

Ryzman named as police chief

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

Lt. John J. Ryzman, a nine-year veteran of the Pampa Police Department, was selected today by the city commission as the new police chief.

Ryzman's appointment becomes effective July 1. He replaces Richard Mills, who resigned earlier this month to become police chief in Sherman.

After deliberating almost a month, commissioners met in closed session for half an hour this morning and then opened the door to announce their decision.

Ryzman, one of 28 applicants for the top position, was recommended to the commission by City Manager Mack Wofford. Commissioner Coyle Ford moved to accept the recommendation, and the commission voted to approve Ryzman.

Noting that the commission had discussed the appointment "at length," Mayor Ray Thompson concluded, "We feel like we've come up with the best man for the job."

Ryzman, 37, has been acting chief since Mills' departure.

Ryzman's law enforcement career spans more than 14 years. He came to Pampa in May of 1970, and rose from patrolman to detective sergeant to detective lieutenant. He has served as administrative lieutenant, the second highest position in the department, for the last year and a half.

"When you look at his background, he's had what I call progressive experience — through the ranks," said Wofford, explaining his choice of Ryzman. "He's worked his way up from patrolman position to what you might call our second-in-command."

"Also, he has been in Pampa slightly over nine years, and that gives him an insight into specific local problems."

"I have confidence that he can effectively administer the department."

A smiling Ryzman, who admitted feeling "pretty good" about his appointment, said he does not plan any shake-ups in the department.

"There will be some small departmental changes, but nothing major at this time," he said. "Basically, the police department has a sound structure and is functioning well under it."

He expressed his appreciation to the commission and to Wofford for selecting him.

"I'd like to thank the governing body for their vote of confidence in me," Ryzman said.

Ryzman, a native of Denver, Colo., has a law enforcement degree from Wayland Baptist College in Plainview. He has attended police schools in Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Ryzman served in the U.S. Navy for four years. He began his law enforcement career in the Farmington, N.M. Police Department, and was a member of the Jefferson County, Colo. Sheriff's Department before coming to Pampa.

The new chief is an active member of the Kiwanis. He and his wife, Pam, have five children.

Senate to begin SALT deliberations on July 9

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd is flying to Moscow to tell the Russians they will have to expect the Senate to put its stamp on the SALT II treaty.

And Republican leader Howard H. Baker says he will actively oppose the strategic arms agreement unless the White House and the Soviet Union signal a willingness to consider "reasonable amendments."

Before leaving for Moscow today, Byrd pleaded with senators not to rush to judgment on SALT II and to avoid taking hardened positions at least until the conclusion of hearings now set to begin July 9.

Many supporters of the treaty expressed regret at Baker's conclusion that the pact is fatally flawed in its present form because it unfairly provides the Soviet Union with "a substantial strategic superiority."

But supporters as well as opponents joined in denouncing demands by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that the Senate make no changes in the treaty whatsoever.

In a news conference Wednesday, Baker said he is not willing to work to improve and ratify the treaty "under Soviet threats of 'grave consequences' if the Senate and the American people don't knuckle under."

Byrd said that while in Moscow he will attempt to impress on the Soviets the constitutional role of the Senate in the consideration of treaties.

And one SALT supporter, who asked not to be identified, said Gromyko's remarks have been widely resented and are proving counterproductive.

OPEC announces oil price increase

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today raised the base price of its crude oil to a range of $18 to $23.50 a barrel.

The 13-nation oil cartel set its new base price at $18, up from $14.55. It also said members could add surcharges of as much as $2 a barrel as market conditions permit, but set the maximum price of a barrel of OPEC oil, including allowances for quality, at $23.50 a barrel.

Experts calculate that the rise in OPEC prices probably will add about 4 cents a gallon to prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States.

It is the biggest boost in OPEC prices in five years.

The decision leaves OPEC with a two-tiered price structure, much like the one the cartel had in the first half of 1977.

Saudi Arabia, which had held out for a low price, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates will be the only countries actually charging $18 a barrel, Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told a news conference.

The agreement was worked out late Wednesday night, prolonging the meeting into a third day, after moderate and radical members "narrowed the gap gradually until they got where they are," said Cyrus Ebrahimpzadeh of the Iranian delegation.

Libya, Iran and Iraq had demanded that the price of OPEC's benchmark crude oil, Arabian light, be raised to between $23 to $27 a barrel from $14.55. Under the new system, the price rises to only $18, but that amounts to a 24 percent hike.

The 10 other nations will be able to add surcharges to the benchmark price to bring it to as much as $20. As always, additional surcharges could be tacked on to take into account differences in the quality of their oils.

The increases in the base price are the largest since 1974, when prices quadrupled during the Arab oil embargo. Analysts estimate that retail prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States rise a penny per gallon for each 5 per cent rise in the base price of crude oil. But because the surcharges in the past three months have raised the average price of OPEC oil to $17, experts say the rise at the gas pump and on heating bills will work out to about 4 cents a gallon.

The new price structure would be effective July 1. Sources said the ministers would meet again in Geneva in late September to consider changes.

U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said on Wednesday that if OPEC raised its base price to $20 a barrel, the U.S. bill for imported oil next year would be $65 billion to $70 billion. The U.S. Treasury Department estimated earlier this year that the United States, although it was the second largest producer of oil in the world in 1978, would spend more than $50 billion on imported oil this year, compared with $42 billion in 1978 and $5 billion in 1972.

Truckers vow to block fuel delivery

By The Associated Press

As Vice President Walter Mondale asked independent truckers to "get the country moving again," striking drivers vowed to stop Alabama fuel deliveries and North Carolina's governor alerted the National Guard to protect fuel terminals from further blockades.

Truckers in Iowa and Tennessee began returning to work Wednesday as Maine drivers camped out at a National Guard Army in Augusta to await Gov. Joseph Brennan's return from a meeting in Canada.

There were renewed incidents of violence, with firebombs and sniper shootings aimed at trucks on the road.

Food stocks generally remained adequate at supermarkets in the Midwest and East, but grocers predicted higher prices and shortages within days. Some meat and poultry wholesalers in New York closed early due to reduced supplies.

Independent drivers have been on strike for three weeks in protest of high diesel fuel prices, the 55 mph speed limit and weight limits that vary from state to state.

Mondale, warning that the strike would soon disrupt the nation's economy, promised safe passage for drivers who wanted to return to work.

"The action by some truckers is putting jobs in jeopardy and threatening food shortages and the economy in general at a moment when we can least afford it," he said.

Presidential assistant Jack Watson said the federal government was working with state officials to arrange "safe corridors of movement on major arteries." However, he said, the use of federal troops would be "an absolutely last resort."

While a lack of trucks has forced some farmers to plow rotting crops back into the ground, targets in the often-violent shutdown primarily have been fuel terminals. North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt put the National Guard on alert Wednesday to protect terminals.

"Much of the truckers' peaceful leadership has been repudiated and threats of violence to life and property have increased at petroleum terminals in Greensboro and Charlotte," he said.

Bob Perry, one of seven drivers arrested earlier in the day for allegedly blocking a truck leaving the Charlotte terminal, called Hunt's action "totally irresponsible."

Pool hours expand

Starting July 3, the Pampa Municipal Swimming Pool will open from 7 - 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday nights for a trial period.

The city is opening the pool at night because of growing demand, according to Personnel Director David Callison. Whether the pool continues the evening hours depends on public response, he added.

"If it doesn't pay to open it, we won't continue," said Callison.

Canadian man killed

CANADIAN — A Canadian man died Wednesday after sustaining injuries from a 40-foot fall to the bottom of an oil well rig at a work site 10 miles south of here.

David Morris, 20, fell at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and died hours later at the Hemphill County Hospital, according to Sheriff C.H. Wright.

The accident is still under investigation.

Man missing

CANADIAN — Lee Estrada, 43, was recently reported missing by his sisters who said he had left his home 12:30 a.m. Saturday in a catatonic condition.

Highway Patrolmen found Estrada's car five miles south of Canadian.

Estrada is reported to be six feet tall, weighs 240 pounds and has black hair and dark brown eyes. He has a distinctive panther like tattoo.

Anyone who has any information concerning the location of Estrada is asked to contact either the County Sheriff's Office or his family at 323-6304.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Oil industry has become scapegoat

The term "overkill" may conjure only the image of the results of an atomic war. There is another overkill which has been going on for some time, and it has been highly successful. The oil industry has become the scapegoat for most all of our energy problems, including gasoline shortages. Even inflation and the drop in the value of the dollar has been included in charges which now reflect in the public attitude.

Too many people will not take the time to sort out all the ramifications of the complexities involved. They appear to want a single visible target to blame for all the present economic problems which is beset them.

Government officials, including legislators seeking re-election, have found an easy patsy. So far they have been able to focus the blame on the oil industry with little fear that their assertions might boomerang and the real culprits be revealed.

Killing a mythical dragon or two is one thing, but with the president entering the arena and bringing the overkill to ridiculous proportions, the boomerang effect may have started.

A group of 14 men representing the independent oil and gas industry placed an advertisement in a Denver newspaper to voice their justifiable resentment. They drew attention to the fact that the independents were a vital part of an industry made up of millions of people from all avenues of commerce, including investors who receive yearly compensation from shares owned in oil companies and hundreds of thousands of farmers, ranchers and other individuals who receive yearly compensation from shares owned in oil companies and hundreds of thousands of farmers, ranchers and other individuals who receive a monthly royalty payment from oil or gas production.

"In fact, the largest single monthly oil and gas royalty payment recipient in America is the United States Government."

Addressing the president, these men said, "In your address to the nation on April 5th announcing your plan to decontrol prices on crude oil, you promised the end of excessive government controls. You acknowledged that increased oil prices will insure more exploration, more refineries, more national petroleum production and less dependency on OPEC.

"That was all very good news. However, the balance of your address was a direct insult to the energy consuming public and to the oil industry in the country.

"You acknowledged the ineptitude of government control of the oil industry. To quote you: 'the federal bureaucracy and red tape have become so complicated, it's almost unbelievable.' We believe it, Mr. President.

"Some of the language in your address we find insulting, purely political and unnecessary. You called us cheats. You alleged that as the result of decontrol the nation can expect the oil companies to reap 'unearned' profits and 'windfalls.' You predicted price gouging of the public by oil companies.

"You became prosecutor, judge and jury in your broad indictment of the oil industry. You then convicted us of terrible skulduggery even before your proposals are in effect. Indeed, you emphasized your verdict against the oil and gas industry with this quote: 'First, as surely as the sun will rise, the oil companies can be expected to fight to keep the profits which they have not earned.' We resolutely and in the strongest terms object to you imprinting your presidential seal on broadbrush allegations that the oil industry is made up of 'cheats' who rake in 'unearned' profits on projected 'windfalls' that might come from a not yet implemented White House proposal."

Workers, management, investors and royalty holders are voicing facts which refute allegations from governmental and other sources. We believe it is time for all industry to assist in getting all the facts before the people. In fact, all who believe in the private enterprise system had better start helping to reveal the truth. These have tended to talk to each other, rather than getting the facts out to the people.

The overkill may react to the oil industry's benefit. Why not help the reaction along? The economic life you save may be your own.

Letters

To the editor -

I am a Catholic youth and I would like to comment on the "Behind the scenes" article written by Greg Hardin in the Sunday Paper. A few things were left out of the article.

All of the Catholic Church sponsored youth groups are permitted to use the gym for dances free of charge. The group which was referred to in the article was not sponsored by the Catholic Church.

A fund-raising dance earlier in the year, given by the Catholic youth group was scheduled on the same night as a dance at the youth center. The youth group barely broke even. Isn't one youth dance in town on a given night enough? or how many do you suggest - two, five, ten - where do you draw the line?

The school has suffered vandalism at some dances given by various groups. Doesn't the church have the right to choose the groups that may use the gym?

And what about expenses? The cost of utilities, lighting and such, doesn't run cheap. There is also the price of maintenance and upkeep of the property to take into consideration.

Other churches and building owners have refused to allow dances in their buildings. Why has the Catholic Church been singled out for criticism?

The article in the paper presents only one side of the story. I'm sure you would like the other side, also.

Sincerely,

Meganne Walsh

The Duke displayed 'true grit' to end

What a performance. Duke Wayne never played out a script more convincingly.

Absolutely Oscar-type stuff all the way. He had us on the edge of our seats as we hooted for the leathery old leading man to beat up the guys in the black hats just one more time.

Please. The acting was so good one could even forgive how far-fetched the plot became. Some of it was just too hard to swallow. After all how many real-life people would possess the doggedness to live through open heart surgery and the removal of a cancerous stomach and lung?

Not too many fence straddlers when it came to Duke Wayne. No sir.

Some folks thought the big old buzzard was a saint because he was so patriotic all the time and loved America and knew how nice it is to be free. See, when a guy's free and works real hard, he can become anything he wants to. He might even want to be the most famous movie star ever.

Others thought Duke Wayne was...well...a bunch of stuff we can't print in the paper. They hated this guy, and how. Couldn't take it, the way Duke thought we should stand up to the bad guys. Duke must've thought these folks were pretty "yella," but by damn he would have thrown a few punches just so nobody would stop them from speaking their minds.

Take a look at some of those movies. Few of them had been considered a whit more than popular entertainments. And yet, as sure as the sun sets in the West, film schools got around to examining their artistic qualities. Fort Apache, Hondo, El Dorado, True Grit - they had the look of Frederic Remington or Charlie Russell paintings brought to life and put on the giant screen.

Commentators began to talk about the Wayne pictures as metaphors for the expansive American spirit itself. The really figurative writers even described the actor's face as a map of the American plains, complete with wagon wheel ruts, rivers, mountains, valleys...

No question. There was something unmistakable, palpable, about those features. Huge and uncontainable, explosive even, John Wayne loomed a power, a demigod frontiersman sent from the past to show modern Americans their original path. It was a path of individualism and possibility.

Even in those three movies in which he died at the end, his character did so without defeat, clearly contributing to the triumph of everything right and noble. Nor was he insufferably virtuous and straight arrow, like the Hollywood singing cowboy he managed to shuck and toss in to the dustbin.

He spat, cussed and spanked the leading lady - all early Hollywood taboos. If he could be faulted in this portrayal of the violent life of American growth, it was because he made brawling look almost fun. If he was smashing a saloon chair on an outlaw's back, or heaving a round off a balcony, he did so with a rip roaring hoedown for a score.

In real such donnybrooks, faces would be slashed, eyeballs lost, kidneys injured, limbs shortened. Only lately has Hollywood acknowledged these grisly realities - to the point of tedium. Arguably by making barroom altercations seem joyous occasions for release and heroism, he rendered them more temporary and trifling. The new realism makes violence too much with us, leaving modern life all the more dreary.

John Wayne's cowboys, cavalry officers, marines, prize fighters, detectives - they kept violence in perspective: they knew when to be tender, generous, loving. It was never misunderstood that they fought so that goodness might prevail.

Grin and spit whiskey in the face of death, that's what Duke Wayne did. Right up until the black hats finally headed him off at the pass.

COMMENTARY

The burger decade

by Donald F. Graff

"He looks like a chief justice," observed the president in announcing the appointment.

That was May 21, 1969, and Warren Earl Burger certainly did. White-haired, handsome, dignified, he could have been Central Casting's choice for the job.

He was, however, Richard Nixon's, whose hopes it was that the new chief justice would preside over a new era on the United States Supreme Court, one of "strict constructionism" that through narrow interpretations of the Constitution would modify if not reverse the liberal impact of the court's previous and historic 16 years under Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Warren Burger during the decade past has certainly presided over a different court. It has dealt with questions - obscenity, capital punishment, abortion, press liberties - no less difficult and fundamental to American society than the civil liberties-oriented decisions for which the Warren court was most noted. But there the resemblance ends.

Where the Warren decisions, if often controversial, clearly stated broadly applicable principles, the current court has as often shown itself divided in opinion, limited in vision and ambiguous in reasoning. Rather than clarifying issues, it has confused them, leading to further inconclusive litigation.

The court has indeed taken a conservative course, as desired by the president who largely shaped it. But it has not done so cohesively. It has not developed and expressed a coherent philosophy and a consistent approach to basic constitutional questions.

That may or may not be desirable. A criticism of the largely cohesive, consistent Warren court was that it usurped powers, that it often was in fact not adjudicating but legislating.

There would appear to be less debate, however, about another characteristic of the present court - the dissension that increasingly marks even its conservative majority. This is evidenced in the notable increase in the number of dissents and separate opinions on a single issue, where failure to reach a clear consensus raises problems for lower courts in applying the rulings. And in the non-consensus, the chief justice, to whom compromise does not come easily, is not infrequently at outspoken odds with his colleagues.

This is, in fact, not a "Burger court" in the sense that his predecessor was the "Warren court." The present chief justice has not asserted leadership through either personality or intellect. Nor, at least on the evidence of his first 10 years, has he written a place for himself in history with his decisions.

These have the appearance of having been shaped less by the validity or otherwise of points at issue than according to preconceived principle. His "community standards" answer to the definition of obscenity, for example, has been read in some communities as writ to apply the standards of Cedar Rapids to Las Vegas, prompting a snarl of litigation on the question of how far local authority extends over material disseminated nationally.

And while Burger himself has cultivated something of an adversary relationship with the media, the highly controversial series of press rights decisions of the last several years might well be called the work of the "White court" since the most crucial have been written by Associate Justice Byron White.

If the chief justice has made any historic mark to date, it is as an administrator and reformer. He has taken his role as overseer of the federal judiciary seriously. The current expansion of federal judgeships by more than a third owes a great deal to Burger's personal lobbying efforts in Congress.

Burger has also assumed the role of conscience of the legal brotherhood, pressing a somewhat reluctant profession to stop its house in order and shape up its standards.

The Burger tenure may be far from over with much history still to be written. But at this point, while Warren Burger looks every bit as much the chief justice as he did 10 years ago, the jury is still out on his performance as such.

Candidate speaks on issues

By D. R. SEGAL

Q. Mr. Charisma, why are you running for this office?

A. Because I feel a strong sense of duty to my country and this is my way of making a contribution to the cause of good government.

Q. Huh?

A. Just write it down the way I said it.

Q. Specifically, just what...

A. Let's get to the next question. I don't have all day to spend in this hick town.

Q. Why do you feel you are a better choice than your opponent?

A. Because, although he is a fine Christian gentleman and one of my closest associates, he is a jerk. That's off the record. I never say anything derogatory about my opponent. It ain't my nature to be mean - not even to that crud.

Q. What are the principal planks in your platform?

A. Don't you read that crap my public relations guys send you? It's all wrote down there somewhere. If you don't have copies, I'll see you get them. Do you want to run a picture of Hazel and the kids?

Q. How do you reconcile an economy platform with your promise of higher teachers' salaries, increased government services, better pay for state employees, improved pension plans and...?

A. I got a great picture of the kid with our dog, Name's Fido. The dog, not the kid. The kid's name is Washington Acne Charisma, Jr., named after me. Want a picture of me in my Legion hat getting the Best Citizen of Mocksville award in 1962?

Q. No.

A. You some kind of commie outfit, don't believe in kids and the Legion? How about a picture of me getting an award from some coon on Brotherhood Week?

Q. What have been your principal accomplishments during the 12 years you've held public office?

A. There's the Muttley-Charisma Act to build a four-lane highway to my place on the river, the Shrink-Charisma Act to outlaw mental health, the...

Q. What do you have in mind if you're elected?

A. A three-day trip to Atlantic City with a cute blonde I met in the CBS studios if I can shake Hazel and that damned kid.

Q. Is that for quotation?

A. Boy, the quality of newspaperman you find in these rube towns! Hell, no, not for publication. Say I am accepting an invitation to attend a small gathering in an Eastern city to explore all the facets of women's liberation. Got that, kid?

Q. Are you as venal as you appear to be?

A. My religious affiliations are an open book. This is a big Baptist town, ain't it? I am a life-long Baptist, although I got nothing against the Methodists and Presbyterians and some of my best friends are Jews and Catholics and freaks like that.

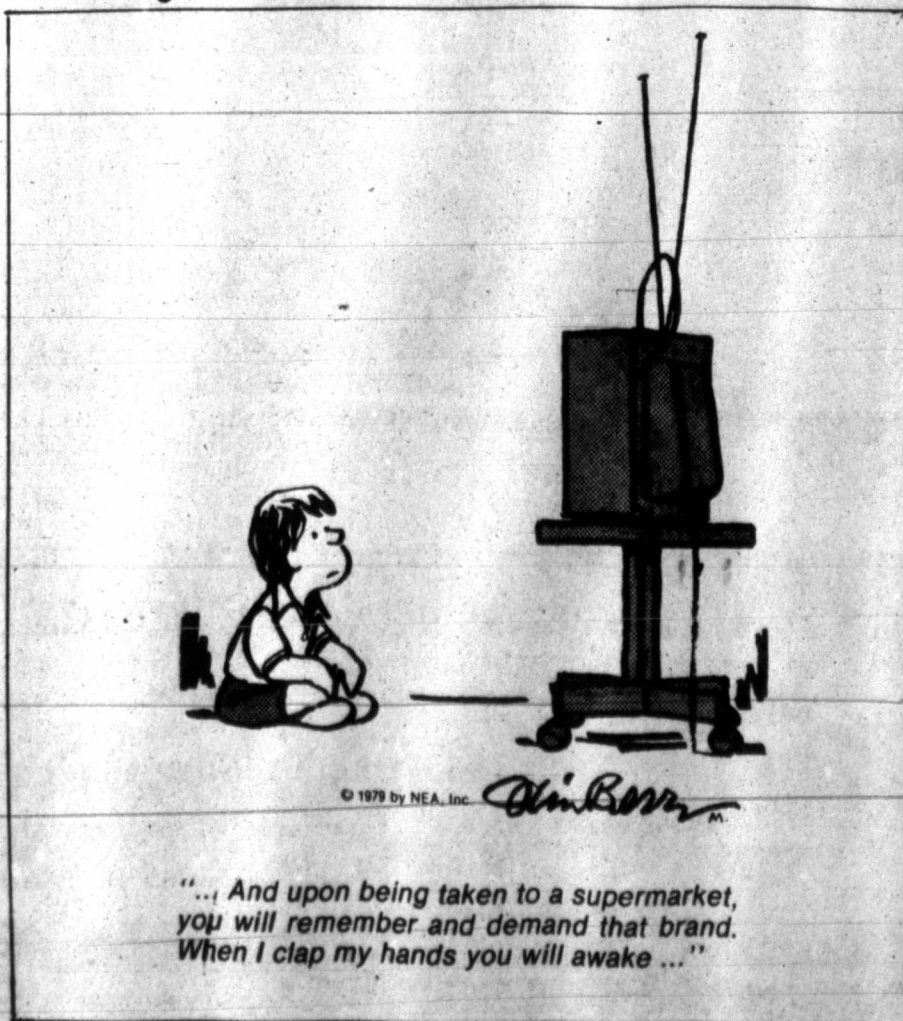

Q. Anything else you'd like to say, Mr. Charisma.

A. Who's the dame in the short skirt? Maybe she'd like to come over to the room and talk about women's lib.

Q. Thank you, Acne Charisma. Yours is a profession well chosen.

A. Up yours, Rube.

Texas representatives oppose windfall profits tax

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Texas congressmen who would prefer no "windfall profits" tax at all will be pushing today for the mildest version available, an estimated $23.9 billion bite on the extra profits decontrol is expected to bring the oil companies from 1980 to 1984.

"It only is attractive in a relative sense that it is a lesser evil than what the committee has passed out. Hopefully the Senate will have better judgment," U.S. Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said Wednesday.

The more votes for the probable losing side they can muster as a show of strength, opponents of a windfall tax argue, the easier it will be for the tax to be decreased when it reaches the Senate.

"It appears to me that we'll end up with some sort of a tax. This seems very strange to me that we are preventing the ability to produce more oil which we so desperately need," Archer said.

The Houston congressman, and others in the normally pro-oil business Texas delegation, maintain the tax will discourage the independent oil producers who make the most discoveries from looking for new sources.

The House will be voting on a bill to tax the profits which President Carter's phased decontrol of domestic production is expected to bring the oil companies. The main version would raise $29.1 billion from the $65 billion oil companies are expected to receive as a result of decontrol from 1980 to 1984.

Existing state and federal taxes would take $22.9 billion, leaving about $13 billion of the new revenue for the companies.

U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, disagreed with the prevailing state delegation view. He said he planned to vote for the stiffer tax as a way to compensate for the inflated costs which decontrol will bring.

He said he would have preferred price controls to stay in place until 1981 during this inflationary period, thus creating no windfall profits to tax.

"I'm really unhappy about the whole approach. We really ought to be talking about inflation, rather than decontrol and taxation. Considering what has been done, some of this inflated cost ought to be recouped and in some ways used for the results of inflation," he said.

Eckhardt, of Houston, said he did not think that a windfall profits tax will affect production. The additional revenue left to the companies should be adequate for exploration, he said. U.S. Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, said federal controls have put the brake on domestic production.

"We've got the lowest rig count that we've had now in several years," he said.

Leath, of Marlin, applauded Carter's phased decontrol plan but said he could not understand why Congress would remove the incentive to produce by taking a chunk of the new profits. He said any windfall profits tax should be short term.

"It doesn't make any sense at all to give an incentive and then take it away," he said.

Even though there is no oil production in his Central Texas district, Leath said, "Most of the mail that we're still getting is pro-production."

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, said the mail a month ago from his Abilene to Big Spring area ran 3-2 for a windfall profits tax. "The majority of my mail now is running clearly against the windfall profits tax. It has shifted clearly, to about 9-1," he said.

The Stamford congressman predicted the House vote would be closer than earlier predictions for a windfall profits landslide had indicated.

Stenholm said he would vote for the amendment to lower the tax but would prefer no tax at all. "To me this windfall profits tax (especially the stiffer version) is going to guarantee shortages and high prices if it passes."

U.S. Rep. Richard White, D-Texas, also said the windfall profits tax would counter any benefits that decontrol would bring, and he would prefer a plowback provision for producers to use their profits for exploration and development.

"They should have gone to a plowback provision. Unfortunately, that's not in the cards right now," the El Paso congressman said.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, said he was encouraged by a close vote Tuesday on his unsuccessful bid to exempt independent producers from the windfall profits tax.

The House Rules Committee voted not to allow the amendment to be proposed during floor debate, but the tally was 7-7.

"I'm still optimistic because we came so close," Hance, of Lubbock, said. "Now, perhaps, the Senate can still exempt the independents and it will be settled in a conference committee which would come to a full House vote."

Some kind of windfall profits tax would be in order for a brief period, but the tax should be as lenient as possible to retain the incentive to explore, said U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas.

"If you make the tax rate too steep, then you're not going to be able to encourage them to go out and get more," he said.

Chickenfest cuts campaign debts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements turned his "Rubber Chicken" campaign incident into a $55,000-plus money raiser Wednesday night.

During his quest against Democrat John Hill in the governor's race last year, Clements started an Amarillo audience by throwing a rubber chicken at Hill.

The Republican said he would hang Jimmy Carter "like a dead chicken" around his opponent's neck and then tossed the limp toy. It landed on the plate of the Amarillo mayor's wife.

After six months in office, Clements and his campaign treasurer Jim Francis threw an Austin Chickenfest Wednesday for $25-a-ticket at a country-and-western night spot. Rubber chickens hung from the ceiling of the shell building.

It's all an attempt to retire the $2.8 million debt remaining from Clements' record $7.1 million run at the governor's mansion. More than half, or $4.75 million, of his total spending was borrowed.

To help the governor's campaign committee, some 2,200 people dined on Colonel Sander's special recipe at the Silver Dollar North and listened to Alvin Crow and the Pleasant Valley Boys.

Clements and his wife, Rita, also hosted a smaller, $500-a-couple reception attended by 250 persons at the governor's mansion before joining the larger crowd.

After the governor introduced Rita as his "partner and bedmate," he remembered the Amarillo chicken-throwing.

"I said many times in the campaign I was going to hang that situation of Mr. Carter around my opponent and I was going to hang it like an old dead chicken," Clements told the laughing crowd.

"It was a joke of sorts. I felt it was a proper joke," he said. "Rita didn't, but I did."

His sentiments about Carter have not changed, he assured them.

"I guarantee you that I'm going to hold that old dead chicken, Mr. Carter, around the neck of the Democratic Party in 1980," he said to applause.

A few state agency heads and lobbyists mingled in the crowd, composed mostly of Clements supporters from Austin and surrounding counties. Francis said other fundraisers will be held to retire the debt.

Clements, wearing an Hawaiian-style print shirt, put in pitch for his "no-tie" summer and higher thermostat settings.

"I don't believe this thermostat is set at 76," he said.

"Thank God," a man replied.

AP applies for satellite system

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press applied with the Federal Communications Commission Wednesday for the establishment of a broadcast quality satellite delivery system.

The news service said the system would initially involve the licensing of 15-foot earth stations in 37 cities for delivery of the Associated Press Radio Network and certain limited data services for newspapers.

"This is merely the first step in the creation of a total satellite delivery system for AP services," said David L. Bowen, AP vice president for communications. "We envision an eventual involvement of satellite earth stations ranging from 15 feet in diameter down to the smallest diameter the FCC will allow, covering every AP city in the country."

The initial application included specific requests for the location of 15-foot earth stations in Miami and San Diego. Application will be made for additional specific sites as necessary paperwork is completed.

within as much as possible, said Watson, and Godwin has served the bank well.

Godwin, who is filling an executive position left by Rusty Vernon, had supervised First National's Motor Bank until February 1977 when he was placed in the Installment Department as a Lending Officer.

His new position will entail more responsibility as a lending officer, according to bank vice president Luther Robinson.

Godwin's previous banking experience includes six months at First National Bank of Odessa in 1974 and four years between 1970 and 1974 at the Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles, Calif.

Godwin, a 1970 graduate of Pampa High School, attended L.I.F.E. Bible College while in Los Angeles. He served as pastor at a church in Stanford from 1974 until 1976.

Godwin and his wife, Norma, have been in Pampa since 1976. They have two children, 3-year-old Jonathan and 1-year-old Jeremy.

When Gardner Ackley was President Johnson's chief economics adviser in the 1960s, he once remarked that he wished every economics reporter covering his press conferences could meet two standards:

- (1) That he had taken an introductory course in economics.
- (2) That he had passed it.

At the time, I deeply resented being lumped together with many of my well-educated peers as ignoramuses. We had our bonafides, we had taken far more than introductory courses in economics and we had more than passed them. But knowing Ackley's wry sense of humor and realizing I couldn't win against the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, I shut up.

Now, though, the targets of criticism have switched (appropriately or not) so dramatically, that I cannot resist a take-off on Ackley's wisecrack. I wish:

That every economics policymaker surrounding Carter (whose knowledge of economics is so abysmally limited as to seem non-existent) had seriously studied at least one theory beyond Keynesian (Lord John Maynard Keynes, the British economist) economics.

That he had learned that Keynesian economics, geared to curbing depressions, is now so out of date that it is actually fueling inflation.

That he would have been acutely aware long before he came to a power position in Washington that inflation is the No. 1 evil of our era and Americans have been yearning for strong leaders in Washington to insist on policies to guide us to ways out.

Yes, it's "in" now to be in favor of balanced budgets. But shouldn't it have been obvious years ago to knowledgeable policymakers that an unbroken string of huge, ever-more hideous deficits even in periods of great prosperity would only crank up the "engine of inflation" in our land?

Yes, it's now ABC to all serious students of economics that we have flooded the world with dollars that are, in themselves, reinforcing the price-wage spiral here and in other lands.

But shouldn't that particular ABC -- which I was hearing analyzed at private financial discussions in Wall St. years ago! -- also have been ABC years ago to Washington's to-be-policymakers?

Not in memory have the official forecasts of Washington's economic policymakers been so terrible as in recent months. Every prediction -- on the economy's direction, degree of inflation, level of employment and unemployment -- has been way off base. As a result, confidence in the forecasts has all but disappeared. And the official attempts at explanation take on a "gallows humor."

Assume the Iranian cutoff in oil supplies and OPEC's latest arrogant moves to boost prices of oil could not be foreseen.

Had a real energy policy been firmly in place in the U.S., however, the Iran crisis and OPEC's price moves would have had only a minor -- instead of their spectacular -- impact on us.

Assume that the upsurges in the prices of fuel, housing, food, etc. could not have been accurately predicted.

But that a spurt in beef prices was ahead was there for all who would just see! At this stage of the cattle cycle -- and the stage arrived right on schedule -- beef shortages and price hikes were a certainty.

When, a short while ago, Secretary of the Treasury Blumenthal boosted his forecast of inflation in 1979 from 7.4 to 8.5 percent, Sen. Harrison Schmitt, (R-N.M.) told him: "You screwed up."

Americans must cut current living standards

NEW YORK (AP) — The combined effect of the dreaded I-R-S package, that is, inflation-recession-shortage, is likely to force Americans to cut back. But does a cutback mean a lowering of living standards?

No question: The I-R-S combine can do enormous damage to the economy, which is built on the assumption of plentiful supplies, an inspired consumer to want them, and a supply of money with which to buy them.

But what happens to the economy, assuming it occurs on a limited time scale, is not the very same question as what happens to the consumer.

The elderly, the infirm, the poor -- some living at the limits of their finances and requiring special transportation, foods and medicines -- could very well suffer if special measures aren't taken.

So could the unskilled, the poorly skilled and those whose skills are temporarily in demand. So could the indebted household, and there are millions of them, whose loan repayments are beyond them.

But for millions of Americans the answer is not clearcut; it isn't at all certain that for them a cutback means regressing to an earlier, less advanced standard. Inconvenience might be confused with suffering.

So far, however, the answer -- even by some government officials -- has been yes, individuals must lower their standards. But only a little reflection suggests that for many the demotion may be in mind only.

The explanation lies in attitudes, habits, excesses. In rich food, needless travel, wasted energy. In calorie-larded diets, over-powered cars, overheated homes. In short, it lies in the family garbage heap.

Waste is an almost natural consequence of the super-consumer society, one in which acquisition doesn't stop when the need is met but continues in search of needs that might not have been discovered yet.

Statistically, a preponderance of evidence indicates that Americans can indeed cut back without materially lowering their living standards. And that in so doing, they might improve the quality of their lives.

Don't confuse today's longevity with soft living, the medical people say. They maintain it's a consequence of better medicine. They even insist that the modern consumer society is medicine's enemy.

The issue then is whether cutbacks lower living standards, or raise them instead. Even before I-R-S, the debate was on, with people wondering if somehow the quality of life was deteriorating.

Studies now show wealthy societies are demanding more fish, chicken, vegetables and grains, including pasta, foods long associated with less advanced societies. The trend is changing; people are reverting.

Musing about life as the industrial revolution was gathering steam, William Wordsworth observed: "The world is too much with us; late and soon, getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

It's conceivable that some Americans, given time to reflect, might come to the same verdict a century-and-a-half later.

Store to help March of Dimes

A chance to help change the future for our most precious resource -- our children -- right here in Pampa is what our local Kentucky Fried Chicken store sees in their effort to help the March of Dimes crusade against birth defects.

Colonel Harland Sanders, founder of Kentucky Fried

Chicken, said, "That's why Kentucky Fried Chicken takes this campaign so seriously. My great-granddaughter spent three months in an intensive care nursery. Cathy and I can thank the March of Dimes for changing the future of a very sick baby to that of a healthy young girl. I hope all the good people of Pampa will see their way to help us give every child the best start in life."

During July, the staff at the local store will be working closely with the Gray County Chapter-March of Dimes to raise funds for research into the causes of birth defects and their prevention. Lifelong physical or mental damage afflicts 15 million Americans. The effort will include in-store canisters, as well as a 50-cent contribution by the store for each bucket of chicken purchased on the weekend of June 30-July 1.

The money raised from this campaign will be used to support research by some of the best scientists in the country.

Consumers may strike for one day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are being urged to strike for one day this fall to protest the government's failure to dampen inflation, which has skyrocketed to an annual rate of 13.4 percent.

"Unless consumers stand up in an organized manner...they will never be able to deal with the deteriorating and fast crumbling economy, consumer advocate Ralph Nader told a coalition of 70 consumer, labor, religious and senior citizen groups here Wednesday.

The coalition -- Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities -- launched what its leaders hope will be a series of teach-ins reminiscent of the grassroots protest of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The group, calling itself COIN, unveiled a 100-page anti-inflation program, highlighted by immediate calls to reimpose oil price controls, place a clamp on health care costs, subsidize consumers' food bills and lower mortgage rates.

All but the health-care proposal came under strong criticism from Alfred Kahn, the Carter administration's chief inflation fighter, who participated in one of the many sessions during the day-long teach-in.

While applauding many of the coalition's long-term proposals -- including efforts to expand and diversify the nation's energy supply and to deregulate the trucking industry -- Kahn said controlling oil prices is "pretending" about its real cost.

Such a move back to energy price controls, he said, would discourage conservation and intensify demand for the fast-diminishing product. And that, he said, would only feed inflation.

Similarly, Kahn said subsidizing food and cutting mortgage rates would increase demand and cause prices to rise even more if the supply of foodstuffs and housing can't be increased fast enough.

Summer 'doctor' at Highland General

Med student views procedures

A young man at Highland General Hospital has spent the last month following doctors around, observing some things he's only read about in his medical textbooks.

Job Buschman, who this fall will be a second year student at Texas Tech University School of Medicine, has been putting in long days at the hospital, observing everything from major surgery to bedside mannerisms.

"It's really taught me that a lot of the things I thought were minute are really important," says Buschman. "It's given me a vision of being a doctor, and a challenge to keep up with my studies."

The medical student begins his working day about 6:30 a.m., drawing blood for laboratory tests, then he spend several hours in surgery.

"The first week the doctors showed me how to scrub up -- put on the gown, mask and gloves," he explains. "Also during the first week they taught me the names of the medical instruments."

"Since the first week, I've done assisting, passing instruments, and holding the wound open so they can operate," he adds.

The 23-year-old Perryton native looks over the surgery schedule the night before, deciding which ones he'd like to observe or assist with.

Then he dons his surgical outfit and steps under the spotlights of the operating room.

"I'm learning a lot of surgical techniques -- the different way they do sutures and the sutures they use, and the different instruments for the different parts of the body," says Buschman.

This summer represents the first real hospital experience for the med student, since he says he's spent most of his schooling so far attending lectures.

"The first two years are basic sciences, giving us a background for practice," says the young man.

After his second year of lecture studies, which begins in August, he will spend two years in clinical, or practical, studies. Upon graduation, he has a choice of directly stepping into practice or choosing a residency program in some special area of medicine.

Buschman has not yet decided whether he'll specialize, but says he's definitely interested in a family practice in a rural area.

He is at Highland General under the sponsorship of Dr. R.M. Hampton, through a federal program attempting to interest first and second year medical students in rural medicine.

Buschman is on call 24 hours a day for obstetric cases because he expressed a special interest in that area, and he's observed quite a few deliveries, as well as other kinds of surgery.

After several hours in surgery, he usually puts in some time in the hospital laboratory and in the X-ray department. As a doctor, he probably won't have to do his own lab work, but he will have to study X-rays and make diagnoses.

"It's helped me a lot in being able to read X-rays, and it's helped me to review anatomy," he says.

If time permits in the afternoon, he visits the respiratory and physical therapy departments, then makes evening rounds with various doctors on the staff.

"I'm learning bedside manner, I guess," laughs Buschman. "They discuss with me why they're prescribing the medicine they prescribe."

"And they talk with me about the psychology of doctor-patient relationships and the psychology of dealing with the relatives of patients," he adds.

By this time, Buschman's day in the hospital is usually finished, so he returns to his room in the nurse's residence to concentrate on his textbooks, reviewing for the next morning's surgery.

He ends his stint at Highland General this weekend, when he'll return to his family's farm in Ochiltree County. He'll work there until August, then he returns to Lubbock.

Buschman will arrive for the next segment of his studies with a little practical hospital knowledge to supplement his "book learning."

For special Independence Day feast

Try barbequed turkey, along with colorful salad

A turkey on the covered grill is a good idea for a stay-at-home 4th of July celebration. Turkeys are good buys now and cook to a beautiful brown with an appealing smoky flavor in the covered grill.

Prepare the turkey as you would for the oven. Thaw, untuck the legs, and remove the giblets. Rinse and retuck the legs of a Butterball turkey. For faster cooking, do not stuff the bird. Rather, cook the stuffing in a foil packet in the grill over a drip pan flanked with coals burned down to a snowy white color.

Corn-on-the-cob, a platter of green onions, radishes and olives, and a Red, White and Blue Salad Mold will complete the 4th of July spread. The salad can double as the dessert, too.

This molded salad, which can be made the day before, is in three layers. The red layer is strawberries in strawberry gelatin. The middle layer is the white one of cream cheese, sour cream, and salad dressing thickened with plain gelatin. The blue layer is of blueberries and blackberry gelatin. The colorful Red, White and Blue Salad Mold is a grand finale for the 4th of July turkey feast.

Red, White and Blue Salad Mold
Yield: 8 cup mold

- 4 cups boiling water
  - 6-ounce package strawberry gelatin
  - 10-ounce package frozen sliced strawberries, partially thawed
  - 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
  - 1/4 cup cold water
  - 2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
  - 1 cup dairy sour cream
  - 1/4 cup salad dressing
  - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
  - 6-ounce package blackberry gelatin
  - 9-ounce package frozen blueberries
- Step 1: Pour 2 cups boiling water onto strawberry gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in strawberries. Refrigerate. When mixture begins to thicken, stir to blend berries evenly. Oil mold lightly, but thoroughly. Spoon strawberry mixture into mold. Refrigerate.

Step 2: Sprinkle unflavored gelatin into 1/4 cup cold water. Stir over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Let stand in a small custard cup over water. In the small bowl of an electric mixer, beat together cream cheese, sour cream, salad dressing, and lemon juice until they are smooth. Pour in unflavored gelatin and continue beating until mixture is thoroughly blended. Carefully spoon over strawberry gelatin in mold. Spread evenly to edge of mold. Refrigerate.

Step 3: Pour 2 cups boiling water over blackberry gelatin. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add 1/2 cup cold water and frozen blueberries. Stir to blend blueberries through gelatin. Refrigerate until it begins to thicken. Stir again to distribute blueberries. Spoon over cream cheese layer in mold and spread evenly to edge of mold. Refrigerate until firm, preferably overnight. Unmold and garnish with crisp lettuce.

Miss McCloy is new editor

Katrina McCloy, the newest member of the Pampa News staff, began her duties as editor of the People (formerly Society) section of the newspaper on June 18.

McCloy, who goes by Tina, is a native of Morse, where she was reared on a combination farm-ranch. She graduated from Spearman High School in 1974, and received a degree in journalism from Texas Tech University in 1978.

McCloy was employed by the Moore County News-Press in Dumas until October 1978, when she returned to Morse to work on her parents' farm. She retains a keen interest in agriculture and ranching, and keeps cattle in Morse. In January she was appointed to the Texas Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers Advisory Committee.

Tina is 23, single and a member of the First Baptist Church of Dumas. She enjoys reading, sewing and refinishing furniture in her spare time; her favorite sport is basketball.

Scout camp to get teepees

Eight new teepees for the Girl Scout camp near Clarendon should be completed in time for scouts to use them during camp, says a Scout spokesman.

Reservations and fees for camp, scheduled July 15-21 and July 22-28, are due as soon as possible, and should be mailed to the Girl Scout Office, Box 459, Pampa.

The teepees, constructed of white ducking, will be erected on concrete slabs. Measuring 16 feet in both diameter and height, the teepees are designed for maximum ventilation and light reflection.

The eight units will supplement the platform tent units and the covered wagon already on the established camp site at Camp Cibola.

The program at Camp Cibola is for girls who have completed the first through twelfth grades, says Mrs. Margaret Rion, camp director. Emphasis is on swimming and canoeing, but other activities are planned.

Camp fee is $45 for Quivara Council Scouts and $50 for non-scouts. Supplemental camperships are available for those who need them.

Clark joins Pampa News staff

Gary Clark, photographer at the Pampa News since the first of June, studied under one of Texas' leading photo-journalists, Bill Clough.

Clark worked with Clough while attending the University of Texas at Arlington. While attending UTA, Clark was assistant press aide for Congressman Dale Milford of the 24th District.

A native of Dallas, he graduated from MacArthur High School in Irving. He spent two years at Mountain View Junior College in Dallas, where he was chief photographer for 'Flair', a campus magazine, before transferring to UTA.

He graduated from UTA in 1978, with a degree in journalism and a minor in business. An old movie buff, his other interests include reading non-fiction and playing with his English sheepdog, Muffin.

Dr. Lamb says

Surgery may help cataracts

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have cataracts and can't wear glasses touching the sides of my nose where glasses normally rest, so I'd be most interested in finding out about the removal of cataracts if this is possible. I'm quite far advanced now. Recently I read an article in our local paper about 51 rabbits developing cataracts after repeated exposure to microwave radiation. What I'd like to know is: Are there experiments being done on how to reverse cataracts?

DEAR READER - There are some enthusiasts who believe that you can reverse cataracts with drops, diets and other procedures, but after careful review by qualified ophthalmologists, it is the opinion of the American Ophthalmology Service that the only effective treatment available for cataracts is surgical removal.

Some of the confusion may be related to differences in animal research and human responses. And some of the confusion may also be due to misinterpretation of what is a cataract and what is a vacuole (bubble) in the lens.

There are basic reasons why people develop cataracts. Almost everyone develops some form of cataracts if they live long enough.

even if it's not large enough or in the right location to interfere with vision.

You see, the lens of the eye is really a form of specialized skin. As your skin regenerates, the cells are sloughed off the surface. This cannot happen inside the eye, so the old cells are pushed to the center of the lens. The new cells are always on the outside of the globular lens. In the course of time, the center of the lens becomes packed with dense old cells. These become opaque, and it's difficult to transmit light through the lens.

When all the lens is involved to such an extent that it becomes white or is unable to transmit light, it's called a mature cataract.

There are a number of other factors that will contribute to cataracts.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-6 on cataracts to give you more information about them, when you should have surgery and what can be done. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your requests to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

People in Pampa

Several Pampa residents traveled to Spearman last weekend for a reunion of descendants of the late Albert and Viola Jacobs.

Activities, refreshments and photography sessions were included in the afternoon's events. Thelma Jacobs Modrick of Enid, Okla., gave each family a piece of homemade soap and a poem about childhood.

Attending from Pampa were Frank and Fern Jacobs Hogsett; Derral and Jean Hogsett with Steven II, Christine, and Katherine Price; Dick and Vickie Jacobs Taylor, Brooke and Megan; and Joan Hunt.

Dr. and Mrs. John Lee Welton and family, of Jefferson City, Tenn., were in Pampa last weekend for the 50th wedding anniversary reception of Mrs. Welton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. R.K. Douglass, 1148 Terrace Dr., and their daughter, Mary Lou, returned last week from a two-week bus tour, which took them to Detroit, Mich., Washington, D.C., Raleigh, N.C., Camilla, Ga., and to Dallas and Fort Worth. They visited with friends and relatives in the cities.

Around 50 people from the Pampa area attended the Patton-Matthews reunion last weekend in the Celanese hospitality facility.

Oldest member at the reunion was Viola Matthews and the youngest was Lori Hutcherson, both of Pampa. One hundred twenty-six persons attended, with one member coming from Sacramento, Calif.

54 million in U.S. develop cancer

By JOE GRAEDON

Q. Every day it seems like there's another cancer scare. I'm beginning to think that everything causes cancer. I don't know whether to worry about the warnings or ignore the whole thing. What's a person to do?

A. We know just how you feel. There has been an awful lot of bad news lately. Ingredients in non-prescription sleeping pills, daytime sedatives, diet sodas, hair dyes, food colorings, hot dogs, kid's pajamas, estrogen hormones and some blood pressure pills have all come under fire.

Despite what seems like an overwhelming avalanche of carcinogens, we want to assure you that most chemicals DO NOT cause cancer. But unfortunately, the majority of the 50,000 synthetic compounds we now come in contact with were not tested adequately for safety before they were used. As a result, scientists have had to work hard to make up for lost time and you are beginning to see the results of their testing.

Cancer is scary. As many as 54 million Americans will develop cancer during their lifetime—about one in four. But you may be able to reduce the chances that you or someone in your family will become a statistic. And prevention is the key. Environmental chemicals can be blamed for 60 to 80 percent of all cancers. While you cannot eliminate the risk altogether, the effort to avoid suspected substances is little enough compared to the trouble, grief and expense that result from long-term illness.

So what can be done? First, take early warnings seriously. Even preliminary scientific reports are usually based on hard work and careful thought, but the process of determining danger conclusively and removing hazardous products from the market is long and tedious.

Talk to your doctor if one of your prescriptions has been implicated and discuss alternatives if the risk seems to outweigh the benefits.

Read the labels on food and over-the-counter drugs to check for potential carcinogens. If you decide to avoid a particular chemical, write to the manufacturer and explain why you have stopped buying his product. There is nothing like the thought of losing a customer to make a company have second thoughts about an ingredient.

Sneezes Are Spoiling His Serve

Q. I'm a weekend whacker—tennis is my sport. If I don't get in four or five sets I feel cheated. But lately my nose has been ruining my game. I've developed an allergy and in between serves I sneeze up a storm. Are there any remedies you can recommend?

A. Don't throw in the towel. You have a few options. Antihistamines are generally considered the first line of defense against seasonal allergies. Unfortunately, they can cause drowsiness and lethargy—about the last side effects you would want to show up in the middle of a match.

The good news is that some compounds are less sedating than others and some people are less sensitive to this problem. Products that are best for daytime use contain either Chlorpheniramine, Brompheniramine or Pheniramine. Brands that include these ingredients are Chlor-Trimeton, Histacron, Rhinistat or Allerest.

The next step is to experiment. Before your weekend competition, test different brands to see which drug is most effective and causes the least symptoms. Once you have determined which antihistamine is best for you, make sure you take it about half an hour before heading for the courts so you will be protected before you smash the first serve.

If the antihistamine is not enough you may want to add a nasal spray to keep those sniffles and sneezes to a minimum. The only problem with these decongestants is that they can actually cause congestion if used too frequently.

Dear Abby says

More on forcing music lessons

DEAR ABBY: LONG-SUFFERING DAD, critical of parents who force their children to take music lessons, said: "I think forcing music lessons on a child is a form of child abuse!"

You let that go by without comment, Abby. For the record, I'm among those who resisted music lessons, preferring football, basketball, baseball—anything to an hour's daily practice. But my mother forced me to continue taking piano lessons and to practice an hour a day.

After about 10 years I got pretty good at it, and have enjoyed playing the piano for much of my life. I also learned a great deal about discipline, poise under pressure at recitals, as well as the joy of music.

If forcing music lessons on a child is "child abuse" what would you say to forcing a child to learn English, history, math and science? Most youngsters would prefer to run free to "do their own thing" rather than something that demands concentration, discipline and a commitment of time and effort.

Sign this, "Forced to Learn and Glad of It" or...

BOB L. IN BLACK BUTTE

DEAR BOB: My mail ran about 50 - to - 1 against "forcing music lessons on kids." Now hear this:

DEAR ABBY: I read with special interest the letters on forcing children to study music; I was part of that scene for many years.

I taught piano for over 50 years. When I first started I charged 50 cents a lesson, and those days that was a lot of money to most people.

A few of my students were so hopeless I threatened to quit giving them lessons, then their parents would beg me to keep them, and of course I did - partly because I needed the $2 a month and partly because I reasoned that what little they learned would be better than total ignorance.

There are some parents who use a musical education as a form of discipline. They are convinced that it builds a child's character to do something he hates!

FORMER PIANO TEACHER (now 84)

DEAR TEACHER: Most kids are forced to do two things they "hate" every day: 1) get up in the morning; 2) go to sleep at night.

Summer tips for hair, skin and feet

Manageable hair
 Performer Carol Lawrence used to have a problem with her hair. It would frizz sometimes, droop at other times. She told Beauty Digest magazine how she gained control over it. "I wash my hair daily with baby shampoo that I dilute with a teaspoon of milk. Then I rinse it with equal parts of ice water and beer."

Summer caution
 Certain products can make skin especially sensitive to sunburn. Lime and bergamot, substances found in perfumes, are extremely photosensitizing. Artificial sweeteners that contain saccharin, antibacterial deodorant soaps, tranquilizers and diuretics can also be responsible for bad burns. Check with your doctor before stepping out into the bright light of day.

Beauty bath
 For a bath that will leave you smelling lovely as well as feeling relaxed, add herbs to the water. In a cheesecloth square, put some fresh leaves or flowers of lovage, basil, rosemary, spearmint, camomile or lavender. Drop the bag under the hot water faucet while the tub is filling, then mix it around in the water.

Strong feet
 If you want to enjoy those long summer walks and outdoor sports, make sure you give your feet extra care. Use a pumice stone a few days each week to keep callouses away. Make sure you have heels of different heights in your shoe wardrobe, and also include both closed and open styles. Alternating shoes every day or so will make feet feel fresher and stronger.

Perfume hint
 Ann - Margret told Beauty Digest Magazine her special ways for using perfume. "I don't stick to one fragrance, but use as many as four or five fragrances during the day. As well as all the usual places, I apply a dab of perfume on the bridge of my nose. That way I can smell it myself and know when it's starting to fade and I'm due for another application."

Sensuous lips
 For those occasions when you want to look a little sexier, paint a pout on your lips with gloss. Use two lip gloss shades from the same color family. Apply a medium to dark shade on the upper lip and a slightly lighter shade on the lower one.

Local talent in 'TEXAS'

Tim McGaughy is appearing this summer in the musical drama "TEXAS" in the Palo Duro State Park amphitheater. McGaughy, son of Mrs. Mary Frances McGaughy, 518 N. Nelson, is a musician, playing guitar and banjo in the production.

Two other performers in the production have grandparents from Pampa.

Jennifer McPeak is the granddaughter of Mrs. Evelyn McPeak and the great-granddaughter of Mrs. Dollie Wakefield, both of 505 Zimmers. Miss McPeak, a winner of the Houston Bright Achievement Award, is appearing for the second summer in "TEXAS".

Saundra Parker, a ballet dancer in "TEXAS", is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Whitten, 739 Locust. Miss Parker has performed with the Lubbock Civic Ballet and has worked in New York City in the School of American Ballet and the American Ballet Center.

Mending Mature Marriages

Dominating others isn't healthy

By LOUISE PIERCE

Nobody should completely dominate anyone else's life, not even one mate over another. And domination, or a powerful attempt at it, seems to take place far too often. At least once a month somebody writes or tells me that he or she has been "used" by the mate who had once been courteous and thoughtful and eager for consultation before taking on a major project that should have involved both spouses.

That happened to me once in the early days of our marriage. It was during the Big Depression and money was something we had little of. I had to quit teaching because each household was allowed only one breadwinner. I started writing stories and, to my joy and amazement, I sold one for $25. I gave the check to Otis to deposit. All afternoon I planned what I'd buy with that money—a dress, shoes, a hat, so many things that $25 would purchase in those days. When I told Otis that night what I was going to get, he looked apologetic as he said, "Oh, honey, I bought two tires with that money. You know we've had two flats in three days and the front tires would hardly go across town any more." As I sat staring at him with my woe in my face, he added, "My money goes for our living. Isn't it all right for your money to do it too?" I nodded, sniffing a little. Then I added, "If you'd only asked me before you spent it!" And he agreed that consultation would have been far better than facing my tears. He's a kind man and hates to see a woman cry. Since then he's been ready and willing to talk it over before either of us cleans out the bank account or takes on new obligations.

Some of you have had similar experiences. And so often the domination takes place in the older years. When the couple is young and money has to be budgeted to pay for children's pabulum and teeth and tonsillotomies and school supplies, nobody dares go on a spending spree that isn't sanctioned by both. But when the pair is older and more comfortable, either with income that allows splurging or else a pension that provides a little more than their needs require, the temptation is great to buy whatever comes to hand without talking it over with the mate. And this can be extremely disturbing. None of those who wrote me suggested that the spouse had lied; the offending mate had simply spent money or made promises that involved unreasonable output, without giving any thought to the other's feelings on the matter.

DEAR LOUISE: O.D. is so big-hearted that he's a pain in the neck, my neck. He is forever inviting people to our house without asking me — for dinner, for the week-end, for however long he wants to. Most of them are people I never met before — new couples in town that he wants to make welcome. Lots of times they're people our age who are on strict diets and can't eat what I've cooked — and you know who rushes downtown, at O.D.'s smiling request, to buy different stuff to feed them. Once I made two pies on Saturday so we'd have one for Sunday dinner. O.D. brought his clerk and wife home for dinner Saturday night and they talked so much about how good the pie was and how they wished they could have one like it for Sunday — that O.D. gave them our spare! And that's not all. He promises we'll go to a meeting of some board or something, without asking me or remembering when I've told him that we already have a commitment for that night. I can't remember a week that we weren't promised to two places on the same night. People get mad and bawl me out! I'm getting tired of taking the blame for what he does. How can I get him to quit using me like that? Confused. DEAR C: I don't believe you can take the generosity out of O.D. He likes to keep everybody happy in every situation. You didn't say how long his hand-outs and promises have been going on, but I assume it's been a long time. However there are actions you can take to prevent his continuing the practice. Buy him a pocket calendar and insist on going over it with him every night. Check all the appointments he has made that day for either of you, and you add the ones you made. If they overlap, choose the one made first and send regrets to the other. If O.D. has to give up some of the places he wants to go, he may consult you next time. As for the unexpected guests and the food he hands out to them, just don't have any extra goodies on hand. When he arrives with an unexpected entourage, tell him you're not prepared to feed them but would love to have him take them, and you, out to eat. Choose a lovely place with lavish prices. If the time comes when he says he can't afford to eat out, tell him you'll cook for company if you are given advance warning of the onslaught.

Several men wrote me that their wives volunteered them for civic or church work without consulting them first. And that is usually an unhappy situation. We all like to make up our own minds — or have a family conference about important decisions. We need to confer with our spouses — lest we lose their cooperation forever.

MARVIN FIENER has been named new general manager and vice president of Pampa Coca Cola Bottling Co., with plants in Pampa, Shamrock, and Clinton, Okla. Fiener, formerly manager of the Clinton plant, takes over from owner manager Robert Mack, who is retiring from the day-to-day operation of the company. Mack, who was co-owner with his wife, Faucine, has been in the bottling business 52 years, and head of the Pampa based company since 1952. Fiener began in the bottling business as a teenager, working as a route salesman in Kansas and Mississippi before becoming manager of the Clinton plant in 1970. Fiener will divide his time among the three plants. James Quarry, a former salesman, superintendent of production, and repair service manager for the Pampa plant, will assume Fiener's position in Clinton. The Pampa company employs about 56 persons, including 17 in Clinton and 6 in Shamrock.

Bakers in Washington to protest grain price

WASHINGTON (AP) — Demonstrating grain farmers lobbied Congress from their tractors in early 1978 when wheat prices were far below $3 a bushel and again last winter when they were a dollar higher.

Now, with wheat futures prices well above the $4 mark, the bakers are in town.

They are complaining to Congress and raising one of the most emotional issues surrounding food and farm policy: the price of bread.

Futures prices, higher than what farmers actually get, rose 27 percent, or $1.02 a bushel, in the first three weeks of this month in response to reports of a poor Soviet grain crop and a chance of problems with U.S. crops this season.

Cereal and bakery product prices before that hike had risen 9.5 percent in a year, the Labor Department says.

The bakers were also pleading their case in Washington in 1973 after bad crops in Russia and elsewhere, a drop in protein-rich fish catches and a series of other economic problems led to a run on huge U.S. grain stockpiles. They returned in early 1975, after a poor U.S. corn crop and renewed Soviet purchases led to higher prices for all grains and wheat hit its record price of over $5 a bushel.

One of their leaders both times raised the specter of $1 a loaf bread and was immediately denounced by then-Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and farm groups.

They pointed out that Americans can consume only 39 percent of the wheat their farmers grow and the growers need the export markets. The issue invariably arose any time the protesters spoke this year.

Food-price increases that eventually came to 14.5 percent a year for both 1973 and 1974 were one result of the first boom.

But at the peak of wheat prices, Agriculture Department calculations show, the farmer got 6 cents for the grain in a one-pound loaf of white bread. That share later was below 4 cents for about two years.

The normal size loaf consumers buy is one pound, six ounces.

George Rosenthal, an official of the Independent Bakers

Association, told reporters Wednesday: "The bottom line for consumers is that the recent $1.02 increase in wheat prices has raised flour costs over 2 cents per pound and has added 2 cents to the cost of a one-pound loaf."

"We don't want to see the farmer go out of business," he said, but present prices will add about $513 million to consumer food bills each year.

That's about $2.31 a person and less than what taxpayers have paid in lean years to keep grain growers' incomes at the targets set by law.

If the trend continues, prices could rise another 2 cents a pound by December, he said, for a new average near 80 cents.

Asked why the bakers were not complaining about gasoline and operating fuel prices that have risen as much or more this year, Rosenthal said, "Fuel costs have increased but not to the extent that flour has."

Bakers are the seventh-largest energy users in the nation, others in the group said.

"Increases in fuel costs can gradually strangle us," said David Stroman of Williamsport, Pa., "but a rise in flour prices can slit our throats."

The organization called for no increase in grain target prices, which are now below market prices for the first time in three years anyway. They also called for full production next season.

Government acreage controls have been in effect the last two years because of a backlog of unsold grain.

The independents also want a guarantee that the Russians will be allowed to buy no more than the 15 million tons of grain the Carter administration has approved for the year ending Sept. 30.

Finally, they want Congress to set up a system under which USDA would have to clear any grain or soybean exports "to prevent large, unexpected sales or speculative hoarding by foreign buyers."

USDA said Wednesday two sales of wheat this week, totalling 235,400 metric tons, brought the year's total to 3.11 million tons of wheat and 10.34 million tons of corn.

Compounds in the tiny leaves at the base of a boll of cotton may be the cause of "brown lung" disease that affects cotton-mill workers, Agriculture Department research scientists report.

Dust inhaled by the workers is the suspected cause of byssinosis and the target of controversial federal safety regulations. USDA said Wednesday tests on sheep lung cells indicate the real culprit may be bract particles in the dust.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's program to control what it calls the worst grasshopper infestation in 21 years has been expanded from 4 million to 5 million acres, with 100 of the bugs chewing on every square yard in some areas.

James O. Lee, deputy administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the situation was "bad last year, when we had to treat a total of 836,000 acres."

Nebraska, Oregon and Texas are the worst affected this year, with 1 million acres each being attacked as of Wednesday.

Washington brief

Sugarcane and sugarbeet growers and processors have won a victory in the House trade subcommittee.

The panel approved a bill Wednesday to raise sugar prices in October, adding about 75 cents to a consumer's annual food bill. Growers and processors argue they need higher prices to survive.

Since almost half the sugar Americans consume is imported, the imported price generally sets the level for the whole market. Duties bring that to about 15 cents a pound. The subcommittee's bill would raise the domestic price in October to 15.8 cents a pound and provide for annual increases through 1982. The bill goes to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Snyder may leave television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "If I don't make it in this structure," Tom Snyder recently said of "Prime Time," his news magazine venture, "I will go away."

From the Nielsen ratings company comes news that may be received with mixed emotions — Snyder, NBC's journalist-entertainer, will stay. At least for awhile.

Snyder's NBC show (now called "Prime Time Sunday" because of copyright problems) made its debut last Sunday and drew ratings numbers stunningly superior to those of its predecessor, "Weekend."

Of 65 prime-time network shows rated by Nielsen for the week ending last Sunday, "Prime Time Sunday" finished 25th, with a 29 percent share of the audience. If that doesn't sound like unqualified success, consider the showing of "Weekend."

Of the 114 prime-time programs in the September-April season, "Weekend" finished an inglorious No. 110 with a 17 percent share of the audience. Among the shows that were rated higher were the forgettable "Apple Pie" (ABC) and "American Girls" (CBS).

"60 Minutes," the CBS news magazine that begged imitation by becoming a big revenue earner, finished eighth over the course of the season, with an average 41 percent share of the audience.

True, the debut success of "Prime Time" is subject to qualification — it was far behind "60 Minutes," which rated No. 3, and many viewers may have tuned in out of curiosity. But it was an improvement, and has the advantage of gathering steam this summer while the other networks are playing reruns.

The debut show drew heavily on style rather than substance, relying on Snyder-as-personality and studio gimmicks for its "look." Perhaps assuming that we're all fascinated by this wonderful toy, television, the "bumbers" — the few seconds leading into commercials — were all dedicated to the sight and sound of a young woman counting down the seconds to the break.

"Five, four, three, two, one..." Then, presto! We're into a commercial. Zowie, wow, ain't that magic! It's one of those self-conscious stunts you'd have thought television got out of its system two decades ago.

The first segment seemed a little like "Tomorrow Visits Prime Time," with Snyder and his guests sitting around being clamorous, as they do on Snyder's late-night "Tomorrow" show. Through live hookups, Snyder was able to give us an argument being Sir Freddie Laker, he of the DC-10 skytrains. James Dunne, of the Airline Passengers Association, and Langhorne Bond, of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Laker disagreed with Dunne, Dunne disagreed with Laker and Bond, Bond disagreed with Dunne, and it was all very boisterous.

Carter says 'too early to tell'

First summit session ends

TOKYO (AP) — The first session of the seven-nation economic summit ended today with President Carter reporting "it's too early to tell" whether agreement can be reached on fixing country-by-country tariffs to limit oil imports.

Carter said he and the others meeting here hope to come up with a formula. But American officials emphasized that "a great deal of work remains to be done, particularly on short-term commitments."

European participants in the summit have been pressing for a freeze on oil imports through 1985, while Carter favors emphasis on import curbs that would focus more directly on the next 18 months.

The meeting began with an outward display of harmony despite evident friction over the specifics of an energy plan for the industrialized non-communist nations.

Carter and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing exchanged only a perfunctory handshake at a breakfast that launched the summit, but they emerged side-by-side and chatting amiably from the first formal conference that lasted nearly three hours.

Carter is known to have been angered by a pre-summit interview in which Giscard told Newsweek magazine Americans "haven't started" to reduce oil consumption.

Carter cancelled plans for a three-day vacation in Hawaii which was to have followed his scheduled weekend state visit to South Korea. White House officials were worried about how the American public would react to Carter sunning himself while ordinary motorists cancel their own vacation plans for lack of gasoline.

"The president has decided, to return to Washington for congressional and staff meetings on the increasingly serious domestic and international energy situation," White House press secretary Jody Powell said.

American officials who briefed reporters on condition they not be identified said "it would be dreaming" to expect summit decisions to have any effect on gas lines in the United States.

But if oil import curbs are agreed to, they said, "hopefully, we can make the future less difficult than it otherwise might be."

Mike Mansfield, the former Senate Democratic leader who is U.S. ambassador to Japan, told reporters he thinks Congress may have no choice but to adopt nationwide gas rationing.

"The way things are going," the Montana Democrat said, "the people will ask for rationing."

Carter spoke first at the morning meeting of leaders of the United States, Japan, Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, and Canada.

American sources said Carter called for "bold, specific and substantive" decisions to deal with the current gap of two million barrels a day between global oil supplies and demand.

They said he urged adoption of short-term import levels "as specific as possible."

Each leader made an individual presentation at the morning session. Give-and-take was held off for an afternoon session.

The summit will end Friday afternoon with a communique, after which Carter will fly to South Korea.

How to save now on your 1979 income taxes

There are two ways you can avoid paying capital gains tax on the profit from sale of your home this year and in the future:

(1) The new up-to-$100,000 exclusion (we'll call this the exclusion) and:

(2) The traditional sale-and replacement tax (we'll call this the deferral).

Both breaks apply to the sale of a principal residence -- but that's just about where the similarity ends. There are several vital differences between the breaks and because the up-to-$100,000 exclusion is new, many of you, as home-owning taxpayers, are confusing the distinctions. Below is a simple rundown of how they differ.

Who qualifies for the breaks: The exclusion is limited to homesellers who:

Are at least age 55 on the date of the sale.
Have resided in the home for three out of the five years prior to the sale, and
Have not taken advantage of any part of the exclusion before this transaction.

In contrast, the deferral is available to homesellers of any age who buy another principal residence within certain time limits (generally 18 months before or after the sale).

There is no minimum residency requirement on deferral. And there's no limit on the number of times you can use the deferral with one exception: You can't use it more often than once in an 18-month period unless the sale is job-related.

How the two home-sale breaks work: The exclusion allows you to avoid the tax permanently on the first $100,000 of your home sale profits.

The deferral allows you to postpone the tax on all your profit, no matter how big, if you buy a home that costs at least as much as the home you sold. If you buy a house that costs less than what you got on the home sale, you pay tax on the profit that goes into your pocket and not into the new house.

When do you pay the tax owed, if any? When you sell your house and do not buy another. (The real tax-saving strategy would be to seek ways to use the $100,000 exclusion to erase the tax. If you're planning to sell your house in 1979, for instance, consider these tax points with utmost care before you sell. The tax you might or might not owe could be crucial in the timing of your sale as well as your post-sale plans on what to do next.)

These two breaks are not mutually exclusive. You, a homeseller who qualifies for both breaks, can use both.

As an illustration, Prentice-Hall submits the story of Mr. Cooper, age 55, who bought and sold several homes over the years. He used the sale-and-replacement break on each of the sales to postpone the tax on his profits.

Now he wants to move into a smaller home, so he sells his present home for $165,000. He has a potential taxable profit of $140,000 on the sale (most of it built up from profits on earlier sales over the years).

Mr. Cooper can use the new exclusion to avoid the tax on the first $100,000 of his profit. But what about the remaining $40,000?

It is at this point that the exclusion break and the sale-and-replacement break act in tax-saving tandem.

Because he takes advantage of the exclusion, Mr. Cooper is treated as having sold his house for $65,000 ($165,000 actual proceeds less the $100,000 exclusion).

So, if Mr. Cooper buys a new house within 18 months that costs at least $65,000, he can take full advantage of the sale-and-replacement break. He can defer the tax on the remaining $40,000 of profit until he sells his new home.

You easily can apply the experiences of Mr. Cooper to your own situation. If you are a homeowner planning a sale, no matter what price range your home is in. The lessons are inherent and clear.

You also easily can grasp a main point on using the extremely valuable exclusion break. If you are not yet 55 but will be soon, postpone selling your home until you are at least age 55 so you will qualify for this break. Don't lose it by ignoring the age limit, and selling months -- or even weeks -- too soon.

The fundamental message of this whole series should now be unmistakable. Start planning your tax-saving strategy for 1979 now! Don't overlook the traps in support of your parents when they get their Social Security benefit increases next month. If your parents are babysitting for you, start now to take advantage of the new tax credit break. Never forget: Jan. 1, 1980 will be too late for tax-saving on '79's income.

Jimmy's White House

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese fear of terrorist incidents is so all-pervading here, with heads of seven governments gathering at the economic summit meeting, that security is nearly suffocating.

One Secret Service agent who came here in advance of President Carter's arrival found the security more than he could handle.

At the end of a long, often-frustrating day, the agent cut loose at his hotel, grabbing a fire extinguisher and spraying those within range. The errant bodyguard was shipped home almost immediately.

Just last week, the 10-year-old daughter of an American who lives here crossed the street from her home to buy bread for her mother. A Japanese policeman intercepted her and gave polite but firm orders that she not venture onto the streets alone again until Carter and company have left town.

Parents of American children attending school here were sent letters instructing them to never let their youngsters out of the house without an adult escort during the Carter visit.

The authorities are worried about terrorist kidnappings aimed at disrupting the summit.

The American delegation is staying at the ultra-fashionable Okura Hotel, across the street from the U.S. Embassy compound where the Carters are staying.

The hotel has two buildings and White House planners wanted to lodge Carter's traveling press corps in the same building that houses a sprawling press center.

No way, said Japanese security officials. Members of the American delegation are in that building and cannot be exposed to the risks posed by sharing elevators and hallways with members of the press.

Haig Moves On

In May of 1973, Richard Nixon needed a new White House chief of staff to replace H.R. Haldeman, who had resigned because of the Watergate scandal. The man Nixon picked for the job was Alexander Haig, a general in the U.S. Army. Haig, who had served as the president's chief national security adviser, helped oversee activities at the White House during the final months of Nixon's presidency. Since 1974, Haig has commanded U.S. and NATO forces in Europe. Tomorrow he retires from that job, and some observers have suggested that, at 54, Haig may now pursue a career in business or politics -- or both.

US Treasury increases future oil profit estimate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department has increased by nearly 50 percent its estimate of gross oil company revenues that will result from oil price decontrol.

It now says the companies will reap an additional $94 billion over five years because ceilings are being lifted on domestic oil prices.

The new Treasury estimate came to light Wednesday on the eve of House debate on a proposed "windfall profits" tax designed to reclaim some of those oil company revenues.

Earlier, Treasury officials had estimated that oil companies would take in an additional $65 billion in gross revenues between 1980 and 1984 because of decontrol.

A ranking Treasury official conceded Wednesday the $94 billion figure was more realistic because it used more likely estimates for imported oil costs and future inflation rates.

Emil Sunley, a deputy assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy, said the administration had used the lower figure, based on lower inflation projections, because it did not want to appear to be sanctioning sharper increases in imported oil prices.

In another development Wednesday, Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary told the congressional Joint Economic Committee a gasoline tax of 10 cents a gallon would enable the nation to pay for developing all the synthetic fuel it needs.

O'Leary was careful to say he was not proposing such a tax, but mentioning it only as an example of one way the country could finance energy self-sufficiency.

News

National

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dr. Leon Ring, a former aerospace industry executive, has resigned as general manager of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Ring, 45, said Tuesday he was leaving the $49,500 a year position as the federal utility's chief executive because "the job is evolving into something different than I had envisioned when I accepted it last fall."

He said the general manager's job involved more of a coordinating role than leadership and decision-making. During his eight months with TVA, Ring was responsible for a reorganization of the seven-state agency's senior management.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The second legal casino on the East Coast, Caesars' Boardwalk Regency, has opened to a packed house.

Shunning laudatory speeches and even a ribbon-cutting ceremony, Caesars officials opened the doors at 5 p.m. Tuesday to about 2,500 waiting gamblers and curiosity seekers lined up on the Boardwalk.

Gibb Jones, 52, who was bell captain when the original Howard Johnson's Regency Motor Hotel opened 13 years ago, turned the first card at a baccarat table when the casino opened.

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — A mass trial will be held Sept. 17 for about 300 persons charged in connection with a June 2 protest at the Black Fox nuclear plant construction site near Inola.

Some 339 persons were arrested and charged with entry without permission when they crossed fences onto the 2,200-acre site owned by Public Service Co. of Oklahoma.

MILLINOCKET, Maine (AP) — A 12-day-old ban on drinking water was lifted at an isolated lake on the Allagash Wilderness Waterway, as state health officials announced toxic pesticides levels from a spray plane crash have diminished.

"People may now drink the water and eat the fish from the Eagle Lake area," Donald C. Hoxie, director of the Division of Health Engineering, said Tuesday.

Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House will get a chance to act on a measure that would prohibit the Food and Drug Administration from banning the sugar substitute saccharin at least until June 30, 1981.

The House Commerce Committee approved the legislation Tuesday and sent it to the House floor. Two years ago, the FDA proposed banning saccharin as a food additive because of tests showing it may cause cancer in laboratory animals. But Congress quickly passed a bill ordering an 18-month moratorium on the FDA's proposal.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration must give 24 hours notice before the grounded DC-10 jetliner is allowed back in the skies, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. said Tuesday that the advance notice is necessary so that he can hold a hearing on any objections to the FAA action. His order also requires the FAA to explain in detail any decision allowing the resumption of DC-10 flights. Earlier this month, the FAA suspended the DC-10's type certificate after cracks were found in some of the jets' engine mounts. The cracks were discovered during inspections following the May 25 crash of a DC-10 in Chicago in which 273 persons died.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission and a United Auto Workers political fund have reached a conciliation agreement concerning the fund's contributions to President Carter's 1976 campaign.

The commission said Tuesday that the UAW-V-CAP had agreed to pay a civil penalty of $1,250 because it contributed $6,000 to the Carter campaign, $1,000 more than the legal limit. The fund also agreed to comply with the Federal Elections Campaign Act in the future.

Overseas

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has suggested the 151-member General Assembly trim some fat from its bureaucracy so that it can better deal with the world's problems.

In a report published Tuesday, he said the assembly should "review the usefulness" of special committees and councils that fail to produce concrete recommendations but take up time with their meetings and reports. He also proposed a one-year moratorium on the creation of any new special bodies.

PARIS (AP) — A European buffalo has been born at a wildlife park near Paris, a rare event for the species that is nearly extinct.

The buffalo, which once roamed over most of Europe, rarely breeds in captivity and only 500 are known to exist outside of zoos and parks. Almost all of the wild ones are in Poland.

Southwestern asks for hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. today asked the Texas Public Utility Commission for rate increases that would raise monthly bills for household telephones by $1.55.

The commission is expected to begin hearings on the Bell request in September.

Bell's rate increase package, which also includes higher prices for PBX equipment, Centrex service, key telephones and installation service, would raise the company's revenue by $145.2 million a year.

Of the total, $105 million would come from raising the price of local service — that is, basic rates for home and business telephones.

"Continuing growth and inflation leave us no choice but to ask for increased rates," said Doyle Rogers, the company's vice president for Texas.

Rogers said Bell really needs $242.9 million in new revenue but held down its request because of President Carter's price guidelines.

At Wimbledon

Tracy Austin seeks win

By WINSOR DOBBIN
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — American schoolgirl Tracy Austin launched her bid to become one of Wimbledon's youngest title holders when she met South African Brigitte Cuypers today in the second round of the prestigious tennis championships.

Lottie Dod won Wimbledon in 1887 at the age of 15.

Austin is 16, and is seeded No. 4.

The Rolling Hills, Calif., high school student had to quit last week's Eastbourne tournament with a groin injury but a first-round bye has given her a whole week to recover from that injury, and she felt confident today.

Meanwhile, Bjorn Borg, bidding for a fourth straight men's singles title, was given a fright by Indian No. 1 Vijay Amritraj before winning 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 in the second round Wednesday.

"I thought I would probably lose," said Borg, who at one stage trailed two sets to one and 1-3.

"When we got to 3-1 in the fourth it was vital for him," said Borg. "But he got a little nervous when he realized how important it was."

"I thought that I had been down like that before, and I get more relaxed when I see a match might be slipping away from me."

Relaxed or not, Borg moved into top gear to come back and take the fourth set tiebreaker 7-2. The final set was much smoother sailing.

"When I get relaxed I take a few more chances," said the 23-year-old champion. "I tried to hit winners on service return and mostly I made those shots. I feel I am a better player when I am down a break than when I am level or in front."

Borg, who says this is the toughest draw he has ever had at Wimbledon, has a day to ease a slight leg strain before he meets American Hank Pfister in the third round Friday.

Second-seeded American John McEnroe also had a bumpy ride into the third round.

Astros surprising baseball fans

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Sarcasm still was a part of Houston Astros fandom in early May despite a fast start that had the Astros in first place in the National League's Western Division.

One yarn supposedly went like this:

"Dad, have the Astros ever been in first place before?" a child asked his father as the game watched.

"Sure son," the father replied patronizingly, "but never this late in the season."

Well, look again, Dad.

Even the most confirmed cynic is finding it difficult to ignore the surprising Astros, who still are perched atop the standings in the final days of June.

They've never been in first place this late in the season either and the baseball experts who predicted a typical second-division finish for the Astros this season are putting this strange phenomenon up for laboratory analysis.

It might begin with saliva tests for the Astros pitching staff, which has survived on few runs and key hits and a team earned run average that likely would be leading the league except for a pair of blowouts.

"Any discussion of our success has to start with the pitching staff," Astros Manager Bill Virdon said. "We've had some injuries but we've been able to overcome them and still get the job done."

Ken Forsch got the pitching staff off to a rocking start with a no-hitter in the second game of the season. Forsch later became one of four Astros pitchers to spend time on the 21-day disabled list along with starters Vern Riffe and Frank Riccielli and reliever Tom Dixon.

Randy Niemann and Rick Williams were summoned from the minor leagues to fill the injury gaps and air-tight relief by Joe Sambito has kept the Astros aloft despite lack of hitting.

Niemann has a 2-0 record and 2.18 ERA while Williams is 2-3 with a 2.53 ERA and both victories by shutouts. Sambito yielded a grand slam home run to St. Louis' Roger Freed on May 1 and has since appeared in 17 games and pitched 28 2-3 innings without allowing an earned run.

Knuckleball pitcher Joe Niekro became the first pitcher in the major leagues to win 11 games this season in a string that included a team record nine victories in a row.

"I used to get nervous about everything but now I block everything out and it's only me and the batter," said Sambito. "Then when the game is over I can sit back and relax and look at what I've done and say 'wow.'"

The Astros have not been shelling opposing pitchers. They are getting fewer hits than a year ago and rank near the bottom of the National League in team hitting. But the hits have been timely, and Walling has been the most punctual of all. He started this week with 10 pinch hits in 18 tries for the season.

"I'm elated about this whole team," said Walling, who ended last week hitting .556 as a pinch hitter this season. "I'm happy that I can contribute coming off

Major League roundup

Jim Palmer four-hits Cleveland

By The Associated Press
As if things weren't bad enough for the rest of the American League East, Jim Palmer is alive and well in Baltimore once again.

"It looks like the master's back. Jim Palmer is a master and he pitched a masterpiece," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver crowed after his ace right-hander, recently sidelined for 20 days with tendinitis in his pitching arm, baffled Cleveland with a four-hitter to give the Orioles a 3-1 victory.

"My arm still has a little pain," said Palmer, "but it felt a lot better than it did the last time I pitched."

The triumph kept Boston from cutting into Baltimore's four-game division lead. The Red Sox defeated Detroit 3-1.

"We did everything right," said Palmer, after his five-strikeout, two-walk performance enabled the Orioles to chalk up their 18th victory in the last 20 games. "I even got away with walking two batters in one inning."

The only thing he didn't get away with was feeding a fastball to Toby Harrah leading off the ninth inning. Harrah sent it over the fence for his ninth home run of the season. Still, Palmer, 7-3, a 20-game winner eight of the previous nine seasons, wound up with his first victory since May 29 and first complete game since April 19.

Red Sox 3, Tigers 1
Boston outwaited Pat Underwood, who hurled 7-1-3 innings of three-hit, eight-strikeout ball, and a 43-minute rain delay in the pivotal ninth inning to beat the Tigers.

Champ Summers' homer for Detroit in the seventh inning and Rick Burleson's sacrifice fly in the eighth sent the teams into the ninth tied 1-1.

Royals 10, A's 3
Pete LaCock and Al Cowens each drove in three runs apiece as the Royals battered Oakland for their fifth straight victory. Fred Patek had a two-run single in a four-run fourth inning and Cowens doubled for two runs in a four-run seventh.

Most of the Royals shrugged off Kansas City's charge into a share of first place. "What's to get excited about?" said Darrell Porter. "It's June, not September. We've been there before and there's a long way to go." And Manager Whitey Herzog added: "It's too early to worry about first place."

Rangers 4, Angels 2
Oscar Gamble drove in three Ranger runs, two of them with a third-inning homer, while Steve Comer and Jim Kern teamed for a four-hitter to saddle California with its fifth loss in six games.

Both Comer and the Angels' Nolan Ryan struck out six and walked six batters, but Ryan gave up seven hits, including Gamble's third-inning homer and RBI-single in the first and John Grubb's RBI-double in the sixth. Carney Lansford homered for the Angels.

Brewers 9, Twins 8
Ben Oglivie's 13th and 14th homers of the year, both with the bases empty, and Gorman Thomas' 18th, a two-run shot, helped Milwaukee beat the Twins. Charlie Moore added three runs batted in for the Brewers, who chalked up their eighth victory in 10 games.

Mike Caldwell was staked to a 9-0 lead but needed relief help. Minnesota got three runs in the sixth inning, two on Willie Norwood's single, three more in the seventh, two on Roy Roy Smalley's double, and two in the ninth on Glenn Adams' homer.

Mariners 4, White Sox 3
After Bill Stein tripled with one out in the bottom of the ninth, Chicago's Ken Kravec walked Bobby Valentine and Leon Roberts on purpose to load the bases. But he also walked Ruppert Jones to force in Seattle's winning run.

Cardinals 5, Expos 0
Dane Iorg drove in a run in the first, and Lou Brock drove in two more with a single in the Cards three-run second inning. Steve Rogers, 7-5, who last Saturday came within 11-3 innings of a no-hitter against Philadelphia, was the victim.

Cubs 11, Phils 4
Dave Kingman, Jerry Martin and pitcher Mike Krukow each slugged homers for Chicago in what deteriorated into a beanball contest between Krukow and Philadelphia pitcher Kevin Saucier, both of whom were ejected. Saucier started the exchange by bouncing a pitch off Steve Ontiveros after relieving in the fifth inning. In the top of the seventh, Krukow hit Garry Maddox with a pitch.

Krukow then led off the bottom of the seventh at the plate, and Saucier hit Krukow in the left shoulder with his first pitch. After reaching first, Krukow hollered at Saucier, and Saucier charged toward him. Both benches emptied, and after things settled down the pitchers were ejected.

Mets 12, Pirates 9
Willie Montanez and Steve Henderson hit consecutive home runs as New York rallied for five runs in the ninth inning in a game enlivened by five lead changes in the last three innings.

An unearned run in the seventh gave the Mets a 4-3 lead, but Ed Ott sent the Pirates back ahead with a two-run homer in the bottom of the inning.

The Mets came back with three runs in the top of the eighth as Pittsburgh committed two more errors, but Tim Lincecum's two-run double keyed a four-run explosion in the bottom of the eighth for Pittsburgh.

Giants 6, Astros 3
Willie McCovey's RBI single broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning, when San Francisco scored three runs, and the Giants spoiled the return to action of no-hit pitcher Ken Forsch, on the disabled list since May 17.

Forsch, who threw the season's only no-hitter April 7 against Atlanta, took a three-hitter into the eighth.

Enos Cabell homered in the fourth for the Astros, who lost for only the second time in 10 games.

Reds 9, Dodgers 1
Rick Auerbach and Johnny Bench each had three RBI, and Reds right-hander Fred Norman, 4-7, threw a six-hitter to beat the Dodgers.

Joe Morgan ignited the Reds' four-run fifth inning with a home run, his fourth, and Bench capped Cincinnati's three-run sixth with a two-run single.

Padres 2-2, Braves 1-5
San Diego rallied for two runs in the ninth inning of the opener, winning the game when Braves starter Phil Niekro walked Kurt Bevacqua with the bases loaded. Niekro, 9-10, had a three-hit shutout going into the ninth, but three consecutive singles, the third by Fernando Gonzalez, produced the Padres' first run. Rolie Fingers, 7-5, was the winner in relief of Randy Jones.

In the nightcap, Glenn Hubbard drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to give the Braves a split. Hubbard's second double drove in two runs in the sixth inning.

Joe McLaughlin, 1-1, earned the victory in relief of Larry McWilliams. McLaughlin retired 10 straight batters at one point.

Gil Morgan recalls golfing past

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gil Morgan's 3-under-par 69 in the pro-am preliminary to today's start of the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic led him to think about how things have changed since 1972.

"I tried to qualify here as an amateur and didn't," Morgan said.

In 1972, Morgan was a senior at Memphis Southern College of Optometry. He's entitled to call himself "Dr." now, but he hasn't had a chance to practice his other profession.

"Up until last year it was full-time job just getting established on the tour," the 33-year-old Wewoka, Okla., resident said.

Last year was a good year, he said. Morgan won the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, the World Series of Golf, earned $267,459 and brought his career total to more than $550,000.

In 11 tournaments, he finished in the top 10 and wound up the year 28th among PGA money winners. He didn't have to worry about qualifying at Memphis.

After his pro-am round over the sunny Colonial Country Club course, Morgan was relaxed and happy with his score. But he refused to see his game as a forerunner of things to come.

"It was a strong day, but it could have been better," he said. "The greens were fairly quick and fairly true."

But Morgan said he was still feeling the effects of an old wrist injury and a back problem he picked up several weeks ago. And then there's the big lake at the 18th green.

"I always seem to knock it in

NBC to televise Wimbledon

By CHRISTY BARBEE
AP Sports Writer
Devotees of Daffy Duck, Buford and The Galloping Ghost and The Jetsons may suffer a little, but it's all in the name of television history and one man's belief in the sanctity of Wimbledon.

NBC will defy the Saturday late-sleeping habits of tennis fans and the cartoon-viewing regimen of millions when it telecasts live coverage of the men's tennis final at Wimbledon July 7 at 8 a.m. CDT.

It will be the first time Wimbledon action will be seen in America as it happens. Because of the time difference between continents, diehards for years have had to hide out from radios and early afternoon newspapers in order to avoid learning the results from Wimbledon before the afternoon telecast.

NBC will provide 10 1/2 hours of coverage, starting with the telecast this Saturday from 4 to 5:30 p.m. CDT. Highlights of 15 minutes will be telecast each week day next week at 11:30 p.m. EDT. Viewers in the Pacific and Mountain zones should check local listing for possible time differences.

The live final is a real gamble. "I really have no feeling yet for whether this will be a huge success or a miserable failure," says Jeff Mason, the network's vice president for European productions and the enthusiastic producer for Wimbledon.

"But we feel that's the way the event should be treated. This is Wimbledon, one of the most prestigious sporting events in the world, a class act."

And, he says, Wimbledon is the single event for which he could see troubled NBC do battle to its last breath should another network loosen its 11-year hold on it.

"I think the guy at home really likes class acts."

He acknowledges, though, that were he to be in the States on July 7 he might well sleep until 10 a.m., figuring that he might not miss too much in the first outrageously early hour.

"But I hope there aren't too many of those types around," he says, "and I hope they'll make an exception in this case."

The probability for dismal ratings would seem high. Add to the unusual hour the fact that tennis telecasts generally draw small audiences, smaller than those for golf.

But Wimbledon, which started last Monday, does boast some eye-opening attractions this year. The rivalries that could come to the fore are more interesting than they've been in recent years. And NBC has assembled a fine team for the coverage.

Bud Collins and Donald Dell are the best, and really the only experienced tennis commentators on TV. Billie Jean King, who is playing singles and doubles here and vying for a record 20th Wimbledon title (singles and doubles included), will provide commentary on the women's action. And Dick Enberg, doing Wimbledon for the first time, will provide continuity.

John McEnroe, the 20-year-old American left-hander, has a real shot at the final, which would prevent a third consecutive Bjorn Borg-Jimmy Connors show.

And Borg could achieve a mark not reached since 1913. He could win a fourth consecutive Wimbledon crown, becoming the first man since New Zealand's Tony Wilding to do so.

Connors gave organizers a big scare. He nearly passed up the hallowed event to be with his pregnant wife in the States, but doctors said she probably would not deliver until later in July.

His chances seem slimmer than ever, given his inconsistent play so far this year, Borg's domination at Wimbledon and McEnroe's constantly growing prowess.

TEXAS LAKE MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

FRITCH—A cove sampling of fish populations in Lake Meredith in the Texas Panhandle provided no surprises for Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fishery personnel last week.

"Lake Meredith continues to lose water due to the lack of natural runoff and this lack of water is having an effect on the fish," said Joe Kraai, P&WD fishery biologist.

"We completed a cove sample last week in Meredith and found few small fish which is an indication of a lack of survival of the recently spawned fish," Kraai continued.

The fish biologist pointed out that as the lake level drops, the natural cover necessary for the survival of fish is eliminated. This decrease in the population of fish including bass and forage fish such as shad will not necessarily affect fishing this year or even next year, but will reduce the number of catchable-sized game fish in two or three years.

Another aspect of the recent survey was to determine the impact of smallmouth bass in Lake Meredith. The smallmouths were first introduced into the lake in 1974. The cove survey last week turned in approximately 1,500 smallmouth bass with nearly all of them this year's spawn.

Even though there was a good spawn of smallmouths this spring, most of them will not survive due to the reduced water level.

These facts gathered by the P&WD fishery division is part of the management program to provide optimum recreation for the state's fisherman. The important cove sampling surveys that are scheduled for other northwest Texas lakes will help the P&WD determine the standing crops of fish and their management needs.

TEXAS GAME WARDEN PROFILE

DUMAS—The high plains of the Texas Panhandle furnishes plenty of habitat for a wide variety of wildlife according to Stanley Brooks, Texas game warden, assigned to Moore and Sherman counties.

The biggest increase in game is the popular ring-necked pheasant that resides in the grain fields of Moore county. According to the P&WD warden, quail, dove, turkey and deer are about normal in population. The warden has noted a decrease in the antelope herds during the last few months.

Very few landowners allow hunting of any kind in Moore county and Brooks stated that trespassing and road hunting are the two major problems.

Brooks has little public water in his area, but works the Lake Meredith Recreation Area where anglers find ample walleye, catfish and white bass. The warden noted that smallmouth bass fishing is becoming very good at Meredith.

The Texas warden also works water safety on Lake Meredith and has found the lack of life preservers (PFD's) the most pressing violation.

The Moore County resident is a native of Roaring Springs and has been with the P&WD for 16 years upon graduating from the game warden school in June of 1963. Brooks has been stationed at Dumas for the past 12 years.

Brooks, along with his wife, Janie, and three children: 16-year-old James, 12-year-old Barry and 8-year-old Quentin, reside in Dumas.

Brooks can be contacted by either calling his office or home at (806) 935-4893.

Baseball experiences many changes

By The Associated Press Some people may recall when the chief attraction at a major league baseball game was the game itself. There was raw drama in a Babe Ruth home run and tingling excitement when Ty Cobb charged into second base, spikes flying. In National League voting Larry Bowa leads at shortstop balloting announced today are for catcher, first base and the outfield. Besides Bowa, other tentative starters for the NL with the balloting deadline just a week away include Philadelphia's Pete Rose, first base; Dave Lopes of Los Angeles, second base; the Phillies' Mike Schmidt, third base; Ted Simmons of St. Louis, catcher, and outfielders Dave Parker of Pittsburgh, Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Winfield of San Diego.

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Bowa of Philadelphia moved back in front of Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion in their race to be the National League starter at shortstop in the 50th All-Star Game to be held July 17 in Seattle.

Either Bowa or Concepcion has started at shortstop for the National League since 1974. Concepcion, who was No.2 behind Bowa in the balloting two weeks ago and was the leader last week by a slim 2,279 votes, once again trails. The latest count shows Bowa with 904,495 votes to 894,261 for Concepcion.

PLAINVIEW—Entries are now being accepted for the Plainview Open Tennis Tournament.

The tournament is scheduled for July 13, 14 and 15. At 8:30 a.m. on the 13th will be the juniors. At 8:30 a.m. on July 14, the juniors will have their finals while the adults start competition. At 1 p.m. on Sunday the 15th, the adult finals are scheduled.

Winfield is in an extremely tight battle with George Foster of Cincinnati for the third starting outfield spot while Simmons moved ahead of Cincinnati's Johnny Bench as catcher.

Chicago's Dave Kingman, the major league home run leader, and Philadelphia's Garry Maddox are fifth and sixth, respectively.

Racing dispute continues

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The dispute between the U.S. Auto Club and Championship Auto Racing Teams will apparently go unresolved through 1979, with each organization conducting its own races.

rejected by USAC, which sanctions and conducts the race. However, they were restored after practice began under court order.

Pat Patrick, president of CART, said Wednesday his organization had rejected USAC's latest offer and planned to conduct its own races for the balance of the season.

Ray Smartis, general manager of the Ontario, Calif., Motor Speedway, which hosts a USAC-sanctioned 500-mile race in September, acted as mediator in the latest effort to end the stalemate.

On Sunday, USAC President Dick King said he didn't expect further talks concerning the split that has left his organization without most of the sport's top drivers.

He met with CART and USAC officials this month in an effort to have drivers like veterans A. J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, and Al and Bobby Unser competing in the Sept. 2 race along with Danny Ongais, Tom Sneva and Indy 500 winner Rick Mears.

Patrick announced CART's decision in a statement from his office in Jackson, Mich. He said the decision was reached after a meeting Tuesday of CART's board of directors.

However, this now appears unlikely since Foyt is aligned with USAC while the others are driving for CART.

The feud, which led to the formation of CART last year when USAC's board rejected demands from the car owners who formed the group, has been a bitter one. In April, 19 entries from six CART teams for the Indianapolis 500 were

A proposal by CART earlier this month called for an "immediate truce," incorporating remaining 1979 races into one schedule with representatives from both sides officiating the races.

Middleweight title scheduled

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — A confident and relaxed Hugo Corro says Vito Antufermo's attacking style will work against him in Saturday night's world middleweight title bout Saturday night.

this Italian Riviera resort "because I like this city and because it is good to me." The Argentinian won the world title here last year by decision over Colombian veteran Rodrigo Valdes.

Italian-born fighter who lives in New York, said from his training camp in Genoa that he also is confident about Saturday's fight.

"Antufermo is an attacker and I think my boxing will especially benefit from this," the champion said Wednesday before leaving San Remo for Monte Carlo, where the fight is scheduled in an outdoor arena.

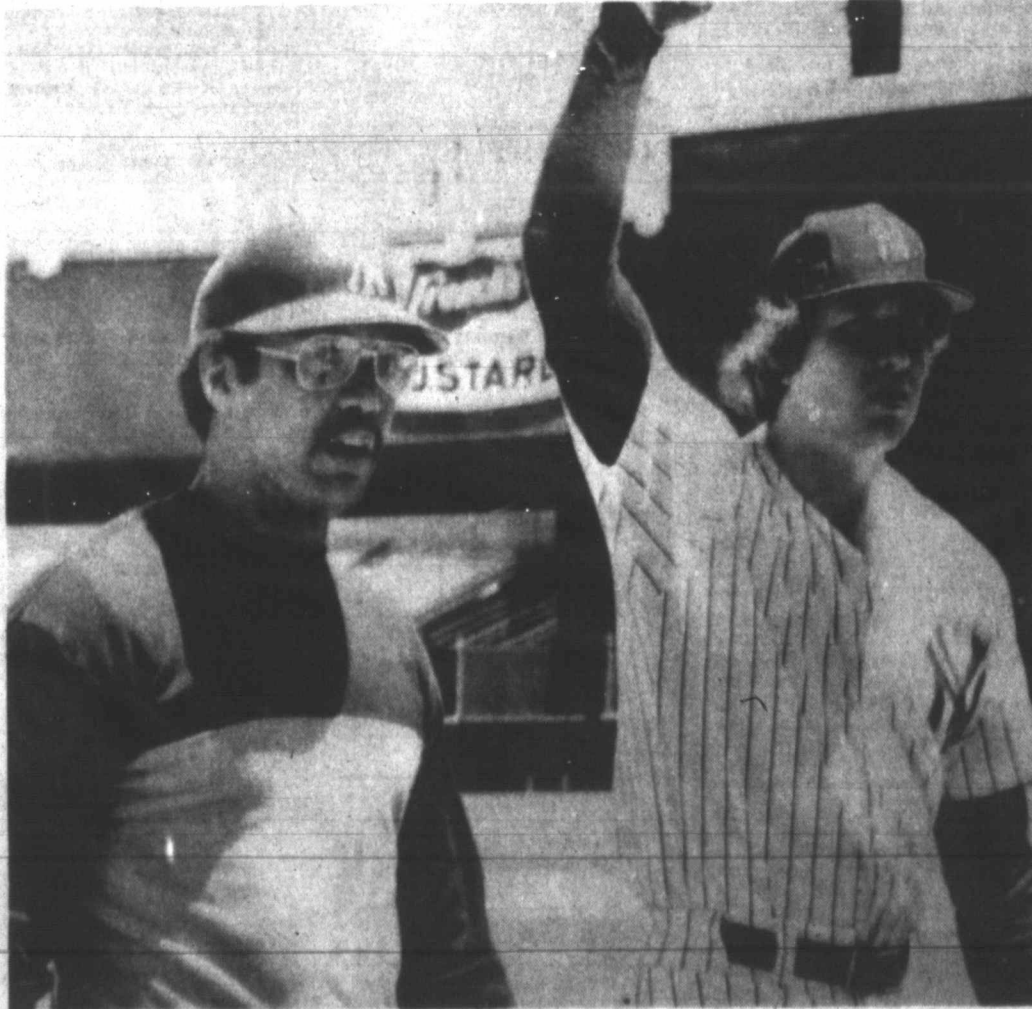

Corro smiled when asked about his reputed weight problem.

"I know that Corro is saying he is certain of victory. It is normal. I will upset his confidence," Antufermo said.

"It is the same any time before my fights. I am always above the limit during preparation," he said.

The fight will be telecast live in most Latin American countries, in the United States, Canada, Italy, Britain and in a few Asian countries.

TENNIS
KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Erik van Dillen and his brother-in-law, Fred McNeil scored second-round victories in a $25,000 tennis tournament. Van Dillen defeated Joel Bailey 7-6, 6-0 while McNeil upended David Siegler, who was coming off his first-round upset of NCAA champion Kevin Curren, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1.

Vince Van Patten, the 21-year-old son of actor Dick Van Patten, overcame a 2-4 deficit in the second set to defeat India's Sashi Menon 6-3, 7-6.

TABLE TENNIS
UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Jindrich Pansky of Czechoslovakia, No. 1 seed in the under-21-year-old division, reached the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open table tennis championships by defeating Scott Bogus 21-6, 21-10, 21-7 at the Nassau Coliseum.

Earlier, Pansky ousted Lars Stener of Sweden 21-23, 21-16, 21-9 and Matt Backstrom, also of Sweden; 21-11, 21-12, 21-7. Eric Bogan, brother of Scott, was a 21-19, 21-8, 23-21 victor over Mike Baber.

FOOTBALL
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Legislation aimed at forcing the National Football League to allow another team to move to Los Angeles when the Rams move out was approved by the State Assembly.

The bill was sent to the Senate on a 43-26 Assembly vote. It would let the State Athletic Commission take legal action against the NFL if the league's club owners blocked a replacement team from coming to Los Angeles, and if the commission found that the city would support a team financially.

Wimbledon still queen

By WILL GRIMSLEY
 AP Special Correspondent
 They once called her "The Old Lady of Worple Road." She has changed residences — to Church Street near the Wimbledon Common in 1921 — but she still is an old lady — aristocratic, austere, stubborn and changeless. She is the undisputed dowager queen of tennis tournaments.

She is Wimbledon.

Her official title is the All-England Tennis Championship, a pompous nomenclature that even she spurns. Wimbledon is enough. She sets the tone and dictates the seats of royalty for the entire game.

Nobody's a world champion until he or she wins Wimbledon.

Although a crusty dame of 102, she is presiding this week and next over the most interesting youth movement in all of sports. In almost every other spectator pastime, recognized champions are showing signs of brittleness and rust.

Not tennis. Not at Wimbledon.

During this dedicated fortnight attention is focused on a pair of kids who are not yet over growing pains — John Patrick McEnroe, Jr., of Douglaston, N. Y., just turned 20, a fiery lefthander who is perhaps the most skilled player in the game, and Tracy Ann Austin of Rolling Hills Estates, Calif., sweet 16, an intense, unshakable tyke with a mind of steel.

They represent the new order. This may or may not be their year at Wimbledon. But what tennis expert dares say it couldn't be? If not this year, almost certainly the next.

They are the harbingers of the 1980s. Watch them well. They might well dominate the men's and women's ranks for the next decade.

Except in women's golf, where 22-year-old Nancy Lopez is threatening to take charge, no other major sport presents such a young and fresh facade.

In boxing, Muhammad Ali is fat and retired. The man with the best credentials for succeeding him is Larry Holmes, approaching 30 and virtually unknown. The only youth in contention, Leon Spinks, 25, was ignominiously destroyed in the first round last week-end in South Africa. Olympian John Tate, 24, is a raw rookie.

The two-time world baseball champions, the New York Yankees, are aging and ailing. Of the front liners, only two — Willie Randolph and Bucky Dent — are under 30.

Only tennis is offering a "new look."

McEnroe and Austin brist upon the Wimbledon scene simultaneously two years ago. McEnroe was just a junior then, with no thought of getting into the tournament proper. He became a sensation when he smashed into the semifinals, youngest male ever to do so. Tracy looked frail and lost when she came onto center court in her doll dress but spectators quickly recognized her as a poised 14-year-old with the head and basic skills of an adult.

Since then, both have matured immeasurably. McEnroe has won the Grand Prix Masters and the WCT finals in Dallas, beating both Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors. Tracy has scored significant victories over both Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova, her chief rivals.

These kids have all the ingredients. Now we can only wait and see.
