Tariff Commission's Crude Oil Cost Report Favors Import Curb

WIDE MARGIN REVEALED FOR IMPORTED OIL

VENEZUELAN CRUDE IS CHEAPER AFTER SHIPPING DOMESTIC IS SUPERIOR CAPPED MEASURE WILL REACH CONGRESS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. (AP)—The move for legislation to limit oil imports was given impetus today by a tariff commission report showing a wide difference in the cost of crude oil delivered at Atlantic seaboard refineries from Venezuela and Mid-continent fields.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the report, the senate Republican steering committee gave privileged status to the Capper limitation measure.

The report showed a difference of $1.19 a barrel in the cost of Mid-continent and Venezuelan crude oil delivered at seaboard refineries, the latter being 79 cents and the domestic $1.98.

The report, however, said the domestic oil was of superior quality, having a higher gravity and gasoline content and therefore the articles being compared were not similar.

Despite this contention, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, author of the oil amendment directing the cost investigation said the report proved the independence of oil producers' demand for a tariff of at least one dollar a barrel was justified.

No Hope The Oklahoma said he held no hope for a tariff at this session, but he stressed confidence that the measure would be taken at adjournment on the bill of Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas. This would limit crude oil importation to 16 million barrels annually for the next three years.

It is likely the Capper measure will reach the floor next week. The tariff commission's report was based on average costs of production for 1927, 1928 and 1929 in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana and New Mexico, and the average cost in the Maracaibo basin of Venezuela for 1929, the last year for which costs were available there.

Imports Cheaper It found the cost in the Mid-continent field to be $1.19 a barrel, which with a transportation cost to eastern refineries of 89 cents, brought the total to $1.98. The cost at embarking points in Venezuela was listed at 79 cents, with transportation cost of 23 cents, a total of 79 cents when delivered to the same American refineries.

It was added, however, that domestic crude has an average gravity of 33 degrees as compared with 35 to 37 for the foreign, and the domestic yielded 36 to 44 per cent gasoline as compared with 9 to 12 per cent gasoline and 75 to 83 per cent fuel oil for the foreign.

Gasoline has a much higher unit value than fuel oil, the report said, adding the difference in quality of domestic and Venezuelan crude is reflected in the wide difference in the price paid by the Atlantic coast refineries.

The three year weighted average price paid for domestic crude was $2.06 as against $1.10 for the foreign. The 1929 prices were $2.06 for domestic and $1.02 for foreign.

The value of products obtained from a barrel of domestic oil in 1929 was $2.97 as against $1.15 for Venezuelan, the report said, adding: "The average expense per barrel for refining is much higher in the case of the domestic than the Venezuelan."

OFFSETS TO LARGE WELL ARE GIVING MUCH WORRY

There was only one completion in Gray county last week but it was enough to breed anxiety in the proration office. The well itself, the Masada-Shell's No. 1 Combs-Worley, section 35, block 2, a 2,500-barrel gusher was not sufficient to boost the total daily production for the week.

On the contrary, there was a decline of 3,187 barrels, but proration officials regarded with trepidation the three offsets to the well which are drilling ahead as fast as possible. The Mazda Oil company well is an offset to Wilcox Oil and Gas company's No. 34 Worley-Reynolds which was completed ten days ago for an initial of around 4,000 barrels. A thorough test has not been made of the Mazda well and it is believed that 2,500 barrels daily is a low figure for the estimate.

Wilcox is drilling two offsets to west of No. 34, the Sun Oil company is drilling one to the south. The Mazda well was a direct offset to the Sun well and to the Wilcox well. Big production is expected in the three drilling wells.

The single location of the week was Staniland Oil company's No. 1-C Cobb, 330 feet from the south and east line of the southeast quarter of section 169, block 3.

Pay in the Mazda well was found from 2,924-42 feet. It was drilled to a total depth of 2,598 feet for an initial production of 2,740 barrels. Daily production of the Panhandle area for the last week was 56,084 barrels, a decrease of 3,187 barrels. Every one of the five oil producing counties decreased in production.

Biggest decline was in Gray where 745 wells produced 43,061 barrels, a loss of 2,331 barrels as compared with the previous week. The production of Wheeler county has been stationary for the last two weeks. For the first time in several months Foster county's single oil well was on the production list last week. Its daily production was 26 barrels.

Production of the various counties compared with that of the previous week: Carson: 238 wells, producing 3,684 barrels, a decline of 515 barrels. Gray: 745 wells, producing 43,061 barrels, a loss of 2,331 barrels. Hutchinson: 91 wells, producing 8,623 barrels, a decrease of 329 barrels. Moore: 22 wells, producing 322 barrels, a loss of 38 barrels. Fetter: one well, producing 26 barrels. Wheeler: 43 wells, producing 358 barrels, no gain, no loss.

Total: 1,967 wells, producing 56,084 barrels, a loss of 3,187 barrels.

Scoutcraft Display Will Be Exhibited Troop No. 14 will have a scout exhibit in a display window of Kees and Thomas' store during the next week. It was announced yesterday by Scoutmaster Vaughn Darnell.

The exhibit will include a knot display, homestead scene and woodcraft. It was previously announced that Troop No. 14 would be in a window at the Brown-bill shoe store. Another troop will have an exhibit at the place.

Scouts of Troop No. 14 will attend a scouting service to be held at Central Baptist church today. Other scouts of the city are invited. The service will be partly in charge of the scouts.

D. B. Kirk and daughter Miss Doris Kirk of Spearman are visiting Judge and Mrs. Ivy Duncan and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stowell. Mr. Kirk is the father of Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Stowell.

Miss Davis Will Continue Tests Miss Helen Davis, supervisor in the office of John S. Sawyer, the county superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday that her schedule for the week would be: Monday, Friday and Saturday in office; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in schools.

Today, Miss Davis will go to Grandview and Hopkins No. 1 schools, where she has been conducting eye and intelligence tests. She expects to complete these at the Grandview and Hopkins 1 schools on Wednesday and Thursday and begin with the work at Hopkins 2.

HIGH 40-8 OFFICIALS COMING

DEDICATION OF CITY HALL TO BE THURSDAY

LOCAL VOITURE WILL BE MASTERS OF CEREMONY WILL PRESENT FLAG PUBLIC IS INVITED TO HEAR CONCERT AND PROGRAM

Hal Brennan, department commander for Texas of the American Legion, will be "wrecked" into the 40 and 8 organization while attending the city hall dedication here Thursday evening.

Pampa voiture No. 953 of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, which will be in charge of the formal dedication of the new city hall next Thursday evening, has secured the attendance of voyagers from many cities of the Panhandle and the presence of officials from the far away states of Maine and Indiana.

Among the speakers will be Chas. E. Perry of Kittery Point, Me., chef de chemin de fer; Charles W. Ardery of Indianapolis, Ind., correspondent national; Hal Brennan of Laredo, department commander of the Texas American Legion; and Col. Ernest Thompson of Amarillo.

With almost 100 exemplars for the defence, complete rewriting of the charge was necessitated, and Judge W. N. Stokes indicated it would be ready Monday. Indications were that arguments would be completed and the jury given the case the same day.

A tentative schedule for the arguments listed State Senator Clint C. Small to open for the state, followed by R. E. Underwood, W. M. Leighton for the defence. District Attorney John Myers for the state, E. A. Simpson and Cecil Storey for the defence.

Judge Stokes indicated the jury would be charged separately as to whether the defendant assisted Carl Hefer in the slaying or whether he killed Crabtree himself. Hefer was tried recently at Pampa and was given a 99-year penitentiary sentence.

The state has charged Crabtree was beaten and kicked to death in a fight with Hefer and Thompson. Thompson testified Hefer alone was responsible for Crabtree's death. The fight was said to have followed an argument over a horse which Crabtree was riding and which Hefer claimed as his own.

Some of the participants here urged a march on the state capitol help bring about passage of drought aid legislation and other administrative measures. Standing in the rain at a downtown corner, W. L. Cheatham, former legislator, called the meeting, which was attended by about 150 persons, mostly farmers.

Eleven members of Kerley-Crossman Post No. 334 of Pampa attended the American Legion meeting at Borger Friday night when 196 ex-service men voted unanimously in favor of immediate payment of adjusted service certificates. Resolutions were adopted and sent to legislative representatives.

Dr. R. A. Webb executive committee member of the 18th district, and Daniel W. Thurman, adjutant, 18th district, expect to visit all the Legion posts of the district in the near future in the interest of pending legislation for ex-service men, and to assist in the increasing of membership for the district. Next Tuesday night, they will visit the Childress post. The Dalhart post will be visited the latter part of next week.

Local Legionnaires who attended the Borger meeting were Dr. Webb, Mr. Thurman, J. A. Pearson, chemist national of the 40 and 8; W. C. de Cordova, grand sous chef de train; A. E. Arnold, conductor local 953, Ray Anderson, lampiste local, No. 553; O. K. Gaylor, V. F. W. quartermaster; Richard H. Cross, Larry Spitzer, Grant U. Weiser and B. W. Bettes.

C. H. Walker returned Friday night from a business trip to Santa Fe and Clovis, N. M.

Tax Office Rush Is Slowed Down Work of the county tax collector's office has slowed since Tuesday. There was a big rush of the late payers of automobile taxes at the office on Monday, following the crowds that swarmed into the office on the last day.

County 4-H Club Boys Make Good in Poultry Raising Club work will occupy the attention of the county agent, during the next month, Ralph R. Thomas, county agent, said yesterday. During January Mr. Thomas ran terror lines on 1,400 acres.

"The work for this year has been very interesting," Mr. Thomas said. "I have been so busy that I have been on the jump all the time. The work has been lined up two weeks in advance."

"Monday, I will attend the Panhandle of Texas, Inc. program. On March 25, we are going to have our second annual vacation judging contest, the teams to judge dairy poultry, and livestock. Panhandle and McLellan were the winners of the first contest that was held three days after I arrived in Pampa to take up my duties as county agent of Gray county."

Mr. Thomas has observed the record made by James Massey, 4-H club boy of McLellan. Massey's project was poultry. During the month of November, his flock of 80 hens averaged 13.5 eggs per hen, at a cost of 10.2 per dozen. His net profit for that month was $27.79. In December, he culled out 5 chickens, and his 75 hens averaged 15.7 eggs per hen, at a cost of 9.3 cents per dozen. His net profit for the month was $17.85. During the past month, out of a flock of 70 hens, the average was 15.5 egg per hen. The feed cost was 8 cents a dozen. He made a profit of $6.87 during the month of January.

That profits were not higher was due to the decline in the market price of eggs. The club boy fed the hens home grown corn and mash, with the addition of milk during the past month.

SLAIN IN HOME WHILE POLICE SEEK ARREST

WIDOW, COMPANION OF GANGSTER ARE HELD BY OFFICIALS RECORDS CONFISCATED ASSASSINS CATCH MAN WITHOUT PISTOL FOR DEFENSE

DETROIT, Feb. 7. (AP)—Cherter La Mare, powerful and elusive overlord of West Side gangster, was shot to death in the kitchen of his Grandville Avenue home last night, six hours before he was to have been taken into custody as a grand jury witness.

The slaying ended eight months of hide and seek played by LaMare with the police and rival gangsters; threatened to sow the seeds of a new underworld vendetta and made available to the grand jury a vast store of documents, check stubs and papers which are expected to have a bearing on Detroit crime conditions.

Police tonight held La Mare's widow Adna, and an injured man known as Tony Marino. Mrs. La Mare is held because police and prosecuting officials questioned the stories she told of her activities shortly before La Mare's death. Marino was found with a fractured skull.

La Mare's assassins caught him in a home which he had plentifully stocked with pistols and ammunition but they cornered him in one room where he had failed to leave a weapon within easy reach. Two bullets were fired into his head. The slaying occurred, Mrs. La Mare said, while she was driving a friend of her husband's to a state office conference at the La Mare home.

Arrest Ordered La Mare was to have been arrested as a grand jury witness at 6 a.m. today. The order for his arrest had been issued some time before his death. The gang leader's private papers and account books will be taken before the grand jury. Prosecutor Harry S. Toy said today that the papers "are highly important" and have a bearing on the jury's investigation of the Detroit police department.

Would Like To See Rogers President AMARILLO, Tex., Feb. 7. (AP)—The Will Rogers for President campaign is a sensible step, said Ernest Thompson of Amarillo Saturday, and he would like to see it sponsored on a national scale.

"He would make a dandy president," said Thompson. "He is qualified in every respect. He is one of the nation's smartest men and he has plenty of common, practical sense. I'm for him for president." He said Texas should take the lead in an effort to send him to the White House.

Cannon Is Cleared Of Church Charges WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. (AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, today was cleared by a committee of 12 ministers of charges brought against him last September by four elders of the church.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Birmingham, Ala., who presided over the hearing made the announcement of Bishop Cannon's exoneration on the steps of the Mount Vernon place Methodist church at the conclusion of five days of investigation. Bishop Ainsworth made the following statement: "A committee of investigation in the case of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., concluded its hearings in Washington today. The committee found no trial necessary."

New plans for extension work in Michigan State college centered on sales organizations to help farm women market home products.

ANNIVERSARY OF BOY SCOUTS TO BE OBSERVED BY CHURCHES

The twenty-first birthday of the Boy Scouts of America will be celebrated in either the morning or the evening services at all churches of the city today, the Rev. Tom W. Brabham, chairman of the Adobe Walls Boy Scout council, said yesterday.

Pastors of the local churches will emphasize scout laws and review the history of 21 years of scouting. Scout troops will attend their respective churches in a body and in uniform. A section will be reserved in the churches for scouts and former Scouts.

"The Boy Scout movement is America's coming of age in the celebration of its twenty-first anniversary. This is a fitting opportunity to review the accomplishments of 21 years," Rev. Tom W. Brabham said.

The various scout troops of the city will have exhibits of scoutcraft in display windows of local stores during the next week. On Monday, in the various schools, Scouts will dramatize 21 years of scouting. Tuesday has been designated as "parent institution day"; Wednesday as "international day"; Thursday as "citizens' day"; Friday as "home day"; Saturday as "outdoor day."

Some of the churches are sponsoring fathers and son banquets for the coming week. "In brief, we want to remember that next week belongs to the boys. We want to help them celebrate scouting in every way possible," Mr. Brabham said.

NORMAL TIMES

An Arkansas newspaper has announced that it will print no more news in its columns in which the terms "hard times" or "depression" are mentioned. Coming on the heels of a year that has been characterized by a hysteria of inaction . . . of looking under the beds for a bogey-man that didn't exist . . . followed by an equally abnormal hysteria that urged an orgy of wild spending as a cure . . . this pronouncement is like a breath of spring.

If your normal buying requirements call for the purchase of three suits a year . . . just plan to buy three suits . . . no more, no less . . . this year.

If your normal buying schedule would plan the purchase of three dresses for spring and summer wear . . . why merely buy those three dresses this year.

If, normally, you expend ten dollars each week on foodstuffs . . . just resume a healthful, normal living schedule by spending that weekly amount now.

If your normal entertainment program calls for three nights at the movies each week . . . merely fall back into a comfortable way of living by visiting your favorite picture house three times each week.

If, in normal times your holiday schedule calls for three trips to the country each year . . . plan now to take those three trips this year.

If, ordinarily, you employ three stenographers or clerks in your office . . . do so this year. With business on the upturn, there'll be plenty of work for them to do.

It means that the public at large . . . as well as the press . . . is beginning to realize that nothing is so frightfully wrong with the country after all. It means that public morale is coming up out of the cellar for air; that a jumpy mental condition which doctors describe as neurotic is giving way to a state of mind that causes folks to look sheepishly at each other and say "Let's go to work."

Shown that the economic structure of the nation will not come crashing down like a house of cards, the buying public is beginning to resume its matter-of-fact, sane, normal ways of living. And as the householder, the family head and the man in the street begin to buy the things they want and need, those loose threads of trade that have hung idle for a time again start to weave themselves into a fabric of prosperity. For, after all is said and done, hysterical efforts to cure an abnormal condition usually result only in more hysteria. Normal thinking, normal living, normal buying really DO the job. And the job is already well begun. So let's keep it up.

PROMPT PAYMENT OF BILLS WILL BRING
 NORMAL TIMES. DEPRESSION IS NO EXCUSE
 FOR NOT PAYING THEM. DON'T SALVE YOUR CONSCIENCE BY HOWLING "HARD TIMES."
 TUESDAY IS THE 10th. PAY ON THAT DATE.

BORGER BULLDOGS WIN PAMPA BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

PAMPA BEATEN IN FINAL TILT OF CAGE PLAY

ENLOE IS HIGH SCORER IN LAST GAME OF TOURNAMENT

The play-off for third place in the Pampa Invitation basketball tournament proved to be the thriller of the two day play. Memphis and Canadian proved to have two of the most evenly matched teams to take the floor. When the final whistle sounded Memphis was in the lead 30 to 29.

Borger took first place in the tournament, defeating the Pampa Harvesters, 40 to 14. It was one of the roughest contests seen here in some time. Referee Walters of Memphis didn't let anything go and no less than six men left the floor on personal fouls.

Enloe of Borger was high scorer of the game with 19 points and Hanna was next with 12. Substitutes were used largely throughout the game.

The winning team and coach were presented with nine gold basketballs by Principal L. L. Some of the Pampa High school. Pampa was given a trophy as runner up, Memphis, winner of third place was also presented with a trophy.

An all-star team, chosen by the coaches of the various teams, the referee and official scorer was composed of two Pampa men, two Borger men and one from Canadian. They were presented with gold basketballs.

The mythical team follows:

Forwards, Riley, Canadian and Hanna, Borger; Center, Martindale, Pampa; Guards, Salisbury, Pampa; and Alexander, Borger.

Riley of Canadian was high scorer of the tournament with 56 points. Hanna of Borger followed with 51 and Enloe of Borger with 40.

As the final whistle in the play-off for third place sounded Jarvis, Memphis, sagged a basket to hand his team the win. The game was a nip and tuck affair from the first whistle with Canadian usually in the lead but with Memphis always threatening. Riley, Canadian forward, lately of Price Memorial College, Amarillo, led the scoring with 20 points to bring his total for the tournament to 56. Storgel led the way for Memphis with 16 points.

As the half Canadian had the Memphis five down one point.

The second half saw Memphis coming out of a slump and playing sensational basketball, equaled that of Canadian in the first half.

Pampa and Borger went into the finals by right of wins over Canadian and Memphis respectively. The Pampa victory was more lopsided than anticipated, the locals winning 33 to 21. Borger walked away from Memphis 29 to 11.

Riley again starred for the winners although closely guarded. He was high point scorer of the game with 14 points to his credit. Webb star of the morning game got but two baskets.

James was in front for the Harvesters with 11 points. Moore followed with 8 and Martindale with 6. Salisbury's guarding was a feature of the game. The big fellow was all over the floor and kept Webb's scoring threats well under control. The team displayed more offensive power than in any game of the tournament.

Hanna, without a doubt one of the greatest forwards that steps on a high school floor, was head and shoulders over the rest of his team in his victory over Memphis. Hanna, amassed a total of 17 points to bring his total for three games to 39. Alexander and B. Conley kept the Memphis attacks under control and few were the shots on goal.

Storgel, Memphis forward, failed to get started as in the morning game and scored but one free goal. He was high point man of the tournament in the opener scoring 24 points. O. Smith scored 5 points in the closing game.

Borger and Canadian sprung the surprises in the morning games. The Borger Bulldogs completely swamping the Childress Community Center Indians under an avalanche of field goals and free throws. The final score was Borger 60, Community Center 25. The Canadian Wildcats defeated the Pampa Reserves 31 to 20.

R. Conley, Enloe and LaBarge had their shooting eye with them and scored 45 points. E. Conley went in at the half to relieve Hanna and scored 17 points to be high man of the game. Enloe followed with 18 while LaBarge made 12. This youngster Conley took nine shots at the basket and looped eight of them. His extra point was his only free throw. Enloe did practically all his scoring in the opening half.

Will L. Leter, star Community Center forward, out with a sprained ankle received yesterday the Indians were lost. Their offense appeared shot when it was found necessary to replace Leter with Edward Huntcutt, big center, proved the star of his team with C. Davis doing most of the shooting to score 13 points.

Canadian Wildcats simply walked away with the game against the Pampa Reserves. It was a case of too much Riley. The skinny forward, a Price Memorial star last semester, was the shining light of the game. He made 22 points to be high point man of the tournament to date. Well, Harvesters of 1929, was second high man with 9 points.

Coach Kelley used most of his reserves but could not stem the Pampa barrage. Woodward played the outcome of his team's

PANHANDLE DEFEATS GROOM FOR PENNANT

WHITE DEER, Feb. 7. (Special)—Taking the lead in the first three minutes of the game, Panhandle high school's boyish but skillful campaigners won the right to meet the Groom for the championship of Carson county by the score of 22 to 19 here tonight. The outcome of the game was never in doubt until the last half of the fourth quarter when the White Deer Bucks cut down Panhandle's ten-point lead. The score at the half was Panhandle 12, White Deer 6.

Merrill, Buck center and captain and Vaughn, Panhandle forward, tied for scoring honors. Each chalked up 13 points. Wilson, midget forward for the Bucks made two points while his teammate, Campbell, guard, made four. Captain Fullington, center, of Panhandle was held down to six points.

The first of a scheduled three-game series with Groom will be played at the White Deer gym. on Tuesday night and the second game Friday night.

The Panhandle Panthers have won games over Borger, Spearman, Pampa, Claude and two from White Deer.

CAPTURES WOLF DALLHART, Tex., Feb. 7. (AP)—A gray wolf, a species once common in the panhandle but now almost extinct, was run down by Rev. O. V. Beal, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Dallhart, in the north part of Dallam county.

The minister chased the wolf 10 miles in a large sedan before the animal dropped from exhaustion.

Construction work on the new $5,000,000, 24-story home of the San Francisco Olympic club will start early this year.

Bill Kelly went high scoring honors with 6. Memphis, with C. Storgel starting clearly defeated Dimmitt. The little Memphis forward scored 24 points and was easily the best man on the floor. Tricky and a dead shot the Dimmitt boys couldn't even keep near Storgel. O. Smith and Jarvis were the other scorers for Memphis.

It will be a long time before the heavyweight division produces another champion of Max Schmeling's ability to tangle himself in controversies and alienate the powers that be in the fistful world.

Inbad the Sailor is again on American shores, fresh from the German homeland, and he has leaped apparently right out of the frying pan into the fire. To add to the outlawry edict voted upon him by the New York State Athletic commission and the deposition warning served upon him by the National Boxing Association, Der Maxie wielded away the time on shipboard jousting with the German Boxing commission, the last of his allies.

Schmeling makes frequent speeches to the press. He holds the high record of one clash with some opponent. Before he sailed for New York on the Europa he remarked for publication that the home functionaries seemed interested in the welfare of German boxers only when the commission was in need of funds. The German commission rose indignantly and willed him to go indignantly and willed him to go with a warning against "prejudicing the prestige" of German boxing abroad. If the German board holds its nerve Max will become boxing's Man Without A Country. New York state won't have him after his managerial difficulties and refusal to fight Jack Sharkey again. He is signed to fight Bill Stribling in Illinois in June and they're drafting suits out there to keep him out of the state. The N. B. A. was ready to declare him null and void for failure to defend his title.

It looks like a short reign and a bolsterous one for Der Maxie.

Now that the United States Golf association has eliminated the sand wedge, the club will become as unpopular as contraband during prohibition.

Duffers who wondered dimly what the new tool was all about are racing around to the club pros to find out if they can't; land one before it's too late. A young Connecticut pro promised to see if he couldn't fill the order.

"I'll do what I can," he promised, "but I can't guarantee to get you one. I've got orders for about 20 already."

LONGHORN SLUGGERS TO DRILL WITH VETERAN BIG LEAGUERS

Laughlin, third-baseman, and Lefty Robertson, pitcher, will also be felt. The weakness that is most noticeable on the Texas squad this year, is the lack of a strong pitching staff. Coach Disch has several moundmen of ability, but none of the calibre of Ralston, or the other "greats" that preceded him. The new conference schedule calls for playing only one game between schools at a time, and the school with an outstanding hurler will carry an advantage over those with mediocre pitchers. Two veterans, Peoples and De la Fuente, will be back, and they will be helped along by Graham Rogers, Charley Winton, and Howard Tyson. Tyson was formerly an infielder, but has a strong arm, and Disch will attempt to convert him into a pitcher this year. "This is his first year, as he was ineligible last year. T. J. Hunt, a prospect who was counted strongly by Disch, has been lost to the squad through scholastic ineligibility.

The outfield will be more strongly fortified than any of the other positions. Four lettermen, Co-captains Van Lamm and Minton White, Maurice Baumgarten, and Gordon Sullivan, are available, and along with Ernest Koy, Hank Clewis, and Joe Veltman, promising sophomore, should insure capable garden service.

Two infield positions will be wide-open, at first base and second base. Raymond Arndt, sensational sophomore of last year, is a fixture at short stop, and Roger Williams, another second year man, apparently is destined to hold down the hot corner. Either Van Lamm or Ernest Koy may be shifted from the outfield to first base. At second base, Ed Price, Howard Tyson, or Cecil Godfrey, all new men, will be the leading contenders.

WOOD FAVORED TO WIN OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

SHOOTS SEVEN BIRDIES IN EIGHTEEN HOLE CONTEST PLAY

HARLINGEN, Tex., Feb. 7. (AP)—Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., became a favorite to win the $1,000 top prize when he ran away from the field of the Harlingen open golf tournament here today, shooting a 65 for the first 18 holes in the $3,500 event.

Despite a stiff wind, he had long drives, kept his seconds under control and turned in a card of 34 out and 31 in, on the 72-par course. He shot seven birdies. On the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes, Wood was under par with two deuces and a tray sprinkled in.

On the back nine he beat 36-par by five.

His Card read:
Out: 434 424 544—34.
In: 434 232 534—31—65.

Cise on the heels of Wood came Horton Smith of New York with a 69, out and 34 in. It was the first time Smith had shown to advantage but today he hit his stride and excepting for a little kulty work on the greens, might have lowered his bid two or three strokes.

Four players registered 71's for third place in the field. Those grouped at par were Harry Cooper of Chicago; John Golden of Norton, Conn.; A. Espinosa of Chicago and Willy Cox of Brooklyn.

Another class of scores for the day had 72's, which, compared to the leading 65 scored by Wood, left little chance excepting for second money. This group included Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., Charles Guest, Los Angeles, who had tied with Cox for a 33 going out; Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., and Pat

FORMER AGGIE GRID STAR JOINS COACHING STAFF NEXT SEASON

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 7. (AP)—Hunt, erstwhile triple-threat gridiron star at Aggie and who closed his playing career here as captain of the 1927 championship Texas Aggie eleven, has been added to the A. & M. coaching staff as assistant football coach for special work with backfield players.

Coach Mastly Bell, following approval by the athletic council at recent meeting of his recommendation regarding the addition of Hunt to the staff, has announced that the former Aggie star will report for duty at the college about the middle of September so as to be on hand for the opening of fall training. Following the varsity football season, Hunt, during December and January, will have direct supervision of the intramural football teams coached by various varsity lettermen. This will be in keeping with plans of Coach Bell to enlarge the intramural gridiron program.

Hunt's employment at A. & M. will, in a way, be seasonal since, as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals, his services are claimed on the diamond in the Spring and Summer. He has been ordered to report March 5 at Bradenton, Fla., where he will train at the Cardinal camp there. Hunt played for two seasons with the Houston Buffaloes of the Texas League.

Hunt joined the Aggie coaching staff last Fall following the start of the season to assist in developing backfield football men. With a meteoric career as a ball-toter to his credit while wearing the Maroon and White of the Aggies, his services on the coaching staff are expected to prove highly valuable in offensive tactics, Coach Bell said.

O'Brien, Harlingen pro. Abe Espinosa, winner of the Texas open, was off on his putting and after getting into water hole at the tenth, finished with a poor 76.

Among the amateurs, Bob Harlow, Buffalo, carried off honors with a 75. "Chief" George, Brownville, started off paring every hole but broke when he went into the rough at a turn and took a 45 coming in. Jack Speer, San Antonio, who was expected to give the pro's trouble, got off to a bad start.

Visitors from other nations practically went out of the running. John de Forrest, Surrey, England, shot 87, and did Harry rown of Mexico City.

Other leaders were: Jack Guild, Tulsa, Okla., 35-38-73; ack Groot, Fort Worth, 36-39-75; Herman Baron, Port Chester, N. Y., 37-36-75; Ed Stokes, Denver, Colo., 39-37-76; Edison Steele, San Antonio, 38-40-76.

The final 18 holes will be played tomorrow afternoon after which many of the players will leave for Florida.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

BY ETHEL HUESTON
WITH ILLUSTRATIONS BY MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

To keep life from growing too dull in Red Thruah, Iowa, GINGER ELLA TOLLIVER organized a Junior Country Club. It was to be exclusive—no parents, no babies, just the "younger set." According to Ginger, whose father was a minister and whose step-mother, the former PHEL VAN DOORN, was both wealthy and indulgent, purchased the Mill Rush farm, a 10-acre tract with an old house, and remodelled it.

Into Red Thruah came BARD HOLLOWAY, a young artist who was hobnobbing around the country. Attracted by Ginger, he agreed to stay and paint portraits and decorate the new club house. The Tollivers made him their guest.

Bard thought "Jule de Vivre" would be a good name for the club. It was adopted. And he thought it would be splendid if they could import from Chicago one NICOLE CALLENO. For Nicole was handsome and he could cook and sing and strum a guitar. He would make a picturesque addition to the club. He would be a knockout on the opening night, for which an elaborate dinner dance was planned.

But on the morning of the opening there arrived at the Tolliver's a man named ANGELINO. Little ANGELINO was a musician, and PIETRO could cook. And BENITO could sing. Nicole it seemed, could not come, so they had come in his place, to make themselves useful, glad to work for their board.

That night at the opening Bard realized he was falling in love with Ginger. The event was a great success. Pietro, Angelo and Benito added just the right touch of color, but EDDY JACKSON began to think that Ginger would have her hands full with them, and JENNY BROOKS, who with her husband, BENNY, were chaperons of the club, began to have misgivings. But the Tollivers soon won her over and they made plans to stay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

But Phil was a woman of wide experience. She thought it all over that afternoon while Ginger had based out at Mill Rush working on the series of sketches he was making of different views of the house and grounds. And suddenly she went to her desk and wrote a letter to Speed Roney, who had finished college and was in business with his father back in Massachusetts.

"Speed, my dear boy, your promise to do me a good turn whenever you had the opportunity. Here it is. We are all bored and stupid and tired of each other and just shriveling up with ennui—especially Ginger. Won't you come out for a week or 10 days, longer if you can, and cheer us up? It will be such a nice surprise for Ginger and Mr. Tolliver, who do not know I am writing you. Please wire me at once that you are on your way, for this is the good turn you promised. And I shall try to see that you are a little amused and entertained while you are here.

"Cordially,
"Phil Tolliver."

Ginger hung up the telephone receiver and returned to the breakfast table. She was laughing. "We must hurry right out to Mill Rush," she said to Bard. "Benito's got woodpeckers in his flagpole and he wants us to come immediately."

"That Benito is positively too good to be true," said Phil. "I can't say much for Pietro except that his food means well, and Angelo is not the ultimate in artistry. But Benito is without peer."

"Does Benito mean the Blessed?" asked Ginger. "He is."

When they reached Mill Rush Benito was waiting for them and with eager cries of delight led them out to the flagpole, which he had erected with his own hands, and where, to his boundless and booming delight, a red-headed woodpecker was pounding vibrantly.

"You see," he cried, coveting about on the green grass. "A woodpecker! A red-headed woodpecker! That is good luck for this house."

Ginger and Bard were eager in agreement. Certainly that house was the hiding place of rare good fortune!

"Look!" Benito went on, turning and pointing up to the corner of the house, the southeast corner of the house, which he called his. "You see that bird-house? Right outside my window."

"Are there birds in it?" asked Ginger interestedly.

"Not yet. But wait! Birds will come. I sprinkle the floor with the bird seed. I fill the bowl with fresh cold water twice, three times a day. Birds will come. Right outside my window. It's very lucky to have birds outside your window."

Ginger and Bard followed him about for a while from house to house, expressing interest and pleasure more to please him than anything else, and presently moved away. But it was not solely to admire the woodpecker that Benito had enticed them forth, not entirely to display the smart new bird-house he had built outside his attic window. He followed them down to the landing.

"Miss Ginger," he said, "you take me in town and I go to Chicago tonight. To get my clothes and my money and to see my friends. Tomorrow I come back. Miss Jenky, she says all right. I go, I come."

"Oh, you asked her first, did you?" Benito shrugged his large shoulders.

"You are just lost building bird's nests here in the woods. Benito. You should go in for diplomacy. The way you handle Jenky now! EHe says it is all right, does she? But how about all that money for fare?"

"Miss Ginger, I tell you what. You pay me to Chicago, and I'll pay you back."

"And do you promise faithfully that you will come back? Can we depend on you?"

Benito laid a large hand in the general direction of his heart.

"Miss Ginger," he said solemnly, "I come. My heart she will bring me."

"It's too bad that she won't pay your railroad fare," interrupted Bard facetiously.

Since he had set his heart upon going there was nothing to do but acquiesce, and Ginger, half-fearing he would not return, held out as many inducements as she could.

"You know we're going to be making money here pretty soon," she said. "We've more than paid our expenses, already, and it is largely due to you, Benito. You stand by us and we'll see that you don't lose by it."

Again and again he promised. He was sentimental about going away. He walked slowly through the grounds, filled all the air with fresh water, cleared the debris from the fountain, watered the flowers.

He took a look at every garden spot, rubbed down Mrs. Carter, the mare, and clucked jovially to the chickens. He pulled in his old boat, lightened up the bolts, shook out the rugs and blankets, and emptied the cans of bait.

"Benito, you are coming back, aren't you?" asked Ginger, lagging at his heels. "You wouldn't just say it to fool me?"

"Tomorrow I will come back—if not tomorrow, then Saturday. You see here on Saturday. You'll see. And Miss Jenky, too."

"Mr. Benito," she said, "now don't you forget to come back. Seems like we just couldn't stand that place without you."

"The rest trouble with having him," thought Ginger, "is the slump that lies ahead of us when we lose him."

But she had many things on her mind—Bard's portraits, in particular, as she was torn between the desire to promote his professional success and to keep him away from the better-looking girls of the community.

In the end her better nature triumphed, but the days were not without their sadder moments. She had never realized the utter shamelessness of the nicest girls of her acquaintance in forcing their attentions on entirely diffident and disinterested men.

It was after a particularly trying hour, when Meriam Updike had quite overstepped the proprieties for young ladies having their portraits painted by lighting with her own hands and at her own lips a cigarette for the encumbered artist, that Phil greeted her with deadly news, delivering it smiling, as though it were something to rejoice over.

"Oh, Ginger," she cried, "I have a surprise for you. Do you remember Speed Roney? He is coming out for a visit. He is in New York now, and will be here in a day or two. He's going to win us."

Ginger gasped audibly.

"Coming out? Coming here? Who's he going to visit?" she ejaculated.

"Why, us, of course, dear."

"Oh, of course," repeated Ginger. "How—nice! Speed Roney—does he?" she looked helplessly at her father, hopelessly at Phil, who yearningly at Bard. "O—couldn't we put him off a while?"

"Why, darling. You are so fond of Speed."

"Yes, of course," she faintly assented. "But it is a very inopportune time—I'm pretty busy right now—what with Mill Rush—Bard's portraits—Benito gone—"

"Oh, dearest, I am so sorry," Phil sounded most contrite. "I only asked him to come for your sake—because you were so bored."

"Oh," Ginger pulled herself together and gave a hoarse little laugh. "Dear me! So I was. Well," she added dryly, "I fancy I'm going to be a whole lot bolder in the next 10 days."

"Will he stay here at Doorndee?" asked Bard almost jealously. "Perhaps it would be more convenient for me to move in town—out of the way."

"Don't!" Ginger laid a detaining hand upon his arm. "The more the merrier. Always room for one more. Safety in numbers. The burned child dreads the fire. All that sort of thing, Phil," she said suddenly, "let's ask Eddy Jackson to come, to help him things up—I'm so—bored." But she laughed strangely.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN author of "THE BLACK PIGEON," "THE AVENGING PARROT" and "MURDER BACKSTAIRS" © 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUANITA SELIM is murdered at bridge, four days later DEXTER SPRAGUE is also murdered when he disappears mysteriously from a bridge party at the TRACEY MILES home. SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR DUNDEE, believing that Nita and Sprague, coming to Hamilton after Nita recognizes someone in a group picture, were partners in blackmail, has six suspects who could have killed both.

All six could have gotten the gun, and hidden it after Nita's murder on a secret shelf in the guest's closet. Nita's will and the fact that she had Sprague's contraband bell near her led to summon LYDIA, her maid, and help, show she feared death. The police think that both were killed by a New York gunman. Their theory is that Nita came down first, under her married name, and Sprague followed, bringing down the money, accounting for the $10,000 Nita banked, and that they were tracked by a gunman.

Dundee thinks the second murder was framed to look as though a New York gunman did it. POLLY BEALE and CLIVE HAMMOND, after being engaged a year, suddenly marry the morning after Sprague's death, and Dundee wonders if they are marrying because they feel safe from the threat of blackmail. A telegram is delivered to CAPTAIN STRAWN which apparently confirms his theory.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

The telegram which the tripartite chief of the homicide squad passed to Dundee had been filed an hour before and was from the city editor of The New York Evening Press: "WORKING ON YOUR THEORY OF NEW YORK GUNMAN RESPONSIBLE MURDERS OF JUANITA LEIGH SELIM AND DEXTER SPRAGUE THIS PAPER HAS DISCOVERED THAT SELIM WOMAN WAS SEEN AT NIGHT CLUBS SEVERAL TIMES DURING JANUARY/FEBRUARY WITH QUOTE SWALLOW TAIL SAMMY UNQUOTE'S UNDERWORLD NAME FRED SAM VELLIV STOP SA- VELLIV TAKE YOUR A RIDE TONIGHT AT THE TWENTY SECOND TWO DAYS AFTER SELIM WOMAN LEFT NEW YORK STOP POLICE HERE WORKING ON THEORY SAVELLI SLAIN BY OWN GANG AFTER THEY WERE TIPPED OFF BY VELLIV STOP DOUBLE CROSSING THEM STOP IN EXCHANGE FOR THIS TIP CAN YOU GIVE US ANY SUP- PRESSED INFORMATION IN YOUR POSSESSION STOP SA- VELLI HAD BROTHER WHO IS KNOWN TO US TO HAVE PROM- ISED REVENGE SWALLOW TAIL SAMMY'S MURDER STOP BE A SPORT CAPTAIN."

"Well, that puts the lid on it, doesn't it?" Strawn crowed. "I'll send Sergeant Turner to New York on the five o'clock train. . . . Pretty decent of that city editor to wire me this tip, I'll say!"

"And are you going to reciprocate by wiring him about the $10,000 Nita banked here?" Dundee asked.

"Sure! Why not? There's no use that I can see to keep it back any longer, now that no one can have any excuse to think as you've been going—that it was blackmail paid by a Hamiltonian."

"Then," Dundee began very slowly, "if you really think your case is solved, I'll make one suggestion: take charge of Lydia Carr and put her in a very safe place."

"Why?" Strawn looked puzzled.

"Because when you publish the fact that Nita and Sprague got $10,000 for tipping off Savelli's gang that he was double-crossing them, and that Nita willed the money to Lydia, the avenger's next and last job would be to get Lydia, since his natural conclusion would be that Lydia had been the scheme from the beginning," Dundee explained.

"God, boy! You're right!" Strawn exclaimed, and his heavy old face was very pale as he reached for the telephone, and called the number of the Miles residence. "I'm going to put it up to her that it will be best for her to be locked up on a material witness, for her own protection."

Five minutes later Strawn restored the receiver to the hook with a bang. "Says she won't budge!" he explained unnecessarily. "Says she ain't afraid and the Miles kids need her. . . . Well, it's her own funeral! But I guess you are convinced at last?"

Dundee slowly shook his head. "Almost—but not quite, chief!"

"Lord, but you're stubborn! Here is a water-tight case—"

"A very pretty and a very satisfactory case, but not exactly water-tight," Dundee interrupted. "There's just one little thing—"

"What do you mean?" Strawn demanded irritably.

"Have you forgotten the secret shelf behind the guest closet in the Selim house?" Dundee asked.

"I can afford to forget it, since it hasn't got a thing to do with the case!" Strawn retorted angrily.

"There's not a scrap of evidence—"

"Of course it does not fit into your theory," Dundee agreed, "for 'Swallow tail Sammy' is a name no brother could not have known of his existence, but there is one thing about that secret shelf and its pivot door which I don't believe you can afford to forget, Captain!"

"Yeah?" Strawn snarled.

"Yeah!" I refer, of course, to the complete absence of fingerprints on the door and on the shelf itself! Carraway didn't even find Nita Selim's fingerprints. Since Nita would have had no earthly reason for carefully wiping off her fingerprints after she removed the papers she burned on Friday night, it's a dead sure fact that someone else who had no legitimate business to do so, touched that pivoting panel and shelf and carefully removed all traces that he had done so. . . . And—"

"And—"

"—until I find out who that someone was, I for one, won't consider the case solved!"

Fifteen minutes later Dundee was sitting at Penny Crane's desk in her office at the district attorney's suite, replacing the receiver upon the telephone hook, after having put in a call for Sanderson, who was still in Chicago keeping vigil at the bedside of his mother, "Did you find out anything new when you questioned the crowd this morning?" Penny asked. "Besides the fact that Polly and Clive got married this morning, I mean. . . . I wasn't surprised when I read about the wedding in the extra. It's exactly like Polly to make up her mind suddenly, after putting Clive off for a year—"

"So it was Polly who held back," Dundee said to himself. Aloud: "No, I didn't learn much new, Penny. You're a most excellent and accurate reporter. . . . But there were one or two things that came out. For instance, I got Drake to admit to me, in private, that Nita did give him an explanation as to where she got the $10,000."

"Yes?" Penny prompted eagerly.

"Drake says," Dundee answered dryly, "that Nita told him it was 'black alimony' which she had succeeded in collecting from her former husband. Unfortunately, she did not say who or where the mysterious husband is."

"Poof!" scrooped Penny. "Don't you see? She just said that to satisfy Johnny's curiosity. After all, it was the most plausible explanation of how a grass-widow got hold of a lot of money."

"So plausible that Mr. Drake may have thought of it himself," Dundee reflected silently. Aloud, he continued his report to the girl who had been of so much help to him: "Among other minor things that came out this morning, and which the papers did not report, was the fact that Janet Raymond tried to commit suicide by drinking shoe polish. Fortunately her father discovered what she had done almost as soon as she had swallowed the stuff, and made her take ipecac and then sent for the doctor."

"Oh, poor Janet!" Penny groaned. "She must have been terribly in love with Dexter Sprague, though what she saw in him—"

"Dundee made no comment, but continued with his information: "Another minor development was that Tracey Miles admitted he and Flora had quarreled over Sprague after all of you left, and that Flora took two sleeping tablets to make sure of a night's rest."

"She's been awfully unstrung ever since Nita's murder," Penny defended her friend. "She told us all Monday night at Peter's that the doctor had prescribed sleeping medicine. . . . Now, you look here, Bonnie Dundee!" she cried out sharply, answering an enigmatic smile on the detective's face. "If you think Flora Miles killed Nita Selim and Dexter Sprague because she was in love with Dexter and suspected he was Nita's lover because of that silly note—"

"Whoa, Penny!" Dundee checked her. "I'm not thinking exactly that. But I've just remembered something that had seemed of no importance to me before."

"And what's that, Mr. Smart Alec?" Penny demanded furiously.

"Before I answer that question, will you let me do a little theorizing?" Dundee suggested gently. "Let us suppose that Flora Miles was not in love with Sprague, but that she was being blackmailed by Nita for some scandal Nita had heard gossiped about at the Forsyte school. . . . No, wait! . . . Let us suppose further that Nita recognized Flora's picture in the group photo Dunlap showed her, as a portrait of the girl whose story she had heard; that she was able, somehow, to secure incriminating evidence of some sort—letters, let us say, Nita tells Sprague about it, and Sprague advises her to blackmail Flora, who lets her tell Nita, is very rich. So Nita comes to Hamilton and bleeds Flora of $10,000. Not satisfied, Nita makes another demand, the money to be paid to her the day of the bridge luncheon—"

"Silly!" Penny scoffed furiously. "The only evidence you have against poor Flora is that she stole the note Dexter had written to Nita!"

"That's the crux of the matter, Penny darling!" Dundee assured her in a maddeningly soothing voice, at which Penny clenched her hands in impatient rage. "Flora, seeing Nita receive a letter written on her husband's business stationery, jumps to the conclusion that Nita had carried out her threat to tell Tracey, or that Nita has at least given Tracey a hint of the truth and that Tracey's special messenger note is let us say, a confirmation of an appointment suggested by Nita. . . . Very well! Flora goes to Nita's bedroom at the first opportunity, knowing that Nita will come there to make-up for the men's arrival. Let's suppose Flora has brought the gun and silencer with her, intending to frighten Nita, rather than kill her. But having had proof, as she believes, that Nita means business, Flora waits in the closet until Nita comes in and sits down at her dressing table, then steps out and shoots her. Then she recoils step by step, until her foot catches in the slack cord of the bronze lamp, causing the very 'bang or bump' which Flora herself describes later, for fear someone else had heard it.

"Her first concern, of course, is to hide the gun and silencer. She remembers Judge Marshall's tale of the secret shelf in the guest closet, and not only hides the gun there but seeks in vain for the incriminating evidence Nita had against her. But she also remembers the note she believes Tracey has written to Nita, and which, if found after Nita's death, may give her away. So she goes to the closet in Nita's bedroom, finds the note, and faints with horror at her perhaps needless crime when she realizes that the note had been written by Sprague, and not Tracey. Of course she is too ill and panic-stricken to leave the closet until the murder is discovered."

"But you think she was not too panic-stricken to have the presence of mind to retrieve the gun and silencer and walk out with them, under the very eyes of the police," Penny scoffed.

"Yes, I think she was!" Dundee amazed her by admitting. "And that is where my sudden recollection of something I had considered unimportant comes in! Let us suppose that Flora, half-suspected by Tracey, confesses to him in their car as they are going to the Country club for their long-delayed dinner, as were the rest of you, Tracey, loyal to her, decides to help her. He tells her to suggest, at dinner, that Lydia come to them as nurse, and that he can go back to the house and get the gun and silencer from the guest closet hiding place—if an opportunity presents itself—as it did, since I left Tracey Miles alone in the hall while I went into Nita's bedroom to talk with Lydia before I permitted her to go with Tracey."

"You're crazy!" Penny told him fiercely, when he had finished. "I suppose you are going to ask me to believe that Tracey was big enough fool to leave the gun and silencer where Flora could get hold of it and kill Sprague last night."

"Why not let us suppose that Tracey himself killed Sprague to protect his wife, not only from scandal, but from a charge of murder?" Dundee countered. "Tell me honestly: Do you think Tracey Miles loves Flora enough to do that for her?"

Suddenly, inexplicably, Penny began to laugh—not hysterically, but with genuine mirth.

PRESIDENT BIZZELL SAYS EMPHASIS ON SPORTS TUNED DOWN

NORMAN, Feb. 7. (Special)—The recent (AP) story concerning the University of Pennsylvania's resolve to eliminate over-emphasis of its competitive sports, drew from Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University of Oklahoma, the rather terse statement that "the new policy at the University of Oklahoma."

"The plan of placing athletic control in the hands of administrative officers of the university, placing all coaches on the teaching staff of the institution, and requiring them to give instruction in physical education has been in effect in the University of Oklahoma for many years," asserted President Bizzell.

"It happens that conditions in eastern institutions have been quite different from conditions in the west and southwest," he went on. "Athletics got under way earlier in the east than in other sections of the country and as a result many practices grew to established policies that have been hard to change. Many of our western and southwestern institutions profited by this experience and organized their athletics on the basis of faculty control."

"In the University of Oklahoma the amount of time given by coaches to inter-collegiate sports is comparatively limited. The remainder of their time is devoted to intramural sports and physical education."

GRAIN PRICES HIGHER By JOHN P. BOUGHAN Associated Press Market Editor CHICAGO, Feb. 7. (AP)—Despite rains and snowfalls over a wide expanse of drought territory, wheat and corn prices today went steadily up in circulation, but would cause soil-heaving and frozen-crust-pressure. The rise was chiefly ascribed to misgivings that wheat crop dangers had been made worse by moisture insufficient apparently except to relieve top-soil dryness for the time being, whereas likelihood of damage in case of a sudden freeze was intensified. Crop experts said a quick switch to low temperature.

Wheat closed irregular, 1/2 cent off to 1/2 cent up, corn 1 to 1 1/2 advanced, oats unchanged to 1/2 highand provision unchanged to a rise of 10 cents. Fears of a cold wave were based largely on an official forecast that referred to probable frequent alternations of temperature next week. No definite prediction of any severe low mercury was issued, but many traders were prompt to act on a suggested possibility rather than await something more tangible. In most quarters, opinion prevailed that the rains and snowfalls in the drought sections were altogether inadequate beyond affording temporary help.

Corn showed more upward impetus at times than did wheat. Wintery weather stimulated corn demand as promising increased use by feeders.

Corn primary arrivals were 228,000 bushels compared with 1,136,000 at this time last year. Oats sympathized with corn and wheat strength. Notwithstanding decline in hog values, provisions were responsive to upturns in grains.

Closing indentities: wheat, May (futures) 62 1/2; July 66 1/2 to 3/4, 69 1/2; Sept. 66 1/4, 68 1/2. Corn: March 64 1/2, 66 1/2; May 65 1/2 to 3/4, 68 1/2 to 3/4; July 67, 69 1/2.

CONVERSATION

The American ranks fourth among the peoples of the earth as a conversationalist, we are told from New York.

There may be some truth in that, because it seems offhand, when a little thought is given to the subject, that few of the average people met qualify as conversationalist.

The most objectionable type is the fellow who tries to find a willing listener to firmly fixed ideas, and who tends to become aroused when the listener differs with the ideas.

Possibly no one suffers from impossible talkers more than the newspaperman, for usually he has to listen, and he has to keep friends as best he can.

"American women have a greater conversational intelligence than their men," the New York article says, and it is possible that few who do much talking with both men and women will dispute that.

A woman ordinarily will tell a story much better than a man of the same intelligence, and is a much better conversationalist; ordinarily she does not ramble in her talk as the man does, and she has keener appreciation of the rights of the other end of the source of conversation, no matter how determined her ideas may be.

HOSPITAL PROPOSED

Location and construction of a West Texas state insane hospital is proposed in a bill offered in the house by Rep. Helen B. Moore, Galveston, chairman of the committee on eleemosynary institutions.

The area in which the hospital may be located, as set forth in the bill, ranges roughly from Austin to Waco, westward to Big Spring, and southward below San Angelo and Kerrville.

In other words, the hospital would be located in an area in which Sweetwater would have a chance to get it, should it be desired.

Abilene already has a state eleemosynary institution. Austin is the home of the capitol, state university, and eleemosynary institutions; Waco is the site selected for a huge federal hospital; San Angelo has the state tuberculosis sanatorium at its back door, as well as a state fish hatchery.

Sweetwater has no state institution, though other cities in West Texas have been so favored. If Sweetwater wants this eleemosynary institution, civic leaders believe the Board of City Development, by proper pressure, can land it in Sweetwater; where its payroll would amount to thousands of dollars each year.

Mrs. Moore's bill authorizes the hospital to be located anywhere in "Central West Texas," and gives the board of control three votes and the governor and lieutenant governor one vote each, a majority to decide the location.

The bill, as offered, fixes a minimum of 3,000 patients, but Mrs. Moore said she will comply with the best information of psychiatrists, and cut the limit to 2,500—Sweetwater Reporter.

21 AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

It's quite a job to amend the constitution of Texas, as experience has shown. Amendments usually meet a cool reception at the hands of the voters.

But in spite of the difficulties that beset the path of the would-be revisionist, he bobs up serenely at every legislative session, and usually has one or two amendments pending.

The present session is no exception. In fact, it is a shining example of the legislative mind with respect of constitutional changes.

Our Austin correspondent informs us that no less than 21 proposed constitutional amendments have been placed before the legislature with a request that they be submitted to a vote of the people.

Not many of these proposals will reach the people, and the few that do reach them won't be received with open arms.

Texas is operating under a constitution that dates back to 1876, and for at least 30 years the need for a general overhauling has been apparent; but so far all efforts for a constitutional convention have fallen through.

The obvious thing to do would be for all proponents of change to get behind Senator Hornsby's bill and push it through the submission change.

It is certainly good news to know that the contract for paving of the highway from Pampa to the Carson county line will be let on February 23.

Residents of the Pampa district have waited a long time for this gap to be closed—and so have travelers who cross this county. Differences between what local residents wanted and what the state highway commission recommended resulted in more than a year's delay with regard to route alone.

The grading contract was let and completed last summer. Rains were needed to settle the newly graded roadway, and these have been lacking. However, it is believed that work can start on the actual paving as soon as weather conditions will permit.

Passage of the countywide bond issue would carry the paving on eastward as far as Higgins, with Roberts, Hemphill, and Lipscomb counties already having voted their projects. Federal aid has been allocated to Texas—$10,000,000—and with state aid would make prompt construction possible.

It has never been more apparent that the countywide plan would be most equitable. The McLean and Alameda district is paying more taxes now than it receives from the countywide bonds voted.

It is rather queer that gas consumers of so many cities should be in arms over their January gas bills. The weather has been mild; the rates have not been changed. Sometimes meter readers fail to actually read the meters, merely marking up the minimum charge one month and checking the real readings the following month.

The reasons for the high January bills in other cities have not been given. The result, however, is a general survey of rates and a campaign to secure reductions.

Investigation here shows that practically no complaints on bills for January have yet reached the city government. One reason may be that the residential rate is greatly below that of the complaining cities on the south of us.

Gas is a great blessing. The small boys appreciate the fact that there is no coal to carry in and no ashes to carry out. Husbands and wives, too—remember the discomfort of arising on cold mornings to make a fire with matches, stove wood, and kerosene. Housewives appreciate the cleanliness of gas. They are glad there are no more ashes and coal oil stains on the rug. The ceiling no longer becomes smoke-clouded every winter.

Those gold footballs given the Harvesters by the fans the other night are sure pretty, the girls declare. Yes, the awards are suspended around necks of the young ladies, and next year perhaps the girls involved should be given them directly. Now, now, boys; this is not a complaint, but merely a suggestion.

General Smedley Butler may have betrayed a confidence in repeating what he heard Commodore Vanderbilt say about Mussolini. He may have violated a rule of the service in talking in pugilistic terms about a foreign dictator.

Singers are needed by the community chorus. "The Rose Maiden," which will be sung, is fairly easy, very melodious, and will have local solons. Why cannot there be 75 singers, instead of 25?

(By Herbert Plummer) WASHINGTON—Famed among his colleagues in the senate for his sarcasm, his sharp tongue, his cutting words is Thad Caraway of Arkansas.

Few relish engaging in verbal encounter with this gaunt, semi-bald southerner. He roams the floor, hands deep in his pockets, head almost buried in his shoulders most of the time the senate is in session.

Suddenly he will pause in his wanderings to interrupt a speaker. More than likely such an interruption will require only a few words, but those words usually hit with telling effect.

He speaks with a drawl (his southern accent probably is the most pronounced of any senator) that is calculated to infuriate when he so pleases.

Then, with the greatest indifference, he resumes his roaming. It is as if he cared the least of any one in the world as to what else might be said.

A New Caraway Caraway has become greatly aroused about conditions in his state at the present. He has been one of the most active in pushing relief measures for those agricultural sections of the country suffering as a result of the drought.

The other day he arose from his desk to make another plea that these people be given government aid to relieve suffering.

And it was a new Caraway—a Caraway unlike the one to whom senate observers are accustomed. He didn't roam around as usual. There was a tenderness in his voice.

He talked for a long time. He pleaded for the little children "that they might eat, that they might have just enough clothes to keep them from freezing."

He cited incident after incident of suffering. He was insistent that a federal appropriation for relief in such cases was nothing new.

Applause—In Cash At his side during the delivery of this speech sat a tall, mild-mannered, gray-haired man. Pencil moved fast back and forth across a notebook in his fingers.

Percy Budlong, veteran reporter of debates in the senate, was taking down Caraway's speech word for word. When the senator had finished, Budlong retired to the reporters' room to transcribe his shorthand notes for the Congressional Record.

In his hand was a check for $50. He handed it to Caraway with the simple statement: "For the people you described a moment ago, senator."

And Caraway was almost in tears when he told of the incident later in the democratic cloakroom.

NATIONS AND HUMANS

When Johnnie Jones speaks ill of Willie Smith, the back alley is usually the scene of the next act. Fistic battles have always been popular. In fact, small boys have a habit of objecting to a verbal apology. It spoils the show.

When one government makes a remark that isn't acceptable to another the same thing is likely to happen, with the high seas as the stage. Time was when one nation would have put cotton in its ears and shouldered its guns if another one wanted to apologize for some chance remark. But fortunately that is ending. Now that the art of courtesy is being practiced the art of war isn't so powerful.

The United States has made a formal apology to Italy for statements uttered by Major General Smedley D. Butler regarding Premier Mussolini. Mussolini, being very human, objected to some remarks of the United States marine corps officer. The United States, having a sense of justice and fitness which demanded that it do the chivalrous thing, sent deep regrets.

It never reflects on a nation, any more than it does on a man, to do the right thing, in all probability, because the United States government wasn't afraid to make atonement for the carelessness of one of its representatives.

It is true that this is the first instance, so far as the state department has been able to ascertain, where it has been necessary for us to apologize to another nation for statements made by a ranking officer.

AN UNFINISHED SYMPHONY!

THEATER NOTES

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK—Lynn Riggs, a poetic troubador from Oklahoma, emerges as one of this nation's most significant playwrights with his "Green Grow the Lilacs."

It offers a panorama of startlingly lyrical beauty as presented by the Theatre Guild, a pageant of folk life in the Indian Territory in 1900. It tells a simple story of a cowpuncher wooing a maid. The plot is crude, rustic, realistic—just as crude and realistic as life was in that era.

Riggs was introduced to the New York stage earlier this season with his "Roadside," a failure. Now in this second offering of his he reveals that he is all that this poems and earlier plays promised he would be. He knows his Oklahoma life, and he has the knack of transcribing the idiom of these pioneers accurately into the dialogue.

Interprets the Indian

Riggs has come as an interpreter of the folk life of the Indian Territory with as much force and artistry as O'Neill's pictures of New England folk life, and Paul Green's stories of southern rural communities.

Riggs is authentic, non-synthetic and anti-literary—and the exciting merits of "Green Grow the Lilacs" promise that he may become one of the immortals of the native stage.

The story tells of Curly McClain, a broncho buster, in love with Laura Williams (June Walker), who is turning her ranch into a farm. She has a demented hired hand, Jeter, who threatens vengeance if she does not accede to his courtship.

OF NEW BOOKS

By RICHARD MASSOCK

NEW YORK—Lou Tellegen loved and now he tells.

The amorous adventures of Sarah Bernhardt's leading man, as related through the burning pages of his memoirs, "Women Have Been Kind," make it a book to be locked up with Boccaccio and Casanova until the kiddies are grown up.

Women were both kind and generous to Handsome Lou, and he leaped to frequently and agilely from amour to amour that he came to call them "amourettes."

Lou Tellegen was born in Holland 47 years ago, the son of a Dutch dancer of Spanish descent, and a military genius who had lived a lot himself.

From the time Lou ran away to Russia at the age of 15 with papa's pretty friend until he married his fourth and current wife, Eve Casanova, life was a tempestuous adventure.

Versatile He peddled suppressed books in Russia, joined a troupe of actors in Germany, drove a hack in Brussels, went to Paris and was a model for Rodin's sculptures.

Next he went to Brazil to bury the sorrow of a bitter romance, fought, gambled and wandered alone in the infested wilderness, then returned to Paris on a promontion. He was right, as usual.

Sarah Bernhardt was looking for him to be her leading man on her farewell tour of America.

He met virtually everybody who mattered. Four of the women he met he married—Jeanne de Broutchere, Geraldine Farrar, Nina Ramona and Nina Casanova.

Science For Anybody After that, "The Science of Life," by H. C. Wells, Julian E. Huxley and G. P. Wells, sounds rather dull. It is anything but that.

In two massive volumes, the elder Wells has done for science what he did for another branch of learning in "The Outline of History." With biology by Huxley and further aid from his son, he has humanized accepted science from the study origin of life to human behavior and the mind.

About New York

(By Richard Massock)

NEW YORK—It wouldn't be New York without Harlem's number game, the form of lottery long based on daily clearing house figures and now on the three middle digits of the daily stock exchange transactions.

Tony's (THE TONY'S), where personages of Broadway imbibe. Gangsters eagerly darting into theaters to see gangster films.

(Incidentally, Edward G. Robinson, who habitually impersonates Al Capone for the talkies, is one of the mildest, most ingratiating actors of Broadway.)

The motor boat show, where even the lowliest landman may look at a yacht. (Again incidentally, song writers and crooners are customers for the more de luxe models, Jerome Kern and Will Oakland being but two of the musical boatmen.)

The street musician who plays an ocarina, or "musical sweet potato."

John Koleszar, a taciturn eastsider, who repairs all the cymbals played in the Hungarian restaurants, and also the tambouras. (A cymbalo is a sort of gypsy dulcimer, or piano, played by tapping the strings with hammers. A tamboura is a sort of lute.)

Girls who pose for the cigaret and hosiery ads, suddenly encountered in the neighborhood of Madison avenue and Sixtieth street, or on Broadway.

Currier & Ives prints in Fifth avenue art windows.

Insufficient Postage

It's little things that bother New Yorkers most of all. Like keeping the home stocked with postage stamps.

Unless you're a good customer, the corner druggist is less than cordial when he dispenses a dime's worth of stamps. And, besides, who ever thinks of buying stamps until after the letter is written?

The wife of a prominent theatrical producer recently was served an eviction notice by her landlord for eight months' non-payment of the apartment rent. She promptly sat down and wrote out a check for the overdue amount—$4,000—and gave it to the landlord.

She then explained that she hadn't mailed a monthly check because there seemed never to be a 2c stamp in the house.

Gaming Site

Variety reports that a one-time gambling flat of Dick Canfield's on West Forty-fourth street now is a two-bit hotel for actors who are down and just about out. They pay 25 cents a day for lodging there, and are more or less permanent residents.

From another source comes a further report on gambling sites. On the wooded banks of the Harlem river, says a householder of that neighborhood, there is a fenced enclosure where taxi drivers and other occasional idlers have an outdoor dice game.

The kneeling crapsshooters form a large square. On one side a sort of referee sits in an old arm-chair and settles any arguments. A look-out is perched in a nearby tree. The game is hottest on Sundays.

If a man bites a dog, that's boss.

Folks in Germany bought Christmas geese on the installment plan. Here's a goose-steppin' they'll cheer.

The acrobat's son turned out to be a disappointment. He couldn't even balance an equilibrium.

You don't have to be a connoisseur of painting to know when a woman has been too liberal with her "make-up."

Many a boy called a "chip off the old block" has grown up to be a congressman wise in the arts of log-rolling.

"We hope," as the Israelites said when the Egyptians were engulfed, "that this will tide you over for a while."

JUMPS FROM ROLE TO ROLE

Katharine Cornell... English roles best...

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. (AP)—Katharine Cornell may be an American girl from Buffalo, N. Y., but she prefers to play English heroines.

The first role to award her stardom was that of slightly declassé lady of English society, Irish March, in "The Green Hat." In "The Letter" she was an English wife isolated at a colonial post in the tropics.

In "The Age of Innocence" she did play an American heroine, a New York lady of the seventies. She returned to her British performances in "Dishonored Lady," the case of a murderess who poisoned her Cockney sweetheart.

Is English Heroine Miss Cornell now continues her favoritism for English heroines in her newest play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

In this she impersonates Elizabeth Barret, Browning. The part of Robert Browning will be played by Don Aherne, a young actor from London.

With this play, Miss Cornell becomes her own manager, and she hopes eventually to head her own repertory theatre.

Likes Independence "I have my own ideas about what I want to do on the stage in the future," she says, "and I know that I can carry out those plans so much better if I have full charge over my productions. That is why I'm becoming independent."

"I believe the theatre will profit if there is a return, to a certain extent, to the actor-manager plan that used to prevail in the days of Sir Henry Irving."

"This play about the Barretts and Brownings is my first independent presentation. In London it caused some controversy when members of the Barretts family protested that it did not present their ancestors in their true perspectives."

"I am producing the play over here without a single change from the original, and I don't think there will be much, if any, protest. It is, I am sure, an authentic picture of a very notable family."

Miss Cornell is married to Guthrie McClintic, stage and screen director. He always directs the plays in which she appears. They live quietly in an apartment on the banks of the East river, and are seldom seen in public.

Being Returns For Street Vendors PARIS, Feb. 7. (AP)—Beige, returning to the fashion background for a year, is staging a style comeback this spring.

Yellow and gray beige in light weight wools and crepes will be much worn for street and sports wear.

Women promise to be another heavy favorite in the spring color scheme. Venus de Milo is considered to have the most perfect perfection of bodily proportions to which the body could attain.

Trick Diets Decried By Nancy Earle As Harmful

The following "Charm Chat" is written by Nancy Earle, who will conduct the Pampa News-Post School of Health and Charm on Feb. 24-27, inclusive, in the city hall auditorium.

I suppose I am one or the very best friends that Venus de Milo ever had.

Venus, you know, is the loveliest lady an artist ever conceived in his imagination and brought into being in marble. Venus de Milo is considered to have the most perfect perfection of bodily proportions to which the body could attain.

But have you been to a museum lately? Or do you remember how this estimable lady looks?

Recall her hip girls. The circumference of her ankles. The generous bosom. The thigh. The column of throat. This is the universal ideal of beauty.

Then look at any current illustrated fashion plate. A few vertical lines loosely strung together. This is the current model of loveliness.

LITTLE STORIES OF Little Stars

Ginger Rogers

Ginger Rogers is from Missouri, but she reversed the procedure and went to Fort Worth to show Texans how to dance the Charleston.

That won her a place in vaudeville and eventually she reached the outskirts of Broadway. Two producers saw her and gave her a bit in their new musical comedy. She was a hit.

Next she went to the movies and played in "Young Man of Manhattan" and "The Sap from Syracuse." She is a read-hatred comedienne with a baby voice.

Now she has returned to the musical comedy stage as a star in "Gri-Gri."

DIETS

Which is right? Is Venus to yield the scepter to our measureless miasms of today and become a dowdy dowager? Is the Queen of Beauty to search out a comfortable niche by the chimney corner and spend the rest of her days knitting wrist warmers while there rules in her stead an elongated version of feminine anatomy who would rather perish than possess hips?

Venus embodies the true ideal of physical beauty. It may be true that her proportions are the least bit more generous than absolutely necessary for esthetic perfection. But I would not grant more than a "pound of flesh" margin, the merest fraction of diminishment in her measurements. And even this concession, I protest, is only to be polite!

And Venus must have been such a tremendously vital person! Such a radiant creature! So thoroughly alive!

So possessed of perfect health. How she must have strode the earth with springing, eager feet. How she must have breathed. And laughed. And how her eyes must have sparkled. And what a complexion.

So healthy. Not puny and stoop-shouldered and whining voiced and pasty skinned, and nervous and ill all most of the time.

The modern damsel destroys her health by the methods she pursues to keep thin. She either starves herself outright, or she subsists on trick diets which undermine her health and produce ill effects without end. Not only does she sacrifice her health, but she does it for a stupid purpose. The skeleton figure after which she yearns is not beautiful. And it costs so dearly in the coin of health.

Now excess fat is the enemy of health also. Surely excess fat is not beautiful. Surely we should not permit the graceful flowing curves of the figure to be deluged under a washing of folds of fat, or the well-being of the body to be menaced by the accumulation of fat.

Excess fat affects the circulation, the breathing, the function of the heart and the bodily welfare generally. It does another very ill-bred thing too. It crowds out the normal tissue of some of the vital organs and unconsciously takes their place. This is called fatty degeneration of the organ, and sometimes causes dire trouble.

We do want to get rid of those extra unneeded pounds. But let's do it scientifically. Doing it scientifically means doing it slowly, without subjecting the body to the shock of fasting or trick diets.

And let's remember that health, as well as beauty, requires that we do not in our reducing enthusiasm pare ourselves down to the mere shadow which the fashion plates would have us think ideal.

The quake toppled part of the high cliff into the sea, the town caught on fire, the water in the bay receded until the bottom was visible and then rushed back in a tidal wave. The map shows the location and also towns of Gisborne and Rotorua.

CHARM CHATS

by Nancy Earle

Noted Authority and Writer on Health, Charm and Beauty.

Did you ever come home at the end of a busy day, worn and weary and fagged, and clamber into a tub of warm open water and rest and rest and rest?

And then turn on the cold faucet and gradually feel the tingling invigoration of the cool and the cold? Is there anything more refreshing, more restful, more relaxing and paradoxically invigorating than a bath?

Any kind of bath. The splashy tub. The shampoo. The brushing of the teeth. The eye bath.

The eyes respond with just the same delight to their "daily plunge" as the rest of the body. They express that delight in a new brightness and a new liquid depth that makes them more beautiful.

The eye bath is good hygiene too. It should not be considered a corrective for extreme disorders of the eye, such as faulty vision or severe distress. But for tired eyes, and eyes that burn, eyes that are literally worn from dust and heat and extremes of light, the eye bath is delightful restorative.

But it must be a certain kind of eye bath. If you are seeking primarily to improve the appearance of the eyes, remember first of all that the brightest brightness comes from within. A perfectly healthy body signals its health by a dancing eye. Then, if its eye's beauty you are thinking about mostly, then say "No" positively to those preparations usually advertised as eye baths, which are drops to be put in the eyes. These preparations usually declare that they are beneficial to the eye. And also that they make the eyes more beautiful by imparting luster and depth.

But their claims to health help for the eyes is entirely unsubstantiated. And the manner in which they impart gleam to the eyes is at variance with the well-being of the eye. Most of them make a monstrous point of the fact that they do not contain belladonna. They usually do not contain camphor or sometimes argyrol. No "drops," medicated or not, should ever be put into the eyes except under the specific directions of a specialist. Be content with the old homey method of hot salt water or hot boric acid solution. Both these are excellent, and cannot under any conditions injure the eyes. And not at all incidentally, the eyes swim around in their little eye-cup-swimming-pool with the greatest joy, and come out fresh and gay and bright.

This is the way to do it. Place a good pinch of salt in a half tumbler of water. The water should be warm, a little warmer than body temperature. Then rinse the eye-cup in warm water, and fill it with the salt solution. Close the eye, bend the head over, and fill the eye into the eye socket gently. Raise the head—eye-cup and all—and open the eye. Twist and turn the eye, up and down and around, open and close it, so that every part of it enjoys the "plunge."

The boric acid wash is performed in exactly the same way. Place the boric acid (ask for the granulated kind; its much nicer to use) in the tumbler of warm water. There is no danger of getting too much. The water will take up just as much of the boric granules and the rest will fall to the bottom of the glass.

Every day isn't too often to use this type of eyebath. Or even twice a day if the eyes are subjected to heavy duty during the day, and if you want them to look especially lovely for the after dinner time.

Talks To Parents

A DIFFERENCE OF MANNER
By Alice Judson Peale
"It is time for John to go to bed."

Without preface mother seizes him and leads him off in the direction of his room.

There she peels off his clothes with the greatest possible speed. Taking him into the bathroom, she vigorously scrubs him and brushes his teeth.

This done, she pops him into bed, firmly tucks his blankets around him and the job is done.

With some children this method apparently may have no bad results, but most children actively resent being hustled about and manipulated as if they were either dumb animals or inanimate objects.

They like to feel a certain amount of freedom of action. They like to think that it is they who make decisions; that they direct themselves.

Suppose, instead of thus unmarily putting John to bed, his mother warns him ahead of time that he must soon go, thus giving him a chance to wind up his play.

Suppose that when the interval has passed, she gives him her hand in a manner which suggests that this is a cooperative enterprise, that going to bed is quite as much a matter of his own wish as hers. She lets him take off his clothing. She lets him run and fetch his own nightclothes, giving him time to put them on and fasten them up in his own laborious, childish way. She lets him wash himself, brush his own teeth, and when he gets into bed, she tucks him in not as if she were in a hurry to get rid of him, but as if it gave her pleasure thus to make him safe and cozy for the night.

The difference in the two proceedings is not perhaps only one of manner, but the child feels it keenly and responds accordingly.

Now as business blazes a new trail to prosperity

... we are pleased to serve as scouts and counsellors

... in clearing the path from doubts and dangers

... and providing co-operation in ways and means

... as safe conduct to a new El Dorado of Normalcy.

Pampa Has Marvelous Growth in Recent Years

THE following statistics just released by the Board of City Development and Chamber of Commerce speak in no uncertain words of the rapid growth of Pampa since 1924. What Pampa needs now to become a real city is the establishment of large industrial concerns with a permanent payroll. Located as we are, in the center of one of the world's largest natural gas fields, no place can you find a greater abundance of natural gas or a lower industrial gas rate. Observe the figures below and see for yourself that there is no city in America that has had a more substantial growth.

Pampa Theater Offerings Exceptionally Attractive All This Week

WILL ROGERS TO BE SHOWN IN "LIGHTNIN"

JUNE COLLYER IS ONE OF MANY STARS SEEN TODAY

The new theater week in Pampa opens today with unusually attractive programs—Will Rogers at the La Nora, June Collyer at the State, and Richard Dix at the Rex.

Rogers has a particular appeal at this time because of his tour in behalf of drought relief and jobless men. The Arkansas legislature wants congress to vote him a medal. Will's work in "They Had to See Paris" and "So This Is London" will be remembered. His new picture, "Lightnin'" has an all-moody slant, and lots of wisecracks. The film will be at the La Nora four days, starting today.

Other attractions at the La Nora this week will be Marilyn Miller in "Sunny" on Thursday and Friday, and "The Cat Creeps" on Saturday. Miss Miller plays the part of an English girl in a circus, who is loved by a wealthy young man and a circus performer at the same time.

A dastardly frank story is in "Damaged Love," which opens today at the State Theater. It tells of the home-wrecking consequences of a husband's "pleasant sins." Based on the stage play by Thomas W. Broadhurst, it draws much attention because of its lack of humbug and restraint in exposing what have been called "conventional infidelities." The brilliant cast includes June Collyer, Charles Starrett, Eloise Taylor, Charles Trowbridge, and Betty Gerde.

On Wednesday, the State theater will present "Ex-Flame," from the book by Mrs. Henry Wood. The movie cast includes outstanding stars as Neil Hamilton, Marian Nixon, Norman Kerry, Judith Baile, Roland Drew, Joan Standing, Max Beatty, and little Billie Hargerty. Billie is the newest baby star and a very appealing one. "Ex-Flame" is said to include all the pathos, drama, and humor that made thousands read the book from which it is taken.

"Western Bound," the State offering for Friday and Saturday, presents Buddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill, Jr. Today and Monday offer the last chance to see "With Byrd at the South Pole," the authentic story and pictures of the remarkable exploring trip. Floyd Gibbons, famous announcer, explains each scene in thrilling fashion.

"On a Broadway outside get away with murder?" This question is to be answered in "Scarlet Pages" at the Rex Tuesday and Wednesday. On Friday and Saturday this theater will show "A Devil With Three Faces," Victor McLaglen is the big star, and the cast is exceptionally well selected. There is a Spanish theme throughout. Saturday's movie will be "Captain Thunder."

Wedding at Sea SHOWN IN "SUNNY"

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD.—If movie audiences could be satisfied with mere photographed words, there would be much less work in pictures for men like Al Bosberg, one of the champion "story doctors" of the films. Aside from his own prolific writings for screen, stage and vaudeville, Bosberg has become recognized with a few others as a master of the "business" of pictures.

"That doesn't mean he's concerned with ledger books and cost sheets for his 'business' is not that kind. 'Business' is what makes movies move, give the camera motion instead of words to photograph.

The How and Why Many stories purchased for the screen simply relate that a certain character does something in a certain way, and so-and-so happens. The idea looks great on paper, but when the time comes to photograph the scene, something big is lacking.

The script may say, for illustration, that the star in his character as a factions young man proposes to his leading lady in "a novel manner." All very well, but what is the novel manner in which he shall propose? What does he say that is novel? That's something for the "story doctor" to invent.

Bosberg was awakened by the telephone at 3 o'clock one morning. He answered sleepily, to be told that "Haines is at the door, what'll we do with him?"

His first drowsy thought was that some one had gone suddenly insane. Then he realized that a belated story conference was on, and a knotty problem in a William Haines picture was stumping it.

"What 'business' should Haines use now that he was 'at the door'?" It was an important scene, and much depended on what Haines did.

What he did, according to Bosberg's solution, was not only entirely natural, but conveyed an emotional idea entirely through the camera's eye.

On another occasion recently, Bosberg received a long-distance call from Chicago. A playwright there was having trouble with a certain scene. It lacked "business." In a situation of that one call, Bosberg sketched a possible solution. It was done, and the film was a success.

JUDITH BARRIE IS LOVELY AS SIREN

Judith Barrie, who is fast establishing herself as one of the most talented as well as the loveliest siren of the screen, will appear in one of the principle roles in "Ex-Flame," the modern version of "East Lynne," as produced by Liberty Productions, which comes to the State theater Wednesday.

Miss Barrie is cast as the ex-flame of young Lord Austin, who maliciously causes the beginning of all the trouble between him and his lovely wife. She makes of Barbara Lane a very modern siren—a twentieth century modern, who, returning home after her own divorce, is plucked to find her old fiance, whom she considered her private property married to a very charming girl.

She is naturally malicious and takes delight in annoying both Austin and his wife, being more than a little put out when she discovers that he has really married her love. Her reaction in the climax of the story takes her from the stereotyped "vamp" into the realm of real people.

Miss Barrie demonstrated her ability as an actress in her first picture, "Party Girl." It is said that her performance in "Ex-Flame" cut-classes anything she has done so far, and bids fair to place her among the foremost screen temptresses.

Miss Barrie, besides being a clever actress, is noted for her beauty. She was a favorite model of James Montgomery Flagg, who introduced her to Edward Halperin, and so lost his model to pictures. She is a native of California, having been raised in Sacramento and educated at Miss Head's exclusive girl's school in Berkeley.

Neil Hamilton, Marian Nixon and Norman Kerry plus the production, which Victor Halperin directed.

One of the most beautiful and unusual weddings ever filmed and recorded at First National Studios. The wedding is one of the scenes in "Sunny," Marilyn Miller's starring production. It is a wedding on shipboard, on a great trans-Atlantic liner, Miss Miller and Joe Donahue being the principals. "Sunny" comes to the La Nora theatre on Thursday.

The scene, taking place in the ship's dancing salon, was participated in by five hundred people, including the smartest dressed of Hollywood's extras. All of the gowns were especially created by the famous fashion designer of film fashions at First National.

A wedding at sea is always performed by the captain, as it was in this case. A retired naval officer, versed in all the customs and traditions of the sea, played the role of the captain.

"LAUGH IT OFF, BILL!"

Will Rogers and J. M. Kerrigan in a scene from the Fox Movietone comedy drama, "Lightnin'," now showing at the La Nora theater.

CELEBRATED HUMORIST SURE HE'LL REACH CENTURY MARK

WILL ROGERS HAPPIEST MAN IN PARTY, HE SAYS

"I expect to live a hundred years," recently declared Will Rogers, internationally known wit, humorist and philosopher. "The secret of longevity is happiness and I'm the happiest man in the world at least the happiest in the democratic party."

"I have my health, a family of the right size, a good home and enough money to keep the much publicized wolf from the door. Besides this I don't worry. Worry kills more people than bootleggers. Reminds me of a story I heard recently."

"A motion picture employe, who was much given to fretting over trivial matters as well as bigger ones, meeting a friend, announced that he was through worrying. Nothing could make him stew, no matter what it was. 'How come?' asked the friend, 'you used to worry continuously.' 'Well, I've hired a professional worrier; he does all my worrying.' 'Something new, isn't it? How much do you have to pay him?' 'Well, that's the first thing he's got to worry about.'"

Rogers portrays the role of "Lightnin' Bill Jones" in "Lightnin'," Fox Movietone comedy drama, adapted from the Golden's tremendously successful stage play, which comes to the La Nora theatre today for a run of four days. Bill is lazy, friendly, genial and loquacious, especially when he has been indulging in drink. He is whimsical and tells some of the biggest lies ever heard, his imagination running riot when he is properly "fueled."

But Bill is "nobody's fool" and turns out to be the hero before the picture reaches its climax. ROGERS PORTRAYS THE ROLE OF "LIGHTNIN' BILL JONES" IN "LIGHTNIN'." FOX MOVIE-TONE COMEDY DRAMA, ADAPTED FROM THE GOLDEN'S TREMENDOUSLY SUCCESSFUL STAGE PLAY, WHICH COMES TO THE LA NORA THEATRE TODAY FOR A RUN OF FOUR DAYS.

Sterling to please tell him how old he is. He wishes 13 when freed so Gov. Sterling figured he ought to be 83 now.

JUNE COLLYER IS ATTRACTIVE IN VAMP ROLE

STATE THEATER WILL SHOW "DAMAGED LOVE"

June Collyer, who portrays the important role of "vamp" in "Damaged Love," the seasonally frank sex drama coming today to the State theatre, is a member of an old stage family. Although the charming young actress has confined her activities entirely to the screen—both silent and talking—she has, within the short space of not quite three years, risen to a place of prominence and promise in the film world. Fourteen pictures, nine of them silent, have claimed her services—and none of them has given her the unusual opportunities which she uses with such splendid results as in "Damaged Love."

Daq Collyer, June's grandfather, has carved a niche in the stage's hall of fame through his long association with the American stage. For 54 years he played throughout the United States, being identified with prominent roles of stage history. Collyer was an important member of the celebrated company which Harrigan and Hart had established, and rose to his greatest fame through parts with this historic company.

The talented grand-daughter of this skillful actor has appeared in such recent screen hits as "The Love Doctor," "Illusion," "River of Romance," and "Three Sisters." Her latest characterization, that of the stunning beauty in "Damaged Love" whose selfish desire for possession breaks a man's home, brings out new dramatic talents in this gifted player. The original play on which the talkie is based is the work of Thomas Broadhurst. Frederic and Fanny Hatton adapted it for the screen.

Other featured players in the picture include Charles Starrett, Betty Gerde, Eloise Taylor and Charles Trowbridge. Sono Art-World Wide are the distributors of the talkie.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. (AP)—Lace gowns of infantry blue gave a military note to the wedding of Miss Katherine M. Kingman, daughter of Lieut. Ralph Kingman, when she became the bride of Lieut. Frederick R. Weber, an infantry officer. The bridemaids were similarly attired in the blue dresses with bloused waists and crown jackets. They wore blue taffeta hats trimmed with blue orchid feathers. Fly With Byrd—Rex—Saturday.
