Private First Class Adam Carter is now a United States Marine.

Carter was recognized at the Marines Eagle, Globe, and Anchor Ceremony November 10 (coincidentally the Marine Corps birthday) and then graduated the following day, which just happened to be Veterans' Day.

The graduation ceremonies took place on 11-11 (Nov. 11^m) at 11 o'clock - - the exact time that Armistice Day was proclaimed in 1918 recognizing the end of World War I.

Leaving Gail August 15th. Carter traveled to California for thirteen weeks of recruit training.

He earned the title of "Guide" for his platoon (1st Bravo Co.) which placed him as the go-between for the 74 other recruits and the drill instructors.

As Guide, Carter was responsible for marching with the guide on stick and platoon flag. He also had to maintain a strict and harsh attitude at times with fellow recruits, not an easy thing to do when still a recruit himself.

After a short visit in Gail highlighted by a surprise midnight gathering at Buddy and Kristen Wallace's home November 12, Carter spent

One of the stories Carter told the 20 former classmates and neighbors who were at the Wallaces involved an ordeal called The Crucible.

This two-and-a-half day field operation required Carter to pass through thirtysleeping obstacles, two outside and eating rations that included trail nut mix, crackers and jelly, and water. The Reeper Hike is the final obstacle, a twelve-mile trek up a forty-degree slope.

When the hike is accomplished, the recruits are honored with what is called the Warriors' Breakfast, a meal comprised of steak and eggs.

Carter is currently attending a three-week School of Infantry, called the MCT

He has plans to return home for Christmas but will depart January 2. His next assignment is to Ft. Lindonwood, Missouri where he will train for military police operations.

The MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) training is a nine-week school.

Carter will then fill out a "wish list" from places on the East Coast, West Coast, and overseas before being assigned.

No matter where he gets stationed, Carter will be one of the Few, the Proud, the Marines.

Soup In A Jar

Here's an idea for a great gift for all your hard-to-buy-for friends and neighbors. Best of all, it doesn't take much effort and won't break your budget. You don't even have to make a trip to the mall - just add a couple items to the list for your regular visit to the grocery store.

The culinary professionals at Pioneer Brand, producers of a variety of gravy mixes, have developed two new soup recipes that are perfect for gift giving. Your friends and neighbors will truly appreciate these thoughtful and tasty gifts from your kitchen. Using quart jars, start with gravy mix as the soup's base. Additional seasonings and pasta complete the mixes, which cost about $3.25 each. Since filling a dozen jars is about as easy as filling one or two, why not purchase a case of jars and make a dozen of these soup mixes? In one evening, you can take care of significant part of your Christmas list.

In the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, taking a moment to deliver creative gifts from your kitchen brightens the season for everyone. So when you give gifts from your kitchen, you'll want them to look as nice as they taste. Shop craft stores for small tie-on kitchen decorations. Add recipe cards with the simple instructions for simmering the soup. If you like, prepare the jars up to a month before Christmas.

For baking tips and holiday recipe ideas, visit www.pioneerbrand.com.

Economy Keeps Going on Strong

The headline read "Job market gets major boost during November." The story that followed detailed how the economy created 215,000 jobs and the unemployment rate remained at the historically low number of 5.0 percent in November. This story -and others like it - appeared in newspapers across the country over the weekend. The positive numbers from last month mean the economy has now added jobs for an 30 consecutive amazing months.

This period of economic growth began more than two and a half years ago. It was in May of 2003 that Congress passed the Jobs and Growth Act which provided tax relief for millions of Americans. Since the enactment of that law, 4.5 million jobs have been created, the stock market has rebounded, record numbers of Americans have realized the dream of homeownership, and there has been constant GDP growth. There are several factors that have contributed to our healthy economy, but smart tax policies have proven to be one of the primary drivers of this growth.

This week, important legislation will come to the House floor which will give Congress the opportunity to keep this economy moving by making sure these policies remain in place. This measure keeps taxes on individuals at current rates, retains the tax relief on capital gains and dividends, extends sales and tax deductibility provisions (which I wrote about two weeks ago in the Roundup). If Congress does not pass this bill, it will mean an automatic tax increase for millions of taxpayers. This would not mean that, come only federal the January, government will be taking more money out of your paycheck, but it would also be bad news for the economy.

House to Take Up Immigration Reform The wheels are in motion to get a major immigration reform bill to the floor of the House. This legislation, in combination with a stronger commitment to enforce laws already on the books, is the remedy needed to fix an ailing immigration system. There is some talk of voting on the bill before Christmas. If we don't get to it this year, it will be one of the first pieces of legislation we focus on in the new year. As this bill makes its way through the legislative process, I will provide additional updates on this very important issue. --Randy
