U.N. Security Council to debate crisis

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was expected to begin debate today on the U.S.-Iranian crisis in response to a request from Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim contending that it is the most serious threat to peace since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

The United States, which for nearly two weeks blocked an Iranian request for the debate, agreed because it believed the debate would result in a strong resolution demanding release of the 49 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for three weeks, a State Department official said.

The hostages were visited Sunday for the first time since their ordeal began Nov. 4 by an American official as tens of thousands of Iranians held the daily anti-American demonstration outside the official. Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, reported the captives were still being kept with their hands tied loosely and were "anxious" but healthy. He also reported one of them was recovering from chicken pox.

In Tehran, revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today urged his Islamic followers to mobilize against the United States and said all Iranians must learn to handle a weapon.

In a speech to revolutionary guards, the Moslem patriarch envisaged his nation of 35 million people producing a 20-million strong army within a few years. "Our Islamic principles say everyone should know how to shoot and how to ride a horse," he said.

Waldheim in a letter to Security Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizzio of Bolivia said the tension between the United States and Iran "could have dangerous consequences for the entire world." He asked that the council "be convened urgently in an effort to seek a peaceful solution."

Diplomatic sources said they expected the 15 council members to consult privately this morning and to meet publicly in the afternoon to start the debate.

These sources said they expected council members generally would make it very clear that they considered the main issue release of the Americans held by Iranian students demanding that the U.S. government surrender the deposed shah for trial in Iran.

Iran's U.N. delegation asked Tehran for instructions. Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr asked on Nov. 13 for a council meeting to hear the Iranian revolutionary regime's charges against the shah and the United States. But the council refused to grant the Iranian request because it had not replied to a council statement Nov. 9 urging immediate release of the hostages.

Waldheim's request for a council meeting was announced at 3 a.m. Monday Tehran time and there was no immediate reaction from the Iranian capital. On Sunday, Pars, the official Iranian news agency, announced that Bani Sadr would fly to New York today to address the council and demand that the United States surrender the shah. But several hours later a government spokesman said the trip was delayed a week because of the Ashura religious holiday and the national referendum Dec. 2 on Iran's new Islamic constitution.

Waldheim's spokesman, Francois Giuliani, said it was the second time in U.N. history that a secretary-general requested a Security Council meeting because of a threat to peace. The other time was on July 13, 1960, when Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold convened a council meeting because of trouble in the newly independent Congo.

U.S. CONGRESSMAN George Hansen, left, moves through a crowd of fist-shaking anti-American demonstrators as he leaves the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Sunday. Hansen is the first American visitor the 49 hostages in the embassy have had since the occupation began three weeks ago. Hansen said the hostages looked fairly well, "but their mental state seems anxious. They want to get out. They are anxious for their families to know they are well."

Hostages bound but fairly well

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The hands of the 49 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy are "loosely tied with a strip of white cloth" and the captives are kept about three to a room, Rep. George Hansen reported.

"Some were sitting and reading. Some were lying on mats," the Idaho Republican said. They "don't get much sunshine and much opportunity to change their clothes," and one was recovering from chicken pox, he said.

Hansen said the hostages looked fairly well when he visited them Sunday, "but their mental state seems anxious. They would like to get out. They are anxious for their families to know they are well."

Hansen, a self-styled "do-it-yourself ambassador," was the first American to see the captives since Moslem militants seized the embassy Nov. 4 demanding the U.S. government extradite Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who is being treated for cancer at a New York hospital.

The U.N. Security Council was expected to begin debate today on the crisis. Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr planned to address the Council, but postponed his trip for a week because of a religious holiday and a constitutional referendum, a government spokesman said.

Hansen said when he entered the embassy and

"I heard those gates clank behind me I thought this must be the last free-walking American official in Tehran being taken out of circulation."

He said the student captors "blindfolded me and took me around the compound a couple of times in a truck" before reaching the hostages.

"Some things will be with me for a long time—the crowd, the look on the hostages' faces when I walked in, and the horror the students told me they and their families had suffered under the shah."

Hansen talked with about 20 of the hostages, and when he walked back through the embassy gates on his way out, hundreds of demonstrators began chanting, "Yankee Go Home!" and waving their fists.

But within minutes the chants switched to "People Yes, Carter No," apparently in response to a signal, Hansen said.

He said he had a moment's apprehension when he first saw the crowd, "then I saw smiles and arms reached out to shake hands, and I decided this is a friendly crowd."

"I'm here because I am concerned about your cause, your people, your suffering and about the threat of war," Hansen told the embassy captives in a question-and-answer session shown on Iranian television Sunday night.

White House opposes Hansen's mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Jody Powell said today the Carter administration opposes Rep. George Hansen's personal mission to Iran and believes it may prolong the holding of 49 American hostages there.

"I don't think that sort of thing is helpful," Powell said of Hansen's negotiating independently with Iranian officials.

Hansen has proposed congressional hearings into charges against the deposed Shah of Iran as leverage to win the release of American hostages held for 23 days in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

President Carter has not endorsed any such proposal. To the contrary, he has publicly refused to negotiate in any way with Iran's leaders as long as the Americans are held captive.

When a reporter asked if there was a danger that Iranians might misinterpret Hansen's statements as an official signal from the administration, Powell said, "Yes. If he gives a conflicting view to the students... he could prolong their (the hostages') stay."

Powell said the administration continues to oppose such private missions as Hansen's.

It was the administration's decision to admit the shah into the United States that sparked the seizure of the embassy Nov. 4 by militant Iranian students supported by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Iran's leaders have called repeatedly for extradition of the shah, hospitalized in New York City for treatment of cancer, as the price for releasing the hostages.

Hansen, an Idaho Republican, went to Tehran on his own last week and, in discussions with Iranian officials, proposed that a congressional committee investigate charges against the shah. Hansen said his proposal was well received in Tehran.

On Sunday he was allowed to see about 20 of the 49 American hostages at the embassy. He said their reaction to his presence made his trip worthwhile.

Saudi troops seek remnants of band

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — Saudi troops combed the Grand Mosque in Mecca today, seeking remnants of the band of Moslems who seized Islam's holiest shrine six days ago.

"The whole mosque is under our control," Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani told reporters in Riyadh after Saudi troops routed the armed men from the upper floor of the building Saturday evening. But he said "some gangs" were still at large in the tunnels and passageways beneath the stadium-size building and courtyard and that they held some hostages.

"There is no danger from them," Yamani added. Others were said to have escaped into the surrounding countryside and were being pursued by government troops. Part of the mosque was reported reopened for public worship on Sunday, for the first time since it was taken over during early morning prayers last Tuesday.

Diplomats said the men who took over the shrine in the holy city 480 miles southwest of Riyadh were members of the ultra-conservative Oteiba tribe from southern Saudi Arabia. Their leader, who proclaimed himself the messianic Mahdi, or prophet, and was identified as "Johaiman," was reported among those captured. During the siege, he demanded that the government abolish radio, television and soccer and prohibit women from engaging in business. Officials said earlier that those captured would be dealt with severely. A Moslem leader said Friday that they were guilty of "spreading corruption on earth," and the penalty for this is dismemberment.

Saudi national guardsmen, acting on orders from King Khaled, used howitzers and rapid-firing armored personnel carriers to blast most of the invaders from the upper floor of the mosque, diplomatic sources said. They said witnesses reported the attack was led by two armored personnel carriers that circled the inner courtyard, firing into the ramparts of the building where the intruders were holed up.

156 die after Pakistani jetliner crashes

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A Pakistani jetliner lying Moslem pilgrims home from Mecca caught fire, exploded and crashed shortly after taking off early today from Jidda and all 156 persons aboard were believed killed, airline officials said.

A Pakistani International Airlines spokesman told a news conference in Karachi, Pakistan, the plane's destination, that no survivors were reported among the plane's 145 passengers and 11 crew members. He said none of those aboard were American or European.

PIA officials said they did not rule out sabotage, but PIA engineers in Karachi, Pakistan, the plane's destination, said they believed a short circuit caused the fire and explosion.

An airline spokesman said the Boeing 707 crashed about 20 minutes after taking off from this Red Sea port city. The wreck was about 70 miles northeast of Jidda, in rough and mountainous desert to the north of Mecca, site of Islam's holiest shrine.

The spokesman said the wreckage was scattered over a three-mile area.

Saudi helicopters, carrying civil aviation and Pakistani airline officials, left Jidda before dawn for the wreckage about 15 miles north of Taif.

The PIA plane had come from Kano, Nigeria, and left Jidda shortly before 1 a.m. bound for Karachi.

Officials said the captain reported smoke in the cabin and cockpit soon after the takeoff. Five minutes later, he radioed "May Day! Ooeee, no further!" and radio contact was broken.

THOUSANDS OF Iranians supporting the leftist Fedayeen group marching towards the US Embassy here Sunday. They shouted anti-American slogans but carried no Khomeini portraits. No clashes with Islamic fundamentalists were reported.

Gray County financially healthy because of lease

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last part of a series on the 1980 Gray County budget, which was adopted Nov. 16 by the county commissioner's court.

By MELANIE MILLER
Of The Pampa News

The apparently healthy financial situation in Gray County can be credited to one item — the leasing of Highland General Hospital.

Seven months ago, on April 2, Highland General and the McLean Hospital were leased to the Hospital Corporation of America, changing those institutions from county-owned and operated facilities to privately-owned and operated hospitals.

The leasing not only changed the future of the hospital business in Gray County, it also released funds in the county budget that will now be used for other needs. These available funds combined have boosted the county's beginning and ending balances for 1980 by almost $400,000.

The estimated beginning balance for 1980 is $809,840.71, compared to $719,815.53 in 1979. The estimated ending balance for 1980 is $1,025,168.95 against a 1979 figure of $754,766.74.

County Judge Carl Kennedy said the hospital expenses created a decrease in ending budget balances between 1978 and 1979.

"The 1979 budget projected costs for the hospital because the commissioner's court at that time did not know when the hospital would be leased," Kennedy said. "But those expenses never materialized — they just weren't there."

County Auditor A.C. Malone agreed and said because the hospital was having a "hard time" meeting their expenses, the commissioner's court had to budget "several hundred thousands of dollars" to pay those unmet bills. That available money has now left a surplus in the budget, he said.

Although the hospital has been leased, the budget shows resources in the budget for Highland General to be $1,824,060.02. This is money paid to the county for the acquisition of the hospital assets, Kennedy said.

"We're simply holding the money until the final disposition on the hospital property is made," he said.

Ad valorem taxes have also increased, although not substantially since 1979 with only a 13 percent increase noted in that one year's time.

Kennedy said the change in the value of property, which is due to inflation as well as new construction in Gray County, has caused that increase.

"A big bulk of it was the construction out at Celanese (of a coal conversion plant)," he said. "We had an $8 million increase in assessed property value in one year."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

It's up to Congress to terminate treaties

The federal court's ruling that struck down President Carter's independent termination of the mutual defense treaty with Taiwan has joined diplomatic seismographs around the world and particularly in Asia.

Amidst the ensuing torrent of comments, the reaction voiced by the first secretary of Peking's Washington embassy, Yu Zhizhong, most aptly perhaps summarized the new situation. He simply observed that the United States now has a "serious problem" in its relationship with the Republic of China. And so we have.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch agreed with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and others whose lawsuit contended that, as the Constitution requires the president to obtain consent of two-thirds of the Senate to make a treaty, the same Senate approval is required to break one. Judge Gasch rules, in effect, that treaty-making is a contractual undertaking between president and Congress and "neither the executive nor the legislative branch has the exclusive power to terminate treaties."

Thus, a federal court has declared null and void President Carter's surprise decision announced last Dec. 15 to scrap the defense pact signed with Taiwan 25 years ago and to de-recognize that ally in order to achieve full diplomatic relations with Communist China. The problem worrying the Chinese and the State Department, not to say others, is that the court decision legally restoring U.S. recognition and the defense treaty to Taiwan calls into question the status of U.S. relations with Red China. Everyone knows there shouldn't be two U.S. ambassadors to one country.

This unexpected can of worms, as Washingtonians are wont to call such problems, is stupefying.

The Carter Administration's response is to file an appeal with the Circuit Court of Appeals in the hope that Gasch's decision will be overturned.

This course is a mistake. Sen. Goldwater is right in suggesting that Carter should seek congressional approval of his China-Taiwan policy rather than continue to battle Congress over an issue of constitutional power.

As a practical matter, it would appear there are good chances for quick approval of either two-thirds of the Senate or a majority of both houses of Congress to ratify existing arrangements between the United States, Taiwan and mainland China, with perhaps only minor amendments. Congress would be under enormous pressure to resolve the complications and preserve the status quo.

But even if the administration should win its appeal, there is no reason to expect Goldwater won't go to the U.S. Supreme Court. The outlook then for the administration's legal route is, at best, for protracted litigation that could last months and even years.

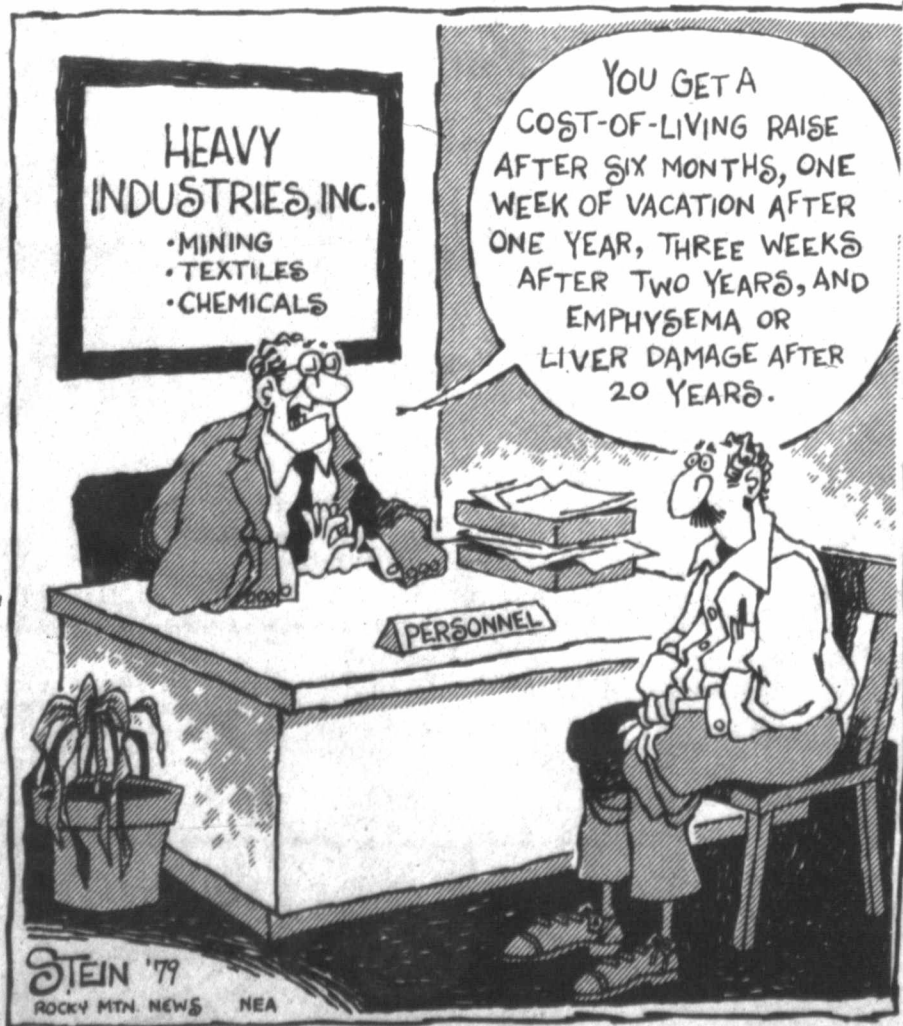

And another urgent consideration is whether the higher courts will sustain the administration's position, which already has a strike against it.

The Constitution is silent on how treaties can be terminated and, indeed, the question has never before been tested in the courts during the life of this country. It stands to reason that the presidential-congressional partnership set forth in the Constitution for making of treaties would extend to the unmaking of them.

Obviously, should the administration prevail on this and should U.S. presidents thereby gain the right to terminate treaties at their convenience, no U.S. treaty could be counted on to last long or be worth much.

In fact, President Carter should tremble at the consequences of winning such authority. If, say, Ronald Reagan should be elected president in 1980, what would prevent him from scrapping the SALT II treaty, assuming it is ratified, or the treaties with Panama on the status of the canal?

The president should have the authority to terminate any treaty considered not to be in the best interest of the United States. But such a decision should be subject to congressional consultation and consent. If the China-Taiwan episode can nail down this concept, then Carter's hasty, independent policy, which radically altered U.S. relationships in Asia, will have served a useful and historic purpose despite its complications.

By Oscar Cooley
Iranians holding 49 Americans hostage in the U.S. embassy at Tehran are guilty of a criminal act. All Americans resent it as an affront to this country.

It is that, but there is another reason why it should be condemned, and not by Americans alone but by all civilized men. It constitutes a violent and wholly unjustified attack on 49 innocent people.

The employees of the embassy and other Americans in Tehran are in no way responsible for the U.S. government's policy toward the deposed shah. They could not have affected that policy in the slightest, even if they wanted to. That policy was formulated in Washington by the executive and legislative branches of our government. Embassies and consulates do not make foreign policy.

The Iranians surrounding the embassy know this. They are well aware that they are taking out their spite on innocent people. Their notion of justice is rudimentary, to say the least.

A sad part of the whole episode is that many Americans urge that we retaliate similarly, that is, by penalizing Iranians in this country, students and others who came here legally and peaceably. These are our guests. Shall we kick a guest in the face because some countrymen of his back home are stomping on our friends without cause?

If an Iranian visitor, or any other, fails to behave himself while in the United States — if he breaks our laws, occupies the Statue of Liberty, burns our flag in public, throws eggs and rocks at people in the streets, he, of course, should be apprehended and punished like any other disturber of the peace. But this should be done because he is a law-breaker and wrong-doer, not because of his nationality.

People in every corner of the world were shocked when our embassy and staff in Tehran were seized and held by fanatical Iranians. For once, there was almost universal sympathy for the United States. This was because of the universally accepted principle that it is wrong to punish people for an action by entirely different people.

It has been suggested by some, including congressmen, that Americans should quit dealing with Iran, stop buying Iranian oil — about 3 percent of our oil is coming from there — and boycott that country completely. On Monday, President Carter responded by ordering a halt to Iranian oil imports.

This may work hardships on thousands of Iranians who are not guilty of seizing our embassy and holding our people-hostage, who may, indeed, condemn that crime; for all we know, it could also deprive Americans.

Others, wrathful at the embassy seizure, would round up the many Iranian youth who have come here for an education and deport them. They make no distinction between the few who foment violence and the many who mind their books, but would send them all back.

These proposals to retaliate arise out of nationalistic thinking. Because certain people of Iran have wronged us, we would punish Iran and all Iranians, indiscriminately.

But the wrong was done by a certain group of irresponsible people, inspired by a dominion whose religious credentials are, somewhat obscure — not by a nation of 21 million people. A wrong done by A and B is in no degree righted by punishing C, D and E. On the contrary, it is multiplied.

The proposal to cut off trade with Iran because of the hostage episode ignores the truth, often stressed by economists, that trade is mutually beneficial to both buyer and seller. If it is not, it would not occur. A buyer's strike, or boycott, cuts the money income of the seller, but it also reduces the good income of the buyer. If either gets in a huff because of some unrelated event and calls off the trade, he cuts off his nose to spite his face, as Grandma used to say.

We sell considerable goods to Iran, including $500 million worth of food yearly. The more oil they sell us, the more dollars they get with which to buy more goods, including ours. Would it be smart for us to cut off these exports, denying American producers part of their market, as well as depriving Iranian consumers, in the effort to punish the tiny percentage of the latter who are to blame for the crime against our embassy people?

We would expect fanatics like Khomeini to react in this manner, but not hard-headed Americans.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Nov. 26, the 330th day of 1979. There are 35 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
In 1789, President George Washington asked the nation to observe the day as one of thanksgiving for adoption of the Constitution.

On this date:
In 1922, in Egypt, King Tutankhamen's tomb was opened.

In 1940, Nazi conquerers ordered the 500,000 Jews in Warsaw, Poland, to live within a walled ghetto.

In 1949, India adopted a constitution as a federal republic within the British Commonwealth.

In 1970, a Bolivian painter, disguised as a priest, tried to kill Pope Paul VI in Manila. Paul escaped injury.

In 1977, Israel accepted Egypt's invitation to take part in a multi-nation Cairo Conference to plan Geneva peace talks.

Ten years ago, armed conflict broke out along the border between Saudi Arabia and South Yemen.

Five years ago, Mexico broke diplomatic ties with Chile.

One year ago, the Moslem religious leaders and politicians seeking to topple the shah called a general strike that virtually paralyzed Iran.

Iranian act should not punish all

"Honest, it's not what you think — I work for the revolutionary court, and I've just got a machine gun in here."

The company spokesman

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—The most important position in any large corporation is that of company spokesman. He is the person put out front when the corporation is accused of some misdeed or violation of the law. My friend, Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who teaches a course in corporate spokesmanship at the Stonewall School of Business, let me attend one of his classes the other day.

There were three dummy television cameras in the room to simulate an actual press conference.

Applebaum said, "All right, Bensing. You will play the spokesman for the Windfall Oil Co. Marx, Rogers and Clurman will be the reporters from the networks. The Department of Energy has just released a report that Windfall has bilked its customers out of $1 billion. Start the questions."

"Mr. Bensing, the DOE says that you overcharged your customers by $1 billion. What do you say to that?"

Bensing wet his lips. "It's a dirty, contemptible lie."

Applebaum broke in: "No, Bensing, a company spokesman must keep his cool under media questioning. Your response should be, 'We don't wish to comment on the matter until we've read the charges.'"

"Yes, sir," Bensing said.
Applebaum said, "That may not get you off the hook, but it's a good start. Marx, throw a tough question at him."

"Since 1974 you've overcharged the public $5 billion," Marx said. "Do you intend to return any of that money to your customers?"

Bensing answered, "These are political charges made by a vindictive administration whose one aim is to get a large tax on all oil profits."

"Very good, Bensing," said Applebaum. "How did you come up with that one?"

"I saw it on the Cronkite show last night."

"Push him hard, Rogers," Applebaum yelled.

"Mr. Bensing, you took an ad in the newspapers last week explaining that Windfall was only making half a cent on a gallon of gasoline, yet your profits were up by 224 percent. How did you make all the money?"

Bensing looked puzzled. "I didn't understand the question."

Applebaum yelled, "That's not good enough! The cameras will close in on your face and everyone will know you're lying. Does anyone know what Bensing should say?"

The class was silent.

Applebaum said, "You should say your gas stations made most of their profits from Coke machines. Also that you raised the cost of going to the washroom from 10 to 15 cents, which is keeping within the price guidelines."

"Will they really buy that one, Professor?"

"They will if you say it with authority. And one more thing, Bensing, watch what you're doing with your hands. TV cameramen always like to shoot an oil spokesman's hands when he's answering a question: It's a dead giveaway that you're trying to cover something up. Clurman, it's your turn."

"Mr. Bensing, the people think the oil companies are ripping them off. The report from the DOE seems to confirm this. How can you establish your credibility?"

"You've seen our TV commercials. It's up to the public to decide whether they want to believe Bob Hope or some flunky who works for the government."

"Bravo," said Applebaum. "I'm giving you a B- I might have given you an A if you weren't perspiring so much. Remember this: A spokesman for a large corporation must never sweat on television."

The professor continued, "All right, class, your assignment for tomorrow is to prepare a statement for the Foul Chemical Co., defending itself against charges by Mike Wallace on '60 Minutes' that it dumped nerve gas into the Central Park Reservoir, which caused everybody in New York City to stop brushing their teeth."

How to get into newspaper publishing

By D.R. Segal

When I was a newspaper publisher and the kids were young, the little pests used to ask, "Daddy, what does a publisher do?" "Shut up," I explained — shamelessly stealing the line from Ring Lardner.

It is terribly difficult to say what a publisher does. The closest you can come is to say he does things he can't get anyone else to do. A publisher has to lead a life beyond reproach, setting a good example for the community, going regularly to church and never sassing his Ma. It helps if he has a good-looking wife.

I am not persuaded that Leroy Jenkins per publisher, although he has the temperament. Leroy is a faith healer down in Greenwood, S.C., a bit of territory with which I have some familiarity.

Leroy planned to start a daily newspaper in Greenwood, S.C., because he was sore vexed at the Anderson, S.C., Independent. And the Independent's reporter, Rick Ricks, chapped Reverend Jenkins clerical rear end because Ricks had written some irreverent things about the Rev.

However, Mr. Jenkins plans to get into the publishing racket have been delayed for 12 years, which is the length of the sentence he drew for conspiracy to "commit assault of a high and aggravated nature" on Mr. Ricks with some extra time thrown in for having conspired to assault a highway patrolman and burn down his own house.

Mr. Jenkins has asked the judge to suspend the jail sentence and impose a fine instead presumably freeing him to begin his new career as a daily newspaper publisher.

Leroy might not have the talents for publishing, but he has the instincts. Anyway, I'm not a publisher anymore so I am not much concerned with those people.

The other day one of the kids said, "Dad, what does a president do?" "Shut up," I explained. "Dumb kids!"

The round green

The U.S. mint hasn't given up on the Susan B. Anthony dollar yet, even though the public gives every indication of having done so.

It is considering changing the coin's color to get around the most cited reason for resistance to its circulation — similarity to the quarter.

Initial experimentation with various tinted alloys has not proved too successful, however. According to Mint spokesmen, with use these alloy coins have tended to turn green.

Well, that could be a public turn-off. But at least it's an appropriate color, and certainly better than being reminded of the truth every time a coin changes hands — that we're monetarily in the red.

Long-heralded farm meetings by Bergland to begin this week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland's long-heralded series of meetings to look at the structure of American agriculture begins this week.

Thousands of Agriculture Department news releases, posters and other material have been circulated in recent months to help stir interest in the meetings, ballyhooed by department press agents as a "dialogue on the future of agriculture and rural life."

Three of the 10 public hearings will be held this week, in Montpelier, Vt., on Tuesday; Fayetteville, N.C., on Wednesday and in Huntsville, Ala., on Thursday.

The list of those scheduled to speak at the hearings so far suggests there will be a wide range of topics and a complicated mixture of views.

In the opener, representatives of the major farm organizations — Farm Bureau, Grange, National Farmers Organization and Farmers Union — will testify.

Those groups, which traditionally hold at least some views that can provoke fiery debates among themselves, by no means will be the only ones willing to help Bergland in his quest for a national dialogue.

For example, the list for the Vermont hearing includes these names and brief descriptions of what they represent:

Sully Taylor, Hartford, Conn., Connecticut Public Interest Research Group, and a consumer representative.

Glen Edick, Syracuse, N.Y., group vice president, Agway Inc., largest co-op in the Northeast.

Samuel Kayman, Wilton, N.H., president and education coordinator, National Organic Farmers Association.

Cornelia Swayze, Turnbridge, Vt., small-acreage farmer, sheep and maple syrup.

Robert Downing, North Reading, Mass., organic farmer — pick-your-own strawberries and vegetables.

The Vermont meeting list also includes "a young dairy farmer" — a farmer who is a member of the Farm Bureau, American Agriculture Movement and the Grange; a potato grower and shipper; a small-town farm supply and hardware dealer; a banker and others.

According to the plan, each of some 20 persons will take five minutes to offer presentations and then will be questioned by Bergland and an aide, Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman.

"Bergland called for a national talk show on agriculture last spring in a speech at Kansas City, Mo. In a statement prepared for the first meeting in Vermont, he said:

"We need to stand back and look at farm programs, tax policies, marketing and transportation systems, environmental concerns, community development programs and credit policies that have shaped agricultural development in the past, then decide what kind of programs and policies will help us move wisely into the future."

The remaining seven hearings are scheduled for: South Sioux City, Neb., Dec. 4; Sedalia, Mo., Dec. 5; Wichita Falls, Texas, Dec. 6; Denver, Dec. 11; Spokane, Wash., Dec. 12; Fresno, Calif., Dec. 13; and Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 18.

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of oilseeds, dominated by another huge U.S. soybean harvest, is expected to be a record 178.2 million metric tons this year.

According to recent figures by the Agriculture Department, total world production would be up 12 percent from 159.1 million metric tons in 1978-79.

Besides soybeans, production includes cottonseed, peanuts, sunflower seed, rapeseed and other oil-bearing crops. Soybeans, however, are expected to make up more than 95 million metric tons or 53 percent of the total.

The U.S. total oilseed output of all crops was estimated at more than 72 million metric tons, 40 percent of global production. American soybean production alone — some 60.9 million metric tons — is equal to more than one-third of the world's total oilseeds.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and, in the case of soybeans, is equal to 36.7 bushels. This year's U.S. soybean harvest is estimated at about 2.24 billion bushels.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fall season has brought its usual rise in cattle scabies, a skin disease caused by tiny mites burrowing into the animals, says the Agriculture Department.

In October, according to the latest tabulation, 12 outbreaks were confirmed, including: Kansas, 5; Texas and Colorado, 2 each; and Arizona, California and New Mexico, 1 each.

A year earlier, 13 outbreaks occurred during October, officials said.

Nuclear protesters 'betrayed'

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Members of an anti-nuclear coalition said they felt "betrayed" after deputies arrested nearly 100 of them for protesting on the grounds of a nuclear power plant under construction in Somervell County.

It was the second demonstration against the Comanche Peak power station, about four miles from this North Central Texas city.

But last June, 48 members of the Comanche Peak Life Force were allowed to climb the plant's fence, make speeches and sing anti-nuclear songs before deputies hustled them away on criminal trespass charges.

Sunday, as soon as their feet touched the ground inside the fence, deputies and Department of Public Safety troopers put them on buses and hauled them to the sheriff's office for fingerprinting, booking and new trespass charges.

"We feel betrayed," said protest leader Jim Schermbeck of Fort Worth.

Sheriff Frank Laramore told reporters he had not talked to the demonstrators before Sunday's gathering and had made no arrangements "like last time."

The booking process Sunday took more than five hours when 25 of the protesters refused to leave their bus.

"We will stay on the bus until we work out a compromise to our satisfaction," Schermbeck said during the delay, which saw deputies carry one protester off the bus by his hands and feet.

The others left voluntarily after it was made clear they would not have to spend the night in jail.

A small group of construction workers from the plant site, wearing their hard hats, watched the booking process and chatted amiably with some of the protesters.

"They have their right to protest," said worker Terry Bateman, "and we have our right to protest. That's why we wore our hard hats today."

The 48 arrested last June were brought to trial en masse during the summer, but jurors deadlocked 4-2 and authorities then began trying them individually.

'Corrupt' sheriff's trial begins

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Calling the Longview sheriff's office "corrupt," U.S. Attorney John Hannah prepared opening arguments today for the federal racketeering trial of five Gregg County officials, including Sheriff Tom Welch.

A federal grand jury returned the indictments Aug. 3 under statutes written to attack corrupt organizations.

"The alleged corrupt organization in this case is the Gregg County Sheriff's office," Hannah said before the trial opened.

The indictments allege Welch, Gregg County Commissioner William Satterwhite, Justice of the Peace Charles Cashell, and former deputies Billy Ray Roach and James M. Cochran plotted an aborted triple murder in 1974 and covered up illegal gambling operations in and around Longview in Gregg County.

"We're absolutely ready," said Satterwhite's attorney, Ken Ross. "We've been working hard on it. I'm sure the government has, too."

Both Ross and Hannah predicted the trial will last about two weeks.

The indictments accuse Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran of plotting to have three unidentified persons ambushed at a county-owned equipment barn. The intended victims escaped unharmed despite reported volleys of gunfire.

"We're highly confident that these charges are going to be found groundless," the sheriff said.

The indictments also contain these allegations:

—That Satterwhite built a parking lot for an illegal gambling house with county money.

—That Welch took $3,000 from two men to let them operate illegal gambling games on the midway of the Gregg County Fair.

—That Roach, Cashell and another former deputy were paid $350 to "guard" the game booths at the fair.

—That Welch "warned certain people" not to interfere with the fair games, calling the operators "his people" and then "ordered the certain individuals out of Gregg County."

The August indictments accused a total of 19 individuals.

Seadrift mayor okays Klan march

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — Mayor Rayburn Haynie says if the Ku Klux Klan wants to march through his town because of a bloody shirt, fine with him, but he doesn't want them to bring any trouble.

Six Klan members — one of them dressed in ceremonial robes — met with city officials and residents of this tiny fishing village Saturday for a "fact-finding mission" concerning the recent acquittal of two Vietnamese refugees accused of killing a local fisherman.

The August shooting climaxed long-building tensions between the immigrants and local fishermen who complained the Vietnamese ignored traditional territorial fishing rights.

The Vietnamese were acquitted, but Louis Bean, the Texas Klan's grand dragon, said he wants evidence from the trial — particularly the shirt the victim was wearing when he died — given back to the victim's family.

"Otherwise," he said, "we will have to come back to Seadrift in force and dramatize our concern."

"We can come back with however many people we need: We can bring 100 or 200, but I feel 100 marching in Seadrift would be sufficient."

"I don't care if they walk up and down the street," said Haynie, after talking to the Klansmen for about five minutes at city hall.

Olympic Ballot
Since 1949, the Communist Chinese government in Peking has claimed to be the lawful government of all of China. The Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan makes the same claim. But which China should send its athletes to the Olympic Games? This month, the 89 members of the International Olympic Committee have been voting on a proposal that would allow both Chinas to compete next year. The Peking team would represent the People's Republic of China. The team from Taiwan would represent the Chinese Taipei Olympic Committee, but would not use the Nationalist Chinese anthem or flag. The IOC is scheduled to announce the results of its vote today.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Chinese government does the United States officially recognize?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Jefferson Davis became president of the Confederacy.

Tanker continues to burn off coast

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — grounded, leaking oil tanker continued to burn in the Gulf of Mexico early today, but scientists predicted they would soon complete the task of cleaning up the mess dumped on Galveston beaches.

The Burmah Agate collided Nov. 1 with an empty freighter about five miles east of Galveston. The tanker exploded, burst into flame and began spewing oil from its ruptured rear compartments into the water.

Seventeen of the ship's crew are known dead and another 15 remain missing from the accident.

Oil washed up on Texas beaches several times last week, but the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration continued beach cleanup Sunday, removing 50 yards of oil-stained sand and 2,500 gallons of an oil-water-sand mixture.

Guardsmen said no new oil hit shore Sunday, and most of the spill was about three miles from land.

police report

Sandra Murpree, 36, of 401 Yeager, Apt. 6 was arrested by police officers after she was involved in a minor four vehicle accident at 511 Yeager. Murpree was found to be in an intoxicated condition. She was cited for unsafe lane change and charged with driving while intoxicated. She was placed in city jail.

A complainant at 3113 Lynn reported $95 were stolen from a purse at the residence at about 12:00 a.m., Nov. 25. A party was going on at the time. The complainant also reported about $40 worth of damage done to the walls and windows by a possibly known subject. Charges will be filed.

Officers were called to 2128 Christy where a complainant advised the front window had been broken from the outside. A metal rod was book into evidence. Damage was estimated at $50.

The Pampa Police Department responded to 39 calls during the 48-hour period ending at 7:00 a.m. today.

minor accidents

A four vehicle accident occurred early Sunday morning in the 500 block of N. Yeager involving a 1973 Ford pickup driven by Sandra Murpree, 36, of 401 Yeager and three vehicles parked in front of the residence at 511 Yeager. According to police reports, Murpree was traveling south in the 500 block of Yeager when she swerved to the right striking a pickup belonging to Manual Zamora. The vehicle rolled into the driveway striking a 1973 Oldsmobile owned by Guadalupe Gonzales, 3636 Gullford, Ft. Worth and a 1978 Ford pickup also owned by Manual Zamora. No injuries were reported at the scene. Murpree was cited for driving while intoxicated and unsafe change of direction of travel.

A 1977 Chevrolet pickup driven by Raymond Vargas, 22, of 201 E. Thut was north bound in the 300 block of N. Hobart when it was in collision with a 1972 Pontiac driven by John Ryan, 31, of 1020 Varnon. Ryan was reportedly north bound in the 300 block of Hobart. Vargas was cited for following too closely.

Tornadoes rip across Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Barbara Samsal looked out her window and saw the tornado. She ran screaming into her bathroom. "I saw it coming and I thought, 'Oh, God, I'm dead!'"

The tornado that terrified Ms. Samsal roared through a Montgomery apartment complex, one of several twisters that ripped across scattered areas of Alabama on Sunday, leaving widespread destruction and a score of injuries in their wake.

At least one of the injured, 18-year-old Pat McGillberry of Montgomery, was in critical condition.

He suffered severe internal injuries when a twister lifted him and his motorcycle into the air and threw him onto a nearby field.

Many of the injuries were in Montgomery and outlying areas. The tornado witnessed by Ms. Samsal damaged some 80 apartment units in the capital city.

The Red Cross said eight people were injured when a twister touched down at Letohatchee, in Lowndes County southwest of Montgomery. Several barns and garages were damaged.

At least two were injured when a late afternoon storm struck New Site, near Alexander City in east-central Alabama's Tallapoosa County. Two trailer homes and a house were damaged.

Heart Association to meet Tuesday

The Gray County chapter of the American Heart Association will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Citizens Bank & Trust Hospitality Room. The group is presently reorganizing efforts to publicize measures to prevent heart disease. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press
A few clouds buffeted by brisk, gritty winds drifted over northwest Texas this morning, but the rest of the state woke to clear skies today.

Winds across the state generally are less than 10 miles an hour.

Another winter storm brewing in the Central Rockies increased windspeed some in northwest Texas and whooshed a few light clouds into the state. As windspeeds pick up, the possibility of blowing dust will increase.

Temperatures across the state dropped rapidly during the night with readings at the freezing mark or below in the northwestern third of Texas. Marfa recorded the morning low with a chilly 6 degrees.

But skies remain balmy in South Texas where thermometer readings on the coast hovered near the 50-degree mark.

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with mid-afternoon highs reaching the mid-60s to upper-70s.

FORECAST

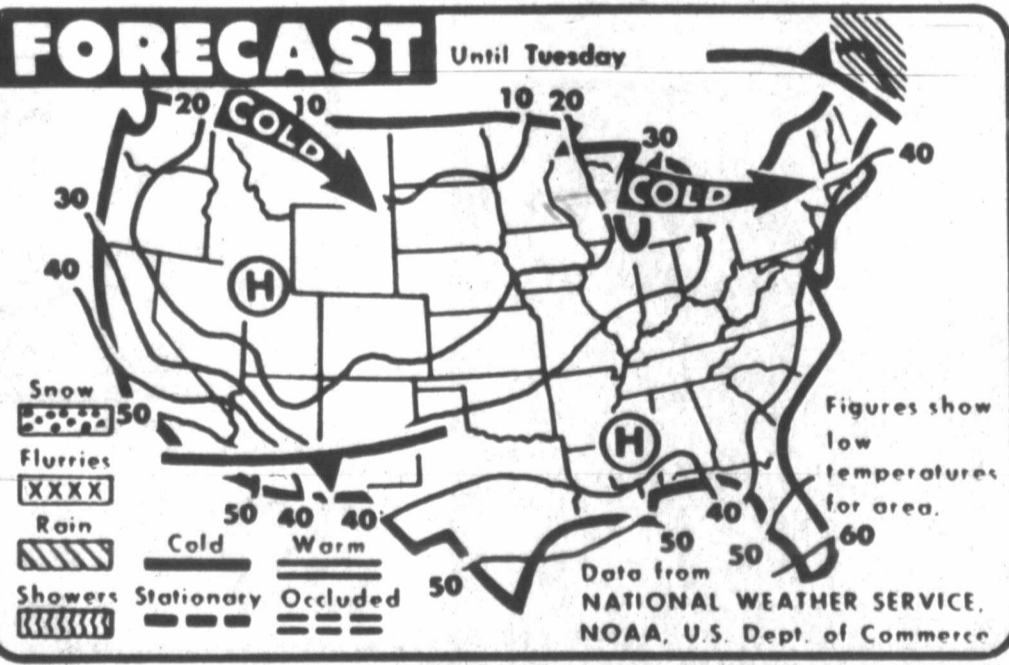

North Texas
Mostly fair and mild today and tonight. Fair and turning colder Tuesday. Highs today 65 to 71. Lows tonight 38 northwest to 48 south and east. Highs Tuesday 58 northwest to 70 southeast.

South Texas
Fair and mild through Tuesday. Turning a little cooler northern portion on Tuesday. High today 70 to 80. Low tonight 39 northwest to 59 south. High Tuesday 70 northwest to 82 southwest.

West Texas
Partly cloudy north and mostly fair south through Tuesday. Warmer today and cooler Tuesday. Highs today mid 60s north to mid 70s Big Bend. Lows tonight low 20s north, near 20 mountains to near 40 southeast. Highs Tuesday mid 40s extreme north to near 70 Big Bend.

Upper Coast
Winds variable, but mostly from the southwest around 10 knots today and tonight. Winds becoming northwesterly 15 to 20 knots Tuesday afternoon. Seas 2 to 3 feet today. Fair skies.

Lower Coast
Winds variable, mostly from the southwest winds around 10 knots today and tonight. Winds becoming northwesterly 15 to 20 knots Tuesday afternoon. Seas 2 to 3 feet today. Fair skies.

COLDER WEATHER is expected in the forecast period. Monday until Tuesday morning, across the northern tier of states from the Pacific Northwest to northern Maine. Warmer weather is expected for southern states. Little or no precipitation is expected. (AP Laserphoto map)

National REACT Week observed in Gray County

The Gray County REACT Team is observing National REACT Week November, 25 through December 1, with a special membership drive to encourage interested Citizen Band Radio operators to join their public service organization.

If you are a licensed CB operator, your volunteer effort can be a valuable public service, bringing help to motorists and providing communications in local emergencies.

Team President Gene Rains stated, "We are interested in meeting serious-minded CBers who want something more than 'Breaker-Breaker!'"

The team maintains a volunteer monitoring watch on CB emergency Channel 9 and cooperates with all local authorities.

The requirements for membership include:
1. Legal CB operations under a valid F.C.C. license or pending application.
2. A CB base station and home telephone for monitoring purposes.
3. A sincere interest in serving the public good.

The local team cooperates with all law enforcement agencies and disaster preparedness groups and is affiliated with React International, a non-profit public service organization.

There will be an open meeting and get together held Tuesday Nov. 27. The meeting will be held at the National Guard Armory, to start at 7:00 p.m. the get together will start at 7:30 p.m.

Those people that are interested in membership or would just like to see how REACT operates are invited to attend. Come to the meeting and get together to meet the members of Gray County REACT.

There will be refreshments served to the guests. There will also be a presentation for seven businesses that have helped with their support of REACT. These people have been asked to be with us for this presentation. Find out how you can be a part of this group of people and help your community. You can also get information about membership in the Gray County REACT Team by calling 665-1554 or 665-4733. REACT is always ready to help others... So Don't Sit Back...Join REACT!

'Jaws of Life' to top agenda
City Commissioners will consider advertising for bids on a rescue tool for the Pampa Fire Department in Tuesday's regular commission meeting to be held at 9:30 a.m. in the commission room of city hall.

The "Jaws of Life" power rescue tool, budgeted for this year, will cost about $6000. Operated by one man, the tool — with a 12,000 pound working force power — can perform tasks previously requiring three to four men. It will be used to rescue victims trapped in wrecks or to gain entrance in burning warehouses or mercantile buildings and opening steel doors.

Assistant Fire Chief J. D. Ray said earlier, "We've been trying to get this for about a year now."
Listed on the Tuesday's agenda is a recommendation from the Planning and Zoning Commission concerning the adoption of a comprehensive plan report. This plan, Steve Vaughn, city building official says, is to keep the zoning of property in the city in the "proper perspective."

"This does not mean the city will always go along with it," Vaughn said, "but it will be used as a guideline in future zoning."

A presentation will be given to the board by representative of the Pampa Environmental Beautification Association. Commissioners will also consider the authorization of a safety program.

Two resolutions will be brought forward for adoption by the commissioners. One concerns the use of natural gas for decorative outdoor lighting and the other requests the improvement of State Highway 70 from 21st Street to the intersection with Loop 171.

Bids will be received by the commissioners for water and sewer construction to serve the hospital site.

In other commission business, the final readings will be read on the proposed zoning changes as outlined in Ordinance Nos. 853 and 854.

RUSTY KNIGHT makes sure Santa Claus has his Christmas order in plenty of time to take care of it. The youngster chatted with the jolly fat man during a recent visit to a Pampa shopping area. (Photo by Ed Sackett)

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: How do you go about putting a stop to exchanging Christmas gifts with people you hardly ever see? I don't mean relatives. I mean out-of-towners who used to be neighbors and whose children were friendly with our children (all grown now), and folks we are no longer close to. Shopping, wrapping and mailing Christmas presents has gotten to be a real chore, and I am not as young as I used to be. I would just as soon get off a lot of people's lists and take them off mine, too! I'm sure they feel the same way about it, but don't know how to get off ours.

So how do I get off this merry-go-round, Abby? I would like to soon send Christmas cards to a couple of dozen people who are still on my Christmas list. Thanks from ...
CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: Early in December write a note to those you'd like to take off your gift list and put on the card list, saying you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank. Explain that this year, along with trimming your Christmas tree, you're trimming your gift list and sending cards instead. I'm betting they'll appreciate your practical approach and will reciprocate accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a big-hearted husband who gets loaded at a party on Saturday night and invites everyone there to come to our house on Sunday for a Bloody Mary brunch? When I hear him say this, I feel I have to say, "Oh, yes, do come, we'd love to have you" — but what I would love to do is conk him on the head!

Most people have sense enough not to come, but some do. What's the solution?
NEWPORT

DEAR NEWPORT: Should you hear your husband issue such an invitation, good-humoredly let it be known that hubby is tipsy and there will be no party.

And if somebody shows up, let HIM entertain them.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married three months and already I have a very serious problem. My husband told me he divorced his first wife of five years because she had affairs with other men. Now I can understand why, because even though he has many fine qualities, he has got to be the world's worst lover.

I have tried to build up his ego in this regard and put on a good act because I know how hurt he was when he found out about his first wife's unfaithfulness. But, Abby, this constant frustration is driving me up a wall!

I have considered seeing some old boyfriends. I really think it could save our marriage, because we get along so well in every other way.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace: I'm emotionally involved with the most perfect young man a girl would ever want.

We really love each other but we don't see each other very much because we are of different races and we're both afraid to tell our parents because we know there will be conflict.

Can you please help. —
L.L., Youngstown, Ohio

L.L.: It's better that you tell your parents now that you are seeing a boy of a different race. If someone else tells them, it will be a much more volatile situation. The same holds true for the boy and his parents.

Racial prejudice is probably the strongest of all prejudices so your task will not be easy. Expect two family uproars, but don't get into arguments about the situation. Ask if you can bring the boy (girl in his case) over to meet your parents. If they say no, let it go at that and try at a later time.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 years old and was convicted on a burglary charge and given eight months to one year probation.

It was my first offense and I don't plan on ever doing it again.

My problem is that kids at school are telling me that they don't want to hang around with anyone like me.

Please tell me how to act to them and what to say. —
Dee Dee, Astoria, Ore.

Dee Dee: You know that you won't get involved in a burglary again but they don't. So you can't blame these kids for being super cautious. But, teens are the most honest and fair group on earth and it won't take them long to judge you for what you are. It's up to you to set your image.

If someone questions you about the trouble, just tell them you made a mistake, learned from it, and will see that it never happens again. Of course, you are not obligated to tell them anything.

Dr. Wallace: My little brother is going through a stage when he doesn't listen to me. When I correct him or tell him to do something, he says I act like I'm the boss.

I'm 12 and I'm not bossy. I just want my brother to do what he is told. —
Tricia, Dubuque, Iowa

Tricia: If you had a 14-year-old brother who corrected you and told you to do things, would you consider him bossy?

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Joe Graedon

Q. A few months ago I moved to a different city, and of course I had to change doctors. I didn't have any complaints about my new doctor until yesterday, when I called to get some penicillin to cure a nasty cold. He refused to prescribe it and I'm furious!

My old doctor always gave me penicillin for a cold. How come this new guy won't?

A. We hate to break the bad news but your new physician deserves a medal for practicing sensible medicine (and resisting your demands) while your old doctor deserves a reprimand.

Antibiotics are great for bacterial infections, like strep and staph but they do absolutely nothing for viruses. Since a cold is caused by any one of a hundred viruses it will NOT respond to antibiotic medication.

Taking drugs like penicillin or tetracycline for a cold may be psychologically rewarding but they are medically pointless. You should apologize to your new doctor for getting mad and thank him for sticking to his guns.

Q. I am dependent on a laxative for a bowel movement. I take two tablespoons of milk of magnesia every couple of days and have been doing this for many, many years. I am 74 and, no thanks to my mother, have been constipated all my life. She insisted I use a laxative every day.

I would like to hop off this merry-go-round. But am I too old to worry about this habit any more?

A. Against our better judgment we're almost inclined to think that after 70 years of continuous chemical stimulation you might just want to accept your addiction. It's a darn shame that your mother was so preoccupied with bowel function she wouldn't give Mother Nature a chance.

The best way to break a laxative habit is with a good diet, lots of liquids, exercise and plenty of patience. You may have to wait a few days for a normal bowel reflex but sooner or later it will have to return.

A diet that is high in fiber, bulk and roughage is a great idea. Vegetables, fruits, bran, nuts and whole grains will often work wonders on a lazy digestive tract. And if you can drink six to 10 glasses of liquid a day you should be well on your way to breaking that laxative habit.

You don't need a bowel movement a day to keep the doctor away. Commercials on television that promote regularity are a Madison Avenue advertising gimmick as pointed out as anything else.

Q. In a recent column you pointed out that taking multiple vitamins with iron at the same time you drink a cup of tea could cancel out the benefit of the supplement. You suggested washing the pill down with citrus juice and saving the tea for later.

How much later should I wait so that the tannins in the tea do not interfere with the thiamine and iron in my vitamins?

A. Because the stomach takes longer to digest some foods there is no one magical answer to this question. A relatively high-carbohydrate, low-fat meal, such as toast or corn flakes with skim milk, may leave the stomach in about an hour.

You could safely enjoy your tiny tea leaves, hot or cold, after that time without fear that the tannins will bind up the thiamine and iron in your vitamin supplement or in your food.

A high-fat meal of fried eggs, bacon and hash browns, on the other hand, may spend up to three hours in the stomach, and a vitamin pill you took at the same time might still be vulnerable to the negative effects of tea within an hour or two of breakfast time.

PAINTERS work to upgrade a historic house in 'old Northside' Indianapolis where preservation of the deteriorating neighborhood by the upper middle-class has displaced many of the elderly on fixed incomes and low-income families. (AP Laser photo)

When 'historic' means hardship

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The middle-aged woman — a mother of four — stands outside on the porch of her house. Her eyes blaze. "I ain't going nowhere," she says. "I'll be here fighting for a long time. It's they who are intruding."

"They" are the state's Historic Preservation Commission, which recently designated the woman's downtown neighborhood as a historic district, and the people who are buying houses like hers to renovate.

What she is fighting goes by different names: historic preservation, forced displacement, urban renewal or gentrification. It is moving like brush fire through cities across the nation.

Old, often-deteriorating neighborhoods are being renovated by the upper middle-class who just a few years ago abandoned them for the suburbs. Those once relegated to the inner city — blacks, the elderly, those on fixed incomes — are being driven farther from the core.

Most go quietly, unable or unwilling to fight. A few like the angry woman stand their ground in the face of fear and economic pressure. She refuses to let her name be used. She says her dog has been shot. Her children have been harassed. Her house has been set on fire, its electrical wires ripped.

"It's no secret that arson is a way of life down here," says Dorothy Burse, director of a downtown social agency. "You use it to get rid of something you don't want."

"Displacement occurs when a neighborhood is not designed anymore — in somebody's mind — to accommodate black or poor," she added.

Some long-time inner-city residents are forced out by the vandalism, even if they aren't sure where they will go. "If your house is worth $7,000 and you're worried it may be burned, and someone comes in and offers you $4,000, you think you're lucky. Especially if you're 70 and don't feel safe," says Eve Kranig, who has lived in downtown Indianapolis for 52 years.

Reed Williamson is director of the Historic Landmarks Association, which helps hunt down federal and state funds to offer as loans — usually at 3 percent interest — to middle- and upper income individuals who want to restore inner city houses. He said the funds are usually unavailable to people on fixed incomes, even if they are living in historic houses.

Williams acknowledges that displacement occurs, but he denies people are harassed to encourage them to leave. "I know of no harassment techniques that are carried on," he said.

However, an Indianapolis fire lieutenant who is conducting his own investigation of arson in a downtown historic district brands it a white-collar crime, with a purpose of displacing undesired elements. "There are definitely planned arsons in that area," says the officer, who asked not to be identified. "New residents have openly said they are going to get all the blacks and poor whites out."

The lieutenant, who began the investigation as a department project 10 years ago, says arson is "a touchy issue because upper-management fire officials interested in moving into the city have bought property there themselves. They are among the displacers and don't want the area to be associated with arson. It's touchy because we're talking about lots of money, lots of dollars and cents," he says.

No one seems certain where the displaced go — even those who make it their business to try and keep track of the new nomads. "We aren't sure where they are. They are here one day and gone the next," says a Catholic priest who did not want his name used. He helps out at an agency that maintains contact with displaced persons.

Indiana's preservation commission designates historical areas and encourages renewal, but it says displacement problems are outside its realm of responsibility.

Woman tells police of bizarre rape

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A woman who works as an electronics worker in Grapevine has told police a "weird" story of being forced off the road and gang-raped, thrown out of that car, picked up by a truck driver and raped again.

Despite the bizarre nature of the tale, officers believe she is telling the truth.

"There are a few minor inconsistencies in her facts," said an investigator. "But it appears to be true."

He said the woman, 27, was "nearly hysterical" when she told police her story, after they found her Saturday morning wandering along a freeway in this Dallas suburb.

She told officers she was driving home about midnight after drinking with friends when a car forced her off the road, and when she got out of the car to go for help five men grabbed her.

She said she was forced into another car, where the men held her at knifepoint, stripped off her clothes and repeatedly raped her.

The men threw the woman and her clothes out of the car in north Dallas and sped away, taking her car with them, she told police.

She said she dressed and walked toward Interstate 35 where a tractor-trailer driver stopped and offered to help, investigators said.

The driver, in his 30s, listened to the woman's story, then drove her to a secluded area of North Irving where he raped her before freeing her, she told police.

Officers said they took the woman to a Dallas hospital where she was examined and released.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

November 27, 1979

Some happy surprises are in store this coming year regarding ventures which at first appear to hold only small promise. As you get yourself involved, you'll find ways to enlarge them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's possible that you could be a bit of a sluggish starter today, but once you get moving you're a strong finisher and will successfully complete whatever you begin. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Treat your friends cordially today, but don't try to butter them up. Sincerity will win their good will. Hollow praise won't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial conditions could be mixed today, but you should come out on the plus side if you use your smarts. Be practical and prudent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You can be a real achiever today, so don't waste your time on insignificant goals. Spend your energies on things which really matter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something that has been most unpleasant for you could quite suddenly be terminated. However, you may not fully appreciate the beneficial effects until later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It would be a mistake to let emotion be the reason for clinging to a decision that isn't working out. Don't hesitate to alter what isn't right.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will function much better today and stand a good chance of achieving your goals if you keep your methods flexible. Don't let others get you off-track.

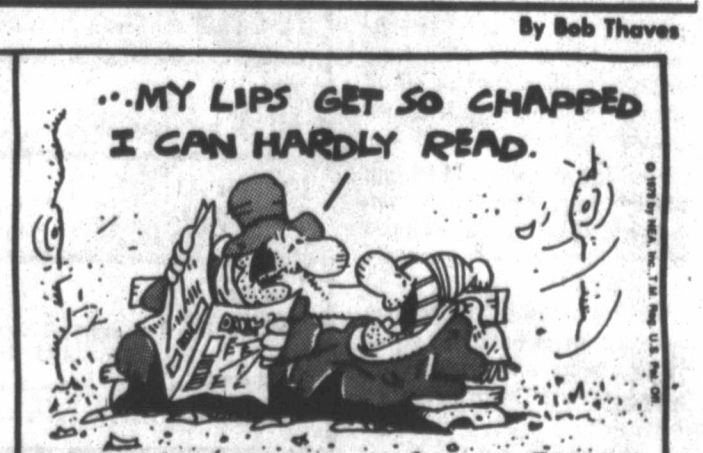

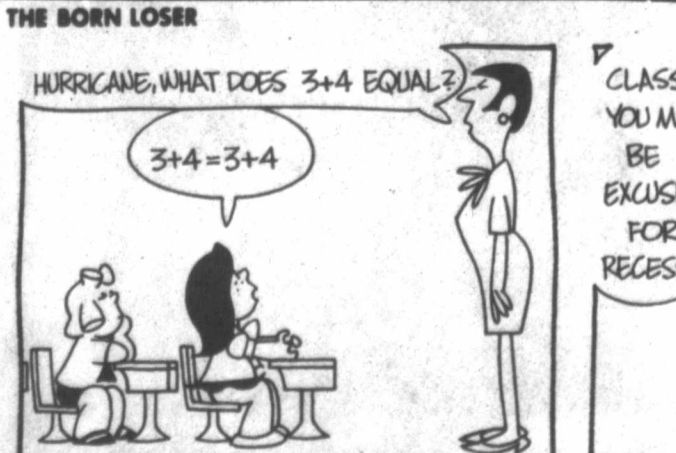

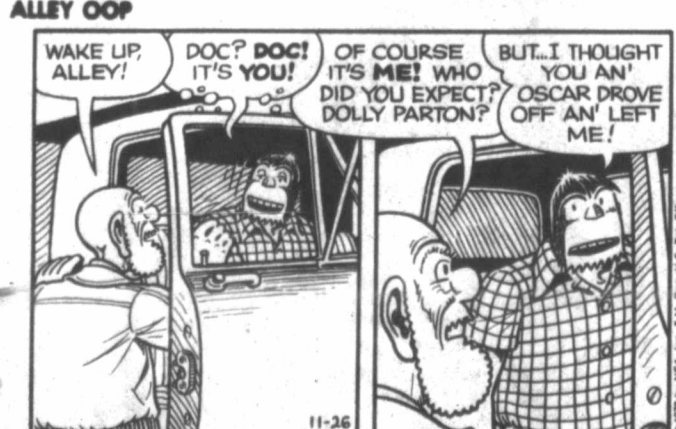

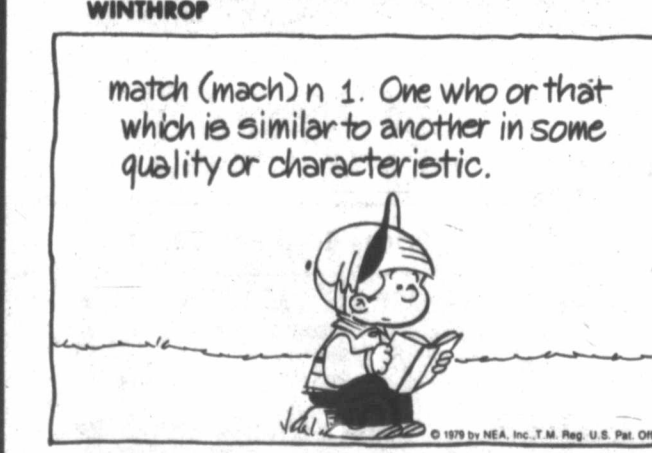

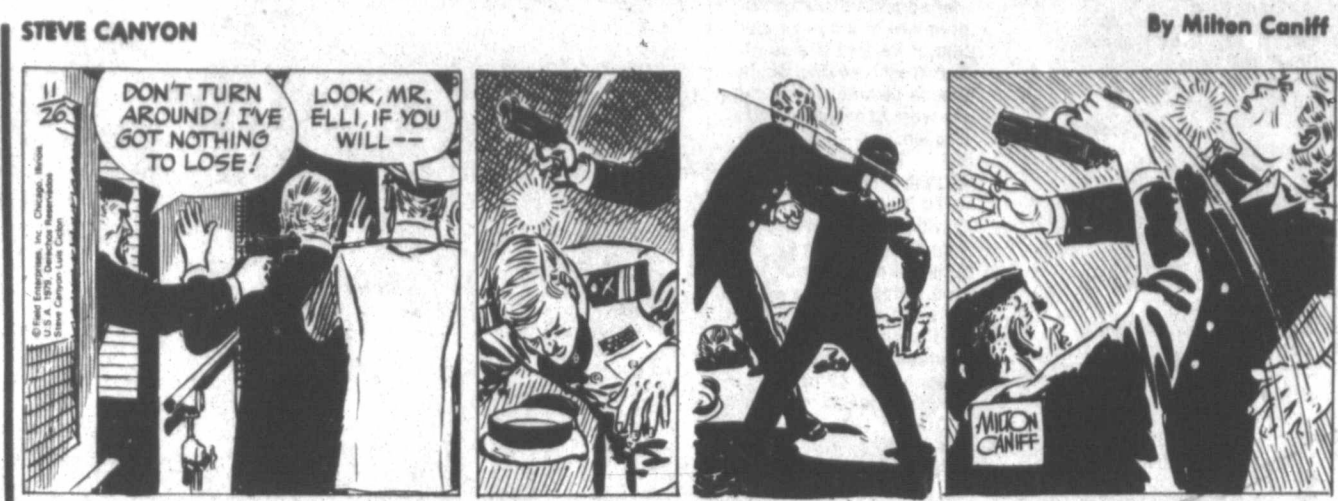

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll know what needs doing today, but your put-offs could require greater effort than the tasks themselves. They'll have to be dealt with eventually.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're managing something for another today, treat it with the importance it deserves. Making too light of it could offend the one you want to help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Don't be hurt today if you sound out an idea and you don't receive the type of feedback you're hoping for. Your listener may not grasp your full thought.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This should be a profitable day in several respects if you rely upon your practical judgment. On the other hand, wishful thinking could produce deficits.

Rose Bowl could be site of national title game

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP writer

A national championship shootout between the No. 1-2 college football teams still isn't out of the question, but for now the Rose Bowl has two of the top three teams and two out of three ain't bad.

While Alabama, the No. 1 team in The Associated Press ratings, was idle over the weekend and looking ahead toward next week's annual regular-season windup with Auburn, fourth-ranked Southern California earned a trip to the Rose Bowl against No. 2 Ohio State by routing UCLA 49-14 while eighth-ranked Oklahoma knocked off No. 3 Nebraska 17-14, opening the door for USC to move up in the ratings.

Ohio State, 11-0, and 10-0-1 Southern Cal have been gaining support in recent weeks anyway, and if 8-2 Auburn upsets Alabama...California, here comes your dream matchup.

And that means another heartache for the Sugar Bowl, which would wind up with 6-5 Georgia, with Alabama going to the Fiesta Bowl against Pitt.

While Southern Cal's decisive victory settled the Pacific-10 race — and sent runnerup Washington to the Sun Bowl against either Arkansas, Texas or Houston — Oklahoma destroyed the Orange Bowl's hopes of matching a pair of 11-0 teams in Nebraska and fifth-ranked Florida State, which turned back Florida 27-16.

Instead, the 10-1 Sooners are headed for Miami while Nebraska will go to the Cotton Bowl against either seventh-ranked Arkansas, a 31-7 winner over Southern Methodist, or No. 9 Houston, which held off Texas Tech 14-10 after trailing 10-0 with 16 minutes left.

Sixth-ranked Texas, though still in a virtual three-way tie for the Southwest Conference lead, nevertheless was eliminated from Cotton Bowl consideration despite a 13-0 victory over No. 17 Baylor. If the Longhorns beat Texas A&M next Saturday, they will go to the Sugar Bowl and put Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl. If they lose and Houston wins, the Longhorns probably will go to the Sun Bowl while Houston goes Cotton and Arkansas gets the Sugar.

Get it? It's a lot clearer than last week, even if it doesn't sound that way. The rest of the bowl lineup looks like this:

Sugar, Alabama or Georgia vs. Texas or Arkansas; Gator, Michigan-North Carolina; Liberty, Tulane-Penn State; Bluebonnet, Purdue-Tennessee; Holiday, Brigham Young-Indiana; Peach, Clemson-Baylor; Tangerine, Wake Forest-LSU; Hall of Fame, South Carolina-Missouri; Garden State, Temple-California; Independence, McNeese State-Syracuse; Georgia, LSU, Missouri, California and Syracuse all have five losses, but who cares?

"I know of some people who have been saying we shouldn't go to a bowl with a 6-5 record," says Dave Hart, athletic director at Missouri, which got the Hall of Fame bid by crushing Kansas 55-7. "But if the bowl people think we are the best possible team available, I think we should go."

The Hall of Fame Bowl would have invited Kentucky, but the Wildcats lost to Tennessee 20-17 on a 25-yard field goal by Alan Duncan with five seconds remaining and finished 5-6. That's not quite good enough for a bowl bid this year, but who knows what the future holds.

Pampa girls rally to win

Pampa's Lady Harvesters rallied from a 12-point deficit at halftime to defeat Hereford, 51-45, Saturday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

"The girls did a real good job of coming back after being down," Pampa Coach Mary Thomas said.

Hereford led at intermission, 24-12, but the Lady Harvesters, behind Kellye Richardson's hot scoring hand and some accurate foul shooting, took it to the visitors the second half.

Richardson poured in 31 points while the Lady Harvesters downed 64 percent (9-14) of their free throws to offset a poor 33 percent shooting night from the floor.

Also scoring for Pampa were Nicky Polson, 7; Dwinna Treadwell, Terri Tyrrell, and Paula Baldwin, 4 points each, and Bobbie Skaggs, 1.

The Lady Harvesters battled hard on the boards, pulling down 52 rebounds which also contributed to the victory. Richardson claimed a dozen rebounds while Skaggs had 10.

"I was very proud of the way the girls played," Thomas said. "They really worked hard to win this game."

The Lady Harvesters evened their record at 1-1 and will meet Perryton there at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday night.

On the homecourt Tuesday night, the Harvesters boys host Clovis, New Mexico at 7:30 p.m. Clovis is defending Class 4A state champions and was picked in a pre-season poll to win the title again.

Seattle gamble pays off

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks probably won't make the playoffs this season, but they've established themselves as a leading National Football League attraction because they're willing to gamble.

The Seahawks, 6-6, are six-point favorites to make the New York Jets, 5-7, their fifth victim in six games tonight in a nationally televised game at the Kingdome. New York has lost three of its last four starts.

In his third season as the Jets' coach, Walt Michaels has to be disappointed this season. New York rebounded from a 3-11 season in 1977 to a 8-8 mark last year.

The Jets' defense ranks last in the league — two notches below that of the Seahawks.

Seattle made quite an impression on Monday night television four weeks ago by nipping Atlanta 31-28 as placekicker Efron Herrera caught a pass from quarterback Jim Zorn on a fake field-goal play.

"It's not that we try to come up with something new every week," Seahawks Coach Jack Patera stressed. "We just throw something out when the situation calls for it."

New York quarterback Richard Todd completed 15 of 25 passes for 202 yards but was intercepted twice last week. Wide receiver Bobby Jones had seven receptions for 99 yards.

After a dozen games, fourth-year running back Clark Gaines is the Jets' top rusher with 675 yards on 119 carries for a 5.2-yard average. He ranks fourth in the American Football Conference in total yardage, but his average is the best in the NFL.

Todd, in his fourth-year from Alabama, has completed 52.9 percent of his passes — 118 for 223 — for 1,845 yards and 12 touchdowns. He has been intercepted 18 times.

With four victories in the past five weeks, the Seahawks aren't mathematically eliminated from the playoffs in the highly competitive AFC yet, and they're still trying hard.

They've been developing a razzle-dazzle image, too. Seattle has converted 13 of 21 fourth-down attempts this season. Herrera has been successful on three of four outside kicks and punter Herman Weaver has caught two passes.

Coming off a club record 384-yard, four-touchdown passing performance, Zorn will attempt to lead the Seahawks to their third consecutive triumph.

Zorn, a left-handed free agent from Cal Poly-Pomona, was absolutely "fantastic" in the eyes of New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning in the Seahawks' 38-24 victory over the Saints last Sunday in Seattle.

OKLAHOMA STAR running back Billy Sims (20) waves to the crowd in Norman Saturday after leading the Sooners to a 17-14 upset victory over Nebraska and a berth in the Orange Bowl. Sims rushed for 247 yards and set up two Oklahoma touchdowns.

MATT BAHR of the Steelers hits a 21-yard field goal with 24 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter of Sunday's game in Pittsburgh against the Cleveland Browns. Bahr made a field goal with 13 seconds remaining in overtime to win the game, 33-30.

Quaker state rejoices

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP sports writer

The nation got its chance to watch Texas' two teams whoop it up in the National Football League last Thursday. Today, Pennsylvania has more reasons to cheer. It has twice as many winners.

The Houston Oilers defeated the Dallas Cowboys 30-24 on Thanksgiving Day. On Sunday, the Pittsburgh Steelers edged Cleveland 33-30 in overtime and the Philadelphia Eagles defeated Green Bay 21-10.

As a result: —The Eagles own first place outright in the National Conference's East Division with a 9-4 record while the Cowboys, at 8-5, share second place with Washington, a 14-6 loser to the New York Giants on Sunday, and...

—The Steelers share first place in the American Conference's Central Division with the Oilers, each at 10-3, while the Browns are second, two games back at 8-5.

In Sunday's other games, Minnesota shaded Tampa Bay 23-22, Buffalo nipped New England 16-13 in overtime, Miami beat Baltimore 28-24, New Orleans ripped Atlanta 37-6, Los Angeles trimmed San Francisco 26-20, San Diego defeated Kansas City 28-7, Oakland downed Denver 14-10 and Cincinnati outlasted St. Louis 34-28.

Tonight, the New York Jets visit Seattle.

"This was a very, very pressure-packed game where we showed we could come from behind against a good team," defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the Steelers scored 10 points in the final 4 1/2 minutes of regulation play, then beat the Browns on Matt Bahr's fourth field goal of the game, a 37-yarder with nine seconds to go in overtime.

Franco Harris' third touchdown of the game, on a 3-yard run, cut Cleveland's lead to three points and Bahr tied it 24 seconds from the end of the fourth quarter with a 21-yard field goal.

Terry Bradshaw, who completed 30 of 44 passes for 364 yards — all career highs — against Cleveland, scrambled 28 yards from his own 34 on a third-and-10 play to set up Bahr's game-winner.

Eagles 21, Packers 10

While Franco Harris was rushing for 151 yards for Pittsburgh, Leroy Harris was amassing 197 for Philadelphia, 80 of them on a fourth-period jaunt that preceded the Eagles' clinching TD. Ron Jaworski's third scoring pass and second to Harold Carmichael.

Mavericks, Lamar post good seasons

Although they didn't win the Southland Conference football championship, it was a good year for the two entries from Texas. Coach Bud Elliott's Texas-Arlington team finished with a 9-2 record, its best in 12 years thanks to a final 48-0 victory over Idaho State.

The Mavericks had not posted a winning season since 1968. UTA was 4-1 in league play, a game behind champion McNeese State which plays in the Independence Bowl Dec. 15 in Shreveport, La.

Lamar University under new Coach Larry Kennan completed its season with a 6-3-2 record. A final 24-24 tie with Nevada-Las Vegas gave the Cardinals their best record in four years. Lamar had not won more than two games in any of the previous four seasons.

FORMER NEW York Yankee baseball player Joe DiMaggio is fitted for a sports jacket recently in New York with assistance from Russ Gilbert.

Sunday, Nov. 25. DiMaggio celebrated his 65th birthday with a cake and a round of golf with friends. (AP Laserphoto)

Joltin' Joe turns 65

Joe DiMaggio cut a cake with a coterie of cronies and played a round of golf Sunday on his 65th birthday.

The Yankee Clipper 65? It doesn't seem possible. The whole world has to feel older.

"Golf is my main form of recreation and exercise these days" said the San Francisco fisherman's son who grew up to be one of baseball's greatest sluggers and an American folk hero preserved in fable and song.

"I wish I could play golf better. This back trouble gives me fits. I have to restrict myself to a three-quarter swing. I can't get below a 12-handicap."

DiMag was in New York briefly last weekend. He spent a lonesome Thanksgiving, his two granddaughters — Kathy, 17, and Paula, 15, the apples of his eye—having spent the holiday with their maternal grandmother. Then he hied off to the Dunes in Las Vegas for his golf date.

"I manage to keep busy," he said. "I am always traveling, visiting friends, making appearances for causes and things like that. I get tired and go back to San Francisco for four or five days. Then I get restless and am off again."

It was in San Francisco that DiMag, son of an Italian immigrant, grew up with four brothers, two of whom — Vince and Dom — had successful major league careers, and a sister Marie. Marie presides over the family homestead and handles all of Joe's mail and appointments. When home, Joe spends his idle hours with old chums at DiMaggio's restaurant on Fisherman's Wharf.

Quiet and introverted as a player, the man they called The Yankee Clipper still guards his privacy zealously, yet he has opened up somewhat as a result of his two TV commercials — one nationally for a coffeemaker (Mr. Coffee) and the other in the New York area for a savings bank.

At 65, DiMaggio is a handsome man than in his dugout days — 6-foot-1, 190 pounds, ramrod straight, silver grey hair framing his strong Latin features.

He wants people to remember him as the man who succeeded Babe Ruth, batted .325 and hit 361 home runs in his 13-year career, won three MVP's and set a hitting streak of 56 games that may never be duplicated.

Reminded of one of baseball's most unattainable marks, the Yankee legend shrugs his shoulders.

Q. Tell me about vitamin B-12.
A. B-12 has been shown to be helpful in treating pernicious anemia, osteo-arthritis, fatigue, nervous irritability, mild impairment of memory, inability to concentrate, mental depression, insomnia, menstrual disturbances, and lack of balance. Symptoms of a vitamin B-12 deficiency may not appear for 6 or 8 years after the body's supply has been restricted. Almost the only natural source of B-12 is animal protein. Liver appears to be the best source. Other good sources are kidney, muscle meats, fish and dairy products. To benefit the body properly, B-12 needs to be combined with calcium during absorption. When taken orally B-12 needs the presence of hydrochloric acid and a properly functioning thyroid gland to aid absorption.

Abilene Cooper falls

By ALAN SAYRE
AP writer

Nearly unranked and almost-ignored Lewisville pulled the upset of the year in Texas schoolboy football Friday night with a 13-10 comeback victory over Abilene Cooper — the No. 1 Class 4A squad for 10 straight weeks.

Running back Freddie Wells scored the winning tally with less than two minutes left as the 10th-ranked Farmers sent the stunned Cougars home after just the first week of the schoolboy playoffs.

"We've beaten America's team," Dallas Wortlin, a jubilant Lewisville running back, said. "Now we're America's team."

In other Class 4A bi-district action, quarterback Mike Miller's fourth-quarter 1-yard touchdown run and Kevin Garman's 27-yard insurance field goal led a late Plano comeback to disappoint Lufkin, 25-21.

Todd Debito crossed the goal line from 1 yard out with 3:59 remaining to give Houston Kashmere a 19-13 victory over arch-rival Houston Yates. Kashmere's third straight bi-district win over Yates.

Dallas White scored twice in the last period to trim Dallas Madison, 13-10. Trinity nudged Corsicana, 14-13. Baytown Lee battled to a 12-7 win over West Orange Stark, and La Porte stomped Texas City, 42-10.

Austin Reagan tripped Lamar Consolidated, 24-7. Alice sneaked by McAllen, 41-35; San Antonio Jay blanked Converse-Judson, 28-0; and San Antonio Wheatley outlasted San Antonio Lee, 16-14.

El Paso Coronado edged El Paso Bel Air, 13-6. Lubbock Monterey downed Amarillo, 13-7. Temple trounced Spring Klein, 38-7; and Houston Memorial whitewashed Houston Lee, 21-0.

Louis Landry blitzed for three crucial second-half touchdowns as Beaumont Hebert — the cream of the crop in Class 3A — came back to beat second-ranked Huntsville, 27-14.

Tailback Tommy Hargraves scored from 2 yards out on McKinney's first possession of the game and the Lions held on to blank Fort Worth North Side, 7-0.
