women who are pregnant. An estimated 3.4 million women are of childbearing age, but many states with fiscal problems may not elect to participate by paying half the cost.

Congress also enacted a so-called presumption of eligibility for pregnant women, so they can begin immediately receiving Medicaid while applying for benefits.

The work-incentive program for welfare mothers, one of the few domestic programs that was drastically reduced, was cut from $210 million to $110 million.

States were also allowed to offer Medicaid benefits to 2.2 million elderly people who did not work long enough to become eligible for Medicare under Social Security.

Congress permanently extended a Medicaid and Supplemental Security Income benefits to mentally and physically disabled people who work, mostly in jobs that don't provide health insurance.

The tax bill's removal of 6 million low-income people from the tax rolls is "the leading accomplishment of the Congress," said Robert Greenstein, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a liberal-oriented research and lobbying organization specializing in social legislation.

"For low and moderate income families it's one of the most significant pieces of legislation in a number of years," he said.

In the area of health, Congress increased expenditures for AIDS research and treatment from $135 million to $248 million.

Congress grants Texas $13.5 million for wilderness areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appropriated $13.5 million to buy land adjoining four Texas parks and wilderness areas as part of a $187 million Land and Water Conservation Fund expansion before it adjourned last week.

"These are wise investments," Charles Clusen, The Wilderness Society's vice president for conservation, said Wednesday. "Future generations will be especially grateful."

The $187 million appropriation, which would fund 62 projects across the country, was in the Continuing Resolution bill passed last weekend to fund most federal programs for the coming year.

The money will come from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which is financed primarily through fees levied on offshore oil drilling, according to a Wilderness Society statement.

A $4 million grant was voted for Big Thicket, a sprawling wilderness area in Southeast Texas, that will mean the purchase of thousands of acres from two lumber companies that have held back on harvesting for eight years to preserve the land, Clusen said.

Also receiving funds for future acquisition of land were the San Antonio Missions National Historical Park, and the Aransas and Lower Rio Grande National Wildlife Refuges.

The Lower Rio Grande wildlife refuge, which stretches along the southern boundaries of Cameron, Hidalgo and Starr counties, provides habitat for a variety of endangered species including the bald eagle, ocelot, jaguarundi and peregrine falcon.

The bill grants $6 million for the purchase of thousands of acres of brushlands.

Continental posts record earnings

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines, fresh from bankruptcy proceedings that ended last month, posted a $65.1 million third-quarter profit, the highest quarterly earnings in the company's 52-year history.

The quarter income marks a 58 percent increase over last year's third quarter profit of $41.3 million. The net earnings for the three months ending Sept. 30 amounts to $2.12 per share, compared with 72 cents per share during the 1985 third quarter.

"Continental made significant progress during the quarter, including the major step of exiting Chapter 11 in early September," Continental Chairman Frank Lorenzo said.

The Houston-based carrier also recorded a third-quarter operating income of $83.4 million, an increase of 37 percent from the $61.1 million in last year's third quarter.

For the first nine months of 1986, Continental would have reported a profit of about $75 million had it not been obligated to pay about $80 million in reorganization costs, the company said.

After those costs, Continental had a net loss of $5.3 million for the nine months. In the comparable period in 1985, Continental had a net profit of $91.7 million after $12.7 million in reorganization costs.

For the third quarter, Continental had about $10 million in bankruptcy-related costs and a $12 million gain on the sale of aircraft. Last year's third quarter included a $1.5 million gain on the sale of assets and $6 million in reorganization-related expenses.

Continental filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on Sept. 24, 1983. At the time, the airline said it owed $657.8 million in secured debts, $352.7 million in unsecured debts and $18.4 million of accrued interest.

In June, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge T. Glover Roberts approved Continental's plans to repay a debt of about $925 million. Continental made initial payments to creditors in September, with the remainder to be paid with interest over the next three to 10 years.

The company's operating profit for the first nine months dropped by $35.4 million from $148.7 million in 1985 to $113.3 million in 1986.

Continental's parent company, Texas Air Corp., is in the process of acquiring Eastern Airlines and People Express.

Gold found in Texas hills

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio oil company learned all that glitters isn't asphalt when it stumbled upon a major gold vein in South Central Texas.

Exploration Co., a publicly held energy firm, was originally interested in exploring the tract for its promising asphalt deposits but discovered a more lucrative ore, company executive Paul Signon told the Dallas Morning News Wednesday.

"We weren't looking for gold and silver. We didn't believe it," Signon said.

After discovering the gold and silver, Company officials began quietly leasing 150,000 acres of land along the vein's path. So far the company has invested $1.5 million in the project.

Officials would have preferred to keep their secret so they could continue snatching up land while competitors remained in the dark.

"We would have preferred to keep it as quiet as we could," Signon said.

But Exploration Co.'s lawyers realized announcing the discovery could have a profound affect on the company's value. The lawyers did manage to provide as few details as possible in the disclosure of the company's find.

Signon said the company learned of the gold deposits after it sent a sample of the land to a laboratory to determine if a revolutionary asphalt mining technique would be feasible.

The lab analysis revealed traces of gold and silver.

The company has scuttled oil exploration on the land opting instead to devote its energies to the gold project.

If the discovery proves valid, it is likely to be only the second major gold find in Texas. Nearly all previous gold mining occurred as a byproduct of silver mining in Presidio County, about 250 miles west of Uvalde.

If all pans out, the impact on Exploration Co. would be immediate. Last year the company lost $649,000 on revenues of $403,000.

Signon anticipates a break-even performance for 1986.

Its impossible to predict how much gold the company may find.

Salvage yard could tell sad automobile stories

By DAVE SAELENS
Beaumont Enterprise

SILSBEE, Texas (AP) — Spencer Armour's back yard is full of stories — nearly 1,000. They're sad stories, full of twisted steel and broken glass. "Every car you see out there is probably a heartache," the soft-spoken businessman says of his 24-acre salvage yard off Texas 327 where flattened Fords and crumpled Chevrolets form a patchwork of mangled metal. "People get real attached to their cars, like puppy dogs sometimes." But the story behind Armour and his giant auto graveyard is anything but sad. It's a tale of a Louisiana native who bought a wrecked 1953 Oldsmobile from its owner 26 years ago for $16.50. The simple transaction prompted the youth to invest every nickel and minute in a risky business venture that became one of the largest auto salvage yards this side of Waco.

"I guess like any other business, you just can't be afraid to take risks now and then," Armour says from a giant warehouse that has stored parts off everything from Ramblers to RX7s. "But what you really need to make it in this business is a good memory."

Take a look down the giant warehouse at Armour J. Auto Salvage and you'll know why. Everything from hub caps to engine blocks neatly line steel and wooden shelves throughout 13 buildings that make up the storehouse. Dusty tires fill one room, stacked in long black rows up to the roof. A path of disk brakes resembling a million rusty Frisbees leads into another room where exhaust pipes hang in rows like iron curtains.

"Really, I'm a perfectionist. And of all things for a perfectionist to get into but a salvage yard," Armour laughs.

The "zoot" of a drill removing bolts from a car echoes in the distance, and the clash of metal against a cement floor shatters the stillness inside the dimly-lit warehouse. Though he's quick to take credit for the business side of his business, Armour says he's mostly thumbs when it comes to being a grease monkey. "You give me a box of wrenches, and I probably wouldn't be able to fix a thing," he laughs, describing how engines have become so complicated that it now takes skilled mechanics to take them apart.

A car enthusiast at heart, Armour has watched the auto industry change drastically through the years along with the contents of his yard. Bodies of '57 Chevies gave way to '65 T-birds and '73 Pinto bodies were replaced by '85 Camaros.

"I guess the hardest part of the business is keeping current with all the new kinds of cars," he says, surveying a room of engine blocks stacked to the aluminum ceiling like Tinker Toys. "You've got to be a pretty sharp cookie to keep up with all the new changes."

It's a fickle market that keeps Armour in business. "Just about the time I couldn't keep enough big cars in stock the economy switched and I couldn't give them away," he said. "And for a while we looked like Pinto headquarters," he said, reflecting on when Ford recalled the cars for defective gas tanks that sometimes exploded on impact.

Though Armour admits the business often carries the stigma of being slightly shady, he's learned over the years who to deal with. "There are some pretty good businessmen out there," he says, "but there's also a lot of water moccasins."

Armour buys just about all of his cars from insurance companies — cars totaled from accidents or recovered from thefts. "You find all kinds of things inside these cars, from marijuana on," he says recalling how one mechanic found a wrist watch caught under a car's crumpled hood. "I look at some of these wrecks and there's just so much exposed jagged metal, it's amazing to me sometimes to see how anyone got out alive," he says, describing how mechanics often find whiskey bottles and beer cans in the totaled cars.

But managing a salvage yard can be more than just a lesson in how to sell car parts. "From watching these cars come in I've learned that about 75 percent of car accidents are caused by alcohol or worn tires," he says. "You know, people would drive a lot safer if they'd come out to one of these lots sometime."

Foote returns to the praise of hometown

WHARTON, Texas (AP)—Horton Foote says he owes all of his original plays, screenplays and novels to this sleepy southeast Texas prairie town.

"You know I write about things that happened when I wasn't on earth," Foote says. "It's based on what I was told as a child. The South has a great oral tradition. We just love to talk."

But the town of 9,033 is just as grateful to the courtly, soft-spoken 70-year-old, the winner of two Academy Awards and the screenwriter of such classics as "To Kill A Mockingbird," "Tender Mercies" and "The Trip To Bountiful."

The Wharton County Junior College is honoring Foote this week with a film festival. On Sunday, the college held a banquet for him and announced the establishment of a Horton Foote creative writing scholarship and the naming of a street and fine arts building after him.

Wharton residents say Foote has put the town on the map and joke that CBS anchorman Dan Rather now is willing to claim it as his birthplace.

Foote flushes pink with joy at mention of the honors.

"It's my home," he says. "I was very moved and touched they would do this."

"It was long overdue," says Foote's second cousin, Nan Outlar. "He's just a wonderful person."

In the next breath, she says he is sweet, gentle, smart and a good listener.

The only thing possibly irritating about him is that he carries a recorder to tape Texans talking, she says.

"I tell him, 'Turn off that darn tape recorder,' when I'm going to say something," she says in the same cultured Southern accent as her second cousin.

Foote is also plain-speaking and insistent.

When a Wharton restaurant did not serve Dr Pepper, he refused to order another soft drink. He also refused to describe plots of plays, saying he is not good at that. And he called Broadway a graveyard.

"Nothing happens there," he said.

Foote is a fifth generation Texan, the descendant of cotton buyers and plantation owners. He was born to a Wharton couple who disobeyed the bride's parents and eloped. His father owned a haberdashery and a cotton farm.

Foote has only pleasant memories of growing up in the rural river town and his family life.

"We were very close," he says. "I loved them very much."

Still, he was different from other local boys who played football, Mrs. Outlar says.

Foote only dreamed of acting on New York stages, she said. He used to pore over movie magazines and try to learn as much about drama as a boy can in a small town, she says.

As soon as he graduated from Wharton High School at 16, he headed out to an acting school in California, his second cousin says.

Two years later, he was taking bit parts in New York-produced plays, she says.

But his friends told him his real talent was writing and so he began that career, Mrs. Outlar says.

"It was a pragmatic sort of thing," Foote says. "I wrote parts for myself."

His first full-length play, "Texas Town," in 1941 won praise from critics. And in the early 1960s, he won an Academy Award for a tender yet haunting adaptation of the novel about racial strife in the South, "To Kill A Mockingbird."

Some 20 years later, he won another Oscar for his adaptation of a Houstonian's novel, "Tender Mercies," the story of a once famous country western star who earns a second try at life in a dusty Texas town with a young widow and her son.

This year he was nominated for an Academy Award for his original screenplay, "The Trip To Bountiful." He lost, but Geraldine Page won an Oscar for best actress in her portrayal of an older woman who runs away from a domineering daughter-in-law to wistfully search for her hometown that no longer exists.

"Bountiful" is one of nine plays and screenplays centered on the Wharton area. That and two others — "On Valentine's Day," and "1918" — are being shown at the junior college through Wednesday.

"I write personal films," Foote says. "I don't work in Hollywood. I'm not part of the industry."

As a result, he says he has to resort to unorthodox schemes to finance his movies. For example, Texas investors put up $3 million to make "Bountiful," he says.

SWBT urges Texans to become informed voters

Think back to last October. If you are like most of us, you probably had only a vague notion of what the strange word — sesquicentennial — meant. A year later, I would wager that there are very few Texans who aren't familiar with the term's meaning. Perhaps a few of us even learned how to spell and pronounce it.

Although many people may have grown a bit weary of the festivities surrounding Texas' century-and-a-half birthday, no one can deny that this event put the Lone Star State in the nation's spotlight.

Before that attention is diverted from us, however, we have one last opportunity to show the rest of the country that Texas is a dynamic state, committed to shaping its own future. And what better way to prove that fact, than by Texans voting in record numbers during the November general elections?

Few people would disagree that this year's elections are especially critical to our state, in light of our difficult economic situation. There is no doubt that the people we elect next month will be charting the future of Texas. Since each of us has a stake in this process, we must be certain our voices are heard by casting our ballot.

However, voting demands responsibility. Many would contend that it is better not to vote, than to vote without a firm grasp of the issues. As citizens of this state, we have an obligation to learn about each candidate's platform so that we are able to vote with the conviction of our beliefs.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is a strong advocate of our election process, and we encourage our employees to become informed voters. If they are so inclined, we encourage employees to become active in all levels of government.

Although we've heard it before, we all need to be reminded, now and again, that a democracy is only as strong as the people who participate in it. So this November, learn the issues and cast an informed vote.

Questions on a taxing subject

While on the subject of those things governmental and civic, I'd like to pose a couple of questions I heard on the radio the other day from a national columnist. They are on a favorite topic of most Texans... taxes. Perhaps this exercise will give you something to ponder in your idle time.

Question #1 — Is it possible to divert taxes from individuals to businesses?

Some people would argue that when businesses do receive higher tax bills, they simply pass that surcharge along to the customer — that's you and me.

The reality is that in today's economy there are probably few businesses able — and fewer still willing — to absorb a greater tax burden. Proof of the unsettled business environment can be seen in the rash of recent bankruptcies.

Then, is it better to pay higher individual taxes or higher prices at the counter? We must decide that answer for ourselves.

Question #2 — Is it better to levy taxes from the federal or from the local level?

Corollary #1 — Does it matter, aren't we going to end up paying the bill anyway?

One argument can be made that when taxes are paid locally, there are fewer middlemen to claim a portion of those monies. Additionally, some would say local tax revenue can be monitored more closely by local residents. Theoretically, this allows each of us to have more of a say regarding how funds are spent.

Is this type of control evident in your community? If you answered, "No," speak up at your town's next council meeting. Your elected officials want to hear from you.

As you probably guessed, there are no right or wrong answers to these questions. This is usually the case when discussing complicated issues. However, I hope this short quiz may have started you thinking. We all need to give these kinds of topics some thought. After all, any constructive act has to begin with an idea. Perhaps something great will come from one of yours.

Congressman accuses Senate of disregarding housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez blamed both Democratic and Republican senators for the failure of the 99th Congress to pass comprehensive housing legislation.

Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, said lack of political will in an election year was the main culprit for the failure of the Senate to pass legislation similar to that he promoted through the House.

"Housing problems in this or any other country cannot be solved by inaction," said Gonzalez, who chairs the Housing and Community Development subcommittee of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee.

"My counterpart in the Senate promised in December 1985 to act on housing legislation if the House would back off its efforts to negotiate a compromise bill. We backed off; the Senate did nothing."

Gonzalez, who has been a member of the housing subcommittee since coming to Washington in 1962, called the Senate's inaction on housing an arrogant disregard for the nation's "clear and growing crisis in housing."

He said a comprehensive housing bill is needed because home ownership has declined while the percentage of mortgage foreclosures has doubled in the past five years.

"This is a crisis that is worsening not just for the growing numbers of homeless, not just for the poor, but for all of us," he said. "Family income in this country has been stagnant, in real terms, since 1973, but housing costs have nearly doubled."

In San Antonio, a serious low income overcrowding problem is being compounded by a shortage of rental housing for low income families, Gonzalez said. At least 10,000 households are waiting for affordable housing currently, he said.

Wife's courtesy extends to husband's girlfriends

DEAR ABBY: By nature, I'm a very courteous person, but how far should a person go in observing the rules of courtesy? My husband is retired but does part-time work. When he's not working, he leaves the house anyway to spend the day with one of his young girlfriends. (Saturdays and Sundays, too.) He's sometimes gone for two or three days "fishing."

Although this hurts me deeply, I've come to realize that this is the lot of many older women, so I take it in my stride.

I become enraged when a female voice calls our home and says, "May I speak to your husband?" I feel like ripping the phone out of the wall, or telling her to go to h—, and slamming down the receiver! But instead, I politely say, "One moment, please. I'll get him." Then I dutifully call my husband to the phone.

One of these days I'll probably blow my stack.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Re the 14-year-old girl whose parents gave her permission to invite two boys and another girl to their house for an evening — unsupervised — only to come home and find the boys in their liquor cabinet:

Abby, curiosity and experimenting with drugs, alcohol and sex are at an all-time high between 14 and 16, and parents who leave children this young alone, unsupervised, are asking for trouble. It's only natural for kids to take advantage of an unguarded situation. I'm not saying that children this age do not know the difference between right and wrong. They do. But they are still immature and will often make childish choices. The 14-year-old girl left the boys alone for a few minutes while she was visiting with her girlfriend in another room, and the thought of the boys getting into her parents' liquor probably never crossed her mind.

Instead of telling the girl she shouldn't blame her parents for not trusting her, you should have told her that her poor judgment was an honest mistake based on inexperience, and her parents used poor judgment in leaving her in a situation that she was not prepared to handle. Set it straight, Abby.

KATHY P. IN N.Y.

DEAR KATHY: I think you did, and very well. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three, ages 15, 23 and 26, so I speak from experience. It is inappropriate for parents to leave four teen-agers home alone for several hours, with or without a liquor cabinet. I am also a volunteer at a crisis pregnancy center and I know that the majority of teen-age pregnancies occur in the home — not in the back seat of a car.

CONCERNED IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from "Caught in the Middle," the young man whose fiancée (Betty) smokes at least a pack a day, but has never smoked in the presence of his parents because she knows they disapprove of smoking.

Abby, how naive can Betty and her man be? His parents already know she smokes! If not, there must be something wrong with their sense of smell! Cigarette smokers smell like cigarette smoke. It's in their hair, their clothes, their books, their automobiles, and if you go into their homes, the scent of cigarette smoke is everywhere!

I agree it's childish for Betty to try to hide it. It's also impossible!

Mets get even

Carter, Dykstra lead New York's homer hitting barrage

BY HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Mets, led by Gary Carter and Len Dykstra, are finding Boston is the perfect place to stage a revolution.

Carter hit a pair of home runs, driving in three runs, while Dykstra hit a two-run shot to lead the Mets to a 6-2 victory over the Red Sox, squaring the World Series at two games apiece Wednesday night.

That gave the Mets new hope that they would yet fulfill the destiny they felt was theirs from the first day of spring training.

"I think we all got our second breath and wind after the playoff series with the Astros," Carter said. "I don't mean to harp on it, but I think it was significant."

"It's not to say that we didn't expect a tough Series here, but we did have a long, hard series with Houston. The one day off before the World Series really wasn't enough."

The Mets came staggering into the World Series after getting past Houston in the pressure-packed National League playoffs where they hit only .189.

Carter hit only .148 with no homers and just two runs batted in during the playoffs.

But Carter, after dreaming for 13 years of playing in a World Series, wasn't about to have the dream turn into a nightmare. Through four games, Carter has hit .412 with two home runs and a Series-leading seven RBI.

"Gary Carter is having the kind of Series everybody knew he would have," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said. "No one hit in the playoffs. It was just a tough, tense time. But, certainly, he has done enough already to have a great World Series."

For Dykstra, however, it's business as usual. The 5-foot-8 center fielder was platooned during the regular season but played so well in the postseason that Johnson simply can't take him out of the lineup.

Dykstra hit .304 in the NL playoffs, with a ninth-inning home run to win the third game. He's hitting .375 in the World Series and his two home runs tie him with Carter for the Series lead.

"I think Lenny is in another zone," Johnson said. "For a rookie to excel in the big games the way he has is phenomenal. He has really performed well all year. For him to hit the ball as hard as he has in the Series, it's really amazing."

Are Mets cheating?

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Are the New York Mets cheating? Boston right fielder Dwight Evans, after watching 160-pound Len Dykstra hit two home runs in two consecutive World Series games, says it's time to find out.

"We've got to check that kid's bat. We've got to check a few other bats," Evans said after the Mets evened the series with the Red Sox at two games apiece with a 6-2 victory Wednesday night. Game 5 is scheduled tonight.

"I'm dead serious. We're going to check some bats tomorrow," he added. "Some balls carried awful funny tonight." Evans refused to say which other players' bats he wanted to inspect.

"Let them think about it," he said. Cork inserted into the head of a bat can make balls travel farther. The practice violates baseball rules.

Evans didn't get much support from his manager, John McNamara, while Mets Manager Davey Johnson said Evans was welcome to inspect New York's lumber supply.

"I don't want to hear about it," McNamara said when told of Evans' statements.

"He can check them all he wants," Johnson said.

The Mets now find themselves subjected to accusations rather than making them. In the National League playoffs, they claimed Houston pitcher Mike Scott scuffed up the ball. League President Chub Feeney said there was no evidence to support that contention.

Dykstra said the same was true of Evans' suspicions. "That's fine with me" if Evans wants to look at his bats, Dykstra said. "That's a compliment."

Gary Carter belts the first of two homers.

Alabama 6-point favorite over Penn State

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

It rarely snows in Tuscaloosa, Ala., but a few flakes — alias snow jobs — were sighted this week. Tuscaloosa is the site of Bryant-Denny Stadium where second-ranked Alabama (7-0) tangles with No. 6 Penn State (6-0) on Saturday and where never is heard a discouraging word that might find its way onto Penn State's bulletin board.

For example: —Alabama linebacker Vantrise Davis: "It's a personal challenge for me to go up against a great back like D.J. Dozier because ever since I was in high school he was one of the running backs I admired the most."

—Alabama defensive tackle Derrick Slaughter: "I look at their fullback, Steve Smith, like a small 'Refrigerator' type of guy. He's got speed and he's big."

—Alabama fullback Kerry Goode: "The Penn State teams I have played in the past haven't been as sound as this year's team."

Both teams enjoyed surprisingly easy tuneups last week. Alabama thrashing Tennessee 56-28 and Penn State pounding Syracuse 42-3.

On paper, Alabama has played the tougher schedule. But Ohio State got off to a slow start and Florida, Notre Dame and Tennessee all are under .500.

Alabama is a 6-point favorite. The pick is Alabama 24-17.

Last week's prediction record was 38 right and 13 wrong for a percentage of .749; for the season, 255-96-7—.727. Against the point spread, last week's mark was 20-16-1—.555; for the year, 115-

111-4—509.

Cosby rated over World Series

By BRIAN TRUSDELL
Associated Press Writer

It used to be everything in prime time would jump out of the way for sports programming, but not even the World Series can bump "The Cosby Show."

For the second year in a row, the top-rated sitcom is the only show that is not being moved from its regular weeknight prime-time position in favor of a postseason baseball game.

"You have to charge it to the phenomenal success that the show has had," NBC spokesman Doug Kelly said. "We did it last year during the playoffs. There will be no pre-game, or at least a very abbreviated pre-game show. We will go right to Fenway."

"You have to do it. It's arguably the most watched show on television."

The broadcasts of this year's series games between the Boston Red Sox and New York Mets, only the second all prime-time series, have started with an 8 p.m. EDT pre-game show with the first pitch thrown 25 minutes later.

But on Thursday, before the scheduled Game 5 in Boston's Fenway Park, "The Cosby Show" will air between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., with the game's official starting time five minutes later.

With the World Series drawing ratings between 20 and 25 and audience shares in the 40s over the past few years, and the overwhelming success of "The Cosby Show," other television executives have predicted a big night for NBC on Thursday.

"They're going to have a World Series game following "The Cosby Show" one night," former NBC Sports executive producer Don Ohlmeyer said. "That's going to be a dream night. The needle is going to go off the chart."

NBC executives probably were dreaming a little easier after the Mets' 7-1 victory Tuesday night in Game 3.

With the network receiving $275,000 per 30-second advertising spot, and running between 45 and 50 spots per game, NBC has the opportunity to gross a maximum $13.75 million in commercial revenue each game.

When the Red Sox won the first two games at New York's Shea Stadium, the possibility arose of four-game sweep with Boston returning home for Games 3, 4 and 5.

"Originally, we were planning on a five- or six-game series," said Kelly, who, despite the Mets being heavy 12-5 pre-series favorites, would not say who the network expected to win. "When the Red Sox won the first two games and were headed back to Boston, there was never really any panic or gnashing of teeth."

"Now that New York won Tuesday night, were guaranteed at least Game 5."

Tway leads Vantage points race

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — PGA champion Bob Tway, already assured of a $500,000 bonus, could wrap up two other season-long races this week in the Vantage Championship.

"I'm just going to go out and play good golf. If you do that, everything else will take care of itself," Tway said of the new PGA tournament that was started today and offers $1 million in official prize money.

The tournament, which replaces the Texas Open on the PGA Tour schedule, also serves as the final tournament in the Vantage Cup series, a new, season-long race for $2 million in bonus money.

Tway, the only four-time winner on the American tour this year, has an insurmountable lead in the Vantage Cup points race and thus is assured of the $500,000 that goes to the winner.

"I guess that's kind of comfortable, knowing you've won $500,000, but that's a season-long thing."

"I still have things I want to do," the low-key Tway said. And both those major goals — the season's money-winning title and Player of the Year honors — could be secured this week. Both of those races end next week at Tucson.

Tway, with $647,780 in official money-winnings this season, needs only to finish 34th or better this week to replace the absent Greg Norman as the year's leading money-winner.

Norman, the Australian who won the British Open, has completed his American season with a record $653,296.

And, should Tway take over the leading money-winning spot (the bonus money does not count), he would virtually wrap up the Player of the Year title as well.

"If I get the money-winning title, that'll pretty much make it," Tway said.

He currently leads Norman 90-88 in the complicated point system which determines the Player of the Year designation.

"If I play good golf this week, I make it. If I don't, I won't," he said.

And he's very optimistic about his chances.

"I haven't played very well for the last few weeks," Tway said. "The past few weeks I got into some bad habits."

So he took a week away from competition "and got things straightened out," he said.

"I feel much better about my game now. I feel like I'm playing pretty good now. I'm looking forward to good things this week."

He is also looking at possibly the strongest field this tournament has assembled in a history that goes back more than 60 years.

Ray Floyd, the U.S. Open champion, heads a list of multiple winners from the 1986 season that also includes Fuzzy Zoeller, Corey Pavin, Dan Pohl, Andy Bean, Ken Green and Hal Sutton.

Some other leading figures entered include John Mahafey, who won the Texas Open last year on the same Oak Hill Country Club course, Tom Watson, Lanny Wadkins, Lee Trevino, Tom Kite, Ben Crenshaw and West German Bernhard Langer.

Portions of the final three rounds Friday through Sunday will be televised by ESPN.

Levelland favored over Harvesters

Levelland is a 14-point favorite over Pampa in a District 1-4A football game Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

Pampa is still seeking its first victory after six losses. Levelland is 3-3-1 and coming off a 21-6 loss to Borger.

Other Harris Ratings has Borger over Dumas by 27 and Hereford over Canyon by 7. The Lubbock Dunbar-Frenship game is rated a no pick. Lubbock Estacado, ranked No. 2 in Class 4A by Harris, has an open date.

Ex-Cowboy says athletes scapegoats for drug abuse

By LOUIE AVERY
The Denison Herald

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — More often than not, someone points a finger at athletes when the topic is drug abuse, and that doesn't sit well with Calvin Hill, a former four-time Pro Bowl running back for the Dallas Cowboys in the 1970s.

Hill, now a social fitness consultant and career counselor for the Cleveland Browns, argues the charge is not a fair one.

"The thing that bothers me is that so many people are pointing a finger at athletes and telling them to clean up their acts," Hill said.

Hill was in Sherman recently to conduct a workshop at Austin College on chemical abuse.

"There are 5,000 people trying cocaine for the first time every day of the year. If you look at the four major professional sports (football, baseball, basketball and hockey), you don't have 5,000 people in all of the sports," he said.

"Let's presume on Jan. 1 all 5,000 of those athletes try cocaine for the first time," continued Hill. "That leaves 364 days that 5,000 more people each day will be trying cocaine for the first time."

"Why? Because they like it," Hill said.

"We like to get immediate gratification," said Hill. "Today's young people want immediate results. An addict, when he wants to feel good, he turns to that pill, or whatever. It never fails him. It always makes him feel better."

"I think everybody who tries drugs and alcohol is trying to change their mood," he added. "Younger people do it as experimentation and the older people to deal with stress, pain, and so forth."

He said athletes often get into drugs because of the insecurity they feel.

"You're looking at a life expectancy of about four years in the NFL and only two years for running backs," Hill said.

"You're looking at an industry that has a 100 percent injury factor. During the course of a season, whether a guy misses a game or not, he's going to have an injury. It may only be a sprain, but you never know when it's going to be that critical injury. You're also looking at a certain amount of peer pressure."

Hill claims it would be ludicrous to expect athletes to be different from other students in high school and college.

"I don't think the drug problem on college campuses is getting any better," he said. "But then I don't think drug testing is the answer either. It takes 72 hours for cocaine to get out of one's system. What are you going to do, test every 72 hours?"

A big part of the solution, Hill suggests, is education, not testing.

"In the NFL, the owners must first be educated so they can understand exactly what they are dealing with. Education is part of the answer. Treatment is a part of the answer, but education and treatment is not a shot of penicillin. It's a one day at a time thing where the addict is trying to stay sober," he said.

"You have to really change your life. In athletics, you have to have some type of after-care program, and anonymity is critical."

He's not saying athletes deserve special treatment, Hill insists.

"Cocaine use is a felony in the United States, and there's a five-year statute of limitations for prosecuting," he said.

"If the authorities wanted to, they could go to any treatment center in the country and harass people who are being treated. I don't think athletes should get any more treatment, but at the same time I don't think they should get any less."

"The unique treatment athletes should get is anonymity which is essential to long term recovery. For the athlete it is very difficult for him to get that anonymity."

Hill posed a hypothetical question for the media. "What if Roger Staubach used something besides aspirin?" he quizzed.

"I use Roger's name because I know he doesn't have a problem. But if he did, where in Dallas could he go and get anonymity?"

During a press conference for Hill, the names of several outstanding athletes popped up, including those of Lenny Bias and Don Rogers, a former Cleveland Browns player, to whom Hill was close.

"I was surprised by Don's death," admitted Hill. "He was not a member of the after-care group we have organized in Cleveland. Don seemed to be somebody who had it under control."

One fact of life in America that concerns Hill is today's youth using professional athletes as role models.

"It's awfully hard for me to accept a 22-year-old kid being a role model," said Hill.

"A young boy's role model should be his father. The guy who made me feel good about myself and a sense about self was my father. Unfortunately, there are a lot of young boys who do not have the father or school role model."

Hill said there are exceptions to his belief. "I would like to see people like Mercury Morris (former Miami Dolphin star who served time in prison for chemical abuse) telling their story," said Hill.

"Morris has a very good story to tell. I would rather see an honest treatment of his story so he can tell kids what can happen to you."

"There's nothing wrong with having been an addict, there is something wrong with remaining an addict," said Hill.

"I think everybody has to be involved because it affects everybody. We like to say only a certain segment has the problem, such as athletes and the inner city, but the problem is everywhere."

"Cocaine and chemical abuse does not discriminate in terms of sex, economics or color. It's a problem on college campuses and even some elementary schools. If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem."

Sports in brief

By The Associated Press

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Two NFL rookies, running back Rueben Mayes of New Orleans and defensive end Gerald Robinson of Minnesota, were named the NFC players of the week.

Mayes, a third-round draft choice from Washington State who ran for 108 yards the previous week, carried 24 times for 172 yards last week as the Saints beat Tampa Bay 38-7. Robinson, the Vikings' first round selection from Auburn, had 2½ sacks in Minnesota's 23-7 upset of Chicago.

AMERICA'S CUP

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Kookaburra III, skippered by Iain Murray, remained undefeated, defeating South Australia, piloted by John Savage, by six minutes and 43 seconds in the first round of the defender trials.

Australia IV, with Colin Beashel at the helm, also won, beating its Alan Bond syndicate stablemate, Australia III, steered by Gordon Lucas, by 3:07. Australia IV has four points with a 4-1 record.

In the third race, held in moderate seas and winds ranging between 12-18 knots, Kookaburra II recorded its third victory by beating wiggles Steak'n Kidney by 4:11.

GOLF

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Jay Sigel shot a record-tying 66 to lift the United States into the lead after the opening day of the World Amateur Team Championship.

The United States team score of 204, leads Canada by four shots and third-place New Zealand by 10. Completing the top 10 are China, Australia, Sweden, Venezuela, West Germany, Britain-Ireland, and Brazil.

Sigel, a two-time U.S. Amateur champion from Berwyn, Pa., finished with a 4-under-par 66, giving him a piece of the World Amateur record shared by five others, including Jack Nicklaus and Deane Beman.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Top seed Charlie Owens defeated Ron York to lead a group of seeded players who won third-round matches at the USTA Men's 35 National Clay Court Championships.

Owens, of Pinehurst, N.C., beat York, of Eagan, Minn., 6-4, 6-2 in an evening match at the Harbour Island Athletic Club. Earlier, No. 2 Zan Guerry of Chattanooga, Tenn., ousted unseeded Chip Ginkel of Maitland 6-0, 6-1.

TOKYO (AP) — Ivan Lendl, Boris Becker and Stefan Edberg, the top three seeds, advanced to the second round of the $375,000 '86 Super Seiko Tennis Tournament.

Lendl trounced Japan's Shuzo Matsuoka 6-1, 6-1, Becker, from West Germany, beat American Matt Anger 6-3, 6-4 and Edberg, of Sweden, eliminated Jimmy Arias of the United States 6-2, 6-2.

Penguins shoot for league record tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Hockey Writer

The Pittsburgh Penguins can make some NHL history tonight, but first they'll have to change their luck in Philadelphia.

"I'm sure the Flyers will play us the same way the Sabres did," said Pittsburgh's Randy Cunneen after his goal gave Pittsburgh a 5-4 overtime victory over Buffalo Wednesday night and set the stage for an intriguing matchup of the league's last two undefeated teams. "I'm sure they'll try to play a physical game against us."

With a 7-0 record, the Penguins need just one more victory to tie the league record for most wins at the start of a season. The Toronto Maple Leafs won eight straight at the start of the 1934-35 season and Buffalo matched that with a streak at the start of 1975-76.

But the Penguins will have to beat a long-time jinx in order to enter the record books. They haven't won in their last 33 visits to the Spectrum, going 0-31-2 since winning there in 1974.

The Flyers, who weren't in action Wednesday night, are also off to a fast start with a 5-0 mark.

In Wednesday night's other games, Quebec defeated Toronto 7-1; the New York Rangers trimmed Los Angeles 5-4 in overtime; Montreal nipped Detroit 4-3; Minnesota routed St.

Louis 8-3; Calgary beat Edmonton 6-3, and Vancouver turned back Boston 5-1.

Nordiques 7, Maple Leafs 1

Rangers 5, Kings 4, OT

Canadiens 4, Red Wings 3

North Stars 8, Blues 3

Flames 6, Oilers 3

The Flames erupted for three third-period goals, two by Joe Mullen, as they defeated the Oilers.

Canucks 5, Bruins 1

Patrik Sundstrom scored two goals as Vancouver ended a four-game losing streak.

New quarterback

Doug Flutie warms up during his first practice in a Chicago Bears' uniform Wednesday. Watching Flutie is backup quarterback Mike Tomczak. Bears' coach Mike Ditka said Jim McMahon would still start Sunday's game against the Detroit Lions.

Rockets sign Petersen

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets have signed Jim "Third Tower" Petersen and sidelined Twin Tower Ralph Sampson.

Petersen, a hold-out since the beginning of training camp, signed a three-year contract with the NBA Western Division champions, team officials said Wednesday.

The Rockets also announced that Sampson will be sidelined the rest of the week with a sprained left ankle, but should be ready for the season opener Nov. 1 against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Sampson collided with Washington's Terry Catledge in the third quarter of Tuesday night's 105-95 Rockets exhibition victory.

Petersen — a key backup last season for Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon, the other half of the Twin Towers — said he was glad the contract ordeal was behind him.

"I don't think there were any hard feelings even though the negotiations were difficult," Petersen said. "I didn't get what I wanted and they didn't get what they wanted. We met in the middle."

Terms of his contract were not announced.

Petersen, starting his third season with the Rockets, played in every game last season, averaging 6.2 points and 4.8 rebounds on an average of 20 minutes per game.

He reported for his first workout of the season Friday as the Rockets prepared for their final two pre-season games Thursday against Philadelphia in Lafayette, La., and Saturday in the Summit against the Boston Celtics.

Pepitone freed

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Pepitone, the former New York Yankees first baseman convicted on misdemeanor drug charges, was freed from a Brooklyn jail a few hours after he received a six-month sentence.

Justice Richard A. Brown of the Appellate Division of state Supreme Court in Brooklyn agreed Wednesday to allow Pepitone to remain free temporarily until his lawyer could formally ask that the his sentence be stayed pending an appeal.

A co-defendant, Robert Oates, 47, of Brooklyn, was also freed.

Earlier, at Pepitone's sentencing, Brooklyn state Supreme Court Justice Alan Marrus briefly discussed Pepitone's baseball career.

"I find it a particularly sad day when someone who graced New York in Yankee pinstripes will now have to spend his time in the New York Department of Corrections in their prison stripes," Marrus said.

Four hours later, Brown and lawyers in the case met in Brown's chambers.

Challengers, also-rans in pursuit of district titles

By JOHN GERDEL Jr.
Sports Writer

As the 1986 football season, Panhandle-style, moves into the closing weeks the challengers pursue the always elusive titles and the also-rans look to upset the district apple carts.

Wheeler entertains Sunray Friday night, a matchup that has teams sporting identical records meeting head on. And Canadian, with a 1-1 district mark, is in a "do-or-die situation," according to Wildcat Coach Paul Wilson.

At McLean, Head Coach Bill Phillips said his team, suffering from numerous injuries, may be able to field only 14 players for the contest at Follett.

SUNRAY AT WHEELER
The District 1-1A North marbles are on the line Friday night at 7:30 when the Mustangs gear up for Sunray. Both teams have 6-1 season records, but the Wheeler string includes a forfeit win over Highland Park the first week of the season.

In district battles, they are 2-0, tied for first place.
Last week Wheeler dismantled Follett 47-21 while Sunray shutout Phillips 28-0.

"They are an exciting football team," Mustang Head Coach Preston Smith said Wednesday of Sunray. "They have three outstanding running backs that averaged around 100 yards a game."

Smith indicated that while the Wheeler offense has been shaky at times, it has been the defense that has bolstered the Mustang season record. "Our defense has played real well," he remarked, and kept us in ball games. We anticipate good defense."

This may also be the first meeting between the two schools. "They moved down from double-A this year," Smith said. This is the first time in at least 20 years that we have played."

Nevertheless, Smith was positive in his assessment of his team. "We had a good workout today and our kids are pretty confident," he said.

MEMPHIS AT CANADIAN
After opening District 2-2A play with 33-0 victory over Clarendon, The Wildcats ran into a tough Quannah bunch and fell 42-20. Now they face the other district leader, Memphis, Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The Mustangs, 3-3-1 for the season, will have the homefield advantage as they tackle Memphis, 6-1 and 2-0. Last week Memphis upended Shamrock 39-6.

"This is a kind of do-or-die situation," Wilson said. "We have got to have it to get in the playoffs."

But the Mustangs face challenging task as Memphis is rated as one of the top 20 teams in Texas in 2A, according to Wilson. "They have tremendous speed and run a lot of options from the wishbone," he said.

"They also have one of the best quarterbacks in the Panhandle, Otis Henderson," Wilson noted.

Assessing his Mustangs chances for victory, Wilson remarked, "Our defense has been playing real well, I don't know if we can (beat them) or not."

"We'll just have to wait and see, that's what it's all about" Friday night, Wilson said.

WHITE DEER AT PANHANDLE

With a season record of 4-3, the Bucks sport the best overall mark in District 1-2A. But their 2-1 record in district is just good enough for second place.

They are also facing a traditional foe at home when they meet Panhandle at 7:30 p.m.

Panhandle, with a 3-3 record and 2-0 district mark, is atop the standings.

Last week Stinnett stunned the Bucks with a 46-13 defeat. Now White Deer faces the one team that has stopped Stinnett in district play — Panhandle downed Stinnett 25-16.

Injuries will also play a role in the contest. The Bucks lost offensive center Terry Harrah to an ankle injury in the Stinnett game.

"It's always a physical battle with Panhandle," said Windy Williams, White Deer head coach. "I don't predict a blowout on either side."

"We are going to play as hard as we can play," Williams continued. "That's what you do in a game like this."

GROOM AT NAZARETH

After bounding out to a 5-0 start, Groom's Tigers ran into a stumbling block when District 1-1A play opened and are 0-2 in district following a 14-13 loss to Happy last week.

Nazareth, 2-5 and 1-1, has "played some pretty good teams," according to Groom head coach Terry Coffee. "They have had injuries all year, but now they are back to full strength."

"They have alot of size," Coffee continued, "about 190-195 pounds a kid on the line and they have an experienced quarterback."

Examining the Tigers' chance overall, Coffee said, "Mathematically we still have shot at the playoffs if we can win out. We are looking at the best season we've had in years and years."

McLEAN AT FOLLETT

Bill Phillips, head coach at McLean may be able to suit up only 14 players for Friday's at Follett. Injuries have hit the Tigers hard and they are "hurting severely," according to Phillips.

Phillips learned today that his quarterback, Jim Anderson, would be sidelined for the season as a result of a calcium deposit in his right bicep.

With an 0-7 season mark and 0-2 in District 1-1A North the Tigers face a tough battle Friday when they meet Follett, 4-2 and 1-1.

Phillips had high praise for his foes, especially the coach. "They are quick and well-coached," he said of Phillips. He also noted that the school has a one-man coaching staff and said they are the "best-coached kids in the area."

HARROLD AT MIAMI

Coming off a narrow loss to Higgins, 42-40, last week, Miami 3-3 and 1-2 in Six-Man District 2A, faces tough Harrold, 5-0-1 and 1-0-1 Friday at 7 p.m.

The Warriors are down one man, according to Coach Curry McWilliams. Starting Safety Eric Giles broke his collarbone in Higgins game.

Looking over the Harrold attack, McWilliams said, "They run a multiplicity of junk, power out of the I, power out of the wing, a swinging gate spread, a veer spread."

"If our kids play as good this week as they did last week, we will beat them," McWilliams added.

HIGGINS AT LEFORS

Higgins has a couple of power runners that have Brent Fountain. Pirates coach concerned as his team tries to improve on a 2-5 season record and an 0-3 Six-Man 2A District mark.

"We've jut got to shut them down," Fountain said of Higgins' Matt Ferris and Jim Neal. "They are both real good."

"The kids are fired up, anxious to play and improve our record."

Phillip Sexton scored Pampa's only touchdown.
Jay Wyatt Earp, Jared Tibbetts and Sexton were the outstanding defensive players for the Patriots.

"The first half our offense looked good, but the defense didn't play very well," said Pampa coach Dick Dunham. "The defense looked good the second half."

The Pampa seventh-graders have a 2-3 record and will host Valley View at 6 p.m. next Tuesday in Harvester Stadium. It will be the final home game of the season. The Pampa eighth-graders are scheduled to play Dumas next Thursday at Dumas.

Airports fear giant plane

(AP Laserphoto)

This is a design of Boeing's 747-500, which is still in design stages, that is causing problems already for airports that say the plane is too big and airports will need to be rebuilt to handle it. The plane would have a wingspan of 240-280 feet and would be 30-70 feet longer than the 747-400.

Social Security beneficiaries will get 1.3 percent increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's 37.4 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 1.3 percent benefit increase in January that will put an extra $6 in the average retired worker's monthly check, the government said today.

It is by far the smallest annual increase since benefits were tied to the Consumer Price Index 11 years ago.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen said the increase will appear in the checks that Social Security beneficiaries receive on Jan. 2, and also in the checks that 3.8 million Supplemental Security Income welfare recipients get on Dec. 31.

It means that the average Social Security pension for retired workers will climb from $482 to $488 a month.

The average elderly couple who are both drawing Social Security will get an $11 increase, from $822 to $833 a month.

And the maximum Social Security benefit for someone retiring in 1986 at age 65 will climb by $10, from $760 to $770.

It is the fourth straight year that the benefit hike has been at an all-time low. The benefits went up 3.5 percent for both 1983 and 1984, and 3.1 percent for 1985. The peak year was 1980, when benefits soared 14.3 percent.

Social Security beneficiaries would have received no hike for 1986 had not Congress and President Reagan scrapped a trigger in the law that barred any benefit increase if inflation fell below 3 percent.

Reagan signed legislation Tuesday eliminating that trigger.

When benefits go up, so does the maximum amount of wages subject to the Social Security payroll tax.

The government will levy the 7.15 percent payroll tax on earnings up to $43,800 in 1987, up from this year's $42,000 cutoff. The tax rate does not change in 1987.

But the maximum tax on an individual worker will be $3,131.70. That is $128.70, or 4.2 percent, more than this year's top tax. Employers must pay the same amount.

The self-employed, who pay a 12.3 percent tax, will see their maximum tax rise by $221.40 to $5,387.40.

Some 8.5 million workers and self-employed persons who earn more than $42,000 will be affected by the higher ceiling.

Social Security Commissioner Dorcas M. Hardy said her agency will send out notices to all beneficiaries about the increase. "They will not have to take any action to get the increase. It will be in their checks," she said.

The higher benefits will cost Social Security's trust funds $2.6 billion in 1987.

The raise became official with the Labor Department's release today of the Consumer Price Index for September. The increase matches the inflation rate from the third quarter of 1985 to the third quarter of this year.

Benefits are rounded down to the next dollar, which means most people wind up with an increase slightly smaller than the exact inflation rate.

The elderly will also be paying more for Medicare coverage in 1987. The government announced Oct. 1 that the monthly premium for Part B of Medicare, which helps pay doctor bills and out-of-hospital services, will jump from $15.50 to $17.90—a 15.5 percent increase—in January.

And starting Jan. 1 Medicare patients will have to pay $250 out of their own pockets for their first day in the hospital—up from $492 this year.
