Kennedy expects big win

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts Democrats voted today in a presidential primary which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy — on home ground — said he would win over President Carter. George Bush and a resurgent Ronald Reagan competed for top spot in a crowded Republican field.

The first polls opened shortly after sunrise in an election that awards 111 votes for the Democratic presidential nomination and 42 Republican nominating votes.

Before closing at 8 p.m. EST, as many as 1.5 million voters were expected to cast ballots in the first of the big state presidential campaign tests.

Vermont held its primary election, too.

Bush said he and Reagan were in a close race there, as in Massachusetts. "It's nip and tuck," he said.

He said much the same thing a week ago in New Hampshire — and Reagan beat him there two-to-one. That showing led the former California governor to intensify his campaign effort in Massachusetts and Vermont. Reagan said he was cautiously optimistic about his prospects in Massachusetts, which he once had described as among his weakest states.

Bush said he was gaining strength in the final days before the voting. "We're going to surprise some people," he said.

Kennedy, a 10-point loser to Carter in New Hampshire, was in the hands of his own constituents in a primary he had to win. "I'm confident I will win," he said on election eve in the state that has four times elected him to the Senate.

Carter's campaign chairman, David L. Flynn, said Kennedy would have to roll up a landslide of 75 percent or better to gain a real comeback in his challenge to Carter's renomination.

"A win is a win," Kennedy said.

He needs one, after four losses to Carter, two of them in nearby New England states. In earlier contests, the candidates have shied from victory forecasts, the better to explain away defeats. But for Kennedy, there was no point in hedging about Massachusetts, for his campaign could not survive an upset at home.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. also was on the Democratic ballot, but he dropped his campaign here, and said he would make his next stand in the Wisconsin primary on April 1.

Illinois Rep. John B. Anderson, buoyed by the vein of liberal Republicanism in Massachusetts, said he was coming on strong against Bush and Reagan.

Colleagues angered over Baylor firing editors

The firing of three Baylor University student editors over editorial policies has angered their Southwest Conference colleagues, who insist the issue has now grown beyond the question of students posing for Playboy magazine.

"The Playboy photographs are non-issues," said Roy Bragg, editor of the Texas A&M Battalion. "Now it's a question of whether Baylor administrators want a newspaper of a p.r. publication."

"If it's the latter, maybe Baylor should hire a staff of professionals and really do it big," Bragg said.

Baylor's Board of Publications voted in an emergency meeting Monday to remove Jeff Barton, Cyndy Slovak and Barry Kolar from the staff of The Baylor Lariat. The board also suspended publication of the campus newspaper for the rest of the week.

The firing culminated a three-week-long dispute between the editors and school administrators that began when Playboy announced plans for a pictorial feature, "Girls of the Southwest Conference."

University President Abner McCall threatened to expel any Baylor female who posed for the magazine, and the Lariat editors opposed him in print.

"I thought the battle could be fought on moral grounds," said Barton, Lariat editor-in-chief, after the meeting. "I'm very disappointed in the university, and today, I'm embarrassed to say I'm a fifth generation Baylorite."

"I thought the battle could be fought on moral grounds," said Barton, Lariat editor-in-chief, after the meeting. "I'm very disappointed in the newspaper, and today, I'm embarrassed to say I'm a fifth generation Baylorite."

Board members refused to comment on the decisions.

Walter Borges, managing editor of The Daily Texan, the student newspaper at the University of Texas at Austin, attended the two-hour session Monday.

"The Playboy angle has become a false issue," Borges said. "The question instead has been how free the editors were to publish what they wished. Today, it was ruled they were not free. It was ruled the paper was to be an organ of McCall and his views," Borges said.

After McCall threatened disciplinary action, the Lariat ran two editorials side-by-side, one advocating personal choice in the matter, the other advising women not to pose.

On Friday, publications director Ralph Strother told the trio to "quit or be fired" after they protested the deletion of two sentences from an editorial that criticized McCall's "smugness" and called the administration "arrogant."

Strother said the deleted passages were unprofessional and violated McCall's guidelines, including advance review of editorial copy.

Prior to Monday's meeting, Strother had asked Barton and Kolar to leave the Lariat newsroom. Both refused, saying they were still in charge of the five-day-a-week paper.

Campus police were summoned, but the pair had left by the time officers arrived.

Associate journalism professor Don Williams, who supported the editors, was told "to pack pack your bags and get out" when he arrived for classes Monday.

"I'm thoroughly insulted and revolted. I consider (the action) a slap in the face and a betrayal of the students," he said.

Williams submitted his resignation last week, to be effective at the end of the spring semester. He said the editors had been "insulted" and treated "very insensitively."

David Butler, senior editor of The Rice Thresher, said he feared the Baylor dispute could spill over to other private universities.

"This goes beyond telling individual students what they can and cannot do, to a question that affect all private schools," Butler said.

"Something possibly will have to be done, maybe in the courts, to define the rights of adult students at private schools, church-related or not, whether it's posing in the nude for a magazine or writing editorials criticizing the administration," he said.

TCU Chancellor Dr. William Tucker, advised in January of the magazine's plans, said he did not necessarily approve but had no right to tell adult female students what they could do on their own time.

U.S. has nothing to lose

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back-to-back headline disclosures of Communist spying in the United States stem not from any get-tough policy toward the Soviet Union but from a feeling there is little to lose in U.S.-Soviet relations, sources say.

"There is no calculated campaign (against Soviet spies) and to think so is to give the intelligence agencies and the U.S. government more credit for coordination than they deserve," said one U.S. intelligence community source, who asked not to be named.

"Suspicion that the Carter administration had decided to deliberately turn up the heat on Communist spies was raised by two remarkable disclosures amid the crisis in U.S.-Soviet relations over Afghanistan."

Last Friday, retiring FBI intelligence chief William Cregar acknowledged that five Communist bloc diplomats had been secretly tossed out of this country for spying in the last year.

Then, on Monday, the FBI held an extraordinary news conference to present a top, turncoat Soviet spy who discussed his 11 years of reporting on U.S. political trends to the Soviets while posing as a New York freelance photographer.

At the news conference, Homer Boynton, executive assistant FBI director, turned aside speculation the session was part of a crackdown.

Boynton said the FBI put KGB Col. Rudolph A. Herrmann on display, because "we feel that it's important that the American public be aware of the type of espionage and intelligence activities that are occurring."

Anti-cancer, anti-virus drug being readied for market

NEW YORK (AP) — Spurred by a potential market that may include anyone from common cold sufferers to cancer victims, drug companies are gearing up to produce interferon, a potent natural anti-virus and anti-cancer drug.

G.D. Searle & Co. of Chicago today was announcing the largest clinical test yet of "fibroblast" interferon, a type not yet extensively studied.

The test, involving 30 cancer patients at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, will begin in a month, Searle said.

Last week, Abbott Laboratories of Chicago said it was boosting its production of fibroblast interferon.

More than a dozen firms now are planning to make one or more of the several kinds of interferon known, according to Nelson Schneider, drug industry analyst for the investment firm E.F. Hutton.

Initial investments already may have reached $50 million to $100 million, unusual for a new, unproved drug, he said.

"If the drug works the way some people think it does, you could be talking about the forerunner of a line of products with an impact like antibiotics, which have a $15 billion market worldwide with a lot more than a dozen companies involved,"

Schneider added.

Interferon, discovered in 1957, is a potent enemy of viruses like herpes, hepatitis and even the common cold. More recently, scientists found it also seems to help — but usually not cure — some cancers.

Work with the substance so far has been preliminary and experimental because it is scarce and expensive.

Leukocyte interferon, made from white blood cells from blood donors, costs about $50 per million units, and the average treatment involves hundreds of millions of units. Leukocyte interferon, the type most frequently studied, is being used by the American Cancer Society in its current test with 150 cancer patients.

U.S. plans purchase of embargoed grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced today plans to buy up to 13 million metric tons of wheat and corn, part of the grain that President Carter two months ago embargoed from delivery to the Soviet Union.

Officials said the purchases will involve up to 4.25 million metric tons of wheat and up to 9 million of corn. The purchases will be made "at prevailing market prices" from country elevators and, in some cases, farmers themselves.

No costs were announced, but at current farm prices the purchases could total as much as $1.4 billion, including about $819 million for the corn and $582 million for the wheat.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Most recently, according to USDA, wheat at the farm has been selling for about $3.74 a bushel or approximately $137 a metric ton. Corn, at $2.32 a bushel, is equal to about $91 a ton at the farm.

Bergland said formal offers by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. to buy the wheat will be made on Friday, March 7.

Another official said corn offers possibly would be made next week. All offers will be handled by the agency's commodity office in Kansas City, Kan.

Houston company asks rate hike

HOUSTON (AP) — Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., which supplies natural gas to 130 utility and municipal systems in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri, plans a price increase that will cost the average consumer $16 a year.

The company said Monday the whole rate increase of $62.8 million a year would cover higher operating and capital costs since its last hike in November 18.

The Houston interstate supplier filed notice with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission that the new rates will be effective April 1.

'Chitchat' turns to suspicion

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — It was chitchat between old acquaintances who happened to meet in an Anchorage bank.

"So what are you doing for a living now?" Carl Roehle asked 22-year-old Robert L. Langsdale, who Roehle once knew in Homer, Alaska.

"Robbing banks," came the reply.

Sunday morning, Roehle was awakened by a friend who asked if he had seen his picture in the newspaper, over a story with a headline: "Bank robber may have had accomplice."

The photo, taken by a security camera at the Spenard branch of the National Bank of Alaska, showed Roehle talking to Langsdale as they walked through the bank Friday evening.

One of the man put his hand in his coat pocket, pretended to have a gun and made off with an undisclosed sum of money, authorities said.

In distributing the picture to news media, the FBI said the man later identified as Langsdale had actually gone to the teller window. Neither man was identified Agent Robert W. Carter said authorities didn't know if both were involved in the heist.

But Roehle knew. Boy did he know! And, after verifying his co-starring role on Page One, he contacted authorities.

While Roehle was telling agents that Langsdale was merely someone he had once known, Langsdale was calling Anchorage police.

He, too, had seen the story and three-column picture and wanted to give himself up. He was arrested on federal charges of bank robbery.

Roehle, a warehouseman for an airline catering company, said he "got a lot of strange looks" when he showed up for work Monday.

"It was kind of comical," he said in recalling his meeting with Langsdale. "I went into the bank and saw him. We shook hands, talked for a few minutes, then went about our business and left about the same time."

Roehle said that while he was not particularly happy about the FBI's reference to his possible complicity to the robbery, he was not overly worried about his newspaper exposure.

"I thought it was a pretty good picture, myself," he said.

Rudolph Albert Herrmann, a man identified by the FBI as a double agent and who worked for the Soviet KGB according to the FBI for some 25 years, has been granted asylum in the United States.

SHOCK PROBATION REVOKED

The "shock" probation of a 23-year-old Pampa man was revoked by Judge Don Cain after a hearing in the 223rd District Court Monday afternoon. After testimony from defendant Eddie Von Scothorn of 2209 Evergreen and five witnesses, Cain revoked Scothorn's "shock" probation — an incarceration in the state department of corrections for 60 to 120 days, then release on probation. The defendant was then released to the Sheriff's Department to be taken to the Texas Department of Corrections to serve a term of "not less than two years nor more than five years" for a burglary conviction he received in November of 1976. The revocation came as a result of a high speed chase involving Scothorn and three police officers in the early morning hours of Feb. 19. The man was charged with driving while intoxicated, fleeing and evading an officer and cited for running a red light four times, speeding in a 35-mile per hour zone and exhibition of acceleration. District Attorney Harold Comer's office filed a motion to revoke the shock probation alleging Scothorn violated his probation by driving while intoxicated and consuming an intoxicating beverage. After the ninety-minute hearing, Cain adjudged the defendant had violated Section A and Section N of his probation by committing an offense against the law of the state and for possessing and consuming an alcoholic beverage. The "shock" probation was due to end on Dec. 30, 1981.

8:35 p.m. — A grass fire at 400 E. Caven was reported. The cause was unknown and there were no damages.

february fire report

Faulty heating systems and electrical problems in city residences were found to be the cause of four house fires during the month of February, fire officials said today.

The Pampa Fire Department responded to four house fires during the month; authorities say two were caused by the defective heating devices and two started by an electrical difficulty.

One fire completely destroyed the building, however the three other dwelling fires were minor.

Of the four smoke reports turned in to the department, two were caused by faulty heating systems.

Firemen battled one major grass fire in February in Roberts County which destroyed 640 acres of grassland. They responded to eight other grass fires that month, four outside the city limits. Of the eight, less than five acres were burned in each fire.

Pampa firemen were called to extinguish six automobile fires and to make one run of a health nature last month.

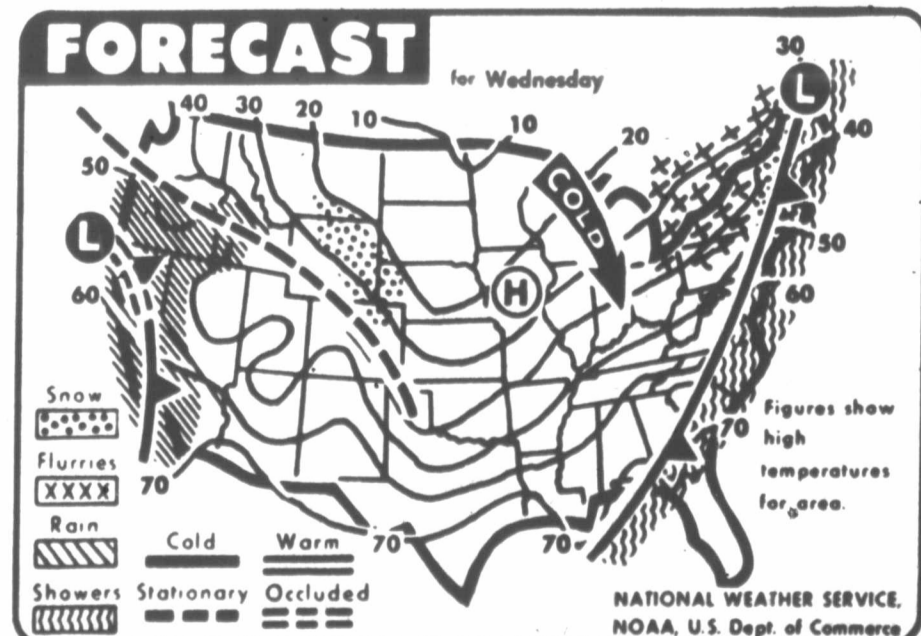

Three fires in the city's new trash containers were put out by firemen. The lids of the containers were melted and destroyed.

Jurors sought in Francis trial

Compiled from staff reports
The search for potential jurors in the Kevin Francis "solicitation for murder" trial continues today, according to Judge Naomi Harney of the 251st State District Court.

Francis, charged with soliciting three men to find someone to kill his business partner, Frank Potts, has owned and operated two clothing stores in Pampa. The last one, located on Cuyler St., was owned by Francis for just two months in 1979. The store was sold to a Pampa businessman who now independently operates the store.

Sixty potential jurors were examined Monday, in an effort to find those who had been previously prejudiced against Francis. Twelve of the potential jurors felt they had formed an opinion about Francis. Forty-one jurors said they could be impartial and presume Francis is innocent until proven otherwise.

Francis' defense attorney, Travis

Shelton of Lubbock, recently defended Loy D. Stone in the Dimmitt "witch trial."

Shelton yesterday made a motion which would have kept the state from mentioning the death of Potts during the trial, as the trial was for solicitation and not murder.

The motion was overruled by Judge Harney.

Shelton noted that the 47th State District Court grand jury which indicted Francis for the solicitation charge, in the first degree felony for which Francis is on trial, also indicted him for murder. The grand jury felt the murder offense was separate from the solicitation charge.

The indictment alleges Francis in September 1977, "with intent that a capital felony be committed, namely murder for remuneration, from life insurance on Potts, (Francis did) request, command and attempt to induce John Payne, Scott Taylor and Charles Pierce to obtain a person to murder and kill the said Potts."

The body of Frank Potts was found Oct. 8, 1977, in the clothing store owned by Francis and Potts. Francis and a store clerk were at lunch when the man was killed.

George Hicks of Amarillo was charged with the killing in his November murder trial. The trial ended with a jury hung 11 to one, favoring conviction. A mistrial was declared and Hicks is expected to come to trial again. Bedale Hicks, also charged with the murder, has not come to trial as yet.

All but two of the potential jurors examined Monday indicated they had heard of the case. Judge Harney asked each potential juror if he had "established in your mind a conclusion about the guilt or innocence of this defendant?"

If the potential juror swore he had an opinion, he was excused.

Francis, under law is presumed to be innocent until the state can prove a case against him, in front of the jury.

TRIPLE-MURDER DEFENDANT Roger Dale Stafford, currently appealing death sentences he received in October for the murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers, studies papers at the defense table at his triple-murder trial in Purcell, Okla. Stafford is accused of gunning down three members of a Texas family in 1978.

Stokes trial expected to go to jury

GUYMON, Okla. — Final arguments in the murder trial of a 73-year-old Borger bail bondsman were expected to be presented today and the case will go to the jury.

In Monday's proceedings in the trial of Ben D. Stokes, defendants, Rex Bryan McCubbin, 20, and Michael Wayne Taylor, 18, both of Borger, took the stand in their own defense.

Facing the death penalty if convicted of the slaying, both denied any knowledge of how Stokes met his death.

McCubbin and Taylor are jointly charged with first degree murder in the death of Stokes.

Former employees of the wealthy bail bondsman, the duo were arrested within hours after Stokes' body was found Sept. 21, 1979, on his ranch near Hardesty, Okla.

A missing persons report had been made on Stokes after he made a trip to his Texas County farm on Sept. 18.

In his testimony before the six-man-six woman jury, Taylor said he had been hired by Stokes at Borger and was later taken to the farm at Hardesty where McCubbin was working.

Both men told the court they had traveled with the bail bondsman on a trip to Hooker and Hardesty to pay bills on the Tuesday before Stokes' body was found on Friday.

After returning to the farm on Sept. 18 with Stokes and Taylor, McCubbin said he ate and then fell asleep on the couch in the Stokes' farmhouse.

The jury was told by Taylor that he went to sleep on the bed in the house.

The men said they searched for Stokes after he was reported missing by his wife.

Questioned by the attorney about the search and their actions as reported by state witnesses, the young men frequently answered "I don't know" and "I can't remember."

Testimony was given by Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation Agent Gary Davis of Guymon early yesterday. Both McCubbin and Taylor were in Borger Sept. 19 to appear in court on charges of possession of marijuana, he said.

"I found the charges against them had been dismissed," Davis said.

He also testified that law enforcement officers had not found the clothing which was reported by eyewitnesses that Stokes was wearing when he was last seen alive.

Jewelry, a wallet and a large amount of money he was supposed to have had are also missing, he said.

Mrs. Billie Stokes, the bondsman's widow, was recalled to the stand Monday morning as the final witness for the state to identify a pink-and-white striped sheet as the one covering Stokes' body when it was found on Palo Duro Creek near the Oklahoma community.

After completing her testimony, the sobbing woman was helped from the courtroom.

In testimony from two earlier witnesses — a prisoner in the county jail and a Oklahoma City private detective — McCubbin was reported to have said, "We killed the old bail bondsman."

According to the same witnesses, Taylor told a fellow prisoner about hiding jewelry and money in the air conditioning system of Stokes' vehicle.

DA to wind up Stafford case

By DAVID EGNER
Associated Press Writer
PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — McClain County District Attorney Kay Huff was expected to present six more witnesses and wind up her case today at the triple-murder trial of convicted killer Roger Dale Stafford.

Defense attorney J. Malone Brewer said he hoped he could present his case in two days.

Mrs. Huff expected Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation agent Arthur Linville to be her first witnesses today. She said he would testify about statements Stafford made.

The star prosecution witness in the trial has been Stafford's wife of nearly eight years, Verna Stafford.

Mrs. Stafford testified last week she watched her husband gun down Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Sgt. Linda Lorenz, 31, and son Richard, 12, of San Antonio, Texas. The three were killed during a robbery near this central Oklahoma town on June 22, 1978, while driving to Jamestown, N.D., for the funeral of Melvin Lorenz's mother.

Stafford is currently appealing the six death sentences he received in October for the July 16, 1978, murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers in the worst robbery-murder in Oklahoma history.

Stafford could be given three additional death penalties if convicted of the Lorenz murders.

Mrs. Huff presented a total of 27 witnesses by the end of Monday's testimony. Stafford's triple-murder trial began Feb. 25, with jury selection taking up the first two days of the proceeding.

In testimony Monday, Linda Lewis of Tulsa testified she overheard Stafford and his wife arguing in the parking lot of the Holiday Motel in Tulsa at about 12:05 a.m. on July 17, 1978. She neglected to mention to jurors that the time was about two hours after the steakhouse murders.

Cattlemen reject beef program by a vote of almost 2 to 1

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle producers, including those in some of the leading beef states, rejected by a vote of almost 2 to 1 a plan under which they would have paid fees to finance a $40 million beef research and information program.

Preliminary figures on the voting, held last month, were released Monday by the Agriculture Department.

The National Cattlemen's Association, a leading advocate of the program, conceded last week after surveying voting in various states that producers had rejected the plan.

Merlyn Carlson, president of the association, said the cattle industry will have to reassess the situation "and come up with more effective plans" at some point in the future.

According to the department's preliminary count of votes in the Feb. 19-22 referendum, about 80 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said 288,445 cattle producers had registered at local offices of the agency.

Of those, he said, 231,032 voted. Those included 151,119 who voted against the program — 65.4 percent — and 79,913 or 34.6 percent in favor.

The program would have required approval by more than 50 percent of those voting before it could have been put into effect.

Under the proposal, authorized by Congress in 1978 as an amendment to the Beef Research and Information Act, a levy would have been made on cattle each time they were sold in the marketing chain. A board composed of producers would have overseen beef research and promotion projects.

The plan was approved in 18 states.

It was rejected in 32 states:
Alabama, 941 and 1,502; Alaska, 7 and 9; Arkansas, 1,256 and 1,623; Connecticut, 52 and 56; Delaware, 8 and 21; Illinois, 2,771 and 3,254; Indiana, 1,326 and 1,659; Iowa, 2,952 and 4,995; Kansas, 7,400 and 13,063; Kentucky, 1,263 and 3,701; Maine, 25 and 57; Massachusetts, 38 and 45; Michigan, 920 and 920 (tie); Minnesota, 1,787 and 4,076; Missouri, 4,092 and 5,909; Nebraska, 5,818 and 8,663; New Hampshire, 14 and 22; and New Jersey, 45 and 65.

Also, New Mexico, 662 and 1,218; New York, 790 and 1,847; North Dakota, 2,392 and 6,536; Ohio, 1,365 and 3,532; Oklahoma, 4,591 and 6,995; Pennsylvania, 789 and 6,855; Rhode Island, 14 and 57; South Dakota, 2,544 and 12,475; Tennessee, 1,313 and 12,842; Texas, 7,889 and 23,802; Vermont, 38 and 89; Virginia, 1,489 and 4,089; West Virginia, 747 and 968; and Wisconsin, 1,587 and 6,086.

Graham's barrow wins in San Antonio show

Mike Graham, a Pampa FFA member, recently won Grand Champion at the San Antonio Fat Stock Show with his heavyweight Hampshire barrow and then went on to become the overall Grand Champion.

Graham received a record selling price of $3,800 at the Junior Livestock sale.

This is the second major stock show Grand Champion that Graham has won during his FFA career with a remaining 1½ years to go.

His other Grand Champion award was in 1978 at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show in the barrow division.

Cathy Walser of the Pampa delegation exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion barrow with a lightweight Duroc, which also brought a premium price of $2,300. This also is a record price at the San Antonio Fat Stock Show.

This is the first time that the delegation has won the Grand Champion and the Reserve Grand Champion in a major stock show. There were over 2,000 barrows entered in the junior and open show competition.

The Pampa chapter also attended the Houston Junior Fat Stock Show, the world's largest.

Negative reports returned on skunks

Reports on the latest skunk heads sent to Austin for rabies tests came back negative, city health officials said today.

Two skunks killed by the city Animal Control department were sent to the State Department of Health last week, Elmer D. Young, city health officer said.

State health officials called last night, he said, and reported the tests on the skunks' heads returned a negative response to the rabies testing.

"They (animal control officers) haven't caught too many in traps," he said, "but they're still setting them out."

Police officers have also been instructed to kill skunks when one is sighted, officials say, when it does not endanger life or property.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covington Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Why not compete with Japanese?

Not long ago the American economy was the envy of the world. Our businessmen, like the skippers of yankee clippers a century ago, crisscrossed the world seeking new markets for their ever-expanding enterprises. The vibrant economy of the United States appeared invulnerable. The strength and confidence of American business and the productivity of the nation's workers were unparalleled.

Today the world is witnessing the spectacle of American workers and businessmen groveling before their competition. Timidity has replaced confidence. Vacillation has replaced resolve. Limp and trembling hands have replaced firm handshakes. The fast buck and the slipshod have replaced quality and dependability. Unfortunately, this disastrous trend is continuing.

The latest evidence of this decline is the American automobile industry's current embarrassing display of desperation. Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers Union (UAW), is in Japan begging that his workers be protected from the competition of Japanese workers. This representative of hundreds of thousands of American workers is pleading with the Japanese government and Japanese auto manufacturers to limit their imports, or to build plants in the United States.

Similarly, Ford Motor Co., supposedly a company solidly behind free enterprise, is calling for government action to restrict sharply the importing of Japanese cars. William Bourke, executive vice president of Ford, believes that imports should be held to 1.5 million a year, when import sales skyrocketed because of an increased demand for cars with better gas mileage. Williams, like Fraser, wants the Japanese to be forced to build plants in the United States if they are going to compete with domestic auto makers.

The sickening sight of an American worker and a major manufacturer on their knees whining about the competition is symbolic of the problem that is plaguing the United States. In the past, if a company produced a lower quality product at a higher price than the competition, it either changed its ways or went out of business. No one expected the consumers to accept unwanted or inferior products as an act of charity. And that is what the unions and the auto companies are now requesting — charity.

The domestic auto industry is in the midst of the worst crisis in its history. It has, undeniably, produced a lot of cars that many people do not think are as good as the ones the Japanese make. This is not the fault of the Japanese. If they, with almost no natural resources and shipping to a market five thousand miles away, can produce quality cars of a type and at a price desired by the American people — they deserve congratulations.

The president of the American Imported Automobile Dealers Association recently stated that members of his association provide jobs for 140,000 Americans. If domestic manufacturers want to hire back the 200,000 workers they have had to lay off, they should build cars the American people want to buy.

The attitude of Ford and the UAW reflects a national mood. Inflation and the expansion of government is killing the vitality once associated with American workers and the companies for which they worked. It is a trend that can only end in the drastic reduction of the standard of living of the American people. However, the trend is reversible. The nation's once proud spirit will be restored when we return to the market economy that once made this country, and its people, the envy of the world.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - If you are one of those who believe that President Carter's Fiscal Year 1981 budget is all that the White House says it is, then you have not read that budget.

You haven't been reading this column, either, for, as we have said before, the Carter budget is much less than meets the eye despite the political puffery oozing from an election-minded presidential staff. It also will cost you more money in taxes.

The White House and the Carter-Mondale campaign say the proposed budget is a model of austerity and restraint. Considering that the projected $15.8 billion deficit easily could work its way up to $40 billion or so, that shows little restraint. As for austerity, well, there isn't much of that, either.

Understand that a federal budget calls for spending on two separate levels. The first is "budget authority," wherein Congress is asked to put up money for programs to be spent over a period of time. The second level is the "outlay," the money actually to be spent in the current fiscal year.

There are a number of major new high-priced programs in the FY 1981 budget, but little will be spent on them this year. The big-dollar outlays must await future budgets. Sophisticated experts in political economics refer to this as having your cake and eating it, too. In other words, those special interest groups you need to keep happy in an election year are kept happy while your election year budget is "austere."

For example: A new subsidized housing program in the budget carries a $100 million FY 1981 outlay — and a $2.9 billion overall pricetag; and a new youth employment program shows up as a near-freebie in the outlay department, but will cost $2 billion before it runs its course.

One thing is made quite clear in the new Carter budget, though: There are higher taxes in our future. Total tax revenues in FY 1981 will grow by 14.5 percent with individual taxpayers (that means us) paying $35.7 billion more in FY 1981 than this year. About $14 billion of this is due to "bracket creep," where inflation-caused salary hikers push wage earners into higher tax brackets with little or no (and sometimes negative) income growth. The rest of the extra payout comes from ever-higher social security taxes.

Actually, the Carter-Mondale puffers may be right. The FY 1981 budget indeed may be austere and restrained. Only it is the taxpayer who must impose the austerity and show the restraint — because he or she won't have much money to spend when the federal government gets through.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, March 4, the 64th day of 1980. There are 302 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 4, 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt launched the "New Deal" in his first inaugural speech.

On this date:

In 1681, England's King Charles granted William Penn a charter for what is now Pennsylvania.

In 1789, the first U.S. Congress convened in New York's federal hall, but it had to adjourn for lack of a quorum.

In 1917, Montana's Republican representative, Jeannette Rankin, became the first woman to serve in Congress.

In 1972, the Soviet Union signed an agreement with Libya to jointly develop and refine Libyan oil, a move seen as a pressure tactic against western oil companies.

Ten years ago, a French submarine with 57 aboard was lost after an underwater explosion in the Mediterranean Sea off the Riviera.

Five years ago, West German political leader Peter Lorenz was released by kidnappers, one day after Bonn freed five imprisoned radicals and flew them to South Yemen.

Last year, the Chinese-Vietnam conflict entered its third week, with reports from Peking indicating that China was preparing to pull back over the border.

Flu dropping

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—This is the time of year for flu dropping. Since nearly everyone has had the flu, the object of the game is to impress on the other person that your flu was worse than theirs.

The opening:
"I had the flu in October. I think I was the first one in Silver Spring to get it."

The parry:
"Was it the Virus B Singapore strain, or last year's Hong Kong variety?"

"My doctor thinks the bug came from Kuala Lumpur via the Khyber Pass."

The thrust:
"Oh, yes, my cleaning woman had that. She claims to have been in bed for two days, but it wouldn't surprise me if she just wanted some time off."

The art of flu dropping is becoming very sophisticated. The scoring depends on:

- 1-How one contracted it.
- 2-The length of time one had it.

3-The amount of suffering involved (having had intestinal flu as opposed to the chest kind is worth more points).

Let us deal with some concrete illustrations.

"I've had the flu before but this little devil stays on and on. It's been six weeks now." (5 points)

"My brother had it for three months. He used up 33 boxes of Kleenex." (8 points)

"I had to cancel a trip to Hawaii. (10 points) Then my wife got it and we gave up our tickets to the Super Bowl. (10 points)

"I've never been sick in my life. (2 points) "But I went to the Jockey Club for dinner. Elizabeth Taylor and John Warner were at the next table, and he was telling her to keep her mouth shut when he was making a political speech, and she was coughing and sneezing, and I swear I must have got the bug from her." (15 points)

"I think I got mine on the Concorde. I was seated next to Bo Derek and she kept talking to me the whole trip. Well, a week later Rona Barrett revealed on the Good Morning, America show that Bo had the flu, and I put two and two together." (12 points)

"What did your doctor say?"
"He said on the phone to stay in bed and drink plenty of fluids and take aspirin." (no points)

"Mine came to the house and stayed for 15 minutes. He even took out his stethoscope and listened to my chest." (20 points)

"What did he tell you?"
"Stay in bed, drink plenty of liquids and take aspirin."

"What did you say to him?"
"I said I wanted a second opinion." (Game's over)

We're left with the stain

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA)-The XIII Winter Olympics now are part of history, but the athletes' prejudicial treatment of the organizers from the two Chinas long will remain an indelible stain on the records of the games.

The United States must share with the International Olympic Committee (IOC) the blame for the disgraceful performance, not only because this country was host to the games.

More importantly, the U.S. Department of State devised the formula used by the IOC to wrongly discriminate against athletes representing a nation of more than 17 million people.

That country is the Republic of China (ROC), more commonly known as Nationalist China. It is located on the island of Taiwan, off the coast of the People's Republic of China (PRC), also known as mainland China or Communist China.

When the United States withdrew diplomatic recognition from the ROC and formally recognized the PRC in January 1979, it went one step further and decreed that it would not officially recognize any of the ROC's official symbols — including its name, its flag and its national anthem.

This country has not extended formal diplomatic recognition to numerous other nations throughout the world — including North Korea, North Vietnam, South Yemen, Albania and Cuba — but in no other case does the State Department deny the existence of the country's official name, flag and anthem.

The modern history of the two Chinas dates back to 1949, when nationalist leaders fled to Taiwan and established an independent government and a capital in Taipei after a communist-led revolution gained control of the mainland and its capital of Peking.

Although many western nations rejected the PRC as an outlaw government in the ensuing decades, it sanctimoniously withdrew from the 1952 Olympics and subsequent games, refusing to participate as long as any ROC athletes were allowed to compete.

When the Canadian government, which recognizes Peking but not Taipei, refused to issue entry visas to ROC athletes to participate in the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, the United States protested that action as a violation of Olympic ideals.

But in February 1979, one month after gaining diplomatic recognition from the United States, Peking applied for readmission to the IOC. The request subsequently was approved.

Meeting in Japan in October 1979, the IOC board decided that Peking's athletes would be allowed to compete under their country's name, flag and anthem — but Taiwan's athletes could continue to participate only if they changed all of their national symbols.

Even though there is little similarity between the two nations' symbols, the ROC representatives were required to devise an entirely new (although unspecified) set of symbols that would have to be approved by the IOC executive board.

China is not the world's only political and geographical bifurcated nation in which both governments claim rightful control over the entire country. Similar situations exist, for example, in Germany and Korea, but neither the communist nor non-communist Olympic representatives from those lands have been subjected to the indignities visited upon Taiwan by the IOC.

"We are a sports group," former IOC President Avery Brundage proclaimed many years ago. "When we let politics, racial questions or social disputes creep into our actions, we're in for trouble."

But when the first contingent of the 18 athletes and 10 officials Taiwan expected to send to this year's Winter Olympics arrived in Lake Placid, N.Y. in February, they were barred by local Olympic officials and New York State Troopers.

They eventually returned to their homeland rather than compete under what a spokesman aptly described as "a name that is not our own, a flag we have never seen and an anthem we have never heard."

The ROC athletes retained their pride and integrity, while the IOC and the United States were left only with shame and disgrace.

President faces restraints to use of power

EDITOR'S NOTE — Despite the awesome power of the president of the United States, he faces many restraints. This third of six articles by Joe Wing, former general editor of AP Newsfeatures, deals with some of these restrictions.

By JOE WING

For AP Newsfeatures
If the president is so powerful, why doesn't he solve problems more quickly and surely?
The trouble is, he finds it tough to effectuate his most cherished ideas, even if they are correct, because of checks and balances on his every move. There are potent restraints in addition to those devised by the Constitution makers.

The most important constitutional check is Congress. Without a measure of its cooperation, no president can hope to be effective, as Andrew Johnson, John F. Kennedy, Jimmy Carter and others learned.

Even when it allows the president to do pretty much as he wants in war, depression or foreign crisis, it is apt to react jealously later.

Thus, Congress nearly threw Andrew Johnson out of office for being soft on the South, just as Abraham Lincoln might have been had he not been assassinated. It balked at Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations idea after giving him a free hand in World War I.

It instituted the two-term restriction for presidents (but not for congressmen), turning into law the tradition that FDR twice violated and that has made second-term presidents "lame duck" since then. It can veto many of the president's acts and override his veto.

As Edwin C. Hargrove, in "The Power of the Modern Presidency," asserted: "The beginning of wisdom is the recognition that (the presidency and Congress) cannot function well if either attempts to overthrow the other or act in isolation."

Another obvious constitutional restraint is the Supreme Court. It can and does pass on the legality of the administration's acts as well as on the laws passed by Congress. But it has not been too eager to tangle with the president, and its slowly changing membership gradually changes its own views on many issues. The "nine old men" whom FDR tried vainly to neutralize by packing the court evolved eventually into a tribunal that would let stand progressive edicts which Roosevelt never thought of.

It is a measure of the republic's solidity that presidents, with the whole armed forces under their orders, have never disregarded the court's edicts.

Another presidential handicap is the sheer inertia of the governmental establishment. Most of the millions of employees the president is supposed to boss are protected by civil service rules, have seen presidents come and go, and are not inclined to jump at the current president's bidding. Moreover, many of them have their own close ties with powerful congressional committees. Even Cabinet members, named by the president, have minds of their own.

The only way he can influence these people greatly is through the way he dramatizes his personality and leadership. Theodore Roosevelt's "Fair Deal," Wilson's "New Freedom," FDR's "New Deal" and Lyndon B. Johnson's "Great Society" spotlighted such talents.

Behind Congress, the Supreme Court and the bureaucracy stand the great American people. Unless he has their support, a president is not apt to go far. Polls, letter writers, editorial writers, callers, special envoys and an ever-increasing number of pleaders for special causes help keep him informed of public sentiment.

If he does not learn about it that way, and with that in mind act shrewdly and in the interest of the nation as a whole, he learns about it the hard way.

These burdens are greater than his actual power to carry them. As Wilson wrote: "The office will be as big and influential as the man who occupies it."

The Constitution makes him the chief executive, who must enforce the laws and see to it that 3 million or so federal employees do their work properly.

He hires and fires several thousand subordinates. He is commander-in-chief of the armed forces. He prepares the federal budget, is the nation's chief diplomat and its chief legislator, without whose guidance Congress becomes ineffective.

Also, he is party chief, spokesman and cheerleader for the American people and, it is hoped, solver of all major problems.

Sagging highway funds may delay maintenance

Many states and highway authorities across the nation were hit with a drop in fuel-tax and toll revenues in 1979 as gasoline shortages and sharp price increases combined to keep U.S. motorists off the road.

State officials and Wall Street bond analysts say the revenue slowdown could lead to delays in highway maintenance and to boosts in tax and toll rates.

The slowdown has hit as soaring interest rates are forcing states to pay more for the money they borrow and as spiraling crude oil prices have pushed up the price of petroleum-based asphalt paving by nearly 31 percent over the past year.

U.S. gasoline use fell 5 percent from 1978 to 1979. The Energy Department predicts gasoline use will fall 2.4 percent more in 1980 as prices continue to rise and as new-car fuel mileage improves.

A doubling of foreign crude oil prices and other factors pushed the average price of a gallon of regular leaded gasoline up by nearly 40 cents last year to $1.07. The price could hit $1.52 by the end of 1980, according to the Energy Department.

The Federal Highway Administration estimates state fuel tax collections nationwide totaled $9.8 billion last year, a slim 0.9 percent ahead of the $9.7 billion collected in 1978.

Revenues from state fuel taxes, which now average about 14 cents a gallon, had been rising at a 5 percent-a-year rate in 1976-78.

The slowdown also is affecting revenues from the 4-cents-a-gallon federal levy on gasoline and diesel fuel, with collections in the fiscal year ended last Sept. 30 of $4.86 billion — 2.2 percent ahead of those for fiscal 1978.

"We expect considerable decreases" in federal fuel-tax revenues this year, said Edward Gladstone, chief of the administration's highway finance branch.

According to analyst George P. Gregorio of the brokerage firm of Prescott, Ball & Turben, toll roads used for pleasure driving and those in rural areas have been hardest-hit by the traffic decline, while roads with heavy commuter and commercial traffic are less affected.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike logged a 6 percent drop in traffic last year. In Illinois, traffic on rural and interstate roads was down by about 10 to 20 percent last summer from levels of a year earlier, while city traffic was off by 6 percent.

Toll revenues on the New Jersey Turnpike, a major truck and commuter route linking the New York and Philadelphia areas, rose about $47,000 last year to $100.9 million.

But on New Jersey's Garden State Parkway, which over much of its distance is restricted to passenger cars only, collections fell $156,000 to $66.3 million.

Toll revenues fell 1.1 percent last year to $79.9 million on the New York State Thruway, and spokesman David Alexander said the road is "seriously considering a toll increase" to help pay for a $150 million rehabilitation program.

"We've got to get some new dough," said Alexander, who added the Thruway does not "expect to get back to present revenues until around 1981 or 1982."

Ten states raised fuel taxes last year, said Gladstone, while others are planning boosts in 1980.

In Florida, a gubernatorial commission has recommended raising the state's 8 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax by 4 cents. It said the new tax rate should be allowed to rise with climbing prices to keep revenues from dropping as sales fall.

But last year's increases didn't always work as intended.

Pennsylvania had hoped a 2-cent boost to 11 cents a gallon in the state's gasoline tax would add $100 million to the state's coffers. Officials now believe that the state will fall $60 million short of its $569 million gasoline tax revenue goal for the year ending June 30.

"The public has now realized that not only Pennsylvania but the entire nation will never again have the abundant supplies of gas they were once used to," said a spokesman for Gov. Dick Thornburgh's Energy Council.

In addition, consumers are worried "they just won't have the money today for gas," said analyst Terry Wolfe of the brokerage house of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

New Mexico relies heavily on a 7 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax to finance its highway department budget, but saw tax collections drop to $27.3 million in the second half of 1979 from $29.2 million a year earlier.

"This really put a crimp in our budget," and forced the department to cut back "in some very important areas" including maintenance and road building, said Highway Administrator Fred O'Chesky.

In Louisiana, an 8 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax yielded $164.9 million in the year ending in June 1978, and $172 million in the year ending in June 1979. But revenues are expected to fall to $170.4 million in the current fiscal year.

In California, which has a 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax, revenues fell to $796 million last year from $979 million from a nickel-a-gallon gas tax were off by $3.2 million at $349.9 million.

Tennessee's fuel tax collections in the last six months of 1979 ran about $10 million behind levels of a year earlier. The state Revenue Department has estimated revenues for the full fiscal year ending June 30 will be $25 million behind the previous year's $214.7 million.

Chagra pleads innocent to charges

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Convicted narcotics smuggler Jamiel A. "Jimmy" Chagra smiled and winked at his family as he pleaded innocent to bail jumping charges Monday.

Following the arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch, Chagra's brother and lawyer, Joe, gave no reason for the plea and said, "I'm sure it will come out at trial."

Chagra, 35, a professional gambler, disappeared last August before sentencing on a continuing criminal enterprise conviction.

Monday he was dressed in a ski jacket, casual slacks and sneakers. With his brother's arm across his shoulder, Chagra turned to smile broadly and wink at his mother, Josephine, his wife, Elizabeth and his sister Patricia.

He talked to the women briefly after the court hearing, then was returned to La Tuna Federal Correctional Institution north of El Paso.

Bail remained at $3 million.

Joe Chagra said the trial would be scheduled within 60 days.

A March 17 sentencing date has been set for the original drug conviction.

Chagra sported only a mustache Monday. He wore a full beard when federal drug agents arrested him on the Las Vegas, Nev., strip Feb. 21. The officers said they found $187,000 in a diaper box in his car.

Chagra waived extradition last week in Nevada and arrived here Saturday escorted by U.S. Marshals on a commercial flight.

During his federal court trial at Austin last summer, prosecutors contended Chagra masterminded a drug smuggling scheme involving large amounts of marijuana and cocaine moved from Colombia to the United States.

Court confirms copyright ruling on obscene matter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact a ruling that obscene material may be copyrighted.

The justices refused to review a lower court ruling from Dallas, Texas that although obscene material does not come under the Constitution's free-speech protections, it nevertheless may be given copyright protection.

The issue arose in 1976 when Mitchell Brothers Film Group and Jartech Inc., holders of a copyright on the movie "Behind The Green Door," sued the operators of the Cinema Adult Theater in Dallas.

The suit charged that the movie house was guilty of copyright infringement, having obtained copies of the film without permission and having unlawfully exhibited it.

The theater owners defended themselves by contending that the movie was obscene and therefore was not legally entitled to copyright protection.

A copyright is an exclusive legal right, given for a certain number of years, to make, distribute and otherwise control a literary, musical or artistic work.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill in Dallas watched the film, declared it obscene and dismissed the copyright infringement lawsuit.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, reversed Hill's ruling last Oct. 16.

The trial judge was wrong in permitting the obscenity issue to be used as an affirmative defense in the case, the appeals court said without ever reaching the question of whether the movie is, indeed, obscene.

"We must read (copyright law) as containing no explicit or implicit bar to the copyrighting of obscene materials, and as therefore providing for the copyright of all creative works, obscene or non-obscene, that otherwise meet the requirements of the Copyright Act," the 5th Circuit court said.

The act was first passed by Congress in 1909. A revised version was enacted in 1976.

In seeking Supreme Court review, lawyers for the Cinema Adult Theater argued that other appeals courts have allowed the obscenity defense in such suits.

"In all circuits other than the 5th the obscenity defense continues to be available," they said.

Since 1957, the Supreme Court has ruled consistently that obscene material is not protected by the First Amendment's free-speech guarantees — although the court has switched signals several times in telling lower courts how they should go about deciding whether material is obscene.

Today's action does not set a national precedent, but allows one to exist for all states encompassed by the 5th Circuit — Texas, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Flood of heroin destined for U.S. and Europe, agents say

LONDON (AP) — The United States and Western Europe face a flood of heroin, worth billions of dollars to major crime syndicates, in the next few months following the harvest of bumper crops of opium in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, narcotics agents say.

"We're facing an epidemic because of the rapidly growing heroin traffic," a Scotland Yard narcotics officer told The Associated Press.

Britain is being hit by a heroin and opium flood from Iran, Yard agents say. Latest official estimates are that 40 percent of the drugs intercepted in Britain came from there. Two years ago it was 3 percent.

Much of it is smuggled in by Iranians fleeing their country, the sources say. Unable to take out their wealth, they convert it to heroin to trade when they reach London.

"There's no way we can stop the flow of Iranian heroin," a Scotland Yard narcotics officer said. "We're lucky if we get 10 percent of what's coming in."

Much of the dope that comes into Europe is destined for U.S. cities, the agents report, and narcotics bureaus acknowledge that the smugglers are winning despite agent infiltration of syndicates, wider government cooperation and better intelligence.

Narcotics agents claim they are seizing more drugs than ever before, but even the most optimistic admit that for every kilogram (2.2 pounds) of drugs seized, between 5 and 10 kilograms get through.

A customs spokesman in London, which has in recent years become a major heroin conduit, commented: "We've made some good busts. But we've hardly dented the traffic. Drugs are coming from all sides."

Authorities say the battle is getting tougher as criminal gangs move into the lucrative drug business. They anticipate that the heroin glut will push down street prices and wipe out the gains made against drug-pushing in recent years.

British authorities, for instance, have in the last four years seized nearly 150 kilograms (330 pounds) of heroin worth an estimated $21 million, twice as much as the loot from armed robberies in that period.

Heroin addiction has reached record proportions in Western Europe. West Germany, now the most drug-plagued nation, has an estimated 60,000 addicts, double the number a few years ago. France has some 35,000 addicts and Britain 40,000, official sources say.

John Warner, a senior Paris-based officer of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) predicted: "In three or four years, Western Europe's narcotics problem will be as bad as anything yet seen in the United States." The United States had about 460,000 heroin addicts in 1977, the last year for which figures are available.

Margaret Thatcher cult cashing in on her fame

By NIKKI FINKE Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is becoming something of a cult figure — the target of cartoonists, the butt of impressionists and even the model of an "Iron Lady" doll.

The paraphernalia that has sprung up since Mrs. Thatcher took office shows how eager British stores and showbiz people are to cash in on the fame surrounding Europe's first female prime minister.

A British toy company is manufacturing an eight-inch Thatcher Doll faithfully reproducing her full-figured body, laquered hairstyle and schoolteacher-ish clothes.

It even comes with the outfit she wore the day of her electoral triumph last year — a blue suit, black pocketbook and pumps.

Let us dare forget, the date of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party win — May 3 — is stamped on the back of her neck. And the doll's wrist bears a tag giving extracts from her victory speech.

Already the Thatcher dolls are crossing the Atlantic. Peggy Nisbet, whose Avon-based firm is marketing the doll, says it has been a huge success among U.S. toy firms.

"The Americans really admire Mrs. Thatcher," said Mrs. Nisbet, who just happens to be an ardent Conservative Party supporter.

"When I took the prototype over there recently, the idea sold straight away."
The doll retails for about $27.

One has already been sent to No. 10 Downing Street, though no one knows just how the prime minister likes her new, if unsolicited, gift.

Just as Richard M. Nixon had his series of comic lookalikes, Mrs. Thatcher's marbles-in-the-mouth speech and parlor-perfect looks have given birth to a pair of female impersonators.

One of them, Janet Brown, can pass as the real McCoy when she puts on the prim and proper clothes that Mrs. Thatcher wears. Her imitation is so good, it once fooled a House of Commons guard.

Not only does Miss Brown include Mrs. Thatcher's likeness in a cabaret act, but she has just come out with a record album that is a take-off from one of the prime minister's famous speeches.

The original compared the roots of the Conservative Party to "early man's search for God." Miss Brown's version aims for laughs with Mrs. Thatcher allegedly talking about Noah's construction of the Ark as the first case of free enterprise boat-building.

One British newspaper arranged for Miss Brown — dressed in her prime ministerial role — to come face-to-face with Mrs. Thatcher.

Admonished Miss Brown: "Now don't you change too much."

"No," replied Mrs. Thatcher with a careful smile. "I mustn't deprive you of your livelihood."

The other mimic, Faith Brown, has her own Saturday night television show on Britain's commercial station this season.

She also looks convincingly like Mrs. Thatcher — but with a difference. Her skit that gets the best laugh has Mrs. Thatcher turning into a bosomy, scantily dressed Worrier Woman in times of trouble.

This portrayal of Mrs. Thatcher, as more a woman than a prime minister is a favorite play of Britain's political cartoonists.

Just recently, the Daily Express tabloid wanted to illustrate how Mrs. Thatcher's policies are being chipped away by dissension in her cabinet and the barbs of her opposition, the Labor Party.

What did the cartoon show? Mrs. Thatcher as a topless Venus de Milo — or rather Venus de Downing Street as the pedestal under her said.

When the trusted ministers knocked the arms off the famous statue, the caption exclaimed: "Oops! Let's say the cat did it!"

One of London's left-wing publications, Time Out, has a weekly comic strip that transforms Mrs. Thatcher and her cabinet into animals — and the characters are fat, ugly-looking beasts.

Even the Labor Party is getting in on the act.

The opposition came out with a cartoon of Mrs. Thatcher looking like a cross between a witch and a vulture and made it the centerpiece of a new advertising campaign to boost membership.

The drawing by political cartoonist Ralph Steadman made its debut in several London newspapers last month and will appear on posters, badges and beer mug coasters in the very near future.

Eric Heffer, chairman of Labor's organization committee, fiercely denied claims that the cartoon was nasty and cruel.

"I think it's rather flattering," he said. "Is the cult around Mrs. Thatcher going a bit too far?"

Just recently it was announced that Mrs. Thatcher's birthplace, a former grocery store in Grantham, Lincolnshire, is going to be turned into a high-class restaurant.

GIFTS FOR SOVIET DISSIDENT SAKHAROV are held by his wife Yelena Bonner. She showed the gifts to reporters Saturday at her Moscow apartment. She planned to take the gifts of Sakharov Sunday in the closed city of Gorky. The items included western newspaper articles about Sakharov and a small hand-painted religious icon, sent as a gift by a woman in Alma Ata, the capital of Soviet Kazakhstan. (AP Photo)

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Britt Ekland says Peter Sellers is a monster. Rod Stewart is mean and Warren Beatty an incredible lover.

The 37-year-old Swedish actress gives the rundown on her former loves in the current issue of People magazine which is printing excerpts of her biography. "True Britt," to be published this summer.

She says Sellers hasn't paid child support for their daughter Victoria for nine months. She says Stewart, who dropped her for a model, "knows he's mean." She also said the rock singer wore her seamless panties during performances because they wouldn't show through his skin-tight pants.

Miss Ekland said her affair with Beatty lasted only six weeks, but that was longer than her dalliance with Ryan O'Neal.

As for the future, Miss Ekland isn't leaving anything to chance — she works out daily at a gymnasium to keep fit.

"My body has to last me another couple of years because I have no other source of income," she said, adding "I never lived with anyone for money."

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Lucille Ball flew to New York to surprise her daughter, Lucie Arnaz, who is appearing on Broadway, but got a surprise herself when she met her ex-husband Desi Arnaz Sr. backstage.

Lucie's dad had also come Saturday night to see one of her last performances in the musical "They're Playing Our Song."

Everyone had a nifty reunion. "My kids make me so proud," Arnaz said. "I'm a very fortunate father."

Lucie is flying to Hollywood to complete filming a remake of "The Jazz Singer," co-starring Laurence Olivier and Neil Diamond.

BILL HOWARD, 75, and Lena Bowman, 69, say 'I do' Saturday before the Rev. Pete Posey in a Wichita church. The love-smitten pair, who first saw each other a week ago, plan to honeymoon in Howard's hometown of Newport Beach, Calif., and then move to Lena's Wichita home. ## Telephone romance blooms into 'I do'

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Their long-distance courtship was whirlwind, lasting all of a week. But when 75-year-old Bill Howard jetted from California to meet Lena Bowman last weekend he "couldn't propose to her fast enough."

"The sooner the better," his 69-year-old admirer said. Two weeks ago, these sprightly senior citizens were alone, lonely and 1,500 miles apart. A romantic twist of fate put them in touch on Valentine's Day. And they're getting married this weekend.

Why the hurry? "We're old enough to know what we want, so why wait?" said the Wichita bride. "Besides, we've got a lot of living to do."

"She's got me and I've got her and I don't think you could pry us apart if you tried," Howard said. "She's a doll. I just know someone upstairs who's greater than all of us is the one who arranged this."

Howard, whose second wife died last year, met Lena by telephone while searching for a woman he met on a bus ride through the Midwest last summer.

But the 70-year-old Kansas woman got off the bus before Howard could woo her. And all he knew was her name. "Mrs. C. Thompson."

The retired aircraft worker placed an ad in the Wichita Eagle and Beacon, hoping she would see it and contact him. She never did.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Bowman, divorced after 43 years of marriage, had left her Washington, D.C., home to live with her daughter in Wichita. When she read about Howard's search, she called him at his Newport Beach home.

After a week of twice-a-day phone calls, Howard hopped a plane to Wichita with two wedding rings in his pocket to meet "this splendid woman."

Mrs. Bowman, wearing a silk rose in her hair, and Howard, in a tweed sports jacket, greeted each other with a kiss.

"We're pretty darn good kissers," Mrs. Bowman announced.

"I feel like I've known him forever," she said. "I think there should be more ways for senior citizens to get together, that's what we need to keep from dying of loneliness."

After an informal church wedding Saturday afternoon, they plan to honeymoon in California, visit Howard's children and pick up his Social Security check. Then Howard will move to Wichita.

What about the bus rider who once stole Howard's heart? "Let's forget about that," he says. "That didn't happen, but this did. At my age, you pick a mate you want to finish out your life with and I have. When I saw Lena, that was it. I was long gone."

Virginia Mayo starring in Amarillo production

Oscar-winning actress Virginia Mayo opens tonight in Amarillo in "Move Over, Mrs. Markham," which recently completed a run in Las Vegas.

The play is the first in a new move toward offering stage productions previously available only in larger cities, according to Peter Fox, president and executive producer of the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo and Lubbock.

"No dinner theater between Dallas and Denver will offer audiences our nationally known stars appearing on a regular basis, in professional stage productions," says Fox. "In this time of increasing expense for travel, we'll try to bring the best of Broadway, Las Vegas and California to the Panhandle and the Tri-State area."

Miss Mayo, who won an Oscar for her performance in "The Best Years of Our Lives," has performed in more than 45 films. She has also appeared in stage hits such as "No, No, Nanette," "Cactus Flower" and "How the Other Half Lives."

The musical comedy star has appeared on Bob Hope's television specials, "Police Story," and the Dinah Shore, Mike Douglas and Merv Griffin shows.

Performances of "Move Over, Mrs. Markham," run through March 29, with buffet service Tuesday through Saturday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

A new feature of the Country Squire is a Sunday matinee, with food service beginning at 12:30 p.m. and the performance at 2 p.m.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl who has a very big problem. My boyfriend is 19 and a very insecure person. A high school dropout, he is hooked on drugs and I am the only thing holding him together.

At one time we really got along super. In fact, I told him that I would marry him. Now we fight and sometimes he hits me. One time he really hurt me bad.

I want to end our relationship but every time I say this, he hits me. I don't know what to do. I am planning to go to my aunt's house in San Diego when school is out but that's several months away. Please hurry with your help.

Nameless, Livermore, Calif. Your "boyfriend" has a severe mental problem and you must stop seeing him immediately.

If you haven't already done so, tell your parents what this guy is doing to you. Then have them contact the police and your school nurse. Assault and battery is a crime. Do your part to have this criminal put away.

Dr. Wallace: In one of my classes the teacher is always assigning oral reports. This is the worst kind of work for me. Just to think about it makes me clam up and get sick to my stomach.

Whenever it is my time to give the report, I always miss class (I see the nurse). I was wondering why teachers must give such assignments.

You said that you were an educator. Can you answer my question? — Tommy, Odessa, Texas

Tommy: Unless your class is speech or drama, you should not be "always assigned oral reports." Occasionally, an oral report can be an effective learning tool, but too often the oral report is used by the unprepared lazy teachers.

I know a few teachers who get by year after year by assigning oral reports and by showing every film the teacher can get his hands on. Sorry but true. But remember I said a few teachers.

Dr. Wallace: I'm almost 19 and my boyfriend is 20. He has an apartment and he wants me to move in with him and his two male roommates. We plan to marry and have kids, in two years.

Some of my friends say that moving in will ruin our future plans. Other friends say it is a good idea to move in so we can see if we are compatible. What do you think? — Janice, Galesburg, Ill.

Janice: Count me in with the friends who think it will ruin your future plans. I'd still say, no even if the two male roommates fled the scene. I think males get the better deal in most "live-in" situations.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I had a glucose tolerance test taken. My father was a diabetic. When my eyes were examined for glasses, the doctor advised such a test. I had had the first test about four years ago and this one showed that my sugar was a little higher. The doctor told me that I was a potential diabetic but he only told me to watch my weight. I am a little overweight and I do eat the wrong foods for a potential diabetic but he only told me to cut down on fats and carbohydrates. Could you please give me a menu for possible diabetes instead of just recommending so many grams of this or so many grams of that as most diabetic literature does?

DEAR READER — Evidently, your doctor feels on the basis of your test that what you really need to do is simply reduce your weight. Many people who have moderate elevations of their blood sugar levels on such tests will have perfectly normal tests after they have eliminated excess pounds of fat. The reason he didn't give you a more specific diet is that the source of the extra calories most of us get is fat and sweets. There are a lot of good carbohydrates that aren't particularly fattening and you do need a certain amount of those in your diet. That's where the fresh fruits and vegetables come in as well as cereals. But the concentrated carbohydrates such as the sugars and sweets are the foods that are loaded with calories.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Losing Diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. You can use this diet to help you lose weight and it's perfectly satisfactory for your needs. If you lose too much weight too rapidly with it, you can add a limited number of foods to round out the diet.

There isn't really a specific diabetic diet. Each diet has to be tailor-made to that patient's needs. If the diabetes is severe enough to require insulin, then the diet has to be fairly rigid in relationship to the insulin each day. For the person who has moderately elevated blood sugar levels and is otherwise all right, the emphasis should be on eliminating excess fat and probably on eliminating sweets.

It wouldn't hurt you to include some exercise in your program as well. Exercise, incidentally, uses calories and lowers blood sugar. That's why severe diabetics who take insulin should have about the same amount of exercise every day as well as a standard diet.

For people like yourself who do not take insulin or medicines that affect blood glucose, you don't have to be that scheduled. You can go ahead and develop a daily exercise program with your diet. Both will help you lose weight and improve your health.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By LOUISE PIERCE

Since I have advocated second careers for retirees, several of you have written to ask me what kinds of jobs are open to couples our age — and how lucrative, satisfying and enduring we can expect them to be.

My first answer to those queries is, How much do you want to achieve in your new occupation? Are you healthy enough for full time, heavy work — or do you want lesser labor to fill only a part of your days? What kind of work will best serve the two of you and keep your marriage the happiest?

An elderly man who once worked for us was eternally happy in his faded overalls and greasy hat and patched shoes. Somebody said of him, "Old Billy has everything he wants because he doesn't want much." If you are that type, look for a job that will require little effort but will keep you content.

Some of you may not want real jobs but only pleasurable time-fillers. Otis says that when he retires, which he likely never will, he wants to spend part of every day on the golf course. Half work, half play will be his choice. I'll probably do likewise, half writing and half watching or caddy-ing or keeping score for the golfers.

Now let's discuss the job market for retirees. As soon as you know how much and how well you want to work, decide on the kind of work you are suited to do. You may want something akin to your former career. You may have longtime hobbies. You may be eager to try something completely different from anything you have ever done. But you need to know your capabilities and thus avoid failure and loss of self-esteem.

Now you are ready to take a personal survey of your locality and its possibilities for you. There are many that do not require any outlay of cash. These will vary from city to city. In some places you will discover that there are openings in businesses — jobs such as keeping books, clerking, doing janitor work, acting as advisers, etc.

Many communities have no "fix-it" shops that repair bicycles, sharpen scissors or refinish furniture. Often these shops include the making of small items like trellises or flower boxes. Every town needs lawns mowed and gardens tended. Odd-job painting is in demand since younger, full time painters prefer the more lengthy jobs. If you look around your town, you can sort out the kind of work you can do and can enjoy.

The third kind of retirement possibility is that in which you make a cash investment, small or large, and put out enough effort to succeed, pay back the money you spent to start it, and go on to profit-making endeavor.

The wise ones tell us that if you start your own business, you would do well to keep it small at first, expanding only when you are sure that expansion is justifiable and affordable. Be sure not to throw yourself into quick debt that could take you under.

If you love flowers and have studied their care in your own garden, you might start a small flower shop. If you knit or sew, you could set up a store in your own home or in a little place downtown. If you like to grow vegetables and fruits, you could sell your produce.

Several women I know do well in drapery shops. And of course there are opportunities to sell cosmetics and household goods from door to door. If you like selling and can find a good product that is not already being sold in your town, you might stock a room of your home with it and offer it for sale by personal calling. You'll need plenty of personality to do this kind of selling, but many, both young and old, succeed at it.

Finally, if you really yearn for success as a retiree in a new and self-made job, give it something special.

Offer bargains at first. Be enthusiastic about what you have to offer. Advertise that you will bake cakes or cater parties or plant gardens or whatever else you want to try.

Give a little party to open your business. It need not be expensive. You can serve homemade cookies and coffee or tea. Meeting people at your store door and offering your special welcome, plus a bite of food and a sip of soft drink, will work wonders for your acceptance as the newest commercial business in town.

Above all, take up something that will interest both of you. It is ideal if a husband and wife can cooperate in their retirement venture. But if their interests are separate, they can still praise and enjoy each other's efforts. Cheering from the sidelines by a devoted companion can contribute greatly to the success of any project.

Happy times are ahead for you if you can discover your niche in your retirement location. Good luck!

'Boss Night' banquet hosted by Pampa ABWA

The Pampa Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association last week hosted its annual Boss Night Banquet, honoring their employers.

Don Lane, a Pampa attorney, was guest speaker. Mrs. Larry Hall entertained the group with several vocal selections.

The Pampa chapter will sponsor a "Hand of Friendship" tea March 11. The chapter, which gives an annual scholarship, meets at Tom's Country Inn the second Tuesday of each month for a dinner and program.

The group, designed to elevate social and business standards of women in business, was founded in 1949.

Armed robbers less likely to hurt victim

By the Editors of Psychology Today

Gun-wielding robbers are less likely to harm their victims than are unarmed robbers.

By the same token, gun-wielders are less likely to hurt robbery victims than robbers who carry knives, clubs, tire irons or other weapons.

When they do get violent, however, the gun-carriers are five times as likely to kill, according to a study by Philip Cook and Daniel Nagin, who are professors of policy sciences at Duke University. Cook and Nagin examined records of the Washington, D.C. Superior Court, a study of robbery-murders in Atlanta and data from the National Crime Panel surveys of 26 large cities.

Criminals without guns, they found, apparently feel a need to intimidate victims by attacking them. Unarmed robbers attacked 71 percent of their victims, knife users, 36 percent and gun-wielders, 20 percent.

The researchers also found that gangs of assailants are more prone to violence than are solo stickup artists. Cook points out that such violence would seem to be needless, since several robbers "could presumably intimidate a victim by their very mass presence." However, Cook speculates that these cases may involve "a group of non-professionals out looking for kicks and egging each other on."

DUKE'S MIKE Gminski(43) was named to the Associated Press All-American basketball team for 1979-80. It was the second year in a row that Gminski was a second-team center selection. (AP Photo)

Aguirre, Carroll head Associated Press All-American team for 79-80

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Aguirre, a stocky, power forward favorably compared with the best players in DePaul history and mountainous Joe Barry Carroll, Purdue's tower of strength at center, were among those named today to The Associated Press All-American college basketball team for 1979-80.

Joining those two gifted frontcourt players on the first team were guards Darrell Griffith of Louisville and Kentucky's Kyle Macy, along with forward Albert King of Maryland.

The 7-foot-1 Carroll was a Third Team selection last year, while the others made their first appearance among the nation's top 15.

Duke's Mike Gminski was the Second Team center for the second straight season, flanked by LaSalle's Michael Brooks and Washington State's Don Collins at the forward positions and St. John's Reggie Carter and Oregon State's Ray Blume in the backcourt.

The Third Team included Ohio State's Herb Williams at center, Mississippi's John Stroud and Drake's Lewis Lloyd at forwards and Marquette's Sam Worthen and Kansas State's Rolando Blackman at the guards.

The team was selected by a nationwide panel of AP writers.

The 6-foot-7 Aguirre, the only sophomore on the First Team, was the heart of a DePaul club that rolled up a 26-game winning streak and sat atop The AP poll for most of the year.

Coach Ray Meyer describes the beefy Aguirre, who also has played some guard this year, as his "Offensive Machine" and is quick to point out: "He may be the best all-around ballplayer to come to DePaul." That includes, of course, the great George Mikan, one of the sport's premier big men in the 1940s. Aguirre averaged 27 points, eight rebounds and three assists a game.

The 240-pound Carroll is a late-bloomer who came into his own in his junior year last season. His talents are multifaceted: he shoots as well as any big man in the college game, blocks shocks with elan and rebounds with uncommon ferocity. The player they call "Rocky Mountain High" for his Denver origins, was among the Big Ten's leading scorers all season, averaging 22 points in addition to 10 rebounds a game.

The 6-4 Griffith, a senior, is the biggest operator of Louisville's so-called "Doctors of Dunk." A lot of Griffith's game is concentrated above the basket, which he virtually owns with his eye-popping dunk shots.

Louisville's all-time leading scorer averaged 23 points on 56 per cent shooting from the field, along with five rebounds and three assists a game for the Metro Conference champions.

"He's been our stabilizing force throughout the year," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "When things get tough, he always comes through for us."

Lake Placid back to normal

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — There's time for a second cup of coffee here most mornings now, and folks who rented their homes out for the XIII Winter Olympics have returned. "Everything Must Go! Leaving Town! Drastic Reductions! Make Us An Offer!" read the sign on the local store an out-of-town furrier had taken over for the two weeks when the whole world was watching.

"Olympic Merchandise 25 to 50 percent off," said the sign on Meyer's Drug Store next door.

But business was booming for Phil Kellogg's carpet cleaning firm from Lake George, 80 miles or so away.

"We came up to see the opening ceremony," Kellogg said as he surveyed what visitors had tracked in to Favor Smith's law office while it was rented to skimakers. "I saw all the mud and said I'm definitely coming back here."

A lot of spectators stayed away from the high-priced places, but that may have helped other businesses. Like the Mirror Lake Liquor Store, which boasted record-breaking sales in the face of $2 beers and $3 mixed drinks at many local bars.

"We worked so long to get them, and they're over and done with before you know it," a liquor store clerk said of the Games.

The Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee does not go out of existence until later this year, but the bulk of its employees have already been dismissed. The state employment office in nearby Saranac Lake has three lines, one for former LPOOC employees, one for former Lake Placid Club workers and the third labeled simply "All Others."

State Golden Gloves tournament opens today

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Seven champions have returned to defend their titles at the 44th State Golden Gloves tournament that begins Tuesday for a five-night run.

San Antonio's Tony Ayala, a 17-year-old middleweight who won a national Golden Gloves championship last year in Indianapolis, heads the list of returnees.

Others are light flyweight Richard Pastran, San Antonio; flyweight Sammy Fuentiz, Houston; light-welterweight Tyrone Cotton, Dallas; light-middleweight Cheto Ramos, Odessa; light-heavyweight Jay Strickland, Fort Worth; and heavyweight Charles Hostetter, Odessa.

Ayala is one of two boxers in the tournament ranked No. 2 in their weight divisions by the Amateur Athletic Union. The other is Fort Worth welterweight Donald Curry, a two-time national AAU champ who sat out last year's Golden Gloves competition.

Another welterweight returning after a year's layoff is Ronnie Shields of Houston, a three-time state and national Golden Gloves champ.

Three Aggies named to All-Tourney team

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The teams that finished 1-2-3 in the Southwest Conference basketball regular season were the only schools represented on the SWSU's all-tournament team, announced Monday.

Texas A&M placed three players on the all-star squad, chosen by 65 sports reporters who covered the tournament, while Arkansas had two and Texas had one.

The top vote-getter was Arkansas guard U.S. Reed. He was joined by teammate Keith Hilliard.

Agiess picked for the squad were guard David Britton and forwards Rynn Wright and Vernon Smith.

Texas forward-guard Ron Baxter rounded out the team.

A&M won the tournament by beating Arkansas in the Saturday night championship game 52-50.

A meeting will be held Tuesday March 4 at 7 p.m. in The Flame Room to elect Officers for the Pampa Softball Association. Please Attend.

By L.D. STRATE

Pampa bowler Forrest Cole cashed $100 in the Grand Bowl KIX2 Regional PBA Open last weekend in Amarillo. Cole compiled a 2,623 pin total for 25th place. Les Shearer of Evergreen, Colorado was the winner with a 5,608.

Pampa basketball coach Garland Nichols gives a lot of credit to the fans for the Harvesters' successful season.

"They gave us tremendous support, especially when we needed to win those second-half district games," he said. "I appreciated it and I know the players did too."

If we don't get another Alaskan cold front, the Pampa High Baseball Tournament will be held Thursday at Optimist Park. Pampa opens the four-team affair at 10 a.m. against Dumas. Hereford and Canyon meet at noon. The consolation game will be played at 2 p.m., followed by the championship contest at 4 p.m. The Top O' Texas track meet which was also postponed last week has not been rescheduled yet.

The sports pages may have turned away from football now that the Super Bowl is over, but the marketplace still shows an interest in football heroes. During Super Bowl week, the personal story of Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach, "First Down, Lifetime To Go," passed 100,000 in mass paperback sales.

The 1974 book was written by Staubach with Dallas sportswriters Sam Blair and Bob St. John. It's now available at bookstores.

The 1979 hunting season was the safest for Texas hunters since 1965, according to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Only 50 recorded hunting accidents were reported through the Uniform Hunter Casualty Reports filed by game wardens.

Of these accidents, nine were fatal. Shotgun lead the list of firearms involved in the accidents, with rifles a close second.

Flashback: March, 1951. Pampa Boys Club defeated Panhandle, 6-1, in team boxing. Pampa knockouts were registered by Troy Hall, who decked Joe Russell in the third round of the 125-pound match, and Bill Snow, who put Artie Pratt away in the second round of the 135-pound fight.

Ashford services Wednesday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Funeral services will be held at the Angelus Funeral Home Wednesday for Emmet Ashford, the first black umpire in the major leagues.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles Dodgers said Sunday night that eulogies will be delivered by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and longtime Southern California baseball coach Rod Dedeaux.

Burial will be private and donations may be made to the Heart Fund in Ashford's name, the spokesman said.

Ashford died at Marina Mercy Hospital in Marina del Rey Saturday of a heart attack. He was 66. He had worked for Kuhn's office since retiring from the majors in 1970.

"He was my special assistant for nearly a decade," said Kuhn in a released statement, "and never could I imagine anyone having a more dedicated or dearer friend. He was a beautiful person, full of love for everyone — totally without malice or ill will."

"As the first black umpire in the major leagues his magnanimous nature was sternly tested. But he was unshaken and uncomplaining, remaining the colorful, lovely personality he was all his life. He set a standard for decency that will remain a model for all of us."

Ashford began umpiring in the Southwestern International League in 1951 and worked his way up to the Pacific Coast League, later becoming that league's umpire-in-chief. He joined the American League in 1965.

Following his retirement from the AL, he occasionally worked Pacific-10 Conference college baseball games.

Ashford leaves his wife, Virginia, and three children by a previous marriage.

Potts denies latest rumor

DALLAS (AP) — Russ Potts insists he has not picked a new basketball coach at Southern Methodist University, despite widespread rumors to the contrary.

"I still have a couple of people I'd like to talk to," the SMU athletic director said Sunday, "and I'm going to do that next week."

Sonny Allen resigned the position Feb. 29, after a tiff with Potts, and first reports indicated Maryland coach Lefty Driesell would be hired for the position.

However, Potts said Saturday that Driesell was not in the running, and new reports were published saying Oklahoma coach Dave Bliss would be Allen's successor.

Bliss, who failed to appear for the taping of his television show in Oklahoma City on Sunday, was not available for comment.

National Invitation Tournament opens Tuesday night in Garden

NEW YORK (AP) — After the NCAA picked the "best," the NIT got the rest. Which wasn't so bad after all, according to Long Beach State Coach Tex Winter.

"There are a lot of good clubs in the National Invitation Tournament," Winter said Sunday after accepting a bid to the nation's oldest post-season college basketball tournament. "Some of them, in fact, are better than the teams that will be in the NCAA."

Winter's Pacific Coast Athletic Association team, which opens the 43rd NIT against Pepperdine of the West Coast Athletic Conference Tuesday night, is one of 32 in the field — the largest in the tourney's history.

After the Long Beach State-Pepperdine game, the first round will continue with seven games each on Wednesday and Thursday nights and a single game Friday night. A second round of eight will be played on Monday, March 10, and a third round of four on Thursday, March 13, at campus sites to be determined prior to the semifinals and finals at New York's Madison Square Garden on March 17 and 19.

The NIT selection committee extended the bids Sunday a few hours after the National Collegiate Athletic Association invited 48 of the nation's leading teams to its post-season playoffs.

"I hope we can get back to playing like we did a couple of weeks ago — I don't think we were hitting on all five cylinders in our conference tournament last week," noted Winter, whose team lost a 57-55 heartbreaker to San Jose State in the finals of the PCAA playoffs Saturday night.

The Big Ten dominated the far-flung NIT field with three representatives — Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota.

Seven other conferences had two teams each: the Southeastern, with Alabama and Mississippi; the Western Athletic Conference (Nevada-Las Vegas and Texas-El Paso); the Big East (Connecticut and Boston College); the Missouri Valley (West Texas State and Wichita State); the Sun Belt (Alabama-Birmingham and Jacksonville); the Eastern Eight (Pittsburgh and Duquesne) and the East Coast Conference (Lafayette and St. Joseph's).

The other teams selected: Nebraska of the Big Eight; Bowling Green of the Mid-American Conference; St. Peter's (East Coast Athletic Conference); Virginia (Atlantic Coast Conference); Texas (Southwest Conference); Murray State (Ohio Valley Conference); Southwestern Louisiana (Southland); Boston University (Yankee Conference); Grambling (Southwestern Athletic Conference); Loyola of Chicago (Midwestern City Conference); Washington (Pacific-10) and two independents, Penn State and Illinois State.

It will be the eighth NIT appearance for St. Peter's, but only the first for rookie Coach Bob Dukiet.

"I know how tough it is to play in Connecticut...it's a real pit," said Dukiet.

Owners to study

Oakland move

DALLAS (AP) — A committee of five National Football League owners has been told to study the Oakland Raiders' planned move to the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

George Halas of Chicago, Art Modell of Cleveland, Wellington Mara of New York, Bill Bidwill of St. Louis and Seattle's Merman Sarkowski were asked to report next week at a regularly scheduled NFL meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., Rozelle said Monday, after an emergency NFL owners meeting.

"The basic concern of the owners is the protection of the bylaws of the NFL constitution," Rozelle said after the lengthy meeting that featured a presentation from Oakland's Managing General Partner Al Davis.

"I talked to the other owners about our reception in the city in 1963 and brought them up to date through 1979 on how we built the stadium there," Davis said.

Rozelle said, "I deeply regret that he didn't come to the League earlier about it. My concern is for the future of the NFL."

According to the NFL constitution, 21 of the 28 team owners must approve the move.

In addition, the city of Oakland has filed suit to keep the team at Oakland's Alameda County Coliseum, and Rozelle said there were several steps the NFL could take if Oakland were to move without league permission.

"Obviously, strong steps could be taken, if the League chooses to do so, for conduct detrimental to the League," said Rozelle.

"One of those steps could be dropping the Raiders from the 1980 NFL schedule," Rozelle said.

No vote was taken Monday, but there was a chance ballots would be passed out in Palm Springs.

Davis said, after Monday's meeting, "When I get back (to Oakland), we're going to start to get our move organized to L.A."

Telephone rate hike asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., currently under investigation for exceeding its authorized profit margin in 1978, asked the Federal Communications Commission Monday for a 10.5 percent increase in telephone rates.

The across-the-board rate increase would cover long-distance and overseas calls as well as other special services provided by AT&T and would generate an estimated $1.2 billion in additional annual revenues, the company said.

Pic Wagner, AT&T's spokesman here, said the proposal represented the Bell System's first general interstate rate hike request since 1976 and was in full compliance with the guidelines of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

If the changes become effective as proposed, Wagner said telephone rates would rise by 5.6 percent in June and then by another 4.9 percent in October.

Although the exact increase for individual customers would depend on the number and type of long-distance calls made, the company estimated the rate hikes would increase the average residential customer's monthly bill by about 17 cents in June, and by another 13 cents in October.

The average business customer's bill for such calls would go up by about $1.35 a month in June and another $1.05 a month in October.

Customers who did not place out-of-state long-distance calls or call overseas would not be affected.

Stafford trial continues

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — A medical examiner and a ballistics expert were expected to be called as prosecution witnesses Monday at the triple-murder trial of convicted mass slayer Roger Dale Stafford.

McClain County District Attorney Kay Huff said the witnesses would testify about the fatal bullet wounds suffered by Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Sgt. Linda Lorenz, 31, and son Richard, 12, of San Antonio, Texas.

The three were gunned down here on June 22, 1978, while driving to the funeral of Lorenz's mother in Jamestown, N.D.

Stafford, 28, is currently appealing six death sentences he received in October for the July 16, 1978 murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers. The crime was the worst robbery-murder in Oklahoma history.

Mrs. Huff will seek three death sentences against Stafford if he is found guilty of the Lorenz murders.

Mrs. Huff presented 19 witnesses last week. She expects to call 15 to 20 more.

Defense attorney J. Malone Brewer expects to present about 10 witnesses, including Stafford.

The star prosecution witness at both Stafford's trials has been his wife of nearly eight years.

At the steakhouse murders trial, Verna Stafford testified she watched her husband and his late brother, Harold, shoot and kill four teen-agers and two adults during a $1,300 robbery.

Alien case in second week

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys estimate they are one-fourth of the way through a federal court trial challenging the constitutionality of a state law that denies public education to illegal alien children.

The suit, filed by Hispanic plaintiffs with assistance from the U.S. Justice Department, entered its second week of testimony Monday, and lawyers predict it could last another three weeks.

Plaintiffs claim the law, prohibiting state fund credit for undocumented students, violates equal protection provisions of the U.S. Constitution.

Hispanic parents also filed individual lawsuits against several Texas school districts, trying to force the districts to accept their children as students, but U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals ordered those suits consolidated and held in abeyance until he decides the constitutional question.

Rhodesia elects Marxist guerrilla

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Britain's interim governor in Rhodesia, Lord Soames, asks Robert Mugabe today to form the country's first internationally recognized black government following the surprise landslide win of the Marxist guerrilla leader's party in the parliamentary elections last week.

"I feel jubilant. I think we deserved it," Mugabe said of his overwhelming victory, reiterating that he would invite rival guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo into a coalition government. Nkomo said he had not received an invitation but welcomed the idea, saying it would contribute to stability.

Whites, however, reacted with shock, anger or resignation. Some said they would join the 1,200 whites a month fleeing the country, and one pulled a revolver on Mugabe supporters in the downtown area.

Registrar-General Eric Pope-Simmonds announced Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front Faction) won 57 of the 80 black seats in the country's 100-member parliament, a majority of 14, and 63 percent of the 2.7 million votes cast by more than 93 percent of the eligible black voters.

Mugabe's chief political rival and ally in the guerrilla war against white rule, Joshua Nkomo and his Patriotic Front party, won 20 seats, while former Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council won only three. Six other black parties that put up candidates were shut out.

The other 20 seats were reserved for the 230,000 whites and were won by former Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front in an election two weeks ago.

Following the broadcast announcement of the election results, jubilant crowds ran through the streets, crowing and flapping their arms in emulation of the rooster that was the symbol of Mugabe's party on the ballot.

"It's incredible that he's won with the ballot what he didn't with the bullet," a Western diplomat said.

Most observers expected the 55-year-old guerrilla leader to win no more than 40 seats and be forced into heading a coalition government for Zimbabwe, the name that will replace Rhodesia. But Mugabe said last week he would form a coalition government with Nkomo even if he won a majority, and a spokesman reiterated this Monday before the results were announced.

There was no immediate comment from Nkomo, Muzorewa or leaders of other factions.

Mugabe, Soames, Smith and the white commander of the armed forces, Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, issued separate statements urging calm.

"Law and order must be obeyed," said Mugabe. "We must uphold the rule of law. We must now all of us work for unity, whether we have won the elections or not."

Mugabe and Nkomo, joined loosely in the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, headed separate armies in the seven-year guerrilla war which cost 22,000 lives and was the chief factor in forcing the white minority to cede power to the black majority.

TEXAS BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements reappointed Baylor University President Abner McCall on Monday to the Education Commission of the States.

Other appointments announced by Clements were: Katherine Crumley of Shepherd to the Board of Directors of the Texas Housing Agency. Mrs. Crumley, 60, is librarian at Shepherd High School.

Joseph C. Garza of McAllen, president of Valley Federal Savings and Loan, to the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation.

Robert E. Flaherty and Ray Vaughn, both of Austin, to the Texas Committee on Purchases of Blind-made Products and Services.

increase in passengers carried on Texas transit systems in 1978, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation said Monday.

A special annual report showed more than 136 million passengers in 1978 for the 15 municipal transit systems and two metropolitan transit authorities.

Houston, with 32 percent of the total statewide riders, had more passengers than any other city while Dallas was second with 24 percent of the passengers.

The 1978 total was 16.6 percent over 1974 totals.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Medical Examiners has decided to check the backgrounds of 56 doctors in Texas who have three or more malpractice lawsuits pending against them.

Each of the doctors — 41 in Houston and the others scattered around the state — have had three or more malpractice suits filed since 1977.

Board lawyer Sam Stone said over the weekend the board wanted to try to determine whether multiple suits are a "red flag" — an indication that a doctor might not be competent to practice good medicine.

Stone said, however, inquiries would not be limited to doctors who have had several suits filed against them.

The board will rely primarily on a 12-member District Review Committee to do the background checks. The committee will see whether doctors have lost their staff privileges in hospitals or have shown any signs of problems such as alcoholism or drug abuse.

DALLAS (AP) — A bank teller thwarted a robbery Monday by refusing to hand over money when a man pushed a note and what appeared to be sticks of dynamite into a cash receptacle at a drive in window.

Police said the man drove away without any money when the teller refused to give the man any money and activated the bank's alarm system.

Bill Little, senior vice president of the Commercial National Bank in Southeast Dallas, said what appeared to be dynamite turned out to be two road flares.

TEXAS BRIEFS

DALLAS (AP) — A witness in the criminal investigation of Dallas emergency job programs says he told a federal grand jury that an influential black minister shares the responsibility for much of the misuse of federal money.

John Bethel, a former employee of the Rev. S.M. Wright, was allowed to plead guilty to reduced fraud charges for his cooperation with prosecutors. He said the federally financed programs were created more to enhance the political prestige of Wright than to help those who were supposed to benefit from grants totaling nearly $600,000.

Bethel drew up the federal grant applications and administered them for Wright as executive director of the People's Baptist Foundation.

CARROLLTON, Texas (AP) — Voters in the Carrollton-Farmers Branch Independent School District Saturday approved a $22 million capital improvements bond program.

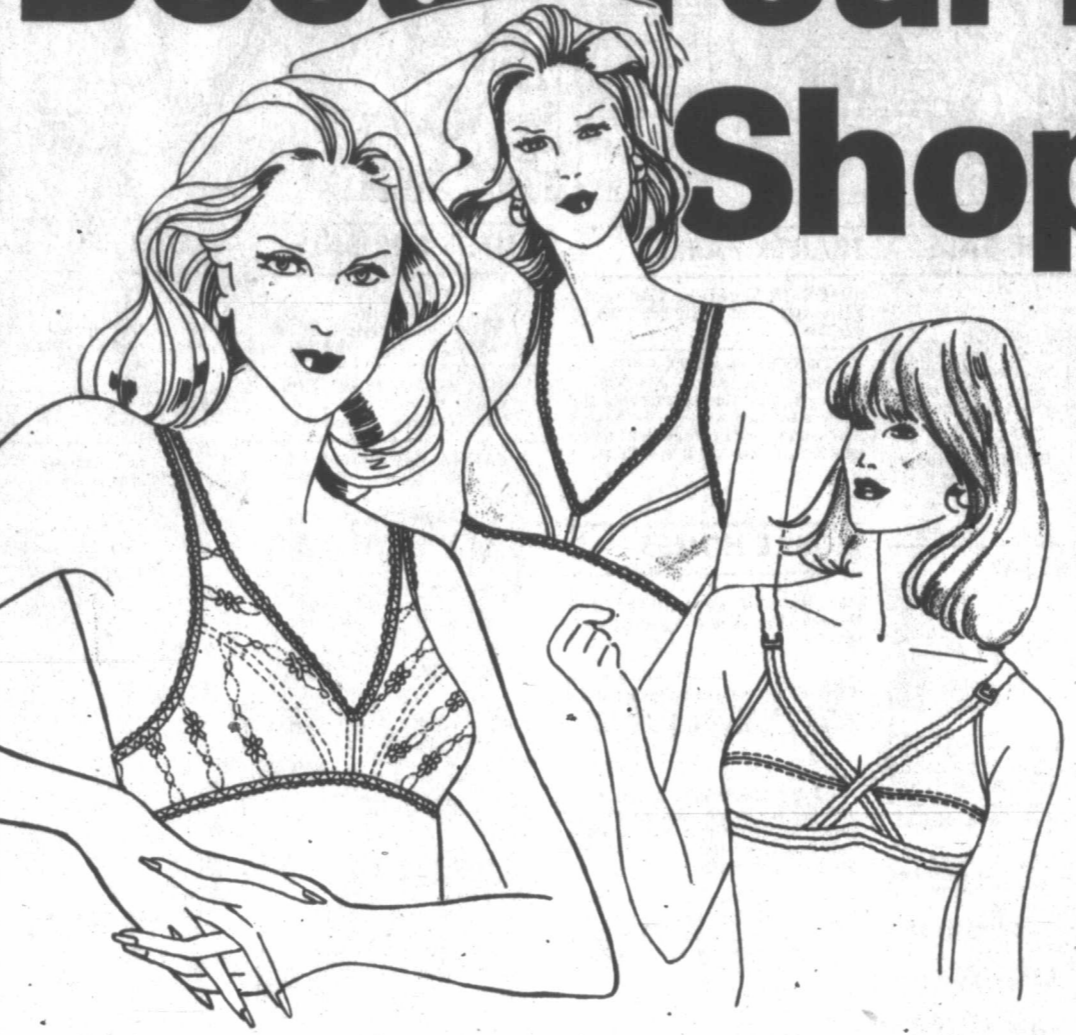

Of the votes cast, 1,229 supported the building proposal and 200 were against it.

The five-year program will provide three new elementary schools and remodeling and expansion of existing schools.

Prices Effective: Tuesday March 4 thru Saturday March 8, 1980
