Hostages could be free in a 'matter of hours'

The Associated Press Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today the international commission to investigate charges against the deposed shah may be formed "within a few hours," but the American hostages in Tehran will not be released until the panel finishes its work, according to an Italian news agency.

But former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride said today "the commission could hardly begin its work until the hostages have been released. Either they are released before the commission meets or they could be released concurrently with the setting up of the commission."

Transfer of the hostages to a third party, perhaps a neutral country, has been mentioned as a possible step in the release process.

Ghotbzadeh, speaking to reporters in Rome, was quoted as saying U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim telephoned him at 3 a.m. to discuss composition of the commission. The panel to investigate the regime's charges against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has been regarded as a key step toward freeing the hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, who began their 104th day in captivity today.

"The conversation lasted an hour. Now one is waiting only for their acceptance. For us, the names aren't important. What is important is that the commission is formed," Ghotbzadeh was quoted as saying by the ANSA news agency.

However, he added, "the hostages will not be freed until the commission makes public its results," according to ANSA.

Ghotbzadeh had told a news conference Thursday that he hoped the commission would finish its work in 10 days to two weeks, but refused to be pinned down when the hostages would be released. However, he said once the commission was formed "everything is in motion."

Earlier in the day he spent an hour at the Vatican for talks with Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli. "We spoke about the Iranian revolution and the force of religion in the world," he said. He did not see Pope John Paul II, whose pleas for the Americans' release were ignored by Iran last November.

MacBride, interviewed in Dublin on NBC's "Today" program, said the commission would not have the power to call as witnesses U.S. officials or the ex-shah himself, but could receive reports only from the Iranian government.

Objections to the former Irish Republican Army leader reportedly have surfaced in U.S. government circles because of his sympathy for leftist causes.

Asked to comment on holding the Lenin Peace Prize, as well as a Nobel Peace Prize, MacBride said, "I might add that I also hold the American Medal for Justice, which was awarded to me subsequently. I think that I am pretty well balanced from that point of view."

President Carter, discounting speculation that the approximately 50 Americans could be freed over the weekend, said he did not expect the issue to be resolved this month.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, asked if the U.N. panel would convene in Iran, told reporters in Tehran Thursday, "They are waiting for me to make that announcement but I am waiting to see if the U.S. will accept our conditions."

He reiterated his three demands on the United States for release of the hostages: acknowledgement of alleged U.S. crimes against the Iranian people during the shah's reign; a pledge not to meddle in Iranian affairs; and agreement not to block efforts to return the shah and his wealth to Iran.

But Bani-Sadr, who this week told the French newspaper Le Monde that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, had agreed to the plan, hedged that comment. "Earlier I was asked if the imam (Khomeini) agrees with the proposal and I answered I think he will agree."

Carter has said the United States will not take the blame for a CIA-backed coup that restored the shah to power in 1953, and the State Department has said it will not "profess guilt" for any subsequent Iranian developments.

On Wednesday, Carter raised hopes that a U.N. probe of the ousted shah could lead to the release of the hostages, telling a news conference, "an appropriate commission, with a carefully defined purpose, would be a step toward resolution of the crisis."

Dismissing speculation the hostages could be freed by the weekend, Carter said he did not expect their release before the New Hampshire primary Feb. 26. In an interview with the Boston Herald American, Carter said:

"I don't have any indication at all that we will have a resolution of the hostage issue that soon."

He called the hostage-holding a "burning issue," and said, "...it is impossible for me to revert to business as usual as an active campaigner as long as the hostages are being held."

Carter's chief rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, accused administration officials of misusing their offices in the campaign.

Afghanistan massacre reports intensifying

BAROGAI, Afghanistan (AP) — On April 20, 1979, troops of Afghanistan's Marxist government marched into the Afghan town of Kerala, rounded up males over the age of 7 and shot them, according to Afghans who said they survived the mass execution.

By the government's own count — accepted by the survivors — 640 men and boys were massacred that spring day in reprisal for allegedly helping Islamic rebels who then and now are fighting successive Soviet-backed Marxist regimes in Kabul, the capital. The mass killings took place before the present Afghan government of Babrak Karmal was installed in conjunction with a massive Soviet military intervention last December.

Contrary to earlier reports on the massacre, none of the survivors interviewed said he or she saw Soviet military advisers taking part. Russian advisers in much fewer numbers were then in Afghanistan and a former Afghan officer who defected to the rebel side last year said that at the time, they wore Afghan army uniforms and would have been difficult to distinguish.

Viewed now through binoculars from atop a nearby mountain, Kerala which had a population of about 5,000 looks like a ghost town perched in a valley between the converging Asmar and Pech Rivers that enrich its soil. The rice fields and the town's large public garden were the pride of the residents, but no one is tending them now.

The survivors I met first in Pakistani refugee camps, then here in Barogai and during a hike into Afghanistan said some of the men escaped by dressing in the long Moslem chadors (veils) of wives and sisters. Some told of soldiers who spotted them hiding but did not give them away.

A 16-year-old survivor said some of the men were only wounded in the mass shooting but were buried along with the dead by a bulldozer as they shouted, "We are alive! Don't bury us!"

"We call it the War of Kerala," said the widow of Mullah Abdul Hakim, one of three resident Moslem clergymen, all of whom were gunned down by government soldiers.

The survivors — individually interviewed on a mountainous track leading to Pakistan, at a refugee camp across the border and at this tiny village in rebel-held territory — gave accounts of the incident that differed only in minor detail.

This is their story: At 2 a.m. on April 20, about 110 Moslem rebels headed toward Kerala for what was to have been part of a larger offensive against it and Chigha Sarai, which had been besieged by anti-government insurgents for months.

Yugoslavian officials report Tito near death

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslav officials are giving public signals they do not expect 87-year-old President Josip Broz Tito to survive the heart and kidney problems that cropped up following the amputation of his left leg last month, even though his condition was reported somewhat better today.

"A certain improvement in the overall health condition of the president...which came about in the morning hours on the 14th of this month, continues to hold," the latest medical bulletin said. "Intensive medical measures are being taken toward maintaining and stabilizing the tendency."

Tito was reported in critical condition Wednesday and no improvement was reported Thursday. Usually reliable sources insisted Tito remained conscious and aware of his surroundings. But unconfirmed reports claimed he had lapsed into a coma and could die shortly.

Subdued music is being played on Belgrade Radio and diplomats said tree plantings had begun on a street where foreign dignitaries presumably would drive in the event of Tito's death.

They also said there had been increased activity recently around the Defense Ministry building in Belgrade. Belgrade's influential newspaper Politika gave front-page display today to President Carter's promise to consider "any kind of aid" Yugoslavia requested.

The pledge was made in a White House news conference Wednesday. Reporters raised the issue of sending American troops to defend Yugoslavia from the Warsaw pact, but Carter avoided a direct answer.

Tito, who has run Yugoslavia since the end of World War II, pioneered his own maverick brand of communist rule after breaking with the Stalinist Kremlin in 1948.

There has often been speculation that the Soviets might try to reassert control over Yugoslavia after Tito's death, but Yugoslav officials and Western experts have been discounting prospects of any Soviet-bloc military move against the eastern European nation.

A weekly publication of the Yugoslav army noted that the country's armed forces had always won out against "outside pressures or against opponents of Yugoslavia's development."

In a military system largely designed to repel invasion by the Soviet-bloc Warsaw Pact, the military weekly said every Yugoslav soldier "is convinced that defense of the country against any aggressor would be successful."

Governor denies taking bribe money from agent

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says he didn't take any money from a government informant who said the insurance company he claimed to represent could spend $50,000 a month for help in winning a state contract.

Edwards testified about his meeting with Joseph Hauser, posing as an insurance agent, at the opening session Thursday of federal grand jury hearings on suspected labor and government corruption.

However, Hauser did pay $10,000 to Louis Lambert's unsuccessful 1979 campaign for governor by purchasing tickets to a testimonial dinner, Lambert's lawyer, Camille Gravel, acknowledged. Lambert has denied any wrongdoing.

Lambert, Lt. Gov. James Fitzmorris and Lt. Gov.-elect Bobby Freeman also appeared before the grand jury Thursday, but would not comment on their testimony.

In the Brilab — for bribery-labor — operation, FBI agents and Hauser allegedly offered payments to government officials and others in Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas to try to win insurance contracts for Prudential Insurance Co.

Prudential has said it did not know its name was being used.

At a news conference, the governor said he met Hauser, who has been identified as an FBI informant, in mid-November 1979 at the request of Lambert, who was in a run-off campaign for governor against Republican David Treen.

Treen won the election and takes office next month.

Edwards said he noticed Hauser was recording their conversation. He also became suspicious when Hauser predicted his company would be the successful low bidder on the state's insurance contract and then said the company could pay $50,000 a month to help get the business.

"If he was going to be low bidder, there was no reason for him to say he had to pay off anyone," Edwards said.

"Hauser didn't ask me to do anything," Edwards said. "He just said he was going to save us a million dollars.... He was supposed to come back with the contribution but he never returned. He must have gotten suspicious."

Meanwhile in Houston, the Brilab grand jury probe is being delayed until March when Texas House Speaker William Clayton will testify. U.S. Attorney J.A. Canales said he will excuse the panel after today's session and recall them next month.

Clayton, who has acknowledged receiving "a political contribution" of $5,000 from L.G. Moore, regional director of the Operating Engineers International union, had asked Canales to delay his appearance. Clayton has said he did nothing wrong.

FBI investigation hits pornography

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three alleged titans of the nation's $4 billion hardcore pornography market are fighting federal charges today as a result of yet another FBI undercover "sting."

The three, along with a fourth man who dropped dead only moments before FBI agents arrived to arrest him, allegedly dominated a burgeoning market for magazines and films with such titles as "Three in a Tub," "Debbie Does Dallas," and "Hot and Saucy Pizza Girls."

"This wiped out the whole top echelon of the pornography business in this country, and that's never happened before," said one knowledgeable source who requested anonymity.

"Hopefully, this is going to have a major impact on the pornography business," said William Nettles, the Miami FBI agent who coordinated the investigation. "These are the biggies."

The dead man and one of the alleged kingpins have been linked with the crime syndicate the FBI calls La Cosa Nostra.

FBI men worked undercover for more than two years, posing as smut dealers themselves and fending off threats of violence, as they painstakingly penetrated the highest levels of pornography distribution rings, the FBI said.

As the undercover phase ended Thursday, prosecutors went before a grand jury in Miami and won indictments against the four and 41 others on charges of interstate trafficking in obscene materials.

The alleged kingpins named in the indictments:

—Reuben Sturman, 55, a millionaire resident of the posh Cleveland suburb of Shaker Heights. The son of a Russian immigrant, he built a fortune from a start as a comic book salesman. Forbes magazine in 1978 called him "the number one merchant of sex in the United States."

—Michael "Mickey" Zafferano, 67, alleged boss of an East Coast pornography distribution ring based in New York. He died of an apparent heart attack only minutes before agents arrived to arrest him Thursday. Law enforcement officials have identified him as a captain in the syndicate family of Joseph Bonanno and the late Carmine Galante.

—Robert "Debe" DiBernardo, 42, of New York, described by authorities as a major East Coast pornography wholesaler. Law enforcement officials say he is a member of the New Jersey syndicate family of Simone "Sam the Plumber" DeCavalcante.

—Harry Virgil Mohnney, 37, of Durand, Mich., near Detroit. Mohnney allegedly controls numerous Midwest pornography operations.

Sturman and DiBernardo were arrested Thursday.

The pornography investigation was but one of many prongs in the FBI's huge and unprecedented attack on organized crime, white-collar crime and corruption through the use of undercover "sting" operations in which agents pose as crooks to catch real crooks.

The latest "sting" — codenamed Miporn for Miami-pornography — was likely to produce a major test of obscenity laws.

Arraignment set for today

Cathy Darlene Smith is scheduled to appear before 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny at 1:30 p.m. today to be arraigned on the murder indictment received Wednesday by the Gray County grand jury.

The 29-year-old woman was indicted on a first degree murder charge in the shooting death of her husband, Dennis Lee Smith in the couple's mobile home at 504 S. Finley on Jan. 13.

The grand jury made the decision at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday after 11½ hours of hearing witnesses and laboratory reports connected with the shooting.

A pre-trial hearing has been set for March 7. District Attorney Harold Comer said. A tentative trial date is now set for May 27, he said.

The DA said he anticipates the trial will take 10 days.

Mrs. Smith was arrested on the murder charge at her home Tuesday by Pampa police detectives and the DA investigator.

She is presently out on $15,000 bond — reduced from the $50,000 first set by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford on the day of the arrest.

Armed robber sought by police

Pampa police are presently conducting an intensive investigation for two suspects connected with the armed robbery of a local convenience store late last night.

According to the clerk on duty, Juanina Jones, two young males carrying a knife entered the Allsup's located at 859 E. Frederic at about 11:30 p.m., investigating officer John Blakemore said today.

The clerk reported to police the two spoke with a Hispanic accent and their faces were covered by black ski masks. She said they were about 5'4" to 5'6" and of small build. The two were wearing blue jeans and dark coats, she told police.

Brandishing the knife, they ordered the clerk to give the money from the register to them. Taking the money in their hands, Jones told police, they told her to lie on her face on the floor and count to 20.

She was then threatened that they would come back and hurt her if she did anything before store late last night.

The two are believed by authorities to have fled on foot from the convenience store. Several police units and off-duty officers arrived on the scene within minutes of the robbery. Police Chief J. J. Ryman said. Officers spent the night in search of the suspects, he said.

No suspects have been arrested in connection with the armed robbery at this time, he said, and investigation into the crime is continuing.

INSURANCE UP
WASHINGTON (AP) — New purchases of life insurance in 1978 came to $407 billion — a record yearly high, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The Council says the figure brought the total life-insurance coverage with legal reserve companies to a record $2,870 billion in protection for Americans.

The average amount of life-insurance coverage for each insured family in the United States, it says, increased to $46,800 in 1978, up 8.2 percent over the $37,700 of protection held a year earlier.

Juvenile detained in church burglary

A 15-year-old juvenile was detained by Pampa police detectives yesterday in connection with the Feb. 12 burglary of over $200 in cash and other items taken from the First Baptist Church.

The juvenile, a boy, was detained in connection with the burglary Thursday afternoon at about 2 p.m. by Det. Michael Hartscock of the Criminal Investigation Division.

Several of the stolen items from the church located at 203 N. West St. were recovered by police. This included part of the cash taken, a digital alarm clock, a small floor heater, a cassette tape player and a master key to the church building.

TEXAS FORECAST

By The Associated Press
Dense fog caused hazardous driving conditions early today in the Panhandle and across much of South Texas.

Drivers were warned of hazardous conditions. Visibility dropped to well below a mile in many areas during the early morning hours.

A cold front moved slowly southward across the Panhandle during the night, becoming nearly stationary before dawn on a line from Childress to Tucumcari, N.M.

Forecasts called mostly cloudy skies statewide with intermittent drizzle or freezing drizzle in the Panhandle and widely scattered light rain or drizzle across all of the southern half of the state.

THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE forecast for Saturday calls for snow over the Pacific Northwest with showers forecast for the remainder of the Pacific coast. Snow will cover a large part of the Rockies and rain is forecast for southwest Texas.

MIA mom battles son's 'death'

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Jean Macdonald always could count on her son George to make her laugh and remember her on special occasions. He was one of the pleasant certainties in her life.

But for the last seven years, uncertainty about George has been tearing the 69-year-old woman apart.

"I just pray everything is OK for George," she said. "I don't think we can dictate in life what can be, but I wish I knew...."

"I am getting on in years, and I know of no greater hurt. When you have a death, it's final. You have proof of it. Life must go on."

It was shortly before Christmas 1972 when Air Force officials came to the Macdonald home to say that their 24-year-old son's plane had been shot down over Laos.

Two of the 16 men in the plane had definitely survived but there was no trace of George and the others. Mrs. Macdonald said. Searchers found open parachutes in the area, but no identification tags or bodies.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Macdonald opened her front door to another Air Force official, a courier bringing an unsigned typewritten note that read:

"The status review board has made the recommendation to terminate your son's missing status since they can no longer reasonably presume him to be alive. The Secretary of the Air Force will make the final determination as to Capt. George D. Macdonald's status."

The Air Force conducts hearings to determine if the status of men who are missing in action should be changed to presumed killed in action. When a panel of three Air Force colonels makes that recommendation it is passed on to the Secretary of the Air Force to be finalized.

Mrs. Macdonald is upset. For seven years, she has pressured the government to find out what happened to her son, and she says too many discrepancies still exist in government reports for a final ruling to be made on George's case.

Air Force officials say a change in status does not change the government's intention to obtain a full accounting of Macdonald — or some 20 other Air Force men still listed as missing since the Vietnam war.

Mrs. Macdonald disagreed. "It's an effort to sweep the issue under the rug," she said.

"It's a terrible tragedy to put our men in conflict and then abandon them," she said. "When you don't have any evidence to the contrary, you've got to keep up hope."

For seven years, Mrs. Macdonald wrote hundreds of letters, attended conventions of relatives of MIAs and even flew to Washington to try to see then-Secretary of State William Rogers. She was able to see only an aide, who provided no help, she said.

In recent months, her efforts have gone into resisting the move to have George declared dead. Her declining health prevented her from attending Monday's hearing at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas.

"What really hurts terribly now is that I sent them 30 or more questions to answer," she said Wednesday. "I asked that their answers be backed up by documentary evidence, but there was no back-and-forth here. They presented their findings and that was that."

Mrs. Macdonald has no proof her son is alive, but she said he is constantly in her thoughts. She remembers the day — now more than 31 years ago — when she gave birth to George and his twin brother, Christopher, the last of nine children.

As a boy, George was tough to put to bed, his mother recalled. "He'd like to know what was going on even as a child," she said.

George learned to play bridge at the age of 5, loved to arm wrestle, hated to do chores and was good with numbers, she recalled.

George also was good at making his mother laugh. "He had a very good sense of humor," she said. "And he was an all-around boy. He stood up for what was right."

Soil and water conservation program future issue in meet

A special meeting has been called to inform county Agricultural leaders and public officials of the impact of RCA on the future role of Soil and Water Conservation Programs.

The meeting, underway today at 2 p.m., was being held in response to the Resources Conservation Act of 1977.

Citizens concerned about soil, water, and related resources have 60 days in which to review and make comments on proposals affecting the future of the Nation's conservation programs. This review period will end March 28, 1980.

Documents explaining the results of a two-year appraisal of soil and water resources and alternative proposals being considered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture are now available for public review.

For information, contact the local office of the soil conservation Service or the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service located in the Gray County Courthouse Annex.

FTC ad attack has little effect

NEW YORK (AP) — Most of the pain relievers Americans spend nearly $1 billion a year on are mostly aspirin. But you would never know it by searching the typical drug store display, or confronting the bewildering advertisements on television, radio and in print.

Anacin promises "Fast pain relief." Bufferin says it is "Twice as fast as aspirin." Alka-Seltzer has "The sound of fast relief." Yet the pain-relieving ingredient in each is aspirin.

"This is a separate species of unfairness to the public. They're essentially creating the confusion they're capitalizing on," says Joel Brewer, a Federal Trade Commission lawyer who is senior attorney for over-the-counter drug advertising.

You can pay more than three cents a tablet for aspirin in the 24-tablet size of Bayer, or less than one-tenth that for the large size of an unknown brand. Yet they may be equally good for your headache.

The makers of non-prescription drugs defend the ads. "Everybody knows that Bufferin is aspirin with buffering agents. I don't think there's anything misleading about that," says Harry Levine, vice president for corporate communications for the maker of Bufferin.

The premium that consumers pay for name-brand products helps support advertising. But, much of the pain reliever advertising is "confusing and misleading to the consumer," a panel of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has concluded.

In 1973, the FTC challenged ad claims of three drug makers — American Home Products (Anacin), Bristol-Myers (Bufferin) and Sterling Drug (Bayer). An administrative law judge has ruled that the first two firms must back up their claims with scientific proof, but both cases are under appeal to the commission. The Sterling case is still pending.

The FDA panel advises these people to consult a doctor before taking aspirin:

—The approximately two in 1,000 people who are allergic to aspirin (this includes from 6 percent to 20 percent of asthmatics).

—People who have a history of ulcers, stomach distress or problems of internal bleeding, since aspirin tends to increase bleeding.

—Women in the last three months of pregnancy, since aspirin can interfere with infant blood clotting or delay or prolong labor.

HUD denies Pampa request

A letter has been received by the Pampa city manager from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) informing him Pampa will not receive the Community Development Block Grant recently applied for by the city.

According to records mailed to City Manager Mack Wofford, Pampa was 12th on a list of over 20 cities which had applied for the city improvement grant to be used in under-privileged areas.

Borger, listed as 11th, also did not receive the grant.

The cities were judged on a point basis to determine who was in the most need of the improvement grant.

The letter stated the minimum rating required for funding was 645.

Pampa's preapplication for $1,500,000 was 615, while Borger's was 616.

The city's preapplication was begun in October. It included paperwork, surveys by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission and several public hearings.

If funded, the money would have been used for the south and southeastern portions of the city. Improvements would have included street paving, housing rehabilitation, new sewage lines and new water lines.

"I suspect the city will seek the grant again next year," Wofford said. This was the fourth preapplication the city has submitted, he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coving Commandment.

My criteria for hiring newspaper personnel

By D.R. Segal

People with a ticket in Business Administration are addicted to aptitude tests, but they've never cocked my pistol. I always thought I had a dandy method of hiring young reporters and ad salesmen and, in fact, the other old crocks at Rotary used to say to me, "Hey, where do you find guys like that crew you got down at the Daily Bladder?" which I took to be a compliment.

The thing most publishers (and I used to be one before I got sent to the minors) know by instinct is that the kid who'll work cheapest is the one with the finest character. In the case of girls, the best looking one is invariably a young lady who writes good. And if you can get a real looker (note to composing room: that's spelled with an "l") who works cheap, you have contributed something to the profession of journalism. I can remember when the newspapers would hire any kid who realized that working 72 hours a week for $17.50 built one's character. And it gave the kid a real feel for Free Enterprise. We didn't have aptitude tests; we just hired the ones who looked like they could tie their shoes right five out of seven times. That's how some mighty fine editors got their start.

We bought a newspaper once that had been owned by a fellow slavishly devoted to aptitude tests. He hired people according to how they did in the test and there were some in the newsroom who couldn't spell real good and a couple of the ace ad salesmen should have been putting cars on the grease rack, but there was no appeal from the verdict of the aptitude test.

I guess maybe we ought to give tests, too. It is very fashionable and it spares management from having to use its brain. Newspapers take themselves very seriously, you know, perhaps as the result of reading their own editorial pages and believing it. The hiring of people to keep track of how many times Jane Fonda visits the w.c. and where Jerry and Linda have checked in can't be left to chance. It calls for a special talent on the part of the reporter and a particular appetite on the part of the reader.

Maybe both of them should take an aptitude test. I think it's called a Rorschach.

Don't tell us, show us

According to the Washington Post, a top consulting firm fraudulently collected $29,000 in a study to determine why there is so much waste in government spending. Senior company officials billed the government for 84 days in which they did not work on the study.

The study was part of a $184,000 HEW project which was described by most participating consultants — and even the project director — as virtually meaningless. Moreover, the director and most of the others considered themselves unqualified to do the research and thought the data collected was worthless.

The study of waste in the nation's welfare system began when HEW found itself with unspent money at the end of the fiscal year. HEW, without accepting competitive bids, unloaded the project on a consulting firm which had written a proposal for the study in less than 24 hours. When the firm ran out of money two months before the study was due, it was immediately granted an extra $23,050.

An act of creating political illusion

There is a great similarity between government and the theater. Both are dependent upon illusion. A play is successful if it somehow creates the impression that the audience is actually experiencing something. Government also relies on illusion. Government workers and bosses are constantly trying to get people to believe that they are different than ordinary folk; that some entity does indeed exist between God and man — and they are it.

The attempt to make people believe that government exists and is doing something is as staged as the theater. What appears to be government action is of course nothing more than a group of people, claiming the right to use force, taxing their fellow citizens in order to accomplish a goal, and then suggesting it's magic. It is a grand illusion, but unfortunately many people still want to believe in magic.

A musical is based on the life of Eva Peron, a woman who knew much about creating illusion in order to grab power. Eva, or Evita as many liked to call her, was the wife of Argentine strongman Juan Peron. She, as brilliantly presented in the musical, manipulated the people of Argentina with the use of symbols. She intertwined symbols of sex and power, recognizing that it was the people's belief in these illusions that would take her where she wanted to go. The play, while creating an illusion of its own, is a surprisingly accurate description of political manipulation.

There is a likeness between the philosophies of communism and fascism — something easily seen in Evita. The young woman hitched herself to the coat-tails of an Argentine army officer on the way up, and soon became his main asset. That officer, Juan Peron, was a traditional fascist, yet the slogans, the art, and the tactics used by his supporters, including Evita, were almost indistinguishable from those of a communist. Evita, for example, constantly attacked the Argentine upper class in order to engage the mob. The play artfully points out that once the rich were taxed out of existence, the only thing that changed was that the number of poor people increased.

Historically, the play was fairly accurate. In 1947, once Peron and his fascists were securely in control of Argentina, his wife Evita set up a Social Aid Foundation in the name of helping the poor. The strongarm tactics used against the rich to get them to "contribute" to the foundation, coupled with Peronist economics, soon left the country bankrupt. However, while the charade lasted many were duped into believing things were actually getting better.

When asked about her shortsighted policies, the Evita of the theater replies that she simply wants the people to experience a little magic. Tyrants, even comely ones, have learned that the more people believe in the illusion of the state, the more secure their regimes. In Evita's case, it was not the government or her foundation that was helping the poor, but it was the people who were robbed and that provided the necessary wealth. Once the rich were taxed away, the magic ceased because there was no one left to pay the bill. It is a lesson American politicians should learn.

Children are taught to believe in all sorts of magic. It is nice to remember the days when Santa Claus and the tooth fairy were thought really to exist. Unfortunately, many adults continue to believe in magic. These are the people who think they can get something for nothing, and government is usually the way of doing it. As long as people remain starry-eyed, power seekers — whether they are fascists, communist, Republicans, or Democrats — are going to manipulate them. We suggest if people are so interested in magic, they go to the theater. It's safer.

A jittery town

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—Washington has a real case of the jitters this week. With all the publicity concerning the FBI sting operation, you just don't know whom to trust any more.

The people it's been hardest on have been the real Arab Sheiks who flit in and out of the capital trying to do legitimate business.

One Sheik Ali Jarim checked into his hotel the other day and ordered a bottle of champagne and a pound of caviar. The waiter who brought it up winked at him as he opened the bottle of champagne. "I guess this is pretty good living for you guys," he said to the sheik. "Of course, it's all taxpayers' money."

Sheik Ali Jarim said, "I do not understand what you are talking about." The waiter poked the sheik in the ribs with his elbow. "Don't worry, Mac. Your secret is safe with me. Where did you rent the duds for the scam?"

The sheik angrily told the waiter to leave and called up the manager. "This is Sheik Ali Jarim, and one of your waiters was very rude to me."

"Sorry about that, Jarim, but the Justice Department didn't tell us you were coming, or I would have attended to you myself. Do you need any extra TV cameras or tape-recording machines?"

"I will tell you what I need when I need it. Your hotel was recommended by my brother, Prince Ardri, as the finest in the city."

"We haven't had any complaints. But we're booked solid, so don't expect a discount just because you're using our place for a sting."

The sheik slammed down the phone in anger. A few minutes later an American oil company executive called up and said he had arranged for the sheik to have dinner with a very charming lady who free-lanced for the refinery division.

A reservation had been made at one of the best Washington restaurants. The woman picked up the sheik at his hotel.

As they got to talking, a man came over and said, "My client's willing to make a deal with you."

"I have no idea what you're talking about."

"He'll blow the whistle on three New Jersey capos if you erase the video-tapes of him stuffing your marked greenbacks into his jogging pants."

The sheik called over the captain. "I don't know what this man wants, but he is bothering me."

The lawyer got up. "Okay, my guy's willing to sing, but we want something in exchange. How about knocking the charges down to 'taking an illegal campaign contribution'?"

The sheik turned to the woman. "I don't understand what has happened in your city since I was here the last time. I'm trying to invest $50 million in this town and no one treats me with any respect."

"I'll bet you G-men tell that to all your girls."

"What is a G-man?" the sheik demanded.

"You're really off the wall, sheik, or whatever your name is. Hey, there's a pal of mine, Sen. Dingleoffner. Poochie, you haven't called me in ages."

"Been campaigning."

"Poochie, this is my good friend Sheik something-or-another."

"Stay away from me!" Sen. Dingleoffner warned the sheik. "You're not going to entrap me. I don't want anything from you, and I hope I'm saying it right into your camera."

"I didn't offer you anything," the sheik said.

"You heard him, everybody," the senator yelled to the whole room. "He didn't offer me anything. And I didn't take anything. You're all witnesses." The senator then ran out of the restaurant.

"I think I better go back to my hotel," the shaken sheik said.

"All right," the girl replied. "But first tell me how you people got Dillinger."

The planned tax increase

According to the figures in the President's budget for fiscal year 1981, the Carter administration expects the personal income tax burden to grow much more rapidly than personal income. The table tells the story:

Taxes and Income (increase over previous year)
Personal Income	Personal Income	Tax Receipts
1980 . . . 9.7 percent	9.6 percent
1981 . . . 9.7	15.0
1982 . . . 12.0	16.1
1983 . . . 12.5	19.7
1984 . . . 11.7	19.5
1985 . . . 10.9	18.1

With taxes growing faster than income, individual income tax receipts are projected to rise from 11.3 percent of personal income in 1980 to 14.9 percent in 1985. This large boost indicates the extent to which inflation, by swelling nominal incomes, is pushing taxpayers into high brackets of the progressive income tax. But the picture is even grimmer than it looks for two reasons.

In the first place, personal income includes transfer payments from the government, most of which are not taxable. So the tax burden falls even heavier on people who actually pay taxes.

Also, incentive depends less on the tax on all income than the tax on additional income. The budget shows that the tax burden on increases in personal income will rise from 11.2 percent in 1980 to 23.3 percent in 1985—a startling 108 percent increase.

Of course, other taxes are headed up too, and the President is counting on the new "windfall profits" tax to bring in revenues of $20.9 billion in 1981, $28.4 billion in 1982, and $31.5 billion in 1983. Overall, total tax receipts show an increase of 103 percent between 1980 and 1985, a period during which GNP is projected to increase by only 75 percent.

It is doubtful that the President's goals of reducing unemployment and inflation are consistent with these large projected increases in taxation. The tax brake implicit in the progressive income tax system will slow economic activity as more and more people find themselves swept into the higher brackets. As the tax bite on additional earnings grows, so does the disincentive to produce additional income and to save. Without savings there cannot be the investments that bring new jobs and inflation-fighting productivity gains.

The Carter administration should reconsider its benign view of substantial increases in the personal income tax burden. Its budget folk are looking only at higher revenues to cover more spending and still (some day) balance the budget. But those rising revenues also mean rising disincentives. And as we have said before, the real tax burden of high marginal rates is not just the revenues they raise but all the income they discourage from being earned.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Feb. 15, the 46th day of 1980. There are 320 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 15, 1898, the battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor off Havana, Cuba, setting off the Spanish American War.

On this date:

In 1564, the Italian astronomer, Galileo, was born in Pisa.

In 1824, the pioneer crusader for women's rights, Susan B. Anthony, was born in Adams, Mass.

In 1933, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt narrowly escaped assassination in Miami. The shot fired at him missed but killed Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago.

In 1972, Attorney General John Mitchell resigned his cabinet post to direct President Richard Nixon's re-election campaign.

Ten years ago, Britain's Lord Dowding, who led the Royal Air Force to victory over the Germans in the Battle of Britain, died at the age of 87.

Five years ago, the Soviet Union carried out a nuclear test to see if such explosions would be feasible for building canals.

One year ago, the State Department demanded a full report from the Soviet Union on its role in the death of U.S. Ambassador Adolph Dubs in Afghanistan.

Today's Birthday: Football player Ken Anderson is 31.

A worthy national goal

Whether man's destiny is forced or free; whether he is a robot product of his environment or whether he can shape his environment; whether he is a moral, intelligent being who should be left free to plan his own life or whether he should be considered a pawn, to be planned by the state — these are among the most important questions of our time. Several years ago, it was the fashion to project for America so-called national goals or purposes: a rather futile undertaking because America, like any free society, is many million purposes — all combining toward end results far richer and finer than any totalitarian state has produced.

But it would be a worth-while national goal to rekindle in America public opinion those attitudes and responses — social, economic and moral — appropriately based on the assumption that man is internally free and, regardless of environment, able to shape his life, for better or for worse.

Two fliers die in training accident

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Two Navy officers tried to bail out after their TA-4J jet hit a radio tower near here, but fell to their deaths with their parachutes streaming behind them, an eyewitness said.

Thursday's crash was the second fatal accident in two days involving planes from the Aircraft Training Squadron 25 at the Beeville Naval Air Station. Navy officials said.

Navy officials have declined to identify the two officers pending notification of next of kin.

"They ejected out sideways instead of straight into the air," said Dewayne Weaver, who witnessed the crash.

"The chutes came out, but it was too close to the ground," he said. Lt. Cmdr. Mary Cooperman at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station said the jet was on a routine low-level flying maneuver in the Port O'Connor area when the accident occurred about 2:10 p.m.

Weaver said he looked up when he heard the engine "flame out" or quit.

"It hit the tower, sparks flying, and it was like a Roman candle," said Weaver. "It made an arc straight up and then came down, whistling and spinning around and around, and exploded in a big ball of fire."

The concussion "nearly knocked me off my feet," said Weaver.

Church Conference debates child care licensing practice

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Many Christian denominations think the state should license child care facilities run by churches contrary to what evangelist Lester Roloff feels, says a Texas Conference of Churches official.

"The major publicity on this issue has been on those who object to the law," said the Rev. Willis Erickson of Austin.

"Most of our denominations are in favor of it. When you offer public facilities, the state has a right to provide licensing for the safety of the children."

Erickson, a Lutheran minister, is chairman of the Division of Church and Society, which authorized several resolutions before the conference assembly.

Delegates are expected to debate and vote on the issues today.

Roloff, a Baptist, has refused to license his homes for troubled youngsters. He closed two facilities last year rather than bow to what he called "un-Christian, un-Biblical" state regulation.

His Rebekah Home for Girls has reopened without a license and is operated by the People's Baptist Church. Roloff is pastor of the congregation and claims the home is now exempt from the law.

Texas Attorney General Mark White says the home must be licensed and has sued to bring it under state regulation or close it.

The 10-year-old church conference has members from 13 Protestant denominations, the Greek Orthodox Church and the Roman Catholic Church.

Among the larger church groups in Texas who are not members are Southern Baptists and the Church of Christ.

The Rt. Rev. Willis Henton of Lubbock, conference president, said this year's meeting is the first in the Rio Grande Valley. Henton, Episcopal bishop of Northwest Texas, said many important issues this year involve border concerns.

McAllen is in Hidalgo County, which has one of the lowest per capita incomes in the country.

"The human issues involved are many," Henton said. "Family reunification is important. Immigration laws have separated families and left part on one side of the border and part on the other side."

The conference also will discuss the state law banning free education of illegal alien children. There are several court battles going on to declare the law unconstitutional.

"What we have to decide is what is more expensive in the long run — educating them now or living with a generation of uneducated people later," said the Rev. Dr. James Suggs, conference executive director.

The Rio Grande Valley's vast agricultural industry has been the site of sometimes violent confrontation between growers and farm worker unions.

As one of several field trips, some delegates were to visit today with farm workers and farm agencies.

Officials say nuclear leaks are not uncommon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small leaks of radioactive gases from two nuclear plants, including Three Mile Island, caught public notice this week, but federal regulators say such leaks are not unusual and, in themselves, not dangerous.

Second Texan in London for rabies shot

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — An Eagle Pass teen-ager, bitten and clawed by a cat believed to be rabid, has flown to London to take a series of anti-rabies vaccinations not yet available in the United States.

Blake McBeath, 18, is the second Eagle Pass resident this month to travel to England for the Human Diploid inoculations. John David Sumpter, 5, flew to London Feb. 5 after he had been bitten by a cat confirmed to have rabies.

Andy McBeath said his son was bitten and clawed on both legs Jan. 31, by a cat that officials believe was the same animal that bit the Sumpter Youth Feb. 3.

"He didn't report that he was bitten. He thought the shots would interfere with his baseball and would be too painful. He thought they were just minor bites and claw marks. He later talked to a nurse friend who convinced him of the seriousness," said the elder McBeath.

He said his son began taking anti-rabies shots in Eagle Pass last Sunday. However, he said they decided to send his son to England when a doctor in Atlanta told them the Human Diploid vaccine was better and less painful.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has not yet approved the use of the Human Diploid vaccine in the United States.

Anti-rabies treatment in the United States includes a painful series of 21 shots. McBeath said the treatment in England takes only a couple of days.

"Before Three Mile Island they would never have had public attention. There was not a public health problem in either case, said Dudley Thompson, acting deputy director of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office of inspection and enforcement.

The NRC staff was to make a report later today to the five-member commission about the two releases of small amounts of radioactive Krypton 85 gas from the crippled Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania earlier in the week.

Thompson said in an interview Thursday that the NRC's concern about the releases at Three Mile Island and also at the Calvert Cliffs reactor in Maryland stemmed partly from increased public sensitivity about such reports.

NRC officials did not immediately have available the number of unexpected releases reported over the last 12 months, but Norman Moseley, head of the division of reactor operation and inspection, said they probably number 60 to 80.

In addition to unexpected releases, nuclear plants regularly release radioactive material which has built up in reactor waste treatment facilities.

Thompson said the agency wants to know about even small leaks to help alleviate any public fears, adding: "Since Three Mile Island, utilities are going to be a rather suspect source."

New rules, already approved by the five commissioners and expected to be published in a few weeks, would require reporting of virtually all unplanned releases of radioactive materials, no matter how small.

The Calvert Cliffs incident involved the release of 40 curies, well below federal limits, of radioactive Xenon-133 gas Monday and Tuesday. It was not reported and was only discovered by an NRC inspector reviewing plant logs.

The NRC staff has indicated unhappiness over the way the utilities reported the events.

Search uncovers tiny treasures

By Nancy Ellis

At last, in a glass case near the door of a small shop is the perfect gift for the gentle lady who loves antiques and miniatures: a tiny brass crib complete with a bisque baby no bigger than my thumb.

We have searched so long that everything has begun to look the same, and we have tired of pouring through the stores and boutiques looking for an appropriate gift for Grandma.

On our first vacation alone in three years, we left Grandma — good sport that she is — back home managing two little boys and a mountain of diapers.

"Surprises" have been promised to all who stayed behind, so the search is a necessary priority of our sightseeing.

Choosing for the children is easy — virtually anything will do. We settle on a "policeman's car" for the 3-year-old and a "hopping bird" for the baby.

But Grandma had us stumped. Having just moved from a big house in the city to a smaller one in the country, she has been discarding much accumulated during her 35-year marriage and five years alone. What she doesn't need is more junk.

Finally, here is this crib — the side rail actually can be raised and lowered — which includes a charming miniature mattress with flowered fabric inset on the sides. And the sweet baby wears a "perfect hand-crocheted dress with matching bonnet and panties."

We depart with our purchase wrapped in white tissue, and are half way back to the hotel before we realize we forgot to ask the identity of the artists.

Yet it's fun, we decide, for it to remain a mystery whose loving hands crafted these tiny treasures. And since such quality endures, to wonder to whom they will bring pleasure 100 years from now.

Millie, 16, of Youngstown, Ohio is in need of a little freedom and asks for help from the guest teen writers. Jim Allen, 17, from Alliance, Ohio, and Silvia Martinez, 16, who resides in San Antonio, Texas, will do the honors.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 and an only child and my problem is my mother who drives me to and from school every day. Add to this the fact that I am not allowed to attend any functions after dark whether it's at school or church.

Last night was the last straw. My best girlfriend's mom called and asked if I could attend a well-chaperoned slumber party. Naturally my mother said no.

Of course, I'm not allowed to date and my dad is no help at all. Mom is the boss in our house. I get good grades and am fairly popular in spite of the overprotection. Can you and the guest teen writers offer a few suggestions before I go berserk? — Millie, Youngstown, Ohio

Obviously someone outside of the family must enlighten mom to give you reasonable responsibility and a little freedom. Seek help from school (teacher, counselor, nurse), a clergyman, trusted relative or a parent of a close friend.

Hi Millie: I'll never complain again when my mother demands to know where I've been and what I did. Your mom is "out of sight."

I'm sure she is not aware that she is actually doing you harm by keeping you inside a "bird cage." Talk to your family doctor or your clergyman and have either or both of them talk to both parents. They need enlightenment fast. — Silvia, San Antonio, Texas.

Hello Millie: Sometimes I wonder who are the worst parents — those who just don't care or those who "smother" their offspring with too much caring.

You need help and fast. If your school district has a psychologist, see him or her and share your problem. If no psychologist is available, talk to your school nurse. She will get you the help your parents need.

I am wondering what kind of teen life your parents led. — Jim, Alliance, Ohio

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — People are advised not to drink too much coffee, tea and cola because of the caffeine, and not to drink too much decaffeinated coffee, not to drink too much milk and not too many fruit juices which may cause frequent trips to the bathroom. My question is, what should a person who has a chronic bowel problem drink? I personally can only drink so many glasses of water a day and then I need something else.

DEAR READER — From a health point of view, it's kind of hard to improve on water. Mother Nature knew what she was doing when she manufactured it. Of course, we've done a few things to it by contaminating our water supplies and adding various and sundry chemicals to it.

I presume from your question that you must have recurrent problems with diarrhea. It is true that anyone who has digestive disturbances, whether it's burning in the pit of the stomach or an irritable colon, would do well to avoid the coffee, tea, colas and caffeine-containing beverages. It's also true that the decaffeinated coffee can also be irritating to the digestive system.

Unless a person has milk intolerance, there's no reason why a person can't drink just about as much fortified skim milk as he or she wants. It's a good source of calcium and a good source of protein and the fortified skim milk is a relatively low-calorie drink because most of the fat has been removed. It won't cause you to make frequent trips to the bathroom unless you are one of those people who has milk intolerance.

Most normal people can drink a reasonable amount of fruit juices without having any difficulty. A wide variety of these can be blended with ice to make a very nice cool beverage. They also provide vitamin C.

There's more to diarrhea problems than what you drink. I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-8. What You Need to Know about Diarrhea. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Some people seem to be sensitive to certain foods that trigger episodes of diarrhea. If you can learn what ones these are and eliminate them, it will help enormously.

In 1967, half the food produced in India was lost to rats, rot, birds and insects. Three years later, 50 percent losses in developing countries were not unusual. It's estimated modern pest control could save enough food for 40 million people.

Factors influence party-giving

Entertaining becomes easier

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Two facts of life—inflation and informality—are having a decided effect on the way Americans set a party table.

Judging from remarks made by a decorating expert and a food specialist, the new ways are making entertaining easier. Yet, the lack of rules has some people confused about how to achieve the desired results.

Bebé Winkler, a New York interior designer who helps clients plan special parties, says entertaining is more informal today, even among the rich and well-born.

"Few people have the help for formal dinners," she says. "So serve-yourself buffets and casual food that can be served cold or kept warm in a chafing dish are in demand."

Ms. Winkler advises dedicated party-givers to collect and save up some interesting accessories to put into a "party resource closet" and later use to liven up the table.

"Sophisticated women wouldn't wear the same dress to entertain the same people. But they often think nothing of having the same dinner table," she says. "I like to eat well, but an interesting table can add to the overall party."

Coming from an opposite direction to arrive at more or less the same place is John Clancy, a food authority, writer and teacher of cooking at his Manhattan brownstone.

"The color at a dinner party should come from the food. The table setting, plates and glasses are a backdrop," Clancy says. "But I happen to be very traditional. I love white tablecloths and damask napkins, flowers, silver and crystal."

As a food writer, gourmet cook and dedicated eater, Clancy is disturbed by some of the new tableware of violent hue and busy design. He picks his menu first, and then creates the atmosphere to enhance it.

Both authorities agree that old-fashioned rules on setting a table are out. Mix-and-match table settings are endorsed by both Clancy and Ms. Winkler.

"I always advise my clients to take what they have and mix it. As a guide to what is compatible, consider design, color, proportion and mood," she explains. "It helps to have a blend of patterned and plain things—two pattern sets or groups and one plain or two plain and one patterned."

A number of manufacturers are beginning to offer dinnerware collections that blend with one another. But few of us go out and buy all our china at once.

Clancy solves the problem by having a basic set of all-white china to which he has added unusual antique dishes collected over the years.

As an individual who cooks for a living as well as pleasure, he has virtually any sort of utensil or dish he needs to try any dish.

However, he says, "Don't let the lack of a utensil keep you from trying something."

"If you want to poach a fish and don't have a poacher, use a roasting pan and a cake rack. Tie strings to the rack so you can lift the fish out of the poaching liquid."

One rule that many are glad to see disappearing is the elaborate ritual of specific glasses for specific drinks, says Ms. Winkler.

"I advise people to buy a large number of inexpensive, oversize wine glasses to use as a basic. It can contain any type of wine or other beverage and it can double as a dessert dish," she explains. "The overscaling of the wine glass is right at home in today's informal entertaining scheme."

Other usable ideas for distinctive parties from Ms. Winkler are to break up a large dinner party into smaller groups of four or six. If you have an extension table, don't open it. Instead, set it for four or six and then use a dummy table, rented or homemade with a wood board and a base.

Cover both with fabric to the floor (king-size sheets convert nicely for this purpose) and use some potted, flowering plants, she suggests.

Clancy, whose own dining table is long and narrow, hit upon a clever way to lengthen and widen it on occasion.

"I had a plywood board, one inch thick, cut to fit on top of the table. It adds six inches at either end and 14 inches in width. Of course, the catch is that you have to have a place to store the board when not in use," he added ruefully.

Bebé Winkler's favorite party recently was a July 4th bash aboard a boat that went round Manhattan. "There was a mix of ages from children to grandparents, excellent food, an exotic setting and lots to do," she recalls.

"The real trick of a party isn't the food and it isn't the table," Clancy admits. "It's the people. If they are congenial, everything will be all right. If they aren't, nothing else matters."

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What would you think of a daughter-in-law telling you at the dinner table that she thought you used too much toilet tissue? She said this right in front of her husband, my son!

I told her I would be happy to buy her some more toilet tissue if she was low on it, but she insisted she had plenty—she just resented my extravagance!

This same daughter-in-law informed me shortly after her baby was born that I would have to telephone a week in advance for an appointment to see the baby. Meanwhile, her mother runs in and out whenever she feels like it.

I am not a difficult mother-in-law, Abby. I have another daughter-in-law with whom I get along beautifully.

I am so upset about the way I have been treated that I am considering selling my property and using the money to travel and enjoy myself instead of leaving everything to my two sons. I am a widow (only 56) and am considered quite well-to-do.

The other son (with the nice wife) says I should sell everything, travel, and live it up. The son with the dreadful wife says, "Don't sell. Keep it. You'll get more for it later."

What should I do? If my husband were alive, he would leave nothing to the son with the terrible wife, since he never liked the girl. Your advice is needed.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: If it's necessary to sell your property in order to travel and live it up, sell it. Just keep enough to insure your future security. (P.S. Widows would be wise to discuss their financial matters with the trust officer of their banks, rather than with their children.)

DEAR ABBY: Please do us lawyers a favor and publish this. I vowed that if one more "friend" called me at home for free legal advice, I'd write to DEAR ABBY!

The cheapskate who calls a lawyer at home, asks if he has "a minute," and usually ends up talking half an hour. He calls us at home because he's afraid he'll get a bill if he calls the office. The cheapskate tries to make it sound like a "personal call"—"How's the family, etc.," but he always wants some legal advice.

My free advice today is: Do not call your lawyer at home except in a real emergency. Do call your lawyer's secretary for an appointment and expect to pay for the advice.

LEGAL EAGLE

DEAR EAGLE: You could cure your cheapskate callers quickly by billing them for legal advice dispensed from your home as well as from your office.

DEAR ABBY: When a 17-year-old boy asks a girl to a school dance, how long should he be kept waiting for her answer?

The boy is our son, and the girl has kept him dangling for a week. I think she's keeping him dangling, hoping she will get a better offer, and if she doesn't get one, she'll go with him.

So, how long should he dangle?

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If he's been dangling for a week, he should consider himself cut down and free to ask another girl.

Altrusa meetings include evaluations, film

Recent meetings of Altrusa Club of Pampa included a mid-year evaluation of activities and a dental hygiene film.

Leona Willis, assisted by Marian Jameson, directed the evaluation of programs, projects and fund-raising activities. A poem stating the president's goals for the year also was read.

At a meeting last week, Dr. John Sparkman, D.D.S., showed a dental health care film. Debbie Hargus, his dental hygienist, gave suggestions for the group's dental health project, which includes speaking to third graders in Pampa elementary schools.

Marian Stroup reported nominations for new officers: Joyce Simon, president; Leona Willis, vice president; Betty Casey, recording secretary; Cleo Worley, corresponding secretary; Jean Scott, treasurer; and Ruby Royse and Marge Penn, directors.

Renabelle Anderson introduced the January and February Altrusa Girls, Ann Jeffrey and Kendra Kennedy.

Mary McDaniel, president, conducted the meeting. The next meeting will be Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

'TEXAS' auditions in Canyon Sunday

Auditions for the musical drama, "TEXAS," will be Sunday in Canyon and Lubbock.

Actors, singers and dancers will try out in front of the show's directors. Cast members earn between $700 and $1500 for the season; performers may get theatre credit at West Texas State University.

The musical drama, written by Paul Green, will go on for the 14th summer in the amphitheater at Palo Duro Canyon. Nightly audiences average 1,500.

For more information, call (806) 655-2181.

Organ recitals today, Sunday

An organist known throughout South America and Europe will be featured in two organ recitals this weekend.

Walter Gauss from Brazil will perform a Bach concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Moody Hall at West Texas State University.

He will perform Bach, Hindemith and Widor in a concert Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the First Christian Church, 3001 Woflin Ave., in Amarillo.

The public is invited to both concerts, which are free of charge.

Church news

DR. JUDSON MAYNARD

St. Matthew's Episcopal

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church is pleased to announce that Dr. Judson Maynard, Professor of Music at Texas Tech University, will perform an organ recital at the church Sunday at 8 p.m. The public is invited to this free concert.

Dr. Maynard received his Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Montana in 1951, his Master of Music Education in 1953, and his Ph.D. from the University of Indiana in 1961. He has been an associate member of the American Guild of Organists since 1955. Among his many recitals and accomplishments, Dr. Maynard was granted a Faculty Development Leave from Texas Tech in 1979 to study the carillon, viola da gamba and organ in Amersfoort, Holland. His recital will include selections from Mozart, Bach and Messiaen.

St. Matthew's Church is located on the corner of Browning and Ward.

Calvary Assembly of God

Calvary Assembly of God, Crawford and Love, announces a day of Bible prophecy teaching on Sunday at 9:45 a.m., 10:50 a.m., and 7:00 p.m.

Rev. Joe Robinson, a pastor from Cherokee, Oklahoma, will be the guest teacher. A nursery will be provided.

Lamar Full Gospel will host family singing group

The Dewey Family, consisting of Levoy and Cleon and their two daughters, Cindy and Susie, have travelled for many years to churches across the United States, Canada, and Panama. They travel over three hundred days a year, and in the past several years have spent their time on the mission field. Audiences have been moved by their singing, and over 10,000 people have dedicated their lives to Christ as a result of the Dewey's ministry.

The Dewey Family will be at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly this Sunday at 10:45 p.m. The public is invited.

DAVID GODWIN

Lamar Full Gospel

A church leadership seminar will be conducted Monday and Tuesday night at the Lamar Full Gospel Church, Bond and South Sumner, at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Pastor David Godwin, senior pastor of Oak Cliff Assembly in Dallas, will be the guest speaker. Rev. Gene Allen and congregation invite everyone to these nights of unique and refreshing teaching.

Monday evening, fifty interested persons from more than a dozen different churches met at Coronado Inn for a "Kick-Off Banquet", in preparation for the city-wide crusade to be held in Pampa, August 3-10, 1980.

Anyone not present at the meeting but would like to participate in the crusade preparations can contact Dennis Barton, crusade chairman, at 669-3212 or 665-4385.

First Presbyterian

Noon Lenten Services will begin this week in the Sanctuary from 12:15-12:45 p.m. and will be each Wednesday until Holy Week, where services will be held each day at the First Presbyterian Church. Guest ministers from city churches will be the special guest each week.

The Congregational Nominating Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the church.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

THE HIGHEST POINT

A steeple was first built on the town church so that anyone anywhere in the village could look out and locate the house of worship. The steeple on the church was the highest point in town. This was a physical fact and the people of the Lord knew it was a spiritual fact also.

Although a church's steeple is no longer the highest physical point in the city because of all the many-storied buildings and towers, the church itself is still filled with people who have reached the highest point of Godly maturity and who are filled with the highest degree of Christian love for God and man.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Pentathlon Team target again

By GREG THOMPSON Associated Press Writer
 SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — First there were lawsuits. Then came allegations of "horse laundering" by Army brass. Now controversy again is swirling around the crack U.S. Modern Pentathlon team.

This time the allegations involve drugs. The accusers say the world champion Americans often obtain potentially dangerous drugs from coaches to enhance their chances in international competition against drug-using Europeans.

Army investigators, already investigating the horse charges, returned to the Fort Sam Houston pentathlon training center Thursday to investigate the drug allegations.

The Olympic competition combines horsemanship, marksmanship, swimming, fencing and running. Americans won the world title last year and are favored if they participate in the Moscow Games.

The Army provides training facilities and some administrative personnel, and many competitors have come from Army ranks.

Pentathletes Robert Marbut Jr., 19, and Paul Weber, 20, contend coaches dispensed to them the tranquilizer Valium and Inderal, a drug used on heart patients to slow heartbeat.

Weber said Col. Jim Moore, head of the San Antonio-based team, gave him the drugs before the world junior championships last year. Moore denies the allegation.

Other American pentathletes say use of the drugs in shooting competition is heavy among American and European competitors. Neither is banned by Games organizers, says the U.S. Olympics Committee.

Moore, a three-time national pentathlon champion and two-time Olympian, said some American pentathletes "may" use the drugs.

"Athletes have come to me and asked about it. I send them to the team physician," the 44-year-old Moore said Thursday after being interviewed by investigators from the Army Inspector General's office. "There may be some guys who have gone to the doctor and gotten them. I don't know who. I don't keep track."

"It's not a daily or even monthly thing. Guys might use them maybe once a year for competition," he said.

Moore said two assistant coaches, through an arrangement with the team physician, gave out the drugs before last year's world championships in Hungary. "But that was stopped," he said.

In earlier published reports, Moore denied any American pentathletes are using any drugs.

Weber said Moore handed him two Valiums and one Inderal last August after explaining they would calm him before shooting in the world junior championships.

"He told me if I had any question of using the drugs, I could go to the physician at Fort Sam Houston," said Weber. "He said Valium is a muscle relaxer and Inderal would take the shakes out of my arm."

Moore denies giving any drugs to anyone. The coaches also never told any athlete the drugs would enhance performance, he said.

The pentathlon controversy arose last summer with an internal squabble of the non-profit U.S. Modern Pentathlon and Biathlon Association, which supports the team.

Dr. Robert Beck, 42, was ousted as vice president after an attempt to remove the association's president. The USMPBA then sued Beck, accusing him of misappropriating $186,000 in association funds raised through a horse solicitation project he initiated.

He replied with a $1 million counter-suit alleging slander, and launched a campaign against the USMPBA hierarchy. Beck and other dissidents feel the USMPBA executive committee is dominated by millionaire John duPont and has taken over the association and hand picks team members and officials.

Colombia-U.S. join in battle against cocaine

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The United States and Colombia are working together to fight drug smuggling, according to the Minister of Justice of the South American country.

Justice Minister Hugo Escobar Sierra made his comments in an interview here this week.

"Sadly, my country has been singled out as the largest distributional point for the smuggling of marijuana and cocaine," he says. "Actually, Colombia is virtually the only transshipment point from cocaine-growing countries."

The minister, who recently visited Washington, D.C., where he was briefed by the FBI director and the attorney general, says the United States this year will spend $16 million to help Colombia fight land, sea and air narcotics operations.

Escobar visited with U.S. Customs officers, personnel at the El Paso intelligence Center and Drug Enforcement Administration agents.

He says the heavy demand by U.S. drug users and the willingness to pay top prices have changed many Colombian peasants into prosperous marijuana farmers.

"The dollar temptation was too great to resist," he says.

Escobar says Marijuana sells in Colombia for about $4 a pound.

Four dead in private plane crash

HOUSTON (AP) — A twin-engine private plane slammed into the earth short of the runway at Houston's Intercontinental Airport Thursday night killing the pilot and three members of a Corpus Christi family en route to a wedding in Tyler.

A fourth member of the family, Nan Cunningham, 26, was listed in stable condition Thursday night at Houston's Hermann Hospital with a concussion, broken elbow and back injuries.

"The craft was on what appeared to be a normal approach and the pilot was in direct contact with the tower. He gave no indication anything was wrong," said Fran Davis, chief of the Intercontinental control tower.

The plane crashed short of the runway on the north side of the airport, about 30 miles north of Houston.

Davis said rain and fog had cut visibility to two miles and there was an overcast at about 600 feet.

The plane was on an instrument approach to runway 14, said Davis.

"At 3,000 feet short of the runway, the plane landed at 7:04 p.m.," Davis said.

Rescue workers found all of the plane's occupants strapped in their seats.

Homeowners premiums rise: meet silver theft claims

By LEE JONES
 Associated Press Writer
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — People of average means will pay more for homeowners insurance because of silverware thefts from the rich unless the State Insurance Board does something, the board was told Thursday.

"Silver is at $37 an ounce. When gold was $32 an ounce it was buried at Fort Knox," said John F. Knight of Republic Insurance Co. in Dallas.

Because of this, he said, burglaries of silverware are on the increase, with insurance companies paying for huge losses covered by homeowners insurance.

Knight, speaking for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, urged the board to set a limit on homeowners coverage of silverware, goldware and pewter. He suggested $5,000 but said he was "not hung up on that amount."

Someone with lots of silverware could get more coverage with a separate policy for about 20 cents per $100, he said.

There already is a $500 limit on homeowners coverage of jewelry and a $500 ceiling on payments for gold and silver bullion. Again, added coverage can be bought.

James C. Burford of Aetna, also speaking for the TIAA, told of a $67,000 silverware claim in West Texas, where the homeowner's policy provided only $36,000 for all his household goods.

In another case, he said, $60,000 worth of silverware was stolen, against a total household contents coverage of $50,000.

"Many insureds are not aware that their silverware exceeds the total contents coverage," Burford said.

Knight said burglars seeking silver don't go to the homes of persons with average incomes but seek out rich neighborhoods — "They are going to where the silverware is."

But homeowners rates result from the total loss experience of insurance companies, and Knight said large losses from silverware thefts from rich homes could cause everybody's premiums to rise.

Doug Bennett of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas opposed placing a ceiling on homeowners coverage of silverware, partly because of "the fluctuating value of silver."

He said a limitation would be "an unnecessary restriction on our clients, the insurance buying public."

The board also received a request from the agents association to allow full replacement cost coverage of contents in "secondary homes."

MAYOR RAY Thompson gave the Pampa Harvesters a shot in the arm this morning by signing a proclamation proclaiming it "Beat The Sandies Day." Witnessing the signing are assistant coach Gary Haynes (left) and a group of Pampa High students.

The special occasion came about because of the crucial District 3-AAAA basketball game here tonight between the Pampa Harvesters and the Amarillo High Sandies. A victory would give the Harvesters the second-half district title. (Staff Photo by Jim Williford)

Pampa hosts Sandies in crucial loop game

The Pampa Harvesters, 14-13 overall and 3-0 in the second half of District 3-AAAA play, lay all the cards on the table tonight against Amarillo High in the "Green Pit."

The Harvesters must win to force a playoff with first-half champion Palo Duro for the overall loop crown.

A Sandie win tonight would send the second-half district race down to a deciding game Tuesday when AHS meets Palo Duro. AHS is also 14-13 overall and stand 2-0 in the second half of district action.

"We know its going to be a hard-fought game, but the kids are prepared and ready to do their job," Pampa coach Garland Nichols said.

The two teams have split a pair of meetings this season. Pampa won by two points (48-46) in the Hereford Tournament back in December. AHS won by 30 points (55-25) in the first half of district play.

Two of the factors in that last lopsided get-together were 6-6 1/2 frontliners Kevin Peninger and Kevin Wagner, who are both averaging in double digits this season.

"We've been working on our man to man defense and stopping their inside game," Nichols added. "We've got to stop their big men."

Pampa's 58-51 win over Palo Duro Tuesday night was spearheaded by 6-2 senior Cedric Parker, who scored 17 points and collared 13 rebounds. He shot seven of nine for the game. The Harvesters never trailed in the contest while shooting 52 percent from the floor.

"Overall we played a good game, especially Cedric," Nichols said. "It's the best he's ever shot."

Nichols said the 1,500 fans that jammed into Harvester Fieldhouse played an important part in the victory.

"The crowd was definitely a big factor," Nichols said. "That's why I'd like to see the stands packed again."

To add a little flavor to tonight's crucial contest, Pampa Mayor Ray Thompson signed a proclamation this morning proclaiming it "Beat The Sandies Day."

The junior varsity clash tips off at 6 p.m., followed by the main event at 7:45 p.m.

Pampa golfers in tenth place

Pampa's Barry Terrell is deadlocked for medalist honors at the halfway point of the Odessa Invitational Golf Tournament Thursday.

Terrell's 78 sent him into a three-way deadlock with Plainview's Brooks Terrel and Tascosa's Ben Smith.

The Harvesters hold down tenth place with a 324 in the 15-team tournament. Other Pampa scores were by Bob Phillips, 81; Paul Beck, 82; Gary Cudney, 83, and Dennis Mashburn, 86. Terrell, a senior, qualified for the UIL state tournament last season.

Abilene Cooper teams grabbed two of the first three team finishes after 18 holes, while Amarillo High led Panhandle teams entered in the Odessa Invitational Golf Tournament after an error set back Tascosa's chances.

Cooper's No. 1 team carded 299 and its No. 2 team 309 for the first and third spots.

The final 18 holes will be played today.

Amarillo High's 320 was good enough for seventh best.

U.S. upsets Czechs Two playoff games in area tonight

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — For the others, there is the promising prospect of a National Hockey League contract and even, perhaps, stardom. Usually, Buzz Schneider, Marc Pavelich and John Harrington stand in the shadows while those others share the spotlight.

Thursday night was different. The three workmen from "the Iron range" in northern Minnesota combined for three goals and four assists, helping the Americans upset Czechoslovakia 7-3 and pull into a first-place tie in the Blue Division of the round-robin competition.

"They're the product of a very proud group of people within the state of Minnesota," said Brooks. "If you ever saw people in the Iron range play hockey, kid level, high school level, whatever, they play like that. Each and every night out, they realize they have to work."

Work they did. Schneider, a native of Babbitt, Minn., who once worked those Minnesota mines, scored twice and had an assist. Pavelich, of Eveleth, Minn., had a goal and an assist; and Harrington, of Virginia, Minn., set up a score by each of his linemates. Together, they helped set the furious first-period pace that lit the spark for the rest of the game.

They did it Thursday night against a team that was second only to the Soviet Union in the pre-tournament seedings — an experienced squad they expect to battle for one of the two Blue Division spots in the medals playoff.

"Each line, they went off by themselves today and talked about their function and talked about what they had to do for this hockey club," said Brooks. Though the coach would not allow post-game player interviews, the guessing was that Schneider, Pavelich and Harrington — the laborers on the third line — talked about elements other than iron...elements like bronze, or silver, or gold.

At least it seemed that way. With a crowd of 7,125 thundering support and with Jim Craig continuing his sharp work in goal, the men they call "the Iron Rangers" led the attack against a blatantly slow Czech defense. They buzzed around the offensive zone, they bashed into the corners and came away with the puck, and their passing was nearly impeccable.

Soon, Brooks was going to them more and more.

Four area teams, all girls' squads, square off today to decide who advances into post-season competition.

At Mobeetie, Wheeler and Mobeetie meet with the District 4-B crown at stake. District 2-B rivals Miami and Follett clash for the loop title at Perryton.

Both games start at 7 p.m. Wheeler (17-12) and Mobeetie (18-12) finished tied in their round-robin district race with 7-1 ledgers. Wheeler won the first meeting between the two teams, but Mobeetie returned the favor to force the extra game.

In 2-B, Follett (21-8) downed Miami in the teams' initial meeting at Miami. That helped Follett win the first-half championship. Miami rebounded to take the second-half title at Follett.

The Warriorettes are 25-3 overall with a perfect second-half record to their credit.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass.

(AP) — Charles Pentoliro was playing a round of golf with some friends at the Sagamore course in North Hampton, New Hampshire, and reports the following improbable occurrence:

174-yard fairway. Looking back, he waved to a following four-some to tee off.

He then turned his back. A shot off the tee in back of him was right on target, amazingly so. It was a hole-in-one but not in the golf sense.

The ball landed in Pentoliro's back pocket.

Weston quits at Pampa CC

Dick Weston, assistant pro at the Pampa Golf and Country Club, has been named head golf professional at the Winkler County Country Club in Kermit.

Weston, who has been at the Pampa CC for two and a half years, replaces Gib Faircloth, who is retiring. Mickey Piersall assumes Weston's position.

Weston graduated from New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, New Mexico in 1967. He competed at South Plains College for one year and West Texas State University for two years.

He was one of the top amateurs in the Panhandle area for most of the 1970s. He was named Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame golfer of the year in 1975.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

February 16, 1980

This coming year you are likely to be more fortunate with new projects or enterprises than you will be with old ones. If something fresh comes along that looks good, give it a go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before entering into any joint venture today, be certain your counterpart can offer as much as you. No one will benefit if the deal is lopsided. How to get along with persons born under other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make it a point today to share any good fortune with those who have helped you in the past. Be as generous with them as they were with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before taking on new projects today, be sure to finish what you've already begun. Don't let your impulsiveness overload you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Rather than spoil the fun for yourself or others, it may be wiser today to forego gatherings where there are persons you don't enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Challenges may hold a particular appeal today, but you must be careful not to attempt anything foolhardy, or anything where the odds are obviously stacked against you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't allow yourself to be caught in one-upmanship situations today because you could say or do something that might prove embarrassing. Play it humble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Careless or impulsive buying today could cause you problems later. Be sure that what you purchase has warranties or can be taken back.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Both you and your mate could hold very strong opinions today regarding the way something should be done. Neither will want to yield. Avoid situations that could yield impasses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't delude yourself into believing problems that should be tended to today will somehow take care of themselves. Just saying "presto" won't make them disappear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could experience some peer pressure today and feel you have to do something just because it's the thing to do. Go along with the group — unless it violates your standards.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Contribute to the tranquility on the home front today instead of being disruptive. Selfish demands could cause family members to behave similarly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you know from experience to be overbearing should be avoided today. You won't appreciate being told what to do or how to think.

Specials specialize in dancin' rhythms

By Rob Patterson

The Specials live up to their name, especially in America. Healers of a trend that's sweeping Britain, the Specials' music comes from a meeting of mid-'60s British mod fashions and rock 'n' roll through Quadsophenia, one of their biggest movies) with the black music of that time — ska.

In the Specials' scheme, ska — which is itself a cross of o'lysspo and New Orleans soul, and an ancestor of reggae — gives their music an infectious dance beat, while mod colors their sensibilities and fashions.

Is this trend the prophesied marriage of rock with disco or dance music rhythms? "The music we play is dance music," says vocalist Terry Hall, while organist Jerry Dammers proclaims, "We try to mix punk and reggae music together."

Though such comments may sound calculating, the Specials' music sounds like "organic hybrid," despite their consciousness of fashion (almost de rigueur in England). Based in Coventry outside the London scene, they have their own record label and maintain a professed

George Burns

"I don't think anybody should retire. As a matter of fact, I'm making old age fashionable. I'm doing so well, everybody can't wait to get old."
— George Burns, 83-year-old actor-comedian, on being asked if he has thought of retiring. (ABC-TV)

"I saw that democracy in the Soviet Union is a mockery, that the Soviet people have no free elections, no freedom of thought or opinion, no freedom of intellectual or artistic creation or expression, no freedom of religion."
— Arkady Shevchenko, former personal advisor to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Shevchenko defected to America in 1978.

"I never meant to be a sexual object for anyone but my husband. I never thought a picture of my body would be tacked up in men's bedrooms. I hate men looking at me and thinking what they think. And I know what they think. They write and tell me."
— Lynda Carter, the actress who plays "Wonder Woman," declaring that her titillating poster was never meant to exploit her as a sex object. (Us)

"After all the talk about sex and violence, it is certainly a change to be criticized for too much news coverage."
— James H. Rosenfield, president of the CBS television network, referring to a TV Guide editorial that accused the three major networks of excessive competition in trying to bring back the most news from Iran.

coming from that source and under those circumstances."
— Jay Bernstein, manager of actress Suzanne Somers, who was given $10,000 in cash and a $40,000 diamond by Playboy — in lieu of a legal suit for publishing 10-year-old nude photos of her without her permission. Miss Somers donated the gifts to the Easter Seal Foundation.

"Yes. Well, maybe. I'd have to see the script."
— Marie Osmond, singer, on being asked if she would refuse to play the role of Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet" because of the bedroom scene. (New Musical Express)

"Success can really cripple you. We live in a culture based on success. But life isn't for that. Life isn't to finally get to the point where you can accept Oscars from yourself to yourself."
— Dustin Hoffman, actor. (Rolling Stone)

"My job is based upon my ability to be intimidating and brutally violent. Yet my every action is well within the structure of the NFL rules. If and when the rules change, I'll change my style."
— Jack Tatum, defensive back for the Oakland Raiders, writing in his book, "They Call Me Assassin," about his style of playing football.

Singer produces story collection

OLD LOVE, by Isaac Bashevis Singer. Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 273 Pages. $10.95.
Some books are designed to be read quickly and as quickly forgotten.
Others are meant to be savored and to remain in the mind long after they have been put on the shelf for some future re-reading. Such a book is Isaac Bashevis Singer's "Old Love," a fine collection of 18 short stories.

Many of Singer's stories are marked by a wry humor. In "Brother Beetle," a man journeys to Israel, meets a woman who had been thinking about him constantly during the 20 years they had been separated, and physical love blooms. Unfortunately for the man events occur that make him look a fool, much to the pitying reader's amusement.
Probably the best — and most haunting — of these fine stories is "The Bus." Here a man takes a bus trip through Spain and through no fault of his own is soon embroiled in a romance he neither seeks nor wants. It's funny, but it's touching also.

Gasohol fuels AAM supporters in descent on Capitol Hill

By SOLL SUSSMAN
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Agriculture Movement, which angrily descended on the Capitol last year to protest farm policy, is returning this time to tout the gospel of gasohol.

Marvin Meek, the group's president, said farmers did not plan as raucous an event as last year when tractors snarled Capitol traffic.

He said five "small" motorcades of alcohol-fueled vehicles left their home states Monday for Washington, giving demonstrations of how stills work along their routes.

"Don't really have any idea," Meek, of Plainview, Texas, replied when asked how many farmers were expected for the convention.

American Agriculture began two years ago as a grassroots organization to promote a farm strike, and he said there was still some reluctance to formalize it.

Plans called for the motorcades to arrive by Saturday. If permits were obtained, stills to demonstrate alcohol production would be constructed on the Capitol mall and in Lafayette Park across from the White House.

Meek said most of the farmers were not expected until Sunday.

"It's just kind of a place where we can get together," he said. "Since they won't move the capital out in the country, we thought we'd better come up here."

Speeches and meetings at the Commerce Department's auditorium are scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday. Farmers planned to march down Pennsylvania Avenue on Thursday to complete the week by lobbying for two days on Capitol Hill.

Meek shrugged off last year's demonstrations as a highly successful publicity gimmick. He added, however, that if farmers refrain from any more demonstrations it does not mean they are any more satisfied by the Carter administration's farm policy.

"We'll have farmers up here through the month of February, a few of them, to work on the hill — probably through March, too. However long it takes," Meek said.

He said the major topic will be increasing the government's price support program.

"Those rascals — the Democrats and Republicans both — have always promised parity in agriculture," Meek said. "They haven't done that, either party, and we want them to make some positive steps in proving to the agricultural sector that they are moving us toward parity in agriculture."

He claimed that under current policy farmers must harvest a bumper crop to make a profit. He said the bad seasons are carried along in the books, with no chance to recover from them.

Millionaire named in trial

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A man who has already pleaded guilty to taking part in a multimillion dollar drug-smuggling operation says a Tennessee millionaire was also involved in the plot.

The wealthy Tennessee man, John Ruppel, 61, is charged with racketeering, being involved in a continuing criminal enterprise, and conspiracy to smuggle 73 tons of marijuana from Colombia into the United States.

In an earlier trial last September, a federal jury convicted nine co-defendants and acquitted two others but announced it was hopelessly deadlocked in the charges against Ruppel.

Government witness Willis Judge Butler testified Thursday that he met with Ruppel and two other men in August or September of 1978 at a hotel near the Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

The meeting was to discuss paying participants in an upcoming smuggling run, Butler said, and the others at the meeting were James Holland, who has been sentenced to 15 years in prison for his part in the ring, and Charles Elbert "Muscles" Foster, now listed as a fugitive.

He said the payments were to be based on an estimated 30,000 pounds of marijuana at $200 a pound. Butler said he was to help purchase a boat and equip it, Holland was to sell the marijuana and Foster was to furnish a place to unload it, a place to store it, and the drivers and trucks to transport it.

Ruppel gave Foster $20,000 for expenses, and Foster gave it to Butler, the witness testified. Butler said he also met with Ruppel and Holland in Gatlinburg, Tenn., where Ruppel once lived, to talk about the boat purchase.

Butler said he spent $46,000 of his own money for the boat, the Agnes Pauline, which later was seized by customs officials while 40,000 pounds of marijuana were being unloaded in Port Arthur in November of 1978. Holland told him Ruppel would repay him the $46,000, Butler testified.
