United Press International Britain today proposed a 36 to 48 hour cooling off period for the bogged down Cyprus peace talks in Geneva in view of a Turkish threat to walk out if there is no agreement by 3 p.m. EDT. There were reports of new intervention by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to try to save the talks.

Ecevit and the British foreign minister. The new Turkish deadline was set in Ankara by Ecevit who previously had threatened a walk out at 5 a.m. EDT today if there was no agreement on the Turkish plan for new self-governing Greek and Turkish Cypriot areas on Cyprus.

spokesman said Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros welcomed the proposal and that "it is an excellent suggestion." But a Turkish delegation official said "I personally do not think Turkey will accept."

Ecevit said a strained and difficult situation was created when Mavros and Cyprus acting President Glafkos Clerides refrained from attending today's Geneva Conference session proposed by Turkey.

Turkey will fulfill her duty by herself. At the moment we are trying every possible peaceful means, as we have always done.

Foreign Minister Turan Gunes said today in Geneva (this was not an ultimatum) and that the talks with Britain and Greece would continue.

optimistic. The Turkish plan for Cyprus calls for creation of a patchwork quilt of self-governing Greek and Turkish areas with most of the Turkish Cypriots concentrated in the northeastern section of Cyprus where Turkish invasion forces landed two weeks ago.

the island into autonomous Greek and Turkish cantons, or districts, the sources said.

Ford Calls For National Unity To Halt Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a relaxed and homespun speech that brought forth whoops of approval from Congress, President Ford promised to start from scratch in looking for something to do about inflation.

Today Congress showed the first signs of the new spirit of cooperation between the two branches of government.

GM's intention — announced the day he took office — to raise prices for new cars this fall by 10 per cent, $480 each on the averages.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SAY New School Year Outlook 'Good'

By FRANK BAIN

Price Hike Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department says the effects of the Midwest drought which is drastically cutting corn production will be primarily in higher meat prices next year.

He predicted corn prices would go to record levels, that farmers would sell off their dairy herds and poultry and hog production would be cut back sharply.

Dr. Long, recently appointed superintendent here to replace Dr. James F. Malone, was due to arrive in Pampa late this morning in time to address a gathering of teachers new to the Pampa schools.

He said he would take personal charge of the search for a solution but he warned, too, that prices were not going to stop rising soon.

Reading tax guides can have some pleasant surprises (says Changing Times). Every once in a while you learn that something you've been deducting for years really is deductible... You're not really successful, claims John Raudonis, till someone brags they sat beside you in grade school... # Koreans Protesting Military Crackdown

SEOUL (UPI) — A military court announced long prison terms today for 13 political opponents, stepping up a government crackdown that has sent dozens of dissident politicians, churchmen, educators and students to jail.

A military spokesman said the defendants received sentences ranging from 10 to 20 years for violating President Park Chung-hee's ban on student protests and attempts to change the constitution.

The same military tribunal leveled a three-year suspended sentence Monday against former President Park Yon, 77, and stiff jail terms against four other prominent leaders convicted of antigovernment activity.

The court handed 15-year jail sentences to Roman Catholic Bishop Daniel Tji Hak-Soun, 53; the Rev. Park Hyong-kyu, 51, a Protestant minister, and history professor Kim Dong-gil, 47, of Yonsei University.

The tribunal also sentenced the dean of Yonsei's theological seminary, Kim Chan-kuk, to 10 years in jail.

The five were among the most prominent of some 55 defendants sanctioned for violating Park's April decrees prohibiting dissent. The government accused the five of aiding an outlawed youth organization, the National Democratic Youth Student League, in an alleged plot to topple the regime.

The military spokesman did not list the professions of the 13 latest dissidents sent to jail, but most were believed to be college students.

The spokesman said one of the defendants drew a 20-year term, four were given 15 years, two 12 years and the rest 10 years.

In a protest against the court decisions, some 3,000 Protestants and Catholics gathered Monday in Seamusun Presbyterian Church and Myongdong Cathedral in downtown Seoul to pray for democracy and freedom.

Some 500 priests and nuns at the cathedral held an overnight prayer vigil.

Nine of the 55 political opponents convicted in recent months received death penalties and 20 were handed life prison terms. The rest received lesser jail sentences.

Yun was president when Park, then an army general, took power on May 16, 1961. He remained as ceremonial head of state until March, 1962, when he resigned in protest against Park's policies.

Negotiations Continue In Nation-wide Strikes

United Press International Negotiators for New York City taxi fleet owners and union cab drivers reached a tentative agreement today on a new contract that a state mediator said depended on approval of a 25 per cent fare increase by the city.

Following a session ending after 4 a.m., state Mediation Board Chairman Vincent D. McDonnell said he had not been in touch with the city Taxi and Limousine Commission since Monday, and had no assurances the hike would be approved.

The Metropolitan Taxicab Board of Trade, representing 60 fleets owning nearly 6,000 cabs, had threatened to terminate a contract with 30,000 drivers and order all taxis returned to garages by 12:01 a.m. today if a tentative agreement was not reached.

Details of the new, three-year pact were not released. Independent owner-drivers were not involved.

In other developments, negotiations between the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and representatives of 700,000 workers nationwide neared completion. Talks still were underway in Dallas and Atlanta.

However, about 56,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers still were on strike against Western Electric, the Bell System's manufacturing arm.

In Southern California, a strike by more than 3,000 bus drivers and 700 mechanics shut down the main public bus company in the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

More than 650,000 commuters use the 1,869 buses of the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

A 44-day transit bus strike in the San Francisco area that has caused monstrous traffic jams on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge prompted citizens to circulate petitions asking for court action to end the work stoppage.

Publication To Feature Senior Girl

Ray Lynn Dillman, senior at Pampa High School, was recently notified that she is featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1973-74, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books. Less than three percent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition. Miss Dillman is the daughter of Mrs. Clara Dillman of Pampa.

She is active in 4-H, serving as programs chairman of the Gray County 4-H Council for the 1974-75 term. She has received top honors on the county and district levels for her work. She has also attended the state 4-H round-up at College Station.

In addition to having her biography published in the book, Miss Dillman will also compete for one of 10 scholarship awards of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers."

Miss Dillman plans to attend Texas Tech University upon graduation.

Richardson 'Ignored'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy chief John C. Sawhill said today consumer activities of his agency were being reorganized and broadened. But Lee Richardson, resigning as consumer director, said his office had been consistently ignored in decision-making.

Sawhill said Richardson was leaving as director of the Office of Consumer Affairs on completion of a two-year leave of absence from Louisiana State University. In a letter announcing he was leaving Sept. 1, Richardson said he was disillusioned by failure of the agency to consider consumer interests.

Sawhill contended Richardson's criticisms were overrated, and said the reorganization to take place after Richardson leaves will provide greater consumer voice in the agency's policies.

Sawhill said a consumer representative would be based in each of the FEA's 24 regional offices, whereas none now has one.

FOR GOVERNOR Maddox Is Top Candidate

ATLANTA (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Lester G. Maddox is acknowledged by 11 opponents as the man to beat in today's Democratic primary election for governor.

Fellow Democrats concede Maddox probably will get at least 35 per cent of the vote. If his support reaches 40 to 45 per cent, he would be considered unstoppable in a Sept. 3 runoff primary and the November general election.

But if his margin is below 35 per cent, a coalition of eliminated challengers could get behind the remaining candidate in the run-off and end Maddox' flamboyant career.

The record length of the ballot and a relative lack of emotional issues were expected to keep the turnout low today.

Secretary of State Ben Fortson, who has been Georgia's chief elections officer since 1946, estimated barely one-third of the state's two million registered voters would cast ballots. Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Maddox, who has kept a furious pace of campaigning for the past few months, has said this would be his final campaign — win or lose — and that he expected to win without a runoff primary.

Throughout the campaign, he has viewed the race as "them against us," claiming all other candidates merely were "running for No. 2" behind him.

Maddox, a one-time restaurateur, previously served as governor from 1966 to 1970. He rose to public attention after passing out pick handles during a civil rights demonstration aimed at forcing him to serve blacks.

Among major contenders for the Democratic nomination were Calhoun banker Bert Lance; George Busbee of Albany, majority leader of the state House; former U.S. Sen. David Gambrell of Atlanta; former Lt. Gov. George T. Smith; state Sen. Bobby Rowan of Enigma, and state Sen. Harry Jackson of Columbus.

Republican candidates are Macon Mayor Ronnie

Thompson, Rep. Harry Geisinger, County Commissioners Bill Coglee of DeKalb and George Lanford of Cobb, and Atlanta businessman Harold Dye.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., a member of the Senate Watergate committee, was expected to win renomination easily over Carlton Myers, a Pine Mountain veterinarian and political neophyte.

Under the state constitution Gov. Jimmy Carter, the Democratic incumbent, may not succeed himself.

Former Aide Says Nixon Apologized

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Former President Nixon telephoned his former communications director, Herb Klein, Monday and apologized for the derogatory remarks he made in tape recorded conversations, the Baltimore Sun reported today.

In a story from its Washington bureau, the Sun said it interviewed Klein by phone from Los Angeles, and that Nixon's long time friend revealed the conversation.

In the tape of a June 23, 1972, conversation between Nixon and former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, the former President criticized Klein for "not having his head screwed on." He just sort of blubbers around ... sits there with egg on his face. He's just not our guy at all."

Transcripts of the tape were released by Nixon Aug. 5 and other portions of it led to his resignation.

According to Klein's account of the conversation Monday: "The President came on the phone and said, 'Have you got your head screwed on today?' and sort of laughed."

The Sun said Klein indicated he did not find the subject funny.

Nixon further said he hoped Klein realized "it was one of those things I said and I didn't mean it, and I apologize for any embarrassment," the former aide said.

Klein, now a vice president of Metromedia, said Nixon told him he had "probably said worse things about other people."

Walter F. Miller, 859 S. Summer, reported that a $150 guitar was stolen from his car while it was parked at a local lounge Monday evening.

Teresa L. Adair, 13 of 1227 Christine, was treated for apparently minor injuries following a bicycle-car accident in the 1200 block of N. Duncan Monday shortly after 1 p.m.

She reportedly rode her bike into the path of a car driven by Robert A. Johnson, 1841 Fir St.

Saigon Air Base Under Attack

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners fired a barrage of rockets at the sprawling Bien Hoa air base today in the fourth consecutive day of shelling attacks against the strategic installation on the outskirts of Saigon.

The Saigon military command said the 12-round salvo of Soviet-made 122mm rockets wounded three soldiers this morning at the air base, 14 miles northeast of Saigon.

Communists have fired 50 of the six-foot-long rockets at the base and the nearby city of Bien Hoa during the past four days in what military officers said signaled a new Saigon-area offensive.

The command said casualties have been light so far with only two persons killed in the four days of shelling. Military sources said the rockets have damaged five American-built F5A Freedom Fighter jets.

Most bombing missions in the key provinces surrounding the South Vietnamese capital originate at Bien Hoa, the major air base in the Saigon area.

Military spokesmen said 62 fighter-bombers hit Monday at suspected Communist positions around Saigon. Pilots reported killing 69 Communist soldiers.

In other attacks, Viet Cong troops broke into the airfield at Ben Tre, 47 miles south of Saigon, early today, blowing up an L19 observation plane, military sources said.

In Cambodia, field reports told of heavy fighting for control of an outpost at Prek Thmei on the east bank of the Bassac River six miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The reports said rebel forces overran the outpost Sunday night, killing three government defenders and wounding five others. A government drive to retake the base has run into heavy insurgent resistance.

In other fighting, military sources said four government soldiers were killed and nine others wounded when rebel forces assaulted a government outpost at Prey Krol Salarean, 78 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

In a delayed report, military sources said 40 government soldiers were killed when Cambodian warplanes bombed one of their own units by mistake.

The sources said the government air force T28 fighter-bombers mistakenly attacked a 7th infantry division unit last Saturday near Doem Ampil, six miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

Consideration Is 'Honor'

ARMSTRONG, Tex. (UPI) — White House counsellor Anne L. Armstrong says she is being considered as vice president by President Ford, and that whether she is named No. 2 or not it is an honor.

Mrs. Armstrong, recovering from minor surgery at the family ranch in the town named for relatives, said she visited with Ford Monday by telephone.

"I have been out of Washington for quite awhile," she said. "He was kind enough to call me and see how things were going."

Mrs. Armstrong, wife of a wealthy Texas rancher and a statewide Republican leader before joining the administration of former President Nixon, was considered as a replacement for Spiro T. Agnew. Her name came up again in Ford's search for a vice president.

"I feel immensely honored just to be considered," she said. "Not just for me, but for all women."

She said the telephone conversation with Ford touched on numerous subjects.

JIMMY STAUS ...to be featured

Graduate Selected For Honor

Jimmy Staus, 1974 graduate of Pampa High School, was recently notified that he is to be featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1973-74, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 20,000 public private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books. Less than three percent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition.

Staus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Staus, 701 Lowry.

During his school years, he was active in all possible sports. This is the second consecutive year for the Who's Who honor.

In addition to having his biography published in the book, Staus will also compete for one of ten scholarship awards of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers."

Staus plans to attend St. Joseph's School of Nursing in Wichita, Kan. He plans to be an anesthesiologist.

TV In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just a few moments before Art Fleming walks into a splash of applause for another round of "Jeopardy!" on NBC, he reflects for a minute, then says a prayer.

"I just pray that the show goes well," said Fleming, "not so much for me, but that no one on the show looks ridiculous."

Fleming, who may be the ironman of game shows with more than 2,700 consecutive appearances on "Jeopardy," is refreshingly candid about his belief in God, especially in a business that isn't known for its virtue.

"I was brought up a Catholic," he said, "but I felt I was a spectator. I wanted to be a participant. Religion is a very personal thing for me. So I looked elsewhere."

Fleming is now a deacon of Manhattan's Marble Collegiate Church, where the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale is the minister. Dr. Peale is the apostle of positive thinking, a philosophy Fleming admires.

"You can be whatever you want to be," Fleming said. "I believe you are the master of your own fate."

Although Fleming believes self-help is the key to success, at least for him, he also is aware that some people need a helping hand just to stay alive. As a consequence, he helped found a telephone crisis center in 1971, which now operates 365 days a year.

"It's a telephone ministry," he said. "It's somebody you can talk to. And its religion going out to the people rather than forcing them to come to religion."

Fleming is a tall man with a powerful, energetic handshake. He seems to enjoy smiling unlike so many backslappers in show business. One cannot avoid noticing his positive approach to life.

"One of the biggest shocks of my life was the death of my father," he said. "I could have locked myself in a closet. But I went on—and you have to go on. That's what life demands."

Fleming, a native New Yorker, is the son of Marie

Ford Confronts General Motors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford began his first business day in office by taking on General Motors, the country's biggest corporation and a major employer in his old congressional district.

GM is apparently in no mood to back down.

The cause of the confrontation was a GM announcement it would increase the prices of its 1975 models by a record $500. General Motors is a price leader in the auto industry and the 10 per cent increase will set a pattern.

Last month, Ford Motor Co. indicated it would charge $418 more next year. Chrysler and American Motors had no comment.

"I am very disappointed," Ford said Monday in a statement read by his spokesman, Jerald F. terHorst. "I hope the GM action will not be viewed as a signal by other auto companies or other industries."

"In this critical period, the President of the United States cannot call on others to sacrifice if one or more parts of the economy decide to go it alone. It is essential, particularly at this time, that all segments of the economy — industry and labor — exercise restraint in their wage-price action."

Both terHorst and General Motors said there had been no direct contact between the White House and the huge corporation.

Asked to comment, a GM spokesman said, "We'll stand by our letter to dealers."

That letter announced the increase and said it was justified under the pricing rules established by the old Cost of Living Council. It said GM, which has reported declining profits, still would be absorbing some of the added costs of building cars and trucks.

Ford's public statement might be an indication of future presidential actions on the economy. It carried through what he told a joint session of Congress Monday night that he expected from a restored Cost of Living Council — "monitor wages

Execution Facing 156 In 17 States

United Press International

The number of condemned criminals awaiting execution across the country has been growing steadily since the Supreme Court overturned capital punishment in June of 1972.

However, because the high court's 5-4 decision did not outlaw capital punishment in absolute terms, many states have passed new laws, hoping to meet the Supreme Court's objections.

Today, at least 156 criminals await execution in 17 states. But it is unlikely they will be put to death until the Supreme Court has ruled on the constitutionality of the new laws.

North Carolina has sentenced 50 convicted murderers and rapists to death, including two brothers and two other men who are father and son.

In Florida, the first state to reimpose the death penalty after the 1972 Supreme Court decision, 30 persons await execution.

Georgia and Massachusetts each have 20 inmates on their death rows.

A UPI survey of all 50 states shows death row or its equivalent is also occupied in New Mexico (5), Alabama (1), Mississippi (1), Ohio (3), Wyoming (4), California (4), Arizona (4), Indiana (2), Oklahoma (4), Louisiana (5), South Carolina (1), Utah (1), and one in the state penitentiary in Texas, but others in Texas county jails are awaiting transfer pending appeal of their cases.

The state whose new law is first in line for a Supreme Court test is North Carolina, where death in the gas chamber is mandatory for all criminals convicted of first degree murder or rape.

The Supreme Court was expected to hear appeals against the state's new law when it reconvenes Oct. 14. The appeals have been filed on behalf of five death row prisoners.

In its 1972 decision, the five justices who were against capital punishment gave various reasons. Only two of the five said death was cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

Others said it was not

Miniskirts Finally Dead

LONDON (UPI) — London, where the sensational thighhigh hemline was born, pronounced the final words Monday: the miniskirt is dead. It was 10 years old.

Paris, New York, Rome, Florence and other fashion centers might have decreed it earlier, but any lingering doubt was removed by an announcement from the C and A chain store.

The chain, Britain's biggest clothes retailer, sold 18,000 miniskirts a day at the height of the fashion. But, it said, "There will be no more miniskirts when present stocks run out."

Most other British stores began switching over to kneelength and longer skirts three years ago.

Claims Say Trap Created

AUSTIN (UPI) — Three persons who claim prison officials created a death trap for two women hostages are vowing to picket the state capitol until an independent investigation is ordered on the escape attempt of Fred Gomez Carrasco.

Bill Kimble, a spokesman for pickets representing an organization called Citizens for Public Scrutiny on Huntsville, said Monday state officials are trying to hide what happened when Rangers and prison guards ambushed Carrasco during his escape attempt.

Carrasco, an accomplice and two women hostages were killed in the shootout.

Kimble said prison officials "set a death trap for innocent hostages" by approving the ambush plan.

He also said prison authorities behaved like animals when they left the naked bodies of Carrasco and the other inmate "lying in blood for over two hours after their death for some fanciful and perverted purpose of deterrence."

Predicting And Planning

Prediction is the essence of planning.

Unless you can make a fairly intelligent guess as to what's ahead, you find yourself hard put to prepare for it.

Typically, planning begins by taking a long hard look at the past. Suppose you want to know whether the country will have enough of Product A in 1984. What you do first is figure out how much of Product A was used in the period 1964-74. Next you graph out the population growth for that decade. Third you get the most informed estimates as to what the population growth will be for the following ten years. Fourth, you make a graph with dotted lines showing that Product A consumption will rise right along with the increase in population.

So far you have accomplished the "demand side" of prediction. The next phase is the production side. The process is similar. Show what production was. Then show what it will have to be to satisfy the increased number of consumers for the ten years ahead. Ultimately you reach the critical year 1984, and at that point you decide (a) either you will have enough Product A or (b) that you won't have enough. If production figures are keeping up, fine. Forget it and go on to something else. However, if production is lagging, you have uncovered what experts call a "gap." This is the signal for a crisis. As the crisis comes nearer it becomes a "crunch" and the subject of congressional inquiry, hearing, action, appropriation and governmental hiring.

takes place as a consequence of the predictive process. No government planning begins except on a statistical premise. Projections are admittedly imperfect, but margins for error can be dealt with intelligently. Instead of drawing one dotted line out to the future, you can draw three. The top line and the bottom line on the chart indicate the range of possibilities. Reality is certain to lie somewhere between.

With that background as to technique, it is interesting to examine a sample of previous government predictions. We ran across a pertinent case in a delightful little book by Edward J. Mitchell. It was titled "U.S. Energy Policy: A Primer." It was published by American Enterprise Institute For Public Policy Research, 1150 17th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

In 1866, Mitchell pointed out the United States Revenue Commission was concerned about having synthetics available when crude oil production ended. That was more than 100 years ago.

In 1891, the U.S. Geological Survey assured there was little chance of oil in Texas.

In 1914, the Bureau of Mines estimated total future U.S. production at 6 billion barrels — "we have produced that much oil every 20 months for years."

So much for the government. Did the private oil industry come any closer? Author Mitchell gave an illuminating answer.

"Curious thing about these forecasts," he observed, "is a tendency for remaining resources to grow as we deplete existing resources. Thus, a geologist for the world's largest oil company estimated potential U.S. reserves at 110 to 165 billion barrels in 1948. In 1959, after we had consumed almost 30 billion of those barrels, the estimated 391 billion were left."

Mitchell asserted there are two reasons petroleum forecasts have been so wrong in the past and why they are so irrelevant today. First, there is the popular tendency — so far as oil is concerned — to focus on proved reserves, which always appear frighteningly small. Second, "the fact that oilmen hold only ten- to-15 years' supply of oil under the ground should be of as much concern to us as the fact that shoe stores keep only 30 days' supply of shoes on the shelf." To prove more reserves would be unprofitable for the businessman and uneconomical for society.

As to forecasts in general, the crystal ball itself has inherent flecks in it. Mainly, the forecaster has no way to guarantee uniformity from one decade to the next. Some genius is forever upsetting the statistical apple cart with a new invention. Suffice it to say that if a man watches his own business closely and keeps up to snuff on what his competitors are plotting, he just might manage to survive. But should he undertake to prophesy for some enterprise he knows next to nothing about, his chances for tolerable accuracy are the same as drawing numbers out of a hat.

In sum, prediction is predictably precarious. And that's the standard platform for planning.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Postmortem On Charades

By VIC GOLD

WASHINGTON — And so our 37th President, by his own revelation, did not tell the truth.

Richard Nixon at last told the American people the facts concerning his Watergate involvement: the truth which he promised so many times in the past but failed to deliver, for all too sordid reasons, as we now know.

There may be more to be told. But as of Aug. 5, 1974, we knew enough to end the charade. The President, it seems, had been playing word games from the very beginning of the Nation's Watergate ordeal. A charade which he alone could have ended simply by telling the truth. But one which he permitted, indeed encouraged, to continue — to the attrition of the national strength and spirit.

For more than two years, he had been playing only a charade.

"Did the President know?" if so, when? Was it March 17? March 21? September? Was John Dean telling the truth in order to save his own skin? Why didn't John Dean tell the President sooner?

— A charade. Lies. Nothing more.

"How did the 18 1/2-minute gap in the tape occur? Was it a manual error? Defective equipment? Sinister forces? The President doesn't know. He wishes he did."

— A charade. Lies. Nothing more.

The special prosecutor had to be fired because he was engaged in a political vendetta against the President. Watergate is a concoction of the President's enemies, blown up out of proportion simply to get Nixon.

So it went — from "third-rate burglary" to "kangaroo court." Word games and lies to protect the narrow interests of one man and his circle.

We know that now. Our President, whatever coloration he might try to place on this actions, did not tell the truth. Even his most stubborn defenders have acknowledged it. For the final word on his deception did not come from partisan Democrats, "turncoat" Republicans or his enemies in the news media — but from himself.

Finally, we got the truth. Not given willingly, to be sure, but extracted painfully. It was the bottom line on Watergate.

And it told us, Nixon friend and enemy alike, that the President has knowingly abridged justice, using the powers of the great office entrusted to him to protect his associates — and himself — from the consequences of criminal actions.

security matters involved in Watergate that cannot be fully divulged. This statement on the subject is the President's final, complete, explanation. We must trust the President's judgment on such sensitive matters. His refusal to make available all evidence is in the national interest."

— A charade. Lies. Nothing more.

"The answer to these questions is relatively simple. No good businessman would voluntarily abstain from the promising rewards of a high market or stand idly by while his competitors make profitable sales or refuse to consider invitations for lucrative bids."

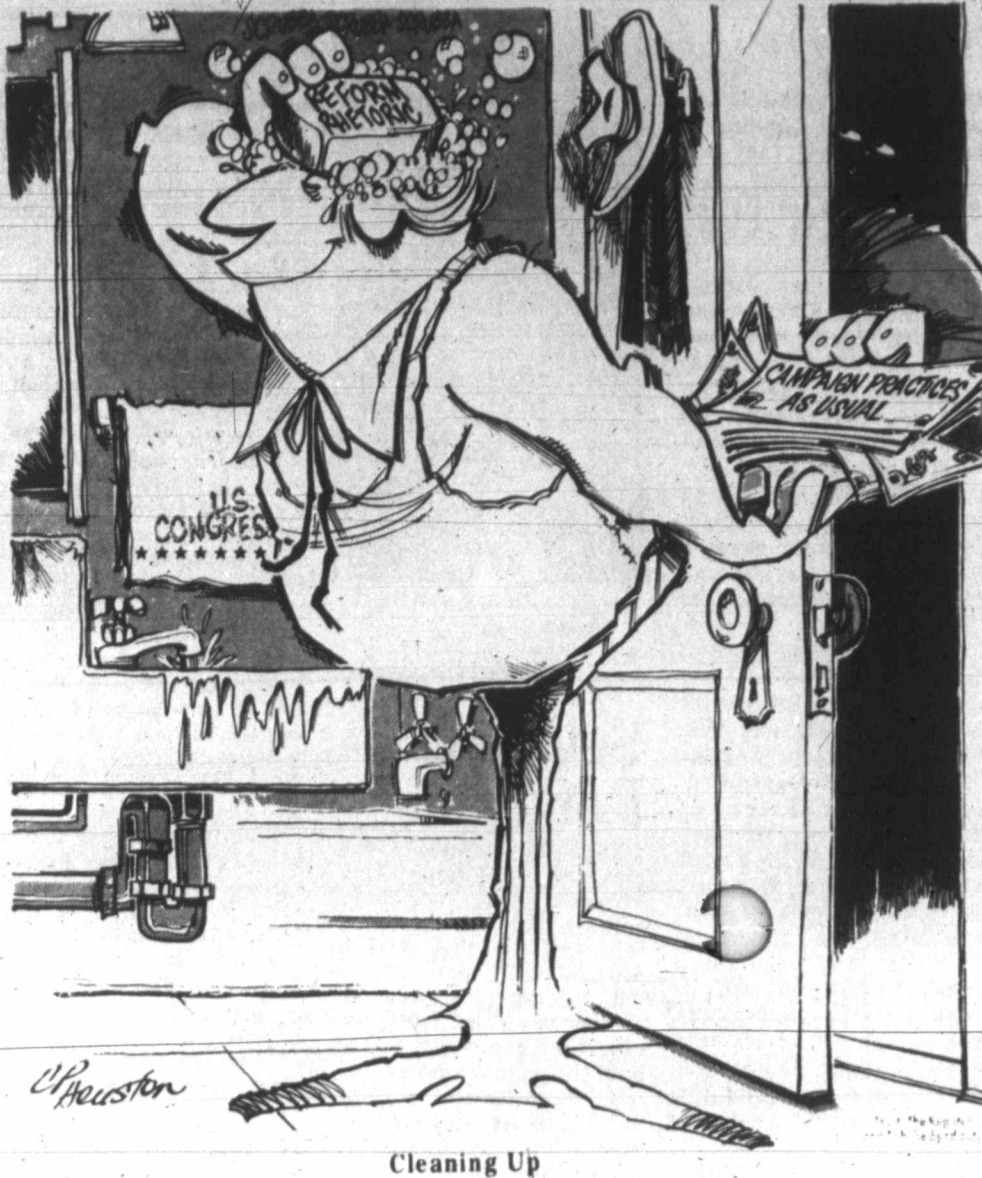

Yet, that is what many Americans are asking their own government to do in refusing to authorize trade with Communist bloc nations on a nondiscriminatory basis.

Trade with Communist bloc countries countries does not mean we approve of Communism. After all, we do not have to like the mailman to accept a parcel post or the bus driver to ride to work or the dentist to fill our tooth.

But if we fail to authorize nondiscriminatory trade with the Communist bloc nations, we will deny ourselves access to vastly promising markets. Sales in those markets could total billions of dollars over the coming years.

Trade means jobs: jobs for Americans across the width and length of our country. Jobs for Americans in Pittsburgh, Akron, Topeka, Seattle, Houston, Atlanta. Jobs for manufacturers of machine tools, aircraft and office equipment, fibers and tractors, communication equipment and electronic components, jobs for our merchant marine. Let's let the paychecks and profits come to our shores.

INSIDE LABOR Bankers And Communists

By VICTOR RIESEL

At a cocktail reception recently thrown by an Eastern Europe Communist bloc country, I was amused to find myself suddenly surrounded by bankers - American bankers.

They had not come to compromise with the Communist diplomats — nor to be compromised by them. Both sides had come to socialize — over hors d'oeuvres and good wine. Both sides saw a profit in each other. This was their bridge. It could crumble tomorrow, leaving nothing but a chasm. Or it could make money and jobs for Americans. The bankers weren't absolutely certain. But they were willing to try. So are America's industrialists, though American labor is not.

Who is right, I asked a man who speaks for American industry and commerce. Here is his reply written exclusively for this column.

By FREDERICK DENT Secretary of Commerce WASHINGTON — What businessman would voluntarily choke himself off from a market of one and a quarter billion people?

What businessman would stand idly by while his competitors walked away with promising markets?

What businessman would stand on the sidelines as a disinterested spectator while potential customers plan multi-billion-dollar procurement budgets?

The answer to these questions is relatively simple. No good businessman would voluntarily abstain from the promising rewards of a high market or stand idly by while his competitors make profitable sales or refuse to consider invitations for lucrative bids.

Yet, that is what many Americans are asking their own government to do in refusing to authorize trade with Communist bloc nations on a nondiscriminatory basis.

Trade with Communist bloc countries countries does not mean we approve of Communism. After all, we do not have to like the mailman to accept a parcel post or the bus driver to ride to work or the dentist to fill our tooth.

But if we fail to authorize nondiscriminatory trade with the Communist bloc nations, we will deny ourselves access to vastly promising markets. Sales in those markets could total billions of dollars over the coming years.

Trade means jobs: jobs for Americans across the width and length of our country. Jobs for Americans in Pittsburgh, Akron, Topeka, Seattle, Houston, Atlanta. Jobs for manufacturers of machine tools, aircraft and office equipment, fibers and tractors, communication equipment and electronic components, jobs for our merchant marine. Let's let the paychecks and profits come to our shores.

Of one thing we can be sure. If we reject the trade opportunity now presenting itself to us, other nations will seize it — in fact, they already have. Jobs that should be going to workers in Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago will go instead to workers in Hamburg, Liverpool, Nice, Milan and Tokyo.

The Commerce Department estimates that in the manufacturing industries every billion dollars in U.S. exports represents 130,000 jobs for U.S. workers. For our capable merchant-marine East-West trade created 2,100 jobs last year.

The world has become too competitive, the technology too similar, the stakes too high to deprive American workers and American businessmen of the opportunity to share in the fruits of expanding East-West trade.

If it is argued that military and strategic goods should not be sold to Communist countries, I agree. But that is not at issue. The law authorizes the President to ban trade in such goods, and goods intended for such purposes will not be licensed for export.

President Nixon has urged Congress to enact a trade reform bill that empowers him in the national interest to confer on Communist nations the same nondiscriminatory status we have granted to other nations. Not preferential treatment, just the same treatment we give to our other international trading partners.

The bill recognizes, among other things, that U.S. trade with these nations has greatly increased in recent years, amounting last year to almost $3.1 billion, of which $1.9 billion accrued to the favor of the United States. This business was the difference in the U.S. achieving a favorable balance of trade.

The trade bill also recognizes that the Communist bloc nations are now drawing up budgets for their five-year plans, 1976-80. Billions of dollars worth of procurement will be made. Contract talks are underway. American firms should compete on an equal basis. Our products are among the best, most highly coveted in the world. Let's not deliberately close the door in our own face.

One objection to our doing business with the Soviet Union is that the Soviet Union does not permit the free emigration of its citizens. For most Americans, that is deplorable. We believe that it is not the function of government to tell its citizens where and when they can go.

But we are not in a position to dictate the emigration policies of the Soviet Union any more than the Soviet Union can dictate the internal policies of the United States.

If we tell the Soviet Union to revise its emigration policies or we will not trade with them, they will simply trade elsewhere — as they are already doing. And their business is avidly being seized by others. Even if the trade bill passes there is no guarantee that we will increase our trade with them. American businessmen will have to knock heads with businessmen of other countries in fiercely competitive markets, persuading buyers that their products or services are better than those of their competitors.

Trade and trade negotiations open new areas of dialogue, and among bargainers in good faith establish a mutuality of confidence and trust that serves higher ends. The side-effects, for example, of recent U.S.-U.S.S.R. trade expansion reflect, oddly enough, a goal that opponents of the President's trade bill most avidly espouse — increased Jewish emigration to Israel. From a trickle during the cold-war years of the 1960s, Jewish emigration increased last year to more than 33,000. Over the past five years, during the period coinciding with the President's efforts towards détente, the total exceeds 81,000. Furthermore, the so-called "education tax," while still on the Soviet law books, is no longer collected.

Should we reverse our policies that have enabled greatly expanded numbers of Jews to emigrate? Should we opt for a return to cold-war attitudes, continual confrontation, growing defense budgets?

Or should we expand the area of communication and, hopefully, of fellowship which has developed as a concomitant of détente?

We have experienced 25 years of cold-war stress and nuclear readiness. The President knows that trade alone does not assure peace. But exchanging goods is more profitable than exchanging insults, and dialogue confers the opportunity, if not of breaking our swords, at least of sheathing them. The possibility of trade and détente reinforcing one another to promote the cause of World peace and understanding is too precious to ignore; it deserves a chance to succeed.

Whether we are cautious optimists or hopeful skeptics, let it not be said 25 years hence that we dropped the ball because we could not grasp the opportunity we strove so hard to achieve. That we could not grasp the idea whose time had come.

are already doing. And their business is avidly being seized by others. Even if the trade bill passes there is no guarantee that we will increase our trade with them. ## OUTRIDER President Controlled His Own Impeachment

By GARRY WILLS WASHINGTON — Historians, looking back, will be surprised at the way MR. Nixon controlled his own impeachment. The conduct of the House Judiciary Committee suggested that some members had hoped, all along, that they might find a way of impeaching the President without ever voicing any criticism of him.

All the Constitution says is that the House has sole power to bring articles of impeachment for trial before the Senate. There is nothing in the document about the House Judiciary Committee which did not, of course, exist when the Constitution was being drawn up — so no duties could be imposed on it. The House was left in charge of its own procedures for impeaching.

But the President succeeded in creating his own rules for his own impeachment. He demanded, and got, a lawyer present at the preliminaries — not at the equivalent of the grand jury proceedings (the whole House votes) but at the equivalent of a prosecutorial investigation (the Committee's investigation of grounds for possible impeachment). That was roughly, like demanding that a Capone spokesman be installed in police headquarters to argue that this lead or that should not be followed up. Then, after this concession, the Nixon people argued that the prosecutor in the case — i.e., those presenting the apparent grounds for indictment to a grand jury — should be "impartial." That is the prosecution should argue with equal weight the grounds for indictment and those for dismissal. That means that, after admitting that Mr. St. Clair as a professed advocate of Mr. Nixon in all the preliminaries of impeachment, Mr. John Doar should spend half his time being Mr. Nixon's lawyer too. Thus Mr. Nixon had, at the outset, one and one-half lawyers on his side, versus one — half of a lawyer (Mr. Doar) on the side of prosecution. Then, when it was alleged that Mr. Doar was being more than a half-lawyer on the side of prosecution, the Minority staff brought in Samuel Garrison as a full-time lawyer on the defense side.

The score then was: two lawyers and (say) a third for the President vs. a lawyer acting (maybe) two-thirds for the prosecutor. Most prisoners would love those odds in any trial. I did not even count the blatant advocates among the members themselves. Presidential defenders at that time, like Messrs. Korff, Buchanan, and Safire, told us that open advocates of the impeachment should disqualify themselves — a Conyers, say, or a Drinan. But a Wiggins or a Sandman, playing games with the Constitution to no end, were counted valid arbiters of their master's voice in the White House.

Mr. Wiggins was a special case. While pretending to judicial impartiality, he outdid St. Clair himself in partisanship. In a hall conference, he gave a lecture on the Constitution's "take care" clause — that which says the presidents must "take care that the laws be faithfully executed." He said "my research on the president's take-care duty indicates that the laws must be faithfully executed once they are passed by Congress, not that the president should enforce them."

Newsman, clustered around him, asked: "Then why is the Justice Department put under the President's care, and 2) How can one administer without any power of enforcing, and 3) Weren't the problems in our early days of the Constitution the power to enforce leaves, etc., on the various new states, and 4) Didn't St. Clair argue that the President did not commit misprision when he did not report crimes because he is the highest law enforcement official?" Mr. Wiggins answered, "I'm just telling you what my research indicates." Then he ducked back into the committee room, where Mr. Nixon had a blind partisan even when St. Clair was absent on other errands.

(Copyright, 1974)

If things had gotten any worse for the White House, some thought there would be a government-in-exile.

The administration tried to combine the tape gap with the credibility gap and wound up with shredded evidence.

Nixon's Southern support fell apart despite all those special dinners of ham hocks and chitlins.

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"IF I AM ELECTED, I PROMISE ONLY ONE CAR IN EVERY GARAGE."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a wonderful woman and I appreciate her many good qualities, but she has one fault that drives me to distraction. When she wants to remind me of something, she doesn't TELL me, she writes me a note! It's not as if we weren't together half the time. When I get to the office, I find a note in my pocket: "Don't forget to gas up your car, and please pay the electric bill."

At breakfast, she had a note stuck under the toaster: "Get a haircut today, please."

Yesterday, she taped a note to my bathroom mirror: "Are you going to do something about your mother's birthday, which is next Sunday? Or should I?"

How can I get the message across to this note-happy woman that she has a voice to talk with, and I have ears to hear with, and I wish she would communicate with me VERBALLY? Thanks.

BUGGED IN EUGENE

DEAR BUGGED: Use your voice to get the message to her ears. (On second thought, since she's so note-happy, write her a note.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who wants to have his cake and eat it, too?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If you're smart, you'll bake him TWO cakes. One to eat, and one to have.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding Animal Lovers: When our four children asked for a dog, we explained that many children in the world go to sleep hungry every night. It was decided that for the cost of maintaining a dog, we could join FOSTER PARENTS PLAN, INC., a national organization that helps poverty-stricken children the world over. For $16 per month, we are able to assist a family in South America with medical aid, food and housing. But most important of all, this plan has enabled a foster child to attend school—a great benefit in a land where there is high illiteracy.

We get regular reports on "our family," and all the children agree it really is more worthwhile than adding another dog to our suburban neighborhood.

PEOPLE FIRST (ANIMALS NEXT)

DEAR PEOPLE FIRST: Many readers will remark: "We have plenty of disadvantaged in the United States—how about looking after our own first?" That's the question I put to PLAN, INC.

Their reply: "PLAN selects the neediest from those countries not yet able to assist their own poor. Since North America does not fall into this category, PLAN doesn't operate in the U.S.A. or Canada."

"We are presently in Bolivia, Brazil, Ecuador, Colombia, Haiti, Peru, Korea, Vietnam and the Philippines. PLAN originated 35 years ago to help war orphans. For more information, write to PLAN, Box 400, Warwick, Rhode Island 02886."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 14

Your birthday today: You begin to see reality from another vantage point, confronting natural and incidental limitations with varying degrees of success. Educational effort pays off, far more than you expected. Relationships are harder to maintain, cannot be taken for granted. Today's natives include many who have brought the world unusual ideas, great poetry, inspiration.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Continue yesterday's activity with more energy and an earlier beginning. Parents, older people require attention, perhaps your help. Tend to obligations wherever you can.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You can do a great deal for those like you by just being yourself. If there's a heavy strain on your finances, move swiftly when there's opportunity to improve.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Promote personal interests, make trades and lump sum settlements where feasible. Without mincing words, claim whatever you feel is rightly yours.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Private business outranks career moves. Divide your time and attention to achieve a balance. Revise finances in line with your reactions to favorable news.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Put minor complaints aside, get down to basic facts and dollars and cents. Close observation uncovers beneficial conditions, but you must initiate change.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: "Credit where due" is your motto for the day. Get a receipt for what you deliver. Extra duties come your way, may as well be dealt with now. No complaints!

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Concern over your own problems, or those of a parent, shouldn't be allowed to impede career. Stick to essentials, postpone expansive innovation or plans for it.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Creative effort subtly overcomes an old limitation. Nothing dramatic happens now, but the small headway achieved promises future benefits.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Apply standard business methods as much as possible before experimenting. Home life is richer and worth an extra, but sensible, outlay of sums.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: There's no use investing time or consideration in rivals or partners in hopes of a return. Just get busy and do your own work.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You could easily reach for too much, too soon—the moderate approach is a sure winner. Call a gathering of the clan tonight: you have news to share.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Strive for practicality. You now find feasible many things you'd been struggling to assemble. Pay attention, revise your tactics!

Tripping It Lightly

NEW YORK (ED)—Vacations are as much a part of summertime as lemonade and barbecues. To some people vacation means sightseeing, to others it means lying on a tropical beach.

No matter where you're going, travel light. One suitcase and a cosmetic bag should take you anywhere if you pack with an eye toward separates that mix and match well. If you keep everything in the same color scheme, you won't have to take three sets of shoes and handbags to match your outfits.

Make clothes serve double duty. For instance, your long beach cover-up can double as a bathrobe. To give your outfits more versatility, take along a variety of accessories. A long chiffon scarf wrapped around the neck, a flower tucked in the hair and a rhinestone clip transform a beach shift into an evening gown. Remember, never travel with your crown jewels. Although most hotels have a safe available, why take any chances. Your brightly-colored summer costume jewelry will do nicely.

What about your cosmetic bag? Carry everything in tiny unbreakable bottles—no need to clutter up your bag with a year's supply of make-up. Think of it as your portable medicine cabinet... which means you'll want to include first aid supplies. Solarcaine is a particularly handy antiseptic since it can be used to relieve sunburn pain and as an effective first aid treatment for minor skin problems. Remember that you need as much protection from the sun on a sightseeing boat as you do on the beach.

No matter where you go this summer: to the mountains, to a resort or to a foreign country you'll have a better time if you travel light.

Jaycee-Ettes Assist With Monthly Jaycee Activities

The Pampa Jaycee-Ettes recently held their July meeting at Southwestern Public Service Co. The opening prayer was given by Trecia Saltzman, and the Jaycee-Ette creed was led by Anna Mae Lancaster.

Prior to the business meeting, a salad supper was held, with each member preparing a salad.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Kerrick Horton, with minutes of the last meeting read by Sharen Peoples. The treasurer's report was given by Trecia, and financial sheets for the month were given to members.

Reports on recent Aid to Jaycee-projects were given. Trecia reported that five members helped the Jaycees sell soft drinks at their July 4th fireworks booth. Trecia was chairman, and five members attended with their husbands.

Guests attending the social were Vickie and Calvin Calloway, Margie and Ken Lemons, and Brenda and David Paulson. Anna Mae provided refreshments for the Satellite School for the month of July Kerrick and Anna Mae delivered the refreshments and visited with the students.

The Jaycee-Ettes also have been helping the Jaycees with their adult drug education program.

Margaret Milam, Diane Grooters, Kerrick and Trecia traveled to Amarillo on July 5 to attend the Amarillo SM-In-Hen.

be Husband's Night, Aug. 22.

The door prize of coloring books and crayons to be donated to Panhandle Orphanage was won by Margaret Milam. Refreshments were served to Kerrick Horton, Margaret Milam, Diane Grooters, Trecia Saltzman, Anna Mae Lancaster and Sharen Peoples.

"AT WIT'S END"

You all know how I feel about high school reunions. I only attended mine because the alumni secretary promised me all the girls would be obese and it would be a real ego trip.

Well, she was wrong. I was the only civilian in the room wearing maternity underwear. I missed winning a badminton set for coming the greatest distance by 867 miles. And five people came up to me and said, "What are you doing now? I thought you were dead."

I have felt for some time that people should take a good hard look at the traditional "reunion" and see how it could be improved. I feel one group is on the right track. At a western school, a group of first graders of the class of 1965 got together recently for their tenth reunion.

Now that makes a lot of sense. At age 16, there are no bald heads, no insurance salesmen or politicians making points, no losers, no over-achievers, no billboards of children's snapshots up to your elbow and no starting in February to get the body presentable by June.

But mostly at a reunion of 16-year-olds, there is no sandbagging like, "You haven't changed a bit." Now, there's a classic line. When a cheerleader adds ten pounds above each knee, develops 3-D varicose veins, has bleached hair, borne four children and has a gold-capped tooth in front, she's changed.

Or, "I miss the old football games." I don't know why this is so, but at my reunion, there wasn't a single boy in the room who hadn't played football. Take Dan Folkert. He came limping up to me, pumped my hand and said "Son of a gun."

"Why are you limping?" I asked. "Did you hurt yourself?"

He looked astounded. "Surely you remember my old football injury."

The only football injury Dan sustained was in the game against Central West when he drank too much beer and fell out of the bleacher and broke his thermos.

Since 16-year-olds are

Whitetail deer and mule deer often eat mushrooms.

Light Dessert For Summer

There's nothing mythological about "Pear Ambrosia." It might well be fit for the gods, but it's designed for mere mortals to eat and enjoy.

With so many fresh fruits currently in season, this handsome dessert makes excellent use of three of them — fresh California Bartlett pears, red grapes and oranges. They are tossed lightly with flaked coconut, orange rind and juice, drizzled with liqueur if you wish, then chilled thoroughly.

Pear Ambrosia
3 fresh California Bartlett pears
3 large oranges
1 cup flaked coconut
1 cup red grapes
1/4 cup orange-flavored liqueur (optional)

Pare, halve and core pears; slice into bowl. Grate rind from 1 orange; squeeze juice from orange and pour over pears. Toss rind with coconut. Pare and section remaining oranges; halve and seed grapes. Toss all fruits lightly with coconut mixture. Drizzle with liqueur. Chill well. Makes 6 servings.

For additional recipes and serving suggestions for this and other summer fruits, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to "The Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825. You'll receive a 48-page cookbook with luscious color illustrations of more than 100 ways to serve California fruits.

Buyer's Billboard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Imported cars may not present the service problems they once did, but in one area — towing — the consumer may still be in trouble.

Foreign cars account for only about 14 per cent of all cars sold in the United States. Yet one recent survey by the AAA showed that about half of all the cars prone to damage while being towed are foreign models — an abnormally high percentage of the total.

The AAA has just published a towing manual for foreign cars in an effort to educate drivers and tow truck operators on the special handling procedures these cars require. It says the basic problem is that most cars imported into this country were designed to be towed by a simple rope, or carried to service on the top of a flatbed truck. Rope towing is generally illegal in this country, he says.

Most U.S. wreckers use sling type devices to carry cars, and as a result suspension or transmission damage can occur.

The manual details approved towing procedures, involving modifications of U.S. equipment, for 22 foreign car and light truck brands. In addition to showing how to truss up the car, the book gives the speed at which the car can be towed, and the distance, as well as instructions on where to leave the gear. In general it may make more sense to truck drivers than to the average car owner, but the information still might come in handy.

The book, however, does not cover three makes — Mercedes Benz, BMW and Alfa Romeo. The AAA said those manufacturers have not developed and refuse to approve any towing procedure using conventional towing equipment available in this country.

Motorists considering purchasing these cars should be aware of their lack of towability and the damage potential if improvised methods are employed, the organization said.

One AAA official said the owner's manuals with BMW and Alfa Romeo cars offer only "very and Alfa Romeo cars offer only 'ver sketchy' towing information, generally referring to the use of a rope or cable. Mercedes tells its owners, he added, the car can be towed for 30 miles and at 30 miles an hour, but there have been reports of transmission damage under those conditions.

The 1974 "Imported Vehicles Towing Manual" is available for $2. from the American Automobile Association, Credit and Order Department, 8111 Gatehouse Rd., Falls Church, Va., 22042. Ask for stock number 2662. One covering only domestic cars is also available from the same address, for $1.50. Ask for stock number 2661.

Before we leave automobiles: The Environmental Protection Agency is telling travelers to Mexico and Canada that unleaded gasoline will be available in those two countries, especially along the border areas, beginning Sept. 1. The question is a pertinent one only for those people who will have 1975 model cars by then or later.

Such cars will be equipped with an exhaust control device that to remain effective requires the car burn only no-lead gasoline. In addition the intake under the gas cap will be of a smaller size able to take only new smaller nozzles on no-lead gas pumps — not the big ones on other gas pumps.

There had been concern that '75 model car drivers would be in for a rough time finding the proper gas if they crossed either order. It may still turn out to be a hazard of the beaten path, but the EPA says Canada claims it should be available nationwide, particularly along heavily traveled tourist routes and at border points.

Mexico says the initial effort will be directed to border areas but eventually no-lead gasoline should be available nationally.

A company which has been selling magazine subscriptions door-to-door throughout the country has employed a phony student nurse scheme to get people to sign up, and then in some cases kept the money for itself rather than putting the subscription through, according to the New York Attorney General's office.

It named the firm as United Literary Association of Chicago. Under a court order it will no longer be allowed to do business in New York state after Sept. 7. The play involved, according to the announcement, was an old one — the salesperson misrepresented herself or himself as a student nurse who needed to sell subscriptions to get a scholarship to finish his or her education.

Night Work Draws Blame

TOKYO (UPI) — More than 80 per cent of Japan's registered nurses and nurse trainees are not married, and they blame it on the fact they have to work at night, the Japan Nursing Association said today.

The association published the results of a survey of its 142,863 members and said the current shortage of trained nurses in Japan doomed women who stayed in the profession to overwork.

"The nursing shortage not only makes the nurse's life wretched," said Fumie Kobayashi, president of the association, "but it also downgrades the overall level of medicine in Japan, inescapably causing serious cases of medical blundering."

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fall term of the CBS "Sunrise Semester" educational series will consist of "History of African Civilization" and "The Meaning of Death." The former gets Monday-Wednesday-Friday exposure beginning Sept. 23, and the latter will be available Tuesday 24.

NBC will preview its new lineup of Saturday morning children's programs in a 30-minute show Sept. 6, with Jimmy Osmond and Johnny Whitaker the featured entertainers at 8:30 p.m.

For prime-time broadcasting in the fall on the five Group W (Westinghouse) stations, there will be a new series of 12 half-hour programs titled "Call It Macaroni," telecast at the rate of one a month. They will deal with various aspects of American activities aimed at the juvenile trade.

The fourth Benjamin Franklin in the four-part CBS 90-minute miniseries about the statesman will be Richard Widmark, portraying Franklin when he is in London trying to get the Crown to make concessions that will make the American Revolution unnecessary. Previously announced to play Franklin at other stages of his career were Melvyn Douglas, Eddie Albert, Lloyd and Beau Bridges.

Pampa Parts Means Quality

It doesn't matter what kind of car you have—whether it is big and beautiful or small and economical. It is going to have some kind of trouble.

That is a simple fact. So why burden yourself with a sky-high parts bill when Pampa Parts and Supply Co., Inc. is in town?

Whether it's major engine problems or just a rough windshield wiper blade, Pampa Parts has parts for your car.

Besides all American-made autos, Pampa Parts also has parts for most foreign cars.

Among the parts they have on hand are Monroe shocks, Delco batteries and other products. Fram and AC oil filters, Black Hawk tools, Black & Decker tools, Gates hoses and belts, AC Autolite and Champion plugs, Victor Seals and gaskets and numerous others.

Added to their new parts.

Pampa Parts has rebuilt under the brand names of Texas Rebuilt, Graycock and Borg Warner. These fine rebuilt parts include brake shoes and clutch plates.

The firm also repairs and makes most hydraulic lines.

The do-it-yourself mechanics who have economy in mind should drop by Pampa Parts and Supply at 525 W. Brown and get a helping hand from Bob Burrows and Winford Swain, co-owners.

In their machine shop, Pampa Parts mechanics turn brake drums, overhaul carburetors, starters and generators, install cam bearings and perform general machine work in addition to carrying a complete line of headwork.

They also carry stereo tapes.

Mother-In-Law Myths Ousted By Publication

AUSTIN — The third party in every marriage is not your mother-in-law, it is the state.

To acquaint Texans with state laws that pertain to marriage, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has brought out a revised edition of one of its most popular monographs — Texas Family Law.

Written by Austin attorney Jack W. Ledbetter, who formerly was an associate professor of business law at UT Austin, the 149 page booklet specifies in readable fashion that most current through mid-1974 laws of Texas that relate to marital rights, duties and property.

Special attention is given to the rapidly developing areas of family credit transactions and truth-in-lending. Other areas covered include community property law, common law marriage, control of separate estates, parent-child relationships, divorce, separation, death, wills, life insurance and tax consequences.

Ledbetter points out that the book is not designed to be used in an individual situation as a substitute for professional legal counsel, but rather as an aid to understanding some of the basic legal rules and principles to which marriage is subject.

"Divorce courts are crowded with cases in which a misunderstanding of marital obligations or rights stands as the grounds, or as the reason behind the formal grounds, for the divorce application," the author says.

Calling marriage "the most serious of all endeavors," Ledbetter notes in his introduction that "the family is the basic unit in our society from it comes the drive for success and the stability for growth. From it come the community's future citizens and leaders."

He notes, therefore, that it is not "unnatural" for society to have a vital interest in every marriage.

Society's interest, in fact, is so great that it has established strong and virtually rigid rules to govern each marriage, the marital parties, marital property and other persons involved in business or personal transactions with a marriage," he says.

Texas Family Law may be obtained for $4 per copy (plus 20 cents tax) from the Bureau of Business Research, UT Station, Austin 78712.

Radcliff Electric—Best In Equipment Service

Modern technology has brought many advancements to mankind by providing various types of electric and motorized equipment for use.

But even with all the great labor-saving devices, equipment will still break down and need repairs.

When trouble comes to your magnetos, take them to Radcliff Electric Co., 519 S. Cuyler, for prompt and efficient repair service.

Along with repairing magnetos, Radcliff's also repairs and installs electronic ignition systems.

And they also offer complete diesel injection service, specializing in Rossmaster, Robert Bosch and American Bosch diesel pumps.

Radcliff's also services any pump for John Deere, International, Case and Minneapolis Moline tractors.

Their small engine repair service also extends to centrifugal water pumps and chain saws. A complete line of Homelite chain saws are in stock at the firm.

The household head who plans to save a little money by mowing the lawn himself can get awfully frustrated when he finds that his Acme Super-Duper Rotary doesn't click.

The frustration can be short-lived, however, if he will stick the mower in his car trunk and bring it down to Radcliff Electric Co., where lawn mower repair service is unequalled anywhere in the Top O' Texas area.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS

The Lefors Pirates, District 1 - B runners - up last year and picked second behind Groom this season, began two - a day workouts yesterday and will do the same for the remainder of the week.

Players worked out at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. for an hour and a half each session. Thirty players reported to Monday's workouts, which consisted totally of conditioning drills.

"We're doing everything that helps in conditioning," said head coach Leonard Tolbert.

"We did calisthenics, stretching exercises, running, agility, and drills like stepping, firing out and stance. And we're also looking at our offense a little bit - basic patterns and a few plays."

Players will work in pads Friday, Monday, they'll practice once a day, in the afternoons, since school starts. The Pirates' season opens Sept. 6 at Wheeler.

Instead of carrying area high school football roundups on a day - to - day basis, this year the Pampa News will run a special Football Edition Sunday, Sept. 1. Included will be roundups, pictures, schedules, predictions and features on the following area high schools: Lefors, Wheeler, White Deer, McLean, Perryton, Groom, Canadian and Miami.

Pampa High School, the Southwest Conference, Panhandle State, West Texas State, the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers will also be included.

Pampa and other Texas AAAA football teams start fall training Monday. Smaller - classification schools, including Wheeler, McLean, White Deer, Canadian, Miami, Lefors, Groom and Perryton in this area, began yesterday.

Lefors again needs an assistant football and head basketball coach. Bobby Joe Gray, who had first taken the job, changed his mind, according to Tolbert, and will not accept the position.

Applicants need to contact superintendent Jerral Julian or Tolbert.

Sandy Miller, Pampa High trainer, will be giving physicals to sophomore, junior and senior athletes in football, basketball and cross country at 7 p.m. in the fieldhouse. An athlete must have a physical to be on one of the three teams.

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Mickey Mantle was sweating.

The fact the temperature was 97 degrees in the unmercifully broiling sun where he was sitting and waiting his turn was one thing, but what was making him perspire all the more was the prospect of having to stand up on his feet in a few minutes and deliver a speech.

Mickey Mantle dies a little inside every time he has to speak in public.

For this occasion, his entry into Baseball's Hall of Fame with his old Yankee buddy, Whitey Ford, and four others, he had gone to an unusual extreme.

He actually had prepared a speech. He had painstakingly hand-written three full yellow pages detailing some of the aspects of his career which had left the deepest impressions.

The speech was a corker.

It was so good, Mickey Mantle tore it up.

He decided not to speak from notes. He spoke, instead, from the heart.

Before he spoke, though, his buddy, "Slick" did, "Slick" is what Mickey Mantle calls Whitey Ford. The name originally was hung on the Yankees' one-time southpaw ace by Billy Martin when all three were with the club.

Mickey Mantle, a shy kid from Commerce, Okla., with a southwestern twang and straw-colored hair, met Whitey Ford originally more than 20 years ago.

Whitey Ford was the complete opposite of Mickey Mantle. He was off the streets of Astoria, only 10 minutes from midtown New York City, an extrovert and a boy who obviously had been around.

"We just kinda hit it off," remembers Mantle. "I can't ever remember having one cross word with Whitey. We were from different parts of the country and we could make fun of each other's talk. I'd say 'over yonder,' and Whitey would say 'where the hell is over yonder?' He says 'vodka and soda. He talks about he got a kick outta me. I loved playing with Whitey."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn handled the introductions of the new inductees into the Hall of Fame Monday, starting with a pair of performers no longer living, Sam Thompson and Sunny Jim Bottomley, and moving on to Jocko Conlan, the former umpire, and Jim "Cool Papa" Bell, a legendary star out of the Negro Leagues.

Then Kuhn called on Whitey Ford, who made an excellent little talk.

When Ford returned to his seat alongside Mantle, Mickey whispered to him, "nice going."

Bowie Kuhn was finishing the introductions now. He read the inscription from the plaque bearing Mantle's likeness, the one which will be affixed in the Hall of Fame here, and concluded by calling him "simply one of the greatest players the game has ever known."

Mickey Mantle moved toward the mike and received a mighty ovation from the 2,500 on hand for the ceremony.

Mantle began by talking about his strikeouts.

"I was the world champion in striking out in everything," he said. "I broke Babe Ruth's record by striking out 1,710 times. Nobody'll break that record. If you strike out that much, you don't get to play."

He told how his mother used to make his first baseball uniform for him, and then introduced her from the audience.

Then he spoke about his father, who never lived to see him voted into the Hall of Fame.

"My daddy worked in the mines," Mantle said, "then when he'd come home, he'd play baseball with me. I don't see how he did it."

Now Mickey had another story. It was a story of how he once was a partner with Harold Youngman in a hotel restaurant venture in Joplin, Mo.

over since the NFL Players Association declared a two-week cooling off period Sunday in which veterans would report to camp beginning Wednesday.

Many of the vets were expected to see action in this weekend's preseason games, and owners hoped the return of the strikers would boost attendance.

Steelers 56, Bears 21

Veteran Joe Gilliam threw for three touchdowns and ran for another as the Steelers overwhelmed Chicago. No. 1 quarterback Terry Bradshaw plunged for Pittsburgh's first TD and Frank Nestor kicked a 31-yard field goal before Gilliam threw 67 yards to John Stallworth. 18 to No. 1 draft Lynn Swann and 16 to Reggie Garret for TDs. He also ran two yards for a score.

Clifton Taylor had an 85-yard kickoff return for a TD and set up another with a 60-yard return.

"The Steelers have a great football team," said Bears Coach Abe Giron. "They should walk through their division. If they don't win it, I'll be awfully surprised and disappointed."

Giron's statement is tough to figure, though, since at least 75 per cent of the Steelers on the field Monday night won't be there opening day.

Browns 21, 49ers 20

Will Cureton and Steve Holden teamed on an 80-yard TD pass play with 21 seconds left as Cleveland beat San Francisco. With a first down on his 20, Cureton threw to Holden, who outjumped two defenders at the 49ers' 30 and raced to the winning score.

"With their prevent defense, all we could do was throw it and jump," Holden said. "A little luck, a little skill, a little extra protection from the line was all it needed."

Gillman To Suspend Players Who Leave

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Houston Oilers coach Sid Gillman said Monday any veteran who reports to training camp and then leaves is out for the season.

Gillman said he is against the two-week "cooling off" period requested by federal mediators trying to end the National Football League Players Association strike.

"I would never agree to it and I don't think the owners would ever go for it," he said. "When a veteran hits this camp, he's here for good. When a veteran leaves this camp, I'll suspend him for the season."

Oilers' owner K. S. "Bud" Adams supported his head coach.

"We want players who will come to camp and stay," Adams said. "If they come in, we may be forced to cut some of our rookies and then they (the vets) might walk out again."

Several NFL coaches openly agreed to accept the veterans back for two weeks.

Oilers' running back Fred Willis said he did not understand the Houston management position.

"The decision was made at the request of the federal mediator," he said. "We're

Mantle, Ford Enshrined

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Mickey Mantle held the crowd in the palm of his hand for 10 minutes during his Hall of Fame induction.

Now it was time for his closing remark.

The audience of about 2,500 had been treated to a wonderful display of wit and poise by Mantle and Whitey Ford, two of the greatest stars of the New York Yankees' golden age, bringing to a climax the induction of six immortals into baseball's Hall of Fame.

In addition to Mantle and Ford, the new Hall of Famers were Cool Papa Bell, a star for 29 years in the old Negro League; Jocko Conlan, a National League umpire for 25 years, and the late Sunny Jim Bottomley and Sam Thompson, sluggers of other eras.

The crowd had heard everything it wanted to hear but 21 members of the Hall of Fame were waiting to hear one thing more, Bill Terry, former New York Giant first baseman and the National League's last 400-mitter, had said it for them all Sunday night when he asked the new inductees, "don't just take the plaques and walk away...come back."

This annual Hall of Fame ceremony is pure Americana out of the past. They come every year...old men, some of them in wheel chairs, cherishing a dream that baseball and the American flag are synonymous...that baseball is still No. 1 despite the competition of football, basketball and hockey...that their old values will yet be the salvation of the country.

The thing they concern themselves most with is that guys like Mantle and Ford - great players, yes, but whippersnappers in their eyes - really don't care that much.

Mantle put their fears to rest - at least for the moment.

Turning to the 21 seated on the porch of the National Baseball Library, Mantle closed his remarks with the statement, "I hope Whitey and I can live up to what these guys stand for."

NFL Veterans Start Training

United Press International With a few notable exceptions, National Football League veterans began drifting back to training camp Monday while management was preparing to meet today to discuss the ramifications of the "cooling off" moratorium between the feuding parties.

In anticipation of the suddenly veteran-infused camps, the NFL Management Council called a meeting with representatives from the 26 clubs to discuss the now somewhat shaky status of the free agents and rookies who have carried the teams thus far in the 43-day off dispute.

The owners also plan to discuss the current status of negotiations which were thrown into a 14-day cooling off period Sunday by federal mediator W. J. Usery Jr. with the veterans told to report to camp.

Most of those veterans were reporting Monday, but the bitter effects of the strike still were in evidence in places.

Only four Minnesota Vikings - Carl Eller, Mick Tinglehof, Doug Kingsirt and Fred Cox - reported Monday. Once in camp, the Ram players were asked whether they were there on their own volition or at a "union directive" and also "if they planned to stay."

And at Buffalo, where most of the Bills were reporting, player rep Reggie MacKenzie expressed dismay over the current turn of events in the strike.

"It (the cooling off period) is kind've hard to digest kind of hard to stomach," MacKenzie said.

Massey Women's Medalist In US Amateur Tournament

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Deborah Massey, who teaches skiing in Vermont when not playing summer golf, carried medalist honors into today's first round of match play for the 1974 U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championships.

Miss Massey, 23, blistered the back nine of the relatively short but tight Broadmoor Course Monday to lead a field of 64 qualifiers with her two-under-par 70.

The University of Denver graduate from Bethlehem, Pa., played her medal round three shots better than her closest rival.

Three-time U.S. Amateur champion Anne Quast Sander of Seattle and veteran Cynthia Hill of Colorado Springs, Colo., each carded 73's over the 5,942-yard course - which most contestants described as "superb."

Nancy Aaronson of El Paso, Tex., was a shot back at 74 and from there the qualifiers in the starting field of 115 golfers with handicaps of five or less stretched all the way through 82.

Except for qualifying, the scorecards in the round of medal play became throwaway items as the select field was paired for match play.

"I heard Anne (Sander) shot 73 and that's when I started making those birdies," said Miss Massey, who birdied four of the first five holes after the turn.

Defending champion Carole Semple of Sewickley, Pa., said she was undisturbed at playing seven shots off the medal pace at 77.

"I wasn't concerned about the score as long as I qualified," Miss Semple said. "I was concentrating on my club selection. I made some mistakes and learned some things and I'll play better."

Mrs. Sander, out to win her fourth national title on her home course, said good putting - she needed only 26 strokes on the green kept her in the competition.

Despite her competitive experience dating back to the 1950's, Mrs. Sander said she really was nervous about qualifying.

The title will be decided Sunday over 36 holes or less.

Pitcher Equals Strikeout Mark

United Press International Nolan Ryan has a way of making the art of pitching look much too easy.

The 27-year-old righthander of the California Angels added another clipping to his scrapbook Monday night when he equaled the major league record for most strikeouts in a nine-inning game by fanning 19 in a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Ryan, who set a major league record of 383 strikeouts last season and also pitched two no-hitters, turned in his second blue chip performance in a row by stopping the Red Sox on seven hits for his 15th victory.

In his last start, Ryan pitched hitless ball for 8 1/3 innings before giving up three hits and losing to the Chicago White Sox, 2-1. Earlier this year, he had a one-hitter against Texas, one of four in his seven-year career.

Given his choice of a strikeout mark or a no-hitter, however, Ryan would prefer a no-hitter.

"A no-hitter is a greater achievement - there is no margin for error in a no-hitter," Ryan said. "It means more. But I just tried to put the last game out of my mind. Marty Springstead (home plate umpire) called them kind of tight. I had to work for each strike."

"I really felt everything was going right tonight," Ryan said. "I think I got better as the game went on. I don't think I thought about the record until about the eighth or ninth inning."

"I think my location was good tonight. I put the ball pretty much where I wanted it. Any time you can do that, it makes a difference."

Ryan's effort was the best ever for an American League pitcher, bettering Bob Feller's record of 18 strikeouts in 1938, and equalling the major league mark shared by Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Tom Seaver of the New York Mets.

Tom Cheney of Washington holds the record for most strikeouts in an extra inning game with 21 in a 16-inning contest against Baltimore in 1962.

In the only other AL games, Detroit topped Kansas City, 5-1; Oakland edged New York, 3-2, and Milwaukee downed Texas, 5-1.

Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati, 7-4; New York defeated Los Angeles, 3-1; St. Louis nipped San Diego, 6-5, in 13 innings, and Philadelphia beat San Francisco, 4-1, in the only National League action.

Tigers 5, Royals 1

Detroit's Mickey Lolich, backed by rookie Ron LeFlore's two-run homer, tossed a five-hitter and moved into ninth place on the all-time strikeout list while pitching the Tigers over the Royals. Lolich, increasing his record to 13-14, struck out seven to move past Don Drysdale with a total of 2,492 strikeouts.

A's 3, Yankees 2

A two-base throwing error by third baseman Graig Nettles enabled the A's to score two runs in the eighth inning and defeat the Yankees.

Longhorn Player Dies

HOUSTON (UPI) — Parker Alford, 22, a second team tight end for the University of Texas Longhorns, Monday died in a two-car accident on a southwest Houston freeway.

Alford was dead at the scene. The other driver, Cleo Walker, 51, was uninjured.

Alford alternated at tight end last year for the Longhorns and started the 1974 Cotton Bowl game against Nebraska. He was listed in a team prospectus during spring training as the No. 2 tight end.

The former Houston high school star also played football at Navarro Junior

Canadian Shooter Holding 3rd Place

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (UPI) — David Tubb of Canadian, Tex., a 19-year-old shooter and last year's junior champion, moved into third place Monday in the second day of shooting in the National High Power Rifle Championships. Tubb, who shot a 783 out of a possible 800 Monday, was points out of first and only one out of second.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Charleyhorse Is Muscle Cramp

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes a "charleyhorse" as we call it, and can anything be done for it? I get it in both legs and it is very painful. — Mrs. L.S.M.

"Charleyhorse" is a good enough term — even gets in medical dictionaries — but I'm not sure that's what you have.

A charleyhorse is a muscle cramp from excess activity, but the specific problem may be a simple muscle spasm, a rupture of the muscle, or a strain. If it occurs frequently, as perhaps it does in your case, and in view of your having it in both legs, I would suspect that poor circulation, rather than strenuous activity, might be the basic cause. The type of footwear could be a factor, too.

If it is a circulatory ailment, stripping of varicose veins, support hose, or occasionally some more specialized treatment may help.

But for the occasional charleyhorse that develops after too much exercise, rest, heat and aspirin are the usual ticket — with emphasis on rest. If it occurs after some particular activity (tennis, swimming, etc.) the answer may be the obvious one: either give up that activity, or spend more time getting into shape for it.

Don't be silly. Not unless you are a female cat.

Since you didn't say whether this is a daytime or nighttime problem, I'll add a note that leg cramps after you have gone to bed are a somewhat different matter because these cramps come when you are at rest. Medication, more calcium in the diet and a rather simple exercise to stimulate circulation are effective. You'll find that in my booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps," which I will send you in return for 25 cents and a stamped and self-addressed envelope. Send request to me in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 13 and wondering if it's possible to become pregnant by a male cat. — G.R.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am astounded at some of the foolish questions you get in your mail. — L.E.B. Well, sometimes I am too. But if some of the questions sound dumb, they still are questions that somebody doesn't know the answer to. As somebody once said, "We're all of us ignorant — but about different things."

I would not exactly call it trichina "poisoning" — it is infestation with the trichina worm, which comes from eating meat in which the trichina eggs and worm are present. And it can be a serious disease.

These days people are generally aware of the wisdom of thorough cooking of pork — pigs can acquire the trichina because they are meat-eaters (among other foods). But other animals that eat meat can become infested. (Not animals that don't eat meat, such as cattle and sheep.)

Anyway, the treatment you mentioned is still used in mild cases of trichinosis, but in acute cases a drug called thiabendazole is used. Also steroids — that is, cortisone-type medication.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is also vital to human life. For this reason Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Woman's Home Town Insulted

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — A woman in Indianapolis wrote me a polite pan letter saying, "For the third time in as many weeks, you have made insulting remarks about my home town of London, O., population 7,000. I'm proud of my home town and I resent those remarks. They're funny to no one."

The letter-writer, Gertrude Hunter Sipe, said further, "How big is your home town and would you enjoy disparaging remarks about it?"

While I was brooding over this, a man named John Markus, who had written the insulting remarks, strictly as gags, wrote to me that he was coming to New York and wanted to meet me. As we sat at the bar at Gallagher's, I looked at him in all his freshness and I said, "How old are you?"

"Eighteen," he admitted. I told him he had offended a lady in Indianapolis.

"That's terrible," he said

"Some people have been grabbing me by the arm on the street and saying 'Why don't you say something good about the town?' I tell them, 'If there was anything good I'd say it.'"

One line he wrote was: "We're not much of a gourmet center in my town. Someone just opened a Chinese restaurant and they serve chow mein on the cob..."

He also wrote, "We don't have much night life. We had a power blackout last week and nobody even knew it." The classiest restaurant features a soup de month. "I like the intimate atmosphere of my town," he says. "We have a drive-in that shows home movies..."

Grimacing slightly, John Markus said, "I heard from those. Usually on the street when I was walkin'. They all knew it was in fun."

"You sound like Herb Shriner," I mentioned.

"Herb Shriner?" he said. He was unfamiliar with Shriner and George Ade and Abe Martin and all those great country humorists who had also had small towns.

"Herb Shriner used to say in his town they had a beauty contest and nobody won," I told him. "He said 'We had a pretty wild bunch. Saturday night it was nothin' for us to go down and watch a few haircuts.'"

"That's a good one," John Markus said.

"And he said he was born in Ohio but moved to Indiana as soon as he heard about it."

John Markus chuckled at that, too. It was strange to me that all these small town jesters come from the same section of God's country.

"Tell you what we got to do, though, about that lady in Indianapolis," I said.

"Instead of saying your town's so small that, etc., just say that 'A friend of mine comes from a town so small that... keep everybody happy, see...'"

The lad who could be the next gag writer for Johnny Carson and a new Woody Allen was still drinking his Coke when I left him. "By the way," he said, "my town is so small that I bought a map of the city and it doesn't even fold."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Liz Taylor's due here en route to LA with her new love to relax a few weeks before her "most expensive musical film" ever made ("The Blue Bird") in Leningrad, requiring several weeks... Joe Ragno, the bartender in "Iceman Cometh," is being hailed as "the new Jimmy Cagney" in the Carroll O'Connor-Ernest Borgnine movie, "A Little Law and Order"...

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The woman with true charm is one who makes a youth feel mature, an old man youthful, and a middle-aged man completely sure of himself."

EARL'S PEARLS: Food prices are so high, claims Kirk Kirkpatrick, that one bookstore moved its fantasy and science fiction section.

"This may seem premature," says Bob Orben, "but I've already decided how I'm gonna vote in 1976. A lot more carefully. That's earl, brother."

Secret Stuff: A prominent

Under Twenty

By JEANNE HARRISON

If you recall last week's Top Ten, there were three tunes with the word "rock" in the title, namely, "Rock and Roll Heaven," "Rock Your Baby," "Rock the Boat." Now, as with a magician's wave of a wand, all have been replaced. Funny thing though, there's a LITTLE bit of repetition in words as Paul Anka's "You're Having My Baby" shows up in seventh place.

TOP TEN SINGLES (+)

1. "The Night Chicago Died" - Paper Lace
2. "Don't Let The Sun Go Down On Me" - Elton John
3. "Feel Like Makin' Love" - Roberta Flack
4. "Annie's Song" - John Denver
5. "Sideshow" - Blue Magic
6. "Rikki Don't Lose That Number" - Steely Dan
7. "You're Having My Baby" - Paul Anka
8. "Please Come To Boston" - Dave Loggins
9. "Taking Care of Business" - Bachman-Turner Overdrive
10. "Radar Love" - Golden Earring

TOP FIVE ALBUMS (+)

1. "Back Home Again" - John Denver
2. "Caribou" - Elton John
3. "Before The Flood" - Bob Dylan
4. "Journey To The Center of The Earth" - Rick Wakeman
5. "461 Ocean Blvd." - Eric Clapton

James Taylor is definitely back on the recording scene with his latest album, "Walking Man." Fattening the offering is the appearance of Paul and Linda McCartney in background vocals on some of the numbers. Finding her own is Lorraine Ellison, whose album bears her name. Fine bluesy-gospel performance.

America, no strangers to the gold record and album scene, have a top spinner in "Holiday." Also worth the spinning is Wilson Pickett's "Pickett In The Pocket" and Jerry Butler's "Sweet Sixteen." (Distributed By Columbia Records, Inc.) (+) CASH BOX - Weekly National Survey

James Green Is Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James A. Green, of Rotan, Tex., has been charged with violating financial, payment and record keeping requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

Green, a registered livestock dealer, purchases in West Central Texas.

The USDA complaint against him charged Green: — Operated as a livestock dealer from January through March, 1974, while his liabilities exceeded his assets;

— Had liabilities of $22,000 in excess of his assets;

— Issued bad checks for more than $24,000 worth of livestock;

— Failed to maintain sufficient accounts and records to fully disclose all transactions involved in his livestock business.

The USDA said Green was entitled to a hearing on the complaint.

JUST A TUFF LEICESTER, England (UPI) — Stephanie Cox, 20, pleaded guilty Tuesday to scratching 299 music records belonging to her boyfriend.

Magistrates dismissed the case when she said she and Paul Cook had patched up their lover's tiff and were now engaged to be married.

BIG STEAL BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Police inspector John Sole ordered Constable Philip Herring to investigate a theft Tuesday. The missing property was a box of haddock.

Texas State Department Of Health Battles Preventable Diseases

All preventable diseases in Texas may never be wiped out, but the Texas State Department of Health — with cooperation of private physicians — is working toward that goal through a strong immunization campaign.

Last year a combined total of only 1805 cases were reported for diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, measles and rubella. There was no polio reported in 1973. Because of the success of the compulsory school immunization program, more attention is directed toward the pre-schoolers in State Health Department activities. Statistics show that epidemics have repeatedly taken the heaviest toll among children from one to four years old. A dramatic decline in disease incidence has been marked up in Texas for such diseases as diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles and rubella. Sharing in this success is a group of Community Service Aides who concentrate on infant immunizations. When a baby is born in Texas, the Immunization Division gets a computer printout showing the baby's name, parents' names and home address from the Records and Statistics Section of the State Health Department. Parents of newborns receive a card informing them of immunization schedules and recommending vaccination times. They are asked to return the card and indicate which immunizations have been started. Not all parents respond to the inquiry, and not all begin immunizations for their babies. That's where the Community Service Aides come in. They take referrals from the Immunization Division and attempt to track down those who don't respond. The pelican gets its name from the Greek word pelekus, or ax. The bird's beak is shaped like that ax.
