Memorial blood drive today

A blood drive to replace 60 pints of blood used in an attempt to save the life of Kip Craft, a Metropolitan Ambulance attendant, was to begin at 2 p.m. today at Highland General Hospital.

The blood donated will replace blood used by Craft, who died Nov. 10 of injuries he suffered in an automobile ambulance wreck on State Highway 60 on Nov. 8. The Coffee Memorial Blood Bank of Amarillo will disperse the donated blood to various hospitals in the Panhandle as needed, hospital officials said.

Potential donors can go to the Conference Room at Highland General Hospital. Hospital officials said signs will be posted throughout the hospital to guide donors to the conference room.

Blood bank officials said a pint of blood donated will insure the availability of all the blood needed by members of the donor's family. The blood donated acts as a type of blood insurance. The plan costs no more than a pint of blood per year, but guarantees 100 percent payment of any blood the donor, spouse or children might need.

There is no substitute for human blood. It cannot be purchased or artificially reproduced. It is a human resource which can only be donated by humans.

Persons aged 17 to 18 years old must have written permission to donate. No permit is necessary for anyone older than 18.

The United States uses an average of 18,000 pints of blood a day. The Coffee Memorial Blood Center uses more than 1,000 pints per month.

Divorced woman with teens needs Christmas assistance

A divorced woman living in Pampa is struggling to support four teen-aged children alone. She has provided for her family for the past several years by herself, but a recent illness has prevented her from working for the last two months. Because of the illness, she has lost her two jobs. Having no medical insurance, she is faced with several large doctor bills. She has applied for governmental assistance, but the application will not be completed until next January.

If you would like to help this family have a happy Christmas, send your donation to the Salvation Army, Box 1458, Pampa.

This family and others like it in our city will appreciate your contribution.

Population shifts south and west

WASHINGTON (AP) — The movement of Americans to the nation's south and west during the past 10 years is shown by preliminary population figures for 49 states.

The four states with the largest gains in population are Nevada, with a jump of 63.8 percent from 1970 to 1980, Arizona, with an increase of 52.9 percent, and Florida and Wyoming, with gains of 41.1 percent each.

The only two jurisdictions showing population losses were Rhode Island and the District of Columbia, according to the figures released Tuesday by the Census Bureau.

California stays the most populous state, with a 1980 count of 23,510,372, reflecting an increase of 17.7 percent from 1970.

The figures are subject to minor adjustments but are expected to be very close to the final figures for the states. Numbers for New York were not released because the head count, delayed by a fire in a census office, is still in progress.

Bureau officials say they expect the final national count to total 226 million people. The 49 states reported so far total nearly 208 million.

Census Director Vincent P. Barabba said last week that the population changes likely will result in 16 seats in the House of Representatives changing from one state to another.

Without New York's totals the movement of all the seats cannot yet be calculated, but bureau officials have estimated how 14 of them will change.

Florida is expected to gain three seats with California and Texas to pick up two each. Gaining one seat will be Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah and Washington.

New York is expected to lose four seats. Losing two each would be Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, and losing one would be Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and South Dakota.

Haig takes firm Soviet stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig, named by President-elect Ronald Reagan to be the new secretary of state, says the United States must exercise firm but pragmatic world leadership and "cannot recoil from challenging blatant, illegal Soviet intervention wherever it occurs."

Haig, a former NATO commander-in-chief and Richard M. Nixon's last White House chief of staff, comes to his new post after years of experience involved with issues closely tied to U.S. foreign policy.

He has been outspoken in urging increased defense spending and other steps by the United States and its allies to deal with the "relentless growth" of Soviet military strength and Moscow's increased activity in the Third World.

"Clearly, the task ahead for this vital decade before us will be the management of global Soviet power," Haig declared last summer at the Republican National Convention.

He charged that the Carter administration's "incoherent, inconsistent policies" had confused

America's allies and led to "higher levels of risk-taking" by the Kremlin.

Here is a sampling of his views:

East-West Competition

Haig says Soviet "proxy interventions" in Angola, Ethiopia and South Yemen as well in Afghanistan have demonstrated the failure of U.S. policies that sought to combine detente with the maintenance of basic Western security.

In his speech at the GOP convention, Haig called for "a new twin pillar policy involving reciprocity and strength."

He cautioned that a Reagan administration "must avoid viewing every setback on the international horizon as the direct consequence of Soviet duplicity." But, he said, America "cannot recoil from challenging blatant, illegal Soviet intervention wherever it occurs."

NATO

According to Haig, the United States needs to provide

"assertive but sensitive leadership" within NATO.

"Free of bullying insensitivity, Washington must inspire, persuade, urge and cajole the other NATO nations to make the hard decisions that will undoubtedly be required" to cope with Soviet power, Haig wrote in a study recently published by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies.

He called for strengthening the alliance's conventional and tactical nuclear forces, as well as more active involvement by major Western European countries in defending the oil-rich Persian Gulf region.

Human Rights

Haig told the GOP convention: "America must be the vanguard of the search for social justice not only here at home but globally as well."

But he criticized "policies under the rubric of human rights which have the practical consequence of driving authoritarian regimes, traditionally friendly to the West, into totalitarian models where they will remain in a state of permanent animosity to the American people and our interests."

Reaction to Haig appointment mixed

LONDON (AP) — Britain, Japan, Israel and Egypt welcomed the appointment of retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig as Secretary of State while immediate reaction from other Western allies and the Soviet Bloc was subdued. The appointment drew mixed comment in today's British press.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington offered a warm welcome to Haig. Other British government officials said they expected Haig to take a firm stand in dealing with the Soviet Union. The officials, who asked not to be quoted by name, noted that would coincide with the policies of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who is expected to visit Washington shortly after the Jan. 20 inauguration of President-elect Ronald Reagan.

under whom Haig will serve.

The London Times spoke of the "shadows" overhanging Haig because of his association with Nixon.

In Tokyo, a Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman said Japan welcomed the appointment.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem called the appointment "a positive step" and said it was sending Haig a congratulatory telegram. The English-language Jerusalem Post newspaper quoted Haig as calling Israel "NATO's southern flank."

Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali told reporters in Cairo that Haig's appointment would have a "good effect on military and political cooperation" between Washington and Cairo and "will make the Middle East the center of interest in U.S. foreign policy."

In Moscow, where Haig has been denounced as a "witch doctor" for his role as NATO supreme commander, announcement of his appointment Tuesday was reported in a one-paragraph dispatch without comment by the Soviet news agency Tass.

China also reported his appointment and included a few details of Haig's background.

The Yugoslavian government news agency in Belgrade commented that Haig could be expected to take the lead in forming a foreign policy that is "firmer and decisive, particularly toward the Soviet Union."

Reagan still plans minorities on Cabinet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he still thinks he can find women and minorities to include in the list of "right people" he will name to his Cabinet.

The first 10 Cabinet-level posts the president-elect has announced have gone to white men, including two announced Tuesday: retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. for secretary of state and New Jersey construction executive Raymond Donovan for labor secretary.

"Don't keep score until the whole thing is in," Reagan told reporters here when asked if he planned to appoint women or minorities to the remaining five Cabinet-level jobs. "Let me say there's no plot to rule them out."

Reagan, who spoke briefly to reporters between getting a haircut and being fitted for his inaugural clothes, said of the first 10 Cabinet selections being white men: "It just happened that it fell this way in getting them cleared (by the FBI) and so forth."

Officials of Reagan's transition team have expressed a keen desire to find women and minorities for the Cabinet, but are frustrated at finding people the officials feel are both qualified and politically compatible with Reagan.

Sources on the transition team also say there has been a debate over whether a minority Cabinet member should be a black or a Hispanic.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said some transition officials have argued that Hispanics voted for Reagan in far greater numbers than blacks, who overwhelmingly supported President Carter in November, and that Reagan thus should find a Hispanic to appeal to his political constituency among minorities.

The lines in that debate appear to have been drawn over the selection of a secretary of housing and urban development.

Jewel Lafontant, a black woman who served in the Justice Department during the Nixon administration, had been mentioned as a prominent candidate for HUD. But one transition source said Tuesday that her chances seem to be receding and that the job now might go to Philip Sanchez, an ex-ambassador and former head of the now-defunct Office of Economic Opportunity during the Nixon years.

Other minority candidates said to have been under consideration for the Cabinet have included Thomas Sowell, an economist now expected to go to the Council of Economic Advisors, and former Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman, who had been looked at for the Energy Department post but who reportedly expressed disinterest.

Reagan's efforts to include women in his Cabinet were dealt a serious setback when one strong prospect, former Ambassador to Britain Anne Armstrong, said she did not want to serve in the Cabinet.

Another woman under consideration, labor lawyer Betty S. Murphy, was passed over Tuesday when Donovan was appointed. Mrs. Murphy had been considered a strong contender for the Labor Department job and was pushed vigorously by the Teamsters union and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who will become chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

Polish peaceful at workers monument

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Polish workers heeded the appeals of union, church and Communist Party leaders and kept the peace at the dedication of a monument to workers killed by the Polish army and police 10 years ago.

The workers stood in gusting winds and freezing rain for the dedication Tuesday night outside the Lenin Shipyard in the Baltic port of Gdansk. Some 5,500 men in yellow hardhats policed the crowd and checked the identities of everyone entering the barriers they built of scaffolding pipes.

President Henryk Jablonski led other other government officials, relatives of the slain workers and representatives of Solidarity, Poland's biggest independent union, in laying flowers at the base of the floodlit monument — three 130-foot steel crosses with sculpted anchors spiked to their arms.

Mindful of the threat of Soviet intervention, leaders of the independent labor movement, the Roman Catholic Church and the Communist Party all appealed for calm and national unity.

Solidarity's leader Lech Walesa quoted a recent pastoral letter from the Polish bishops that said: "It is not permissible to undertake any action that would expose our motherland to the danger of a threat to freedom and statehood." Then in his own words he called on his countrymen "to stay alert in defense of security and preservation of sovereignty of our motherland" and "to be careful and responsible in the name of our country."

But as he lit a memorial flame, Walesa said the monument was a "warning to those who govern. This monument explains the idea that there is no way to solve conflicts by using force."

Gdansk party leader Tadeusz Fiszbach followed Walesa to the simple wooden podium built by the shipyard workers and emphasized the theme of unity. He called the killing of 45 or more workers in Baltic cities during the December 1970 food price riots "a tragic moment of our history" that "cannot separate us but must unite us."

Fiszbach said the party had taken "the way of agreement" in allowing the creation of unions free of its control after the nationwide strike wave last summer led by the Gdansk shipyard workers.

A message was also read from Polish-born Pope John Paul II, who called on the crowd to remember the workers killed in 1970 and "thank the Lord" the strikes last summer did not end the same way.

At least three workers were killed by Polish troops near the monument site during the 1970 riots, which like the strike wave last summer were touched off by drastic government increases in food prices. The official toll in Gdansk, Gdynia and Szczecin was 45 dead, but some sources said the total was much higher.

School coffers fuller than normal by half million

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

The coffers of the Pampa Independent School District were found to be fuller than normal by a half million dollars, according to an audit report submitted by Nensiel and Doggett, auditors for the school district.

J. G. Doggett, of the accounting firm, pointed out the "extraordinary income" to the Pampa Board of Education at its regular meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

A total income of $8,006,137 was reported to have been received by the school district during the 1979-1980 fiscal year, ending Aug. 31. The income for the 1978-1979 fiscal year totaled $6,837,083, according to the audit.

Doggett said a comparison of receipts received in 1979's fiscal year and 1980's showed an increase of $1,169,053. More than $500,000 of the increase was due to funds not normally received by the school district in one fiscal year, he said.

A donation by Gray County from County Available Funds contributed to $481,000 of the total. This money came from the leases and sale of bonds which the county contributed to the school district, Doggett said.

Funds from the county usually average from $8,000 to $9,000 each year, the auditor added.

Also, $20,000 was received as donations to the large bus recently purchased by the school, Doggett said.

Other money came from the ending of a school program in which students were building houses, he said. Doggett said this amounted to $23,575 of the total that had been transferred from building trade funds to the operating account.

The total "extraordinary" increase was about $525,000, Doggett said.

The actual normal increase in revenue was about $640,000 to $650,000, the auditor added.

Pampa ISD spent $792,000 for operation expenses in 1980, Doggett reported. A comparison in expenditures revealed the school district spent $342,227 more than they did in 1979.

Doggett attributed $647,000 of the total amount to a salary and insurance increase for employees. Contracts, materials and supplies amounted to $57,848, he added. An increase in utilities and telephone rates, plus a 10 to 11 percent inflation hike also contributed to operating expenses, Doggett said.

According to the audit, submitted to board members on Dec. 8, the comparison with the official school budget for 1979-80 with actual expenditures showed the district was in the black by more than $57,000.

Doggett said the 1979 tax roll showed collection rate was at nearly 96 percent. "That is a good collection rate on taxes," he commented.

The report stated net valuations for the 1979 tax roll amounted to more than $245,495,383 — an increase of $14 million over 1978 valuations. Total taxes assessed for 1979 was $3,682,430, the report said.

Doggett said, "The books were in good condition. We had no trouble reconciling everything."

A three-year audit on the Title I reading program was also presented by Doggett to board members at Tuesday's meeting.

According to the audit, the records of the Title I funds were in good condition. No noncompliance findings or misspent funds were found, the report stated.

The regular Title I project, as of Sept. 5, had a total balance of $132 which was refunded to the Texas Education Agency. Part B of the project had a balance of $184, which was refunded to the education agency on Sept. 4, according to the audit.

Following the auditor's reports, board members voted unanimously to accept the 1979-1980 audit of the school district.

A total expenditure of $94,861 on the regular program was reported for the 39-month audit period, according to the report. Funds spent on the Part B portion totaled $6,072.

Funding for the program was provided by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title I.

Funds for the elementary and secondary special reading program matured during the last year, Doggett said. As required by state law, the use of the funds were audited, he said.

Nensiel and Doggett were approved as the auditing firm for 1980-81 by a unanimous decision of the board. In the agreement, it was determined he firm's fee will be $5,000.

After a closed personnel session, the board reconvened and accepted the following resignations and leaves of absence:

William L. Groves, fifth grade, Travis Elementary — effective Dec. 19.

Mary Gandy, history, Pampa Middle School — effective Jan. 24.

Vicki Schaffner, kindergarten, Auslin Elementary — effective Dec. 19.

Jeannie Koch, fourth grade, Wilson Elementary — leave of absence effective Jan. 24.

Sandra Lindsey, fourth grade, Austin Elementary — leave of absence effective Jan. 16.

The following teachers were hired by the board of education Tuesday:

Jan Seitz, kindergarten, Austin Elementary.

Betty Cain, history, Pampa Middle School.

Marsha Dunham, fourth grade, Austin elementary.

School board members heard a budget report by Jerry Haralson, business manager. Haralson reported a $9,000 contribution to the district funds from Gray County available funds.

The board also accepted the school calendar for the 1980-1981 school year, before the meeting adjourned.

Board members present at the meeting were Darville Orr, Paul Simmons, Kenneth Fields, Curt Beck, Buddy Epperson, Dr. Robert Lyle and Phil Vanderpool.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
The calendar may say it's only a few days until the first day of winter, but it's hard to realize it in Texas.
Forecasts called for clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures statewide today. Highs were to be in the 70s over the northern portion of the state and in the 80s in southern portions.
Clear skies and mild temperatures were reported around the state early today. Temperatures ranged from the low 30s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the mid 50s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and along the coast. Extremes ranged from 30 at Marfa to 55 at McAllen.

National weather

Thick clouds of fog swept over much of Washington and Oregon, disrupting air travel at airports in Seattle, Portland and Spokane.
Foggy conditions were expected to begin breaking up later today, forecasters said.
The weather held up air mail shipments, and the Postal Service in Spokane sent a load of Christmas mail by truck to Seattle Tuesday night.
The weather inversion that created the fog also trapped pollutants, and an air pollution alert was issued for parts of Oregon by the state Department of Environmental Quality. The department asked people to curtail driving and stop using fireplaces and wood stoves.
People with respiratory problems were advised to stay indoors.
Up to 9 inches of snow fell in northeastern Massachusetts on Tuesday, giving thousands of schoolchildren a one-day holiday. The snowfall snarled traffic in many parts of the state, but no serious accidents were reported.

Judge will probe jury for Veverka verdict

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A federal judge says he will issue a special "dynamite charge" today, hoping to probe jurors into a decision on their third day of deliberations in the controversial civil rights trial of former Florida policeman Charles Veverka Jr.
U.S. District Judge William Hoelver of Miami said he would give the so-called "Allen Charge" - explaining the time and expense necessary to re-try the case - when the jurors returned today. The panel has deliberated more than 11 hours without a verdict in the politically explosive trial.
"I'll tell you, gentlemen, the one thing I don't want out of this case is a hung jury," Hoelver told both prosecution and defense attorneys as deliberations appeared to drag Monday.
Today is the first anniversary of the Dec. 17, 1979, police beating of Arthur McDuffie, a 33-year-old black Miami insurance executive. McDuffie's Dec. 21 death from massive head injuries led to the charges against Veverka.
Veverka, 30, testified against former officers in a state trial last spring in Tampa, Fla. After a jury acquitted four officers last May, a race riot erupted in Miami. Eighteen people died in the violence.
A former 6 1/2-year veteran of the Dade County police force, Veverka was charged with conspiracy and being an accessory after the fact in the beating and subsequent cover-up. He could receive maximum punishment of 26 years imprisonment and $21,500 in fines.
Government witnesses said McDuffie was fatally beaten at the end of a chase, which started after the victim allegedly revved his motorcycle engine before taking off from a stop light. They said the beating was made to look like a motorcycle accident.
Hoelver recessed the six men and six women at 6 p.m. CST Tuesday after they spent nine continuous hours together. The jury deliberated more than two hours on Monday after hearing three hours of final arguments and Hoelver's 73 pages of instructions.
Jury foreman Pat McNamara, sales manager of an electronics firm, sent two notes during the deliberations Tuesday, one asking whether the vote had to be unanimous on all four counts of the federal indictment and another asking whether the vote had to be taken by secret ballot.
In response to a question from Hoelver late Tuesday, McNamara said the jurors - one black, five Mexican-Americans and six Anglos - had been unanimous in a verdict on one count at one point.

But McNamara added that there had been "a change, so we have not reached a verdict on any count."
When jurors were brought into open court Tuesday, the only black panelist, schoolteacher Marjorie S. Stillwell, asked for clarification of the word "willfully."
Hoelver later sent a note listing six pages for the jurors to re-read in his lengthy instructions about willfulness and intent.
The government's key evidence against Veverka was a sworn statement he made in Miami on Dec. 26, 1979, admitting he falsified six police reports to make McDuffie's death look like a traffic mishap. He admitted in the statement he watched "six to eight" other Dade County officers beat McDuffie unchained with flashlights and night sticks.
Veverka was granted immunity from prosecution on the state charges in exchange for his testimony against colleagues in the Florida trial.

Child's story only evidence

Baker released from Amarillo jail

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Floyd Baker is homeless, jobless and free from jail for the first time this month.
He left the Potter County jail Tuesday bitter and angry with the news media and with the sheriff's office that charged him with the brutal slaying of his wife.
State District Judge George Dowlen ordered Baker's release after deputies testified they had no physical evidence linking him with the slaying.
Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis said the charge against Baker would be dropped today.
"The most important thing is to get my kids back. To get some kind of life re-established and get them over the loss of their mother," said Baker.
Authorities found the dismembered head and lower torso of Linda Sue Baker, 33, at an Amarillo wrecking yard on Dec. 1. Baker was jailed the same day and charged with the slaying four days later.
Child welfare officials took custody of the couple's children, 7-year-old Monty and 5-year-old David Baker following an emergency hearing on Dec. 3. A hearing for permanent custody will be held in early January.
A Potter Grand jury took no action against Baker when it considered the case last Thursday. And Curtis said the case will not be presented grand jurors again unless new evidence is developed.
Baker, who said he lost his job and was evicted from his home because of the charge, lashed out at the news media Tuesday for its coverage of the sensational case. Baker also accused the sheriff's office of psychologically abusing him during his 15-day stay in jail.
"I don't believe it is fair to ever convict somebody the first day in the news media. There's only one side being presented. It's not right. It's not fair," said Baker.
Sheriff's deputies testified Tuesday that the only evidence linking Baker with his wife's slaying was a statement from the couple's 7-year-old son.
Deputy Carl Haidle testified during an earlier hearing that the boy told authorities he saw his father kick his mother, beat her with a hammer and then cut her up.
Baker contended his son developed his story after listening to detectives talking about the case.
"I think most children have pretty vivid imaginations and they have been hearing different things from different people. I'm sure they overheard some of the conversations" of the detectives, said Baker.
He said he last saw his wife when he put her to bed Nov. 16. He said she was gone the next morning and he reported her missing.
"I loved my wife very much," said Baker.

The European welfare state at the crossroads

By Melynn B. Krauss

What has gone wrong with the European welfare state? For more than two decades after the Second World War, this apparent ability to combine superior economic performance with extensive social welfare programs made it a model for the world. Then, suddenly, the welfare-state economies went from riches to rags in the 1970s. The malevolent trio of low savings, productivity, and growth teamed up with high inflation to disable welfare economies. Some, like Norway and Holland, may be rescued by North Sea oil. But others, like Sweden, are not so fortunate.

One reason is that in the 1970s the European welfare state passed into an entirely new phase. If the 1950s and 1960s can be called the time of the "conservative welfare state," to use Irving Kristol's term, the 1970s were the time of the "egalitarian welfare state." The conservative welfare state had moderate taxation, a small underground economy and political leadership that understood the importance of production to restrain costly welfare programs.

Capitalism and relatively free markets produced the mass of wealth upon which the modern welfare state is built. Being closer in time to the capitalistic era, the leaders of the conservative welfare state were mindful of this fact. And even if they were not free marketeers, they knew a healthy economic base was critical to the welfare state's survival.

In the 1980s the European welfare state is at the crossroads. There can be no doubt that social democracy is in serious trouble, because people in the welfare state are confused. Although they want higher and higher levels of public services and expenditure, they do not want to pay more taxes and reduce public spending.

Poor political leadership can be blamed for this. Welfare state politicians try to shrug off greater expenditure costs by appealing to groups which benefit from the public services that others will pay. Naturally, more is demanded when the price appears to be zero. Welfare-state politicians have been selling free lunches rather than hard choices to the public.

When the politician cannot deliver the free lunch, the public tries to take it on its own. After voting for higher public services, they try to shift costs onto their neighbors by evading taxes in the black market. Here, private and social moral values sharply conflict. Private morals condone tax cheating, but social morals condemn it.

The moral dilemma of today's welfare state is that most citizens are cheating on their taxes while society's authorities severely criticize them for doing so. Over time, society becomes demoralized.

The social democracies are locked into a self-defeating economic system. Rising public expenditures cannot be stopped, so higher taxes with incentive and income transfer effects undercut the economic base upon which the welfare state depends. The faltering economy, in turn, induces more public spending to solve the problem, and so on. The only factor that can be expected to keep this wealth-destroying system afloat is North Sea oil.

A society that is confused, demoralized, and economically fragile is a vulnerable one. The essential question for the 1980s is whether the countries of Northern Europe can retrench, restore economic incentives to their rightful place, and rebuild the "conservative welfare state." Strong political elements in today's welfare state are working for this solution. But it remains to be seen whether these factions can dominate the left.

The Social Democratic Party, on the other hand, wants to move the welfare state in the direction of collectivizing production ownership and management. The Social Democrats favor "economic democracy," whereby all parties—not just the owners—make critical decisions in the firm. Economic democracy is simply a euphemism for collectivization of the firm's management function. The latest Meidner Plan of the Swedish Social Democratic Party would go further and give the trade unions eventual ownership of Sweden's major industries. If the Social Democrats prevail, the welfare state will have proved in retrospect to be merely a halfway house on the road from capitalism to socialism.

With public expenditures and the black market economy growing in tandem in the welfare state, it seems that business as usual prevails in Northern Europe. Unlike the United Kingdom, the crisis point in Holland and Scandinavia apparently has not been reached, although the general strike in Sweden in May 1980 may indicate that it is soon approaching. The egalitarian welfare state has created problems which only additional infusion of North Sea oil can prevent. It is to be hoped that nature's respite will be used by advocates of the conservative welfare state to prevail over the socialists.

Community endeavor earning ambulance funds

In Presidio, a West Texas town of 1,600 near the Mexican border, a young accident victim died because the nearest ambulance was in the county seat of Marfa, 60 miles away. Townspeople decided they needed their own ambulance.

Did they apply for a federal grant? Did they demand that their state legislator agitate for funds from the state government? Did they start a petition to get the county government to provide ambulance service?

No. They did something that may seem strange to some people. They started to raise money for an ambulance from among themselves, through voluntary contributions. They put collection cans in stores, raffled off a painting, held a rodeo, went door-to-door collecting money. Within two months they had raised $15,000 toward a goal of $20,000 to get a vehicle and the medical equipment needed to outfit it as an ambulance.

$20,000 seemed like a lot for a town of 1,600. But they're close to their goal, and it looks like they're going to reach it. They've done it themselves. Consider, for a moment, how long it might have taken if they had gone through government channels to get a grant from some agency, federal, state or local.

A touching story, some may say, but one that could only happen in a small town. That kind of voluntarism doesn't work any more in the large metropolitan and suburban areas where most of us live.

We're not persuaded of that. Perhaps voluntary action is downgraded in value because it hasn't been tried lately. Maybe we've become so inured to the idea that you have to go through channels, cutting your way through layers of bureaucracy and paper shuffling, waiting for the buck to be passed to another level, that we become anesthetized, assuming that delay and exorbitant expense are inevitable—the way things are and the way they always have to be. We're inclined to forget just what is possible when we go ahead and do it ourselves.

Whether their action has such lofty implications or not, we do congratulate the people of Presidio for going ahead and dealing with their needs themselves and showing that the spirit of voluntary cooperation isn't dead yet.

Fraud plagues public programs

The FBI is now getting into the business of exposing fraud and scandal in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. According to news stories, the fraud is costing taxpayers as much as $700 million each year. The cost may well be higher.

There are many ways to defraud the Medicare system. The most common is to bill doctors for laboratory work that is either unnecessary or never done. The doctors pass the bills along to the system, receive the reimbursements and pocket the money. In some cases, labs apparently offer doctor kickbacks for referring Medicare lab work or generating phony billings.

This is only the latest in a series of scandals that have afflicted the Medicare system. Independent investigators for the Better Government Association and various news media have documented wide-spread fraud in Chicago. Now the FBI has announced a nationwide campaign to crack down on abuses. It makes one wonder whether there is something about Medicare that invites abuse.

It seems to us that there is an inherent flaw in Medicare and other publicly funded programs. The problem is that they are dealing with tax money. Since the money that funds Medicare is "everybody's money" it means that in terms of responsibility for spending it wisely, it's the same thing as being "nobody's money" or even "free money." In fact, the incentives for judicious use of the money are all wrong.

Bureaucrats who administer programs don't often gain increased prestige, power or respect from frugal penny-pinching. They are not working with their own money, and they're not working to make a profit. For some, the satisfaction of a job well-done, a bureau tightly administered, will provide them enough "psychic profit" to encourage frugality. But for most, the promotions, prestige and respect come as the bureaus grow in size, number of employees and amount of money distributed.

This doesn't mean that bureaucracies consciously encourage waste and fraud in the programs they administer. But it does mean they have precious few real incentives to control waste as carefully as most taxpayers would like them to. It does mean that we can't count on internal self-policing by bureaucracies to control waste. It does mean that expenditures and payments which most taxpayers would view as clearly wasteful will be viewed as normal and necessary within the bureaucracy.

This problem of having the incentives all wrong is one reason government services almost always cost more than the same or similar services provided by private or profit-seeking entrepreneurs. It's one of the reasons we don't know whether to laugh or cry when somebody suggests that we cure the rising cost of medical services with some form of government-administered national health

'NOW, NOW, NOW, MR. PITNEY, IS THAT ANYWAY TO ACT?... MR. PITNEY?'

The next administration and crime

By Paul Farley

Our national epidemic of crime is nowhere more apparent than in Miami.

There the huge uninvited influx of Cubans has compounded the dangers. One city commissioner concedes that "Miami police have lost control of the streets."

The first states confirmed for Reagan in the recent election were Indiana and Florida. In both, the decisive revolt against the incumbent was apparent in the high crime cities.

When a president is voted out of office, the election reflects a rejection of the status quo.

Now what is any new administration going to be able to do about this number-one concern of the American electorate—crime?

Crime was increasing in our nation the first quarter of the year at a rate of nine percent over the year previous. The second quarter the increase was 11 percent. When the entire year is tallied, the increase will almost certainly be the greatest in our nation's history. The one factor most responsible is the increased use of narcotics and related crime.

The second factor—and it is related—is the influx of illegal immigrants.

Fay and Harold Burns—in their 60s—expected to enjoy their declining years in a modest apartment in Miami. But the newcomers from Cuba and Haiti brought with them such an acceleration of muggings and rapes and burglaries that the Burns dare not even stroll the beach anymore.

"It's terrible to be afraid all the time," says Mrs. Burns.

So they will be moving away; they're not sure to where.

Miami's Police Chief Ken Harms publicly emphasizes that "most of the 80,000 Cuban refugees who have settled in Miami are good citizens."

But privately before his city commission, the chief says, "The increase in crime is directly attributable to the increase in the refugee population."

And the figures for Miami and Miami Beach, where the refugees concentrate, proves his point.

Homicides in Miami are running more than double the rate of a year ago, robbery up 124 percent.

In Miami Beach rape is up 400 percent. Where our country's early immigrant population brought along skills and energies and ambition which contributed to our nation's dynamism, today's illegals are more likely to bring with them a high incidence of disease, an appetite for drugs and an addiction to welfare.

The problem is not unfamiliar to Californian Reagan: what do you suggest he should do?

Babies die, diplomats debate

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Insensitive U.S. diplomats and an intransigent Swiss corporation are undermining a United Nations effort to abolish worldwide abuses in the promoting, advertising and marketing of infant formula.

At issue are the aggressive, uncontrolled and often misleading sales techniques of an infant-formula industry whose gross annual revenues now approach $2 billion.

Approximately half of those sales are made in the Third World nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America, where sanitation levels and consumer awareness often are abysmally low while poverty and illiteracy can be exceptionally high.

In those countries, there are an estimated 10 million cases every year of infant malnutrition, disease and death due to improperly sterilized bottles, inability to follow printed instructions for formula use and similar causes.

In many cases, company-paid "milk nurses" free samples distributed by health professionals and hard-sell advertising induce the parents of newborns to abandon breast feeding, only to discover that they're irrevocably committed to buying an expensive product that's inferior to mother's milk.

Although a number of U.S. companies—including American Home Products, Abbott Laboratories and Bristol-Myers—sell infant formula around the globe, the dominant firm is the Nestle Alimentana Co., based in Vevey, Switzerland.

Nestle doesn't sell formula in this country, but the multinational corporation does distribute candy bars, tea and coffee here under its own name as well as Stouffer frozen foods, Beringer Brothers wine, Libby, McNeill and Libby canned foods and scores of other consumer items.

After years of protests about industry marketing practices from church, consumer and citizen groups, the World Health Organization and UNICEF, both United Nations organizations, convened a 1979 Geneva meeting on the issue.

Nestle, which accounts for approximately half of all industry sales, said prior to the meeting that it "fully supports the WHO-UNICEF conference and will abide by any uniform (marketing) guidelines that the conference proposes..."

The conference endorsed a series of sweeping proposals, then forwarded its recommendations to the World Health Assembly, which holds annual meetings.

Although the U.S. delegation at this year's meeting was generally sympathetic to the WHO-UNICEF goals, it was ordered by State Department officials in Washington to attempt to weaken crucial conference recommendations.

"Chances of our getting the desired changes are virtually zero," the delegation at the meeting last May warned foreign-service officials in a cable that said there was "absolutely no support" among other nations' delegations and that "our tactic is interpreted as a device to delay progress... (and) to protect multinational corporations."

After that meeting had concluded, one State Department official said in an internal memo: "I fear that United States credibility in this matter has now been dealt a severe blow by the unilateral action taken... to pursue a hard line."

The proposed code, to be considered again at next year's World Health Assembly, does include a shift in emphasis away from a mandatory international code of conduct for promoting infant formula in favor of a voluntary code with restrictions and sanctions imposed only by individual governments.

But that revision didn't satisfy the producers, who speak through a Nestle-dominated trade association, the International Council of Infant Food Industries.

If United Nations officials reject the industry's interpretation of the language of the code drafted at the WHO-UNICEF meeting, warns one ICIFI document, "then they cannot expect ICIFI to agree with the code."

In other words, ICIFI, Nestle and the rest of the industry will continue to participate only if the game is played according to their rules.

Patient anxiety target for 'bedside manner' classes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two doctors at Children's Hospital, convinced that modern medicine could use a dose of old-fashioned warmth and sensitivity, are studying their colleagues' bedside manners.

The job of the doctor goes beyond simply seeing if all of the organs are functioning properly. Dr. Gordon Hodas, a child psychiatrist, said. "There's a need for a personal touch, a need to treat the whole person, to understand what really makes people tick."

Hodas and Dr. Paul Honig, a pediatrician, have received a 2½-year, $78,328 grant from the William Penn Foundation to teach "interpersonal skills" to first-year residents, hoping to reduce patient anxiety.

The residents are videotaped in the hospital's Outpatient

Clinic as they take medical histories and examine young patients in the presence of one or both parents. The tape is reviewed and critiqued, with Hodas and Honig later pointing out strengths and weaknesses to the resident pediatricians.

"No, you can't teach empathy. It has to be there," Honig said. "But if it's there you can teach people to make maximum use of it, to spread around personal warmth and understanding."

The residents and the parents of the patients know about the experiment, and a television camera is quite visible in a corner of the examination room. Honig and Hodas watch a TV monitor in a room down the hall.

The subject the other day was Bob Ross, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. Sallie Johnson had brought her 2-week-old daughter, Quetta, for her first physical.

The camera rolled. A reporter watched with the two doctors.

After several minutes, Honig turned to the psychiatrist and noted, "I think you ought to mention that he really hasn't touched the kid. He asks about her, but he doesn't do this." He extended his arms.

"He's strictly business. He needs to touch the child. ... For an older child it's for the benefit of the child and the mother. For a young child it's for the benefit of the mother. We look for that, and we look for it early."

The history-taking was over. Ross began the examination.

"That's nice, he's talking to the baby," said the pediatrician.

"He's talking through the kid to the mother."

Ross peeled off the infant's undershirt and placed a stethoscope on her bare chest. She bawled.

"Boy, she's really a fighter," Ross said.

"Good, good," said the psychiatrist. "He's saying things that will make the mother feel good about her baby. And look, he's examining the baby on the mother's lap (not on an examining table). They're working together. That's great."

The two doctors have a rating sheet on which they record residents' behavior traits, noting such little things as whether they offer the mother a chair or leave the room without explanation.

"You know," said Honig, "there are some pediatricians who can do the most with the least amount of time, and the mother goes away thinking that that doctor gave her half an hour, when actually he gave her five minutes."

Hijacker stays in Cuba; hostages coming home

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — A hijacked Colombian jetliner is returning home today with more than 60 freed hostages, leaving the leftist guerrillas who took it over two days before in Cuba.

A spokesman for the Cuban Foreign Ministry said he did not think the hijackers would be deported.

"There is a law here under which we give protection and solidarity to those who hijack airplanes for ideological causes or in struggles for popular causes," he said.

Colombian President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala said the armed men who seized control of the Boeing 727 were from the M-19 guerrilla organization which occupied the Dominican Republic's embassy in Bogota for two months early this year and held dozens of diplomats hostage.

A Mexican reporter who was allowed aboard the plane during a stop in Mexico City said there were six guerrillas masked with bandannas and armed with grenades.

He said they told him they wanted to "focus world attention" on their campaign against the Colombian government and to protest the political violence in El Salvador, where 9,000 people have been killed this year in fighting between leftists and rightists.

Reports of the number of hostages involved in the hijacking varied.

Avianca, the Colombian airline, said there were 129 people aboard, including seven crew members, when it was taken over Monday during a domestic flight out of Bogota. The plane made four stops on its 2,165-mile flight to Cuba, at Santa Marta and Barranquilla, Colombia; Panama City, Panama, and Mexico City, and the hijackers freed about 30 passengers in Barranquilla, 24 more in Panama and two who were ill in Mexico City.

That presumably left 73 people aboard the plane — 60 passenger-hostages, seven crew members and six guerrillas. But Juan Vita, the commercial attache for the Colombian Embassy in Havana, said 64 hostages got off the plane.

Vita said they were "in perfect health" and were taken to a suburban hotel to rest. Reporters were kept away from them.

Court rules in rights of injured workers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court unanimously ruled today that a worker injured by a defective product while on the job may sue the manufacturer for breach of warranty and has four years from the accident to file his suit.

Normally, a personal injury suit must be filed within two years, but the court said in cases like this, the four-year deadline contained in the Uniform Commercial Code comes into play.

Richard Y. Garcia, an employee of Mostek Corp. in Dallas, sued Texas Instruments on Oct. 18, 1978, for sulphuric acid burns he received on Feb. 18, 1975.

His employer had bought the acid from Texas Instruments in cartons containing four one-gallon containers each. Garcia was carrying one of the cartons when he tripped and fell, breaking a container. He suffered severe acid burns.

Texas Instruments, a trial court and the 5th Court of Civil Appeals in Dallas all said Garcia waited too long to sue because his case was governed by the two-year limitation on personal injury suits.

They also said he had no standing to sue for breach of implied warranty because Mostek, not Garcia, had bought the acid.

The Supreme Court said most other states allow an injured person to sue for breach of implied warranty under the model commercial code, which has a four-year deadline for lawsuits.

"We are in accord, and accordingly reject the argument of Texas Instruments that a cause of action for personal injuries resulting from a breach of warranty does not exist under the Code," the court said.

In holding that Garcia could sue Texas Instruments under the code, even though he was not a party to the purchase of the acid, the court cited one of its earlier decisions.

"There is no adequate rational or theoretical explanation why non-users and non-consumers should be denied recovery against the manufacturer of a defective product. ... A manufacturer who places in commerce a product rendered dangerous to life or limb by reason of some defect is strictly liable in tort to one who sustains injury because of the defective condition," that decision said.

The court sent the case back to Dallas for a full trial on its merits.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals ... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

SEC, Company reach agreement

DALLAS (AP) — After more than two years of expensive litigation, OKC Corp. has reached a settlement with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

OKC chairman Cloyce Box, however, still is the subject of government accusations.

An SEC lawsuit filed in August 1978 accused OKC of using funds for "self-dealing transactions" that benefited Box and other officials. Box was accused of receiving personal income for at least seven years through illegal transactions involving OKC and various "friendly brokers."

OKC has begun liquidation of its assets and distribution of cash receipts to its shareholders. Last week, the company reached an agreement to sell its last operating asset, and has only oil and gas properties and real estate remaining.

Those assets must be liquidated and the receipts distributed by May.

"Without admitting or denying any of the allegations of the complaint or violations of law," OKC said Tuesday it agreed to a court order that would permanently enjoin it from violating federal securities laws.

Congress adjourns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end of the 96th Congress squelched a number of Texas nominees and proposals affecting the state, at least this time around.

Bills can be re-introduced, without prejudice, when the 97th Congress starts its two-year session next month.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he plans to make another attempt to get construction aid for border school districts to help them handle the influx of legal aliens.

The bill that included an authorization for $45 million in the special border school aid was defeated by the House in the last days of the unusually long congressional session, which ended Tuesday.

Two Texans nominated for federal judgeships were among those nominees blocked by Republicans ready to take over the White House and Senate leadership and put forward their own choices.

A confirmation hearing never was held for state District

Judge Pete Lowry of Austin, nominated to fill a vacancy in the Western District of Texas.

Bentsen, who had recommended Lowry's nomination to President Carter, said he "certainly" regretted the turn of events that prevented his confirmation.

"He's a very able man. I'm disappointed that the Senate didn't act on it," the senator said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has said it will be several months before Republicans are prepared to make local nominations. He will be consulting Vice President George Bush and Texas Gov. Bill Clements on candidates to fill the state positions.

State Rep. Matt Garcia, a Democrat from San Antonio, asked to withdraw his nomination as commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service after Carter lost the election.

The nomination had been delayed in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Texas Christmas trees grow like weeds

ROSE HILL, Texas (AP) — With the price of Christmas trees growing taller than the evergreens, more and more Texans are getting into the business of nurturing young saplings.

A lot of people think Texans can grow nothing but oil wells and cactus. Not so, says Hugh Epps, a Walker County extension agent. But, he warns that it takes a lot of work, from the day of planting to the day of harvesting.

"You've got to watch your trees closely, year round," Epps said in a recent interview. "It's not easy. Gophers can attack the root systems of seedlings and the pine moth is tough on the trunk and limbs."

Donnelly Hawkins, a 75-year-old retired plumber, cleared a plot on the family a few years ago and planted a crop of Virginia pines. He sold his first trees wholesale to the Tomball Optimist Club, which sells the trees at about half the price charged on commercial lots.

Hawkins said the Christmas tree project "just kind of grows on you."

Lanny Dreesen of the Agricultural Extension Service office in Houston, said Christmas-tree growing sprouted in this area in 1972 and the project was such a success it has spread to other areas of the state.

The Texas trees, he said, are cheaper, fresher, greener and safer because they are not cut until December.

Dreesen says a Texas crop of Virginia pines cost about $2,000 an acre with a maximum of 1,299 trees an acre. The Virginia pines, he says, adapt well to the Texas climate and need only three to five years of growth as opposed to 15 years for other varieties.

Charges pending in second grocery extortion attempt

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A second extortion attempt at the H.E.B. grocery chain went sour when lawmen staked out a drop-off spot and captured a man who allegedly had threatened to blow up two of the chain's supermarkets here unless he was given $25,000, police said.

The man was in custody here today and officials said charges were pending.

Four Waco men were charged earlier this month when H.E.B. officials were told the stock at three of the chain's six Waco-area stores had been laced with strychnine. A telephone caller demanded $60,000 in return for the location of the poison.

The six Waco-area stores were closed and more than 690 tons of stock pulled from the shelves in what H.E.B. officials called the "most massive restocking" effort in the chain's history.

In the latest attempt, police said a man telephoned the H.E.B. headquarters and warehouse complex Tuesday and demanded $25,000. Robbery detective Charles Mikolajczyk said the man threatened to set off explosives planted in two H.E.B. outlets if his demand was not met.

Police did not disclose which two of San Antonio's 36 H.E.B. supermarkets were targeted by the caller. It was not known if investigators found explosives at any of the outlets.

Investigators said company officials negotiated with the caller and arranged to leave the $25,000 in a sack under the only tree in a large vacant lot a few miles from the sprawling H.E.B. office and warehouse center on I.H. 35.

Police would not say if the sack actually contained $25,000.

The site was staked out by three Texas Rangers, two San Antonio Police robbery detectives, two auto theft detectives and a Department of Public Safety intelligence officer, authorities said.

Mikolajczyk said a car approached the lot about 3:30 p.m. CST and circled several times before stopping. A man stepped out and picked up the bag, he said.

Officers then rushed in and arrested the man, who was jailed Tuesday evening, he said.

Both company officials and authorities agreed that the Waco incident was a hoax, but investigators here would not comment on the validity of Tuesday's threat.

Cancer victim rehired in security position

BAY HARBOR ISLANDS, Fla. (AP) — The Bay Harbor Islands Town Council dug into its rainy day fund to rehire a 57-year-old police officer who was relieved of his beat because he has liver cancer.

James Moran's voice broke when he learned Tuesday he had been given a $20,400-a-year job as civilian code enforcement officer for Bay Harbor Islands.

The Town Council voted unanimously to create the job for the former officer. Moran's salary will be paid from the town's $50,000 contingency fund.

"I think they did good by me, as best they could without putting me back on the police force," Moran said.

A sergeant with 6 1/2 years on the Bay Harbor Islands force, Moran was relieved of his duties two weeks ago.

Mother Theresa named 'Most Admired'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mother Theresa of Calcutta, a Roman Catholic nun whose order runs homes for India's poor and sick, has displaced Anita Bryant at the top of Good Housekeeping magazine's list of "Most Admired Women."

Miss Bryant, a singer whose fame stems mostly from her orange juice commercials and campaigns against homosexual rights, had been voted most admired woman by the magazine's readers for the past two years.

This year she dropped to third behind former first lady Pat Nixon, the only person to place in the top 10 each year since the magazine's poll of its readers first was conducted in 1969.

Rosalynn Carter moved from 6th to 4th place, and Phyllis Schlafly, a leading opponent of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, moved to 5th from 9th place.

Rounding out the top 10 were, in order, New York City Opera Director Beverly Sills, former first lady Betty Ford, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, former Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan and humorist Erma Bombeck.

The Day Christ Was Born PART 2 By Jim Bishop

The Roman Emperor, Caesar Augustus, ruled the known world at the time of the marriage of Joseph and Mary. He was concerned that the amount of taxes collected was not commensurate with the number of his subjects. He held a council in Rome, and his advisors told Caesar that he could not levy an equitable tax until he had an accurate idea of the populations of the Roman provinces.

Caesar issued an imperial rescript ordering all subjects, in the winter solstice, to return to the cities of their fathers and there be counted.

Many of the subject peoples chafed when the law was proclaimed. They said that Caesar was not a just king to do this to them. Joseph sought the local tax merchant and asked if women in advanced pregnancy could be excused and he was told that no one could be excused.

They started on the trip south, two young and solemn people with a short and slender jackass who bore the most exalted burden ever to honor an animal. Joseph lifted Mary's spirits by reminding her that, if he paced the trip correctly, she would see Jerusalem at sundown of the fifth day.

Jerusalem. Little parties came up all year long from Jericho and the Salt Sea and the Mountains of Moab and the north country of Samaria and Galilee in a never-ending procession to the great temple of Solomon. It was a spiritual spawning for all Hebrews; a coming home; a communion with God at his appointed house.

This was the winter solstice of the Jewish year 3790. The gaiety of the Feast of Chanukah had ended as Joseph and his wife left Nazareth.

Each night, when the sun was gone and the road obscure, Joseph led the ass a little way off from the road and into a clearing where there was very little brush and few insects. Then he tied the ass, tilted the goatskin and filled the earthen jar with water from it, and sat. There was not much to talk about. Their minds were troubled with momentous events far beyond the scope of their thought.

Mary was big with the unborn child, and awkward, but she managed to prepare the food as appetizingly as possible. There was no meat. Even at home, they never had meat more than once a month. Mostly it was lamb, chopped into cubes and roasted and then set on a plate beside charoseth and other herbs and fruits.

They slept in the open, saving what little money they had for the day of the baby. Sometimes, when there was no moon, Joseph set a lamp on the ground and Mary removed her veil and brushed the long dark hair which hung to her waist. She said that she would like to bathe in the Jordan, and she said it wistfully because she knew that Joseph would say no, and a good wife did not dispute the will of her husband. He said it gently, reminding her that her time was near, that this would be her first-born, and he would not assume the risk of the river. With a gruff tenderness Joseph wet some cloths in the Jordan and brought them to Mary to wash herself.

On the evening of the fourth day they were at Jericho, a few miles above the Salt Sea and within a glance of Mt. Nebo to the east. Joseph wanted to stay at an inn, where they could pay for space on the floor, but Mary begged him not to do it. "This is not an important day," she said. He knew what she meant.

In the morning, Joseph led Mary and the ass into the wilderness. It was twenty miles to Bethany, and, from there, three to the heart of Jerusalem. Towards sunset, Joseph stopped at the top of a rise. The ass stopped. Mary looked up, a tired child with eyes partly conscious of the scene.

"Jerusalem," Joseph said, pointing. Mary looked. The wonderment of what she saw caused her nausea to fade.

It was a thing to see. Jerusalem was a white jewel pronged by the great stone wall around it. Joseph pulled the ass to the side of the road because the pilgrims behind him were shouting. "Jerusalem," he said again. He said it as though it were an earthly anteroom to paradise, as indeed it was.

The sun would be gone in ten minutes and there was much to see because they could not stay in Jerusalem. Their destination, Bethlehem, was still five miles to the south, but Joseph did not mind the night walk if he could stop a moment and drink in all of this and remember it when he was old.

Softly, haltingly, Joseph found his voice and, as he drank in the exquisite and almost fearful beauty, he began to tell the story to his wife — a story she knew as well as he. He reminded her that he came of the family of David, even though his branch was small and poor. It was David's son Solomon who had built the Great Temple. He had commissioned Hiram, the King of Tyre, to draw the plans and do the engineering. The work was finished in seven years, a miracle of goodness. The temple was 1,600 feet long and 970 feet wide. The bigger the temple got, the more remote Solomon felt from God, and he needed the solace of women, so on the Mount of Offense to the left of the city he had built a palace and placed therein five hundred concubines.

The sin needed washing and, long after Solomon repented, the Jews split into two nations — Judea and Israel — and the Babylonians defeated them and reduced the walls of the temple. Now the Jews were the chattels of Roman emperors and the Caesars appointed Herod as king to rule the people.

Herod proclaimed himself a Jew and made daily sacrifices, but he was not even a good hypocrite. Herod married ten times and he was so cruel that Caesar Augustus in Rome said that it was safer to be Herod's pig than Herod's son. This was a sacrilegious joke on the dietary laws, and Joseph did not like to repeat it.

Still he had also done good things for God. He had paid ten thousand workmen to repair the temple and rebuild the walls of Jerusalem.

"Darkness is upon us," said Mary. She had a feeling of foreboding. She wanted to proceed to Bethlehem for no reason other than that she was trembling and the baby was unusually quiet. Joseph stopped in mid-speech. He knew that she would not interrupt him unless there was a reason. Without further conversation, he led the ass westward into the valley.

It was soon night and moonless. Something happened suddenly to Mary and she knew in a moment that this would be the night of the baby. She asked Joseph to stop and he became alarmed and asked if she was unquiet. "No," she said. "I feel no pain, but we must find an inn. The baby — with God's help — will be born tonight."

Railroad declares war on motorists

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — In a black-bordered box buried on an inside newspaper page, Alaska's only railroad declared war against motorists. The object in dispute is a bridge spanning the Nenana River in the rugged Alaska Range.

The Alaska Railroad wants the 482-foot railroad bridge at Ferry all to itself. It doesn't want its rails used as a road anymore.

To make its point, the railroad warned earlier this month in an advertisement that it is putting spikes on the bridge to discourage those who drive across it to get from the Parks Highway to the road on the other side.

"People drive their cars or snowmachines across the bridge ... with no reference to the schedule of the trains," said the railroad's chief counsel, David Roderick. "We've had eight near-misses there in the past three to five years. If we hit somebody there ... there goes the bridge."

The Parks Highway links Anchorage and Fairbanks. To the east is the river and then, on the other side, residents.

There are active mines at the eastern end of the Old Jackson Road during the summer, but little or no activity during the winter, Springer said.

The railroad carries both freight and passengers, but there is no regular stop near the bridge. Those who get off there usually are miners and hunters, officials say.

"I don't blame the railroad," Springer said. "But the people who live and work back in there need some way of getting in and out."

Roderick is not so sure spikes will keep motorized vehicles off the railroad's bridge.

"It'll give people pause, but as sure as we're sitting here, they'll figure a way to put planks across, just as high as the spikes for 500 feet."

Mother charged in baby's death

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — A 25-year-old mother was being held today pending possible grand jury action in the death of her 18-month-old baby, who died from massive injuries sustained during a suspected belt beating, police said.

The woman was jailed Tuesday in lieu of $10,000 bond, according to Assistant Police Chief Jack Brewer.

The child died Monday at Methodist Hospital in Dallas following surgery for a broken right arm and massive stomach injuries, Brewer said.

Texas Department of Human Resources officials removed a 3-month-old child from the woman's custody Sunday and placed it in a foster home, Brewer said.

Judge believes

Prison problems not answered with facility plan

AUSTIN (AP) — The overcrowded Texas prison system now has 5,958 East Texas acres on which to build a new penitentiary, a plan a federal judge says is not the answer.

Despite opposition from Grimes County residents who rode buses here for Tuesday's meeting, the three-member Prison Approval Board voted unanimously to pay $6.7 million for the land near Navasota.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, referring to local opposition that killed plans to build the prison in Starr County, said, "It's going to have to be somewhere," before he voted for the purchase.

Gov. Bill Clements and Board of Corrections Chairman James Windham joined in the 3-0 vote.

The Texas Department of Corrections is now bulging with twice as many prisoners as it is equipped to handle. Three inmates are housed in cells built for one, a condition condemned as cruel and unusual punishment in U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's recent ruling in a suit against TDC.

The opinion, issued Friday, says building more big prisons is not the immediate answer needed.

"TDC officials' contention that future building plans will eventually alleviate the aggravated conditions that now exist is extremely suspect," Justice said. "These large maximum security institutions take years to build and simply cannot be constructed fast enough to overtake the soaring prison commitment rates."

Grimes County residents who made the bus trip here said they fear the potential dangers of a prison in their community.

The Rev. John Price of Austin, a board member of an Episcopal camp near the prison site, said the $2.75 million Camp Allen could become worthless if campers decide they would rather not be near the prison.

The anti-prison arguments were similar to those aired when Starr County residents killed a plan in May to build the prison on the Rio Grande. However, the Grimes County residents did not bring the unanimous backing of their elected leaders, as the Starr County citizens did.

Navasota Mayor J.T. Gibson said Tuesday he favored the prison as a good industry for the city.

"It will have a tremendous impact on the citizens of Navasota. We are interested in the revenues of $3 million a year. A tremendous amount of that money will flow into Navasota," he said.

Several opponents of the Grimes County location said they were considering a lawsuit to block prison construction there.

After the purchase was approved, Clements, Attorney General Mark White and prison officials huddled in the governor's office for a closed-door briefing on Justice's ruling. When the meeting ended, TDC Director W.J. Estelle told reporters he thought Justice might be overstepping his authority.

The director said some of the judge's findings go beyond questions of constitutionality, and begin to "meddle in the operations" of the prisons.

"I'm not convinced the specific size, the specific architecture, the specific location, and the specific staffing patterns are questions of a constitutional nature," Estelle said.

Judge will take bench after Jan. 1

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he will appoint Rep. Melchor Chavez, D-Harlingen, as judge of the 107th District Court after Jan. 1, 1981.

Local voters elected Chavez judge, but Secretary of State George Strake refused to certify him because he voted for the 1979 general appropriation bill that raised judges' salaries.

The Texas Constitution says a legislator may not vote to create a state job or raise its salary, then take that post before his legislative term expires.

Chavez was to have been sworn in last month, but that would have conflicted with the constitutional requirement.

Clements said he decided to appoint Chavez after Jan. 1, when Chavez could legally become judge, "in order that the will of the voters, as expressed through the electoral process, not be thwarted."

Dockery quits at Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech athletic officials say they will immediately begin the search for a new head football coach to replace Rex Dockery, who is moving to the gridiron mentor's job at Memphis State.

Dockery announced Tuesday he would forego the two years left on his Red Raider contract to accept a five-year deal at Memphis State that reportedly will pay him $85,000 a year.

Tech Athletic Director John Conley said preliminary steps for the selection of a new coach are underway.

"Time is of great importance, but we don't want to go off and make a quick decision just to be making one," Conley said. "We want to get the best possible man we can get."

Conley said he would submit a list of as many as six candidates to Tech President Lauro Cavazos in the near future.

"We feel we have a situation here that is a heck of an opportunity, and I'm not necessarily talking about a young coach," Conley said. "Plus, I'm not going to rule anybody out just because they are from a different area of the country."

Dockery coached three seasons at Tech, compiling a 15-16-2 record, including a 7-4 year in 1978 when he was named Southwest Conference coach of the year.

But Texas Tech sources said Dockery was given a "win or else" ultimatum by the university's board of regents after a 3-6-2 season in 1979 and a 5-6 campaign this year.

Landry plans wide-open game against Philadelphia

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry says it doesn't take a math genius to figure the Dallas Cowboys for the National Conference wild card game Dec. 28.

The Cowboys have to beat the Philadelphia Eagles by 25 points or more in Texas Stadium Sunday to successfully defend their National Conference Eastern Division title.

"Since the Eagles haven't given up 25 points to anybody it doesn't make you too optimistic," Landry said Tuesday in the wake of Monday night's 38-14 flogging by the Los Angeles Rams, a team the Cowboys may have to play again in the wild card playoff.

The Eagles are the No. 1 defensive team in the NFC, yielding just 12.4 points per contest.

"The Eagles are tough on defense and they'll have 25 points on the scoreboard and we haven't even kicked off," said Landry. "Philadelphia is in an enviable position."

The normally conservative Landry added "We're going to open it up. But if you try to score too many points too fast you can get into trouble against a team like the Eagles. But it's a funny game. You never know what's going to happen."

In announcing his decision to move to Memphis State Tuesday, Dockery said Tech "has been good to me."

"It was a hard decision to make," Dockery said. "But it's best for my family and my future and I have to go with this decision at this time."

Dockery, 38, was offered a five-year contract after meeting with MSU President Thomas Carpenter and athletic director Billy "Spook" Murphy.

Dockery reportedly will receive a base salary of $45,000 to become MSU's 17th head coach, plus a television show worth $40,000 a year.

He reportedly receives a base salary of $46,000 and another $10,000 for a television show under his Tech contract.

Dockery was born in Cleveland, Tenn., and played college football at Tennessee. He coached high school football at Harriman, Tenn., and Morristown, Tenn., before joining Bill Battle to coach receivers for the Tennessee Volunteers in 1970.

He left two years later to guide Georgia Tech's offensive line, but returned to his home state in 1973 to join an old high school teammate, Steve Sloan, at Vanderbilt.

Dockery went with Sloan to Lubbock in 1975 as offensive coordinator and took over in 1978 when Sloan went to Ole Miss.

Richard Williamson was fired as MSU head football coach after the Tigers finished the year at 2-9, the worst mark of his career and the worst MSU record since a 2-7 season in 1955.

Dallas has already clinched a wild card berth. The Cowboys can cement a homefield berth for the wild card with a victory over the Eagles or if Los Angeles loses to Atlanta. Should Dallas lose to Philadelphia and the Rams beat the Falcons, the Cowboys will have to travel to Los Angeles again.

"We don't want to do that," said Landry. "We want to be at home."

Landry said the Cowboys were "lousy" against the Rams.

"Every area we emphasized never came off," said Landry. "We couldn't stop the run. We didn't have a pass rush. We couldn't stop the bomb. We were almost 100 per cent in all areas. We have no excuse."

Landry theorized the Cowboys could have been victims of their own success.

He said "We came off a big high in Oakland. We won there and not many people felt we would. Things looked bright. We had tied Philadelphia. The Rams were supposed to have all those injuries. I mean nobody was supposed to play for them. That seems to be a deadly situation for us."

Pampa splits basketball twinbill with Dumas

DUMAS-Pampa shook off a Dumas threat in the fourth quarter to notch a 57-52 win Tuesday night.

The Harvesters are now 6-3 on the season while Dumas is 8-2.

Pampa never trailed, but Dumas pulled within three, 53-50, on Mark Payne's bucket with 1:12 to go in the game. Mike Nelson then scored a pair of layups to put the Harvesters out of reach.

Pampa led by 15-7 when the first quarter ended and expanded its lead to 31-20 at halftime when Dumas hit only three of 16 shots from the floor the second quarter.

Ray Condo sparked a scoring surge in the second quarter when he scored all his six points, including the last two goals, to give the Harvesters an 11-point advantage at intermission.

Mike Nelson was held to only four points the first half, but finished with 16 to net game-scoring honors.

Charles Nelson added 14 points for the Harvesters.

Richard Rogers and Mark Kehoe paced Dumas with 14 points each while Payne added 13.

The Harvesters travel to Borger Friday night. Gametime is 7:30 p.m.

Borger, behind Scott Hunt's 23 points, defeated Lubbock Coronado, 75-65, to go 13-0 for the season.

The Lady Harvesters went down to defeat, 85-30, to Dumas last night.

Bobbi Skaggs was Pampa's high scorer with 10 points, followed by Jeanette Britt and Debbie Young, six points each; Deanna Porter, three; Ladina Honeycutt and Sharolyn Salisbury, two points each; Keva Richardson, one.

Tammy Taylor poured in 29 points for the winners. Despite the lopsided loss, the Lady Harvesters did own a 29-27 edge in rebounds.

Skaggs and Young had seven and six rebounds respectively while Britt and Deanna Porter each had four.

The Lady Harvesters play Liberal, Kans. there Friday night with the game starting at 8 p.m.

Pampa girls dropped the junior varsity tilt, 85-22. Keva Richardson was high scorer for Pampa JV's with 11 points.

Miami routs Stinnett twice

MIAMI-Ray Young, a 6-7 senior, poured in 30 points and Ron Francis added 20 as Miami crushed Stinnett, 64-42, Tuesday night.

Bobby Brown and Fred Kelly had 14 points each for the losers. Karla Stone netted 22 points to lead Miami past Stinnett, 64-45, in the girls' game. Teammate

Susan Bean finished with 11 points.

Linda Gentry led Stinnett with 13 points.

The Warriorettes led by only three, 23-20, at halftime, but scored 24 points the third quarter to move ahead by 14 points going into the final period.

DePaul holds off North Texas State

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Things were a bit ragid for top-ranked DePaul Tuesday night, but the Blue Demons won again, both with super 6-7 junior forward Mark Aguirre and without him.

DePaul, 6-0, soared behind Aguirre's 26 first-half points for a three-point lead at intermission, and after he got into foul trouble his teammates held off a furious closing rush by North Texas State for a 92-86 victory.

Led by NTSU coach Bill Blakeley, the Mean Green players and fans cheered when Aguirre drew his fourth foul 2:07 into the second half and was forced to the bench for the next seven minutes.

Then the crowd erupted into another ovation when Aguirre drew his fifth foul with 2:27 remaining, and NTSU guard Delonte Taylor threw in three outside jumpers and a pair of free throws that closed an 86-73 DePaul lead to 88-84 in the final half minute.

"Mark is like a faucet. He turns on when he has to and turns off when he's finished. He scores when we need him, but if we don't need points, we won't score that much," DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said.

Aguirre added only one point in the second half, but still led DePaul with 27 points, while Taylor's 20 second-half points gave him 29 to lead North Texas, now 5-3.

The game threatened to break into fisticuffs in the first half, when Aguirre and teammates felt Taylor was much too free with his elbows. After scoring one goal, Aguirre went screaming to the sidelines holding his face, tumbled over two chairs on the Eagle bench and collapsed on the floor.

But when the tempers began flaring, Aguirre did what he does best. He hit 12 of 19 in the first half, with the 26 points falling only two short of the Super Pit record, with about half of his shots coming on 15-foot jumpers from the right side.

SWC basketball roundup

By The Associated Press

Houston and Arkansas rolled to easy victories and Baylor lost as Southwest Conference basketball teams opened the week's competition against non-conference foes.

Houston beat Pepperdine, 94-81, Arkansas defeated Centenary, 78-64, and Baylor lost to Texas-Arlington, 94-80.

Houston's Rob Williams had 31 points and teammate Clyde Drexler grabbed 16 rebounds as the Cougars beat Pepperdine, 94-81.

A six-point outburst in only seven seconds spelled doom for the Baylor Bears as they lost to Texas-Arlington, 94-80. Baylor held a 41-36 halftime lead, but the Mavericks got hot in the second half, outscoring the Bears, 58-39.

Fields a pleasant surprise for Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie offensive tackle Angelo Fields, termed as "sloppy fat" in one pre-draft scouting report and unaggressive in another, would likely get a different rating from the Pittsburgh Steelers and Green Bay Packers.

Fields, who had spent most of his rookie season learning from all-pro Leon Gray, was thrust into a starting assignment against Pittsburgh two weeks ago when Gray went out for the season with an Achilles tendon injury.

"I was nervous," Fields recalled. "I'd been watching the Steelers on television the past few years and here I was playing against them. All kinds of things went through my head."

Fields put his fears aside however and played the best two quarters of his young pro-career and put together another good game Sunday in the Oilers' 22-3 victory over Green Bay.

The second round draft choice from Michigan State will get his second start Sunday when the Oilers host Minnesota with a chance to win their first American Football Conference Central Division title and advance to the playoffs for the third straight year.

The Oilers have been a "left-handed" team throughout the year, running behind the All-Pro left side of the offensive line that included tight end Dave Casper, Gray and guard Bob Young.

Coach Bum Phillips didn't change with Fields in the lineup.

"This was an important game for me," Fields said following Sunday's victory over the Packers. "It helped my confidence, especially when they ran to my side just like they did with Leon. I felt like I was part of the team. I can relax now and just work on improving myself."

Fields reported to training camp at 347 pounds and now is playing with a trim 330 pounds on his 6-6 frame. After spending most of the season learning from Gray, Fields also dumped his lack of aggressiveness tag against L.C. Greenwood of the Steelers.

"The kid's an opportunist," Oiler line coach Joe Bugel said. "When his time came, he played like a bear. He made a believer out of a lot of people. The Steelers threw plenty at him, but he didn't break. Was I surprised? No, because I was him in practice."

Fields, who played only his senior year on offense in college, also had to convert from the right side of the Oiler offensive line. All his previous experience had been on the right side.

"I like playing on the left side better because I'd left handed," Fields said. "I made some mistakes on the right side. I started slow this season. I was a slow learner on the techniques."

For the Oilers to make it to the Super Bowl, Fields will have to be a fast finisher.

Yankee owner denies Winfield is highest paid ballplayer

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Leave it to George Steinbrenner. The man has classic timing.

Ten days before Christmas, the New York Yankee owner played Santa Claus. One week to the day after Commissioner Bowie Kuhn warned about the siege of free agent-created "economic pneumonia" plaguing baseball, Steinbrenner gave Dave Winfield all but the Bronx side of the Triborough Bridge to autograph a Yankee contract.

Ho, ho, ho!

Not to worry, Bowie Steinbrenner assured all listeners that Winfield would not be the highest paid player in baseball.

"Oh no," he said. "I'm sure Dave Parker and possibly a few others make more."

But that's not what they were saying in other corners of the room.

There was testimony, for example, from

Dick Moss, an expert witness. Moss serves as Winfield's attorney and sat in on most of the talks with Steinbrenner. He also negotiated the $1 million a year free agent contract for Nolan Ryan with the Houston Astros last winter.

"I called Nolan last night and told him the pressure's off," said Moss. "He's not No. 1 anymore."

But who would be so crass as to discuss money at an historic moment like this? Certainly not Winfield.

"There are market values for anything," he said. "In San Diego, I had a different value. It's like appraising a precious stone. This is my value in New York. I plan to contribute on the field and off."

Certainly not Steinbrenner.

But there were some naysayers in the audience who insisted on finding out about dollars and cents. Steinbrenner pleaded innocent to the charge of spreading the economic pneumonia.

"It's not George Steinbrenner's money," he said, sounding off so sincere. "It's the people of New York's money. The fans... 2.6 million of them last year. They enabled us to sign Winfield."

"People talk about my desire to win, but you should add two words to that — 'for New York.'"

Right about there, you'd expect to hear Frank Sinatra's recording of "New York, New York" in the background. It's a shame George didn't think of it.

For the signing of Winfield, Steinbrenner paraded out the some of Yankees' best names. Willie Randolph, Reggie Jackson and Rick Cerone showed up for the coronation. So did Yogi Berra and a couple of the scalps that hang from Steinbrenner's belt.

At one table sat former manager Dick Howser, who was in town for a Yankee organizational meeting.

No part of agriculture takes back seat to poultry

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to keeping an eye on what the other fellow is doing, probably no part of agriculture takes a back seat to the poultry industry.

It is vital for producers to understand what is going on with grain supplies and prices, competing items such as pork and beef, and how the consumer economy is doing.

The Agriculture Department's latest "Poultry and Egg Situation" report, issued Tuesday, illustrates the tremendous overlap of interests that all farmers have in today's complex world of economics, production and trade.

For openers, the report sets the scene by recounting what department economists have been saying for some time:

Total red meat supplies — mainly beef and pork — probably will be smaller in 1981 than they were in 1980.

Most of the decline will be in pork output. And that will mean higher prices as the supply shrinks.

And grain and soybean production was down this year because of bad weather. That will mean higher production costs for livestock and poultry producers.

Even so, the future looks fairly bright for broiler producers, according to the report.

"Broiler production in 1981 will be up from 1980's record output because producers made profits in the third quarter of this year and prospects appear mostly favorable for 1981," it said.

"Continued contraction of pork supplies and growth in consumer incomes are expected to contribute to broiler prices averaging higher than this year. However, costs will be much higher in 1981."

In all, the report said broiler output could increase by 6 percent over 1980.

"With further declines in red meat production and with strengthening consumer incomes, profits should return in the second half of 1981," it said.

Egg production, however, may decline somewhat from 1980, the report said.

CBS hangs onto top Nielsen ratings with boost from 'Dallas'

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS won the networks' ratings race for the third time in a month with eight of the week's 10 highest-rated programs, and became the season's No. 1 network by both its standards and those of NBC.

CBS' victory in the three-way race for the week ending Dec. 14 came with a big boost from "Dallas," which placed No. 1 for the sixth straight week, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

CBS' rating for the week was 20.9, to 18 for ABC and 15.7 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.9 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were watching CBS.

NBC now has been last in the weekly competition seven straight weeks, since it broadcast the end of baseball's World Series.

CBS and ABC say the 1980-81 TV season, delayed by a 10-week actors' strike, began Oct. 27. By that measure, CBS leads for the season with an average rating of 20.6, nearly two points ahead of ABC.

NBC maintains the season started on schedule Sept. 15, and by that measure CBS now leads by two-tenths of a point over NBC.

The audience for "Dallas" has remained large, though it declined from about 29 million homes on Dec. 5 to 27.9 million Dec. 12. The show recorded the highest rating ever for a prime-time program — 53.3 — for the "Kristin shot J.R." episode Nov. 21.

The rating for the most recent episode was 35.8. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, 35.8 percent saw at least part of "Dallas."

One new series, CBS' "Magnum, P.I.," was a hit in its debut, finishing eighth. Other new series did not do as well.

ABC's "Too Close for Comfort" was No. 16, with "It's a Living," also from ABC, 39th. CBS' "Ladies Man" was No. 47, followed immediately by another CBS offering, "Enos." "Bosom Buddies," from ABC, was No. 49, with "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters," on NBC, 50th.

ABC had three of the week's five lowest-rated programs, including an episode from the new series "Breaking Away" in 62nd place, followed by a movie, "The Brinks' Job," and a Christmas special, "Rudolph's Shiny New Year." The last of three installments of NBC's new "Number 96" broadcast during the week was No. 65, with "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley" 66th.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated programs:

"Dallas," with a rating of 35.8 representing 27.9 million homes; "60 Minutes," 31.5 and 24.5 million; "M.A.S.H.," 27.1 or 21.1 million; "Circus of the Stars," 26.3 or 20.5 million; and "Dukes of Hazzard," 26 or 20.2 million, all CBS; "Love Boat," 24.3 or 18.9 million, ABC; "House Calls," 23.9 or 18.6 million; "Magnum, P.I.," 23.4 or 18.2 million; and "One Day at a Time," 22.7 or 17.7 million, all CBS, and "Three's Company," 22.4 or 17.4 million, ABC.

'A Visit from St. Nick' needs work for popular TV special

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Into the mail slot of the Manhattan brownstone owned by Dr. Clement Clarke Moore the following letter dropped one morning early in December:

Our chief script editor, Gladys Blande, has called our attention to your delightful Christmas poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," which her 9-year-old daughter, "bootlegged" home from a friend at her Montessori school.

It seems they are into Dylan Thomas and free verse this year, so the old jingle-jangle stuff is out, but that is neither hither nor yon, as they say. We here at Showcase Workshop fell in love with the right jolly old elf at first couplet and think he has great potential for television.

In fact, if you will give us the name of your agent and consent to a few minor changes, we would be willing to take an option on the property right now.

Since ours is a visual medium, the plot will need some fleshing out, but the ingredients are all there for an hour-and-a-half holiday special, thanks to your warm characterization and elfin touch on dialogue. Love that "Dash away, dash away all!"

For openers, I'm sure you won't object if we update the time factor. Since "Little Lord Fauntleroy" bombed out this season, period pieces have scored lower ratings-wise than paid political broadcasts and panty hose commercials.

"Mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap" will have to go. No one dresses like that in bed. They sound like a couple of weirdoes. We envision someone like Ann-Margret for the feminine lead, wearing a very Christmassy red satin slinky jumpsuit or maybe one of those dishy teddyboy negligees cut all the way up the North Pole.

And he (do I see George Segal? Dustin Hoffman? Robert Redford?) could wear a real macho jogging outfit, because to get a romantic interest going, he's not really her husband. She's a divorcee, see, living in the inner city, trying to keep the family together in a walkup fifth-floor tenement with all those mice that aren't stirring.

He's an upwardly mobile wino, a hep bank vice president who was sent to reline the building but instead falls for her like a ton of Krugerrands. Of course they aren't in bed, but the kids are: two of his and three of hers and maybe a Vietnamese and a Haitian orphan they both want to adopt thrown in for a little ethnic diversion end to swell out the big Christmas Rock around the tree dance number. Single parent sit-coms grab more viewers than game shows this season.

The young banker makes a decision at the finale to marry the wench and help improve ghetto conditions with low interest loans for those roach ranches. Lovers and urchins join hands under the tree to sing

"We Need a Little Christmas" as Jolly Fats and his hatrack ramblers wing off into the winter night.

Teen charged with assault in poisoning of teacher's coffee

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A 13-year-old junior high school student has been charged in a juvenile court delinquency petition with aggravated assault after allegedly poisoning her teacher's coffee, officials say.

The teacher, Neal A. Schwabauer, 34, of Newton, was treated at a Wichita hospital and released Monday after taking a drink of coffee spiked with a highly toxic solvent, authorities said.

"I have been threatened before, but 99 percent of the time they (the students) are bluffing," said Schwabauer, who spit out most of the sip of coffee when he detected a strange taste. "This time it wasn't a bluff."

The Truesdell Junior High School student, who was charged Tuesday, acknowledged putting ethylene dichloride in Schwabauer's coffee when he left his shop class for a moment, authorities said.

The girl was not identified because of her age. Investigators said bottles containing the liquid are marked clearly as poison. The teacher said fumes from the solvent can be fatal.

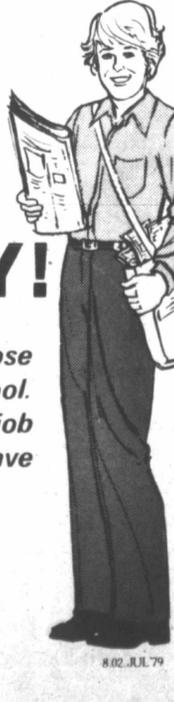

The substance normally is kept in gallon containers under lock and key, school officials said, but a small amount was being used by students to bond acrylic plastics.

Valerie Bertinelli is surprise cover girl

NEW YORK (AP) — Blondes flopped, brunettes were hits. Politics was cold. Mount St. Helens was hot. Valerie Bertinelli was the surprise of the year, and Mario Thomas just kept up the good work.

The game is selling magazines, and putting the right person on the cover can make a big difference in newsstand sales and advertising rates.

Miss Bertinelli was on two of the best-selling covers of the year: an issue of People which sold 500,000 more than People's normal 2.3 million in newsstand sales, and Us, where she drew 850,000 buyers, compared to the average of 712,000.

But, says the Daily News, Meryl Streep was a bust for Ladies Home Journal. Jill Clayburgh was a loser for McCall's and "Charlie's Angels" co-star Cheryl Ladd was a disappointment for Us.

Miss Thomas held the interest of Good Housekeeping readers with her marriage to Phil Donahue. And one blond bucking the trend was Robert Redford, who sold 300,000 copies over the 1 million average as the first male cover star in Ladies' Home Journal history.

One of Time's best sellers was a cover on the Mount St. Helens' eruption that killed 34 people in May. President Carter, on inflation, was the loser.

Ronald Reagan was best and worst for Newsweek: a March issue featuring Reagan and wife Nancy was a bust; the post-election cover of the president-elect was the big seller.

"Ronnie and Nancy just weren't making it then," said a spokesman of the low-seller.

Iranian jailed until his identity is known

SINTON, Texas (AP) — An Iranian charged with using a stolen credit card to buy $15.25 worth of gas has been in jail two weeks without bond and a peace justice says the man will have to stay there until his identity is confirmed.

A man identified as Shahram Tashnizi — who says he deserted the Iranian air force and is wanted by the Iranian government — apparently has earned the wrath of a San Patricio County justice of the peace by giving authorities differing identities.

"Until I know who I'm talking to I absolutely refuse to set bond," Peace Justice Frank Patrova said earlier this week. "I'm going to demand solid evidence ... I'm sort of a mean cat."

Tashnizi, 23, was arrested Nov. 30 after Department of Public Safety troopers said he tried to outrun them when they flagged him for speeding.

He later was charged with felony credit card

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Fonda, star of "Mister Roberts" and "The Grapes of Wrath" and dean of American actors, is undergoing tests at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The 75-year-old actor entered the hospital Dec. 8, according to spokeswoman Virginia Bohannon, who refused to say what the tests involved.

But on Tuesday, industry sources said Fonda was being tested for a new pacemaker medication. He had a heart pacemaker implanted in 1974.

The sources said Fonda may be released this weekend.

Fonda, who has never won an Oscar, received the American Film Institute's Life Achievement Award in 1978 for more than 50 years as one of America's leading actors.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Ronnie Milsap has undergone eye and nose surgery to prevent further damage to his optic nerve, a spokeswoman said.

Milsap, who is blind and has had glaucoma since birth, has been suffering from an eye infection recently. He was in good condition Tuesday at Duke University Eye Center in Durham, N.C., according to Mirriam Longino, a spokeswoman for RCA records.

Milsap, 34, will be in the hospital for at least eight days.

His hits include "I'm a Stand By My Woman Man," "Daydreams about Night Things" and his current "Smoky Mountain Memories."

misuse after officers found credit cards and a drivers license with a different name in his possession.

Tashnizi's lawyer, Rene Gomez of Houston, said the man fears he will be killed if returned to Iran.

"He said he is wanted by Khomeini's government. He didn't believe in their cause," the lawyer said.

Investigators said they have traced Tashnizi to a Houston apartment complex where other Iranians lived.

"He says he's got some papers but he lost them. He's got a roommate who says he's looking for them," Gomez said.

Gomez said his client told him he flew to the United States seven months ago, but the lawyer said he did not know what kind of documents Tashnizi used to enter the country.

Kentucky flags at half staff for Sanders

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Flags were flying at half-staff here today as Kentucky honored Col. Harland Sanders, the smiling, white-suited gentleman whose "secret recipe" started an international fried chicken empire.

Sanders, founder of the Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise, died Tuesday at age 90.

The immediate cause of death was pneumonia, aggravated by leukemia, said KFC spokesman John Cox.

His body will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda in Frankfort from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday.

A memorial service will be held Thursday, said Cox, and a funeral will be held Saturday at Alumni Chapel, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, with burial in Louisville.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., who bought Kentucky Fried Chicken from Sanders for $2 million and sold it several years later for $250 million, announced that a statue of Sanders would be erected at the entrance of the Capitol.

He ordered flags flown at half-staff on state buildings and on city buildings here.

Brown said Sanders was an "example that the great American dream still exists in this country. It rings of folklore but it's true that out of the back end of a small kitchen in Corbin, Ky., he changed the eating habits of the world."

Sanders had been hospitalized Nov. 7 for treatment of an infection of the kidney and bladder. While undergoing treatment, he developed pneumonia for the third time this year. Earlier, doctors found he also was suffering from leukemia, a blood disease.

Kentuckians praised Sanders, who stayed with the business as a consultant until he died, for his friendliness, good humor, sense of adventure and business savvy.

"The people he touched and the friendly Kentucky image he projected will be remembered and cherished by millions," said Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.

"He stood for so many good things that we associate with Kentuckians — good humor, friendliness, a gentle spirit and an eternally optimistic outlook on life. He fought his last battle like all others, with determination and faith," Huddleston said.

Sanders, born in Indiana in 1890, settled in Corbin, Ky., in 1930, built a motel and restaurant and developed a process for quick-cooked chicken. The recipe with 11 herbs and spices is still secret, although Sanders had said the ingredients "can be found on just about any housewife's shelf."

Touting his chicken as "finger lickin' good," Sanders went on the road in the mid-1950s to recruit franchisees, making a nickel-a-chicken profit when each handshake deal was concluded.

On a sales trip to Colorado in the '50s, Sanders first wore the white suit and string tie that became his trademark.
