OUR GOAL

$182,537

THE PAMPA UNITED FUND hit 47.8 percent of its goal at Thursday afternoon's report meeting. A total of $87,144.50 had been pledged by day's end, just short of the 50 percent mark sought for the campaign's midway point. The highest employee average to date was chalked up by Southwestern Bell with more than $100 per capita per donor. A third report meeting is scheduled for next Thursday.

Recession controversy continues

Economy rebounds from slump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy rebounded from a second-quarter slump to grow at an annual rate of 2.4 percent from July through September, the government reported today.

The figure from the Commerce Department was stronger than expected and added new fuel to the controversy about whether the nation's seventh recession since World War II was under way.

Much of the growth was attributed to a surge in sales, which had suffered from April through June because gasoline lines inhibited shopping and a shortage of crude oil depressed trade, said a Commerce analyst who asked not to be identified.

The third-quarter growth, which some analysts say could be a temporary plateau before the nation's output again turns down, followed a second-quarter decline of 2.3 percent at an annual rate.

Had the third-quarter figure also shown a drop, the statistics would have lined up well with the traditional definition of a recession: two consecutive quarters of declining output.

The third-quarter growth figure was the strongest so far this year, though still weaker than the 3.5 percent expansion in the third quarter of 1978.

And it occurred, in good part, because Americans saved a mere 4.1 percent of their earnings—the lowest savings rate in more than 25 years, Commerce analyst Adren Cooper said.

Is the economy in recession?

"We don't know from this," Cooper said. "If you look at the figures, gross national product is back almost to the level of the first quarter."

Inflation adjusted gross national product stood at $1.43 trillion, about $2 million higher than the first quarter level, the report showed.

Consumer purchases from July through September rose 1.1 percent to $924.8 billion, more than recovering from the 0.7 percent decline of the previous quarter, the report indicated.

Trade surged 47 percent to $19.4 billion, again more than making up for the 22 percent drop in the second quarter.

Although the report indicates that inflation slowed from an annual rate of 9.3 percent in the first two quarters of the year to 8.4 percent in the third quarter, the income of Americans suffered.

Income adjusted for both inflation and taxes was down 0.3 percent in the third quarter to $990.3 billion. It had fallen 0.4 percent in the preceding quarter.

"Real income is down, yet there's a strong recovery in consumer spending," Cooper noted. "Consumers didn't save. They just spent most of their money."

Before adjustment for inflation, the value of the nation's goods and services stood at an annual $2.39 trillion in the third quarter, up at an 11 percent annual rate from the second quarter.

The statistics are likely to heighten, rather than depress, debate over whether there is a recession.

Many experts, including Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, argue that the July-September data is a "false signal" and that the economy remains in "a recessionary mode."

Others, including Walter E. Hoadley, chief economist of the nation's largest bank, the Bank of America, say the real decline may still be ahead.

Hoadley told a gathering Thursday that, "If the third quarter is positive, we're not in it (a recession) and haven't been in it but we have been doing a lot of worrying about it."

But pinpointing the start of a recession is an academic nicety.

There is little debate among analysts that the nation is in its seventh recession since World War II.

Whether it started in March or in October, analysts in and out of government say that by the end of the year business activity will have slowed dramatically.

$1.2 billion emergency energy aid would pay poor's heat bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suddenly, members of Congress can't wait to spend over $1 billion to help the poor pay their heating bills this winter.

"The important thing is to get the dough out before people freeze to death," said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., sponsor of a $1.2 billion emergency fuel assistance provision that received Senate approval Wednesday.

The measure was added to an Interior Department appropriation bill given overall approval by the Senate. However, the House-passed version of the Interior bill contains no such provision and a Senate-House conference committee must decide whether it should be retained.

If the conferees decide to keep the aid provision, the full House would have to concur.

Echoing Javits' sense of urgency, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill made an unprecedented appearance before a House panel Wednesday to make a pitch for $1.35 billion in heating aid as part of an appropriation package for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

"The first session of the 96th Congress faces no higher priority than providing low-income fuel assistance to meet this winter's needs," he said. "I do not believe we can afford to adjourn without addressing this problem."

O'Neill, who emphasized he was speaking "as the elected constitutional head of the House of Representatives," said disagreements about details of the program should not delay its approval. "Prompt action is a national imperative," he concluded.

"This matter will be handled in an expedited manner," promised Rep. William Natcher, D-Ky., chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that listened to the speaker.

Natcher did not indicate immediately when he would reconvene the panel for a vote. Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., suggested the House meet in special session Saturday to approve the money, but O'Neill didn't respond.

Meanwhile, the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee arranged to meet today to debate precisely how to distribute the money senators have agreed to spend. An aide to Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., the committee chairman, said it was possible the panel could complete work on the measure by the end of the day.

What is prompting the swift action in Congress is sharply higher prices for home heating fuels. In the case of heating oil, prices have risen by more than 50 percent since the end of last winter and now stand at over 80 cents a gallon in some parts of the country.

The Carter administration has asked Congress to spend a total of $1.6 billion for emergency fuel assistance this winter, including $400 million in an existing program that can make cash grants or provide space heaters or other goods in emergency situation. The other $1.2 billion is a new program that would supplement checks received by people living below or slightly above the poverty line.

Until Wednesday, the administration had insisted that the program was "contingent" on passage of the "windfall profits" tax the president has asked Congress to approve.

Ford out as possible candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford today took himself, all but irrevocably, out of the race for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

During a visit to the Capitol, Ford read a statement to reporters in which he said he has "made a firm decision not to become an active candidate."

While the statement was along the same lines as disclaimers Ford has made repeatedly over the past year, the emphasis was much stronger and appeared designed to discourage further attempts to draft him for the nomination.

Questioned by reporters, Ford described his statement as "definitive."

Ford has been under some pressure from Republicans actively seeking the nomination to take a position on whether or not he would become a candidate.

Previously, when saying that he was not a candidate and didn't intend to become one, Ford always added, with emphasis: "I never say never."

"I do not plan to participate, or to encourage others to participate on my behalf in the delegate selection process," he said today. "I have no intention of entering or permitting anyone else to enter my name in any of the upcoming primaries, nor will I be a personal contestant in any state convention."

The former president, who was defeated by Jimmy Carter in 1976, said he would reconsider his position "only if my party felt it was essential for me to do so, or if unforeseen circumstances developed."

Ford said he regarded the possibility of a deadlocked Republican convention next July as "very remote and I do not expect that to happen."

Pressed to elaborate on the circumstances that might prompt him to enter the race, Ford replied: "It's unforeseen. You define it. I can't."

He said the decision was "totally done by myself" and was not forced upon him by other Republican leaders.

What's Inside

Weather

The forecast calls for clear to partly cloudy skies with a slight chance for thunderstorms Friday. Afternoons will be warmer with considerable cloudiness Saturday. Friday's high will be in the mid 80s; the low in the upper 50s. Saturday's high will be in the low 80s.

Carter scores Florida victory

MIAMI (AP) — Backers of a move to draft Sen. Edward Kennedy as a presidential candidate have suffered a 3-1 loss in the Democratic caucuses in Dade County, once considered a Kennedy stronghold.

Results released early today gave President Carter a 147-41 victory over the Massachusetts Democrat Edward Kennedy in balloting for delegates to the Florida Democratic Convention.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A good samaritan

A local resident called the News this week and asked for a list of names of elderly people she might offer some of her time to.

The gesture was made after a recent editorial dealing with the vast problems facing the elderly on the south side of town.

The woman stated she already aided two elderly people who are unable to care for themselves and live alone but she said she could always look in on a couple of more people if they wanted or needed help.

This woman has the idea we should all give our time to care for those less fortunate than ourselves. And she is absolutely right. We should.

We all complain about welfare and other free ride government programs but we never offer a different way to end them.

Just think. If we all just gave two hours a week to help make someone else's life easier, we could probably throw welfare out the window. And we would all be better off.

We might all do well to offer a helping hand when we can, instead of spending so many evenings in front of the television set.

Makes you wonder...

Recently, as several youngsters were enjoying recess at a local school, a stranger walked by hitchhiking along a major Pampa street.

The stranger stopped and calmly urinated in front of the elementary school children and teachers.

Upset teachers phoned local police and gave a full description of the man and his location to authorities.

An hour later police phoned the school and asked administrators why they had phoned.

If Pampa is to be made a safe place to live, and its children protected, local authorities will have to become alert to what is going on in town, and begin to do the job they are paid to do.

It seems if children are not important enough to be protected by police, then it is time we found out just what we pay these people to do.

Floating rates on mortgages

Wall Street Journal

DALLAS—Texas's 10 percent usury ceiling on home mortgage rates lasted 88 years before it went down in a fight this year, but the state's lenders and home builders think the floating-rate law that replaced it deserves a quick death after only six weeks in existence.

"When the new law was signed this spring, everyone was walking around with a sigh of relief," recalls Jim Short, a lobbyist for Houston home builders. "By the end of the summer, everybody was looking a little tense. Then the Federal Reserve started its current practices and very quickly what looked like a situation that would work just went to hell."

Mortgage lenders are already repeating the arguments they used to persuade the Texas legislature and Gov. William P. Clements Jr. to pass the new law, which allows mortgage rates to rise two percentage points above the interest rate on 10-year Treasury bonds to a maximum of 12 percent. But lenders say the new law eased a tight mortgage financing market for only about two weeks, if at all, after it took effect Aug. 28. They contend the Fed's credit-tightening moves and galloping short-term interest rates have left Texas unable to compete for capital. More than 20 other states limit home mortgage rates to 12 percent or less, but Texas's ceiling is in sharp contrast to far looser laws in the other states that lead the nation in housing production, such as California and Florida.

An apparently growing number of people in the state's housing industry think problems with the state's usury law have become more urgent since the Fed raised its discount rate last weekend and the prime rate went to 14 1/2 percent. But there are well-founded doubts about what good urgency can do. In Texas, the least government is widely thought to be the best government; accordingly, the legislature isn't scheduled to meet in regular session again until 1981.

Gov. Clements says he will call a special legislative session sometime in 1980, but the governor controls the agenda at a special session and aides stress that the Republican is "most reluctant" to "get involved in raising interest rates again."

"It would have to be a most drastic situation for the governor to get involved in the usury law again," says Jim Kaster, a legislative aide to Gov. Clements. He notes that a threat to veto the current usury law was withdrawn only after lenders said they would stop making Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration loans if the old law wasn't changed. "Plus, 1980 is an election year and legislators wouldn't vote for a usury ceiling change anyway," Mr. Kaster says.

But lenders and economists say the state, which is often touted as "recession-proof," may yet find its housing industry in a situation serious enough to sway the governor. "In the next month or so we will be right back where we were six months ago," says Charles Walush, an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. "The real problem is that short-term interest rates are rising sharply, long-term rates aren't rising as fast, and the cost of fund to lenders is more closely tied to short-term rates. I think it can lead to recession here, especially in the residential housing market."

Lenders complain that the new Texas law allows their mortgage rates to move up only once a month—and then based on the interest rate fetched two months earlier on 10-year Treasury bonds—so they can't raise their loan rates fast enough to keep pace with the swift increase in short-term interest rates. "If the events of the weekend continue to escalate interest rates, we're going to lag three or four months behind the market," says Tom S. King, executive vice president of United States Association of Texas, a unit of Southwestern Group Financial Inc. Mr. King estimates October's 11 percent Texas mortgage rate is at least one-half percentage point below the national market. He expects the Texas rate to hit its legal maximum of 12 percent by December, which he says will still be below market rates.

Mr. King and other lenders note two related results of the Texas mortgage lid. First, United Savings has had only "very, very spotty" success selling its comparatively low-yielding packages of mortgages in the secondary mortgage market. Because of that problem and slow savings flows, "we haven't any new money to loan," Mr. King says.

Second, Texas lenders still are requiring home sellers to pay as many as seven or eight discount "points," each representing 1 percent of the mortgage amount, although that has dropped from 11 or 12 points required shortly before the new law took effect. Points compensate for the discount a lender figures he is giving the buyer by issuing a mortgage at below-market rates. "The whole concept of having an usury limit at all is supposed to be anti-inflationary, but in fact it's just the opposite," says Ron Witten, president of a Dallas real estate research concern. "If a builder has to pay six or eight points to get a loan, that goes into the home price, which is extremely inflationary."

Those pressing for a new usury law have a variety of remedies in mind, including the current system with a much higher lid or free-floating rates to a higher maximum. And despite signs of reluctance by Gov. Clements to consider the issue, they apparently intend to keep trying. "I think the governor perceives what we're doing as self-serving," says Martin Perlman, a Houston builder and president of the local builders' association. "We have to educate the public, and then it's going to have to be the public to tell the governor that we want to be competitive on the national money market."

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters
(Second of Two Related Columns)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Should Hamilton Jordan determine federal standards for the handling of toxic chemicals in the work place? Should some GS-12 at the Office of Management and Budget regulate television advertising?

Of course not. The mere notion is absurd. Yet something very much like that could happen if one seemingly attractive proposal for reform of the tangled federal regulatory system should ever be adopted. The American Bar Association, dismayed by the hodgepodge of overlapping, conflicting or just plain confusing regulations that emanate each year from Washington, is pushing a plan that would allow the president to intervene in the process in hopes of creating order out of chaos.

The ABA's rationale is appealing — at first glance. All too often, it notes, the government's left hand doesn't know what the right is doing. Even within agencies, regulatory goals frequently conflict and there is no one authorized to set priorities. When improved car safety, which may require added weight, conflicts with better gas mileage, which means lighter autos, which goal should prevail? And when achieving either goal may add to the cost of the average car and thus fuel inflation, should the government back off for a while?

The ABA, through its commission on law and the economy, suggests authorizing the president to intervene in the regulatory process just enough to set priorities and reconcile conflicts.

Not only is he the one government official blessed with a panoramic view of what all the agencies and commissions are doing, he is also — unlike the appointed bureaucrats who run those bodies — directly accountable to the American people.

And given the impact federal regulations have on the lives of ordinary citizens, shouldn't the nation's highest elected official have the last word on them?

The answer, unfortunately, is far from obvious. Tens of thousands of federal workers, many of them highly specialized technical experts, are involved in the drafting of regulations. They are scattered throughout more than 660 agencies that crank out some 7,000 regulations each year — enough to fill 60,000 pages of the Federal Register.

No president could possibly review more than a tiny handful of these regulations each year himself, which means the White House staff would wind up screening the bulk of those that seemed controversial enough to warrant executive attention. (Here comes Ham Jordan et al.)

With no offense intended to President Carter, who has a stronger scientific and technical background than most who wind up in the Oval Office, presidents (and their staffs) are generalists, ill-equipped to deal with some of the very technical calculations that figure in the development of many regulations.

And the "accountability" argument doesn't hold much water, either. Can you imagine a presidential election turning on the issue of whether the Labor Department's cotton-dust standard is phased in over three years or five?

The president already has broad executive power to influence the shape of regulations produced by agencies under his chain of command. And while independent regulatory commissions like the Federal Trade Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, etc., are not subject to his dictates, he can certainly influence them in appointing their members and setting their budgets.

President Carter has initiated a number of procedural and administrative reforms aimed at improving the regulatory system by eliminating duplications and conflict wherever possible. They are working reasonably well, and further refinements are contained in legislation now pending in Congress.

It may be necessary to strengthen the president's hand even more, as the ABA proposes, but there's no point taking such action until the Carter program is given a chance to work first.

Innuendo reporting

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—There ought to be a Pulitzer Prize for "innuendo reporting." Innuendo reporting is an offshoot of investigative reporting—the main difference being that the innuendo reporter has failed to get any facts to back up his story and therefore must resort to allegations that could or could not be true. We're seeing more and more of this kind of journalism in the newspapers and on television so the public believes it's easy to do. Wrong. Innuendo reporting is the toughest type of writing and requires a great deal of imagination.

Let me give you an example of what I mean.

Sources at the Justice Department revealed today they are investigating Lialabird Gritts. Amy Carter's appointments secretary, for sniffing glue in the basement of FAO Schwarz toy store in New York City.

The sources said the case has been turned over to the FBI, which hopes to complete its investigation within the next six months.

The key witness is Miss Lalla Pigeon, former wife of punk rock singer Sydney Gravestone, who was sentenced to five years for the hatchet murder of his cat Yo-Yo during a concert at Shea Stadium.

Miss Pigeon, who is hoping to start up her singing career again, said that she was in the Barbie Doll department of FAO Schwarz, which is located only three blocks from the barber shop where Albert Anastasia, the notorious mob leader, was gunned down while he was getting a shave.

She saw Gritts come in with three friends who apparently had been drinking wine with lunch at the Pierre Hotel, scene of one of the greatest safe deposit box robberies in the history of New York City.

She said Gritts came up to her and asked if she knew where he could buy some airplane glue. She said she had a friend in the hobby department in the basement at Schwarz and would take him there.

On the way to the hobby department Gritts and his friends raucously played the pinball machines, and two of them tried on ski masks, a favorite ploy of stickup artists in the city's recent plague of bank robberies.

When they got to the hobby department, Gritts inquired of the clerk if he had any glue. The clerk asked if he wanted glue for model boats or model planes, and Lalla said Gritts replied, "What's the difference?"

The clerk said it was in the smell and he offered to let Gritts sniff the two kinds. Lalla, in a sworn statement, revealed that Gritts sniffed both the boat and airplane glue in her presence. Then he asked her if she wanted to go to Studio 54, whose owners are now being investigated for IRS violations.

Gritts denied, through the President's press secretary, that he had gone anywhere near the glue department and had only come into Schwarz to buy Amy a "Star Wars" game.

In the meantime Lalla's lawyer said that she had changed her story and now maintains that she did not actually see Gritts sniff the glue. She said after Gritts bought the glue, he disappeared into the washroom with his friends, and when they came out they started dunking basketballs into the net set up in the sports department. The manager became enraged and asked them to leave.

The President's press secretary produced an affidavit from a clerk who was in FAO Schwarz was play with the electric trains.

If Gritts is convicted of sniffing glue he could get a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

Amy Carter refused to return this reporter's calls.

By Anthony H. Harrigan

ASPEN, Colorado. — One hundred years ago, silver miners discovered rich veins of the precious metal in the mountains hereabouts and created this community.

They built well, for the stone-courthouse, commercial buildings and handsome Victorian houses of the 1880s continue to be used a century later. Silver was demoted in 1893, and Aspen became a ghost town. After World War II, the town was restored by a Chicago millionaire who founded the Aspen Institute For Humanistic Studies. At the same time, a number of veterans of the Army's 10th Mountain Division, which had trained in the Aspen area, returned and developed the town as a skiing center. Today, Aspen is a magnet for skiers. Property values in the Aspen area are as high as the surrounding mountains. This week, the Aspen times advertised a house for sale for $750,000.

For a generation, the Aspen Institute has brought major international figures and prominent businessmen, government officials, journalists and scholars to this beautiful community.

The Aspen Institute holds seminars for present and future policy makers and opinion leaders. While it asserts that it has a "human-centered viewpoint," the makeup of the Institute's Council and Board of Trustees shows that it is oriented towards international liberalism of a familiar variety.

Among the Aspen Institute trustees are Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers; Vernon Jordan Jr., president of the National Urban League; Robert S. McNamara, president of the World Bank; and John W. Gardner, founder of the Common Cause lobbying group.

This week, I attended a seminar on "Newspapers and Business" arranged by the Inland Press Association. It provided a valuable exchange of views among businessmen and publishers, editors and reporters from small to medium-size dailies. The participants, with a few exceptions, were moderate conservatives who are strongly committed to free enterprise. It was a group that knew its mind on public issues and basic national values. More such meetings, with journalists and businessmen from the American heartland, would help bring some conservative balance to the Aspen Institute.

It's time that the Aspen Institute and similar study centers acknowledge and accept the essential conservatism of Middle America. The addition of distinguished conservative trustees and scholars to the Aspen board and advisory group would be an appropriate step at this time.

For an evening's relaxation, the press group was taken to the site of Ashcroft, an abandoned mining camp. In a high meadow above 9,000 feet, a town of 3,000 flourished in the 1880s. Today, there is only tall grass, golden aspen and a few huts where the pioneer settlement existed. The emptiness is a reminder that extraordinary change is a constant in the Western region. The Western slope of the Rockies is still very much the American frontier. With gold prices soaring, old mines are being worked after decades of disuse. Small uranium mines also are being opened, though anti-nuclear sentiment is very strong among liberal newcomers to Colorado from the East.

Superb, deep, powdery snow is the principal source of wealth in Aspen and nearby communities such as Snowmass and Vail. Growing winter communities, with acres of "condos" have sprung up adjacent to the ski slopes. One can't help but think that any sudden diminishment in the nation's wealth, such as severe recession, would reduce some of these concentrations of the affluent to the condition of Ashcroft. People and enterprises come and go in this region. Only nature's grandeur endures.

Senatorial standoffs

A voting-record analysis by the American Conservative Union indicates that the senators from eight states are so sharply divided ideologically that their votes tend to cancel one another out.

The taxpayers could probably save dough simply by benching both senators from the following: California, Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Nevada, New Hampshire and Texas.

Crime figure denies knowledge of killing

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A reputed New England organized crime figure wants a federal grand jury to know he had nothing to do with the May 29 assassination of a federal judge, but refuses to answer any other questions, according to his attorneys.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears has ordered Salvatore Michael Caruana, 38, of Boston to appear before the grand jury investigating the sniper slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. and the attempted assassination last year of a federal prosecutor.

"He (Caruana) didn't have anything to do with the Judge Wood assassination and doesn't know who did it," attorney Gerald Goldstein said Thursday. "He's willing to tell that to the grand jury. Anything more than that is not properly before this grand jury anyway."

"Mike Caruana didn't kill Judge Wood. He had nothing to do with it. I put my honor as a man and my license as an attorney on that," said Boston attorney Martin Weinberg.

Caruana, under investigation by another federal grand jury in Boston, is scheduled to go before this panel today. His attorneys said they feel any other questions here could be aimed at incriminating Caruana in the Boston investigation and have advised Caruana to invoke his Fifth Amendment privileges.

The panel here is hearing this week from more than 30 witnesses, including Caruana, convicted "hit man" Charles V. Harrelson and members of the Banditos Motorcycle Club.

The subpoenas do not necessarily mean the witnesses are targets of the investigations.

Harrelson, 41, who served a prison sentence for the 1968 murder-for-hire of a Hearne businessman, is also due back today after Spears refused on Wednesday to quash subpoenas against Harrelson and his wife, Joan

Starr Harrelson. Harrelson's attorney objected that the panel is on "a fishing expedition."

More than a dozen Banditos appeared before the panel Thursday amid increased security at the courthouse that may soon bear the name of the assassinated judge.

Some Banditos wore their "colors" — club insignias — emblazoned on leather jackets and roared up on black motorcycles. But at least two others arrived in elegant, late-model Lincoln-Continentials.

All courthouse visitors were screened for weapons by sensitive metal detectors and armed federal marshals and FBI agents were stationed throughout the circular building.

The FBI has said in court hearings that Caruana answers directly to Raymond L. Patriarca, the reputed head of the New England crime syndicate. Caruana was also a close friend of murdered El Paso defense attorney Lee Chagra, the brother of fugitive drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck said in the hearing that the grand jury wanted to ask Caruana numerous questions, including with whom Caruana associated and where he was "at the time the Jimmy Chagra case was set for trial."

Wood, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, was scheduled to preside last summer in Chagra's drug trial. Chagra's attorneys, claiming Wood was prejudiced against Chagra, attempted in bitter courtroom battles to have Wood removed from the case.

Weinberg and Goldstein unsuccessfully asked Spears to limit the grand jury's questions only to those about the Wood slaying.

Goldstein said Caruana might not even answer those questions if it appears that might jeopardize his Fifth Amendment rights on subsequent questions.

Caruana, wearing expensive cowboy boots, a jacket and tie, an elaborate gold cowboy belt buckle and a gold ring with diamonds arranged in a horseshoe, pleasantly deferred all questions to Weinberg.

Asked about the FBI report on his alleged connection to Patriarca, Caruana said, "I'd like to answer that one, believe me." Caruana has refused to reveal his occupation.

He clowned for television cameras as he left the courthouse, waving and quipping at one point, "Hi, Mom."

Harrelson, was sentenced in 1973 to 15 years in prison for the 1968 murder-for-hire of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. The first trial in 1971 ended in a hung jury.

Harrelson, discharged from parole in 1978, was also acquitted in the 1968 slaying of a Houston businessman. Famed defense attorney Percy Foreman represented Harrelson in all three trials.

There have been no arrests in the Wood assassination or the ambush last Nov. 21 of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr. But the federal investigation into the Kerr assault has centered on the Banditos.

FBI Special Agent Gregg Van de Loo has testified that a former Bandito is "a prime suspect" in the Kerr assault. He said in a document disclosed in federal court Wednesday that Kerr identified Banditos in a police lineup as his assailants.

One of two chosen by Kerr as resembling the gunman was arrested on a state robbery charge as he left the federal courthouse Thursday.

Van de Loo also said in the document that a confidential FBI informant had claimed he was asked by Banditos to take part in killing Kerr.

Kerr, heavily involved in West Texas drug investigations, escaped serious injury when his car was riddled with bullets as he drove to work.

Wood, 63, was cut down by a single .243-caliber bullet outside his townhouse as he climbed into his car to leave for work.

Expert says

Davis took passive role in death talks

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A linguistics expert says Cullen Davis took a passive role in incriminating tape recordings of conversations between the millionaire defendant and his chief accuser, David McCrory.

Dr. Roger Shuy, a linguistics professor from Bethesda, Md., provided jurors in Davis' murder solicitation trial the most unusual testimony to date.

Using charts to illustrate his analysis, he said Thursday he determined through 50 hours of listening to the state's tape recordings that McCrory dominated the damaging conversations with Davis.

"Very clearly, Mr. Davis had the passive and Mr. McCrory the active role," the Georgetown University professor said. "Mr. Davis was quite passive."

The testimony tended to corroborate the defense testimony that Davis was duped by McCrory into discussing the murder of his divorcee and others.

But chief prosecutor Jack Strickland said the defense analysis cost Davis almost $10,000 and quipped — "I would have told them McCrory dominated the conversation for $3,000."

Shuy said he also found 125 discrepancies in the state's transcripts and what he actually heard on the recordings.

He did single out a segment of an Aug. 18 tape in which the transcript quoting Davis as saying, "Do the judge, and then his wife and that would be it."

Prosecutors interpreted that passage as specific instructions from Davis to McCrory to kill Judge Joe Eidsen.

Shuy said his analysis indicated Davis said, "He'd do the judge..." which comports to the defense contention that Davis was merely "making conversation" when the subject of murder came up.

Earlier Thursday, a defense witness testified Davis told him he and McCrory were discussing killing people as early as June 1978 — in direct conflict of Davis' testimony.

"I considered the whole thing in jest," said Hershel Payne, an attorney friend of the millionaire defendant.

Davis has admitted discussing a multiple murder scheme with McCrory, but said he did so only after receiving instructions from a purported FBI agent to "play along." Davis said that call was not received until Aug. 10 — 10 days before his arrest last year and two months after the Payne conversation.

Defense attorneys scoffed at newsmen's suggestions that the time discrepancy was a major flaw in Davis' story.

"Payne's got it screwed up," lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said during an intermission. "That's just the way Hershel remembers it."

He said Payne apparently confused that conversation with another involving an alleged plot on Davis' life.

Texas shrimpers in financial trouble

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — Heavy rains that sent young shrimp in search of saltier seas also have left Texas shrimpers in troubled financial waters.

About 40 percent of the shrimp population was killed during heavy rains in July and September, and those that survived went farther into the Gulf of Mexico in search of salt.

Shrimping in Galveston Bay is so slow the federal government stepped in this week and declared the area a disaster.

"This is the worst I can remember it being," said Tony Kriss, 65, who has been shrimping since he was 8. "Many of these guys are coming in with catches that don't even pay for fuel."

"We might as well forget about this year and start looking forward to next season," said Guy Brummerhop, 25.

The disaster declaration does have one silver lining — it makes shrimpers who fish year round eligible for Small Business Administration loans.

Shrimpers who can prove economic losses can apply for long-term, low-interest loans, said SBA spokesman Bill Powers.

But one shrimper, Neil Richmond, says he doesn't have time to cut through the red tape and apply for a federal loan.

"If it rains a couple of days and I have nothing better to do, maybe I'll go down there and apply for a loan. It's not like a gift. You have to pay it back. Last year when things were tough, I called the SBA about a loan. The guy said a lot of people go into business and go broke. When the conditions are like this, you just have to suffer a lot," he said.

"I usually go out about daybreak and stay in the bay until 6 p.m. But now there's a lot of traffic out there and no shrimp to catch," Richmond said, adding he spent five hours on the bay the other day and came in with only a 40-pound catch.

Shrimpers need a daily catch between 300 and 400 pounds to make a profit.

Emery Waite, owner of a seafood supply firm, said the scarce supply of shrimp also means higher prices in restaurants.

"We are buying unheaded jumbo shrimp for $6 a pound now. Last year at this time, the price was about $4.50 a pound. The retail prices are about 15 to 20 percent higher than that," Waite said.

Mr. Parker died Friday at Leisure Lodge. He was born in Waurika, Okla., and had been a Pampa area resident since 1934. A retired oil field worker, he was a member of the Church of God and the Moose Lodge.

Survivors include his wife, Sallie, one daughter, Mrs. Virginia Bridwell of Pampa, three sons, Ous of Amarillo, J. E. of Bethany, Okla., and Ken of Borger, his mother, Mrs. Catherine Parker of Chickasha, Okla., four brothers, Jack of Vancouver, Wash., Quannah of Farmington, N.M., Dave of Pampa and Doc of Elk City, Okla., four sisters, Mrs. Stella Thompson of Rangely, Col., Maggie Holder of Wichita Falls, Cora Kumbell of Lawton, Okla., and Etta Mae Mabry of Chickasha, Okla., 17 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

EDITH G. GRIGG

BORGER — Funeral services for Edith Gertrude Grigg, 82, will be 2 p.m. Monday at the First United Methodist Church Garden Room with the Rev. Lyman Wood, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Westlaw Memorial Park Cemetery under the direction of Minton-Chatwell Funeral Directors.

She had been a Borger resident since 1926.

Survivors include one brother and several nieces and nephews.

MRS. PININA W. ALEXANDER

GUYMON, OKLA. — Funeral services for Mrs. Pinina W. Alexander, 97, will be 2 p.m. Sunday in the Henson Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Eldon Molling, minister of the Victory Memorial United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Elmhurst Cemetery in Guymon under the direction of Henson Funeral Home. Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors in Pampa are in charge of local arrangements.

Mrs. Alexander was born Oct. 17, 1882, in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and moved to the Oklahoma Panhandle in 1903. She had been a Guymon resident since 1926 and had lived in Pampa for three years.

Her husband, James A. Alexander, died in 1945. Survivors include two sons, C. D. of Guymon, and Ray of Harrison, Ark., five daughters, Mrs. Mabel Ford, Mrs. Hazel Nation and Mrs. Lula Kuhn, all of Pampa, Mrs. Joel Davidson of Denver, Col. and Mrs. Blanche Martin of Amarillo; one sister, Mrs. Stella Rose of Hubbard, Ore., 12 grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials to Victory Memorial United Methodist Church in Guymon or to a favorite charity.

ROYALE E. CARY

LUBBOCK — Funeral services for Royal E. Cary, 86, will be 11 a.m. Saturday in the University Christian Church. Mr. Cary died Wednesday here.

Burial will be Monday in the family mausoleum in St. John's Cemetery in New Orleans beside his wife, the former Virgie Reich, who died in 1972, and his daughter, Dolores, who died in 1935. Services in New Orleans will be in Gentilly Christian Church where Mr. Cary was Elder emeritus.

Mr. Cary was a native of Juno, Tenn., and moved to Pampa with his family in 1905 from Lamar County. He was a retired executive of the New Orleans Public Service Company and had been superintendent of the Merkel, Texas schools.

He was a graduate of West Texas State College and the University of Texas. He moved to New Orleans in 1922 after serving in World War I in the Navy. Mr. Cary moved to Lubbock seven years ago.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Ludy Cary Johnson of Lubbock, a nephew, Tracy D. Cary of Pampa, and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. C.E. Cary and Mrs. Fred A. Cary, both of Pampa.

Marathon mania has taken America by storm

NEW YORK (AP) — A bright blue line snakes through all five New York City boroughs. Big numbers — 23, 24, 25, 26 — are painted on Central Park's winding roads.

Nylon-and rubber-shod feet thud on city streets and sidewalks and crunch on the cinder path around the Manhattan reservoir. It's marathon mania time again.

On Sunday, 14,000 men, women and children will group on the Staten Island side of the Verrazano Narrows Bridge, eager to put their bodies through agony to run 26 miles and 385 yards through the streets of Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan.

Before the starting gun, the competitors will seem to merge into one mass, blending into a sea of multi-colored T-shirts and tank tops. But the 10th annual New York City Marathon calls for the supreme individual effort. Each runner — consumed for weeks ahead of time with preparation — faces the grueling event alone, trying to pass his or her private endurance test.

Ed Haggerty, 37, a seasoned athlete who plays rugby union, has already run two marathons, but he says he would never recommend that someone take up running.

"It becomes obsessive," Haggerty says. "It's a time drain and a mental drain. I get up in the morning and I think about the marathon."

Drew Melton, a 35-year-old bond trader and veteran marathoner, took a week off work to train, ran too much and caught a cold. He realizes his chances to beat his previous time are slim, but he'll be running Sunday. "The more time you think about it the more anxious you get about it. I've just started to think about it," he says.

And Bert Berliner, a photo editor and first time marathoner who used to call runners "fanatics," now admits he's one. Berliner, 35, says the race is his personal odyssey: "I can't think of any other goal that is so important to me. When I picture what the Verrazano Bridge is going to look like, I'm just overwhelmed."

Haggerty and Melton say they're running to beat their best marathon times, coincidentally identical marks of 3 hours and 6 minutes.

"I know I can run 26 miles. That's a piece of cake," says Haggerty, who owns and edits Rugby Magazine. "To me it's just a question of am I going to run better than 3:06 or not? If I break my time, then all the training is worth it."

Others run hoping to win or to qualify for next spring's Olympic trials.

But Berliner falls amid the majority whose goal is simple: To complete the race, to somehow struggle across that finish line at Tavern on the Green in Central Park.

Small and wiry, Berliner sees finishing the marathon as a "quiet sense of accomplishment" that caps an unathletic life. One sharp childhood memory is of always being picked last for basketball games.

"It's become an odyssey. That's why it doesn't matter how long it takes, as long as I finish it," he says.

Berliner has trained hard for five months, often running 15 and 20 miles at a clip, but his view of the marathon is still sacred. "It's like a quest, a trek. I'm still a dilettante. When I run this, then I'll be a tried-and-true runner."

Now, with just two days before the race, training is almost over. For months, at every hour of every day, regardless of weather, runners have clogged city streets and parks.

Groups took "marathon classes" and clinics, meeting at the 90th Street and Fifth Avenue entrance to Central Park to bend and stretch and chat before mobbing the hilly six-mile roadway, making the park hazardous for drivers.

The air of expectation has been almost palpable as marathon trainees pounded their weekly mileage of 50 to 100 miles. Now most are tapering off to half that.

Casual joggers are finding running room again. And those disconcertingly level, even-winded conversations of the faster runners — overheard as they sprint past at lung-ripping speed — now have Scandinavian, German, British and Japanese accents as international competitors do their daily warmups.

The reasons why runners enter this brutal distance race are as elusive as their training techniques are individual.

"I don't really know why," said Melton. "If you can tell me why I joined the Marine Corps instead of the Army, then I'll answer you that one."

The next time somebody reminds you that you left the light on, it might be worth remembering that the light bulb's inventor, Thomas Edison, did the same thing. One hundred years ago today, Edison first demonstrated his electric light. Edison's bulb contained a wire, or filament, made of carbonized thread, ordinary sewing thread that had been burned to ashes. When electricity passed through the filament, its temperature increased, so that it glowed and gave off light. Edison let the bulb burn all night and all the next day. It finally burned out when he increased the voltage early in the afternoon of October 21.

DO YOU KNOW — What metal is used as a filament in today's electric light bulbs?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — South Africa's system of racial separation is known as apartheid.

Resentencing set for three police officers

HOUSTON (AP) — The resentencing of three former Houston police officers ordered by an appeals court on their convictions in the drowning of Joe Campos Torres is set for Oct. 30.

U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling must resentence Terry Wayne Denson, Stephen Orlando and Joseph James Janish. He originally gave them 10-year suspended sentences with five years probation.

They were convicted 1½ years ago of a violation of Torres' civil rights resulting in his death following a three-week trial. But the Justice Department appealed the sentences on grounds that an offense carrying a possible life term was not subject to probation.

The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals sent Sterling an order on Oct. 4 to resentence the men.

Torres, 23, drowned in Buffalo Bayou in May 1977 after the defendants allegedly beat him while he was handcuffed and in their custody. A jury returned an acquittal on a charge that Denson, with the help of the others, pushed Torres into the bayou.

INTRODUCING THE ALL-NEW FRONT-WHEEL DRIVE COROLLA TERCEL.

$3,698*/33 Est. MPG

Introduce yourself to the lowest priced, highest mileage Toyota you can buy—the all-new Corolla Tercel with front-wheel drive.

Priced to feel good.

At $3,698, the Corolla Tercel is an outstanding value. Included in the price are Hi-back bucket seats, a sporty 2-spoke steering wheel, side window de-mister, a locking gas tank and much more. For $3,698, you're well-equipped and ready to go!

What a lot of miles per gallon!

Few front-wheel drive cars offer more. Corolla Tercel is rated at a high 33 EPA Estimated MPG, 43 Estimated Highway MPG. Remember: Compare this estimate to the EPA "Estimated MPG" of other cars with manual transmission. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA "Highway Estimate."

A unique feel for comfort.

Corolla Tercel's 1.5 liter 4-cylinder engine is in a position to give you a lot of good feelings most other front-wheel drive cars can't. Like the feeling of more positive shift action, a more natural steering wheel position, plus a lot of leg room in the front. No other small front-wheel drive car offers more.

A real feel for the road.

With all this comfortable space (front and back) comes smooth performance, helped by rack and pinion steering, four-wheel independent suspension, and aerodynamic styling. You get the feeling Corolla Tercel can handle just about anything.

A real all-weather friend.

Toyota's new Corolla Tercel. It's the front-wheel drive car that happens to be the highest mileage, lowest priced Toyota you can buy. Because these days, bad weather isn't all you've got to cope with.

Leon Anderson doing what he wants to do

GRASONVILLE, Md. (AP) — Growing up on Maryland's Eastern Shore, with the wild water and the wild geese and all the wild bounty of the Chesapeake is, for most kids, like growing up in heaven.

For a black kid, though, and not long ago, it was pure hell.

"It was like suffocating," Leon Anderson recalled. "They still had signs then: 'whites only.' Black people had the lowest jobs, the worst housing. We couldn't go anywhere, couldn't do anything, and were thought of as dirty and stupid."

Just to survive that sort of discrimination with your self-esteem intact was quite an accomplishment.

Leon Anderson didn't just survive. Today, if you sit down to a blue crab dinner in Philadelphia, or Newark, or New York, or practically anywhere along the East Coast, the crabs likely arrived on one of Leon Anderson's trucks. He is one of this area's most successful seafood wholesalers.

Or, if you happen to pass through Grasonville, stop with Leon. He also runs a thriving restaurant — Captain Crab.

Or, if you are interested in the subtleties of how poverty affects motivation, see Leon. It is his specialty. In May, at age 38, he will complete work on his doctorate degree in psychology.

Against the odds, he did all this on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

"I only left here once," he said. "One July, when I still had a year of high school remaining. I went to Boston. I had to go someplace where I thought I could have a little freedom to move.

"I got a room over a tavern and got a job shucking clams. Oh, I could shuck clams. I bought my school clothes shucking clams — 65 cents a half gallon, and I could shuck two gallons an hour."

"But I was scared to death. I kept my bus fare back home pinned to the inside of my jacket. Every week I walked over to the bus station to make sure they hadn't raised the fare."

"I finished high school in Boston and came back home. It was still bad in Maryland, but it was home, where my parents were."

Home, Cambridge, Md., also was where the civil rights movement was in full swing: marching, singing, ducking tear gas. Leon Anderson joined the ranks and moved to the forefront.

In time, he became executive director of a three-county community action program.

"I had to deal with five federal agencies, three county governments and a state government," he said. "That taught me one thing. I knew I had to go back to school."

The seafood business became his ticket to college, and, later, to finance graduate studies.

Now he's a crab baron.

His warehouse is busy, his restaurant busy, his telephone busy. Any person of any race on Maryland's Eastern Shore would be hard put to match his success story.

NBC News poll shows

Carter's standing strengthened at home

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter's standing with the American public strengthened a bit from its historic lows after a month of high interest rates, Soviet troops in Cuba and speculation about the 1980 primaries, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The five-percentage-point rise in Carter's rating is the largest positive surge in his ratings since the 16-point jump that occurred after the Mideast summit at Camp David in September 1978.

In the five weeks since the last AP-NBC News poll, Carter has talked to the nation about the Soviet brigade in Cuba; the Federal Reserve Board kicked interest rates to their highest levels ever; and the first pseudo-confrontation between non-candidates Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took place in Florida.

Although the latest poll shows a jump for Carter, his job rating is still extremely depressed compared to other presidents.

Twenty-four percent of those interviewed Monday and Tuesday rated Carter's work good or excellent. Fifty percent said his work is only fair and another 24 percent rated his work as poor. Two percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

In September, only 19 percent gave Carter good or excellent marks, while 49 percent said his efforts had been only fair. Thirty percent called his work poor. Two percent were not sure.

The 19 percent rating was the lowest ever found for a president since this question was first asked in the 1950s.

Last month's poll was taken Sept. 10 and 11, shortly after the furor erupted over the Soviet brigade in Cuba and after Kennedy indicated he was seriously considering a primary challenge to Carter.

Carter's job ratings in several specific areas edged up in the most recent survey, suggesting there was no single major event responsible for the turnaround, only a general strengthening of support for the incumbent.

After a tumultuous month of economic developments, 13 percent gave Carter high marks for his work on the economy, up from 10 percent last month. Thirty-nine percent rated his work only fair, no change from the 40 percent of last month.

Forty-four percent said his economic efforts were poor, compared to 47 percent in the previous poll. The remainder were not sure.

This finding suggests that the public reaction to the Federal Reserve's recent moves to slow down inflation — and Carter's support for those actions — is not negative at this time.

The board moved earlier this month to sharply slow the growth of the money supply through record high interest rates and new regulations on banks. Critics say the moves could plunge the nation into a deep recession and throw millions more out of work.

On Oct. 1, Carter told the nation of the steps he was taking to strengthen the U.S. presence in the Caribbean in response to the Soviet troop presence in Cuba.

Guerrillas drop objections to constitution

LONDON (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas, buoyed by assurances they will not have to foot the bill for white-owned land they expropriate, dropped their objections to a proposed constitution for Zimbabwe Rhodesia and opened the way for negotiations on a transition government.

Patriotic Front guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo said Thursday "there will not be need to revert to discussion of the constitution," provided transition arrangements are agreed to.

They said British and U.S. assurances of contributions to a fund to compensate white farmers for land nationalized by a new Zimbabwe Rhodesian government in which they will participate went a "long way" to allay their concerns.

The guerrillas sent their message to Lord Carrington, the British foreign secretary and chairman of the six-week-old talks, and British sources said he welcomed the Front's "unambiguous" announcement and was "happy and content" to begin discussions of the transition.

Mugabe and Nkomo had been eclipsed from the talks since Monday for refusing to accept Britain's stipulation in the draft constitution that any new Zimbabwe Rhodesian government compensate white settlers for expropriated land.

The guerrillas, who have been battling for control of Rhodesia for seven years, took the position that there should be no compensation from them because the white minority in the rich African nation originally seized the land from the black majority.

As a result, both Britain and the United States gave clear signs they would contribute to an international fund to compensate the white settlers in the breakaway British colony.

But Britain is still sticking to its proposal that a British governor take over and supervise new elections in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, and that the vote be supervised by the currently white-led army.

The guerrillas are certain to balk at this, however, because the Front's stance is that "an effective transfer of power" means their fighters should form the core of a new army before independence.

"The real crunch is on the transition," said a spokesman for Zimbabwe Rhodesia's current prime minister, Abel Muzorewa, whose biracial delegation accepted the British draft constitution two weeks ago.

The Muzorewa team agreed to the draft in hopes Britain would recognize a new regime in Zimbabwe Rhodesia and put an end to trade embargoes begun 14 years ago when Ian Smith, the white prime minister at the time, refused to take steps toward black majority rule and declared independence from London.

"We hope the Patriotic Front will now expedite its negotiating techniques," Muzorewa's foreign minister, David Mukome, said. "We already complained at the immense cost in lives and money of the conference delays."

ESA to sponsor bowling tourney

Plans have been finalized for the first St. Jude Children's Research Hospital benefit bowling tournament, sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority Chapter of Pampa.

The tournament, which is open to anyone, will be held at Harvester Bowl on the weekends of Oct. 27-28 and November 3-4. Entry fee is $7.50 per person or $30 per team (two men and two women) or $15 for mixed doubles. There will be $1.50 out of each entry fee donated to St. Jude and $2.65 going into the prize fund.

Scheduled bowling times are 3 p.m., 5 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Saturdays and 1 p.m., 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Sundays.

"I'm very enthusiastic about this project," said tournament director Jean Sells. "I want to urge everyone to come out and bowl for this worthy cause."

Mrs. Sells said last year ESA state chapters of Texas donated over $200,000 and ESA International over a million dollars to St. Jude in Memphis, Tenn., which provides both care and medical research for children stricken with catastrophic disease.

"If people don't care to bowl, I'd like for them to come to the bowling alley and pick up one of the pamphlets available that tells about the wonderful work going on at St. Jude," Mrs. Sells said.

Mrs. Sells said there is no charge to patients admitted to the hospital upon the recommendation of a doctor.

"They will even send money to the patient for transportation," Mrs. Sells added. "So often in this day and age people don't take the time to care, but the employees at St. Jude will continue to call on a child long after he is released from the hospital."

Tournament reservations may be made in advance by contacting Mrs. Sells at 665-2658 or bowling alley manager Van Vandenburg at 665-3422.

Entries close at 5 p.m. Sunday. Vandenburg met with ESA members at Mrs. Sells home Thursday night to map plans for the tournament.

"We plan to make this an annual event," Mrs. Sells added. "I want to urge people to come out and participate."

SPORTS

Gun club hosts match Sunday

Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club hosts a hunter's pistol metallic silhouette match at 1 p.m. Sunday at the outdoor range six miles west of Pampa on 23rd street.

The match is open to all interested individuals, and newcomers to the handgun competition scene are especially invited to attend.

Awards will be offered in categories AAA, AA, B, and unclassified with the course of fire consisting of ten shots at chicken targets at 25 meters, ten shots at javelina targets at 50 meters, 10 shots at turkey targets at 75 meters, and ten shots at ram targets at 100 meters.

Scoring is based on one point for knocking over a target, none for a miss. The only limitations on handguns to be used are: barrel less than 10 inches, weight less than 60 ounces, and trigger pull greater than 2 pounds.

Several Pampa shooters competed in a similar match at Dumas earlier this week. Juanita Nichols, current women's champion, took first place in the ladies classification while Art Gross was first-place winner in the men's division.

Lefors blanks Skellytown

LEFORS-Tracy Jennings scored three touchdowns to lead Lefors past Skellytown, 24-0, Thursday night in junior high football action.

Lefors remains unbeaten at 4-0 and 2-0 in district play.

John Winegeart added a touchdown and a two-point conversion to account for the Lefors scoring. Besides Jennings and Winegeart, Darrin Mcbee did a fine job of running, coach Don Parsons said.

Defensively, Winegeart led Lefors with 15 tackles while Jennings and Ricky Withers had 13 stops apiece. Brent Finney had nine tackles.

"The offensive line did a good job of blocking and the second-team defense hit with enthusiasm," Parsons said.

Lefors hosts Groom at 6:30 p.m. next Thursday night.

Pampa takes on Caprock

Pampa takes Although it's midway into the 1979 football season it will almost like starting over when the Pampa Harvesters visit the Amarillo Caprock Longhorns tonight in a District 3-AAAA opener.

Pampa has a 3-2 record and Caprock is 3-3, but those games are meaningless as far as landing a state playoff berth.

"It's a very crucial game for us since it starts off our district play," Pampa coach Danny Palmer said. "I look for it to be a very hard contest, but I think our players will be ready."

Caprock has the loop's top rusher in junior running back Bobby Short, who has gained 587 yards along with scoring three touchdowns.

"He's a good running back," Palmer said. "We'll have to stop him."

Palmer blamed Pampa's 20-0 loss last week to Lubbock Coronado on a fourth-quarter lapse.

"Overall, I thought we played well, but we just didn't have a good fourth quarter."

Palmer reported that two-way lineman Danny Buzzard, who missed last week's game because of an injured knee, will be back in the starting lineup.

Pampa's lineup will be the same as usual with Kennan Henderson at tight end, Buzzard and Mike Graham at tackles, Mickey Bynum at center, Clyde Coffey and Robby Gee at guards, Steve McDougall at split end, Greg Quarles at quarterback, Doug Kennedy at fullback, Doug Smith and Arthur Williams at halfbacks.

McDougall, a 160-pound junior, continues to lead district receivers with 14 catches for 224 yards and a touchdown.

Defensively, Coffey will be at noseguard, Buzzard and Derrick Eldridge at tackles, Mark Jennings and Monte Covalt at linebackers, Billy Grimes and Clifford Anderson at ends, Brent Rogers and Bobby Dorsey in the secondary, Brian Williams and Bobby Dorsey at safeties.

"We've worked very hard on execution this week," Palmer said. "Caprock has beat us the last two years, so we'd like to get them this time around."

Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. in Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

Holtz looks for chink in Longhorn defense

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — With tongue stuck firmly in cheek, Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz says he has found a weakness in the awesome Texas defense.

"If they have a vulnerability, it's pass defense," he said. "They're giving up 76 yards per game passing and allowing 33.8 percent completions."

"They're sixth in the country in pass defense. You take it from there."

The fact is that Texas is second in the nation in total defense, allowing 163.2 yards per game. The Longhorns are third in scoring defense and sixth in defense against the run.

The second-ranked Longhorns and 10th-ranked Razorbacks match perfect records Saturday in a regionally televised Southwest Conference showdown.

Last year, Texas jumped on top 20-7; fell behind 21-20; and then scored in the fourth quarter to win 28-21.

"They moved the ball against us last year and they're much better," Holtz says.

He says the development of quarterback Donnie Little is one reason the Longhorns are improved offensively. He also says the Texas offense is overshadowed by the Longhorns' defense.

Texas managed 162 yards on the ground against Arkansas last year.

Cow's head greets Caprock teachers

Football rivalry between two schools often re-ults in a little pre-game activity such as spray painting buildings, letting the air out of tires, writing on windows, or stealing the team mascot.

Similar capers were pulled off at Amarillo Caprock Thursday night, but school officials aren't too upset about it.

"There really wasn't much vandalism done," Caprock assistant principal Bob Andrum said. "Nothing that's going to cost a lot of dollars to get repaired."

When teachers came to work this morning, they found words written in shoe polish on several walls and windows outside the building. Highlighting the shenanigans was a cow's head, hung like a hunting trophy, over one of the dressing room doors.

"There was a little blood scattered around. We're going to do a little cleaning up and just forget about it," Andrum said. "It's something that goes on all the time with schools here and all across the country."

By a strange coincidence, Pampa plays Caprock in football tonight.

Pigeon race results

Jim Cantrell had the first and second place winners in the racing pigeon club race last weekend.

Because of strong crosswinds, only 12 of 78 birds finished the race from Lamesa to Pampa. Winning time was 865.436.

Cantrell also had the seventh and eight place winners with respective times of 784.258 and 778.083.

Kush goes to court

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — City and campus police guarded Arizona State University officials and football players today as ousted Coach Frank Kush prepared to defend himself in federal court against charges of intimidating witnesses to an alleged assault on a former punter.

"We've had several," said ASU police chief George Bays when asked about reports of threats to athletic director Fred Miller and John Schwada, university president. "We do have security assigned to all the principals, even during practice."

None of the threats has been carried out, but several were being investigated, Bays said.

Bob Owens, named by Miller to replace Kush last Saturday, ordered the practices closed until after next Saturday's Pac-10 game with Washington State. "We have had far too many distractions," Owens said.

Miller charged that Kush punched Kevin Rutledge, and then pressured assistant coaches and players into lying to cover up the incident. Kush continued to deny the charges, despite a dozen sworn statements from players and coaches obtained by Miller on Tuesday night and revealed Wednesday.

The 13,000-member Sun Angel Foundation, a booster club that has provided about $6 million in scholarship and stadium funding to ASU, met Thursday to discuss a report that its executive director, Gene Felker, witnessed the alleged assault and had been asked to give a deposition.

On Tuesday, the foundation accused Miller of denying due process to Kush and called for Miller's ouster and Kush's reinstatement, threatening to dry up a projected $6 million in funding for future golf course and stadium projects at ASU.

Rutledge, who has sued Kush and the university for $1.1 million, said the former coach punched him deliberately following a botched punt at an Oct. 28, 1978 loss to the University of Washington.

"The next thing I know — I didn't see him coming — he's right here in front of me," Rutledge said. "He had my mask. My stuff (head gear) was loose and it came up. I didn't even see the punch but all of a sudden his hand was there."

Kush and his attorney, Harry Cavanagh, were to appear in U.S. District Court today for a hearing on a motion by Rutledge's lawyer, Robert O. Hing, for an order to enjoin Kush and Cavanagh from intimidating witnesses.

Gary Bouck, ASU linebacker from Alhambra, Calif., swore that Kush and Cavanagh intimidated him through questioning in Kush's office. Bouck said he was told that other ASU players considered him a "rat fink" for stepping forward as a witness to the alleged assault on Rutledge.

Kush has denied intimidating Bouck, and Cavanagh has denied Hing's charge that private investigators were sent to harass other players.

Tanner returns home to bury mother

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (AP) — The smiles and cheers of a World Series victory belonged to another day, just 12 hours after that stunning triumph, Pittsburgh Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner solemnly returned home to bury his mother.

As he followed the gray casket out of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church here Thursday morning, Tanner groped for words to describe the emotional turmoil thrust on him by his mother Anne's death last Sunday in the midst of his first World Series as a manager.

"I feel ... it's hard to say. I was so excited and happy about everything," Tanner said of the team's 4-1 victory Wednesday night in a stunning come-from-behind series drive.

"She's in God's hands. I believe she saw us play the World Series," he added.

When Tanner's mother succumbed to a stroke, the Pirates were trailing Baltimore 3-1 in the best-of-seven baseball series.

Tanner elected to stay with his team Sunday, explaining that his mother would have wanted it that way. "Life goes on and baseball is a big part of my life," he said at the time.

Trainer Tony Bartirome, who was at the funeral, said the team members felt Tanner's grief and responded as best they could.

"It was a very, very trying time, but he had a great amount of strength and took it well. We knew down deep he was really hurt, but he didn't show it outwardly," Bartirome said.

"He really acted brave. He could have fallen apart," said Josephine Sesko, one of the many mourners who stood on the street to pay their respects to the hometown hero and his family.

"I think this made the Pirates work all the more ... to help him through this time," added Florence Evanoski.

Tanner, wearing a gray plaid suit with a silver "Pirates" lapel button, guided his wife, Barbara, and father, Charles, to church pews as a lone churchbell tolled outside.

Among the congregation filling the modern A-frame church were team members Bruce Kison, Kent Tekulve and Manny Sanguillen. Team owners John and Dan Galbreath, executive vice president Harding Peterson and former general manager Joe L. Brown also attended the service.

The Rev. Charles Georgevich, pastor of St. Michael's, described Mrs. Tanner as a "devoted wife and mother and loyal member of the community," in his eulogy.

"Life here upon earth is not our final place. We were made for something else, something greater," he said.

Hearns wins by knockout

DETROIT (AP) — Welterweight Thomas Hearns celebrated his 21st birthday by stopping Sansaek Muangsurin from Thailand in the third round of a scheduled 10-round boxing bout Thursday night.

Hearns, who is ranked third by the World Boxing Council, had little trouble in handling Muangsurin, who carried a 13-3 record and the No. 4 WBC ranking with him into the ring at Olympia Stadium.

The 6-foot-1 Hearns of Detroit knocked down Muangsurin in each of the first two rounds. Then after sending the left-handed Thai fighter to the floor for a third time early in the third round, referee Bobby Watson stopped the fight at 2:31 and declared Hearns the winner.

Hearns now has a career fight record of 23-0. Twenty-two of those victories have been by knockouts.

Hearns weighed 146 1/2 pounds and Muangsurin 147 1/2.

Frosh falls to Canyon

CANYON--Pampa ninth graders fell to Canyon, 6-0, Thursday night on a fourth quarter touchdown.

"We lost the game in the last minute, said Pampa coach Dickie Crockett. "Canyon" has not been beaten all year, but we played them one good game. They got lucky on one play. Otherwise we beat them all over the field."

Pampa did have more rushing yardage with 205 yards while the defense also looked sharp, Crockett said.

Crockett praised Jesus Santacruz, Richard Baird, Bill Carter, Jerry Godfrey, and Ted Cain for their outstanding play.

"We hate to lose, but we're starting to look like a football team," Crockett said.

Unique approach to drugs may resume

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch disc jockey Koos Zwart's unique national broadcast of hashish prices probably will be resumed next spring, in an effort to halt the ballooning prices of the drug across the country.

For eight years, hash smokers tuned in at 2-p.m. each Saturday to Zwart's 35-second spot on the week's prices for their favorite brands.

"We believe that service to consumers helped to keep the price down," Zwart said recently. "Then, in January 1978, we decided to drop the quotes as an experiment."

That experiment was to have lasted three years, but the doubling and tripling of prices in the 21 months since then prompted Zwart to open talks with the management of Vara, the Dutch socialist broadcasting organization, on reinstating the quotations.

"Because of programing changes, we will probably begin the quotes again next April," Zwart said. "But the brief spot is likely to be around 5.30 p.m. instead, I imagine listeners will adapt.

Zwart, 32, the son of Irene Vorrink, a former Dutch cabinet minister and Amsterdam city elder, said that without any ready reference, hash smokers now were paying the first asking price of dealers.

"Our broadcast, just 35 seconds every week, meant that everyone knew that somewhere in Holland, hash of certain types was selling for the quoted price," he said. "So if their own quote was higher, they just looked harder."

In the months that the hashish quotes have been off the air, the price of the Afghanistan variety leaped from about $2.25 to $6-$7.50 a gram, the DJ said.

The hash broadcast — Zwart said it was the only one of its kind in Europe — was readily accepted in a country that always has prided itself on tolerant attitudes.

Illegitimate children given rights

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has ruled in a landmark Dallas paternity case that illegitimate children born before Sept. 1, 1975, have until their 22nd birthday to establish the identity of their fathers.

"This brings joy to my heart," said Bill J. Ballard, a Wichita Falls specialist in paternity law. "It's time for rejoicing for many kiddies whose parents neglected to get married."

The opinion in the Dallas case was written by the civil appeals court there. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling Wednesday.

The Texas Department of Human Resources, formerly the welfare department, sued on behalf of the child's mother to compel Edward Charles Delley of Dallas to support an illegitimate child born in 1968. Both parents were 17 at the time.

The ruling is important to the state because child support could erase the need for state welfare payments in many cases.

Before the Delley suit was filed, the appeals court said, Delley signed a sworn statement, witnessed by two people, acknowledging he was the father.

Delley contended a four-year statute of limitations barred the state's suit.

The Dallas trial court dismissed the suit. It held the statute of limitations barred the suit, because the child had been born more than four years prior to the time it was filed.

However, the Dallas appeals court ruled the four-year limitation for illegitimate children born prior to Sept. 1, 1975, does not start to run until the child reaches 18 years of age.

The appeals court remanded the Delley case to Dallas for a possible new trial.

A law effective Sept. 1, 1975, requires paternity suits for children born after that date to be filed within a year of the child's birth.

Ballard said in a telephone interview the Supreme Court ruling Wednesday "gives hope" that even those children will have a year after reaching 18 to sue.

"As a matter of public policy," the Dallas appeals court said, "we doubt that fathers of illegitimate children should be absolved from the duty of paying child support because a paternity suit has not been filed within four years of the birth of the child."

The court said it agreed with a 1977 ruling of the Washington Supreme Court which held that "the state has a compelling interest in assuring that the primary obligation for support of illegitimate children falls on both natural parents rather than on the taxpayers of this state."

Ballard said nearly 400,000 illegitimate children were born in Texas during the 20-year period ending last year. "Those who are still illegitimate might rejoice at getting in the courthouse," he said.

Ballard said paternity suits are "relatively rare" and are usually filed to obtain child support.

However, he said, a child might want to establish paternity to inherit his or her father's estate or to collect Social Security payments when the father dies.

"And some folks would just like to know who their father is," said Ballard.

Oswald identity questioned

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County medical officials say enough doubt has been cast on the identity of the body buried in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave that the remains should be dug up and verified.

But officials in adjacent Tarrant County, where Oswald's grave is located, have resisted the proposed exhumation. They say they will do so only if ordered by a court.

Oswald was named as the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy by the Warren Commission. He was shot to death while in police custody two days after Kennedy's assassination in 1963.

"Somebody has raised the question as to who is in that grave. The easiest way to find out is to ... 'run some tests,'" Dallas County Medical Examiner Charles S. Petty said Thursday.

Petty's office was approached in August by an attorney representing British author Michael Eddowes, whose book "The Oswald File" suggests a Russian spy is buried in Oswald's grave.

Eddowes says evidence indicates the Oswald who defected to the Soviet Union in 1959 was not the same man who returned to the United States in 1962 representing himself as Oswald.

He said for one thing the autopsy records of 1963 fail to show a mastoidectomy scar behind the body's left ear. Records also indicate a comparison of Oswald's dental X-rays with the teeth of the corpse was never made.

Petty's office decided to compare its autopsy records with Oswald's military records, and obtained them from the Navy Reference Department in St. Louis under a Dallas County court of inquiry order, according to Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. Linda Norton.

"The discrepancies were numerous — scars on the body, color of eyes, height," she said. "The differences show up between his (military) entrance records in 1956 and the autopsy. In one his height, for instance, is 5-foot-11. In the other it is 5-foot-9."

Petty said, "If there's a question and a reasonable question that science can resolve, then that's our business." He suggested X-rays and dental records could be used to establish positive identification of the remains in the Oswald grave in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery.

"We said to Tarrant County, if you exhume him we'll test him. We have more capability along that line than they do," Petty said.

But acting Tarrant County Medical Examiner Nizan Peerwani said, "This is a very delicate situation, and we have to tread very carefully." He said if he authorizes the exhumation, it would only be after he had the support of the district attorney and Oswald's mother, a Fort Worth resident.

Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney Marvin Collins said flatly he would authorize an exhumation only under "an order from a court that has the power to order them to do that."

Eddowes' lawyer Jerry Pittman, said he has contacted a state district judge in Dallas County who Pittman said is receptive to calling a court of inquiry with subpoena power to order the exhumation.

Eddowes was turned down earlier this year when he asked Tarrant County officials to dig up the Oswald grave. He filed a lawsuit, which he lost. It is pending in civil appellate court.

Oswald 'healthy' after assassination

DALLAS (AP) — When Dr. Earl F. Rose performed Lee Harvey Oswald's autopsy in 1963, he found evidence of some old dental work and scars on his left arm.

Rose, the Dallas County medical examiner at the time, said in a Nov. 29, 1963 Associated Press story that very little of the man's medical history could be determined by the autopsy except that he was "remarkably healthy."

Oswald was killed on Nov. 24, 1963, two days after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Oswald was named by the Warren Commission as the killer.

"A thorough autopsy showed the almost total lack of any abnormal pathology," Rose said. "The two things we could determine were, first, that he died from a hemorrhage from a gunshot wound, and that otherwise he was a physically healthy male."

Rose found the scars on the man's upper left arm, the inside of his left arm and on his left wrist. He also had a small scar on his upper lip. He had no tattoos.

The medical examiner did not elaborate on the old dental work. X-rays indicated no evidence of any old bone fractures or damage to the skull.

The only evidence of heart damage was bleeding from a cardiac arrest shortly before his death on the operating table.

The autopsy report showed no evidence of a brain tumor or any other organic pathology of the brain.

His lungs showed no old scar tissue that would indicate he ever had a lung disease.

A stomach analysis showed no food, the report said.

Crunch on beef supplies to continue report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — New cattle feedlot statistics by the Agriculture Department show the crunch on beef supplies will continue relatively tight at least through the winter.

The number of cattle being fattened for the slaughter market — the source of most supermarket cuts of beef — totaled 9.93 million head on Oct. 1, a drop of 13 percent from a year ago, the department said Thursday in a quarterly report.

About 5.95 million head of new cattle were placed in feedlots in July, August and September. That was down 19 percent from the same period of last year and was the smallest since the summer of 1976.

Those cattle, called "placements," represent animals that will be sent to slaughter this fall and winter.

Cattle producers reduced their herds severely since 1975 as market prices dropped. Although market prices have generally recovered in the last year, it will be at least several more years before breeding herds can be expanded enough to boost beef output.

The report covered 23 states, which produce about 95 percent of the nation's beef.

Steers in feedlots totaled about 6.69 million head on Oct. 1, down 11 percent from a year ago, the report said. Heifers being fed for the slaughter market were estimated at 3.2 million head, down 16 percent from a year earlier. Older cows and "other" stock accounted for the remainder.

Marketings of feedlot cattle in the third quarter were a four-year low of 5.98 million head, down 8 percent from July-September of last year, the report said.

Looking at possibilities this fall, the report said feedlot marketings may total 5.98 million head during the last quarter of 1979, down 11 percent from a year ago.

Cattle prices slumped in the summer from record peaks last spring but since have improved. Another factor that tended to reduce feedlot placements has been generally good pasture feed conditions, enabling producers to graze animals instead of having to ship them to feedlots.

Choice steer prices on the Omaha, Neb., market averaged $72.51 per 100 pounds in the second quarter before slumping sharply in the summer, at some points around $55 per 100 pounds.

Recently, according to USDA figures, Omaha steer prices have been around $66 or better.

The report showed Oct. 1, feedlot inventories in the 23 states and their percentage of a year ago as:

Arizona, 340,000 on feed on Oct. 1, and 77 percent of a year ago; California, 765,000 and 91; Colorado, 840,000 and 90; Idaho, 217,000 and 99; Illinois, 340,000 and 85; Indiana, 180,000 and 95; Iowa, 1,100,000 and 88; Kansas, 1,190,000 and 85; Michigan, 130,000 and 84; Minnesota, 265,000 and 95; Missouri, 85,000 and 68; Montana, 32,000 and 107; and Nebraska, 1,400,000 and 85.

Also, New Mexico, 187,000 and 97; North Dakota, 30,000 and 111; Ohio, 115,000 and 74; Oklahoma, 298,000 and 84; Oregon, 59,000 and 87; Pennsylvania, 50,000 and 86; South Dakota, 265,000 and 106; Texas, 1,780,000 and 88; Washington, 165,000 and 82; and Wisconsin, 95,000 and 95.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center was to be dedicated today in Florida.

The $7 million facility is located on Fleming Key, "just across a restricted bridge" from Key West, says the Agriculture Department, which will be in charge of the center.

Officials said Thursday the center will handle "animals from countries restricted from exporting animals to the United States because of foot-and-mouth disease" and other diseases that could gain entry into the country.

The center will enable two groups of cattle of 400 each to be isolated in quarantine security each year. After the animals are found free of disease, they will be added to U.S. breeding herds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has removed most of a federal quarantine on the out-of-state movement of thoroughbred breeding horses from Kentucky.

The quarantine was imposed more than two years ago to help control a new venereal disease of horses.

In the department's official announcement, it said the statewide federal quarantine "has been lifted" on the movement of thoroughbred breeding stock out of Kentucky.

A spokesman said added that the federal quarantine was replaced by state quarantines on 41 "premises where infected mares" are located.

However, Sidney R. Moore of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said Thursday that federal quarantines would continue on the same 41 premises where state restrictions are in place.

Moore said he was told by Kentucky officials the 41 places represent "only a drop in the bucket" of the state's thoroughbred industry.

Moore said the quarantine action took place Oct. 12 and that Kentucky officials were notified then.

The federal quarantine was ordered April 13, 1978, to help prevent the spread of contagious equine metritis — called CEM by animal health authorities.

Officials said the disease was introduced into Kentucky by horses imported from France prior to a ban in September 1977 on imported stock from there and other countries where CEM was known to exist.

DR. LAMB

All have postnasal problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've been hoping you would write something about postnasal drip. I've been to a number of doctors and about the only advice I get is to move. An allergy doctor did skin tests and they proved that I'm not allergic to anything except the air I breathe.

The drip down the back of my throat causes me to feel nauseated and I have to clear my throat all the time, especially after a drink or a meal. This hawking is embarrassing and annoying. I know there are a lot of other people who would like to hear what you think about this.

DEAR READER — Postnasal drip is a common complaint. We all have it to some degree. Basically, the secretions that cause postnasal drip are normal and come from the "weeping of the sinuses." Those membranes are moist because they produce fluid and mucous material. If they dried out, we'd be in deep trouble.

The amount of secretions formed varies. Certainly some people do have allergic disorders that increase the amount of secretions. That's why individuals who have a lot of trouble with this disorder should see a doctor as you have done.

The amount of secretions formed is increased when you drink something hot and sometimes after eating.

Smoking cigarettes is a major contributing factor in many people. Obviously, anyone with this complaint who smokes and wants relief should stop.

Any substance in the air that irritates the lining of the sinuses can increase your postnasal drip. In your case it's perfectly logical that one of the better solutions to your problem would be breathing clean air. Unfortunately, there is very little your doctors can do to solve that problem for you. Before moving for that reason it is wise to check the new location, as polluted air is everywhere.

Frequent blowing of the nose to remove the secretions helps to keep them from accumulating in the back of the throat and draining down the throat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 17 years old and I've got a pretty big problem. I'm not overweight. I weigh 165, I'm 6 feet tall and I'm in good shape. My problem is stretch marks. They cover my hips and buttocks. How can I get rid of this affliction? I was fat as a boy of 12 and I gradually lost weight. Please, Doc, what's the answer?

DEAR READER — There are limited things that can be done to stretch marks once they've appeared. If it is really important to you, you might ask a plastic surgeon who does cosmetic work if there's any improvement he or she might be able to make for you, but I wouldn't expect too much.

I wanted to include your letter in my column to emphasize that even being fat during childhood can leave its mark on the body. Your problem should emphasize to parents to pay attention to whether their children are getting fat even at an early age.

Readers who want a basic diet to help eliminate unwanted body fat can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Teachers' sorority begins new year

The Gamma Beta Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota, professional teachers sorority, began the new year with a recent salad supper in the home of Kay Harvey.

Hostesses were Cathy Hipkins, Linda Allred and Kay Harvey. Guests were Carlyn Newcomb, Sharon Palmer, Cheryl Robbins, Karen Cory, Fran Stellman, Vicki Shaffner and Sue Tolbert.

Officers for the new year are Bobbie Thomas, president; Linda Johnson, vice president; Marla Eckhart, secretary; Jan Martin, treasurer; Euleen Thompson, scrapbook chairman and Debbie Robertson, reporter.

Xi Beta Chi has program on Jerusalem

Xi Beta Chi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently for a program on "Divided Jerusalem", presented by Mrs. Bill Boswell.

The presentation featured pictures and a discussion of the Holy Land.

Terri Leggett announced that the Pampa Day Care Center would be a chapter service project this year. Tricycles will be donated to the center to build up the supply of toys.

Cile Taylor announced that a coffee will be given for guests on Saturday at 10 a.m.

The Octoberfest has been rescheduled for November.

Hosting the sorority members was Clara Mae Sailor. The next meeting will be Oct. 22 in the home of Monica Leonard.

Upsilon chapter hosts model meeting

Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday in the home of the sorority's president, Gladys Vanderpool.

A model meeting was held. Committee chairmen explained to new members the responsibilities of each office.

Service projects for the year were discussed. Upsilon chapter has donated to the Reading Is Fun (RIF) program and to the Cancer Bike-a-thon.

A couples rush will be Saturday at 7 p.m.

Members voted to hold the annual bazaar Dec. 3. Each member is to make homemade treats or crafts to be auctioned off to the public.

Karen Cory gave the program, a demonstration of pumpkin painting. Each member used her own creativity to produce a personalized pumpkin.

DEAR ABBY

Her kisses tell

DEAR ABBY: I'm a man, over 70. My wife died suddenly several months ago, and I found out that I just couldn't get along without female companionship.

As a young man I suppose I had the usual number of girlfriends, but I haven't courted for 50 years, and am rather rusty.

I recently asked a woman in my age group to accompany me to a variety of social engagements. She was most agreeable. She turned out to be a warm, lively, affectionate companion, and I must admit that I am crazy about her!

The problem: Her kisses. Abby, this woman's kisses shake me from top to toe. I don't know why. I hate to call it "technique" or suggest that she has developed her kissing purposefully, but she must be conscious of the effect her kissing has on males. (She is a widow.) I can't learn from her because I don't know what she is doing. I only know that this woman's kisses drive me crazy. All the kisses I have had before are just not in the same league. She is gentle. She is loving, but I am glad that not all women kiss the way she does. There must be a happy medium.

OVERWHELMED

DEAR OVER: Are you complaining? While kissing is basically natural, techniques are developed. This woman is giving you a message. She's probably crazy about you, too, so don't dismiss it as a routine "tongue-in-cheek" matter.

DEAR ABBY: ASKING IN ALASKA says, "Kids who live together before marriage don't deserve wedding presents, so they shouldn't be sent any." And you replied, "It won't work. Most parents (and relatives) are so glad that the kids finally made it legal, they send gifts anyway."

Well, here's how I handle it: Out of respect to the parents, I send a gift. I buy the first low-priced, ugly, useless piece of junk I see, have it gift-wrapped and sent. (If there's a shower, I do the same.)

I figure the gift is as appropriate as the wedding. And if Mr. and Mrs. Sleazy Morals have any perception at all, they will get the message that their wedding is no more meaningful to me than it is to them.

REALISTIC IN MASS.

DEAR REALISTIC: Since you send a gift "out of respect of the parents," how much "respect" do you think a "low-priced, ugly, useless piece of junk" will convey?

You'd be ahead to save your time, money and "respect," and send nothing.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter about the man marrying a girl who was six months pregnant with another man's child: that's my son you are talking about, and I am so very proud of him.

He was engaged to this girl, and her brother-in-law took advantage of her. My son went ahead and married her, advancing the wedding date so he could take care of her.

He's claiming the child as his own, and as far as I'm concerned, that child will be treated exactly like all my other grandchildren!

PROUD GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: Congratulations—for more reasons than one.

CONFIDENTIAL TO B. Mc I IN GARDEN CITY, N.Y.: Precious little thanks are due me, but I do owe a great deal to my top-notch advisers: "If a man knows where to get good advice, it is as though he could supply it himself." (Goethe)

Drummer has it in the bag

By Ellie Grossman
 NEW YORK (NEA) — 9:15 a.m. "Jeffrey, have you looked at the want ads yet? I'm not nagging, I'm just interested."
 9:30 a.m. "You really think you'll make a living playing drums? You need a nice steady job, something regular, like Mrs. Baren's son, Mark. He's a drummer, too, you know. Just like you he went to New York's High School of Music and Art, and Juilliard."
 "When he was 16, he was drumming with Louis Prima and he did one whole week with Nat King Cole. And then? Then he got smart and realized drums don't pay the telephone bill, so he became a menswear model at 18, and did this and that and 10 years later his brother-in-law who made billfolds said, design billfolds for me. So he sat down, this drummer who knew nothing about billfolds and came up with such a line, they tripled the business the first year."
 10:15 a.m. "So — wait, I'm not finished — he opened his own cosmetic purse business because he wanted his own business and didn't want to compete with his brother-in-law, and that grew into Mr. Bags."
 "What's Mr. Bags? If you'd open a newspaper once in a while instead of those ruck magazines, you'd know. Mr. Bags is Mark Laren's handbag business which has been doing very nicely for a long time. And the point, Mr. Smart Guy, is that he didn't even give up the drums."
 "He still plays professionally at night and does recording dates. You tell me if there's something wrong with that? Plus which, he's very creative with handbags. His mother told me he just came out with a group of bright metallic bags. Everyone else is making those kinds for evening, but his are meant to be worn during the day with jeans and things."

 "He designed clutches, totes, body bags, pouches, satchels, a hobo bag and one to carry skates in, in solid metal colors (gold, silver, pewter, bronze and copper) and brights (ruby, royal blue, purple, green, fuchsia and turquoise), from $14 to $24. They're made from a urothane coated fabric, very lightweight, and trimmed in urothane African lizard, which means it looks like African lizard."
 "And he did the same styles in: urothane panels of red, fuchsia, turquoise, royal blue and green, with black nylon trim. They're $20 to $34. Also lightweight and water repellent. And you know who's selling them, Mr. Drummer? Saks."
 11 a.m. "Believe me, Jeffrey, I only have your best interest at heart. Take a look at the want ads. Maybe there's something open in handbags. Where are you going? What harm could looking do? And Mrs. Baren said Buddy Rich is also Mark's idol, just like you — don't slam the door!"
 "Jeffrey's mother didn't tell him that Mark Baren says, "Absolutely I'd give up the handbag business and go back to music full-time." If he didn't have to make a living.)

MARK BAREN'S handbags for Mr. Bags include, clockwise from the top: tote, skate bag, hobo, clutch available in solid metal colors (gold, silver, pewter, purple and copper) and brights (ruby, royal blue, purple, green, fuchsia and turquoise), from $14 to $24.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

 Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and my teacher is blaming me for pranks that I didn't do. I called her and told her that I didn't do anything wrong, but she still insists that I did.
 Honestly, I do like her and wouldn't pull one on her, but I have been known to pull a few on other teachers. Help.— Barb, Dubuque, Iowa Barb: It seems your reputation is well known in the teachers' lounge. Unfortunately, that's the price you must pay for being a prankster.
 The only help I can offer is to cool the pranks and hope you can change your image for the better.
 Dr. Wallace: I am an 18-year-old girl and I am six months pregnant. I was living with the father of my unborn baby until one day he sold my television and left the state with a woman and her two children.
 Dr. Wallace, I really love this guy and I want him by my side when I go to the hospital to have our child. Is there any hope he will return to me? — J.H., Vancouver, Wash.

Tri - County Democratic Women have luncheon meeting

Tri - County Democratic Women's Club had a regular luncheon meeting Wednesday. Vickie Moose, president, conducted the business meeting.
 Club members will assist Oct. 27 with the appreciation - day activities for State Representative Foster Whaley. The agenda includes a luncheon for the members of the Agriculture Subcommittee, with club members hosting the representatives' wives for lunch at the same time.
 At 2 p.m. the Agriculture Subcommittee will hold a public meeting in the Gray County courtroom. A reception at 4:30 p.m. will honor Bill Clayton, Texas Speaker of the House, and other legislators. The reception will be at M.K. Brown Auditorium.
 A chili supper honoring Whaley will begin at 6 p.m. at the Clyde Carruth Livestock Show Pavilion in Recreation Park. The event will be to raise funds and pay campaign expenses for Whaley.

 Members of the club will furnish transportation for the dignitaries from Perry Lefors Field and also will register guests at the reception.
 Club members voted to pay $1 per month in dues. They also voted to pay Mrs. Moose's registration fee for the convention of the Texas Federation of Democratic Women, this weekend in Austin.
 Ruth Osborne donated $100 to the club treasury.
 Georgia Mack thanked the club for its participation in the recent Kidney Foundation auction. The group donated a gift that was auctioned off.
 Mrs. Mack accepted the chairmanship of the nominating committee. Also serving will be

Ruth Osborne and Clara Mae Sailor.
 The next meeting will be Nov. 14. A Thanksgiving luncheon will be held in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Church news

Griffin singers here this weekend

The Jack Griffin Singers from Oklahoma City will be in services this weekend at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider.

Services at the church will be Saturday evening at 7:30 and Sunday morning at 11. The morning services will be followed by a fellowship dinner.

The group will also present a program at 2 p.m. Sunday at Leisure Lodge.

The Rev. L.C. Lynch, pastor, invites everyone to attend one or all of the special services and witness this very talented group of spiritual singers.

Church to host revival

The Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 W. Crawford, will hold a revival Sunday through Wednesday. The evangelist is Clarence Branch, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Anson. Brother Branch has a tremendous love for people and a marvelous way of presenting the Bible and the answers it holds for peoples' lives.

invited Tuesday evening for a hot dog supper at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday is Youth Night, with a pizza supper at 6:30 p.m. The entire community is invited to each service of the revival. A warm welcome awaits all visitors.

Clarence Branch

Mike Timmons will provide the week of music. Timmons earned a degree in music from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. Presently living in Brownfield, Brother Timmons has served as music minister in several Baptist churches and has led music in many revivals. He is especially gifted in communicating with young people.

Sunday services are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday services are at 12 noon (covered dish) and 7:30 p.m. Children are

Singles night Tuesday

All single adults in Pampa are invited to AWOS (Activities with Other Singles) Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 10 in the Activity Building east of the First Baptist Church on West Street.

There will be volleyball, ping-pong, and other activities — or just come and enjoy the fellowship of other singles.

Fellowship service Sunday

A fellowship service will be held Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at New Hope Baptist Church, located on the corner of Gray and Harlem Street.

Rev. Allen Johnson will bring the message, according to Rev. V. Martin, pastor.

Greek poet awarded Nobel literature prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Nobel Prize in literature was awarded today to Greek poet Odysseus Elytis, whose lyrical work portrays man's struggles against the background of Aegean landscape and Greek tradition.

The Swedish Academy of Letters' selection of the 68-year-old Elytis, who is not widely known outside his homeland, came as a surprise to many observers of the international literary scene. But the academy has often chosen aged and exclusive poets — recent examples are Spaniard Vicente Aleixandre in 1977, Italian Eugenio Montale in 1975 and Swede Harry Martinson in 1974.

Elytis is the second Greek poet to receive the coveted award, which this year carries a cash sum of $190,000. Giorgos Seferis won it in 1963.

One of Elytis' best-known works is the folklore-based poem "To Axion Esti" ("Worthy It Is"), which was put to music by composer Mikis Theodorakis, a personal friend, who described it as "a bible of the Greek people."

Elytis is the pen name adopted by Odysseus Alepoudhelis. Elytis' poetry, the 18-member Swedish Academy said in its citation, "depicts with sensuous strength and intellectual clear-sightedness modern man's struggle for freedom and creativity."

His poem "Commemorations" shows Elytis' frequent use of the imagery of the Aegean seacoast. It reads in part:

"I brought my life this far
To this spot which struggles
Forever near the sea
Youth upon the rocks, breast
To breast against the wind
Where is a man to go
Who is nothing other than a man
Reckoning with the coolness his green
Moments, with waters the visions
Of his hearing, with wings his remorse."

Other Elytis poems include "The Mad Pomegranate Tree" and "Marina of the Rocks."

Elytis was born of a well-known industrial family on the island of Crete, like the great poet Nikos Kazantzakis, in 1911, a few years before the island was liberated from the Turks.

He studied law and political science at the University of Athens and philology in Paris. He has spent several years in France, visited the United States in 1961 and lives in Athens.

Elytis was selected over such leading Nobel literature candidates mentioned in recent years as English novelists Graham Greene and Doris Lessing, and Turkey's epic writer Yasar Kemal.

Last year's winner was Polish-born U.S. citizen Isaac Bashevis Singer, the masterful Yiddish story-teller.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life:
in thy presence is fulness of joy..."

HERE IS THE PATH

STYLE Church Directory

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

... Americans have a right to be proud of the beautiful structures erected and dedicated to the service of our Lord. David had a great desire to build a temple for the Lord, but because of his sins he was not allowed to complete it. . . . The building completed by Solomon was used as God's house until the people strayed from God, and then it was destroyed. God has no desire for the building without the people.

Clements says oil spill damage suit politically inspired

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements doesn't think much of Attorney General Mark White's federal court suit against SEDCO Inc. and Permargo, a Mexican drilling company, for the Mexican oil spill.

"I don't think his suit is any good against anybody," the Republican governor commented after the Democratic attorney general filed the legal action Thursday in Houston.

"I think it is politically motivated," Clements commented, repeating a charge he has made frequently in his long feud with White over who should pay for oil spill damages to the Texas coast.

Clements was founder of SEDCO, a worldwide drilling firm, but, since becoming governor, has put all his stock in a blind trust. He says neither he nor SEDCO had anything to do with the June 3 oil well blowout in the Bay of Campeche.

White's suit claims that the Mexican oil spill has caused more than $10 million damage to the state's economy and environment.

However, White told a news conference there would be no legal action against Pemex, the Mexican oil monopoly, "until it is certain that all negotiations by the U.S. Department of State for damages from Mexico in regard to the oil spill have been exhausted."

White stressed the state might ask more than $10 million when the full impact is known of oil washing ashore on Texas beaches. He asked an additional civil penalty of $1,000 a day since the oil from Ixtoc I entered Texas waters about Aug. 1.

White said more than 2.4 million barrels of crude oil has poured out of the uncapped well.

Three spill-related damage suits totaling more than $355 million were filed previously against SEDCO, Pemex and Permargo by Texas fishermen, shrimpers and businessmen affected along the coast.

SEDCO filed a federal court suit in Houston asking that its liability be limited to $300,000 under maritime law. The Houston court set an Oct. 23 deadline for any other damage suits against SEDCO.

White's suit alleges that under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, SEDCO and Permargo are liable for the cost "removal of oil, including cost of restoration or replacement of natural resources damaged or destroyed as a result of the discharge of oil."

The suit claims that SEDCO, as owner of the "off-shore facility," and Permargo, as operator of the facility, could be held liable for damages up to $50 million each under the federal law.

"I am filing suit against Permargo and SEDCO for injuries and damages to the beds and bottoms of the lagoons, bays and inlands of this state and to their products, and to its territorial waters, caused by the negligence, trespass and other fault of the defendants. Additionally, the state of Texas has suffered loss of tax revenues due to the impact of the oil spill upon the state's tourism and seafood industries and the general economy of the affected coastal area," White told the news conference.

Rock singer's parents file suit

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The parents of late rock singer Buddy Holly have filed a lawsuit accusing the company that initiated filming of "The Buddy Holly Story" of withholding payments and presenting a distorted picture of the singer's family relationships.

The $300,000 suit was filed Thursday by Mr. and Mrs. L.O. Holley of Lubbock, who accused Innovisions, Inc. of breach of contract.

The Holleys said in their suit that Innovisions violated an Oct. 15, 1975, contract which provided for the company's purchase of the rights to their son's life story.

The Holleys say that contract promised them 3 percent of the film's net profits annually. But the suit contends, "except for some initial lump-sum payments," the Holleys have not received any payments from Innovisions.

The singer's parents said they have been told the film has earned at least $6.5 million since its release. The suit asks District Judge Robert Wright to conduct an accounting using records kept by Innovisions and Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc., a co-defendant.

The Holleys say without such an accounting, they cannot determine the extent of damages they have suffered, but they believe it is "a substantial sum exceeding $100,000."

The suit also accused Innovision of failing to insure "an accurate portrayal, based on fact," of the Holley's relationship with their son. The suit says the couple is depicted as not being supportive of Holly's musical career "when in fact they were."

Nuns and their habits

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — After my travels with John Paul II in Mexico, Poland, Ireland and the United States, the subject of nuns and their habits troubles the mind, as it must the Holy Father's.

'Tis a pious puzzlement. In officially anti-clerical Mexico, where the constitution forbids the wearing of religious garb in public, a few nuns turned out in the habit of their orders on the day the pope arrived. They were probably from the United States or Canada and didn't know the law of the land.

But the next day, emboldened by the presence of their pontiff, hundreds of Mexican sisters ventured outside their convents in the proud uniform of their lifelong vows, some for the first time ever.

By the time the pope got to Guadalajara, there were thousands of priests, brothers and sisters joyously flaunting their religious roses in silent defiance of the government, which wasn't going to do anything anyway to embarrass so distinguished a visitor and, in fact was shutting a benign eye at such unconstitutional behavior.

In Ireland and Poland, both strongholds of traditional Catholicism after centuries of persecution, nuns in their flowing skirts and starched bibs were everywhere, flocking across the squares and parks like pigeons to catch a pontifical blessing or swell a papal procession.

Then came the Immaculate Conception Shrine in Washington, D.C. and the press section view of Sister Theresa Kane standing there at the lectern in a brown tailored business suit earnestly and respectfully lecturing the pope on women's rights in the church.

Although Pope John Paul II has several times implored nuns everywhere to retain a distinctive religious mode of dress, nearly one-third of the 4,000 American sisters who thronged the church to hear the address were in civilian clothes.

Some 50 nuns, although only a handful at first, stood up in silent, sedate protest when he said again, as he had in Philadelphia a few days before, that women were not called by Christ to his priesthood and that Mary had not asked for a place at the Last Supper.

Most nurses, I suppose, want to trade in their crisp white uniforms for a surgeon's green smock. Air stewardesses, no doubt, would prefer the pay that goes with pilot's stripes. Role changing there involves swapping uniforms.

But I wonder if the nuns who want to be priests will disdain the collar for the bright ties and three piece double knots of the mod Jesuits. 'Tis a puzzlement.

Carter most open president?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter claims that he is the most open president in history, despite his decision to cut back sharply on news conferences.

Although Carter has a habit of exaggerating his boasts, there is at least a grain of truth in this one. Scarcely a week passes in which the president is not questioned publicly on current issues.

It irks a good many Washington-based reporters that the questioning is being done increasingly not by them, but by non-Washington journalists and broadcasters or ordinary citizens.

Nevertheless, it is hard to imagine a newsworthy subject on which Carter has not recently been questioned in public by someone.

It is true Carter sometimes evades questions put to him by non-journalists. But Carter easily glides by pointed questions from Washington-based reporters, too. No matter how persistent the cross-examination, Carter seldom if ever allows himself to be nailed down when he doesn't want to be.

Non-journalists occasionally ask questions that are at least as tough as those posed by the Washington press corps. A questioner on a radio broadcast reminded Carter of his campaign pledge to cut military spending and asked why he was proposing spending for an MX mobile missile system. "Why don't you try to stop inflation by stopping this unnecessary military spending to put that money to work in the economy?" he asked.

It was last July, after his mountaintop "domestic summit," that Carter formally reneged on his old promise to hold two news conferences per month.

"I have nothing against the White House press corps nor the Washington press," he said at a news conference July 25. "I will continue to have interviews with the White House press corps, as we are doing tonight, but not twice a month. ... My decision is to go to different places around the country."

This has produced muttered accusations by some of the forsaken Washington reporters, who feel the president is "hiding out" or "drawing the wagons in a circle" or otherwise behaving like the reclusive Richard Nixon.

And in fact the president has held only one news conference, on Oct. 9, in the 12 weeks or so since then.

But Carter has been far from reclusive.

He held five "town hall meetings" to answer questions from citizens in Burlington, Iowa; Tampa, Fla.; Steubenville, Ohio; Queens, New York, and Dolton, Ill.

Each was roughly twice as long as the standard half-hour Washington news conference.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of elderly Americans are enduring isolation and abuse due to inadequate regulation of nursing homes, says the director of the National Center on the Aging Opportunity Center, Inc., added. "There are mountains of evidence and endless news stories of appalling abuses," Rep. Claude E. Pepper, at 79 the oldest House member Wednesday inevitably to congressional approval of test wells they say would threaten the area's tundra ecology. The committee chairman, Sen. Henry Jackson,

D-Wash., said the current energy shortage makes it important to determine what resources exist. The measure, proposed as an amendment to Alaska lands legislation that would bring about 100 million acres under federal protection, would bar tests during the caribou calving season. About half the state's surviving caribou live in the area.

MOVIES

Burt Reynolds says he's trying to escape the simplistic, light-hearted, and funny roles he's been playing the last few years.

After seeing Starting Over in Amarillo (Cinema Two, 4310 Western) which stars Reynolds (as well as Candice Bergen and Jill Clayburgh), I'm wondering if it isn't too late for him. Either that or Reynolds is going to have to play a few more serious roles before anyone will believe him as a serious actor.

Starting Over is a romantic comedy about a newly divorced free-lance writer, Phil Potter (Reynolds) who pines for his ex-wife, Jessie (Bergen), even as he romances Marilyn, a nursery school teacher (Clayburgh). In essence, it is "An Unmarried Woman" in reverse, the film that proved a winner for Clayburgh last year.

The movie was directed by Alan J. Pakula; the screenplay was written by James L. Brooks. Both Pakula and Brooks are considered among the best in Hollywood in their respective fields, but about halfway through the movie, the action and lines seem to slow down and lose steam: it becomes a bogged-down film with an ungrasped potential to explode with both humor and pain.

As Phil moves into his own apartment and uneasily assumes the long-forgotten role of bachelorhood, we sympathize -- somehow we can understand his elusiveness and his hurt. He calls his ex-wife and after he discovers her tears are not over love lost because of him, we again identify with his pain. These images, and Reynolds' portrayal of them, are among the best, and most promising, of the entire movie.

It is only when Phil begins his romance with Marilyn, after a humorous meeting arranged by his brother and sister-in-law, that "Starting Over" begins to drag. The movie lapses into inane silliness and loses its light, comic touch.

Scenes become repetitive, showing Phil alternately reconciling and breaking up with both his ex-wife and his new lady, until when showtime should be almost over, he makes up his mind. By then, most of the audience doesn't really care who he ends up with, as long as the show ends.

However, Reynolds does make a good stab at becoming un-Hoopered -- he just needs a few more movies like this one where he can be a little less macho before I...and probably other people, can believe him.

The Sweet Dove Died

By Barbara Pym: E.P. Dutton, $8.95

Leonora, the central character in this novel, is a lady - fastidious, elegant, graceful, lovely, selfish, and approaching fifty. She arranges her days to avoid disagreeable places; finds taxi drivers to be "sweet little men"; and thinks of her life as "emotion recollected in tranquillity."

She becomes involved with James, a young man in his twenties, and tries to make him dependent on her. Things are complicated by James' uncle courting Leonora, and an ex-girlfriend and new boyfriend courting James. The situation obviously hampers James' total devotion to Leonora.

Through it all, the lady remains a lady.

Barbara Pym has been called the most underrated writer of the century. Her characters are sharply drawn with the British knack for understatement and satire.

Horowitz & Mrs. Washington By Henry Denker: G.F. Putnam's Sons, $11.95

When Jewish Mr. Horowitz, who has had a mild stroke, meets black Mrs. Washington, who is the physical therapy nurse, the insults fly! He is a stubborn, opinionated, outspoken man. She is a stubborn, capable, quiet woman.

Stealing Heaven By Marion Meade: William Morrow and Company, Inc., $10.95

Is the love story of Heloise and Abelard an insipid, milk-toast tale? Absolutely not! It is a moving story of passion, determination, and courage.

Marion Meade has brought to life the people and atmosphere of 12th century France using existing documents to authenticate the events.

The bare bones of the story are that Heloise and Abelard were lovers; she had a son; he was secretly married; he was castrated, and they entered religious orders.

Abelard was a well-known and respected teacher and philosopher. Heloise was a woman striving to assert her independence of spirit and mind in an age when women had only two choices of living -- to marry or to enter a convent.

Heloise did not want to marry Abelard. She was afraid that marriage would ruin his reputation. But her uncle was so intent upon redeeming the family name that he persuaded Abelard that all would be forgiven if the marriage took place. The uncle was just biding his time. He plotted the brutal attack on Abelard, arranging for a surgeon to be at the castration, so Abelard would not die.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

October 20, 1979

This coming year has in store so many pleasant surprises, each of which offers opportunities, that you might have to become discriminating as to which ones to pursue. Make certain you investigate them all, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Follow your strong convictions and initiate that which you feel is important. You have more control today over your environment than you may realize. Discover who you best get along with romantically by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter which begins anew with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't ignore any strong hunches or intuitions today. They could be trying to direct you toward something extremely beneficial.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone could suddenly enter your life today or go out of it. Whichever event happens will bring with it many new opportunities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The chance you've been looking for to get something you deem important could be at hand today. Be ready to respond if the opening occurs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a good day to attempt that new twist to something that you recently learned. You're in a cycle of fresh beginnings, so don't be afraid to try it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be prepared because conditions could suddenly take an unusual turn today and you will want to be able to take advantage of them. Don't be caught napping.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The thoroughness with which you investigate issues makes today an auspicious time for you to enter into any agreements. You'll leave no stone unturned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a strong probability today that you will discover a better method for doing a repetitious task that has previously had you tied down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Much can be done today toward making amends in a relationship that has not been too stable of late. Make the opening gesture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could have an opportunity today to remove from your path a stumbling block that has had you bogged down for some time. A change for the better would result.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An inquisitive mind today could aid you in making some excellent discoveries so long as you don't let emotion direct your thinking. Use logic, not feelings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't underestimate a change of events today that might appear as if it is stirring the waters for you materially. Something quite profitable could result.
