Inflation keeps up rapid pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pushed by higher prices for food, fuel and housing, consumer prices increased 1.1 percent in September as inflation continued above a 13 percent annual rate, the government said today.

At the same time, it reported that the purchasing power of workers' paychecks declined another 0.7 percent during the month and was down by 4.4 percent from a year earlier.

There was nothing in the September price report to indicate any improvement in the nation's highly disturbing rate of inflation. It matched August's 1.1 percent increase and was the ninth month this year that prices have increased by about 1 percent.

Overall food prices, including restaurant meals, climbed 0.9 percent during September, the biggest increase in five months, and grocery store prices were up 1.1 percent. Food prices had shown little or no increase in the previous three months.

Fuel prices rose sharply again during the month, with home heating oil up 5.6 percent and gasoline prices advancing 3.1 percent to a national average of 99.8 cents a gallon for all types.

The overall cost of housing rose another 1.2 percent, with home mortgage financing up 1.8 percent, partly the result of government efforts to slow the economy by increasing interest rates.

However, even larger increases in mortgage costs probably lie ahead, because the latest actions by the Federal Reserve Board to push interest rates to record levels will not show up in the Consumer Price Index for another month or two, said Patrick Jackman, a Labor Department analyst.

Jackman said consumer prices have increased at a 13.2 percent annual rate during the first nine months of 1979, meaning that if the same trend continues through December, that would be the total increase for the year.

It would be the highest inflation for any year since 1946, when prices were up 18.2 percent after the government lifted wartime price controls.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index stood in September at 223.4 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods and services priced at $100 in 1967 had risen in cost to $223.40 last month.

Prices had increased 12.1 percent in the 12-month period ending in September.

Jackman said the worsening of food prices again following four months of improvement clouds the outlook for an easing of inflation in coming months.

The Carter administration originally had forecast an easing of consumer prices to below a 10 percent rate by the end of the year.

"It's not a very pleasant forecast... I don't see us getting worse, but it looks like we'll be staying right around where we are, with the highest rate of inflation since World War II," Jackman said.

Earlier in the week, Charles L. Schultz, the chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, had said he expected the rate of inflation to be slightly under 13 percent.

Steadily worsening inflation in the economy caused the Federal Reserve Board to take drastic actions on Oct. 6 to slow growth of the money supply and boost interest rates to help contain the upward price spiral.

Schultz said the government's anti-inflation program, which includes wage and price guidelines and restraint on federal spending, is chiefly aimed at keeping higher energy prices from becoming a permanent part of the nation's rate of inflation.

Even if the program is successful, Schultz said the best that can be expected is an inflation rate of 8 percent to 9 percent, which will be much more difficult to reduce. But an effort must be made, he said.

"We need a long-run objective of how to reduce the 8 to 9 percent that is probably the underlying rate."

Schultz told an economic symposium of the Washington Forum on Thursday. He said the sharp slowdown in productivity growth is a key factor in the worsening underlying rate.

Until fairly recently, he said, the underlying rate of inflation was between 6 percent and 6.5 percent. The underlying rate is inflation after discounting unusual increases, such as higher energy costs.

To that, Schultz added 4 percent inflation from higher energy prices and about 2.5 percent from higher housing costs, including home mortgages, to arrive at the current 13 percent inflation rate.

THE PAMPA UNITED FUND reached 68 percent of its 1979-80 campaign goal at Thursday's report meeting. Volunteers reported $124,156 in pledges as the Employee Division — with $16,624.34 — recorded the highest dollar gain. Campaign General Chairman Dick Stowers said all volunteers would have to make a concerted effort in order for the campaign victory meeting to be held Nov. 2 as planned.

Former Pampa dies in gas leak accident

From staff and wire reports

PHILLIPS — A former Pampa man was one of two men killed Thursday after a line carrying hydrogen sulfide gas leaked toxic fumes where maintenance workers were reconnecting the line to an alkalation unit at the Phillips Petroleum Co. refinery here.

Fran McGahen, 29, the son of Lucille McGahen of Pampa, was dead on arrival at North Plains Hospital in Borger Thursday afternoon. Kim Manning, 27, of Borger, died after being transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Thirteen other men were injured in the accident and are hospitalized in Borger in fair to satisfactory condition. One man, 40-year-old Ron Baker of Borger, is listed in critical condition at Northwest Texas Hospital.

The accident occurred when the men were working on Unit No. 22 of the plant, according to company spokesman Jim Ormsby. They were attempting to remove a blind, or metal disc, used to plug a pipe when the gas fumes overcame the men, said Ormsby. He said the pipe was supposed to have been empty.

Company officials say they don't know what the toxic substance was or where it came from. Federal investigators have been summoned to the refinery to determine how the accident occurred and what chemical it was the men inhaled.

Greg Stout, one of the men overcome by fumes, said it was hydrogen disulfide gas that caused the accident and said "the gas is present in many places throughout the plant." All the pipes connect to the main vent pipe where the men were working, he added.

"One of the other units was probably venting their poisonous gas when this pipe was opened up," Stout said.

He added that it smelled like rotten eggs but it "paralyzes" a person's sense of smell and within seconds, a person cannot smell the gas. Dizziness results, followed by death if the person continues to inhale the gas.

McGahen was working on a platform two stories above the ground in the refinery when he fell after being overcome by the fumes.

"He fell about 20 feet to a structure beneath him but that was where all the gas was coming from," Stout said. "Another man passed out and fell ten feet."

Don Gibbs, treated and released for injuries from the accident, said he was working on a furnace when he saw a man hit the ground, another man pass out on the platform and another hanging from a ladder.

About 80 Phillips employees were believed to have been working at the unit when the gas leaked from the pipeline onto the bridge where they were working. The unit is located in the central portion of the refinery section.

Several similar accidents, some considered serious, have caused injuries, but no deaths have occurred from previous accidents.

Nine persons died near Denver City, Texas, in 1975 when hydrogen sulfide fumes leaked from an experimental injection well operated by Atlantic Richfield Co.

South Africa denies blast report

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa today denied U.S. intelligence suggestions that it set off a nuclear device, calling the report total nonsense verging on science fiction.

Dr. J. Wynand de Villiers, president of South Africa's Atomic Energy Board, said the report indicating South Africa might be on the brink of joining only six other nations in the world's known atomic arms club was "complete nonsense."

"I have no knowledge at all of such an explosion," he said. "If there was anything of the sort, my first reaction would be that some other powers might have undertaken a test, but it was definitely not South Africa."

Foreign Minister Roelof F. Botha declared, "I know absolutely nothing about this matter, whatsoever."

"Why don't you ask the Russians or the Chinese, or even the Americans," Botha asked sarcastically. "South Africa is not Antarctica. We might even be talking about Australia or New Zealand."

"It is a particularly vast area in which the phenomenon is supposed to have taken place. If the Americans don't know what is going on, I suggest they first make sure of their facts before they run away with the idea."

"It might even have been the rebirth of Venus. I suggest that the Americans ask Neptune for a report."

Botha said the United States, "as leaders of the Western world, should not panic so easily."

U.S. officials told reporters in Washington Thursday night they had evidence South Africa may have exploded a nuclear device in the atmosphere last month.

The officials said the indicators were picked up by a reconnaissance satellite, and were not conclusive. But they said their evidence indicated a "low-yield nuclear explosion occurred on Sept. 22 in an area of the Indian ocean and South Atlantic, including portions of the Antarctic continent and the southern part of Africa."

In Washington, meanwhile, Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee on Africa, termed the reports "deeply disturbing."

Chamber's banquet attracts 400

The first Pampa Chamber of Commerce Banquet treated about 400 citizens and Chamber of Commerce members to an entertaining evening of humor and talent Thursday evening at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Highlight of the festivities was the address given by Dr. Don Newbury, Director of Communications for Tarrant County Junior College in Fort Worth.

Other entertainment was provided by The Entertainers a talented group of four singers directed by Sue Higdon.

In an interview Thursday morning, Newbury described his position at the junior college by saying, "My primary job is keeping us in the news and off the front page."

According to Newbury, he began his speaking career about 15 years ago by speaking at church and school events and to civic organizations.

"It's hard every time I get up there," Newbury commented, relating the problems of speaking to an unresponsive audience.

"I don't do it every night," he said, adding he enjoyed speaking to audiences two or three times a week.

"There's some excitement in this town,"

Newbury said of his first impression of Pampa. He said he was impressed with the many good things "without benefit of matching funds from the government" he saw while being driven to Pampa from the airport, and commented on the enthusiasm of the "gold coats" — Chamber of Commerce members — as they described their city.

The theme of Newbury's address to the banquet centered on the ability of a community to "get things done as a group."

As an example, Newbury related a personal story in which he and his daughters went to get snow cones. He was appalled when he found they cost from 30 to 50 cents, so he went home and started his own snow cone business — only his were free.

According to Newbury, it was the beginning of the "PHD Snowcone Man" — as he was described by a national magazine.

The free snow cones, Newbury explained, resulted in a new birth of community activities. Neighbors discovered they could talk to and work with each other. People began gathering in the Newbury garage to eat snow cones and discuss community problems.

"Car pools were born — recipes exchanged," Newbury said. At the end of the summer, a woman phoned his home from 400 miles away and asked what he did in the winter to bring people together. He explained Texas winters were too cold for snow cones, not knowing the caller owned a theater chain and had already sent a $2,000 popcorn machine to be used for cold weather.

Apologizing for his homey stories, Newbury said, "I hate to give only personal experiences, but they're the only kind I have."

"Remember yesterday, dream of tomorrow, but work for today," Newbury said in conclusion. "Dream and build for the least and the most of these, my brethren."

Newbury's witty and thought-provoking oration received a standing ovation from the audience.

Luther Robinson, president of the Chamber of Commerce for 1979, handed the gavel to 1980 president Art Aftergut saying, "Artie, Mr. Pampa, you deserve this gavel. Good luck!"

Accepting the gavel, Aftergut responded, "Thank you for having confidence in me. We're going to have a sensational year, this year."

Improvement funds granted

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission Thursday allocated $454,000 in federal monies to Gray County's Perry Lefors Airport for improvements there.

Funds are to be used to resurface runways and taxiways, paint and stripe runways and runway lights and repair hangars.

PRPC also granted a request by the City of Miami for $42,645.30 to be used to pay the balance on a new fire truck purchased by the city.

Funds allocated are part of almost $3 million the commission agreed to grant in federal funds in Thursday's meeting.

Special fund established

A fund to aid J.J. Roach, a Pampa man who underwent eye surgery Thursday in Amarillo, has been set up at both First National Bank and Citizens Bank and Trust.

The Roach family does not have insurance and the fund has been set up to help with medical bills.

Donations should be made through Glenda Anderson at the First National Bank and can be taken from anyone at Citizens Bank, including at the drive-in facility.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covington Commandment.

Med costs slowing

The latest figures on health-care costs don't rate banner headlines, but they do seem to contradict the Carter administration's contention that hospital and other medical costs continue to soar out of control. In fact, the figures suggest that the private health-care industry is now doing slightly better than the economy as a whole in restraining cost increases.

In July, for example, the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index showed an 11.3-percent increase over July of 1978. Yet, physicians' services rose 9.6 percent and medical costs overall registered a 9.3 percent increase over the previous year.

Hospital costs, over which the administration seeks direct controls, rose at an annual rate of 13.2 percent during the first six months of 1979. By comparison, the effective inflation rate for the first half of this year was 13.5 percent.

That the rise in the cost of health-care services now trails the rate of inflation is especially significant given the situation just two years ago. In 1977, hospital costs rose 15.6 percent — more than double the inflation rate for that year.

At least some of the credit for this improvement must be attributed to the voluntary cost-containment efforts under way at three-quarters of the nation's community hospitals. Only eight states have enacted mandatory cost-control legislation and even in these states controls cannot account for all of the economies affected.

Apparently, hospital administrators have begun to realize that they must either act themselves to restrain costs or Washington will do it for them. Pressures to economize have also come from insurance companies which pay much of the nation's total hospital bill.

No one is suggesting, of course, that the fight to hold down hospital and other medical cost increases has been won. The battle is barely joined.

It is, however, noteworthy that encouraging progress has been made without the mandatory controls the Carter administration continues to seek and Congress may yet grant. Given the dismal record of price controls and the heartening experience of the last year or so, we continue to believe that voluntarism ought to be given more time to work.

The results might surprise even the skeptics in Washington.

U.S. stands alone on fishing rights

The seizure of U.S. tuna boats fishing within 200 miles of the coast of Canada has started a quarrel between two friendly neighbors. This is not the only damage being done by our official policy that tuna, as a migratory fish, should be excluded from control in the 200-mile "economic zones" now falling under the jurisdiction of coastal states.

The long-standing "tuna war" erupted anew earlier this year when U.S.-based boats were seized off the coast of Costa Rica. Meanwhile, the same issue has pitted the United States at loggerheads with Fiji, Papua New Guinea and other new island nations in the South Pacific. Under the 200-mile rule they are claiming jurisdiction over fishing in a vast area where tuna is one of the catches.

American fishermen have logic on their side. A migratory fish that swims in and out of territorial waters can hardly be classed as one country's resource or another's. But the logic of that argument does not make it acceptable even to a country like Canada, which has much less of an economic stake in the tuna catch than smaller coastal or island nations.

Japan, the Soviet Union and other countries with fishing fleets that roam the world are bowing to the 200-mile claims and making the best of it. Japan, for instance, is developing joint cannery operations in the Fijis and Solomons. Japanese boats will get their tuna, but the islanders will share the wealth.

Congress so far has been willing to reimburse American fishermen who are fined for taking tuna without a license within the 200-mile zone. But the willingness of Congress to stick with that policy may weaken if it continues to create aggravations in our relations with many developing nations. It is possible that U.S. policy eventually will have to recognize that coastal and island states have some claim to migratory fish that are caught within their economic zones.

Neither diplomats nor fishermen can change the habits of the far-ranging tuna, but they can try to replace confrontation with compromise on this issue, and that may be the key to a peaceful and still-prosperous future for the U.S. tuna industry.

Verbal math S.A.T. scores decline to all time low

Scholastic Aptitude Test scores—viewed generally as a barometer of performance in the nation's high schools—dropped to record low levels this year, despite the anticipation of many educators that scores in 1979 would start up again after a 10-year decline.

The average verbal score had leveled off in 1978, but it went down from 429 to 427, according to a report released last month by the College Board, which administers the tests. The average mathematical score dropped from 468 to 427. In the Southern region, students averaged a verbal score of 410 and a math score of 444. A perfect score is 800 on each test.

Approximately one million high school seniors took the S.A.T. in the 1978-79 academic year. They comprise about two-thirds of the 1979 high school graduates who went directly to college and about one-third of the total high school graduating class. The College Board estimated that if all three million high school seniors had taken the S.A.T. in academic 1978-79, their average verbal score would have been 368 and their average mathematical score 402.

The continued dip is "disappointing in light of what many schools have been doing to improve education," said Robert G. Cameron, program officer of the College Board's Admissions Testing Program. "But since there are many causes for the decline, schools cannot expect to reverse the trend quickly or single-handedly."

Since 1972, national S.A.T. verbal scores have fallen 26 points, while the math scores have dropped 16 points.

Two years ago, a special panel of educators blamed the decline on a variety of factors, including television viewing, changes in the family's role, turbulence in national affairs, and relaxed teaching and learning standards.

The new report revealed that males had higher verbal and mathematical scores than females, but women continued to excel on the Test of Standard Written English. The average verbal score was 431 for men and 423 for women. The average scores for the Test of Standard Written English were 43.2 for women and 41.8 for men out of a possible 60.

The average score on the Test of Standard Written English has declined each year since it was introduced in 1975, when the average scores were 44.3 for women and 42.2 for men.

By Don Graff

It was not too many years back that the advice to the adventurous was to go west and seek their fortunes.

Which makes it appear strange at first thought that it should be descendants of those who heeded that advice who today are displaying a marked reluctance to cash in on fortunes literally beneath their feet.

Yet this is the situation as a dozen Western states warily eye Washington's gropings toward a national energy policy, and find themselves suddenly courted by an administration that previously could spare little of its attention for them and their interests.

The reason for both developments is the oil, shale, natural gas, uranium and above all coal possessed by these states, deposits that represent 90 percent or better of the potential new energy sources in the entire nation. Compared to this treasure, the lodes of gold and silver that helped open up the West in the last century were dime-store stuff.

The states are well aware of the value of what they possess, but they are not about to rush into its exploitation. They favor development, but they want to be certain that the form of development benefits them as well as the distant industrial and population centers of the Midwest and East. The West does not want to become another Appalachia — its wealth consumed, its environment spoiled and its future foreclosed for short-term economic gain.

Consequently, their wary attitude toward Washington's energy frenzy.

From the Western point of view, there is good reason for wariness. The history of the region's relationship with the rest of the nation and particularly with the federal government is not encouraging.

For decades the geographically vast but sparsely populated and underdeveloped region has seen itself as an economic colony of non-Western business interests. More, it has been held in virtual territorial fiefdom by Washington. Vast tracts of all Western states are government land. The extreme case is Alaska — 95 percent federally owned. In the contiguous 48, Nevada is high with 87 percent. In none of the Western 12 is the federal territorial share less than a third.

In no other region of the nation does a similar situation prevail. As the Western states view the situation, the federal holdings limit sovereignty and obstruct economic development. Some of the federal land is in national parks and forests, about which there is little objection. But most is wilderness, timberland and range in the custody of the Bureau of Land Management, which, as local government's see it, does not do a very good job of managing.

Several states are contesting Washington's right to the public lands — Nevada having gone so far as to legislatively expropriate 49 million federal acres. Taking possession is, however, another matter.

With their energy resources, the states are in a different position — a much more advantageous one. The land is subject to state jurisdiction, enabling state governments to determine to a great extent the conditions of exploitation. And most are doing so.

Montana, whose vast coal deposits are only beginning to be tapped, has enacted stringent severance regulations and fees that are models of their kind in minimizing the destructive environmental and social havoc that mineral extraction can entail. It has profited from the example — a bad one — of neighboring Wyoming, which got into the energy game earlier with much looser rules and has suffered some of the disadvantages of too-sudden growth, such as shanty boom towns and law enforcement problems.

The Western 12 have joined — working through the two-year-old Western Governors Policy Office — to develop common policies where possible and present a united front to Washington. And they are being courted by Washington, by no less an emissary than the much-traveled Jimmy Carter who between trains and river steamers managed to work in a visit to Albuquerque especially to confer with the governors.

He found them not so much difficult as determined — that that West is not going to repeat an earlier chapter in its history which Colorado Gov. Richard D. Lamm entitles "rape and run."

With good reason. The region's present inhabitants are not like most of the old prospectors who were the first to exploit its riches. They were just passing through.

Today's Westerners are there to stay.

Recalling the crash

By Anthony Harrigan

This month marks a half century since the Crash-Black Tuesday, Oct. 29, 1929—the day the stock market collapsed. It was the beginning of the Great Depression which lasted for a decade.

I was a child when the Crash occurred. And like millions of Americans who grew up in the Depression, I experienced a psychological shock from those years that I have felt throughout my life.

My family was luckier than most, for we weren't reduced to poverty. While my father lost the greater part of his life savings—invested in National City Bank stock, we always had more than adequate food and shelter.

Prior to the Depression, President Coolidge remarked, with characteristic obtuseness: "When a great many people are unable to find work, unemployment results." So it was in 1933 when 12 million Americans, in a nation of fewer than 130 million, were out of work.

It was a desperate time, as the older generation today well remembers. The breadlines, soup kitchens and other features of the Depression are unreal images to a new generation. But those who lived through the trials of that period will never forget the harshness of the experience.

Economists will long debate what caused the Depression and who was responsible. Undoubtedly, however, a major factor was the wild speculation and the failure of national leaders to look ahead. My own father shouldn't have made speculative investments. He was a physician and knew little about financial matters.

One aspect of the Depression that should be noted now is that it brought out the best in people. Charity was a reality in those times. People with food in the house fed the down-and-out. An army of tramps was nourished with plates of food at back doors. Families and neighbors shared with one another. The spirit of the American people was strengthened in adversity. The Depression prepared the American people for the ordeal of World War II, the suffering and the sacrifice of wartime.

Can it happen again? The economists say "no." Unquestionably, we face a different set of circumstances. The speculative fever has disappeared, except for dealing in gold. Few Americans are involved in such speculation, however.

But we have grave problems that threaten our well-being. We have billions of dollars being distributed in welfare, food stamps and so-called "transfer payments" for which no goods or services are produced. The nation's oil import bill is $80 billion higher than it was in 1973. That's a colossal hemorrhage of dollars which drains our economy. We may be compelled to pay much more to the OPEC countries within a year or so.

We also have a mountain of personal debt on credit cards, mortgages, auto loans, and other forms of debt. We are increasingly dependent on foreign resources and goods of all kinds. Our factories are old and our tax laws prevent their modernization. In many ways, our industrial system is running down. We have a government apparatus that is hostile to enterprise and to saving.

A vein of folly runs through human history. We may never have another 1930s-type Depression. The likelihood of terrible perils ahead is very real, nevertheless. The nation ought to be aware that disaster is a real possibility when historical vision is absent.

We need to remember the Great Depression in order to prevent another enormous crisis.

Letters

God Is Asking the Question:
"Where Art Thou?"

Genesis 3:1-13
After Adam and Eve had sinned by eating the forbidden fruit of the tree of the Knowledge of good and evil, they realized that they were naked and went and hid themselves in shame. God came into the garden and asked, "Where art thou?" Since that day people have been sinning and God has been asking, "Where art thou?"

The Satanic snakes of today are just as evil and enticing as the Serpent was there in the garden. As a Bible-believing Fundamentalist, I would be betraying the Savior that bought my soul and the God that anointed me to preach, if I did not expose these snakes.

The snakes of moral corruption heads the list. Adultery continues to rise, even as God says in I Corinthians 6:9 that adulterers will spend eternity in hell. The snakes of homosexuality and lesbianism are openly displayed. God reveals in Romans 1:26-32 that ALL that practice such vulgar sins have been given over to a "reprobate mind." They are to the very bottom of ungodliness. They will spend all eternity in the Lake of Fire. Drugs have become a necessity of many. Even grade school children are hooked by Satan on these sure trips to the eternal pits of hell. In Revelations 21:8 we find sorcerers on the list who are cast into the Lake of Fire. Sorcerers are those that use drugs to get high. Alcohol and marijuana are drugs!!! Those that use drugs to escape reality will wake up one day in a real, burning, smoking, literal Lake of Fire.

Satan has sent one snake to ruin all womanhood. This snake goes by "ERA". This snake is in complete rebellion to the Bible. (For those that dare to trust this wicked snake, read Ephesians 5:22-31. Don't get mad at me. God said it, you read it!) Right beside this snake is one called the "International Year of the Child". This is a direct assault on the home and parenthood. Ephesians 6:1-4 tells children that they must obey and honor their parents. What has this snake told them.

The snake of unbelief will be standing there laughing as all who have never received Jesus as their Personal Savior are cast into the pit where "their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."

Rev. Jerry A. West, Pastor,
Pampa Baptist Temple

Dear Editor:

For some reason I was under the assumption that there is a law in this state, whereby people have 30 days to get their out-of-state tags exchanged for Texas ones. If this is true, why is that tan & cream van (which resides on N. Somerville) still driving 'round with Kansas tags? They have had them on since May at least. I have seen it and so have my family. Do we have two sets of laws in this town; one for the common folks and another for the well-to-do? More shame to us if such as this is allowed to continue without even a "slap on the wrist."

Six charged in student death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Six Holmes High School students have been arrested on murder warrants in connection with the death Monday of a classmate from a rival faction, who was killed when a congenitally weak artery burst allegedly as he was being beaten.

Officers made the arrests Thursday afternoon at the 3,100-student suburban high school — about the time other Holmes students were attending the funeral for 15-year-old Billy Barnett, a sophomore member of the school's Rodeo Club.

Five juveniles were charged with delinquent conduct on warrants alleging murder and confined today in the juvenile detention center.

The sixth student, 18-year-old David Reyes, was charged with murder and held Thursday night in the Bexar County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Rudy Esquivel.

A hearing was set this afternoon to determine whether the juveniles can be released to their parents or guardians. Three are 16 years old and two are 15.

Police said the six assailants followed Barnett off a school bus Monday afternoon near his home. The beating, police said, came after recent tensions between two Holmes factions.

Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben

Santos ruled that Barnett died from "natural causes," not from the blows. Santos said Barnett had only four "minor" abrasions and bruises on his body, one on his face and one behind an ear.

"If not for the ruptured artery, this boy would have walked away from this," said Santos, who has gotten numerous angry calls on his ruling.

First Assistant District Attorney Charles Conaway, publicly at odds with Santos on the case, said prosecutors allege that the youths beat and kicked Barnett in the head, thereby causing his death.

"His (Santos') ruling is just an expression of an opinion," said Conaway. "Opinions are like noses. Everyone's got one."

Conaway said he felt the murder warrants are supported by the evidence gathered thus far. Five eyewitnesses told police Barnett was kicked and beaten by the youths before he died.

The murder charge, however, could be reduced to involuntary manslaughter or aggravated assault, Conaway added.

"After it's all over, maybe no one will be prosecuted. But we're not going to drop it at the ruling of Dr. Santos that it was a natural death," he said.

The maximum punishment for a juvenile offender is confinement in a Texas Youth Council facility until his 18th birthday.

BOB BRANDT, son of Royce and Marlene Brandt of 2725 Aspen, recently earned the rank of Eagle Scout from the Boy Scouts of America. A member of Troop 404, sponsored by the First Christian Church, the 16-year-old enjoys golf, riding motorcycles and photography in his spare time. A junior at Pampa High School, he's a member of Key Club and the boys golf team.

Coalition asks courts to redraw voting precincts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A coalition of organizations, calling Texas "the most gerrymandered state in the Southwest," is asking federal courts to order 11 counties to redraw precinct lines.

William Velasquez, director of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, said Thursday the counties have intentionally drawn precinct lines that dilute Mexican-American voting strength.

Velasquez sat in front of a map showing 97 Texas counties in which he said Mexican-Americans are underrepresented on commissioners courts.

He said continued losses at the polls in those counties have alienated Mexican-American voters and left them with little hope of representation.

The counties named in the federal suits Thursday were Atascosa, Medina, Refugio, Uvalde, Cochran, Edwards, Lynn, Dawson, Crosby, Victoria and Castro.

Of the 11 counties named in the suits, Uvalde County is the only one with a Spanish-surnamed county commissioner.

Velasquez was joined at the news conference by officials from the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the League of United Latin-American Citizens and the American GI Forum. Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., also helped prepare the litigation, he said.

The suits are the result of a two-year study of county government in Texas, the officials said. Velasquez said the first 66 counties checked were gerrymandered — "some to an outrageous degree."

The suits charge the county precinct lines violate the one-man, one-vote doctrine. Federal law says the most populous precinct in a county should not be more than 10 percent larger than the least populous precinct.

Statistics gathered by the organizations showed all 11 counties are violating that law. In Edwards County, the largest precinct is 180 percent larger than the "ideal precinct" (based on the 1970 census).

The smallest precinct is 80 percent smaller than the ideal precinct, according to the figures.

Rolando Rios, director of litigation for SVREP, said staff members were "told to get out of the county by sundown" when they tried to look at voter registration figures in the Southwest Texas county.

Velasquez said more suits may follow.

"We intend to remedy this problem even if it takes us suing all the counties," Velasquez said. He said the organizations have the funds to pursue the matter, but he added he hoped the counties would agree to negotiate new precinct lines.

Rios said reapportionment of the 97 counties would mean Mexican-Americans would be in the majority in 104 precincts. He said there are now only 17 Mexican-Americans on commissioners courts in the 97 counties.

El Paso Rep. Paul Moreno, chairman of the Mexican-American Legislative Caucus, voiced his support for the legal action. He said, "the only way the Mexican-American can get any political power is through the courts. Our state government is quite biased."

Dallas girl still missing

Elizabeth Barclay

DALLAS (AP) — Police held a man today who fit the description of the kidnapper of a 7-year-old girl who has been missing for four days, but officers admitted they were not optimistic about the possible suspect.

"Chances are very slim that he will be the suspect," said Police Sgt. John Adamcik. "He's just another one of many people that fit the general description of the (kidnapper) and drive an automobile that may generally fit the description."

Elsewhere, police continued to search the city for blond Elizabeth Barclay, the first-grader abducted Tuesday night as she walked to the store to buy some ice cream with her 3-year-old brother and 5-year-old boy.

The two little boys told police a husky black man in his 30s whisked Elizabeth into a black or gray 1974 Buick. Her playmates said the man told them, "I'm going to take her and throw her in the water."

The potential suspect was arrested Thursday night as they searched for 1974 dull gray Buicks.

The man, who was arrested on an outstanding traffic ticket, generally fit the description of the abductor. But Adamcik said, "Some of our investigators will talk to him, obtain photographs, get all the information as to his whereabouts on that particular day ... and chances are that he will be released."

minor accidents

A 1979 Oldsmobile driven by Irma Miller, 74, of 2500 Christine, was making a left turn onto Decatur Street from Hobart when it was struck by a 1969 GMC pickup driven by 19-year-old Casey Robertson of 424 N. Doyle. Robertson was traveling south on Hobart. No injuries were reported at the scene.
 A hit-and-run accident occurred at the intersection of Harvester and Doucette involving a 1970 Chevrolet Caprice driven by Jimmy West, 18, of 502 Dolomite in Borger and an unidentified pickup. Both vehicles were traveling west on Harvester when the mishap occurred. West was struck by the pickup, then forced to the curb. The pickup then backed into West. The unidentified vehicle left the scene of the accident. No injuries were reported.
 Jimmie R. Carroll, 51, of 633 N. Wells backed from a driveway on Fields Street into an eastbound 1967 Chrysler driven by 51-year-old Samuel Hanks, 436 Jupiter. Carroll was cited for improper backing.

Military school students run amok

MIAMI (AP) — Police say it was hysteria brought on by a hypnosis demonstration. Some students say it was demons. A school official calls it a political dirty trick.
 Whatever it was, police say something sent students and teachers rampaging through a military school in Miami's Little Havana section Thursday, smashing windows, ripping a door from its frame and screaming they were possessed by spirits.
 "The whole school went berserk," police officer Harry Cunnill said. "Teachers and students were running around tearing things up."

Fire Department spokesman Dan LeMay said a number of students collapsed from hysteria and "flaked out all over the place."
 Police called to restore order at the school found "people yelling and screaming they were possessed." Cunnill said. He said the events followed a 10th grade science demonstration of hypnosis, and students told firemen there had been a recent class on the supernatural.
 LeMay said rescuers were dispatched to the school after the fire department received a report of an unconscious child. "Some other kids said something supernatural had possessed him," he said. "I saw three girls. They had fainted," said one young student. "There was some screaming about 'bloody Mary' and more screaming."

 Authorities say none of the 300 students at Miami Aerospace Academy, some of them from South America, was seriously hurt. LeMay said one frenzied youngster was treated for cuts suffered when he shattered a window.
 "It seems they were induced by the sight of others who became hysterical — it was like a domino effect," he said.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press
 Pleasant fall weather was in store for all of Texas today as forecasts called for clear skies and temperature readings in the 80s.
 Readings in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas were expected to be more like summer than fall with highs reaching into the upper 90s.
 Forecasts called for the pleasant weather to remain at least through Saturday.

FORECAST
 North Texas — Sunny and warm through Saturday. Highs 80 to 86. Lows 54 to 58.
 South Texas — Mostly sunny and warm. Highs 80s. Lows 50s and 60s.
 West Texas — Generally fair and warmer through Saturday. Partly cloudy and cooler north Saturday.

COOLER WEATHER was expected for the northern and central Plains in the forecast period lasting until Saturday morning. Mild weather is forecast for the eastern third of the country, while clear, warm weather is expected for the West.

JANIS JOHNSON

Janis Johnson in cotton contest

Janis Johnson of Pampa is one of 20 finalists in the South Plains Maid of Cotton Selection, a preliminary to the national Maid of Cotton contest.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Johnson, 2123 Russell, she is competing through Saturday in the area finals in Lubbock. The final round of judging will be at 7 p.m. Saturday, and will be televised on KMAC-TV, Channel 28, in Lubbock.

Miss Johnson, 20, is competing against 50 other young women from Texas and New Mexico. A junior student at Texas Tech University, she is majoring in elementary education.

A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority, she is a Dean's List student, a President's Hostess, Red Raider Recruiter and a Panhellenic delegate. She is active in the First Baptist Church of Lubbock. A Pampa High School graduate, Miss Johnson was Pampa Noon Lions Club queen and runner-up in District 2T-1 Lions Club queen contest and the Miss Top O' Texas pageant.

Winner of the South Plains contest, sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, receives an all-cotton wardrobe and an expense-paid trip to the National Maid of Cotton competition in Memphis in December.

Two runners-up in the Lubbock competition will be awarded $100 gift certificates.

The national winner will represent the National Cotton Council and the cotton industry on an international tour from January through August 1980. One of her first appearances will be at the Cotton Bowl Pageant in Dallas on New Year's Day.

Prepare before calling contractor to ensure better remodeling

If you're looking for a contractor to remodel that kitchen you can't wait to cook in, you could start by checking your telephone directory.

The telephone directory, notes "House & Garden" magazine, is fine for finding phone numbers of local contractors. But to ensure that a prospect is reliable, the magazine recommends looking for a NHIC member.

The National Home Improvement Council (11 East 44th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017) is a prime source of information. Its membership consists of home remodeling contractors, suppliers, lenders and others in the industry who have developed a far-reaching Code of Ethics to ensure the best possible job.

Even before calling a contractor, the magazine suggests homeowners take steps such as the following:

— Draw rough floor plans and sketch details of walls and ceilings for exact placement of electrical outlets, switches, lights, shelves, closets, counters, sinks, tubs, doors, windows and any other additions. Include measurements or approximations.

— Select brand names, manufacturers' model numbers and color codes for all appliances and fixtures. By having an idea of what you want, you'll save time when the contractor comes.

— List brand names and grades when applicable, for all building materials such as paints, wood finishes, wood flooring, windows, doors, roofing, siding, paneling and plumbing.

— Specify all details you can name, especially those most dear to you, be it mitered corners or cabinets or a four-inch step between kitchen and patio.

Taking these steps first will help organize your ideas, clarify design and cost and, best of all, eliminate misunderstandings with your chosen contractor.

Educating yourself

Don't worry if you don't know the difference between a BX cable and a PCB pipe — you'll learn quickly. Familiarize yourself with building materials and equipment described in various publications, in catalogs, at home centers and lumberyards.

Get whatever you can in samples of wood for flooring, sizes of pipes for plumbing, how much and what kind of insulation you feel you need.

Reputable contractors will be happy to answer questions, outline construction steps, and provide a list of materials necessary for the job.

Take advantage of their expert opinions — and ask questions about light, space, decoration or structure.

If you give each bidding contractor a copy of your project description, and request that bids specify all details of the project, total cost and completion date, you'll have a solid basis for comparing bids.

Finally, when you think you've found a suitable contractor with a reasonable estimate and completion date, ask for a list of similar projects he has done.

A visit to job sites will give you a preview of workmanship and a chance to chat with clients — who might share the wisdom of hindsight.

DR. LAMB

Honey is no cataract cure PEOPLE

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will a drop of honey in each eye every night for three weeks clear a cataract? I have heard over the radio that honey will cure arthritis and it is good for cataracts. I had cataract surgery on both eyes but my sister has to have cataract surgery in the near future.

DEAR READER — No, honey will not cure or prevent cataracts.

A cataract involves changes of the lens inside the eye. If you look at the eye closely and note the pupil, the lens is situated some distance behind the pupil itself. It's a globular, jelly-like structure that in your youth is very flexible. It has a circle of muscles around it which contract and relax, thereby compressing the lens as needed or allowing it to expand. This change in the jelly-like lens is how it's focused automatically so you can look near or far.

When the lens is clear, it transmits clear light rays and you should be able to see clearly and distinctly if all of the rest of the eye is normal, too. That, by the way, is important because you can have other problems besides cataracts that can cause poor vision. When the lens gets cloudy and has trouble transmitting light, then the things you look at begin to look blurred. This is what a cataract really is. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, the lens of the eye has certain tissue similarities to that of your skin. It constantly forms new cells. In the case of your skin, the old cells are simply shed from the surface. There isn't any place for old cells to go in the lens of your eye. The new cells form at the outside and the old cells are pushed to the interior part of the lens itself. These are damaged cells and cause the cloudy changes in the lens. That's why age is the most common cause of cataracts.

There are a number of other things that can contribute to the early development of cataracts but age still is the most important factor.

Not everyone who has cataracts needs surgery. Many people have these opacities in the lens of the eye and can still see rather well, particularly with the aid of glasses. If that's the case, it's too early to do surgery. These small areas of opacification in the lens are sometimes referred to as immature cataracts.

Still other patients have additional disease in the eye that affects the vision to the point that doing cataract surgery won't help a great deal. That's why the decision as to whether surgery should be done or not has to be based on a careful eye examination by your ophthalmologist.

As you will see from The Health Letter I'm sending you, there are a lot of important considerations about cataracts, including what kind of glasses or contact lenses you might have after surgery. In general, if the cataract is the only significant eye pathology, surgery combined with contact lenses after surgery provides very suitable vision.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

Teen chaperones kid sis on dates

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and my 14-year-old sister has been seeing this 18-year-old guy for about two months.

My mother thinks it's OK for him to see her on the weekends but I've got to go every place they go. I don't like it and my sister and this guy get mad at me. Help. — Carolyn, Pampa, Texas

Carolyn: I'll admit that this is an odd one. If your sister is allowed to date, you shouldn't be punished because of it. Why don't you see if you can make plans to do something with your friends next weekend?

Personally, I feel your mother is a bit misguided in the dating philosophy for your sister.

Dr. Wallace: At our high school, the latest fad was to bring a squirt gun to school. I admit that I once brought one.

As the problem progressed, teachers made the punishment severe for those who were caught. Then some teachers went so far as to make the girls open their purses and searched them.

I thought that was going too far and I never would have consented to it. What do you think? — Lisa, Zanesville, Ohio

Lisa: First of all, the teacher has the right to search a student's locker, purse, etc., if the teacher thinks the safety or welfare of any student or students is about to be violated. But in this case, if I were teaching, I would not search anyone to see if they possessed a squirt gun but I'd be severe in my punishment if someone used it in the classroom.

Being a former high school principal, I saw many a squirt gun and had to suspend a few "gunners."

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged to a wonderful young man who lives in another city. I was very happy until he informed me that he had decided to share an apartment with a woman co-worker until we get married next year!

He assured me that the arrangement is strictly a financial one—that he prefers to live with a woman that he already knows is honest and reliable than to advertise for an unknown male.

Although I want to trust him, I can't help feeling resentful.

He tells me that when I come to visit, I will be convinced that there is no romantic involvement, but I don't know if I can reserve judgment until then.

I am debating between giving him an ultimatum and trusting him implicitly.

Abby, do you think it's possible to share living quarters with one of the opposite sex and have a platonic relationship? And what should I do?

FUMING

DEAR FUMING: Yes. But stop fuming and start rooming with a male friend and see how your fiancé takes it.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I spent two hours scrubbing our tile shower with a toothbrush, detergent and bleach. It sparkled. My husband's only comment: "You missed a spot by the door."

This is typical of his reaction to nearly everything I do. He is the most critical person in the world, from the way I dress to the side of the sink I wash the dishes in. No matter how hard I try, he always finds something to criticize. When I mentioned this to him, he told me that the trouble with me is that I have never learned how to take criticism.

Abby, my mother is the "West Coast Distributor for Criticism," and I have had plenty of it, so I think I know how to handle it, but the way my husband finds a flaw in everything I do is driving me up the wall!

We've been married only a year, and I can't see myself taking 20 to 30 more years of his petty faultfinding.

He never misses your column. I hope you print this and he sees it before it's too late, and my self-worth is completely destroyed.

HURT IN LONG BEACH

DEAR HURT: Don't rely on a few lines in my column to communicate the hurt, anger and frustration you feel. Choose the proper time to vent your feelings, and encourage your husband to vent his. "Every animal revenges his pains upon those who happen to be near" (Samuel Johnson). Chances are that your critical husband is hurting, too.

DEAR ABBY: My son has been married for two years now and, would you believe, I have never seen my daughter-in-law in a dress. Never!

She wears jeans in the daytime, and when she gets dressed up, she wears pants suits. She's a nice-looking girl and I think she would look so much more feminine in a dress, but I swear to goodness, I don't think she owns one.

Should I say something to her about it? I wouldn't be mean. I would just tell her she would look so much prettier in a dress. She's a motherless child and needs someone to teach her how to dress.

W. V.A. MOM-IN-LAW

DEAR MOM: Your daughter-in-law has the right to wear what she wants, and she obviously prefers pants. You've mentioned your preference to your son; that's enough. Unasked-for advice is seldom appreciated.

First Baptist to burn note

A note-burning ceremony and a barbecue will be part of the activities Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

Signifying the clearance of indebtedness on the auditorium, parlor and office facilities, the note-burning will take place in the morning service, which begins at 11.

After the worship service, a barbecue dinner will be served at the Fellowship Hall. Two church members donated about 800 pounds of beef for the meal.

The newest facilities of the church complex, completed in 1976, replaced the facilities destroyed in a fire Dec. 23, 1973, some four years after an extensive remodeling project was completed.

Groundbreaking on the new structure was in January 1975. Services were conducted in the Fellowship Hall of the Education Building until September 1976, when the congregation met for the first time in the new auditorium.

The congregation, which numbers 3,600, contributed more than a million dollars to defray the $1,750,000 cost of the building. The indebtedness was on about $500,000 still owed.

Sunday is also high attendance day for the church, with a goal of 1,313 for Sunday School.

The Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, invites members of the church and other interested persons to attend the service and barbecue.

Church sets attendance goal

A high attendance day has been set by the membership of Central Baptist Church of Pampa for the Sunday School this coming Sunday, at 9:45 a.m. with a goal of 635 persons expected to attend the Bible Study Hour. This is part of statewide, associational-wide and convention emphasis for high attendance.

The emphasis has been successful in the past years as many have attended Sunday School on this day. According to the Minister of Education Jerry Arrington, the goal represents 100 more in Sunday School Bible Study than the last previous mark.

The entire Sunday School membership has been urged to attend on this day and Central Baptist Church invites anyone not presently attending a Bible Study on Sunday morning to attend this Sunday.

Mrs. Martin to fill Miami pulpit

MIAMI — Mrs. Cecil Martin will be the guest speaker at First Christian Church, Miami, at the regular 10:55 a.m. worship service Sunday. She will be filling the pulpit for Rev. Dale Harter, who is attending the General Assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) meeting in St. Louis.

Mrs. Martin is no stranger to the Miami pulpit. She was chosen as the guest speaker for Women's Day, celebrated last February 11th. She is an active member of the First Christian Church, serving as assistant Sunday School superintendent and teaching the third grade class. She is a third generation member of that congregation.

She has chosen her theme, "Let Go - Let God." Special music will be given by Vicki Martin, daughter of the guest speaker, and Cecil Martin. Vicki will also be at the piano for the morning worship service with Angie Bean at the church organ.

Sunday School with classes for all age groups meet at 9:45 a.m. The youth will have their regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. at the Jim Doss home.

Center to show movies

The movie "A Thief in the Night" will be shown Sunday night at 7 at the Community Christian Center, 801 E. Campbell.

It is a mighty motion picture about Bible prophecy and what can happen when Jesus Christ returns. The fast-moving page includes a young man confronted by a deadly Asian cobra, a young girl's daring escape from jail and a take-over by The Imperium, which regards all who are not properly identified as enemies of the state.

On Monday night at 7, the Center will show "A Distant Thunder," the gripping story of how conditions might well be during the great tribulation. It begins where "A Thief in the Night" ended. Admission to both movies is free.

Johnson Temple schedule full

A night of gospel singing Saturday will begin a full week of activities at the Johnson Temple Church of God in Christ, 324 S. Starkweather.

Saturday night's program, scheduled to begin at 7:30, will feature the Gospel Melodies from Easton, Texas, and the Melody King and Gospel Supremes from Liberal, Kan.

Rev. Allen Johnson also invites the public to attend a soul saving revival at the Temple Sunday through Friday nights at 7:30. International evangelist Charolette Reynolds of Canton, Ohio will be guest speaker for the week.

Will clinic Thursday

Do you have a will? Have you planned your estate? What will happen if you don't? Why should I have a will? I don't have that much. Will my family get my estate when I die, or will the attorneys in the state of Texas wind up with most of it?

These and many other questions will be answered for members of Zion Lutheran Church and interested members of the community on Thursday, when a Wills and Estate Planning Clinic will be held at the church at 1200 Duncan under the direction and leadership of Dr. Carl Heckmann.

Pastor Timothy Koenig of the congregation urges people to participate in this timely and helpful meeting. There is no cost. "In the long run it may save you and your family a great deal," says Dr. Heckmann. Dr. Heckmann is the former president of the Texas District of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod and currently the Director of Development for the district.

Calvary Cross Singers here

Presenting Christ in song, the Calvary Cross Singers will be at the First Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West St., for three performances Sunday.

Sharing such songs as "Thanks to Calvary," "He Was There All the Time," "God's Gift," and "I've Been There" and featuring 5-year-old Joseph David Weaver, the Singers will present programs at 10:50 a.m. and 2:30 and 7 p.m. The church will also host a noon dinner on Sunday.

An exciting singing group, the Calvary Cross Singers lift up the name of Jesus in songs, testimonies and the Word. They serve all churches with concerts, church services and special services. They've traveled extensively throughout the Southwest.

The Singers belong to the Southern Gospel Music Association and have been recognized in the Texas Paper of Gospel Music. Presenting Christ is a joy to them, and the group hopes to go full-time soon.

Their first album is to be released soon, hopefully in time for the Pampa concerts.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life.
in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

TREASURES

He walked a long time and rang many doorbells and "scared" a lot of people in order to acquire his Halloween treasures. He wants to sleep with his treasures beside him, where he can feel the sack with his hand.

These treasures somehow remind you that one of your responsibilities toward your adorable child is to teach him what real treasures are — friends, country, church, good deeds, family, love of God, and quality of spirit, to name a few.

That "Trick or Treat" bag somehow reminds you of that scripture in Matthew that goes, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and dust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

You know that the church will help you in this, so you vow again to be faithful to every service, thankful for all the wonderful workers there, asking God to help you and them.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Pollsters agree: Their surveys should not be taken at face value

Fourth in a series
By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

Pollsters agree that no poll should be taken at face value, and the standards of their professional organizations require them to disclose information that can help the public evaluate any poll.

"Ultimately, it's the polling fraternity that is the final arbiter of accountability," remarks Harvard professor Gary Orren. "I wish there were something more formal."

The 1,000 members of the American Association for Public Opinion Research, for example, agree to "cooperate with legally authorized representatives of the public by describing the methods used in our studies."

The group further pledges not to conduct research to "yield a desired conclusion," or to interpret results "which are inconsistent with the data available."

Founded in 1969 by a group of survey research organizations, the National Council on Public Polls sets its own standards.

It specifies that pollsters should give the poll sponsor, dates of interviewing, method of obtaining the interviews, wording of the questions, the population that was surveyed, the size of the sample and the size and description of the sub-sample if results are based on less than the total sample.

A public attuned to information like that may be the best check on a bad poll. It's a matter of knowing what to doubt.

Perhaps the most important question is the source of the poll. Was it conducted by a reputable organization? Was it done privately for an individual or a group with an axe to grind?

Polls "leaked" during political campaigns, for instance, are notoriously suspect.

Candidates have been known to guard against releasing embarrassing numbers — "I just lie," one presidential campaign manager confides — or to fake results in the hope of encouraging donors.

Only New York State has acted against leaks of false or misleading poll data in a campaign. It requires disclosure of all pertinent details if any of a candidate's private poll becomes public.

Another important consideration is where the poll results appear. Is the source reporting the results credible?

When it blundered last year on three top statewide races, the Minneapolis Tribune — which conducts the Minnesota Poll — sought to preserve its credibility. It commissioned — and published — a lengthy critique of its failures, which were based on faulty sampling. It also plans to spend twice as much money on polling now.

Another question to be asked is when the poll was conducted. Sometimes the pressure to be first with the news — and a poll is news — can affect the results. During his recent tenure as polling manager of NBC News, says Sheldon Gawiser, he often had to write questions too quickly and to measure opinion even before the public had a chance to form it.

For readers or listeners trying to understand the poll's findings, this means that they should be aware of when the poll was taken and read it as a measure of opinion at that point.

"Is it a public at the very early stages of resolving its feelings about an issue or a candidate," pollster Daniel Yankelovich wrote recently, "or is it a picture of a public that has decided?"

"Public opinion poll percentages by themselves do not reveal whether the public is at the beginning, in the middle or at the end of this working-through process."

How does the poll compare with others? No two recent polls have given the same figure for the president's popularity. No two polls agree on the amount of support for the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

But all the polls show that Carter's popularity is sliding. And all the polls that ask respondents whether they want the Senate to ratify of the SALT treaty show less than 50 percent support for it.

"The situation is such these days that there are so many public opinion polls that if all of these single questions or pairs of questions are asked, you feel fairly confident that opinion isn't soft or fuzzy on a given issue," says Andrew Kohut, president of the Gallup Organization.

The problem is being able to compare questions. Some pollsters wonder whether the proliferation of the news media's polls doesn't make it hard to do so.

"Can the news media both generate the news and report the news?" asks Albert H. Cantril, president of the National Council on Public Polls. "I don't know the answer — I really don't."

A.M. Rosenthal, executive editor of the New York Times, minimizes the issue. Calling polls just another in a range of journalistic tools, he says news organizations like his are justified in emphasizing their own polls.

Educators will meet next week in Austin

AUSTIN — The proposed set of professional standards will be the major point of discussion for more than 600 educators expected to attend the 32nd annual Texas Conference on Teacher Education at the Austin Hilton Inn Sunday through Tuesday.

Dr. M.M. Gubser, director of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education in Washington, D.C., will keynote the opening general session.

Conference participants will turn their attention to a series of detailed discussions on suggested new standards for updating teacher education. Topics for these group meetings will include: regional accreditation, financial support for teacher education, organizational structure, faculty characteristics, policy commitment, student development, facilities, planning and review, and evaluation for quality control.

Grace Grimes of Marshall, chairperson of the new Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession, will lead the group's response to the issues defined by the conference participants.

The new Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession replaces the former State Board of Examiners. Grimes, director of secondary instruction and learning resources, Marshall Independent School District, chairs the 16-member group. Henry Wheeler, Spring Branch ISD superintendent, is vice chairman.

Other commission members include: classroom teachers — Mildred Shannon, Marfa; Angelina Gallegos, El Paso; Luis Garza, Santa Rosa; David

Howard, Plainview; Tommie Jo Lindsey, Abilene, and Ada Williams, Dallas. Instructional support — Juan G. Sanchez, Laredo. Administrators — Anna Brodie, Temple; Barry Nettles, Baytown, and Raymond Trotter, Hardin. Higher education — Dr. Betty Coody, Lamar University; Dr. Thomas Cleaver, University of Texas at San Antonio; Dr. William B. Crittenden, Houston College, and Dr. Frank Hubert, Texas A & M University.

"We hope every public school teacher, administrator, and university faculty member involved in education will have an opportunity to express their ideas about the needs and future of teacher preparation in this state," Dr. Jim L. Kidd, Texas Education Agency associate commissioner for professional development and instructional services, points out.

MAYUMI MORIYAMA

TOKYO (AP) — The 10-year-old girl wanted to be a sumo wrestler. She admired those loin-clothed man-mountains who strain against each other in the sacred ring of Japan's national sport.

Lawyer Mayumi Moriyama took on the girl's case, seeing her exclusion from the sport as philosophical, religious and historical — an echo of the "feudal sumo ethic" that considers women impure.

It was a losing cause; the girl was barred from a children's tournament.

It was a symbolic fight only, strikingly irrelevant to the problems of average Japanese women. In this tradition-bound society, even Mrs. Moriyama concedes women's lib is treading a rough road.

"It's still very hard for a woman to have equal opportunities for equal pay," she said. More difficult is the climb to executive power in a business world controlled almost exclusively by males.

As Director-General of the Women's and Minors' Bureau of the Ministry of Labor, Mrs. Moriyama is Tokyo's most vocal advocate of elevating women to power posts in government and business. Her personal success contrasts sharply with her often futile efforts.

"The fundamental obstacle," she said, "is that the social climate has not matured. People in general feel that women are weaker, inferior and suited for the simple job. Some women support us. But it's not the majority yet."

Mrs. Moriyama envies the energy and motivation of feminists in the United States.

"Once they decide to do something they organize it and everybody comes to work hard and achieve the aim," she says wistfully. "We are missing this way to do things aggressively. We have to agitate the people so much to get them to move."

Mrs. Moriyama, 52, is an exception to the Japanese rule of female submissiveness. She has made it to the top. Men listen when she speaks. Her story is unique.

She grew up during World War II. At war's end, she applied for admission to the universities, one of the new constitutional rights granted to women.

Her shocked mother opposed her plan to seek a law degree.

"I had the support of my father, not my mother," she said. "My mother was a traditional Japanese woman. She was afraid I wouldn't have the chance to marry. She was just scared."

Her father, a business executive, had three daughters and no sons. He saw a successful future for Mayumi.

"He was traveling to various parts of the world and he knew what was happening," she recalled.

In 1947, the young woman entered prestigious Tokyo University.

"I found myself to be one of two girls among 600 boys in the law department," she said. "When I graduated, it was hard to find a job. Many of the boys were going to try the higher civil service exam. I just followed them. About half of us passed."

That was her entree to government service. In 1950, she became the first female career officer in the Ministry of Labor.

In 1948, allaying her mother's fears of spinsterhood, Mayumi had married Kinji Moriyama, then a member of Parliament. He is now Japan's Minister of Transportation. They have three children.

Moriyama approved of his wife's career goals. "He was supporting me all the time," Mrs. Moriyama said. "When I was disappointed or so tired that I was complaining and said I would give up, he was the person who encouraged me and pushed me so I couldn't give up."

In those early years, "it was unheard of for a woman to go into the private sector. You couldn't even think of that," she said. Now female executives occupy high posts at Shiseido, Japan's largest cosmetics manufacturer, and the big Takashimaya department store.

Japanese women voted for the first time in the 1946 general election. Today they hold 26 seats in the two houses of the Diet.

Economic pressures are forcing more Japanese women into the job market.

"In the old days, it was the shame of a husband to have a working wife," said Mrs. Moriyama. "Now, little by little, that is disappearing."

Carter administration moves to ease mortgage crunch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has moved on several fronts to ease the nationwide mortgage money crunch, but at the expense of further boosting record high interest rates.

A federal official who requested anonymity said Thursday's steps will make money available for a while, "especially so lenders can make good on commitments. But who is going to borrow at the rates they'll have to charge?"

The supply of mortgage money is expected to grow as a result of revised Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations which:

—Lower the minimum amount of money thrift institutions must keep in reserve, thereby freeing up to $2.4 billion that can be made available for mortgages.

—Give savings and loan associations permission to greatly expand their borrowing from "outside sources," starting in 60 days. Those sources could include such things as commercial banks and mortgage-backed bonds.

In a related move, the maximum allowable interest on single-family home mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration was raised a full point to a record 11.5 percent. For multi-family dwellings, the ceiling was raised from 10 percent to 11 percent.

Ceilings on Veterans Administration loans also rose 1 percent to 11.5 percent.

It was the second time interest ceilings on federally insured mortgages have been raised in the last month by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

High interest rates on non-federally insured mortgages, now at 14 percent in some states, may increase before turning around, said several housing analysts.

After the first of the year, one said, "I think we will start seeing interest rates coming down."

The actions by HUD and the bank board, which regulates the nation's 4,000 federal savings and loan associations, came as mortgage money has all but dried up.

Savings and loans are losing deposits, which they use to make mortgages, to other institutions and investments offering better returns, such as money-market mutual funds.

In addition, mortgage bankers, who write most government-backed mortgages, have had trouble finding investors for mortgages carrying interest rates lower than other available investments.

Feminists protest Spanish abortion trials

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Angry feminists, some vowing to chain themselves in front of the criminal court in this Basque capital, converged today to protest the start of the trial of 11 women accused of having or performing abortions in Catholic Spain.

The state was expected to move to postpone the proceeding, which has sparked the first big feminist revolt since the death four years ago of Gen. Francisco Franco and the end of Fascist rule.

Abortion is illegal in Spain, where Catholicism is the state religion. But a wave of pro-abortion rallies swept the nation Thursday, and feminists, demanding amnesty for the defendants, promised more protests today and during the weekend.

In a clash Thursday in downtown Madrid, police drove buses at a marching column of 600 feminists, then pursued the fleeing protestors with clubs and smoke grenades. Several demonstrators were injured. It was the second pro-abortion rally there in five days.

Demonstrations by women also were reported Thursday in Valencia, the Canary Islands, the resort island of Majorca and the university town of Santiago de Compostela, where police chased 100 women from a city hall sit-in.

A spokeswoman for a group calling itself the Assembly of Women said she expected hundreds of feminists from around the country to demonstrate today in Bilbao, 200 miles north of Madrid. At least 20 women planned to chain themselves outside the courthouse, she said.

The 11 women being tried face prison terms ranging from six months to 60 years. They include the woman alleged to have performed the abortions, her daughter, who allegedly assisted in the operations, and nine women who confessed having undergone the procedure.

Fast-food business having impact on American farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fast-food business not only has changed the eating habits of millions of consumers but is having an impact on farmers too, says the Agriculture Department.

For example, when billions of hamburgers are sold, it's bound to have an important effect on the cattle business, particularly markets for so-called nonfed animals such as cows that are culled from early beef-breeding herds and sent to slaughter.

Likewise, say USDA experts, the broiler industry owes a hearty thanks to the growth of fried chicken carryouts.

But the business is becoming much more involved than simply burgers and chicken, says the latest issue of "Farm Index" published by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

"Fast-food outlets used to mean just burgers shakes and fries, but now they run the gastronomic gamut from fish'n chips to tacos, pizzas, chicken — whatever the public's taste buds want," the report said.

Also, the older carryout service "has given way to an interior ambience designed to get customers indoors for a bigger meal," it said.

Since 1963, officials said, "growth in the fast-food industry has exceeded that of any other segment of food retailing."

Discounting inflation, sales increased 305 percent from 1963 to 1978, from $4.9 billion to $19.7 billion, the report said.

"While this expansion has been extraordinary, surpassing both population and income growth, indications now point to a possible moderation in industry expansion," it said.

"Higher consumer prices ... may be causing people to think twice about eating away from home," the report said. "This hesitation has been compounded by the gas shortage."

Competition has narrowed in the fast-food business, leaving "a handful of large franchising chains with nearly half the market," it said.

The report said fast foods "affect production at the farm level as well as the processing, wholesaling and retailing of farm foods."

For example:

— Many food processors have established internal divisions having sole responsibility for developing products for fast-food chains.

— Some chains are so large they "have assumed the wholesale function and distribute food directly" to their own outlets.

Carter ready to mount attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strategists in the Carter presidential campaign are ready to mount an attack on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's record for hiring minority workers.

Sources close to the Carter campaign believe the president's record is so superior to Kennedy's that this issue could decide which man gets the traditional black vote that both camps consider crucial to winning the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

But while there are opportunities, there are also pitfalls for the Carter camp in such a strategy, since blacks are hard to find among Carter's closest advisers.

Further, Kennedy's aides dispute the case.

"You'd think that they could come up with better points to make," says Kennedy spokesman Tom Southwick. "I don't think anyone has a stronger civil rights record over the past 17 years than Kennedy."

But one black Democrat, a state party official allied with Carter, argues that hiring records "will be a big issue in the black community."

In his view, Carter and Kennedy are so close on issues of concern to blacks that black Democrats might decide between the two on the basis of hiring records.

"Carter has a record on black appointments in top administration jobs that goes beyond rhetoric," says the Carter partisan, who declined to be identified. "Kennedy starts strong with blacks because of his family and the 1960s, but once the campaign begins, he's going to have to justify his horrible record on this over 17 years in the Senate."

Another source, familiar with the thinking of Carter campaign strategists, said, "Kennedy has spoken all the right words, but he's never had a black in a position of any policy responsibility or among his brain trust of informal advisers."

Of informal advisers, he said: "The senator is very close to Vernon Jordan of the Urban League. And right now, he's meeting with Mrs. (Coretta Scott) King and 'Daddy' King on legislation the senator is sponsoring that concerns them: the District of Columbia voting rights amendment, a measure to make Martin Luther King's birthday a national holiday and human services legislation."

The day before, Dr. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the slain civil rights leader, had endorsed Carter.

A FIELD full of potential jack-o-lanterns lie in the bright Vermont sunshine on a farm in Huntington, Thursday.

The week that was - the crash of Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — We are now observing the week that was, that final full week of October 1929 when the stock market fell apart despite all the assurances of the establishment that times were very good.

The contemporary assessments of social-economic conditions 50 years ago are now being resurrected in countless articles and books. Viewing them in the spotlight of hindsight, readers shudder and wonder.

About the awareness of a man such as Walter Chrysler, for example: "I can see nothing but good signs along the road of business for the present year," said the chairman and president of the Chrysler Corp.

Today, fighting economic chaos in 1979, we have our own assessments. Will they too be frozen in time, then stared at by another generation? What will they think of our analyses, our assessments.

Of, for example, the statement by Lee A. Iacocca, Chrysler Corp. chairman, in seeking approval of a House subcommittee for a $750 million loan guarantee for his failing company:

"I am a strong advocate of the free enterprise system. I grew up in it and slugged my way through it for over 33 years."

"However, given the alternatives facing this corporation, and the workers who depend on Chrysler for employment, we have no choice ... but to seek assistance until we can again be profitable..."

Consider these for possible evaluation 50 years from now:

"I just fail to see how the public is being gouged by us." By Ulyesse LeGrange, Exxon Corp. controller. Quoted in the Wall Street Journal after Exxon reported a 118 percent third-quarter profit jump.

"It does appear ... that the respondents were decidedly in favor of decontrolling oil prices. A preference was indicated for immediate decontrol without a windfall profits tax ..."

From a report on the economic outlook of the National Association of Business Economists.

"While the country has become less happy since 1957, happiness is more evenly distributed and in this sense our society has become more just." By Prof. Angus Campbell of the University of Michigan.

"The only thing today's politician dreads more than rising prices is falling prices — at least those that imply income losses for his constituents." J.B. Burnham, vice president, Mellon Bank, Pittsburgh.

"They're going to pay off." By Jimmy Carter, president, in defending his economic policies at a town meeting in Dolton, Ill.

JACQUELINE KENNEDY ONASSIS smiles for a relative videotaping her departure from Hammersmith Farm, the place where her mother was married to J. Bingham Morris today.

Sweetness returns to television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight, America can sample the fruit of Fred Silverman's sponsor-as-supplier idea, a notion he's been pushing since he took over the game at NBC last year.

In the course of his many speeches outlining the Silverman view of things, NBC's president has often invited major TV advertisers to get involved in the supplying end of the business, as was once the rule. He asked and asked, but so far, only Procter and Gamble (TV's biggest advertiser) has jumped in. The result is "Shirley," an hour of sweetness and light with a laugh track.

For its little project, P&G said it wanted Shirley Jones in a family show, and I imagine the rest sort of took care of itself. Sweet Shirley Jones plays sweet Shirley Miller, New York widow who follows her late husband wish for a simpler life by moving her family (two teenagers and two younger darlings) to Lake Tahoe, Nevada.

Not surprisingly, some problems arise when the happy group arrives West. Shirley's new house is kind of run down, and needs fumigating. So, Mom and the kids have to pitch a tent on the lakefront (this family can afford a five-bedroom, two-story Victorian house on expensive Lake Tahoe but can't afford a motel for three days).

Anyway, a crusty old guy (who, we learn, is really sweet on the inside, thereby qualifying himself for this show), claims they've camped on his lot and demands $50 a day rent. His better nature surfaces, though, and that problem is solved.

There are others. Shirley learns that a full-time teaching job she was promised is not available, so she has to settle for a part-time substitute gig. The moving van loaded with their furniture breaks down in Texas, and when it finally arrives, it's carrying the wrong furniture.

Everything is about to fly apart, when Shirley thinks of a sweet way to save the day.

"Shirley" is rather shallow going, and that is a disappointment. Silverman says he's got this nifty idea about advertisers supplying programs, and out comes a cross between "The Partridge Family" and "Eight is Enough."

But there is something to be said for a family show that doesn't give Mom a weekly sleepmate and relies not at all on the standard prime-time sleaze. Better a saccharine overdose with "Shirley" than a toilet joke marathon with "The Ropers."

DPS troopers seeking transfers from disputed county

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two state troopers, the focus of a bitter dispute between Atascosa County officials and the Department of Public Safety, are seeking transfers on purely personal reasons. But a DPS official indicates there will be no immediate transfers.

DPS Capt. Randol Gilmore said here Thursday that patrolmen Earl Conaway, 32, and Albert Rodriguez, 26, filed their transfer requests before county officials demanded that the DPS transfer them or move its entire six-man operation out of the county-owned command post.

The DPS vacated the building and suspended routine traffic patrols in the rural South Texas county on Oct. 1 rather than yield to the demands.

The six troopers, working out of their homes, are answering only emergency calls in Atascosa County and confining their routine traffic patrols to adjoining counties.

The two troopers had spearheaded a drunken driving crackdown that Gilmore credited with cutting the county's traffic death rate in half. But it also resulted in drunken driving charges against sons of two prominent local politicians, including the county commissioner who sponsored the eviction resolution.

DPS officials feel the eviction order stemmed from those arrests. That allegation is denied by county officials, who claim Rodriguez and Conaway "harassed and abused" residents.

Gilmore said both troopers had personal reasons for requesting transfers.

"It's an internal matter," he said. "Conaway's family lives in San Antonio and he lives in Pleasanton. He wants transferred to San Antonio. The Rodriguez situation is similar. He wants to move to Austin."

"They wanted transferred before the Atascosa County officials tried to get them transferred out of the county," Gilmore added. "There are policies and procedures to be followed. Also, they're supposed to be in an area for a year before they can be transferred."

Rodriguez began working in Atascosa County last April and Conaway was stationed in the county last May.

County officials collected numerous statements from residents with complaints against the two troopers and turned them over to DPS Director Col. Wilson Speir.

But an DPS internal investigation turned up no serious violations against the two troopers, the DPS announced Tuesday in Austin. Speir has said Conaway and Rodriguez would be left in Atascosa County while DPS and county officials attempt to resolve the situation.

Gilmore and County Judge O.B. Gates said there have been no recent negotiations. Gates said the results of the internal investigation "were about what we expected."

Fall Back

Most Americans will be adjusting their clocks and watches this Sunday, as Daylight Savings Time (DST) ends. A handy way to remember which way to turn the dial is the formula "Spring forward; Fall back." By setting their clocks ahead one hour in April, people on DST get an extra hour of daylight late in the day. By setting them back in October, they return to standard time. Hoping to save energy, Congress passed a law in 1974, requiring DST all year long. But during winter's shorter daylight hours, DST forced many people to leave for their jobs and schools before dawn. The law was withdrawn later that year.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Cabinet department administers changes between daylight and standard time?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The Three Mile Island nuclear plant is in Pennsylvania.

Gold falls on money markets

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. Treasury's surprise announcement that it will auction off $1.25 million ounces of gold on Nov. 1 sent the price of bullion plummeting by as much as $17.50 in Europe today. The dollar rose.

"People were expecting there wouldn't be any auctions for a while, and now we have more gold coming onto the market," said a dealer at Samuel Montagu Ltd., one of the big five London bullion merchants.

Gold opened in London at $374.50 an ounce, down $17.50 from $392.00 Thursday. In Zurich, the opening price was $376.50, down $15.50.

This compared with gold's all-time peak of $444.00 an ounce, hit in Zurich trading just 24 days ago.

Morning rates compared to late Thursday:

Frankfurt—1.8035 West German marks, up from 1.8015.

Zurich—1.6665 Swiss francs, up from 1.6567.

Paris—4.2268 French francs, up from 4.2240.

Amsterdam—2.0025 Dutch guilders, up from 2.0015.

Shockers slip past Sandie JV's 7 - 0

A six-yard run by John Kadingo and the extra point kick by James Borchart was all the scoring that was needed as the Pampa Shockers downed Amarillo High JV Sandies, 7-0, Thursday night at Harvester Field. Kadingo's score came with 1:49 to go in the second quarter after the Shockers had recovered a Sandie fumble on their own six. Both squads had numerous drives fail because of a mixture of penalties, fumbles, interceptions, and broken plays. The Shocker defense played a big part in the win as Ricky Edwards and David Sadler each picked off two Amarillo aeriels. Sadler's score pickoff may have saved the game for the Shockers when he speared Amarillo quarterback John Flowers pass on Pampa's 20 with just 12 seconds to go. The visitors had threatened after recovering a fumble on their own 44 and then driving to the Pampa 16 in just three plays. Flowers was dropped for a one-yard loss by Edwards and Kadingo, then on the next play tossed the ball into the arms of Sadler. It looked the Shockers were going to extend their lead late in the third quarter when quarterback Derrick Bigham guided his team 52 yards to the Sandie three. However, it was not to be as Amarillo took possession after dropping Kindingo and Bingham for huge losses. Roby Lefel was Pampa's top groundgainer with 40 yards in 11 tries. Kadingo picked up 37 yards in 15 steps.

Fezler-Ziegler lead Disney

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Forrest Fezler and Larry Ziegler, a couple of long shots leading the $250,000 National Team Golf Classic by a single stroke, believe they've got the key to success. "Drive straight and hit a lot of putts — that's our strategy," said Ziegler after he and his partner combined for 11 birdies and an 11-under-par 61 over Disney's 7,197-yard Magnolia course Thursday. That was good for the first-round lead in the best-ball event, but Fezler and Ziegler had little breathing room, with three two-men teams a stroke behind and another four duos another stroke back in the quest for the $45,000 first prize in the last PGA event of the year. Eleven teams were at 8-under 64. "It's easy for me when Larry hits the ball so well," said Fezler, who won only $11,427 for the year and is just getting over a bout with mononucleosis. Ziegler has done a bit better on the PGA tour, standing 98th with official winnings of $38,546. Fezler made six birdies and Ziegler five enroute to their sparkling score in a tournament that features 104 teams and usually has been won by a pair of four rabbits or unknowns. At 62, one stroke back of Fezler-Ziegler going into today's second round, were veteran Jim Colbert and youngster Mike Sullivan, George Burns-Ben Crenshaw and Gary Koch-Curtis Strange. Behind them at 9-under-par 63 were the teams of Tom Purtzer-Howard Twitty, Mark McCumber-Dan Sikes, Lee Elder-Buddy Gardner and George Archer-Jim Simons. Last year's champs, Wayne Levi and Bob Mann, were tied with 12 other teams at 7-under 66 after the first round.

Youth Center will sponsor cage leagues

Pampa Youth and Community Center will again sponsor the men's and women's basketball leagues this winter, director George Brown announced today. "Leagues are open to any team whether church, company, independent, school or otherwise," Brown said. "Teams from out-of-town are invited to play." An organizational meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 5 in the Youth Center Building to determine the number of teams wanting to enter the leagues this season. Entry fee will be $75 for each team plus the officials' fees which will be determined at the meeting. The $75 entry fee is due Nov. 15 at 12 noon with the officials' fees due by the first game. "No team will be entered unless the entry fee is paid by the deadline," Brown said. "After the number of teams are set, the total number of games will be established and the officials' fees will be determined." In addition to the team fee, each player must be a Youth Center member or pay a one dollar team admittance and locker fee for each game played. A six months membership fee for an individual is $12.50 for adults and $10 for youth. Family plans are $25.

Harvesters host Tascosa tonight

The noose draws a little tighter in the District 3-AAAA race when the Pampa Harvesters host the Tascosa Rebels at 7:30 p.m. tonight. The winner could very well be in the catbird seat when it comes time to determine a district champion.

Both clubs share the loop leadership after district opening wins last week. While Pampa had it easy against Amarillo Caprock, 34-13, Tascosa had to rally in the final quarter to nudge Palo Duro, 12-6. Pampa is 4-2 overall (one loss a forfeit) while Tascosa is 3-4. "Tascosa is bigger than us, but that's a problem we're going to have to face every game," Harvester coach Danny Palmer conceded. "Every team we play will have size on us."

The Rebels are inexperienced this season, but they've developed a sound running game behind Wade Hunt, who rushed for 120 yards in last week's win over Palo Duro. Their line is led by all-state candidate Mike Washburn, a 6-6, 225 senior. Pampa's only lineup change will be at right half where 170-pound junior Leroy Kuhn has won a starting spot.

"Danny came in and made some good runs for us," Palmer said. He also praised the leadership of senior quarterback Greg Quarles. Quarles ran for one touchdown and passed for another against Caprock. "Greg is one of the finest competitors I've ever coached," Palmer said. "He had an outstanding game last Friday night."

Ninth graders rally for win

Pampa ninth graders rallied from behind to defeat Perryton, 18-14, Thursday on a halfback pass in the fourth quarter.

With only 47 seconds to go and Pampa trailing, 14-12, halfback Cody Allison passed to tight end Paul Prentice for the winning touchdown.

Quarterback Dennis Dougherty threw touchdown passes to Jesus Santacruz and Prentice to give Pampa a 12-0 advantage after three quarters.

Lefors loses first game

GROOM-Lefors junior high dropped its first game of the season Thursday, losing to Groom, 22-8. Lefors only TD was a 10-yard run by Darrin McBee. Tracey Jennings ran the conversion. Jennings led the Lefors defense with 15 tackles. John Winegeart had 14 stops while Richard Hutchinson had 11. Lefors, 4-1 overall and 2-1 in district action, closes the season at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at McLean.

Dallas-Pittsburgh: super bowl rivals?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and the Pittsburgh Steelers may be headed for another Super Bowl clash, but both downplay that notion as they await their regular season game here Sunday.

"There ain't no money at stake. We're just trying to make the playoffs," said linebacker Tom Henderson of the Cowboys, edged by Pittsburgh in Super Bowl X and Super Bowl XIII.

"There's nothing special other than that we want to beat them for another win," said Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw. "They're considered a good football team and we want to beat good football teams."

The series between the two teams is tied at 10 victories apiece. Pittsburgh has won the last three games, including the two Super Bowls and a 28-13 regular season win here in 1977.

That excludes exhibition play, in which the Cowboys have beaten Pittsburgh five times in a row, including a 16-14 victory last summer. Dallas' 7-1 record this season is best in the National Football League, but the Cowboys are closely pursued by Philadelphia and Washington, both 6-2, in the NFC East.

The Cowboys have won four in a row. Two weeks ago, they crushed Los Angeles 30-6.

"I'm delighted. I never thought we would be 7-1 at this point," said Coach Tom Landry. "I thought we would be something like 5-3. That's the advantage of having a light schedule... But we're playing all the contenders now. It would be a miracle for us to go 7-1 in the second half."

The Steelers, 6-2, have a one-game lead over Houston and Cleveland in the AFC East. Pittsburgh lost two of three recently, including a 34-10 drubbing in Cincinnati.

But the Steelers rebounded Monday night with a 42-7 victory over Denver. Landry watched the game on television.

"I wish I hadn't. I didn't sleep all night," Landry kidded.

Pittsburgh tops the NFL with 212 points in eight games. Dallas leads the National Conference with 200 points.

The Steeler offense was bolstered Monday night by the return of wide receiver Lynn Swann, who'd missed two games with a hamstring pull. Fullback Franco Harris, who got off to the slowest start of his career, has gained 319 yards in his last three games.

Dallas' Tony Dorsett has rushed for over 100 yards in his last four games.

Willie joins group

NEW YORK (AP) — They filled a ballroom at the plush Waldorf Astoria with 25 years of World Series thrills and memories.

From 1955, there was Johnny Podres, who pitched the seventh-game victory over the New York Yankees and delivered "next year" at last to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

From 1968, there was Mickey Lolich, who emerged from a season in the shadows to pitch three victories for Detroit over St. Louis.

From 1970, there was Brooks Robinson, whose magic glove at third base demoralized Cincinnati and helped Baltimore to a World Championship.

And from 1979, there was Willie Stargell, the latest member of this exclusive club. To join, you have to be the Most Valuable Player in the World Series.

Stargell earned his way in by hitting .400 with three home runs, seven runs batted in and 25 total bases as Pittsburgh came off the deck to defeat Baltimore in seven games.

"It was a satisfying, exhilarating experience," said Stargell.

Dolphins host meet

Youth swimming teams from the Texas panhandle and Oklahoma will converge on Pampa this weekend for an invitational swim meet at the youth center.

The host team, Pampa Dolphins, will suit up 39 youngsters for the meet.

"The kids are really looking forward to it," said Pampa coach Mike Eckhart. "We have a chance to do real good because we've got some good youngsters this year."

Maverick Swim Club of Amarillo, Amarillo Aquatic Club, Lubbock YWCA, and Lubbock Swim Club are just a few of the clubs entered in the meet.

"I don't know just how many teams are coming, but there's going to be a bunch. Altogether there are 130 swimmers," Eckhart said.

Eckhart invited the public to attend the meet. Admission is free.

Starting times are 10 a.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday.

McGuire to finish year

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Most of the University of South Carolina basketball players have accepted the departure of their coach, Frank McGuire, after next season.

And so has the venerable McGuire, who said after the announcement Thursday, "I've got a hard nose and a tough heart and I love basketball."

The team had threatened to quit en masse if the university's Board of Trustees had gone ahead with a purported plan to dismiss McGuire today. Instead, university President James B. Holderman and trustee chairman R. Markley Dennis Sr. said the 65-year-old McGuire would stay for the season.

ched retirement age of 70. An informed source indicated McGuire would be paid for the remaining four years of his contract.

The only man to win 100 games at three schools, McGuire appeared resentful Thursday that his career at South Carolina will end after 16 years.

Asked if he were bitter, McGuire said, "I don't have to answer that."

And to a question about the settlement, he said, "I'm not mentioning anything, just that I'm satisfied."

Reports that McGuire had turned down an offer of a $75,000-a-year public relations post as an assistant to Holderman were confirmed.

But McGuire said he would still like to help select a new coach, which he said would encourage team members to stay on after he leaves.

"I can help this program much, much better than any of these neophytes, these Johnny come-latelys," he said.

In a moment of levity, McGuire said he would advise the next coach to "keep his bags packed," but added, "the right coach, without interference from these outside people, should do a great job."

It was "outside people" who apparently pushed the hardest to terminate McGuire's coaching role. Several influential state politicians reportedly wanted McGuire out.

Martin denies throwing punch

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The question of whether New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin did or did not slug an Illinois man during an argument in a Bloomington hotel lobby remains unanswered today.

Martin says he didn't. And, while there are a number of people who figure he did, none of them is saying so outright.

The man best qualified to answer — Joseph Cooper, 52, of Lincolnshire, Ill. — was keeping his mouth, split lip and all, shut.

It matters because Yankees owner George Steinbrenner has warned Martin that he must be on his best behavior to keep his job.

Cooper, police, hospital and hotel officials all acknowledge that Cooper received 15 to 20 stitches in his lip following an incident in the lobby of L'Hotel de France about midnight Tuesday. At issue is whether he fell — as Martin contends — or if he was struck by Martin.

Cooper did not press charges so Bloomington police called to the hotel did not conduct an investigation. Their report said, however, that "complaint was struck following an argument."

Martin's statement that Cooper fell hasn't been refuted directly by anyone, although a hotel security guard who filed a report on the incident — but did not witness it — said he didn't believe Cooper could have sustained his injury in a fall.

The only known witness, bellhop Steve Holland, has refused comment.

Steinbrenner told reporters he hasn't had a chance to determine the facts.

"There certainly are two conflicting stories," he said, "or, actually, only one story — Billy's — and nobody has refuted that." Steinbrenner said, "Nobody else has said anything concrete to the contrary, have they? I've had his word he'd stay out of fights and I believe him until he proves me different."

Thursday night in Oakland, Chargers' Woodrow Lowe attempts to make the stop over the Raiders' Derrick Jensen, bottom. The Raiders won, 45-22.

Oakland belts Chargers

OAKLAND (AP) — Ira Matthews raced 104 yards with a kickoff and Booker Russell scored three times on short runs as the Oakland Raiders routed San Diego 45-22 Thursday night despite Dan Fouts' record fourth consecutive 300-yard passing game for the Chargers.

Oakland, which jumped to a 21-0 lead in the nationally televised National Football League game, appeared to be in trouble when the Chargers sliced the margin to 21-15 midway through the third quarter.

But Matthews, a rookie from Wisconsin, grabbed Mike Wood's kickoff 4 yards in the end zone, raced up the right sideline to about the Raider 40, then cut back against the grain and outran the Charger defenders to the left corner of the end zone. It was the longest kickoff return in Oakland history.

The victory gave the Raiders a 5-4 record, one game behind San Diego, which leads the American Conference West at 6-3, one-half game ahead of Denver.

Matthews' return was the most exciting play of the high-scoring contest that saw Fouts complete 21 of 35 pass attempts for 302 yards, with two interceptions. Ironically, it was the second losing effort in Fouts' record string.

Russell's three scores were all from the 1, two of them in the fourth quarter when the Raiders put the game away after San Diego closed to 31-22. His first TD came in the opening period, when quarterback Ken Stabler hit all five of his pass attempts and led his team to a 14-0 lead, including a 34-yard scoring pass to Raymond Chester.

Mark van Eeghen's 4-yard run in the second quarter made it 21-0 before Fouts connected with John Jefferson on a 57-yard TD strike. A Raider field goal of 38 yards by Jim Breech made it 24-6 at halftime.

Wood kicked a 28-yarder for San Diego early in the third quarter, and following the recovery of an onside kick, Fouts drove the Chargers for a score that came on his 1-yard run.

Following Matthews' kickoff return, Fouts threw a 7-yard TD pass to Bob Klein just before the third quarter ended. But Russell's two touchdown runs in the final period clinched the victory for the Raiders.

While much of the focus coming into the game was on Fouts and his bid for a record, Oakland's Stabler performed admirably, particularly in the first half when he completed 10 of 12 passes for 163 yards and one touchdown.

He threw only four times in the second half, completing two for 41 yards.

Fouts found himself throwing out of necessity most of the game as Oakland scored the first time on the Stabler-Chester pass with 5½ minutes gone. Three minutes later it was 14-0.

Fouts rallied the Chargers, only to make perhaps the key mistake of the game. After completing four straight passes to put San Diego on the Oakland 11, he was unable to find a receiver open and instead tossed the ball right into the hands of Oakland defender Lester Hayes.

Although Oakland didn't score after that turnover, it did tally early in the third quarter when van Eeghen's 4-yard run capped an 80-yard drive.

Fouts finally got San Diego on the board with the long pass play to Jefferson, but Oakland came right back with Breech's field goal 27 seconds before halftime.

San Diego drove to the Oakland 11 on the first possession of the third quarter, but was forced to settle for a Wood field goal. The Chargers stunned the Raiders by attempting an onside kick, and when Oakland's Reggie Kinlaw touched the ball at the San Diego 44 but failed to control it, Pete Shaw of San Diego alertly pounced on it.

Kush saga continues

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has been asked by the president of Arizona State University to investigate the school's football program, "in an attempt to bring to light all potential violations ... as expeditiously as possible."

Dr. John Schwada's announced his request after receiving sworn statements alleging a conspiracy against ousted football coach Frank Kush.

The statements came from four current Arizona State players and one former player. The Associated Press obtained copies of notarized, sworn statements from quarterback Steve Bratkowski, tight end Marshall Edwards, running back Arthur "Turtle" Lane and former defensive back Darrell Gill.

John Mistler, a split end, also provided Schwada with a sworn statement, although a copy was not immediately available.

The statements called for Kush's reinstatement and demanded "reasonably quick" action.

In his statement, Lane said he was offered a bribe for damaging testimony against Kush and threatened with "bodily harm" if he continued to support the ex-coach.

Each player was interviewed by Kush's attorney, Harding Cure, in front of the former coach's private investigator, Howard Sauter. The documents were signed by a notary public but not by the players.

The Midas touch

CHICAGO—With an increased prize fund of $125,000, the 1980 Midas Open will be one of the richest tournaments on the Professional Bowlers Tour.

Richard P. de Camera, president of the Chicago-based Mida International Corporation, announced today that the rich event again will be held at Brunswick Northwest Bowl in suburban Palatine, Feb. 5-9.

The event again will be a team effort, with Brunswick Recreation Centers Division acting as the local co-sponsor and host at Northwest Bowl, according to Bernie Rudo, BRC president.

"We have been extremely pleased with our relationship with professional bowling dating back to 1974," said de Camera, "and our decision to increase the prize fund from $100,000 to $125,000 stems from our desire here at Midas to give the Chicago area fans who supported last winter's event the best in sports."

In Akron, Ohio, home of the PBA, Commissioner Joe Antenora welcomed the news of the increased tourney value, and noted that ABC television again will carry the finals to a nationwide audience Saturday, Feb. 9.

Antenora also added that the bigger prize fund will result in a larger first prize, $20,000.

Winner of last winter's Midas event was Johnny Petraglia, Staten Island, New York. Coupled with his Miller High Life victory at Milwaukee, Petraglia has emerged as one of the leading money-winners for the current season.

Munson crash to be investigated

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for the estate of former New York Yankees catcher Thurman Munson has hired a Tempe, Ariz., consulting firm to investigate the Aug. 2 airplane crash in which Munson was killed.

Eugene Okey, an attorney representing Munson's estate, said Thursday he has hired Crash Research Inc., a company that studies airplane and vehicular crashes, to conduct tests on the charred wreckage of Munson's Cessna Citation jet.

The 15-member research team, some of them from the University of Arizona, also will check the air-worthiness of other Cessna Citation aircraft, Okey said.

No lawsuits have been filed in connection with the incident.

Munson, 32, was killed after the airplane crashed as he practiced takeoffs and landings at the Akron-Canton Airport. Two passengers were able to escape from the wreckage.

Walton still on disabled list

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Walton, San Diego's $1 million-a-year star player is disabled indefinitely and attendance has taken a dramatic drop, but Irv Levin, owner of the Clippers, hasn't given up the ghost.

He's been down this frustrating road before.

"I remember the day when I was with the Celtics a few years ago that Dave Cowens walked into Red Auerbach's office and told us that he was going to stop playing," said Levin, who owned the Celtics at the time.

"Here he was making about $75,000 a month and telling us he didn't want to play anymore. Believe me, I felt a hell of a lot worse than that night I do now."

Levin's remarks came after the Clippers put Walton on the five-day disabled list with a strained foot ligament.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

October 27, 1979
Periodically this coming year, opportunities will develop in very unusual ways. Friends and contacts you have made and will be making are the keys to open new vistas for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The way you handle others today will do much to solidify friendships. New acquaintances lucky enough to be with you will want to become your pals. Discover with whom you get along romantically by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter which begins anew with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Two avenues which could help fatten your bank balance may be available to you today. One is an old source, the other is brand new.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A unique situation could develop today where you will be in a position to do a friend a favor. It could have a surprise twist and benefit you as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have some rather staunch supporters working for you behind the scenes today to help you fulfill an ambition. Only part of what they do may be made known to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a quick study today and can find ways to solve your problems by observing how others handle theirs. Look and listen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be on your toes today. Something very profitable could develop in an unexpected manner and through a most unusual source.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally you like to weigh and ponder things before making a commitment, but today you're a quick thinker. On-the-spot decisions are apt to be your best.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A change you've been hoping for but didn't think was possible could take place today owing to a sudden shift in circumstances and conditions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have greater luck today in joint ventures than you will in things which you try to do on your own. Team up with competent partners.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should you choose to apply yourself today, you have the ingenuity to turn mundane things into something profitable and rewarding. Explore every possibility.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be too surprised if members of the opposite sex find more to admire in you today than usual. Your strength of character and charm shine through.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) All you require today is a mere toehold. You'll know how to expand upon minimal opportunities. Several may be forthcoming.

Virginia supports Virginia nuclear plant. Virginia nuclear plant has been off.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White said Thursday Southwest Texas State University may build a multi-purpose facility, including a basketball arena, that will cost 61 percent more than approved by the Texas College Coordinating Board.

In January 1977 the Coordinating Board approved a $5.5 million cost for the facility. Last week, SWTSU President Lee Smith told the board the building would cost $8.85 million.

Smith went back to the board because a September 1977 memo from the commissioner of higher education said projects that exceed cost estimates by more than 10 percent are subject to a second review.

A tie vote of the board denied approval for the cost overrun.

But White's opinion, requested by Lee Drain of the Texas State University System, said the 10 percent memo was issued seven months after the SWTSU building was approved by the board.

White said the tie vote, in effect, did not cancel the board vote approving the building.

Smith had told board members the 7,500-seat facility would replace another athletic building that had been converted to classroom use.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has decided not to reoccupy the Ernest O. Thompson Building that was the agency's home for 21 years.

The commission moved this year into a 100,000-square-foot facility just off Interstate 35.

The Thompson Building, two blocks from the Capitol, is being renovated, and the commission had the option of moving back there.

Commission Chairman John Poerner said the new building, which is being leased for 10 years, provides enough room for most of the commission's Austin-based operations.

The Thompson Building was completed in 1940 for the Austin Tribune, a newspaper which is no longer in existence. It was later named in memory of Thompson, a former railroad commissioner.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission Thursday delayed the opening of the oyster season until Dec. 15.

The commission last month granted a request by Galveston County oyster fishermen to delay the opening of the season in that county from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15. The fishermen said floods in the area left many oysters undersized and weakened.

Galveston County provides 90 percent of the Texas oyster catch.

The commission feared the delayed opening in Galveston County could cause fishermen to move to other oyster areas on the Texas coast and deplete supplies there.

The delayed opening date does not affect Cameron County, which is not under the commission's authority.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Graveside services will be held Saturday in the state cemetery for former state Rep. Hubbard Caven, 76.

Caven, retired vice president of Texasgulf, Inc., died Wednesday night.

Caven, a native of Marshall, was elected to the House in 1931 and served two terms.

He is survived by his wife, Isabel; a son, H. Scott Caven Jr. of Houston; a daughter, Mary Gay Bienvuena of Austin; and two grandchildren.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Thursday of R. Edmonds Palm of Fort Worth as chairman of the Governor's Committee on Aging.

Palm, 45, owns Ed Palm Real Estate Co. He was appointed to the commission on Sept. 5.

DUNCANVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury has indicted a 17-year-old high school senior for murder in the stabbing death of her mother.

The body of Phyllis Tucker was found in the bedroom of her home on Sept. 29.

Her daughter, Tammy Lynn Harrison, has remained in the Dallas County jail under $20,000 bond since her arrest.

DALLAS (AP) — The mortician who prepared Lee Harvey Oswald's body for burial said he took extra steps in the process and is sure the body is in good condition.

The Dallas County medical examiner is seeking exhumation of the body from its Fort Worth (Tarrant County) grave to verify its identity.

A British author says the body in the grave is that of a Soviet spy who assumed Oswald's identity.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission Thursday delayed the opening of the oyster season until Dec. 15.

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — Roger Dale Stafford, sentenced to die for the murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers has pleaded innocent to charges of killing three members of a San Antonio, Texas, family.

Stafford, 27, was ordered Thursday to appear at a preliminary hearing on the new first-degree murder charges Dec. 18.

District Attorney Kay Huff told District Judge J. Kenneth Love Thursday that three additional death sentences will be sought in the June 1978 killings of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12. The three were gunned down and robbed near here while driving to a funeral in North Dakota.

SURRY, Va. (AP) — More than 1,000 pipes and supports were checked to determine whether a Virginia nuclear power plant could withstand earthquakes, and now electricity is again flowing from the facility.

Virginia Electric & Power Co. put Unit 1 at its Surry nuclear plant back into operation Thursday. The unit had been off line since March 13, when the Nuclear Regulatory Commission ordered it to be checked. The utility's other three units are out of service.

Vepco spokesman August Wallmeyer said "There were some minor modifications made to the unit" during testing.

BEAR, Del. (AP) — Collectors of Elvis Presley memorabilia will have a new product by which to remember the singer who shunned alcoholic beverages — a white wine called "Always Elvis."

Factors Inc., headquartered in Bear, has signed an agreement with the Frontenac Wine Co. to produce and market Always Elvis-Blanc D'Oro, according to Factors spokesman Mark Baron.

The semi-sweet white wine, to be imported from Italy, will be available nationwide by December for about $4 or $5 a bottle, Baron said. "We feel this is the kind of wine Elvis would have drunk if he did drink," he said.

BEDMINSTER, N.J. (AP) — The U.S. Military Academy is not worried that an archeological discovery in this Somerset County town will change West Point's standing as the nation's first military academy.

Drew University students began searching an 11-acre tract in the Pluckemin section three weeks ago, and scientists said they found traces of a Revolutionary War school that may predate the academy.

"There is a high degree of probability that West Point wasn't the oldest" military school, said project director Robert Bull. But a West Point spokesman who requested anonymity said the encampment was never intended as a permanent military school.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Greater Houston Hospital Council is distributing "jogger badges" and asking the health seekers to wear them when they exercise.

Thencil said joggers who end up in emergency rooms for one reason or another seldom have any identification and if they are unconscious, the problems multiply.

The badges, 2 by 3 inches, have a pin attached and space for the joggers name, address, an emergency telephone number, a physician's name and a hospital preference.

Bids without required check or proposal bond will not be considered. The successful Bidder must furnish performance bond and payment bond in the amount of 100 percent of the total contract price from a surety company holding a permit from the State of Texas to act as surety, or other surety or sureties acceptable to the Owner. All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. In case of ambiguity or lack of clarity in stating prices in the bids, the Owner reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid. Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions under which the work is to be done. Attention is called to the provisions of the Acts of the 43rd Legislature of the State of Texas concerning the wage scale and payment of prevailing wages established by the Owner. Said scale of prevailing minimum rates of wages is set forth in the specifications. Information for Bidders, Proposal Forms, Specifications and Plans are on file at the City Engineer's Office, City Hall, Pampa, Texas, and copies may be secured at the office of MERRIMAN & BARBER, Consulting Engineers, Inc., 117 N. Frost Street, Pampa, Texas 79045.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Trailways officials said a preliminary investigation has found no evidence that the brakes failed on a bus involved in an accident Sunday in which three members of a South Carolina family were killed.

The driver of the bus, William Floyd Davis, told police the brakes failed as the bus descended a mountain in western North Carolina and struck three cars before plunging off an embankment. But Lee Sneath, director of corporate communications of Trailways Inc., said Thursday "there is no indication of malfunction of the brakes," and that the investiga-

Zoning Board to discuss comprehensive development plan at Thursday's meeting

Nov. 1 was set by the Pampa Zoning Board Monday as the date for a special meeting to discuss the recommendation of a comprehensive plan for community development to the city commission.

According to Steve Vaughn, city building official, the plan was drawn up several years ago by planning specialists Marvin Springer and Associates of Dallas. Zoning Board members will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday to discuss the plan.

The purpose of the plan, Vaughn said, was to keep the zoning of property in the city in the "proper perspective." He said the plan would help keep commercial and industrial zoning from "creeping in" on residential sections. He added the plan would put the commercial and industrial zones in the most suitable areas.

"This does not necessarily mean the city will always go along with it, but it will be used as a guideline in future zoning," Vaughn said.

Other zoning board action included a public hearing on the request of Shed Realty for the rezoning of a portion of Purviance Street from multi-family to retail. After considerable discussion and no opposition from the floor, it was approved for recommendation to the city commission.

The board approved a request by W.C.C. Properties to set a public hearing on the rezoning of property located at Dogwood and 17th streets from SF-2 to multi-family. The public hearing was set for the next meeting date.

Merriman and Barber received approval from the board on the setting of a public hearing for the pre-approval of an area north of the Pampa Mall from agricultural to office and hospital district and the annexation and zoning of the same area. The board decided to hold a public hearing on the area already in the city limits, and will recommend to the city commission to hold an annexation and zoning hearing on the outside portion at the same time.

The board requested Merriman and Barber to present the City Engineering Department with metes and bounds from the Pampa Mall to the motel property where it joins the hospital property. The board also agreed to set a public hearing recommending the area to be rezoned from agricultural to commercial.

Merriman and Barber requested the board recommend to the city commission the annexation of Plats 130 and 131, suburbs of Pampa and zone the property commercial at the same time. The board approved the request.

Also requested by Merriman and Barber was the acceptance of a pre- plat on Casa de Loma Unit II. After discussion, the board directed the firm to work with the city staff on the pre- plat. The board agreed to accept the pre- plat, subject to staff approval.

A public hearing was requested by the firm to recommend the rezoning of the Casa de Loma Units I and II from agricultural to multi-family. The request was approved.

Final plat approval was accepted on the Shearer Addition for Ken Shearer was given by the board in the meeting.

Blake Laramore requested the board to approve a public hearing on the rezoning of one half block on the east side of the 400 block of North Cuyler from multi-family to retail. The hearing was set for the next meeting.
