Pampa sports to be studied

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Four new committees composed of members of the Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees were appointed by President Darville Orr in a special called meeting Monday at the Carver Educational Center.

A committee designed to study athletic department needs and capital outlay was formed by the president to be chaired by board secretary Buddy Epperson and including Paul Simmons.

The committee will help keep the department "on an even keel," Orr said. It will be working closely with the athletic director and coaches.

He said he expected a report from the committee by the next scheduled meeting on Feb. 12.

The Pampa ISD Athletic Department has experienced major changes in its personnel in the past month when Pampa High School head football coach Danny Palmer resigned to accept a head coaching job at Wichita Falls High School.

Also, Athletic Director Ed Lehnick asked the board for reassignment to another department in the system this month.

Another committee - to review and propose recommendations on the teaching pay scale for the Pampa ISD - will be chaired by Bill Arrington and will include Kenneth Fields and Paul Simmons, Orr said.

A committee to work with Marjorie Gaut in bringing suggested curriculum reports to the board was appointed by the board president. Members include Kenneth Fields and Curt Beck, with Dr. Robert Lyle acting as chairman.

A renovation committee comprised of Orr and Arrington was formed. It will be concerned with any future construction programs proposed by the school district, Orr said.

A report was given by the board president on the present status of the Gray County Tax Appraisal Board.

"As I understand it," he said, "the Lefors ISD has filed a resolution to rescind the seven member board." "We are now waiting for the county clerk to make the ballots for the five member board and send them out to be voted on," he said.

A previous resolution submitted by the Pampa ISD, he said, nominated five men for the board.

The nominees are William E. (Bill) Gething, Robert L. Lyle, E. A. Myatt, O. M. Prigmore, and R. D. Wilkerson, he said.

Board members went into executive session to discuss personnel matters. On reopening of the meeting, they accepted the resignation of Rodney Bagley, football coach and physical education teacher at Baker Elementary School.

Bagley is going to Wichita Falls to be on Danny Palmer's staff, a spokesperson at the school district office said. Palmer resigned as head football coach here to take the head grid job at Wichita Falls.

Also accepted by the board was the resignation of Mary Reeve, speech therapist for the school district.

Prison riot triggered by home brew incident

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The savage rebellion at the New Mexico State Penitentiary that claimed the lives of at least 35 inmates — many through mutilation and torture — apparently erupted when a guard caught prisoners drinking home brew, a prison official says.

At least 28 convicts were killed and seven died of drug overdoses in the riot that left the maximum-security penitentiary in near ruins, authorities said Monday.

Deputy Warden Robert Montoya said unconfirmed reports indicated a group of inmates seized shift Capt. Greg Roybal, who was on a routine security check early Saturday, when he found them drinking.

The inmates were able to release other convicts, and that started the bloody uprising, officials said. But they were not certain what triggered the brutal violence of inmate against inmate.

Survivors said an execution squad armed with blowtorches and axes tortured and killed inmates during the 36-hour siege. Another inmate said he was among prisoners who were bound and repeatedly raped.

One man was beheaded; another was found with a metal rod driven through his head — from ear to ear. Others had limbs chopped off or their eyes gouged out. Many were beaten beyond recognition.

Officials said some of the violence was directed against informants, but Dr. Marc Orner, the prison psychologist, said there was evidence racial hostility and personal grudges were behind some of the deaths.

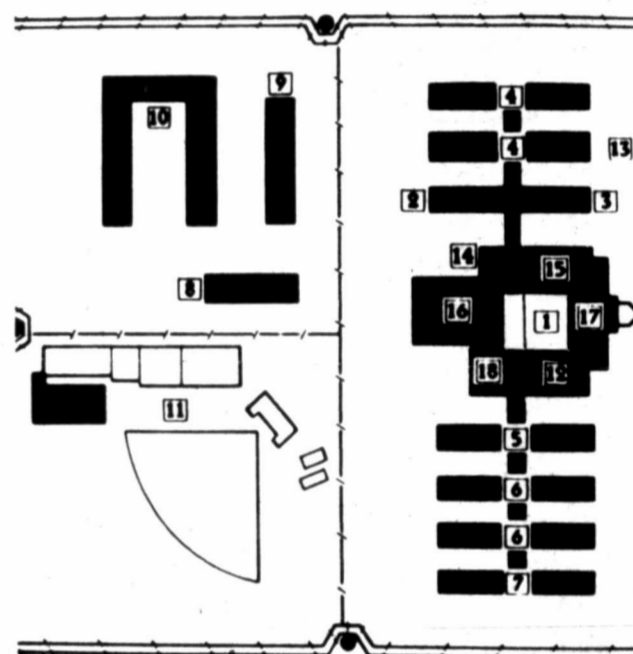

"None of us really understood what happened in there," Orner said. "The depth of the violence is incomprehensible to me both as a human being and as a psychologist. It is as if all the aggression a human being can have was savagely unleashed. We just can't understand why they did this to each other."

Warden Jerry Griffin said 35 deaths had been confirmed, but Gov. Bruce King put the total at 39 and said 15 convicts were missing in the nation's worst prison revolt since 43 died in the 1971 uprising at Attica in New York.

"There were 55 inmates who rushed the corridor after seizing Capt. Roybal, and they took three to four guards hostage," Montoya said.

Another report said corridor guards were confronted without warning by a man dressed in a guard uniform and carrying a flashlight and a prison-made knife. As the guards struggled for the knife, they were surrounded by inmates who blindfolded, beat and stabbed them.

Presidential candidates stir up primary interest

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There will be no lack of competition among Texas politicians in the May 3 primaries or in the Nov. 4 general election.

Not to mention at least one presidential primary poll to stir up voters.

After the filing deadline Monday afternoon, the big attraction of primary election day remains a straw vote on candidates for the GOP presidential nomination.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Howard Baker joined former Texas Gov. John Connally and George Bush, former United Nations ambassador, on the May 3 ballot that will decide Texas' delegates to the national GOP convention in Detroit.

There was no sign of petitions reported circulating for San Francisco businessman Benjamin Fernandez or Rep. Phillip Crane.

Also submitted for the straw vote was a petition from John Kelso, columnist for the Austin American-Statesman who has carried on his campaign in his column.

Each petition is subject to further checks.

Texas Democrats decided to elect their delegates by conventions, but will say on March 10 whether they will sponsor a "beauty contest" Democratic poll that would not affect delegate representation.

In the statewide and congressional races, Republicans decided they would contest Democrats in the two Texas Supreme Court races, both of the Texas Railroad Commission races and at least half of the district congressional races.

There were no Republican candidates for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals but incumbents in all three races are contested by fellow Democrats.

Among the Democrats, Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner officially declared himself a candidate for a full six-year term. He faces Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, John Thomas Henderson, Austin real estate broker, is on the Republican ballot.

Commissioner Jim Nugent, Kerrville, seeks the two-year unexpired term on the oil and gas regulatory commission. Jim Hightower, former Austin magazine editor, filed as his opponent. H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, former state senator from Lubbock but now an Austin attorney, filed as a Republican candidate.

Associate Justice Will Garwood of the Texas Supreme Court, first of his party to hold such high court job this century, has a Democratic opponent, Associate Justice C.L. Ray of the Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals.

San Antonio attorney Wayne Scott filed as a Republican opponent to the winner of a Democratic supreme court race between Chief Justice John Phillips of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals and James P. "Jim" Wallace, former state senator and associated justice of the Houston Court of Civil Appeals.

'Black Tuna' pot gang sentenced to 'the can'

MIAMI (AP) — Eight men who once counted cash in millions and sported gold "Black Tuna" medallions as badges of honor face terms ranging up to life in prison for their roles in a drug smuggling operation that investigators said accounted for 8 percent of the nation's marijuana traffic.

All were found guilty by a federal court jury Monday, ending a 4½-month trial surrounded by intrigue. The judge finished the case under a reported death threat, two defendants skipped town, one juror had a heart attack and another was accused of selling an acquittal vote for $3,000.

Under the cold stare of a stuffed swordfish hung as a government exhibit, jurors announced convictions on a total of 55 counts, including three under federal racketeering statutes that could mean life terms.

U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King, who shrugged off an earlier death threat as "part of a trial judge's life these days," is expected to begin the sentencing process late this month.

Robert Jay Meinster, 38, and Robert Elliot Platshorn, 37, the businessmen accused of masterminding the smuggling of 1 million pounds of marijuana, were convicted of a "continuing criminal enterprise." The offense carries a term of 10 years to life.

Eugene Arter Myers, 40, a Tampa seafood importer, also was convicted under the criminal enterprise statute and could be sentenced to life and fined up to $240,000.

The case began in 1974, when Meinster and Platshorn linked up on a deal in Milwaukee, a grand jury said. Investigators said the pair moved to Florida and built such a successful organization that they were awash in money. The FBI first detected the ring through a special task force set up to monitor huge amounts of cash being laundered through Miami banks.

Missing Monday were Carl Jerry London, 38, a former mayor of Clarksville, Ga., and Mark Stephen Phillips, 31, a former Fort Lauderdale yacht executive. Both fled during the trial but were convicted anyway — London of conspiracy and perjury, Phillips of conspiracy, racketeering, attempt to import and other counts.

Four others named in the original indictment have bargained pleas and await sentencing. A fifth is to be tried separately.

The others convicted Monday on such charges as conspiracy and racketeering were Modesto Echezarreta-Cruz, 43; Randall Gene Fisher, 22; and Richard Elliott Grant Jr., 24.

Evidence in shootings ready for grand jury

By BILL GREER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The case against a "scrawny looking" man, arrested after a barroom full of people was sprayed with bullets, was being prepared for a grand jury today, police said. Detectives said they were gathering evidence in the case of Barry Chvarak, arrested after five tavern patrons were killed and three others were wounded just after "last call" early Sunday.

Officers said Monday they plan to present the case to the grand jury when it meets here Thursday.

One of the wounded, 19-year-old Leon Sell, said a man walked by his table and said "Hi" to the girls sitting there. Sell said the man walked out, returned "and the shooting began."

"It was like pow, pow, pow, pow, pow," said Sell, who was shot in the chin.

He said a woman at a table five feet away "was hit in the forehead, right between the eyes."

Police said they believed Chvarak was drunk when he was arrested after being subdued by several customers at the club, described as a "cowboy bar."

Roger Dean Miller said he hit the gunman in the head with a pool stick after the man stood several steps inside the door and fired about 12 shots randomly with a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle.

GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONIES were conducted Monday morning for the new $375,000 expansion project of the Pampa Youth Center. ## Hightower to Pakistan

State Representative Jack Hightower is among a six-member House delegation that left Saturday for seven days, on a fact finding mission to Pakistan, India and Saudi Arabia.

The six will be in the foreign countries to examine conditions in the area since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and to evaluate the President's request for $400 million in additional military and economic assistance to Pakistan.

Congressman Dave Obey of Wisconsin and a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, will head the delegation, which includes House members representing the Appropriations, Budget, Armed Services and Intelligence Committees. The group will be accompanied by officials of the Defense and State Departments.

Young County inmates gone...again

GRAHAM, Texas (AP) — It During a routine security check Monday, jailer Tommy Ellender discovered Lamb and two small men, both from Graham, were gone. It was their third escape from the jail in the past four months. Attorney Boyd Richie said the inmates crawled through a six-inch window opening.

Grain-loaded train derails

DENISON, Texas (AP) — Seventy-nine grain-loaded box cars from a stranded diesel train broke loose on an incline and slammed into two switchers Tuesday morning, killing an engineer, injuring two crewmen and rousing up tracks and ties for hundreds of yards.

Forty to 50 of the grain cars were jammed on top of each other after the impact, which scattered tons of corn and wheat across the countryside four miles north of Denison.

The stranded Missouri-Kansas-Texas train was en route from Kansas City to the Gulf Coast when it slowed to 10 mph — complying with railroad rules — just across the Red River in Oklahoma. Because of the slower speed, the train could not make it up an incline into the Ray Yard terminal, just west of Denison.

Two switchers were sent to provide additional power to the stranded train and were only a few hundred yards away when the grain cars broke loose about 2:30 a.m., Katy officials said.

"All we know at this point is that the grain cars were parked at the 'Y' in the Ray Yards waiting for power to take them south," said Katy northern division manager, M.L. Janovec. "They broke loose and rolled down the track, gaining momentum as they rolled toward the river."

IT IS NOT THE CREATURE FROM THE BLUE LAGOON, but the carcass of a 37-foot gray whale which washed ashore last week near Aberdeen, Wash. The whale is suspected to have died from natural causes five days earlier and will be disposed of later this week, officials say. (AP Photo)

Oil workers make good threat to walk out

A national strike by oil company workers spread slowly into West Texas and New Mexico as union members made good on their walkout threat against Amoco Production Co.

Amoco officials confirmed pickets at all but one of the company's five area production facilities, with the Odessa plant reporting no job action.

Members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union Local 4-16 walked out Monday at Amoco's plants in Brownfield, Andrews, Levelland and Hobbs, N.M.

"The strike did commence at 7:30 a.m.," said M.C. Lassiter, personnel superintendent at Andrews.

"They did walk out," said Richard Ogden, district superintendent at Brownfield. "It's an open-gate policy as far as the company is concerned — they're free to work if they want to."

Of the employees represented by the union, 30 percent chose to come to work today.

"We have 185 affected hourly rate men," said Lassiter. "We had 40 employees on strike out of 127 scheduled to come to work, so that means 31 percent did strike."

Lassiter and Ogden said supervisors filled the struck positions and production was not affected. Both said the job actions were peaceful, with a minor exception.

"There were a couple of minor reports of what we would call 'mischievous vandalism,' valves closed and switches thrown and things like that," Ogden said. "They were minor and were corrected as soon as we found them."

The local had called a strike against Amoco three weeks ago, then cancelled it without explanation Friday, it notified the company workers would walk out Monday.

More than 60,000 refinery workers across the country went out Jan. 8, demanding higher wages and improved health benefits. More than 500 employees in other states were scheduled to return to work Monday after their employers reached weekend settlements with the OCAW.

"I believe all our represented employees are out, but I don't have a count," said Bob Wilburn, district superintendent at the Amoco plant in Levelland. "I don't know how many of my non-union members will show up."

Odessa superintendent Jim York said the strike apparently does not have support among workers under his jurisdiction.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

We won the war but lost the battle

"He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance."
Any schoolchild knows where that quotation comes from, or ought to. It is one of the charges brought against King George III by signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A child growing up in America today might wonder if the colonists won their battle but lost the war. The multitude of offices is still there, only larger, sending out swarms of officers in numbers unredeemed of in 1776. These are not agents of the king but of our own elected representatives who created the regulatory agencies, "a multitude of new offices and...swarms of officers."

Regulatory acts are supposed to protect us from ourselves. But do we need the protection of 180 federal agencies publishing 70,000 pages of regulations in reference to our daily business?

President Carter has indicated that he will renew his push for deregulation of business and industry in 1980. He should. Rising prices have made an embarrassment of his anti-inflation program. He cannot plead that OPEC and other forces beyond control are entirely to blame. Over-regulation in the marketplace is estimated to add $100 billion a year to the cost of goods and services.

More than 100 bills for regulatory reform have been introduced in the 96th Congress — a reaction to the pyramiding of regulations and paperwork piled on the public by well-intentioned laws creating ambitious bureaucracies.

Mr. Carter reported proudly late last year that his administration's anti-paperwork campaign has succeeded in reducing the amount of time Americans spend filling out federal forms by 15 percent. Two cheers for that. The real problem is that federal agencies have been receiving blank checks for the power to issue and enforce regulations. Relief will come only when Congress decides to stop payment on the checks.

Denying education

The Supreme Court has upheld the principle of patriotism. The court refused to review an appeals court ruling that Chicago public school officials had the authority to dismiss a teacher who refused to teach her kindergarten class the pledge of allegiance to the flag and patriotic songs.

The teacher, Joethelia Palmer, said the requirement conflicted with her religious convictions.

The lower court conceded the teacher's right to her own views and practices, but denied that she had a constitutional right to deny children a part of their education.

The concurrence of the Supreme Court justices not only was a defense of patriotism but a subtle reinforcement of the theory that school policy and curriculum must be established by the administration, not in the classroom.

Letters

Dear Editor:
Cattlemen must register at their local ASCS office from Jan. 28 to Feb. 6 in order to be able to vote in the so-called "Beef referendum" in February 1980. I would urge them to do so and to vote NO at the election.

The "Beef referendum" is a blind leap into a bureaucratic thicket from which cattlemen will find it most difficult to extract themselves.

If passed, the "Beef referendum" will impose a withholding tax on the sale of cattle. Each buyer of cattle will be required to withhold from the seller 2 percent of what he owes the seller. Two-tenths of 1 percent doesn't sound like very much until a cattlemen sits down and does a little figuring.

Say a cow-calf man raises and sells 500 calves per year, the calves average 500 lbs. per head, and sell for 80 cents per lb. That makes the average sales price per calf $400. 2 percent X $400 equals 80 cents per calf withheld from the rancher at the time of sale. 80 cents X 500 head equals $400. The cow-calf man has given away one calf to the Beef Board created by the passage of the "Beef referendum." He will continue giving away one calf every year to this Beef Board. This is true no matter what the selling price because a withholding rate of 2 percent is the same as giving away one head per 500 regardless of the price per lb. or per head.

Moreover, the "Beef referendum" gives the Beef Board the power to raise the rate of withholding by 250 percent without any vote by cattlemen. This means they can raise the rate to 5 percent. Now, our cow-calf man, who raises and sells 500 calves per year, will have withheld from him an amount equal to the sales price of 2½ head. He will continue to give these 2½ head away to the Beef Board each and every year.

The "Beef referendum" does give the seller of cattle the right to apply for a refund of the withholding. This application must be made within 60 days of the end of the month in which the sale was made. The Beef Board then has 60 days within which to make the refund. That means from the time a man sells his cattle until his money is returned to him may be a period from 2 to 5 months. With the interest cost of money today, not having the use of the sales price of 2½ head for every 500 that you've sold for a period of 5 months is not a inconsequential cost.

Sincerely,
R.L. Franklin

The art of communicating: wrong & rights

By D.R. Segal

Too much communicating can get a fellow in a whale of a lot of trouble. Sometimes it is better to sit with one's mouth shut than to be doing a lot of "Communicating" at the wrong time, or in the wrong way, can land you in the divorce court, jail or emergency ward. There are additional dangers that the communicator doesn't always say precisely what he means and that the message doesn't come across exactly as intended. Which are much worse than not communicating at all.

Recently I wrote a letter which was interpreted by another newspaperman as meaning exactly the opposite of what I intended. Whether the fault was mine or his, the point remains that more mischief was accomplished than if I had not "communicated" at all.

Politicians frequently communicate at a rate considerably in excess of their rate of rational thinking. They claim they were misquoted when, in fact, they simply used their mouths faster than their brains. A "misquote" occurs when the speaker means "possible" but says "probable." The communication process has hit the tilt button.

The art of written communication is fraught with dangers not shared by the spoken word. First off, you can't claim you were misquoted on something you have written and signed. Second, it is difficult to express, in writing, the results a TV commentator can accomplish by a sneer, a raised eyebrow or an inflection of the voice — none of which will appear in a written transcript. Irony, satire and hyperbole, no matter how broadly expressed in print, will be taken seriously and at face value by a great many readers, to the complete dismay of the writer. But I cannot imagine anyone not catching on when a TV commentator is waxing sarcastic.

I read a book about John F. Kennedy by his buddy Ben Bradlee, editor of The Washington Post. Kennedy was preoccupied with journalism and journalists and he made the point to Bradlee that he liked to appear on TV because he could speak to his audience (the voters) without "going through you guys" (reporters). It was a point well taken. A good communicator — a guy with charm, charisma (Kennedy, Reagan) — can play an audience like the strings on a violin. It is a valid form of communication, especially when you don't have much to say, but have a nice faculty for saying it. The consummate communicator is the one who knows when not to communicate at all.

D.R. Segal is president of Freedom Newspapers, Inc.

'Politicians frequently communicate at a rate considerably in excess of their rate of rational thinking. They claim they were misquoted when, in fact, they simply used gabbing. One of the principal arguments to sustain the enormous fraud, the UN, is that it "keeps the lines of communications open," which phrase has a nice hollow ring and is virtually without real meaning.

W.C. Fields on a Postage Stamp?

by paul harvey

There will be a postage stamp honoring entertainer W.C. Fields.

It will show the comic in his distinctive top hat performing a juggling act.

It will be issued January 29 of this year (1980) which is the 100th anniversary of his birth.

It will first be issued in Beverly Hills, Calif., in ceremonies sponsored by the American Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts and Sciences in a ceremony at the Academy theater.

I'm having trouble believing what I just said. Are we really that hard up for heroes? If I wanted purposely to dilute the historic image of the United States so that I might diminish its institutions and turn it into something which it is not I well might start by putting pictures of clowns on its postage stamps.

Because if I can get Americans to sit still for that precedent, they will then be unable to protest my next move—when I might choose to put the likenesses of anti-American revolutionaries on stamps.

When the so-called Symbionese Liberation Army was manipulating the kidnapped Patty Hearst, its published objective was to profane the "middle-class ethic."

The militants explained, "If you can get a nice, middle-class girl to use language like that—to scream out such words at a rally—you then have a much better chance of getting her to throw a brick through a window."

Francis Watson Jr., analyzing the underground media, explains that "the use of four-letter vulgarisms is intended purposely to influence the culture toward greater permissiveness."

Having cursed religion it's much easier to curse patriotism.

Does this suggest that Paul Harvey imagines that putting W.C. Fields on a postage stamp represents a sinister conspiracy to subvert and demean American institutions?

I can't prove that.

What I am certain of is that there is something terribly sad about a country so bankrupt that there are no longer worthy recipients for its highest honors.

I may be shedding this disturb me more than it should. Already I have heard from some very nice, very sincere, utterly un-subversive people who say, "But W.C. Fields is a hero!"

Also, I understand the U.S. Postal Service commitment is irreversible so why bother to wax indignant.

I've watched with approval as our postal service honored Albert Einstein and Will Rogers and commemorated Bunker Hill and the 68 Olympics.

I watched with acquiescence as the postal service used stamps to promote football and pottery art.

But if W.C. Fields is next can Dolly Parton be far behind?

SOLAR OLYMPIC SYSTEMS...OR DOGS, whichever route seems timely in the communications field will be available at the Winter Olympics, Lake Placid, N.Y. Pictured at right is Tim Geiser demonstrating a solar-powered phone developed by his company by placing a phone call from the slopes of Whiteface Mountain at the games site. Solar power will contribute to the phone, radio and intercom communications systems used on the slalom courses. ## State Department reports Human Rights world-wide WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, analyzing human rights around the globe, reported today that Cambodia, Vietnam and North Korea were among the most violently repressive countries in the world.

The 154-nation study said conditions generally have improved in Africa and Latin America. But it was sharply critical of the Soviet Union, estimating the number of political prisoners at between 2,000 and 10,000 and stating that the regime "recognizes no right to any opinion or behavior it chooses to regard as deviant."

Although torture in the Soviet Union is "less prevalent" than before, the report said Soviet prosecutors have not failed to convict prisoners accused of political crimes in the 62-year history of the revolution.

In summary, the report said, "impressive strides" were taken in 1979 in the building of international institutions for protecting human rights.

The study cited as one example a call by African nations for a permanent Pan-African human rights body as well as the new American Convention on human rights, which sets forth standards for members of the Organization of American States.

Among non-communist countries, the report was perhaps most critical of South Africa where, it said, the non-white majority "suffers pervasive discrimination in all areas of life; their basic human rights are systematically violated."

The annual report previously was limited to analyses of recipients of U.S. military and economic aid but this year was broadened to include all countries. The report is mandated each year under a provision of the Foreign Assistance Act.

China, the report said, has a mixed record. There has been "movement in the direction of greater freedoms" in the years since the death of Mao Tse-tung, including a livelier press, a formal legal system and some tolerance of dissent.

"But reforms have not yet broken the entrenched patterns of harassment, arbitrary arrest and harsh punishment for political dissent," the department said.

In Eastern Europe, the report said East Germans are "tightly controlled" in all aspects of their lives while in Czechoslovakia, "overt opposition in any field is punished." On the other hand, the regimes in Hungary and Poland were said to be more tolerant of dissent than some of their communist neighbors.

Outside the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact group, communist Albania was found to be "marked by xenophobia, a harsh brand of Marxism, militant atheism and a singular and abiding respect for Joseph Stalin."

Many of the country-by-country reports refrain from passing judgment. For the most part, objective accounts provided by human rights groups and other sources are outlined without comment.

Pretrial publicity presents challenges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pretrial publicity about the FBI corruption probe implicating members of Congress probably won't damage prosecution of those who may be charged, but could produce legal challenges delaying the cases, say experienced criminal lawyers.

The Justice Department is trying to learn who told the news media about the investigation, but such missions almost always fail.

"It's practically impossible to find out who talked to the press because there are literally hundreds of people who know something about a case," said one attorney familiar with previous leak inquiries, who asked not to be identified.

"The only way you find out is if someone admits it or a reporter tells you. The first rarely happens. The second never does," he said.

The first news accounts of the FBI's biggest political corruption investigation broke Saturday evening and Sunday.

There was no official comment until Monday, when the department announced an internal inquiry "to see whether deliberate disclosures have been made by federal employees."

The news reports raised the possibility that the defendants ultimately charged could argue that pretrial publicity prevents a fair trial.

But several criminal lawyers, including some former prosecutors, said in interviews that such arguments could only delay a trial or force it to be moved to a city where news coverage has been slight. The lawyers asked anonymity.

Two former department officials said pretrial publicity would never dissuade the department from bringing a case to trial.

"I don't think the department has a pretrial publicity problem at this stage, and the case appears to be so broadly spread that I doubt they'll have any later," said another former department official.

The investigation was carried out in New York; Washington; Philadelphia; Newark, N.J.; and Miami.

Tennessee riot prompts prison realignment

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Until convicts rioted at Tennessee's main prison because they got cold bologna instead of pork chops, legislators at best gave a passing glance at the state's prisons.

Since the 1975 riot, overcrowding, substandard living conditions and a court order have forced lawmakers to spend more money on prisons.

The year before the riot, they spent $31.9 million to operate prisons. A year later, it was $52.4 million and Gov. Lamar Alexander wants to spend $98.4 million next year.

But many lawmakers want to replace the Tennessee system with an idea born in Texas — an independent prison system that pays for itself because all able-bodied convicts work.

They want to create a correction commission, whose nine members would be appointed by the governor. The commission would hire the commissioner, establish department policy and submit its budget directly to the Legislature. It also could sell $15 million in bonds to pay for upgrading the prison agri-industries programs.

Teamsters refuse service to Russian jet at Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — A Soviet plane delayed at Kennedy International Airport for 27 hours for lack of a ground crew took off for home with the aid of a private servicing company and an agreement worked out under the supervision of the State Department.

The Aeroflot Ilyushin 62, delayed by refusal of Teamsters union ground crews to work on the jet, took off Monday night for Moscow with 76 passengers, who had been put up in hotels overnight, and a 12-member crew.

The stalemate ended after the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the airport, reached a State Department-sanctioned agreement with Aeroflot on the handling of future Soviet flights here.

Under the agreement, the Soviet airline said it would not fly scheduled flights into Kennedy "until it has made arrangements with another carrier already serving the airport to handle them," a spokesman for the authority said.

Jailed station manager claims 'price is right'

BOSTON (AP) — As other dealers cheered, a service station operator — the first in the nation to be prosecuted for price gouging — said it was "logical, rational and absolutely ethical" to charge $1.57 a gallon during last summer's gasoline shortage.

Glenn Heller, operator of Beacon Hill Gulf, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to one month behind bars. In an impassioned speech to the judge, Heller said small-time operators are being squeezed out of business by federal regulators and greedy oil companies.

While about 50 fellow service station operators cheered, Heller decried "the existence of draconian dealer price controls allied with a Byzantine Department of Energy walking arm in arm with the seven largest industrial corporations that this earth has ever seen."

Heller, convicted last month on 27 counts of overcharging, was ordered by Judge Rya Zobel to pay a $9,450 fine and spend 30 days in prison followed by an 11-month suspended sentence.

Sunday Roach to compete for Miss Dance of America

Sunday Roach was named Miss Dance of Chapter 35, an area which covers the top portion of Texas, during recent competition in Lubbock.

The 18-year-old senior at Pampa High School will compete in August in Houston for the Miss Dance of America title. She is a student of Madeline Graves.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Roach, the winner performed a jazz number to the music of "Bridge Over Troubled Water". She competed against 13 other contestants in interview, evening gown, leotard and talent competition.

Judged by national professionals in the dance field, Miss Roach is the sixth Graves student since 1972 to earn the title.

Two other Graves students also won honors during the competition. Lori Crouch won first runner-up; second runner-up went to Marquetta Wampler.

Miss Roach will perform her winning dance June 9 at the studio's annual recital in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Other awards won by students of Madeline Graves included Darwynn Nail, Lara McBride, Lisa Coon, Jennifer Graves, Lauri Anderwald, Krista Anderwald, Kimberly Bennett and Sherri Daniels, first place, elementary division.

Brandi Huff, Clover Winingham, Shauna Graves, Sheri Rogers, second place, junior division; Misses Crouch, Wampler and Roach, and Judy Rogers, first place, senior division; and Shauna Graves, first runner-up, Junior Miss competition.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

Dr. Wallace: I am a very responsible, mature 15-year-old girl. I get good grades in school and I don't smoke pot or drink booze. My best girlfriend is 18 and we have been best friends for five years.

A while back, my friend and I told my parents that we were going to a roller skating rink but actually we went to a drive-in movie (she has a car). Until then, I had never lied about where I was going but I felt my parents were wrong when they told me that I couldn't go to a drive-in because they said so.

About two weeks ago my girlfriend started seeing a guy 22 who had a 23-year-old roommate. One day my girlfriend and I ended up in their apartment. My dad found out when he saw me on the back of the motorcycle owned by the 22-year-old guy.

Now my parents have forbidden me to see my girlfriend. One reason they stated was that this girl was too old and "experienced" for me.

I think they are unreasonable because I have known this girl for five years and they thought she was all right until now.

I am very depressed because my girlfriend is the only person who really understands me and the only person who I want to hang around, because all the other kids my age are into pot and booze and I'm not. — Kay, Elyria, Ohio

Kay: You have the idea that since you are not on pot or booze that you can do as you please and that everything is just fine. It's nice that pot and booze are not for you, but I'll have to agree that this 18-year-old girlfriend appears to be too old and experienced for you.

Eighteen-year-old girls seeing 22-year-old guys is fine but 15-year-old girls and 23-year-old guys are taboo. It's time to make friends your own age.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and very confused. In the last three months my whole world has come apart. First my parents got a divorce and then my best friend stole my boyfriend.

I try to talk to my mom about how I feel but she always seems too busy to talk. Lately, I have been very depressed. Can you please help me or tell me what to do? — Shelly, San Leandro, Calif.

Shelly: You need someone to lean on. At school, stop by and talk to your school counselor and your school nurse.

If you have counselors or teachers at your church — seek them out also.

Don't sit at home and feel sorry for yourself. Do things, go places and stay active. It's amazing what a different outlook you would have if you found a new boyfriend or a close girlfriend.

Write to me again and tell me how things are going.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Make pasta dishes in microwave

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Pasta lovers with microwave units now can prepare spaghetti with a rich cheese-pesto sauce using their microwaves efficiently.

Another tasty pasta dish, which features peas and Muenster, can also be baked in the microwave or in a conventional oven.

Serve either dish with a special salad, perhaps prepared with the aid of a food processor.

SPAGHETTI WITH SPINACH-CHEESE PESTO SAUCE

8 ounces spaghetti

1 tablespoon salt (or lemon juice)

3 quarts boiling water

1/2 pound spinach

7 ounces Gouda cheese

Gradually add spaghetti and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, wash and drain spinach. In food processor with cutting blade, process spinach until chopped.

Turn into microwave-proof dish. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave 1 1/2 minutes. Replace food processor blade with grating disc. Grate cheese.

PASTA AND CHEESE dishes are easy to prepare in a microwave, or may be prepared in a conventional oven.

Toss piping hot spaghetti with cheese and spinach.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Conventional method: Finely chop spinach with knife. Heat in saucepan. Grate cheese with hand grater. Combine ingredients and toss.

PEAS AND MUENSTER NOODLE BAKE

8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)

1 tablespoon salt

3 quarts boiling water

8 ounces Muenster cheese

1 10-ounce package frozen peas, cooked according to package directions

vegetable cooking spray

Gradually add noodles and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, grate cheese in food processor with grating disc.

Coat inside of 2-quart microwave-proof casserole with vegetable cooking spray according to directions.

Combine macaroni, 1 1/2 cups cheese and peas in casserole. Mix well. Sprinkle with remaining cheese.

Cover and microwave 7 minutes or until hot.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Conventional method: Grate cheese using hand grater. Proceed as above. Bake in 350-degree F. oven for 20 minutes.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE Louise Pierce

The theory behind Social Security and reduced prices for senior citizens on taxes and buses and cafes and entertainment seems to be that the elderly can now live without worries or woes. But older couples are often plagued by as many problems as are the younger pairs, even though ours may be a different kind.

In fact, annoyances have a tendency to grow greater as we age. If we eat too many sweets and starches, we pave the path to a paunch. Colds are worse now, or seem so, than they did 30 years ago. Everything that bothers us appears to increase with each new year.

So how can we avoid these debilitating depressions that often threaten our marital happiness? We can recognize and understand them. We can remove some of them and lessen others. We can learn to live above those that are ingrained.

First, for our mates' sakes as well as our own, we need to pinpoint the growing grievances that beset us. Yours may be the TV programs you dislike but your mate loves. It may be your wife's too-gabby callers on the phone or in person. It may be your husband's dirty socks on the bathroom floor amid splashes from the shower. It may be a chronic health nuisance. Whatever our tests and our pests, we need to bring them into the open doorways of our minds.

Next, we need to study all possible improvements of our steadily-saddening state. We can ease unwanted guests toward departure by telling them we're "just leaving" when they ring the door bell. (After which, if we're honest, we'd better go somewhere.) We can compromise and share the TV — or we can read while the spouse enjoys a ballgame or a soap opera that we can't stand. We can get all possible medical help for our pimples and pains.

Sometimes I hesitate to dash the one block between our apartment and our doctor's office. I know the series of shots will be more painful, in the short run, than the stuffy nose I already have. I know that Otis will say, at bedtime, "That's the reddest hip I ever saw!" But I always choose the long run, suffer the shots and get well.

Lastly, we can sometimes remove the cause of an annoyance entirely. Doctors tell us that aches, rashes, indigestion, even states of incapacitation are sometimes psychomatic. If we can find out what is upsetting us — and we can if we try — we can usually get rid of it.

If our present work, in industry or at home, is killing us, we can change jobs. If certain people cause us dander or dandruff, we can stay away from them. If smoke chokes us, we can usher our puffing guests to the back yard.

The only contrary instance I ever knew in this regard was one that was related to me at a hay fever and asthma clinic. A fellow patient was much distressed because the doctor had just told her she was allergic to her husband! She asked what I would do in such a case. I told her I'd snuffle and snort and go right on loving Otis and living with him. I'm glad to report that she did the same.

In addition, if we lack increasing annoyances but our mates harbor them helplessly and hopelessly, we can offer recognition of them, suggest improvement or elimination and use every effort we can muster to help the loved one live more happily.

DEAR LOUISE: When my husband wins a golf game, he comes home healthy and happy. But if he loses, his eyes water and his face breaks out and he coughs all night. How can this be when he always plays with the same men on the same golf course? A.K.

DEAR A.K.: He may be mildly allergic to the grasses or trees in the club area — and the annoying symptoms can be increased by his disappointment when he loses. Or they can be lessened by his euphoria when he wins because victory always boosts merriment and morale.

Urge him to consult an allergist. If he has no allergies, ask whether his golf buddies' gloating infuriates him when they defeat him; if this is true, ask him to find more humane golf partners. If nobody gloats but it's golf itself that he can't take because it inevitably involves a loss now and then, offer to go jogging or bicycle riding with him.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Celanese nominated for Burriss Award

The Pampa Celanese Chemical Co., Inc., has been nominated for the 8th Ed. C. Burriss Award which is presented annually to a company for its outstanding achievements in business and industry in Texas. Altogether, nine companies are competing for the Award.

Established by the Texas Association of Business (TAB), the Award is symbolic of TAB's objective, building a better climate for Texas business and industry. Named in honor of Ed. C. Burriss, president of TAB until his retirement in 1972, it will be presented to the winner during Texas Business and Industry Week, April 1-7, 1980.

Nominated by TAB chapters throughout Texas, the entries are being judged by a committee comprised of Texas business leaders. Criteria are achievements made in business operations and contributions to civic and governmental affairs. Points which will be considered include: increase in sales, profit margins and employment; marketing achievements; employee relations programs; contributions to education, community development; and employee participation in clubs, organizations, and local, state and or national political affairs.

Shrimpers testify in cutter collision board of inquiry

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two fishermen who hauled surviving sailors to safety after a deadly collision say a crewman was waiting for an order to change the Coast Guard cutter's course just before it crashed into a tanker. But the order never came, they said.

The Marine Board of Inquiry spent Monday listening to the three crewmen of a shrimp trawler which became a rescue vessel after the Coast Guard's worst-ever peacetime wreck last Monday.

The collision of the cutter Blackthorn and the tanker Capricorn left 23 Coast Guardsmen dead. Sixteen bodies still hadn't been recovered. One surfaced late Sunday, bringing to seven the number of bodies found.

Three crewmen from the cutter were scheduled to testify today, the fifth day of the board's inquiry.

All three crewmen from the shrimper The Bayou testified Monday.

"I heard one man ask another, 'Why didn't you turn if you knew the boat was coming?'" testified Charles Whitelaw, 21. Another Coast Guardsman replied that "he was waiting on orders to change course," Whitelaw said.

His coworker, Ventrice "Vince" Dyer, 41, also said he overheard a similar conversation by Coast Guardsmen who had been plucked from Tampa Bay after the wreck.

"I heard one fellow, said he had seen the ship (Capricorn) and was watching it close in. He was waiting for an order to turn and the order never came," Dyer said.

Discovery of body prompts La. search

DRY CREEK, La. (AP) — Guided by broad slash marks on two trees and spurred by finding the body of a young woman, deputies continue digging for a mass grave described by a man being held in connection with a Nevada murder.

Dennis McCabe of Lake Charles, La., 32, was being held in Omaha, Neb., in connection with a killing in Carson City, Nev.

He allegedly described a grave site in this piney woods area, saying four persons were buried there. The marker was to be blazes slashed on two trees.

Searchers following those directions unearthed the body of a young woman on Monday, but not the other three said to have been buried with her. The woman's body — preserved by the cold weather — was sent to Bossier City, La., for an autopsy.

Beauregard Parish Sheriff Bolivar Bishop said the dead woman wore a man's wedding band and a gold necklace with the initial "C" engraved on it.

Wheeler chamber honors citizens

WHEELER - Wheeler County residents chosen for top awards were honored by the Wheeler Chamber of Commerce during banquet ceremonies recently. Honors for the residents were based on community service.

Mrs. Dorothy McIlhaney was announced as the Woman of the Year for her work on many projects, officiating in the study club and ladies clubs, church administrative and membership support, she is an area officer in the Top of Texas District of Federated Women Clubs, and an appointee to the District IV Mental Health—Mental Retardation Board. She is the wife of District Judge Granger McIlhaney.

Award for Man of the Year was presented to Bill Owen.

Owen has served on the school board, the City Council, is a member of the Kiwanis Civic Club, and represents Wheeler at PRPC meetings.

A Wheeler dentist, Dr. Mike Smith, was named as the Farmer of the Year. Smith owns and leases land in Wheeler County and is in the cattle business.

Employee of the Year was presented to J.T. Tidwell. Tidwell has been employed as the school custodian for 12 years.

Rich Brown was chosen as Teenager of the Year. Active in school activities both as a student and athletically, Brown was also chosen as All-District Quarterback and was named to the All-State Team.

Fireman of the Year, Gary Davis, was presented a plaque for his contribution on the Wheeler Fire Department.

Alpha Mu Alpha Chapter president Margaret Dorman presented a plaque to Mrs. Ruth Wiley, Home Economics teacher for Wheeler High School for service to the community.

Gopher plant: answer to crude oil problem?

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Dallas-based Diamond Shamrock Corp. expects to know in June whether its tests of "gopher plant" as a petroleum substitute will prove out.

The plant, formally known as euphorbia lathyris, produces a milky liquid in its leaves and stems. Some researchers say the fluid contains hydrocarbon superior to crude oil, and Diamond Shamrock says tests already have shown it can be refined to produce a high-quality fuel.

The point of the experimental plantings begun here in 1978 and which are expected to spread this spring to Texas, New Mexico, Nevada and California is to determine whether growing gopher plants as a crop is economical.

The spring plantings are to test the plant's response to a variety of soils, altitudes and climates. If it proves suitable for semi-arid land such as the Southwest, officials say, desert petroleum farms might be developed without using more valuable farm land.

C.W. Hinman, Diamond Shamrock's director of exploratory technology, said the gopher plant apparently would be used to produce both gasoline and other chemical distillates.

He said studies on about 12 acres of the plant grown near Tucson and Safford confirm a yield of the equivalent of about 10 barrels of crude oil per acre is possible.

Jack D. Johnson of the University of Arizona's Office of Arid Lands Studies, which is coordinating the research with Diamond Shamrock, says a harvest of the equivalent of 25 barrels per acre could be obtained under certain conditions.

Hinman said it has yet to be determined whether such a yield would be economical, given the expense of irrigation.

Sausage-making singer sued by sibling

DALLAS (AP) — The attorney for country singer Jimmy Dean said a federal judge Wednesday will hear a proposed compromise settlement in a $4.3 million libel and slander suit filed against Dean by his brother, a former partner in a sausage company.

Dallas attorney Jim Cowles declined to be specific about the settlement, saying only "The case, in all probability, will be resolved."

Ray Besing, who represents Dean's brother, Don, also declined to talk about the 2-year-old case. But other sources said Dean — a lanky good 'ole boy singer from Plainview — has agreed to pay an unspecified settlement sum to his brother.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has set a hearing on the matter for Wednesday morning. The suit grew out of comments allegedly made by Jimmy Dean during radio and newspaper interviews on a bitter family dispute over Dallas-based Jimmy Dean Meat Co., Inc.

Don Dean owned half the company and served as president until he sold out to his brother on Jan. 21, 1977. A year later, he filed suit, claiming Jimmy had made "untrue... slanderous and defamatory statements" about him and his business practices.

Copies of newspaper articles from several Dallas-Fort Worth area newspapers, two St. Louis newspapers and statements from radio interviews were filed with Dean's petition.

In one newspaper interview, the suit claims Jimmy Dean said:

"It's a terrible thing when the biggest mistake you made in your life was trusting your brother." In another interview, the suit contends, Dean said:

"I had a partner, and partners are very funny people. Somebody once said partners have been known to develop eye trouble — they can't tell their money from yours."

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The Small Business Administration still has plenty of work to do here, and should stop talking about shutting its field office, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said. Tower, in a letter to SBA administrator A. Vernon Weaver, said "the pending workload in no way justifies such action."

Joe Dugan of the SBA said the temporary disaster field office here, established to help victims of last April's killer tornado, will lose its lease March 1. He said the agency is trying to decide whether to seek another local office or move its operations into the Dallas regional office.

Tower said he wants the agency to stay where it is. "I understand... that there were still as many as 500 secured loans remaining to be disbursed, or approximately one third of the 1,550 secured loans approved," Tower said in his letter.

"Handling of these loans by mail between Wichita Falls and the district office in Dallas would be quite inadequate to resolve the problems of these final cases," he wrote.

Tower urged Weaver to review the matter "most carefully" and provide a report on any decision.

Dugan emphasized the agency had not reached any firm decision on the future of its field office, but said the caseload should have dwindled sufficiently by March 1 to deal with remaining loans by mail.

Bureaucracy is problem in Brazil

By RICHARD W. FOSTER
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Helio Marcos Penna Beltrao, a 62-year-old ex-business consultant and corporation president, works out of three cramped rooms in the Planalto Presidential Palace here and has only two full-time employees.

His title since his recent appointment by Brazil's general president Joao Figueiredo is Minister Extraordinary for De-bureaucratization.

His task is Herculean. In Brazil in order to purchase a house valued at more than $10,000, the federal housing bank and other institutions require more than 40 documents. A driver's license takes 45 days and at least a dozen documents, one of which until recently was a statement by police, with two witnesses, that the applicant lives at his present address.

Brazilian bureaucracy, begun under Portuguese kings, has grown like Topsy over the past four centuries, suffocating the everyday lives of millions of citizens, and threatening to strangle the economic life of the country.

"In a way our problem is not so bad as yours," Beltrao told The Associated Press in an interview here. "I hear bureaucracy is getting worse in the United States. In Brazil, on the other hand, it can't get any worse than it already is."

Beltrao began his career 40 years ago as an attorney in a now-defunct government department dealing with retirement pensions. Since then efficiency and rationality in government and industry have become his passion.

He spends at least three days a week traveling on a lecture circuit in which he preaches that the evils of bureaucracy can be overcome with new attitudes and a few appropriate changes in the law.

"Bureaucracy is basically a cultural problem," he says. "In Brazil the presumption is that everyone is dishonest until proven otherwise. It is this attitude which must be changed."

Through changes in administrative law, Beltrao has already eliminated federal government requirements for affidavits that a citizen is alive, that he lives at his present address, that he has no criminal record, and that he is without means of support.

These "atestados" do not necessarily prove what they are intended to prove but they nonetheless have become routine, time-consuming formalities.

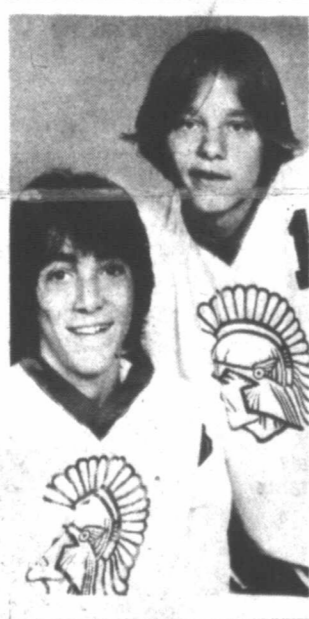

The newspapers here recently ran a story about an 80-year-old man who appealed to the federal government for help in proving he was alive, and eligible for retirement benefits. When he registered his wife's death 10 years ago, a clerk mistakenly entered his name. In the eyes of the state social security department where the man lived, he could not be alive because they had on file a death certificate with his name on it.

TENNIS PROS like Guillermo Vilas (above) are considered poor financially compared to Major League base ball stars. Only 32 of 110 tennis players have ever earned $100,000 on the tour while the average salary in baseball is $120,000.

National pasttime top money sport

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
A message to mothers: Store Johnny's tennis racket and golf clubs. Put his basketball on the top shelf and toss his football in a trunk. You can do the same with the soccer ball and hockey stick.
If you want Johnny to be a rich sports superstar, haul out the dusty baseball bat and glove. The national pasttime is no longer corner lots, apple pie and Chevrolet. It's strictly Wall Street — the aristocrat of bigtime professional sports.
In four years, thanks to free agency and multimillion dollar contracts for the likes of Dave Parker, Pete Rose, Rod Carew, Nolan Ryan and Co., baseball has zoomed to the top of sports' gold dust pile.
The average salary of the major league ballplayer is $120,000 compared with $48,000 in 1976 — almost tripled. The National Football League average, meanwhile, is up to only $68,893 from $42,000 four years ago.
Pro basketball has lost its old No. 1 spot although, with smaller squads and high-priced talent such as rookie Larry Bird, Julius Erving, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Artis Gilmore, the NBA maintains an average of $110,000. The National Hockey League norm is $102,000 with a pair of transplanted Swedes on the New York Rangers, Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson, highest paid at a reported $450,000 each.

Pro golfers and tennis players, independent operators, hold their own at the pay window but don't match baseball's overall affluence. Of 279 golfers listed on the PGA tour, only 33 were above $100,000 last year with Tom Watson the leader at $462,636. Tennis is lop-sided. Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe cashed checks exceeding $1 million but only 32 of 110 players reached $100,000.
These statistics undoubtedly would have confounded the late Paul Gallico, who before abandoning the sports beat 40 years ago to pursue a career as novelist and Hollywood scenario writer, wrote a book, "Farewell to Sports."
The book is included in a remarkable 10-volume Sports Classics Collection, published by a Chicago colleague, Jerry Holtzman, of Holtzman Press, Inc.
Looking 50 years ahead, Gallico wrote in 1938: "By 1987, the 100 yards will have been run in 9.1 and possibly 9 seconds flat, the mile in 4:03, the high jumpers squirming over the bar at seven feet while the pole-vaulters do fifteen."
Little did Gallico know.
Hank Aaron, who has handled himself with dignity since crashing Babe Ruth's career home run record, added no lustre to his image with his surprise long-distance slap last week at Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Thomas wins Sullivan award

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anything Kurt Thomas does, he does to win. Finishing second, he says, is like finishing last.
"Winning is best," said the 23-year-old gymnast, who last year became the first American to win an all-around medal in international competition. He added another first to his list of accomplishments Monday night as recipient of the Amateur Athletic Union's annual Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur athlete.
"This means a few things to me," the former NCAA champion from Indiana State University said. "First, it's important to me because it is given in Indiana, and this is where my gymnastics really began. Another thing is that this is the most prestigious award given."
Thomas, now an assistant coach at Arizona State University, beat out Renaldo Nehemiah, the world record holder in the high hurdles, and 15-year-old Cynthia Woodhead, who set two world and nine American swimming records in 1979, in the voting for the 50th annual Sullivan Award.
In addition to his own personal achievements, Thomas said he sees the emergence of American gymnasts as serious contenders in international competition as a source of "a lot of satisfaction."
"It's definitely improved overall," he said. "We competed in the world championships at Fort Worth, Texas, in December very well as a team, winning the bronze medal. And this is the first time we've had much depth."
Thomas, an intense perfectionist, finished fourth in the World Cup meet in Tokyo in June, then was runnerup in the all-around to Russia's Aleksandr Ditiatin in the world championships. It was the highest finish ever for an American gymnast in the world championships.

Thomas earned a gold medal in the horizontal bar, tied for another gold in the floor exercise, won a silver medal in the pommel horse and shared another silver in the parallel bars.
Never satisfied with second place, Thomas said he nonetheless felt "really pleased with my competition. I hit 22 of 22 routines without a major break."
It was the second year in a row Thomas had been nominated for the Sullivan Award. He finished third a year ago, behind swimmer Tracy Caulkins, the winner, and marathon runner Bill Rodgers.
"I didn't feel last year I had even a chance to win this award," Thomas said, "but I said if I was nominated again I'll come back and try again, and if I didn't win it this year, I'd try again next year."
Nehemiah, 20, of the University of Maryland, is ranked No. 1 in the world in the high hurdles. He won the AAU, NCAA and Pan American Games championships. Woodhead, of Riverside, Calif., earned five-gold medals in the Pan American Games in July.
The Sullivan Award has been presented by the AAU since 1930 when the first award went to golfer Bobby Jones. It is based on tabulation of some 2,500 ballots from past winners, members of the AAU board of governors, selection committee members, the U.S. Olympic Committee's executive board and sports writers and broadcasters.

Olympic ticket down

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — If you want VIP treatment and the best seat in the house to all the Winter Olympic events here, you can buy a "gold card" for a mere $10, 300.
But don't worry. There are still some tickets available somewhere for virtually every event, and some are being sold below cost.
With just over a week to go until the Games start here, officials of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee say they have sold less than 80 percent of their total tickets but still maintain they expect to sell 90 to 95 percent in all.
But some programs, like gold cards and tightly-organized tours are faring badly, even as the first reports of scalping filter in.

The LPOOC has 550,000 tickets to sell to some 90 events over 12 days. Prices range from $10 to $60, before tax and handling charges, and average $25.
But because housing in and transportation to this isolated village are so difficult, the actual cost of attending a day's events is a lot higher.
Cost, along with mild weather and political uncertainties has eaten away at the LPOOC's early hopes for a sellout, and at least one tour operator has started to sell some tickets below retail.
A check at the office set up here for individual over-the-counter sales showed tickets available for 55 events, including some hockey playoffs but no figure skating.

Texas Tech makes SEC race interesting

By CHARLES RICHARDS AP Sports Writer
Texas Tech put new life into the Southwest Conference basketball race with its 63-53 upset over the Texas Aggies in Lubbock Monday night.
"Now we have got to win the rest of them, and that means Arkansas in Arkansas," Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said after the loss before a packed crowd and a television audience.
The defeat was the first in SWC play for the Aggies, who now share first place with the Arkansas Razorbacks, who drubbed TCU 74-47.
"I know it's tough to win up there (Fayetteville), but I'll take my chances with this team. Even if we had won tonight, it would have been a heated race the rest of the way," Metcalf added.
The Arkansas-A&M showdown is next Tuesday night. In other SWC action Monday night, Texas exploded for 54 points the first half and held on to edge Houston 84-82. SMU defeated Baylor 73-69 and Rice beat Wright State 84-78.
Tech coach Gerald Myers was ecstatic over a second straight topnotch defensive effort from his players.
"We had a great effort from everyone. Our inside people played especially well. It was just a great team effort," he said, handing out special tribute for Ralph Brewster, David Little and Ben Hill.

Tech held 6-11 Rudy Woods to 8 points, Vernon Smith to 6 and Rynn Wright to 13.
"We just didn't get the good performance. Tech deserved to win. Tech did an excellent job inside tonight, unlike our first game (at College Station). They had a good game plan and stayed with it all night," Metcalf said.
The teams traded the lead until Tech pulled away with 7½ minutes left and scored 10 straight points to turn a 41-41 tie into a 51-41 lead. After Tech got two baskets, Smith fouled out and also drew a technical foul. The Raiders picked up three free throws on that, went into a delay game and added three more points on Brewster's stuff shot and free throw after he was fouled.
LaSalle Thompson, Texas' 6-10 freshman, scored 13 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the first half as the Longhorns took a giant 22-point lead over Houston at intermission, 54-32.
But cousins Robert and Kenneth "Juice" Williams led a charge that left the Cougars only a basket short of wiping out the deficit.
"This is the craziest game in America. Mercifully, it ended," said Texas coach Abe Lemons.
"We gotta be the dumbest team in America. We're capable of anything, including not wanting to play in the second half. It's a funny feeling to win but feel like you lost," Lemons added.

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said the win over TCU was probably the Razorbacks' best defensive showing of the season.
"We forced a lot of turnovers which led to a lot of layups and dunks. Defense was the whole story. I'd been disappointed in our defense, but tonight we played like teams of old," Sutton said.
Arkansas turned nine steals into seven stiff shots and smothered TCU with its man-to-man defense. The Razorbacks turned a 9-5 lead into a 20-8 bulge in the first half, and the Horned Frogs never recovered.
SMU took a 42-32 halftime edge over Baylor, but the Bears got their defense together in the second half, forcing eight SMU turnovers and closing the margin to four points at one time.
Billy Allen dished out nine assists and led the SMU floor game, with Brad Branson scoring five quick baskets midway through the last half to offset a shooting exhibition by Baylor's Terry Teagle, the conference's leading scorer, whose 25 points topped all scorers.
"If we had played as well defensively in the first half it might have been different story," said Baylor coach Jim Haller.

Unbeaten DePaul still on top, Arizona State makes AP poll

By TOM CANAVAN AP Sports Writer
DePaul Coach Ray Meyer waited over 37 years to reach the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press basketball poll, and now that he's there, it appears he may be planning to stay for a while.
Meyer's unbeaten Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on all 59 ballots and collected a perfect score of 1,180 points from a national committee of sport writers and broadcasters Monday in easily outdistancing runnerup Syracuse. The vote also marked the third consecutive week DePaul, 19-0, has been the unanimous selection of the board and fourth week overall they have been ranked No. 1.
"There's no monkey on our back anymore," Meyer said last week after victories over Creighton and North Texas State.
But the monkey played havoc on a number of the teams in the Top 20 last week with only two teams managing to remain in the same position the held a week ago.

Syracuse, ranked fourth last week when they posted triumphs over Temple and Providence, replaced Oregon State in the No. 2 position with 1,066 points.
Louisville, ranked No. 7 for the past three weeks, leaped into the No. 3 spot with this week with 1,001 points. It's the highest ranking the Cardinals have held this season and comes just one day after their thrilling 76-71 victory over St. John's on national television.
Oregon State, upset by UCLA last week, fell to fourth with 946 points. Kentucky, No. 3 last week, slipped to fifth with 865 points — five more than No. 6 Louisiana State, which was ranked 10th last week when it upset the Wildcats 65-60 at Lexington.
Up-and-coming Maryland, No. 12 a week ago, skyrocketed into the No. 7 spot with 844 points. The Terps, the surprising leaders of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference — five ACC teams are in the Top 20 — posted victories over Virginia and Duke in action last week.

St. John's and Notre Dame switched positions this week with the Redmen taking over the No. 8 spot with 697 points. The Irish, knocked off by LaSalle last week, were ninth with 660 points — two more than No. 10 Duke, which dropped five notches after being thrashed by Maryland 101-82 last Saturday.
North Carolina headed the Second Ten for the second straight week. Purdue jumped sixth places from last week's ranking and was 12th followed by Ohio State, No. 6 last week, Brigham Young, Missouri, Clemson, Weber State, Virginia, Arizona State and preseason favorite Indiana.
Last week's Second Ten was North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Missouri, Weber State, Clemson, Purdue, Indiana, Brigham Young and Kansas State, the only team to fall out of the Top 20.
Arizona State is the only newcomer to this week's poll.
This week's poll was conducted before Monday night's games.

Dallas pro cage group must meet strict terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will pro basketball return to Dallas next fall following a seven-year hiatus?
The Dallas group seeking a National Basketball Association expansion franchise has been given 30 days to decide whether it's willing to meet new terms set forth by the league's Board of Governors Saturday at its annual midwinter meeting in conjunction with the NBA All-Star Game.
Foremost among the changes is the requirement that the 24 partners in the group headed by Norm Sonju come up with half the $12 million entry fee as a down payment, instead of just $3.5 million. The Governors also made the remainder of the payment schedule more stringent and decided to let each existing team protect eight players from the expansion draft, instead of seven.
If these terms are acceptable, the Dallas group will get the NBA's 23rd franchise and pro basketball will return to a city it left in 1973, when the Dallas Chaparrals of the old American Basketball Association moved to San Antonio.
In another major development, the NBA Governors voted to accept a new three-year working agreement with the Players Association, which had been competing this season without a contract. The pact, approved by the Association's executive committee, was scheduled to be voted on today by the 22 player representatives.
"I think this contract is a major step forward," said Paul Silas, president of the Players Association. "We are delighted that we have come to this conclusion."
Under the agreement, the players would receive an increase in the minimum salary from the present level of $30,000 to an unannounced figure, as well as raises in per diem expenses and playoff money. And in 1981-82, the final year of the contract, the league agreed to raise the roster limit from 11 players to 12.

THE PAMPA Harvesters may be without leading scorer Ronnie Faggins (shooting above) tonight against Amarillo Caprock. Faggins, who is averaging 19.4 points a game, has been bothered by a sore shoulder.

Harvesters visit Caprock tonight in key district game

Just how important is Pampa's District 3-AAAA basketball clash with Amarillo Caprock tonight? Well, Harvesters coach Garland Nichols made it perfectly clear. "We better win. That's all I can say," replied Nichols. "If we lose this one or any of the next three district games, it's all over for us." Pampa just barely got past Caprock, 77-73, in the initial meeting in the Green Pit. Now Pampa must bring down the Longhorns in their own territory and the Harvesters may have to do it without their top scorer, 63 senior Ronnie Faggins (19.4), who is bothered by a sore shoulder. "His shoulder was so bad Monday he could hardly lift it," Nichols said. "I won't know until gametime if he'll be able to play, but with or without him we're going to have to do a better defensive job than we have in the past." Nichols said the key to victory lies in stopping Caprock guards Todd Tenorio and Leonard Coulter, who accounted for 51 points against Pampa. "We're going to have to stop those two, but I feel we'll do a better job of defending them than we did before," said Nichols. Tenorio averages 15.3 points per game while Coulter follows at 11.3. The Harvesters enter the game with an 11-13 overall record and 2-2 in the first half district race. Caprock stands 4-19 and 1-3. "We can't take them lightly despite their record," Nichols cautioned. "We just barely beat them last time, but everyone, except Ronnie, is healthy and ready to go. We're ready to win it." On the home floor, Pampa's Lady Harvesters (5-16, 0-1) host the Caprock girls (7-17, 1-1) at 7:30 p.m. tonight. In their previous meeting Jan. 18, Pampa dropped a heartbreaker when Caprock scored the winning basket with two seconds left for a 58-57 win.

IOC to ponder fate of Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The harassed International Olympic Committee (IOC) takes up residence in this small mountain ski resort this week to try to save the tottering Olympic Games. The XIII Winter Olympics, for which this village of 2,700 people has been preparing for six years, opens in eight days and no major problems are expected. But next weekend the IOC will meet in a quaint, rambling timber-built country hotel to ponder over the fate of the threatened Summer Olympics in Moscow next July, and over ways to save them. As the Russians pour more and more troops into Afghanistan, and President Jimmy Carter presses on with his call for a boycott of Moscow, it appears likely the 1980 Olympics will be dramatically reduced in size or perhaps collapse altogether.

The governments of some 30 countries have supported Carter's call for the Games to be moved or canceled or boycotted if Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan. National Olympic committees are the bodies to decide ultimately whether to send athletes, but many are expected to fall in behind their governments or be pressured by public opinion. What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide that threatens to engulf the Games? Not much. It is bound by the Olympic Charter and dedicated to the ideals of bringing the youth of the world together in sport every four years, irrespective of politics. It is a purely international body with a curious and unique constitution of its own which gives it complete autonomy and makes it answerable to no one.

Jesse Owens faces toughest battle

AP Special Correspondent
While the country wrestles with the dilemma of boycotting the Moscow Olympics, all of us should pause a moment and give a thought to perhaps the greatest Olympian of them all, Jesse Owens. Jesse, now 66, has had to fight most of his life. Son of an Alabama sharecropper, he has had to overcome bias in this country and slurs of being "of an inferior race" when he invaded Berlin for the 1936 Nazi Olympics.

The swift, coordinated black athlete shamed Adolf Hitler by winning four gold medals and overcame numerous obstacles to emerge as a successful businessman, America's Olympic "elder statesman" and most fluent spokesman. Now he is facing his toughest battle — lung cancer. A telephone call to his Phoenix, Ariz., home brought good news. He is reacting favorably to drugs and gaining strength after treatment at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center. "He is up and about," said his wife, Ruth, "and we are encouraged, but he isn't up to a lot of conversation." Asked if Jesse had expressed himself on the present Olympic situation, Mrs. Owens said: "Oh, no. He's not ready to bite that bullet yet. You know, he gets very emotional." There are few more emotional or dynamic men than Jesse Owens, who is reminiscent of the late Dr. Martin Luther King when he takes the podium in defense of Olympic ideals and pride of country. "The Olympics have become the whipping post of politics," he once said, "but, thank God, they are still run by man. Man has a way of over-riding such influences." There is no indication how Jesse would view President Carter's call for a Moscow boycott. He undoubtedly would be torn between patriotism and a strong belief in the sanctity of the Olympic code. While the press sensationally played up the theme that Hitler, surrounded by storm troopers, snubbed the black man who shattered the Fuehrer's theory of Aryan supremacy, Owens himself always has downplayed the incident. "I don't know," Jesse said. "I never looked toward the box where Hitler and his entourage sat. I was too busy worrying about fulfilling my childhood dream. "I was conditioned to discrimination when I went to Berlin. I was not politically oriented. None of us was. We were too busy working on our personal goals." Patriot, preacher, ambassador, inspiration for the young, Owens refused to become embittered by early hardships and emerged as an unwavering booster of the American way of life. Owens has refused to be disillusioned by the national rivalries and politics that have plagued the Games for years. "You've got to be there to appreciate it," Jesse said recently. "Break bread together, sing together, train together and, at the end, see athletes looking around for an old friend from another country to trade a tie, a jacket or a tunic. "That's the way I see the Olympic Games."

Ali remarks making state department officials nervous

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Floating like the proverbial butterfly and stinging like a bee with his remarks, Muhammad Ali continued his suddenly controversial tour of Africa today. U.S. State Department officials say, in fact, that Ali's recent acerbic statements "are giving us a little heartburn." The well-known boxer, on a five-nation tour of Africa theoretically to drum up support for President Carter's stand against the Moscow Olympics this summer, was anything but diplomatic Monday in Nairobi, Kenya, when he called the United States and Russia "the baddest two white men in history." The presidential envoy also turned against Carter when he told a news conference that the President had put him on the spot by asking him to defend the U.S. record in Africa. "I'm not here to take America's whipping," Ali said on the second stop of his tour. "I am totally against South Africa." Ali appeared to be startled when reporters asked him why the Soviet Union, and not the United States, traditionally has supported African liberation groups fighting against the remaining white colonial regimes. Ali said he would tell President Carter in Washington next week, "if you make a move against South Africa...then these people will be glad to aid you." Ali said Africans also resented being asked to stay away from the Moscow Games to protest the Soviets' military intervention in Afghanistan, although the United States refused to join an African boycott of the 1976 Olympics in Montreal to protest western sports links with Africa. "African people have all the right to say to us: 'If you didn't support us, why should we support you?'" Ali was scheduled to meet religious and sports leaders today before leaving Wednesday for West Africa.

Blue girls lost to Hereford, 22-20

Pampa Blue girls were nipped by Hereford LaPlata, 22-20, in a junior high basketball game Monday. Tina Greenway led the Blues in scoring with seven points. Tina Buntun added four, Trecia George, three; Diana Simmons and Stephanie Rodriguez, two points apiece. Lital scored nine points for Hereford. Pampa outscored Hereford in the middle quarters, but a 6-2 deficit in the opening period proved to be the difference.

Orangemen rout Siena, 99-64

When they played last year, the Syracuse basketball team buried Siena by 52 points. It wasn't as bad this time. The Orangemen "only" won by 35.

"It was a good opportunity to give everyone a shot to play," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boheim after Monday night's 99-64 rout. "It gave us a chance to work on our defense and positioning, and I thought we did a good job on our defense."

"Roosevelt (Bouie) makes such a difference against a team like Siena. Roosevelt dominates so much, they just give up. They can't handle him."

Last year's 144-92 Syracuse romp which set several all-time school scoring records, by the way, prompted a tongue-in-cheek "Beat Siena Week" on the Syracuse campus. The promotion brought banners, chants and a sea of "Beat Siena" T-shirts to Monday's game.

"Our only regret was that they were making a zoo out of the game," said Siena guard Rod Owens. "We took it very seriously. I think all the yelling and T-shirts got us psyched up a little more."

The victory by the nation's second-ranked team was one of four by Top Twenty clubs Monday night. In other action, No. 3 Louisville whipped Memphis State 88-60; No. 9 Notre Dame trimmed Navy 67-53 and No. 11 North Carolina stopped Yale 85-74.

Darrell Griffith scored 31 points to lead Louisville's conquest of Metro Conference for Memphis State. Eight of Griffith's points came in a 22-2 Louisville spurt midway through the second half that put the game out of the Tigers' reach.

Orlando Woolridge scored 18 points to lead Notre Dame over Navy. The Fighting Irish outscored Navy 29-7 at the foul line in the second half en route to their 15th victory in 18 games.

The Irish played once again without forward Kelly Tripucka, who sat out his fourth straight game with a strained back. He was joined on the bench by Gilbert Salinas, who sprained an ankle Saturday night in Notre Dame's 105-71 victory over Davidson.

Mike O'Koren's 20 points paced North Carolina over Yale. The Tar Heels played for the most part without the services of three of their top players — Rich Vonakor, Dave Colescott and John Virgil, all suffering injuries.

"I thought we played good defense in the first half," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, but added, "In the second half, we kept coming down and missing open 15-footers and they would get the rebound and go down and score."

Elsewhere, Michael Brooks scored a game-high 30 points to lead LaSalle over Lehigh 90-79; Randy Smithson and Mike Jones teamed for 25 points to lead Wichita State over New Mexico State 80-78; Bill Fields scored 23 points as Providence defeated Canisius 88-72; Terry Adolph scored 27 points and dished out 14 assists to pace West Texas State past Tulsa 92-80 and Rosie Barnes hit a jump shot with 20 seconds to go in overtime, lifting Bowling Green to a 79-78 decision over Ball State.

Also, Mike Doyle triggered a second-half rally and Jim Strickland scored a career-high 25 points to lead South Carolina over Rhode Island 84-75. Edmund Sherb and Tim Harris sparked a 16-4 run to help Virginia Commonwealth beat New Orleans 72-64; a 26-point performance by Ricky Pierce led Rice over Wright State 84-78; South Alabama defeated Jacksonville 65-58 as Ed Rains scored 15 points; David Little, Kent Williams and Ralph Brewster each scored 12 points as Texas Tech beat Texas A&M 63-53 and LaSalle Thompson led Texas to a 54-point first half and the Longhorns went on to an 84-82 victory over Houston.

Sammy Ellis scored 25 points and Carlton Neverson hit two key free throws with 12 seconds left to lead Pitt over Eastern Kentucky 80-78; Jon Hanley's 18 points paced Xavier over Cincinnati 77-69; Rodney Arnold hit four foul shots in the final 18 seconds to lead Florida State past Auburn 73-69; Brad Branson's 19 points paced SMU over Baylor 73-69; Delmar Harro's 27 points helped St. Bonaventure beat Detroit 88-86; Lewis Lloyd's 30 points paced Drake over Indiana State 85-80; Scott Hastings and U.S. Reed teamed for 27 points as Arkansas beat TCU 77-47.

Bikers place in motocross meets at two sites

Pampa bikers rode away with several honors during motocross races held in Amarillo and Hobbs last weekend.

At Amarillo, James Skinner and Junior Coffee took first and second respectively in the 60 cc class. Marvin Skinner and David Youree were first and second in the 80 cc senior division. Randy Hinds was first and Doug Youree was second in 125 B. Joe Skinner placed second in 125 B.

Marvin Skinner captured first place in both the 80 cc senior division and 80 cc stock division. David Youree took second in both events.

In the 100 cc division, Dean Touble placed second and Doug Youree, third. Youree also placed sixth in the 125 cc novice class.

Most of the Pampa bikers will be going to the United States Amateur Championships later this year in Houston's Astrodome. The national event annually attracts the top 100 riders in the United States.

All but Hinds are sponsored by Skinner's D & S Suzuki of Pampa.

"This will be the fourth year that some of our riders will be going to the nationals," said Billie Skinner. "They're really worked hard for it."

SWAT ADVOCATE, Bobbi Fiedler, Los Angeles School Board member, is shown in her L.A. office. She is advocating the return to spankings of pupils within the school system, a practice which was abandoned four years ago. Only school administrators would be allowed to administer spankings to students under the proposal now before the board. Fiedler has said that, as a demonstration, she would be willing to "bend over" and take three swats herself. (AP Photo)

Traning duties considered for retired Army officers

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Army is gearing up to put 200,000 retirees — primarily officers — on pre-assignment notice, telling them where to report if war breaks out, according to the last issue of an Army publication.

The retirees will be concentrated in various training duties should mobilization be required, according to a story in the "Army Echoes" and an Army spokesman.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told The Dallas Morning News retirees already are receiving questionnaires seeking residence and health status information. Next, the retirees will be told where to report in case of war, the spokesman said.

Those plans will be presented to the defense department in the next few months, the spokesman said.

"What it really boils down to in very simple terms is that the Army is making sure it has detailed information on retirees as a potential source of trained manpower if we ever have to mobilize," the spokesman said.

"All these people are really the key to the early actions of mobilization."

The plan should circumvent problems caused by weakened reserve ranks, which are "several hundred thousand" short of authorized strength, the spokesman said.

"It's something we're very concerned about," he said.

Retirees under the age of 60 in the continental United States are "listed in three categories; those who have been retired less than five years, those who retired more than five years ago and disabled veterans," the spokesman said.

He said retirees with permanent disabilities will be exempt from the plan.

The program calls for the Army "to match up skills needed with skills retirees have and assign selected retirees" to major U.S. Army bases, the spokesman said. The program's "basic thrust is to assign them to some training capacity," he said.

The Army realized during a mock mobilization trial in 1978 it "didn't have a good handle" on where retirees live and what skills they possess, the spokesman said.

Author will speak in Perryton meetings

Dave Wilkerson, famed author of The Cross and the Switchblade and known around the world as the "Gang Preacher," will be speaking Feb. 6th and 7th in the Perryton High School Auditorium located at 15th and Jefferson. The public is invited.

Wilkerson, widely known for his successful work among drug addicts and gang members in New York ghettos, wrote The Cross and the Switchblade, a story of his work, and since has been traveling and carrying his messages to the youth of the world. He is also the founder of the New York Teen Challenge, one of America's most successful drug addiction rehabilitation programs.

Also appearing with Wilkerson will be Dallas Holm, a youthful ex-rock singer who was nearly turned to drugs but now teaches against them. He is very much a part of the Wilkerson Crusade and his singing is much respected among the young people with which he works. "I am very happy with the work I am in now; God gave me this talent and want to use it to serve him."

Everyone is invited to Perryton to hear the word and music of these two extraordinary men, Feb. 6th and 7th at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

14th District race could be exciting

If you like wide-open political races, keep an eye on the 14th Congressional District of Texas this summer.

That's the seat currently occupied by first-term congressman Joe Wyatt, who dropped out of the campaign Saturday, during an emotional news conference.

Several well-known South Texas politicians have filed for the seat in the May Democratic primary, and the post is seen as wide open for the taking.

Wyatt, of Bloomington, said he wanted to fight his personal problems in announcing his withdrawal. Because his decision came within five days of the 6 p.m. Monday deadline, the filing date was extended until Feb. 19 in the Democratic primary only.

Frontrunners at the moment appear to be Nueces County

Judge Robert Barnes of Corpus Christi and State Sen. Bill Patman of Ganado. Former Corpus Christi Mayor Jason Luby and former State Rep. Joe Salem, a Corpus Christi jeweler, also have filed.

The Democratic nominee will go up against Wharton businessman Russ Baird or Jerald D'Unger, a Corpus Christi oil and gas operator. They had filed by 6 p.m. Friday in the Republican primary.

Patman declared last week he would not seek re-election to the Texas Senate this year and was considering a race against Wyatt.

At a news conference in Corpus Christi Monday, Patman said he believed his 18 years as a state senator qualified him to move up to Congress.

Patman is the son of the late

Wright Patman, a power in the Congress for years who died in office in 1976.

His wife, Carrin, is a member of the Democratic National Committee and chairman of the Rules Committee of the state Democratic Party.

He will be campaigning in new territory since the 14th Congressional District contains only two counties that were in his state senate district — Jackson and Victoria.

The most heavily populated county in the 14th is Nueces, which contains Corpus Christi, and where Barnes is expected to run strong. However, Luby and Salem could make inroads in his strength there.

Barnes said he will not resign his post as county judge, basing his decision on a recent court ruling.

To swat or not to swat misbehaving youngsters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A line of thinking running through many American school districts holds that when a student creates havoc in class, three good swats on the behind might set him straight.

But others, including some child psychologists, think spanking is not only ineffective, but also counterproductive. In Massachusetts, the District of Columbia and New Orleans, for example, such discipline is against the law and likened to child abuse.

"Most scientists would argue that it's likely to facilitate the very delinquent or anti-social behavior that you're trying to punish or repress," said Seymour Feshbach, chairman of the psychology department at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Regardless, school districts from California to North Carolina permit paddlings. Los Angeles' district, the second largest in the nation with 545,000 pupils, voted Monday to implement corporal punishment following a four-year absence of the practice.

Los Angeles abolished spanking in 1975. Since then, classroom disruptions have steadily increased, according to teachers' testimony in public hearings prior to Monday's vote.

Where spanking is permitted, school district officials note, it may be administered only when parents give their written consent and under stringent guidelines to guard against possible abuse.

For example, the guidelines in Los Angeles require not only parental consent, but also that only school principals, assistant principals and deans be allowed — in front of witnesses — to administer the paddlings of students from kindergarten through ninth grade.

The guidelines also include a review of the student's health card to ensure that spanking would not aggravate any health problems; a check to see if other remedial measures might be taken before using corporal punishment; and a provision that a "reasonable" alternative be applied if a student absolutely refuses corporal punishment.

Shortly before Los Angeles abolished spankings, the California Legislature passed a law requiring public schools to get parental consent to paddle pupils. That rule applies only to public schools.

But Feshbach said consent is not the issue. Based on available data, spankings are "very hard to apply on an institutional basis," he said. Officials "cannot tell very well what kinds of children it's going to be effective for... If ordered on a blanket basis, it could be misapplied."

"I see a reflection of feelings of incompetence and ability on the part of the school system to enforce adequate discipline, so they're acting in an almost reflex, desperate manner," he added.

Katherine Behrman, spokeswoman for New Orleans school board, also questioned the practice.

"It would be the little kids who would get spanked," she said. "Who's going to spank a 200-pound senior and risk getting thrown out a window?"

An Associated Press nationwide spot survey reflected the split opinion on whether to use corporal punishment.

In Thibodaux, La., where the principal at St. Joseph Elementary School spanked 52 pupils with a paddle last week, school board president Calvin Viator said one lawsuit was threatened but he reported fewer parental protests than he had expected.

In the 91,000-pupil Cleveland public school system, paddlings are used "only after other corrective actions have been tried," said Leo Clayton, directing principal for the city's secondary schools.

Still, parents there may request that no corporal punishment be used on their children. Such requests are granted only after parents meet with the principal and agree to alternative punishment, Clayton said.

America's sweet tooth prompts valley celebration

SANTA ROSA, Texas (AP) — America's sweet tooth is a cause for celebration in the lower Rio Grande Valley, where sugar cane growers are enjoying their best season in four years.

"So far, it's been exceptional," said Jack Nelson, manager of the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers, Inc. "The sucrose content in the cane is very good and so are prices. It's the brightest year of the last four."

Nelson said even two recent industry developments, that normally would spell doom for cane growers, should not drive prices down. Coca-Cola recently announced it would allow a change in its traditional formula, letting bottlers switch from using 100 percent sucrose (cane sugar) to a 50-50 mixture of sucrose and fructose, which is made from corn.

In addition, President Carter has removed a 2.81 cent-per-pound tariff on imported sugar.

Coke's decision will reduce cane sugar use by about 400,000 tons a year, Nelson said, and the tariff removal lowers the U.S. price of foreign sugar. But he remains optimistic, noting increased demand for sugar has brought prices back to profitable levels.

"Prices had gone up to 22 cents and 23 cents per pound and then there was a big drop to 19 cents per pound after the announcement," he said. "But the market has responded quickly. In the long run, I don't think either will have any difference on our growers."

Sugar cane farmers need to sell at 16 cents a pound to break even, he said.

Texas is the only state to produce sugar from both beets and cane. Beets are grown in the area of West Texas around Hereford.

Cane production should yield about 950,000 tons this year, Nelson estimated.

"We should be getting 1.3 million tons, but growers are still recovering from the past few bad years," he explained.

"We had two freezes ... the sucrose content was poor because the cane did not have time to mature before it froze and then it deteriorated rapidly," he said.

There are 109 sugar growers in the valley, ranging in production from 50 acres to 200,600 acres.

Many were hoping a gasohol plan would be located here, giving them another market for sugar cane by-products. A Kansas firm pulled out of the project after the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission questioned the company's intentions to produce alcohol only for fuel purposes and not beverage use.

Nelson said he thinks the plan eventually will be built.

"We'll have to wait to see what the government does with this energy policy," he said.

The Texas cane harvest will continue through March. About 620,000 tons have been cut to produce more than 55,000 tons of sugar and 20,000 tons of molasses.

Proposed rule would benefit foreign owners of U.S. land

WASHINGTON (AP) — World tobacco production dropped 3 percent last year to an estimated 5.44 million metric tons, says the Agriculture Department.

North American output fell 20 percent because of disease and weather damage to the U.S., Canadian and Cuban crops," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Monday.

The U.S. tobacco crop was the smallest in 36 years as a result of reduced plantings, "an extremely wet growing season and the most extensive outbreak of field blue-mold" disease ever recorded, it said.

China continued as the leading tobacco producer in 1979 with a crop estimated at 965,000 metric tons, followed by the United States, 715,307; India, 451,200; Brazil, 399,000; the Soviet Union, 297,000; and Turkey, 242,136.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says China has bought an additional 100,000 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery through Sept. 30.

The new sales raised to more than 1.15 million metric tons the total of corn China has ordered for the 1979-80 marketing year, the department said Monday.

China also has bought more than 1.36 million metric tons of wheat for the wheat marketing year that will end on June 30, and 100,000 for delivery in 1980-81, officials said.

Other commodities ordered by China include soybeans, 539,000 metric tons; and soybean oil, 29,800. Orders for U.S. cotton total more than 2.1 million bales.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans.

STATE BRIEFS

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Texas Farm Workers Union President Tony Orendian is on his way to Tehran at the invitation of militant students holding 50 hostages at the American Embassy.

Orendian left Sunday, saying he expects to be in Iran Tuesday with 15 to 25 other visitors. A meeting of 500 or so persons from across the globe is reportedly scheduled this week to discuss the reign of the shah.

"We are being invited to (see) students at the embassy," Orendian said before leaving. "They (the students) know me from somewhere."

The Texas union leader broke away from the United Farm Workers AFL-CIO in a disagreement with UFW leader Cesar Chavez in 1975.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Michael McCormick, executive director of the Texas District and County Attorneys

Association for four years, said Monday he is a Democratic candidate for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

McCormick, 34, seeks the place on the court now held by Judge W.T. Phillips, who is seeking re-election.

"The position demands more than a willingness to work," McCormick told a news conference. "It also requires a thorough understanding of criminal law and criminal procedure; not only the meaning and intent of the law, but also its courtroom application. I believe I am the only candidate in this race who adequately meets this requirement."

McCormick is a graduate of St. Mary's School of Law, San Antonio. He formerly was briefing attorney to the Court of Criminal Appeals and was assistant district attorney for Travis County. He joined the staff of the district and county attorneys association in 1972.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Offshore leases produced 50,788 barrels of oil in November, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Monday.

The production figure compares unfavorably with November 1978, when the leases yielded 70,235 barrels.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Drillers reported 73 gas and 26 oil discoveries in Texas between Jan. 16 and Jan. 31, the Railroad Commission said Monday.

This compares with 57 gas and 17 oil finds during the comparable two weeks of 1979.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission proposed new rules Monday that would prohibit payment of motor carriers or truck drivers for cargo weights over the legal maximum.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

February 6, 1980

Many fun, exciting things can happen for you this coming year, especially in the social areas. However, a word of caution: Prudent handling of your finances is required.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It would be a costly mistake to try to use money as the solution to winning others over to your side today. Be open and honest and they'll respond with the same fairness. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be tempted to make excuses in order to dodge responsibility for something that went awry. Much to your credit, you'll face up to it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra careful today that you don't handle a co-worker in a harsh manner. Later, it would take all the diplomacy you could muster to patch things up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A task facing you today will be easier to tackle if you think about rewards you'll be getting, rather than of the person who caused the inconvenience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't think you have to manipulate family members in order to get your way today. Use a little flexibility. They'll cooperate with your desires.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may do a lot of fancy talking in an attempt to get out of certain domestic responsibilities today. Don't waste your breath. Your nobler instincts won't permit it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're the most charming and kind person today in dealing with others in all matters except one: Money. In this, you tend to be a little tight-fisted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your zest to take care of all your responsibilities and get your work done today, you could overlook the fine art of handling people. Tread a bit more softly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Chances are you'll adjust your thinking today regarding a self-interest, after something happens to make you realize how singularly you've been behaving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When others accidentally intrude upon the solitary mood you're in today, it will prove easier to exercise tolerance than to try to gain their forgiveness later for snapping at them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A serious domestic matter that has you chafing at the bit needs a solution. Listen to an unbiased third party — this person can help.

Couple ignores handicaps

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Bob and Geri Evans lead ordinary lives. She watches soap operas; he works the night shift, operating a drill press and making parts for aircraft machine guns.

They argue about money. They enjoy making up. The story of their lives is a success story.

Bob and Geri are mentally disabled. Bob is borderline retarded. Geri is retarded and also has a degenerative nervous disorder, Friedrich's ataxia, which confines her to a wheelchair.

Bob and Geri's story is a success story because they are doing what they want to do, because they are happy in a world where being satisfied with life can be quite an accomplishment.

They appreciate being the folks who carry brown-bag lunches, being the people next door, because they've had to fight so hard to get there. And every day they work to stay there.

Four years ago, Bob and Geri became the first developmentally disabled couple allowed to marry and leave Fergus Falls State Hospital to begin a life of their own.

Until a few years ago, they would probably have spent their lives in institutions at a cost of more than $3,600 a month. Now they say the only aid they receive is $233 a month in Social Security and food stamps.

Bob makes $2.50 an hour as a drill-press operator in a sheltered workshop. Geri would like to work and has some office filing experience, but can't find anyone who will hire her.

It's not always easy. At the grocery store they shop the bargains. They buy their clothing at discount stores. They can tell you to the penny what their sofa cost and how many payments they had to make before they could call it their own.

But when Geri shakes her head and says, "It's hard; it's hard for everyone," there is triumph in her voice, triumph in being a part of "everyone."

It's a price Bob and Geri don't mind paying for a life that isn't one sanitized hallway after another, one perfectly balanced meal after another, one rule after another.

Now they can cook their own meals or go out for Chinese dinner. They can plan their own menus, pick their own friends, own their own furniture. And when winter comes, Bob can race Geri's wheelchair along the sidewalk and they can both tumble into the snow laughing. And there's no one to say, "Don't do that."

The new life has other advantages. Geri says in the past two years she has noticed that her nervous disorder has stabilized.

"I think I'm getting better instead of worse," she says. "Maybe you could say it's because I like life more... I feel good about myself. When I do housework, I feel like I accomplished something."

Bob and Geri are romantics. They say they fell in love at first sight and Geri got her engagement ring on Valentine's Day.

Their honeymoon, one night at a motel, complete with champagne, was paid for by their friends at the hospital.

Before that day they spent 15 agonizing months pleading and working within the system to get out. Bob and Geri wanted to marry, but the state hospital was not set up to house married couples.

There were several people and groups who helped put Bob and Geri's dream into motion. People like Bill Johnson, a patients' advocate at the hospital, and organizations like Nektan, which works with mentally disabled persons living independently, and the Association for Retarded Citizens.

Johnson describes the battle to get Bob and Geri out as a war. But, after the war was won, he remembers seeing Geri fondly clasp Bob's hand in the back seat of his car. He remembers her saying, "Now we can lead our own lives."

For Geri the victory meant living on her own after nearly 20 years of institutional life. She was committed by her mother when she was 16.

"At first I didn't understand. Afterwards I understood. She said she couldn't take care of me at home," Geri said.

Bob spent only a few years in the state hospital. He was committed by the courts after he was caught writing offensive letters to girls.
