Gunmen Reject Hostage Exchange Offer

'They're going to fix it where I can run'

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Blue-eyed, talkative little Tracy Ann Whittaker is going to get on a bus with her mother at 10:30 p.m. in Amarillo and ride all night to Dallas where she is going to undergo open heart surgery.

"They're going to fix it where I can run," Tracy said. "I haven't ever run before. I couldn't."

It won't be Tracy's first trip to the Childrens Medical Center in Dallas. She went once when she was three and again recently.

Doctors defined the problem when she was three and on the last trip, the doctor said she is of the age when she should have something done about it.

Mrs. Ramona Whittaker, Tracy's mother, said when Tracy was born, the doctors said she had a heart murmur but would probably outgrow it. She didn't.

Tracy was asked if she knew what the doctors were going to do to fix her heart. "Friday."

"I don't think I do," she said.

But she isn't worried. "Dr. Johnson is the best doctor in that whole hospital down there," she said, giving the impression that if he said everything would be all right, it will.

"I have two new teeth," Tracy said, smiling as she said, "see." It seemed more important than talking about the coming operation.

She also has a new pant suit that her grandmother made her. She's going to wear it for the bus ride. It has a pattern of little aspirin tablets all over it.

"It should have been Tylenol," Tracy said. That's what she takes for the many headaches she gets. She also gets stomach aches and has a lot of colds.

"I have missed lots of school," she said. "I get sick and miss school and go down there and don't learn the words."

Tracy's dad, Roy Whittaker, is a self-employed carpenter. He will get to spend a couple of days visiting during Tracy's stay in the hospital — estimated by Mrs. Whittaker to be at least three weeks long.

Mrs. Whittaker said that the Crippled Children Fund is going to take care of the hospital bills and that welfare is paying for the bus tickets. Welfare in Dallas will provide her with meal tickets, she said. And she will stay in the hospital lounge where "they have chairs that fold down. I'd rather be there with her, anyway, than off somewhere else."

So, it may not be first class transportation and accommodations, but Tracy will get her operation.

7-Year-Old Tracy Whittaker

There is one thing worrying Mrs. Whittaker however. Blood. Tracy will need 16 units of blood and if 17 replacement donors aren't found, the cost will be $26 per unit.

Even with all the financial help and even if donors are found there will be expenses for the Whittakers — expenses that will be tough to fit into the budget. It's coming at a bad time of year. "I don't imagine there'll be much of a Christmas around this house with me and Tracy gone," Mrs. Whittaker said.

Tracy's little sister, Lori, will spend Christmas at the Whittaker home at 501 N. Warren with her father while Tracy is recovering in her hospital room and Mrs. Whittaker is sleeping in the hospital lounge.

"But it will all be worth it," Mrs. Whittaker said. "And, if it all goes as expected, Tracy will get to run."

A bloodmobile will be in Pampa at the First Methodist Church from 1 to 3 p.m. Tuesday, for persons interested in being replacement donors for Tracy.

LONDON (UPI) — Four trapped Irish Republican Army gunmen today rejected a police offer to provide them with food and cigarettes in exchange for the release of a woman they are holding hostage with her husband in a small apartment living room.

"Absolutely not," came the answer on a hot-line telephone between the IRA gang's besieged Dorset Square refuge and the police outside. It came as the ordeal was in its second day.

The IRA gang is believed to include Britain's most wanted man, Michael Wilson, said by the police to be responsible for London-area bombings that have killed 27 persons and wounded 540 in the past 18 months.

Wilson is wanted for the murder of Ross McWhirter, cofounder of the Guinness Book of Records. McWhirter was shot to death 10 days ago after offering a reward for the capture of the bombers.

The offer to provide food and cigarettes to the gunmen in exchange for Mrs. John Matthews was made via the hot-line telephone connecting the second-floor living room on Dorset Square with police outside.

With police in hot pursuit, the gunmen seized Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, aged 54 and 53, respectively, Saturday night in their apartment, then barricaded themselves in the 13-by-14-foot living room overlooking the street.

They were given water, a portable toilet and toothache pills for Mrs. Matthews, but the police refused late Sunday and early today to supply requested food and cigarettes. Then they made the exchange offer.

"We are all right," Mrs. Matthews told the besieging police army on the telephone. Scotland Yard adopted the same tactics that succeeded in the Spaghetti House restaurant siege in September and the Monasterevin, Ireland, siege last month. The tactic involves forcing the gunmen to surrender.

"We are prepared to go on as long as necessary to get the hostages out unhurt," Bond told reporters. "We will make no deals."

The police talked to the gunmen repeatedly on the hot line. The IRA men were described as "cool and collected." They have demanded a plane to fly them to Ireland.

A police spokesman said exchanges between police and gunmen over a specially installed hot line were becoming more frequent. "Negotiations are at a very delicate stage now," he said early today. "I am more optimistic than a few hours ago."

The captors allowed Mrs. Matthews a 30-second telephone conversation with police and she assured them she was well. She appeared calm and self-possessed, a police spokesman said. Officials believe Michael Wilson, the most wanted man in Britain, is one of the four.

Wilson is being sought in connection with a series of bombings and the murder two weeks ago of Ross McWhirter, publisher of the Guinness Book of Records.

From the start police adopted a hard line and flatly rejected the gunmen's demands for a plane to Ireland.

Metropolitan police commissioner Sir Robert Mark, aware the terrorists were listening to him on radio and television, called them "ordinary vulgar criminals" who would "be going nowhere but to their cells in Brixton prison."

"There is absolutely no question of doing a deal with the hostages," Mark said. "Police refused the gunmen's request for food but agreed to supply them with water and a chemical toilet, lowered to the first floor window by rope from the roof."

More than 200 officers, including uniformed sharpshooters, surrounded the brick house. Streets leading to the apartment building have been cordoned off with white tape and many area residents evacuated.

The siege began about 7:30 p.m. Saturday when the gunmen, driving a stolen car, fired shots at Scott's restaurant, scene of a bomb attack Oct. 29.

Police, who had increased surveillance in the area since the bombing, immediately set off in pursuit.

A one-mile chase through crowded streets ended in a brief gunbattle in Dorset Square after a police car rammed the gunmen's car. The gunmen, forced to flee on foot, then burst into the Matthews' apartment.

A portable toilet, water and aspirin have been lowered by rope to the window of the 13-by-14 foot living room of the second-floor apartment.

But requests for food, made via a hot-line telephone to policemen separated from them by only the living room door, have been denied.

The gunmen have threatened to kill the Matthews if police burst into the room in a capture-rescue attempt.

Scotland Yard put its city-wide forces on alert against a possible IRA attack elsewhere aimed at taking the pressure off the besieged four.

Hundreds of police patrolled the streets around the building in a fashionable neighborhood near Regent's Park in north-west London.

They installed sophisticated eavesdropping equipment to listen in on the gunmen's conversations.

that all streets in the city were unsafe and few persons ventured outside.

Scattered shooting erupted across the city and the thunder of exploding rockets and mortar shells echoed from the downtown areas.

Security forces appeared powerless to contain the violence. Firemen and ambulance drivers came under fire as they tried to extinguish fires or pick up wounded persons.

"These barbaric acts are aimed against the very concept of humanity," said Beirut Radio announcer Sharif AlAkhami. "We should be thankful for the curfew as it has saved many lives."

Two Soviet diplomats were among those wounded by flying bullets Saturday. One, second secretary Robert Mardirossian, was partially paralyzed when a bullet struck him in the lower back.

The sudden collapse of security came Saturday after the bullet-riddled bodies of five Christian militiamen were discovered in outer Beirut.

A wave of kidnappings and counter-kidnappings then swept the city, with hapless motorists and pedestrians gunned down in cold blood if their identity cards proved them to be Christian or Moslem in the wrong area.

Beirut Radio warned citizens Christians and Moslems to more than 4,600 dead and 10,000 wounded. Chamoun warned that "if the situation continues to deteriorate, the declaration of a state of emergency will become inevitable."

Such a move would mean calling in Lebanon's 18,000 man army to try to restore order, an act consistently opposed by Premier Rashid Karami for fear it would trigger still more bloodshed.

The latest round of violence brought casualties in eight months of civil war between

Pampa Man Fined For Marijuana Use

A 22-year-old Pampa man, who pleaded no contest this morning to misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana, told the Gray County Court that he did not agree with the marijuana laws.

Craig Duane Nokes was fined $350 plus $53 court costs and placed on probation for one year.

He told the court, in answer to questions from John W. Warner, county attorney, that he had been using marijuana for five or six years.

"You've been busted before — but you have no convictions," Warner said.

"I don't quarrel with your right to think. You have the right to believe as you wish. However, you have the obligation to obey the law," Warner emphasized.

"You have legal means of changing the laws through the legislature or through the courts."

The rules of probation, Warner said, require that Nokes neither use nor possess marijuana in addition to abiding by all other laws.

"While you are on probation, you must obey the law. Do you understand? Do you tell the court you will?" Warner asked.

Nokes said he would. Judge Don Cain told Nokes that he has a right to believe as he wishes.

"This court disagrees with your thinking. The latest information is that marijuana is harmful, but this is a matter to be argued in the legislature, the judge said in recommending that Nokes keep an open mind on the matter.

In other action today, Freddy Wayne Mann of Pampa was fined $200 and court costs for driving while intoxicated. He was granted a six-month probation term.

Several pleas of innocent were entered during arraignments today, and jury trials in those cases were set for the week of Jan. 12.

In cases where defendants pleaded not guilty and proved that they could not afford to hire an attorney, Judge Cain said the court would appoint a competent lawyer to represent them.

Fire Damages Cab

The cab of a semi tractor-trailer rig caught fire as it was being driven through Pampa Saturday. The Pampa Fire Department answered the call at 2210 Perryton Parkway at 2:15 p.m. Driver Steve Goffney told firemen there had been an electrical short under the dash that morning. Firefighters said the fire, caused by an electrical short, caused extensive damage to the cab. The rig was owned by Gypser Manufacturing Company of Santa Rosa, Calif. There was no damage to the trailer or its contents.

Three Escape in Amarillo

Three prisoners in the Potter County Jail in Amarillo staged a nighttime escape and are being sought by law enforcement authorities throughout Texas and the United States.

Michael Joe Sutton, white male, 24 years old, was being held on charges of armed robbery. Roger Paul Barrett, 24 years old, white male, was held on a fugitive warrant from New Mexico for robbery, kidnapping and assault on a police officer.

They were joined by 18-year-old Charles Rumbaugh, white male, who was charged with armed robbery and murder.

Chief Deputy Bob McCarty said the escape was discovered at 6:50 a.m.

The prisoners, he said, had used hacksaws and other unknown tools to cut through the steel bars on the 6th floor window. The trio then made a rope from their blankets to lower themselves to the ground.

The Potter County Sheriff's office is still investigating how the prisoners acquired tools for use in the escape.

A spokeswoman for the Pampa Police Department said they have recovered bullets to look for the escapees, although there is no indication that they are in the vicinity. She said the suspects are possibly armed and are considered dangerous.

Flood Insurance Prompts Complaints

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Shortly after Congress approved the National Flood Insurance program seven years ago, Galveston County officials adopted the necessary federal guidelines enabling their area to be insured against damage brought by heavy rains and high tides in the Gulf Coast area.

The flooding of Galveston County is well documented. Thousands of lives have been lost and millions of dollars spent in rebuilding property in the county, 90 per cent of whose land lies in the 100-year flood plain (the area vulnerable to a catastrophic flood expected at least once every 100 years).

Since enacting the program, Galveston County officials have received good marks from the federal government. "It's a super program," says J. Robert Hunter, who heads the Federal Insurance Administration. "We use it as a model community."

The flooding problems of Galveston County are not unique only to the Gulf Coast area. Across the state, 511 communities have also adopted the necessary federal guidelines in order for their residents to be eligible for federal flood insurance.

However, now many of these same residents are not happy with the program. In fact, a Senate subcommittee and a federal agency have received dozens of letters from Texans who want the program radically changed.

Pampa city commissioners voted three to two to join the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program on Oct. 14.

The vote came after nearly an hour-long discussion among realtors, builders and commissioners.

Speaking for the realtors, Quentin Williams said the group was concerned about property owners being handicapped by lack of FHA loans if the program was not adopted.

A local banker said that if action were not taken it would slow down Pampa's building development.

Both House and Senate committees are now considering legislation to redesign the program, which was last modified in 1973. However, action is not considered likely until next year.

"We have heard from lots of voices," said an aide to the Senate Housing and Urban Affairs Subcommittee. "The bulk of the mail was for the Eagleton amendment. But it appears it has split Texas badly."

The amendment to the federal flood insurance program, proposed by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., would essentially make community involvement optional. Now, in order for the residents of an area to be eligible for low-cost federal flood insurance, officials must conform to strict federal guidelines.

The result, maintain critics of the current program, is that the federal government has in effect decreed a land use control plan.

"It is not only the most stringent land use control law ever passed by Congress," said Terry Keeling, a spokesman for the Richmond-based Citizens for Local Land Control, at a recent Senate hearing. "When fully implemented, it will result in a situation whereby the federal government will have the power and authority to control the use of which every parcel of land in virtually every community in the United States may be put."

Under the current program, construction in flood-prone areas must take into consideration the 100-year plain level. In order for an area's residents to obtain the federal flood insurance, local officials must insure that building will not be unnecessarily constructed in high danger flood zones.

The rationale, Why should the government provide low-cost, heavily subsidized insurance — when private companies won't — if the local communities won't even take reasonable steps to avoid new construction in highly dangerous flood zones?

The Eagleton amendment would permit individuals to secure the insurance without their local governmental officials enacting laws in accordance with the federal guidelines. Additionally, it would remove the prohibition on federally-funded mortgages going to areas in which the federal guidelines are not in effect.

While many residents in flood-prone areas disagree with the current federal program, some officials in those areas think otherwise.

"It is generally accepted by the citizens of Galveston County that construction above the flood plain is essential to protect lives and property since there ultimately will be another major hurricane to strike Galveston County in the future," Galveston County Judge Ray Holbrook said here recently.

Hospital Fate Decided By Small Margin

CANADIAN — Residents of Hemphill County, in a light turnout, voted 184-155 to sell the old Hemphill County hospital rather than lease it.

The election was Saturday with only 17 per cent of the county's eligible voters casting ballots on the issue.

The old hospital is now unoccupied. Patients were transferred to the new Hemphill County hospital in mid-November.

H.L. "Red" Owens, county judge, said the vote does not obligate the commissioners court, but gives them a course of action.

He said he would abide by the voters' decision. The commissioners court was in session at noon today, with the hospital issue on the agenda.

Government Is Force

The automatic impulse is to try to divine the partnership lying behind the Church Committee's revelations of CIA assassination attempts on foreign politicians.

To the committee's credit, no administration, from Eisenhower's on, Republican or Democratic, has escaped the tincture of culpability; still the Republican committee members protested on the hazy ground of "national security," the release of the information — an unnecessary political exhibition. And there is the persuasive speculation that Senator Church, a Democrat, is running for president.

The confession by the United States government that its heads of state have encouraged or approved murder attempts on foreign heads of state is surely some sort of landmark in America's short history. Despite that history's brevity, our ostensibly limited government has swollen to remarkable — and reprehensible — proportions. Not that he was especially saintly, but it is hard to conceive of George Washington authorizing a murder plot against George III. Or even Thomas Jefferson masterminding a scheme to assure that Napoleon would lose his hirsuteness.

Foreign entanglements, remember those were the things President Washington, in his celebrated Farewell Address, warned us to keep at arm's length. That the United States Government has strayed so far over the outer limits of morality gives us pause to re-examine just what lies behind such behavior: it is, at bottom, the nature of political government itself.

That nature is force; anyone who feels the anxiety to resort to political action does so because he or she is impatient with people acting without the constraints of coercion. That is

U.S. More And More Dependent

By C.R. BATTEN

In 1950, the United States produced 47 percent of the world's supply of steel; in 1974, the U.S. produced 19 percent of the world's supply of steel. In 1950, the U.S. produced 44 percent to the world production of aluminum metal, and in 1974 only 35 percent. In 1950, the U.S. produced 52 percent of the world's supply of refined petroleum; in 1974, only 24 percent.

These figures are cause for concern among government leaders and the industries that use those materials. They are but one indication that the United States is becoming more dependent on foreign sources of these and other minerals that are considered essential in today's world.

In a speech last October before the American Mining Congress, Thomas V. Falkie, director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, said that there are 18 commodities for which cumulative demand to the year 2000 is projected to be greater than present reserves.

Presumably he meant total reserves, for a table accompanying his speech indicated that projected demands for 41 minerals are greater than reserves recoverable at 1973 prices. These minerals include gold, natural gas, petroleum, and oil shale — every one of which has been the victim of federally imposed price controls that have held production down.

The Arab oil embargo and concomitant price increases emphasized the dangers of relying too heavily on foreign nations for critical minerals.

Said Falkie. He and others are concerned that other nations holding key mineral supplies might form similar cartels that could disrupt the markets and cause hardship in this country.

An article in the September American Mining Congress Journal describes how our government has limited the availability of minerals by withdrawing or restricting the application of the mining laws on more than 500 million acres of federally owned lands.

One third of the land area in the U.S. is owned by the federal government. Prospecting and mineral development of two thirds of that land under the mining and mineral leasing laws is now prohibited or so severely restricted that they have in fact been withdrawn from mineral entry.

Authors Gary Bennethum and L. Courtland Lee, both employees of the Department of Interior, point out that the bulk of these lands are in the western states and Alaska, where important mineral deposits are most likely to exist.

There is no mechanism for assuring the cumulative impact of thousands of discrete withdrawal actions," wrote Bennethum and Lee. So now 24 percent of all the land area in the U.S. is withdrawn from prospecting and mineral development. That is an area as large as all the states east of the Mississippi River, excluding only Maine.

"This kind of a land use strategy is economically unsound and is simply bad public policy," the authors declared.

The massive withdrawals are both foolish and irresponsible. Such restriction of mineral supply is detrimental to the well-being of the people of this country. It can be favorable to only one group — the foreign producers of those minerals.

U.S. POSTAL SLAVE

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE In Praise of J. Edgar Hoover

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The left-liberal coterie that has spent the past year chewing on the CIA and the FBI is now beginning to zero in on the late J. Edgar Hoover. In recent weeks we have been treated to a spate of loose allegations about past misconduct by the Bureau; information improperly suppressed, or alternatively wrongly leaked, and so forth. And, since the Bureau's long-time Director, J. Edgar Hoover, is dead, everyone has felt free to lay these supposed crimes at his door, and blacken his memory.

They had better be careful. Quite by accident I discovered, several years ago, that J. Edgar Hoover is a true hero to most Americans — as, I may add, he deserved to be.

When I was doing the "Advocates" shows on the National Educational Television Network back in 1971-72, we argued one week whether "J. Edgar Hoover should be replaced." My adversary took the affirmative, and his witnesses included a renegade FBI agent who sneered at Hoover and pooh-poohed the record of the Bureau under his long leadership. For the negative, I had to rely on ex-agents too, since Mr. Hoover would not permit the FBI to lift a finger in its own public defense. Fortunately, there were plenty of men who had worked under him who were glad to speak up admirably in his behalf.

As usual, viewers were then invited to vote on the question. Ordinarily, anywhere from 4,000 to 6,000 postcards would come in; 7,000 was treated as a big response. But this time we were inundated by 25,000 — and 18,000 of them opposed replacing Hoover.

So, as the mudgnunners of the left go to work on J. Edgar Hoover, let us review the salient facts about this man, and try to understand how he earned his towering reputation. Let us remember, too, that he is dead, and cannot defend himself. His enemies can say whatever they wish, and hint at still more, without the slightest fear of a libel suit, or even of a response. While he lived, they watched their tongues more carefully.

Hoover headed the FBI from its basic reorganization in 1924 until his death in 1972: one of the longest careers on record in a single public office. Eight presidents of the United States, of both political parties, kept him on in the post, because they knew how crucial a job it was and how superbly well he performed it. In the 1930s he led the drive against the criminal gangs of Dillinger, Karpis, etc. During World War II he kept Nazi efforts at espionage flat on their back. In the late 1940s and early 50s, he efficiently combed the Communists and their fellow-travelers out of government at

Of Accomplishment Rhodesia Experiences Sweetness, Bitterness

By JOHN A. SPARKS
R.C. Holles Fellow
Hillsdale (Mich.) College

Two weeks ago the country of Rhodesia celebrated ten years of independence. It has been a decade since Ian Smith made his "Unilateral Declaration" which transferred power from Britain to the newly created government of Rhodesia. From its beginning, Rhodesia has been the "bad boy" of world opinion. At its birth, Ian Smith's small country was castigated as an "outlaw state" by Britain, condemned by Moscow, censured by the United States, damned in the U.N. Upon the celebration of ten years of peace and order, Rhodesians no doubt remember the anxiety they felt when, in 1965, the Organization of African Unity called on every African country to consider itself at a state of war with Rhodesia! World political opinion which led to economic sanctions enthusiastically pushed for by Labor Prime Minister, Harold Wilson, did harm to the Rhodesian economy for a time. Because of the tenacity of the Rhodesians, the weakness of Britain's socialist economy, and the cooperation of South Africa, Rhodesia not only lasted through the economic war against it, but prospered.

Why has world opinion made it so difficult for this small African nation? The well-circulated answer is that Rhodesia is a detestable example of continuing European racism. True, that European constitution has only gradually given the black majority a voice in the government. But that process has already begun and there is every reason to believe that it will continue. The way in which Rhodesia deals with its multi-racial and multi-cultural differences may not be acceptable when viewed from standards of perfection and immediacy. Nevertheless, change is coming about in a steady, legal, and orderly way.

Were that not so, Rhodesians could still properly question a world opinion which asserts that racial differences are limited to its territory and which ignores the continuing problems of racial coexistence found in Eastern European countries, the Far East, and ironically, elsewhere in Africa.

Rhodesians can rightfully be incredulous of a world opinion which remains silent about terror, oppression, and slavery behind the Iron Curtain, but endlessly attacks a government whose citizens, white or black, enjoy, by comparison, so much more freedom.

Rhodesians can shake their heads in dismay at a world opinion that apparently favors for Africa the stultifying central planning of socialism and opposes the productive incentives of the marketplace.

Finally, they can legitimately deride the judgment of Harold Wilson and the bulk of journalists who said in 1966, when Rhodesia was newly born, that its remaining life would be measured in weeks, not in months or years.

As the candles on the ten-year birthday cake were blown out, the Rhodesians must have experienced the sweetness of accomplishment along with the bitterness of accomplishment without recognition.

It is largely the battles of those last years that are being re-fought today. Hoover, for example, privately detested the late Martin Luther King, Jr., not because of his civil rights stance but because of King's hospitality to card-carrying Communists in his movement. Not only did John and Robert Kennedy both know of the Bureau's surveillance of King in this connection, however, but Bobby actually authorized, as Attorney General, the wiretap of King's phone in the interests of U.S. security.

Unquestionably, Hoover had — indeed, in his job he had to have — enormous power: mostly power conferred by skilled agents and advanced technology, and the power derived from the information those obtained. Not one man in a thousand, perhaps even a million, wielding such power over a span of nearly half a century, could have resisted the temptation to use it to aggrandize himself beyond the dreams of avarice. But J. Edgar Hoover remained, to the end, a simple public servant who loved his country, served it superbly, and was a hero to generations of his superiors and subordinates. And America, I predict, will honor his memory when the mouths of his posthumous detractors are stopped with dust.

Mom Wants to Bow Out of Bride's Bizarre Wedding

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter, Phyllis, is getting married, and her plans are unbelievable. In the first place, Phyllis and Rick have been living together for two years and they have a 4-month-old baby. Phyllis wants to walk down the aisle with the baby in her arms and Rick by her side!

Phyllis' father and I have been divorced for 14 years, but Phyllis wants us to walk down the aisle together. Then she's got my present husband and her father's present wife teamed up as a "couple" to walk down the aisle together. (Have you ever heard of anything so insane?)

The wedding will be held in church and the kids are paying for everything. Phyllis and Rick wrote their own vows, and they claim the pastor approved all these plans. Can you believe it?

This wedding should take place in a zoo — not a church. I am happy that Phyllis is finally going to marry Rick, but do you think I should take part in this farce, or should I stay home with a migraine headache?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: Unconventional as the wedding may seem, it's the bride's day, and she may do things her way. Please don't get a migraine. Your daughter needs you, and you'd be missing one of the most unorthodox weddings of all time.

DEAR ABBY: This past year, my husband and I have entertained three couples for dinner in our home. Upon leaving, all have said, "We will have to have you over soon."

Well, "soon" never came with any of them. When we accidentally run into them somewhere, they say, "We've been meaning to call you..."

Abby, these three couples get together often. We know because we see their cars parked in front of the homes of one or the other. However, none of them has made an effort to include us.

My husband says that I am foolish to stand on ceremonies — that as long as we enjoy their company (and we do) I should invite them back.

I think three invitations without being invited back is enough. I'd like your opinion.

ALWAYS THE HOSTESS

DEAR ALWAYS: I'm with you. One for one is the proper ratio, but two for none should be the absolute limit.

DEAR ABBY: Eleven years ago, when my son was 5-years-old, I was financially unable to care for him so I placed him in a home where I knew he would be properly provided for. I had no choice, Abby.

Now he is 16, and when he visits me, he makes demands, uses abusive language and treats me in a most cruel and insulting manner.

I feel that this is his way of punishing me for having put him in a home.

What is the best way to cope with this situation? I don't appreciate this type of treatment from my own son. Thank you.

ABUSED

DEAR ABUSED: If you can't make him understand that you placed him in a home because you thought it would be best for him, perhaps a clergyman or counselor can. Your son desperately needs to be assured that he was loved — not abandoned.

The 'Fad Crime'

Airline hijacking appears to have faded nearly out of the picture as a major crime problem. Unfortunately, this does not mean that terrorists, extortionists and other holdup artists who once would have commandeered airliners have all gone straight. The new "fad crime" — as a federal agent described it the other day — is to stay on the ground and take hostages.

The headlines bear this out. Whether it is a scheme to rob a bank, collect ransom or to force a government to do something it doesn't want to do, the new modus operandi is to kidnap someone or hold several people at gunpoint.

The hijacking wave subsided after airlines began frisking passengers for weapons and other items which had been serving as a haven for hijackers decided to take down their welcome sign. Hostage-taking presents a tougher problem.

Kidnapers may disappear into a large city with their victim. That authorities should refuse to bow to the demands of criminals holding hostages is easy to say, but difficult to do. Yet each success of such a crime virtually assures that another will be attempted.

Quick and stern justice for kidnapers and hostage-takers who are caught may be the best way to discourage a "fad" like this. Meanwhile, a type of criminal who once did his work at 30,000 feet has come down to earth where his target can be anyone, anywhere. The public and the victims may be in for some grim experiences before this phenomenon runs its course.

Less than half of doctors in AMA

Less than 50 percent of the nearly 400,000 physicians in the United States are members of the American Medical Association, the magazine Private Practice says.

Nearly 4,000 doctors resigned from the organization last year, the magazine says.

4,000 in U.S. hit age 65 every day

More than 4,000 Americans reach the age of 65 every day, the U.S. Census Bureau says.

Persons 65 and older now number 21,815,000 out of a total population of 213,631,000 the Bureau estimates.

Jobs are scarce for U.S. lawyers

Half the lawyers admitted to the bar over the next three years face unemployment in the legal profession, an expert predicts.

Only about 69,000 of an estimated 138,400 new attorneys admitted to practice through 1978 will be able to find jobs in their profession, predicts Prof. Millard Ruid of the University of Texas Law School.

ULCERS EASE UP

Duodenal ulcers are striking only half as many men and women as they did 15 years ago, and nobody seems to know precisely why.

Ford Pleased with Trip East

Police Have No Suspects In Slaying of Children

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford returned home today from the 10-day, 27,000-mile journey in which he discussed affairs of the world with Mao Tse-tung, solidified U.S. relations with Indonesia and the Philippines and declared a new Pacific Doctrine.

conference before his plane landed at 2:15 a.m., he hinted his next foreign journey may be to the Middle East.

Doctrine of "peace toward all and hostility toward none."

There are no definite plans, no specific plans — an indication such a trip might be under consideration.

Security Council in the next week or 10 days to discuss progress in strategic arms talks with the Soviets.

TEANECK, N.J. (UPI) — Authorities said today the wife and four children of a Harlem tavern owner may have known whover gunned them down in their home.

into the home and apparently nothing was stolen.

The bodies were found scattered in separate rooms of the $50,000, two-story brick colonial-style home at about 4:30 p.m. Saturday when the father, Wesley Diggs, returned home from work.

Energy Bill May Be Give-Away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several House Democrats have attacked an energy bill they contend will result in a "96 billion give-away" to major oil companies.

The bill started out as a $6 billion authorization for ERDA, the new agency that coordinates federal energy research.

Senate Interior Committee staffer Dan Dreyfus said the charge there were no hearings is "ridiculous."

Harris Best, But Democrats Get Nowhere

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International
Liberal Democrats in New York and Massachusetts held conventions to endorse a presidential candidate this weekend and got nowhere.
But Fred Harris, who did well — though not well enough to win — may have won more respect for his candidacy.
In both conventions, no one got enough votes to win an endorsement. Harris, former Oklahoma senator and former party chairman who espouses a "populist" viewpoint, was the most consistent vote getter.

President Ford will prove his vote-getting ability on a wider scale than he did in his last election in Michigan's 5th District, says his campaign manager. Howard "Bo" Callaway, head of the President Ford Committee, said Sunday Ford would win the first three major primaries.
He said Ronald Reagan is waging a "two-state" campaign, pinning his hopes on doing well in New Hampshire and Florida.

But Callaway predicted flatly Ford will beat the former California governor in those two states plus Illinois, thus defeating Reagan in his three best states, with Ford strongholds to follow.
Callaway, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," also said Ford would be wise politically to veto the tax cut, energy and common situs picketing bills now before Congress.
The New York New Democratic Coalition, whose 1972

endorsement helped George McGovern win the nomination, met Saturday and after five hours of balloting failed to endorse a candidate. A 60 per cent vote was needed, and Sen. Birch Bayh came within a single vote, at 59.95 per cent, of winning the prize.
It was the opposition of forces backing Harris and Rep. Morris Udall that kept Bayh from winning. Harris was second in New York with 30.2 per cent.

Knight Newspaper Heir Murdered

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — What began as a quiet evening at home with three friends ended in the beating and fatal stabbing of John S. Knight III, heir to the Knight newspaper empire, at the hands of unidentified assailants, police say.
Knight was killed in his downtown apartment early Sunday and two of the friends were bound and gagged, officers said. The third guest said she left the apartment earlier.
Police said they were searching for three white men, all in their 20s, who apparently killed Knight in a robbery attempt.
The assailants were described by a house guest, Rosemary

McKinnon, who was slashed when she tried to escape.
Mrs. McKinnon told police she and her husband, John, were asleep in a guest room when she was awakened by noise in another room.
She said she found three men had entered the expensively adorned apartment. Knight, 30, who was single, and the McKinnons were bound and the apartment was ransacked. It was not known what was taken.
There was no sign of forced entry to the blood-spattered apartment, police said.
Joseph Golden, chief of detectives, said Knight, special projects director for the Philadelphia Daily News, a member of the Knight-Ridder newspaper group, apparently was killed about 4:30 a.m. EST. He was found in a bedroom bound and fully clothed. His body was mutilated with multiple stab wounds.

A friend of Knight, who declined to be identified, said she was with Knight and the McKinnons, of New Haven, Conn., earlier but left at 2 a.m.
"All was fine when I left," she said.
Golden said police were not notified of the slaying until shortly before 8 a.m. EST when Mrs. McKinnon contacted a guard at the fashionable high rise building.
"Mrs. McKinnon somehow made it down the elevator and notified police," Golden said. "She was stabbed in the hand."

Knight, only grandson of John S. Knight, founder of the Knight newspapers, was a cum laude graduate of Harvard. He came to the Daily News about a year ago, worked as a copy editor and feature writer and rose to the position of day news editor before being named special projects director.
Knight began his newspaper career at the age of 17. He worked in various jobs on a number of Knight newspapers. He began his professional career with the Detroit Free Press, a member of the Knight group.

Strock Passes Dolphins over Bills

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Miami's Don Strock has done some masterful coaching jobs, including a perfect 17-0 season in 1973 and two consecutive Super Bowl triumphs, but this year might be his best performance ever.

First Strock lost three offensive stars, Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick, to the World Football League. Then three defensive standouts, Dick Anderson, Nick Buoniconti and Bob Heinz, were knocked out for the year with injuries.

But still the Dolphins won. Then two weeks ago, quarterback Bob Griese suffered a foot injury, requiring surgery, and it was up to 41-year-old Earl Morrall to lead Miami.

And still the Dolphins won. But even Morrall could not escape the injury jinx which seems to hang over Miami this season. He was kayoad with a knee injury last Monday night, leaving the quarterback job to Don Strock, a third-year pro who had never completed a pass in NFL competition before last Monday.

With Miami holding just a one-game edge over Buffalo and Baltimore in the AFC East race, Strock made his first pro start Sunday against the Bills.

And still the Dolphins won. Strock, who once led the nation in passing and total offense at Virginia Tech, calmly passed for two touchdowns and ran for another to spark a 31-21 triumph over Buffalo that even left Strock stunned.

Strock ran four yards for one score and threw TD passes of seven and one yards to Howard Twilley as Miami built a 21-0 halftime lead and then held off a late Buffalo charge. Norm Bulaich applied the crusher for Miami with a one-yard TD plunge after the Bills had pulled to within three points in the last period.

"I felt great," said Strock after completing 12-of-15 passes for 99 yards and rushing three times for another 15. "I slept like a log last night but I might not sleep so good tonight."

Miami's victory was its ninth against three losses and kept the Dolphins a game ahead of Baltimore in the AFC East race with two left. Miami is at Baltimore next Sunday. Buffalo now is 7-5.

In other games, Dallas whipped St. Louis 31-17, Washington edged Atlanta 30-27, Baltimore blasted the New York Giants 21-0, Pittsburgh drubbed Cleveland 31-17, Cincinnati crushed Philadelphia 31-0, Minnesota mauled Green Bay 24-3, Los Angeles downed New Orleans 14-7, Houston overtook San Francisco 27-13, the New York Jets held off New England 30-28, San Diego surprised Kansas City 28-

20 and Chicago downed Detroit 25-21. Denver is at Oakland tonight.

Cardinals 21, Cowboys 17
Jim Hart threw three TD passes, two to Mel Gray, to lead St. Louis past Dallas in the battle for first place in the NFC East.

Redskins 30, Falcons 27
Mark Moseley's 39-yard field goal with two seconds left lifted Washington past Atlanta and set up a duel between the Redskins and Cowboys Sunday for a probable wild card playoff berth.

Colts 21, Giants 0
Baltimore's defense overwhelmed the Giants to set up a showdown against Miami next week. Lydell Mitchell ran for 119 yards and a TD to become the first 1,000-yard rusher in Col history.

Steelers 31, Browns 17
Terry Bradshaw threw TD passes of three and 18 yards to Lynn Swann in the final period as Pittsburgh clinched a fourth straight playoff berth with its 10th consecutive victory.

Vikings 24, Packers 3
Fran Tarkenton threw for three TDs to move within one of John Unitas' NFL career record of 290 as Minnesota clubbed Green Bay.

Bengals 31, Eagles 0
Marvin Cobb set up two scores with interceptions and Ed Williams scored twice as Cincinnati set up a title duel with Pittsburgh Saturday by crushing Philadelphia.

Rams 14, Saints 7
Linebacker Jim Peterson returned a fumble 67 yards for a score and Jack Youngblood added a safety to lead sluggish Los Angeles over New Orleans.

Cardinals Dash Cowboy Hopes

By LASZLO K. DOMJAN
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, who seem to thrive on snatching victories through final-seconds heroics, had to contend with the pressure of preserving a comfortable lead Sunday.

The Cardinals, thanks largely to three Roger Wehrli interceptions, prevented Dallas from overcoming a 28-3 halftime lead. The 31-17 final score gave St. Louis sole possession of first place in the NFC's Eastern Division.

"We seem to respond better to the pressure situations than the so-so games," said Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart.

"We've come from behind so many times that those situations helped prepare us for today because our backs were against the wall the entire game."

Did Hart mean to suggest the pressure is greater when a team is ahead than when it's behind?

"It has been at times," he said. "You get 25 points up on the Cowboys and you get excited. You have to tell yourself, 'Wait a minute. We still have another half to go.'"

"We scored 28 points, but they can put 28 points on in a half, too — especially them, because they're so explosive."

Hart, exercising steady ball control, hit 11 of 17 passes for 199 yards and three first-half touchdowns, including tosses of six and 49 yards to fleet Mel Gray. St. Louis scored on four of its first five possessions.

One pressure point for the Cardinals was knowing the game was more crucial to them than to Dallas.

"It was the most important of the season for us," said all-purpose running back Terry Metcalf, who rushed for 86 yards and caught a 30-yard scoring pass. "This was actually do or die, and we did."

Added St. Louis coach Don Coryell, "We just had to win the game if we were to control our own destiny."

The Cardinal win gave Dallas an 8-4 record, one game behind St. Louis and tied with Washington for second place in the East Division. The Cowboys and Redskins will battle for the likely NFC wild card playoff spot Sunday. On the rest of its schedule St. Louis faces only games with Detroit and Chicago, both of the Central Division.

"It looks like the Cards are in the playoffs for sure now, unless they have a letdown for their last two games," Dallas coach Tom Landry said.

Landry said the Cardinals "were about the toughest team we've met this season. We just couldn't do anything with them in the first half."

Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach added, "We could have helped ourselves a lot by beating the Cards today. It's going to make it that much harder against Washington next week."

Staubach was Dallas' leading rusher with 61 yards in scrambles and picked up 266 yards passing — 220 of them in the second half. He directed desperation drives that resulted in one-yard scoring runs by Doug Dennison and Preston Pearson. Both scores were aided by pass interference calls which gave the Cowboys the ball yards from the goal line.

In a consolation game, Hereford's sophs whipped Pampa's sophs 54 - 47 in the second round.

Brown Nets Two Seconds

SAN ANGELO — Ted Brown placed second in two events and teamed with Benny Fallon, Ronnie Gibson and Cary Smith for fourth place to lead Pampa High swim team entrants in the Pre-Christmas Invitational Swim Meet Saturday at San Angelo Central High School.

Brown placed second in the 100 butterfly and 200 freestyle. The boys 200 - medley relay team of Brown, Fallon, Gibson and Smith was fourth in the consolation finals.

Gibson was third in the consolation 100 breaststroke. Smith second in the consolation 100 backstroke and Julie Harkrider sixth in the consolation girls 100 backstroke.

Nine Pampa High records were broken in the meet: Brown in the 200 free, Gibson in the 100 breast, Lynn Esson in the 200 free, Fallon in the 100 free, Gay Carter in the 100 breast, Smith in the 100 back and the boys 200 - medley relay team.

The Harvesters' next meet is Dec. 13 in the Pampa Triangular against the Amarillo schools.

Halftime Ritual

A big part of Don Sessom's coaching success, according to the Groom football boss, is his belief in emotion on the field. A spirited Groom team battled back from a 13 - 12 halftime deficit to edge Celina 15 - 13 in the state semifinals Friday night in Vernon. Groom, 12 - 0 - 1 for the season, meets unbeaten Big Sandy for the Class B state championship at 2 p.m. Saturday in Jacksboro. Big Sandy has not lost in its last 40 games and tied Celina 0 - 0 for the state title last season. Celina closed out its season Friday with a 13 - 1 record.

Borger JV Topples PHS

BORGER — Tom Perry scored 19 points to lead Borger, which had three others hit in double figures, to a 65 - 64 win over Pampa in the finals of the Borger Invitational Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

Anthony Kemp, who finished with 16 points, hit a five - foot jump shot with four seconds left to give Borger the one - point lead. Winston Sauls added 15 and Carl Jackson 11 for the winners, who are now 6 - 1.

Pampa, also 6 - 1, was led by Rickey Buntun with 15, Rusty Ward and Tim Reddell with 14 apiece and Tommy Price with 10.

The Shockers ripped Borger's sophomores 67 - 49 in the semifinals.

In a consolation game, Hereford's sophs whipped Pampa's sophs 54 - 47 in the second round.

Banquet Time 7, Not 7:30

The Pampa High football banquet will start at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Auditorium. It was incorrectly stated in Sunday's News that the affair would begin at 7:30 p.m.

Barry Switzer, University of Oklahoma football coach, will be the guest speaker. Tickets are available for $3.50 from Art Aftergut of the Harvesters Booster Club or from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

No. 14 Alabama Nudges Providence

College Basketball Roundup
By United Press International

Leon Douglas and the Alabama basketball team sometimes are thought to be one and the same.

But the 14th-ranked Crimson Tide dispelled that notion Saturday afternoon with an impressive 71-67 victory over 19th-ranked Providence in Madison Square Garden.

Douglas again was the Crimson Tide's tower of strength, but freshman forward Reggie King and guard T.R. Dunn also played crucial roles in Alabama's third straight win this season. Dunn held Providence's standout guard Joe Hassett to only 14 points.

"I've said all along I think our guards are underrated," Alabama Coach C.M. Newton said afterward. "I thought he (Dunn) did an outstanding job on Hassett."

Douglas provided most of Alabama's offense and rebounding. Scoring 19 points and grabbing 16 rebounds despite drawing his fourth foul with more than 14 minutes left in the game. When Douglas was benched for six minutes as a precaution against his fifth foul, King took over for the Tide and the 6-6 freshman finished with 11 rebounds and 13 points, including a game-winning pair of free throws with 11 seconds left to play.

Eighth-ranked Tennessee, the preseason favorite in the Southeastern Conference, was carried down to the wire by 15th-ranked Michigan in an 82-81 victory over the visiting Wolverines.

Bernard King had 27 points to lead the Vols and teammates Ernie Grunfeld and Mike Jackson each scored 22. Freshman Phil Hubbard led Michigan with 25 points.

Second-ranked UCLA rebounded from its thrashing by Indiana with a pair of victories over the weekend and may have solved the guard problem so evident in the loss to the top-ranked Hoosiers.

Freshman Brad Holland, who was not part of the Bruins' 10-man traveling roster for the Indiana game, came off the bench Friday night to score 17 points in UCLA's 90-80 victory over San Jose State. That earned Holland a starting position in the Bruins' 81-60 victory Saturday night over Southern Illinois.

Third-ranked Marquette played poorly in subduing outclassed Northern Michigan.

Lead Ruins A&M in Game

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas coach Frank Broyles says the Razorbacks took an early psychological lead that had a lot to do with their upset over Texas A&M.

The Razorbacks thrashed the Aggies 31-6 Saturday to earn their first trip to the Cotton Bowl since 1966 victory and their first trip to the Cotton Bowl since 1966.

"The longer the game is even, the more ahead we are," Broyles said Sunday in describing some of the psychology involved. "A&M thinks they should be ahead at halftime and if they're not, they think they're behind. So, the longer the game stays tied, the more ahead they are and the more worried they become."

Broyles said if there had been no score at halftime, his team would have had a psychological advantage of maybe two touchdowns.

When quarterback Scott Bull lofted a 28-yard pass touchdown pass to flanker Teddy Barnes with 34 seconds left in the half to put the Razorbacks ahead to stay, it allowed Arkansas to move 2½ to 3 touchdowns ahead of them, psychologically," said Broyles.

The coach said the Barnes TD catch was "as meaningful play as we've ever had. We're going to have a painting of it put in our hall of fame room."

The Razorbacks gained more yards than anyone has on the Aggies all season and Broyles was asked if he had thought Arkansas could run up the middle against A&M.

"We had to think we could," he said. "I think we've got the best offensive line in this conference and maybe equal to those good ones Texas has had and I say that because we could move the ball without our starting backfield."

"We had to believe we could run at their middle. Other teams had not tried that. They tried trick plays, reverses. You better establish your middle game against anybody you play, particularly against A&M. I'm not saying we did that but we were adequate."

The Razorbacks had receivers wide open deep against the Aggie secondary several times but could not connect prior to the Bull-Barnes TD but Broyles said the "weakness in the secondary was not in their ability but in the confidence they have and therefore they roared and gambled to stop the run."

Arkansas' receivers beating them deep "had to shock them," Broyles said. "The only disappointing thing was we only got seven points on them and that's with hitting the tough one (and not the ones wide open)."

Broyles said he felt the turning point in the season for the Razorbacks came in the second half of the Texas game when they came back to make the score close. Broyles said that gave his team "confidence they could play with any team in America."

He said he thought prior to the season-opener the Razorbacks had a chance to have as good a team as anybody. "We won the games we were supposed to win and won yesterday when we weren't supposed to and we fumbled away our chances in (losses to Texas and Oklahoma State). A&M fumbled away theirs yesterday."

Ballet Class Helps Mastectomy Patients

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — There is a class at the University of Santa Clara in which the students have one deeply personal experience in common. All are mastectomy patients.

Santa Clara's unusual class resulted from a daughter's attempts early this year to lift the spirits of her mother, who underwent a mastectomy last December.

"After three weeks of ballet, my doctors agreed that I had improved more than I had in months of physical therapy. It wasn't only what it did for the arm, but also what it did for the spirit."

Results of Hoffa Lineup Kept Secret

DETROIT (UPI) — Results of a lineup test of three New Jersey men have been kept secret, but the U.S. Attorney says federal grand jurors will be told whether a government witness recognized the trio as participants in the abduction and murder of former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa.

The three men have not been held on any charges. U.S. Attorney Ralph B. Guy Jr. would not discuss the results of the examination — the witness viewed the three men Saturday — but he said Sunday they will be given to the grand jury this week.

The grand jury has been probing the Hoffa case since early September, but so far has returned no indictments. Until last week, federal sources said, there had been no solid information about the baffling case.

In Jersey City, N.J., the FBI said it had withdrawn agents from an abandoned dump reportedly used as a gangland burial site, where earlier reports indicated Hoffa might be buried.

Called Fraser's Hill, the resort includes a golf course and bungalows, each with its own garden.

Employment Security Meeting

Credits Area Economy

"A democracy is where each individual feels his responsibility and where one vote can make the difference..." — Senator Max Sherman

AMARILLO — Emphasizing the availability of work in the Texas Panhandle Senator Max Sherman credited the people of the area for the good economy here during an address Saturday.

He was speaking to the district meeting of the International Association of Personnel in Employment Security at the Holiday Inn 1-40.

"An elected official must not take for granted that the office he holds is his—it belongs to the people," he said.

In discussing democracy he cited an election in Gray County less than six years ago where one vote made the difference and placed Rep. Phil Cates in office.

"It is an exciting time to be alive — there is so much to be done," Sherman said, adding that it also a time when "we need a new sense of dedication to those principles we all believe in."

In an interview Sherman told the Pampa News that he is still considering running for lieutenant governor or attorney general should a vacancy occur.

Amarillo Mayor John Drummond welcomed Texas Employment Commission employees to the city and spoke proudly of the district's low unemployment figures.

Theme for the session, which included members from more than 50 counties extending from Lubbock to Dalhart, Pampa and Borger was "Professionalism Our Key to Success."

Jim Wamsley, personnel safety director for the Kerr McGee Corporation, said professional attitudes are made up of people, leadership and positive thinking.

"People give us the capacity to exist. The people we deal with have a problem. If not we wouldn't have a job," Wamsley said. "Others' problems are our opportunities."

Nathaniel Neal, dean of vocational education at Amarillo College, defined security as "piece of mind."

"It won't always show up in your pay check, but it means that one can meet his obligations, have a roof over his head and food — and be dutifully employed."

He said the Amarillo College vocational students are graduating to assume jobs with "unbelievably high salaries."

Neal said he is writing a book entitled: "Vocational Education — The Stigma Done Got Up and Went."

Other speakers included Bob Gleason, personnel director for the Diamond Shamrock Corporation who discussed "Relations Between Employees and Employers;" Dr. Thomas M. Cannon, psychology professor at West Texas State University, and Gene Parker, director of placement at WTSU.

The dinner speaker was Henry Rothell, administrator of the Texas Employment Commission in Austin, who commended the area highly for its work in keeping unemployment rolls low.

Predicts Slow Down in Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A moderation in food and energy prices and an increase in worker productivity should cause the inflation rate to come down to 6 per cent for the next year, predicts assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said Sunday.

"Six per cent inflation is still unacceptably high, though it would represent continued improvement from the 9 per cent increase this year and the 11 per cent increase in 1974," Pate said Sunday.

But he cautioned that several unknown factors such as the cost of various fuels could upset the forecast.

World petroleum prices were raised an "official" 10 per cent in October. But assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald Parsky said the average rate of increase has been 8 per cent or less.

Unless there are further "official" price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, energy costs to American consumers should hold steady or rise only slightly, Parsky said at a briefing last week.

In addition, the administration's decision to stop collecting a $2 a barrel fee on imported oil should help stabilize prices.

Food prices, another big inflation irritant for consumers, also are expected to moderate in coming months, Pate said in a federal publication, "Commerce Today."

"Since early October ... there has been a sharp break in farm prices," Pate said.

The drop showed up last week as a 1.2 per cent decline in food prices at the wholesale level, large enough to offset a 0.6 per cent increase in industrial commodities and leave wholesale prices unchanged from October to November, the best inflation news since spring.

Pate said improved worker productivity provides "another reason for expecting moderation in prices since productivity gains are an important offset to increases in labor compensation."

Talks Break Off With Dutch Officials, Gunmen

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — Talks have broken off with two bands of gunmen holding at least 50 hostages and prospects appear bleak for a peaceful end to this country's longest terrorist siege, Dutch officials said today.

One group of young South Moluccans demanding independence for the Southeast Asian islands from Indonesia holds some 30 hostages aboard a two-coach train hijacked Tuesday at Beilen, 75 miles northeast of Amsterdam.

Another band stormed the Indonesian consulate here two days later. They hold between 20 and 25 hostages, including four children, on the third floor of the red brick building.

A government source at the crisis center in the capital of the Hague said chances for ending the twin standoffs without bloodshed were "bleak, to say the least."

The Dutch government has mobilized more than 1,000 heavily armed police and troops, including special anti-terrorist squads, around both sites.

Authorities late Sunday moved an armored car with a machinegun to within 50 yards of the consulate but gave no explanation for the action.

Officials said Johannes Manusama, leader of the self-styled South Molucca Republic, failed in 3½ hours of talks over the weekend to convince the gunmen aboard the train to surrender.

Sources at the Hague crisis center said Manusama, an elder of the 35,000-member South Moluccan community in the Netherlands, apparently lacks authority with the young Moluccans.

The terrorists, offspring of South Moluccans who emigrated to The Netherlands following Indonesian independence in 1949, are reported to be about 19.

Manusama did, however, gain the release Sunday of an 84-year-old man and his 82-year-old wife — the oldest hostages on the train.

The two nursing home residents told authorities only "it has been rather cold during the past two or three days."

In Amsterdam, a police spokesman said the Rev. Semol Metiari, another South Moluccan mediator, tried Sunday without success to arrange a meeting with Indonesian political attache Soerjadi Kromomihardjo.

The attache had indicated he would make himself available on an unofficial basis after Ambassador Sutopo Yowono Projonadoki flatly refused to enter the negotiations.

The train hijacking is Holland's longest-running hostage siege, surpassing the 105-hour standoff at Scheveningen prison in Oct. 1974.

That incident ended when marines from the same unit now surrounding the train stormed the prison and rescued 15 prisoners held by four convicts, including a Palestinian guerrilla.

Soccer Fans Kill Player In Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Soccer fans enraged at a referee's decision surged onto the playing field and stabbed to death one of the players.

The national radio said Mordechai Kind, 24, died of wounds inflicted by a kitchen knife in the incident Saturday during the second half of a game between Maccabi Rehovot and Kfar Gvirol. Rehovot led 1-0 at the time.

The radio said fans backing Kfar Gvirol invaded the playing field when the referee called a foul on a Gvirol player. During the melee Kind, who played for Rehovot, was stabbed.

Following the killing, an official for Maccabi Rehovot said the team would disband.

4-H Club To Sponsor Hunter Safety

The Texas Game and Fish Commission will conduct a hunter safety course for 4-H club members who are 12-year-old or older at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and Dec. 16 in the Courthouse Annex.

The 4-H Rifle Club will be host for the two-session event.

Those who complete the course will receive a hunter's safety card. Cost will be $1.

Jaws Victim Philosophical About Injury

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robin Buckley, 25, a diver whose leg was bitten by what he described as a "big white" shark, managed to remain philosophical about the injury.

"I thought my life was about to end ... but we are a part of the food chain," Buckley said from his hospital bed at the Army's Letterman General Hospital. "If something's bigger in the water than you are, it just might eat you."

Buckley was scuba diving in the Pacific near the Farallon Islands off the Golden Gate Bridge Saturday when the shark struck. He was pulled aboard a fishing boat and flown by Coast Guard helicopter to the hospital.

Buckley described the shark "as a big white one."

"I'd rather explain higher gas bills than why you don't have gas."

Your natural gas bill is higher. And, you have every right to know why.

One reason is lower temperatures brought on by winter. The main reason, however, is simply that you are paying more for natural gas. Because we are paying more. This chart shows how much:

— This increase hurts both you and Pioneer. It adds to your bill and to our cost ... a cost for which Pioneer is not entirely compensated. It is passed through without mark-up or additional charges.

Why does gas cost more? Competition ... particularly from petrochemical and other industries. The competition for gas has never been so fierce.

We will have to pay more for gas than in the past. But by working together, and without outside interference, you'll have the gas you need today and in the future.
