Public shows lack of interest

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The public has shown a lack of interest in the two public hearings held by the city commission on the city tax rate in accordance with the "Truth in Taxation" law required by the state.

In the first meeting on Sept. 11, only one person, Sid Laughlin of 1114 S. Faulkner, commented on the city's proposed $4.5 million budget for fiscal year 1979-80, an increase of $476,000 or about 11 percent over last year.

In a hearing on Sept. 21, no one from the public was present when the commission voted on the $2.13 per $100 of assessed valuation, of which $1.36 goes into the operating budget and the remaining 77 cents is used to pay the bond debt of the city's.

Some people have attributed the lack of participation in city commission to the fact that "we're just getting used to it" (meaning more taxes) or people are saying "the heck with everything."

City Manager, Mack Wofford feels differently, however. He states the "good coverage by the news media" has informed the public of the matter sufficiently enough to make it not necessary to attend the meetings.

Having been city manager for almost 10 years, Wofford said, "It's not unusual for only two or three people to attend budget meetings." He commented that the numbers of people attending public hearings have "fluctuated over the years" and that he feels "this year has not been unusual."

Wofford commented the hearings on the tax rate have just begun this year due to the "Truth in Taxation" law and have received so much publicity that people were aware of there not being an actual increase in the tax rate, only due to re-evaluation and re-assessment of property, the tax base was larger.

Another person at City Hall felt since the Pampa Independent School District had to hold public hearings for the same reason, the public asked most of their questions in those meetings.

Whatever the reason for the lack of interest in city affairs, Mack Wofford states, "I don't think it's just in Pampa."

Well to be capped today

Cone device to reduce flow by 85 percent

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican oil workers hope to finish capping the runaway Ixtoc-1 oil well today after lowering a 125-ton steel cone into place over the maverick gusher that has fouled Gulf Coast beaches from Mexico to southern Texas.

The capping operation, aimed at reducing the flow of oil and natural gas by 85 percent, was halted by darkness Sunday. A team of 300 technicians, divers and engineers from the Mexican state oil monopoly PEMEX had worked for a dozen hours Sunday to lower the 35 foot by 69 foot cone onto the underwater superstructure over the well.

"The cone is in place on the structure and (Monday) we will rotate it 90 degrees to put it over the mouth of the well," said Jose Luis Garcia Luna, a senior PEMEX engineer working on the project, dubbed "Operation Sombrero."

A company spokesman said the team hoped to complete its work by the end of the day.

"The purpose of the cone is not to plug the well, but to turn it into a producing well" until it can be closed, said a PEMEX spokesman in Mexico City, who declined to be identified. "Fifteen percent will still possibly spill into the ocean and have to be collected."

PEMEX says it has spent about $1 billion so far on several attempts to cap the runaway test well, located 50 miles off the Campeche Bay shrimping port of Ciudad del Carmen in southern Mexico. It also is drilling two relief wells at angles to the blowout in hopes of eventually shutting it down completely.

About 84 million gallons of oil have spilled into the bay and drifted as far north as the southern Texas coast. In the seven weeks since oil first began blackening South Texas beaches, U.S. damage claims and cleanup costs have climbed to about $360 million.

Three suits seeking a total of $355 million in damages have been filed in Texas against PE-MEX and firms working under contract to it at the well site.

U.S. Coast Guard officials fear more oil may stain the Texas coast, but they say the autumn shift of offshore currents to the south has helped push many large patches of crude away from the coast.

In one of its earlier attempts to cap the well, PEMEX workers forced about 80,000 steel and lead balls down the well under pressure. The company says that effort stemmed the flow of oil by one-third, from 1.3 million gallons a day to about 420,000 gallons.

Local club destroyed in blaze

The cause of a blaze that gutted a local bar early Sunday morning remains a mystery according to local firefighters.

"The cause of the blaze is listed as unknown," a spokesman for the Pampa Fire Department said Monday.

Firemen were called to 1700 South Gray at 1:45 a.m. Sunday after patrons of the bar smelled smoke.

Units of the Pampa Fire Department spent more than two hours battling the blaze that left the Peppermint Lounge as mass of smoldering timbers.

"The structure is listed as a total loss," the spokesman said. No estimate was given on the property owned by Columbus Morgan.

Sunday afternoon workmen were sifting through the remains of the two story structure but little could be salvaged from the building according to the workers.

Firemen responded to a second structure fire Sunday when a fire to an air conditioner was reported at 1016 Prairie Drive.

The Fire Department spokesman said heavy damage was reported to the house.

"It was mostly smoke and water damage to the house," he said.

Both fires are still under investigation by local firefighters.

Checks may take a different bounce

By MELANIE MILLER
Of The Pampa News

Starting today, hot checks may bounce you right into jail.

Because many people fail to pay restitution to merchants for returned checks, county attorney David Martindale has begun a new policy to force more people into paying merchants for checks that bounce.

"We're changing it so that if a person doesn't pay restitution on a check and the merchant notifies us, we will have the person arrested and charged with theft," Martindale said. "It will be treated like any other theft case."

Previously, the merchant sent the person a certified letter notifying him of the returned check, giving him ten days to pay up. If it was not taken care of in that time, a second letter was sent informing him that the county attorney had been notified.

Before a person can be prosecuted, there must be evidence that something was done to inform him, according to a state statute.

Martindale said.

"This policy simply hasn't worked—too many people just don't care about it," he added. "They don't believe anything will be done to them."

Now, the merchant must notify the county attorney's office of the person's failure to pay restitution after being notified by certified letter. The merchant can then file a complaint. Martindale will file what is called "information" with the county clerk and the clerk will file a warrant for the person's arrest. The county sheriff can then arrest the person.

Approximately $50,000 in uncollected checks marked "insufficient funds" is in Martindale's office — "two filing cabinets worth," he said. Only about $8,000 has been collected so far this year.

Martindale advises merchants to make sure they know who they're taking checks from by getting drivers' license numbers or similar identification.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Poor folks are not all farm workers

They call it the "New South" and the thing that is happening to it a "booming economy." Texas is a part of the New South and that means what affects Texas likely also affects the Panhandle.

One notes that, all things considered, the picture for Texas right now is nice and rosy.

But there is a dark side, according to some observers.

Dr. Earl Cook, dean of geosciences at Texas A&M University, said recently the New South's booming economy, with its image of high times, good wages and low unemployment, may have that dark side. He is an energy expert.

He warned that the boomtown aura could actually increase the number of poor people in Sun Belt states, particularly as the energy crunch takes its toll on large urban areas and private industry.

Since his remarks were made sometime ago, there are indications even now that he may be right, to a certain degree.

He said the number of poor or marginally employed persons in the South will rise as retirees, illegal immigrants from Mexico, and unemployed laborers from the North and Midwest move to escape gas lines, higher heating bills and spiraling costs. He pointed out that even with the Sun Belt's economic boom, it has a greater percentage of poor people than does the Frost Belt. He added, "This proportion will increase because inflation and energy costs will rise as the boom continues. Many fixed-income retirees and marginally employed workers will slip back into poverty as the cost of living goes up. The same factors that make a boomtown also bring the inflation and energy problems many of these people are trying to escape."

Nevertheless, Texas is doing well, considering what is happening on the national political and economic fronts, and those who dwell here can be thankful. So far as Texas is concerned, there's sunshine in the Sun Belt and the future is bright.

Just recently the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas reported that industrial production in Texas rose in June at an estimated two percent annual rate, seasonally adjusted, to a level .9 percent above that of a year earlier. The increase resulted as expanded production in manufacturing more than offset a decline in mining output, the bank pointed out.

The bank's statistical department said increased durable goods production accounted for the rise in manufacturing output, as production of nondurable goods was down. All durable goods industries, with the exception of furniture and fixtures, posted gains in output. Reduced production in printing paper chemicals, and apparel was responsible for the drop in nondurable goods output. But gains were posted in food, textiles and petroleum refining.

Mining output declined as a result of a drop in drilling activity, and a decrease in output of crude oil but production of metal stone and earth minerals was up.

Now, back to Dr. Cook and his "poor people." He said "The key factor about the Sun Belt having a higher proportion of poor people is this — they are no longer mainly farm workers needing little energy. They are now mainly urban workers tied to the high-energy network of cars, air conditioning and processed foods."

We went all around Robin Hood's barn to get to this conclusion. Let's summarize to a point. Texas is doing fine. It has had a slight slowdown, which may or may not be significant. More people are heading our way, driven here by, among other things, the energy crunch. We may, then, observe an increase in the number of poor people, but not in a large proportion. And finally, the "poor folks" enlarging the numbers of "Texas poor folks" cannot be blamed on the Texas farmer, for they are not of the farm worker category but of the urban society.

If blasphemy is still an operative word in our society, we must apply it to the outrageous Monty Python film satire, "Life of Brian."

"Life of Brian" is crude and rude mockery, colossal bad taste, profane parody. It is grossly offensive to those who accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior and who call themselves Christians. And it should be equally offensive to any others who believe that religious faith should not be ridiculed or demeaned by overt and perverse sacrilege.

"Life of Brian" is a spoof on the life of Jesus—or at least it seems to be. Technically it is not. It is the story of a contemporary of Jesus of Nazareth, a man named Brian, who is mistaken for the Messiah. There are parallels to Biblical incidents to suggest that any character, even someone as inept and reluctant as Brian, can accidentally be hailed as a hero. Brian gets credited for miracles he didn't do, gets lionized by crowds as a savior, gets judged by Pontius Pilate, gets abused by Roman soldiers, and finally gets crucified—more or less.

But one cannot really countenance or approve the ridiculing of the crucifixion story. We see Brian and also dozens of others tied, not nailed, to their crosses on a Calvary—like hill after a parody of Via Dolorosa. It is all presented as a big joke. In fact, one of the malefactors sings from his cross a rhythmic ditty that clearly mocks the sacred idea of atonement which the faithful have historically associated with the cross of Christ.

What is happening in a world where nothing is sacred anymore—where faith is publicly ridiculed, mocked, and scorned for the entertainment dollar? Some months ago there was an attempt by a pornographer to actually film a life of Jesus as a sex film. The governments of Denmark, Sweden, and England, among others, were successful in discouraging that production. But on the encouragement of "Life of Brian," other blasts of blasphemy may come.

We hesitate even to review a movie like this, realizing full well that our commentary, negatively critical though it is, will only give publicity to a movie that should be seen by fewer people if ignored. But if we fail to protest this disgraceful and distasteful assault on religious sensitivity, we will have to brace ourselves for the next obscenity to appear on film now.

Let's hope and even pray that "Life of Brian" will be short-lived.

Before you go into debt

By OSCAR COOLEY

It is often said that a time of inflation is a good time to go into debt, for a dollar borrowed now can be paid back with a future dollar that is cheaper, that is, easier to come by.

Apparently many act on this principle, for consumer debt today is reported to exceed a fantastic trillion dollars, or 35 percent more than it was only two years ago.

Why not buy that new car and pay for it over the next five years with increasingly cheaper dollars? Or that home and pay for it over a 20-year span with dollars that become continually easier to earn?

Many are paying today for things bought in years past as considerably lower prices than the same goods command now. Assuming the inflation will continue—and who has noted any sign of its abating?—it seems smart to buy things that are not perishable and that we know we will want in future, when the goods will be higher in price.

In short, it pays to hoard. Or does it? The matter is not quite that simple. In theory, credit buying yields inflation profit. But what if the inflation of the future puts you in such a bind that you cannot pay your grocery bill and at the same time make those required payments on your debt?

Sure, those goods purchased in the less inflationary past were a buy, but the installments are nevertheless substantial. They could be the straw that breaks the camel's back, the camel being already loaded to the limit.

Theoretically, those people who are now paying off that trillion dollars of debt, incurred in the past, are sitting pretty. A typical one is paying for a $3,000 car with dollars each of which cost only 15,000 of a car. You can't beat that.

But in fact, they may be sweating to make enough money to meet those debt payments, for in respect to most of their transactions they are victims, not beneficiaries, of inflation. The cost of living has them in a squeeze. Mother as well as father has taken a wage job to increase the family income. Either or both may be on a short work-week, or no work-week at all, because their employer's sales have dropped due to his high prices.

This deep-in-debt consumer will be in even worse shape if the recession proves to be severe. His income will drop, perhaps sharply, but his debt payments will not decrease. He can economize on food, clothing and shelter, but debt payments are a fixed expense until the debt is paid.

Borrowing money for consumption is a gamble because it is betting on the future, and it is an especially risky gamble today because the future is so uncertain.

In the future as in the present, the inflation will hurt some worse than others. Each of us receives income in the form of wages, interest, rent or profit, and each has to pay in the form of prices paid for our wants. If our rates of income rise by a certain percentage, say 10, and our prices of output by the same percentage, we have neither gained nor lost because of inflation. We lose to the degree that our output prices rise more, percentage-wise, than our income rates.

If, judging from the past, one's output prices are likely to be inflated more than his income rates, he should be wary of incurring debt, for although his debt installments will not rise, being fixed, other of his outgo prices will. His outgo-income ratio will worsen, putting him in a position where all his out-payments will be difficult.

The New York News makes some practical suggestions for consumers who buy on credit:

Don't buy so much on credit that your repayments exceed 20 percent of your take-home pay, or cash income.

Don't use one credit card to pay monthly charges on another.

Don't expand credit-buying on the basis of overtime pay. We are in a recession, and recessions end overtime.

Don't make large credit purchases on the income of a newly employed spouse. In a recession, new employees are the first to be laid off.

Use credit cards as a convenience, — for example, when traveling — for record-keeping purposes or to avoid carrying a lot of cash, not as a substitute for money you do not have.

It is well to remember that when you have satisfied your creditor by showing him a credit card, the bill is still unpaid.

These are sound rules to follow during either inflation or deflation.

Jimmy's tough decision

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Things happen very fast in Washington.

A few months ago everyone was asking: "Will Teddy Kennedy run in 1980?"

Now people want to know: "Will Jimmy Carter run in 1980?"

At the moment it is very hard to predict. There has been a great deal of pressure on Carter to run, particularly by members of his staff. But insiders say he is reluctant at this time to announce his candidacy.

Carter has told friends, "If I challenge Kennedy in 1980 I could split the party. Besides, there are many family considerations that I have to resolve."

One is whether his wife Rosalynn wants Jimmy to run for President. Intimates say that Rosalynn, who has never enjoyed the give and take of national politics, would prefer that Jimmy go back into the U.S. Navy. Most of Carter's Annapolis classmates are admirals now and Rosalynn is sure that if Jimmy would reapply for his commission he would earn his flag rank in no time.

On the other hand, some friends say that Rosalynn enjoys being First Lady and much prefers the East Wing of the White House to the Grand Ballroom of the Carter Peanut Warehouse in Plains.

Other family considerations that Jimmy is seriously weighing is whether by not running, he'll have to take his daughter Amy out of the District of Columbia school system. One of the reasons Jimmy gave for wanting to be President is that he heard the D.C. school system was so much better than the one in Americus, Ga.

A third family consideration Jimmy has to face up to is how his brother Billy will feel about him running for another term.

Billy has always been shy by nature and hated the limelight, and he has never cottoned to his brother being President of the United States. He was once overheard to tell Jimmy: "I'll be glad when you're out of the White House so I can get back to tending my gas station. Everyone who owns a station has been making a mint. But not me. Every time I want to go to work I get called in front of a grand jury. If you cared anything for me you'd chuck it all and get the feds and press off my back."

The most important factor in Jimmy's decision will be how his mother feels about him running for President. Miss Lillian has yet to indicate if she will give her permission or not.

"I've tried to give Jimmy a good upbringing and teach him right from wrong," she told the Muppets on television the other night. "But the trouble with being President of the United States is that you don't know what is right or wrong. When you think you're doing right, the public says you're doing wrong. And when you're doing wrong, the public says you're doing right. I've never stood in the way of my children. So if Jimmy wants to run for President it's my duty as his mother to support him, even if it's difficult to explain to my friends whose sons are all successful in their own fields. On the other hand if he wants to buy a cooperative apartment on Fifth Avenue in New York City, I'll go along with that too."

Most of the pressure on Carter is coming from his close advisors who keep telling him, "Some people will say it's unfair of you to challenge an incumbent senator from Massachusetts when he decides he wants to be President. But these are no ordinary times and the country needs leadership. You're the only one who can do it after what we've gone through for the past three years."

Pretty soon Jimmy Carter will have to make the hardest decision of his life. Will he enter the presidential sweepstakes and risk splitting his own party by challenging Kennedy? Or will he bow out and wait another four years to run, when the Democratic nomination would be his for the asking?

The Weber case: Reaping the whirlwind

By HAROLD C. GORDON

The case of Kaiser Aluminum v Weber, which the Supreme Court decided last June, seems destined to set off a chain reaction of uncertainty and injustice.

There is an old saying that "hard cases made bad law." The Weber case is of this category. Weber, a white man, had been excluded from a company training program that reserved 50 percent of the available places for blacks. In response, he sued his employer, alleging a violation of his civil rights.

The Supreme Court faced a judicial quandary. On the one hand, federal law specifically barred discrimination on racial grounds against any individual in any program "established to provide apprenticeship or other training." On the other hand, the Court did not want to invalidate special programs designed to give disadvantaged blacks a boost up the job ladder.

In the end, the Court by a 5-2 majority, came out in favor of "benign" quotas, but on grounds that made no sense in terms of law, history or logic. First, the Court claimed that benign quotas were within the spirit of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This contradicts virtually the entire legislative history of the act. As Rep. Emanuel Celler declared, on introducing the original bill in the House: "Even (a) court could not order that any preference be given to any particular race, religion, or other group, but would be limited to ordering an end to discrimination."

Second, the Court maintained that this was a purely voluntary effort by a private party. Even if it were precisely that, it would still contravene the clear language of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, but Kaiser did not embark on this program voluntarily.

The program emerged from contract negotiations between Kaiser and the Stelworkers Union. Yet the threat of a federal anti-discrimination suit—aimed at both company and union—hung over these negotiations. As Daniel Leach, vice-chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission later admitted: "there is no doubt that Kaiser went into a training program because it felt it needed more black craftsmen to avoid possible difficulties with the government."

In plain terms, Kaiser was blackmailed into adopting quotas to avoid "possible difficulties with the government," and the Supreme Court legitimized this practice in its Weber decision. The EEOC was quick to hail the Court's ruling as "a triumph of reasonableness," and has announced plans to "encourage" companies and unions to take "voluntary" action in this area as part of collective bargaining agreements. Official guidelines are now being drawn up.

The upshot is likely to be more "voluntary" programs giving preferential treatment to minority, and perhaps even to women workers. How far these programs will be allowed to go remains to be seen, but it is likely that more white males will soon find themselves in the same position as Mr. Weber. The Supreme Court, by twisting the law to suit its own notions of social welfare, may find it has opened the door to confusion and bitterness. As Justice William Rehnquist observed in his dissent: "The Court has sown the wind, and later courts will face the impossible task of reaping the whirlwind."

A HOWDY was given Pampa style to several high school freshmen Saturday night during a Howdy Party held at Central Park. Freshmen girls were thrown in the Red Deer Creek that flows through the park, then covered with shaving cream and motor oil by seniors who feel hazzing is part of the tradition at the school. The Howdy Party is not sponsored by the school and according to administrators is forbidden from school grounds. (Staff photos by Gary Clark)

minor accidents

A 1974 Chevrolet driven by Thomas, Wesley Bruce, 18, of 1125 Terry struck a 1977 Buick driven by Elaine Walker Ledbetter, 62, of 1611 Grape, in the 1200 block of Christine. Bruce was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Gerald Mayo, 46, of 1001 Terry Rd. was traveling west on Hwy. 60, driving a 1978 Chevrolet Bonanza, when struck from behind by Michael Habekott, 21, of 1824 34th, Apt. 6-A, Woodward, Okla., who was driving a 1970 Pontiac GTO. Habekott was following Mayo at the time of the mishap.

A 1977 Olds Cutlass, driven by William Lowe, 22, of Rt. 1, Box 270 was stopped at a stop sign headed west on 300 W. Brown when it was struck from behind by Abrey McCord, 36, of 933 Wheeler. McCord's foot reportedly slipped from the brake after he had stopped, causing the accident. McCord was cited for improper start from a parked position.

A 1975 Ford pickup was involved in a hit-and-run accident also involving Jamie Powers, 16, of 317 Canadian, driving a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro Z-28. Powers was reportedly stopped at a stop sign on Gwendolyn when the Ford pickup apparently jumped a curb, struck a hedge, and stopped on Gwendolyn. The pickup then started forward, hitting the Powers vehicle and left the scene. Damage to the hedge was estimated at $25 and to the Powers vehicle at $100. An investigation continues into the accident.

The Pampa Police Department responded to 32 calls in the past 48 hours.

Safety inspections increase after explosion injures 15

FORT WORTH (AP) - Sponsors of a tractor-pulling contest beefed up safety inspections Sunday in the wake of a tractor explosion that injured 15 persons, including four who remained hospitalized today.

The accident Saturday night rained shrapnel from the disabled tractor into a throng of spectators at the Tarrant County Convention Center. Eleven persons were treated for cuts and bruises and released.

Four remained hospitalized - one in serious condition, one fair and two victims listed in good condition.

In a tractor-pulling competition, drivers compete in speed races and in pulling weighted sleds for cash prizes.

R.B. Allen, executive vice president of the Hardware and Implements Association, a sponsor of the event, said the number of safety inspectors to make sure the tractors meet safety regulations was doubled Sunday.

Louis Owen, the center's executive director, said the situation could have been worse if it had not been for help from members of the audience who were not injured.

"I've been in this business now some 40-odd years, and the spectators were absolutely fantastic," Owen said. "They helped, they worked... you couldn't have asked for anything better."

Owen said workers at the center called ambulances to transport those hurt by the flying metal parts, and that only one person went in a private car for treatment.

After the accident, the remaining events in the semi-annual event were run without any further troubles.

The tractor that blew was a souped-up model owned by the Gray Brothers Pork Producers of Snyder, Texas. It was specially fitted with three engines, said Fire Department Capt. Earl Valentine.

"The clutch went," Valentine said. "It evidently was too much of a strain for the tractor to carry three engines." He said two engines were mounted on both sides of the front of the rig, and the third was balanced over the rear wheels.

"He (the driver) started with the one engine and then about halfway down the track, he kicked in the other two," Valentine said. He said the activation of the additional engines apparently caused the problem.

Officers said there was no panic among the crowd of about 7,000.

"We used the loudspeaker system and told people to sit down and stay out of the aisles," said Police Lt. Mike Culpepper. He said when the tractor engine blew up, small pieces of quarter-sized metal peppered the audience.

Police said a metal guard, normally placed over the clutch plate to prevent metal from flying in the event of an explosion was not in place on the tractor.

Southwest Hardware & Implement Association officials would not confirm that the safety guard was missing. Other tractors were inspected immediately to make sure such guards were in place.

Grain to start moving again

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) - Striking millers and the last of eight grain elevator companies have reached a tentative contract agreement that could end a two-month labor dispute which blocked the shipment of a bumper harvest and cost Midwest farmers at least $1 billion.

Grain shipments from Duluth and its twin port, Superior, Wis., could resume as early as Wednesday if the 530 members of Local 118 of the American Federation of Grain Millers approve the new contracts in balloting set for Tuesday, said to John Rogers, spokesman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The last of the proposed contracts was reached Sunday in Minneapolis after a 19-hour session between the union and the giant General Mills Co. Rogers said union negotiators would recommend approval of all eight agreements, but no details were released.

The strike began over a wage dispute on July 6, a week after the old contracts expired, and quickly spread to all eight elevators in the Twin Ports.

By July 25, the walkout had halted all shipments through the Twin Ports to Lake Superior, aggravating the impact of a strike against the Rock Island railroad, a major Midwest grain hauler, just as a bumper harvest began in the Midwest.

Clements says politics behind oil spill suit

DALLAS (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says politics is behind a lawsuit planned by the Texas attorney general against the oil drilling equipment company the governor founded.

"I think it is more political rhetoric than substance," said the Republican governor, who returned to Texas Saturday from a 22-day trip to eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat, has promised to file suit against SEDCO, Inc., accusing it of partial liability because its equipment was used to drill a Mexican offshore well that blew out June 3 and spilled oil that stained Texas beaches two months later.

Clements also said he was not consulted about legal maneuvers SEDCO took to minimize lawsuits stemming from the oil on the Texas coast.

City to discuss delinquent tax issue

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The Pampa City Commission will be holding a regular meeting tomorrow at the Court House at 9:30 a.m.

Among the items on the agenda for tomorrow's meeting will be consideration of authorizing an Amarillo firm as delinquent tax attorneys for the city of Pampa.

According to Mack Wofford, city manager, the firm of Perdue, Brandon, Blair, Shiever and Fielder will be considered to contract for the city's delinquent tax collection. Wofford said the firm would be in effect, a "common attorney" for the city in bringing in delinquent taxes.

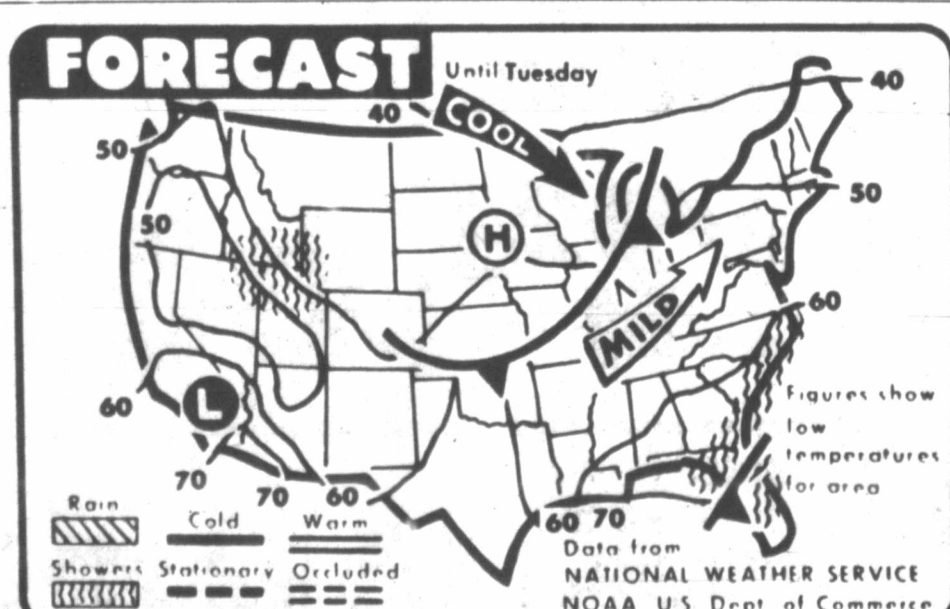

Also to be considered on first reading, will be a Civil Defense Ordinance. The ordinance will, according to Wofford, "provide for emergency powers to be given to the city commission" in the event of a catastrophe, such as Wichita Falls experienced early in the summer. He went on to say, "For all basic purposes, it's a standard throughout the state of Texas."

The commission will consider authorization of a Utility Joint Use Agreement with the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation concerning the improvement of F. M. 750, also called McCullough Street.

There will be the first reading of the following ordinances pertaining to the 1979-80 budget: (a) ordinance adopting Budget, (b) Ordinance setting tax rate, (c) ordinance amending water rate, (d) ordinance amending sanitary sewer rate, (e) ordinance amending residential solid waste collection rate, (f) ordinance amending commercial solid waste collection rate.

The last item to be considered in tomorrow's meeting will be setting Oct. 23, as the day to receive bids for the purchase of a traffic control vehicle.

DR. LAMB

Fibroid tumors are common

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a big problem. My doctors have found out I have a fibrous tumor in my uterus and it's as large as a grapefruit and growing. Now they want to take out my whole insides. I'm 50 years old but I have a 30-year-old husband. I don't know anything about the female organs and it's terrifying me. They call it a hysterectomy.

I'm 200 pounds and the doctors say I need to lose weight before the operation. I can't. I'm so disturbed and frustrated I'm drinking alcohol which is keeping me fat.

I'm very anemic from losing lots of blood every month and the doctors don't want to wait with the operation. I need some information on what happens to women without female organs. Can I lose weight fast in one month?

DEAR READER - Fibroid tumors are fairly common. They're made up of muscle and fiber tissue similar to the muscular wall of the uterus itself. If they're small and don't cause any problems, they can be ignored. When they cause excessive bleeding, an operation is usually necessary.

You're overly concerned about the surgery. It should not affect your sex life. The removal of the uterus does not affect the birth canal.

At your age the doctors will probably remove the ovaries. For that reason you may need some female hormones immediately after surgery, but the doctors will have to decide that in your individual case.

You probably want to know how this will affect your husband's response and it shouldn't affect him in any way. If it does, it's more apt to be psychological rather than being related to any real change in you that he would notice in any way.

Now about your weight. It's quite true that surgery is a great deal easier in people of normal weight. Being obese not only makes the surgery more difficult but it increases the complications regardless of what kind of abdominal surgery is being performed.

You can't expect to lose much fat in just a month's time. You might safely lose eight pounds of body fat. The scales may show a little more weight loss because of the loss of fluid. To do that you'd have to be on a fairly strict diet and some surgeons don't like their patients to be on a strict diet immediately preceding surgery.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, because after surgery you will at least have a surgical menopause if your ovaries are removed. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In your age group, you may or may not need hormonal support after surgery. In a younger woman, let's say in her early 30s, it would definitely be indicated unless there was some specific reason why female hormones could not be used.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Teens: Does your boyfriend or girlfriend nag? How about your parents? How about yourself?

Well, naggers are made, not born. And it takes two to turn someone into a nag - which is something to think about next time you're being nagged.

According to Oklahoma City psychotherapist Marion Mackey, a person who nags you about something does it not once or twice but probably a dozen times. And with each succeeding request, you tune out more and more, procrastinating with a reflexive "Okay, okay..." This not only makes the problem worse, but it can make getting along with a nagger very difficult.

If you feel nagged, there are ways to help break the pattern. First, study the situation, and see what you are doing to contribute to it. Are you, perhaps without realizing it, just not getting around to doing things? If so, resolve to improve.

By itself, unfortunately, improving probably won't help a great deal. Have a talk with the nagger when neither of you is feeling angry or defensive. Explain, calmly, that you feel nagged and that you're going to do what you can to change the situation.

The next time you're asked in a nagging way to do something, try to do it immediately. Then, call attention to the fact that you've done it before proceeding to other conversation. Keep in mind that the nagging pattern takes a long time to build up and will take time to change.

Plane collection becomes museum

MESA, Ariz. (AP) - A new aviation museum created by Doug Champlin, an Oklahoma gas and oil businessman, will open at Falcon Field near here.

Champlin will start with 20 aircraft, but he hopes to expand the collection to 30 aircraft within five years.

The museum will also display 50 oil paintings of planes in combat and 600 autographed photographs of air races from 1914 to 1970.

The museum will be housed in two World War II hangars and a new building planned by Champlin.

Boat people is stormy issue

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: AMERICA FIRST wrote to say that we in the United States were foolish for taking in the "boat people". I disagreed.

Judging from the passionate response from my readers, I touched a raw nerve in a very nervous nation. My mail has been running roughly 200- to 1 in favor of AMERICA FIRST.

Some typical excerpts:
 "Overpopulating is the basic cause of all the world's problems. Overbreeding Europeans took over America from the Indians. Are we going to let overbreeding Asians take over our country? We should help them only if they agree to be sterilized!"

MT. CRAWFORD, W. VA."

"The immigrants who came here from other countries made this country great. Are we to deny others the same chance our forefathers had? By God, I hope not! If there's room in the heart, there's room in the land!"

A VOICE FROM UTAH"

"I am sick to my stomach seeing our Navy planes and ships wasting our taxpayers' money searching for boat people.

We welcomed the Europeans who have similar lifestyles, but let the Chinese go where they can eat raw fish, rice, ride bicycles, live 20 in a room and smoke opium!"

EL PASO, TEXAS"

"I have as much compassion as you concerning the refugees from Vietnam, but why must the United States take in as many as we can rescue? Some other countries have taken in a token few, but they are too practical to act as emotionally as we.

KAILUA, HAWAII"

"Now it is fashionable to open up our country to Vietnamese who are bringing more diseases with them than we have cures for. I think it's a Communist plot to destroy this country!"

SHELBYVILLE, IND."

"Assisting the boat people is like the motorist who stops to pick up an attractive hitchhiker, only to have the husband, half a dozen kids, and aunts and uncles oozing out of the bushes for a ride. I'm with AMERICA FIRST; I haven't changed my name or my nose, and I am not anti-anything. Sign me..."

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

'Routine' drugs are in schools

By Joe Graedon

As the kids settle in for another year of homework and books, it may be time to make sure the schools themselves don't deserve some dirty looks on the issue of drugs in school. Now, we're not talking about illicit drugs such as marijuana or alcohol, but common and accepted ones such as antibiotics, allergy remedies, pain relievers, and asthma medicine. A big part of the problem is just in getting people - parents, teachers, and children - to recognize that medications in school can spell trouble.

Our associate, Susan Spalt, M.P.H., health coordinator for a local school system, points out that schools have to deal with two distinct situations: first, they must treat children for emergencies which may occur during school hours, and second, they are expected to carry on treatments begun at home.

Her research turned up a variety of "routine supplies" kept on hand in schools. These ranged from antibiotic ointments and steroid creams to pain relievers. In addition, parents often send their children to school with a wide assortment of prescription drugs and over-the-counter remedies.

Ms. Spalt discovered students taking asthma medication or antibiotics as well as nose drops and cold remedies. She even found one student storing a bottle of incorrectly labeled seizure medicine in the school secretary's desk. None of the schools Ms. Spalt studied had any information about the reason for the medication, possible side effects, correct dosage or proper administration.

All this can be confusing enough in a school with a nurse on duty part of the time. However, many schools do not have nurses; they must rely on teachers, secretaries or administrators to give medications. Often these well-meaning people are not aware of the proper use of the drugs they are dispensing. Ms. Spalt visited many schools where no one was sure who should be responsible for administering the medicine or recording it.

This casual approach to medications in school is certainly undesirable and can be downright dangerous. Some children are allergic even to something as "innocent" as plain aspirin. If the wrong dose of a drug were given, unwanted side effects could easily result.

Drug interactions also pose potential hazards. A child taking medication for bed-wetting or hyperactivity can run into real trouble if given an apparently innocuous cold remedy.

Another problem with routinely handing out drugs is that it reinforces children's ideas that there is a pill for every ill. It's bad enough that television commercials constantly blare this message. While children need to learn which symptoms require medical treatment, they also need to learn that there are other ways to deal with aches and pains besides popping a pill.

We can change this situation. First, parents of elementary school children should find out about the first-aid and medication policies of their children's schools. If no formal plan exists a health committee made up of health professionals, school people and parents should be formed.

Some potential guidelines may be helpful: no medication (not even aspirin) should be administered routinely. Whenever possible, medicine should be given before or after school.

If a child must take some prescription drug during school hours, the school should require written or phoned instructions from the physician and a written request from parents, including information on the child's health problem, the drug, the dosage and potential side effects.

Only one person (or a specific team) in each school designated by the principal, should be responsible for administering drugs, and the school should not be required to assume responsibility for undesirable reaction.

Many of these problems could be eliminated entirely if sound information on correct methods of self-care and proper use of medications was introduced in school health classes. And sometimes our children need to learn that the best remedy may be no remedy at all.

Phillips second-guesses himself after 30-27 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips had room to second-guess himself after Sunday's 30-27 overtime victory against the Cincinnati Bengals, since the Oilers nearly fumbled away Toni Fritsch's chance to kick a 29-yard field goal to defeat the winless Bengals.

"Hindsight is always better, but that was poor coaching," Phillips said. "I probably should have kicked it on the first play. You saw what we did on the next."

Earl Campbell had rescued the Oilers from a fourth-and-inches situation at the Bengal 33-yard line, but Houston again sent Campbell up the middle for one yard rather than kick. On the next play, Campbell carried wide and the ball was jarred loose.

The Bengals recovered, but defensive end Ross Browner was detected off-sides on the play. Houston got the ball at the Cincinnati 12-yard line with 38 seconds left, and Fritsch kicked a 29-yard field goal that bounced off the left upright and through the goalposts.

Campbell finished with 158 yards in 34 carries, including an eight-yard touchdown run. Quarterback Dan Pastorini passed for two touchdowns, and Fritsch kicked three field goals, altogether; as Houston upped its record to 3-1 and Cincinnati fell to 0-4.

"It hurts to lose. There's no way to describe the hurt," said Bengal Coach Homer Rice. "But we'll bounce back. It's still early in the season."

The Bengals dominated the first 24 minutes of play behind rookie quarterback Jack Thompson, subbing for the injured Ken Anderson. Dick Jauron picked off two Pastorini passes. Pete Johnson scored twice on one-yard runs and rookie Charles Alexander on a two-yarder and Chris Bahr kicked a 52-yard field goal.

"Everything we did early went against us, and the same thing for them in the second half," Phillips said.

"The two interceptions killed us, but then we hit on our basic stuff," said Pastorini. "We made early mistakes but were able to make the adjustments we needed."

Pastorini hit Kenny Burrough in the end zone with a 35-yard scoring pass with just under five minutes left in the second quarter and Fritsch kicked a 43-yarder to close the half.

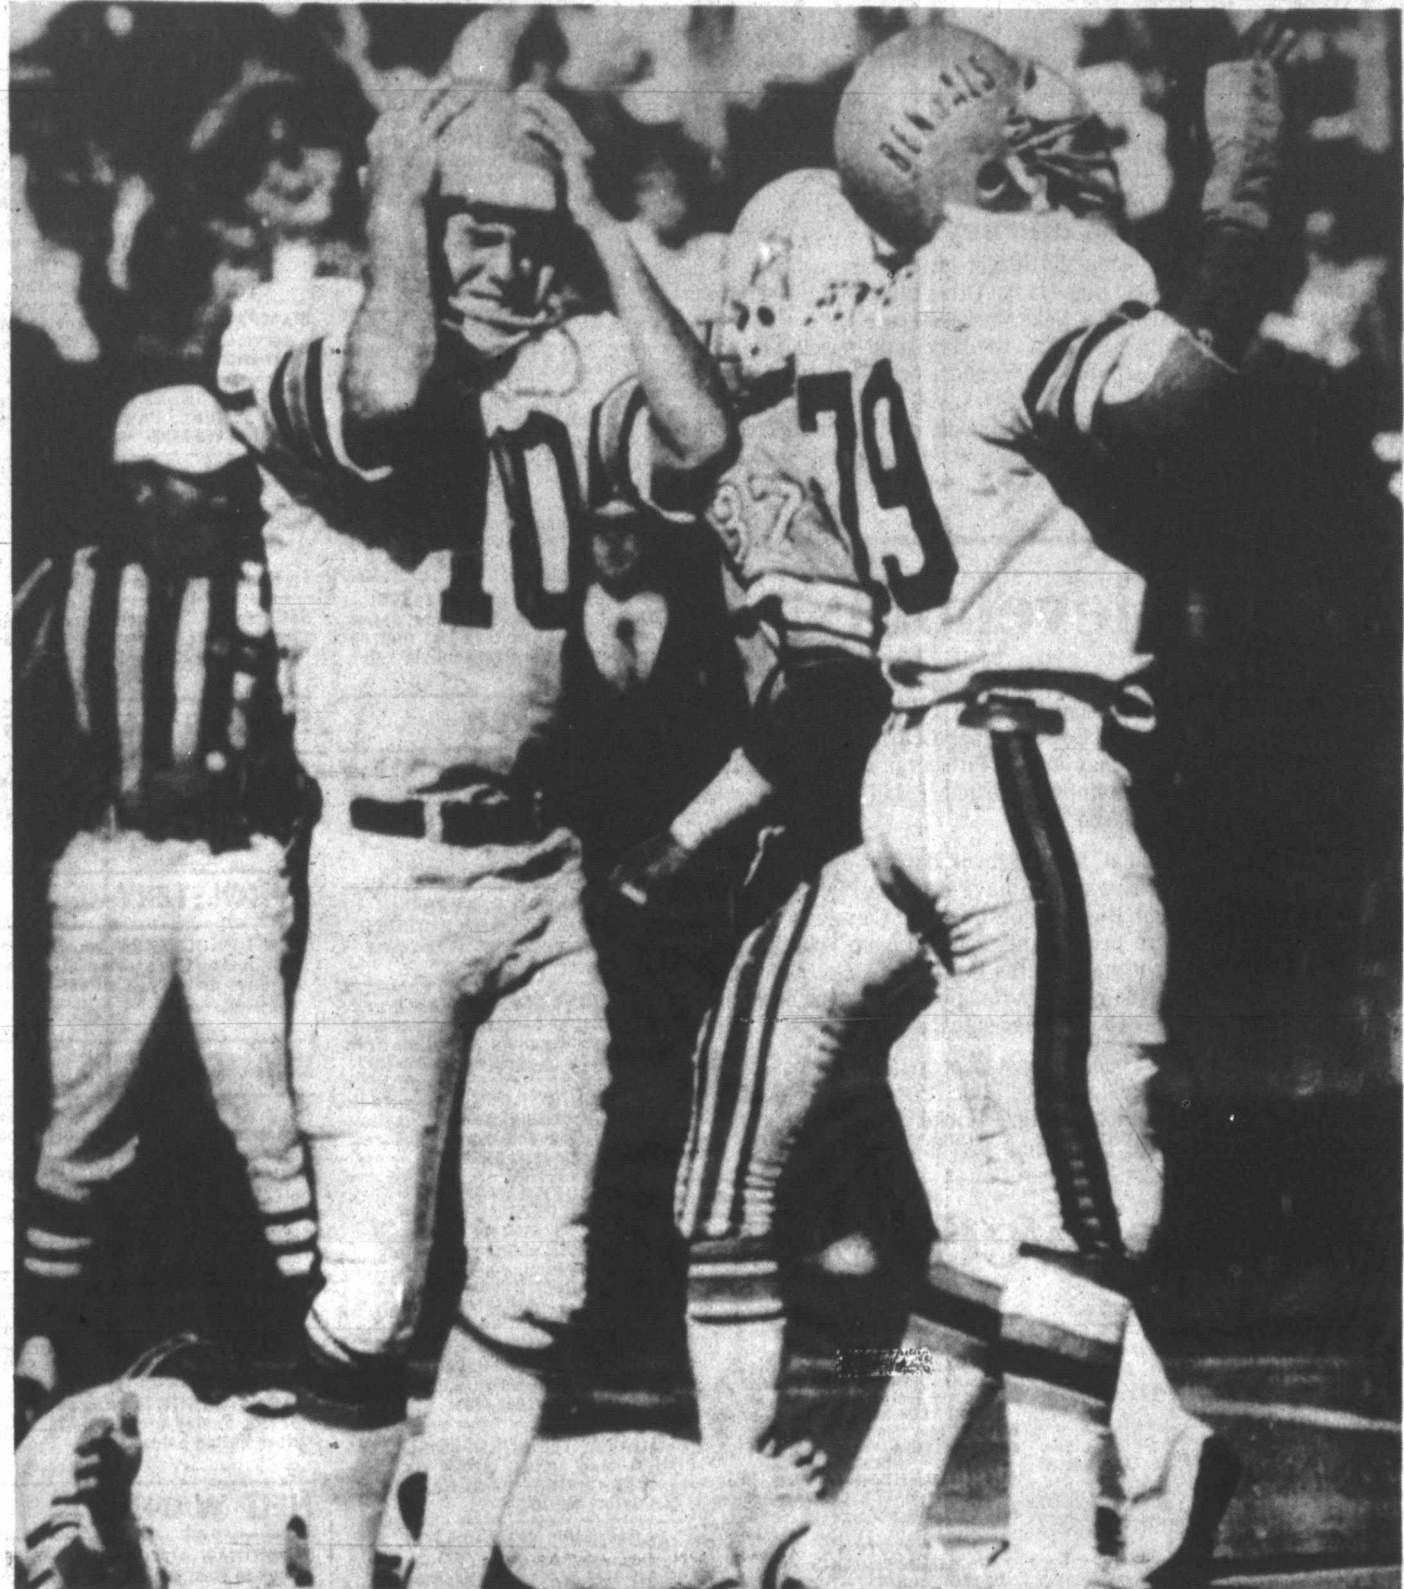

"Houston seemed like they were out of the ballgame, and we allowed them to lull us to sleep," said Bengal defensive end Gary

Burley. "Once you let down, you give the other team the momentum."

Houston scored the next three times it had the ball, recovering the second-half kickoff to set up Campbell's touchdown run. Pastorini hitting Rich Caster on a 24-yard touchdown play and Fritsch kicking a 47-yarder with 1:53 left in the third quarter.

Bahr sent the game into overtime when he kicked a 55-yard field goal with 3:26 left in regulation play, eclipsing the club field goal record of 53 yards set by Horst Muhlman in 1970.

Bahr missed a 32-yard attempt in overtime that would have given the game to the Bengals. "I thought it was right down the middle, but I guess it missed by about an inch of hitting the upright," Bahr said. "It might as well have been off six yards."

CHRIS BAHR of the Cincinnati Bengals shows his anguish after missing a field goal in overtime against the Houston Oilers Sunday. Later, Oilers kicker Toni Fritsch connected on a field goal to give Houston a 30-27 win. (AP Laserphoto)

NFL roundup

Teams take different routes to victory in fourth week of season

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Sometimes, it's quality that pays off for quarterbacks.

—Example: Tampa Bay's Doug Williams completed just five passes Sunday, but two of them went for touchdowns and the Bucs beat Los Angeles 21-6.

Sometimes, it's quantity that pays off for receivers.

—Example: Buffalo's Jerry Butler caught 10 passes for 255 yards and four TDs as the Bills trampled the New York Jets 46-31.

Bucs 21, Rams 6

Unbeaten Tampa Bay packed three touchdowns into the second period, two of them on passes by Williams to Larry Mucker for 15 yards and Jimmie Giles for 29.

For the game, Williams finished with 5-of-20 and 101 yards but the quality of his completions outweighed the quantity.

Bills 46, Jets 31

Buffalo was trailing 24-12 when Butler caught a deflected pass and took it 75 yards for a TD on the final play of the first half.

Broncos 37, Seahawks 34

Denver was trailing 34-10 halfway through the third quarter when Morton came off the bench to shatter Seattle.

Patriots 27, Chargers 21

New England built a 20-0 lead but then needed an interception by Steve Nelson to halt a Charger rally in the final two minutes to clinch the victory.

Steelers 17, Colts 13

Pittsburgh won its fourth straight by coming from behind in the final period for the third time. Terry Bradshaw's 28-yard screen pass to Bennie Cunningham provided the winning TD with 5:41 to play.

Vikings 27, Packers 21, OT

Ahmad Rashad grabbed Tommy Kramer's pass on a 50-yard play that gave Minnesota its winning TD against Green Bay in overtime.

Chiefs 35, Raiders 7

Kansas City sacked Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler six times, with Art Still recording four, in a victory dominated by the Chiefs' defense. Gary Barbaro returned a Stabler interception 70 yards for one TD and J. T. Smith returned a punt 88 yards for another score.

Redskins 17, Cardinals 7

Washington yielded 306 passing yards to Jim Hart but capitalized on four fumble recoveries to beat St. Louis. Rookie linebacker Don Hover recovered one of the fumbles in the end zone for one of the Redskin TDs. The other recoveries halted Cardinal drives deep in Washington territory and the 'Skins also sacked Hart three times.

Lions 24, Falcons 23

Rookie Jeff Komlo passed for two touchdowns as Detroit won its first game after three straight losses. He completed 19 of 35 attempts for 289 yards.

Saints 30, 49ers 21

Archie Manning completed 20 of 28 passes for 355 yards and two TDs as New Orleans won its first game of the year and tagged San Francisco with its fourth loss.

Eagles 17, Giants 13

Wilbert Montgomery rushed for 126 yards and scored on a 53-yard pass play from Ron Jaworski as Philadelphia handed New York its fourth consecutive loss.

John Sciarra blocked a punt setting up Jaworski's TD pass to Montgomery and also made an interception halting a late-game Giant rally.

Dolphins 31, Bears 16

Larry Csonka scored on TD runs of 1.9, and 12 yards — the first time in his 11-year career that he has had three TDs in a single game — leading Miami past Chicago.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Dolphins, who came from behind on the precise passing of Don Strock, filling in for Bob Griese.

Amarillo woman takes PWGA title

Lynn Hatfield of Amarillo edged LaVonna Dalton of Pampa for the title in the Pamhandle Women's Golf Association annual tournament held at the Pampa Country Club recently.

The Amarillo woman's gross score was 160 over the two-day medal play tourney. Mrs. Dalton, who also took medalist honors with an 83, had a 166. Tied for the low net score in the championship flight were Marlene Brandt and Nita Hill, both of Pampa. They had identical 157s.

In the first flight, Lynn Kimbrough of Amarillo had the low gross score of 175, while Marge Gipson of Pampa had a 179. The low net scorers were Willa Brown (152) and Marge Austin (157), both of Amarillo.

Sue Winborn of Pampa claimed the best gross score of the second flight with a 187. Betty Hord of Borger was next with a 195. Low net scores came from Mackie Scott of Pampa (163) and Judy Gurley of Borger (165).

Pampa golfers dominated the third flight, with Margaret Lawyer hitting the low gross score at 192. Marty Gridley of Pampa was next with a 200, while Monica Leonard, another Pampian, took first low net honors with a 160. Vonice Schumacher of Amarillo was second at 172.

Joyce Barrett of Pampa took low gross honors in the fourth flight with a 222 total. Fern Mounts of Phillips was next at 227. Von Edwards of Borger took the low net title with a 158 and Mary Cotton of Pampa was second low net with a 177.

Calm Fought wins tournament

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — John Fought reached the final hole in a $300,000 golf tournament Sunday and found himself in a situation that, two weeks ago, might have seemed frightening.

"I looked at the leader board and realized that if I made that putt, I could win the tournament. I couldn't believe it," said the 25-year-old golfer who made the putt and won his second consecutive title.

Two weeks ago, Fought was a virtual nobody on the pro golf tour, a rookie with $22,000 in tournament winnings. Then he won the Buick Open by beating Jim Simons in a playoff and earned a check for $27,000.

Fought began the final round of Napa's Anheuser-Busch Classic 3 strokes off the lead.

Fought was in a five-way tie for the lead as he looked over a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole of Silverado Country Club's North course.

"Winning last week helped me a lot. I said to myself, 'John, you know you can win now, handle this kind of pressure,'" Fought said after pocketing the $54,000 winner's check.

He finished with a 3-under-par round of 69 and a 72-hole total of 11-under 277, becoming one of the few rookies in tour history to win back-to-back tournaments.

"When I heard that roar from the 18th green, I knew exactly what had happened," said Buddy Gardner, who was playing behind Fought and finished at 278, tied with Alan Tapie and Bobby Wadkins for second.

Father Jack Lodge (lefty) and son John of Houston finished second in the two-day event, while Leroy Riser of George West and righty partner Bill Arthur of Pampa wound up third.

Busby wins bass tourney

Dwayne Busby of Amarillo fought his way through tough conditions to claim first place in the Texas Division V Poor Boy Bass Association's fishoff at Lake Mackenzie recently.

Gene Copeland of Altus, Okla., who landed the tournament's big bass of 2 lbs., 11 oz., finished second, while Chuck Clarke of Sanford was third.

Busby was named Division Champion at the tournament's conclusion, while Lonnie Thomas won the 1979 Big Bass crown. Busby, Copeland and Clarke were joined on the 1979 Classic Team by Kenneth Scoggins.

Cowboys favored by three over Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — If history does repeat itself, as some believe, then the Cleveland Browns should be favored to beat the Dallas Cowboys in their National Football League clash tonight.

Instead, the Cowboys head into the meeting of undefeated teams as three-point favorites.

The kickoff of the nationally televised game is scheduled for 9:05 p.m., EDT, in front of a sellout crowd of more than 82,000 in Cleveland's mammoth Municipal Stadium.

The Browns helped launch Monday night football on Sept. 21, 1970, with a 31-21 victory over the New York Jets. In fact, they've won four of their six appearances on Monday night, while the Cowboys have managed just one victory in eight appearances before the ABC cameras.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry shrugs off his team's Monday night history, saying, "I don't know why we've had so little success, but every game is different. You just have to take them as they come."

The Browns aren't thinking about past performances either, but most of them are happy for the chance to gain some national limelight.

Don Cockroft, the veteran placekicker who booted the winning field goal in Cleveland's last Monday night appearance — a 30-27 overtime victory over New England two years ago — is one of them.

"Every game is important, but I can say I'm glad they've been worthy of being on national television, and it also will be great playing one of the best teams in football," Cockroft said.

Browns running star Greg Pruitt has another reason for looking forward to the national exposure.

"It should be a great measuring stick as to what kind of team we are, and how good a running back I am. I think I'm as good as any guy in the game, and I'm looking forward to going head-to-head with (Dallas running back) Tony Dorsett," Pruitt said.

The powerful Cowboys made it to the Super Bowl last season. But they lost to Pittsburgh in that game and have not been impressive in three cliffhanger victories so far this season.

Despite that, they're favored by the experts against the Browns, who also have three narrow victories to their credit. But that doesn't bother Cleveland.

"They're just another football team with different jerseys and helmets, as far as I'm concerned," said Browns wide receiver Reggie Rucker, who began his NFL career 10 years ago with the Cowboys.

"They've been given a lot of credit for giving football its sophisticated edge, but it still comes down to tackling and blocking," Rucker added. "When they don't do that, they lose — just like anybody else."
