Castro avoids demonstrations

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — After spending nearly 36 hours within the iron security of the Cuban mission, Fidel Castro emerged this morning and motored to the United Nations, where the General Assembly awaited his speech.

There were no demonstrators around the mission on East 38th Street as cars departed, first a decoy motorcade and then Castro's between 10:15 and 10:25 a.m. for the seven-block ride to the U.N. site along the East River.

Castro's arrival at the U.N. headquarters on New York City's east side by driving through a secured zone of five blocks between two areas set aside by police for demonstrators.

Anti-Castroites were permitted no closer than the 47th Street end of Dag Hammarskjold Plaza while supporters of the Cuban president were confined to a site five blocks south.

The plaza itself, after Castro was inside, was eerily quiet, with the sound of police helicopters carried away in the wind. The clomp of police-horse hooves carried and the clicks of police hand radios were the only other sounds.

Following his speech, reportedly on the economic rivalry between the world's rich and poor, Castro had a lunch date with U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry and 90 other dignitaries.

During Castro's scheduled 4½ hour U.N. visit, hundreds of America, Cuban and United Nations security men blanketed the East River headquarters and the surrounding streets, where pro- and anti-Castro groups were expected to gather. U.N. grounds were closed to the public today.

New York police boats patrolled the river to head off any incidents similar to the 1964 attack on Ernesto "Che" Guevara, Castro's industry minister. As Guevara addressed the General Assembly, anti-Castro Cubans fired a bazooka at the U.N. complex from across the water. The shell fell short and splashed harmlessly into the water. Guevara was killed in 1967 leading a revolutionary band in Bolivia.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim provided a presidential welcome for Castro, who made his first address to the General Assembly in 19 years. The bearded revolutionary spoke to the 152-nation body as Cuban head-of-state, and he was expected to concentrate on the non-aligned summit he hosted in Havana last month.

Castro told The Washington Post Thursday night his speech would deal with the "essential economic conflict between the developing and underdeveloped world."

"I'm going to defend human rights and the Third World and underdeveloped countries," he said in an interview.

Castro described relations among the non-aligned nations as "excellent," and said, "they're going to be even better," after his speech.

On U.S. concerns over the Soviet combat troops in Cuba, Castro said: "I'm not interested in the quarrel between Cuba and the United States. I've had lots of opportunities to talk about that."

Castro said President Carter's Oct. 1 speech about the Soviet brigade, "intended not to frighten Cuba, but to frighten the Caribbean, Central America and Latin America."

"His speech was forceful and imperialistic and it provoked a great fear among the Caribbean countries," Castro said.

He also told the newspaper that his trip to the United States would last "a minimum of five days and a maximum of 10. I'm not in a hurry."

Castro's staff told U.N. officials he will speak for about an hour, far less than the more than four-hour speech he made in 1960, which still stands as a U.N. record.

As chairman of the non-aligned movement, Castro tried unsuccessfully to steer the Third World nations into the Soviet camp at Havana. A slim majority, led by Yugoslavia's President Josip Broz Tito, the elder statesman of the movement, blocked the shift and pushed home a declaration setting the movement firmly on middle course between superpower politics.

In an airborne interview en route to the United States, the Cuban leader made light of Carter's plans to step up the U.S. military presence in the Caribbean and to stage a Marine landing at Guantanamo Bay, the U.S. Naval Base in Cuba, next week.

EPIFANIO P. TRUJILLO of New Mexico sits along State Highway 70 Thursday afternoon. He was waiting for Department of Public Safety officers to finish investigating an accident in which the cattle truck Trujillo was driving overturned after a tire blowout. DPS Trooper Steve Easterley said no citation would be issued to the truck driver, but that Weight Control officers would want to talk to the driver about the weight of his vehicle.

OUR GOAL

$182,537.00

United Way

PAMPA'S UNITED FUND reported $43,014.84 at the initial report meeting held at the First National Bank Thursday afternoon, accounting for 24 percent of its $182,537 goal for the 1980 needs of 13 human service agencies. The Major Firms Division, headed by Bill Loving, chalked up the largest dollar amount ($16,985), while Darville Orr and Reed Echols of the General Division attained the highest percent of their goal (45.9). All four divisions reported $6,125 over 1978 donations for the same date.

Dollar hits highest point

By The Associated Press

The U.S. dollar climbed to its highest point of the year against the Japanese yen today as interest rates continued to rise sharply. Stock prices opened higher as activity on Wall Street continued to calm after a wild slide early in the week.

The dollar rose in Tokyo to 226 85 yen, up from 225 90 the day before, and it also strengthened against other major currencies. The Japanese economy is being buffeted by a wave of inflation brought on in part by higher oil prices.

The U.S. Treasury Department on Thursday sold long-term bonds with a yield of more than 10 percent for the first time ever. The bonds, which mature in 15 years and one month, brought an average yield of 10.17 percent.

The higher interest rates and stronger dollar stem directly from the Federal Reserve Board's decision last weekend to tighten credit, an action that sent the stock market into a deep decline.

Stock prices were up today after showing signs of stabilizing on Thursday, when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 4.70 to 844.62, bringing the week's loss to 52.99 points. Advancing issues led decliners on the New York Stock Exchange.

The price of gold, which has been gyrating wildly in recent weeks, dropped below $390 an ounce in London and Zurich today.

In Hot Springs, W. Va., the Business Council, a prestigious group of corporate executives, released their annual forecast of the economy, predicting the recession will see a decline in economic outlook of about 2 percent by March 1980. That would make the recession about half as bad as the 1974-75 downturn.

County approves museum request

Gray County Commissioners Court approved $3,000 for the McLean-Alanreed Museum to be used over the next two years for improvements in its meeting Friday morning.

Mrs. Vera Back of the museum told the commissioners the money was needed to touch up new displays in the museum as well as to pay a regular employee there.

She added that prices have gone up for the museum's upkeep, but volunteers want to keep the 10-year-old museum open.

The court also approved a 60-day time deposit of $16,000 for the Social Security account and four transfers to the road and bridge accounts of $15,000 each.

Commissioners approved a resolution that equipment and funds donated by the Hospital Auxiliary of Highland General Hospital would be moved to the new hospital once it is built, but only at the discretion of the auxiliary. They had requested by letter that the court decide how such donations, which have totaled $41,619 since 1969, should be disposed of.

At press time the court had four major items to discuss, including the 1980 budget, improvements and repairs to the Perry-Lefors Airport, the treasurer's report and the final minutes of the Board of Equalization.

Weather

Pampa's weather forecast calls for mostly fair skies through Saturday, with temperatures turning cooler tonight and Saturday. Today's high was expected to be in the mid-80s and tonight's low in the mid-40s. Saturday's high should be in the low 70s. Winds will be out of the north at 10-15 mph today and turn to the northeast tonight. Thursday's high temperature was 92 and the overnight low was 51.

Rodeo officers elected

Archie Maness was elected president of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association for 1980 at its meeting Thursday night. Joe Wheeley was elected first vice-president, Bob Schiffman second vice-president, Adell Myers treasurer and Floyd Sackett secretary. All five men will serve one-year terms.

Rabies clinic this weekend

Special rates on rabies vaccinations will be in effect at three local veterinary clinics this weekend.

The Roysse, Hendrick and Horne veterinary clinics will be open from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday with a reduced rate of $5 per animal on rabies vaccinations. The rate will apply to both cats and dogs.

Distemper boosters will also be available for pets at the regular rate of $11.50.

Local veterinarians are urging Pampa residents to have their pets vaccinated in the wake of finding a rabid skunk dead within the city limits three weeks ago.

McCathern attempts to change 'radical' image

By MELANIE MILLER
Of The Pampa News

Gerald McCathern is known in the Texas Panhandle for his prominent involvement in the American Agriculture Movement, a group he says some people claim is "radical."

He's working hard to change that label — not only for the AAM, but for himself as well.

McCathern declared his candidacy for the District 31 State Senate seat Sept. 19. He admits that's early, especially since the election is over a year away. But he says with no political base to work from (the AAM does not endorse political candidates) he's got to "get out and meet the people."

He spoke to the Top of Texas Democratic Club Thursday night and confessed to the small crowd that most people probably associate him with the agriculture movement.

But he said without the AAM, he probably never would have gotten into politics.

"I got a tremendous education from it — when we were in Washington last winter, we talked to the president, the Secretary of Agriculture and practically every congressman," he said. "They tried to tell us we were wrong and we knew we weren't."

"I also have a background in oil and gas — I've got a degree in petroleum geology — and I think the senator from this district needs to be well versed in that as well as in agriculture," McCathern said. "I want people to know I'm not a one-issue candidate."

He is a native of this area and has farmed and ranched near Hereford for almost 30 years. He served in the Air Force during World War II and graduated from Texas Tech on the G.I. Bill. He and his wife, Bonnie, have three children.

McCathern wants to change the impression legislators from other parts of Texas have of the Panhandle. He says most state senators, especially those from large urban areas such as Houston or Dallas, do not understand this area or its needs.

"They're not really concerned about us up here because no one has explained what it's really like to them," McCathern said. "A lot of them have never even been to this part of the state. They may vote against bills favoring our district simply because they don't see the need for them."

He adds that District 31 produces 22½ percent of all agriculture commodity sales for the entire state, a total of $1.5 billion — and a total larger than any other Texas district. Also, the sixth largest oil producing county is in this district, he said.

"Many people don't realize how much money or how much of the state economy is in this district," McCathern said.

The biggest issues he sees for this district are tax relief, water storage, state rights and freedoms and education.

"We've got to get a handle on taxation, especially taxes on schools and education," McCathern said. "The burden is on local taxpayers for education, but with such large revenues from state-owned oil and gas wells, I'd like to see that income used for education. At least we should look into it."

He believes unless the situation is remedied soon, this area will have a "tremendous" water problem. Water storage is needed before any water importing can begin, McCathern said.

"We need to begin building dams to store water now even if there's no flooding problem — they've done that further down state in Dallas and Houston," he explained. "A watershed storage project will be needed in this area eventually anyway."

McCathern sees another problem for this area as well as for the state — too many laws and regulations, especially on the federal level.

"We need to do some streamlining of the state government," he said. "Plus, we've given a lot of state right to the federal government — look at the oil situation where someone in Philadelphia gets Texas oil cheaper than we do here. Does the federal government have the right to do that?"

Gourmet booth offers specialties

Fast-food families who miss the savory taste of homemade goodies are in for a treat this weekend during the Pampa Fine Arts Association's two-day festival.

A gourmet booth is included in the list of attractions for the arts and crafts show.

"Gourmet cooking is anything that's cooked well," says Mamie Maguire, who is co-chairman of the booth.

"The idea of the gourmet booth is that each member of the Pampa Fine Arts Association is asked to contribute a specialty," she says. "Bread, for instance, is a good seller."

Mrs. Maguire and her co-chairman, Pat Kindle, have been telephoning association members to find out who will contribute homemade items for the booth. It's been a big job — almost 200 members are expected to contribute, but that's only about two-thirds of the whole membership.

Homemade baked goods, relishes, pickles, preserves and jellies, fresh garden produce, sweet breads and pies will be up for sale during the show, which is from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Also on sale will be candy and other items, made by members of the Altrusa Club of Pampa and Twentieth Century Allegro.

Some of the contributors include the recipe with the sale item, says Mrs. Maguire, but others prefer to keep the ingredients and proportions of their specialty a secret.

And women aren't the only ones who do the cooking; several men usually take a turn in the kitchen to display their culinary skills, while some of their wives are displaying artistic talents at the show.

The gourmet booth has been a feature of the Fine Arts Festival since the association sponsored the first one 13 years ago.

"It started out as helping to offset the festival expenses," says Mrs. Maguire, who explains that proceeds still are channeled for the same purpose.

"This gives all of the members a chance to participate in the festival," she says. "And Pampa has some mighty fine cooks, I tell you."

The coordinators of this year's booth are quite experienced in the kitchen, since both are homemakers and mothers. Mrs. Maguire, who served as booth chairman last year, says she still gives Louisiana cajun cooking a whirl and is on what she calls "the hunters' lists" for quail and dove during season.

PAT KINDLE, left, and Mamie Maguire, co-chairmen of the Gourmet Booth, look over their telephone lists for possible contributors of homemade goodies, which will be on sale this weekend during the two-day Fine Arts Festival.

Festival features something to interest all

The entire family will have a chance to participate this weekend during the Pampa Fine Arts Festival, a two-day event open to the public.

The festival, which will be in the Heritage Room of M. K. Brown Auditorium, will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Children will be able to show off their artistic abilities during the Kaleidoscope event on Saturday. A gourmet booth, featuring home-made and home-grown items for sale, will be set up throughout the festival.

James Ivey Edwards, an art instructor at Clarendon College, will be one of the featured artists at this year's show. He will give an art demonstration in the Green Room at 2 p.m. Saturday.

One of his paintings, entitled "The Challenge", will be given away Sunday at 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, the festival is in its 13th year of presenting artists to the general public. More than 70 exhibitors from Pampa, the local area, other parts of Texas, and several other states annually gather to display their talents.

Represented will be artists who work with oils, watercolors, pastels, pen and ink, acrylics, and pencils. Sculptors, weavers and potters will be there, as well as those who specialize in ceramics, jewelry, copper enameling, lapidary products, needlecraft, nail mosaics, china painting, stained glass, and wood lathing.

The Pampa Fine Arts Association, founded in 1966, raises a major part of its funds from the festival. The association supports the Storybook Players, a Pampa High School acting group which puts on productions in the elementary schools.

The fine arts group, which honors a Pampa artist as Artist of the Year, also presents a $500 scholarship to a PHS senior planning to study toward an art career. The organization sets up workshops for adults and youths and coordinates gallery shows presenting guests artists.

Out-of-state exhibitors to display talents at show

A number of artists and craftsmen are traveling from other states to display their talents this weekend during the Pampa Fine Arts Festival.

Oklahoma has the largest number of out-of-state exhibitors, including Ida Bell Bednor and Ron Mitchell from Oklahoma City; Katy Kay Bonner from Garber; Toni Dilldine and Gerry Linker from Tulsa; Carol Dunham from Lawton;

Jim Horton of Broken Arrow; Laura Mitchell of Woodward; Betty Morgan of Crescent; LeRoy Schultz of Weatherford; Cheryl Scott of Guyton; Arturo Cruet of Norman; and David Greer of Prague.

Shirley Jungebluth of New Mexico will also be at the festival.

Kansas artists include Ray Babb, Vernon Brack, Robert Carder, Harold Dougherty, Connie Friesen and Debbie Pierce of Liberal; and the Parman brothers from Johnson.

Altrusa Club honors girls of month

September and October Girls of the Month were introduced Monday at a luncheon meeting of Altrusa Club of Pampa.

Renabelle Anderson introduced the honorees, Mary Skoog and Teresa Baxter.

New members of the group are Jerri Jones, Emily Washington, Renee Brown, Vanessa Buzzard, Katrina Bigham and Peggy Palmittier.

Glyndene Shelton completed the work schedule for the Altrusa candy booth at the Fine Arts Festival this weekend. Virginia Wilkerson, membership-classification chairman, presented three recommendations for membership.

Marian Stroup, chairman of Reading Is Fun (RIF), announced plans for final distribution of the contract, to be Oct. 17 at Lamar and Baker elementary schools.

A program on Grants in Aid, an international service project, was given by Evelyn Mason. The service provides emergency funds to graduate women studying in countries with Altrusa clubs.

Conducting the meeting was Mary McDaniel, president. Forty-three club members and three guests attended.

The next meeting will be Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn. Six new members will be initiated. The Altrusa information committee will be in charge of the program.

DR. LAMB

Family history plays role

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband died after having angina pectoris and enlargement of the heart. He had this five years beginning when he was only 46. His mother died of heart attacks and his grandfather and one aunt and a cousin. Now our son is 35 years old and I worry about him inheriting this same thing. He is so like his father in looks and character. Is this an inherited trait?

DEAR READER — You're wise to be concerned. There is an inherited tendency to have heart trouble early in life. With such a family history, all family members should be evaluated for blood fats and cholesterol and blood pressure. If any of these is out of line, it's important to follow a preventive program.

Heart attacks are one of the leading causes of death in young men in the United States. The likelihood of heart attacks increases markedly after age 35, although they can occur even before that age.

I've heard people comment that a preventive program didn't help a person if he died from a heart attack in his middle 50s. However, if he comes from a family with a history of dying from heart disease in their middle 40s, living 10 years beyond his inherited characteristics is pretty good.

If your son checks out well on a medical examination — has a low normal cholesterol, doesn't smoke and has normal or low normal blood pressure — his outlook is quite good. If any of these is altered, appropriate measures should be taken to bring them to optimal levels if possible.

You'll want to know more about the factors that determine his risk so I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-2, How To Measure Your Risk Of Heart Disease. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. ## TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 19-year-old girl who has an alcoholic father who never allows me to go anywhere. On top of that, I'm always working around the house doing all the cooking, dishes, washing the clothes and cleaning.

If I walk out of the house my dad gets upset because he thinks some guy might look at me.

I still don't have a job and don't know when I will get one with the way things are at home.

I have a chance to get out of the house and live with an aunt in another city but I don't know if I should. Please give me some guidance. — Carrie, Windsor, Ontario, Canada

Carrie: It's about time you tried to fly on your own. Yes, move in with your aunt and look for a challenging job.

But don't forget your parents. Keep in close contact with them by letter, phone and whenever possible, visit them.

Dr. Wallace: While in high school, I dated a certain girl for over two years and we planned to get married after graduation.

We didn't set a date but we decided to wait until she completed one year of college.

Well, after the one year was up, she told me that she decided that she no longer wanted to get married and that she couldn't be happy with me.

This came as a big shock to me because I thought everything was just fine. Needless to say, I was very hurt and there was nothing I could do to change her mind.

She did say that she still wanted to be friends but every time I call her or ask her to go somewhere, she says she is busy.

— Steve, Mt. Pleasant, Texas

Steve: Stop torturing yourself. It's over, even the friendship. Almost always the two people involved in this type situation never remain friends. It just doesn't work out that way.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old divorcee with a 10-year-old son. I desperately want another child. I have noticed that in the last few years more single women are having and keeping their babies. I know I could manage another child myself. I have been the sole support of my son, who is a happy, well-adjusted child despite having no father in his life. I have saved enough money, so another child will not be a financial burden.

My problem is my family. I'm sure they wouldn't approve of the idea, and I hate to hurt them. But I am not getting any younger, and if I don't have another child within the next couple of years it will be too late.

Also, I do not have a special man in mind to father my child, but there are several who would do me the favor. I don't want to marry again, and I have made that plain.

I'm sure my family will think I got "caught" because the idea of having a baby outside marriage would be totally unacceptable to them. I hate to embarrass them.

I just know that I desperately want another child. Please advise me.

But who pays for them? YOU DO! I would guess that about one out of every 10 shoppers has been guilty of the above, at least occasionally.

So, the next time you go marketing, please put those unwanted items back where they belong, and help keep prices down. And it might not be a bad idea for grocery store managers to post this on the cash register. It may help.

FOR LOWER PRICES

DEAR FOR: It may NOT help. But it can't hurt.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

LONGING FOR MOTHERHOOD

DEAR LONGING: A woman sufficiently mature to handle single parenthood, as you insist you are, would not (a) seek my advice or (b) need her parents' approval. If I were you, I would scrap the idea.

FRIENDLY ARGUMENT

DEAR FRIENDLY: Whether or not a male doctor has a nurse present while examining a female patient is up to the doctor, the patient, or both. If there is a state law setting a different standard, I would be surprised.

DEAR ABBY: This letter may be of interest to those who are constantly complaining about rising food costs. I am a clerk in a chain grocery. Yesterday I spent three hours picking up items off shelves where they didn't belong, because somebody decided they didn't want them after all and just put them down any old place.

Now just who do you think is paying me for three hours labor to do this? You—the consumer, that's who!

All right, forget the wages. Let's talk about the TV dinner someone left in the cereal aisle. When found, it was partially thawed out and not fit for resale. Or the carton of milk that was left standing out of the cooler for half a day. Or the cellophane-wrapped pork chops someone had put on top of the spices. These items are spoiled and must be thrown out.

'Shepherd One' glamor plane

NEW YORK (AP) — Confetti found blowing in the wind along the papal path of John Paul II in Dublin, Drogheda, Galway, Knock, Limerick, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Cumming, Iowa, Chicago and Washington.

— Lacquered up in the brightest red like a lady's fingernails to catch the ever-present TV lights, the TWA Boeing 727 that jetted the pope around the country was officially dubbed "Shepherd One" in black letters on the nose and carried the papal seal over the door. The two identical press planes that followed in its wake were nicknamed "Wolf One" and "Wolf Two."

— Politicians will be politicians, even in the papal presence. Boston Mayor Kev White's biography, as handed out on the garage under the Boston Common that served as a press room, ran to 15 1/2 pages. The Pope's biography, as distributed by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, which organized his tour of the United States, covered five pages.

— Could it be that the Holy Father already has grown as weary of "Stolat, Stolat" (May you live 100 years) as Harry S. Truman did of the Missouri waltz? At one point in his peregrinations — it could have been Chicago or Philadelphia, by this time all the days tumble down to a confused blur for those of us who made the trip — he complained "it has become a national hymn" and instead led the crowds in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

— Besides the eminent cardinals, red-robed bishops and usual retinue of monsignori, priests and altar boys, the papal procession always included at least two young men in dark suits carrying tiny suitcases. These were neither the Vatican photographers nor the Vatican physicians. They were Secret Servicemen with break-down shotguns in event of a terrorist incident. TV pope-watchers probably also noticed the Oldsmobile station wagon, banked with flowers in the back seat or sometimes seemingly piled high with suitcases, which was always placed third in the papal motorcade, just after the open Secret Service car with running boards riding right behind the Pope's open-top limousine. This is the "battle wagon," loaded with all kinds of automatic weapons and tear gas and a key component in the security picture of every high ranked foreign visitor.

— Arriving in his papemobile from the vicinity of the right field bull pen, the Pope came into Yankee Stadium to a tumultuous ovation that out-decibeled any relief pitcher being golf-carted to the mound with the bases loaded in a World Series game. Up in the press box, one of papal scribes was moved to remark: "Seeing this crowd on a weekday night, George Steinbrenner's on the phone right now offering the College of Cardinals Bobbie Murcer, Reggie Jackson and two players to be named later for Karol Wojtyla."

— One of the Pharisees peddling papal pennants to the crowds in the upper deck said he was the first stadium superstar since Mickey Mantle whose opening words weren't "play me or trade me."

TEXAS

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Officials were unsure at first what to do about a driverless car that was running in circles backward, bouncing over curbs, smashing mailboxes, knocking over trash cans and scattering garbage.

They rejected as too risky a suggestion to shoot out the tires. Finally, an emergency medical technician dived into the speeding car through the passenger door and turned off the engine. No one was hurt.

The owner had been outside the car repairing the ignition just before the incident. It worked.

HOUSTON (AP) — NASA officials are "uncertain" about the whereabouts of nearly 25 pounds of moon rocks, the chief auditor at Johnson Space Center says.

Claude Lynch said Thursday that officials at Johnson Space Center "do not know what quantity of lunar material was brought back." Lynch was told last week to retire or transfer after his office charged that irregularities were found in an audit of the lunar material.

In a memorandum to NASA's inspector general, Eldon Taylor, Lynch said one of his auditors was told that an individual in the building where the moon rock is stored was stealing samples of it.

He said the theft had been reported to a NASA inspector, but no investigation was being made because the inspector didn't believe the report.

Lynch wrote to Taylor in Washington, D.C., after NASA officials said only 17 ounces of the moon rock is unaccounted for.

TEXAS

NORMANGEE, Texas (AP) — Five suspects were being held today on armed robbery charges in connection with the holdup of a Normangee bank in which masked bandits escaped with $96,000.

Four bandits, wearing nylon stockings over their faces, entered the Normangee State Bank Thursday, according to Centerville police. After herding employees into a vault, the robbers fled in two vehicles, investigators said.

An bank officer who hid in an office during the robbery telephoned authorities shortly after the holdup.

Central Texas authorities caught the suspects at a roadblock near Bryan several hours after the holdup. Officers said they recovered the money taken in the robbery.

Justice of the Peace T.R. Rodell ordered the five held under $50,000 bond each on armed robbery charges. They were identified as Jesse Noble, 22; Theotis Stephens, 22; John Lee Moore, 26; Larry Harrison, 25; and Tommy Banks, 27.

Farm population decline may be ending report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government analysis of 1978 census figures shows the general trend downward in the U.S. farm population may be ending after more than 60 years of decline.

The report, a joint effort by the departments of Commerce and Agriculture, said 1978 census figures are "not significantly different" from the 1977 farm population.

"It is possible that this finding could be a signal that the long-term decline in farm population has finally come to an end," the report said.

"But, if so, it will require data for several additional years to confirm such a finding."

Annual farm census figures peaked at about 32.5 million persons in 1916, when one in about every three Americans lived on farms.

The total farm population did not decline every year since 1916, but the trend was generally down. In the depression years of the 1930s, for example, the farm population increased, rising from about 29.4 million in 1930 to 31.2 million in 1933.

By 1936, however, it had dropped back to 30.4 million and 20 years later, in 1956, fell to 18.7 million, according to USDA records.

One complication in reciting current farm population figures is the government's change in the definition of a farm. Previously, a farm was a unit of 10 acres or more if it sold at least $50 worth of products a year, or one of less than 10 acres if marketings were at least $250 annually.

The new method defines a farm as a unit that markets at least $1,000 worth of products a year.

Thus, by the new definition, the new report said there were slightly more than 6.5 million persons living on farms, on the average, in 1978.

By the previous definition, the farm population would have been slightly more than 8 million persons, it said.

The 6.5 million people listed officially as living on farms represent 3 percent of the nation's total population last year of about 218 million, the report said.

"The farm share ... has declined fairly steadily for more than half a century," the report said.

In 1920, 30 percent of the U.S. population still lived on farms. By 1950, the proportion had dropped to 15 percent, and by 1970 to 5 percent.

Some other observations included in the report, "Farm Population of the United States: 1978," included:

—Farm men outnumbered farm women by a ratio of 109 to 100 in 1978, compared to 93 men for every 100 women in the nonfarm population.

The report said the disparity "is most pronounced in the late teens and early 20's and again after age 60, when women have the highest probabilities of being single and widowed."

—The farm population has a higher proportion of white people than the nonfarm group, and "a lower proportion of blacks and persons of Spanish origin."

—Unemployment rates "continue to be low" in the farm population, averaging 2.2 percent of those in the labor force living on farms last year, compared to 6.5 percent for the nonfarm sector.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foot-and-mouth disease has not infected U.S. livestock in half a century, but the Agriculture Department wants to have an ample supply of vaccine in case the disease breaks out again.

The department said Thursday it will buy $1 million worth of vaccine from a West German company, Bayer Laboratories, Cologne. The contract calls for 6 million doses of vaccine over the next two years.

Bayer will produce antigen, the basic ingredient of the vaccine, and will store it for the department. Officials said antigen can be stored much longer than the vaccine itself.

Foot-and-mouth disease, known as FMD among the specialists, was last detected in the United States in 1929. But it is prevalent throughout much of the world, including Europe, Africa and South America.

Carter sticking with game plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — In football, a team that sticks with its game plan under pressure has a better chance of winning than one that changes signals. In politics, that's what President Carter has decided to do in the face of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge.

After soulful deliberation, the White House and the Carter-Mondale Committee announced last week that Carter will make his presidential announcement on Dec. 4, more than two weeks after his first showdown with Kennedy.

This was a deliberate decision to wait for their own time instead of announcing early in reaction to the inroads of the Kennedy draft movement in Florida.

Although Kennedy is not a candidate, his boosters have mounted a highly active and professional campaign in Florida, where caucuses Saturday will begin the first test of the 1980 presidential nomination battle.

Delegates chosen in the caucuses will go to a state convention in St. Petersburg, where they will cast straw ballots Nov. 18 for their presidential favorites.

The vote will have no official meaning whatsoever because Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention won't be chosen or committed until the primary next March.

But if Kennedy, who already leads Carter in public opinion polls, should defeat him even in a non-binding preference vote in Florida, it could cripple the president for the early primaries next year.

Nevertheless, Carter chose to stick to his plan, and for these reasons:

—Although obviously concerned, he is not all that unsure about Florida.

—Rushing an announcement to boost his cause in Florida would have been an obvious sign of panic and could have done more harm than good.

—And Carter still thinks his best chance of a political recovery lies in his doing well in Washington this fall. Any overtly political turn to his presidential role might have endangered legislative successes that he hopes will help him later.

—And the game plan makes sense, a campaign official said. "There was a reason for it. For one thing, we want the president to run on his record, and we want the record to be as good as possible."

"We don't want to distract him from his legislative program for the next month or six weeks," the official said. "Right now, things are going better on the Hill."

In his news conference Tuesday, Carter confirmed this strategy, saying the December date is "late enough to give me a chance to do what I can with this year's Congress," but in time to meet the primary filing deadlines.

TEXAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee approved Thursday a plan to spend $8 million for the McFaddin Ranch on the Texas coast for use as a national wildlife refuge.

The 42,000-acre ranch southwest of Port Arthur was purchased earlier this year by the Nature Conservancy, a non-profit organization, with the plan to turn it over to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at cost.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said after the Senate Appropriations Committee vote. "This ranch... is ecologically quite significant and is ideally suited for its intended use as a wildlife refuge."

The funds if approved by Congress would come from the Migratory Bird Conservation Account in the 1980 fiscal year.

Timely purchase by the government would mean substantial savings to the taxpayer since the interest rate on the purchase note is 14 percent," Bentsen said. "In addition to being a very important feeding and wintering site for waterfowl from the Central Flyway, the area supports 13 endangered or threatened animal species."

Texas Gov. Bill Clements had signed a certificate to allow the migratory bird account's use for the planned wildlife refuge.

The McFaddin Ranch borders Sea Rim State Park and the Gulf of Mexico.

The Trade Route Wasn't There
Christopher Columbus, who first landed in the Western Hemisphere on October 12, 1492, changed the course of history by failing to accomplish his most important goal. Altogether, Columbus made four voyages to the New World, financed by the king and queen of Spain. He believed that by sailing west across the Atlantic, he could establish a new trade route to India. Columbus never got to India, but his voyages were the first to bring Europeans into lasting contact with the Americas. On his last voyage in 1502, Columbus was still searching for a waterway through Central America, and the Indian trade route he would never find.
