THE FLAME OF FREEDOM will burn in Hermitage, Pa., until American hostages in Iran are freed, decree Mr. and Mrs. Harry Metrinko, left. The couple's son is being held at the embassy in Iran baits freedom pact for Americans

Associated Press
Iran's President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr offered to free the American hostages if the United States admits its "crimes" in Iran since it helped Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi regain his throne in 1953. But the State Department said there will be no profession of guilt from the U.S. government.

Bani-Sadr said in an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde that the revolutionary government no longer demands the return of the shah before the release of the approximately 50 Americans who today began their 101st day in captivity in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The president said the hostages would be released if the U.S. government:

1. Acknowledged U.S. "crimes" against the Iranian people since the CIA helped overthrow leftist Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh and restored the shah to power.
2. Recognized the right of the revolutionary regime "to obtain the extradition of the shah and the restitution of his fortune."
3. Pledged to "no longer interfere in our affairs."

But in Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter told a news briefing the U.S. government would not "profess guilt" for past relations with the shah as part of a deal to free the hostages.

Carter would not comment further. Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, told reporters the administration is "continuing an all-out effort" to secure the release of the captives, but "when that will come, no one at this stage knows."

Bani-Sadr told correspondent Eric Rouleau of Le Monde that his proposals were the result of a consensus of the ruling Revolutionary Council, which he now heads, and had been submitted to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the 79-year-old leader of the revolutionary regime.

"If he accepts them, it would be up to President Carter to respond in turn," said Bani-Sadr.

He said he had made a separate proposal to the council and Khomeini that control of the hostages be transferred in the next few days from the young militants who seized the embassy on Nov. 4 to a third party.

There was no immediate reaction from the militants, but they have said repeatedly they would obey Khomeini's orders.

Bani-Sadr said if they refused to obey the government's orders, "we would never resort to violence against young patriots. In the case of a divergence of views, I would eventually go to the U.S. embassy to convince them to fall in line with my view."

The president said he favors not one but two international tribunals, one to investigate U.S. actions involving Iran and the one proposed by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to probe allegations of misrule by the shah. But he said the hostages could be freed before completion of the inquiries.

"We are sure to such a point of winning our cause that we are ready to accept in advance the conclusions of an international inquiry," he said. "The two affairs are not connected. It would be sufficient, I repeat, that the United States admit their responsibilities and pledge to no longer interfering in our affairs."

He also said he had sent a "warning" to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to protest "the concentration of Soviet troops at our borders." He said he told Brezhnev: "Withdraw your troops as soon as possible, or else you will lose all trust in the eyes of the Iranian people."

Khomeini marked the first anniversary of the victory of his Islamic Revolution with a call for Iran and the world "to unite and cut off the hand of the criminal America." The revolutionary patriarch was still convalescing from a heart attack and did not attend the huge anniversary parade and rally in Tehran's Freedom Square Monday, but his message was read by his son Ahmad.

Tehran Radio estimated the crowd in the square at 2 million. It reported three persons were killed when they were hit by a tank in the parade, and a fourth person was killed and 66 were hospitalized when a grandstand collapsed.

Tehran Radio also reported that the toll had risen to 26 killed and 87 wounded in four days of fighting between Turkoman rebels and revolutionary guardsmen in Gonbad-e-Kavus, in northeast Iran 30 miles from the Soviet border.

Gromyko in New Dehli explaining Soviet move

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko arrived in New Delhi today to explain the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan to the leaders of India, the Kremlin's biggest Asian ally.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other Indian leaders were expected to urge an early withdrawal of the Soviet troops. But they were expected to do their urging in private.

India was the third foreign country visited by Gromyko in an apparent effort to reduce foreign opposition to the Soviet military action in Central Asia. Previously he visited Syria, where President Hafez Assad backed the Soviet action fully, and Romania, where President Nicolae Ceausescu didn't.

Gromyko in a statement on his arrival did not mention Afghanistan. But he said India and the Soviet Union "have labored strenuously" to develop their ties, and their relations have "never been guided by momentary considerations or mere emotions."

Indian Foreign Minister P.V. Rao welcomed the visitor as "Comrade Gromyko" and said he shared his optimism about continued good relations between their two countries.

Mrs. Gandhi told U.S. presidential envoy Clark Clifford two weeks ago and other visitors that she would try to influence the Russians to withdraw their troops from Afghanistan, but she said she was not optimistic that her words would have any effect.

She and other Indian leaders take the line that no amount of pressure, such as the U.S. arming of Pakistan or a boycott of the Moscow Olympics, is going to budge the Kremlin's resolve to keep troops in Afghanistan as long as the communist Afghan government is unable to contain the Moslem rebellion against it.

The Indians have argued that it might help for the United States, Pakistan and China to satisfy Moscow's demand for guarantees that they will stop helping the Afghan rebels. But all three governments deny providing any help other than humanitarian economic aid to the hundreds of thousands of Afghans who have fled to Pakistan.

While cautiously calling the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan unjustified, Mrs. Gandhi's government has taken pains to declare publicly that the Soviet government has always been India's friend and arms supplier, including during its wars with China and Pakistan.

Clayton testimony set for Wednesday

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston city councilmen appeared today before a federal grand jury investigating an alleged insurance kickback scheme carried out by the FBI.

James Westmoreland, a lawyer serving his fourth two-year term on the city council, and Homer Ford, an architect now in his ninth term as a councilman, went into the closed jury session. Westmoreland was accompanied by his attorney, but Ford appeared alone.

"They didn't try to entrap me," Ford said as he walked in the door. They were the first of 11 persons subpoenaed to testify.

Robert Johnson, executive director of the Texas Legislative Council and House parliamentarian, and Austin attorney Randall Wood appeared before the grand jury later in the morning. Former Houston councilman Frank Mann, who also was scheduled to appear today, was delayed because of a medical appointment.

Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and his executive assistant Russell Kelley are to appear before the panel Wednesday.

The probe, code-named "Operation Briab", has reached into the Texas Legislature, the Houston City Council, and the Operating Engineers International Union.

Subpoenas were served after FBI agents, posing as representatives of the Prudential Insurance Co., ended the investigation of possible government corruption.

Others ordered to testify today were:

- L.G. Moore, Deer Park, regional director of the Operating Engineers International Union.
- Sherman Fricks, business manager of the 7,000-member Pipefitters Union, Local 211.

—John Garrett, a Houston Port Authority commissioner and contractor.

—Jackie St. Clair, executive secretary-treasurer of the Texas Building and Construction Trades Council in Austin.

Subpoenas also were issued for two Westmoreland secretaries, Charlene Womack and Nelia Diaz, and a secretary to Moore, Mary Crow.

Fricks said Monday he did not take any money but expected to receive a subpoena.

"I half-expected to receive it," he said. "After all, I'm in charge of a major union and was involved in the purchase of insurance."

The union's trust committee last fall approved the purchase of a $500,000 group Prudential policy.

"I'm innocent and I assume all the facts will bear me out," Fricks said.

St. Clair issued a statement through a spokesman in Austin who asked not to be identified.

"I am in no way involved in this matter which I have read about in the paper," St. Clair said in the statement. "These people came to my office at one time and I assume that is why I am being called to testify before the grand jury Feb. 13. No one has accused me of any wrongdoing, nor do I expect to be."

The spokesman said "these people" referred to in the statement were Moore, FBI informer Joseph Hauser and two other unidentified men.

U.S. Attorney A.J. "Tony" Canales met with the grand jury Monday to outline the case. He is being assisted by U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd of San Antonio.

Pampa woman arrested in death of husband

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

After an extensive investigation conducted by the Pampa Police Department and the District Attorney's office, the wife of Dennis Lee Smith was taken into custody yesterday afternoon in connection with the Jan. 13 shooting death of the local restaurant owner.

Cathy Darlene Smith of 504 Finley was arrested on murder charges by Lt. Roy E. Denman, Det. Michael Hartsock and police officer Patti Williams at her mobile home located at 504 Finley at 4:10 p.m. Monday afternoon.

After her arrest, the 29-year-old, blonde-haired woman, accompanied by her Borger attorney, John T. White was taken to the county court house where she was arraigned by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford. Bond for Mrs. Smith was set at $50,000 by Lunsford.

Mrs. Smith is presently in Gray County jail in lieu of bond, according to Police Chief J. J. Ryzman.

District Attorney first told reporters the week of the death that although no conclusions had been reached in the shooting, "All available evidence up to this date suggests an accidental shooting."

"The investigation has progressed to a place," assistant district attorney Penny Burt said today, "where the arrest was appropriate."

The case will be referred to the Gray County Grand Jury scheduled to meet Wednesday at 9:00 p.m., she said, one month after Smith's death.

The assistant DA said the grand jury is expected to "go on for some time." She said a number of witnesses will be called to testify.

Smith's body was discovered by city police officers when they were dispatched to the scene of an "accidental shooting" at 12:10 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 13.

After surveying the scene, a coroner was requested to be sent to the location.

Acting as coroner, Lunsford pronounced the man dead at the scene and requested an autopsy be performed.

The body was sent to Amarillo pathologist, Jose Diaz - Esquivel. Results of the autopsy have not been released at this time, however.

Authorities speculate the shooting occurred at approximately 12 midnight.

Physical evidence was taken to the Criminal Investigation Laboratory in Austin by DA investigator, Kirven Roper. The results of the fingerprints and ballistic reports have not been disclosed.

City police along with the District Attorney's office have worked in cooperation throughout the course of the investigation of the case.

Before his death, Smith was the owner-operator of Steddum's restaurant located at 732 E. Frederic.

NATIONAL

A frontal system moving east this morning brought snow from the lower Great Lakes to the mid-Atlantic Coast as scattered light rain fell from the Big Bend country to the Texas Gulf Coast.

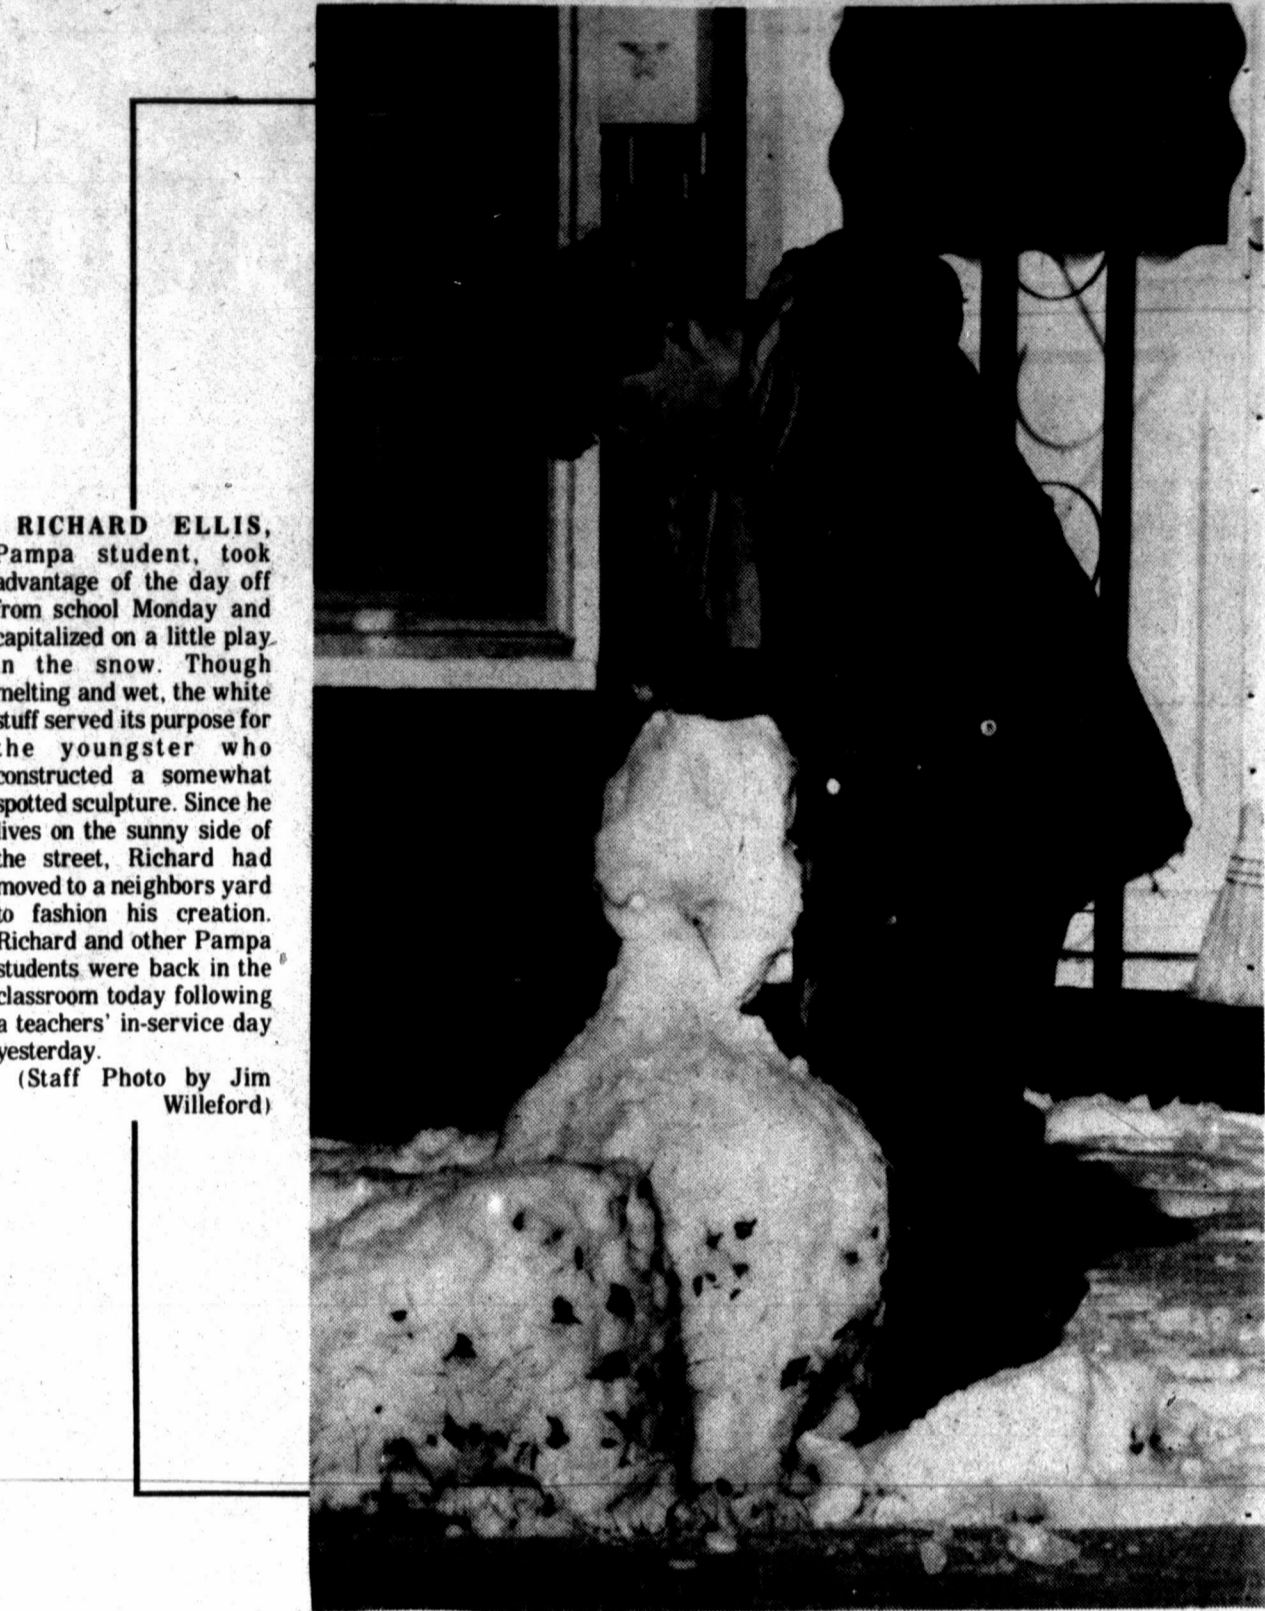

The National Weather Service said snow would be scattered from the lower Great Lakes region to New England. Snow was also expected to be scattered over portions of the northern Rockies and the northern Plains.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 6 below zero in Warroad, Minn., to 60 in Key West, Fla. A cold front extended this morning from a low in Quebec across western New York and Pennsylvania, the extreme western Carolinas, central Georgia and northern Louisiana to the Big Bend area of southwest Texas.

A stationary front dropped from Alberta, through a low in Saskatchewan, across northeast Montana to northwest South Dakota.

A high was positioned over south central Kansas. Here are some early morning temperatures and conditions around the nation: Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 32 fair, Boston 28 cloudy, Cincinnati 7 fair, Cleveland 13 fair, Detroit 18 cloudy, Miami 53 hazy, New York 32 fair, Philadelphia not available, Pittsburgh 16 snow, Washington 37 fair.

RICHARD ELLIS, Pampa student, took advantage of the day off from school Monday and capitalized on a little play in the snow. Though melting and wet, the white stuff served its purpose for the youngster who constructed a somewhat spotted sculpture. Since he lives on the sunny side of the street, Richard had moved to a neighbors yard to fashion his creation. Game Wardens' duties are precarious Buck Williams is the Game Warden for the 1,800 sq. miles in Gray and Roberts counties. He has been serving this area since September of 1964. Williams spends from September to February primarily in Roberts County, because of the good hunting near Red Deer Creek and the Canadian River. Summer finds him in Gray County to monitor the fishing and boating activities in the three area lakes, McClellan, Meredith and Greenbelt.

Although his primary assignment is enforcing the game, fish and water-safety laws, the Texas Game Warden's responsibilities continue far beyond these three basics.

He's a certified Texas Peace Officer and is legally obligated to enforce all state laws. The academic curriculum of the warden includes many phases of law enforcement. Additional training consists of public speaking, courtroom procedure, first aid, Red Cross life saving, boating operations, defensive tactics, drug identification, firearms training traffic and riot control.

During his tenure of duties, he is confronted with many types of violators, from the petite lady without a fishing license, to those with convictions of armed robbery or murder. Recently, in the Panhandle, two escaped felons from Colorado were on a three state rampage. They had stolen three vehicles, committed several robberies and were suspected of one homicide. A Panhandle Warden met the escapees and gave chase. At speeds of over 100 miles-per-hour, the chase continued into remote areas and through fences and gates. After several shots were fired the escapees abandoned their vehicle and escaped on foot. When assistance arrived the felons were already in custody.

The Panhandle Warden mentioned in the exploits above is Gray County's Buck Williams. The Moore County Sheriff stated: "Without the warden's help, these subjects would probably not have been caught and would have continued their rampage into Texas."

A recent survey revealed that state and federal game wardens are eight times more likely to be killed in the line of duty than any other law enforcement officer in the United States.

In addition, a recent questionnaire revealed that 86 percent of the wardens had declined a higher salaried employment to continue their dedication to a worthwhile cause.

The game warden is not the officer in front of the camera and behind the microphone at the scene of a drowning tragedy. Rather he's the wet, silent one in the background, maintaining the recovery vessel, searching for the unfortunate victim.

Many of his duties are confined to rural areas, thus many of the residents fail to recognize the uniform or patrol vehicle. The game warden possesses an unequalled knowledge of remote areas and many times is the first on the scene of some rural tragedy.

Presently 319 game wardens patrol for various types of violations in 254 counties, some 172 million acres of land. Additionally these wardens patrol 80,000 miles of public streams and 160 major lakes plus three marine leagues of off shore coastal waters. Land and water area totals 179,782,200 acres.

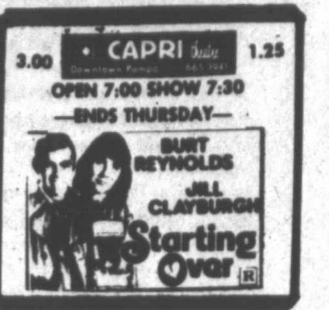

DPS will teach defense driving

A defensive driving course taught by the Department of Public Safety will be held Wednesday and Thursday of this week in the meeting room of Lovett Memorial Library.

Class will begin at 6 p.m. and will continue until 10 p.m. Instructor Jerry Bergdorf of the DPS said there is no age restriction and the number of participants in the class is not limited.

The fee for the safe driving course is $7.50 per person.

Once completed, the course can be used to get 10 percent off your auto insurance, good for three years.

Runaways, driver detained in Pampa

SEVEN JUVENILES

An Amarillo youth is being held in city jail in connection with a stolen auto today and seven runaway juveniles are being detained after police stopped a van for driving in an erratic manner last night.

According to police reports, Corporal Johnny Bennett observed a 1973 Ford van driving erratically in the 900 block of Campbell at about 11:45 p.m. Monday night.

After he stopped the vehicle, he discovered seven runaways from Amarillo's Texas Youth Council (TYC) and Opportunity House.

The driver, Bradley Dale Liles, 17, of Amarillo TYC was arrested and placed in jail for investigation of auto theft.

The seven juveniles, three boys and four girls, ranged in age from 14- to 16- years - old. They were detained in city jail overnight while waiting for transportation back to Amarillo.

Gunman robs Pampa store

ARMED ROBBERY

A lone gunman struck a Pampa grocery store last night at about 9 p.m. and left with an undetermined amount of money.

City police received a report of an armed robbery at 9:10 p.m. at the Ideal Food Store located at 401 N. Ballard, authorities said.

Store Manager Tommy Clark told police a white male entered the store at about 9 p.m. and displayed an unknown type of handgun.

The gunman ordered a female employee to put the money from her register in a paper sack. Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said, then he ordered the woman to empty the other registers.

After obtaining the money, he said, the man left the store.

The suspect was described to police as being a man — believed to be in his mid-20s — of average build, about five feet, nine inches tall. He reportedly had black frizzy hair and a beard. The man was reported to have been wearing an army jacket and blue jeans.

An extensive search was conducted by police last night, but the gunman has not yet been discovered.

Investigation is continuing into the robbery.

Pepper popping Pampan will defend his title

Pampa's pepper-eating connoisseur is heading for Las Vegas tomorrow to beat his own world record of the most jalepeno peppers eaten.

Friday afternoon at 3 p.m., in the bright lights and glamour of one of America's "hottest" cities, Ron Farmer will attempt to eat 110 jalepenos in less than 10 minutes in the main showroom of the Union Plaza Hotel.

If he succeeds, he will beat his own record (to be recorded in the "Guinness World Book of Records") of 100 in 14 minutes and 19 seconds.

This feat was accomplished by "Pepper

Belly" on Nov. 19 in a local Pampa restaurant under the watchful — but not envious — eyes of 75 people and members of the various area news media.

Is he ready for his next attempt?

"I'm psyched up like you wouldn't believe!" the tall, hefty, bearded plumber said. "I know I can do it," he said. "I've been practicing."

Last week was spent in Vegas, he said, promoting his next attempt with the local newspapers, radio and television stations.

Farmer and members of a local country-western band, Wells Fargo Express will take the hotel charter jet to Las Vegas, Thursday afternoon.

GOP executive committee hears candidate

Congressional candidate Ron Slover was the main speaker at the Republican Executive Committee meeting held Monday evening.

The meeting was held to fulfill statutory requirements and to introduce the county precinct chairmen and other Republican officers to the candidate. County Judge, Carl Kennedy introduced Slover, and members listened as Slover explained his reasons for running and his ideas for the Congressional seat.

Not a newcomer to the area, Slover has family in Pampa and is familiar with the needs of Gray County. He is a licensed stock broker, real estate agent, commodity broker, newsman, and businessman.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Gold considered the great reminder

The difficulty with Lord John Maynard Keynes' denunciation of gold as a "barbarous relic" was that no one outside his circle of deficit disciples believed him. Would that this famous British economist were alive today to behold gold soaring in price beyond $800 an ounce and downward again.

Humans in the industrial, nuclear, space age still are fascinated with the soft, indestructible and beautiful metal.

That gold officially valued at $35 an ounce in the world's monetary system when the 1970s began should exceed $800 in value shortly after the decade ended is a measure of global dislocation and uncertainty. In addition to its other complex characteristics, gold serves as a sort of international thermometer measuring the fevers abroad. International bankers attribute much of the recent surge in gold prices to the Iran and Afghanistan crises.

As OPEC nations become ever richer and the West gets poorer, gold, which no government can inflate or debase, will become increasingly attractive to oil producers. Some $9 billion left Kuwait in the third quarter of 1979 alone, much of it said to be in flight to gold.

Aside from the upward pressure exerted by worried foreigners unloading their dollars for gold, its rising price reflects a devaluation of the dollar from inflation caused by our government's fiscal mismanagement. Instead of thinking of gold rising in price more than 15 times in terms of the dollar since 1968, we should consider that the value of the dollar in terms of gold has fallen by more than 90 percent during that period of time. By contrast, the wholesale price index that stood at 100 in 1800 was still 100 in 1930. Despite minor fluctuations there was no general rise in U.S. price levels during 130 years when the country's currency was tied to gold.

Released from the discipline of gold, U.S. wholesale prices rose to 183 by 1950 and soared to 410 by 1976. What we may be seeing in the phenomenal increase in gold prices is something of a financial revolution. Various nations and their central banks are suddenly clinging to gold, using it instead of dollars as their currency reserve and the backing for their national credit. In brief, gold again is becoming the reserve base of the world's monetary system, replacing the dollar.

The consequences of this development during the next decade cannot be foreseen, except there are widespread predictions that the dollar's purchasing power will continue to decline, which is to say the price of oil and gold will continue to rise from current levels, elevated as they may already seem.

Thus it would appear that an enormously shrunken and independent world is belatedly imposing a fiscal discipline upon the United States that Washington has heretofore been unwilling to attempt. The result of this will undoubtedly be painful because the laws of economics, being as inexorable as the laws of gravity, exact unavoidable penalties for infractions.

It would appear the mortgage which we have permitted to become delinquent through excessive borrowing and spending is now due and payable.

Nation's Press

Giving and taxing away

WALL STREET JOURNAL — One of the things we noticed in the President's Economic Report was some refreshingly frank talk about corporate cash flow and return on depreciable assets. Despite the high level of activity in the economy last year and contrary to all that political propaganda about corporate profiteering, the two numbers have begun to look anemic again. As with personal disposable income, taxation has a lot to do with it.

Cash flow as a percentage of the Gross National Product in the first three quarters of last year dropped to 8.5 percent after perking up a bit in 1978. The return on assets was down to 9.2 percent. That's below the 1970-77 average, which included a sharp recession, and far below the 12.9 percent average of 1955-69.

Aside from the fact that corporations were operating at a high level, there was another reason for the federal economists to be surprised by this. The government thought it was giving business a break in the Revenue Act of 1978 when it lowered the corporate tax rate across all income classifications. The investment tax credit was made permanent and extended to a broader range of investments.

But alas, the tax breaks of 1978 were not enough to offset the tax-boosting effects of last year's 13 percent rate of inflation. As the report points out, during periods of rising inflation, the real tax burden on corporations increases because depreciation allowances are based on historical costs rather than on replacement costs.

Or in other words, tax-free depreciation allowances become rather slim compared with the remainder of corporate cash flow, which is made up of taxable earnings.

"Partly for this reason," says the report, "the ration of federal corporate income taxes to profits measured on an economic basis was higher in 1979 than in 1978 despite the reduction in the corporate income tax which took effect in 1979." Again to paraphrase, what seemed like a federal concession to business was quickly snatched away by the combination of inflation and IRS historical cost rules for depreciating corporate assets.

All of which is not a very happy thing. The same inflation which is reducing the return on assets is pushing up the replacement cost of those assets. And difficulties in replacing aging plants and equipment mean that the American industrial plant is going to be modernized more slowly, which in turn will make it more difficult for the nation to reverse the decline in its productivity. The lag in capacity expansion and modernization is reflected elsewhere in the report, for example in the relatively high rate that existing industrial capacity was being used last year. This meant that a lot of obsolete, relatively unproductive capacity was being pressed into service.

The government has two choices: Do something about inflation or permit replacement cost depreciation, or something akin thereto. The first must be done, of course, but it isn't happening fast enough. The second could be done quickly and surely, and it had better be if we are not to end up with a ramshackle industrial plant and a standard of living to match.

What we get for our money

By ROBERT LEFEVRE
There is a point which needs to be made. The American people seem to believe that in view of the taxes they pay, the government owes them a number of services. Therefore, they conclude that they can instruct the government as to the services they want and the services will be provided, the costs of the services having already been covered. This is incorrect.

While the taxes have been paid in advance and abundantly, even copiously, the assumption that government will now provide with no new taxes is false. The amount of taxes already collected by the government are in government hands as a result of commitments already made by the politicians. Thus, when great clamor is made for more services, more benefits, more regulation and control, there is no money available, and taxes will rise if the government heeds the clamor.

This is the point that is either overlooked by the public at large or we must assume that the bulk of the American people are congenial idiots. There is no such thing as a "free" good or service, even from government. Indeed, I could say, "especially" from government. The day the government gives you something for nothing is the day you agree to work for a firm without a wage. It simply isn't going to happen.

I bring this point to the surface right now because the clamor for more and more regulation of businessmen and business goes on endlessly. And the size and volume of these demands causes me to feel that most people thus beating the drum are of the view the government can provide these controls and restraints without added costs. That is pure lollypopism. A great many of the rises in price that we have seen in relation to virtually all goods and services is traceable to regulations and restraints recently imposed on the business community by the very clamor of the people who will find themselves paying the increases. And that's got to be either ignorance or insanity. I'm taking the charitable view.

Let's take one particular industry, the oil business, and see what it is that is pushing up prices.

Recently, following public clamor, the government created a "Department of Energy." This Department, one of the government never had before, has an annual budget of $10,000,000,000 (ten billion dollars) and employs 20,000 people. If you care to look at the meaning of those numbers, one could point out that if all the money went to the people working as regulators and their helpers in that department, each would have $500,000 per year at his disposal.

If we figure the U.S. population at 212 million, it would mean that the government must tax everyone at least $50 per year. A family of four will pay $200 in additional taxes. This will undoubtedly be reflected in a higher price for gasoline and oil, used by consumers.

The sum of ten billion exceeds all expenditures by the petroleum industry in 1975 to explore for and produce domestic crude, natural gas and natural gas liquids which came to a total that year of $9.4 billion. And that's the gross expenditure from all the oil companies big and small.

The Department of Energy budget exceeds all the profits of the seven major oil companies in 1974, when ignorant (or crazy) commentators called such profits "obscene." If the descriptive word has application what would you call the budget of an agency which produces no oil or gas and slows down and obstructs "the production of the people who do?" "Pornographic?"

So many surveys, environmental studies and forms must be filled out today in the process of drilling one well that the costs of recording these instruments (let alone the cost of preparation) averages $293,500 per well!

Let's take a look at the catalytic converter which by law must now be installed on every vehicle and thus be added to the cost of motor vehicle operation.

Everyone admits that the converter saps the efficiency of gas consumption, thereby reducing the number of miles per gallon. And while it is true that some pollutants are removed from the air in consequence, the fact is that other pollutants from exhaust, equally damaging to health and well-being, are increased!

So we now have increased costs by virtue of the necessity to buy more gasoline than heretofore to cover the same number of miles.

This is one of the primary reasons why we have a shortage of gasoline. Gasoline is being used less efficiently. And the laws of economics show us that when supplies are short, prices tend to rise.

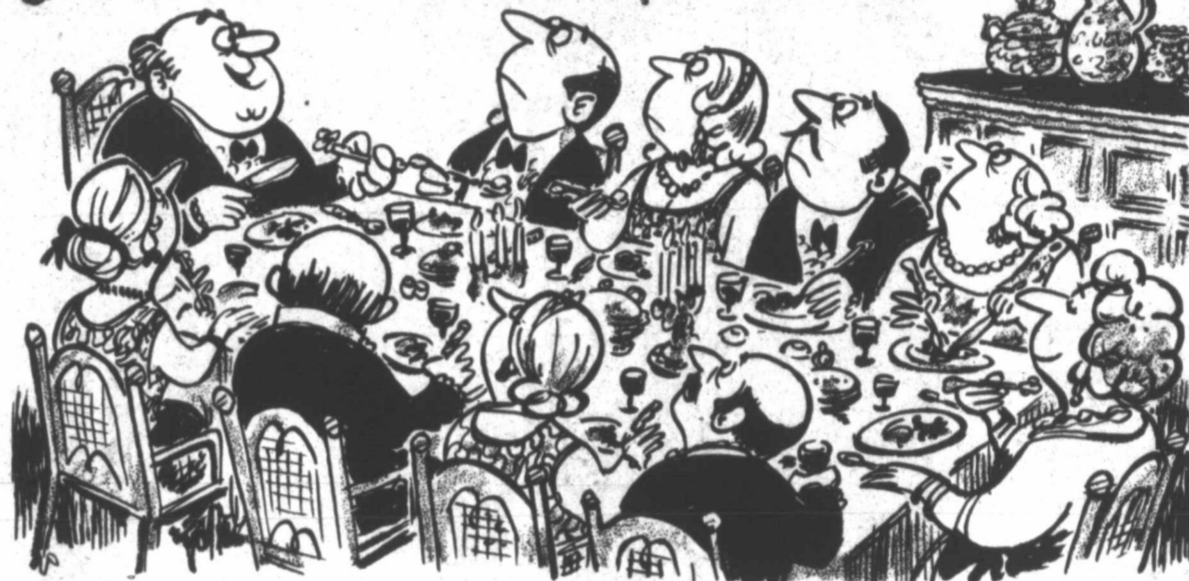

Another reason for the high prices of gasoline is the constant erosion of purchasing power of every dollar, brought on by the granting of government credit. We should bear in mind, that even if the government is not enlarging the amount of currency in circulation (few of us use much currency any longer) credit in use is a form of money. Thus government guarantees of loans, whether granted to firms, such as Chrysler, or to banks, homeowners, students or municipalities, add to the total money in circulation. Credit availabilities add nothing. But credit in use is a form of money.

What is ironic is that the American public seems to believe that the government is going to force the price of gasoline down, assure abundant supplies, inspect and regulate every gas pump, oil well and all the facilities in between and do it all for no costs.

No wonder H.L. Mencken referred to the American people as the great Booboisie.

When somebody's choking what should you do

by Paul Harvey

When somebody's choking, what should you do? Conceivably you could be sued if you should do the wrong thing. Yet you can't allow the choking person to gag, turn gray and stop breathing—without trying something.

Do you give him a bear hug or reach down his throat or pound on his back? What do you do?

Tom Darlington, Scottsdale, Ariz., pioneer developer and one of the founders of the community of Carefree, died—probably many years prematurely—because he choked on stringy food in a public restaurant.

My personal acquaintance with Tom and my understandable resentment that he was not rescued has led me to want to know more about "cafe coronary" and appropriate remedies.

Recently, NBC newsman John Chancellor choked during lunch. Newsman Tom Brokaw alertly gave Chancellor's rib cage a bear hug from behind and dislodged the chunk of cheese.

The American Red Cross would not approve what Mr. Brokaw did.

This led the Wall Street Journal to seek a consensus on what you and I should do in such a situation—and there is none.

Medical men and women remain divided. Dr. Henry Heimlich of Xavier is convinced that the proper response is to get behind the victim, wrap both arms around his or her waist. With elbows winged out and one hand in a fist in the victim's abdomen just above the navel—the rescuer should squeeze, hard thrusts inward and upward until the impediment is dislodged.

This has come to be known as the Heimlich maneuver. Dr. Heimlich says he has documented reports on more than 1,200 people, ranging in age from four months to 93 years, who have been rescued in this manner.

However, a separate school of medical practitioners remain convinced that this method should be preceded by four sharp slaps on the victim's back.

Proponents of the two-step procedure insist that the slaps on the back may be enough—thus there would be no need for the bear hug which conceivably could injure internal organs.

Dr. Heimlich says the slapping wastes time and could cause the food to lodge even more tightly in the victim's throat.

This is more than a disagreement; it is a boiling controversy.

Some medical men say the debate is brought on mostly by Dr. Heimlich's zealotry.

He has made himself available for many television talk shows and there is altogether as much jealousy among scientists as among Hollywood starlets.

Some cities and states are unilaterally ignoring the back slap, recommending the Heimlich maneuver.

The Red Cross and the Heart Association are allied with the two-slap procedure.

Paul Harvey recommends you "take small bites."

What recession

By Don Graff

Consumers can be the craziest people. And as a consequence, economics is still a long, long way from being an exact science.

Take, for example, the widely predicted recession with which the nation was supposed to say farewell to 1979. It didn't show.

The reason it didn't, as one of the prominent predictors, economist Andrew Brimmer, noted the other day, was that American consumers refused to behave as economists thought they rationally ought to behave. Instead of tightening belts as the economy sagged, they went right on spending at a rate sufficient to counteract the anticipated business downturn.

But don't cheer yet. If a recession is bad news, the motivation for the contrary consumer behavior is worse. Inflation. People have been buying now in the expectation that they will have to pay more if they put it off until later.

This may be the explanation for the latest monthly survey of consumer attitudes taken for The Conference Board. The New York-based research organization found consumer confidence "surprisingly strong" in December, virtually unchanged from the month before.

And their future buying plans showed downturns accordingly, with fewer home, auto and major appliance purchases planned.

It could mean that the consumer is beginning to lose heart in the effort to outrun or outmaneuver inflation. And that far from having gone thataway, the recession is still right out there, waiting for us.

Down but far from out

It is not standard practice for a nation to brag about its deficits.

But usually low-posture Japan is doing something very close to that with the figures on its 1979 trade with the rest of the world.

The balance showed Japan on the losing end by $7.5 billion, an abrupt shift, official releases point out with an almost unseemly eagerness, from the previous year's surplus of $18.2 billion.

Japan still recorded a $6 billion surplus in bilateral trade with the United States, but that was far short of the $10.1 billion Japan edged in 1978.

The shift from surplus to deficit can in part be credited to the sharply and steadily upward movement in the price of oil, of which Japan as an industrial superpower is dependent upon imports for its entire supply.

But imports in general are up as compared to exports. In the case of trade with the United States, the former showed a 30 percent while the latter were up 6 percent.

The reasons for the Japanese making such a big thing of their deficit status are by no means inscrutable.

Through most of the '70s they were running such regular and massive surpluses that relations with their major trading partners — West Europeans as well as Americans — were severely strained.

The shift to deficit eases the pressure — and considering that something like $30 billion in surpluses accumulated in the three years prior to 1979 alone, should be affordable.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

Do you older couples share all major decisions with your mates? Or is one of you a doormat and the other an unassailable autocrat who brooks no protest?

We all know a few such couples. Now and then we see a meek little wife who never had a say-so in her young years and is afraid to try for one now. I once saw an elderly couple at a church dinner, he with a plate so full that it needed side boards and she with smallish helpings. He ate his meal fast and then said, "You took more than you can eat, Mama. I'll help you." And he did, wolfing down her meat and vegetables and her whole piece of pie. She made no objection, only sighing resignedly.

Other times it's the wife who assumed control of their lives. I don't often go with Otis when he buys clothes any more because a salesman once said, "We'd better try the trousers on Louise. Most women wear the pants, you know!"

I knew he was kidding but I objected to his across-the-board conclusion. He insisted, "A lot of my customers' wives come along and pick out their husbands' suits and even write out the checks. Plenty of men who had told me they wanted gray suits take home blue ones because blue is the lady's choice."

We all know it's not right for either mate to boss the other to distraction. But we need to watch ourselves, make sure we never fall into the category of domestic dictators. Have you ever wondered why one marital partner would be motivated to make all the decisions, issue all the orders, even take the food out of the other's mouth? I've decided that there are several reasons for this annoying conduct that often results in discontent, quarrelling, even occasional separation when the "slave" takes more abuse than is bearable from the "ruler"?

The bossing may be the result of having been dominated at work, over a long period of time. If a spouse has an employer who is an avid fault-finder, enjoys ranting and keeps it up for years, the worker develops a feeling of being put down that he can't shake without real effort. He (or she) wants to dominate somebody to gain self-respect, so the mean-boss-type shouting is directed toward the mate at home.

Or the smoldering rage sometimes stays hidden until it meets a subordinate who dares not fight back. It's like the army sergeant who was forgiven for being a meanie when the boys met his domineering wife after the war. Nobody wants to be a nobody all his life. We all want to share opinions and help make decisions that affect us.

A second reason for the issuing of orders at home is often the personal insecurity of the bossy one. This can come to light even when the dictator is considered a success by his associates.

This was revealed to me when Otis and I attended a meeting and heard an address by a man who was so feverishly eager to impress his listeners that he pounded his words into us, taking no time for smiling or making friends.

His subject matter was excellent, but I couldn't help noting that his attitude was as nervous as his feet. Although industry considered him a success, he was plainly the victim of a severe inferiority complex. And he was a sourpuss to boot.

When the program was over, we met him and Otis said, "My wife talks on your subject sometimes." The man turned on me as if I'd pulled a rug from under him. "You do? May I ask why? What qualifications do you have for making speeches in my field?"

I got my breath, rallied and outlined my education and experience. I didn't add that I smiled a lot.

As we were leaving, I asked, "Is your wife with you?" He stiffened. "No, she doesn't travel with me. She used to, but she upset me by looking worried when I talked. And she tried to improve me when she knew nothing about public speaking. So I told her to stay at home. And she said she was happier there."

I nodded silently. I knew why. And I hoped his wife continued to love him enough to stay married to him. I knew a lot of women who wouldn't.

I was thankful that there was no domination or arrogance in my marriage. Otis and I share all decisions. And that's marital happiness.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

Dr. Wallace: I am writing this to all teen-age girls who are unhappy living at home. I'm 16 going on 20. I have left home on several occasions and pushed my parents to the limit and caused them a lot of pain. Instead of living at home, I left the state and decided that the time had come for me to be on my own.

It didn't take long for me to realize I had made a mistake. It was a cruel hard world and it didn't take society's undesirables long to take advantage of me.

But I was lucky. My parents loved and cared for me. They took me back home, no questions asked, and were willing to give me a fresh start.

My thanks to them was a promise to stay straight. I now realize that I was selfish and inconsiderate. When my parents told me to be home at 11, I didn't hesitate to come home at midnight.

So girls, if that urge to leave home ever gets to you, please remember my little story. — Sissy, Elizabethtown, Ky.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old woman who recently was hired for a civil service job at a local Air Force base. They gave me a physical, and a few days later I received a call from the medical center asking me to come back since they had something to talk to me about. I went, and was shocked when a nurse told me that my test for syphilis had come back positive!

I immediately called my boyfriend (I'll call him J.) with whom I had been living for nine months, and it really shook him up. I was a virgin when I met J. and have been 100 percent faithful to him, so I figured I must have gotten it from him. He swore he had not been with anyone since we started living together, so if he had syphilis, he must have gotten it before he met me. I believe him, but was very upset anyway.

I took a blood test, and I took another one just to be sure. J.'s came back negative and mine was positive! We couldn't believe it, so we went to another lab and took the tests over again. Mine was positive again and J.'s was negative. We talked to the head doctor and he said there are only two ways to get syphilis: one is through birth, and the other is by having sexual intercourse with someone who has it. Abby, if I had had it since birth it would have shown up before this, and I swear to God I was a virgin when I met J. and I haven't even kissed another man since. How can this be?

If I do have syphilis, how come I didn't give it to J.? We've been sleeping together for nine months. Now he's beginning to doubt that I was really a virgin when we met. The doctor thinks I'm lying too. Nobody believes me, Abby. Please tell me what to do.

DEAR TORN: I believe you. It is entirely possible that you do not have syphilis, but that other factors are causing your tests to show a false positive reaction. Your experience is not unique. Don't panic.

Call your City Department of Public Health and ask them to recommend a physician (most probably a dermatologist) who specializes in venereal diseases. You will be given tests to rule out the false diagnosis of syphilis, and all those doubts will be laid to rest.

DEAR ABBY: The item about widows who bragged about their deceased husbands reminded me of the minister who announced to his congregation: "If anyone out there is perfect, please stand up."

One gentleman stood up. The minister asked, "Are you perfect?"

"No, sir," the gentleman replied. "I'm standing for my wife's first husband."

JACKSONVILLE READER

DEAR ABBY: When a person turns his empty wine glass upside down at the table, it does not mean he doesn't want any wine. It's an old Australian soldiers' custom which means, "I can lick any man in the house!"

I learned this the hard way. If you print this, omit my name. I'm a retired sergeant, living in San Diego now, and I don't want all my old Army cronies writing to me.

NAME WITHHELD

ALL TORN UP

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns you advised a weight reducer that the purpose of losing weight was to eliminate excess body fat and not the normal water in the body. But isn't it true that the body can have excess water and hence contribute to obesity? Or does the body automatically eliminate excess water? I ask this because in addition to exercise, I was thinking of taking steam baths to lose some weight.

DEAR READER: There are a lot of conditions that cause the body to retain excess water, but that's not obesity. Obesity refers to excess fat. Even a person who has heart failure may accumulate excess water. That's because the body retains too much sodium because of poor circulation and the body retains the water in response to the retained sodium salt.

You see the same thing in women just before their menstrual periods. That's because estrogen stimulates the body to retain salt and when you retain salt, you retain water.

The body has to have a certain amount of water to be in a good healthy state. If it loses this water it's dehydrated. This varies, but on the average between 50 and 70 percent of a person's body weight is water. Men tend to have a higher percentage of body water than women.

If you lose this normal amount of water, which is vital to your basic metabolic balance, you're like a plant that hasn't been watered and you begin to wilt. In older people this can cause mental confusion. This can also occur in younger people, but older people are more susceptible to changes and their bodies are sometimes less able to cope with the abuses imposed upon them.

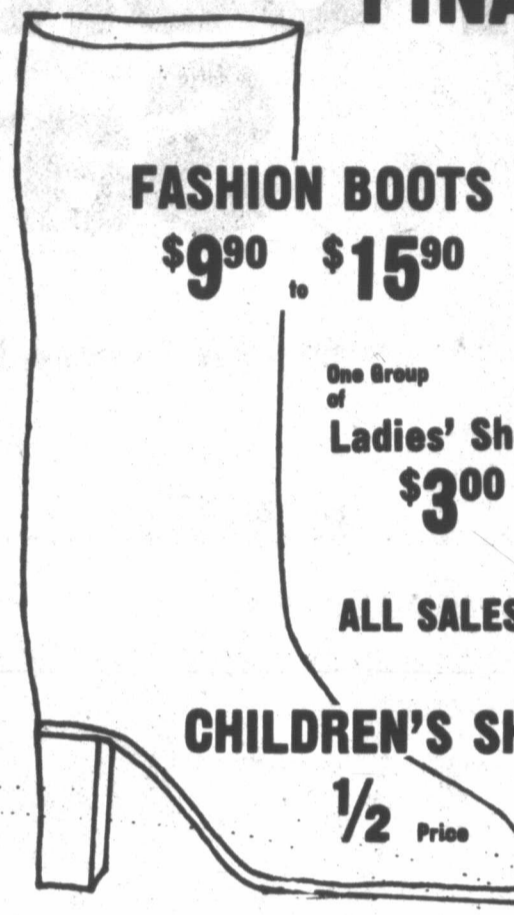

If you deplete the normal body water, it's not a healthy state and as quick as the body can, it will try to readjust to its normal healthy level. To use the plant analogy, if you let a plant dry out and then give it some water, it will absorb as much of it as it can until the plant becomes properly hydrated again. You can see it literally suck in the water and get rid of the wilted appearance.

Fat tissue actually contains very little water. Only about 15 percent of a pound of body fat is water. Compare this to a pound of lean muscle which is more than 70 percent water.

No, I'm afraid eliminating your normal water stores won't help relieve your obesity problem if you have one. I don't think that taking steam baths is a good way to try to get rid of the excess roll of fat that most overweight people have around the waist.

Tricks of trade told by con-artist

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Cashiers, beware of the shortchangers, warns one shortchanger who says she is reforming. She told her story to the Chattanooga News-Free Press, on the condition that the newspaper not identify her.

She proposes to conduct clinics at businesses — charging a fee — to show employees how to guard against shortchangers.

She said she had learned shortchanging in a Los Angeles bar and had done it for 14 years without getting caught, claiming to have made more than $100,000.

The woman recounted one of her typical filmflams: The shortchanger walks up to the counter carrying an item, in this case one costing less than a dollar. She pays for it with a $10 bill — holding several other $1 bills in a pocket.

The cashier returns change and the shortchanger, in pocketing the silver, seemingly discovers the $1 bills in her pocket and turns them in for a $10 bill.

Combining the $5 bill and four ones she received as change from the cashier with the assorted singles from her pocket, the shortchanger counts off a $5 and four $1 bills and gives them to the cashier for the $10 bill.

But the set-up has just begun. Having taken the $10 bill, the filmflammer says she's afraid she shortchanged the cashier and asks the cashier to count what the trickster knows to be nine dollars.

"Oh well, here's a ten and a one to go with that, just give me a twenty," is the usual line.

If it's been a success, the cashier accepts the $10 and $1 bills, puts them with the $5 and four $1 bills and gives the shortchanger a $20 bill.

Even? Not quite. The cashier has been shortchanged $10 minus what was paid for the original item.

"I used to wait until the lunch rush was tapering off, when I knew there would be $20s in the register," she said.

She said managers fighting the problem must convince employees that it exists, since the cashier is usually unaware of the deficit until the money and register tape are matched at day's end.

"The most important rule is one transaction at a time," she said.

"When I pay for my Coke, you should give me change and shut the register, no matter what I say or do to keep you from doing it."

A second rule: "Never take money out of the register until you have my money in hand."

Her victims, she said, are the agreeable, those she believes she can catch off-guard. "It works because people are so easily intimidated. It's best to pick on nice waitresses."

Firemen walk out after city debate

WILMER, Texas (AP) — This southern Dallas County town of 2,250 people was without firefighters today following a dispute with the city council over insurance for the vehicles they drive.

Mayor Pro Tem Henry Landrum said the city's 20 volunteer firemen said they would not respond to fire calls if they are forced by the City Council to insure the vehicles they drive on duty.

Authorities said there were no fires Monday, the first day of the walkout.

The city's one police officer was on duty, but Landrum said he was not certain if reserve police officers would respond if they were called to duty.

One city official who asked not to be identified described the situation as a "real mess."

"The firemen are refusing to answer any calls. Some of the police have said they wouldn't respond, but we haven't had any problems yet," the official said.

Landrum, who refused to admit the situation was causing problems, said Fire Chief Sam Craft, Police Chief Frank D. Petta and reserve police officers would respond in case of a fire.

R WHAT IS GUM DISEASE?

If plaque is not removed at least daily, it accumulates and bacteria in the plaque produce substances which irritate the gum tissues. Eventually the tissues pull away from the teeth, leaving deep pockets that become filled with bacteria and pus.

Among the warning signs of gum disease are:

1. Bleeding of gums
2. Persistent bad breath
3. Soft, swollen or tender gums
4. Loose teeth
5. Gums shrinking away from teeth
6. Any change in the spaces between teeth or in the way teeth come together.

Boycotting longshoremen score with judge's order

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Norman W. Black, without giving a reason, has declined to issue a temporary injunction that would end a longshoremen's boycott against loading American grain bound for Russia.

The International Longshoremen's Association ordered the boycott Jan. 9, two days after President Carter called for a curtailment of shipments to Russia beyond the five-year 1975 agreement.

The National Labor Relations Board sought the injunction after farm groups complained the longshoremen were violating federal labor laws and adversely affecting commerce.

Black said Monday he would give his reasons for rejecting the request for a temporary injunction later. The judge said during a hearing Friday he was not sure the NLRB had jurisdiction in the case. The Justice Department filed a document that contends a prolonged embargo by the longshoremen would impair significantly American foreign policy interests and adversely affect the domestic economy.

The document said 2.8 million tons of grain remain to be loaded this year under the 1975 agreement. The Justice Department said Carter's intent was to stop optional purchases in excess of the amount already agreed upon.

Underworld shake-up discovered by FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has evidence crime syndicate bosses were planning as recently as last week to call a summit conference and carve new boundaries in underworld fiefdoms spanning the nation, knowledgeable sources say.

But FBI officials now believe the session was canceled after public disclosure of bureau investigations, including Brilab, the sources said.

The secret summit, involving crime bosses from an undetermined number of cities, was said to equal in scope the notorious 1967 conclave of more than 60 mob leaders in Apalachin, N.Y.

The FBI learned of the planned session through several major investigations of organized crime, including Brilab, the undercover probe of mob involvement in insurance bribery and kickbacks in the Southwest, said sources familiar with the investigations.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said mob leaders were drafting plans to alter the boundaries and terms of agreements giving each of them exclusive rights to a certain geographic region. The mobsters involved are the bosses of the syndicate the FBI calls La Cosa Nostra.

"This included narcotics traffic and everything else organized crime is involved in," one source said. "There were a variety of modifications in the works."

The sources declined to say where the summit was to have taken place.

The first hint of the underworld plan surfaced when a letter from Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann was made public in federal court in Los Angeles on Friday. Heymann wrote that the FBI "is on the verge of developing evidence regarding a massive, nationwide conspiracy relating to the allocation of territories in the United States for certain types of illicit activities."

The planned conclave was reminiscent of the Apalachin summit, which started the nation with the strongest evidence to date that a national crime syndicate did, indeed, exist.

Until then, J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI director, had resisted urgings to investigate organized crime. After New York state police disclosed the Apalachin summit, Hoover was forced to pay attention to crime syndicates.

But it was not until the 1970s that the bureau focused on organized crime in a major way.

When William H. Webster took over as director two years ago, he accelerated the investigations with more sophisticated techniques, often employing court-authorized wiretaps and agents working undercover for months at a stretch.

Evidence of the new gangland summit was developed partly from the Southwest insurance investigation, another long-running FBI probe of organized crime in the Midwest, and at least one other separate but interwoven investigation of organized crime.

Connally blasts investigations

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John Connally took time from a fund-raising dinner in his honor Monday night to criticize the FBI for its handling of recent bribery investigations.

Connally referred to allegations by the FBI involving officials in several states, alleging an insurance kickback scheme.

"Here you have an obvious scheme on behalf of the FBI to test the morality and integrity of public officials," Connally said. "I think it is an extension of the FBI role that goes too far."

"So far as I can see, they were not investigating any crimes. On the contrary, they were guilty of trying to create a situation, creating circumstances, testing morality."

Connally spoke with newsmen prior to a speech before 1,500 persons attending the fundraiser at Albert Thomas Convention Center. The $100 per plate dinner netted an estimated $170,000 for Connally's campaign fund, officials said.

Connally suggested at one point "there must be more to it than we know now."

He then added, "Obviously, the more that comes to light, they weren't investigating a crime, they were enticing those individuals into their lair."

The GOP presidential hopeful said the Justice Department would be hard pressed to prove their investigation was not a case of entrapment. "It looks to me like the FBI deliberately set out to entrap a number of people," Connally said.

The former Texas governor later told the dinner crowd the United States would have to make drastic changes if it is going to survive. He suggested new alliances in the Middle East, and said the economic future of America lies in a Pacific-based common market.

Union balks on company proposals

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — International Harvester Co. has done its best to break a deadlock in contract talks and the next move is up to the United Auto Workers, a company spokesman says.

Dan Holden, a member of the IH bargaining team, said Monday the UAW has rejected the latest company contract offer without explanation or a counter offer. IH is willing to return to the bargaining table at any time in an effort to end a record 103-day strike, but the union is holding up resumption of talks, he said.

"Our current offer is within a few percentage points of Caterpillar, Deere and the auto settlements," Holden said. "The company has made a significant concession, eliminating the major issue in the strike, that being mandatory overtime. The union is unwilling to meet and discuss this proposal."

Nearly two weeks ago, IH offered what the union conceded was a "significant change" in its contract proposal. The modified offer would allow employees to continue to work overtime on a voluntary basis, much as was the case under the old contract.

Under the company offer, a new pool of workers made up of part-time UAW members, would be created. If not enough full-time workers volunteered to work Saturdays and Sundays, the company have be able to draw from that part-time pool.

"We're not sure what their alternative is," Holden said. "Until the union is willing to return to the bargaining table, the strike will continue."

Cletus Williams of Canton, head of the UAW bargaining committee, says the union rejected the IH offer because it still provided some form of mandatory overtime

THE COST OF COOLING JUST DROPPED TO

100* BELOW

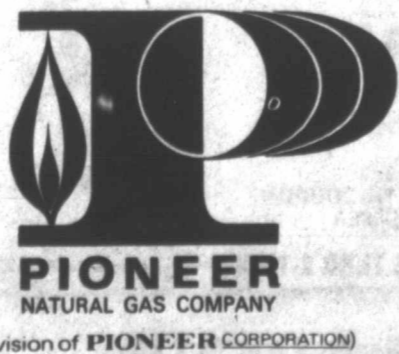

Install new Arkla Servel Gas air conditioning now and the price will drop $100. You'll receive a $100 rebate direct from the factory if you buy now, and install before May 1... plus no payment is due until May. But the price is not all that will drop when you install Gas air conditioning. The amount of gas energy needed to keep your home cool will drop, and so will maintenance costs.

New Gas air conditioning systems use less gas because the constantly burning gas pilot has been eliminated, and replaced with a new pilotless ignition system. That makes Gas air conditioning more energy efficient. And using less energy will save you money.

Gas air conditioning is dependable. It's built to last and last, with no loss of cooling capacity. Hand-crafted of sturdy stainless steel components, Gas air conditioning has fewer moving parts and no compressor to wear out or break down. That means less wear and tear, and lower maintenance costs. And to prove its dependability, Gas air conditioning gives you a ten-year no sweat warranty.

Gas air conditioning. It's quality constructed to lower maintenance and operating costs... to save energy and money. And if you add adequate conservation measures to your home, like storm doors and windows, caulking and insulation, you can save even more.

Drop the high costs of summer cooling now. Call Pioneer for a free cooling survey and cost estimate. We'll drop by your house to help you determine the gas system that fits your cooling needs best. There's no obligation.

Hopefuls stump South

(AP) Presidential hopefuls stumping the South in search of delegate support are seeing a different South, politically speaking.

Since 1976, several key figures have departed. Alabama Gov. George Wallace, a serious challenger to Jimmy Carter in the early 1976 primaries, retired in 1979. Although he remains in the state, the Wallace Era clearly has ended and his influence in the 1980 race is marginal.

Alabama also has lost two powerful U.S. senators since 1976. John Sparkman retired after three decades in Washington, but was replaced by Howell Heflin, a Democrat who is generally considered Sparkmanesque in his liberal-conservative blend. James B. Allen, a staunch conservative, died in 1978. He was replaced by Democrat Donald Stewart, a young state senator.

In Arkansas, long-time Sen. John L. McClellan died in 1977 and was succeeded by former Gov. David Pryor, another Democrat. In Florida, Democratic Gov. Reubin Askew stepped down in January 1979 but was appointed by Carter to serve in a Cabinet-level post as a special trade representative. He was succeeded by Democrat Bob Graham.

In Mississippi, Sen. James O. Eastland, president pro-tem of the Senate and chairman of the Judiciary Committee, retired in 1977. He was succeeded by Thad Cochran, a Republican.

In Georgia, perennial Democratic power Herman Talmadge was denounced by his Senate colleagues in 1979 for alleged financial misconduct and currently faces the toughest re-election battle of his 23-year Senate career.

Kentucky acquired a virtual political unknown — John Y. Brown — as governor in 1979, when Brown defeated former Gov. Louie Nunn to succeed fellow Democrat Julian Carroll.

Louisiana lost two powerful legislators in 1976 — Rep. Otto Passman lost his seat to another Democrat, Jerry Huckaby, and Democrat Rep. F. Edward Hebert retired. Scandal then rocked the state's politics when Hebert was succeeded by Rick Tonry, a Democrat who lost the seat a year later after being convicted of accepting illegal campaign contributions. Tonry's successor was Republican Robert Livingston.

Tennessee's governorship changed parties in January 1979 when Democrat Ray Blanton was ousted three days early in a dispute over 11th-hour pardons. He was succeeded by Republican Lamar Alexander.

In Texas, Gov. Dolph Briscoe was defeated in the Democratic primary by Attorney General John Hill, who in turn was beaten by Republican Bill Clements in the general election.

Life saving class set

An advanced life saving class is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 19 at 6:30 p.m. at the Pampa Youth Center.

The 20 hour course sponsored by the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross will be instructed by Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Frankie Hildenbrand and Kathy Hess.

Anyone seeking to enroll in the class is requested to call the Red Cross Office at 669 - 7121 before Feb. 19.

January fire report released

The Pampa Fire Department responded to 38 alarms within the city limits during the month of January although none were of major proportions, fire officials said.

Eight of the fires involved a home, according to Assistant Fire Chief J. D. Ray. In each incident, he said, the fire was contained and extinguished in the room in which it started.

Defective heating equipment was blamed as the cause of three of the fires, while two started in the kitchen cooking area. The other three house fires were caused by careless acts, he said.

One storage building and its contents were totally destroyed, Ray said.

Other alarms answered by the city fire department included nine calls on gas and trash fire, five emergency calls, and five calls to check the source of a smoke odor.

Five incidents involved the washing and diluting of spilled gasoline.

Firemen were also called outside the city limits to extinguish five fires in Gray County.

A rose is a rose . . . for a price

The cost of saying "I Love You" with roses is going up. Sending your true love a dozen, long-stemmed red roses for Valentine's Day on Thursday will cost nearly $50 in some cities and a few places report prices as high as $5 a blossom.

You can trim the tab in half by shopping around, however, and florists say there is an abundant supply of other flowers at much lower prices.

"There are ample flowers on the market," said Art Gasior of Allied Florists of Illinois, adding that good buys include jonquils, tulips, carnations, anemones and irises.

An Associated Press spot check showed rose prices vary widely, from city to city and neighborhood to neighborhood; a florist with a fancy store in a high-rent district may be twice as expensive as one with a small store in a cheaper area. Prices also depend on the type of greenery you want, the complexity of the arrangement — box, vase or simple bow — and whether you want the flowers delivered.

"The real problem is that there are 30,000 individual florists setting prices," said Ed Buckley of Floral Reports, an industry newsletter in Chicago.

Buckley said he didn't have complete price figures for 1980 yet. In February 1979, the average retail price for roses of all kinds was $1.89 per flower, up from $1.66 a year earlier. Based on past experience, Buckley said, this year's average retail price could top $2 for the first time in history.

Buckley said some Chicago stores were charging as little as $2.50 per rose — from $24 to $30 a dozen. One New York City florist quoted a price of $48 a dozen for long-stemmed roses. Another store, three blocks away, is charging $60 a dozen.

Bob Flagg of Allied Florists of Houston said florists in his area were paying from $1 to $1.25 per rose. At the retail level, he said, "I've heard 'em quoted at $40, at $45, at $50."

Tanker crew testimony says Blackthorn quiet

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn failed to answer two radio calls from the tanker Capricorn before the two vessels collided, killing 23 seamen, investigators have been told.

H. Eugene Knight, pilot of the Capricorn, testified Monday the "unknown vessel" was already west of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge over Tampa Bay and coming toward the 586-foot tanker when he radioed.

"No response," he told a Marine Board of Inquiry investigating the Jan. 28 collision that was the Coast Guard's worst peacetime disaster. No one aboard the Capricorn was hurt.

Knight said he "never took my eyes off" the cutter which was "seven or eight ship-lengths" away when he first spotted it.

About the time of Knight's second radio call from a walkie-talkie, the Blackthorn failed to start a slight right turn from one leg of the channel to the next, he testified.

"I decided he was going to make the course change," the pilot said. "I decided...that it had to be a critical crossing."

Knight said he ordered a slight left turn and then "hard left rudder" to avoid the cutter as it continued to move in the Capricorn's path.

He said he pulled two whistles to indicate the left turn and seconds later pulled the four-whistle "danger signal." He said he also stopped the engine.

As the two boats collided, Knight said, he could see a red light appear on the left side of the Blackthorn, indicating it had made its right turn too late. Within minutes, the cutter sank.

The Blackthorn, in service as a buoy tender, had just set out for its home port in Galveston, Texas.

Knight said he put his ship in reverse after the collision in an effort to avoid hitting the Skyway Bridge.

Although Knight said he twice called the Blackthorn on radio channel 13, a Coast Guard quartermaster has said the cutter was tuned to the channel but the crew heard nothing.

Prices climb at gas pump worldwide

By WILLIAM GLASGALL, AP Business Writer

The next time you pump $1.20-a-gallon gasoline into your car — and think longingly back to last year when it was half as much — consider the poor motorists in other countries. You could have it worse.

You could be driving in Bulgaria, where the price of a gallon of regular gasoline doubled to $4.32 last year, or in Italy, where a gallon of high-test would set you back $3.02, up 71 cents a year.

An Associated Press worldwide survey, conducted in late January, found that gasoline prices in most countries jumped as the world price of crude oil doubled to nearly $30 a barrel over the past year.

In Hong Kong, gasoline climbed to $1.72 from $1.12, prompting one wealthy factory owner to forsake his luxury Mercedes-Benz and Continental cars for a compact Honda.

Israeli schoolteacher Shlomo Eidan said a 53 percent increase in gasoline prices over the past year has meant "there's no way I can afford to drive my car to work instead of taking the bus" for his daily 24-mile round-trip commute.

"We take the car only if we have a lot of shopping or for trips, which are very infrequent these days," Eidan said. Israeli gasoline prices have risen to $2.60 a gallon from $1.70 a year ago.

In Denmark, bus use in metropolitan Copenhagen jumped 10 percent as the price of a gallon of gasoline climbed to $2.55 from $1.45 a year ago.

Even in oil-rich Britain, gasoline now costs $2.34 a gallon, up from $1.64 a year ago.

A survey by the Greater London Council said the price rise apparently has spurred a drop in the number of cars entering the British capital, a 2 percent weekday decline and 4 percent on weekends.

"We might use the car once a month over the weekends now," a British housewife told the AP. "A year ago, it was every weekend, and now I think twice about driving to the supermarket in London on weekdays."

In Italy, however, gasoline consumption climbed 8 percent from the 1978 level despite the price increases. U.S. gasoline use fell 5 percent in the same period.

The average price of a gallon of regular gasoline at a full-service U.S. station was $1.13 in January, up from 68.42 cents a year before, according to the Lundberg Letter, a publication that covers the industry.

In many areas, prices are expected to continue to climb as the new Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries price boosts that hit in late January and early February work their way down to the pump.

Those increases will hurt poorer countries especially. In Kenya, where the World Bank estimates annual per-capita income at $270, the price of a gallon of premium gasoline has risen to $2.16 a gallon from $1.57 at the end of 1978.

But motorists aren't paying more everywhere. Big cars clog streets and highways in Venezuela, OPEC's fourth-largest member, where the price of premium has remained at just 30.8 cents a gallon over the past year.

A traveler who visited Saudi Arabia this month said the oil cartel's largest producer has even cheaper fuel: High-test at 29 cents a gallon.

In Mexico, another major producer, the state oil monopoly has frozen the price of gasoline at 46 cents a gallon for regular and 65.4 cents for premium since November 1978.

And in Canada, where controlled domestic crude oil prices are 60 percent below the world level, drivers pay 81 cents a gallon for regular gasoline, up from 71 cents a year before.

FARM BRIEFS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the U.S. trade squeeze, more grain is reaching the Soviet Union than had been expected a few weeks ago, according to an Agriculture Department analysis.

But the Soviet Union's grain needs are even greater and will begin to put severe pressure on available supplies by this spring, the report said Monday.

As it looks now, the Soviet Union will import about 28 million metric tons of grain from all foreign sources this year, some 3 million metric tons more than U.S. experts had been predicting.

On Jan. 15, the department estimated the Soviet Union's grain imports would be reduced to about 25 million metric tons in 1979-80.

"A continuing reappraisal of amounts (of grain) likely to be available to the USSR from all origins prompted the increase in the USSR import estimate," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

Before President Carter announced on Jan. 4 that U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union would be sharply reduced — including an embargo on 17 million metric tons that had been earmarked for delivery this year — the department projected Soviet imports at about 34 million from all foreign sources.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Although the United States has received support from other major exporting nations in enforcing the grain squeeze on the Soviet Union, department officials have admitted for some time there will be "leakage" in the system.

Grain shippers in Argentina, for example, have been reported making deals with Soviet buyers who, according to some accounts, have been offering premium prices for Argentine grain.

Even so, the new analysis said the Soviet Union — which had a short harvest last year — "is still expected to suffer a grain shortfall during the latter stages" of the 1980-81 marketing year, which will end June 30.

"Of the total projected imports of around 28 million metric tons, nearly 60 percent had been shipped to the USSR by early January," the report said.

"Consequently, the slowdown in imports due to the U.S. suspension of sales could start to impact on the USSR as early as March and will be most significant during the April-June period prior to the new crop harvest," it said.

"Despite the tight feed situation, reported livestock inventories on Jan. 1, 1980, were at record levels," the report said. "Adjustments in feeding rates and livestock inventories may be necessary as feed supplies tighten."

Looking at the current crop situation in the Soviet Union, the report said the weather has been "generally good, with moisture supplies improving in some regions" where winter crops were planted last fall under dry conditions.

"In the event that favorable conditions continue, the 1980 Soviet winter-grain area could parallel the large 1978 winter grain area," it said.

In 1978, good weather and a large acreage helped the Soviets harvest a record 237.2 million metric tons of grain. Last year, however, production plummeted to 179 million metric tons, triggering a demand for record imports from the United States.

EXPENSIVE HERE, BUT IT COULD BE WORSE. Americans are winning more often these days because of the rise in gasoline prices, but it could be worse. Foreign countries are reporting double, triple and even quadruple prices as compared with the United States.

Aerosmith is still happening

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"We're still happening," says Steven Tyler, lead singer of Aerosmith. "Led Zeppelin is still happening, both of us after difficulties. It is a warming feeling, that nobody is throwing the towel in. Although I can understand it when it happens. Sometimes you want to throw it right over."

"Still, the times I've felt the weakest are when I've been off the road a long period of time. I go back and I'm fine. I don't remember what it was like to be normal."

Tyler saw the movie "The Rose" and found a lot of reality in it. He says, "You know what things can take you down. The stuff she was coming right out with is very true. Things can get phony and false. You know the things you can get caught in, that grab your ankles and grab your knees and make you feel like you're sliding down a cheese grater."

"There are times when you feel the treadmill. You work yourself into a rut and grind. Sometimes I go home after being on the road eight months and I lean over the bed to the phone and dial 2 for room service."

"It's nuts. It is also fun and rewarding, so I got no complaints." Aerosmith, which got together in 1970, became one of America's top hard-rock bands in the mid-1970s. It was signed by Columbia Records in 1972, began touring almost nonstop and hit it big with the third album, "Toys in the Attic," in 1975.

Gold albums are "Live Bootleg," "Draw the Line" and "Rocks," which also are platinum, and "Get Your Wings," "Toys in the Attic" and "Aerosmith."

There was a slump in 1977; recoup with a tour in 1978. In 1979, lead guitarist Joe Perry left to form his own band, the Joe Perry Project. It was the first personnel change and an important one.

Tyler, partly because the shape of his mouth is similar to Mick Jagger's, has been compared to Jagger and Perry compared to Keith Richards of the Rolling Stones.

Most of Aerosmith's songs had music by Perry and lyrics by Tyler. But their philosophies were different, Tyler liking details planned out and Perry liking to experiment musically.

The new album, "Night in the Ruts," took a long time to make. Tyler says, "One of the reasons Joe left the band was that it took such a long time. I told him I didn't want this album to be anything short of being great. It has proved itself."

Still, Aerosmith wondered whether it could get along without Perry.

But Jimmy Crespo, formerly with Flame, joined as lead guitarist and "fits in like mercury in a thermometer," Tyler says. He says there have been no chants of "Where is Perry?" And the music has gone well on stage.

Tyler says when he gets the signal the set has gone an hour and 43 minutes he feels he's been on stage only half an hour. Also in 1979, Aerosmith's concerts sold out or sold well and that wasn't true of all groups, even well-known groups. Tyler says, "Our worst nights were break-even nights; we didn't have a minus. A minus is like a 13,000-seat house and under 7,000 showing up. Some nights we filled 20,000-seat houses. I'm really surprised, actually."

This year's touring started off the same way. After about a month during which Tyler will write songs with new partners, they'll start touring again in the spring.

Asked about punk rock, Tyler says, "A lot of punk groups that were kind of rotten are now coming around. That was my prediction anyway. People were grabbing anything they could. Nothing was going on for a while. Punk was nothing-music, too."

"But I knew some groups would finally get better the more they played. It hasn't hurt groups like ours."

Tyler is enthusiastic about the picture on the "Night in the Ruts" cover. He says, "We looked up 1921 shots of old-fashioned mining people. We got the clothes and hats and picks and shovels and we went to this mine in Los Angeles. It's up in the hills. It's a shaft that goes right through a mountain and branches off."

"It's in a park now. You pay a fee and do a movie or whatever. The original 'Buck Rogers' was done there and 'Star Trek' and 'The Lone Ranger.'"

The singer says, "My idea of a great album is one that spreads you out, that goes in different directions. On the new one, we've got 'Walking in the Sand' from the 1960s; 'Reefer Head Woman,' that was recorded in 1921; 'Three Mile Smile,' about the nukes, how up-to-date can you get? Some people think 'Mia' is about my daughter. It's about the Indians."

"It makes me feel good that I was able to strike that vein where different interpretations are possible. I used to ask my friends in art school what something meant. They hesitated to tell me. Art is what you think it is afterwards."

Tyler moves around a lot on stage. He says, "Our music calls for it. And I love it. It is like May Day and there is a pole with thousands of streamers. I grab a streamer and run around in circles and stuff."

"Doing the songs live from a new album is such a rush. I can't tell you. It is just the greatest. I see the kids saying the words and I don't even know them yet."

"I used to write my arms full of words and then I'd sweat so much. I have sheets all over the floor now with the words to four or five songs. All bands have that, though, especially when they're doing a new album. It gets confusing."

'FOOTBALL IN THE SNOW AND IN SHIRT SLEEVES' was the order of the day Monday as the sun broke through the overcast of clouds and warmed up the great outdoors (Pampa style). Taking the unpredictable weather in stride, Rick Spiller, Pampa, got in a little football practice only slightly hindered by the melting snow on the high school lawn.

Aggressive scheduling set prime time scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Aggressive scheduling," it was called, a programming strategy aimed at exploiting a wealth of popular shows and, perhaps, setting the course of a prime time television dynasty.

ABC's plan backfired, or at least, sputtered, and the result is that ABC is engaged in a ratings battle with CBS that is closer than most TV observers imagined possible at the beginning of the season.

Interestingly, the man responsible for ABC's 1979-80 schedule says he would do it again, that the shifting of popular shows — most notably, "Mork and Mindy," "Fantasy Island," "Laverne and Shirley" — was sound strategy subverted by unpredictable circumstances.

Tony Thomopoulos, President of ABC Entertainment, considers the mixed reviews accorded his strategy.

"I think you can look at it from the marvelous perspective called 'hindsight.' But given the same set of circumstances — knowing what we knew then, not what we know now — we'd probably make the same changes with some minor adjustments."

"The moves we made were not totally successful, but they did accomplish certain things. They did allow us to establish a hit with a show called 'Benson' and they did allow us to build another hit with 'Hart to Hart,' which has had some very positive effects for the network."

Actually, that is a matter open to question. "Laverne and Shirley" was moved from its very successful Tuesday night slot to lead the way for "Benson" on Thursdays. But "Laverne and Shirley" lost a substantial portion of its audience in the move, and has shown no signs of fully recovering in its new Monday night slot.

"And 'Fantasy Island' was moved from its Saturday night slot to give 'Hart to Hart' the advantage of 'Fantasy Island's' former 'Love Boat' lead-in; but 'Fantasy Island' couldn't maintain itself on Fridays, and 'Hart to Hart' became a hit not in that Saturday slot, but in its new Tuesday night time period."

"The 'Mork and Mindy' move from Thursday to Sunday was, as far as I'm concerned, and even in hindsight, a positive move for us. Even though it sat there as an 8 o'clock island by itself, it averaged a 22 rating. If we didn't have 'Mork and Mindy' in that time period, I wonder what would have happened."

What did happen was that "Mork" left the realm of 38 and 40 ratings scores for a man to man encounter with CBS' Archie Bunker, and Bunker prevailed.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

February 13, 1980

From time to time this coming year you may reap unexpected benefits as a result of very unusual situations. They will be triggered by events over which you have no control.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Worrying about unforeseen eventualities could cause you to rationalize yourself into inactivity today. That would be a serious mistake. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Skirt topics of conversation today that might annoy a friend. Speaking without thinking could generate a heated debate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't operate in fits and starts today. This would prove counterproductive. Only after you've finished one project should you begin another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally, you're not the type of person who jumps to conclusions. Today, you could form inaccurate opinions before all the facts are in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be wary of a tendency to be easily distracted. Success will not elude you if you force yourself to concentrate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Problems between you and your mate can be resolved today through a little give-and-take. Set the tone by being the first to compromise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Behaving too impulsively in business or career matters could cause you problems today. Take plenty of time to sound things out before making any moves.

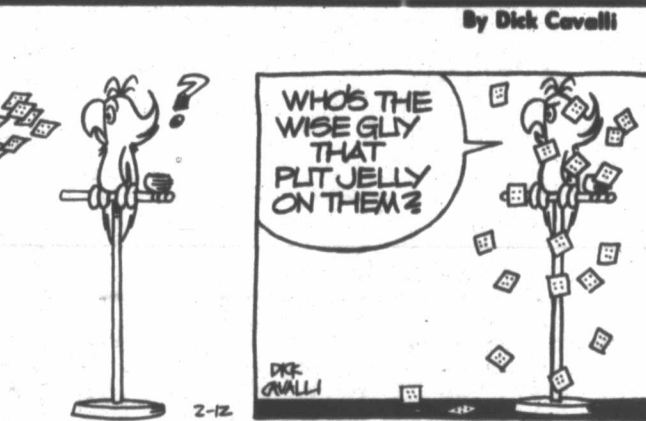

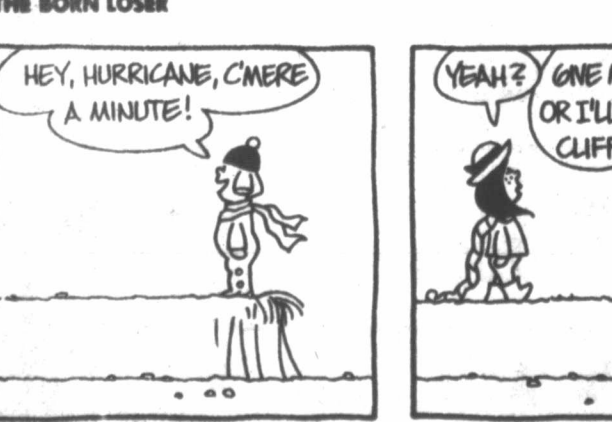

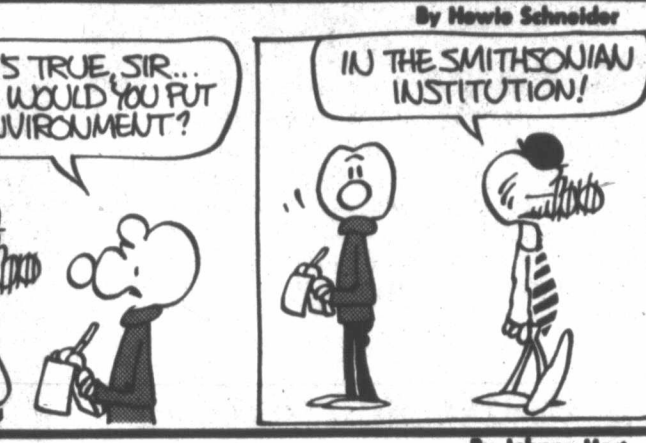

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A situation may develop today which could cause you to feel you're being taken advantage of by a friend. Point out the inequities. The other party won't be aware of them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may not be too willing help others today unless there is something in it for you. This role is not in character for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to judge others on their actions today, rather than on how they behaved in the past. Past memories should be treated for what they are — past memories.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before spending money frivolously today, ask yourself if these funds could be better used to enrich the lives of those in your charge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Disappointments are likely today if you expect others to do things exactly as you think they should. Allow them the freedom of expression you reserve for yourself.

Area basketball roundup

WHITE DEER—White Deer girls won over Shamrock, 38-23, in prep basketball activity Monday night.

Kala Haiduk led White Deer scoring with 16 points. Della Satterwhite had 12 points. The Lady Bucks have a 6-19 record and registered their first win in second-half District 2-A action after three losses.

Jana Moore topped the losers with seven points. White Deer lost the boys clash, 54-32. Shane Grange was Deer Creek's top scorer with 16 points while Carl Bennett also had 16 for the losers.

WHEELER—Wheeler, who has clinched the District 4-B title, rolled to an easy 94-53 win over Briscoe last night. The Mustangs have a perfect 8-0 record and are 10-4 overall.

Kevin Andis paced Wheeler's balanced scoring attack with 15 points. Ty Henderson and B. Waldo added 14 points each.

Kevin Meek and Tom Bible had 20 points each for the losers.

Wheeler girls upped their loop mark to 7-1 with a 59-31 victory over Briscoe.

Missy Wiggins was top scorer for Wheeler with 19 points. Mona Jennings chipped in 10.

Tarita Signs had 10 points for Briscoe.

GROOM—Betsy Kirzan drilled in 34 points to lead the Groom girls past McLean, 87-47, last night.

The Tigerettes are well on their way to claiming the District 3-B title after winning the first-half crown. Groom is now 21-8 and unbeaten at 3-0 in second-half play.

McLean is 15-9 on the season and 2-1 in the second half of district play.

Besides Kirzan's efforts, the Tigerettes got another fine scoring performance from Karen Kuehler, who had 20 points. Jill Trew, Joy Rhine and Donna McAnear had nine points each for McLean.

Groom also won the boys game, 66-45, behind the double-figure scoring of Eric West (19), Gary White (14), and Dwain Weller (14).

It was only the second win of the season for Groom after 20 losses. The Tigers stand 1-2 in district standings.

Tim Smith and Brad Melton had 14 and 10 points respectively for McLean.

McClean drops to 6-16 overall and 1-2 in district. Hedley has already captured the 3-B boys crown.

Winter games get underway today

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Hounded by continuing political problems and haunted by logistical nightmares, the Games of the XIII Winter Olympiad began on schedule today in this picturesque map-dot village nestled in the Adirondack Mountains.

The official opening of the Games, complete with the ceremonial parade of nearly 1,300 athletes, is scheduled for Wednesday. But the hockey competition got a jump on the other sports with six games on today's schedule.

For American athletes the 1980 Games could yield a record winter medal haul. The United States won 10 medals in the 1976 Winter Games at Innsbruck and never has captured more than the dozen it won the last time Lake Placid hosted these Games in 1932.

But stars like champion speed skaters Eric and Beth Heiden, cross-country skier Bill Koch, figure skaters Linda Fratianne and Charlie Tickner and skiers Phil Mahre and Cindy Nelson could make this a memorable Olympiad for the United States.

Most of the hockey interest centered on the awesome Soviet Union team, considered almost certain to win the hockey gold. The Russians opened against Japan tonight. In other games, Norway met Czechoslovakia, Canada played Holland, the United States faced Sweden, West Germany opposed Romania and Poland took on Finland.

The young American team, composed largely of college players, got a close look at the Soviets in a 10-3 thrashing last Saturday in New York. Coach Herb Brooks thought he detected some extra verve in the play of the Russians.

"The Russians have always been subtle physically before," said Brooks. "I've never seen them quite as physical as they were against us. When Khrushchev said that they'd bury us, I didn't think he meant the American hockey team of 1980. They vented a lot that seemed to be inside them in that game."

The Soviet squad includes many of the stars such as goalie Vladislav Tretiak and forward Boris Mikhailov, who have become familiar to North American fans in the last eight years in games against National Hockey League teams. Brooks smiles at matching them up against his young American team.

"Eight years ago, they were playing against Team Canada," the coach said. "I've got six or eight kids on my team who were playing peewee hockey eight years ago."

With the opening ceremonies just 24 hours away, the Taiwan issue remained clouded. Athletes from that nation, demanding to compete as the Republic of China under their own flag and with their own anthem, planned to carry their suit against the International Olympic Committee into the New York State Court of Appeals today. On Monday in a middle-level court, Olympic officials got reversed an original ruling supporting the Taiwanese position.

DePaul unanimous pick again

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

Ray Meyer and DePaul may have received a scare last weekend, but this week's Associated Press college basketball poll was just another cakewalk.

Meyer's Blue Demons were the unanimous choice Monday for the top spot in The Associated Press college basketball poll for the fourth straight week. DePaul was tabbed No. 1 on all 58 ballots and received a perfect score of 1,160 in the voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

But that was the easy part. DePaul faced a tougher challenge in upping its record to 29-0 last Saturday — Dayton. It took a basket by Clyde Bradshaw with three seconds left before DePaul emerged with a 65-63 triumph.

"We got the scare of our lives," said Coach Meyer after the game.

DePaul wasn't the only team to find a niche to its liking — the next five teams in the poll also remained unchanged.

Second-ranked Syracuse collected collected 1,047 points in outdistancing Louisville for the runnerup slot. The Cardinals, who posted victories over Cincinnati and Providence last week, were third with 1,012 points.

Oregon State, which nipped Arizona State in overtime last week, was fourth with 959 points, followed by Kentucky, 898, and Louisiana State, 874.

St. John's moved up one spot this week and took over the No. 7 position from Maryland with 774 points. The Terps were next with 749 points while Ohio State and Clemson rounded out the Top 10.

Optimist results

Two games were played Monday night in the first round of the Optimist Club Girls Tournament.

Panhandle defeated Pampa No. 1, 18-12, and St. John's of Borger won over Pampa No. 4, 21-17.

Two games will be played again tonight at Optimist Club gym between Pampa No. 3-Panhandle (6 p.m.) and Pampa No. 6 vs. White Deer (7:30 p.m.).

Each team is guaranteed to play at least two games in the fifth and sixth grade tournament.

Swim teams enter district today

Amarillo High is a strong favorite to capture the District 3-AAAA boys swim meet today, but Pampa High coach Mike Eckhart believes his Harvesters will be right in the thick of it.

"I feel like we should give them a close run for first," Eckhart said. "The kids are ready to swim and if they're going to do a job it's going to be today."

Lining up for the Harvesters are Cody Moore, Mark Alexander, Scott Grayson, and Eugene Thompson, 200 medley relay; Don Braswell, Richard Steger, Tyler Berry, and Greg Langen, 200 freestyle; Clay Douglas, Eugene Thompson, and Damon Cox, 200 individual medley; Tyler Berry, Steve Taylor, Phillip Trusty, and Darrell Kyle, 50 freestyle; Scott Grayson, Steve Taylor, and Damon Cox, 100 butterfly; Darrell Kyle, Scott Grayson, Jerry Bond, and Phillip Trusty, 100 freestyle; Clay Douglas, Richard Steger, Don Braswell, and Jerry Bond, 500 freestyle; Cody Moore, Doug Auwen, and Bobby Powell, 100 backstroke; Mark Alexander and Eugene Thompson, 100 breaststroke; Don Braswell, Clay

Douglas, Richard Steger, and Darrell Kyle, 400 freestyle relay.

Amarillo High and Tascosa are expected to battle it out for the girls crown, but Pampa may have the most versatile performer of them all in Cindy Raymond, who last week set her second school record in winning the 100 freestyle at the Amarillo Invitational.

Raymond, only a sophomore, also holds the school record in the breaststroke.

Pampa's lineup in the girls division is as follows: Julie Turner, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond, and Lynly Cambern, 200 medley relay; Linda Wilson and Carla Turner, 200 freestyle; Lisa Raymond and Julie Turner, 200 individual medley; Lynly Cambern and Jackie Hilton, 50 freestyle; Lisa Raymond, 100 butterfly; Cindy Raymond, Lynly Cambern, Jackie Hilton, and Linda Wilson, 100 freestyle; Julie Turner, 100 backstroke; Cindy Raymond and Carla Turner, 100 breaststroke.

Preliminaries are scheduled to start at 10 a.m. today at Amarillo Boys Club with the finals set for 3 p.m.

Pampa hosts Palo Duro in "must win" game

The first time Pampa crossed swords with Palo Duro this season, statistics didn't tell the whole story.

Pampa outshot Palo Duro from both the floor and foul line, but the scoreboard displayed a 53-49 Harvesters loss.

Even if Pampa had the edge on the stat sheet again, the Harvesters would have to break Palo Duro's mystifying fullcourt press to have a chance at victory, according to head coach Garland Nichols.

"To beat them we've got to beat their press, said Nichols, who is still breathing a sigh of relief after his Harvesters barely got past Amarillo Tascosa, 53-51, in overtime Friday night. "They run it like a zone, but actually it's a man to man. We worked on penetration Monday. We're going to have to start our offense inside, not outside the centerline."

Palo Duro swept the first-half District 3-AAAA title with a 4-0 record, but the Dons need a win over Pampa tonight to clinch at least a tie for the second-half crown. Overall, Palo Duro is 15-10 and 1-0 in second-half district play.

Pampa is 13-13 for all games, but owns a half-game edge over both Palo Duro and Amarillo High in second-half district action with a 2-0 mark.

"There are no tomorrows if we don't beat Palo Duro," Nichols said. "It will really help us if we can fill the gym with Harvesters fans."

What worries Nichols most is the big edge in experience the Dons have over Pampa.

Four seniors—6-7 Todd Loftis, 6-4 Joe Washington, 6-3 Ed Shaffer and 5-10 Tony Westmoreland—have started together since they were sophomores.

"In a pressure situation, they know we have to win and they know they don't," Nichols added. "With their experience they can blow us right out of the gym if we don't have a super game."

Pampa's lineup will be the same as it has been for the past eleven games with 6-2 senior Cedric Parker at center, 6-3 senior Ronnie Faggins and 6-2 freshman Mike Nelson at forwards, 5-10 senior Joe Jeffers and 5-9 senior Steve Glover at guards. The entire squad is healthy with the exception of 6-3 forward Jim Agan, who is nursing a sore shoulder he injured in the Tascosa game. Agan, who is averaging about four points and four rebounds in relief roles, may be ready to play by gametime, Nichols said.

Pampa gals end season tonight

It will be the final game of the season, but Pampa's Lady Harvesters can play a spoiler role tonight if they can upset Palo Duro.

If Pampa (8-19, 1-2) can get past the Lady Dons (18-9, 3-0), it would give the District 3-AAAA playoff title to Amarillo High, who won the first-half championship. A PD win would force a playoff between the Lady Dons and Amarillo High for the district crown.

Gametime is 7:30 p.m. at Palo Duro. Palo Duro whipped Pampa, 59-39, in first-half district action, but it took a second-half scoring surge to do it. The Lady Harvesters had trailed by only one point at halftime.

Kellye Richardson leads the Lady Harvesters in scoring with a 22.8 ppg average.

Curtis files suit against Globe-News

DALLAS (AP) — Executives with the Amarillo Globe-News declined comment concerning a libel suit filed against the newspaper by Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis until they have a chance to read it.

"We have no notification of any suit," James L. Whyte, vice president-general manager of the newspaper, said Monday. "That's all I can say. We haven't been notified by anyone."

Curtis filed the suit Friday in Dallas federal court, naming the newspaper and its parent company, Southwestern Newspaper Corp.

"It cites 12 separate and interwoven instances of allegedly libelous publications that have occurred within the past year," said Curtis. "I told them I was going to bring a libel suit against them a year and a half ago."

He said the lawsuit claims the newspaper published false stories about Curtis with "reckless disregard for the truth."

"If you're a public figure or a public official, you have to prove malice in order to recover damages. And malice is defined as a reckless disregard for the truth," Curtis said.

He said he filed the suit as an individual, not in his official capacity as district attorney.

"There's been a long controversy involving me, the courts and the newspaper. It's a matter of public record," he said.

Curtis said two state grand juries indicted him, alleging improper performance of his duties but said all the indictments plus a prosecutor's complaint have since been dismissed by state judges.

Newspaper executives served on those grand juries, he said, and directed the panels' actions against him. He claimed the indictments were the result of a conspiracy among his political opponents, including two newspaper executives.

Mexican oil spill on decline

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Predictions that a leaking Mexican offshore oil well would be capped soon got tentative support from the U.S. Coast Guard's observation flights.

Coast Guard Lt. Harry Vaughan said Monday the flights over the well, in the southern Gulf of Mexico, found a marked decrease in pollution from the well.

The two flights reported hail as much oil spilling from the runaway Ixtoc 1 as from previous observations.

The flight crews reported seeing about 16 barges, ships, dispersment boats and other vessels around the well in the Bay of Campeche off the Mexican Yucatan coast.

"The fire at the well is still about 60 feet in diameter and the oil goes out 40 miles northwest of it, but that depends a lot on the winds," Vaughan said.

Gov. Bill Clements said last week that engineers were close to cementing the well and ending the oil spill that began June 3.

FBI presenting material for banter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI's undercover political corruption investigation not only is posing important ethical questions for members of Congress, it's also providing a wealth of material for Capitol Hill banter.

When Florida Republican Rep. Richard Kelly went on television to present his version, he had what House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called a "tremendous listening audience. At least of House members."

Kelly publicly acknowledged taking $25,000 in an alleged bribery scheme in which FBI agents posed as wealthy Arab sheiks and businessmen. But he denied doing anything illegal, saying he was merely in the process of conducting an investigation of his own.

The next day, Kelly came onto the House floor and took a seat with his Republican colleagues—but rapidly found himself virtually alone as the seats around him emptied.

"I've never even seen $25,000 in cash," Rep.

Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif., one of the wealthier members of Congress, was overheard telling several colleagues.

Another House member had this observation: "I wouldn't take $25,000. But it can keep building. Where do you come to the breaking point?"

LIVESTOCK JUDGING TEAM Cutline
JIM JENKINS formerly of Pampa coached his livestock judging team to the championship trophy and first place in three categories at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show last weekend in Fort Worth. Jenkins, a 1961 graduate of Pampa High School, will judge the Top O' Texas Show set for March 10 in Pampa.

U.S. judge rules in favor of Bexar County hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Moving maternity services from an aging downtown hospital to the Bexar County Hospital 11 miles away will not discriminate against poor black and Mexican-Americans who rely on the downtown facility, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears made the ruling Monday after a three-week trial of a U.S. Justice Department suit aimed at preventing the relocation from Robert B. Green Hospital. Bexar County Hospital is located on the city's northwest fringe.

Spears said the better facilities and equipment available at Bexar County Hospital outweighed the inconvenience the poor patients would suffer after the move.

"It is patently obvious from the evidence that far better facilities and equipment exist at the Bexar County Hospital than at the Green, thus enabling the Bexar County Hospital to provide a much higher quality of health care," he said.

Attorneys for the Justice Department said they would not decide on an appeal until after reviewing Spears' ruling.

More than 6,000 infants are born each year at the Green maternity facility, evidence showed. Mexican-Americans mothers who live south and west of downtown accounted for 80 percent of those admissions, according to testimony.

Prenatal, post-natal and pediatric care will remain at the downtown facility. The maternity services, however, are scheduled to be moved by the summer of 1981 to the county hospital.

Justice Department and Bexar County Legal Aid attorneys argued that the move removes the services from the people who need them most. They also argued that the poor mothers often do not have the transportation to get to the county hospital, and might be forced to turn to midwives.

The plaintiffs had asked Spears to order renovation of Green or the construction of a new inpatient maternity facility.

The hospital district, already plagued with a budget deficit, said such an order would aggravate the already serious financial situation and compromise medical care.

Coast Guard searches for missing fisherman

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard officers ordered a helicopter search of San Antonio Bay today, hoping to find the body of local crab fisherman Dale Hall.

His wife, Josephine Aplin Hall — sister of a local fisherman killed at the height of last summer's conflicts with Vietnamese immigrants — was found dead in the water Monday, apparently drowned, the Coast Guard said.

The Halls had been reported missing during the weekend when they failed to return from a crab fishing trip, said Police Chief Bill Lindsey. A Coast Guard search for Hall proved fruitless

Monday, but was to be resumed today by the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, said Petty Officer James Knapp at Port O'Connor.

"They will launch a helicopter," he said. "If they turn up something we'll probably put out a boat to pick it up."

Lindsey said the Hall's boat was found Sunday, partially submerged in about five feet of water with a large hole in the hull.

"It looked like a place where there had been one of those fiberglass patches," he said. "I don't think they could have lasted long in that water," said Lindsey. "It was terribly terribly cold. (The boat was) in an area where they'd been dredging for shell for years and there are holes 50 to 60 feet out there."

Mrs. Hall's brother, Billy Joe Aplin, 35, was shot to death last August, climaxing violent confrontations between Anglo and Vietnamese crabbers here.

Earlier in the summer, long-standing tension between the two factions erupted into violence, with houses firebombed and boats set afire. The local fishermen claimed the immigrants violated unwritten crabbing laws and placed their traps too close to those of other fishermen.

Medicaid cutoff blamed in four abortion deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least four poor women have died as a result of the cutoff of practically all federal funds for Medicaid abortions, according to U.S. medical investigators.

Investigators for the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said they have identified eight other deaths resulting from illegal or self-induced abortions that could not be linked to the termination of federal financing of abortions. Two of the eight were teen-agers who were afraid to tell their parents they were pregnant.

Members of the CDC abortion surveillance team said a common effect of the cutoff of federal funds in August 1977 has been a delay in poor women obtaining abortions. Increasing the risk of complications.

They also saw indications that some poor women who would have had government-assisted abortions are having their babies instead.

CDC physicians said they at first expected to find many more deaths directly or indirectly linked to the cutoff of funds under Congress' Hyde Amendment.

Pampa High observes VOE Week

This week, beginning today, marks Vocational Education Week at Pampa High School, says Don Nelson, Vocational Administrator. Students will be introduced to vocational opportunities offered at the high school during an Open House in the newly built vocational building. Instead of the vocational counselors visiting the classes as done in past years, English classes (grade 9-11) will be given a tour throughout the building on Thursday.

Various booths will be set up throughout the building, with literature available, informing the students about various parts of vocational education. Students will visit the booths first, then will go on to visit the room or shop for the department of their choice.
