CARSON CITY (AP) - Howard Hughes' weird financial dealings were discussed as the Nevada Supreme Court heard appeals from lower court decisions involving the late billionaire. Arguments Tuesday included a Summa Corp. appeal of a District Court decision in which Las Vegas Sun publisher Hank Greenspun won $1 million in damages against the firm in a land

The Supreme Court also heard lawyers for the Hughes estate argue against a $3 million claim against the estate from Texas Commerce Bank National Association of Houston, Texas.

The arguments were taken under submission and separate rulings will be issued at a later date.

In the first case involving Greenspun, Summa Corp. lawyer

Sam Lionel argued that District Court Judge Joseph McDaniel of Elko erred in awarding the $1 million in punitive damages plus $53,204 in lawyers' fees to the Las Vegas newspaperman.

Greenspun initially had asked for $142 million on grounds Summa executives engaged in a malicious attempt to slander title to land he owned, by the filing of a deed of trust in an alleged effort to block its sale.

Lionel said there was "inference upon inference upon inference" that Hughes had made a deal with Greenspun to erase the trust deed on the Greenspun property — but no hard proof that Summa filed the trust deed after Greenspun allegedly defaulted on a $4 million loan from Hughes. Greenspun went to court and won the ruling from Judge McDaniel - a ruling which also cancelled the controversial trust deed.

Lionel insisted that the filing of the deed was not an act of malice on the part of Summa executives. But Ralph Denton, Greenspun's attorney, countered that the case "reeks with malice.

Brian Greenspun, an attorney and the publisher's son, said one problem with the case is that both Hughes and his father acted like 'flunatics' in making an unwritten agreement not to record

In exchange for not recording the trust deed. Greenspun didn't force Hughes to fulfill terms of an earlier agreement to buy more than 2,000 acres of land in and around the Paradise Valley hostages say they know nothing about foreign observers interviewing their captives, promised by Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, and that Ghotbzadeh doesn't speak for them.

"We are not here to confirm or deny anybody's statement. We have not been informed about any meeting arranged with the hostages. If anything comes up, we'll announce it ourselves and nobody can be our spokesman." a student leader said of Ghotbzadeh's pledge.

The foreign minister made the promise at a news conference Tuesday, declaring: "We are going to have international observers to go and visit the prisoners in, I hope, a very short time, and afterwards I hope that visits will be (made) regularly.

However, he said he has not met with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's special envoy, Zuhair Yamin of Lebanon, who arrived in Tehran Monday hoping to visit the 50 hostages seized at the U.S. Embassy Nov. 4 by students demanding that President Carter send the shah back to Iran for trial.

Ghotbzadeh's announcement, in a radio interview, came a few hours after an official at the Foreign Ministry said a letter purportedly written by Kennedy and pledging support for Khomeini's revolution was a fake.

Although Ghotbzadeh spoke of a telegram, it was clear he was referring to the letter broadcast and published here this morning that allegedly was sent by Kennedy, addressing Khomeini in laudatory terms and seeking to visit Iran.

Ghotbzadeh said: "We received such a telegram and sent it to (Khomeini) ... Apparently because of Senator Kennedy's opposition to the shah and the atmosphere in the United States, Senator Kennedy has refuted this telegram."

However, a Foreign Ministry spokeswoman who was told that Kennedy's spokesman in Washington denied Kennedy ever communicated with Khomeini, said: "What the senator says is correct." Asked if the purported Kennedy letter was a fake, she

Quake kills at least 71

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A violent earthquake rocked the Colombia-Ecuador border area before dawn today, killing at least 71 people, injuring more than 350 and sending thousands rushing from their beds in panic, officials reported.

Numerous buildings were leveled across the south and authorities feared the death toll could go higher.

The quake, which was measured from 7.7 to 8.1 on the Richter

The Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies have condemned the NATO plan.

Four of the 15 NATO government were still jittery about introduction of the U.S. missiles. They were the Netherlands and Belgium, each earmarked to have 48 cruise missiles on their territories, and Norway and Denmark, which have misgivings although they would not have any of the nuclear weapons.

The Dutch Cabinet conferred until late Tuesday and was to meet again this morning to formulate the position its ministers would take at the Brussels meeting.

The Belgian government was reported advocating a compromise: if arms reduction talks with the Russians show real progress in the next six months, the decision to deploy the missiles would be conservatives; we invite you to pay close attention to today's interview (see Focus) with Occidental's Armand Hammer. He is a wealthy man - the chief executive and chairman of the board of one of America's largest oil companies. If there is a ruling elite, Dr. Hammer is part of it. Look closely at what he says and you will find he is not a conservative, nor is he an all-out supporter of free enterprise.

A talk with a capitalist

Hammer says establishing good relations with Mexico would be given top priority. The Carter administration has clearly botched this job. They interfered with a natural gas contract two years ago that left bad feeling south of the border. Trying to smooth things over, Carter paid a state visit to Mexico and ended up talking about Montezuma's revenge when he should have been talking about oil. Why this is important is that Hammer happens to be one of Jimmy Carter's biggest supporters.

Hammer's other suggestions about the energy crisis all depend, to one degree or another, on government involvement with private companies. He says we should develop the process to produce oil from coal, oil from shale, and further work on liquifying coal. All these will require tax dollars, according to the oil executive. This is especially true in developing the shale oil processes.

guarantees and loan guarantees to develop shale oil. It is no coincidence that his company dominates the field and would likely be on the receiving end of federal handouts aimed at developing synthetic fuels. Whether Hammer's support of the "windfall" profits tax is based on the possibility that his company might profit from the overall program, at the expense of other oil companies that are not into synfuels, is something Hammer does not confront. Instead, when asked

Hammer almost appears to fit into a Marxist definition of the term capitalist. Marxists believe that capitalism has nothing to do with free enterprise. They point out that busnessmen make profits manipulating government with little regard for a free market. A capitalist, according to Marx, is only concerned with making money and uninterested in free exchange and free choice. Those of us who believe in free enterprise often make the mistake of thinking that businessmen have inclinations in favor of free enterprise. It is not true of many businessmen and it is numerous chances to talk with Marxists about their definition of capitalism. He has led a truly remarkable like. He made a fortune while still in medical school and later set up a hospital in Bolshevik Russia. In those days idealists believed the Soviets might offer a better way of life. Hammer may have been such a man. Even if he was an idealist, he was not stopped from making money, lots of it.

Hammer has considerable praise for the Soviet Union. What he describes is a system that offers enormous security and no freedom just like a prison. One must decide for oneself if Hammer's complimentary comments about America's economic system, and his simultaneous glorification of the Soviet society, are honestly spoken, or instead an attempt to shield him from the logical conclusion that he is indeed a supporter of Soviet-style socialism. Claiming that no poverty exists in the Soviet Union is a questionable perception when one other considers that America's poor are wealthier in terms of good and the positive aspects of Soviet society, he seems almost unable to elaborate on the dictatorial nature of the government. He denies a retrogression away from freedom under Brezhnev. Instad he labels the Russian leadership, as well as America's, reasonable men who want

The Soviet Union is today the most powerful dictatorship in the history of mankind. Hammer's account of its alleged accomplishments are frighteningly like those which gave Hitler credit for stopping the German inflation, something he did not do. Hitler was nowhere near as strong as the gang in the Kremlin

Finally. Hammer's lack of concern about the dictatorial nature of the Soviet regime is not out of character with a man who, as chairman of a major oil company, supports the windfall profits tax. His support for Carter's government-expanding energy proposals is consistent with his willingness to make a profit from a society that denies its citizens any of the basic labor freedoms enjoyed in Western nations. Is freedom no

There's no monopoly on mismanagement

Chrysler Corp. is not the only business going broke in Detroit. Wayne County itself is on the rocks and the county with its 2.7 million population, including the city of Detroit, is in the process of laying off all but an essential few of its 5,300 public's demand for gas-efficient motorcars. Wayne County simply suffers from massive mismanagement. Its administration is splintered into autonomous political fiefdoms, dominated by labor unions and run, if that is the word, by a cumbersome 21-member board of county commissioners. The county of Wayne doesn't even know how much money it has or how much it owes. Such is the chaos of its bookkeeping. It does know, however, that the treasury is empty a month before the end of the fiscal year.

groups of a depressed metropolis enough money to keep them quiet and giving the overpaid and tightly unionized employees enough to keep them happy Predictably this feckless policy has run up a deficit which has reached $19.5 million, despite a big and growing tax base.

The state of Michigan is understandably reluctant to draw Wayne County out of its financial pit until it shows some sign of being able to stay out. This, Gov. William G. Milliken has said, will require a county charter amendment by the pointed county manager who might avoid the excesses of the past

Like Chrysler. Wayne County is finding strings attached to the aid it wants. But if it accepts the reforms urged by the state and by concerned citizens and

A case for nuclear energy

Mac Owens Mr. Owens is instructor of Economics at Northlake College, Dallas, Texas.

A dispassionate dialogue on nuclear. energy should lead to reasonable and esponsible public policies in this area. But dispassionate dialogue is a rare commodity, especially on this topic.

Playing on the understandable anxieties of a public that cannot possibly keep fully informed on the complex technical issues involved. Jane Fonda and fellow aspirants to influence seek to decide the issue by exciting an almost superstitious fear. rather than by a rational consideration of recognized dangers and reliable safeguards. Such ideological posturing and uninformed polemics against nuclear energy have made it all but impossible to consider the base FOR nuclear energy on its merits

What, then, can be said in favor of nuclear energy?

A great deal Nuclear energy is safer than other methods of energy generation, including

The reason is simple: the danger of nuclear energy is concentrated in a small area (the reactor core), around which a defense in depth can be built. In contrast, due to the physical limitaions associated with solar power (the sun can deliver only 1 kilowatt per square meter under the BEST conditions), large areas will always be required to collect large amounts of energy (to generate 1000 MW would require 50 square MILES of collector surface.) This requires constant cleaning and maintenance.

Presently, the second major cause of accidental death and injury in the U.S. is due to falls. As a result, a study by the Canadian government finds that solar energy, per unit of power generated, is ten times more dangerous than nuclear

No energy form is riskless but nuclear safety is based on two principles: defense in depth and the slowness of a nuclear accident. To begin with, a nuclear explosion in a reactor is impossible. Beyond this no one can predict every occurrence, but one CAN construct a defense system that will contain an incidence of latent cancers) would require a chain of events each of which was an extremely low probability: a meltdown would have to occur, the containment building would have to be breached, there would have to be a temperature inversion to keep the radioactive particles close to the ground, and a gentle wind blowing toward a population center. The probability of a meltdown and containment rupture is once in a billion reactor-years. Were a nuclear accident to develop, the length of time required to reach a critical

It was not just luck that prevented a major catastrophe at Three Mile Island. No other form of energy provides so many lines of defense nor do other accidents develop so slowly. A dam break can kill 100,000 people in a few minutes. A tanker collision can cause an explosion and fire with no warning, as occurred at Bayonne, N. J., on 6 January, 1973, and again in South Brooklyn on 3 January, 1976. Risks must be kept in perspective.

As far as the risks from low level radiation, it must be remembered that we

For there to be a nuclear accident (loss of are all exposed to radiation from natural life among the general population, high causes, and that most of us increase our possibility. state allows time for evacuation.

What ADDITIONAL cancers are caused by nuclear energy (including low-level radiation) with all its risks is the pertinent guestion. Those who predict massive . increses in cancer rates due to increased use of nuclear power are frequently playing statistical games with sample population (see THE RADIATION CONTROVERSY by Dr. Ralph E. Lapp).

Horror stories about the disposal of radioactive wastes are a fine way to scare . school children, but they have little basis in fact. The great advantage of nuclear power . is the very small physical volume of waste produced. For instance, while a 1000 MW coal fired plant produces over 2 million cubic meters of waste per year, or the euivalent of 320 lbs. of waste per person (much of which consists of carcinogens and other nasty poisons), a nuclear plant producing the same energy creates TWO cubic meters of waste.

If all electrical power were supplied by nuclear energy, the annual waste per person would be about the size of an aspirin tablet. This waste can then be solidified. sealed in glass, put into earthquake proof, fireproof, waterproof steel drums for burial 1800 feet deep in salt formations where there has been no water for 100 million years. Indeed, by disposing of nuclear waste in this manner, we will ultimately reduce the risk of exposure to radiation. For, you see, Mother Nature has distributed some 30 TRILLION cancer doses of radiation near the earth's surface at RANDOM. According to a 1977 UN report there are towns in Brazil where the ABSORBED rates of radiation from natural deposits average 3 to 5 times the maximun dose allowed to nuclear workers in the U.S. There is a town in Iran where the dose is 9 times as great. The point is, radiation is with us whether we use nuclear power or not. By removing deposits from the surface and ultimately disposing of . them in safe locations below ground, we do not add to, but subtract from exposure.

Just because no method of waste disposal has been APPROVED by the Carter administration does not mean that the means for safe disposal-do not exist. The Carter administration has opted for a throw-away disposal system that DOES increase the risk of leakage.

It is understandable that people are concerned about the dangers of nuclear energy. What is bothersome is that so little of the discussion is rational. There is no dialogue. Instead, we have irresponsible charges against the nuclea industry which require a twenty-minute lecture to answer. To abandon the nuclear option on the basis of such sensational fiction as "The China Syndrome" would be an extreme disservice to the nation's

He was the first one to recommend putting seats in the luggage racks, and also tearing out lavatories to make more room for paying customers.

"I thought about that. But we can only get 12 seats in there and people might complain if their bags don't arrive on the same plane as they do.

"I guess there's nothing you can do then except make the people smaller He didn't realize I was making a joke. 'We've been working on that, but the few people we've tried our machine on

Here we don't go again

So you thought that once the dollar-a-gallon barrier had been breached. the gasoline shortage would be over?

So you were wrong. The word from the experts in government and the oil industry is that another supply pinch and a return of long lines at the pumps are in store for the United States by next summer thanks to anticipated production cutbacks in a clutch of OPEC countries that produces three-quarters of U.S. crude imports. Saudi Arabia, the No. 1 supplier, has already given notice of intent to cut back on the first of the year by a million barrels daily, the bonus output it has been providing to get us out of this year's shortage. Nigeria, Libya and Venezuela are also reducing production, and revolutionary turmoil that has already cut deeply into Iranian supplies is expected to

The actual shortfall may amount to only a few percentage points of total U.S. imports. But the balance between supply and demand is now so close that a few points will have national impact.

The forecasters see one possibility of averting next year's shortage rerun - a major recession that would diminish worldwide demand for oil. That's good news?

No, but it might well turn out to be far from the worst if another forecast turns out to be anywhere near the mark. This is a long-range survey of supply and demand produced by a Boston-based economic think tank, Arthur D. Little Inc., and it makes dismal reading indeed

Looking ahead a decade, the surveyors anticipate strenuous efforts to expand the energy supply. But even allowing for maximum benefit from increased Alaskan production, development of new offshore fields and improved recovery methods in older fields, domestic production is likely to decline from the 10.3 million barrels per day of 1978 to 8.5 million in 1990.

Total synthetic and other unconventional fuel production may by then be the equivalent of a million barrels per day, half or less of the administration's target under the yet-to-be-legislated $88-billion energy

Meanwhile, world markets will be ightening and OPEC prices rising.

The upshot, as the survey sees it, is that 'significant changes in American economic growth and lifestyles may be required" to reduce oil demand to the level of the curtailed supply

It is a situation in which we could well be looking back to the summers of '79 and '80. as the good old energy days.

Of course, forecasts are at best only educated guesses at what the future holds. They may be solid enough in their bases current realities. But it is the variables unanticipated developments - that really shape that future. Was there a forecaster 10 years ago anywhere near close to defining accurately the realities of our energy situation today?

The actual situation in 1990 may be very different from the grim picture presented here - for the better, we can always hope, but quite possibly for the worse.

Students begin third day of strike

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Five Iranian students who withstood a day of taunting and insults from an angry mob today "huddled under umbrellas on the steps of City Hall as they began the third day of a hunger strike.

"I like the people of San Antonio. What happened yesterday was led by four or five persons, 'said Farshad Rafizadeh, on of the five San Antonio College students. "We all love them.

· The Iranians, protesting the presence of the deposed shah at nearby Lackland Air Force Base, were whisked through a back door of city hall to the police station late Tuesday after the threatening mob swarmed around them

Rafizadeh said they remained at the police station for about 30 minutes before going home.

The sudden overnight drop in temperature may keep the mob. spurred on by a local country-western disc jockey, from returning today, according to City Manager Tom Huebner.

"They're sitting there in the cold and rain. Very few people are attracted to that situation so it's no problem right now." Heubner said. peering out the front door of City Hall at the students. "They can just sit and freeze... I was glad to see the cold and rain. I wish we'd get more cold and rain

The Iranians appeared tired this morning and Rafizadeh said he is beginning to feel weakened.

They had new signs after their other ones were ripped apart by the crowd Tuesday

During Tuesday's confrontation, the police used more than 50 officers to keep the crowd from the students.

Gold opened in London and Zurich just below the previousall-time high of $447, recorded in London at the close of trading

But by lunchtime, it had advanced to $461 in Zurich, where it closed Tuesday at $445.50. London's major bullion houses "fixed" the price for the morning trading session at $449.75.

The dollar, which tends to move in a direction opposite of gold.

The dollar's fall and gold's rise were traced by analysts to a number of factors.

"There are a lot of things raising what we might call the co-efficient of anxiety, and you can think of the gold price as an index of that anxiety," said Jeffrey Nichols at Argus Research

"What we're seeing is a market recognition of the broader political movement underlying the problem in Iran." said James" Sinclair, chairman of James Sinclair & Co., a New York financial advisory firm specializing in gold. He said the Iranian situation might be the first of many anti-American actions in the Mideast.

"International political developments are not such that it would create faith in our immediate future." said Deak. He added that gold is also attractive because "Americans are upset because of the loss of the dollar's purchasing power.'

There were also worries that the Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries might vote a huge oil-price increase next week, hurting nations like the United States that import large amounts of oil, while providing more income for OPEC members to invest in the gold market.

Many investors worried about their holdings elsewhere often turn to gold as a more stable alternative. Gold's value all over the world makes it attractive when other investments are taking a

The price of gold has now almost doubled from its $226.37-an-ounce price at the beginning of this year, and is almost 13 times as expensive as it was in 1970, when an ounce of gold cost about $35. The price was then largely controlled, however, by now-defunct international agreements. "Obviously, the 1970s have been a golden decade with a vengeance," said David Fitzpatrick, a London-based gold-market analyst for the Wall Street firm Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner

Gray County voters may find themselves in a bind come May 3.

Any person who did not receive a new voter registration card recently when previously registered may not be able to vote in the next primary, unless the situation is clarified with the county tax assessor collector's office.

Over 1500 voter registration cards have been returned to Jack Back, county tax assessor-collector, after the latest card send out. Back said most of them are because people have moved and have not told his office their new forwarding address. "If people have moved from their precinct and list" to the state voter registration office. The list is made up of people who are no longer registered voters in the county, people who don't come in and correct their address, Back said. He said the number is high for returned cards.

Over 12,000 cards were sent out and of the 1500 returned. 500 were sent out again after office employees checked the phone book and city directory for new addresses. The latest cards are valid from March 1, 1980 and last for two years.

Now is the time to begin enjoying the many diversities the winter season has to offer. Both indoors and out, seasonal activities encompass the areas of food, fashion, sport, travel and relaxation.

After a leisurely summer of basking in warm sunshine and the hectic fall rush of back - to - school, the arrival of cold, crisp weather is invigorating, and adds the drive necessary to go out and make things happen.

New challenges arise through winter sports such as skiing, sledding, skating and tobogganing. This is the year to conquer the almighty ski terrain that was avoided last year, master a figure eight or travel to a new winter

The mountains beckon. displaying their snow - covered trails and high majestic peaks reaching far into the clouds - the perfect weekend retreat.

For children - and older ones who still have a child's spirit winter means snowmen, snowball fights, hot chocolate and homemade cookies, lots of smiles. and plenty of tears when snowballs land inside, rather than on hooded

With the cold weather comes the need, and the desire, to keep warm, so take advantage of this opportunity to wear lots of clothes and layer, mix and match.

Put on more and more in which to go outside - woolen underwear. sweaters, shirts, socks, mittens and peel off layers when indoors.

Indoors is often the solace for many a freezing nose or thawing Winter can be enjoyed indoors for those moments spent sipping a hot drink in front of the fireplace. baking for annual family gatherings, or just curling up in a warm woolen blanket watching the snow gently fall to the ground outside.

Although there are countless ways to spend the winter days. there are still those who yearn for that drop of warm golden sunshine and to feel the spray of ocean mist against their faces. For them, winter is the time to travel to warmer climates. Exploring faraway, exciting places makes a well - deserved break in the winter season and provides a fantastic escape.

Winter holds something for everyone. It is the only time of the year when the outside world is crisp, clean and white - a winter wonderland for all

DEAR ABBY

Giving adequate thought to gift-giving

DEAR ABBY: Last year you devoted an entire column to what and what not to give for Christmas gifts. I thought it was one of the most helpful columns you ever wrote. Please run it again

OVER 80 IN OKMULGEE, OKLA.

DEAR OVER 80: That column was so well received I've updated it. And here it is:

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas (or Hanukkah) shopping early.

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes, or other bric-a-brac.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

Shut-ins would appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so that they, too, can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some other useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, YOU might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for ANY amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting his pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine

By Abigail Van Buren

Please, don't ever send a gift in a box bearing the name of a store unless you bought it there. Should the recipient want to exchange it, he will be embarrassed, the store clerks will look bewildered, and it won't make YOU look too good.

Don't give a pet to anyone unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet. Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful g. ts for those who aren't counting their calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than THEY are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D. An apology to Desiree on beauty advice

Teens: When I blow an answer, I realy blow it and I can tell by the volume of mail I receive telling me so.

Desiree from Burlington, Iowa, wrote saying she was ugly, flat as a board and had never kissed a boy. She said she met a real cute boy whom she liked and wanted to tell him so. I told her not to say anything to the boy about liking him and that this boy was out of her league.

I was wrong so Desiree I apologize. Go after him with gusto. It's what's in the heart that counts most. I'd like to share a few of the many letters that reminded

there already has been a boom-and-bust cycle in the campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential President Carter, virtually written off by some politicians and analysts even before he declared his candidacy, turns out to be politically alive and well.

He appears more formidable than before, and Kennedy less so. But comebacks and slumps don't mean much until they start producing nominating delegates, a process that won't begin for

Kennedy has not conquered simply by running. In fairness, he never suggested he would, but said weeks ago that he expected a closely fought contest, with Carter a candidate for the duration. There was at the time a wave of speculation that Carter would not make it through the early primary season. He was down, and some said he would be out early. Now the fashion has changed. and the focus is on Kennedy's campaign problems.

Rats and cats

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - When the South Africans came, the rats came too. So the South Africans imported cats. Then there were too many of them, so the South Africans brought in more.

The ecological misadventure story began in 1947 when South Africa annexed Marion and Prince Edward Islands 1.150 miles to the southeast and put a weather observation station on Marion

When the weathermen arrived, a number of rats slipped ashore and took up residence. It wasn't long before the meteorologists had lots of unwelcome rats for company.

Somebody thought of cats. In 1948, five common house cats were brought to the island and set free. They quickly ate their way through some of the rat population but also discovered it was easier to catch and eat the sea birds roosting on the island

When they weren't out foraging, they were reproducing. By 1976, the feline population was estimated at 6,000. devouring 1.2 million birds a year. Petrels, graceful in the air but clumsy on the ground, were the favorite, but zoologists said other species also were endangered.

The cats had been hunted. They had been trapped. Those that could be caught were sterilized. But the population boom continued

In 1976, 100 more cats were brought to Marion. But these were infected with feline enteritis. They were delivered by helicopter to selected areas of the island.

The virus does not affect anything else, and that is why we decided to use it," said Rudi van Aarde of Pretoria University's Mammal Research Institute. "The virus has spread successfully through the island and has reduced the mean population by 54 per cent.

Now the zoologists are concerned that the 3,000 remaining cats, or some of their descendants, will produce a generation immune to the virus, and the population explosion will start all over again.

Economists surprised by strong retail sales

NEW YORK (AP) - To the surprise of economists who had been forecasting a recession, retail sales apparently turned strong again in November

All year long, they've been talking about the coming recession, and now it appears that it won't appear, that it won't come up in

Next year, they assure us, but didn't they say that a year ago? Yes, and nine months ago, six months ago and as recently as last week. Viewing weak second-quarter figures, even the White House had all but conceded last summer that the recession had arrived.

That isn't to say that it didn't have an impact. Fear of it influenced consumers, business, labor, the Federal Reserve, Congress, the White House. People borrowed, bought and spent, but with a guilty feeling.

Consumers' polls show, in fact, that many people believe a recession did occur in 1979, no matter that the official statistics, some of which are still subject to revision and correction, said no. To them, and to all others who worried constantly about it, recession was a presence in every commercial transaction, even if it was the presence of a ghost. Countless words were devoted to it; it was perhaps the most anticipated economic non-event of the

A popular forecast, perhaps even a consensus, developed as the year wore on: The longer the recession was delayed the worse inflation would get and the deeper and longer would be the ensuing recession.

Could frustration and anger have been a factor in that forecast? One is inclined to believe that objective, scientific, academically proud economists wouldn't be guilty of such behavior. But they

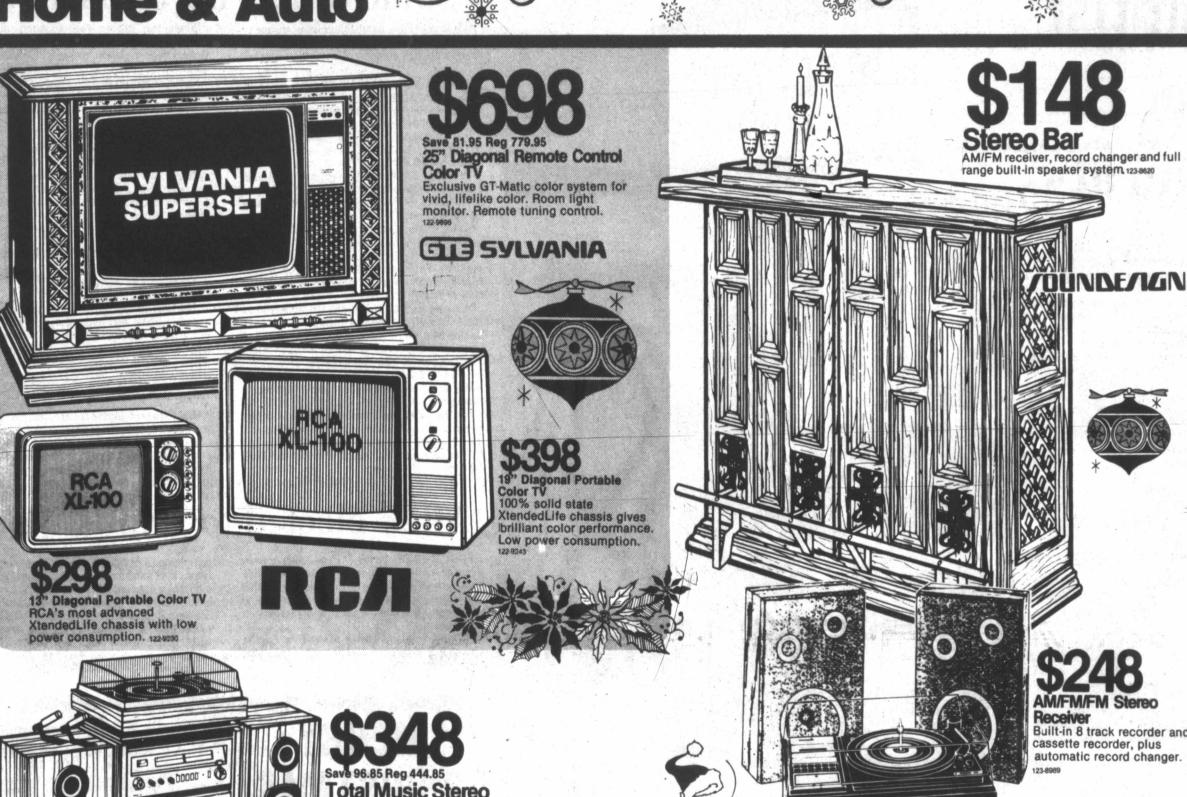

Now, near the end of the year, nothing much has changed. The forecasts remain as solidly defended as they were a year ago. There will be a recession in 1980; that is the consensus view.

In fact, a Conference Board forum, made up of private sector economists from think tanks, academia, manufacturing and banking, concluded this week that even now the economy was in

One might even read into their report a suggestion of ennui. "It is entirely clear," the forum chairman said, "that the group treats inflation as the overwhelming issue of 1980, outweighing the cyclical potential for recession that lies ahead."

Pampa site for gasohol discussions

Pampa was again the setting of a Northwest Texas Grain Products Cooperative meeting. Fred Vanderburg, Jr. of Pampa has been named to serve this area as a temporary director. Mr. Vanderburg outlined the progress of the Cooperative so far.

A total of seven million bushels of grain is needed to operate a 20 millon gallon gasohol plant. The project wants to have farmers in the panhandle area supply, build and share in the profits of such a gasohol plant.

Gasohol as a feasible gas additive was the main topic for the meeting. In order to succeed the farmers need the facts on gasohol, the National Gasohol Commission has tested the mixture for some time and the results are in.

Fred Vanderberg Jr. made the presentation for gasohol and according to the tests: Gasohol can be burned in any combustion engine Gasohol has a higher octane rating than no-lead Gasohol is cleaner burning than leaded or unleaded gasoline Gasohol helps prevent "dieseling" in many cars Gasohol will cause no unusual engine wear During the Nebraska Gasohol Two Million Mile Road Test the mixture performed without any problems (Dec. 1974-Oct. 1977) Alcohol blended fuels such as

Soviets expected to import more grain in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) - Decisions in the Soviet Union to preserve its livestock herds in the face of disappointing harvests this year will help boost the country's total grain imports, says the Agriculture Department

In all, the department said Tuesday, the Soviets probably will import nearly 5 percent more grain this year than had been thought previously

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said grain imports by the Soviet Union from all foreign sources now are expected to be 34 million metric tons in 1979-80. A month ago, the agency put Soviet grain imports from all foreign sources at 32.5 million metric tons.

The huge imports are needed to help maintain record inventories of cattle, hogs and other livestock instead of slaughtering surplus animals to conserve feed, officials said. By far most of the grain is coming from the United States. For example, the Soviets have been given permission to buy up to 25 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn in the year that will end next Sept. 30. They bought about 15.7 million last year.

The new import estimate raises further the likelihood that the Soviet Union will buy the entire 25 million metric tons the United States has said it could

As it stands now, the Soviets have bought more than 14.1 million metric tons, including more than 9.7 million of corn and 4.4 million of wheat, for delivery in 1979-80.

Total U.S. grain exports to all countries, including the Soviet Union, are projected at 112.9 million metric tons in 1979-80. Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Union's president, last month announced the 1979 harvest at 179 million metric tons, about 25 percent smaller than last year's record output of 237.2 million. It also fell far short of Moscow's goal for 1979 of 226.8 million metric

The Agriculture Department earlier this fall estimated the Soviet harvest would drop sharply to around 175 million metric

In its latest analysis, USDA - which traditionally accepts Moscow's official harvest figures - estimated this year's harvest included 86 million metric tons of wheat, 84 million of coarse grains such as corn and barley, and 9 million of other grains, including rice and beans.

A metric ton is about 2.205 pounds and is equal, for example, to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.7 bushels of corn.

By comparison, the record U.S. corn harvest by itself this fall is currently estimated at 192.7 million metric tons, and total U.S.

grain output - including corn and other feedgrains, wheat and rice - at 293.7 million.

The report noted that Soviet officials have "reiterated their resolution to maintain livestock numbers this year and to discourage any abnormal liquidation of herds" in reaction to the

Thus, as of Nov. 1, Soviet livestock inventories "continue to show little change from normal seasonal" patterns, the report

"While it is possible that the Soviets may not be able to maintain the record level of livestock holdings through the winter, it appears that every effort is being made to acquire the necessary feedgrains, oilseeds and protein meals from the world market.

Looking to 1980, the report said "a general pattern of adequate precipitation has occurred" over most grain regions of the Soviet Union so far this fall, except in the North Caucasus regions, where soils continued dry through November.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department says cotton production is estimated at more than 14.5 million bales, sharply more than the 1978 marvest.

The Crop Reporting Board said Tuesday that the new estimate. based on Dec. 1 surveys, was down slightly - 17,000 bales - from indications a month ago. But the crop still is expected to be 34 percent larger than the 1978 harvest of less than 10.9 million bales.

Production of upland cotton by major producing states, based on Dec. 1 indications, included: Alabama, 473 pounds an acre and production of 320,000 bales:

The Baptist and the bureaucrats

CORPUS CHRISTI. Texas (AP) — The girls are back, and fiery evangelist Lester Roloff says it was a mistake ever to send them away. He says it will never happen again.

But the State of Texas is just as adamant that Roloff's Rebekah Home for Girls must be licensed, so the Baptist and the bureaucrats seem headed for another collision.

Roloff — who built a nationwide following through a radio program - was forced to close his home for wayward girls in June after a three-day standoff during which 300 Bible-waving supporters formed a human wall to separate the girls from state welfare workers.

It was the climax of a six-year battle with officials, but Roloff still refuses to bow to what he calls "unconstitutional, unscriptural and un-American" regulations the state says he must follow to house children younger than 18 at his Rebekah Home

"I'll never sacrifice my girls on the altar of an unrighteous decree." vowed the 65-year-old Roloff in an interview at his house. But on June 22. Roloff had to surrender to a court order that he close the home. Some girls went to Roloff's summer camp in Culloden. Ga. Others returned home to parents or drifted away, he

Brother Roloff, as he is popularly known, spent the summer restructuring the home's management, transerring ownership and control from Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises to his Peoples Baptist Church, which is adjacent to the girls' home.

Roloff reopened Rebekah on Sept. 13. Fifty of the original 180 girls arrived on a bus from Georgia after what one girl said was a Now the home houses more than 100 girls — most of whom Roloff says are "terminal cases" with backgrounds of prostitution or drug and alcohol abuse. Some judges send girls to-him rather than sentence them to prison.

As a church-run institution. Roloff claims, the home is protected

Texas Attorney General Mark White disagrees. He said it doesn't matter who operates the home - it still must be licensed. White has filed a second suit to shut down the facility. Roloff says that amounts to state meddling in church affairs.

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the Texas law that requires all institutions providing 24-hour care to persons under 18 to be licensed

A Nueces County grand jury indicted Roloff June 28 on charges of operating a child care home without a license. Hearings have been postponed several times and one is now scheduled for January. The meximum penalty would be a $1.000 fine and six months in jail.

Still closed and up for sale is Roloff's Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata, Texas. That facility closed in June, before the Rebekah brouhaha. Roloff said he plans to build a new Anchor Home.

A third Roloff home, the Lighthouse for Boys, is located about a mile from the Rebekah Home. It is not subject to state child care regulations because its residents are 18 or older.

The girls live in a two-story building within a compound just outside city limits. Also included are a farm, a landing strip, staff quarters and the church. The Rebekah rooms are carpeted and kept immaculately neat. The girls' education is divided between self-paced instruction and regular classes. Heavy emphasis is placed on Bible memorization, a chapter

Roloff administers what he calls Bible-based discipline with 'licks' and solitary confinement, which the girls call lockup. A year stay at the home is considered the minimum. Some girls

During a tour of the home. 16-year-old resident Judy Burnett of Dallas said she ran away from Roloff and tried to kill herself before "getting saved.

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) - Collin County's new jail has been hailed as one of the most secure in the state. But police said Monday a screw apparently left loose by construction workers allowed two 16-year-olds to escape

The pair escaped Saturday by wiggling bars over a window until they came out. But both were back in the $7.5 million jail by Saturday afternoon.

One of the youths, from McKinney, was being held on auto theft charges. The other, of Greenville, was awaiting a detention hearing.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's orange crop is forecast at 258.5 million boxes, up 23 percent from last season's harvest of 210.5 million boxes, the Agriculture Department said

Officials said the latest estimate, based on indications as of Dec. 1, also is an increase of 1 percent from a forecast of 256.3 million boxes made two months ago. There was no new orange estimate in November

The estimates of 1979-80 orange production included: Arizona 3,500,000 boxes this season and 2.900.000 last year; California 51,000,000 and 37.200.000; Florida 200.000,000 and 164,000,000; and Texas 4,000,000 and 6,400,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cotton production from this fall's harvest is estimated at more than 14.5 million bales, the Agriculture Department said

The Crop Reporting Board said the new estimate, based on Dec. 1 surveys, was down slightly - 17,000 bales - from indications a month ago. But the crop still is expected to be 34 percent larger than the 1978 harvest of less than 10.9 million bales.

Production of upland cotton by major producing states, based on Dec. 1 indications,

Castro County Hospital District and its board of directors were named as defendants in the suit, filed Monday in Amarillo federal district court. In their suit, the couple contend that on Dec. 8, 1978

they rushed their 11-month old son to Plains Memorial hospital, but were refused admission by Newsom because they could not pay a $225 deposit

They said the baby died later that day as they sought help elsewhere. Newsom was indicted by a Castro County grand jury last December on a misdemeanor charge with failing to provide emergency medical assistance. The case ended in a hung jury.

Newsom said at the time the incident was a "misunderstanding" but noted that hospital admissions policies have been changed to prevent a re-occurance

"They (the parents) were told the baby could be admitted, but they didn't speak English and I think that was the cause of the whole problem." Newsom said at the time. Numbers confusing Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) - America's Team is still having trouble with simple math.

It all started Thanksgiving Day when 12 Dallas Cowbovs were caught on the field during a Houston punt. The penalty setup the Oilers' game-winning touchdown.

There were angry arguments along the sidelines, including a clipboard spike by specialty teams Coach Mike Ditka.

After 10 days off and numerous practices, the Cowboys were guilty of not having the legal 11 players on the field thrice Saturday against Phladelphia in a 24-17 Roger Staubach led Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday that injuries and the modern age of specialization are giving coaches and players nightmares.

Things are much more specialized and teams are shifting in and out." said Landry. "Then if you get a lot of injuries like we do you have a situation where there can be a breakdown in communications

Landry said the Cowboys had 12 men on the field during an extra point against the Eagles and added "We didn't even block it and got a roughing penalty but officials overlooked it.

Yet another time the Cowboys had only 10 players on defense, permitting Wilbert Montgomery to flee 34 yards with a short pass because the weakside linebacker was a no show. Cowboys Assistant Coach Ermal Allen said 'it's tougher than you think" to get 11 players on the field.

Another time Dallas had 12 players on defense

"I look at films every week and there's not a week that goes by that you don't have a big laugh by seeing some team without the right number of players." said Allen. "People accuse you of not being able to count.

Well, it's just more complicated than that. If a player gets hurt, then it is up to the trainer to notify the coach. A lot of times an injured player will go back into the game without telling his replacement Allen said a lot of teams are using as many as

FRED ROTHENBERG AP Sports Writer

On Feb. 8, nearly eight months before the opening game of the 1966 football season, Notre Dame captain Jim Lynch called a team meeting that set the tone for the rest of the year.

The informal gathering in the science building was attended by many of the seniors on the squad. Two years before, as sophomores on Ara Parseghian's first Notre Dame team, they had watched the Irish lose the national championship. In the final game of the '64 season, the undefeated Irish built a 17-0 lead over Southern California, but lost 20-17 when the Trojans scored with 1:33

"We agreed we had the horses and it was going to be the seniors" last chance at a national title," says Kevin Rassas, an end on that team who now is a top aide for a pharmaceutical company in the Chicago area. "From that point on, we worked out six days a week running and conditioning."

Lynch, square-jawed and all business, called his captaincy "the singular most important honor I've gotten in athletics." After that season he played for more than 10 years with the Kansas City Chiefs with whom he won a Super Bowl ring in 1970. He now is a vice president of a food brokerage company in Kansas City

He says the ghost of '64 haunted the '66 Irish and he constantly reminded the team about devotion to duty.

"If guys weren't working together, it was up to me/to gently remind them that the season went for 10 weeks, and then I didn't care what they did," Lynch says. "I only remember one disciplinary meeting. It had to do with drinking and breaking training rules.

"We were 6-0 at the time. I told them I would be going to all the parties and I didn't want anybody drinking. I don't think I was very popular on campus then. I didn't like having to do it, but somebody

Nearly every team member interviewed recently by The Associated Press said he looked up to Lynch and considered him the hard-rock player foundation to this hard-driven team.

George Goeddeke, the team center and the center of team hijinks, was a leader in his own way. "I was just a hell-raiser. I was known to have a few pops." he says. "Lynch had to say a few things a number of times. I realized there was some merit to what he was saying. I always respected Jim Lynch."

Goeddeke, now an investment appraiser in Detroit, and defensive tackle Pete Duranko, who works for a Pennsylvania company that makes railroad products, were the major cut-ups on the team. Parseghian let them have a free reign because they kept the team loose, were an important counter-balance to Parseghian's intensity and excelled on the field.

End Jim Seymour and quarterback Terry Hanratty, both sophomores, were called the "Baby Bombers." This passing duo gave the Irish an offensive dimension the team had lacked the previous year. Hanratty had beaten fellow sophmore Coley O'Brien. but both quarterbacks made important contributions to the championship campaign.

"The keys were Hanratty, O'Brien and Seymour," says Lynch. The opening game of the season was against Purdue and quarterback Bob Griese, who had beaten the Irish 25-21 the previous year. All eyes were on Hanratty and Seymour, starting their first game in the South Bend pressure cooker.

Notre Dame won the coin flip, but Parseghian elected to kick to give Hanratty and Seymour a chance to get accustomed to the awesome noise of the crowd.

With Hanratty directing the attack, Seymour set a single-game Notre Dame record for receptions (13 and three touchdowns) and yards (276). The records for receptions and yardage still stand 13 seasons later. Notre Dame won 26-14, one of Purdue's touchdowns coming on Leroy Keyes' run with a fumble recovery. The other was one of only two the first-team defense gave up all season.

After Purdue, Notre Dame beat Northwestern 35-7, with the second team surrendering the TD. Then the Irish blanked Army, North Carolina and Oklahoma on successive Saturdays. The 38-0 drubbing of the then-unbeaten Sooners in Norman, Okla., was the most

"It was a wild place to go for northern Catholics," says halfback Dan Harshman. "Their fans were awfully hard on us."

After the Oklahoma game, Hanratty and Seymour made the cover of Time magazine. "It didn't go to their heads because we wouldn't let it happen," says linebacker John Pergine.

The second-string defense gave up the touchdown in a 31-7 victory over Navy, then the top-ranked Irish strung together three more shutouts, including a 64-0 rout of Duke the week before the historic showdown against No.2 Michigan State that ended in the 10-10 tie. That bruising game knocked out Hanratty. Goeddeke and halfbacks

Rocky Bleier and Bob Gladieux. Still unbeaten and certainly unbowed, the 8-0-1 Irish traveled to Los Angeles to play Rose Bowl-bound Southern Cal. Harshman, regularly a defensive halfback, filled in for Bleier and caught a TD pass.

'We were so physically beaten, we were holding each other up in the huddle," says Eddy. But the Irish raised their record to 9-0-1 clinched the national championship by smashing the Trojans 51-0. But the '66 team is best remembered for the one that almost got away - the 10-10 tie against Michigan State.

Oilers looking ahead to Eagles

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Coach Burn Phillips isn't interested in singling out for scrutiny a controversial call on an on-sides kick attempt by Pittsburgh Monday night in the Oilers' 20-17 victory.

The short kick came with 1:18 left in the game and although the boot appeared to travel the required 10 yards, side judge Willie Spencer ruled the kick too short and penalized the Steelers five vards

On the subsequent kick, Oiler tight end Mike Barber cradled the ball and the Oilers held on to win one of their most important games of the

"You don't think I'm going to say that was a bad call do you?" Phillips said Tuesday in reviewing the play. "If I'm going to question that call, I'd have to question some other ones that went against us.

The Steelers had been building momentum throughout the fourth quarter and had just scored on a 34-vard pass from Terry Bradshaw to John Stallworth, climaxing a three play, 71-yard

What would have happened had the Steelers retained possession on the on-sides kick will never be known and Phillips doesn't really care.

"If I questioned that call, I might also have to question two pass interference calls on (Ken) Burrough and (Rich) Caster, so if the officials were right then, they must have been right on the on sides kick too." Phillips said.

Phillips won't allow the Oilers to spend too much time dwelling on any play in the Pittsburgh game. The Oilers must prepare for their final regular season game in the Astrodome Sunday against Philadelphia, also playoff bound.

The Oilers go into the game with an 114 record, and a chance to emerge with the best record in the National Football League this season and the American Football Conference Central Division title

Phillips would like to think the Oilers are on the road to the Super Bowl and if they are, he figures there'll be another meeting with the Steelers.

Holiday season absolute ecstasy for Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The holiday season is cheering time for most folks, but it is absolute ecstasy for Hollywood publicists, who are busier this time of year than during any other.

Publicists (or press agents, as the sentimental among the breed prefer) are in the business of getting publicity for the famous people who hire them. Any famous person who is trying can find a guest spot on a Christmas special, thereby giving his press agent something to pitch about.

Consider the number of famous people who are earning a paycheck from TV Christmas specials this week:

The Boone Family (Pat, Shirley, Cherry, Laury, Lindy and Debby), Audra Lindley, Norman Fell, the Hudson Brothers, Rosemary Clooney, Jackie Vernon, Joel Grey, Tammy Grimes, Shirley Booth, Charles Shulz, Chuck Jones, Barbi Benton, Roy Clark, George Gobel, Loretta Lynn, Lynne Marta, The Oak Ridge Boys, Minnie Pearl, David Soul, Jose Ferrar, Buddy Hackett, Robert Morse, Larry Storch, Dave Garroway, Bob Hope, Angie Dickinson, Adam Rich (in two different specials).

There are 45 more, but you get the drift. And this is just this week, not including the famous people who found work on last week's specials, or those who have jobs on specials yet to come. That's a lot of hype, from a lot of publicists.

Yes, the holiday TV special is the publicist's friend. In fact, I heard of one press agent, Elton Pitchitt, who discovered last week that every one of his clients had found work on Christmas specials. Heady, he went to a network boss and asked for one more Christmas special.

"But why?" the network man asked, "We already have 35 holiday specials. Besides, there aren't enough famous people left to put together a show. Everybody's done one already.'

"Leave that to me," Elton replied. "I can come up with enough famous people for one more Sure enough, Elton reported back to the network man this week. "I've got just the special for you." Elton said.

"The Stephen Weed Christmas Show.

"Listen, it'd be great. You get Steve to play Christmas carols on his guitar, and sing songs with his guests."

"What guests?"

"Well, it was tough, but I've come up with a list of people who haven't done a Christmas special this year: George Allen, Howdy Doody, Nguyen Cao Ky, Bert Lance, Carol Doda...

"Look, Elton," said the network boss, "why don't you just stick to publicity, and leave programming to us, all right? Thank you, Elton, and goodbye. Elton came to his senses and left. But he swears he heard the network boss pick up the phone before the door slammed shut: "Hello, get me Schwartz in programming. I've got a new idea for a Christmas special, a little

Berry Farm amusement park in the luxurious mobile home where Knott lives, "within a stone's throw of the first berry stand," according to his son Russell Knott, 63. The elder Knott, who is also credited with the Nearly 60 years ago. Knott leased 10 acres of land and grew berries, which his family sold from the roadside stand. The stand evolved into a produce market, a tea room, a restaurant and eventually a ghost town attraction and other amusements, including thrill rides.

Organized crime may cost Texas $5 billion per year

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas crime fighters heard Tuesday that organized crime may cost the state as much as $5 billion a year and there will never be enough men or money to halt it.

The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council received a staff report that included for the first time information on "white collar

White collar crime was included, the report stated, "because of its rapid growth in the state and because of its suspected links to organized

In 1977, an estimated 2.3 billion was lost as a result of this type of crime, the report said.

The report said, however, the "trafficking of narcotics and dangerous drugs into and through Texas is by far the most prevalent form of organized criminal activity.

It represented a $1.5 billion drain on the Texas economy in 1978.

Last year there were 75,500 heroin addicts in Texas and 406 drug overdose deaths were reported.

"The 'Mexican Mafia' is one of the most significant...family (crime) operations," said G.K. Maneius, council program director.

Mexican drug smuggling peaked in 1976, the report said, but an "excellent marijuana crop is now reaching staging areas near the border in multi-ton quantities approaching those available

Authorities seized illegal durgs with a street walue of well over $100 million last year, the report said.

Gambling also remains a major organized criminal activity in Texas, the report said. Six of every 10 Texans wager to some extent, betting an estimated $1 billion per year.

Over $50 million was wagered in the Dallas area alone on Super Bowl XII weekend, an illegal casino-type gambling has "notably increased"in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and Lubbock.

Data indicate that almost $259 million in stolen property "was either consumed by criminals or rechanneled - primarily through fencing operations - back into the economy," the report

Although prostitution "has had organized crime links in the past," the report said, "it is believed that present-day prostitution is not necessarily associated with organized crime."

In 1978, 3,109 prostitutes were identified as operating in Texas and there were 5.133 arrests for prostitution and commercial vice.

It said it has become increasingly apparent that the pornography is controlled by syndicated crime, and the industry flourishes in Texas with Houston a distribution center.

The low recovery rate for stolen cars indicate that organized rings are involved, the report said. The recovery rate dropped from 86 per cent in 1967 to 70 per cent in 1977.
