Labeled as 'domestic summit'

Carter reviews policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, having canceled an energy policy speech, today continued what was described as "almost a domestic summit" that may keep him cloistered at Camp David, Md., well into next week.

Carter also scrapped plans to address a meeting of the nation's governors but called a group of state executives to Camp David.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said that while the key issues were energy and the economy, "the discussions will not be limited to those subjects." He declined to elaborate.

This source said the president "decided now is the time" to review a broad range of domestic policy questions.

The consultations began Thursday when Vice President Walter F. Mondale led a group of Carter advisers to the mountaintop retreat, where the president took his family Tuesday for a short holiday.

In Atlanta, the secretary to Charles Kirbo, an attorney and Carter confidant, said Kirbo was flying to Washington, presumably to see the president. The White House has promised consultations "both in and outside of government."

The White House official said "the president will not be returning to Washington until he's seen the people he wants to see, and has had time to assess what he has heard."

Also summoned to Camp David for talks tonight were Gov. Julian Carroll of Kentucky, chairman of the National Governors Association, and a "representative group" of other state executives.

Carter canceled plans for a weekend trip to Louisville for the summer meeting of the governors group. He announced that Mrs. Carter and Mondale would make the trip instead.

Mondale and top advisers to Carter spent Thursday night at Camp David and most apparently will remain there with the president at least through the weekend to conduct a series of meetings.

A presidential aide, who asked not to be named, said Carter had set no date for the end of the conference.

Besides Mondale, the aides at Camp David were press secretary Jody Powell, political adviser Hamilton Jordan, media adviser Gerald Rafshoon, domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat and pollster Patrick Caddell.

With reasons for the speech cancellation still cloaked in mystery, White House press secretary Jody Powell issued through his office Thursday evening a brief statement that raised as many questions as it answered.

Powell said, in full: "The president is in the process of assessing major domestic issues which he believes are important to the country and which include, but go beyond, the question of energy."

"He will be consulting with a number of individuals whose judgment he respects, both in and outside of government."

The canceled speech, set for television-radio broadcast Thursday night, was to have dealt with inflation and the threat of a recession, as well as with energy.

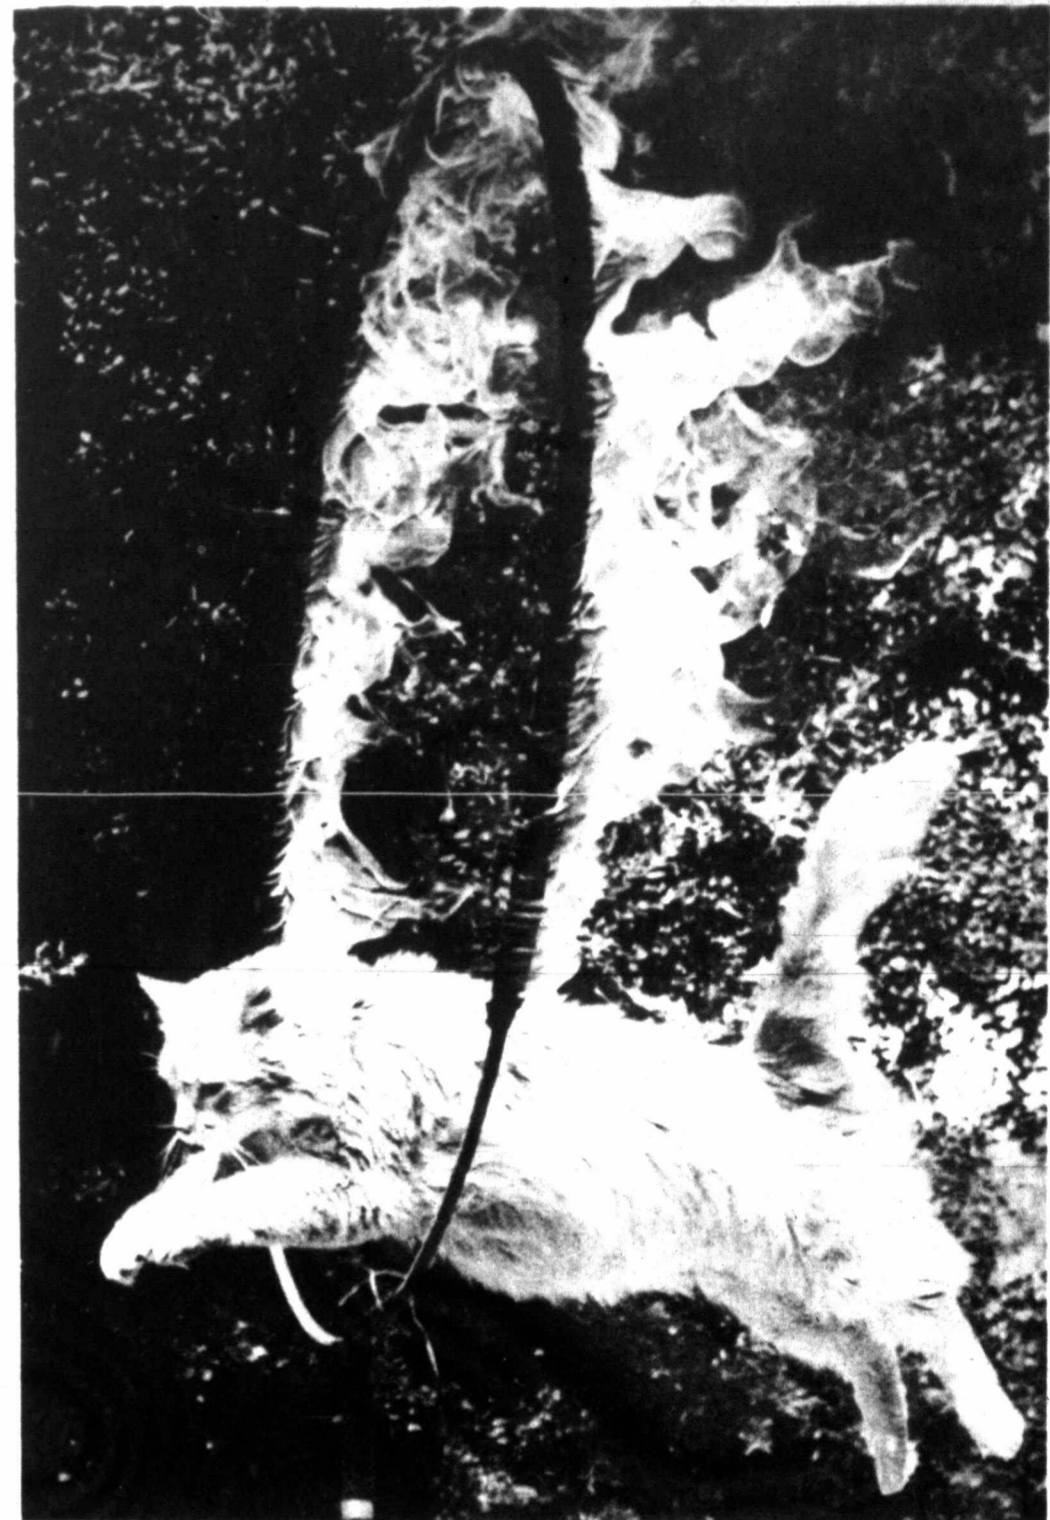

A White House source, who asked not to be named, said Carter's motives for shelving the address went beyond dissatisfaction with a draft text.

This source said it would not be incorrect to say Carter was displeased with the draft. But he added, "That's not the whole story. I'm not in a position to discuss it further at this time."

Another source, discussing the speech draft, said Carter "asked for a bold new approach and the material he got turned out to be not so bold and not so new."

Both The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution reported in today's editions that the speech cancellation resulted from a deep split among Carter's top advisers over whether to remove all controls from gasoline and let it seek a free market — both in price and availability — or to keep controls, perhaps even rationing.

The Times said Schlesinger, Blumenthal and some others urged the president to remove controls while Mondale and others warned him that to do so would be political suicide.

On tax assessments

Just one complaint

After meeting for an hour this morning as the Board of Equalization, Gray County commissioners had heard only one complaint concerning an increase in local taxes.

And that single citizen went home owing the county $12 less instead of $13 more than his tax bill for last year.

County tax assessor-collector Jack Back said his office mailed out approximately 1200 notices of increases in assessed valuation this year. County tax offices were required by law this year to notify taxpayers whose property had increased in assessed value by $100 or more.

Back said his office had received "a number" of calls about increases, but that most problems were "worked out over the phone."

County Clerk Wanda Carter said "two or three people" generally appear at the annual tax hearings, but that there is usually not a large turnout.

The single "protest" lodged with the Equalization Board during the first hour of the session involved a man whose assessed property value had been increased $980 over last year, amounting to a tax increase of $13.72.

Tax assessor-collector deputy Alicia Heil said the increase was due to the addition of a patio at the man's home.

But homeowners are allowed to claim a regular homestead deduction, which eliminates a state tax of 10 cents and the county road tax of 30 cents on assessed property value up to $3000.

Consequently, after signing up for the deduction which deputy Heil says has been a part of the law since the nineteenth century, the single property owner was able to get a $12 reduction in taxes over last year.

Heil said she had no estimate of the number of people who are not taking advantage of this standard deduction. But she said a "great many" property owners do take advantage of the regular homestead.

All that is required, Heil said, is proof that one owns, or is in the process of buying, the home in which one lives.

Persons over 65 are also eligible for the senior citizens deduction which eliminates all tax but the 5 cents per $100 valuation water district levy. Other deductions are available to disabled veterans.

Francis indicted

Kevin Francis, a former Pampa resident, has reportedly been indicted by a Potter County grand jury in Amarillo for solicitation of murder.

Thursday night an Amarillo television station reported Francis was named in a sealed indictment by the grand jury in connection with the October 1977 slaying of clothier Frank Potts.

Francis, who testified before the jury Tuesday, was Potts' business partner.

Francis operated a clothing store in Pampa until about 2½ years ago, when he moved to Amarillo. He is reportedly planning to return here with another store.

Traffic enforcement funds cut

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

Funding for the Pampa Police Department's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) will be eliminated when the program comes up for renewal in October, the department learned Thursday.

Police say loss of the program will eventually mean more traffic accidents within the city.

STEP, aimed at enforcing traffic laws and preventing accidents, is funded through a federal grant administered by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation's Office of Traffic Safety. The program has been in effect in Pampa since October 1975.

Allen Monroe, an Office of Traffic Safety employee who monitors Panhandle STEP programs, was in Pampa Thursday to warn Police Chief J.J. Ryzman that money for STEP will not be available next year.

"I just got word last Tuesday that the Pampa contract won't be re-funded because the department is cutting funds throughout the state," Monroe said in a telephone interview. "Shortage of funds" was the only reason given in Austin for the cuts, Monroe said.

The Berger STEP and part of Amarillo's STEP are also designated to be cut, he said.

STEP is funded from October to October. Pampa received $18,000 for its current program.

Under the local program, 10 off-duty officers are paid STEP funds to work extra hours patrolling accident-prone areas, such as North Hobart Street and Highway 60. STEP provides an additional 150 to 160 hours of traffic enforcement per month, Ryzman said.

"I think it's been real successful," Ryzman said. "As the town has grown, we've pretty well kept the accident rate without a big increase in proportion to the growth in population. I think that's a pretty big accomplishment."

For example, he said, there were three less accidents in the past three months than during the same period a year ago.

"Sometimes just the presence of a patrol car in the area helps reduce accidents," Ryzman said. Losing the program "would really be unfortunate," he said.

Monroe said the STEP allocation for Pampa was cut June 13 to $17,500, then eliminated entirely at a later highway department meeting.

"We had anticipated a smaller budget for Pampa, but then they cut it out altogether," he said. Killing the program makes no sense to him, he added.

"The department is pushing the 55 (speed limit) real hard," Monroe said. "It seems to me they would recognize the fact that selective traffic enforcement helps hold the speed down."

"I don't understand the reasoning behind it, but I guess it's not for me to understand."

A long-term increase in accidents seems inevitable without STEP, Ryzman said.

"All I can go by is that the program has helped reduce accidents," he said. "Eventually, I guess, accidents will increase. I don't think it's anything that will be instant."

Monroe said he hopes money can be found somehow to continue the program.

"I haven't given up hope yet," he concluded.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A taste of freedom

We have often said that there is no such thing as a little bit of socialism: it will continue to grow until it becomes the complete authoritarian state. Now we have cause to wonder if, within an authoritarian state, the same thing can be said of capitalism?

Perhaps a recent story in The Wall Street Journal sheds light on the question. It begins with: "The 240 workers at the First of May factory here in Communist Hungary are satisfying a very capitalist demand these days, each producing one pair of Levi's every 13.8 minutes."

The story tells of Levi Strauss & Co.'s first plant behind the Iron Curtain. The business was financed by the Hungarian government. An official said, "We wanted to meet the demands of our youth for American jeans. From our point of view it is a complete success."

The most productive workers receive more than twice the salary of other First of May employees. This is not the only way Hungarian Communist leaders seek to satisfy the expanding middle class desires of their 10.7 million people. They plan to introduce other free market ideas in many state businesses. Privately owned shops and enterprises are also being encouraged.

The long-standing second, or "black," economy is growing with officials tending to wink at the activity. In this, private transactions occur without government approval or, in many cases, without government knowledge.

Many people earn nearly twice as much from activity in undercover enterprise as they could from sanctioned or state jobs. This is giving a heavy boost to consumer buying power and since such enterprise escapes all taxation, there is added thrust toward a healthy economy. (U.S. officials who would solve all problems with more taxes, please note.)

The success of this private enterprise approach is viewed as a solidifying element of control for the Communist regime. Officials believe that it helps to keep people content and makes their own jobs easier.

All is not completely rosy in Hungary, however: the heavy authoritarian hand can and does fall hard on those who incur official antipathy. And there are many who resent the people who gain so much from the second economy.

The taste of the rewards for extra enterprise is strong medicine. Choices which give people a glimpse of the benefits from private enterprise might easily develop into a strong move away from the socialist authoritarian state. There could be stronger motivation for the Hungarian people to dump communism and embrace capitalism than that which is moving us toward socialism.

The good life under private enterprise is never fully appreciated while we still have most of it. We continue to put our heads in the noose while we reach for some seeming immediate gain.

If the people of Communist Hungary get much more of the taste of individual freedom, only the controlling officials will lose. All our people, save the few officials, will lose if we continue the course toward socialism and the authoritarian state.

Money or coupons

There's more ludicrous news on the energy front: Even if Congress eventually approves a standby gasoline rationing program, the federal government lacks the capacity to print the necessary rationing coupons.

The Treasury Department's Bureau of Printing and Engraving already is operating "seven days a week, three shifts a day" to meet the country's needs for paper currency and postage stamps, according to a bureau official.

Government experts estimate that a nationwide rationing program would require distribution of 4.8 billion coupons during a three-month emergency, with another 1.6 billion coupons necessary for each additional month.

Even after contracting with two private bank note producers to perform much of the printing job, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving estimates it would have to turn out 600 million coupons a month.

But "we have absolutely no excess capacity," says the bureau official, warning that it might be necessary to "curtail currency production." In other words, the public would get gasoline coupons but little new money.

Quest for freedom behind Iron Curtain

"How many divisions," Josef Stalin once snorted, "does the pope have?" Divisions, the late Soviet dictator and genocidist would now be chagrined to find out, the pope has many-fold. Unarmed divisions. The faithful, the subjected, the Eastern Europeans who have not known freedom since before the second world war.

In strictly strategic terms these men and women and children who have been flocking to Pope John Paul II throughout his journey to Poland, his Soviet-dominated homeland, could hold more power to shift the course of history than all the armaments the Kremlin commands. In spiritual terms they have already, in one astonishing week, reasserted the individual's precedence over the state.

And not only were they merely Poles celebrating a native son's successful entry into the history books. Czechs and Hungarians pushed their way to the Polish border, braving police cordons and machine guns, so that they too might establish their presence somewhere along the pope's historic route.

The Communist government in Warsaw, never successful in expunging religion in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic nation, took a few awkward measures - sending out a message, for example, that only authorized people could attend papal ceremonies - to hold the fervor in check. But government functionaries knew before they started that such feeble steps would fail.

In Moscow, Premier Brezhnev and his cronies, more remote yet from the mass spiritual movement, surely felt even more helpless in containing the crowds. In recent years, ferment in Poland and other East European nations had begun to weaken the grip of Stalin's heirs. The pope's travels throughout their turf have now seriously undermined geopolitical foundations carefully constructed since Hitler's demise with Leninist precision.

And the threat is serious. Historically the Kremlin has responded to such springtimes with the crushing deployment of tanks and the pounding of jackboots. The pope deliberately fanned flames, instilling expectations of a flowering of human rights and liberty. We may expect a reprise of Prague 1968 or Belgrade 1956.

And yet Pope John Paul II may have accelerated a force that has not been paralleled since Gandhi, orchestrating his barefoot and starving masses, stared the British down and out of India. In Poland he witnessed one of the non-pareil events of the century. Where it stops, nobody knows.

We can blame profiteering oil companies.

Or we can blame a bungling Energy Department.

But we aren't doing much blaming of ourselves for the chaotic situation we've gotten ourselves into at this stage of the fuel shortage.

We should. Instead of rising to the challenge, Americans seem to prefer challenging each other. ## Ill wind for whom?

It sounds ominous.

A hot, dry wind sweeping through the nation's grain belt in late spring severely damaged the winter wheat crop. As a result, the harvest is expected to fall short of expectations by a billion bushels or more.

What to do? Buy from the United States. The nation with the wheat problem - again - is the Soviet Union. And what they say about ill winds would appear to be true in this case. It has blown to the advantage of U.S. farmers who are anticipating a bumper crop just as the Soviets are ready to make huge purchases to cover their shortfall.

They have nowhere else to buy. Of the four major wheat exporting nations, three - Canada, Australia and Argentina - are either having their own production and distribution problems or have already committed this year's surplus. By late June, the Soviets had already bought more than 100 million bushels of U.S. wheat, plus other grains, and that would appear to be just the beginning.

As a consequence, the price of U.S. wheat is climbing, farmers have a boom to make up for a string of bad years and a lot of the steam - at least for wheat growers - has gone out of the protest movement that during the past year or so has propelled caravans of tractors along the interstates and through the streets of the capital to make the nation forcefully aware of the farmers' complaints with depressed prices.

The sales, which are likely to be boosted additionally by large Chinese and East European purchases, should also provide a welcome assist to the U.S. balance of payments.

Reports of a shriveled Soviet harvest began circulating some weeks back, reviving memories of 1972. That was the year of their last big wheat crop failure when the Soviets eventually were forced to buy 1.2 billion bushels abroad. They moved quickly and quietly. Before Americans, including those supposedly running the show in Washington, were aware of what was happening, about a quarter of the U.S. crop had been acquired at cut-rate prices.

The big money that year was realized not by farmers but by a handful of big grain dealers handling the Soviet purchases. The U.S. wheat reserve was exhausted, domestic prices shot up and initiated a general upward spiraling in food prices.

Washington now assures this cannot happen again. The United States this time has a much larger reserve which can be drawn upon to meet both foreign purchases and fill domestic needs. With constant satellite monitoring of weather and crop conditions, the Soviets can no longer hide their needs and buy secretly. A closer check is kept on the traditionally secretive U.S. grain dealers, required to report regularly on the grain flow and call attention to especially large sales. And under an agreement resulting from the 1972 fiasco, the Soviets must have authorization from Washington in order to buy more than a set amount each year.

And yet. As 1972 demonstrated, the price of wheat has a widespread effect on food prices in general. As it climbs, bread is perhaps the least significant food product that becomes more expensive. With rising demand and prices for wheat, less is used as livestock feed.

That translates into greater demand for corn and other grains for feed use. And that translates into higher prices for these grains.

And that translates into higher livestock prices. And for the consumer, that translates into...

To repeat, it sounds ominous. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Russian solidarity

The more than 99 percent turnout of eligible voters in Soviet Union elections is not so remarkable when consideration is given to the incentives.

The polling places are gaily decorated. Snacks are provided. Block wardens - with far more clout than even a Chicago precinct captain - give pointed warnings to the reluctant.

And the balloting process is simple. Pick the ballot at one end of the table and drop it in the box at the other end - no fooling around with messy marking pens or voting machine levers.

A voting booth is provided, but it's a relatively lonely place. Only those who wish to vote "no" to the single party slate or write in their favorite candidate need slip behind the curtain. Very, very few of the electors utilize the option under the watchful eye of faithful Communist Party workers. There's no benefit in being conspicuous.

Not surprisingly, the party vote very nearly matches the total of ballots cast.

Such is the solidarity possible under the Soviet brand of "democracy."

By tank car

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Railroads remain America's most under-utilized transportation mode. This is apparent as one considers the continuing oil crisis.

This past winter, much attention was devoted to ways of moving Alaskan oil. Everyone talked about pipelines or the problem of getting new ones constructed. Not a word was said about the oil-carrying capacity of the railroads.

Trains Magazine reminds us, however, of the ability of America's railroads to move oil by unit trains.

In the summer of 1941, tank cars were delivering a mere 11,250 barrels of oil a day to the East. Then German submarines pounced on the tankers. Until pipelines could be built, the nation's railroads were given the job of moving the oil. According to Trains, "tank cars soon were delivering more than a million barrels of oil a day to the East."

What the railroads did a generation ago, in the era of steam locomotives, they could do today. Indeed, in 1978 Southern Pacific said it was "ready and willing" to run 1.6 million-gallon unit trains.

That this offer hasn't been utilized is evidence that Americans today don't think in terms of railroads. They don't appreciate the capabilities of the iron horse. Other industrial nations are very mindful of the railroads as the basic transportation system, and stress modernization of rail facilities.

For almost a half century, public money has been poured into airports and highways. The nation's track system has been allowed to deteriorate, though improvements are being made in some areas at long last.

The energy crisis also has given some indication that passenger railroading isn't dead, as almost everyone believed. Soaring gasoline prices have resulted in a huge spurt in the number of Americans riding Amtrak, the government-funded passenger rail service.

If passengers turn to Amtrak, with all its imperfections, one wonders what their reaction would be if privately-operated rail services were available through the thickly populated corridors outside the Northeast. Such services would be feasible if rail operating unions were required to abandon 19th century work rules. New, fast trains ought to be attractive to travelers. In Britain and on the European continent, high speed expresses - many of them traveling in excess of 100 mph - are immensely popular.

The railroad is still the most effective way of moving heavy loads over long distances. If the Congress fails to consider the rail option in America's transportation network, it is missing a great opportunity.

An $18 billion elephant

a domestic synthetic rubber industry after the Japanese conquest of Southeast Asia cut off supplies of the natural product.

But if there are similarities with that achievement, there are also crucial differences. The question mark in the case of synthetic fuels is not technological feasibility or even so much availability of natural supplies as it is price.

Initial cost of synthetic fuel would be high, up to $10 or more above recent prices for imported natural crude. As OPEC goes its merry price-hiking way, that gap is steadily narrowing, and consequently synthetics are becoming steadily more economical. But - and it is a big one - politics rather than the economics determine the OPEC price. The exporting countries charge not according to what it costs them to produce but to how much the importing nations can be compelled to pay.

If the price of natural crude can be raised by OPEC virtually at will, so can it be lowered. Unlike the synthetic rubber industry, synthetic oil would be vulnerable to undercutting should OPEC choose to cut its price to $12 or $15 a barrel.

Once synthetics reached volume production, unit price might reasonably be expected to drop. But not in the foreseeable future to levels at which OPEC could still profitably operate. In such a situation, a major industry would be in a continually vulnerable situation even with government as a guaranteed purchaser of last resort.

There may be something to be gained in synthetic fuels, but in themselves they are no substitute for a balanced energy program involving conservation and development of a range of alternative sources.

Without such a program, we could well find ourselves with an $18 billion synthetic elephant instead of answer to the fuel shortage. And then who would be blame? We'd find someone.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, July 6, the 187th day of 1979. There are 178 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1923, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was formed.

On this date:

In 1699, the notorious pirate, Capt. William Kidd, was taken into custody in Boston. He later was hanged in England.

In 1837, the Republic of Texas sent an ambassador to Washington.

In 1919, the first crossing of the Atlantic by airship took place as a British dirigible landed at New York's Roosevelt Field.

In 1945, Nicaragua became the first nation to formally accept the United Nations Charter.

In 1964, a British protectorate in central Africa, Nyasaland, became the independent state of Malawi.

In 1971, jazz musician Louis Armstrong died at the age of 71.

Ten years ago: New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller ended a Latin American fact-finding mission for President Richard Nixon and said the demonstrations he encountered showed an urgent need for changes in the hemisphere.

Five years ago: U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met at the Vatican with Pope Paul VI and was praised by the Roman Catholic pontiff for his personal service in the cause for peace.

One year ago: Israeli fighters flew over Beirut to underline warnings by Israel that it would not allow Lebanon's Christian population to be overrun by Syrian troops in Lebanon on a peacekeeping mission.

DAVID MCCRORY (left), key prosecution witness in the pending murder-for-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis, challenged the Fort Worth industrialist Thursday to a joint lie detector test. The defiant witness said the test would prove his accusations that Davis issued a contract to kill him.

McCrory: Davis trying to kill me

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecution witness David McCrory, saying his life is in jeopardy, has proposed a joint polygraph test with millionaire defendant Cullen Davis.

"No bull, no fancy lawyer talk, nothing, just a lie detector test at the same time," McCrory proposed on the eve of Davis' murder-for-hire trial.

"That way we'll let the public know who is lying."

The stocky FBI informant telephoned The Associated Press Thursday to accuse the Fort Worth industrialist of ordering a contract on his life and to issue the polygraph challenge.

He said he was aware such test results are legally inadmissible in Texas courts but felt the disclosure might stop Davis and his attorneys from "lying constantly to the public."

"It might not stop them completely," he added, "but it damn sure would slow them down."

Defense lawyer Mike Gibson labeled the McCrory proposal "absurd."

McCrory, 41, testified in Houston last November that Davis ordered him to hire a gunman to kill his divorce judge and others on alleged enemies list.

Davis, 45, admitted discussing mass murder with McCrory but insisted he was not serious and said he thought at the time he was cooperating with the FBI to expose an extortion scheme.

The jury deliberated six days and deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

Davis, freed on $30,000 bond after the mistrial, since has divorced his second wife, Priscilla, and married his long-time, live-in girl friend, Karen Master, 30.

Jury selection in the murder conspiracy retrial is to begin here Monday before State District Judge Gordon Gray.

The defense maintains Davis was framed by his ex-wife, McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson and that the defendant's younger brother Bill bankrolled the scheme.

Cullen and his older brother Ken ousted Bill Davis from the billion dollar Kendavis empire in 1973, but subsequently agreed to a $100 million settlement.

McCrory, whose whereabouts are unknown, dropped out of sight after the Houston trial and assumed a new identity under the Federal Witness Protection Program.

British bankers weren't threatened by guerrillas

HOUSTON (AP) — After seven months as hostages of leftist guerrillas in El Salvador, two British bank executives, pale, thin, but with the quick quip, said Thursday their lives had never been threatened and there had been no violence.

Ian C. Massie, 46, and Michael Chatterton, 47, their hair recently trimmed and their voices soft and husky, told of the 214 days in captivity and of a six-month game of gin rummy.

The two, flanked by their wives, agreed there was never any doubt they would be released although, as Massie said, "There were days I may have been depressed" and as Chatterton said, "We managed to keep our own identities while still helping each other."

During the months in seven different small rooms, where only a flicker of light strained through the curtains or the blinds, the two read and talked and played that gin rummy game.

"I won," Massie said, "or I wouldn't have mentioned it."

Massie, manager of the Lloyd's Bank International office in El Salvador, said he had been the only target of the guerrillas and that Chatterton, his assistant, just happened to be, with him on the November day they were captured on a San Salvador street.

Massie said, "Mike (Chatterton) had asked for a ride home and I am sure that is something he will never do again."

Massie, dressed in a dark blue suit one would expect on a banker, and Chatterton in a blazer and slacks, said they had been provided with sufficient food and with reading material.

The real highlight of each day, Massie said, was about 3 p.m.

when "we were allowed to shower and shave."

The two had been brought to the giant Houston medical complex for examinations and were found fit. They left Thursday night for England.

Chatterton said the guerrillas always wore masks "and we never saw their faces. But I believe they were young and appeared to be well organized

They asked us not to discuss politics.

"And they told us they were ready to hold us as long as they had the facilities or until an agreement was reached."

In London, a spokesman for the Bank of London and South America, a branch of Lloyds, said $10 million was paid for the release of the two executives.

But Guy Hunsford, a director of the London bank, refused Thursday to verify that report

Price fixing charged in suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Tenneco Inc. of Houston says in a federal lawsuit that two of the world's largest makers of oil pipelines conspired to fix prices on $131 million in contracts over an 18-year period.

The defendants, Brown & Root Inc. of Houston and J. Ray McDermott & Co. of New Orleans Inc., pleaded no contest to related criminal charges last December in New Orleans and were each fined $1 million.

Tenneco's suit names no specific loss figure but asks triple damages for injuries, actual and punitive damages for fraud and an injunction ordering the defendants not to conspire in the future.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast today for the eastern half of Texas from the gulf coast to the Red River.

Some scattered showers and thunderstorms were also forecast late today for eastern portions of West Texas.

Highs were to be mostly in the 80s and 90s with readings in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas expected to be around the 100-degree mark.

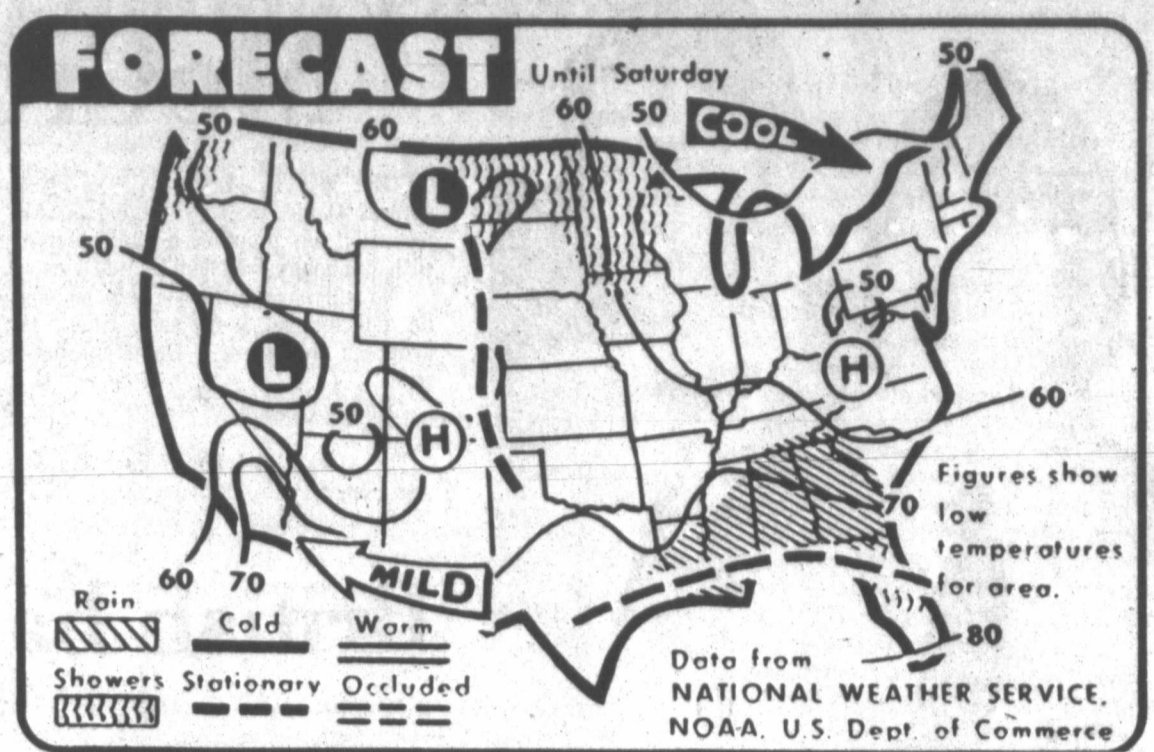

Showers and thunderstorms, including some heavy with rainfall rate an inch per hour, were reported during the pre-dawn hours today in the eastern half of the state. The shower activity ranged from the gulf coast to Northeast Texas.

Skies were mostly cloudy across the eastern half of the state early today and mostly clear across the western half.

National weather

Showers and thunderstorms soaked the southern Atlantic Coast states and the Gulf states early this morning. But a cold front that brought severe thunderstorms and violent weather to Georgia was expected to pass on today, bringing relief from a long hot spell.

The National Weather Service said the front, which brought low temperatures and snow to some Central and Eastern states earlier this week, prompted tornado eddies, wildly fluctuating temperatures and high winds Thursday.

RAIN IS EXPECTED from the central Gulf to Georgia and western South Carolina. Showers are forecast for the Pacific Northwest and from North Dakota to northern Iowa. Clear skies and warm weather are expected for most areas.

Circus fire remembered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty-five years ago today, reporter Louis G. Black, now retired, covered the nation's worst circus fire for The Associated Press. Here he looks back at it.

By LOUIS G. BLACK

For The Associated Press
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — There it is, a grass-covered school yard in Hartford's North End, a slumbering picture of innocence on a lazy summer day.

But 35 years ago today, July 6, 1944, the same turf was a fiery hell, the scene of America's worst circus catastrophe.

It was a day in which clowns cried and coffins suddenly became scarce, a hot and humid day in a summer when Americans waited anxiously for the latest news of American troops in World War II.

The fire broke out during the matinee of the sprawling Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, and left 168 dead and more than 500 injured. Many were trampled to death in the panic, others died of burns, some of suffocation. Among the dead was a beautiful 6-year-old girl whose identification remains a mystery.

The years haven't dimmed the memories of survivors. Some have nightmares still, some avoid crowds. The smell of burned human flesh remains. They suffer.

They remember the "Big Top" being three-quarters filled with more than 6,000 children and adults. They recall the smell of popcorn, cotton candy, and the odor of lions, tigers, and elephants.

They remember heroes, clowns like Lou Jacobs and Emmett Kelly, Karl Wallenda of the Great Wallendas high wire act; and Merle Evans, the band leader. They see the circus vibrating with excitement and life — just before it became a heartbreaking scene of death and destruction.

Many lessons about fire prevention and crowds were learned from the disaster. Six circus officials — who pleaded innocent to involuntary manslaughter — wound up in prison. It took the circus 15 years to pay $4 million in claims, including $2.20 to a woman who suffered face and leg burns but insisted on collecting only for her ticket.

For Rose Dunn, and her son, Herbert, the 35 years have been one long series of nightmares. "We have awakened many nights, and even now I wake screaming," the retired nurse says.

"For many years I was scared to be caught in a crowd," Herbert added. "I believe I have gotten over it. I attended the Super Bowl football game early this year and enjoyed it. But every so often I find myself with a sickly feeling in a crowded indoor situation."

Police detectives Tom Barber and Ed Lowe, now dead, often told of "hearing those screams."

All of them were in various sections of the paraffin-covered tent as Evans led his 29-piece band through a snappy opening number at 2 p.m.

First came the clowns, then the animals. And high up, waiting for a cue, was the celebrated Wallenda aerial troupe.

At 2:40 p.m., circus photographer Bill Miller glanced up and saw a small fire crawling along a rope of the big top.

At first, the fire looked small, and Kelly tried to put it out with a bucket of water. But, blown by a sudden wind, the flames shot up and exploded like a red ball on the roof of the sun-baked tent.

By 3 p.m., the circus ground was a smoldering bier.

From her haunted memories, Mrs. Dunn recalls:

"I was in an end seat up high when I suddenly became aware of nervous animals. To my right I saw flames, heard shouts of fire and a roar. I grabbed my son by the right hand. Looking down front, I saw panic. People were trapped... bodies blocked exit paths. There was only one thing to do, to jump to the rear."

Rabies clinic gets 135

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — City officials say they must review the "fair" turnout at Eagle Pass' seventh pet rabies vaccination clinic before they authorize emergency steps that could include the wholesale slaughter of stray dogs and cats.

This border city, along with Piedras Negras, Mexico, has been the focus of an outbreak of the deadly disease that doctors say may have caused the death of two girls and left an Eagle Pass boy in critical condition in a San Antonio hospital.

Eagle Pass residents brought 135 dogs and cats to a special rabies vaccination clinic Thursday in an effort to curb the outbreak of the disease.

City Manager Roberto Gonzalez said Thursday the council may meet today to determine if the response is sufficient to avoid evoking emergency measures.

Mexican officials in Piedras Negras apparently have already issued shoot to kill orders on stray animals. Gonzalez said a Mexican newspaper reported earlier 6,000 dogs had been killed in 40 days.

Gonzalez said the council agreed Tuesday night to use the immunization program as a gauge for determining if drastic steps were necessary to combat the outbreak of rabies.

Dr. Hans Petersen, city veterinarian, called the turnout "fair." But Gonzalez refused to speculate on what action the city council might take.

"I can't say what they will decide about the average turnout to our seventh clinic. They will almost certainly request additional assistance from the state," said Gonzalez, who would not specify the type of help the city would seek.

Two doctors from the National Center for Disease Control, who monitored the vaccination program, were briefed by city officials on the rabies outbreak.

The two physicians also looked into the background of Marianita Garza, 8, of Eagle Pass, who died Tuesday in San Antonio of symptoms suggestive of rabies. The results of an autopsy were not yet available Thursday.

Her death came only an hour after a CDC announcement that one of five test results indicated "the child's clinical course was consistent with rabies in its earlier stages."

EMTs to meet

The Top O' Texas Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT) Association will meet at 7:30 tonight at Clarendon College's Pampa Center.

Officer elections are on the agenda for tonight's meeting. Plans will also be discussed for the group's banquet scheduled for next month. All EMTs are invited to attend.

Gooch to state office

A young Pampa woman was recently chosen to serve a second year in a state position with the Rainbow Girls.
Miss Kim Gooch, a member of Pampa Assembly No. 95, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, will serve as Grand Recorder for the next year.

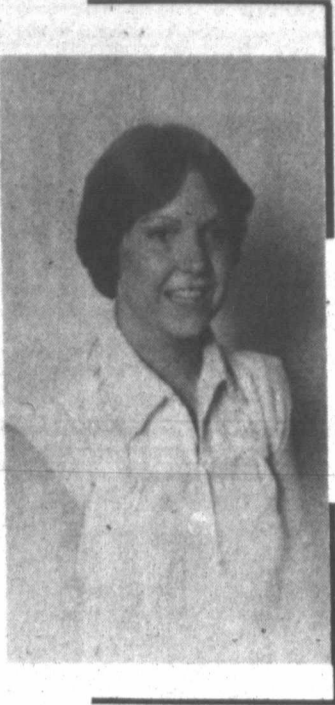

She was elected during the 56th Session of Grand Assembly, held in El Paso.

The 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gooch, Kim served last year as Grand Religion.

She is a 1978 graduate of Pampa High School and has completed one year at West Texas State University. She is employed by Cabot Corporation this summer.

Also receiving honors at the state meeting were Miss Susan Sheppard and Lloyd Gooch, awarded the Grand Cross of Color Vows, honorary degrees earned through love and charity in opportunities of service.

Other members and sponsors attending from Pampa were Miss Penny Miller, Miss Paula Harrison, Miss Ina Rochelle, Mrs. Nathan Miller, Mrs. Robert Poole and Mrs. Lloyd Gooch.

Dear Abby

Adoptive parents face many questions

DEAR ABBY: I am the editor of a newsletter for adoptive parents. It is called OURS (Organization for a United Response).

Some years back you had a column about the typical stupid questions all parents of adopted children were asked. You offered some wonderful suggested replies. Could you please hunt up that item and run it again? I would like to run it in our newsletter with your permission.

ANN G. IN EARLINGTON, KY.

DEAR ANN: I found the item, and here it is:
"DEAR ABBY: A prospective adoptive mother asked you for help in replying to 'dear, kindly, well-meaning' friends and relatives who ask personal questions about the adoption.

May I help? I have been through it four times and have heard all the comments and questions. Here are some tried and true responses:

Q: Oh, isn't it a shame your can't have children of your own?"

A: Not really; there's a lot of insanity in both our families.

Q: Do you know all about the parents?"

A: Everything. One was male. The other was female.
Did the adoption agency try to match your features, coloring and personalities?"

A: Good grief. I hope not!

Q: Aren't you worried about hereditary factors?"

A: Heaven, no. Regardless of how bad their ancestors were, they've got to be better than ours!

Best wishes!

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: The night before Mother's Day, our son called and invited us out for a Mother's Day dinner along with his wife, her brother and his wife, and his wife's mother. Now here's the clinker: "Would we pay our own way since he was broke?"

My wife turned down the invitation, so our son said he'd stop by the house in the morning to wish her a happy Mother's Day.

Abby, this same son went to Nassau last month for a vacation with his wife and his wife's sister and brother. Last summer they had a lovely vacation in Europe, and plan to go again this summer. (They're taking her folks along.)

I am fed up with this whole outfit. It is plain to me that we are not accepted by our son's wife and her people. How can I make my wife see the light? I hate to hurt her feelings. Sign me...

DISGUSTED IN THE LAND O' LAKES

DEAR DISGUSTED: Your wife must see the light as clearly as you. There's no point in rubbing it in. Why discuss the obvious?

Dr. Lamb

by

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know certain foods have potassium in them but I'm not sure which ones. Could you please send me your pamphlet on potassium and what to eat. I do feel weak at times.

I was in the hospital two years ago and all they told me was to eat bananas and orange juice. I'm 67 years old.

DEAR READER — There are many causes for weakness of feeling tired. That can even happen from an inadequate amount of sodium, though, unless you're taking medicines to wash salt and water out of the body.

Potassium is found in abundant quantities in most fruit. That's why bananas and orange juice were suggested. Both are excellent sources of potassium. People who consume a large amount of fresh fruit and fruit juices should be getting an adequate amount of potassium in their diet. There's also some potassium in fresh vegetables and even in whole milk. Milk, however, also contains quite a bit of sodium and generally has to be limited on a low-salt (low sodium) diet.

I'm sending you the Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium And Potassium Balance, as you have requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me at P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, New York 10091.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just read an article that was sent to me by someone who's trying harder to save my life than I am. It's my father. I say he's trying harder because I'm an alcoholic who hasn't given up alcohol.

I'm serving an 18-month jail sentence for an alcohol-related crime and although I've read many articles on alcoholism and have been through classes in the AA, I know I will return to alcohol.

I've lost jobs and friends and almost everything but I don't care because I resent friends telling me to stop drinking or it might be fatal.

Maybe if they didn't care so much, I would have found a solution of my own. I know when I get out of jail, I'll go straight back to the bar and I'll soon be back in jail and eventually my life will end in disaster. The worst part is that I really don't care. That's what booze has done for me and I hope you won't let this happen to your readers.

I know alcohol in my case is a killer. This is the ninth time I've been in jail for booze and I'm barely 23 years old. I enjoy getting drunk so much I don't give a damn about the consequences, whether it be more jail or death. Thanks for listening and I hope you have this printed as it's the only way I can tell my folks I love them.

DEAR READER — There is another way — you could stop drinking.

I suspect that you need the services of a psychiatrist who can help you to understand why you drink and if you're using it as a mechanism related to your interrelations with your family. If you learn to understand yourself and work out some of the problems you have, you may find that you don't enjoy getting drunk as much as you have in the past. That could be the real solution to your problem.

Oriental style seen in decorating themes

By BARBARA MAYER

AP Newsfeatures

Like short skirts, small cars and the seven-year itch, Oriental-style decor tends to come back into fashion at regular intervals.

It's not surprising that with China the hot tourist spot and Oriental cooking at the top of public interest, that Oriental decor should once again be in demand.

At present, there are numerous examples of Oriental design to be seen in the marketplace. Oriental merchandise is available in most categories of home furnishings products, including upholstery fabrics, furniture, lamps, dinnerware, wallpaper, sheets and floor coverings, to name several.

"Americans are responding to the serenity and peacefulness that have always characterized Oriental homes," according to Margaret Clayton, a designer for Drexel Heritage Furnishings, Inc.

"In Oriental cultures, there is a rule governing almost everything from the structure of the family to the way tea is poured. And the two primary rules in home decorating are simplicity and balance."

The new Oriental furniture uses many design motifs that have been classic for centuries, according to Ms. Clayton. These include, for example, carved details derived from nature, bamboo-like turnings on tables and chairs, and lacquered, pictorial decorations on furniture, known as inoiserie.

To decorate a room in the Oriental manner, everything does not have to be from the East. Instead, using a few or even one piece of furniture plus appropriate accessories such as porcelain vases or Oriental wall coverings, upholstery fabric or drapery, one can convey a sense of the period.

Another method is to employ the Eastern principle of balance and symmetry in the arrangement of furniture.

Techniques for doing this include pairing objects in a formal, balanced fashion which is the traditional Oriental manner.

"Open shelf units can stand side by side or they can flank another piece of furniture or a doorway. An occasional table with a lamp and floral arrangement can be matched by another across the room. Prominent pieces of furniture can be placed at right angles to one another, parallel to the walls," she said.

In traditional Chinese homes in the past, a very formal and vastly different set of rules was used to govern furniture arrangement, according to Margaret Medley, an English authority.

"On formal occasions, the place of honor in any room was the one furthest from the door and to the left of the host," she explains in an article on the subject in the book, "World Furniture."

Furniture was set against the walls or at strict right angles to the walls. It was never slanted out or carelessly grouped in the center of the room.

The Chinese home had no formal dining room. Instead, at mealtimes, a round or square table seating no more than eight or 10 was brought into whatever room it was decided to eat in. It was a point of etiquette that everyone at the table should be able to reach with chopsticks the main dishes placed in the center of the table.

The low kang table, recognized as the forerunner to today's cocktail table, was used as a writing platform for a person seated or perhaps even reclining on the floor.

The traditional ways of the Orient are not always practical in an American home of the 20th century. But the use of Oriental objects and design techniques to bring a sense of order and serenity is very much a part of current decorating methods.

Ceramic tiles are earthy, practical

Now is the time to plan the best summer ever. And your summer life doesn't stop with those two or three weeks of vacation.

Remember, there are many glorious hours to be enjoyed right in your own backyard. And here, from the Tile Council of America, is some sound advice to help you enjoy a fuss-free summer life.

-- Tired of trying to get a lawn to grow in a shady area? Give up! Convert it into a patio area with handsome quarry tile or pavers.

Incorporate "pockets" for such shade-loving plants as begonias, geraniums and coleus. Or consider plantings of rhododendron bushes, also shade-loving, if you want your patio to be a hideaway.

-- Create tile walks where your lawn sprouts ugly traffic patterns. Remember that tile is harvested from the earth, so it's as natural an outdoor design material as the lushest lawn.

-- Treat picnic tables, benches and outdoor occasional tables to tile tops to minimize boring paint jobs and overhauls.

-- Tile a bunch of plastic tables (the Parson's type from the local bargain basement) checkerboard in fashion for an outdoor game of chess or checkers.

-- Build a tiled barbecue.

It'll take all the fuss out of being a weekend chef.

Marinade splatters, soot and grease will wipe right off. And since tile is fired at unearthly temperatures, it stands to reason that not even the hottest embers will hurt it.

-- Choose tile's good earth colors for all large surfaces such as walks, pool decks, patios, stoops and stairs.

-- Go with Mother Nature's flower hues for accents around your yard...to give you bright outdoor color spots even after nature has packed it in for the winter.

For such accents think of using ceramic mosaics, which will give you clever combinations of neutral and bold colors plus pattern interest galore.

Good places to use mosaics: fountains, barbecues, outdoor tables and seats, decorative panels to hang on fences or use as dividers, custom-designed walks, planters and pools (lily pond or swimming size). Your imagination is the only limit.

To learn all about ceramic tile, the timeless design element for your indoor and outdoor life, send $1 to the Tile Council of America, P.O. Box 2222, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

You'll receive a beautiful 16-page, full-color booklet plus a leaflet on the care of ceramic tile.

Chili tomato chicken has Mexican flavor

Cooking and eating outdoors are part of the fun of summer. And nothing tastes better cooked on the grill than chicken.

With the high price of gasoline keeping most Americans close to home, aromas from backyard barbecues are already beginning to waft across the land. Chicken is a favorite with outdoor cooks from coast to coast and it takes on many different personalities, depending on the seasonings and sauces used.

National Barbecue Week, Aug. 2 through 11, is the ideal time to fire up the grill and join more than 60 million families who are already enthusiastic barbecuers. Meal preparation becomes a shared recreation, not a chore that keeps the cook confined to the kitchen.

In addition to using your own favorite barbecue sauce, experiment with other tasty ways to cook chicken on the grill. Chicken is an economical protein source — a good change from red meat — and you can barbecue it often with a different taste every time.

According to the National Broiler Council, patience is the key to successful barbecuing of chicken. Allow at least two hours from the time you light the fire until you're ready to serve. You won't need to ring a dinner bell; the tantalizing smells of chicken cooking over charcoal will keep everyone close by, waiting for the feast to begin.

Here are other helpful hints from the Broiler Council:
-- Wait until the fire dies down and the charcoal is ash-covered (about 30 minutes) before beginning to cook.

-- Place the chicken on the grill skin side up. After three to five minutes, turn and let cook another three to five minutes on the other side, watching carefully to make certain the fire doesn't flame up and burn the chicken. Adjust the height of the grill as needed but don't raise it too far above the fire to slow down the cooking.

-- Don't begin basting chicken immediately; sauce should be applied only during the last 30 minutes of cooking. Turn the chicken several times and apply sauce liberally after each turning.

-- Chicken is done when it is easily pierced with a fork (often the dark meat will require a few more minutes of cooking than the white).

-- If you don't plan to serve the chicken immediately, remove it from the grill and wrap it in foil or place it in an insulated container. If left on the fire, the chicken will dry out rapidly and lose some of its tenderness and flavor.

CHILI TOMATO GRILLED CHICKEN

4 to 6 broiler - fryer chicken quarters

2 tablespoons cooking oil

one - half cup finely chopped onion

1 clove garlic, minced

1 chicken bouillon cube

one - half cup hot water

1 can (8 oz.) taco sauce or tomato sauce

1 teaspoon salt

one - fourth teaspoon oregano

2 tablespoons vinegar

1 tablespoon prepared mustard

1 tablespoon mild chili powder

In small fry pan, place oil and heat to medium temperature. Add onion and garlic, stir and cook about three minutes or until clear and soft. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water; add bouillon to fry pan, along with sauce, salt, oregano, vinegar and mustard. Dip chicken into sauce mixture, then lightly sprinkle chili powder on all sides of quarters. Add remaining chili powder to sauce; bring to boil and remove from heat. Just before grilling, redip each quarter in sauce. Cook on charcoal grill 45 to 60 minutes or until chicken can easily be pierced with fork. Turn during grilling, every 10 minutes, basting with sauce during last half of grilling time.

Republican women host Mrs. Castello

Mrs. Shirley Castello of Amarillo was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Top O' Texas Republican Women's Club.

Mrs. Castello, district director of the Texas Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, spoke on the Republican philosophy and gave a review of the activities of the Texas federation, noting that last year volunteers gave more than 500,000 hours of time.

The guest speaker chaired a recent legislation seminar in Amarillo, and is a professional model.

Also attending from Amarillo was Mrs. Dorothy Reed, who extended the club an invitation to a Mexican dinner in Amarillo, to be sponsored by the Amarillo Republicans.

Presiding at the meeting, held in the home of Mrs. Fran Gross, was Mrs. Wylene Curtis. The meeting opened with prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Pampa club will not meet in July or August, but will resume regular meetings in September with Mrs. E. C. Sidwell.

Old-fashioned recipes for popovers directed that the egg whites be beaten separately. Popovers made from modern recipes that omit this step are just as delicious as the old-time ones.

Religious groups helping refugees of Southeast Asia

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Although it often goes unnoticed, whatever American help is extended to relieve the mounting human tragedy of refugees in Southeast Asia is done largely through religious organizations.

They provide most all of the local sponsorships that are required for admitting the castaways, and have promised to line up such hospitality for as many of the refugees as the government will admit.

"This central role that Protestant, Catholic and Jewish bodies are playing in this massive human calamity is rarely recognized, but it's essential to saving lives," says Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum of the American Jewish Committee.

"It's a great demonstration of religious faith in action." With thousands fleeing tyrannies in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam, many to die, starve or drown in the South China Sea, Christian and Jewish forces have joined forces to press for all-out rescue measures.

It's "the greatest humanitarian crisis of this decade," they declared in a joint statement, urging government leaders "to do everything in their power to meet this vast human catastrophe now."

Already, U.S. religious organizations have resettled three-fourths of the 210,000 Indochinese refugees admitted to this country. Church sponsors are awaiting others still in detention camps, and pledged to handle all additional refugees allowed in the country.

"The churches and synagogues are experienced hands in resettling refugees, and we're ready to resettle more in their desperate, excruciating plight," says the Rev. George Harkins of the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A.

Religious organizations have been in the business of sponsoring resettlement of outcasts and the homeless throughout this century, including hundreds of thousands after World War II and in subsequent upheavals around the earth.

All major denominations and interchurch bodies have overseas staffs working with refugees and also departments to arrange sponsorships for finding homes and employment through local congregations.

With thousands now "desperately seeking help" in the "terrible human saga" in Indochina, "we cannot sit idle," says Episcopal Presiding Bishop John M. Allin. He urges the U.S. to use military and civilian aircraft and ships to bring the refugees from overcrowded camps and drifting boats.

Uncounted thousands of refugees already have perished, including about 200,000 boat people drowned at sea, with other thousands dying on the land, doubtlessly including many of the 40,000 Cambodians recently forced back into Cambodia at gunpoint by Thailand to face starvation or execution.

Refugee experts estimate that the tide of refugees will total a half million by fall, a million in a year, and that under present conditions, 50 percent to 70 percent of them would perish.

If greater rescue efforts are not made, "we may later look back on a new holocaust," says Bishop Thomas C. Kelly of the U.S. Catholic Conference, referring to the Nazi slaughter of 6 million Jews.

Anniversary July 15

CANADIAN — The people of the Pampa area are cordially invited to Canadian July 15 to share the happy observance of the day that marks the 88th anniversary of the organization of the First Baptist Church of Canadian.

Plans are being made to experience a "time to remember" in the morning service, with Rev. Fern Miller, former pastor, as guest speaker. The evening message by Rev. R.T. Noland, also a former pastor, will feature the theme "A Time for Rededication."

If the weather permits, the noon meal will be served on the church lawn. If the weather does not cooperate the meal will be served in the Fellowship Hall, where photos and other historical items will be on display during the afternoon.

A tour around town will be offered to those who are interested in the changes that have occurred recently in Canadian. After the evening service a brief film showing five historical times in the life of the church will be presented.

Lodging will be furnished with members of the church in Canadian for those who desire to stay the night. Contact Hugh Wilson, chairman of the 88th anniversary, in Canadian for help.

Services set for park Sunday

The First Presbyterian Church will hold worship services in Central Park at 10:00 a.m. Sunday in the picnic area west of Cuyler Street, rather than at the church.

There will be no Sunday Church School at the church this Sunday. An infant nursery will be provided at the church from 9:30 - 11:15 during worship service. Sunday's sermon by the Rev. Joe L. Turner is entitled "Choose Life."

The worship will be followed by a picnic lunch, games and fellowship. Everyone is invited to wear picnic clothes and bring their own picnic lunch. Coffee, iced tea and lemonade will be provided by the church. In case of rain, meet at the church.

HERE IS THE PATH

The TIE that binds

A true love for our Lord and Saviour binds our hearts in Christian love.

This love encourages us to put our energies and efforts together to serve our Lord at home, at work, and at Church.

A truly wonderful fellowship exists for those who believe and worship together. Attend Church and worship with kindred minds.

"That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed."

Coleman Adv. Serv.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Flights of presidents showcased

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the span of three recent weeks, Air Force One hauled President Carter 26,500 miles to two continents and across both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Carter and his recent predecessors have flown around the globe so widely and so routinely that it's a bit difficult to realize that only 36 years have passed since an incumbent president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, first took to the skies.

When FDR left Miami on Jan. 11, 1943, bound for a World War II conference at Casablanca, the U.S. government did not have a single airplane suitable for presidential travel. Roosevelt flew aboard a "Clipper" flying boat chartered from Pan American World Airways.

Only one ever grounded

In subsequent years, records indicate, only one government-owned presidential plane was grounded because of a design flaw. Harry Truman's DC-6, Independence, went out of service for nearly six months in 1947-48 because the heating system posed a threat of cabin fires.

Tales of presidential travels

Tales such as the above, and many more, will be published in book form next Tuesday by Coward, McCann & Geoghegan Inc. Titled "The Flying White House," the book is written by J.F. TerHorst and retired Air Force Col. Ralph Albertazie.

TerHorst was former President Gerald R. Ford's first press secretary and Albertazie was Richard M. Nixon's Air Force One pilot for 5 1/2 years.

Haldeman sought pardon

As Nixon flew home to California in August 1974 after resigning his office, H.R. Haldeman, the indicted former White House chief of staff, placed two telephone calls to Nixon aboard Air Force One seeking a presidential pardon for Watergate crimes.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, intercepted both calls and told Haldeman that there would be no last-minute pardons.

As the plane flew across central Missouri, Ford became president and Air Force One, for the balance of the flight, became SAM (for Special Air Missions) 27000.

Fire causes 2,000 evacuations

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A mushroom cloud of toxic pesticide erupted from a burning chemical plant Thursday, forcing at least 2,000 residents from their homes and closing Mississippi River traffic.

At least 155 persons were treated at hospitals after the fire, but only 10 were admitted. Those hospitalized included three plant workers and six firemen who suffered burns, and a fireman stricken by a heart attack. One plant worker was in critical condition.

Firefighters dodged exploding

55-gallon chemical drums and battled heat and poisonous fumes for more than three hours before the fire at the Drexel Chemical Co. was brought under control.

As the fire burned, police and fire department dispatchers broadcast warnings that the heavy smoke cloud contained nerve gas. But a University of Tennessee toxicologist later said the chemical in the smoke — methyl parathion — was a common pesticide that nevertheless was considered extremely dangerous.

Latest in water conditioning

A new model water softener will operate with computer efficiency with the addition of the MicroProcessor controls, according to Culligan International Co.

The heart of the new unit is the revolutionary semi-conductor chip. This integrated circuit silicon chip is less than a quarter inch square, yet it contains the equivalent of more than 4,000 separate circuits.

This is the most advanced technology in the water conditioning industry, according to John L. Rankin, local Culligan dealer.

"A light emitting diode displays the time of day, and also re-programming requirement, if necessary," he added.

An emergency back-up battery pack is supplied, which will maintain the MicroProcessor memory in the event of power failure.

The new control system has been combined with an Aqua-Sensor, which monitors the water softener through electronic sensing devices and automatically recharges it.

Bandidos have explosive Fourth

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Four persons, three of them members of the Bandidos motorcycle club, were in stable condition Thursday with gunshot wounds suffered during a Fourth of July brawl outside a nightclub here.

Also wounded in the melee was 13-year-old Charlotte Mitchell of Galveston, a bystander who was treated for pellet wounds in the neck and shoulder at John Sealy Hospital and released.

The men said they were watching a fireworks display Wednesday night just west of Stewart Beach when a fight broke out and shooting started.

No one was arrested in connection with the case, police said.

Concerning consumerism

Reflections on business

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Lost amid the cacophony of crisis news, of gasoline shortages that compel attention, for example, are observations worthy of recognition, for their significance if not for their urgency.

Among them are commentaries from the private sector that may be worthy of consideration or even perhaps of reconsideration.

Such as the remarks of Hery Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., at the University of Chicago last April 26, a few days before announcing he would quit as chief executive officer on Oct. 1.

"In recent decades we businessmen have neglected many genuine problems and turned a blind eye to conditions that should have caught our attention. Often we have simply been stupid."

"We have refused to confront some of the crucial issues of our time, and as a result we have played directly into the hands of our critics and helped to make matters worse."

"The whole issue of consumerism is a prime example..."

"Maybe we wouldn't have won any prizes if we had answered a...to-safety charges more effectively before the consumerists moved into the area, but we would have saved ourselves — and customers — some nightmarish regulations."

Or the comments on big government by Murray Weidenbaum, former assistant secretary of treasury and now one of the foremost advocates of regulatory reform.

"The government cannot be our nanny," he said in a magazine interview. "I think Americans are sensible enough to know that. To my mind there exists a tremendous gap between the view of the formal consumer advocates and the view of the rank and file of consumers."

"Currently, there's a strong movement in the Federal Trade Commission to tell Americans what to eat through regulation of television advertising."

"When a senior FTC official was asked if he thought it was the government's task to tell free Americans what to eat, his response was, 'People eat for the wrong reasons'."

"Talk about Big Brother!"

Walter Hoadley, executive vice president and chief economist of Bank of America, articulated the thoughts of many people in testimony before the Senate Budget Committee.

Almost everyone appearing before the committee had declared their concern about the possibility of recession and with public demands for a restraint on government spending.

"I submit there is another broader force at work which quietly but relentlessly is sapping our fundamental economic strength," he said.

It is, said Hoadley, the "pervasive negative thinking across our country about the future, national and personal."

"It is crucial that the Congress and the administration try hard to reverse this public attitude through policy changes in the next year or two to cause a sharp increase in private risk-taking investments, innovation, productivity, saving, and national confidence."

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede ool

July 7, 1979

Look for changes for the better, both at work and at home, this coming year. Unusual conditions brought about by a kind person will give you the opportunity to move forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is an excellent day to putter around the house. You have a knack for taking tattered items and transforming them into things of beauty. Your new Astro-Graph Letter tells you what lies ahead for you for the year following your birthday. Get yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Share your day with your pals. Through them you will experience a renewal of comradeship which strengthens your feelings of self-worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things you acquire for your home today have a good chance of lasting for a long time. You won't tire of them, nor will they wear out prematurely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your ideas and feelings take on an intensity you don't normally experience. Those you are with today will know exactly where you stand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An inner sense of well-being and protection is with you today, giving you the security to strive for better and grander things. Go to it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends take on a special meaning to you today and you are drawn closer to them. When you give of yourself, others give back in return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something close to your heart which you thought was on its way out may do an about-face today and give evidence of renewed "life." You should have a happy day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It will be good to be out among some of your more progressive friends today. You'll have a chance to take some stale thinking and modernize it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something personally important to you can be accomplished today because of one who gives you some fresh ideas on how to obtain it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today even the simple things in life appear to be fun because you'll be able to share your time with those who mean a lot to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may take advantage today of a source always available to you, but seldom used to accomplish your aims. This person will be delighted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends confide in you today because your judgment is both fair and astute. You're a bright pal to have around.

Borg to face Tanner in Wimbledon finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Playing Bjorn Borg in the Wimbledon final holds no terrors for big Roscoe Tanner.

"If I didn't think I could win there would be no point in going on court," Tanner said Thursday after crushing Pat Dupre, 6-3, 7-6, 6-3 in the semifinals.

Borg beat Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 to advance to his fourth consecutive final. He has won the final every time he's entered it, which means he stands to make modern tennis history Saturday. He could become the first man to win four in a row since Anthony Wilding completed his streak in 1913.

Tanner is not rated with much of a chance against Borg, but that could work to his advantage.

"There may be a little pressure on him, going for his fourth win, and there is not much pressure on me."

Tanner said. "It doesn't worry me that I am not given a lot of a chance. It is what I do on court that matters."

Borg was in superlative form in destroying Connors. Tanner and his coach, Dennis Ralston, watched part of the match.

"Borg is playing awfully well," said Tanner. "Guys have tried all sorts of things against him, but nothing has really worked. Borg wins a lot of points with his service. It is deceptive. Even when getting it back, you have to think about his next shot."

Tanner said his own game has improved dramatically over the past 12 months. Previously thought of as a big server but little more, his game is much better rounded now.

"The key to my improvement is my better movement, concentration and confidence," he said. "I also have a better attitude. I don't let things worry me.

Despite being the outsider, Tanner believes in his own ability to win the final. "I'm not going to go out thinking I can't win," he said. "If that was the case I might as well take the plane home and send my regards on Saturday."

The 23-year-old champion thinks the match against Tanner could be a whole lot tougher than his encounter with the lackluster Connors.

"I know some people felt that my match against Connors was virtually the final, but the match against Tanner could be tougher than they think."

Both finalists plan a day of quiet before Saturday's big match.

Tanner never appeared to be in the slightest danger of losing to Dupre, ranked No. 28 in the United States. He didn't drop his serve in the match, although he had a little trouble with his first serve.

But Dupre served well, too, offering up seven aces. And Tanner only broke him twice — at 5-3 in the first set and 5-3 in the third. They were even in games in the middle set, but Tanner won the tiebreaker 7-3.

Borg, by sharp contrast, was devastating against Connors.

He lost his service just once — at the start of the third set, winning only two points in the first two games.

But for the remainder of the match he was brilliant, mixing scorching passing shots with delicate drops and deft lobs. He won every remaining game.

Connors looked as though he had lost interest in the last two games. He did not even try to hit a ball that landed at his feet, and that allowed Borg a 5-2 lead.

Navratilova claims singles' crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova fought back Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-4 today to win the Wimbledon tennis championship for the second year in a row.

Navratilova unleashed her overpowering serve-and-volley attack to crush a listless and error-prone Lloyd.

The victory strengthens Navratilova's claim to the No. 1 ranking in women's tennis, the position Lloyd had held nearly unchallenged for four years — until last year.

After an indifferent winter season, Lloyd had seemed renewed going into the final here. She had lost just one match during the European spring circuit.

But today she seemed uninspired and never really was in the match.

It was a disappointment for the sellout crowd of 17,000, some of whom paid up to $700 to scalpers for a pair of tickets.

These two top-ranking players have had a series of hard, spectacular duels. Two weeks ago Lloyd beat Navratilova on grass at Eastbourne 7-5, 5-7, 13-11 in a match widely held to be the best the two had ever played against each other.

Martina beat Chris in the 1978

Wimbledon final 6-4, 4-6, 9-7 to highlight a season in which she had a 44-2 match record and gained the top spot on the computer ranking list.

Chris, recognized as No. 1 by the International Tennis Federation, disputed the computer's analysis and said she believed she would prove her right to the throne in this Wimbledon final. It had been hers in 1974 and 1976.

But today Navratilova had her unpredictable nerves in check and her play at the net was deadly.

U.S. swims ahead at Games

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — United States swimmers continue their destruction of the competition and the record books at the VIII Pan American Games, but the ballooning U.S. medal count got some unexpected help from a 14-year-old gymnast.

Jeanine Creek, who enters high school this fall in Great Falls, Mont., surprised a confident Canadian squad with a silver medal individual performance in the free exercise Thursday.

Gymnastics is a sport the Americans almost have written off in these Games, sending only their second- and third-team athletes. The best U.S. gymnasts stayed home to prepare for more important international competitions that use Olympic rules, which the Pan Am Games do not.

In Creek's event, there weren't even enough other U.S. competitors to constitute a team for overall scoring purposes.

The swimmers are out to get all the gold medals. At Mexico City four years ago, U.S. swimmers took the gold medal in all but two swimming races. So far, in 16 events they have 16 gold medals and 16 Pan Am Games records. They earned six golds Thursday.

Jesse Vassallo, upset Thursday night by teammate Peter Rocca in 200-meter backstroke, has to beat world record holder Graham Smith of Canada in the 200-meter individual medley to keep alive hopes of a U.S. sweep.

In the women's 200-meter breaststroke, the U.S. hopes ride on two little-known swimmers: Patty Spees, of Oakland, Calif., and Renee Laravie of Daytona, Ohio, while breast stroke specialists Tami Paumier and Tracy Caulkins sit out.

Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., makes her final Games appearance tonight in the 400-meter freestyle, in which she faces teammate Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif.

Caulkins' hopes for five gold medals here were dashed Tuesday night when Paumier edged her in the 100-meter breast stroke. She had three golds and a silver entering tonight's competition.

Rowdy Gaines, Winter Park, Fla., and Linda Jezek, Los Altos, Calif., were also competing today for their third gold medals in swimming — he in the 800 freestyle relay, she in the 200 backstroke.

Tom Peterson of Tacoma, Wash., took the seventh U.S. gold Thursday with his second winning performance in the 10,000-meter roller skating final.

Overconfidence may have been what took over the vaunted U.S. men's basketball team. The Americans blew three 14-point leads Thursday night against Brazil, and barely held on for an 82-78 victory behind 17 points by Kentucky's Kyle Macy.

Hurlers flirt with no-hitters

By the Associated Press
Milwaukee's Larry Sorensen and Seattle's Rick Honeycutt flirted with no-hitters in day games, but Oakland's Rick Langford came closest.

Langford shut down the potent California attack on just one hit — an infield chopper — as the A's blanked the Angels 3-0.

The only hit was a high bouncer by California catcher Brian Downing in the fifth inning that almost went over the head of third baseman Wayne Gross. Still, Gross, who doubled in one Oakland run and scored the other two, was upset.

"If I could have gotten one step back quicker and thrown overhand, I would have gotten him," he said.

Langford, 4-9, saw it differently. "Wayne did all he could."

Sorensen and Honeycutt were almost as tough. The Milwaukee hurler pitched 7 1-3 innings of no-hit ball before giving up the first of two New York hits as the Brewers stopped the Yankees 3-0. Honeycutt lost his no-hit bid after 5 1-3 innings, settling for a three-hitter as the Mariners blanked the Minnesota Twins 4-0.

Langford said his outing helped take some of the sting out of Wednesday's shellacking of the A's by California.

Gross doubled off Angels starter Nolan Ryan, 10-6, to score Jeff Newman, who had led off the seventh inning with a walk. He later scored on Jim Essian's single.

Brewers 3, Yankees 0

Sorensen said he almost expected a no-hitter to be thrown.

Instead, the right-hander gave up only a solid eighth-inning single to Chris Chambliss and a ninth-inning single to Bucky Dent, retiring 20 batters in a row at one point.

Sal Bando provided the only run Sorensen, 10-8, needed with a solo homer in the fifth inning off Guidry, 6-5.

Mariners 4, Twins 0

Honeycutt, 5-5, retired 10 batters in a row before Bobby Randall lined a single up the middle to break up the no-hit bid in Seattle's victory over Minnesota. The other Minnesota hits came in the ninth on John Castino's leadoff double and another single by Randall.

Red Sox 5, Royals 4

Bob Watson's fourth single of the game drove in the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning as Boston rallied for a victory over Kansas City, completing a sweep of their three-game series.

Boston spotted Kansas City a 4-0 lead in the first two innings. Then Jim Rice drilled his 19th homer of the season.

White Sox 5, Indians 4

Speedy Claudell Washington scored the winning run in the top of the ninth inning without the benefit of a base hit in Chicago's win. Cleveland reliever Victor Cruz issued walks to Washington and Ralph Garr. When they attempted a double steal, Cleveland catcher Ron Hassey threw into center field, allowing Washington to score.

Tigers 3, Blue Jays 2

A solo home run by Champ Summers in the eighth inning gave Detroit a 3-1 lead and the Tigers held on for their victory. Joe Cannon's first major league home run leading off the third inning gave Toronto its first run.

Braves 5, Giants 4

Atlanta's Barry Bonnell took a detour en route from second base to third Thursday night and kept a ninth-inning rally going that ended with a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Braves trailed 4-3 when Mike Lum led off the ninth with a single. He was sacrificed to second and scored on pinch hitter Biff Pocoroba's single.

Pocoroba took second on the throw to the plate and Bonnell was sent in as a pinch-runner. Giants reliever Greg Minton walked pinch-hitter Joe Nolan before getting Jerry Royster for the second out.

Gary Matthews hit a grounder to third. Darrell Evans fielded the ball but missed an attempt to tag Bonnell and the bases were loaded. Evans said Bonnell left the basepath and should have been called out. Evans later was thrown out of the game and Office delivered the game-winning hit.

"It's true I left the basepath," Bonnell said, "but I had to try to keep from running over him (Evans)."

Cubs 3, Expos 1

Rick Reuschel scattered six hits over 7 1-3 innings for his fifth consecutive triumph and Bruce Sutter gained his 18th save for Chicago. The Cubs snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth when loser Scott Sanderson walked Reuschel with one out. Scot Thompson's two-out single sent Reuschel to third and Bill Buckner then drilled a double down the right field line for the lead run. Sutter retired all five batters he faced over the final 12-3 innings.

Reds 5, Astros 4

Tom Seaver took his fifth victory since returning from a back injury as the Reds ended an Astros' six-game winning streak. Seaver allowed three hits in five innings before giving up three runs in the sixth.

Harry Spilman batted for Seaver in the sixth and singled as the Reds rallied for three runs against J.R. Richard. Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo followed Spilman's hit with consecutive bunt singles, with a run scoring when third baseman Enos Cabell threw wildly to first on Geronimo's bunt.

Cardinals 2, Pirates 0

Rookie John Fulgham, a St. Louis native, scattered nine hits for his first major league shutout, and right fielder George Hendrick made a game-saving catch to end the contest. The Cardinals scored both runs off Jim Rooker in the first inning on Lou Brock's single. Keith Hernandez' RBI double and an RBI single by Hendrick.

Mets 3, Phils 2

New York's Joel Youngblood jolted Dickie Noles in the pitcher's first major league appearance with a game-opening home run. The Mets made it 3-0 in the fourth on a walk, a double by Richie Hebner, Willie Montanez' single and John Stearns' sacrifice fly. Winner Craig Swan blanked the Phillies until pinch-hitter Del Unser's two-run homer in the seventh.
