Truck accident leaves one dead

By GREG HARDIN
Pampa News Staff
MCLEAN — One man was killed and two others seriously injured this morning when two semi-trailer trucks collided head-on 16 miles west of here. Authorities were withholding names of all the victims in the collision pending notification of next of kin. Authorities said one truck was eastbound on a section of interstate currently under construction when it apparently crossed the center line, striking the other truck — which was westbound — head-on. Officials said the driver of the eastbound vehicle was killed instantly in the accident and the two occupants of the westbound vehicle were seriously injured when their truck exploded and caught fire after the mishap. Authorities from Groom, McLean and the Department of Public Safety responded to the accident that was first reported by Citizens Band radio. "We wouldn't have known about the accident if it hadn't been for a guy and his CB," one officer said. "It was really a life saver for the two guys that were injured." Department of Public Safety Trooper R. C. Parker, investigating officer, said the man killed in the accident had been temporarily identified but no positive identification had been made on any of the men. "We are still looking for the deceased's wallet," Parker said. A witness to the accident told authorities the driver of the eastbound vehicle had been back and forth across the center line of the roadway several times before the accident occurred. "It looks like the guy that was killed was at fault here," Parker said. "According to what we know now he had been crossing the line before and apparently crossed the line and collided with the other truck." The McLean Justice of the Peace was called to the scene by DPS officials and pronounced the driver of the eastbound truck dead at the scene. The injured men were transported to McLean Hospital for emergency treatment and were to be transported to an Amarillo hospital as soon as possible. Oil and gas covered the roadway after the accident. The McLean Fire Department was called to fight the small blaze that erupted after the collision and stood by to wash down the roadway after the wreckage was cleared away. Department of Highway and Public Transportation employees working on Interstate 40 were called into service to help clear the wreckage of the vehicles that was scattered over 500 yards of the roadway.

Animal doctors get assistants

Medical doctors have nurses — nowadays men as well as women. And since the early 1970s veterinarians have had nurses of a kind as well, though they're referred to as veterinary technicians or "vet techs." For those who like to work with animals but — like Dwight Dunwoody who think "eight years of school (veterinary) are too much... not worth the trouble." — might consider a career as a veterinary technician. Dunwoody started his three-month "internship" at the Hendrick Animal Clinic Tuesday, under the supervision of veterinarian Ron Hendrick. A native of North Dakota, he has recently completed two academic years at a private school in Thermopolis, Wyoming. Veterinary schools are notoriously difficult to get into. According to Hendrick there are about 1,000 applications for every 133 available seats each year. "The number of vet schools averages out to about one per state," Hendrick said. "They can usually consider only 'A' students, and then only one out of nine can get in." But the vet tech trade is rarely a second choice for once aspiring vets. It's the first choice of those looking for a productive career without the eight long years of pre-med and medical school, according to Andy Hicks, Dean of Frank Phillips College in Borger.

Frank Phillips College has been offering a two year vet tech program — called Animal Health Technology — since 1974. The program was fully accredited last year and now has an enrollment of 12 students. "This is a very special program," Hicks said. "So we have a limited enrollment." The program has a full time faculty member, Dr. Jock Lee, a Fritch veterinarian. Area veterinarians sometimes assist with instruction. Hicks said a few students have considered going on to complete pre-med and apply for veterinary school after "getting a taste of it" in the Animal Health Technology Program. "The two-year program is not as in-depth as veterinary training, and it's not pre-vet training," said Dr. Hendrick. "The student is trained to assist to the vet. He can't diagnose or do primary surgery. But he can do many other things which take skill and training." Hendrick said veterinary medicine has become more sophisticated along with medical science in general. He said veterinarians "used to fly by the seat of their pants" in diagnosing animal illness. But more advanced methods — such as the types of blood tests given to humans — enable the animal doctor to diagnose illness quickly and more accurately. "A human patient can come in and say, 'Look, doctor, I hurt here,' and offer the physician clues," Hendrick said. "Of course, our patients can't do that." The doctor said more advanced methods of taking blood tests and samples had enabled him to diagnose a kidney ailment in a large German more quickly. "The animal was not eating. He was drinking more water than usual. He seemed always tired. We were able to provide him immediately with the fluids and antibiotics needed to deal with what we discovered through the blood tests." The vet techs are qualified to interpret laboratory results and help conduct the tests. Hendrick said Hendrick said people are generally showing more concern for their pets these days. "Twenty years ago a dog was a dog. He got sick, went off and died. Now people see them more as part of the family," he said. One of the principal "extra care" items now in the veterinarian's bag of tools is an ultrasonic dental machine for the care and cleaning of animal teeth. Though it may seem a luxury, Hendrick says a dog's teeth should be cleaned from once a year to every several years. Every veterinarian has to be a custodian of sorts, but Hendrick says, "You have to be a detective. You're always looking for clues. Always having to ask different questions."

VETERINARY TECHNICIAN Dwight Dunwoody measures intravenous fluids into "Duke," a dog recovering from a kidney ailment. Veterinary technicians are part of a growing trend in animal medical care. Like nurses in human medical care, "vet techs" can assume a wide range of auxiliary medical duties in aiding animal doctors. See page 3 for a related story on the upcoming Rabies Clinic Week.

Pre-school tea set

William B. Travis pre-school children and their parents will have a PTA sponsored tea at 7 Thursday night at the elementary school.

Children who will be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1 and will be attending Travis are asked to come. Students who will be new to the school are also invited.

Accident report

During April there were 59 traffic accidents, the same number that occurred in April 1978, according to police. This compares to 61 accidents in March. Injuries were up in April over last year. Thirteen people were injured in nine accidents, compared to nine persons injured in six accidents in April 1978. The most common area for accidents was between the 100 and the 2100 blocks of N. Hobart Street. Twenty percent of all accidents occurred on Friday. The four main contributing factors for traffic accidents in April were failure to yield right-of-way, following too closely, unsafe lane usage and driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Choir to St. Louis

Two buses filled with members of the Pampa High School Concert Choir left the city limits this morning en route to St. Louis, Mo., for choral competition Saturday morning. The singers will migrate from Topeka, Kan., where they will sleep tonight, to Kansas City to perform for Schagle High School there. After touring St. Louis and competing in the contest, the choir will regroup on the buses Saturday evening to begin the journey home. The choir is expected to return to Pampa about 3 Sunday afternoon.

SALT II agreement debated in Amarillo

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

AMARILLO — The pros and cons of the proposed Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) between the U.S. and the Soviet Union were debated Tuesday at Amarillo College by experts from the leading private groups supporting and opposing the treaty.

The program, which also featured speakers from the U.S. State Department, was sponsored by a number of organizations including the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, West Texas State University, the Amarillo Council on International Affairs and the State Department.

"It is clear that without the treaty our problems with the Soviets would be far worse," said Dr. Herbert Scoville, a representative of Americans for SALT, the principal private organization in the U.S. supporting the treaty. "We are much better off with the treaty than without it." "If my opinion we should not only not ratify this treaty, but we should not discuss a future treaty until the Soviets make a meaningful step toward nuclear reduction," said Major General J. Milnor

Roberts of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength, a conservative group of politicians, private citizens and organizations.

Scoville, a former CIA deputy director for research who also served in the Defense Department, defended the technical aspects of SALT II and U.S. methods of verifying Soviet compliance with the treaty.

"At last we are turning the arms race around and reducing it," Scoville said. "Not by much, but it is the overall direction that counts."

The nearly completed treaty would allow a maximum of 2,250 strategic nuclear delivery systems — land-based intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) launchers, submarines and long-range bombers — for each country. Scoville pointed out. The Soviet Union now has more than 2,500 delivery systems, he said, while the U.S. has about 2,100.

"Within the next two years the Soviets will have to scrap some missiles and bombers, while the U.S. won't have to," Scoville said. Contrary to the claims of SALT opponents, he added, many of the Soviet systems that would be discarded are fairly modern.

The treaty establishes a limit of 1,320 multiple independently targetable warhead (MIRV) delivery systems, and a total of 1,200 missiles carrying MIRVs. Scoville said the U.S. has about 1,050 MIRV systems, while the Soviets have 5-600.

"We would like to keep the numbers lower, but we really lost the ability to limit MIRVs with SALT I," he said. "This agreement at least does something toward putting an upper cap on it."

"Clearly the treaty improves the problem of our ICBM vulnerability, but it doesn't solve the problem itself."

Scoville said he wishes some treaty provisions were tighter, but added "If we're really going to stop it (the arms race), we'll have to do it with SALT III."

"Turning to compliance with the treaty, he said "We cannot rely on trusting the Soviet Union in any matter such as this. We have to rely on our verification methods."

Based on his independent analysis and CIA experience, he is convinced the U.S. can effectively verify treaty compliance despite the recent loss of two U.S. bases in Iran. Scoville said. Verification methods include photo satellites, satellites and ground bases with electronic listening devices, and ships and Pacific bases that can monitor Soviet long-range missile re-entries. Scoville said the intelligence ships and bases "can not only count but weigh" the Soviet missiles.

"The treaty legalizes verification and makes Soviet interference or concealment of information a violation," Scoville said. No penalties for violations are contained in the treaty. If the U.S. decides the Soviets are violating SALT II, "it is up to us to decide whatever measures we want to take to deal with it," he said.

Asked why the Soviet Union is interested in a treaty that would require it to destroy some of its missiles, Scoville replied "They basically want to establish a recognized position of equivalency with the U.S." The Soviets also want to stop the arms race because of the adverse effect of massive military spending on their economy, he said.

Milnor, executive director of the U.S. Reserve Officers' Association, spoke on problems with the SALT treaty and took issue with Scoville on verification procedures. He cited former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird as claiming the Soviets cheated on the SALT I treaty, and said "there is nothing you can do" about future Soviet violations of SALT II.

"It is simply not possible to reveal any cheating by the U.S.S.R. on a scale large enough to threaten the U.S. militarily," Milnor said. "I think it's suffice to say that in a society run like the Soviet Union, anything they decide is in their interest they will do, despite what it says on a piece of paper."

"The American people are being deluded and misled about SALT II," he said.

"What is the single greatest danger from the ratification of the proposed SALT II treaty?" Milnor asked the audience. "In my judgement, it is giving the American people the delusion that this country will be adequately defended and we have no need to worry."

"There is a danger that in the early 1980s the Soviets will have the ability to destroy our entire ICBM system in one strike."

The Soviet Backfire bomber and SS-20 missile are not regulated under SALT II because the Carter Administration says those weapons would not be used against the U.S., he noted.

"The SS-20 is not in the treaty because it's just a mid-range missile that will be used to blow up Western Europe," Milnor said. "The fact is the SS-20 is a real threat to the U.S., the Backfire bomber is a real threat to the U.S., and neither one is included in the SALT proposal."

The major general criticized Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber, which he said would have been the American answer to the Backfire.

"Carter said the same thing could be accomplished with the cruise missile," Milnor said. "So what's happened? He's delayed development of the cruise missile."

He described the current Soviet arms build-up as "ominous" and said "If they're afraid of the Chinese, why are they building up their naval force? I hadn't heard the Chinese are a naval power."

Milnor said the Soviets "have spent billions of rubles on civil defense. The American people are far more vulnerable" to nuclear war.

"Do the Soviets regard nuclear war as unthinkable?" he asked. "I don't believe so. They don't want it — they're not irrational. But they have an irresistibly urge to control the world, and don't you forget it."

Shooting victim saving news clips for daughter

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Isabel Hernandez has no idea how close she came to a sniper's bullet. But her mother, wounded in the upper right thigh Friday in the Fiesta parade attack, is saving the newspaper clippings and someday she'll show her newborn daughter.

Irene Hernandez, 20, gave birth to the healthy, nine-pound girl early Tuesday morning — less than four days after the pregnant woman crumpled to a downtown street, wounded by a heavily armed sniper firing wildly into the thousands of parade spectators.

Two spectators were killed and at least 50 were injured, most by gunshots. The sniper, 64-year-old Ira Attebery, killed himself after a furious exchange of gunfire with police.

Mrs. Hernandez was nearly a week overdue on the day of the parade and her 20-year-old husband, Armando, remembers seeing her near parade starting point at the corner of Broadway and Grayson to be near their car.

Across the intersection, Attebery had parked his green-and-white motor home in a tire store parking lot. Inside the camper he had stockpiled three shotguns, eight rifles, four pistols and hundreds of rounds of ammunition.

Then the shooting started. Six police officers only a few feet away from the Hernandezes were the first to be hit.

"I didn't realize at first what was happening," said Hernandez. "I thought they (the shots) were fireworks. Then we saw the cop go down."

"I didn't want my wife or the baby hurt. She couldn't run because of her condition, so I put her down on the road and got on top of her and covered her," he added.

"I was hoping he would take two or three shots and run. I thought maybe he was on the roof or something," he continued. "Then one shot almost hit us, so I pulled her up and tried to run for cover. That's when a shot hit her in the leg."

Rabies Clinic Week coming

Local animal clinics will be participating May 5-12 in the annual Rabies Clinic Week. Pet owners will be offered full vaccinations for dogs and cats at one dollar less than the usual fee.

The cost will be $6. The vaccination immunizes dogs and cats against rabies, distemper, hepatitis, leptospirosis, and parainfluenza. Dr. Ron Hendrick said that the combination of immunizations for cats is slightly different than that for dogs.

Although some vaccines on the market are good for three years, Hendrick said, Texas law requires yearly immunization of animals. According to the Texas Department of Health, the incidence of rabies has increased statewide over the past few years, with more cases reported in 1978 (564) than in any year since 1961.

Office hours for local veterinary hospitals during the Rabies Clinic Week are: Dr. M.W. Horne: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Royse Animal Hospital: 9 a.m.-12 noon and 1-30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Hendrick Animal Hospital: 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

If possible, pet owners should call in advance for an appointment. Hungary declared independence from the Austrian Empire in 1849 and Lajos Kossuth became president. But the Austrians, aided by the Russians, crushed the revolution in August. Kossuth resigned and fled to exile in England and later to Italy, where he died in 1894.

Rock-A-Thon this weekend

Squeaking along in rocking chairs Friday and Saturday, about 27 girls of the Pampa High School Office Education Association (OEA) will be participating in a Rock-A-Thon to raise money for the Olympics of special education children.

"The minimum donation is 25 cents an hour," said Copeland. "and some sponsors have already pledged five dollars an hour." Others have promised $10-15 for the entire 24 hour period, she added.

police report

Victor Belknap of 2000 Hamilton reported a vandal chipped his car window with a BB gun, broke off the side mirror and wrote on the driver's side of the car.

Police responded to 17 calls in a 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

No fires were reported in the 24-hour period ending at eight this morning.

Policeman killed in explosion

BESSEMER, Ala. (AP) — An explosion thought to be caused by a bomb rocked an office at the City Hall of this Birmingham suburb today, killing a police lieutenant and injuring the police commissioner and the mayor's executive secretary, authorities said.

Police Lt. John Knight said Lt. Clifford T. Hill was killed in the blast, which occurred in the office of Police Commissioner Max Williams.

Williams was reported critically injured. Gene Lint, Mayor Ed Porter's secretary, was listed in fair condition. The blast shook the building and scattered glass across a street.

Knight said Williams apparently was meeting with the other two men when the explosion came.

Knight, asked if the blast could have been natural gas, said it "smelled just like" a bomb.

The explosion caused major damage to the offices of the commissioner and the mayor and to other parts of the fourth floor of City Hall.

Oil heiress to supply alimony

NEW YORK (AP) — An oil heiress whose husband never held a steady job during their 36-year marriage has agreed to pay him $1,800 a month alimony as part of their divorce settlement.

The heiress, Elizabeth Phillips Irwin, 57, will pay Henry Durand Irwin the money under the settlement approved Tuesday by Justice Felice Shea in New York Supreme Court. Mrs. Irwin's attorney, Vivian Gentleman, said the alimony was agreed to because Irwin "has no career of his own and no savings."

Irwin, 62, also won half the proceeds from sale of the couple's 30-acre Southbury, Conn., estate, estimated to be worth $250,000.

Mrs. Irwin is the only granddaughter of the late Frank Phillips, founder of the Phillips Petroleum Co. Her fortune has been estimated at $40 million.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Scattered thunderstorms, some possibly severe, were forecast for the northern half of Texas today after thunderstorms accompanied by high winds, large hail and heavy rain roared across northern and eastern sections of the state during the night.

Numerous severe thunderstorm warnings and some flash flood warnings were issued during the night. Street flooding was reported at Dallas and Denton during the night and large hail fell at Arlington, Carrollton and at Bartonville in Denton County.

The heavy thunderstorms dumped as much as four inches of rainfall in northwest sections of Dallas County and in Collin County.

The Trinity River overflowed between Body in Wise County and Eagle Mountain Lake, stranding some motorists on FM 30.

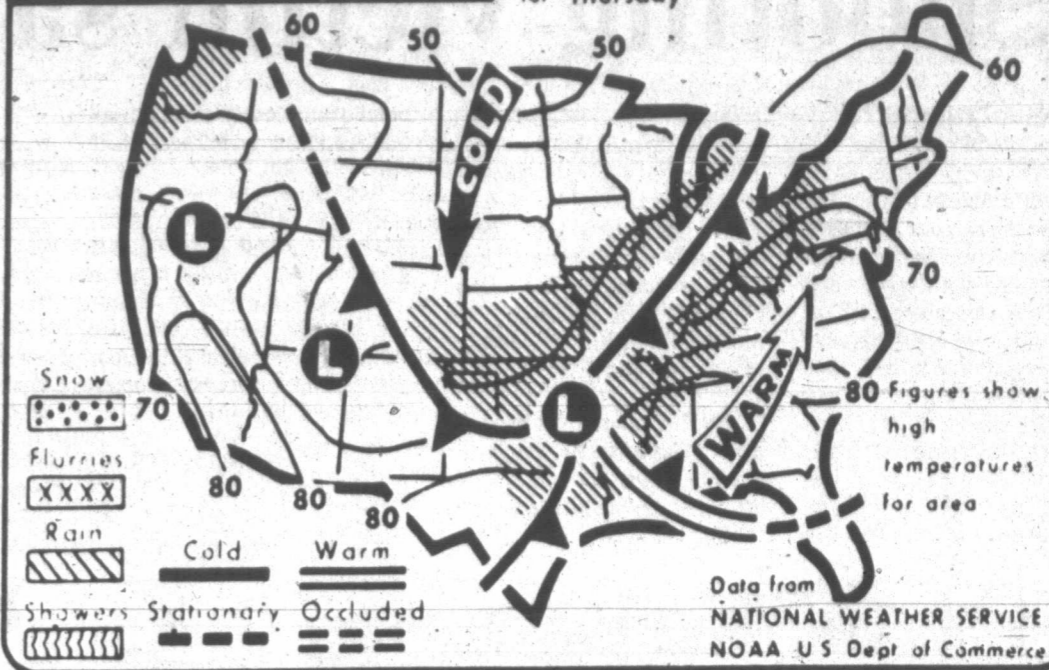

Underpasses were flooded on the Central Expressway in Dallas, causing some cars to stall, blocking traffic at times early today.

A few thunderstorms were reported in East Texas early today and a severe thunderstorm warning was issued for an area near Lufkin during the pre-dawn hours.

Forecasts called for developing thunderstorm activity over the northern half of the state late today.

FORECAST

THE WEATHER FORECAST for Thursday predicts an area of rain in parts of Washington and Oregon and a large area of rain from parts of the Southwest to the Great Lakes region.

House bill would make auto insurance mandatory

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Every Texas motorist would have to buy automobile liability insurance under a bill that gained preliminary House approval Tuesday.

A 125-9 vote advanced the bill, which still needs the formality of a final vote to send it to the Senate.

Some 30 percent of all the motor vehicles in Texas lack insurance to pay for injuries, deaths and property damage inflicted on other people.

Minimum liability coverage would be $5,000 for property damage and up to $20,000 for injuries in any one accident.

The House bill would fine a driver $50 to $200 the first time he or she is caught without insurance and $200 to $1,000 for subsequent offenses.

When a Texan buys or renews an auto policy, the insurance company would give him or her a special windshield sticker. Cars without current stickers certifying coverage could not receive their annual vehicle inspection.

And a car without an inspection sticker can't be driven legally on Texas highways.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, sponsor of the bill, said the sticker requirement — which he opposed when it first came up last week — would make it "a stronger bill in the eyes of the Senate."

He easily mustered a 112-26 vote to table an amendment by Rep. Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, that would have required proof of insurance in order to register a car.

The amendment — identical to the bill Green first introduced — would have required insurance companies to issue identity cards to policyholders. It also would have allowed the state to make random checks with insurance companies to assure policies still were in force.

Insurance agent organizations oppose the bill, Leonard said. "but my insurance agent tells me he deals with too many people who have been hit by uninsured motorists to oppose this bill."

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, obtained a

120-15 vote for an amendment allowing police to enforce the mandatory insurance law, if passed, on foreign vehicles that enter Texas.

He said cars from Mexico are "causing a big part of the problem" of injuries and property damage inflicted by uninsured motorists.

"In my opinion, trade will not be hindered... If you have the money to trade, you should be able to provide proof of financial responsibility," Coleman said.

Under the bill, a motorist who proves to the Department of Public Safety that he or she could pay for up to $25,000 in injuries and damage could get a sticker and still drive without insurance.

Miami council handles hogs, fire truck cost

MIAMI — The Miami City Council met in special session Monday night to discuss two items that required immediate action by the city fathers.

City officials discussed allowing hogs to be raised within the city limits of Miami and the possibility of buying a new fire truck for the city.

Charles Beebe made a motion to the board requesting the city attorney to look at the law that allows hogs to be raised within the city limits.

"We have a man that wants to begin a hog farm in the city limits of Miami," one official said. "I don't think that we can allow an operation of this nature to get underway where there are families living."

Beebe said the council needed to act on the ordinance and suggested a rewriting of the ordinance.

In the second action taken during the special session, Merle Tennant made a motion for the city apply to the Farm Home Administration for a grant of $40,000 to cover the cost of purchasing a new fire truck.

City officials feel if a new truck is not purchased within the near future, the city will fail to pass the requirements set down by insurance companies.

If the city fails to provide ample fire protection to its residents, insurance rates will climb.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a very respectable neighborhood and, although our children are still toddlers, we are deeply concerned about the rise of juvenile delinquency among youngsters from "better" homes.

All around us, minors—some as young as 10—have been convicted of violent crimes. They include armed robbery, beating up the elderly and handicapped, knifing and even rape.

Abby, these kids have never known hunger, poverty or discrimination. They come from respectable homes and have gone to the best schools. Yet more and more children from the so-called privileged class are turning to crime and violence.

Why?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Basically, it's lack of discipline. (Discipline, meaning "to teach"—not necessarily "to punish.")

For a better understanding of this growing social problem, get the May issue of PARENTS' magazine and read "Bad Kids," by Lori N. Andrews, a Chicago lawyer. It will open your eyes!

She says, "Unfortunately, only after a child has committed a violent crime are the roots of his behavior explored. A peek inside the middle-class home will reveal a child who lives with two adults—but has no real parents."

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who loves to play gin rummy. When HE wins he says it's 90 percent skill and 10 percent luck. When the other fellow wins he says it's 90 percent luck and 10 percent skill.

When he loses he always wants to play one more hand—double or nothing. I get uptight and usually lose that hand. How can I get out of going along with his double-or-nothing challenge without looking like a poor sport?

HY

DEAR HY: Tell him you can't afford to play for such high stakes.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-month-old nephew whose feet turn outward when he walks. So severely, in fact, that the child walks sideways. My sister knows it and keeps talking about asking her pediatrician to put the child in corrective shoes. But that's as far as it goes.

I've mentioned this to her several times. I don't want to bring it up again for fear she'll think I'm putting my nose where it doesn't belong.

Please don't say that if my sister wants her child to grow up with turned-out feet, it's her business, because it isn't my sister who will have to stumble through life on deformed feet. I see her pediatrician quite often. Would it be unethical of me to say something to him about it?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You may not have all the facts, but on the chance that your sister is either unable or unwilling to deal with this problem, mention it to the doctor.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 182 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I seem to have the same trouble as the man I heard about on your TV show. It began when I was first pregnant. I seemed to notice having heartburn and I felt as though I was ruptured around my diaphragm where it joins the stomach. The only way I could get some relief was to straighten my arms up and stretch. Then something would go back in place but I still get lots of heartburn. Sometimes I'm afraid to eat. I feel as if there is a hole and it's very disturbing. I'd like to learn more about this. Why is a hiatal hernia operation so risky? I'm 64 years old and can't seem to lose weight. I'm 167 pounds and am 5 feet 3. Can you help me?

DEAR READER — It's important to know why you have heartburn before you start treating it. This pain or burning in the pit of the stomach or just under the breast bone can be associated with irritation of the lower part of the esophagus, usually from the acid digestive juices leaking out of the stomach into the lower esophagus.

The leak occurs because of a faulty closure mechanism where the esophagus and stomach join. This can be associated with a hiatal hernia. Such hernias do commonly occur in women during pregnancy. The increased pressure inside the abdomen forces the stomach through the normal hole in the diaphragm. The hole is stretched.

As a result, part of the stomach that joins the esophagus where it comes through the diaphragm may slide through the enlarged hole or herniate.

It follows that pressure inside the abdomen is a bad thing for anyone who has a hiatal hernia. That pressure can be caused from the accumulation of fat inside the abdomen. Because of your weight problem this could well be a contributing factor to your recurrent heartburn.

Also you don't want to wear anything tight or constricting around the abdomen. This outside pressure will squeeze part of the stomach and tend to push it through any enlarged hole in the diaphragm.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you more specific information on things you can do to help control such problems.

I'd like to say again that you'll need to know for sure that you do have a hiatal hernia before you start treating yourself. That means you should see your doctor and have a medical examination.

To give you some help with your weight control program, I am also sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. (Other readers can order it for 50 cents, too, from the above address.)

There are two problems with an operation for hiatal hernia. The first is that they don't always relieve the symptoms. Correcting the hernia doesn't necessarily mean that you correct the leaky valve problem. In fact, a person can have the leaky valve problem with reflux into the lower esophagus without having a hiatal hernia at all.

The other problem is the risk of a major operation. Now big a risk that is often depends on the overall medical status of the individual.

His garden grows in the kitchen

Arno Schmidt, the award-winning executive chef of New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, avoids the cost and trouble of finding fresh herbs in the winter. A self-replenishing supply sprouts in his main kitchen.

A hydroponic system, which does not require soil, coaches fresh dill, tarragon, rosemary, marjoram, basil, sage, chervil, savory, thyme and oregano to sprout in Schmidt's water-based garden.

And how does his garden grow? Almost by itself, it seems. Six units of 16-inch by 24-inch tubs, stacked vertically in modules of two and exposed to fluorescent light, are exploding with the green spices.

Seeds are planted in a layer of shale, which rides over 4 inches of nutrient-loaded water.

Because there is no soil, the plants need only sparse roots to drink from the treated water. All growth is devoted to the leafy herb.

The Waldorf is the first hotel in the United States to harvest fresh herbs daily for its cuisine.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Have you a solution for whitening a baby shawl, knitted with baby wool, that has turned yellow? — JEAN

DEAR JEAN — Anything you try must first be tested because so-called baby wool may not be all wool but combined with synthetics. Cream of tartar in water may be used for soaking until white and then wash as usual. Commercial color remover (found with dyes in the stores) also is good for removing a yellow look. Read directions carefully and follow directions to the letter. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — An easy and greaseless way to remove oil from a can of tuna fish is to simply invert the opened can (lid inside the can) over a small plastic glass in the sink. Push down on the inverted can and up on the lid inside and watch the packing liquid go down the drain instead of on you. There is no danger of cutting your hand on the lid either. — DOROTHY

by bernice bode osol

May 3, 1979

Several nice things that you would need to have, but really don't need, are likely to come your way this coming year. They'll just be the frosting on the cake.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you feel backed into a corner today, you'll have only yourself to blame. Look beneath the surface of things and you'll find your opportunities. Find out more about yourself by sending for your new Astro-Graph Letter that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) People are trying to be friendly because they really like you, but unless you get out of your doldrums you won't even recognize it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Being just your natural, charming self is what impresses those you're trying to influence today. Don't think you have to spend flamboyantly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make an effort to treat all you meet equally today, or you'll make the wrong impression and could be labeled a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It won't be enough to feel kindly toward another if you are to be of some help. Show your intentions with a visual demonstration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you will be most cordial and charming to those you're involved with today, the truth is that crowds wear your nerves to a frazzle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If at all possible, work at home today. In your intensity to get things done, it'll appear that others are getting in your way and you won't be too pleasant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your popularity continues to be at a high point again today. However, if you ignore your work for the sake of a good time, you'll have to pay the consequences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although your heart is in the right place and you're trying to be helpful, in reality you may be too wasteful with yours or the other person's resources.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If a family spat should arise today, try using your quick wit to avert a major squabble. You could have your kin chuckling instead of quarreling.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you can't keep your mind on what you're suppose to be doing today, walk away from it. You'll actually money because, otherwise, mistakes are likely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're in an extremely sociable mood today and will look for ways to break your routine. However, you may spend a lot more than you should in the attempt.

Seattle races past Suns

By TONY BAKER
AP Sports Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Running with the basketball is what the Phoenix Suns do best.
On Tuesday night, however, the Suns found themselves romping up and down the court not only without the ball, but on the heels of the Seattle players who had it.
When the opening game of the National Basketball Association's Western Conference championship series was over, the Sonics had beaten the Suns at their own game, running Phoenix off the Coliseum court 108-93.
It was a tenacious Seattle defense, led by the two Johnsons, Dennis and John, and control of the boards that denied Phoenix the lightning quick pace it prefers.

John Johnson harassed Walter Davis and limited the smooth shooting 6-foot-6 forward to just 13 points, nine below his team-leading playoff average.
Dennis Johnson played guard Paul Westphal belly-to-belly and the Suns' leading overall scorer wasn't a factor in the end, either. Westphal had 13 points on 5-of-13 shooting.
"I can't stop Paul every night," said Johnson, named earlier in the week to the NBA's all-defensive team. "My main objective isn't to stop Paul, it's to stop Phoenix."
Seattle's objective is to stop the Suns in Game 2 of the best-of-seven series Friday night in the Kingdom.

"One game don't make a series," reasoned John Johnson, who dished out a game-high nine assists, pulled down eight rebounds and scored seven points. "I'm sure they'll come much better prepared and play better Friday."
Phoenix Coach John MacLeod conceded the game was lost on the boards, where Seattle outrebounded the Suns 56-45, including a 20-12 edge on the offensive end.
"You can't let anyone have a lot of second shots," MacLeod said. "They are physical and go to the boards well. They got a lot of offensive boards. They're just strong."

He said Davis and Westphal simply had poor games.
"Everything's fine with Walter. He didn't have a particularly good game, but he isn't the only one," MacLeod said. "Paul may have pushed his shots a little bit. He's a much better shot than that."
"I think we'll bounce back."
Lonnie Shelton scored 15 points and Gus Williams added 14 as Seattle raced to a 52-44 first-half lead. Jack Sikma's 10 third-period points broke the game open and Williams pumped in 11 of his game-high 27 points in the fourth quarter as the Sonics won going away before a sellout crowd of 14,098.

Major League roundup

Phil Niekro notches 200th win

By The Associated Press
A lot of Phil Niekro's knucklers have danced around home plate since he signed his first professional baseball contract in 1959. Ah, yes, he remembers it well — especially his first contract.
"My biggest thrill was when I first signed at the age of 19," says the ace right-hander of the Atlanta Braves.
Niekro has played major league ball extremely well and Tuesday night hit the lofty 200-victory plateau with a 5-2 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.
Giants 7, Phillies 0
Terry Whitfield hit an inside-the-park home run, singled and drove in three runs, while Bob Knepper pitched a five-hitter to lead San Francisco over Philadelphia.
Cardinals 7, Astros 6
Pinch-hitter Roger Freed slugged a bases-loaded home run with two out in the bottom of the 11th inning, powering St. Louis over Houston. The dramatic hit wiped out a three-run rally by Houston in the top of the 11th that had given the Astros a 6-3 lead.
Cubs 5, Cardinals 1
Bill Buckner smashed home runs his first two times at bat and Ivan DeJesus drove in two runs with a second-inning single as Chicago beat Cincinnati.

Padres 10, Mets 5
Gene Tenace and Barry Evans drove in two runs apiece with a pair of bases-loaded singles, leading San Diego over New York.
Expos 7, Dodgers 3
Run-scoring singles by Rodney Scott and Warren Cromartie in the fifth inning helped Montreal beat Los Angeles for the Expos' seventh straight victory. The rally gave the Expos a 4-2 lead and eventually proved to be their winning runs.
Twins 3, Blue Jays 2
Jerry Kosman notched his fifth consecutive victory with seventh-inning help from Mike Marshall Tuesday night as the Twins nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 and climbed into first place in the American League West.
Yankees 12, Angels 8
Bucky Dent, Juan Beniquez, Thurman Munson, Lou Piniella and Graig Nettles delivered run-scoring singles with two out in the 11th inning as the Yankees snapped a five-game losing streak.
Orioles 3, Mariners 1
Ken Singleton homered in the first inning and Rich Dauer and Eddie Murray drilled RBI singles in the sixth as the streaking Orioles posted their 12th victory in the last 13 games behind six-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez.

A's 7, Red Sox 5

Mahaffey tries for comeback

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — John Mahaffey will be playing in pain this week when he tries a comeback in the $300,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament. "Sure it hurts, it hurts like hell," the current PGA national champion said of a damaged left hand that has kept him out of action for the last three months. "But I'm going to play this week even if I shoot 100. "I'm just going to tough it out. I'll play for a week or so and see what happens. I'm sick and tired of sitting at home."

Mahaffey won the Ben Hogan award last year for his dramatic comeback from injuries. He won the PGA, won again the following week, capped off the season with a victory in the World Cup, then opened the 1979 campaign with a triumph in the first tournament of the year, the Bob Hope.

A couple of weeks later, however, he injured the hand coming out of a bunker in the Bing Crosby tournament and hasn't played since. He attempted a comeback—two weeks ago in the Tournament of Champions, tried a practice round at La Costa and found the hand was still too painful.

After hitting a shot from the practice range at the Woodlands Country Club Tuesday, Mahaffey gasped and bent over in pain.

Unable to practice for months, his hands have become soft. Despite the use of a golf glove, it was only a matter of minutes before he'd developed a bleeding blister on the palm of the left hand. Mahaffey taped a bandage across it and continued practice.

"I've just got to tough it out," he said again. "It's either that or put it in a cast for 6-8 weeks and I don't want to do that."

While Mahaffey, a product of the University of Houston and a local resident, will draw attention from a big gallery of friends and family, the favorite's role is shared by Bruce Lietzke and Lee Trevino.

two of the four men who tied for second behind Hubert Green last week in the New Orleans Open.

It was the second consecutive week Lietzke had finished as a runner-up. "I'm a little disappointed," the cross-handed putter said. "But if you keep on putting yourself in position to win, eventually it's going to happen."

Trevino obviously is at the top of his game. He played the entire 72 holes last week without a bogey. "I'm playing very, very well right now," he said.

NFL draft starts today

By GARY MYERS
AP Sports Writer

Basically, there are two positions that it's hardest for a rookie to start at—quarterback and offensive line," says Ray Perkins, himself a rookie of sorts. "I don't think you can win with a rookie quarterback. It's never been done."

Perkins is in his first season as head coach of the New York Giants, a team in almost desperate need of a quarterback. None of the three they have—Joe Pisarcik, Jerry Golsteyn and Randy Dean—has shown the intangible quality that makes a quarterback and the team he plays for into a big winner.

Thus, when the time comes for the Giants to make their first pick in Thursday's National Football League draft, Perkins and new General Manager George Young are likely to go for the "Throwin' Samoan," Jack Thompson of Washington State.

He's the biggest name among available college quarterbacks, one of the glamour positions in the game. Thompson is a 6-foot-3, 215-pounder and basically is a drop-back quarterback, the kind most pro teams look for. He has had a series of shoulder problems in his college career, but that doesn't figure to keep him from being the first quarterback drafted.

There is, however, someone else who might make him only No. 2 at his position—Steve Fuller from Clemson. He's 6-4 and 205 pounds and the two-time

Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year. But he's not as well known. And he's not the classic drop-back passer since his job was to direct an option-oriented offense.

But, then, there are a few other quarterbacks drifting around the NFL who weren't classic drop-back types in college—namely Richard Todd, Roger Staubach, Fran Tarkenton, Billy Kilmer and Steve Grogan among others.

Furthermore, a number of insiders and experts—Gil Brandt, the master builder of the Dallas Cowboys, among them—believes Fuller will be better sooner. Brandt cites leadership and other intangibles.

Whether the Giants get a shot at Thompson or Fuller—or Phil

Simms of Morehead State, Jeff Rutledge of Alabama, Rick Leach of Michigan State, Chuck Fusina of Penn State or any other quarterback for that matter—depends on the Buffalo Bills and a few other teams.

Buffalo, with the No. 1 pick obtained in the trade that sent O. J. Simpson to San Francisco, is expected to choose Ohio State linebacker Tom Cousineau.

The Kansas City Chiefs have eyed Thompson, but they're expected to try and shore up the other end of the passing (and pass-blocking) game by taking tight end Kellen Winslow of Missouri.

Cincinnati is next, followed by Chicago, Buffalo again and Baltimore. It's unlikely any of these teams will use the pick on a quarterback.

Black Hawks win, 6-4

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Goalsby Dave Gardner and Tom Roulston lifted the Dallas Black Hawks past the Salt Lake Golden Eagles 6-4 Tuesday night as the Black Hawks captured their fourth Central Hockey League Adams Cup playoff 4-1.

The Adams Cup, in its 16th year, represents supremacy in the CHL. Dallas goalie Curt Ridley was named most valuable player of the best-of-seven playoff.

Dallas jumped out to a 1-0 lead at 3:45 of the first period when Jim Mayer scored on a power play. Salt Lake tied it briefly at 1-1 on a wrist shot by Doug Palazzari, but Dallas' Claire Alexander scored at 13:00 on another power play.

In the middle period, Dallas increased its lead to 3-1 on a backhander by Steve Hazlett, but goals by Salt Lake's Rick Schinske and Bob Hess tied it again at 3-3.

The two teams then exchanged scores—Dallas on a short-handed goal by Lars Zetterstrom and Hess for Salt Lake on a rebound—before Gardner put Dallas ahead to stay at 17:53 of the period on a power play goal.

The only scoring in the final period was Roulston's insurance goal at 19:12.
