Officials say no to demonstrators

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A city manager suddenly forced into an unaccustomed international role with the shah of Iran's presence here has forbidden Iranian students and Ku Klux Klansmen from staging demonstrations that might enflame the hostage crisis. Tom Huebner and other city officials said Tuesday they feared violent clashes if the students had staged an anti-shah march Friday and the Klansmen had confronted them with a march of their own. An informal Iranian student group at San Antonio College is upset by the sudden transfer of the exiled monarch to nearby Lackland Air Force Base. Klan officials say they are tired of the student protests. Huebner said he conferred with the president's National Security Council and other state, federal and military authorities before deciding Tuesday night to refuse the parade requests. He threatened arrests if any illegal demonstrations are staged and said any foreign demonstrators arrested would be reported to immigration officials. "Our greatest concern has been for the well-being of the hostages in Iran," said Huebner. "We have a great respect for the U.S. Constitution, but the regard for public safety in San Antonio and the impact on the hostages in Iran had to be taken into account." Louis Linden, attorney for the Iranian student group, also fears violence, but said the city has no constitutional right to refuse the parade permit requests. He said it was "a good possibility" he would challenge the ban against his clients in federal court. He can also appeal Huebner's decision to the 11 city council members, almost all of whom have said they are worried about such protests becoming violent. As the legal controversy swirled, the recuperating Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, 60, took advantage of sunny, autumn Texas weather to stroll the Lackland golf course and watch his wife play tennis, according to sources close to the shah. The shah had more than 60 armed security guards in tow when he strolled on the golf course Monday, said the source, who requested anonymity. Tight security has been imposed since the deposed monarch was transferred to Lackland Sunday morning for recuperation. The militant Iranians holding 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are demanding the return of the shah for trial. The United States government refuses and is attempting to secure a permanent place for the monarch to live. The base has been sealed off by federal officials who fear assassins lured by the $131,000 bounty offered by the new revolutionary Iranian government. All base safety and security departments are on constant alert and trained bomb dogs are sniffing mail sent to the base post office, sources said. Representatives of the approximately 300 Iranian students in San Antonio asked the city Monday for permission to demonstrate downtown and near the Air Force base.

Students holding hostages reject U.N. resolution

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The students holding 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy today rejected a Security Council appeal for their immediate release, but Tehran state radio took a more conciliatory tone, saying the U.N. action "left the way open for negotiations." It was one more sign of conflict between the hard line adopted by the embassy militants and the approach of Iranian officials toward the month-old crisis. On Tuesday, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime made new and stronger threats against the captives. Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy carrier force south of the Persian Gulf doubled in size. The Security Council resolution was adopted Tuesday on the fourth consecutive day of a debate in which every speaker called for the release of the hostages. Iran boycotted the meeting, claiming it was rigged in favor of the United States.

The resolution contained no condemnation of the Iranians. Besides the appeal on behalf of the hostages, it called on Iran and the United States to "resolve peacefully the remaining issues between them" and urged them to "exercise the utmost restraint" and refrain from "the threat or use of force." A spokesman for the embassy militants said of the appeal for the hostages' release: "Since the Security Council is orchestrated by the United States, it is obvious it would say such things because it is the defender of the superpowers and embarked on its deliberations according to the orders it received." "As it is also obvious that the United States has great influence on this council, which has nothing to do with the oppressed people of the world, its opinion is worthless as far as we are concerned and will not affect us in any way," he told The Associated Press by telephone. But Tehran Radio, in the first semi-official commentary on the resolution, seemed to stress its positive aspects — from the Iranian viewpoint — ignoring the call for the hostages' release. "The Iranian government has not been condemned and the United States has been warned, indirectly, against military intervention, and this has left the way open for negotiations," the radio said. The radio commentary also contrasted with previous statements by Khomeini rejecting any decision by the Security Council in advance as dictated by the United States. The Iranians seized the embassy and those inside it on Nov. 4, demanding that the United States surrender deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial. The Carter administration refused and on Tuesday joined the 14 other Security Council members in an unanimous adoption of the resolution urging the release of the captives. Pentagon officials said a six U.S. warships led by the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk had arrived in the Arabian Sea, joining another such force headed by the carrier Midway. This put more than 135 planes within reach of the entrance to the Persian Gulf and the oil tankers moving to and from Iran. A White House official indicated to reporters in Washington Tuesday that the students holding the embassy were threatening the hostages with execution if they did not confess to the charges of espionage and pro-shah activity being drawn up against them. The official said the Americans "have been threatened with execution if they fail to cooperate with their captors" and added: "You can assume that I don't mean cooperation just...in routine matters." Radio Tehran said Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told the French newspaper Le Figaro the hostages would be tried as spies "for sure," but that Khomeini could overrule any sentences.

Pampan flees Libya after embassy burned

By TINA McCLOY
Of The Pampa News

Nancy Woodriddle, a Pampa native who's been teaching school in Tripoli, Libya — where the U.S. Embassy was attacked on Sunday — is on her way to the United States. That's the word from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodriddle, 116 E. 28th, who got a call this morning from the mother of the Oil Company School's principal. Telephone communication from Libya was somewhat difficult even before the embassy attack, explained Mrs. Woodriddle, because few Americans have ready access to phones. But the phone call this morning confirmed that their daughter, a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School, was en route to the U.S. Mrs. Woodriddle speculates her daughter will probably arrive in Dallas sometime Thursday, but since her departure was unscheduled, Nancy could have some trouble making connections. The principal's mother told Mrs. Woodriddle that some Americans were in flight to the U.S. from Libya, but the Pampa mother said she was so excited she forgot to ask when the group had left or even where the woman was calling from. Nancy called her parents in Pampa last Saturday morning before the embassy was sacked and burned on Sunday. She had been to the "souk" — the market — the day before and had seen no protests, but as her mother explained, Tripoli is a very large city. "She said then she wasn't worried," said her mother. "They were in constant contact with the consulate." Mrs. Woodriddle also said her daughter didn't consider leaving Libya before Sunday's attack, although last week the State Department advised Americans in 11 Moslem countries to leave if their business wasn't urgent. "Moslems are mad at the American government," said Mrs. Woodriddle. "Nancy may have felt more secure since she's not with the government." After the attack, Mrs. Woodriddle talked to an Oil Company School teacher, already in the U.S. recuperating from surgery. The teacher had told Mrs. Woodriddle that the school might close Friday (Dec. 6) and some of the American families might start leaving. Mrs. Woodriddle didn't know how many were in the group that left Libya with her daughter, but the principal's wife and daughter — one of Nancy's students — were among those who left. The principal and probably other school personnel stayed in Tripoli, she said. The Pampa mother said relatives of Americans in Libya usually keep close contact anyway. When an American in Libya calls someone in the U.S., the person receiving the call usually relays information to keep others informed. So Mrs. Woodriddle isn't worried that she hasn't talked personally with Nancy. Her daughter, who this fall had begun her second year of teaching at the school in Libya, was scheduled to leave Dec. 20 — during her Christmas vacation — for a Kenyan safari by way of Zurich, Switzerland. Mrs. Woodriddle said the arrangements had been made for quite some time and the trip was already paid for, so she didn't know whether her daughter would still want to go or not. Whether Nancy spends Christmas in Pampa or in Africa, her parents have already received one gift this holiday season.

Widow, grandchildren helpless

A Pampa widow and her five grandchildren will not be as fortunate this Christmas as most. The woman, who took the children after the death of their mother, works part-time in a local restaurant but is unable to make ends meet with this small income and her Social Security payments. The 60-year-old woman is not asking for Christmas gifts for the children ages 8 to 17 but simply would like help in paying the monthly bills of the family. Rent and utilities cost the six member family $225 per month and the total family income is approximately $500 per month. Anyone wishing to help families less fortunate than themselves should contact the Salvation Army at 669-9921 or through Post Office Box 1458, Pampa, Tx.

Connally prefers Shah to Khomeini regime

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John Connally says the government of the shah of Iran made mistakes but he would prefer it to the present regime of the Ayatollah Khomeini.

"I don't know what went on in Iran," Connally said. "He (shah) ruled that country for 30 years and I'm sure he did many things that this country would disapprove of. But if we had a choice between the two of them, we got a worse deal with the present regime."

Connally ended his restraint on the Iran crisis Tuesday, saying the United States should seek to isolate the nation of Iran diplomatically, economically and politically if Americans being held hostage are put on trial.

Connally also statements about the shah by Sen. Edward Kennedy unfortunate.

"I have exercised restraint in speaking out on the Iranian situation, but it has now reached the point of such gravity that we should publicly say to Iran and to the world that the hands of the President are not tied and that he has the support of the American people for whatever action he deems necessary," Connally said.

Connally said Kennedy's statement that the shah ran a violent regime in Iran and stole billions of dollars from his country was unfortunate.

"It is noteworthy that members of the Khomeini government were seen gleefully clapping on television when they heard Sen. Kennedy's statements," Connally said. "It clearly gave them great joy because it gave them hope of some division of the U.S. government."

"They interpreted Sen. Kennedy's remarks in this vein."

Connally said he had no criticism of President Carter's handling of the crisis. "This is just my statement on the crisis and in no way is a criticism of the president."

Connally read the statement at a news conference following a speech to the American Hotel and Motel Association.

"The mere suggestion that our diplomatic people would be subjected to the emotional decisions of such a kangaroo court violates every precept of international law, diplomatic immunity and basic human justice," Connally said.

"If indeed, the (Iranian) foreign minister is correctly quoted and pursues this course, the United States will have no choice but to attempt by every means available to marshal support of the nations of the world to completely isolate the nation of Iran diplomatically, economically and politically."

Connally, a former governor of Texas, said he was not uncomfortable that the shah is presently in the state at Lackland Air Force base in San Antonio.

City sales tax seen in different light

A resolution was passed recently in the annual conference of the Texas Municipal League (TML) in Houston proposing a three percent sales tax for cities.

According to Bob Bullock, state comptroller, should the resolution become law, "there is no doubt that we (Texans) would ultimately be looking at a state income tax."

Seeing it in a different light, City Manager Mack Wofford — a TML resolutions committee member — believes, "the sales tax is the most equitable method of raising revenues."

With a three percent sales tax, Bullock says, "we would be facing the highest sales tax in the nation." He went on to explain that even discounting the schools and counties taxes, a city sales tax of three percent along with the state's four and the transit authorities' one, Texas would have a tax of eight percent. "A number matched only by that financial genius New York City," he quipped.

A sales tax of that magnitude, Bullock feels, would lose Texas the ability to compete with neighbor states, "the rest of the Sunbelt and all other major industrial states" which all have lower sales taxes.

The ultimate result, he said, would be a state income tax. "It has already happened in 45 other states."

Bullock believes most Texas taxpayers are not willing to take on the drastic increase. Stating business pays about 58 percent of all sales tax, he adds, "I don't believe the business community wants such a tremendous increase."

The resolution was proposed.

Wofford said, "encourage the legislature to give cities the option to increase their sales tax." He added the League favors it as a fund-raising method for cities. "The point of the resolution is to encourage the legislature to allow cities to set the rate for sales taxes at a higher level."

The resolution is carefully worded to reflect "local option," Wofford believes, if it is passed, the three percent sales tax will "alleviate sales tax problems cities might face through ad valorem taxation."

The three percent sales tax proposal, he said, would "permit local entities to have elections to determine the rate within the limits set by the state." It would be "a matter of judgement" by the cities and voters, how much the sales tax would be, with the limit set at three percent.

It may restrict the state's ability to raise taxes, he concedes. However, if the city had a three percent sales tax, Wofford believes, "the people would accept less from the state."

It will not be long, he thinks, before the sales tax will bring in more than the ad valorem taxes. As estimated in this year's budget, Wofford sees ad valorem taxes at $898,000, and sales tax at $847,000.

"I can't think of a fairer way to do it," he said. With the elections, he adds, it will be left to the majority to decide what is best. "The majority of people I've talked to think the sales tax is the fairest method of revenue," he concludes.

Ad valorem, income or city sales tax, there is no such thing as a "popular tax." The decision to make is which is the least obnoxious.

Deer season data shows large increase

WHEELER - Wheeler Parks and Wildlife Biologist, David Sierra, has just finished compiling data on the local turkey and deer season.

The good news for Wheeler County from the local biologist, is that Wheeler County, and the Panhandle area in general, had a very good deer and turkey harvest.

The body weights were up, there was a lot of body fat on the animals, and the racks were above average. Some of the reasons for the healthy and abundant animal population could be the easy winter last year and the good nutrition.

David Sierra measured one White Tail yearling this season in North Wheeler County that sported an eight point rack. Eight points on a yearling is one of the largest seen in this area.

Red noses and reindeer

Red noses and reindeer will be the topic of a special Christmas demonstration in McLean Thursday.

The McLean Senior Citizen Center will host the Christmas Decorating demonstration presented by Marilyn Tate, Gray County Extension Agent, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The program will include ideas for using things found in the home to make gifts attractive without over spending.

Tate will demonstrate how to use these things and will be giving patterns and directions to the audience.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about the woman who had ringing in her ears and I would like your advice. I used to have this problem and I went to my doctor and he took wax out of my right ear and the ringing went away. The last time this happened and I was having a buzzing noise, just taking wax out of my ear didn't help.

I am 72 years old and have a constant buzzing in my ear. He sent me to an ear, nose and throat specialist who said the nerve in the ear was degenerating and that because of that and my age there wasn't anything he could do to help me. I also have sinus trouble and am a very nervous person. Now that I've learned that there are some methods of treating this problem, I'm wondering if I really couldn't get some help for it.

DEAR READER — At least you could try. The methods of helping people who have buzzing and ringing in the ear, called tinnitus, are fairly new. Nevertheless, they are very well established. They won't help everybody but unless you try, you'll never know.

You say in the rest of your letter that you have excellent hearing. If you have nerve degeneration with some hearing loss, you might not know it because it might involve sound frequencies that aren't in the range of normal conversation. Sometimes because of nerve damage, hearing aids are of limited use. However, even if one is of partial benefit, it may eliminate the buzzing sounds that people complain about.

If your hearing is perfect, then at least a tinnitus masker can be tried. These devices present a constant sound to the ear and literally mask the annoying buzzing or ringing sounds that a person may have.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-10, Help For Tinnitus: Noise Or Ringing In The Ear. You can take a copy of this with you when you go to see the ear, nose and throat specialist just in case he may have missed the information available in the medical literature about it. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the problems that's still present in trying a tinnitus masker is that not everyone is authorized to fit them. Like any device that puts noise into the ear, it must be properly adjusted for the individual. If not, excessive noise put into the ear could even cause a problem. At this date, because it's a recent development, not every hearing specialist has yet qualified to provide this service to patients.

THOUSANDS OF ONLOOKERS braved chilly temperatures Monday night and jammed into Rockefeller Plaza to watch the annual lighting of the center's giant Christmas tree. The President of Rockefeller Center, Alton Marshall, with the aid of several youngsters from the Police Athletic League, pushed the button that set the tree alight with hundreds of multi-colored miniature lights.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In response to ACTRESS, who criticized those in the audience for rushing out of the theater the minute the performance is over instead of sticking around for all the curtain calls:

I go to the ticket window, lay down my hard-earned money hoping to get my money's worth in entertainment. I sit through the performance, then down comes the curtain. End of show. Then I get up and leave.

Why should I either remain in my seat or stand up and keep applauding those egomaniacs and shouting "Bravo!" like a nincompoop? I paid THEM to perform for ME. I should be applauded for buying the ticket. Without me, and others like me, they would be in the unemployment line because those ego-loaded showoffs would rather starve to death than do menial work.

Why should entertainers be treated like gods? Have you ever heard of three curtain calls for a neurosurgeon?

JOE S. IN SALEM, N.Y.

DEAR JOE: No. But it could be "curtains" for the patient of a neurosurgeon who turns in a poor performance!

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago my husband started acting nervous and preoccupied. He also started working late at his office and on weekends—something he rarely did. We've been married 16 years, have a nice family, and have often said that ours was one of the few really "good" marriages we knew of.

A week ago, I received a phone call in the middle of the afternoon from a woman who refused to identify herself, but said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman who works in his office. Then she mentioned the woman's name. I recalled my husband telling me that he had employed a young, unmarried woman by that name about a year ago. I fell apart.

When my husband came home, I told him about the call and knew from his reaction it was true. I cried. He cried, too, and then confessed that he had had an affair with her, but broke it off two weeks ago, telling her it was a regrettable mistake, and he would get her a job elsewhere. He said she seemed to accept his decision. Then he asked me to listen in on the telephone extension while he called someone. I did. I recognized the voice at once as the woman who had phoned me! She called, hoping I would throw my husband out and give her a clear field!

I've forgiven my husband, but I'm still hurting some. I'm glad I didn't act foolishly in haste. Perhaps some other wife will be wiser for my experience.

If you print this, please don't use my name.

GETTING OVER IT

HOW TO MAKE A MERRY CHRISTMAS

by Lane and Miller

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Teens: looking for the right college for you: one that offers the perfect blend of academic stimulation and social life?

Well, it's important to visit a school before you enroll. In many cases, you will have only one visit to decide whether the school you're considering is right for you, so it's crucial to know what clues to look for, what questions to ask and when to schedule a visit, says Seventeen magazine.

The ideal time to view a college is on a weekday, when school is in full swing. Otherwise, you're likely to find a deserted campus, locked-up buildings, and miss that all-important element — the student body. Be sure to allow enough time at the school to take in a group or individual interview and guided tour.

Arrive early for the interview and take advantage of the admissions office waiting room to read through the yearbooks and campus newspapers lying on the coffee tables.

These materials are likely to give you a good overview of campus life. Yearbooks highlight nostalgia and the bright side of the college year, while the campus paper often provides a frank, even harsh view of a school's inner workings.

The group interview is usually an informal sales pitch by a college representative, but it is helpful in that it gives you a chance to confirm data on such things as costs, current enrollment and percentage of men to women.

You might also want to ask about the transfer or dropout rate at a college. A sizable exodus may indicate dissatisfaction or lax admissions standards. And if you find out that most students live off school grounds, this could mean that there is a housing shortage on campus, or that the dorms, while plentiful, may be cramped, overpriced or poorly maintained.

After the interview, you are likely to be treated to a campus tour by one of the school's students. As you stroll through the grounds, stick close to the guide so you can ask questions and hear all the offhand comments. The back of the tour only gets the canned spiel.

Don't be afraid to ask questions about the pressure of work or the quality of the food — a student is apt to give you a straight answer.

Students are also more likely to tell you which departments are weak or strong. Even a top university may have a so-so department — and it may be the one you're planning to major in!

Since guides are usually active students, they're good sources of information on campus social life. A school where almost everybody heads home or for the ski slopes on Friday, can be rather dismal for those who stay behind.

After you've heard and seen something of a school from the official standpoint, do some research on your own. Whenever possible, talk with students, particularly anyone in your projected major.

If you can arrange to eat a meal on campus, do it. And don't forget to look at the dorms. Ask the students living in the building about the rules regarding visitors, how sound-proof the walls are, and even how well the heat works in the winter.

When you're ready to leave the campus, take an extra half-hour to size up the surrounding neighborhood. Some colleges have attractive settings, others have become walled fortresses in unsafe, deteriorating areas.

Immediately after your visit, jot down a few observations. Facts and impressions will blur all too quickly, especially if you've taken in several colleges on the same trip. You can easily confuse who said what at which school.

Agriculture Department holding to prediction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is not budging from its recent prediction that farm income may take a big nosedive next year.

In a brief summary of a new analysis to be published later this month, the department said Tuesday "there are no new developments in the current economic situation that significantly alter last month's forecast" for farm income and food prices next year.

Last month USDA predicted 1980 farm income could plummet by as much as 20 percent from this year's estimate of a near-record $32 billion.

Food prices are expected to gain an additional 7 percent to 11 percent, with an 8 percent increase seen most likely at this time.

A spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told a reporter the 1980 farm income situation will not be analyzed further in the full outlook report due for release in a week or two. Income prospects were "described in some detail" last month, he said.

Farm income — whether it's gaining or declining — is always an election-year issue on the rural campaign trail.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for example, last week in Iowa referred to USDA's prediction of reduced farm income in 1980 when he attacked the Carter administration as having a "legacy of toil and trouble" for the nation's farmers.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland replied that Kennedy showed "an ignorance of farm realities."

Last month USDA said that it is possible that farm income may be dropping by as much as 20 percent is based on an assumption inflation will outpace any gains in gross sales receipts.

In its latest report, USDA said, "Demand for agricultural commodities will remain strong through the first half of 1980 despite slowing economic activity."

Prices for major crops "will be influenced by the level and quality of grain and oilseed crops harvested this winter and next spring in the Southern Hemisphere, as well as crop prospects and harvests next summer and fall in the Northern Hemisphere," it said.

Bumper U.S. harvests this year "are moving to market at prices significantly above year-earlier levels" mainly because of "expanded world demand for exports" of American commodities, the report said.

"The world supply of grain is basically set until winter, when the harvest gets under way in the Southern Hemisphere. Although grain crops south of the equator account for only about 7 percent of world production, they comprise almost 20 percent of the volume of wheat and coarse grains (such as corn and other feed) moving in world trade."

Further, it said, Southern Hemisphere soybean production accounts for 20 percent of the world supply and for 30 percent of the international soybean trade.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some northeastern and midwestern states consistently fail to take advantage of all the money they are entitled to under federal rural development programs, according to a group of House members.

State officials might not be fully aware of the programs, the congressmen said.

The two regions have 41 percent of the nation's rural population but only 28 percent of the rural households with incomes below the official poverty lines, the Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition said.

Population and poverty are two principal factors in the legal formulas used to distribute funds under the Farmers Home Administration rural-development programs.

A 43-page study released this week by the group said that the 18 states in the regions received 34 percent of the 1977 community water and waste treatment money and 32.8 percent of the business and industrial development funds between 1974 and 1978.

New England has consistently exceeded its share of business and industrial loans and grants because of a few states' ability to get large amounts, the study said. Mid-Atlantic states have consistently gotten smaller industrial grants than they could have, it added.

Rep. James L. Oberstar, D-Minn., co-chairman of the group, said, "Local officials might not be aware of the existence of some ... programs or the availability of funds."

But, he added, FmHA offices in some states, such as Pennsylvania, might be understaffed and that could be a reason for their not obtaining all the money they could.

The study was prepared by the Northeast-Midwest Institute, an arm of the 213-member coalition, under a contract from the New England Regional Commission, a federal-state planning group.

It found that Connecticut, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Ohio "have not taken advantage of the funds available to them" under the business and industrial loan program.

Judge orders jurors out of courtroom

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A state district judge, who says he would "rather be whipped with a wet rope" than try the case again, ordered jurors out of the courtroom while he reviewed sensitive testimony in the cocaine-delivery trial of Kenneth Andrew Bora.

Bora, 34, was arrested April 25 and 5 and his former partner, K. I. Ramsey, awith shooting at Matthews and his former partner, Kim Ramsey, at a shooting at Matthews and his former partner, Kim Ramsey, at a South Tyler mobile home.

Matthews, his right arm in a metal brace as a result of the incident, was the first witness in Bora's third trial which began Tuesday. Defense attorneys planned to cross examine him today.

In Tuesday's testimony, Matthews traced the steps he took to snare Bora while working as a narcotics agent for the Tyler Police Department.

Bora's first trial ended in a mistrial for jury misconduct and a jury failed to reach a verdict in the second trial. He now is free on $200,000 bond.

Judge Donald Carroll warned prosecutors Tuesday to adhere to rules on admission of evidence, saying he would "rather be whipped with a wet rope than try this case again."

Comedian offered trip to exotic Terre Haute

CHICAGO (AP) — The trip includes a visit to a local fertilizer plant and a room at the YMCA. But no one's sure if comedian Steve Martin will take advantage of the offer from Terre Haute, Ind., the town Martin has dubbed the most "nowhere" place in America.

Martin is being invited to spend two-day dream vacation in beautiful downtown Terre Haute, a town he described in an interview in the January edition of Playboy magazine.

Terre Haute city fathers are promising a wild and crazy time, to borrow Martin's jargon, starting with the trip to town in one of their local H&D Aviation High-Wing Tail Draggers.

The Tail Dragger, by the way, will dust a crop of cantaloupes on the way into the "Queen City of the Wabash."

"We want to show him we're not just another bump in the road," says city spokeswoman Vicki Weger.

In the interview that started it all, Martin was asked what he thought was the most nowhere place in America.

"Terre Haute, Indiana," he responded. "Very little Main Street. And literally not a restaurant with any good food. You'd go into whole towns where it's completely made of fast food. If you were looking for something to buy...there was nothing for sale."

"They say you can always tell that you're somewhere when they have manure ads on TV," Martin said with a laugh.

Well, Terre Haute — population 70,000 — has a sense of humor, too.

For openers, Martin will have use of a 1957 Chevy, for only $7 a day — with unlimited mileage. He can use it to drive to the C.F. Industrial Fertilizer Plant, where city officials have planned a guided tour on his first day.

Martin's suite will be a room at the local YMCA, says Ms. Weger. Meals aren't included at the Y, but city officials say they'll throw in dinner for two at the local Taco Tico.

And so Martin will have something to buy. Terre Haute has come up with a $20 gift certificate he can use at Joan and Bezy's Tractor Sales and Service, plus another $5 gift certificate at Smebey's Jiffy Car Wash, Ms. Weger said.

When the sun goes down, Martin can swing to the rhythmic thum-thum-thum of the washers at the Third Avenue Washeteria, which Ms. Weger describes as "one of the nicest laundromats in the Midwest."

"And upon his departure from Terre Haute, he will be given a bucket of chicken to go from the Colonel," said Ms. Weger.

"We're serious about this," she said. "We want him to come back. The city is going all out."

Martin couldn't be reached for a response to the invitation Tuesday. He was appearing in State Line, Nev., a gambling village in the Lake Tahoe basin with a population of under 1,000 — less than one-seventieth the size of the most nowhere place in America.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like the cast of some television soap opera, the Carter family of Plains, Ga., has survived its share of melodrama during the White House run of "Jimmy Carter, Jimmy Carter."

A son's marital troubles, a brother's bout with the bottle, a nephew's prison sentence, one sister's skirmishes with the law, the other's efforts to "save" an accused pornographer — all are real-life plots from the past three years.

Little has been left to the imagination as the Carters have had their linen aired in public, perhaps more than any other presidential family.

Today, as Carter announces the start of his quest for re-election, the spotlight will shine even more brightly on his family, many of whom will be campaigning on his behalf.

Since 1976, when Jimmy Carter emerged from the pack to win the Democratic presidential nomination, the spotlight has rarely slipped off his family. Since his inauguration, Carter has experienced the death of a revered uncle, the birth of two grandchildren, a daughter-in-law's miscarriage, and the weddings of two nieces.

That's only the beginning. There is the eccentric, outspoken matriarch, Miss Lillian, who said last week that if she had $1 million to spare, she would hire someone to kill Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Mrs. Carter, 81, also raised eyebrows recently with her suggestive reaction to the presidential candidacy of Sen. Edward Kennedy, whose two older brothers were slain by assassins. "I hope nothing happens to him," she told Democratic Party picnickers in Nashua, N.H., early in September.

She comes off as a villain in "Cousin Beedie and Cousin Hot," a book about family feuds written by Hugh Carter Sr., the president's cousin. The gossip book says Mrs. Carter opposed her son's marriage to Rosalynn Smith.

Hugh's son and namesake is a presidential assistant who earned the nickname "Cousin Cheap" when he removed television sets from White House offices and canceled magazine subscriptions to save money.

The president's brother, Billy, lent his name to a beer, capitalized on his redneck reputation by out-earning the president in public appearances, and finally checked into Long Beach Naval Hospital for alcoholism treatments.

Earlier, Billy had outraged many by playing host to a group of prominent Libyans who had feted him in Tripoli.

He was reported to have said that American Jews offended by his Libyan friendship "can kiss my ass." That remark caused a White House official to publicly disassociate the president from the slur.

The president's sisters are just as independent. Gloria Carter Spann rides a motorcycle. She and Billy do not speak. She stayed out of the limelight until last February when she was arrested for refusing to quit playing a harmonica in an all-night diner in Americus, Ga.

REACT receives radios

Two new citizen band radio base stations will soon be in operation for the Pampa REACT teams.

The two radios were donated by Tony Richardson of L&R Machine for use by the organization.

One of the base stations will be set up in the National Guard Armory and the other will be in operation at Highland General Hospital to help coordinate disaster relief efforts in case of an emergency.

J.M. Nation Trucking Company donated an antennae to replace the one on currently on top of the courthouse.

The Pampa REACT monitors CB Channel 9 for any community emergencies.

U.S. productivity declining

NEW YORK (AP) — J. Peter Grace doesn't waste words when numbers tell the story better. His story is an economic one, about what he feels is a loss of common sense in pursuing goals vital to the United States.

A couple of years ago Grace, chief executive officer of W.R. Grace & Co., produced a chart-filled volume depicting the decline in U.S. productivity, especially in relation to foreign countries.

That report, "The Disincentivization of America," purported to show how the nation somehow had gotten its incentives reversed, so that we aspired to growth but thwarted it, and instead encouraged stagnation.

It never was formally published, at least for popular consumption, but it circulated widely in academic, business and government circles. In its realm, it was the equal of a best seller.

Now comes another. "The Assault on Economic Incentive," unveiled in an address at Harvard Business School. It opens with this quotation borrowed from Jack Kemp, the New York Republican congressman:

"If you tax something, you get less of it. If you subsidize something, you get more of it. "The problem with the United States today is that we tax work, savings, thrift, productivity, capital, and we subsidize non-work, welfare and consumption."

Energy consumption, for example. With 5.3 percent of the world's population, Grace reports, the U.S. consumes 49.3 percent of the world's total. And yet, U.S. gasoline prices are half those of Europe.

A good deal of this price differential, says Grace, is because the U.S. government artificially holds crude oil prices below the world market price.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

December 6, 1979

No matter how difficult things seem at the moment, keep plugging along. Something unexpected will happen to change the course that now seems endless and bring things to a fruitful conclusion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be afraid to share the good things that happen to you today. There will be more than enough to go around and you'll get extra enjoyment by bringing others into your picture. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's a good day to get others to understand what you want done and how you plan to do it. You'll even get the cooperation of someone you didn't expect.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put all your cleverness to work today. What might at first appear to be a wild idea could turn out to be a solution for a vexing old problem.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today should turn out to be a rather pleasant one when you get together with loved ones. You'll now have the opportunity to express many things which are on your mind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Hard work pays extra dividends when coupled with good old Yankee ingenuity. You're just the one who can put them together today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What begins as simply an everyday talk with an old friend could, surprisingly, reveal some startling information of benefit to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Yesterday's unusual financial conditions will continue today. Take advantage of them to acquire some long-sought items.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure to check your mail early today. There'll be plenty of it for you. Look for a surprise invitation to a fun event.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone with a lot of know-how will prove exceptionally helpful today in getting something for you that you didn't think possible. Enjoy it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are your usual cautious self today and that's not bad, but yield a little should an impromptu invitation pop up. It'll turn out to be super.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Make that little extra push today and a chance conversation will occur that could prove surprisingly beneficial where work or career is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There are lots of opportunities about you today, but they may not come through conventional channels. It'll be up to you to recognize them when they occur.

ABC wins ratings race this week

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, winner twice in a row in the networks' prime-time ratings competition, listed seven of the 10 most-watched shows in the week ending Dec. 2, but still lost the race.

ABC, scoring with the week's No. 1 show, "Three's Company," as well as the welterweight boxing championship broadcast Friday evening, No. 12 in the ratings, jumped from third place to first and maintained its slim margin over CBS for the season to date.

ABC, in addition, avoided heavy representation at the bottom of the week's program ratings from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

ABC's rating for the week was 21.1, to 20.2 for CBS and 16.9 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.1 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC.

"Three's Company" had a rating of 31.4. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, that percentage saw at least part of the show.

The Top 10 was composed entirely of continuing series, an unusual configuration. The highest-rated special was the welterweight championship fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Wilfredo Benitez.

CBS' top show for the week was "60 Minutes," in second place, followed by "M-A-S-H," also on CBS, and "Taxi" from ABC. NBC listed only "Little House on the Prairie" in the Top 10 — No. 10.

"Prime Time Sunday," the NBC newsmagazine which has struggled since the season began to emerge from the bottom of the ratings list, advanced a bit to 52nd place among the 62 shows ranked.

NBC did, however, have three of the week's five lowest-rated programs. "Shirley" in 58th place, the conclusion of the "Beggarmen, Thief" two-part movie in 61st and "Eisheid" in 62nd. Two ABC shows, "Marie" and "The Ropers," finished 59-60.

The week's 10 highest-rated shows: "Three's Company," with a rating of 31.4 representing 24 million homes, ABC; "60 Minutes," 30.6 or 23.3 million, and "M-A-S-H," 28.8 or 22 million, both CBS; "Taxi," 27.5 or 21 million, ABC; "One Day at a Time," 27.3 or 20.8 million, CBS; "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "Alice," both 27 or 20.6 million, both CBS; "Archie Bunker's Place," 26.4 or 20.1 million, and "The Jeffersons," 26.2 or 20 million, both CBS, and "Little House on the Prairie," 26 or 19.8 million, NBC.

The next 10 shows: "Eight is Enough," and "WBC Welterweight Championship," both ABC; "Dallas" and "Lou Grant," both CBS; "CHiPs," NBC, and "Angie," ABC, tie; "Unbroken Circle," CBS, and "Charlie's Angels," ABC, tie; "Fantasy Island," ABC, and "Dukes of Hazzard," CBS.

Pampa ripped by Plainview

By L.D. STRATE
Of The Pampa News

PLAINVIEW-It was a frustrating night to say the least for the Pampa Harvesters, who were ripped by a small, but quick Plainview team, 65-47, Tuesday night.

Pampa's strongpoint in three wins this season has been hustle, but from the opening tip, however, the Harvesters seemed listless, perhaps because of tournament play last weekend.

Plainview jumped off to a 5-0 edge, but the Harvesters played well enough to make it a contest the first half, despite ten turnovers. Pampa took the lead, 8-7, near the end of the first quarter on Ronnie Faggins turnaround jumper, but the hosts quickly bounced back on top and stayed there the rest of the game.

Plainview led by as much as nine in the second quarter and starting building up an insurmountable lead at the beginning of the second half. Plainview's quick defense swarmed and swirled over the Harvesters, turning several steals and bad passes into layups.

Plainview hit a torrid 50 percent from the floor and left Pampa trailing by as much as 21 points in the third quarter.

Ronnie Faggins led Pampa scoring with 14 points, 10 of those coming in the first half. Jim Agan came off the bench to net 12 points. Cedric Parker and Joe Jeffers had 6 points each. Carl Nelson, 4. Bobby Dorsey, 3, and Duane Avery, 2.

Four players tallied in double figures for the winners with Kenneth Story leading the way with 20 points. Keith Jordan added 15, Kim Taylor and Earnest Mosley had 12 points each.

The Harvesters were cold from the floor, hitting only 20 of 55 shots for 34 percent, but had their best night from the foul line, 6 of 7. Plainview dumped in 9 of 10 foul shots.

Both clubs battled evenly on the boards with 29 rebounds apiece. Faggins and Parker had 8 and 6 rebounds respectively while Jeffers had 4 and Nelson 3.

The Harvesters, now 3-4 for the season, are entered in the rugged Lawton, Okla. Invitational Tournament which opens Thursday. Their first opponent is Lawton MacArthur at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Pampa girls also had their problems with Plainview, dropping a 76-45 decision to Plainview on the homecourt last night.

Gay Hemphill poured in 39 points for the winners while Pampa's Kellye Richardson tossed in 23 points. Tammy Minyard added 9 for Pampa.

Ferguson, Tierney battling for lead

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — "It ain't over till it's over," Paul Tierney assured himself Tuesday after he found his persistent effort to stop Tom Ferguson from winning a sixth straight PRCA All-Around Cowboy Title crumbling.

Okla., on the other hand, posted a 4.3 timing in the steer wrestling to take first in that event. He also failed to place in the calf roping.

"I really didn't like my steer," Tierney said. "But I should have done better. The horse is working okay, it's the cowboy that needs to improve."

Ferguson agreed that the space between the two cowboys is too close to give him any rest claiming "the pressure is still on."

During the fourth go-round of the National Finals Rodeo here the Rapid City, S.D., cowboy failed to finish in the points in either the steer wrestling or the calf roping. Ferguson of Miami.

Americans aren't buying dealers giving mood

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Auto dealers may be in the giving mood as the holidays approach, but Americans still aren't buying.

Despite rebates and other dealer incentives, sales by the nation's five major automakers dropped 21.3 percent in November from a year ago to the lowest levels in five years, automakers said Tuesday.

New deliveries totaled 606,204, compared with 769,855 a year ago. The daily selling rate of 24,248 was the third-lowest of the decade, eclipsed only by the 20,220 in 1974 and 18,131 in 1970.

For the final 10 days of November, sales plunged 23.9 percent from the same period a year ago to 213,910.

General Motors Corp. sales for November were 369,625, down 21.8 percent; Ford Motor Co. was off 24.3 percent to 150,611; Chrysler Corp. fell 32.6 percent to 53,733.

While the Big Three carmakers showed steep declines for the month and the latest period, American Motors Corp. and Volkswagen of America each posted gains.

AMC was up 36.7 percent for the month to 17,482. And Volkswagen, which a year ago did not have its new Pennsylvania plant producing at full capacity, delivered 14,753 Rabbits in November, a 150.4 percent jump.

GM's response Tuesday to its poor sales report was to announce the indefinite layoff of more than 11,000 workers, bringing to 45,560 the number of GM workers facing indefinite furloughs. Industrywide, the figure tops 110,000.

Industry analysts said the car market mirrored the nation's economy by "going sideways."

"There has been little change in market conditions in the past two months," said Gordon B. Mackenzie, Ford sales vice president. "Many potential buyers apparently are deferring vehicle purchases because of temporary economic and world conditions."

Faced with bloated inventories of some 1980 cars and a stockpile of unsold 1979 models, GM and Ford have been offering dealers incentives which may be passed along to buyers. Chrysler, meanwhile, is giving $300 rebates direct to buyers of most models.

But analysts say the efforts only have been able to maintain sales volume and not really lift it. At Chrysler, sales figures show rebates have failed to increase the financially struggling carmaker's share of the market. The 8.7 percent share for November compares with 10.7 a year ago and 11.4 overall this year.

For the late November period, GM sales dropped 25.4 percent to 131,366; Ford fell 27.6 percent to 51,176; Chrysler plunged 37.1 percent to 17,638; AMC was up 114.3 percent to an estimated 7,482; and VW was up 427 percent to 6,248.

So far this year, the five companies have delivered 7,774,557 cars, down 10.6 percent from a year ago. GM is off 9 percent; Ford is down 16.7 percent; Chrysler is off 17.3 percent; AMC has declined 9.3 percent; and VW is up 866 percent.

Attack signals dangerous shift within movement

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The ambush of a U.S. Navy bus in which two sailors were killed and 10 men and women wounded signalled a dangerous shift in tactics by the Puerto Rican independence movement.

The change resulted from the growing strength of the movement for Puerto Rican statehood.

"The extreme-left groups are feeling suffocated and time is running against them," said one source in the federal government. "If Puerto Rico becomes a state, then it will be too late for them to do anything."

For the past decade, pro-independence terrorism has been mostly a matter of haphazard bombing of U.S. government buildings or property of mainland companies, usually at night when the buildings were empty.

Of some 50 bombs planted in the past year, nearly half were dismantled unexploded, and those that went off did minimal damage. But after the ambush Monday, the three underground independence groups that claimed responsibility warned that they were "not playing at war" and were prepared to carry their struggle to its "ultimate consequences."

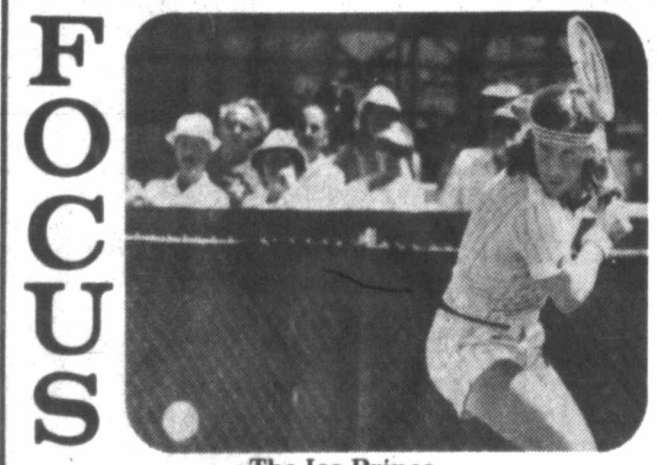

In past votes, the Puerto Ricans have overwhelmingly rejected independence and have chosen to continue as a U.S. commonwealth. Now a pro-statehood governor, Carlos Romero Barcelo, is waging a vigorous campaign to make the island the 51st state within the next decade.

The pro-independence forces are working against the deadline of a plebiscite in 1981 in which their cause stands no chance against commonwealth or statehood. Apparently the terrorists have decided that their only hope is to cause enough trouble to force cancellation of the vote.

Puerto Rico's first presidential primaries this winter are putting additional pressure on them. Republican hopefuls have begun to parade their candidacies and are pledging to make the island a state. One advocate of independence expressed the fear that the primaries would be "an irrevocable step on the road to statehood."

Eighteen different clandestine groups have claimed responsibility for the bombings of the past year, but an FBI source said the terrorists are a small, cell-like nucleus working under diverse names. They were trained in Cuba and took part in the Angolan civil war as "observers," one official source reported.

In contrast to the amateurism which has characterized many of their earlier attacks, the ambush of the Navy bus was a professional affair that was carried out in less than a minute.

The Ice Prince

When Bjorn Borg was nine years old, his father gave him a tennis racquet he had won in a table tennis tournament. Borg has lots of racquets now, and at 23 is widely considered the world's best tennis player. This year he won a record fourth straight Wimbledon championship in Britain. Because of his outwardly cool, unemotional manner on the court, Borg has been called the "Ice Prince." "But inside," Borg says, "I feel it. I feel excited, or nervous, or angry, sure. It's the way I can play best." This week, Borg is scheduled to compete against Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase and other top players in the World Championship Tennis Challenge Cup tournament in Montreal, Canada.

DO YOU KNOW — What is Bjorn Borg's native country?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Franklin Roosevelt was the last Democratic president to serve two elected terms in office.
