PAMPA KILLED NEAR MEMPHIS

CITY'S FIRST MUSIC WEEK OBSERVATION BEGINS TODAY

CHOIRS WILL BE PRESENTED IN AFTERNOON

PIANO ENSEMBLE AND COLLEGE PROGRAM ON MONDAY

PUPILS WILL ASSIST FAMOUS ARTISTS ARE TO BE HEARD ON WEDNESDAY

(BY ARCHER FULLINGIM) News-Post Staff Writer
Pampa devotees of Calliope, first of the nine muses of Greek mythology, will have much to be grateful for during this week which has been proclaimed National Music week by the president of the United States. For the first time in the history of this city, Music week will be observed in a worthy and ambitious manner.

Pampa is expected to be the mecca for music-lovers from towns within a radius of 60 miles of the Gray county seat during the first three days of the week. For not only will the cream of local musicians and singers appear in programs at the new city auditorium, but a violinist will on his way to fame, Joe Lefkowitz of Kansas City, and Hazel Silver-Rickel, a soprano who has steadfastly refused to exchange a concert stage or an opera career for her home-life. Mrs. Rickel is often used by critics as the best example to support the familiar argument that there are just as good singers in private life as there are in public life.

First Program Today
This afternoon at 4 o'clock the opening concert of music week, a vespers musical, will be given by the church choirs at the First Methodist church, with Mrs. May Foreman Carr, chairman of the music week committee, and dean of the Pampa College of Music, in charge. Monday evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock the Women's Glee club of West Texas State Teachers college will give a song recital under the direction of Mrs. Ada V. Clark, department of music. The Pampa piano ensemble will also present a group of selections.

Artists Coming Wednesday
Wednesday evening, Mr. Lefkowitz and Mrs. Rickel will give a joint concert of classical music. Among the composers whose names appear on their program are Mozart, Handel, Saint-Saens, Tosselli, Brahms, Wienawski, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Strauss, Sarasate, Puccini, Rimsky-Korsakoff. Mrs. Rickel will arrive in the city tomorrow afternoon.

CHICAGO COPS HUNT CAPONE

OLD TIME HOODLUM IS FOUND DEAD IN ICE HOUSE

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, gangster and Chicago "public enemy No. 1," was hunted by the police unsuccessfully today in connection with the finding near suburban Barrington of a charred body, tentatively identified as "Mike de Pike" Heitler, old time hoodlum.

Notice that Capone was sought was widely heralded and he evidently went into hiding. He had been openly appearing until yesterday. Several allies of Capone were arrested.

Kiwanis Head

Raymond A. Crossman, above, of Omaha, Neb., president of Kiwanis International, will preside at the 15th annual convention of the organization in Miami, Fla., May 3 to 7. More than 4,500 delegates and visitors are expected to attend the convention.

NEW OPTIMISM IN OIL FIELD

PURCHASERS INCREASE TAKINGS FROM LOCAL PRODUCERS

Business psychology, that intangible attitude that has so much to do with the American economic system, has in the last week done wonders for the oil industry in the southwest. It has given a new optimism that is certain to have a favorable reaction.

For many reasons that one could not place a finger on, operators recently have acquired the happy idea that better times are ahead for the industry. One of the tangible reasons that produced the optimistic "psychology" was the decision of the Humble and the Magnolia to increase their takings in the Panhandle by 4,000 barrels. Almost immediately the allowable production of the Panhandle was raised to 40,000 barrels. During the latter part of the week there was a noticeable increase in oil activity and a revival in operations.

There were no locations during the week. Completions were as follows: Adams & Prince's No. 1 Moras section 6, block 26, 17 million feet of gas at 2,300 feet when rig burned. Rig was rebuilt; total depth, 2,509-12, initial production 70 barrels of oil.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 Edington, section 34, block B-2, two million feet of gas and 60 barrels of oil from 2,776-78 feet. Production of the various counties compared with that of the previous week: Carson—224 wells, producing 4,363 barrels, a gain of 298 barrels; Gray—758 wells, producing 43,691 barrels, an increase of 1,246 barrels; Hutchinson—905 wells, producing 7,916 barrels, a loss of 512 barrels; Moody, 24 wells, producing 221 barrels, a loss of 1,963 barrels; Wheeler—44 wells, producing 250 barrels, no gain, no loss.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED IN ROW

QUARREL OVER SMALL AMOUNT CAUSES DEATH

PLUMMER SURRENDERS TO DALLAS POLICE AFTER KILLING

FATHER AND SON SLAIN SHOOTING OCCURS AT CEDAR HILL NEAR BARBER SHOP

DALLAS, May 2 (AP)—David W. (Duke) Sink, 61, and his son, Miles F. Sink, 32, were shot to death late today at Cedar Hill, 20 miles from Dallas. Lloyd (Red) Plummer, 25, came to Dallas and surrendered a short time later. He was charged with murder in two complaints.

The shooting, said to have resulted from an argument over payment of $150, occurred near the Cedar Hill postoffice just after Plummer had emerged from a barber shop where he had had his hair cut. Will Lay, a barber, said the Sinks came into the shop while he was cutting Plummer's hair but left before he finished. After Plummer left, he said, he heard the men talking outside and then heard four shots.

A .25 calibre automatic was used. One bullet struck the elder Sink in the neck and two struck his foot in the abdomen. The elder man was killed instantly, his son dying a short time later. There were several eyewitnesses but they were reluctant to discuss the shooting.

The elder Sink was a retired farmer and the younger was his only son. Miles was married and had two children. Plummer is employed by a Dallas company but lives with his family near Cedar Hill.

Acquaintances said the younger Sink claimed Plummer owed him $150.

Plummer cried when deputies at the county jail told him both the Sink men were dead.

"I wouldn't have killed Duke for anything," he said. "He was just trying to help his son. I don't blame his father for that. I was just trying to knock him loose from me and the pistol went off accidentally when he was shot."

Plummer said he had attempted to avoid Miles Sink and did not fire until he had been attacked and struck more than once. Acquaintances said Miles was known over the county as a man of unusual stature and strength. Plummer is of average size. He said tonight that he had offered Miles Sink no money. County officers said Plummer had talked with Sink recently, about a dispute with Sink.

Senators Work Late on Measure
AUSTIN, May 2 (AP)—The senate worked late tonight to pass the $13,820,313.67 departmental appropriations bill. The original amount recommended by the senate committee on finance was $13,879,433.76.

An economy wave, gaining in momentum throughout the day, resulted in elimination of $107,400 in appropriations from the original bill. Meanwhile other amendments providing for an increase of $45,580 were adopted.

The state barber board was the heaviest loser, a total of $13,400 having been taken from its recommended total of $48,650. The board also shared with all other departments in a cut of 10 per cent in traveling expenses.

BLAZING WELL DEFIES CREW OF EXPERTS AT GLADEWATER

FIERY GUSHER TO COST SINCLAIR COMPANY NEAR $50,000

GLADEWATER, May 2 (AP)—As workmen hurried preparations today to extinguish flames which had raged for more than 100 hours in the Sinclair No. 1 Cole well, near Gladewater, they still had the prospect of another stiff battle to control the flow of oil from the big producer if they were successful in plugging out the fire.

It was while workmen were trying to cage the wild producer last Tuesday that a spark caused by toolstriking together set off the great torch which fatally burned nine persons and brought to the scene experts to battle the fire with nitrogen. More than 150,000 barrels of oil were estimated to have been consumed.

The Sinclair Oil and Gas company will have spent more than $50,000 to plug out the flames according to Wesley G. Gish, executive in charge of East Texas operations for the company.

M. M. and Harry Kinley, Oklahoma oil fire fighters of renown, were arriving impatient today as the giant furnace reared its defiance. They indicated that physical conditions might permit them to shoot the well at dawn tomorrow, although that was not certain. Glenn Harroun, in charge of production for the company, said it was possible the attempt to plug the flames at the casinghead would not be made until dawn Monday.

The Kinleys said the greatest obstruction to immediate action was the "Kelley joint" protruding high above the ground at the well. A large contraption of steel pipe was being welded together to be used as a ram in an effort to knock the joint down.

MONDAY TO BE STRAW HAT DAY

Beginning tomorrow, local men may wear straw hats without receiving watercracks and danger of having the "hids" thrown about or ruined.

For Monday is officially Straw Hat day in Pampa. Merchants have complete stocks and have followed the lead of the metropolitan points in receiving shipments early.

The current styles are dressier and shapes are jaunter than the straws of any previous season. Included in local showings are the split straws, seamlis, Milanese, leghorns, bangkoks, panamas, and novelty weaves. There are new proportions of crowns and brims.

Many straws have appeared on the streets during the last week.

Gulf Operators Form Committee

HOUSTON, May 2 (AP)—Gulf coast oil operators in Texas today appointed an advisory committee to cooperate with the state railroad commission in prorating production in this area.

The committee of 11 decided to meet next Thursday here to discuss the advisability of recommending to the commission an order of curtailment, in supplement to the statewide order prorating the gulf coast among other fields recently issued.

THIRD RICHEST MAN SUCCEUMBS TO PNEUMONIA

GEORGE F. BAKER DIES FOLLOWING SHORT ILLNESS

POWER IN WALL STREET FORMER ADVISOR TO ELDER MORGAN ON FINANCE

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—George F. Baker, 91, dean of New York financiers, died at his home tonight of pneumonia. The aged financier died at 8 p. m. in his secretary, Frank Rysavy, announced. He had been ill since Thursday.

George F. Baker, Jr., and other relatives were with the banker at the residence, 258 Madison avenue, when death came.

A formal statement was issued some few minutes later which said: "George F. Baker passed away peacefully tonight at 8 o'clock."

His secretary said the financier had suffered no pain during his last hour.

At his bedside were his daughter, Mrs. William Gooby Loew, his son and grandchildren.

Mr. Baker celebrated his 91st birthday March 27 last, at Jekyll Island.

Earlier in the evening Dr. George D. Stewart and Dr. Neils E. Power told newspapermen the financier was very low and he did not expect him to live through the night.

The banker, regarded as the third richest man in the country, lapsed into unconsciousness late in the day. Three doctors remained constantly at his bedside to the end.

Baker returned a few weeks ago from his winter home on Jekyll island, off the Georgia coast. He then was apparently in the best of health. After spending Thursday at his desk in the First National bank, of which he was president, he was seized with a chill in the evening, and pneumonia developed rapidly.

Baker had been a power and an outstanding figure in the financial history of the country almost half a century. His activities, centered chiefly in banking, extended, however, into the railroad field as well.

Known as the "emigna of Wall street" and the "man of silence," he was a contemporary of the elder J. P. Morgan, who frequently turned to him for counsel. A score of wealthy men were regarded as Morgan's chief ally. On the death of Morgan it was reported Baker controlled interests valued at $1,368,250,000.

His wife died many years ago. He had only one son, named for him, who followed in his footsteps. Baker was born in Troy, N. Y. He once held a $2 a week clerkship. Coming to New York in his youth, Baker immediately entered the banking field and gave all of his life to financial matters. He had been Spartanlike in his devotion to his business affairs, going to his office early mornings and staying late into the night.

His benefactions have totaled hundreds of millions. Schools, colleges, hospitals and art centers have shared his bounty. His gifts to Harvard university totaled many millions. Baker Field, Columbia university, was his gift.

On Rescue

A daring flight of hundreds of miles across frozen Arctic wastes faced Captain Albin Ahrensberg, above, noted Swedish aviator, when he took off from Malmoe, Sweden, in an attempt to rescue Augustine Courtald, British meteorologist, believed to be marooned in a hut on the far distant Greenland ice cap. Another relief expedition was unable to find Courtald.

MADEIRA ISLE REVOLT STOPS

REBEL LEADER GIVES UP TO MINISTER OF MARINE

By GEORGE HALADJIAN LISBON, Portugal, May 2 (AP)—Harassed on all sides by Portugal's available military and naval forces, and deserted by the comrades on whose support they had counted, the rebels who set up a junta government in Madeira a month ago, surrendered today.

General Souza Dias surrendered unconditionally to Magalhães Correia, the minister of marine, who commanded the attacking force, winding up a month of "warfare" in which the casualties on both sides were small and during which no civilian or foreign resident was injured.

By land, sea and air the federal troops bombarded the rebels, but despite the natural fortifications of the island the junta forces were outnumbered and tonight government troops took over while the rebel leaders sought sanctuary at the British legation.

The surrender was good news to President Camara, for it came on the heels of May day rioting in which the police had to turn a machine gun on a crowd, killing two men and wounding a score of others.

The situation seemed serious and the cabinet sought shelter in the Third Regiment barracks, but the cheers with which Lisbon received the news from Funchal, an embattled supporter of the government and mitigated fears that the revolt in Madeira might spread to Portugal itself.

Student at Rice Killed in Crash

HOUSTON, May 2 (AP)—A Rice institute student was injured fatally and two other college youths sustained serious injuries early tonight when the automobile in which they were returning from a track meet at College Station crashed into the rear of a cotton truck near Pampa, 18 miles from here.

Dero Fred Armitstead, 19, sophomore student at Rice, died in a hospital late tonight from a fractured skull.

Herman Allen Bartlett, Houston, also a Rice sophomore, is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and numerous cuts about the face and chest.

J. D. Bellefont of Mercedes, student at Texas A. and M. college, received a broken right arm and leg and severe cuts about the head and body.

MISS LAMONT WED

HEAD CRUSHED BY WHEEL OF HEAVY TRUCK

JUMPS OFF SIDE OF MOVING CAR ON HIGHWAY

CLOTHES ARE CAUGHT THROWN UNDER WHEEL AND KILLED ALMOST INSTANTLY

MEMPHIS, May 2 (Special)—A leap from a moving truck for his hat that a brisk May wind had blown from his head brought instant death to Roy J. Wells of Pampa about 6 o'clock today.

Wells was riding near the rear of a truck driven by C. L. Guinn of Pampa. Clarence B. George of Pampa was another occupant of the seat. As Wells jumped from the truck to retrieve his hat, his clothing caught and he was thrown under a rear wheel of the truck. His head was crushed as the wheel passed over.

The body is being held at a Memphis undertaking establishment, pending funeral instructions from relatives in Missouri. The accident happened about 8 miles south of Memphis. Wells had been living in Pampa about four years. He has a sister, Mrs. C. J. Dorbox, at Corkey, Mo. Guinn and George were en route to Gladewater with a shooting gallery which Mr. George had been operating in Pampa.

Truck Driver Hits Moore County Mud

It rained in Moore county last week. In fact it poured, or so declared a driver for the Magnolia Petroleum company when he arrived in Pampa last night with a truck so caked a mud that it was hardly recognizable. The driver left one of the company's leases in Moore county early Thursday afternoon.

During the first 36 hours he made 30 miles and had a big truck when he hit a road made of mud. The sea of mud. His truck used 70 gallons of gasoline on the trip from the lease to Pampa, he said. The big truck used for making the truck was never out of low gear during the entire 36 hours, the driver reported.

"Yep, we had mud up in that country," the begrimed driver said before going home for a much needed bath and some sleep which was badly needed.

MAD MARRIAGE

Laura Lou Brookman Author of "Headsprung"

Gypsy shook her head. "I can't go to your aunt's house," she said. Jim had taken out a cigarette. He threw it down unlighted. "That's nothing but an excuse," he said angrily. "You know it. You're only saying that because you don't want to go."

"I tell you I'm not. I've had all the results from your relatives. I intend to listen to 'em not going out of my way to hear more of them!"

"Now, Gypsy, I tell you I want you to do this. When did you get so thin-skinned about Aunt Ellen? She isn't going to hurt you. It's Marcia we're going to see, anyhow. I've got to make this call and you've got to make it with me."

"Oh, no, I'm not!" The McBride temper was asserting itself. Gypsy's dark eyes flashed. "You're not!"

"I'm not, I tell you! I'm not!" One little brown oxford stamped the floor. Suddenly tears blinded the girl. Whirling, she ran from the room and up the stairway. A moment later, she came back, the door slammed behind her sharply.

It was unusual for Gypsy to weep. Now that the current was unobscured, it continued for several minutes.

No sound came from downstairs. She sat up, looking down at the rose sitting on the table. She had been crying and her eyes were red. She looked at the rose and her chest heaved. The visit to Marcia was unnecessary. What had she done? She had been so sure of her own right. How could she have quarreled with Jim? How could she have said such things to him? How could she have had her temper so out of control?

The angry, dark, defiant tones still rang in her ears. Gypsy was miserable. Of course Jim had been right. She should have gone with him. It had been such a relief to find Aunt Ellen's actions in fact quite the loyal way she had defended her. Besides, at her own expense had been pretense. The truth was that she did not want to call on Mrs. Phillips.

Presently she determined to go, that she could risk the situation. She ran to the bathroom and washed her face. A quick dash with the water puffed a touch of lipstick and she hurried down stairs.

"Jim," she called eagerly. "Jim!" He was not in the living room. She glanced into the library. No one there. A quick search showed the house was deserted except for Mattie and Kore in the kitchen. Gypsy returned to the living room. She remembered that Jim's hat had been on the table near the door. Now the hat was gone.

She heard Pat's little feet patter across the hall floor. The fox-terrier appeared and at sight of her his tall, bobbed cheerfulness Gypsy paid no attention.

Pat swaggered up to her. Presently a cool nose was nuzzling against her fingers. The girl moved to make room for him and the terrier jumped up beside her. He pressed his small head against her, looking up anxiously. Gypsy stroked his chin but did not speak.

It was nearly 6 when Jim returned. Gypsy was waiting for him. Before they went to dinner she tried to apologize for the earlier scene. Jim interrupted.

"Forget about it," he said quickly. "I was to blame. Please don't think about it any more."

"But I'll go with you, Jim. I should have when you asked me first. I—I want to go."

Wallace shook his head. "Don't forget the whole thing," he said. "No importance anyhow. By the way, I ordered some shirts that should be sent out tomorrow. They're from Kent's."

The conversation, once turned, did not return to the disagreement. Gypsy felt certain Jim had called at his aunt's home but he did not mention the fact and she could not ask. At the dinner table and later, Jim was as usual scrupulously considerate. Occasionally the girl thought he seemed preoccupied but a moment later he would turn to her with a bit of news from the office or to ask her about the new dress she had bought at Sam's.

He left home at 8:30 to withdraw to his desk in the library. All the rest of the week Gypsy watched for danger signals. On Friday Jim announced casually that Marcia Phillips wanted his advice on some financial problem, and that he had arranged to drop in to see her the following afternoon. Gypsy glanced up quickly. There was no suggestion that she should accompany him. The girl said nothing.

When she was alone Gypsy could never get Marcia Phillips from her mind. She began to wonder what the girl looked like. Had she really come to Forest City because she wanted quiet? Gypsy remembered the photograph she had seen in the newspaper and wondered if Marcia were really so beautiful. Most important of all, how did Jim feel about Marcia? How did she feel about him?

There were no answers to any of these questions. Gypsy kept her speculations to herself. Abbie Manley telephoned one morning and told Gypsy she had tickets for the hospital benefit garden party at the Willises the next afternoon. "It's going to be lovely," Abbie predicted. "Madge Wellington's on the committee and she told me all about it. Can you be ready about 3:30 if I stop for you?"

Gypsy was delighted with the invitation. The garden fete was sponsored by Forest City's most conservative social leaders. The proceeds were to supply linen for the new Union Memorial hospital. The Willis home was a show place and Gypsy was anxious to see the famous rose gardens.

She put on a new frock for the affair—a white crepe with touches of tomato red embroidery and a white kid belt. She wore white shoes and a white straw hat with a brim that lifted in front. Abbie praised the costume.

When they arrived already a large crowd of men and women had gathered about the stands.

where girls in bright frocks were selling flowers. Others were having cool refreshments in the shade of enormous beach umbrellas. "Look, Abbie Manley exclaimed. "There's Madge! Both where they're selling those lovely Italian flower baskets. I must have one! Let's go over before they're gone!" Gypsy had been watching a small boy trying to operate a mechanical toy donkey. She turned. As she did so the profile of a young woman not 10 feet away caught her attention. Gypsy knew her instantly.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Abbie Manley's gaze followed Gypsy to the girl with the blond hair. "Well, wouldn't you think—" Abbie began indignantly but her words broke.

"There had been three women in the group. One of them she was Mrs. Brooks, the rector's wife, moved away. They saw that the thing was Ellen Wallace. Miss Wallace was facing them."

"Hello, Aunt Ellen," Abbie said, moving forward. "How do you know Hello, Marcia. My dear, you know we all sympathize with you in your sorrow. Oh, excuse me—I don't suppose you've met Gypsy here. Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Wallace, Gypsy took Marcia Phillips' hand. "I'm glad to know you," she said. "The other girls' response was a polite murmur. The photograph in the newspaper had been accurate. Marcia was beautiful. She was dressed in thin black, modest in style and feminine but cut to reveal the graceful slender figure. She wore a small hat made of folds of cloth wrapped about her head. Her hair was of pure gold, waving softly about her face. Her eyes were gray blue, shadowed by lashes that Gypsy's sister knew had her expertly made up. Thin black brows, forming a broad arc, gave the face an unusual accent. The thin lips, which were very red-lipped, as they had in the photograph, suggested an enigma. Gypsy knew instantly that she would not like Marcia Phillips.

"Everybody in town seems to be here," Ellen Wallace spoke up. "They ought to make a lot for the hospital. Marcia didn't want to come but I said it's time she was getting out and seeing people. Better for her. She's used to such an active life it's not right to stay cooped up in the house all the time."

Abbie nodded her head in agreement. "How long are you going to be in Forest City?" she asked Marcia. "Oh, I really don't know. This summer at least." Marcia's voice had a drawing quality. "Aunt Ellen's been so sweet to me—you know I've always called her that. She says that now she's in her own home she likes company. Of course I know I'm a frightful nuisance—'Nothing of the sort!' Ellen Wallace insisted. 'She's going to stay with me just as long as I can persuade her to. Her mother's in Italy, you know. We're going to keep Marcia here as long as we'll stay.'

"That's fine. I'll drop in sometime soon, Aunt Ellen. Well, we've just come so I suppose we should be moving along. I want to buy one of those lovely garden baskets. Come to see me, won't you?"

Abbie and Gypsy moved on toward the booth sale where the baskets were for sale. "Well," said Abbie when they had gone some distance, "for a young widow Marcia doesn't look to me to be exactly heart-broken."

"The same thought had flashed through Gypsy's mind but all she said was "She's lovely, isn't she?" "Pretty, all right. I never see much store by any of the family myself. Marcia's mother always put on airs. Seemed to think she was better than anyone else in town, though goodness knows they didn't have any reason to feel that way. Well—Marcia should have enough money to last her for a while now. I suppose you heard?"

"No, I didn't hear anything about it."

"You didn't? Well, she's got $500,000. The day before they were married young Phillips took out a policy for that amount and put it in Marcia's name. Doesn't it seem like the hand of providence? I don't know whether there's any more coming to her or not but that's probably it. Her husband was the only son Phillips had, though there are a couple of daughters. The talk is that the Phillips family isn't any too friendly with Marcia. I don't know why. Anyhow it's my opinion that's the reason she's staying on here. Let her get the $500,000 and you won't see Marcia Phillips wasting any time in Forest City."

"She asked Jim to come over and give her advice about some financial matter," Gypsy said. "Did she?" Abbie Manley shot a quick glance at her companion but the girl's face revealed nothing. Someone stopped them and Abbie introduced Gypsy to a number of men and women who scarcely heard her. A fat, good-natured looking man who had just bought a bouquet of red roses was presenting a flower to each of the women. Gypsy tucked her nose through a bit of her white frock. They went on to the booth. There was a crowd about. Abbie pushed her way forward and in five minutes emerged holding aloft the coveted basket.

"Isn't it a beauty?" she exclaimed. "Only five more left. They're going like hot cakes." The basket was the wide low kind used to carry cut flowers. It was of colorful straw, roughly braided. Gypsy admired it and they moved off to have a look at the other booths.

The grounds of the Willis home where the garden party was being held were surrounded by a tall hedge, sheltering it from the street. On the grassy front lawn a dozen fine awning-covered booths were being erected. Only the bare, flat colors of the women's and children's dresses gave the scene a festive look. At the left was the tea pavilion with its wide striped awning where tea and iced drinks were being served. Young girls dressed in white moved about among the men and women who sat in the shade of beach umbrellas. Beyond at the rear of the house was the famous Willis rose garden. Shall we have tea now or look at the roses?" Abbie asked.

Gypsy said she was eager to see the flowers. They followed a flagstone path to the arched gateway. Crimson rambler roses festooned the entire arch. Within was a formal garden at the center of which was a fountain with two childish figures molded in bronze. Paths led to either side and toward the fountain. Bordering the walks and arranged in regular groups were shrubs and bushes loaded with fragrant blossoms. There were red roses, pink ones, white ones. Mashed about the central fountain were tall bushes bearing great crimson roses. In two smaller groups on each side exotic tea roses shading from pink to clear yellow nodded gently in the breeze. Old-fashioned garden flowers mingled with the roses but their scent was lost in the predominating fragrance. There seemed to be roses everywhere.

Men and women in groups strolled about the paths. Gypsy smiled and delighted. She had never seen so many flowers. It was 3:30 when they finally returned to the tea pavilion. Now the crowd was thinning out. Gypsy surveyed her neighbors. There were one of two whom she had met earlier in the afternoon. Ellen Wallace and Marcia were no longer in sight. She followed Abbie to a table where they were joined presently by two older women. The conversation was chiefly about what a great success the fete had been. It had all been because of the weather. The committee was assured of funds enough to buy the hospital linen. Gypsy only half heard what they were saying. At last she and Abbie rose and said good-bye.

Jim was at home when Gypsy arrived there. For some reason that evening she could not bring herself to tell him she had met Marcia. She spoke of the rose garden, mentioned others she had talked with, but all the while Gypsy herself was thinking about Marcia Phillips. She was thinking how beautiful Marcia had looked. Less than 24 hours were to pass.

Crimson rambler roses festooned the entire arch. Within was a formal garden at the center of which was a fountain with two childish figures molded in bronze. Paths led to either side and toward the fountain. Bordering the walks and arranged in regular groups were shrubs and bushes loaded with fragrant blossoms. There were red roses, pink ones, white ones. Mashed about the central fountain were tall bushes bearing great crimson roses. In two smaller groups on each side exotic tea roses shading from pink to clear yellow nodded gently in the breeze. Old-fashioned garden flowers mingled with the roses but their scent was lost in the predominating fragrance. There seemed to be roses everywhere. Men and women in groups strolled about the paths. Gypsy smiled and delighted. She had never seen so many flowers. It was 3:30 when they finally returned to the tea pavilion. Now the crowd was thinning out. Gypsy surveyed her neighbors. There were one of two whom she had met earlier in the afternoon. Ellen Wallace and Marcia were no longer in sight. She followed Abbie to a table where they were joined presently by two older women. The conversation was chiefly about what a great success the fete had been. It had all been because of the weather. The committee was assured of funds enough to buy the hospital linen. Gypsy only half heard what they were saying. At last she and Abbie rose and said good-bye. Jim was at home when Gypsy arrived there. For some reason that evening she could not bring herself to tell him she had met Marcia. She spoke of the rose garden, mentioned others she had talked with, but all the while Gypsy herself was thinking about Marcia Phillips. She was thinking how beautiful Marcia had looked. Less than 24 hours were to pass.

August 30, 1929, and demolition of the site of the old Waldorf Astoria hotel was begun on the following October 1. The steel was erected in six months, a record, and the building was occupied in less than two years. That's a monument to modern finance, architecture, and enterprise.

There is no place for pessimism in Pampa, a city destined to be important and thriving in this upper plains area of Texas. With good roads in the making, a railroad assured, and oil in the ground, it should have few worries. It needs the application of sound, progressive building methods, without the hysteria and speculation of boom days. Believe in Pampa and you will not be disappointed.

The BRIDE'S DREAM Becomes a REALITY!

A cozy house with its home-like atmosphere—that's the dream of many a bride. And that dream can be made a reality for a comparatively small amount. Perhaps it has been many years since the "bride" of your household first became a bride, nevertheless she still has the ambitions for a home of her own that bloom in the heart of every bride.

There is no good reason now why her dreams cannot be realized. Lumber and other building materials are now priced lower than in many years. . . town lots and real estate are perhaps cheaper than they will ever be again. . . more workmen are idle than ever before. . . skilled workmen are available to perform the construction of the home you have so long desired, and your favorite lumberman will be glad to assist you in making your plans for the new home. He will assist you in financing the deal.

Why wait longer when you can save by building now. Consult any lumberman affiliated with Hoo-Hoo. . . the members of this organization are at your service.

Rites for Hopkins Will Be Today

The Nail Keg

A column of news and views for Pampa people and our farmer friends.

Woman can do most anything with man but do without him.

Everybody is feeling better. Good rains over most of the territory makes the faces of most of us decidedly shorter and more pleasant.

Drinking may decline, but drinks seldom do.

Mrs. MacPherson (just at meal time): Sandy, we have guests at the door.

We delivered a new A2 International truck to the Petroleum Oil Co. This is a new model and a mighty pretty truck.

Sandy: Grab a toothpick, quick!

We don't want you to think we like to talk about ourselves too much, but we are making some mighty good prices on garden and lawn tools and accessories.

One would naturally expect something like this to happen: "Funds for prohibition enforcement are a mistake for the upkeep of the down-pout of the output."

"Ben Lockhart, from over near Miami was in this week and bought some repairs to get ready for harvest. He reports wheat looking as fine as can be around him, and good rains which will carry it through, with just an occasional shower before harvest."

"A man entered a restaurant and ordered his breakfast. As the waiter placed it on the table, he remarked, quietly: "It looks like rain."

Guest: "Yes, but I ordered coffee."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moss are down at Lake Kemp, doing a little early fishing. Fred is one of those serious fishermen, and is well posted on where, why and when to fish.

Nothing we know of has added less to the sum of human happiness than the discovery that spinach can be canned.

"Bill Benton says that crops over around Herford are looking fine. A number of our folks have interests there, and although we don't wish anybody anything but the best of luck, we would hate to see them get the idea that it was too good over there, and move off and leave us. We have been losing some mighty good folks the last two or three years.

Attorney: Why do you say they are gamblers?

Sheriff: While we were chasing them they were betting on which one of us would capture them.

We have orders for a couple of combines over in Hutchinson county. H. O. Roberts and W. U. Cook, who came to this country as Truck Contractors, are doing quite a lot of farming over there and are buying new machines for this harvest.

Joens: Well, old man, how are you getting along with your poultry raising? Making expenses?

Smith: Not yet, but my hens have taken to eating their own eggs, so I hope they soon will become self-supporting.

PARTY LEADERS FLAY COMMERCE BODY AT MEET

NATIONAL CHAMBER FAILS TO PRESENT USEFUL PLANS

WASHINGTON, May 2. (AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce was charged today by Republican independent senators with failing at its recent Atlantic City convention, to present a program for solving the nation's economic problems.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, said the industrial and financial leadership represented at the meeting attempted to shift the blame for the economic depression from its own shoulders to "politics and politicians."

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders attributed great political significance to the speech of Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board before the chamber, advocating reductions in the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates to benefit foreign trade and aid in the revival of business.

Revision of tariff rates was opposed, however, by Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee and Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, a Republican member of the committee.

Smoot co-author of the tariff bill, said at Salt Lake City he knew of nothing "worse for American business today than a demand for another revision of tariff by congress."

Bingham said tariff revision at this time might do more harm than good. He added Barnes' statement was not representative of the opinions of "more than a very small group of international bankers, importers and retailers."

Senators Harrison of Mississippi and Hull of Tennessee, both Democrats, said Barnes' speech was a vindication of their tariff policies and indicated American business men have turned against the Hawley-Smoot tariff law.

The Democrats contended the Barnes statement and recent tariff utterances by some Republicans would make it difficult for the administration to defend the Hawley-Smoot law in the coming campaign.

Commenting on the chamber of commerce sessions, Senator Borah said: "There was only one thing that I gleaned from the proceedings at Atlantic City, and that was that no Moses appeared."

"Congress," he added, "has been fearfully criticized for having no plans. It would appear from the results at Atlantic City that there were no plans submitted there."

"They were only clear about concluding in unaminous on one thing and that was they did not want any increased taxes levied upon those who were there represented."

Senator LaFollette said the financial leaders "having led the country into the deepest depression in our experience now refuse to carry their fair share of the added burden and responsibilities of government."

He added "the hope of the country" lies not with the "do nothing attitude" he said was reflected by the chamber of commerce and the administration of President Hoover, but with the financial and business leaders "who have a consciousness of social responsibility and are struggling, however feebly, to find an answer to these complex questions."

Widows Of Famous Men Hide Away Unseen At Capital

WASHINGTON, May 2. (AP)—Widows of famous men so successfully seclude themselves in Washington that few know their whereabouts.

The busy world rushes by them as they shut themselves away in their houses and it is only when one of them dies that they appear again for a brief moment in the public interest.

Admiral Dewey's widow, who died recently, once took a brilliant part in Washington society, but had, in her later years, completely withdrawn from all social life.

Mrs. William C. Gorgas, whose husband sought to conquer yellow fever, lived in Washington until her death a few years ago.

Their was a romance of hospital wards. Each nursed the other through a siege of the dread fever.

Mrs. Robert E. Peary, widow of the discoverer of the North Pole, is another who finds much pride and pleasure in the souvenirs of her husband's daring.

The widow of General Phil Sheridan has lived quietly in the capital for years, her windows looking out upon the statue of her famous husband.

ABILENE CHRISTIAN WINS CANYON MEET

CANYON, May 2. (AP)—Under powerful flood lights in Buffalo Stadium the Wildcats of Abilene Christian college ran, jumped and timber-hopped their way to a win in the eleventh annual Great Plains track and field meet here tonight.

The A. C. stars scored 55-1-6 points to lead seven colleges from three states.

The powerful Central Teachers Buildings of Edmond, Okla., placed second with 40-1-6 counters, while the other entries lagged as follows: Amarillo college 24-1-6, New Mexico Military Institute 23, Panhandle A. & M. of Goodwell, Okla., 16-1-3, West Texas Teachers 6, and Randolph Junior college of Cisco 0.

The Baptist university of Shawnee, Okla., failed to show, having encountered muddy roads on the journey to Canyon.

The winners displayed the lion that has won national recognition for them in the relays by running away from the field in the mile and medley relays. No new records were set for the meet, chiefly because the track was soggy and heavy.

MISS JOBE WINS

FORT WORTH, May 2. (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Jobe of Simmons university, Abilene, won first place in statewide girls oratorical contest held here at Texas Christian university. Miss Jacque Landsdale of Texas Christian university, won second place and Miss Edna Irwin of Baylor college, third.

MAUDE JONES HELD IN JAIL FOR HEARING

DR. BRUNOW EXAMINES WOMAN FOR TRAIT OF INSANITY

Mrs. Maude Jones got into more trouble Friday evening. She was placed in jail for a sanity hearing upon a complaint signed by Constable E. R. Turman and issued by County Attorney Sherman White.

Late last night she was not out of jail. Indications were that she would not be out for a day or two. The county deferred preparations for the hearing, pending a report of Dr. V. E. von Brunow, county physician.

Dr. Brunow spent an hour looking the woman's story and observing her and announced to officers and Mr. White that she was not insane. "Although," he added, "she may be a bit queer—as all of us are in some ways I would never call her insane."

The county physician also advised officers to allow the woman to make several affidavits regarding statements she made to him in the cell. He said it was his opinion that Mrs. Jones has been persecuted to some extent. He advised officers to make several arrests if they found her story true after investigating. Mrs. Jones declared yesterday in her cell that she had been robbed of her house, furniture and personal belongings. "They burned my dead mother's picture," she asserted. Mrs. Jones was arrested Friday afternoon while she was throwing out of her house furniture belonging to the present occupant. She said she gained admittance by prying open the doors with a crow-bar. Mrs. Jones, herself, built the house. It is a shack about 30 feet long and contains three apartments. Layers of newspapers are tacked on the inside walls, and between two outside walls of lumber.

Mr. Jones arrived back in Pampa from Kansas City last Tuesday. She left here last January by the hitchhike method and she returned in the same manner. She said she found it easy to catch rides.

Mrs. Jones was placed in the custody of her daughter in Kansas City in February after she appeared in the police court there, charging that she was attacked by a cafeteria nightwatchman. She said officers "got the man off and tried to frame" her by saying that she was insane. Mrs. Jones said she was selling chewing gum on the streets when the nightwatchman invited her in the place to warm. She declared she was badly injured when he pushed her down a stairway.

Ray Chastain visited with his parents in Panhandle yesterday. Miss Bobbie Jean Robinson visited in Amarillo yesterday.

WICHITA FALLS WOMAN IS NEW STATE CHAMP

COMES FROM BEHIND AT THIRTY-FOURTH HOLE TO WIN

By BILL PARKER
 Associated Press Sports Writer

COUNTRY CLUB, SAN ANTONIO, May 2 (AP)—Playing in the finals of the 1931 Texas Women's Golf association championship here today, Mrs. Hunter led to Mrs. R. F. Fisk, Wichita Falls, one up in a 36-hole match. Mrs. Hunter fought gamely to overtake Mrs. Fisk's four up lead she enjoyed at the 13th green, to make the turn all square. In the afternoon round, she jumped into a one-up lead at the 19th and held it to the 34th, but she lost the 35th and halved the 36th.

When the critics gather around and pick the championship match to shreds for flaws and flawless shots, they will find that a day of unanny pitch shots, which failed her for a few holes, but returned when she needed them most, saved the match and title for Mrs. Fisk. The Wichita Falls champion is a fine golfer to hold the title. She is a slow, deliberate player who takes plenty of time with her shots. Today she showed a stout heart to keep going after losing her four up lead. It was her first competition in a state championship tournament, which makes her feat the more remarkable, for in defeating Mrs. Hunter she stopped a golfer who has campaigned in several major tournaments, and one of the longest tee golfers in the Texas Women's Golf association.

In the morning round Mrs. Fisk won five of the first nine holes to make the initial turn two up. She won the 10th and 13th to take a four-up lead. Here the gallery saw a quick finish for Mrs. Hunter, but they anticipated wrong. Mrs. Hunter's partner started to work and she won the next five holes to make the turn all square. Her best played green was a 35 foot putt at the 15th for a birdie three.

PAMPA ALL-STARS PLAY WHITE DEER

The Pampa All-Stars baseball team will play White Deer this afternoon on the White Deer lot. A game scheduled for this afternoon with the Hopkins nine was postponed so that members of the Hopkins team could attend the funeral of John Hopkins.

Manager Murray Freundlich of the All-Stars is taking his entire team to White Deer that town is supposed to have a fast nine.

The Pampa Barbers and the Magnolia "Mags" are to play a game at 2:30 this afternoon at the Magnolia field has dried sufficiently. Last night the field was soggy but Magnolia team officials believed the field would be dry for this afternoon's encounter.

In LeFors the Coltex team will meet the Prairie Oilers from Borger. The game is called for 2:30 o'clock. It will be the first meeting of the two teams this year.

ELLIOT WILL BATTLE AT MAJESTIC THURSDAY

King Elliott, the heavyweight who put Sailor Otis Clingman in the hospital Friday night, will probably be seen in action here Thursday night against a man in his own class. Promoter Frank Hunt of the New Majestic is in touch with promoters in San Antonio and El Paso trying to land a fast heavy for the English mauler.

Mr. Hunt said he preferred them to send Billy Edwards if he was available; Edwards is one of the toughest men in his class and he would give the big Englishman a battle, Mr. Hunt said.

"Elliott is one of the greatest wrestlers I have ever seen," Mr. Hunt said last night, "and I want to get a boy that will be in his class," he said.

SCHEIDER BOWLERS IN BORGER TOURNAMENT

The five men will enter in the singles events while the doubles teams will be composed of Oliver and Thompson; Powell and Husack; and Peek and a bowler not named last night.

The five man play will be at 10 o'clock this morning. Two man competition will start at 3 o'clock with the singles following.

PAMPA SPORTS

By HARRY HOARE

Am I riled? Well here and now is the reason. Friday night the Amarillo Globe came out with the Amarillo Sandies football schedule and comments on the various games to be played. And here is the—cup on Pampa. "In the first District 1 battle, the locals will travel down to a few oilwells to meet an arch-rival, The Harvesters of Pampa, on October 17. On this battle depends the Sandies' chance to go on at a chance at the state crown."

Can you imagine a statement like that? I could have understood the Sandies coming down to play a town in the Amarillo oilfield but I didn't think they would belittle their oil territory. Well, when the Sandies come to Pampa this fall they are going to wish they had stayed at home. Coach Odus Mitchell has already determined to win the game so Amarillo had better come prepared.

Next Saturday we should know whether the one year residence rule for high school football will go into effect this year. The rule may be all right for towns and cities with no signs of future growth but for places growing every year it will hurt football. Or if the rule is to be put into effect, a years notice should be given.

Sailor Otis Clingman wants the public to know that he is not open to challenge for golf games this week. Following his injuries Friday night when King Elliott, 177-pound Englishman, bitted him from the ring three times, everyone wants a crack at the middleweight champ. Clingman suffered a torn rib, dislocated knee and other injuries during the terrific battle. He is wrapped in 15 yards of adhesive tape and doesn't feel like enjoying life.

Several Pampa wrestling fans showed mighty poor sportsmanship Friday night when King Elliott won the first fall from Otis Clingman by butting him from the ring. One fan in particular cannot be commended, as he threw a cigar butt at the Englishman and burned his shoulder. Butting is allowed in the wrestling game. Clingman has used the same tactic several times to win falls. In fact the Pampa fan used that particular style on the Englishman three times during the first fall. I admit the Englishman used the Sonnenberg special when he could have pinned Clingman and won the fall, but all is fair in the wrestling game. Clingman said yesterday that Elliott was one of the cleanest wrestlers he has ever had the pleasure of meeting and only for his terrific strength and weight could have given him a tough battle.

Although names of more than a score of baseball-leaders have been mentioned unofficially for the presidency, a position paying $40,000 a year in salary, reliable information has been obtained that Harridge will be named by the American League club owners when they finally get around to it, probably not until next December.

Harridge, private secretary to the late Byron Bancroft Johnson for 16 years and secretary of the league since 1927, has been handling the affairs of the league as president since President Edwards' death last March although the title acting head automatically reverted to Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit club and vice president of the league. Affairs have run along so smoothly in the league that neither Navin nor Harridge have been forced to confer on questions of policy as yet.

HARRIDGE MAY FOLLOW AS LEAGUE PRESIDENT

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP)—William Harridge, a silent but powerful figure in the world of organized baseball for almost a quarter of a century, tonight appeared certain of succeeding the late Ernest Sargent Barnard as president of the American League.

Although names of more than a score of baseball-leaders have been mentioned unofficially for the presidency, a position paying $40,000 a year in salary, reliable information has been obtained that Harridge will be named by the American League club owners when they finally get around to it, probably not until next December.

UNIFORMED LEGION BAND WILL APPEAR TWICE DURING WEEK

PRELUDE TO PROGRAM WEDNESDAY IS ARRANGED

Pampa's uniformed Legion band, recognized as one of the best organizations of its type in the Panhandle, will appear twice during music week.

The first appearance will be Wednesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the city auditorium, where a concert will be played as a prelude to the artists' program by Mrs. Hazel Silver Rickett and Joe Leikowicz. The addition of the band to the soprano and violin concerts is expected to cause the auditorium to be packed with local music lovers.

On Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock the Legion band will give an open air concert in front of the American Legion hall. Later in the season it will present weekly outdoor concerts at points in the city to be announced. When the new city parkways are sufficiently developed to permit residents to walk on the grass, the band will be heard from the bandstand to be erected.

CHILDRESS COUNTY Has Huge Acreage Sowed In Alfalfa

CHILDRESS, May 2. (AP)—Farmers of Childress county, in the Red river valley, have planted alfalfa in more than 2,000 acres this year, it was estimated by V. E. Halfer, county agent.

The first crop will be ready for harvest within a month or six weeks, and a big yield is expected. Halfer said alfalfa would replace many concentrated feeds used in dairying, and the growth of alfalfa and dairying are being encouraged as joint enterprises.

Scoutmaster J. D. Sackett gave a talk on "Discipline" at the meeting of Troop 80, Friday, at the Methodist church.

Plans are being made for overnight hikes, but each patrol is required to be under the supervision of a man before these hikes can be made. The troop asks that any man interested in scout work aid them.

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Julian Lake's plan to effect his daughter's marriage to Nicholas Thayer turns the motherless Nora against the young artist. Yet he would, as her penniless artist father declares, provide her a home and end the wandering which has been her lot since her mother died. Now they are living in a villa lent them by a Mrs. Nevers, and Julian has even borrowed from Nicholas to pay the cook! After Nora surrenders Thayer and helps prevent the loss of his injured hand, the revealed bitterness of his life draws her closer to him. Perhaps her interest is partly due to his brother, Jonathan, by whom she had once been attracted. At any rate, when he plans to leave she asks him to remain.

Chapter 2 NICHOLAS DECIDES

The heady sweetness of the wild things that had been stepped all day in the sun, mint, grass, thyme, floated up to them like the breath of the earth as they stood there in the garden of Villa Rosa.

"Why do you want me to stay?" Nicholas answered.

Nora was thoughtful for a moment before she replied. The heavy structure of Nicholas' face had been brought out by his illness and there was a touch of cruelty in his gaunt cheeks and jutting nose and thin lips.

"There's something in the air," she said. "I feel it."

"Something in the air?" Nicholas questioned, his eyes searching those of the troubled girl before him. "I don't understand what you mean. What is it?"

"If I knew what it were I could face it," Nora continued. "But Julian is planning something. He won't tell me what it is. And I'm frightened. Couldn't you stay? I feel that you could stop him."

In Nora's troubled eyes there was desperate appeal. But Nicholas deliberately broke the emotional thread of her talk.

"I'm going to see a specialist about my hand," he replied. "There's a good man in Naples, I hear. I shall go there."

He wandered off and Nora felt herself shrinking with humiliation. She had begged him to stay and he had curtly brushed aside her plea.

He simply wanted to be rid of her and her father, as though secretly he despised them a little. But he had stayed on because it was convenient, accepted her father's hospitality, and allowed her to take care of him when he was ill.

"What's happened to the old fellow? Look here!" he called.

She followed reluctantly because she did not wish him to see how he had humiliated her.

Some one had twined a garland of laurel leaves about his battered head. Nicholas was leaning down, staring into the broken face.

"Which does he look like?" he asked.

Perhaps it was a trick of the light that made the grimace so full of mirth and scorn seem for a moment like her father's face.

"You see it too. We must tell him. He would appreciate that," Nicholas smiled.

"Who's that you're talking about?" her father's voice sounded behind them. He came and peered down and looked from Nora to Nicholas.

"You mean I look like that?" He jerked off the wreath of leaves and thrust it on his own dark head, and went capering down the path before them with the very gesture of the statue.

Dinner was waiting, her father announced, and Nora preceded them into the room that her father called pretentiously a dining room. The bare shining table was drawn near the open windows. Candles in twisted stone candlesticks winked against the dusk. Scarlet geraniums made a pool of brightness in the center of the table and the room took on a dim luster.

Julian Lake was in an expansive mood. He still wore the laurel wreath that had slipped to one side of his dark hair. He burst at once into talk.

"If I had my way we should live in some small village like peasants. We should cobble our own shoes and weave our own linen, and eat only what we raised with our own hands, wine and oil and green things that grow under the warm summer sun."

"Yoked to the oxen in the field,"

I suppose, and working all day through the burning heat," Nicholas said dryly.

"Yes, why not? To feel the sun burning down on your shoulders, the good clean sweat trickling down your back, to return at dusk to black bread and wine and share in the village dances."

He looked extremely handsome, his dark head flung back, his wine-colored eyes glowing, his sinuous lips smiling at them. But Nicholas thought him a fool, and Nora meeting his eyes felt a silent tremor of laughter pass between them.

His eyes lingered on her and she knew he was seeing her between the candle flames, for his expression changed as he somberly stared at her hair, her throat, her hands.

The dim old room, her father's mellow voice as he embroidered his theme, the humming of a heavy beetle knocking against the wire netting of the window all remained in Nora's consciousness as part of the magic of that hour.

Madalena brought in the dessert, a collection of chestnuts and cream that was her special pride. The dinner was over; Julian was pushing back his chair and saying:

"I want to talk to you, my dear fellow. You'll be gone tomorrow. This is our last chance."

She watched them step out

BIBLE CHAUTAUQUA CONTINUES IN STATE THEATRE

Evangelist Anderson speaks Sunday night in State Theatre on "Return of The Jews." Will the Jews return to Palestine and why? Will Jerusalem become the capital city of the world? Will the Jews be restored to national power? Could such an event bring the Millennium?

through the window, stood watching them as they paced the garden together, the bright sparks of their cigarettes like fireflies.

She would never see Nicholas Thayer again after tomorrow. He would forget her in his work; and she would forget him. Oh, yes, she would forget him!

Hard as it would be, she would put out of her mind the memory of her humiliation before him. How cruelly he had ignored her plea to remain and thereby protect her against that uncertain something she feared!

She turned away and knew that some one had come noiselessly into the room behind her. It seemed to her almost as though she had spoken the thought aloud and must hear that silent cry of woe. It was Nicholas.

"Nora, I won't go tomorrow, was all he said.

She felt as though the whole room were listening in the silence to the violence of her heart-beats. He was gone before she knew it, back to his father, but the world was rocked to its foundations.

MAD MARRIAGE

before the two girls met again. Gypsy was returning from a trip to buy the day's supplies. Pat trotted on ahead on his leash. As they turned a corner Gypsy saw a slender girl in a gray knitted suit coming toward it. It was Marcia, hatless, with nothing to conceal the glory of her sleeky golden hair. Marcia was walking slowly. At once she recognized Gypsy.

"Good morning," she said, smiling. "I think we met yesterday at the garden party. I'm Marcia Phillips."

"Yes," Gypsy answered. "I remember you. It's a beautiful morning to be walking."

"Isn't it? May I join you? Aunt Ellen insists I must get out for exercise but I've always hated doing things because they're good for me. You live near here, don't you?"

Gypsy nodded toward the Wallace house half way down the block. "The fourth house down," she said. "There was no sign from Marcia that she recognized the place. "Then we're neighbors," Marcia drawled. "You know I'm spending the summer with Aunt Ellen Wallace. I hope I'll see a great deal of you. It's only two years since I've lived in Forest City but I've scarcely any friends left. So far I've seen no one, except my lawyer."

There was a quick, feline flash in those blue-gray eyes or did Gypsy imagine it?

"I would have come to call," Gypsy said, "but I didn't think you'd care to see strangers."

Marcia nodded. There was both sadness and martyrdom in her face. "I haven't wanted to see anyone," she said. "But I feel now that I should make the effort. It's—not easy."

Certainly there was nothing to criticize in the young widow's voice or expression. Why did that persistent inner voice keep whispering to Gypsy, "It's a pose! She doesn't mean it?" The inner voice would not be still.

"Won't you come in?" Gypsy asked when they reached the brick walk. "I'd like you to see my garden."

Marcia smiled. "Another time perhaps. I must be getting on. Aunt Ellen expects me. Goodbye." She turned and Gypsy and Pat went up the walk toward the house. Gypsy walked slowly as though she were thinking.

At 3 o'clock that afternoon Jim Wallace rang the bell before his aunt's cottage. Marcia Phillips answered the ring.

"Come in," she said, smiling. "I'm glad you're early."

She was wearing a sleeveless frock of pale blue. It was not exactly a tea gown, nor an afternoon dress. It was draped gracefully, elaborately trimmed with lace dyed to match the fragile fabric. The dress was flattering.

"Thanks," Jim said. Marcia had dropped to the davenport and was leaning back against its cushions.

"Where's Aunt Ellen?" he asked. "She went to some church affair."

"Now about those papers you said you've received..." Marcia interrupted. The gray-

blue eyes looked out at him from between curling lashes. The lashes were (as Gypsy had suspected) expertly made up. "I didn't get those papers," Marcia said quietly.

"You didn't get them?"

The girl's eyes lowered. A moment later they met Jim's. There was a challenge, something more, in their depths.

"No," Marcia said. "I didn't get them. I asked you to come here oday, Jim, because I want to talk to you."

BENNETT BACK FROM LOOKING FOR GANGSTERS

ATTORNEY GENERAL IN MOUNTAINS A WEEK OBSERVING

ALBANY, N. Y., May 2. (AP)—The youngest of New York's long line of illustrious attorneys general returns after a week's campaign that has rid the picturesque Catskill mountain region of gangster activities.

John J. Bennett, Jr., in his early thirties, urbane, calm voiced and persistent, back to the capital after a week at Catskill, center of gang operations, has found it difficult to expose the operations of the lanky "Legs" Diamond and his mob.

"My observations during the week I have been in Catskill convince me I have a tough job," the attorney general said.

Information already gathered from the witnesses he has interviewed shows that Jack Diamond and his gang have done all their business with real finesse. For this reason witnesses generally have been reluctant so far to give any testimony as to actual commission of criminal acts by the Diamond gang.

Bennett learned that drivers of automobiles and trucks were stopped by gangsters and warned they might meet with some accident if they continued to travel certain highways. It was difficult to find anyone who had been threatened with death or violence if he failed to heed the warning.

For the past year or two the Catskill region has been reported as the center of beer racketeering operations. The locality is within easy motor distance of the New York market, while the cities of the Hudson and Mohawk river valleys are also within easy travel range.

Further, the inaccessibility of the mountains by paths furnish numerous hideaways in case of pursuit.

While the attorney general and his investigators have heard reports that some folks had given up money to racketeers under threat, careful inquiry developed that none of the alleged victims would admit he had been coerced. They had found instances, Mr. Bennett indicated, where individuals had loaned money to persons supposedly associated with Diamond, but borrowing is not an offense in the eyes of the law any more than is a warning that roads are dangerous.

Mr. Bennett is a former state commander of the American Legion. He is from Brooklyn.

When Diamond was shot and critically wounded at the Aratoga Inn at Catskill, under circumstances indicating gang warfare reprisals Governor Roosevelt ordered Bennett to supersede the Greene county prosecutor.

SINCLAIR'S LATEST CURB ATTACK FAILS

GUTHRIE, Okla., May 2. (AP)—The Sinclair Oil and Gas company failed today in its latest attack on Oklahoma's proration of oil production.

Sitting en banc, Judges John H. Cotteral, Franklin E. Kenamer and George F. McDermott in federal court for the western Oklahoma district denied a petition for an injunction against the state corporation commission, seeking increased allowable flow from the Oklahoma City field.

Sinclair attorneys gave notice of appeal, findings of fact in the case likely will be available next week.

Previous court decisions had upheld the validity of the state conservation statute under which proration is administered.

Allowable flow from the Oklahoma City field has been increased to about 175,000 barrels daily since the Sinclair petition was filed, attacking the commission's action in rescinding, at the direction of Governor W. H. Murray, its March 4 order increasing the flow from 125,000 to 150,000 barrels.

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED DIVORCE COMPLAINTS FILED IN FIRST DAY

RENO, May 2. (AP)—One hundred and eighty nine divorce complaints were filed in the office of County Clerk Elwood H. Osmer here today, marking the first day's rush under terms of Nevada's new six weeks divorce law.

The office opened for filing cases at 8 o'clock this morning and by late afternoon, most of the unusually heavy business had been cleared. At least 100 more cases will be filed, it is estimated, during the first few days of next week.

The cash register and the new time stapled device in the clerk's office were among the busiest instruments in this city today. All through the day, there was a line of lawyers or their stenographers in the court house awaiting their chance to file new divorce suits. Some had two or three cases and some eight or 10 and one filed as many as 14.

With each divorce complaint the cash register rang up a twenty-dollar bill or check for the filing fee, and if the answers were filed simultaneously, as they generally are in uncontested cases, an additional ten-dollar check or bill was rung up. Filing fees from divorce suits go into the county salary fund except for one dollar, which goes into the law library fund, and it is now being proposed to reduce the library allotment to 50 cents, as the library has more than it needs. Three dollars is set aside for the judges' salary fund and the remainder into the general salary fund.

The former king, traveling under the title of Duke of Toledo, was accompanied by the Duke of Miranda, his companion on the flight from Spain, and his spokesman since then.

Relief Expedition Halted by Mishap

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 2. (AP)—Misfortune dogged today in the wake of the expeditions which are endeavoring to reach Augustine Couard, British scientist, who is marooned on the interior of the Greenland ice-cap.

Captain Albin Ahrenberg took off in a plane early this afternoon, hoping to reach his base at Lemok Camp by dark, but he was forced to return less than two hours later because of unfavorable flying conditions and the need for readjustments on his motor.

Ahrenberg's failure to reach Greenland followed another serious slip in the rescue plan, when Pilot Sigurd Johansen, Swedish aviator, steamer Odinn, from which he flew this morning, Johansen's return was caused by damages to the plane which, it was believed, could not be repaired without bringing it back here for replacement.

SOCIAL CLUBS HOLD GATHERINGS

Living Rooms to be Judged Monday

WINNERS WILL BE IN CONTEST OF DISTRICT

OTHER ACTIVITIES ARE OF INTEREST ALSO TO CLUB WOMEN

Miss Ruby Seal, high school home economics instructor of McLean, will judge five living rooms of Gray county on Monday and Tuesday. The contest is preparatory to the district and state contests to be held in the near future.

The rooms are those of Mrs. Paul Davis, Bluebonnet; Mrs. Homer Taylor, Wayside; Mrs. Lawton Hofer, Laketon; Mrs. Norman Johnson, McLean; Mrs. J. T. Blakney, Alareed. These rooms were scored by Miss Seal during the winter before. They are divided into two classes. Those improved on less than $50, and those improved on more than that amount.

Winners in both classes will enter their rooms in the district contest, which covers all of the Panhandle territory, on May 22. On that day the two district winners will be chosen by Miss Sallie F. Hill of College Station, district home demonstration agent, and will be presented awards by the Semi-Weekly Farm News.

Rooms scored highest in the district will be entered in the state contest in June and July. State winners will be announced at the short course to be held at College Station from July 27 to Aug. 1.

Women Preparing For June Dress Contest

Practically all of the 100 Gray County Home Demonstration club women are preparing to enter the dress contest to be held June 6-8. They are finishing their foundation patterns and are keeping wardrobe books which contain inventories of their wardrobes. The use of cotton material is being stressed in the event.

The winner of the contest will be awarded a trip to the short course in College Station.

Budget Cards Are Kept Of This Year's Gardens

The club women are also at work on their gardens, some of them now planting for the second or third time. Budgets are being kept, showing the needs of the family. The demonstrators' budgets range from 200 containers of canned products for a family of two, to more than 700 containers for a family of five. The average member's budget shows an average of about 400 containers.

Each woman is planting two cherry trees, and is attempting to raise a vegetable which she has never tried before.

Rev. O'Malley And Church Members To Attend Convention

Leaders in the Christian church of Texas, including the Rev. F. W. O'Malley of Pampa, will attend the O'Malley Falls May 12 to 15 to hear reports of the various branches of church work and to hear addresses and sermons by internationally known men and women.

One of the high points of the convention will be the "governor's address" on the evening of May 12, at which Governor Ross Sterling and Attorney General James V. Alfred will speak. Both are members of the Christian church.

From outside the state will be Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones of Detroit, Dr. E. E. Snoddy, Transylvania college in Lexington, Ky., and many others.

Rev. O'Malley will be accompanied by a number of members of his church.

"MISS PAMPA" WANTS TO BE DANCER; SHE LOVES SPORTS

To be a dancer—that is the ambition of Drusilla Morgan, who won the title of "Miss Pampa" in the beauty contest at La Nora theater Friday evening. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Morgan.

If an attractive appearance and a pleasing personality mean anything, she realizes her ambition. Her dark brown curly hair reaches her shoulders, her brown eyes are big and sparkling, and her brunet complexion is radiant. She is 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 120 pounds.

Miss Morgan does not play bridge. However, she seldom misses a dance if it is possible for her to attend, she said yesterday. She also likes to skate and to swim. She

MAY FETE TO BE GAY EVENT

TWO THOUSAND PAMPA CHILDREN IN BIG FESTIVAL

Two thousand school children will have part in a May fete to be held at Harvester park next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.

The event, in keeping with the season and with the Child Health week being nationally observed, will be one of the prettiest and largest of the school year. Miss Iva June Willis is general director of the festival.

Principal characters in the event have been chosen according to health qualifications. Several children from each room of junior high school were chosen who had the highest health rating, and from these the May queen, and Robin Hood were elected by popular vote. Nellie Meers was named queen and Billie Cornelius, Robin Hood. Both are in the sixth grade.

Robin Hood's men, also chosen according to health qualifications, are Holt Hamlet, Junior Perkins, Earl Johnson, and Carl Watts of the sixth grade, and Robert Wright, Henry Barnett, Howard Zimmerman, and Cortez West of the seventh grade.

Each ward school will furnish four children as attendants and four as flower girls. One train bearer will come from Baker school and one from Sam Houston. Little Shirley Mae Sohe will be a train bearer also.

The high school band and glee clubs from all schools will take part and each school will have a Maypole.

PATTERNS ARE COMPLETED BY GROUP FRIDAY

Members present were Mesdames C. T. Tignor, Joe Lewis, Bert Benton, Ira Spearman, Jack Spearman, Clyde Carruth, Herman Jones, and the hostess.

It is Miss Leddom's ambition to enter the business world. She likes office work. What's more she is beginning early to fit herself for a good position. Only last week she went to Canyon to enter the district interscholastic league contest as typist.

"Sometimes Leona is very faithful in taking her 'daily dose,'" said Mrs. Harvey yesterday, "while at other times she forgets to take them at all. She has no particular diet and likes candy, pie, cake, and other sweets. It's a wonder she's not fat."

"She uses no cold cream," said Mrs. Harvey. "She washes her face in warm water and soap and then washes it with cold water."

Miss Leddom is a lover of sports. She plays tennis and basketball and is a good swimmer. She also is an expert dancer.

Feminine Fancies

By HOLLYCZ SELERS HINKLE

The honor of giving the first social affair in May goes to Mrs. W. R. Campbell.

There were two other distinctive features of Mrs. Campbell's May day event. It was one of the first breakfasts of the season—a type of entertainment always popular in the late spring, summer, and early fall—and it was an award for merit. Such honors as Mrs. Hunkapillar and Mrs. Hicks have brought to Pampa by being elected district president and secretary of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs are to be encouraged.

One of Pampa's loveliest homes is to have a flower garden this year. Mrs. Ivy Duncan spent Friday planting lakspur, verbenas, petunias, daisies, and other flowers. They are to have a background of shrubbery.

Flowers can transform a small cottage into a beautiful home, and a handsome residence into a palace. Let's plant more gardens. What would be a better beginning for the month of May?

"The expression 'beautiful but dumb' is misleading," declared members of the Twentieth Century club in a recent program. "Because a person is attractive," they declared, "it does not necessarily follow that he is lacking in intelligence. Surely that fact is well-illustrated in the selection of Miss Leona Leddom as 'Miss Greater Pampa.' Besides being a lovely blond, she is an accomplished musician, a good scholar, and a lover of sports."

It's beginning to look as if at least one day in every week is some "special" day, but such days call things to our attention that we should remember throughout the year.

Friday was Child Health day, and was observed in all parts of the country. In connection with this day, the bureau of home economics issued an interesting article on nutrition.

Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpenter, child specialist of the bureau, says children especially need foods that supply building materials. Milk is particularly important, she says. See FEMININE FANCIES, Page 2.

Examination Of Pre-School Pupils Urged By Fisher

Supt. R. B. Fisher yesterday urged parents to have their children examined at the clinic sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association.

"The pre-school period is a crucial time for the child," he pointed out. "It is a time when he has to shift for himself more or less and when he is exposed to and often handicapped for life by childhood diseases and injuries resulting from accidents. In fact, many of the ills of later childhood, adolescence, and adult life have their beginning in the interval between infancy and school age."

"Statistics show that thousands of children have defective vision, defective hearing, or other defects, which can be cured or relieved by early treatment. The parent who does not take this opportunity to have his child examined is not doing his duty."

Parents with children of pre-school age are asked to call Miss Bess Killough, school nurse, or one of the principals of the following wards:

Woodrow Wilson school, Mrs. Annie Daniels, phone 644; Horace Mann school, Miss Josephine Thomas, phone 930; Baker school, J. A. Meek, phone 931; Sam Houston school, A. L. Patrick, phone 1191; Merten school, Miss Jimma Searcy, phone 1010.

SCHOOL HEADS ARE TO MEET

DINNER TO BE GIVEN FOR ABOUT FORTY PERSONS

Forty persons, including school principals and superintendents of Gray county and their families, are expected to gather at Sam Houston school for a dinner Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock. School board members and their families also are invited.

The dinner will be served by the following members of the Sam Houston P.-T. A.: Mrs. W. D. Price, general chairman, and Mesdames C. P. Buckler, Willis, L. N. McCullough, and E. M. Conley.

C. C. Boswell, superintendent of schools at McLean, and John B. Hiesey, Gray county superintendent of schools, will be principal speakers. Mr. Boswell will discuss "Retardation and Promotion in Schools Today," and Mr. Hiesey will use as his subject, "Recent Action of the Legislature on School Laws."

OPERETTA TO BE GIVEN BY PUPILS OF JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL THURSDAY

"The Ghost of Lollipop Bay," a clever operetta directed by Miss Lola Stallings, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Teed and Miss Opal Cox, will be presented by junior high school students Thursday evening at the city hall auditorium.

The story is of an old maid, instructor of a girls school, and an old bachelor, instructor of a boys school, who fall in love.

Juliette Jane Canfield will take the part of Miss Steel, the old maid, and Leon Miller will take the part of Professor Flint, the old bachelor.

The parts of the two negro cooks will be played by Florence Phillips and Crayvil Brad. The three girls in the school are Joyce Smith, Lewis Bryson, and Phyllis Smith, and the three boys are Howard Zimmerman, Charles Bryson, and Roger Townsend.

LOAN FUND IS TO BE ENLARGED AS RESULT OF DANCE ON FRIDAY

Approximately 125 persons were at the May dance given at the Schneider hotel Friday evening under the direction of the scholarship committee of the American Association of University Women and the College club. Proceeds are to be used for the loan, which will be awarded next month.

The dance was semi-formal. Mrs. Paul Kasishke heads the committee in charge of the entertainment, others on the committee being Mesdames T. M. Martin, Curtis Douglas, Will R. Saunders, Arthur Teed, Carl Boston, A. B. Goldstein, T. E. Simmons, John Peake, W. M. Lewright, W. A. Bratton, and Miss Martha Wulfman.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. W. A. Bratton, Mrs. B. W. Mitchell, Miss Martha Wulfman, and Miss Velora Reed.

ENROLL IN COURSE

Miss Kath Zachary, educational director of the First Methodist church, and Miss Esther Plank are in Lubbock, where they have enrolled in a training school held under the auspices of the Northwest Texas Teachers conference.

Gilbert Moorehead of Gageby was here on business Friday.

PAMPA'S TAMALE MAN FOUND HEALTH IN THIS CLIMATE

STANDS ON CORNER IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

(By JAMES LUMPKIN) (News-Post Staff Writer)

Search for health rather than any part of the black gold that gushed from the earth...

Since then, in rain or shine, thru torrid summer days and frigid winter months Thompson has kept his stand at the corner of Foster and Cuyler streets...

"Times are getting better," is the optimistic story that Thompson is now telling. "At different times during the winter I have seen as many as 16 men begging on the street at one time..."

"I hear that everyone is going to the new oil fields in east Texas, where a fellow that has been to Tyler tells me the people are getting thicker than fiddlers in hades..."

"Of course, this country is not as pretty as some others and sometimes the weather is a little rough," Thompson continued, standing a little closer to the bank building to avoid the rain...

"I lived in Madison, Kansas, before I came to Pampa and I used to have asthma so bad in that low country that many a night I didn't sleep a wink..."

A fellow asthma sufferer told Thompson that the high altitude and rarified atmosphere would give him relief from his infirmity. He came to Pampa, then in the first throes of a booming oil town...

Now he is the city's sole tamale vender, keeps an assistant standing near the postoffice, and collects anywhere from $2 to $4 a night. He has made more, he says. But the most interesting thing about him is his knowledge of all that goes on in Pampa after sundown...

"Calcium, phosphorus, and iron are three minerals very important in the diet of a growing child. They are not so abundant in all foods as are some of the other essential minerals so they need particular emphasis. Milk is the best source of calcium and most fruits, vegetables, and meat, as well as milk supply phosphorus. Iron is likely to be low unless the child eats egg yolk, green vegetables, prunes, raisins, and liver."

Three affidavits, one of them by Brothers himself, were presented before Judge Joseph Sabath in support of a motion for new trial. In his affidavit, Brothers' first active participation in his defense, the defendant said: "Because of improper advice of my counsel I did not take the witness stand. ## PARIS TAKES UP COTTON

Good news for American cotton farmers has recently come from an unexpected source. And it is from a most potent and authoritative source at that—the world's fashion headquarters—Paris, France.

An association of cotton manufacturers engaged in promoting a greater use of the south's fleecy staple has just issued a bulletin which contains the following:

"Parisian dressmakers are featuring cotton this season as never before. The French people, although they do not produce a single pound of cotton within their own country, are nevertheless the greatest friends of the American cotton grower today.

"They recognize the inherent beauty and serviceability of our great product and lead the world in featuring cotton dresses. Following the lead of Paris, prominent dress manufacturers and department stores in America are also featuring cotton."

Thus it appears that the fashion authorities of Paris may prove to be a greater aid to the cotton farmer of the south than any of the other agencies which have been set up for their relief.—Minden (La.) Herald.

THE PANHANDLE'S COLLEGE

Residents of the Texas Panhandle give too little attention to their own college—West Texas State Teachers college, located at Canyon. A great number of us fail to recognize the importance of the institution to this section.

W. T. S. T. C. is one of the best of Texas' smaller colleges. The school has received a great deal of favorable comment over the state and surrounding states for scholastic and athletic attainments. It has a high scholastic standing. No student need have any apologies after graduation from the West Texas school.

People in the Panhandle are indeed fortunate to have such an educational institution in their midst. They are fortunate to have an institution where they can center their cultural advancement—and West Texas State Teachers college is used too little for that purpose. They are fortunate to have an institution where they can center have them home over the week-end.

West Texas State Teachers college deserves a great deal more consideration than it receives from the people of the section in which it is located.—Borger Herald.

WHY URGE YOUTH TO SACRIFICE?

A number of high state officials have endorsed a proposal recommending that all graduating classes this year be adorned in cotton material. The proposal is an efficacious one and no doubt would mean something to the people of Texas if it should be given the hearty cooperation of everyone. At least it is worth endorsing.

Think of what it would mean in terms of pounds of cotton consumed if every college and high school graduate this year would accept cotton material for the graduating apparel. It would aid materially to the consumption and we need to realize that increasing consumption is quite a bit more desirable than reducing production. The former is every bit as efficacious as the latter in the matter of strengthening the price.

However, by what authority is anyone licensed to attempt to shift the responsibility for increasing cotton consumption upon any particular group? What right have state officials to call upon graduating classes to wear cotton when the officials disdain to wear the material except in accordance with custom?

Everyone knows that cotton goods are not as desirable as other types of cloth for wearing material. We business men don't wear cotton suits either because we know they are not as becoming or are not as serviceable as regulation material. We are not willing to make the necessary sacrifices that would be entailed by adopting cotton cloth for general wearing purposes.

Until we are ready to make that sacrifice what right have we to urge it upon the graduate? Graduation is an event in the life of youth; something to be anticipated and long remembered. Every graduate, boy or girl, has a pardonable desire to appear at the best advantage that day. They would be making a greater fellow to make the sacrifices necessary to wear cotton when business men would in wearing cotton to work each day.

That is the trouble with too many of our reform ideas. We know that they are efficacious enough except for the matter of some objectionable features, and we want the other fellow to make the sacrifices necessary while we go ahead in keeping with custom and our own wishes. As a result we usually get exactly nowhere in our efforts at artificial stimulation of consumption.

We can contribute considerable to the improvement of conditions in Texas agriculture by wearing cotton clothing, but until we do it ourselves we cannot expect others to take our recommendations along that line seriously.

As yet we haven't heard anything about administrative functions of the state being attended by people dressed in cotton clothes.—Exchange.

It is estimated that a murder is committed every 40 minutes in the United States. At this rate our saxophone artists are doomed to extermination.

The British government has stopped giving free matches to members of the house of commons. Starting its economy move from scratch, apparently.

There are usually but two angles to the "eternal triangle," wisely observes the office sage.

The Paris hotel at which Alfonso resides charges him $600 a day. They look upon him, apparently, as just another tourist.

If there's anything in a name, John Drinkwater, the writer, should make a fine propagandist for the prohibitionists.

OF NEW BOOKS

By RICHARD MASSOCK
NEW YORK—Anthony H. G. Fokker... Lydia E. Pinkham.

The gap between them is wider than the universe. But one is hero, the other heroine, of different biographies that have one common point. Both are rollicking success stories.

"Tony" Fokker's autobiography has been written in collaboration with Bruce Gould, New York aviation reporter, and is an excellent example of the American success story, although Fokker and his book are entitled "Flying Dutchman."

Famed Airman
The inventor and manufacturer of airplanes admits he is a self-made man. The book is evidence. It spins along with the man whose life was paced by his airplanes.

Fokker was born in Java, son of a Dutch coffee planter. When his father retired, the family returned to Haarlem, Holland.

Tony was a dunce in school. But he had a mechanical bent and invented his first airplane at the age of 19.

The prophet-without-honor proverb applied in his case, and Germany was the first to recognize him. In 1913, three years after his planes' invention, they were flying over the western front in raids on the allies, whose aircraft came to call themselves "Fokker fodder."

The war made Tony a multi-millionaire. The Germans tried to force citizenship on him and did make him an unwilling soldier.

At the end of the war he smuggled out six 60-car trainloads of contraband planes and motors which under the treaty terms would have been destroyed.

Now Fokker is in America, an extremely active manufacturer. He has had many accidents, but still is addicted to stunt flying.

"Women's Friend"
"The Life and Times of Lydia E. Pinkham" is a satirical biography by Robert Collyer Washburn.

Lydia Estes was born in Lynn, Mass., in the year of the sea-serpent visitation. That appeared to be an omen, for she later was to fight the demons of slavery, rum and women's weakness.

Washburn regards her as an important feminist, one of the first of her sex to establish a business that flourishes to this day.

The formula had come to her from a chemist, who thus wiped out a $25 debt to her husband. For 19 years she had brewed the stuff in her kitchen and dispensed it free to her neighbors. One day a son suggested that it be sold, to relieve the family poverty.

The first years of the industry, after its start in 1875, were hard. Two of the sons, Will and Dan, died young from the overwork of peddling the compound.

Advertising was responsible for the Pinkham success and the famous picture of Mrs. Pinkham, long a subject of wisecracks, was the biggest help of all.

WILL PLAN CONVENTION
CANYON, May 2. (Special)—President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers college will leave with Supt. W. A. McIntosh of the Amarillo public schools on May 1 for Fort Worth, where they will meet J. C. Cochran, president of the Texas State Teachers association, to make tentative plans for the meeting of the great organization at Amarillo, November 26, 27 and 28.

ABOUT NEW YORK

(By Richard Massock)
NEW YORK—Gabble of a gad-about:

Coney Island's shaking the sand out of its hair and getting set for the summer—merry-go-rounds newly painted, hot dog stands ditto. There's something sadly Paggiacci about Clownland waiting in its new mask for the people to come and laugh.

Plaster devils advertise a new drink. An already tired chap with a cockney accent shouts, "Come along, folks, here is a devilish good drink, over" and over again. That's going to be awfully monotonous by July Fourth.

Star tableau in the Coney waxworks museum: this spring—the Vivian Gordon murder.

Joyciana
Peggy Joyce in vaudeville—a platinum blonde now-plays the part of a gold-digger with a British accent.

And her picture in a Madison avenue shop window—"Peggy Hopkins Joyce wears our pajamas."

We caught her at a matinee and overheard a woman in the row behind say, "I wonder what she really is like."

Well, one night a young beau about town wanted to make an impression on his new honey.

He telephoned to Peggy, with the other girl listening in, and said:

"Peggy, I'm awfully sorry, but I just found out I forgot to bring my formal kit back from Florida, so that means we can't go to the Mayfair tonight. I hate to have to break the date. Some other time maybe—"

"Oh, that's all right," interrupted Peggy. "I don't especially care about going to the Mayfair again. Come on over and we'll go to a movie."

Does that help answer your question, madam?

Perruquier
William J. Punzell, wig-maker to the Metropolitan opera is dead, struck down by a motor car. But his son, Walter, and daughter-in-law, Madeleine, will carry on the family art.

And that's an important occupation. Punzell was devoted to it. He studied beards on the subway and in other public spots, storing ideas for operatic characterizations. In his studio he wove the wigs on wooden blocks, each the shape and size of a star's head.

ON TRADING AT HOME
One man has said that a broom, a fresh stock of goods, and a stick of advertising type will go farther to keep trade at home than all the "trade at home" campaigns that were ever put out. There may be something in that statement. All of us can call back to memory when the average groceryman would pile his groceries up in the middle of the floor, would sweep out about once a week, never dust off the shelves, put cabbage, beans, potatoes, and such edibles out on the front where the dogs could highly enjoy themselves. Candy, spices, rotten tomatoes and cabbage were all kept in the same bin. With these conditions the merchant would advocate a trade at home campaign. No wonder, under such conditions, traveling grocerymen (or order takers) were numerous at that time.

But conditions have now changed. The average grocery store is the cleanest kept place in town. Food is put up in well sealed packages, or kept in some kind of containers that keep it sanitary. The outcome is that the old traveling grocery order taker is a thing of the past. People think no more about buying their food from some mail order house. We now have clean stores, clean stock and clean people running them. This, with a few sticks of good advertising type, will cause the people to forget about the foreign house that wants to sell the public goods "sight unseen." It is not the natural thing for people to buy goods without seeing them, and usually it is the local business man's fault when they do.—Paducah Post.

TOPIC OF OUR CITY
J. O. H.

They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep.—Psa. 107:23,24.

Music Needs YOU
This is music week. The Pampan earnestly urges the interest of Pampan people in the week of programs to be presented at the city auditorium. The observance is a challenge to the citizens who love the artistic, for without their patronage it cannot be truly a success.

Pampa has no better evidence of civic beauty than the magnificent Combs-Worley building which has reared its shining whiteness into the Pampa sky. It is fitting, moreover, that the interior be in keeping—in furnishings—with the exterior. The NEWS-POST office supply department is planning office layouts for a number of firms and is at work now on sketches for prospective customers.

Your Office and You
America has grown up, and so has the business man's office. Quite logically, a professional man is judged by his surroundings. Just as it has ceased to be good business for a prosperous merchant to have a dirty store and a dingy office, so has the group which uses office buildings come to know that nothing succeeds like that which has the appearance of success.

Pampa business men in need of office furniture need only ask a NEWS-POST representative for data and prices on Macey period furniture to know that it is not necessary to look elsewhere for the very best line.

Atmosphere Counts
Macey period office furniture is an outward expression of a finer creed of business—a tribute to better business methods. It tells the story of your business attitude at a glance and lifts your office out of the rank and file, giving it definite character and personality. You, your customers and employees will readily respond to the atmosphere of quiet dignity that is created by fine furniture. It adds a warm feeling of intimate friendliness that can never be fostered by the old style square-topped uninteresting desk.

In these days of rush and hurry, we have become used to cut and dried, all- alike equipment. But men are beginning to count the cost of a discouraging atmosphere in their offices. They are beginning to surround themselves with furniture that is both dignified and beautiful, no matter how humble its use. We need the air of calm resiliency to the weary rattle of every-day routine.

Milk is Vital
Pampa's milk "war" calls attention to the importance of having an abundant supply of unquestioned purity. This city has such a supply, and should guard it closely. Consumers would like to see published reports of milk tests. Pampa is already given a fine report by the state department of health.

Consumers should know that their milk contains no harmful bacteria, that it is free from barnyard contamination and dirt, and that it is distributed by individuals who have an intelligent appreciation of the relationship between a glass of pure, safe milk and the preservation of human life.

Way to Health
Thousands of persons who do not feel well and who have minor ailments would reach normal health by the simple expedient of drinking a quart of milk each day. Not only is milk the best food nature supplies, but use of it displaces use of harmful concoctions. Children do not do well without it, and teeth discoloration, loss of weight, and attendant ill result from deficiency in the components of milk. Drink more of it.

The most important and most interesting bit of publicity to reach the Pampan in weeks is that pertaining to the Empire State skyscraper just opened in New York. It is located on an area of 83,860 square feet, comprising 197.5 feet on Fifth avenue and 424.95 feet on 33rd and 34th streets. The height of the structure is 102 stories above the street and two stories below grade, 1,248 feet to the tip of the mooring mast. The observatory roof is at the 86th floor, with the mooring mast providing a smaller point of view 200 feet higher.

Equal to City
The building will house 25,000 tenants, with a floating population of visitors estimated to total 40,000 daily. Sixty-three passenger elevators and four freight elevators will handle the business rapidly. Elevators rise at the speed of 1,200 feet per minute. (Imagine your tummy at that rate!) Steel framework of the marvel weighed 60,000 tons. Loads on individual columns are in excess of 5,000 tons.

If you go to New York, you can join a group of 200 sightseers at the lower observatory and 50 atop the mast. Imagine the view! The building has 6,486 windows, ten million bricks, and 930 tons of exterior chrome-nickel steel and aluminum, and enough floor space to house a city of 80,000.

WASHINGTON—The equalization fee and the export debenture, famous proposals for agricultural relief which were supposed to have been snuffed out as political issues, will be brought to life in the next congress unless farm prices take a miraculous upward swing such as no one expects.

Thousands of letters have been coming into Washington, urging one plan or the other. Advice from the winter wheat belt say that farmers for the first time are displaying interest in them. While the farm bloc was making its loudest roars here and forcing the measures through to defeat by presidential veto or pressure it was often said that most farmers didn't know what the two plans provided and didn't care much as long as wheat was selling around a dollar a bushel.

Lately, however, wheat has been shooting down below 60 cents and other grain prices have been the lowest in many years. The farmers have been demanding action and requests also are being received for information about the equalization fee and the export debenture in which so many were previously uninterested.

Borah Promises Fight
Senator Borah of Idaho has promised to launch a fight for the export debenture and Senator Norbeck of South Dakota has promised to introduce a bill carrying the equalization fee principle in case Chairman McNary of the senate committee on agriculture doesn't introduce his old McNary-Haugen bill.

Both plans are designed to meet the problem created by enormous exportable surpluses which depress prices and prevent farmers from benefiting from the tariff—which in the case of wheat is 42 cents a bushel.

Under the McNary-Haugen bill—which either will be reintroduced or succeeded by a bill quite similar—congress would have created government corporations which would buy from the open market the surpluses of such commodities as wheat, cotton, livestock and tobacco, paying the "world price" plus amount of our tariff on the particular commodity. Thus, if the price at Liverpool were 60 cents a bushel the government corporation would pay a farmer $1.02 a bushel. The corporation would buy wheat until an "American price" of $1.02 was established in the domestic market for all wheat. The farmer would actually receive that price, minus the equalization fee.

Would Sell Abroad
The corporation would then sell its wheat abroad at whatever price it could get. It would of course, probably lose about 42 cents a bushel on all wheat thus bought and sold. Through the equalization fee that loss would be charged to the farmer on each bushel or other unit of his crop. The Federal Farm Board proposed in the McNary-Haugen bill would have estimated probable costs and losses and then have determined and announced the amount of the equalization fee to be collected on each unit. It was left to the board to decide in the case of each commodity whether the fee should be collected at the time of transportation, process or sale.

The McNary-Haugen bill was passed by congress in 1927 and 1928 and was twice vetoed by President Coolidge on the ground that it was impractical, unconstitutional and class legislation. Coolidge contended that such a law would stimulate production and defeat its own purpose, although that argument had previously been countered with the assertion that in that case the automatically increasing equalization fees would deter farmers from increasing acreage.

Exporters Would Benefit
Under the export debenture plan farmers or co-operatives exporting would receive from the government certificates or "debentures" worth the amount of our tariff on the quantity exported. Anyone who exported a thousand bushels of wheat, for example, would receive debenture certificates worth $420. The government would not cash the certificates, but would accept them in payment of import duties and the assumption is that importers would be glad to buy them at approximately face value. As with the McNary-Haugen measure, the theory is that the debenture plan would immediately throw wheat into the export market until the American price had reached the "world price" plus the amount of the tariff.

Many film producers seem to be of the opinion that the talkies have given them the privilege of outspoken drama.

The fellow who frequents the speakeasies says he does it for "more-ale" support.
