SERIAL STORY WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

Yesterday, Dick is swept off his feet by Susie. But he doesn't recognize her. He vows to see her the next morning. Jeff, meanwhile, is a bit jealous.

CHAPTER XXII

"HAVE a good time!" Jeff asked as they headed out Sheridan. The city was comparatively quiet, muffled by the chin in clean, new snow.

"Gorgeous—simply gorgeous." Naive delight sang in her voice. "Too, too divine," is the proper line," he observed dryly.

She laughed. "I wish I were 18, Jeff. I'm 23, that's getting pretty old. How long can I keep this up? Being attractive, I mean," she added, with another little laugh.

"Take a look at Edna," he advised. "She's 20 years ahead of you and still going strong."

"Wasn't she lovely tonight?" Susie adored Edna, admired her poise and quiet charm.

"She's always lovely." Susie slid a hand through his arm. "I love everybody," she said rapidly. "It's wonderful just to be alive. All my dreams have come true, every single one."

Jeff pressed her arm close to his side. "Do I ever enter your dreams, Susie?" Idiotic question. Why had he asked it?

"Oh, yes. All my life I've wanted a brother."

"Humph," was all he said. "I can talk to you about anything. We've been through so much together that I feel at home with you, just so homey and nice," she cuddled closer. From the high crest of her wave she added, as he stopped at the hotel, "I think I'll kiss you good night."

"I can take it," Jeff said, pulling on the brake.

"How like a brother," she giggled.

He made something of the good night kiss. His lips clung to hers, the pressure was a bit fierce before he let her go. It left her breathless and shaken.

GOING to her room she went to bed, not forgetting the night creams, lotions and what not. Dawn lay just beyond the darkness and she reached toward it with eager hands. Another day. What might not happen? And, enchanting thought, what might?

The next morning Susie slept late, rousing now and then to remember that she had met Dick the night before, that she had a tea dance date with him that very day. At 12 she was due in Harker's shoe department, there to show shoppers how really lovely a foot could look in Avalon shoes. Until 12 she was free.

It was almost 10, she was out of her bath, rosy and sweet, hair curling around her face, when the telephone rang. John Harker's pleasant voice was on the line.

Had she slept well? All right this morning? Oh, yes, she felt wonderful, the thrill of delightful memory softening her voice. That was fine. He'd called to tell her that a man waited in his office with a proposition for her. He thought she might be interested. Could she make it by 11:30?

Susie hurried into her clothes, a suede frock with short fur jacket, a pert little pill box of a hat. She took out time to answer Dick's call, breathlessly countering his platitudes with airy chatter. Leaving in a cab for Harker's she seemed to be enveloped in a rose-colored cloud.

Surprisingly enough the memory of Jeff's kiss lay just behind her rapturous thoughts of Dick. Somehow the meeting with Dick had been rounded out, made perfect, by Jeff's kiss. She made no effort to analyze the confused emotions.

UPON arriving at Harker's she hastened to the beauty salon. Each morning Pierre combed her hair, spinning the curls over her finger, advantageously placing his fingertips. Each morning her make-up was scrutinized and corrected. Much depended on the lip gloss, the exact amount of eye shadow, the smoothness of powder. With the pill-box tilted rakishly over one eye, with an unmistakable radiance about her, with her Avalon shoes scarcely touching the floor, she rushed to Mr. Harker's office.

He introduced a suave, keen-eyed man, so lean that his vest hollowed inward. Mr. Jasper, representative of the Princess Cosmetic Company. His nod, upon seeing Susie, was definitely approving.

It seemed that Mr. Jasper had heard her impromptu broadcast at the Pump Room and, wishing to capitalize on her obvious, if temporary, popularity, had dashed to Chicago by plane.

Would Susie consider a spot on their tri-weekly broadcast, sing a song or two, something about lovely ladies, and give a few hints on beauty? The latter, of course would be tied up with the Princess products.

"But I was so stupid last night," she objected. "I couldn't think of a thing to say."

"For an unhearsaid bit you did exceptionally well," he complimented her. "Your voice registered beautifully, both your speaking and singing voice. Naturally we will provide you with scripts." Mr. Jasper placed the tips of his fingers together, watching Susie through narrowed eyes.

"Would I have to leave Chicago?" Susie asked.

"Not at all. Our program is broadcast from Chicago. It would be three nights a week, from 8 to 9:30." He named a salary for her services which took Susie's breath away. Accepting the offer meant that she could remain in the hotel, in her lovely room that had become home in the past three months. It would mean that she would be close to Jeff and his mother and, of course, Dick.

"Can I do it, Mr. Harker?" she asked, childishly doubtful.

"After last night I'd say that you could certainly do it," Mr. Harker encouraged.

SO it was decided. Mr. Jasper drew a contract from his pocket and Susie signed it. An enviable spot on Charm Chatter. Three months of security! She was to go on the air at eight on the first Monday in January. In the meantime, rehearsals. Susie's cloud was rosier than ever as she left the office. With 10 minutes to spare she hurried to the advertising room. Jeff must be told. He'd be glad. She could scarcely wait to tell Jeff.

He dragged her to the employees' lunch room and they discussed the new development while Jeff ate a liverwurst on rye and Susie sipped a glass of orange juice. He was both pleased and amazed.

At last he said, "You can't work all afternoon on a glass of orange juice. It's a long time till dinner."

"I'm too excited to eat. Anyway I'm going tea dancing at five," she told him.

Glancing at her sharply, he asked, "Dick Tremaine?"

"Umm-m," she said happily.

Jeff frowned, munching at his sandwich. Susie slid off the stool. "I must dash," she said.

"Listen—Edna and I want you to spend Christmas with us, nothing very exciting, but we'd like to have you."

"Lovely, Jeff. Thank Edna for me." She stood beside him, one foot poised for flight. "I'd thought of going home, Father is most disapproving. He says nature doesn't like to be fooled with and I'll probably die of anemia within a year."

"I agree with him," Jeff growled. "I never thought you were too fat—sort of miss the Susie I met at the bus, there was so much of her to like."

Susie giggled deliciously and ran for the elevator.

House Orders Beauty Parlor Board Inquiry

AUSTIN, March 1 (AP)—Legislative investigation of the state beauty parlor board was ordered today by the house of representatives.

Rep. Henry Hull of Fort Worth, sponsor of the inquiry, said there was evidence of "highly improper activities in the board" in opposition to bills which would place beauty parlor regulation under the state health department.

The investigation resolution was adopted on an oral vote after a minimum of discussion. It called for immediate appointment of five house members to conduct the investigation.

The committee was instructed to investigate the "type, nature, character, scope, and extent to which the board has been and is involved in propaganda in sponsoring or opposing legislation now under consideration."

Hull said that activities in which the board was claimed to have engaged were "calculated to circumvent the ends of fair and just legislation."

Rep. Robert H. Wood of Marshall stated that the beauty parlor board stayed in session "the whole 365 days" last year.

A resolution by Rep. Major N. Westbrook of Fairdale, declaring the house would not end the session until old age pension financing had been cared for, ran into plenty of trouble. Several members shouted that the old people and other citizens would be better served if the house would quit doing "so much resolving."

U. S. To Recognize Franco Government

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—The United States eventually will recognize General Franco's regime in Spain, officials indicated today, in line with the traditional American policy of recognizing governments achieved through revolution.

This policy dates back to Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson who declared:

"We surely cannot deny to any nation that right where our own government is founded, that everyone may govern itself according to whatever form it pleases, and change these forms at its own will."

The state department followed Jefferson's policy to the letter for over half-a-century. The American Civil War, however, brought in the department a greater reluctance to recognize governments risen from revolution.

The present century recognition generally has been accorded after it was shown the de facto government possessed the machinery of the state, encountered no substantial resistance, and was in position to fulfill all its international obligations and responsibilities.

In the case of Spain, however, some officials say they are uncertain as to how much the Franco government has been formed by the will of the nation, and how much through assistance from foreign nations, such as Italy and Germany.

Riches Found In Strong Box Of Slain Recluse

SAN ANTONIO, March 1 (AP)—Investigation into the mysterious death of John Easterly, 82-year-old wealthy recluse whose charred body was found in his fire-razed home near Theima yesterday, continued today as a coroner took statements from neighbors and friends.

The theory that Easterly, whose only companions on his 450-acre ranch for 15 years had been several dogs, was shot to death before his home was burned, was given a setback today when an autopsy failed to disclose a bullet.

A strong box owned by Easterly and opened on court orders contained the recluse's will and securities worth approximately $200,000, it was learned.

A $1,000 bill was pinned to the will which left Easterly's entire estate to a Fairburias woman and her sister, it was reported. Easterly's automobile was found in a shed. On the seat deputies found an old coin purse containing $379.75, including three $100 bills.

Lewis Names 3 To Confer With Rivals

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Rival leaders of the American Federation of Labor and the C. I. O. representing upwards of 7,000,000 workers, awaited only a signal from President Roosevelt today to begin a joint search for peace in the labor movement.

Either the President or Secretary of Labor Perkins is expected to arrange this week for a preliminary meeting at which the time and place of the formal conferences will be selected.
The conferences, in response to a presidential request to close the breach between organized workers, will be the first between the two groups since October, 1937.
C. I. O. President John L. Lewis acted yesterday to make possible renewed negotiations by appointing three C. I. O. negotiators to meet a similar committee named Saturday by A. F. of L. President William Green.
Lewis picked as the C. I. O. negotiators, himself and his two vice presidents, Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray.
Many labor men and politicians expressed surprise that Lewis designated himself as a negotiator, but associates explained that he decided to participate actively because the A. F. of L. had charged him with wrecking the last peace conference from behind-the-scenes.

Green said he had no knowledge of plans for the conferences, and expected only that the two sides would meet to try "to find a way to close the breach."
The 1937 negotiations lasted two months and ended in failure because the two sides were unable to agree on formula for taking the C. I. O. organization into the A. F. of L.
The C. I. O. leadership is reported to favor blending the two labor factions into a completely new organization with overhauling much of the framework, policies, and leadership of the A. F. of L.
The federation, however, already has served notice it would not negotiate fundamental changes.

The flag-bedecked city of Lima was an eye-opener for the United States' delegates to the Eighth Pan-American Conference.
A panorama of German swastika flags outnumbered the Stars and Stripes five or six to one along the main streets and Italian and Japanese emblems everywhere in evidence supplied a quick and impressive lesson on the penetration of these countries into South America.
But Italians were powerful in Peru in banking, utility, and trade circles when Mussolini was in pinacres. Many of the German shops and families date back to the Germany that was, and some of the enterprises are even run by German Jews who are less than enthusiastic about the Germany that is.
In short, there is nothing sinister in itself in the fact that in the past many German and Italian families have gone to South America to earn their living just as they came to the United States.

Consumption Of Gas Due To Hit Peak In Summer

By ALFRED WALL
TULSA, Okla., March 1 (AP)—Wherever oil men gather these days there is worry that mounts in direct proportion to continuing increases in the nation's stocks of crude petroleum and gasoline.
Advance estimates are in agreement that the summer of 1939, what with two world's fairs to inspire long treks by millions of motorists and with general business showing a revival, should bring an unprecedented peak in consumption.
But what profit will there be in that immense gallonage, refiners were asking themselves, if an uneconomic national gasoline inventory keeps prices down to a point where a refinery barely can break even?
And, chimed in the crude men, how can we have a profitable price if gasoline stays at its present level, and how can we cut back the flow piling up crude stocks above ground?
Today the best estimates were that gasoline inventories totaled $3,075,000 barrels Feb. 11 which was more than 1,000,000 barrels higher than the level set by oil economists as a correct status for March 31. Crude stocks as of Feb. 18 were up again, totaling 27,252,000 barrels, considerably lower than a year ago, but the fact remained that production was increasing steadily, week after week.
The bugaboo of federal control was right up in the fore again.

Charles F. Roeder, Fort Worth, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, touched off with the declaration that unless the industry does something about its problems in a year congress would pass laws to put the business under federal jurisdiction.
There were scattered comment here that perhaps that might not be a bad idea, things being as they are. Most oil men have been opposed bitterly to the idea.
Marketers reported gasoline prices were holding steady with movement fairly good.
Bad weather caused field work to drop off.

The swastika dominated Lima's street flags.

TRANSPLANTING A PATTERN
The sinister part comes when the home country tries, and it does now, to whip them into line for active work in favor of the current style of government at home. Germany is trying to enforce its anti-Jewish regulations on firms owned by Germans born in South America, and even on local firms with whom they deal.
Latin Americans are naturally proud, and independent, and this sort of direct interference is often deeply resented.
In fact, Germany, more aggressive than Italy, and more crude than Japan in its methods of penetration, has definitely lost support in South America since Munich. In the spot in South American minds once occupied by fear of the "Colossus of the North" there suddenly appeared the question "Will there be Czechoslovakians in South America?"
In many countries, Germany has definitely overplayed her hand. The result is that Brazil, Argentina and Chile have outlawed Nazi organizations and schools, and practically everywhere try to enlighten opinion on immigration. Colombia was irritated during the Jewish persecutions by the fact that her minister to Berlin was mauled by police because he took pictures of the deprivations.
Other signs of impatience with Nazi heavy-handedness are to be seen. But the Germans, actuated by necessity, continue to try to make every German-blooded South American a salesman for German goods and German ideas.

THE SO SORRY TECHNIQUE
Japanese penetration is characteristically more polite. Even the strain of the Chinese war has not prevented the Japanese from monopolizing the textile markets of Peru, nor from entertaining with great cordiality a Peruvian mission to promote culture and trade. The Japanese claim racial kinship with the ancient Incas, and besides, their stuff is cheap enough to leap over the tariff wall and still undersell even local textiles, let alone British and American.
Of the three, the German effort is the most strenuous, the most desperate, the most concentrated. But by the same token, it is the most likely to backfire.
The Italian effort is grounded more securely in 2,000,000 Italian settlers in Brazil, and from a fourth to a third of the population of Italian blood in Argentina and Uruguay. Many of them are old settlers, well assimilated in the country of their adoption and hence far less noisy about the "old country."
The Japanese is a trade and cultural penetration grounded in colonies like the cotton regions in Peru and Brazil. Implantations of Japanese cotton farmers are now under way in Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, and possibly later also in Cuba and Haiti.
Much has been made of the German radio invasion, flooding all South America with German broadcasts designed to shut out other foreign stations. It is all true, but the long-range effects remain to be seen. Many cases can be found where Latin who wanted to listen to a certain U. S. broadcast have been blanketed out by the German. Did it ever happen to you? Then you know that such tactics can make enemies as well as friends.
Sales of trick Nazi radio instruments which will receive only German stations have not prevented the American and British makers from getting their share of radio sales. There are not yet enough short-wave radio sets in South America to permit mass appeals or any very broad basis.

RIVALRY TAKES TO THE AIR
American commercial plane lines had things pretty well their own way for years. But now the German Lufthansa will take you almost any place in South America, and a new line has been opened from Peru directly across the jungles to Natal, connecting with German and French trans-Atlantic lines. Thus even to the west coast, Europe is as close in hours as the United States. To the east coast, it is closer.

Holt To Push Move Against Third Term

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Several middle-of-the-road Senators were reported authoritatively today to be trying to avoid a controversy over a third term for President Roosevelt.
They were said to have urged Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) to abandon his proposed resolution to put the Senate on record against a third term. Holt, however, declared he would introduce it later in the session.
Well-informed persons said the group opposing a showdown was headed by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), a leader in the successful battle against the Roosevelt court bill two years ago.
Wheeler and some other Democrats who have opposed various administration measures were described as believing Senate consideration of an anti-third term resolution merely would increase party bitterness and dampen Democratic prospects for 1940. Friends said Vice President Garner shared this view.
One Senator told reporters he had information that Mr. Roosevelt felt little concerned by the Holt proposal, and that he would not urge his capitol lieutenants to oppose it.
Senator Minton (D-Ind.), an administration supporter, said an anti-third term resolution undoubtedly could be defeated, but that it would be useless to consider one. Minton said he was confident the President does not want a third term.
Absence of a direct statement by the President on the third term question is described by Democratic politicians as one of the three factors slowing up party harmony efforts.
The others, they said, are puzzlement over the possibility Mr. Roosevelt is grooming Secretary Hopkins to succeed him, and a strong difference of opinion in Democratic ranks over administration spending policies.
$100,000" to his six daughters, share and share alike, except Mrs. T. F. Rothwell of Beaumont; gave Bouknight, his secretary for many years, $75,000 and Morrow, his attorney for many years, $25,000. Mrs. Rothwell, the oilman's will said, "appears amply provided for."
The five other daughters mentioned in the will are Mrs. Maude Lee Jones, Mrs. Ethel Lee Toombs, Mrs. Maxine Lee Kyle, Mrs. Thelma Lee Evans and Mrs. Marjorie Lee Kerr. Lee, one of the founders of the Yount-Lee Oil Company, reputedly was worth several million dollars.

Will Renounced By Lee's Widow

HOUSTON, March 1 (AP)—Mrs. Essie M. Lee, widow of the late T. P. Lee, Texas Republican leader and wealthy oil man, said through her attorneys today she would take her share of the community property of the huge estate without conforming to the provisions of the capitalist's will.
Lee said in his will he wished his executors—Wright Morrow, F. L. Bouknight and T. F. Rothwell—to administer Mrs. Lee's half of the property, pay her an income in keeping with her station in life and to divide the estate among the couple's children after her death.
In a statement filed with the county clerk, Mrs. Lee said she elected to continue "to own, hold and administer her property in her lifetime, and to otherwise use and dispose of the same as she may desire to do from time to time."
The statement added that Mrs. Lee did not care to have her share of the property administered as provided in the will, and, so far as her property was concerned, she "renounces all provisions of the will."
Lee died on Feb. 4. He left his estate, described as "in excess of

Mayor Kelly Named Mayor Of Chicago

CHICAGO, March 1 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Kelly, backed by a powerful, smooth-working Democratic organization, polled the largest primary election in Chicago's history to win renomination yesterday.
The 62-year-old Democratic leader easily met the challenge of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney who entered the primary with a reputation as a tremendous vote puller.
Mayor Kelly not only received a majority of nearly 300,000 over Courtney but also rolled up more than 50 per cent of all votes cast in both the Republican and Democratic primaries.
His opponent in the April 4 election will be Dwight H. Green, former U. S. district attorney who gained wide notice as the prosecutor of Al Capone and other gangsters.
Green captured the Republican nomination by defeating William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, veteran of Chicago politics who was thrice mayor. Green's victory margin was better than three to one.
The Republican nominee, backed by the regular party organization, is making his first bid for elective office. Twenty years the mayor's junior, Green promised a vigorous campaign to "smash the Kelly-Nash machine." P. A. Nash is Democratic national committeeman.
All primary records were shattered by the outpouring of approximately 1,200,000 voters.

Cardinals Pray For Guidance Of The Holy Ghost

VATICAN CITY, March 1 (AP)—Cardinals about to elect a new Pope prayed today for guidance of the Holy Ghost, following celebration of Mass in the small Pauline Chapel near the Sistine Chapel where opening ceremonies of the Papal Conclave were to be held this afternoon. Cardinal Granito Pignatelli De Belmonte, elderly dean of the Sacred College, said the mass.
The full college of 62 cardinals will start balloting tomorrow to elect a successor to Pops Pius XI. Today was devoted to ceremonial proceedings.
Among the 62 were Cardinal Leine of Rio De Janeiro and Copello of Buenos Aires who arrived by special train this morning from Naples. They were the first from South America ever to come to a conclave.
The United States cardinals to participate are O'Connell of Boston, Mundelein of Chicago and Dougherty of Philadelphia.
More than a half dozen cardinals were considered by Italians to be among the "papabili" or likely candidates for the pontificate.
Elio Cardinal Dalla Costa, Archbishop of Florence, headed most lists but Luigi Cardinal Maglione, former Papal Nuncio in Paris, was mentioned prominently in Vatican speculations.
