Reagan, Carter tapped by county in primary

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Gray County Democratic voters said yes to Jimmy Carter as their presidential candidate while county Republicans voted strongly for Ronald Reagan to represent the GOP in the November elections.

Carter was decidedly the Democratic favorite in the primary receiving 1,676 votes to Ted Kennedy's 203 and Jerry Brown's 76 ballots.

Republican presidential hopefuls, Reagan and George Bush, received 997 and 148 votes, respectively.

Ruth Osborne, 1979 County Democratic chairman, relinquished her seat to Mary Simpson defeated by a little over 300 votes. Simpson received 1,418 votes to Osborne's 1,106.

Another hotly contested race for Lefors Constable of Precinct 1 was won by Jerry Dean Williams with 454 votes. Opponent Billy Dean McMinn received 383 votes.

Bill Sarpalius overwhelmed Gerald McCathern for State Senator for the 31st District. Sarpalius received 1,647 votes to McCathern's 875.

Republican voters in Gray County decided to allow state police to use electronic surveillance methods such as wiretapping in cases involving suspected drug dealers. The techniques would be allowed under judge's supervision.

An initiative and referendum giving Texans the ability to vote directly on issues and pass laws through elections rather than through the legislative process was also okayed by Gray County GOP voters. Tallies showed 954 for the issue and 126 against.

If these issues are passed on a state-wide basis, the questions will be placed on the November ballots for final approval by voters.

Voting was "very light" with only 22 percent of the registered voters appearing. County Clerk Wanda Carter said after the final ballots were tallied Saturday night.

"I'm always disappointed with a light turnout," she said. Her figures show, she said, that 2,795 Democrats and 1,125 Republicans voted in the county elections.

Last year, Ruth Osborne, former Democratic county chairman and about 68 percent of the registered voters turned out.

Carter attributes the apathetic voter attitude to "no local contested races."

Other final results of contested races in the 13 precincts of Gray County in the Democratic primary are as follows:

O. L. Presley defeated Weldon Holley for County Commissioner of Precinct won with a 571 votes to Holley's 336.

Constable for Precinct 5 — Jimmy Joe McDonald - 377, winner. Ray Sharber - 173 and Joe D. Billingsley - 370.

John Poerner won a seat on the state Railroad Commission with 1356 votes over his opponent, Buddy Temple's 994 votes.

The unexpired term on the Railroad Commission will be finished by James E. (Jim) Nugent - 1,502 over Jim Hightower - 983.

Supreme Court Associate Justice, Place 1, was won by James P. Wallace - 844, opponents Wayne Scott and John C. Phillips received respective votes of 538 and 774.

Sears McGee squeezed past Lawrence E. Bergman for the Place 2 spot as Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court. McGee received 1,081 votes to Bergman's 1,002.

Gray County chose Marvin O. Teague as judge for Place 1 of the Criminal Court of Appeals, with 1,179 votes over Leon Douglas with 954.

For Place 2 Judge for the Criminal Court of Appeals John Humphreys received 792 votes over his opponents W. T. Phillips, 556, and Mike McCormick, 682.

In the Place 3 spot on the Court of Appeals, Edith Roberts received 764 votes, over opponent Tom Davis, 740, and Walter Boyd, 573.

Republican contests included the race for Railroad Commissioner which was won by Henry C. (Hank) Grover with 558 votes. Opponents E. W. (Billy) Kidd and John Thomas Henderson received 209 and 240 votes, respectively.

Uncontested Democratic results are:

United States Representative, 13 District — Jack Hightower - 2,350. District Attorney, 31st District — Harold L. Comer - 2,242.

Sheriff — R. H. (Rufe) Jordan - 2,327.

Tax Assessor-Collector — Margie Gray - 2,220.

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2 — G. L. (Nat) Lunsford - 305.

County Commissioner, Precinct 3 — James O. McCracken - 326.

County Attorney — Robert D. McPherson - 2,164.

Associate Justice, Court of Civil Appeals, Seventh District — Carlton B. Dodson - 1,989.

Associate Justice, Court of Civil Appeals, Seventh District (unexpired term) — Richard N. (Dick) Countiss - 1,951.

State Representative, 66th District — Foster Whaley - 2,308.

Member of State Board of Education, 13th District — W. W. (Bill) Carter - 2,088.

Chief Justice, Court of Civil Appeals, Seventh District (Unexpired term) — Charles L. Reynolds - 2,027.

Supreme Court Associate Justice, Place 3 — Robert M. Campbell - 1,945.

Supreme Court Associate Justice, Place 4 (4-year unexpired term) — C. L. Ray - 1,925.

Two Democratic precinct chairman seats were opposed. O. F. (Ott) Shewmaker will be chairman for Precinct 7 after he defeated Eleanor Tyre, 137 to 90. Chairman for Precinct 10 will be Vickie Moose with 36 votes over opponent Pauline Beard's 35.

All Republican precinct chairmen ran unopposed.

ELECTION JUDGES COUNT BALLOTS Saturday at Stephen F. Austin School, a Republican and Democratic voting poll. Counting ballots are (clockwise, from left) Joyce Davis, Fran Gross, Betty Casey and Bill Bridges. In Gray County balloting, President Jimmy Carter and GOP candidate Ronald Reagan were the presidential preference by voters.

Four-county area favors Bill Sarpalius for State Senator

Democrat Bill Sarpalius, the youthful Hereford Senatorial candidate, received a majority of the votes in the Democratic primary in four area counties Wheeler, Roberts, Carson and Hemphill, giving him the lead over his opponent Gerald McCathern for the State Senatorial 31st District race.

Hemphill County residents gave President Carter a vote of confidence in the Saturday primary election count from the Hemphill County Clerk's office.

In the Democratic race, Carter took 441 votes, compared to Kennedy with 57, Brown with 29 and 234 voters uncommitted.

Reagan led the Republican race three to one. The official tally was Reagan 92, Bush 27, and one uncommitted vote.

In the contested race for the Hemphill County Sheriff, incumbent Sheriff C. H. Wright held the lead with 427 votes over his opponent Arthur Halliburton, 378 votes.

Hemphill County Tax Assessor-Collector candidate Joe Ann Halliburton took 512 votes over her opponent Norman Burton with 280.

County Commissioner Precinct 3, Democratic candidate Leonard Powledge - 129, George Henderson - 100.

State Senator 31st District, Democrat Bill Sarpalius — 352 votes; Gerald McCathern — 171; and Republican incumbent Bob Price with 98 votes.

In the race for the Railroad Commission, Democratic primary, John Poerner lead with 293, Buddy Temple with 229. In the Republican primary, Henry C. Grover took 51, John Thomas Henderson 23 and E. W. (Billy) Kidd 16.

Hostile crowd hampers police

A crowd of curious, unruly spectators hampered city police Friday night in their efforts to determine if a burglar alarm at the First National Bank was valid.

Police officials called in the midnight shift early to handle congested traffic, and officers reported hearing spectators chanting, "Kill the pigs, kill the pigs," while officers searched the bank building.

Six patrol cars responded to the alarm several minutes after 10 p.m., discovering on arrival that one of the doors to the bank's main vault was open.

While officers were searching the building, police said, some 60 to 70 onlookers double- and triple-parked their cars around the bank building, located at the intersection of Cuyler and Kingsmill Streets.

Traffic was so congested, one officer said, that the midnight shift was called in early to help control the influx of automobiles.

"Traffic got backed up pretty bad," Lt. Charles Morris said. "There was some name-calling," he added.

Many of the curious were young people who had stopped on their ritual circle of the drag to see what was happening. Some gathered in front of the five and dime store across the street from the bank and, according to several reports were chanting, "Kill the pigs, kill the pigs."

While searching inside the building, officers said they looked up to see faces peering through the glass windows of the bank.

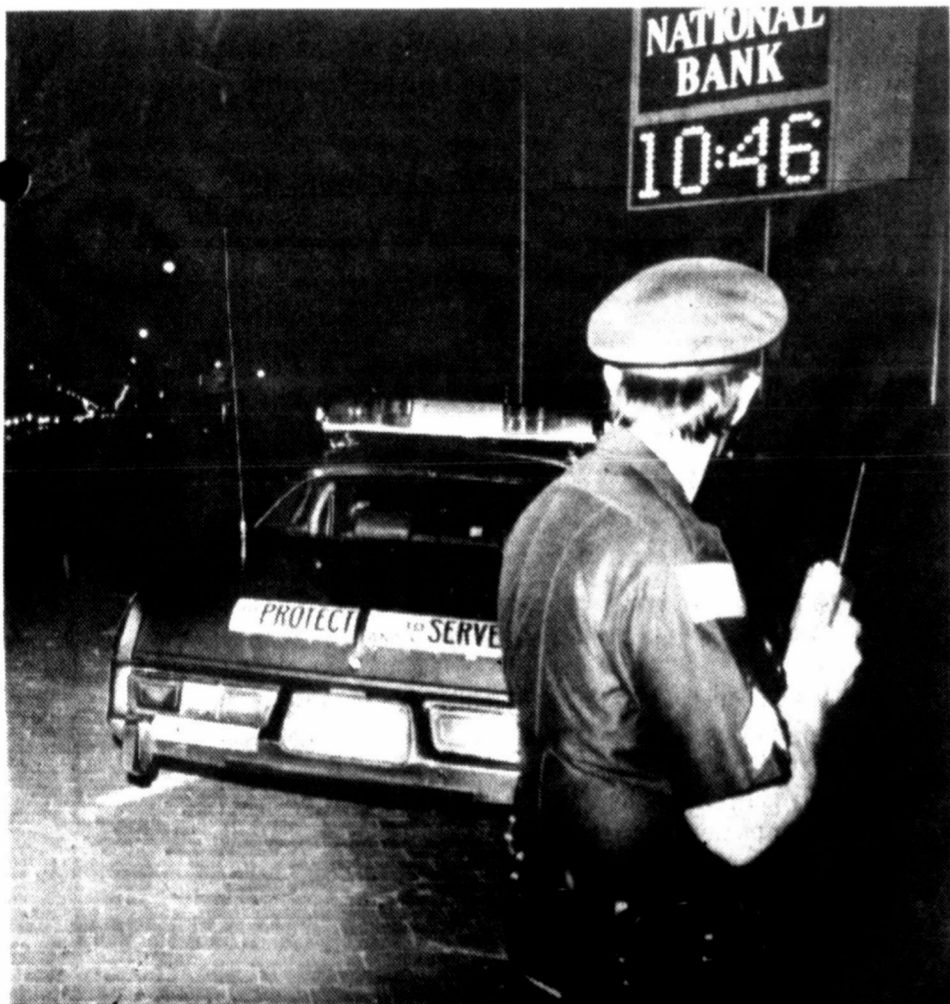

A complete search of the building showed nothing was taken or tampered with. Lt. Morris said.

First National Bank President Floyd Watson said the alarm was caused by "malfunctions."

"The inside door of one of the vaults was ajar," he said.

"Sometimes, the damp weather can cause it (the burglar alarm) to malfunction," he said.

It was the second time this week the alarm has gone off, Watson said. The first alarm occurred Monday night, and also was a false alarm.

OFFICER GLEN CARDEN KEEPS IN TOUCH by walkie-talkie in front of the First National Bank building Friday night while other patrolmen search the bank for a possible burglar. The alarm later turned out to be false — triggered by a vault door which was ajar — but police were hampered in their work by curious onlookers and hostile spectators, who blocked traffic around the bank and yelled at officers.

Republicans favor the use of wiretaps

DALLAS (AP) — Republican voters placed their stamp of approval on two proposed legislative issues and incumbent judges struggled to keep their seats on two Texas appeals courts in early returns from Saturday's primaries.

In what was basically a party opinion poll, Republicans said they favored use of wiretaps by law enforcement agents investigating drug cases by an almost 3-to-1 margin. GOP voters also were giving an initiative and referendum process an overwhelming nod of approval.

In the race to succeed retiring Supreme Court Justice Zollie Steakley, Houston Civil Appeals Court Judge Jim Wallace had a slight lead over Austin Court of Civil Appeals Judge John C. Phillips and San Antonio law professor Wayne Scott.

The Democratic winner faces Austin attorney Jim Brady, 59, in November.

Incumbent Supreme Court Justice Sears McGee had only a narrow edge over Rowlett attorney Lawrence E. Bergman.

Houston attorney Marvin Teague led incumbent Judge Leon Douglas, who was seeking his third term on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Groom officers seek $1,000 and thieves

GROOM - Groom law enforcement officers are continuing to search for a bank bag containing $1,000 taken from a liquor store Friday night and the person or persons who took it.

"It was really a 'till tap,'" Jerry Gaines, Carson County deputy said.

The theft of the bag containing approximately $1,000 in cash and checks occurred at the High Plains Liquor Store, east of Groom on Interstate 40, sometime between 8:30 p.m. and 9:10 p.m., he said.

Gaines said the clerk had gone to the back of the store for a moment, and about 35 or 40 minutes later, discovered the money bag beneath the cash register was gone.

There are suspects, he said, but no arrests had been made late Saturday.

The liquor store is owned by Bill Britten, he said.

Choirs take superior marks

Disappointed but proud members of the "Golden Voices" of Pampa are slated to be en route to Flagstaff, Ariz., today after taking two superior ratings Saturday but not achieving the "honors choir" status in the Rocky Mountain States Music Festival in Tempe, Ariz.

The Pampa High School girls choir and the mixed concert choir both received I ratings in performance.

Choir director John Woicowski said the concert choir performance was "definitely the best concert I have ever conducted."

Arizona contest judges chose four Arizona choirs as the "honor choirs."

If all goes according to schedule, the choirs should be singing a vespers concert on the North Rim of the Grand Canyon at 5 p.m. this evening.

The choirs are to begin their bus journey home Monday.

Snuffy joins Sunday funnies

The riotous, hilarious backwoods misadventures of Barney Google and Snuffy Smith begin today in an expanded comic section in the Pampa News.

In addition to "Snuffy," new comics in today's edition are "Born Loser," "Alley Oop," "Priscilla's Pop," "Frank and Ernest," "Dick Tracy" and "Funky Winkerbean."

In making the change to the expanded section, "Shoe," "Better Half" and "B.C." were dropped.

Our friends "Peanuts," "Blondie," "Beetle Bailey," "Steve Canyon," "Andy Capp," "Family Circus" and "Prince Valiant" remain in the section.

Pleasant reading...

police report

Arueta Hopson of 531 Roberta reported that an unknown person or persons removed her change purse from the Safeway Store in the Pampa Mall where she is employed. The purse contained $25 in cash, keys, drivers license, social security card, and an emergency card.

TEXAS WEATHER

Scattered thundershowers, some of them severe, cropped up across West and South Texas throughout the day Saturday, cutting voter turnout in some precincts for the state's primaries.
By late afternoon a heavy, ponderous thunderstorm cell was hunkered down over the Rio Grande, just west of Marfa, threatening to dump heavy amounts of rain over the normally dry region. The National Weather Service warned the heavy rains could wash out gravel and dirt roads around Candelaria and Ruidosa.
Weather radar spotted other heavy thunderstorms ranging from El Paso, through the Davis Mountains to San Angelo, southward past Fredericksburg and San Antonio to Junction.
The heavy rains from those storms prompted a flash flood warning for a 22 West Texas counties, in a region stretching roughly from Van Horn to San Angelo. The heaviest rain fell over the Pecos River valley and in the Permian Basin, the weather bureau said.
The rest of the state, however, enjoyed clear to partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures, with light northerly winds.
Under the cloud cover in the west, temperatures remained in the 60s but reached into the 70s and 80s in most parts of the state.

TEXAS FORECAST

North Texas — Mostly fair and warm through Thursday. Highs in the 80s and lows from mid 50s to mid 60s.
South Texas — Some morning cloudiness. Otherwise, fair and warm. Lows in the 60s. Highs in the 80s except 70s along the immediate coast and 90s along the Rio Grande Valley.

Gas prices restricting modern trailer trekkers

ONA, W.Va. (AP) — In the early 1970s, (AP) — cents still bought a gallon of gas, thousands of retirees bought trailer homes and hit the open road. They were senior citizens out "to see America."
A new, mobile culture sprang up among older Americans. Hundreds of travel parks were built across the country, special motor travel magazines were started and contented couples from Maine to New Mexico rolled along and realized their nomadic dreams.
Lots of those people are still rolling, but they're seeing much less of America, taking shorter trips and staying close to home. "We're still traveling, but we drive less and stay longer these days," Jim Jackson said and his wife, Edna, relaxed in front of their trailer at a campsite just off Interstate 64. "We're also doing less sight-seeing than we used to."
The Jacksons are what the campground operators call "snowbirds." They winter in the South and come back to the North in the spring, along with the robins and other migratory birds.
"We spent the winter at Homestead, Fla.," said Jackson, a retired Defense Department employee. "We just made it down there before dollar gas, and we paid $1.20 a gallon on the way back. When we bought our trailer, two years ago, gas was still less than 60 cents a gallon."
The Jacksons said they heard a lot of complaints about owners have changed dramatically over the past couple of years.

"Used to be, 90 percent of my business was transient," he said. "Now, most of my campers come from this area. Instead of going to the beach for vacation, they'll be coming here this summer."
But if the Jacksons are still on the road pursuing their dream, thousands of other dreams have been stalled along the way.
Gary LaBella of the Recreational Vehicle Industry Association at Chantilly, Va., said sales of recreational vehicles were down 41 percent last year. He attributed the drop to inflation and soaring gasoline prices.
I.V. Cunningham, owner of the southern West Virginia campground where the Jacksons had stopped for the evening, confirmed that travel habits of recreational vehicle

Register asks for Carter withdrawal

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Des Moines Register is calling on President Carter to withdraw from the presidential race so he can concentrate on solving the nation's domestic and foreign problems.
"He seems incapable of guiding the country and running for president simultaneously," the newspaper said in its editorial prepared for its Sunday editions.
"Indeed, he is so bent on re-election that he is letting politics influence his policies. That, of course, is nothing new among sitting presidents. But given the state of the world today, it is tragic."
The Register suggests that Carter back Vice President Walter F. Mondale for the Democratic presidential nomination to keep it from going to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.
"The editorial calls Mondale 'a man of wisdom and experience' who could unite the nation."
Kennedy, "a man who has divided the Democratic Party and who would bring problems of a different sort to the White House, does not appear to be the man to unite the nation," the Register says.
"The editorial says it seems clear, at this time, that Carter will win the Democratic nomination and Ronald Reagan will be the nominee of the Republican Party."
"So the nation seems doomed to have four more years of uninspired leadership, be it from Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan," it says.
Instead of seeking re-election, the Register says, Carter should be concentrating on "negotiating the release of the 53 hostages in Iran, on softening the plight of the poor and the jobless in America, on thawing America's relations with the Soviet Union and on making it possible for people again to buy homes and automobiles."

Five die in fiery car crash

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — A fiery three-vehicle collision killed five persons, including two children and an infant born during the accident, and injured three others Saturday near Bryan, authorities said.
One of the injured, Ray Vega of Chriesman, Texas, was listed in critical condition at a Bryan hospital with severe burns and head injuries.
Department of Public Safety spokesman Richard Grimmitt said a car burst into flames after it apparently was hit in the rear by a truck and pushed into the path of an oncoming car.
Grimmitt identified the dead as The Rev. Walter T. Eifert, 49, of Houston; Mrs. Lydia Vega; Michael Pineda, 8; Adam Pineda, 5, all of Chriesman; and an infant female Vega born and killed in the accident.
Grimmitt said the accident was still under investigation.

Pope encourages, warns Catholics in Kinshasa

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Pope John Paul II, warmed by joyous song, cheering crowds and an equatorial sun, set a theme for his African tour Saturday, saying local culture can enrich the church, but warning against polygamy and demanding that priests and nuns remain faithful to their celibacy vows.

Hand-clapping worshippers serenaded the pontiff with hymns in the local Lingala language, and hundreds of thousands lined the streets of this sprawling tropical capital in an overwhelming reception on the first full day of his six-nation journey.

The 59-year-old Polish-born pope, perspiring profusely but otherwise undaunted in the heat, drove through the city in an open-topped black Mercedes limousine to one of Kinshasa's poorest neighborhoods.

There he spent 10 minutes at No. 48 Avenue de la Victoire visiting the Malekanis, a family with nine children, in their three-room house of blue-painted concrete blocks.

Pope John Paul began the day with a Mass for young families in St. Pierre's Church, a yellow-brick building with a rusting corrugated tin roof. In the steamy church, parents held up babies to be blessed while women clutched crucifixes and rosaries, all straining to reach the pontiff as he walked down the center aisle in his glistening white vestments and gold-trimmed mitre.

"Esengo lokumu na nzambe" — "Happiness, Glory to God" — the congregation sang joyously in Lingala, cheering, whooping and clapping their hands for the pope.

The Roman Catholic Church in Zaire, the former Belgian Congo, has been in the forefront of African churches in incorporating local culture in its ceremonies, introducing tribal languages, songs and chants to the Mass and emphasizing native traditions.

In his speech in French to the families, the pope emphasized that "African traditions judiciously used can have their place in the building of Christian homes in Africa." He mentioned the sense of family values, "priority given to the transmission of life and the importance given to the mother and children."

But he also drew on the biblical story of Adam and Eve and said: "This pilgrimage to the sources reveals to us that the first couple in God's plan is monogamous.... This monogamous and personalistic conception of the human couple is an absolutely original revelation which carries the mark of God, and which always deserves to be enriched."

Polygamy is a tradition that has survived staunch church opposition in many places in Africa.

In a policy speech to Zaire's 56 bishops, the pope addressed another deep-rooted tradition here, the accepted practice of marriage for priests.

He said priests and nuns must have the "firm convictions of the positive and essential values of chastity" in their vow of celibacy. He called on them to be "vigilant in their behavior and (to) remain faithful without ambiguity in their commitment they have taken for God and church."

Windfall profits tax subject of area meet

Three area meetings, sponsored by the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association (PPROA) and Diamond Shamrock, have been scheduled to explain the "nuts and bolts" of the windfall profits tax to those in the business.

The first meeting is scheduled at 2 p.m. Tuesday, May 6, in Pampa at the Pampa Country Club.

The second meeting will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday, May 7, in Amarillo at the Holiday Inn 140 East.

The third meeting will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday, May 8, in Perryton at the Perryton Country Club.

Since the passage of the windfall profits tax, Panhandle area crude oil producers, those owning crude oil production royalties and working interest owners in crude oil production have been beset by a set of regulations most find tedious to comply with, especially in light of the responsibilities each must assume.

Some operators of wells are uncertain as to their responsibility to their various working interest holders and are confused because of differing requirements when involved with several different crude purchasers. Royalty and working interest owners may not understand why their monthly checks have taken a nosedive.

The Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the Diamond Shamrock Corporation are sponsoring this workshop for three Panhandle towns to explain the "nuts-and-bolts" working of the tax and how — upon questioning — it will apply to specific cases.

Diamond Shamrock is only one of the major crude oil purchasers in the area, who is responsible for collecting the taxes due on their purchases. Being aware that other purchasers are involved, they have extended invitation to representatives of Texaco, Phillips Petroleum Company and the Permian Corporation for the sake of those who sell to these purchasers and may have questions.

The meetings are a public service on the part of PPROA, Diamond Shamrock and other attending purchasers.

All who would find it to their advantage to have a working knowledge of the tax are urged to attend.

Cuba accuses U.S. in Havana brawl

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's government-controlled news media accused the United States Saturday of responsibility for a bloody brawl between pro- and anti-Castro Cubans outside the old American Embassy here, and said U.S. Marines joined in the melee.

Almost 400 Cubans given refuge in the building after Friday's disturbance were still crowded inside Saturday, and Cuban television suggested they be taken to the nearby port of Mariel to be shipped to Florida as part of the massive sealift mounted by Cuban-Americans.

But some of the dissidents in the building, now the U.S. Interest Section, indicated they would not budge until they were guaranteed an airplane flight out of Cuba. U.S. officials blamed Friday's clash on Cuban security agents. They said the agents arrived on buses and charged — swinging baseball bats, tire irons and plastic-covered chains — into a crowd of 1,500 Cubans staging a protest demanding an end to delays in issuing them U.S. visas.

Fifteen persons were reported injured in the brawl, five seriously. Many of the protesters were former political prisoners and their families, the latest to join the flood of would-be refugees seeking to leave Cuba after 20 years of President Fidel Castro's communism.

The television broadcast claimed the violence was "evidently organized" by the United States.

The fighting eventually was broken up by Cuban police.

Responsibility for "this new provocation ... falls on the United States," the Communist Party newspaper Granma said. It also said it was the fault of the United States, not Cuba, that the emigration procedure for the former political prisoners had been so slow.

White-helmeted Cuban police maintained tight security Saturday outside the U.S. offices.

U.S. officials here remained silent on what they propose to do to end the impasse and whether, as the Castro government suggested, the dissidents would be taken to the port of Mariel. A Granma editorial claimed the U.S. office — not a formal diplomatic office — "has no right to give asylum to anybody."

Canine ailment could become local threat

A potentially fatal intestinal disease has been diagnosed in about a half a dozen Pampa dogs, local veterinarian, Dr. Ron Hendrick says.

The disease has been confirmed in two of the dogs that died locally. The disease, called Canine Parvovirus Infection, is highly contagious, and Dr. Hendrick is urging dog owners to vaccinate their pets as soon as possible.

Since Jan. 1, more than 270 cases of the virus have been confirmed in Texas through laboratory tests at Texas A&M, according to Dr. Conrad Eugster of the university's College of Veterinary Medicine.

Last week more than 50 cases were seen at A&M's Veterinary School while at least four more were seen in Pampa.

Veterinarians reported several months ago that the virus has spread through New York, Dallas and Houston at an epidemic rate. Dr. Eugster said the disease seems to be concentrated in the North Texas area now.

Dr. Hendrick started seeing cases of the disease about one month ago, but only recently has it become a growing problem. "I don't believe it has reached epidemic proportions yet. I'd like to head it off before it gets to that stage."

Dogs who have contracted the disease usually lose their appetite and become lethargic. The dog begins to vomit, and has watery diarrhea, sometimes with blood in the stool.

US unemployment rate rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — While unemployment in this country jumped to 7 percent last month, its biggest industrial rivals have been holding their rate low and steady, according to U.S. Department of Labor figures made available Saturday.

In Japan, the rate dropped in January to 1.9 percent, the lowest since 1975. The number of jobless West Germans fell to 2.8 percent last winter and has held steady at that rate through March. This is lower than it has been since 1974.

Of the countries surveyed by the Labor Department, only Canada's rate clearly exceeds that of the United States — 7.4 percent in March. Canada's rate has been rising slowly since last summer.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Some healthy competition

There is a growing number of businessmen who are unwilling to compromise the principles of free enterprise, even if it means financial loss. Unlike their colleagues who crawl over each other for a government subsidy, these hardy private sector activists shun government subsidies and protection. They believe maintaining the freedom of the marketplace is more important than momentary gain.

The Council for a Competitive Economy exemplifies this group. The Council is composed of about a thousand members who are dedicated to fighting government involvement in the private sector, especially when stimulus for that involvement comes from their fellow businessmen. The board of directors of the council is made up of businessmen from a variety of endeavors, from Charles Koch who heads a multi-billion-dollar oil and chemical company headquartered in Kansas to Joe Coberly who runs one of Southern California's biggest Ford dealerships. The members have one thing in common: they are willing to give more than lip service to the cause of free enterprise.

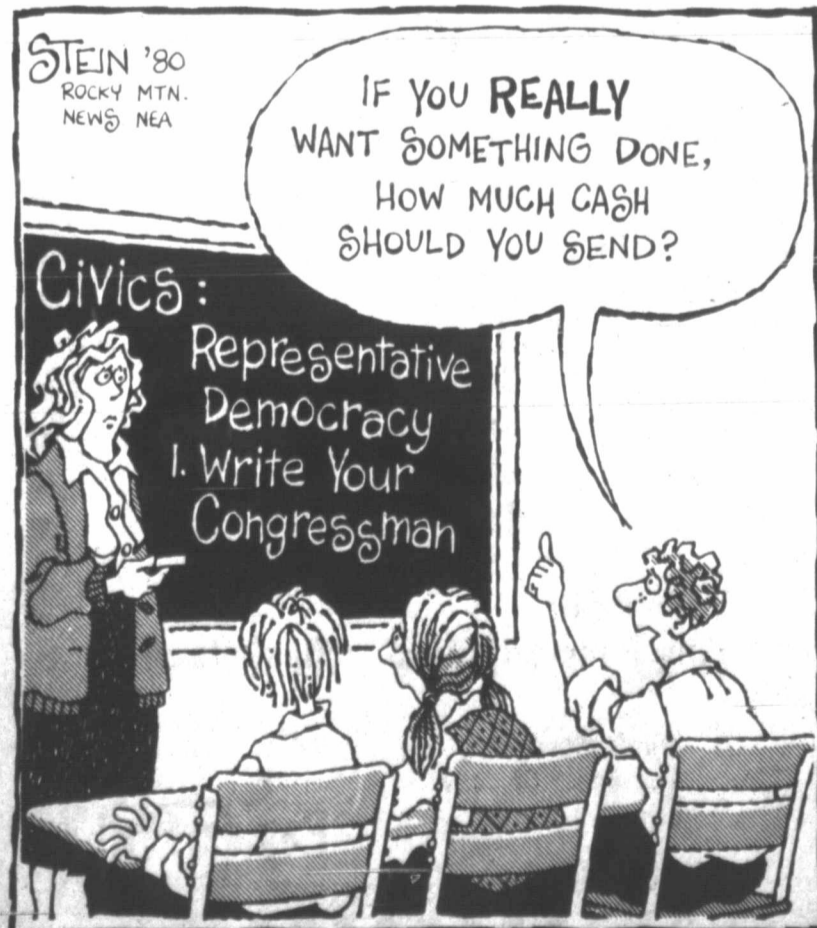

Sometimes it is hard to believe some businessmen have any principles when it comes to making money. To their credit most people offering goods and services to the public have concluded that it is in their long-run interest to provide their customers with the best product at the lowest price. But this goal is based on nothing more than a recognition of long-run self-interest, not on any set of beliefs or standards. All too often these very same businessmen are willing to compromise the basic principles of free enterprise in order to make a buck.

Members of the CCE, in contrast to unprincipled businessmen, have proven they are willing to take a loss before compromising principle. Last month Joe Coberly testified before a congressional committee against trade restrictions the government is considering placing on foreign car imports. He did this despite the fact that his Ford dealership is only a few hundred feet from a Datsun dealer. This type of courage, this type of integrity, is what the CCE represents.

There are so many lobbyists in Washington, D.C., that it is difficult to find a parking place, much less find someone willing to speak up for free enterprise at a public hearing. During hearings on legislation designed to "protect" a major industry, intriguingly enough, the self-proclaimed consumer advocates usually fail to show up; big business and big labor are left to pat each other on the back. About the only organization that has taken the responsibility to fight this kind of legislation, as demonstrated by the Coberly testimony, is the CCE. The Council makes it clear that subsidies and protectionism may help the special interests, but both are done at the expense of the people and the long-run progress of the nation.

Education of the public and the business community is also a major part of the CCE's program. Competition, the organization's newsletter, offers a monthly Raspberry Award to that company whose actions served to undermine a free and competitive economy. This month, for example, Business Week magazine was given the Raspberry Award for reversing its long-held advocacy of freedom and calling for wage and price controls. Similarly, the CCE gives Rose Awards to companies that support a free economy.

All too often American industry, bloated with subsidies and protective legislation, has been relied upon to protect the freedom of the marketplace. Freedom industry doesn't always believe in. The formation of an organization of businessmen who really believe in freedom is long overdue. We wish the CCE good luck and look forward to reporting the news of its struggle.

Not more energy, just more pep

By Oscar Cooley
Symptomatic of the confusion in the minds of those who enacted the "windfall profits" tax, it is not a tax on profits, nor has it anything to do with windfalls, which are apples that are blown off the tree by the wind.

It is a tax on the increase in the price of oil that is expected to take place, following President Carter's decontrol of oil prices. It seems it is the consumers — the buyers of gasoline and diesel fuel — who are to be taxed. What the American people now pay for their fuel is not going up fast enough to suit Washington.

The nickname "windfall profits" suits the taxers just fine. It implies these extra billions of dollars are just dropping off the trees by chance and so can be appropriated by the government without depriving anyone. Surely anyone can lunch freely on a windfall.

And it is as much as says that if not taken by the government these billions (they foresee $227.7 billion during the 1980s) will go to swell the profits of the oil companies, which everybody knows merely finance riotous living by the tycoons.

When the windfall tax was first proposed a year ago, the public was told the revenue would be used by the government to research and explore new sources of energy to take the place of petroleum. With our oil dwindling, this seemed a wise thing to do.

Now they tell us that only about 15 percent of the take will be used for this purpose, while 60 percent will go to reduce income taxes (yummy!), and 25 percent will be given to poor people to help pay their fuel bills.

So it is not an energy-increasing measure, as some of us had assumed, but another welfare act. The American people as a result of this act are not to get more energy — only more pep.

All this meddling with the market for a commodity, first, controlling the price to hold it down, then applying a special tax to raise it up, exemplifies the central evil of these times: the overgrowth of government and the withering of individual freedom.

The idea seems to be that the consumers and producers of oil are not competent to deal with one another — do not know how much to buy and at what price, how much to produce and sell — and so political government, which somehow it is assumed is endowed with more wisdom, must step in and control the situation.

Only the government, so the theory goes, can and will protect and promote the general welfare. Discounted or even ignored is the practice of the last two centuries or so which shows that individuals left free to run their own economic affairs promote the general welfare far better than rulers and states ever did.

When everything is turned over to the supposedly benign government, the man-to-man dealing between buyers and sellers, each doing what seems to him best, considering his wants and his circumstances, is disrupted. Taxes are substituted for prices, coercion for voluntary cooperation.

Arbitrary orders are issued. Even a democratic government sees nothing wrong in imposing a tax on one industry, oil, which is not levied on others. Why should it, engaged as it is in giving to some people and firms wealth which it has taken from others?

Inflation, says President Carter, is America's foremost enemy, but surely his windfall profit tax can only make inflation worse. Money which the oil consumers and producers could save and invest in developing energy sources will be taxed into government coffers and largely distributed to increase people's ability to spend. Reducing income taxes is a laudable act but it increases people's purchasing power, and helping pay people's fuel bills leave them more dollars to spend on other things. Whipping inflation calls for channeling more money into saving and production, not into consumption.

The oil companies, on which the new tax will be levied, have a powerful incentive to explore and discover new sources of energy for the future. But the President and Congress do not trust them to invest their profits in funding such sources.

Has the private, profit-seeking system no regard for the future, no incentive to replace the fast-dwindling petroleum? Surely Americans are not so naive as to think that only the politicians have such prevision.

One dislikes to think that a future historian may record of the United States, as one did of Czarist Russia, "The State swelled, the people shrank."

Washington novels

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—The newspaper editors were in town last week, and one of the more interesting panels dealt with the "Washington Novel." The members of the panel were William Safire, who wrote "Full Disclosure," Marilyn Sharp, who authored a mystery entitled "Sunflower," Les Whitten of "Conflict of Interest," and Barbara Howar, who wrote "Making Ends Meet."

Their conclusion was that the Washington novel is alive and well, mainly because all the ingredients for the novel are here — power, suspense and sex.

I've been trying to write a Washington novel for some time, but have not been successful, mainly because every time I think I've got a good fiction plot, someone else has already done it.

Here are some of the false starts I've had, which never got off the ground.

President Coeburn sat in the Oval Office. Stretched out on the couch was the beautiful, raven-haired, buxom Olga. She said to him bitterly, "Why do we have to keep sneaking around like this all the time? Are you ashamed to take me to the Gridiron Club?"

"Darling, you know I have to take my wife to the Gridiron Club."

"You always say that. But I know the real reason."

"The President in an exasperated voice said, 'What's the real reason?'"

"I'm the Russian ambassador."

Congressman Blevins Bombast got into his new Toyota, which was parked in front of his modest Georgetown home. He looked forward to the drive up to Capitol Hill, as it gave him time to think about how he was going to balance the budget. Just as he was going to put his key into the ignition, Blevins noticed a large, unmarked manila envelope on the front seat. He opened it, and found 600 fresh $100 bills. He looked around fearfully, and then got out of his car and placed the envelope in the trunk.

Wiping the perspiration from his face, he got back into the car and started the most fateful journey of his life. He could go straight down Pennsylvania Avenue to FBI headquarters, or turn left for the Beltway and keep driving until he hit Las Vegas. He thought of the trust the people in his district had in him. Then he thought of his wife and five children. There was no question what he would do. He made the left turn and was surprised at that hour to find so few cars on the Beltway.

The man in the slouch hat and dirty raincoat pretended to be studying a portrait of Mary Washington in the National Gallery when the uniformed guard took out his .45 pistol and fired three shots at him. The man fell to the floor with a thud. People rushed from all over as the guard hurried away to a phone booth. He dialed a number and then hung up. Ten seconds later, his phone rang. All the guard said was, "The deed is done." The voice on the other end of the line said, "Good. What price gasoline?

By Robert J. Wagman
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The big question these days is: What price will unleaded gasoline be by year's end?

Shortly before 1979 faded into history, the price of unleaded gasoline had crept above the $1-per-gallon mark. At the time, a memorandum circulating at high levels of the Department of Energy forecasting 1980 gasoline prices predicted that unleaded gasoline would hit $1.50 a gallon by Christmas.

When the forecast was leaked to the public, the DOE refused to acknowledge it. Rather, a department spokesman called the $1.50 forecast a "loose guesstimate" — and said it was meant for "internal analysis purposes only."

Last month, though, DOE finally published its official unleaded gasoline price guess for the end of the year. The price? $1.52 per gallon.

But this is only May and, as any driver can testify, the price of unleaded gasoline already has leapt to $1.30 per gallon.

Thus, a new memo has begun working its way around the DOE, which concludes that unleaded will be somewhere between $1.75 and $2 per gallon by Christmas.

Although the DOE isn't acknowledging this memo, either, its experts are willing to explain how the end-of-year figure was reached.

By May 1, they said, the average price of unleaded would be somewhere between $1.30 and $1.35 a gallon. On May 1, President Carter's new excise tax took effect and, by May 15, unleaded will go up another 10 cents a gallon. Add to this 5 cents per gallon in increases between mid-May and July, bringing the average price of unleaded at the pumps to $1.50 by July.

Industry and government experts are still debating where it will go from there. Certainly the price will continue to climb; the only question is how much, how fast.

Most surveys show that gasoline consumption is down considerably; yet production continues at high levels. We actually are in an oversupply situation, with more oil being produced than is being consumed.

World oil prices have continued to climb because many Western nations are building up their reserves against the possibility of a major supply disruption during the second half of the year. This frantic buying has kept demand and prices high.

During the 1980 second half, however, this kind of buying should slow down because the reserves will be filled to overflowing. With production high and consumption falling off, prices should begin to stabilize.

Don't bet on it, though. Many of the major supplying countries hurt by inflation want prices to continue upwards in order to keep pace, ignoring the fact that ever-higher oil prices play a major role in inflation.

The best guess of the DOE experts is that unleaded will zip up to $1.75 during the second half of the year. However, several industry experts warn, IF consumption jumps during the summer and IF the oil-producing countries get two price increases this year, unleaded could be at or near the $2 mark by Christmas.

Although President Carter has assured us his 10 cents-a-gallon import fee will only be felt by gasoline purchasers, experts now say the fee probably also will boost other fuel prices, including home heating oil.

According to industry sources, the federal government will collect about $25 million a day from crude oil importers. But there is a lag between the time the importer must pay the fee and when that money will be collected from the sale of the crude. So the importer must borrow to pay the fee, which means interest charges, and also pay money to secure bonding.

These costs — the industry calls them "administrative expenses" — will be passed along to consumers of all products made from the crude oil, including the so-called "middle-distillates," which include home heating oil. One estimate is that these "costs" will add 5 cents a gallon to home heating oil prices.

DOE officials defend the president, however. They admit there is no way to prevent "conservation fee" costs from being passed along to consumers, but they say it won't happen because there is "no economic incentive" for the oil companies to do so.

Based on recent history, don't bet on this one, either.
(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

United States law still allows a head of a household to make up to 200 gallons of wine a year for personal use. One man who failed to qualify for a permit — because he was a bachelor — tried a few years ago to have his city apartment certified as a bonded winery. On his application, under "Crushing and Pressing Equipment," he listed "fingers 10 and hands two." Treasury agents inspected his facilities — a closet — and ruled against him.

CLEAN UP, PAINT UP, FIX UP WINNERS in the logo contest sponsored by the Civic Improvement Committee are Jay Hensen, left, with the best poster, and Shelly Anderson, right, with the best logo. The two winners received cash prizes, and their drawings will be used to promote Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up month in Pampa.

'Clean up, paint up, fix up' month begins for Pampanans

The annual Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up campaign is underway in Pampa. The drive will start in Ward I and finish in Ward IV. The dates for trash pickup are as follows:
WARD I, May 5-9.
WARD II, May 12-16.
WARD III, May 19-23.
WARD IV, May 26-30.
 Due to the lack of extra labor for this campaign, the city requests that all individuals help in any way possible. During this month, people are asked to clean up their yards, alleys and areas around their homes. They are asked to use their joint-use refuse containers in the manner described. Due to the weight pickup limits on the collection truck, only materials such as household refuse, grass clippings and hedge trimmings should be placed in these containers. Heavy materials such as dirt, grass sod, concrete, building materials should not be placed in the container and should be disposed of by the owner or occupant of the property on which the refuse is generated. Residents are asked to place bulky items, such as ice boxes, stoves, furniture, in the alley behind their own home. Since this type of refuse is collected on special occasions, it is not necessary to place it near the dumpster. These items often interfere with the collection truck's ability to get to the container for pickup.

Scout derby days winners listed

More than 200 Cub Scouts and several hundred parents from 15 counties in the Abode Walls Boy Scout Council attended the recent Cub Scout Derby Days races at the Pampa Mall.

Winners in the Pinewood Derby, the largest participation race with about 150 cars, were first place, Darren Waddell, First Methodist Church Pack 578, Spearman; second, Danny Warner, Austin PTA Pack 410, Pampa; third, Billy Brownlee, Crockett PTA Pack 565, Borger.

Others in the top 10 were Clay Curtis and Preston Compton, Forgan, Okla., Lions Club Pack 103; Chad Grant and Jason Garren, Horace Mann PTA Pack 422, Pampa; Michael Alfred Crockett PTA Pack 565, Borger; James Tindell, First Methodist Pack 578, Spearman; Mark McKay, First Methodist Pack 581, White Deer.

Winners in the top three places received trophies, and winners in the top ten received gold medals.

In the space derby, the winners of trophies were first, Donald Girard of Lions Club Pack 160, Guymon, Okla.; second, Jamie Todd, First Christian Church, Clarendon; third, Tom Reynolds, First United Methodist Church Pack 249, Perryton.

In the raingutter regatta, top two trophies were won by first place, John Millard, Crockett PTA Pack 565, Borger; second place, Ray Dunaway, First Methodist Church Pack 578, Spearman.

Several packs also held kite flying contests at St. Vincent's ball park.

SHOPPING IN CIRCLES NEW YORK (AP) — Shoppers may find themselves walking in more circles than usual if a shopping mall design used in Chile spreads to other countries.

The spiraling malls, called "caracols" (snails), are modeled after Frank Lloyd Wright's Guggenheim Museum here. The difference is that shops rather than art are spread along the winding center walkways around the circular core.

About 20 caracols have been built, or started, in the past few years in Chile. The design was originated to make the most of expensive urban land and to minimize overhead costs to merchants, said architects in Santiago.

MEMBERS OF CUB SCOUT DEN 2 were among more than 200 Cub Scouts and parents from 15 counties who participated in the recent Cub Scout Derby Days at the Pampa Mall. Winners in the Pinewood Derby race were first, Darren Waddell, First Methodist Church, Spearman; Danny Warner, second, Austin PTA Pack 410, Pampa; and Billy Brownlee, third, Crockett PTA Pack 565, Borger. Highlights of the derby days event were a space derby with rockets and a raingutter regatta with sailboats.

GENESIS HOUSE BOARD MEMBER DON LOSHER is presented a plaque by Dorothy Neslage in honor of Loshor's years of involvement in Genesis House. Loshor has served as treasurer and member of the board of directors since 1971, the year of its organization. Loshor is being transferred to St. Louis with Cabot's Engineering Division.

Genesis House honors Loshor

Pampa resident Don Loshor was honored Thursday night by the board of directors and supporters of Genesis House, to recognize Loshor's many years of service to the organization.

Loshor was one of the founders of Genesis House and has served on its board of directors and as its treasurer since 1971, the year of its founding. The success of Genesis House can be attributed in no small degree to Loshor's efforts, according to fellow board members.

Loshor is an engineer with Cabot Corporation and is being transferred to St. Louis with the Engineering Division. He is a graduate of Pampa High School and Texas Tech University.

He has spent much of his time and talents working with Pampa youth. He has been associated with the Boy Scouts, served as chairman of the District 4 Committee for Mental Health and Mental Retardation and as vice-chairman of the school district's Drug Task Force. He also has worked with local and state youth projects.

Recognition was also given at the meeting to the many Pampa supporters of Genesis House who have contributed their time to driving the Genesis House children to and from school and

MRS. JEWEL ROGERS was named the "Conservation Farmer of the Year" in Miami recently for the outstanding conservation work she has carried out on her farm. Miami woman named top conservationist

The "Conservation Farmer of the Year," was recently presented in Miami to Mrs. Jewel Rogers.

Mrs. Rogers, a long time resident of Miami, received the honor that is sponsored by the Roberts County Soil and Water Conservation District and the Miami Lion's Club.

Mrs. Rogers was recognized for the outstanding conservation work she has carried out on her farm. She has been a cooperater with the Roberts Co. Soil and Water Conservation District since 1961.

Mrs. Roberts recognized a long time ago that something needed to be done to stop the soil and water erosion on her farm.

However, due to the expense involved, Mrs. Rogers put off building the terraces for several years. Year after year, her production went down. Not only was Mrs. Rogers losing her valuable moisture she was losing her most productive top soil.

Realizing that this erosion could no longer go unchecked, Mrs. Rogers decided to have both parallel and conventional terraces constructed on her farmland.

"I wasn't too sure about having these terraces built at first," she said. "I'd always heard that farming around terraces was much more time consuming and therefore more expensive. However, the gully washes were getting so bad that the farming was already getting difficult."

In 1976 Mrs. Rogers had approximately 25,000 feet of terrace constructed and 18,000 feet in 1977.

"It didn't take long to see the benefits of the terraces on my land," said Mrs. Rogers.

"Right after the terraces were finished, we got a two or three inch rain, and not bit of soil or water ran off my place. Ever since, my crops look better, and the farming is really not as difficult as I first thought," she added.

Beside constructing her terraces, Mrs. Rogers practices terrace maintenance by moldboarding or one-waying the terraces annually to maintain their effective height. She also carries out contour farming, conservation cropping systems and crop residue every year.

IN AGRICULTURE

By Joe Van Zandt

ALFALFA WEEVILS:

Alfalfa growers need to keep a check on the progress and development of alfalfa weevils. The larvae of the alfalfa weevil cause the most damage to alfalfa. The larvae start feeding on new leaves and buds at the tops of the stems and then work on down to older leaves. Their feeding skeletonize the leaves. Damaged leaves dry fast and the field takes on a grayish or whitish cast.

The young larvae are yellow with a shiny black head. Full-grown larvae are about 3/4 inches long. Their heads are black, bodies are green and they have a white stripe running down the middle of their backs.

The adult weevils spread their egg laying over several weeks and the larvae feed for 3 to 4 weeks so damage occurs generally during the first and second cuttings.

Chemical control is recommended when 25-30 percent of the terminals are damaged or when 25 or more larvae per square foot are found.

When larvae become abundant a week to 10 days before the crop would normally be cut, it may be advantageous to cut early instead of spraying.

Always cut plants clean and close. Remove all hay from fields as soon as possible. Alfalfa left standing and hay left on the ground offer the weevils food and shelter. Sunlight kills many of the larvae and new adults will leave clean-cut fields. If larvae are still abundant in new re-growth after cutting, then chemical control should be initiated. See MP-1014, Texas Guide for controlling insects on legumes and grasses for insecticides and rates of application. Insecticides which are recommended are Guthion, Supracide, Sevin, Furadan, Diazinon, Malathion, Methoxychlor, Methyl Parathion and Parathion.

AFRICAN SWINE FEVER ALERT:

African swine fever (ASF) is once again threatening the U.S. The alert comes in the wake of a reported outbreak of this contagious, often fatal viral disease of swine in Cuba's Guantanamo Province. ASF affects only swine; it does not affect people.

With ASF only 90 miles from the Florida Keys, every American swine producer should be concerned and keep a close check on his herd.

USDA inspection activities at ports of entry have been stepped up since 1978 as a result of ASF outbreaks in Brazil, the Dominican Republic and Haiti. Imports of live hogs, fresh pork and uncooked pork products from ASF-affected countries are prohibited.

An earlier Cuban outbreak of ASF in 1971, was eradicated by the drastic, but effective measure of destroying all swine in affected and adjacent areas.

According to recent reports, the same depopulation procedure combined with stiff quarantine actions is being followed today.

Although ASF affects no animals other than swine, it can be transmitted via food waste when uncooked pork scraps from infected animals are fed to swine.

Some of the signs of ASF are abortions, high fever, reduced appetite for food and water, tendency to lie down, depression, labored breathing, coughing and discolorations — blotchy or diffused redness — on ears, snout and abdomen or white or light-colored hogs.

U.S. Swine producers who remember hog cholera — a disease eradicated here in 1978 — will note that ASF and hog cholera signs are similar. Any unusual disease in pigs should be reported promptly to state or federal animal health officials.

GARDENER SHOULD KNOW INSECTS:

"A stitch in time saves nine," especially when it involves insect control in the home vegetable garden. To insure good yields of high quality produce, insect control in the home garden is a must.

There are more than 30 insect pests which will attack vegetables in the home garden, and these are divided into three groups.

One group includes those insects which live in the soil and attack seedlings and underground parts of plants. These include cutworms, wireworms, soil maggots and white grubs.

The other two groups are sucking insects and chewing insects. Sucking insects damage plants by inserting their mouthparts into plant tissue and sucking plant juices. Sucking insects include aphids, whiteflies, leaf-hoppers, squash bugs and stink bugs.

Chewing insects damage plants by actually feeding on foliage, stems or fruit. This group includes cabbage loopers, armyworms, flea beetles, grasshoppers and many others.

However, not all insects are bad. There are numerous beneficial insects that prey on those that harm plants. These include praying mantids, assassin bugs, ladybird beetles, lacewings, parasitic wasps and spiders.

The Extension Office Service has a new publication, "Insects in Vegetables," that will help gardeners identify these different groups of insects. Come by the Extension Office for a copy.

4-H CORNER

By CARL GIBSON & DEANA FINCK

4-H adult and leaders are invited to a leader training in Basic Swimming and Rescue and Basic Canoeing at Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood, May 29 through June 1. Those who successfully complete the course will be certified by the American Red Cross as a "Basic Swimming and Rescue Instructor" or a "Basic Canoe Instructor". This affords the opportunity for the 4-H participants to qualify for summer employment at municipal pools, private camps and numerous other places requiring official certification.

Participants must be proficient swimmers and at least 17 years of age. Participants will select one course of instruction, which will include 30 hours of instruction.

This is a very exciting and enjoyable opportunity for Gray County 4-H leaders. To register for this training or for more information, contact the Gray County Extension Office or call 669-7429.

DATES TO REMEMBER:

May 5 — Lefors 4-H — 3:30 p.m.

May 6 — Travis 4-H — 3:30 p.m.

May 8 — Austin 4-H — 3:30 p.m.

ENERGY PROGRAM:

Are you interested in being a 4-H leader for a new energy program? There will be a workshop in Plainview on May 27 for training in the new program. If you are interested in attending the workshop, contact the County Extension Office for further information.

CLOTHING: If you are interested in being in a 4-H clothing project group or would like to lead a clothing group, contact Deana Finck at the Extension Office.

4-H, the youth development program of the Texas

Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, is aimed at educating young people.

Youth interested in 4-H should call the County Extension office at 669-7429.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

Grain program options told

All farmers are eligible to participate in the 1980 wheat and feed grain program and they may choose between two support options, according to Miss Evelyn Mason, County Executive Director, Gray County ASCS.

The program contains higher target prices for feed grains and wheat for all farmers who file an accurate acreage report and plant within their normal crop acres (NCA) set up on the farm. Farmers who plant in excess of their NCA and accurately report their acres will also be eligible for program benefits based on lower target prices.

There are two-levels with higher and lower target price for wheat, corn, grain sorghum and barley. On wheat the higher level is $3.63 per bushel with the lower at $3.08 per bushel. These prices are used to determine the deficiency payment and disaster benefits in case of low yield on the farm. Disaster protection is in effect for wheat, barley, corn, grain sorghum and cotton for the 1980 crop when a low yield is made due to loss by natural causes. Disaster payment is limited to $100,000 per person.

In order to be eligible for anything, the acreage must be reported. It is necessary to report acres on any farm with cropland even if nothing is planted. Failure to report one farm will throw all other farms for the operator and the owner out of compliance and make them eligible for nothing, in any county anywhere.

It is important to report acres even if the farm will never participate in any program.

DES use reported by Friona feeders

FRIONA — The Friona Industries, Inc. has recently announced that the Food and Drug Administration has been notified that approximately 10,800 head of cattle at its feedyards were implanted with the drug DES after November 1, 1979.

The FDA contends that such use of the drug constitutes a violation of its regulations. The manufacture and shipments of DES became illegal on July 13, 1979 and the use of DES in cattle and sheep became illegal on Nov. 1, 1979.

The Friona company has elected to participate in the FDA's reconditioning program which involves removing the DES implants from the cattle and withholding the cattle from market for prescribed periods of time.

Under FDA regulations cattle must be withheld from market a minimum of 61 days following the implant removal if the entire animal is processed, or a minimum of 41 days if the liver and kidney are discarded.

The Friona company estimates that it will be necessary to feed approximately 3,000 head of cattle for longer periods than normal, depending upon the weight of the cattle and the number of days on feed.

Officials of Friona Industries are unable to estimate the amount of losses, if any, it may incur due to the reconditioning program, but they believe that any loss that occurs will not have a material adverse effect on the financial condition of the company.

The cattle implanted with DES comprise about 14 percent of the total 75,247 head the Friona company currently has in its three feedyards.

FARM FORUM

by Gary Sutherland

Farmers have a right to be proud of themselves. Not only are they producing enough to feed a good portion of the world, but they're active in their communities, doing things to make life better for everyone. When we talk about proud farm families, we don't mean "proud as a peacock" either. Farmers aren't vain people, they are proud because of what they have achieved. They've done it on their own, and that provides them with confidence, self esteem and a secure sense of worthiness. The overall income of a farming community multiplies several times over. Better homes, roads, schools, churches and a proud spirit and a successful and prosperous look make for a happy community where people want to live and work. Farmers have a hard-earned image they can be proud of.

ELECTRICITY FROM COAL...

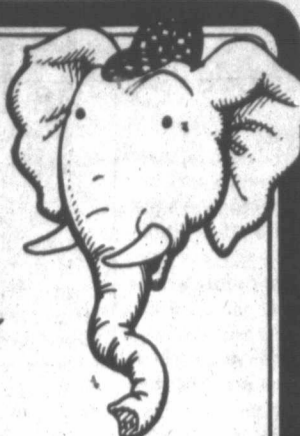

It's good to know there's something we can depend on.

Almost all of us depend on electricity in our homes, factories, and offices to provide for more jobs... greater productivity... and a higher standard of living. Yes, electricity plays a big roll in the scientific and technological developments that make these things possible.

The constant striving for these innovative and advanced ideas and achievements of tomorrow means we will need more electricity. That's why Southwestern Public Service is continuing the building program of new electric generating plants that use coal as fuel. Because it's good to know there's something we can depend on.

'The Tree' is essay of two artists

THE TREE. By John Fowles & Frank Horvat. Little, Brown. Unpaginated. $21.95.

"The Tree," with text by John Fowles and color photographs by Frank Horvat, is a joint effort by two serious and sensitive artists. They have produced a work that repays careful attention and that stays in the mind — both the thoughts which are a starting point for the reader's own reflections, and the haunting images which enrich one's visual memory.

The book's introduction is by Horvat; short but pithy, it includes a reference to himself, the photographer as a parasite. From that comes the provocative idea that the photographic approach, "in which I have used trees to express myself," could be interpreted as the tree's "having used my parasitic camera to extend its branches into the mental space of the common imagination."

Fowles' last book was "Islands," also in extended essay form with photographs, inspired by the Scilly Isles off the south coast of Britain. "The Tree" is both more general and more personal. Fowles here is concerned with trees as a part of nature, nature as a spiritual complement to human existence. Yet he includes many autobiographical passages, references to trees he has observed and reacted to, from his childhood to the development of his profound feelings as an adult for trees and for nature in general.

Fowles is deeply worried by man's current alienation from nature. Though he is not simply romantic about nature he has more sympathy for the Romantics' attitude to nature, than for that of later Victorian science which has led to our present "addiction to finding a reason, a function, a quantifiable yield" — an attitude by which nature is particularly damaged.

In the course of more personal comments, he claims that his development as a novelist is linked to his conviction of the importance of nature in general, not only of trees. He says that his "explorings" in the Devon countryside made me what I am," explaining that "I write fiction in a disgracefully haphazard way," for which a wander through the woods is an analogy.

His essay is a far from haphazard wander. It contains some very cogent pleading for a correction of what he calls man's current misapprehension of nature, and is a lively, fertile forest of ideas. Horvat's beautiful photographs are well reproduced and simply laid out.

Von Ryan returns in sequel

VON RYAN'S RETURN. By David Westheimer. Coward, McCann & Geoghegan. 271 Pages. $10.95.

Writing a sequel to a best-selling novel can be a risky venture. Novelists are often torn between rehashing the previous plot and thus boring those familiar with the work, or neglecting the background and thereby discouraging new readers.

David Westheimer follows neither course in his latest novel, the sequel to "Von Ryan's Express." Westheimer deftly and quickly weaves in the character and accomplishments of Col. Joseph Ryan as he begins a new World War II adventure story.

"Von Ryan's Return" picks up the story of Ryan and his 300 men several weeks after their escape with 600 British officers from an Italian prisoner-of-war camp. Ryan is unhappy with their internment in neutral Switzerland where he has brought them by train. He is determined to get them back to their combat units by sneaking them into Spain in small groups. Ryan succeeds in setting up this operation in his first meeting with the OSS, but only as part of a bargain in which he must return to Italy to identify a Nazi infiltrator in a partisan group. Accompanying him back to Italy are two prominent characters from the previous novel, the Rev. Gregory Costanzo and British Lt. Col. Eric Fincham.

While Ryan uncovers the Nazi, the trio's OSS guide is slain, effectively trapping them in German territory. The dying agent murmurs the name of the Contessa di Montalba, who turns out to be a very reluctant aide. But when Ryan uncovers vital information about an imminent German offensive, he forces the acid-tongued contessa to help them reach Allied lines.

Novel mixes sadness and humor

PREPARATIONS FOR THE ASCENT. By Gilbert Rogin. Random House. 181 Pages. $8.95.

Gilbert Rogin's "Preparations for the Ascent" is a witty, original and superbly crafted novel about Albert, a middle-aged writer living in New York City.

When this episodic work opens, Albert is married to Violet, a woman who invents words like "sudes" and "Unes" for those she cannot answer in the local newspaper's crossword puzzle. They are joined by Albert's stepson, Barney, and his stepdaughter Emily.

But this family soon begins to dissolve as Albert desires to see "another class of girl... a girl who reads Jeanne Dixon and says 'shirr' for 'sure,'" and as Violet carries on with her ex-husband Skippy Mountjoy and another fellow named Owen she met in a film class at the New School.

Albert's life, in general, seems to be in a constant state of flux, as his relationships with the book's many characters take on a rambling and dream-like quality. This should be expected, however, with the likes of Albert's girl friend, the Human Dynamo, who centers her life around tennis and selecting a license plate for her car, and stepdaughter Emily, a student at the Inter c Coluf :XX Albexxtion characters and the characters themselves supply the novel with its subtle and wry humor. But this is not just a funny book. Rogin has created a novel that is sad and revealing, a novel worth reading.

The Pampa News

And don't forget
Grandma on this special day!

STEVE SCOTT'S bubble hasn't burst yet as his Pampa Harvesters pounded Palo Duro, 16-1, Friday to stay in contention for the District 3-AAAA baseball crown. The Harvesters could clinch a share of the second-half title with a win over Amarillo High at 4 p.m. Monday in Optimist Park. However, Palo Duro must also defeat Caprock Monday for that to happen.

(Staff Photo by Larry Cross)

Pampa keeps district hopes alive with win over Dons

Pampa's hopes for a share of the second-half District 3-AAAA title remain high as the Harvesters routed Palo Duro, 16-1, Friday afternoon in Amarillo.

Junior righthander Leroy Kuhn allowed just one hit while picking up his third victory against two defeats. He struck out eight and walked two.

Pampa, now 12-10 on the year and 2-1 in the second-half of district play, could gain a share of first place by getting past Amarillo High Monday afternoon at Optimist Park. Gametime is 4 p.m.

If Pampa and Caprock win Monday (the Longhorns meet Palo Duro), Caprock would take the district crown outright.

If Amarillo High and Caprock both win Monday, then a one-game playoff will be needed to determine this year's district champion.

The only hit off Kuhn came in the third inning on Todd Callen's infield single. He set the side down in order every inning except the third and seventh.

Outfielder Andy Richardson paced Pampa's 11-hit attack with three base raps, driving in one run. Steve McDougall, Keenan Henderson, and Greg Quarles had two hits apiece while Mark Jennings and Bret Atchley had one hit each. Jennings and Henderson knocked in a pair of runs apiece while McDougall and Quarles had one each.

Palo Duro's defense committed seven errors, four coming in the seventh inning when the Harvesters scored six runs.

Pampa's defense was solid as usual with only one error charged to Steve Scott's crew.

Amarillo High whipped Tascosa, 4-2, in the only other district game played Friday.

Billy O'Dell's solo homer for the Sandies in the fourth inning snapped a 2-2 deadlock.

Bean sets two records as Miami wins title

AUSTIN—It was a super weekend for Susan Bean and defending champion Miami to say the least at the Girls' State Track and Field Meet.

Bean set two conference records to help the Warriorettes successfully defend their Class B title.

Bean cleared 18-5½ in the long jump to break the record (18-4½) held by Windthorst's Lisa Muerer since 1977.

Bean broke the record on her last try. It was her fifth jump over 18 feet this season.

Bean, who collected 29 of Miami's 64 total points, broke her own mark of 24.5 set last year when she won the 200-meter dash in 24.3. She also anchored Miami's winning 1600-meter relay team that crossed the tape in 4:03.1. Bean teamed with Tracy Klasek, Carla Daugherty, and Lisa Hinton.

Hinton placed second in the 400-meter dash in 1:00.4.

Karen Kuehler of Groom took sixth in the 4-kilo shot put with a 33-4 loss.

Chilton took second behind Miami in the team standings with 56 points.

In the Class AA division, Teresa Morehead of Canadian took third in the 200-meter dash with a time of 25.3. Teammate Alica Hobby, who won the regional title, fell 10 yards from the finish line and was unable to complete the race.

Canadian's 1600-meter relay team took third in 3:56.3 while its 800-meter team finished fifth in 1:42.9.6.

Teamwise, Canadian finished in a seventh-place tie with La Grange with 22 points each. Clyde totaled 80 points to take first.

State tennis results

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ann Hulbert of Houston Memorial beat Lila Hirsch of Beaumont Forest Park 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, to win the Class 4A State Girls' singles title in a marathon tennis match here Saturday.

Hulbert and Hirsch traded groundstrokes from the baseline for nearly three hours before Hulbert took the title.

The 4A doubles title went to the Houston Lee duo of Renee Tambarello and Lisa Tambarello, who defeated Houston Westchester's Darcy and Carin Hoening, 6-4, 6-4.

Sally Bowman of Austin Westlake defeated teammate Lisa Brollier 7-6, 6-2 to take the Class 3A singles title. The 3A doubles title went to Sylvia Layfield and Connie Weber of Sweetwater, who took a 3-6, 6-0, 6-4 win over Tana Screws and Lisa Methven of Paris.

Sonja Hutcherson of Memphis took her fourth straight Class A singles title with an easy 6-1, 6-0 win over Tracey Tatum of Reagan County.

Here are other winners in Saturday's Girls' State Tennis finals:

Class 2A
Singles: Ramona Irlbeck, Abernathy, defeated Kellie Mull, Denver City, 6-3, 7-5.

Doubles: Amber McBeth and Traci Smith, Seminole, defeated Laura Yzaquirre and Velma Carbajal, Benavides, 6-4, 0-6, 7-6. Class A

Doubles: Connie Rodriguez and Elda Salinas, Sabinol, defeated Karen Box and Nancy Metcalfe, Franklin, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Class B

Singles: Brenda Niemeyer, Knippa, defeated Patti Popnoe, Novice, 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles: Betty Mikulencak and Ann Gensler, Thrall, defeated Pat Beach and Renee Brosig, Paint Rock, 7-5, 6-4.

American League roundup

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When he was 25-3 for the New York Yankees two seasons ago, Ron Guidry had one of those once-in-a-lifetime years. It's beginning to look as though 1980 may be one of those years...in reverse.

After four no-decision outings, two good and two shaky, Guidry finally posted his first victory of the season Friday night. But the 9-6 triumph over the Minnesota Twins was anything but impressive.

Guidry yielded 10 hits and six runs — two of them unearned — before needing help from Rudy May. Ken Landreaux tagged him for three singles, including a pair of two-run hits.

"When it takes you five times to win one game, it looks like it's going to be one of those years," Guidry said.

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox edged the Kansas City Royals 6-5 in 11 innings and spoiled Darrell Porter's return to action, the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Chicago White Sox 8-0, the Oakland A's outslugged the Detroit Tigers 10-6, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Texas Rangers 7-5, the California Angels defeated the Seattle Mariners 3-1 and the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1.

Reggie Jackson and pinch hitter Jim Spencer hit two-run homers for the Yankees to help Guidry notch his initial victory. Jackson slammed his fifth homer of the season off loser Geoff Zahn in the first inning. He also singled and scored on Eric Soderholm's double in the fourth, drove in a run with a double in the seventh and scored when Spencer homered off Terry Felton in the seventh.

Red Sox 6, Royals 5
Jack Brohamer singled home Carlton Fisk, who had doubled, in the 11th inning with the first pinch hit by a Boston player this season. Kansas City's Jamie Quirk tied it and chased Boston starter Mike Torrez with a two-run homer in the seventh. Fred Lynn's two-run double in the Boston seventh had given Torrez a 5-3 lead. Rick Burleson's solo home run in the fifth gave the Red Sox a 3-2 lead until Quirk doubled in the Kansas City sixth and scored on Clint Hurdle's double.

Brewers 8, White Sox 0
Sal Bando drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a double and Ben Oglivie delivered a double and two singles to back

Mike Caldwell's seven-hit pitching. Ken Kravec took the loss although five of the seven runs he allowed were unearned.

The Brewers struck for three runs in the second inning, one on a double by Oglivie and another on Bando's sacrifice fly. They added four more in the seventh with Oglivie rapping a two-run single and Bando following with a two-run double.

A's 10, Tigers 6
Tony Armas drove in four runs, three with a seventh-inning homer, as Oakland moved back into first place in the AL West, one-half game ahead of the White Sox. The A's took a 5-0 lead in the first three-innings against loser Dave Rozema. Jason Thompson and John Wockenfuss homered for Detroit.

Orioles 7, Rangers 5
Doug DeCinces and Lee May hit consecutive two-run doubles off Jim Kern to spark Baltimore's five-run eighth-inning. The rally erased a 4-2 Texas lead built on two-run homers by Al Oliver and Jim Sundberg. The Orioles batted around against three Texas pitchers in the eighth, with DeCinces' double tying the score and May's hit putting the Orioles in front.

Strange ties record

HOUSTON (AP) — Curtis Strange was preparing to hit his approach shot on the first hole of his second round in the $350,000 Houston Open golf tournament Friday.

"Something just clicked," he said. "I really don't know what it was exactly, but something clicked."

"I'd been playing really well all year and just not scoring. Then something clicked and I knew it would be different."

It was.

He tied the course record, matched two scoring marks for the season and set another with a spectacular 8-under-par 63 that staked him to 4-stroke lead in this chase for a $63,000 first prize.

The official name of the tournament is the Michelob Houston Open.

The 63 tied the record on the rain-softened 6,918 yard Woodlands Country Club course.

It also matched the low score on the PGA tour this year. He played his back-nine in 7-under-par 29, matching another tour low for the year.

And his 13-under-par total of 129 was, by two shots, the lowest 36-hole total the touring pros have compiled this season.

"I feel kind of fortunate," said Strange. "I've been kind of fighting it, playing well and just not scoring."

"He must be playing exceptionally well," said Lee Trevino, who also noted that the "course played very easy."

Bill Rogers agreed.

"The conditions were absolutely perfect," Rogers said. "and the course is as good as anywhere we go."

All three were among the 57 men who were stranded on the course by darkness Thursday night and forced to return at daybreak Friday to complete their first rounds.

Phils pound Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies pounded out six hits for six runs, including home runs by Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski in the second inning, and went on to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 Saturday in a regionally televised game.

Philadelphia starter Larry Christensen, 2-0, pitched scoreless, hitless ball before giving up harmless singles in the fifth and sixth but had to be lifted in the seventh with a run in, and the bases loaded and two outs.

KEVIN JENKINS

Jenkins preparing for state meet

Kevin Jenkins may get that lonesome feeling when he returns to the Class B state track meet Friday and Saturday in Austin. Last year, the Miami High senior was a member of the mile relay squad that finished fifth in the state meet. This year, Jenkins was the only Miami trackster that placed high enough in the regionals to qualify for state.

Jenkins, who has ran track all four years of high school, placed second in both the 100 and 200-yard dashes at the Region I-B Meet to advance to state. Sundown's Larry Henderson nipped Jenkins by two-tenths of a second in both races.

The 5-10, 160-pounder feels he must have more quickness out of the starting blocks to have a chance against state-level competition.

"That's what got me beat at regionals," Jenkins said. "I've been working on the blocks quite a bit lately."

However, Jenkins feels confident of placing in at least one event at the state meet.

"I might have a shot at getting a medal in the 200, but I'm afraid I may be outclassed in the 100."

Going into the state meet Jenkins was ranked eighth in the 200 among Panhandle area tracksters, according to the Amarillo Globe-News. Earlier, Jenkins had held the No. 2 spot in the 100-yard dash with a 10.1 clocking.

Jenkins has also excelled at two other sports at Miami High. He was an honorable mention all-district running back in football while also seeing action at quarterback and split end. He was a starter on the basketball team that won the District-2-B championship this season.

Silver Fox wins pole position

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — The old master gave NASCAR's ace something to shoot at, but nobody could reach the target. David Pearson, the 45-year-old "Silver Fox" of NASCAR Grand National racing, won the pole position for Sunday's stock car race here. He did it in his typical shoot-from-the-hip style, drawing the first trip around the superfast Alabama International Motor Speedway and rocketing his Oldsmobile around the steeply banked oval at 197.704 mph.

Forty-three more cars circled the 2.66-mile track, but only three drivers were able to even come close to Pearson's sizzling lap.

Pearson, whose long and successful affiliation with the Wood Brothers team ended 13 months ago, began the season in an unofficial semi-retirement.

A new deal with car owner Hoss Ellington, however, has given him new life.

Pearson finished the 1979 season without a ride and started this year the same way. Then, along came Ellington and a victory in the Rebel 500 three weeks ago at Darlington, S.C., in his first start with his new team. He skipped the Virginia 500 last week, but furthered his comeback and won $6,000 to boot with his performance Thursday.

Buddy Baker, who earlier this year established a 500-mile speed record in the Daytona 500, was right behind Pearson at 197.675, followed by Cale Yarborough at 197.349 and Dale Earnhardt at 197.000. The top 20 positions for the 40-car race, known as the Winston 500, were decided Thursday, with the rest of the field to be completed today.

Qualifying position is based on the best of two trips around the track, but Pearson pulled into the pits after just one circuit.

"It wouldn't run no faster the second time than it did the first one," he joked. "Actually, the car was running a little bit hot and I didn't want to hurt the engine."

Genuine Risk wins Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Genuine Risk became only the second filly to win the Kentucky Derby Saturday with a stretch drive that carried her to victory over Rumbo in the 106th Derby at Churchill Downs.

Genuine Risk, the first filly to run in the Derby in 21 years, moved into contention on the turn and took command turning for home. She then outdueled Rumbo and Jaklin Klugman. Jaklin Klugman finished third.

The chestnut filly carried 121 pounds, five less than her 12 male rivals over the 1 1/4 miles on a fast track in bright sunshine in 2:02 to write her name in thoroughbred racing legend.

"She's a very feminine filly, a tall, rangy filly," the trainer said before the race. Now, she is a queen of the sport of kings.

Genuine Risk paid $28.60, $10.60 and $4.80 in earning $239,300 from a purse of $326,800.

Gayno Stable and Bell Bloodstock Co.'s Rumbo, who overtook Jaklin Klugman in the closing yards, returned $5.20 and $3.40. Jaklin Klugman, owned by television actor Jack Klugman and John Dominguez, was $4.40 to show.

Genuine Risk's margin of victory was one length. Rumbo, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., was a length in front of Jaklin Klugman, who was four lengths ahead of Super Moment.

BUTKUS DEBUT

CHICAGO (AP) — An old-timer in the Chicago Bear organization remembered the arrival of Hall of Fame linebacker Dick Butkus in the Chicago training camp in the summer of 1965.

Butkus had played in the College All-Star game in Chicago and had made 15 tackles, blocked a field goal try by the Cleveland Browns and finished second in the MVP voting.

Butkus knew he would have to challenge the 14-year veteran Bill George for the middle linebacker job and he fretted that the time he had spent with the All-Stars might hurt his chances.

European officials against boycott

ROME (AP) — European Olympic leaders urged the world Saturday to ignore President Carter's call for a boycott and send athletes to the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

They did propose, however, drastic cuts in the opening ceremony. Athletes, for example, would not march past Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in the traditional parade.

Officials of 18 West European national Olympic committees drew up an eight-point plan to try to persuade uncommitted countries to compete in the Games.

In Washington, there was no official comment on the proposals from Carter, who has banned American participation in the Games. The Soviets were not represented at the meeting Saturday, and there was no immediate comment from Moscow.

The eight points, which would have to be approved by the International Olympic Committee and accepted by the organizing committee in Moscow, are:

—Each national delegation to be represented in the opening parade by a flag bearer and a name board, with no athletes.

—Each team to use the Olympic flag of the five rings, and not national flags.

—The Olympic hymn to be used in place of national anthems.

—The Olympic flag and hymn to be used at the medals presentations in addition to the opening and closing ceremonies.

—Athletes to abandon team uniforms and march in the parade in informal dress, with only a badge of identification.

—No political speeches at the opening ceremony.

—Each delegation to confine its activities to sporting events.

—No national committee to participate in the international youth camp being organized by the Russians in connection with the Olympics.

Nehemiah wins hurdles

HOUSTON (AP) — World record holder Renaldo Nehemiah nicked the ninth hurdle but caught challengers Rod Milburn and Dedy Cooper in the final two hurdles Saturday to win the 110-meter hurdles and highlight the Houston Invitational track meet.

Nehemiah, recovering from an ankle injury suffered playing basketball, trailed Cooper and former world record holder Milburn at the start of the race but came on to win in 13.32. Cooper finished second at 13.34 and Milburn was third at 13.40.

"I thought I had it," said Nehemiah, whose world record is 13.00 in the event. "But I couldn't get up on my ankle the other guys pushed me. It was tough after I clobbered that ninth hurdle, but I'm happy with the way I ran for my first outdoor race."

Milburn, the 1972 Olympic gold medalist in the event, led the field midway in the race but with two hurdles to go it was a dead heat among the top three finishers.

Swim, scuba lessons to be offered at Center

Pampa Youth and Community Center has several activities scheduled in the near future, Center Director George D. Smith announced today.

The 1980 sign-up day for all children's swim lessons—including polywogs, beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates, and swimmers—is 1 p.m. Thursday.

New swim lessons for children begin Monday, May 12, starting at 4 p.m. for beginners, and 5 p.m. for advanced beginners. Parents need to pre-enroll their children as soon as possible, Smith said.

A scuba diving class will also be offered at the Center when ten persons sign up. Bill Parson of the Professional Scuba Diving Association in Amarillo will conduct the class.

Divers receive 21 hours of class instruction, 21 hours of pool instruction, and four dives in area lakes. The course costs fifteen dollars per person.

The course costs fifteen dollars per person, and Parson will furnish all equipment except mask, snorkel, and fins.

"Come by the youth center and sign up immediately," Smith said. The Center is located at 1005 West Harvester. Interested persons may call 665-2622, 665-4381, or 665-2012 for more details.

Sims attends rookie drills

BILLY SIMS is attending the the Detroit Lions' rookie camp this weekend while negotiations continue over the former Oklahoma University All-American's contract.

(AP Photo)

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Billy Sims is in the Detroit Lions' rookie training camp for just one reason: he likes Coach Monte Clark.

"There's something about his personality that I can see he really, truthfully cares about his players," Sims said. "I think that's much more important than just trying to coach somebody."

"I can see he's no phoney."

Sims, the 5-foot-11, 210-pound All-America running back from Oklahoma whom the Lions made the No. 1 pick in the National Football League draft Tuesday, previously had said he would stay away from this weekend's special camp for draftees and free agents.

Negotiations between Sims' agent, Houston real estate broker Jerry A. Argovitz and Lions' General Manager Russ

Thomas have broken down several times into bitter name-calling and accusations.

Argovitz reportedly asked for a $4.5 million package covering six years for Sims and Thomas countered with a proposal of $700,000 for three years.

Argovitz has threatened to take Sims to the Canadian Football League if the Lions don't come up with the right amount of cash.

Sims said he felt it was safe to attend the drills this weekend, because he didn't expect any heavy hitting.

"We had talked about it, Jerry and I and Coach Monte Clark," Sims said. "I had stated that if he (Clark) wanted me to come up, I was going to come. We don't want to have anything negative about things and I intended to come anyway."

Thursday, Sims send Clark a message which read:

"Thank you for making me your No. 1 selection. There will be no more 2 and 14 seasons in Detroit."

Clark was clearly touched by the unexpected telegram.

"He's really a class individual," Clark said, taking the message from his secretary and heading back into his office at the Silverdome.

Clark, who has called Sims "the franchise," refused to consider what might happen to his club's morale if Thomas is unable to sign the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner.

"I have a rule around here about not assuming anything," Clark said. "But, in this case, I absolutely have to assume that Billy will be in my backfield when training camp opens in July."

Lakers 8-2 record didn't come easy, says Westhead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On their way to the title series, the Los Angeles Lakers have won eight playoff games and lost two, but Coach Paul Westhead says it hasn't been that easy.

"The struggle has been far greater than the record shows," Westhead said. "A month from now, someone will check out the stats and say, 'Look, the Lakers breezed.'"

"But both were very difficult rounds for us. I say that to clarify the record, and to compliment our team. We really had to work hard, not like it was a cakewalk and we weren't challenged."

The Lakers begin the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series Sunday afternoon against the Philadelphia 76ers at the Forum.

The Lakers defeated the Phoenix Suns 4-1 in their opening playoff series, rested a week and then dealt the defending champion Seattle SuperSonics a 4-1 loss in the Western Conference final.

The 76ers, too, made their drive to the championship round in impressive fashion, besting Washington 2-0 in their preliminary series, then disposing of Atlanta and Boston 4-1 in each of those series.

Few expect the title series to be decided so abruptly — by either team.

The 76ers, once a team of superstars who generally played one-on-one, are now a team in the truest sense. Dr. J, Julius Erving, is still the main man, but Philadelphia has a solid backcourt duo in Lionel Hollins and Maurice Cheeks, with Darryl Dawkins at center and Caldwell Jones at the power forward.

The Lakers have spent the past few years trying to build a solid supporting cast for the center most consider the NBA's most dominant player, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. With rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Norm Nixon in the backcourt, and Jamaal Wilkes at one forward and Jim Chones at the other, Los Angeles finally has the talent to complement Abdul-Jabbar.

Philadelphia Coach Larry Cunningham hopes the 76ers can control the tempo of the game — and hold down Abdul-Jabbar.

Dodger streak halted

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Charlie Hough is one of the "stoppers" in the Los Angeles Dodger bullpen.

But Friday night, the only thing he stopped was a 10-game Dodger winning streak.

Wildly erratic, the usual arful Dodger walked the bases loaded in the eighth inning, opening the gates for a four-run Philadelphia rally. And the Phillies went on to cool off the hot Dodgers 9-5.

The Dodgers' right-handed knuckleball specialist allowed the first run by a Los Angeles reliever in the last 11 games, covering 162-3 innings.

That happened when Hough gave up Greg Gross' two-run single after walking the bases loaded. Bake McBride later singled home the final two runs of the rally.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1, the St. Louis Cardinals walloped the Houston Astros 9-1, the Chicago Cubs bombed the Cincinnati Reds 12-4 in 12 innings, the San Diego Padres blanked the New York Mets 1-0 and the Montreal Expos turned back the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Braves 6, Pirates 1

Phil Niekro scattered seven hits for his first victory of the season and Chris Chambliss and Jeff Burroughs each drove in a pair of runs as Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh. Niekro, who had lost his first four starts, allowed the only Pirate run in the second inning on Phil Garner's RBI single.

The Pirates committed four errors as the Braves won their first road game of the season after eight losses.

Cardinals 9, Astros 1

Ted Simmons snapped a 1-1 tie with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and then lashed a three-run homer to cap a seven-run seventh as St. Louis beat Houston.

Simmons delivered the Cardinals' go-ahead run in the sixth after Keith Hernandez walked, stole second and took third on a wild pitch by Nolan Ryan. The Cardinals then broke open the game in the next inning as Ken Reitz and Garry Templeton each singled home a run. Hernandez knocked in two more with a base hit and Simmons hit his second homer of the season.

Cubs 12, Reds 4

Pinch-hitter Mike Vail blasted a three-run triple to key an eight-run 12th inning as Chicago routed Cincinnati.

The Cubs scored twice prior to Vail's triple on RBI singles by Ivan DeJesus and Dave Kingman, and came up with three more following Vail's hit on an RBI single by Mike Tyson and two-run homer by Lenny Randle, batting for the second time in the inning.

Bruce Sutter won in relief and Tom Hume was the loser, also in relief.

Padres 1, Mets 0

Catcher John Stearns' bad throw during a second-inning rundown enabled Willie Montanez to score from third and give San Diego its victory over New York.

Rick Wise, the first of three San Diego pitchers, earned the victory with relief help from John D'Acquisto and Steve Mura. Mura earned his second save as the three Padre pitchers scattered seven hits.

Track results

Randy Wise of White Deer-Skellydown took first place in the shot put during the District 2-A Junior High Track Meet held recently.

Wise, a seventh-grader, also placed sixth in the discus.

Other placings for the Little Bucks are as follows:

Seventh grade boys (Skellytown): Jacky Ramirez, third, 200; fourth, 400 relay; Joe Fitch, sixth, 200 hurdles; Doyle Garrison, sixth, 1600 relay; Will Brown, sixth, 1600 relay.

Seventh grade girls (Skellytown): Lindy Hanover, sixth, mile relay; Darla Woodward, sixth, mile relay, and sixth, shot put; Mary Thomas, sixth, mile relay; Kathy Hassler, sixth, 880 relay, 100 hurdles, and sixth, 400 relay.

Eighth grade girls (Skellytown): Debra Lymburner, fourth, mile relay; Marijane Ramirez, third, 880 relay; Randi Matson, fourth, 400 relay; Charlotte McGuire, fourth, 400 relay and mile relay; Marijane Ramirez, fifth, Panhandle relays, and fifth, 100 dash.

Indy inspections begin

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Preparations for today's start of practice for the Indianapolis 500 actually began at midweek, as the first of some eight dozen entries started arriving at their Gasoline Alley garages for technical inspections.

Before any car, or any driver for that matter, goes onto the 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway track, the U.S. Auto Club must administer its official approval.

For the cars, that means a half-hour to 45-minute inspection by a USAC crew, checking everything from the fuel capacity of the racer's tank to the weight of the race-ready vehicle. For the drivers, that means a physical exam, normally the least of their worries as the week leading up to qualifications begins.

By late Friday, more than three dozen cars had arrived at the track and 10 had completed technical inspections, totals that will increase steadily throughout the coming week.

Among the first cars ready for today's start of practice was the 1979 Lola-Cosworth driven by Jerry Sneva, younger brother of track record holder and former USAC national champion Tom Sneva.

Natalie Reeve chosen 1981 Artist of Year

By TINA McCLOY

Pampa's Artist of the Year for 1981 has a fondness for butterflies — they're the subject of some of her artwork, there's one on her business card, and she even wears a tiny enamel one at her throat.

But butterflies aren't all that interest Natalie Reeve. The 24-year-old works with several art forms, ranging from oils and watercolors to pen and ink, from copper enameling to embossing. "When I get tired of one I go to something else," says Miss Reeve, who adds that she has no plans to focus on one area.

A 1973 graduate of Pampa High School, she took her first art lesson when she was nine years old, and learned copper enameling procedures in junior high school.

From high school, she went off to West Texas State University, where she majored in studio art, with a concentration in figure drawing and painting. After two years, the aspiring young woman discovered she had a condition called muscular atrophy, which limits some of her activities but hasn't hampered her enthusiasm or her artistic skills. About the butterfly at her throat, she says, "I just feel like its wings hold me up. Also, the dear Lord holds me up."

Since she left WTSU, she's lived in Pampa with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Reeve Jr., and devoted almost full-time to her budding career. Always searching to polish her techniques, she occasionally commutes to Canyon and Amarillo for special art courses.

Examples of Natalie's skills hang in almost every room in her family's home — as her mother says, "We only have enough walls for one artist in the family."

Her parents have always encouraged her in her endeavors, says Miss Reeve: her father helped her set up a workshop in her bedroom. They also lend a hand with the kiln when she works with copper enameling. The artist carefully positions powdered colored glass on a piece of copper, then the whole piece is fired a few seconds at a very high temperature. The result is a glassy, jewel-toned surface.

"I like to do florals and old buildings in watercolor, and florals in palette knife," says Miss Reeve, who says that tool gives her more freedom than a brush.

"It seems like I'm always in the mood to paint when my table's in a mess and I have to clean it up first," she laughs. "And I think I must get a second wind of energy at 10:30 at night, because I like to work then."

Embossing is a time-consuming art form which Natalie enjoys occasionally, when she has access to the equipment. Using bits of cardboard, she builds up a design on a plate, then seals it with a medium. Printing paper, soaked in water to make it pliable, is placed over the cardboard base, then put in a heavy press.

The finished piece shows the original design in raised — or embossed — form, which Miss Reeve explains is used to produce many greeting cards.

The artist says she especially enjoys the challenge of figure drawing, but can't find anyone here to model for her. Miss Reeve says she learned a lot about the technical aspects of figure drawing in a course taught by Dr. Joel Schechter from the University of Southern California.

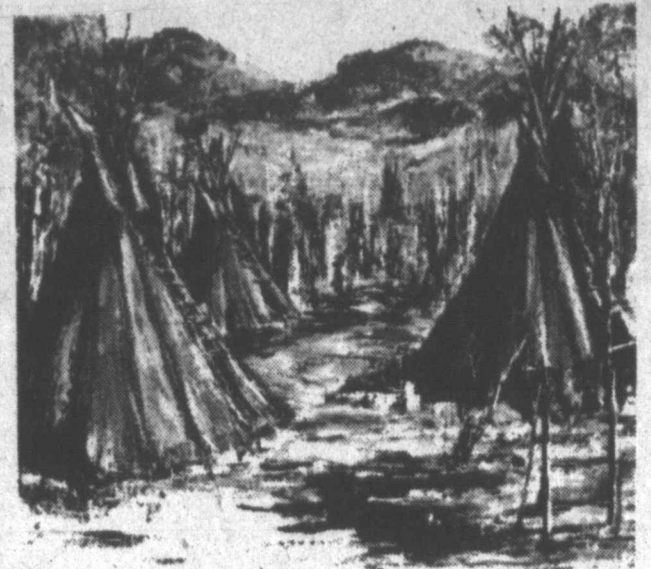

"When you see a shadow, he'd say, 'What's that shadow there for?' or 'What's that sticking out for?' It's really a challenge to get everything where it's supposed to be."

She admits discipline in her work is sometimes a problem, but says she'll have to develop that characteristic in order to get an exhibit ready for next April. "I have to fill the whole auditorium of the library," she laughs. Her one-woman show next spring at Lovett Memorial Library is an honor that goes along with the Artist of the Year designation.

Members of the Pampa Fine Arts Association, who annually select someone for the honor, had previously asked her to exhibit her talents, but she had always declined. "When they called this time, I thought it was going to be about a show, and I was going to say yes, but I never dreamed it would have this honor attached to it."

NATALIE REEVE, Pampa's Artist of the Year for 1981, checks the detail on a watercolor she started last week in a Stefan Kramer class. The young woman, a Pampa High School graduate, prefers to use oils with a palette knife rather than by brush. The tepees, above right, and the old dwelling below, are examples of her expertise in that area. (Staff photos)

Inflation hits Arab dowries; men seek foreign brides

EDITOR'S NOTE — The oil boom in the United Arab Emirates has had at least one unusual effect. It has raised the price of dowry payments. As a result, many more Arab men are marrying foreign women.

By KATHLEEN BISTHAWI

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Inflation has hit the bridal market in Abu Dhabi and the oil-rich sheikdom's young men increasingly are marrying foreign women who do not require expensive dowry payments.

The result is that a growing number of Abu Dhabi girls are faced with the prospect of spinsterhood unless the government plays Cupid with financial or other incentives.

Dowries — or mahr in Arabic — are a traditional part of the Islamic marital system. They are paid to the bride's family in equal shares at marriage and in the event of divorce.

The dowry system, mentioned in the Koran, is a way of protecting women from the whims of husbands, who can easily divorce wives under Islamic laws.

But dowry prices have been rising sharply since the oil boom began six years ago, raising per capita income to the equivalent of $14,000 a year. Even the daughter of, say, a police sergeant, may command a dowry of up to $27,000. Other women command hundreds of thousands of dollars in dowries.

Finding dowries beyond their reach, the less affluent Abu Dhabi men are taking the cheaper way out and marrying Egyptians, Indian or Pakistani or other foreign women. A recent survey of 100 families by the Social Affairs Ministry showed that 10 percent contained foreign wives.

Marriage agencies in Cairo, Pakistan and a number of Indian cities can easily arrange brides for visiting Abu Dhabi males. The fee for an Egyptian girl is only about $3,000 and Indian brides can be had for as little as $80.

But the idea of a ban on marriages between nationals and foreigners finds little favor. An Indian official in Abu Dhabi says that "such a move would be against human rights because it could prevent genuine love matches." An Abu Dhabi official says it would be against the beliefs of Islam to restrict marriage partners in any way.

Last year, a local women's association considered a petition to U.A.E. President Sheik Zayed, asking for a fund so young men could borrow money to help pay dowry prices.

Kuwait already has such a fund. Previous attempts to limit the dowry prices have all failed. Many fathers regard their daughters' bridal price as an indicator of their social and family status.

Now government sociologists have proposed that Abu Dhabi males marrying local girls (for the first marriage only) be given a loan of $13,500, either in cash or furniture. Abu Dhabi nationals already are entitled to a free house from the state.

This loan would turn into a straight grant once the first child is born. If there were a divorce, the money would be refunded. The housing and justice ministries now are considering the proposals.

If, however, an Abu Dhabi national still opts for a foreign wife, then under the new proposals he would have to place a sum equivalent to $27,000 in a bank. In the event of a divorce, the money would be used to fly the girl back home and the remainder would constitute a lump-sum alimony payment.

"It is perhaps a tragic and complicated problem that we have about marriage," an official in the Social Affairs Ministry comments. "You could say it is one of the unfortunate side effects of the oil wealth."

DEAR ABBY

MARY JANE JOHNSON

Mary Jane Johnson to perform Friday

It seems that a vocalist with aspirations in the world of opera would select from the traditional to perform in concert. But Mary Jane Johnson, regional winner of Metropolitan Opera auditions, will perform some foot-stomping country and western — as well as opera and classical numbers — in a Pampa concert Friday evening.

Sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, the concert will begin at 8 p.m. in M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Mary Jane Rose of Pampa, competed in New York in March in national semifinals competition of the Metropolitan Opera, a chance she earned by winning the preliminary competition in El Paso and the Southwest Regional Auditions in San Antonio.

The soprano failed to qualify for the Met finals, but says she's scheduled auditions with other companies.

A graduate of Pampa High School, Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Rose, 505 N. Gray. She earned an undergraduate degree from Texas Tech University and received her master's from West Texas State University, where she was winner of the National Association of Teachers Singing Competition.

A former teacher at McMurry College in Abilene, she is now a voice instructor at Amarillo college, where she also directs the Opera Workshop. For the past two years, her voice coach has been Harold Heiberg of North Texas State University in Denton.

She is married to David Stith Johnson and is the mother of a 2-year-old daughter, Taylor.

For more information on the concert, contact Mrs. Mary Braswell or Mrs. Marsha Darby. Tickets are available at Tarpley's and also will be available at the door. Ticket price includes a champagne reception after the concert.

DEAR ABBY: A reader complained, "Although my boyfriend is very affectionate, I wonder why he never says, 'I love you.'"

You replied, "Perhaps he isn't ready to make a commitment yet." Abby, I am definitely ready to make a commitment to my girlfriend, but I, too, find it very difficult to say, "I love you."

In college, I had a Japanese roommate who said, "If a Japanese boy were to tell a girl he 'loved' her, she would become very uncomfortable and wonder what he expected of her in return. Oriental men express their affection in more subtle ways — such as doing nice things for a girl, or giving her small gifts."

He also said that when American couples kiss in public in Japan, it causes a great deal of embarrassment and curiosity among the Japanese, who are unaccustomed to such a display of emotion in public.

I think we Westerners would do well to adopt the Oriental custom of keeping one's emotions under control.

DEAR Z.A.R.: It's true that controlling one's emotions certainly would reduce the incidence of accidents among the Occidents, as it does among the Orientals. But it will never play in Peoria — or Paris, or Palm Springs, or Passaic.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who admits to being 65 pounds overweight, but insists that she is "happy, popular, good-looking, well-dressed, and couldn't care less what other people think." If she really believed this, she is not being honest with herself, so how can she be honest with others?

I have yet to meet an obese person who was totally honest. Generally speaking, they cheat on diets, lie about how much they eat and what they weigh; they even lie about having a "thyroid" condition.

Men prefer feminine women, and there's nothing feminine about hippos. They can't walk ladylike, they can't sit ladylike, and God forbid they should have to run! And if they were to see a moving picture of themselves walking away from the camera, they would never wear tight pants in public again!

In case you think I'm a skinny person with no understanding of the fat person's pain, let me assure you that I am a former fatty who is constantly fighting the battle of the bulge.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Not all fat people fit your stereotype. Some are honest, self-confident and able to accept themselves as they are. Witness "The National Association to Aid Fat People," a newly formed organization dedicated to fighting discrimination against the obese and to assuring them that fat is fine and nothing to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grandmother, and as one might expect, I am placed in competition with the other grandmother. I don't believe in buying my grandchildren's love by bringing them presents every time I go to see them. However, the other grandmother does, which is her privilege. We all live in the same city.

The grandchildren have been conditioned (by the other grandma) to expect a gift every time a grandparent visits. I really love them, but I want them to be glad to see me for myself — not for what I bring them.

I become slightly irritated when the little ones invariably come running to greet me with, "What did you bring me?" I refuse to submit to this subtle form of blackmail. Any suggestions?

NO GIFT GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Your grandchildren will soon be conditioned to expect no gifts from you. Hang in there and concentrate on cultivating their love in other ways until their values mature — as they will in time.

CURTIS MATLOCK AND DONNA ANN STAFFORD

Donna Ann Stafford to wed Curtis Matlock

Mr. and Mrs. Don Stafford, 504 Powell, announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna Ann, to Curtis Wayne Matlock.

The couple will be married July 19 in the First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Bobby Matlock and Rose Matlock, both of Pampa.

Miss Stafford, a 1978 graduate of Pampa High School, attended Texas Tech University. She is employed at North Austin Bank in Austin.

Matlock, a 1977 PHS graduate, is employed by Brown-Roof Company in Austin.

Fathers with custody do well

By the Editors of Psychology Today

Not long ago, a divorced father with custody of his children was a rare bird. Today, he is part of a growing flock, and according to a recent small study in Nebraska, he's doing about as well as a single mother might.

The most recent Census Bureau figures show that 13 percent of all single-parent families are now headed by men. There were 423,000 such families in 1978, compared with half that number in 1970.

To investigate how these fathers are coping with their lives, John DeFrain, a psychologist at the University of Nebraska, and Rod Erick, a graduate student, sent out questionnaires. They got replies from 33 fathers and 38 mothers who had been divorced for an average of three to four years. Nearly all the parents were white and middle class.

Similarities were the rule.

For example, a strong majority of both groups felt they were doing well, although they said they did not get to spend as much time with their children as they would like. Three-quarters of both sexes brought dates home, saying that the children favored their dating.

The sexes differed significantly on only one out of the 63 questions the researchers asked. It was "Do you or your ex-spouse encourage the children to take sides?" Nearly a third of the fathers said they tried to get their children to side with them while only one woman said she encouraged it.

DeFrain says he does not know for sure what is behind this difference. But he suspects that the men may be unconsciously buying the stereotype that mothers who do not take custody of their children are less than admirable and lacking in normal maternal feelings.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By LOUISE PIERCE

Remember my plea for answers to the column in which I asked what you would do if your older mate was convicted of a serious crime and was sent to prison?

Your replies have been mixed. Some of you say you would stick by the felon even if he admitted his guilt, in deference to your long life together and the love you still share.

But others have called or written to say that their experiences force them to take the opposite view. They have had to turn away from their once-loved mates, they say. They have concluded that those spouses do not merit love or consideration any longer. I'll share two of those letters with you today.

DEAR LOUISE: In response to "help" for the wife of a criminal, here is my story.

After a good life, four children, a wonderful business, my husband of 37 years left a note saying everything was falling apart but he still loved me, he just couldn't face it.

That is how a nightmare of crooked deals, forged signatures, and various methods of "success" came to the surface. I personally fielded all of the warrants, closed the business, talked to the employees and banks.

I persuaded my husband to come home and face the felony charges. I paid the personal bills bit by bit. My brother picked up the thousands of dollars worth of forged notes.

My husband made a comeback but always resented my strength. He was a stranger. Only when he had a serious illness was he the same man I married.

One bright morning I found another note. He wasn't coming home again. We were broke. I had no skills. He has depleted the family's money. My life was ruined and 15 years wasted.

He took everything, has never paid anything back and doesn't care.

I have only one more thought. Leave the crook now.

C.M. in OKLAHOMA.

DEAR C.M. in O.K.: It would be hard to disagree with your decision, but another misused wife might do so. If there is any semblance of love left between a confessed criminal and his mate, then surely there is still a bridge to walk upon together. But if love has been strained to the breaking point, there may be no hope of reconciliation.

The only way I can see taking back a second offender, provided the wronged mate still loves the culprit, is that the wronged one should insist on handling all finances. I'd have the bank account in my name, with my signature required in a personal visit to the bank for any check that was cashed.

Of course that would rule out trust, which is the basis of love and compatibility. Such a case would need heartbreaking study.

Sometimes even an untrustworthy mate is better than an empty house and loneliness. Every wronged mate must decide what will bring the most peace of mind to all concerned.

DEAR LOUISE: My 60-year-old wife is a thief or maybe you could call her a kleptomaniac—whatever it is. Anyway she took things from stores. She got arrested. She was let off with a big fine that I paid to keep her out of jail. But one of the clerks in the last store told it around town so everybody knows it. And none of our old friends have anything to do with us anymore.

She says she stole the stuff because she wanted it for me. She brought home ties and shirts and socks in her big shopping bag and said she'd saved money out of her house expenses to buy them for me.

I believed her until she was caught. Now I don't think I can ever trust her again. I'm not sure I can even go on living with a thief. Won't she do it again as soon as she gets a chance? So far I've stayed with her whenever she left the house. But I can't do that forever. She can sneak off when I'm not looking, can't she? I still love her but I'm about to lose my mind. W.G.

DEAR W.G.: My answer rests on your statement that you still love her. Since you do, you need to realize that a kleptomaniac is sick. Many cases of this illness have been cured or at least helped by psychiatry. I'd certainly seek this treatment if I were you. I'd also continue to stay beside her as long as she needs you, which may be all the rest of her life. You can still have good times together.

The fact that she stole "gifts" for you but nothing for herself shows that she loves you. And that is important enough to merit your efforts to help her.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Collection of best mysteries published

THE EDGAR WINNERS. Edited by Bill Pronzini. Random House. 430 Pages. $11.95.

This bulky book — the 33rd annual anthology of the Mystery Writers of America — "brings together in one volume... those stories that have received the coveted Edgar as the Best Mystery Short Story of its year."

There are 24 stories in all. The volume opens with the 1947 prize winner, Ellery Queen's "The Adventure of the Mad Tea-Party," then moves on and skips through the years before closing with the 1978 winner, "The Cloud Beneath the Eaves" by Barbara Owens.

Both are fine stories, by the way, as is most of the material that appears between the two, and the collection should please mystery and non-mystery fans alike. That's possible, in large part, because a number of the stories included here are not mysteries in the technical sense, but are, rather, mainstream stories in which the mystery, if there is one at all, is subordinated to a larger, more general theme.

For example, Thomas Walsh's fine, sensitively written "Chance After Chance" is more concerned with the ultimate redemption of a fallen priest than it is with a contemplated crime. And Harlan Ellison's "The Whimper of Whipped Dogs" broods more on the way in which evil has permeated contemporary life than on the murder which acts as the catalyst for the story.

The stories mentioned thus far are the best of a largely good collection.

There's no doubt about it. Oriental Rugs are one of the few things that get better as they age. Better looking, and more valuable.

For example, after 50 years Oriental Rugs are considered antiques. Which mean they've become rare and prized possessions.

Thorne couple to be honored next Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Thorne will be honored with a reception next Sunday to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary. An open house is planned May 11 from 2 to 4 p.m. at their home at 917 Terry Road. Hosting the event will be a niece, Mrs. Jean Hardy of Perryton, and friends of the couple. The Thornes were married May 13, 1955, in Miami, Fla. They moved to Pampa in 1974. Thorne is employed by Titan Specities, Inc.

Sturgill event slated Saturday in Skellytown

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sturgill of Skellytown will be honored Saturday, May 10, at a reception celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. The event will begin at 2 p.m. in the Skellytown Community Center. Hosting the reception will be the couple's four children, Mrs. Veronica Cook, Ricky Sturgill, Richard Sturgill and Bruce Sturgill, all of Skellytown. A native of Quail, Sturgill and the former Freida Moore of Childress were married May 7, 1955, in Pueblo, Colo. They have lived in Skellytown five years.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD STURGILL

Linda Ford wed

Linda Marie Ford became the bride of Curgus Lowe in a recent ceremony in John Hill Chapel on the campus of West Texas State University. The Rev. Synott Matthews of Canyon officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ford, 1200 Bond. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lowe of Amarillo.

Attending the couple were Beverly Beauchamp and Mike Beauchamp. Ushers were Kenny Lowe and Randy Ford.

The bride, a 1975 graduate of Pampa High School, is a student at WTSU, where she is a member of Phi Gamma Nu business sorority.

Lowe, a 1975 graduate of Amarillo High, is employed by Schwan's Sales in Canyon, where the couple will live.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
 After high school graduation, a young person usually heads in one of two directions — college or the working world. Soon, however, there may be an additional path open to teens: Voluntary national service, says Harris Wofford, co-chairman of the Committee for the Study of National Service.

To many young people, voluntary national service means only one thing: heading for the nearest military headquarters to join the armed forces. Not so. There are a host of civilian programs now in the works which come under the heading of national service. Some of these include rehabilitation of neighborhoods, hospital clinic work, care of the elderly and children, conservation of national parks and forests and tutoring of low-achieving students.

What would be the terms of the agreement if a young person signs up for national service? One year of community, environmental or military service, with a modest living allowance and post-service scholarships.

Just how willing young people would be to sign up is still a big question, but Wofford feels that teens may be more ready to respond to national service than skeptics think. A special Gallup poll of teen-agers shows that 71 percent favor voluntary national service and 22 percent said they would definitely volunteer.

A Gallup poll of college students found 82 percent in favor of such a system, with 19 percent definitely willing to join and 30 percent possibly interested.

"Today, young people are generally given little chance to be more than consumers of goods and service," says Wofford. "Yet there is so much they could do to meet the needs of the nation if their talents and energy were put to work."

Personally, I feel the program has tremendous potential. So often, teens are confused as to direction when they graduate from high school. The national service could provide the incentive to set goals. At least it would give the teen time and remove the pressures of making an immediate decision on "what will I do with my life."

Flourescent lighting is complex

When an ordinary light bulb goes out, simply replacing the bulb will usually get it back on again. Flourescent lighting is somewhat more complex, because often it's not the bulb or tube, but one of the other parts of the fixture that needs replacing.

Most older flourescent fixtures are the pre-heat type, distinguished by a nickel-sized aluminum cylinder (called the "starter") which protrudes from the face of the fixture. If the flourescent tube fails to light, it glows at both ends but not in the middle, if one of its ends is blackened, or if the light swirls eerily around inside the tube, the problem is usually the starter, an easy and inexpensive replacement.

If the fixture is a rapid-start type (which needs no warm-up time), it will have a "ballast" within, instead of a starter. If it fails to light, try removing and washing the tube, cleaning the tube prongs of any corrosion, then repositioning the tube so it seats properly. If the tube is blackened at both ends or blinking, it should be replaced. If the fixture hums noisily, check to see if any wires or screws are loose. Replace the ballast only if all other remedies fail.

CULTURAL ARTS WORKSHOP

A Cultural Arts workshop will be Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room. Lil Hall will show how to make "wind chimes" using plastic communion cups and beads. Cost of the project will be between $1 and $1.50. Participants should bring scissors. Everyone is invited to attend this workshop sponsored by the Gray County Extension Homemaker Council Cultural Arts Committee.

FLOURS - TRY SOMETHING DIFFERENT:

See different flours, but don't know for sure if they'll work in your home-baked breads? Read this, and then try something different! Understanding flours is easy with just a few basic facts about each in mind:

ALL-PURPOSE WHEAT FLOUR - is uniquely suited to bread-making because it contains enough gluten to form the delicate elastic framework of the finished product. It's a mixture of hard and soft wheat flours usually. However, it can be milled entirely from soft wheat - and, if so, it would not be suitable for bread making.

GENERAL GUIDELINES ABOUT FLOUR - Most of the flours and bakery products are enriched with thiamin, niacin, riboflavin and iron - to restore nutrients lost when the bran and germ were removed from the kernel during milling. Wholewheat flour is the exception here - enrichment of it isn't needed because whole-grain flours contain all nutrients naturally present in the grain. Whole-grain flours and cereal grains provide fiber in the diet, so they're good for you. Eating foods high in fiber tends to reduce symptoms of chronic constipation, diverticulosis and some types of "irritable bowel."

IMPORTANT NOTE - Also, remember you can use some flours alone for bread-making, and you can use others only if you combine them with all-purpose flour. How to do this appears below in the section on combining flours.

SELF-RISING FLOUR - is all-purpose flour with added leavening and salt. It is NOT suitable for yeast breads, but it is convenient for quick breads.

UNBLEACHED FLOUR - is all-purpose flour which has its natural whiteness. It's fine for bread-making and its nutritional value and gluten content are similar to all-purpose flour. In unbleached flour, simply, no bleaching agent was used to increase the degree of whiteness, and the difference between it and all-purpose flour in terms of whiteness is only slight.

CAKE FLOUR - is milled from soft wheat into a very fine and uniform flour especially suited to the tender, delicate character of cakes. Cake flour is NOT suited to bread-making due to the high percentage of soft wheat used in it, and it is lower in protein than all-purpose flour.

WHOLE-WHEAT FLOUR - is ground from the entire wheat kernel and includes all the natural nutrients, as we mentioned above. You can use it alone or in combination with all-purpose flour for bread-making. Alone, it will make a firmer loaf.

GRAHAM FLOUR - is coarsely ground whole-wheat flour. It works alone or in combination with all-purpose flour. Alone, it will make a firmer loaf.

RYE FLOUR - is ground from the endosperm, inner part of the rye kernel. Do not use it alone for bread-making.

PUMPERNICKEL RYE GRAHAM FLOUR - is a coarse-texture flour ground from the entire rye kernel. Do not use it alone for bread-making.

MASA FLOUR (tortilla flour) - is made from corn treated with lime water. Then it's ground and dehydrated. Do not use it for making yeast breads.

It's exciting to combine different flours for different bread creations, but you must know how. Here are some brief guidelines:

Whole-wheat and graham flours can be used interchangeably in recipes - substituting up to 60 percent of these flours in the place of all-purpose flour in the recipe. Or you can use them alone, as we said above. On the other hand, you must use some all-purpose flour in recipes that also call for other flours, cereal grains or meals - such as soy, rolled oats, cornmeal. To know exactly how these combinations work, use recipes that call SPECIFICALLY for the ingredients you want to use.

Now - try something different!

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - About a year ago I got pretty sick and the doctor said I had a prostate infection. He gave me a round of antibiotics. Then about two months ago I got the same infection again while I was on vacation. I went to the doctor there and he gave me some more antibiotics. Three weeks ago I got out of bed to go to the bathroom and was passing pure red blood. I went straight to the doctor and he said it was the same infection I had on vacation; it just hadn't healed up completely.

Now I'm having problems. When I go to the bathroom to urinate, I do a little and then wait a few minutes and do a little more and this goes on until the bladder is empty. I know nothing about prostate trouble and would like to know everything about it. What causes it and what could I do to prevent an attack? Also my wife thinks sex may be harmful to her and that it could aggravate my trouble. Please help if you can.

DEAR READER - Almost

every man will have some form of prostate trouble at some time in his life if he lives long enough. There are several different types of prostate disorders. One is an acute infection, which is apt to occur in young men as well as older men; it's like an inflammation or infection anywhere else. Bacteria lodge in the prostate and cause the prostate to become painful and tender from the inflammation. The swelling may interfere with the normal emptying of the bladder at that time. The reason is that the prostate literally surrounds the urethral tube that drains the bladder.

As a man gets older, the prostate may enlarge. As it does so, it may squeeze down on the urethral tube and begin to cause persistent difficulty in emptying the bladder. This may not be associated with an inflammation or infection at all. On the other hand, obstruction of the normal mechanism to drain urine from the bladder may set the stage for an inflammation or infection of the bladder itself.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 15-6, Prostate Gland. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you considerably more information about the prostate, the disorders that can affect it and what can be done for it.

The treatment of prostate disorders depends entirely on what the trouble is to begin with. If it's an acute infection, it may be treated with appropriate antibiotics. On the other hand, if it's simple enlargement and the obstruction is great enough to affect urination, then surgical removal of the obstruction is often necessary.

Opinions vary about the influence of sex on prostate problems. It certainly doesn't affect either the man or the woman if it's simple prostate enlargement. Some doctors actually recommend sexual activity for men who have acute inflammation and others do not.

The usual chronic forms of infection of the prostate and many acute forms will not affect a woman who has intercourse with a man who has this condition. An exception, of course, is gonorrhea (which I'm not suggesting that you have).

Arrau to play Brahms at anniversary concert

EDITOR'S NOTE - On April 11, 1920, pianist Claudio Arrau played Liszt and Schubert at his debut with the Berlin Philharmonic. This year - at his 60th anniversary concert - he'll play Brahms. The concert is one of 110 that the 77-year-old pianist will play this season.

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Pianist Arthur Schnitger has retired. Rudolf Serkin and Vladimir Horowitz play few concerts. But Claudio Arrau, who is 77 years old, is playing 110 concerts this season and making a half dozen recordings. He continues to receive splendid reviews.

The New York Times, reviewing a 1979 reissue of Arrau recordings from the 1920s and '50s, compared with recent recordings, said: "The fire of the later performances rises from a bedrock of steadily blazing coals. Mr. Arrau is not merely a different pianist than he once was but a substantially better one as well."

"It is just more musical experience, more thinking and knowledge, more emotional experience," Arrau says. "It all sort of piles up. As long as the muscles are in order and healthy, I think the unfolding of talents should go on until the last moment of one's life."

He and his wife, German mezzo-soprano Ruth Schneider, live in Douglaston on Long Island. They have three children and six grandchildren.

Born in Chillan, Chile, Arrau was a prodigy who gave his first recital at age 5. "It went around by word-of-mouth that there was a very little boy who could play piano. It brought a lot of comment. Latin American governments were marvelous about giving scholarships to talented young musicians. The Congress had to decide whether to give me one."

The scholarship took him, his widowed mother and his sister to Berlin, then a world center of music and musical education and studied with Martin Krause.

World War II drove him out of Germany at age 38.

As a young man in Berlin, he says, he would practice 12 or 14 hours a day.

"My neighbors said they would land in an insane asylum. One lady finally asked a lawyer to sue me because she was losing her nerves. She went some place to rest and actually sent me a bill. I never paid."

Now, he practices two or three hours a day, usually in the evening.

This April, Arrau will play Brahms at his 60th birthday concert with the Berlin Philharmonic.

At his debut in 1920, he recalls, "I played Liszt's arrangement for piano and orchestra of Schubert's 'Wanderer Fantasy.' It's very seldom done now; everybody plays the 'Wanderer' in the solo version."

"I grew up playing a lot of Liszt and Beethoven. My teacher was a pupil of Liszt, who was a pupil of Czerny, who was a pupil of Beethoven."

"The moment when playing music really starts becoming creative and satisfying is when you can just forget about the technical aspects and just shape things," Arrau says. "That is a marvelous moment."

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

BY MARY ANN COOPER

May 2, 1980

Doug Watson as "Mac" with Victoria Wyndham (left) as "Rachel" and Beverlee McKinsey as "Iris."

Just as my column about the damaging rumors that have plagued Kin Shiner of "General Hospital" went to press, letters came flooding my way concerning the rumor that Beverlee McKinsey was about to leave her role as Iris on "Another World." It is my pleasure to announce that Beverlee's departure from the serial is as foundationless as Kin's supposed demise. While we're on the subject of Kin Shiner, ABC would like to thank all the readers of "Speaking of Soaps" who took the time to contribute valuable information toward tracing the source of the rumor. As a result of the conscientious efforts of my readers ABC has a handle on where the story started and is contacting that source to inform them of their error. I applaud the efforts of my countless readers, too numerous to mention, for their help in "cracking the case."

At this time, Beverlee McKinsey is recovering at home from a nasty slip she took while trying to replace a curtain rod. The fall resulted in multiple breaks in her left shoulder. Although her shoulder is out of the cast, she is required to wear a sling for several more weeks. Her absence from the serial and temporary replacement by Carol Shelley created a torrent of rumors about her imminent departure from the show. Ms. McKinsey has garnered a strong and devoted fan following that besieged the studio and this columnist with letters to dissuade her from going. Beverlee said she was overwhelmed by the many gifts, cards and well wishes that she has received in the days following her fall and wishes to dispel any thought of her exiting "Another World" any time soon.

"At one time I was actually thinking about leaving daytime drama," she says. "But now I've had a change of heart. I've certainly been influenced by the warmth and concern of not only my colleagues on 'Another World' but by the outpouring of concern from fans. I never realized that we were all so close. I'm really involved in such a family of love that I just couldn't leave now."

Jenny a letter. THIS WEEK: Will Jenny's life be destroyed by the contents of Peter's letter? Mario pushes a reluctant Edwina.

GENERAL HOSPITAL — Laura confides to Rick that she knew and was close to her rapist. Rick tells her not to make the same mistake he made with Lesley. Laura tries to tell Scotty that the past is not resolved but he will not listen. Jennifer begins to become aware of her father's involvement in organized crime. Mitch warns Susan not to get too close to Smith.

THIS WEEK: Alan has a change of heart or does he really? Joe tries to win back Anne.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES — Doug shows off for Julie when he buys an old house at an auction. He confides that he may turn it into a gambling joint. To impress Lee, Doug buys her a penthouse and puts it in her name. Don is offered a position with the Chandler Corporation. Mickey is for the pending gambling bill and Don is against it. Marie gets a new ward who shows great potential.

THIS WEEK: Will friendly debate turn into an ugly argument? Lee sets about to thwart Doug's plans.

ANOTHER WORLD — Kit's picture in the newspaper has brought her past to public attention again. She tries desperately to keep the truth from Joe as reporters close in on their location. Rose wants Joe's marriage annulled. Jason almost convicts Tracy into postponing her surgery to bail him out of a financial mess but Mitch arrives to thwart his plan. Hazel catches Blaine in a lie and begins to suspect her of dirty dealing.

THIS WEEK: Tracy is filled with uncertainty. Kit's charade comes to a close. GUIDING LIGHT — Ben's ego is in sad shape and so is his relationship with Amanda. Ed tries to repair things with Rita but is Holly's goodbye really meant to be forever? Alan woos Hope while her family stands by helplessly.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW — Sunny can't live down her Vegas trip even though she was merely Beau's victim. Lee is being taunted and vamped by Sissy. Janet warns Ted about his involvement with Stephanie. THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS — Greg is confused and hurt as his world crumbles around him. Jonas and Les grow closer but Luke may cross their paths in a significant way. DOCTORS — Nola loses custody of Jessica to Mona and vows revenge. Vivica pleads with Luke for forgiveness but he is unmoved. Although she is tempted to run away with Jessica, Nola finally delivers Jessica to Mona's. Vivica pays Windsor off directly. Carl is in danger due to his mother's reluctance to have him operated on. THIS WEEK: Carl's mother takes her guidance from "above." Mona's victory may not be long lived. EDGE OF NIGHT — Draper succumbs to cabin fever and leaves home. With Emily he finds himself drawn to Monticello. Mike and Nancy welcome Nancy's nephew, the puppeteer. When Logan arrives at the hospital to pick up Jamie, he is upset to learn that Ravin has beat him to it.

THIS WEEK: Emily fears her happy home will be disrupted. Logan fights back. AS THE WORLD TURNS — James worries that Barbara will find out that he paid off her baby's adoptive parents. Brad goes back to work at the mine but he finds he is more preoccupied with Dee than with his silver. Dee continues to fight memories of Ian and that fateful night in Rome. Mary admits that Joyce did not push her, but her hatred for Joyce is as strong as ever. THIS WEEK: Time may be running out for James. Will Joan stand by as Brad moves in on Dee?

Woman will head new education department

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the day the E drops out of HEW; the day a no-nonsense woman becomes the first head of the new Department of Education. A product of pioneering stock, Shirley Hufstедler has pioneered herself in a dozen jobs. There are some who say there may be another first in her future — the Supreme Court.

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — She was "the girl next door" in some of correspondent Ernie Pyle's Americana columns in the '30s, but there is nothing ordinary in the assiduous life of Shirley Ann Mount Hufstедler. Salesgirl, ambulance dispatcher, secretary to movie stars, PTA mom, mountain climber, lawyer — she is the second woman in U.S. history to be a federal appeals court judge, could be the first to sit on the Supreme Court, but for now is the first Secretary of Education.

That newly created Cabinet post, which becomes official May 4 after several months of organizing the new department, puts her in charge of a $14-billion budget and up against some of the murkiest bureaucratic backwaters in Washington.

Her selection last Oct. 30 surprised some educators, who felt the job belonged by right to one of their own, and dismayed some admirers, who considered it a detour from a career path pointed to the Supreme Court.

On closer inspection, the choice was not as far out in left field as it first appeared.

Mrs. Hufstедler, 54, comes from a background steeped in education. Her late mother, Eva von Behren Mount, was a schoolmarm. She herself has taught English, shorthand and piano parttime and given graduate seminars to judges from around the globe.

She was the ultimate PTA mother, serving on local and state education panels. She was an active trustee at several colleges and universities, playing a key role in tightening Occidental College's tenure policy and prodding California Institute of Technology to hire women for its faculty.

Along the way, she out-totaled the Total Woman. A gourmet cook who has raised a son, she served as chief cook and bottle-washer for her family while practicing law out of a library in her Los Angeles home.

She advanced from writing other lawyers' briefs to a team of lawyers fighting for California in an epic battle with Arizona over water rights. In 1961, after Edmund G. Brown moved from the attorney general's office to the governor's mansion, he appointed her a Los Angeles County judge. In 1966, he named her a state appellate judge. And in 1968, President Lyndon Johnson tapped her for the federal appeals bench.

For recreation, she treks in the Himalayas. A practicing egalitarian, she memorizes snatches of Sherpa, Arabic and Chinese before venturing abroad in order "to say the polite things and show people you care enough about them and their culture to try."

On the bench, she was a vocal advocate for children. In 1973, when her colleagues on the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that San Francisco's schools did not have to teach English to 1,800 Chinese-speaking students, she dissented.

These students were "functionally deaf and mute," segregated by their classmates by language "as effectively as any physical bulwarks," she wrote.

She is not a card-carrying member of feminist groups. "I don't style myself as anything," she says. "I have always been a feminist in the sense I thought it was nonsense that women should do a particular set of occupations simply because they are women. That's characteristic of feminism. But I view myself much more as a person who cares about seeing each human being develop his or her personal potential completely."

In choosing law clerks, she looked for promising women, but strove not to discriminate against men. Most of her clerks were men.

Her husband, Seth, a prominent Los Angeles lawyer, says, "she's always thought women can do anything men can do, and sometimes better. She feels the women's movement can be fostered by high caliber performances by women in positions of power."

They met at Stanford Law School. Seth was graduated first in the class, Shirley was tenth. Two months later, they were honeymooning in a cabin in the High Sierras, studying for the bar exam. At the start, Seth's career came first.

She recalls, "I had an offer for a clerkship in the California Supreme Court. I decided not to take that because I know Seth wanted to practice in the Los Angeles area."

He became a partner in the firm of Beardsley, Hufstедler and Kemble. She free-lanced, became associated with her husband's firm, and also worked on her own, specializing as a lawyer for lawyers.

HEAD OF NEW DEPARTMENT. Shirley Hufstедler, the nation's first secretary of education, is shown holding a business meeting in her Washington office. Her newly created cabinet post, which becomes effective May 4, puts her in charge of a $14 billion budget and up against some of the murkiest bureaucratic backwaters in Washington. Among many distinctions, Ms. Hufstедler is the second woman in U.S. history to be a federal appeals court judge — and could be the first to sit on the Supreme Court.

New song blasts J. R.

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Villainous J.R. Ewing of "Dallas" is getting a dose of his own orneriness in a country music song titled "J.R."

Take this, J.R.: "You're rotten to the core." "You're just downright mean."

And there's no sympathy just because J.R. got shot recently. "You got what you deserve," the song says.

The song, recorded by B.J. Wright, was released two weeks ago and is shooting up the country music charts.

It even offers a confession to the nationwide guessing game over who blasted ol' J.R.

"I'll take the blame," the song says. Wright, 37, was a bass guitar player for country music veteran Hank Snow for 11 years until making a power play and striking out on his own two years ago. After some arm-twisting that would make J.R. proud, he toured with country music singers Loretta Lynn and Ferlin Husky.

"Everywhere you go, people are talking about J.R. Ewing," Wright said by telephone Thursday from his home in Portland, Tenn. "It was time for a song." He wrote it with Don Lee, Joe Meador and Dave Hall.

Wright, who occasionally wears a white hat like Ewing, has never met actor Larry Hagman, who portrays the oil-rich millionaire. But, he said, personnel at a Texas radio station played the song for Hagman.

New school head remembers old days

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Joseph Slash has a lot of changes during his life, especially since the days when he used to travel past all those white schools to get to his racially segregated classes.

Back then, in the late 1920s, who would have thought that a little Negro boy from a poor family would grow up and become Cabell County's superintendent of schools? Not Joe Slash, that's for sure.

"I've seen changes I never really thought would happen," the tall, slender man said during a recent interview. "In fact, I could hardly believe it when I was made an assistant superintendent."

In 1977, three years after he was named assistant superintendent, Slash became the first black man to ever head an integrated county school system in West Virginia.

He says he enjoys the challenge of running the system, which has nearly 20,000 children, most of whom are white. But, he admits that there are times when he wonders if he's dreaming.

"I was born in Parkersburg, back in 1919," he said, running a honey-colored hand through his thick, white hair. "My father, who worked as a laborer in a shovel plant, died when I was just a few weeks old and my mother brought us back home to Huntington."

Mrs. Slash and her five children moved in with her parents, in Guyandotte. She worked as a domestic in the homes of white families and her children went to an all-black, one-room school.

"The school only went to the fourth grade," recalls Slash as he lets his mind travel through time. "After that, we caught a bus down to Barnett School."

He rode the bus, along with about 30 other black children from the area, for eight years. After graduating from Douglass High School, where he was captain of the all-state football team as a senior, he went to Bluefield State College.

"Yes, I went on a football scholarship. That was the only way I could have gone to college."

After graduating cum laude, he returned to Huntington and married his childhood sweetheart, the former Clara Rose. He taught math at Douglass for the next few years and also helped coach the athletic teams fielded by the legendary Zelma Davis.

"Mr. Davis retired in 1956 and I was appointed head coach," he recalled. "I started football practice in the fall and had practiced for just a week when they made me the principal of Douglass."

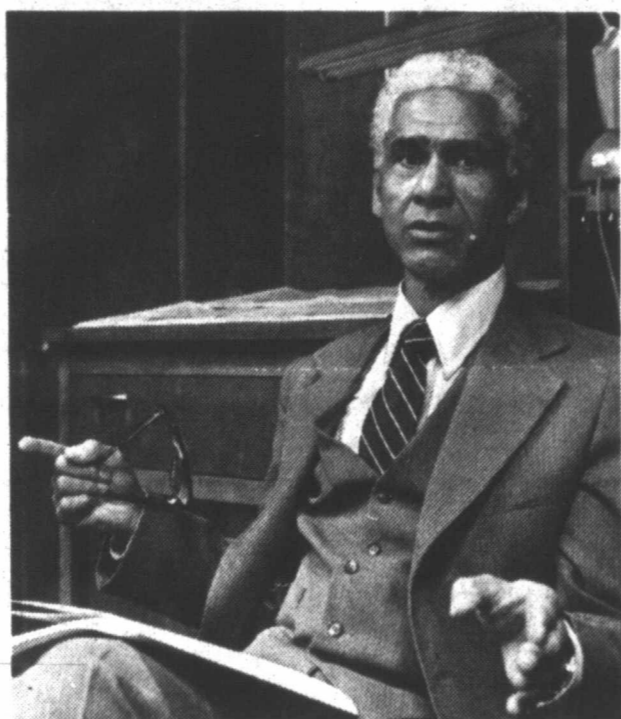

He held that position until 1961, when the school was phased out because of integration.

"My oldest son, Joseph Jr., was in that last graduating class at Douglass. He's the deputy mayor of Indianapolis now," Slash said.

It was during his years as a teacher at Douglass that Slash first entered one of the forbidden "white schools."

"I sponsored the student council at Douglass and the councils from all the schools met at Huntington High," he said. "I remember being very curious about what it would be like. I wanted to see how they kept their school, and I was interested in the attitudes of the students.

Slash got his master's degree at Marshall University in the early 1950s. When Douglass was phased out, he became the county's math coordinator. His two youngest children, John and Nellie, attended integrated schools.

JOSEPH SLASH, top man in the 19,500-pupil Cabell County school system, is the first black man to head an integrated school system in West Virginia. He says he can well remember the days he rode a special bus past all-white schools to attend segregated classes.

The lure of travel is likely to be very strong this coming year. Be alert for some unusual opportunities that would make this possible for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An opportunity to realize long-term benefits could be presented to you today. Even if you have to alter some previously made arrangements, take advantage of the situation. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An unexpected development could occur today in an area involving your work. Pass up fun and games and knuckle down. The rewards are worth it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be a lucky day for you to put together agreements large in scope. It looks as though each participant has something of value to offer the other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be alert for opportunities today which could mean something to you financially or where your status is concerned. You're fortunate in these two areas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's not likely you'll be deterred from what you set out to do today. Through the use of boldness and ingenuity, what you hope to achieve can be accomplished.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your nerves regarding new ways to make or save money should be needed today. You're on the right track, so get moving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to launch new projects or enterprises. Others anxious to see you succeed will be there if you need them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Set lofty goals today, and persist until they are attained. The harder you work, the luckier you become.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Situations could begin to develop at this time that will enable you to launch major plans earlier than you expected. Advance your timetable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Get in touch today with a friend who has been fortunate for you in the past. Your timing could be right, because this person might again have something good to offer you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Because of the imaginative, yet realistic, way you express yourself, you shouldn't have too much trouble today selling others on your ideas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although you may not have full cooperation today, you still are quite resourceful and should be able to achieve what you go after.

THE DOUBLE CHALLENGE as actress and producer is provided in the filming of "Private Benjamin." for former "Laugh-In" comic Goldie Hawn, shown here with French actor Armand Assante in Paris. "This picture has basically realized my validity," says Miss Hawn. The strong role she plays is tailored for her to draw on her own Jewish background. She also is getting her first chance to prove herself as a hard-headed businesswoman and budding movie mogul.

Goldie turns actress-producer

EDITOR'S NOTE — That girl with that infectious "Laugh-In" giggle, and an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, now a movie producer? It's true. Goldie Hawn is producing her first film — and starring in the movie, too.

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Her cupid

eyes roll, her face dances and mugs, she disarms by seeming so unaffected, then charms with roller-coaster cadences of capital letters, exclamations, marks, even song.

"You're KIDDING! Oh, I LOVE it, because I am THE, you know, people think, you know, that I am a SHIKSA!" which is Yiddish for a non-Jewish girl. "You know, the blonde hair and all that. But it's NOT SO! It just goes to show you," she sings, "you can't tell a book by its COVER... I AM coming out of the closet."

As much as she delights in this kind of self-parody, Goldie Hawn is no nonsense these days when it comes to her new movie, "Private Benjamin," the story of a Jewish-American woman who joins the U.S. Army for the kind of troubled personal reasons men used to join the French Foreign Legion.

For Miss Hawn, the film presents a double challenge: what she calls "a great role for a woman," tailored for her to draw on her own Jewish background, and her first chance to reveal herself as a businesswoman and film producer.

The $8-million production recently wound up shooting with a week in Paris, and Miss Hawn talked about her "evolution" from nightclub dancer to television's "Laugh-In," to an Academy Award supporting performance in her first film.

"Cactus Flower," to starring roles in "Shampoo," "Sugarland Express," "The Girl from Petrovka," "Foul Play," — and now, at 34, budding movie mogul.

She also talked about her happy marriage with television actor-singer Bill Hudson, how she aches when she's away from their two children, and about her future: Neil Simon's next film, "Seems Like Old Times," then maybe Chicago with Liza Minnelli and after that some more producing.

"Producing a movie is a wonderful step for me, but it's not something that I said, 'Well, I'm going to produce now,'" says Miss Hawn, relaxed in jeans and cowboy boots, even though her business sense was clearly uncomfortable in a $200-a-day suite hired only for a between-takes hair style and a snack of smoked salmon.

"It's something that happened because there is a lack of good material, there's a wish to do fine things, and so when I found something I loved I put myself on the line for it," she says.

Gatlin takes top country academies

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — On the eve of his 32nd birthday, Larry Gatlin picked up some of the nicest presents a country musician could ask for — three top awards from the Academy of Country Music.

Gatlin was named top male vocalist at the academy's 15th annual "Hat" awards ceremony Thursday night. His "Straight Ahead" won album of the year, and his "All the Gold in California" was the single record of the year.

Willie Nelson was named entertainer of the year, but he wasn't present, and actor Jan-Michael Vincent accepted the award for him. For the third time in four years, Crystal Gayle was named top female vocalist.

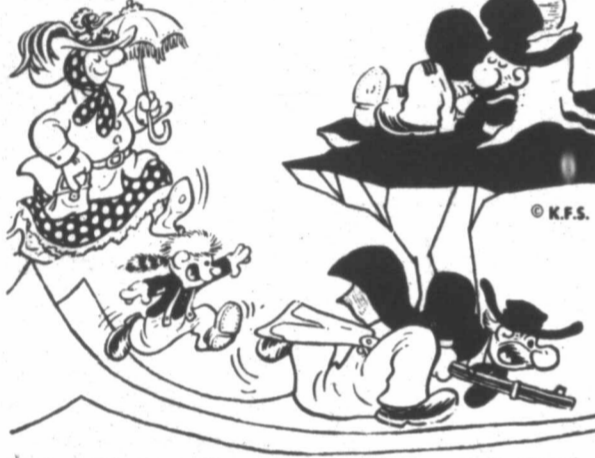

The night's only other multiple winner was Moe Bandy, who won song of the year for "It's a Cheatin' Situation" and shared top vocal group honors with bearded look-alike Joe Stampley.

Miss Gayle also took part in the presentation of a special artist of the decade award to her older sister, Loretta Lynn. The audience gave a standing ovation as the women's mother, Clara Butcher, joined them on stage to present Miss Lynn the plaque.

"The Electric Horseman," the Jane Fonda-Robert Redford film in which Nelson had a role and also supplied most of the music, was named country music movie of the year.

Pampa News expands comics

SNUFFY SMITH

Inserted in today's edition of the Pampa News is a larger format comic section, which will add seven new weekly comics.

In the new section are "Snuffy Smith," "Born Loser," "Alley Oop," "Priscilla's Pop," "Frank and Ernest," "Dick Tracy," and "Funky Winkerbean."

Due to the change, the Pampa News will no longer carry "Shoe," "Better Half" and "B.C."

Comics which will remain in the section are "Peanuts," "Blondie," "Beetle Bailey," "Steve Canyon," "Andy Capp," "Family Circus" and "Prince Valiant."

SOUND COUNTRY

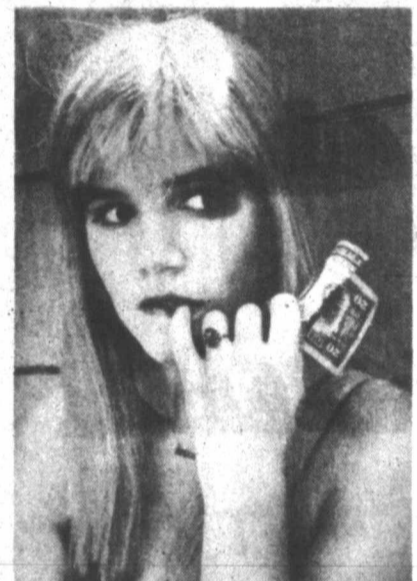

A major network development deal between NBC-TV and Wendy Holcombe was announced recently by Holcombe's manager, Top Billing Agency president, Tandy Rice. This agreement, according to Rice, "will result in Holcombe's integration into major network specials and variety shows. This is an incredible career door-opener, for a very talented young lady," continued Rice.

Since the death of country artist Red Sovine, many of our readers have inquired about Sovine's hit recordings, which are apparently in very few record stores. Sovine's hits, such as 'Teddy Bear,' 'Giddy Up Go,' 'Phantom 309,' plus his narrations and gospel recordings, are available from Twin Fork Music, P.O. Box 2, Bethpage, New York, 11714. All recordings are available on album, eight track and cassette.

JOHN RITTER SPECIAL

John Ritter (left) plays punk-rocker Nick Angeli, and it's up to WKRP's Howard Hesseman (right) to build a new image for him—as considerably more commercial 'Fabulous Nick'—in this sketch from 'John Ritter: Being of Sound Mind and Body,' the multi-talented young actor's first comedy special airing on ABC-TV SUNDAY, MAY 4.

THE MINNESOTA STRIP

Worlds that seem as alien to one another as different universes meet when Hal Holbrook and Michael Learned are reunited with their teenage daughter—now a teenage prostitute—Mare Winningham (pictured) in 'The Minnesota Strip,' a contemporary drama airing on ABC-TV's 'The ABC Monday Night Movie,' MONDAY, MAY 5.

THE MEMORY OF EVA RYKER

'The Memory of Eva Ryker,' starring Natalie Wood (pictured) as a woman haunted by her experience as a child aboard a sinking ocean liner which has rested for years at the bottom of the Atlantic will be broadcast as a special movie presentation WEDNESDAY, MAY 7 on CBS-TV.

Robert Foxworth, Ralph Bellamy, Bradford Dillman, Morgan Fairchild, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Peter Graves and Roddy McDowall also star in the suspenseful drama, which spans more than three decades. Miss Wood also plays Eva's mother, Claire, who went down with the luxury liner, the Queen Anne, which became the first British victim of Nazi U-boats in the early days of World War II.

KING KONG

King Kong, the huge ape that falls in love with a beautiful woman, is the central figure in 'King Kong,' an adventure drama that reaches its climax in a pitched battle atop a New York skyscraper. Dino De Laurentiis' film will be rebroadcast on NBC-TV THURSDAY, MAY 8 and FRIDAY, MAY 9.

SCULPTOR MIHAIL SIMEONOV raises his arms in victory after making casting molds of an elephant, on a ranch near Nairobi, Kenya. Behind him sprawls a five-ton wild elephant, drugged unconscious, with traces of molding paste still sticking to its hide. Mihail will cast the elephant in bronze. His aim is to cast about 10, sell each for $250,000, and donate the proceeds to conservation efforts. He sees the project as the pinnacle of a career devoted to monumental sculpture. (APN Illustration)

Live elephant mold model for sculpture

EDITOR'S NOTE — Gilding the lily is one thing, but bronzing a live, bull elephant? That's exactly what a Bulgarian-born sculptor has done in the name of conservation. Some say it's the most bizarre wildlife experiment in Kenya's 100 years of professional hunting.

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Some people cast their baby's shoes in bronze. Sculptor Mihail Simeonov thinks much bigger. He's casting a wild, five-ton bull elephant in bronze.

Mihail, a New Yorker born in Bulgaria, calls it art. His critics say the project is an expensive and unnecessary demonstration of anesthesia and foundry skill, with no artistic merit whatsoever.

The IRS says it's tax-free as long as Mihail gives the $2 million he expects to make to conservation efforts, as he has said.

The $100,000 project has been four years in the planning and within a few months the first life-sized bronzed casts will be available — yours for a quarter of a million apiece. But hurry, Mihail is only casting 10 and an Egyptian millionaire and a Saudi Arabian billionaire might grab off the first two.

The tough part, convincing the elephant through sedatives that this would make him immortal, has been accomplished. That hushed the first round of critics. They said Mihail was likely to kill the noble beast with his "birdbrain scheme."

The men placed salt licks near the $7 million ranch, owned by the Saudi, that served as headquarters. Eleven elephants came within range and 100 men, wives and reporters rode in the 11 vehicles, two light spotter planes circled overhead and a government helicopter hovered at treetop level to scare the elephants from some dense bush along a creek.

Once in the open, a bull elephant about 40 years old, the prime of an elephant's long life, was chosen. A government veterinarian fired a sedative dart and within a half-hour, the elephant dropped to his knees.

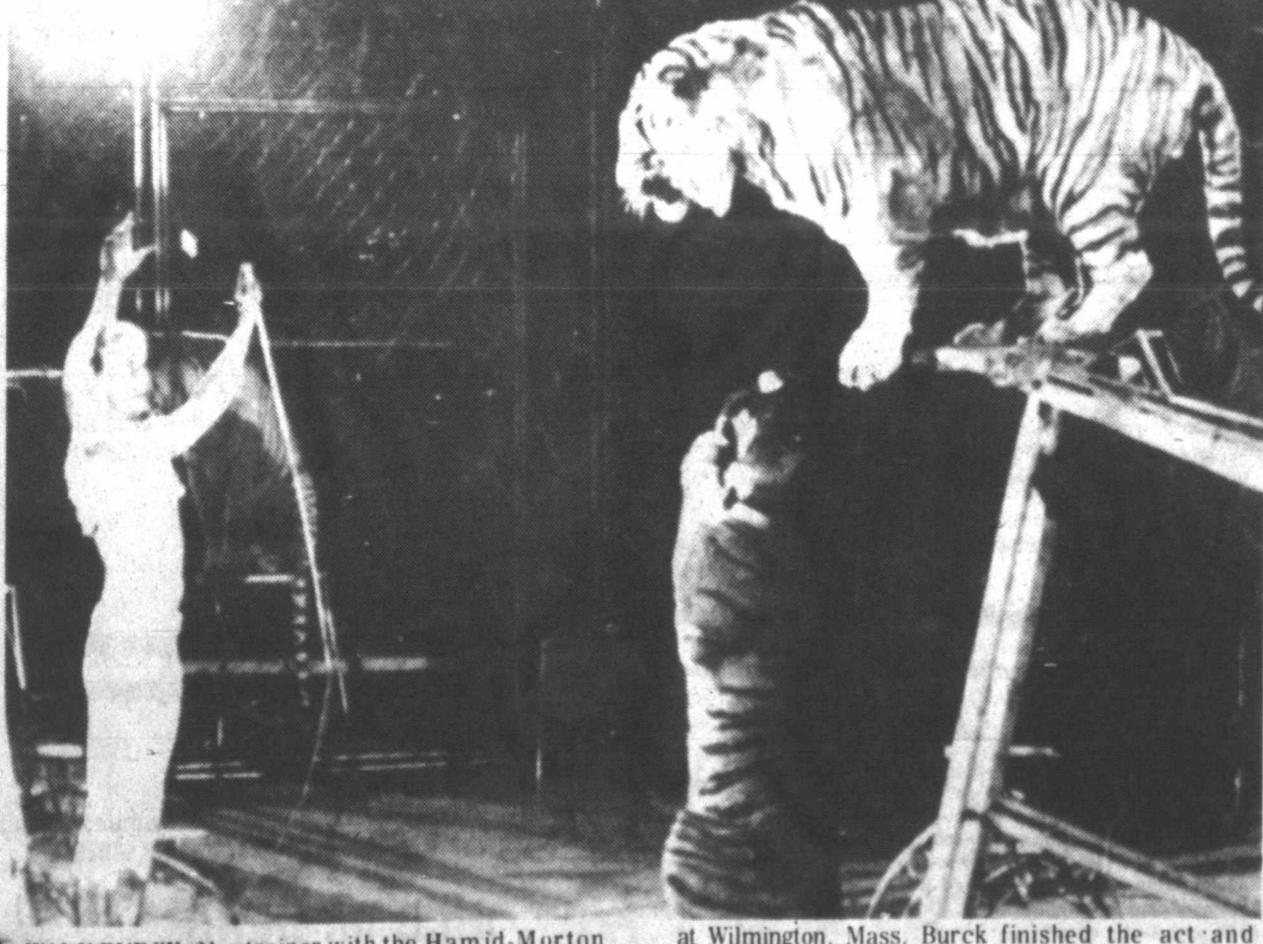

"Mr. Mihail, it's all yours," said the vet, Ishtaki Chawdry.

Men mixed water into a quick-setting molding powder — the kind a dentist uses to make impressions of teeth — and ran bucket relays of water to the beast. Mihail and his assistant slathered the white goo on the elephant.

After a few minutes, they peeled the compound off in numbered sections, still flexible but bearing all the wrinkles on the elephant's skin. Mihail made permanent plaster of Paris impressions later in the day and into these the bronze would be poured, back in his New York studio.

The elephant was out for more than two hours and the vet dosed him three times with sedatives and twice with stimulants to maintain a correct level of sedation.

"If that ear starts flicking, tell the men to get out of there," warned Ted Goss, head of Kenya's anti-poaching unit.

at Wilmington, Mass. Burck finished the act and then rushed to the health center for treatment of several deep lacerations, according to James Hamid, vice president of the circus. (AP Photo)

About Texas elections

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans who voted in Saturday's Democratic primary may sign nominating petitions for independent presidential candidate John Anderson, but those who voted in the Republican primary may not, a state election official said Saturday.

Anderson must obtain the signatures of 40,719 registered Texas voters by July 14 to get a place on the state's Nov. 3 general election ballot.

"Our ruling, in plain English, is that any registered, qualified voter can sign an Anderson petition except a voter who voted in this year's Republican primary," said Austin Bray.

Bray is staff attorney in the elections division of Secretary of State George Strake's office.

Strake is the state's chief election officer and as such, issues interpretations of the Texas Election Code.

Bray said the ruling was being given orally to persons who asked and there were no plans to issue a written opinion.

Bray said the difference in treatment of Democratic and Republican voters stems from the fact that the GOP held a binding presidential primary while the Democrats did not.

The GOP primary results will show up directly in the apportionment of Texas delegates to the party's presidential nominating convention. But the Democratic primary duel between President Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy is merely a "beauty contest" that has no effect on apportioning delegates.

Bray said the Democratic presidential poll "has as much force and effect as the question, 'Do you like apple pie?'"

His interpretation of the election code appears to differ from that of Garry Mauro, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party.

Mauro issued a news release Saturday that said, "voters participating in political party presidential primaries on May 3 are ineligible to sign petitions of an independent candidate for president."

Inflation affecting US science

HOUSTON (AP) — American leadership in scientific fields is ebbing away because of inflation and less funds devoted to research, according to the president of the National Academy of Sciences.

"The peoples of the world today spend $12 to $15 billions annually on fundamental research," Dr. Phillip Handler said Thursday at investiture ceremonies for University of Houston president Dr. Charles Bishop.

"And by now," Handler said, "the relative role of American science on the world scene has diminished considerably. We are perhaps one-third of the world total, albeit still the most productive one-third."

Handler said during the 1950s, American science was responsible for three-fourths of the world output and was successful in all disciplines.

He said Western Europe and Japan currently represent another one-third and with the Eastern European countries "represent a more or less equivalent third major bloc."

China, India and Brazil will become more significant in the scientific community in another decade or two, according to Handler.

He said America "must expect that, inevitably, American preeminence in world science must subside, not because we will do less well, but because we shall encounter ever more powerful competition."

Science in the United States is still at the forefront of all disciplines, Handler said, but added "we shall soon have to look to our laurels."

"If we continue as we have," he said, "each year, to devote an ever-decreasing fraction of our gross national product to research while other nations such as Japan, Germany, France and the Soviet Union continue to expand their capabilities, I can too easily imagine a scenario in which we congratulate ourselves on our current crop of Noble Prizes for yesterday's research while science elsewhere overtakes and, perhaps, surpasses ours."

Clements votes, predicts Reagan as the winner

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements cast his ballot in the Texas Republican primary Saturday, then predicted a big win for Ronald Reagan over challenger George Bush in the GOP presidential voting.

"All the polls available to me indicate that Gov. Reagan will win by a rather significant margin," Clements said. "I would anticipate 60-40 or something like that."

On a local issue, Clements also predicted former police chief Don Byrd would defeat incumbent Carl Thomas for the Dallas County GOP sheriff's nomination.

Clements, a Republican, lives in this wealthy Dallas suburb.
