

Russian Troops Reported Checking German Drive On Leningrad

(By The Associated Press)

Russian troops were reported checking German siege columns storming toward Leningrad today as thousands of the city's civilians volunteered for service in a "people's army."

Dispatches from Moscow said Leningrad, the oldest czarist capital, was now a "formidable military camp" and that after four days of bitter fighting on the outer perimeter of Leningrad's defenses, the Germans appeared to have made no significant new progress.

A Tass (official Russian news agency) correspondent said the beleaguered city was echoing to the sounds of marching men through its broad squares and parks to join the "people's army" supporting the regular army at the front.

All through the night, a Soviet bulletin said, Red army troops battled in late summer rainstorms to check the main Nazi drives around Novgorod, 100 miles south of Leningrad, and Kingisepp, 70 miles to the southwest.

From the north, other German-Finnish forces were knitting down the Karelian isthmus, only 65 miles away.

On the southern front, the Germans reported that Nazi troops tightening a siege ring around Odessa had captured the Black sea port of Ochakov, 45 miles east of Odessa.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters, declaring that "the enemy's casualties are unbelievably high," reported more than 1,250,000 Russians had been taken prisoner.

DNB, the official German news agency, calculated yesterday that total of 5,000,000 Red soldiers had been knocked out of action. This, if true, would mean that 3,750,000 Russians had been killed or wounded. But the high command itself did not go this far.

The Nazi command also claimed the destruction or capture of 14,000 armored cars, 15,000 guns and 11,250 planes.

German and Allied armed forces are standing "deep in enemy territory in unbroken strength," the communiqué asserted. It was silent on Germany's own losses, listed by the Russians at 2,000,000 killed and wounded.

Reporting operations "in full progress on the entire front," the German communiqué declared:

"In the southern Ukraine, the opponents' last bases on the Dnieper are being eliminated... with heavy losses for the foe.

"Northwest of Kiev, the enemy is retreating beyond the Dnieper. In the region east of Gomel, pursuit of the defeated opponent is being continued."

"In the front before Leningrad and in Estonia, our troops are fighting their way steadily forward. Attacks on the Finnish front on both sides of Lake Ladoga are gaining ground daily."

Amid this critical hour in the 62-day-old struggle, a new theater of war appeared on the verge of opening in the oil kingdom of Iran

(Persia.) London dispatches indicated that Great Britain was ready to send troops into the country unless Riza Khan Pahlavi's government complies with a British-Russian demand for the ousting of 3,000 Germans.

Authoritative quarters in London announced at noon that "no operations have begun," but it was apparent they felt that British patience was reaching its limit. British and Russian troops were reported poised on Iran's frontier, ready to march.

As the Russo-German war entered its third month, with Hitler's Wehrmacht overrunning a 300-mile deep strip of Soviet territory and still advancing, the Russians acknowledged they had withdrawn from Gomel, on the central front, midway between Smolensk and Kiev.

However, the Soviets declared they had fallen back in a strategic maneuver to keep the Red army intact, after inflicting bloody losses on the Germans, and said the fight was continuing in that area.

On the Ukraine front, a Moscow communiqué indicated that Marshal Semeon Budyeny's southwest armies still were executing a major withdrawal eastward across the Dnieper, under falling attack by the Luftwaffe.

News of the siege of Odessa, now reported isolated, was lacking. Latest German dispatches had pictured Soviet troops bottled up in the Black sea port as undergoing a terrific assault from Stuka dive-bombers and artillery, but there was still no claim of its surrender.

While action was reported all along the vast front from the Baltic to the Black sea, reports from both Berlin and Moscow indicated the Germans were exerting the greatest pressure in the direction of Leningrad.

SHARPLY assailing figures cited by Senator Byrd (D-Va.), President Roosevelt asserted today that while American defense production never had been completely satisfactory, on the average it was up to estimates.

The chief executive told a press conference, and he had volunteered the information, that he had heard and read a statement by Byrd earlier in the week in Washington which said defense production was lagging seriously. The President said he had asked the war department for a check and that it had showed Byrd was wrong in all categories but planes.

Somebody, Mr. Roosevelt said, sold the senator down the river on the figures.

The war department, the President said, told him it was most unfortunate that the senator's data were so inaccurate and that somebody had misled Byrd. Then Mr. Roosevelt became specific.

"Byrd declared," he said, "that not a single tank had gone to England, actually, he asserted, we have turned over hundreds of tanks to the British, tanks of modern design produced in the last year. Some of these as is known, he said, have gone to Egypt and the papers have carried stories on the excellence of their performance."

And anti-aircraft guns, Mr. Roosevelt went on, the senator said the program provides for average monthly deliveries of only four 90-millimeter guns during the balance of this calendar year. The program actually calls, he said, for monthly deliveries of 61 for the four remaining months of 1941 and the war department believes that program will be met.

As for 37-millimeter anti-tank guns, Mr. Roosevelt said the senator had declared the production would be 15 a month, whereas the actual output was 72 in July and would be 60 in August, 260 in September and 320 in October.

"There seems to be a certain discrepancy between the figure 15 and the war department figures and there would be, the President remarked, even if a zero were added to the 15."

Furthermore, he continued, Byrd said only fifteen 81-millimeter mortars would be produced per month in the months immediately ahead. In July, he said, production was actually 221. In August the output will be 340, he said, and in September and October it will be even larger.

Byrd's figures on planes were substantially correct, Mr. Roosevelt said, adding in response to a question that the senator had used those of the office of production management.

The President took exception to what he said was Byrd's contention that production of military planes had declined progressively in May, June and July. The number of training planes increased, Mr. Roosevelt said, and the production of military aircraft remained steady because of changes in design and the testing of new designs to meet

Iran's Reply To Britain Received

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Iran's answer to the British-Russian request that German technicians be banished from that middle east oil kingdom reached here tonight as both Britain and Russia appeared to be ready to use force.

The contents of the note were not disclosed.

Soviet sources, however, acknowledged that joint action by Britain and Russia to oust the Nazis from Iran were probable if London and Moscow are not satisfied with the note.

Authoritative British sources earlier had declared that Britain was considering "vigorous measures" although they would not discuss "projected operations" and said none had been launched so far.

The contents of the note probably will not even be commented on before tomorrow.

It was relayed here by the British minister to Tehran, Sir Reader William Bullard, and already is under consideration at the foreign office.

Water flowed over a small portion of the spillway and waves have gone over the spillway but today is the first time the entire concrete slab has been under flowing water.

Pampa Guard To Be Given Army Rifles

Pampa's company of the Texas Defense Guard will soon be using regular army rifles in their drill. A bill of lading has been received here by company officers on a shipment and it is expected in Pampa in a short time.

The company will also receive cartridge belts, bayonets, and ammunition. All of this equipment is to be inspected once every 90 days. Arrangements have been made to store the rifles in a locker at the city hall. The ammunition will be kept at another place. It is for emergency use only and will be conserved for that purpose.

There are only 26 rifles in the lot to be sent here. Reason for the small number is that this is all that can be obtained from the federal government at the present time, and it has been necessary to prorate the rifles among the 200 companies, totaling 15,000 men in all, over the state.

Later on, possibly within two months, more rifles will be available, as Garands are supplied to the army to replace the older type, and the old-style rifles are turned in and shipped to state guard organizations.

Battalion Conference Held

Announcement concerning the rifles was made at Plainview last night by Major Thomas W. Gahagan, of Austin.

The major met with officers of Plainview's company C, and battalion staff officers, representing Pampa and Amarillo, at a dinner at the Hilton hotel, preceding the major's inspection of Company C.

Discipline Stressed

Major Gahagan praised members of the guards as truly patriotic Americans. He said their morale was high because the men in it were all volunteers who were anxious to learn and become as good soldiers as possible.

However, he stressed the need of observing military discipline and military courtesy in the companies, for "if you don't have this, you don't have a company, you only have a mob," the major stated.

Duties of battalion staff officers were explained by the major, to those in charge of intelligence and correspondence, planning and training, and supply.

Volunteer Spirit

Major Gahagan said the appearance of many of the Texas Defense Guard men was better than that of many of the draftees. He attributed this to the desire of the men in the Guard to be interested in their work and their volunteer spirit.

In this connection, he told of inspecting a Dallas company. Noticeable a corporal outstanding in military service.

General Chaffee Of Armored Force Dies

BOSTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Major General Adna R. Chaffee, 57, first commander of the army's new armored force, died today at the Massachusetts General hospital after suffering a physical breakdown during an intense drive to build up the force, the special mechanized defense units.

Death came at 5:20 a. m. (CST). A statement by the war department said that the officer, whose fatal illness set in last winter after he had returned to work following a previous siege of pneumonia, had sacrificed himself in the making of the armored force.

Once described as "one of the great army men," the slight, wiry Chaffee received, even as he lay in his final illness, citations from the national government for his work in fathering the new branch of the army.

Shortly before his death, the senate confirmed his nomination by President Roosevelt for permanent appointment as a major general, a rank he previously held temporarily. A short time before that, he was presented an oak-leaf cluster citation to go with the distinguished service medal he won in the World War.

Wedding Rehearsal Disrupted By Rain

Yesterday's heavy rain disrupted plans for a wedding rehearsal last night when only the bride-elect arrived. The bridegroom-to-be was stuck in LePors and the best man and the maid of honor were stuck in the mud south of Pampa.

Miss Johnnie Hodge, bride-elect, arrived at the First Methodist church for the rehearsal at 8 o'clock. She and the Rev. W. M. Pearce and party waited and waited, but no one else arrived. Later it was learned that W. B. Weathered, bridegroom-to-be, had attended a county school board meeting at LePors and his car drowned out in the heavy rain.

The best man, Mayor Fred Thompson, and Mrs. Thompson, and the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Jo Taylor, got stuck in the mud returning from the city picnic at Lake McClellan. They arrived at about 9:30 o'clock, well caked with mud when "all hands" had to get out and push.

The wedding will be tonight, even without rehearsal.

Borgan Killed By Hit-Run Driver

ELCOTRA, Aug. 22 (AP)—Officers searched today for a hit and run driver after finding the mangled body of Carl L. Wicker, about 22, of Borgan, in the middle of a highway three miles east of here early this morning.

Employees of a nearby tavern said Wicker, who had been working here for two months, left the tavern on foot shortly before his body was found by passing motorists.

New Dive Bomber Used In Arkansas

By JERRY T. BAULCH

WITH ARMY IN ARKANSAS

AUG. 22 (AP)—The army's new Douglas dive bomber, which air officers claim will out-perform the dreaded German Stuka, was used in a coordinated attack with ground forces for the first time today.

Sweeping along a 16-mile front in three separate assaults starting at dawn, the squat-bodied planes plummeted from the sky repeatedly toward token enemy troops deployed over the rolling, heavily-wooded terrain. Pretending to drop bombs when their machines came within a few hundred feet of the ground, they immediately roared upward two or three thousand feet to get set for another dive.

Although the squadron of bombers had simulated attacks on the 70,000 men of seventh army corps daily this week, this was the first time their actions had been directed through radio communications with troops on the ground.

The Douglas A-24's are the newest in compact bombing aviation. Acquired by the army from the navy, they fly on the level at more than 300 miles an hour and are equipped with wing slots to reduce speed to about 250 m.p.h. in the dive earthward, adding special accuracy to their performance. As in the Stuka, the Douglas is aimed at the target and pulled skyward the moment its bombs are released.

Manned by a crew of two, the light, low-winged bomber can carry one 1,100-pound or two 300-pound bombs. The planes are from the eighth bombardment squadron at Shreveport, La.

Nameless, as all good subversive agents are, this American silvertip Grizzly bear in the San Francisco Zoo gives the Nazi salute to all passers-by and has tried without much success to convert other animals. It goes without saying that old silvertip has made little headway in his efforts to convert her.

Fried Chicken, Lemonade Due To Be Plentiful At 'V' Picnic

Fried chicken and potato salad, the old stand-bys, will be the principal foods in the baskets Brangan and their neighbors will bring to spread on the "longest table in the world" at the All-States Victory picnic to be held on Labor Day at Central park in Pampa.

A check-up today of a sample group of Pampans of the many who have signified their intention of attending the picnic shows fried chicken as the favorite dish.

Fried chicken, favorite dish of the Southwest, will probably also be the favorite with those from other towns who come to Pampa for the big community get-together.

It will be a typical, old-time picnic, what with fried chicken plus an ample supply of lemonade.

B. B. Altman, Jr., seemed at a loss when asked what he would bring in his picnic lunch, but wound up by saying he would bring fried chicken.

L. H. Johnson didn't consider chicken any good without potato salad, and specified these two should both go into a lunch.

There'll be barrels of lemonade, real lemonade, served into sanitary cups from the spigots of sterilized covered cast iron tanks, that are to be obtained for the picnic by Hamp Waddell.

The Stark family, noted local musicians, will furnish the music for the invitation tour, directed by Finis Stillwell, to be held Thursday.

Mr. Stillwell has issued a call for the natives of various states to go on the tour. Cars in the tour will represent states.

Towns that will be visited are Canadian, Miami, Shreveport, Borgan, Panhandle, Amarillo, Claude, Groom, McLean, and Shamrock.

Persons who have agreed to take cars are Jimmie Dodge, Texas; A. P. Stark, Kansas; Mrs. Bell Wells, Louisiana; O. N. Frasher, Colorado; Mark Denson, Iowa; Mrs. Clyde Ives, Arkansas; F. E. Shryock, Pennsylvania; R. B. Saxe, Michigan; Oscar Hinger, North Dakota.

W. R. Frazee, general chairman of the picnic, was back in Pampa today, keenly interested in the progress made on plans for the affair. Mr. and Mrs. Frazee and daughter, Waldine, returned last night from a two-week vacation trip to Carthage and LaPlata, Mo.

The general chairman was full of inquiries today on what had developed for the picnic during his absence. He plans to call a meeting of the executive committee soon.

Finnish Freighter Ravaged By Fire

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP)—A fire of mysterious origin aboard the war-stranded Finnish motorship freighter Aurora raged for five hours today, the second ship fire here within five days.

The first officer was suffocated as he slept on the 4,956-ton vessel at her Hudson river anchorage a mile north of the George Washington bridge at 1:20 a. m. (CST). Other members of the crew of 18, including two waitresses, were rescued by police and private boats.

At the same time, police announced six more deaths resulting from a $1,500,000 Brooklyn waterfront blaze on Monday in which the American freighter Panuco, her pier and several barges were destroyed or badly damaged. That brought the death toll for that fire to 25 and left eight men missing.

The Aurora, listing badly from the water in her holds, was ordered beached on the New Jersey shore near Englewood cliffs.

Authorities said they had uncovered no evidence of sabotage in a preliminary investigation.

Loaded with a rich cargo of linseed oil, wool, hides, grains and other items from Buenos Aires, Curacao, and Leguaris, the Aurora put into New York July 28 because of Finland's entry into the war. Her operators said the job of trying to reach Helsinki through the British blockade was too risky.

Her crew was paid off yesterday and 18 returned to the ship last night after visits in Manhattan.

Capt. Albert Bjorkluf suffered second degree burns of both hands when he sought his way through the rapidly-spreading flames to warn the waitresses—only to discover that they had escaped. The captain then jumped into the river and was picked up by a pleasure craft.

Byrd 'Sold Down River' Press Told

President Cites Shipments Made To Britain

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP) Sharply assailing figures cited by Senator Byrd (D-Va.), President Roosevelt asserted today that while American defense production never had been completely satisfactory, on the average it was up to estimates.

Typical Oregon Theme Stressed At Breakfast

Bringing together a group of friends Wednesday morning, Mrs. Raymond W. Harrah and Mrs. W. Campbell entertained at an attractively appointed breakfast at the Schuider hotel. The affair was occasioned by the leaving of Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar who soon will make her home in Portland, Oregon.

Suggesting the Oregon country, a tree theme was observed in the appointments. Centering the breakfast table was an arrangement of small trees on mirror lakes encircled in tiny shrubs. Individual trees in gum drops marked the places.

As the guests entered the dining room, Mrs. Tom Rose, Sr., played "Trees." A gift was presented to the honoree by the hostesses.

Following the breakfast, the group went to the home of Mrs. Harrah where the morning was spent in visiting.

Attending were Meses. C. T. Hunkapillar, W. Purviance, Maude Hall, Edwin Vicars, Dick Walker, Alex Schneider, Lou Roberts, G. C. Waldstad, Tom Rose, Sr., Lee Harrah, Silver Faulkner, Sr., Clifford Braly, Sr., F. M. Culbertson, T. F. Morton, and daughter, Evelyn.

Men Can't 'Go Home To Mama'—But They've Found Answer To Wives' Longtime Threat

By RUTH MILLETT
There's one way in which wives have always held a whip hand over their husbands.

If things went wrong a wife could always threaten, and if necessary, carry out the old challenge, "I don't have to put up with your nasty disposition; I can go home to mother." Occasionally a husband would also go back to the parental roof when the marital going got too tough, but it was too sissy a retreat to appeal to most men.

So the men, having no place to go, had to content with announcing, "I'm going for a walk," or "I'm going to the club," and slamming the front door behind them.

Well, the worm has turned. At least the Washington worm has turned. The men there have decided that they will have some place to go—a nice masculine place which, when used as a threat, will scare their wives and, when the threat has to be made good, will give them a pleasant retreat with agreeable male companions thrown in.

In short, a group of men in Washington—and their ranks are swelling fast—has formed a club called "The Run Out Husband's Club."

Any members who "run out" on their wives can count on other members for sympathy and companionship and help in finding a temporary substitute home.

There isn't a clubhouse yet, but there are the plans for the future and when they have that, they'll be even with their wives who have mothers waiting to take them in.

It looks like the kind of idea that might catch on fast. So, ladies, if you would rather not see a "Run Out Husband's Club" in your own town, there are just two things to do.

Don't ever again threaten going home to mother. And treat the man of the house in such a way that he won't want to run out.

Don't say you weren't warned if you ignore this advice and your husband joins a new club—a club you can just bet he'll hold over your head.

Voice Is 'Must' As Talking Point In Selling Personality

By RISE STEVENS
Today's guest columnist for vacationing Alicia Hart is beautiful Rise Stevens, Metropolitan opera star, who is now making a movie in Hollywood.

Very few women nowadays need to be reminded about the importance of good grooming, artistic make-up and becoming attitudes, but most of the overlook the role played in feminine charm by the speaking voice. No woman can win friends and influence people with a voice that is whining, shrill, monotonous, hoarse or nasal.

The secret of a good speaking voice lies in resonance and proper breathing, and these can be acquired by any woman if she will only devote a little time and effort to her speech. Proper voice placement is essential for resonance and for proper breathing, relaxation of jaw and throat muscles is necessary. Correct speech demands the blending of these two phases so that the voice rides on the breath unimpeded.

There is an extremely simple way of checking on placement. Close up your ears with your fingers and hum a scale, going up and down the pitch range that is normal for you. You will find one particular level at which sound seems to fill the entire head. This occurs when the entire tone is localized at the resonance center. Technically this is called frontal placement and this is correct for your voice.

There are a few simple exercises which improve breath and diaphragm control and help to make the tone rich and round.

One is a variation of the old-fashioned "improve your posture" routine—against-the-wall routine. With your back touching the wall at all points, especially the shoulder blades, hold your chest high, and the abdominal region in. Place one hand, palm down, over the stomach directly behind the breast bone. Exhale as much as possible, keeping the chest wall high, without permitting it to sink or collapse. Take a deep breath slowly, easily and smoothly, making sure that the resulting body expansion begins under the palms of your hands.

To be a "slave to fashion," as the saying goes, is to defeat your own beauty ends. All the cosmetic magic a woman may invoke to conceal a heavy jaw will be cancelled out if she insists upon wearing one of the new dresses with a high, throat-bugging neckline that points like an accusing finger at her weighty jawline.

If you want your clothes to enhance their best features, adapt fashion to yourself instead of adapting yourself to the changing fashion scene.

Hemlines and necklines are two of the most common beauty pitfalls. I have seen dozens of women clamor for a 15-inch hemline because it's the currently fashionable one, without giving a single thought as to whether or not the hem reaches their legs at a becoming point or whether such a skirt-length is right for their proportions.

As for necklines, even if the plunging V is the vogue at the moment, women with long necks and thin faces should not wear it, but should choose instead the flattering softness of a round or gathered collar or draped fullness around the base of the neck.

'RIGHT' COLOR—FOR WHOM?

Colors, too, are important when you are correlating your wardrobe with your beauty problems. Each season sees a certain color played up to the hilt, but if it is not flattering, you should steadfastly avoid it. On the other hand, some hues which are notoriously "hard to wear" may be just right for your skin tone. If they are, it is worth the time to look for a dress in those particular colors or to have it made up.

We in America are gradually coming to appreciate the custom which was responsible for the reputation of chic and elegance enjoyed by the Parisienne of more happy years. A Frenchwoman, however limited her budget, would consider several dresses and then plot with her dresser-maker to combine the neckline of one, the bodice of another, the sleeves of a third—until she had a dress that she knew was becoming in every detail.

She would choose a fabric in a color which would flatter her as well as tie in with the rest of her wardrobe, and by the time it was finished she had a dress that paid generous dividends in enhancing her particular beauty assets.

We can achieve the same effect by careful selection from among our lavish fashion output and the willingness to alter whatever feature of a dress is incompatible with your face or figure. If the rounded shoulder line tends to make you look hippy, skillful padding of the shoulders can remedy that situation.

To Have And Hold Beauty Means To Rest And Relax
By ELIZABETH RETHBERG
To be born beautiful is a gift from the gods, but to keep that beauty alive for more than a brief time is more the mere chance. Inner beauty reflects itself in your face as you go through life. And without this inner beauty, external beauty cannot last.

Beauty is more than perfect features and lovely figure. A man I know once remarked that he has never seen a homely bride, that every girl looks beautiful on her wedding day. Others will tell you that a mother's face as she looks at her child is the most beautiful sight in the world. To have and to hold beauty, you must have happiness.

It is a great deal easier to be happy when your nerves are calm and relaxed. To the people in the public eye, the secret of relaxing is of the greatest importance, and

DECORATORS ADAPT STYLES TO FIT OWN PERSONALITIES

This modern living room has Chinese accents. The cabinets, tables and two chairs are rose-wood. They are combined smoothly and strikingly with lacquer-red velvet and a green-and-white striped upholstered armchair. Chinese silver grass cloth is used to panel the walls.

The room carries out a basic idea—and a mighty useful one!—for distinctive home-making. The idea is to adapt what's new to the personality and experience and tastes which are yours alone.

HOW TO GET RID OF THAT "NERVOUS" FEELING
There are many ways to get rid of that "nervous" feeling. For example:

1. Once each day, either before dinner, or during the afternoon, or whenever it is most convenient for yourself, take fifteen minutes for yourself. Make it a point to lie down in a cool, darkened room with your clothes loosened and your shoes off. Place a pad soaked in boric acid over each eye, and try to rid your mind completely of any thoughts. Perhaps you can have a victrola softly playing your favorite selection, if it's something that is soothing.

2. Give yourself an extra five minutes for that appointment, so you can get out of the habit of rushing.

3. Take long walks. Give yourself at least one evening a week, or perhaps one day over the weekend, and walk leisurely—either alone or with an old friend.

SCHOOL FROCK

School girls who want pretty dresses to wear for the new term will be delighted with the attractive style offered in Pattern No. 8979. It is downright cute and at the same time flattering indeed for the growing figure which is frequently at the awkward stage. This frock has a easy full bodice, and the smooth fit in front is controlled by side sashes which tie in back. Mother will notice that the frock is very simple to make, requires only the cutting of front and back pieces with two sleeves—and it fairly sews itself together.

Pattern No. 8979 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8, with short sleeves, requires 2 1/4 yards 35-inch material without nap.

For this attractive pattern send 15 cents in coin, your name, address, pattern number, and size to The Pampa News Today's Pattern Service, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Send for the new Fashion Book—just out, for fall. It shows a complete range of advance style ideas. Pattern 156, Pattern Book 156. One Pattern and Pattern Book ordered together, 25c.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By ALICIA HART
A note of efficiency-mindedness is more and more noticeable among practical women in the world of fashion. They're suggesting clothes and beauty fashions to minimize the time and thought we give to looking appealing.

Pretty soon it may be fashionable to dress, as well as to work, more efficiently. As a matter of fact, the two things go together. And every woman wants to feel she's in the defense business. She will be, too. When she works at home, she'll use things more skillfully—things that are needed by the regiments.

She who works in business or industry will contribute to defense production by making the wheels, even typewriter wheels, turn more smoothly.

TAKE ONLY WHAT YOU USE REGULARLY
Then why not streamline your beauty routine by getting yourself a kit to eliminate the waste of cosmetics-hunting? Efficiency will aid defense. It takes minutes to dig around for your compact in your bag or your "outgoing" box.

Several good new kits are being shown now. One contains three creams, lotion, lipstick, face powder, rouge, eye pencil, and those two life-savers for a too-peopled dressing room—a comb and mirror of your own. This array of beauty aids is sufficient to go along with you on weekends. But it's better to have one kit just for the office, and if you do that don't forget: the best time-saver is a kit containing only what you use regularly. Other articles will get in your way.

If you have a skin blemish which occasionally you cover up (and remember, any real skin problem should not be covered except on expert advice) you'll welcome a kit that's being shown now for college girls. It holds cleansing cream and also paste and lotion for blemishes.

MAKE YOUR OWN COSMETICS KIT
You can make yourself a kit if necessary—just collect your cosmetics and find a pretty box to fit them. The boss won't appreciate your powdering your nose while he dictates, kil or no kil, so remember to keep your box inside your desk. Give it a place of its own, too, so that you can always pick it up instantly as you go to lunch or dinner. That will add minutes to the time you can take for that all-important complete refreshing course.

A cleanup gives you a lift for the afternoon, and it's a "must" for the girl with a full date-book. With her kit, she can keep a clean pair of hose and some extra white gloves. These things will keep her poised for any gathering—for where can't you go in confidence when you have a fresh face and spotless white hands?

Too Few Of Us Have Weighed Incomes On New Living Scale
By RUTH MILLETT
In spite of having been warned by their government that some belt-tightening was in store for them and in spite of their own frequent observation that "everything seems to be going up," Mr. and Mrs. America haven't yet got down to business and started figuring on a new scale of living.

For the most part they are still living from day to day, trying to make the old budget work, and when it won't stretch to cover everything it did a year ago they get blue and upset and talk poor.

If their financial affairs aren't too hopelessly muddled they had better start today making a new budget, based on a new idea of what are necessities—and what not.

Education is still important, and a home life that isn't pinched in drabness by constant worry over money is still important.

But a lot of things aren't. Clothes budgets can be cut. Old furniture can be slip-covered at home and made to do a while longer, if necessary. Home entertainment for Mama, Papa, and the young folks can be substituted for a lot of the chasing around that is costing money now.

When the American family decides that there has to be some fancy economizing done the economizing usually falls on Mama.

It is up to her to cut the food budget as much as possible, to pitch in and learn how to make slip covers for the furniture instead of hiring it done, to get along without household help, to take advantage of sales and to make a real study of prices so that she knows at which store to buy one article and at which to buy another.

She's so ingenious about cutting corners that the rest of the family often sit back and let her cut them, without figuring out any way of helping.

Papa is especially good at sitting back and letting Mama do the economizing. It seldom occurs to him that there are just as many things around the house he could do—at a saving to the family budget—as there are things that Mama can do.

Of course, it means taking on some extra work for him. But almost every way in which Mama economizes means extra work for her.

Almost any man could, by putting his mind to it and giving up a game of golf occasionally, act as general handyman around his home.

RESPONSIBLY SHOULD BE SHARED
He could learn to do simple jobs like putting up shelves, repairing screens, painting porch furniture, and doctoring the machinery of the modern home before it needs more attention than an oil can.

That would not only help the family budget—it would help Mama's morale. For after she has spent an afternoon trying to save a dollar by shopping around from store she is bound to resent it just a little when she asks Papa to do some little job around the house and he says, "Why don't you call up so-and-so and get him to do it?"

Budget cutting is never any fun, but it's even more painful when responsibility for it isn't shared by the man of the house—who is usually the first to cry, "We simply have to cut down expenses."

TRAVEL GIFT
An appropriate going-away gift for the vacationist who is planning a trip either by train, boat or motor would be a travel pillow. A Fifth Avenue specialty shop offers a travel pillow of fine, white goose-down in a smartly-styled case of soft pin calfskin, in brown, black, blue or red piped with a contrasting color. The case is large enough to contain a knee-warmer as well as the pillow, and an outside pocket (which closes with a slide-fastener) is designed for magazines or books. The case is not bulky, and a handle at the top makes it convenient to carry.

Whittling down the family budget is no fun—but it is one of the things we are going to have to do for national defense, and we might as well get at it.

GHOST TREE
The curious Chile pine, a ghost tree from out of the ages before man, now is to be found in many sections of the world, having been transplanted in numerous formal gardens because of its unusual appearance.

Tired Business Men, Including Doctors, Teachers, Lawyers, and Postmen, Will Not Tire Of These Menus

By JOHNNIE DAVIS

Every housewife can do her part in national defense by properly feeding her family, and it's a wise wife who borrows the "Nutritional Yardstick," the list of proper daily foods approved by dietitians at a recent conference in Washington, for her own family.

It's a wiser housewife, though, who recognizes the specific needs of her family and husband and organizes their diet to conform with their activities and occupations. The wife of a business man who sits at a desk needn't feed him like a laborer, yet a sedentary job demands a completely balanced diet.

The average business man needs only 2,000 to 2,400 calories a day, but the nervous energy spent on his job destroys the body tissues as would muscular labor and they have to be replenished with food, particularly the complete proteins found in meat, fish, and eggs. Thus, even an office worker can use head twice a day as part of a well-balanced diet.

Here is a typical menu for a "business man" family:
Breakfast—Grapefruit juice, ham, scrambled eggs, orange marmalade, whole-wheat toast, coffee, milk.
Lunch—Cold sliced meat loaf, molded fruit salad, bran banana bread with hard sauce, iced tea, milk.
Dinner—Cream of green pea soup, pan-broiled shoulder lamb chops with lime butter, buttered lima beans, parsley potatoes, head lettuce salad, fresh fruit, coffee, milk.

This business man's family keeps fit with a meal of creamed soup, lamb chops and vegetables, lettuce salad, fresh fruit, coffee.

PAN-BROILED SHOULDER LAMB CHOPS WITH LEMON BUTTER
(Four Servings)
Eight shoulder lamb chops 1/2-inch thick, 1/4 cup butter, salt, pepper, 3 tablespoons lemon juice.
Wipe lamb chops; season with salt and pepper. Cream butter, blending in lemon juice with the creaming. Spread lemon butter well over both sides of lamb chops. Heat thoroughly in heavy skillet; place lamb chops in skillet and cook over high heat for 10 minutes, then turn and cook for an additional five minutes.

Today's War Analysis

In the CHURCHES

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
We cannot dismiss lightly as mere propaganda the statement by the German news agency that the Russian war is being fought to gain preconditions for the final struggle against Hitler, since this multiply that this is true.

Propaganda is doubtless is, and likely intended largely for home consumption. After all, things can't be too cheerful these days in Germany with an endless line of trains bleeding wounded home from the bloodiest conflict in history, and the Frankfurter Zeitung urging people to postpone their vacations because "several hundred thousand hospital beds have been installed in numerous hotels and are not available for transients."

However, there are plenty of indications that Herr Hitler is getting-set for further grave offenses in the Mediterranean and western theaters if fortune gives him the break in his efforts against the Bolsheviks. Of more immediate concern, fresh trouble is boiling up just in the Far East.

There's no question about the Fuehrer's intentions, considerable question about his ability to carry them out. His program in the immediate future. He's got to dispose of those fighting Reds before he can go all-out again in the west, and the bad weather is on his way.

We get a view of Herr Hitler's purposes from two highly significant developments. These are:

1. Reports from German-occupied France say improvements are being rushed on defenses in French African colonies, including Dakar which in hostile hands would constitute a grave menace to trans-Atlantic shipping, and a potential threat to the western hemisphere.

2. German military activity along the Turkish frontiers to Bulgaria and to attempt an invasion of the British Isles this year. However, with the arrival of the winter and the slackening of fighting in Russia he might make a further drive against Britain's lifeline to American supplies across the Atlantic, and he probably will accompany it by another offensive against British control of the Mediterranean.

The French bases would be invaluable for both these operations.

The Turks are in a tight place. Hitler didn't dare attack their army when Russia was standing by and presumably ready to go to their assistance, but his success in the Ukraine has eased the Red threat. It's quite in the cards that he may strike at Turkey now.

Meanwhile the British have troops up against the Persian-Iraq border, and the Russians are standing on Persia's northern frontier, ready to counter Nazi moves.

'Bound And Gagged' Duck Found In Lake
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22. (AP)—Man's inhumanity to man can be exceeded by man's inhumanity to dumb creatures.

new gift coffee-pot and the shining silver sandwich tray. Iced coffee drinks and delicate sandwiches are hot weather go-togethers that make entertaining easy and inexpensive.

COFFEE FRAPPE
(Makes 4 Servings)
Four cups freshly-made coffee, chilled, 1/2 cup cream, 1/4 cup powdered sugar, 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger, egg white.

Place all ingredients and some cracked ice into a beverage shaker and shake well; or beat all ingredients together with egg beater. If a richer drink is desired the egg yolk may be added. Pour into tall glasses 3/4 full of ice.

ICED MOCHA
(Makes 4 Servings)
Four tablespoons chocolate syrup, sugar to taste, 4 cups freshly-made double strength coffee, 2 cups cold milk.

Blend chocolate syrup with the coffee; sugar to taste. Chill. Add cold milk, stir and serve with whipped cream in tall glasses.

PAN-AMERICAN COFFEE FLOAT
(Makes 1 Serving)
In a beverage mixer, place 1 cup of freshly-made coffee (chilled) and 1 scoop of vanilla, chocolate, butterscotch or egg nog ice cream. Beat for 2 minutes. Pour into tall glass and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream. Dust with cinnamon.

Thin slices of buttered whole bread rolled around 2 tufts of crisp, slightly salted watercress make an ideal "hostess" sandwich for hot days. Cream cheese, mashed with a suspicion of minced olives to a smooth creamy consistency, make a delicious sandwich spread. The meat of an avocado mashed with a few slices of tomato, finely chopped, and seasoned with lemon juice, salt and pepper, is another refreshing sandwich idea for the porch party.

Crisp salted crackers spread with cream cheese dotted with currant jelly are easy to prepare and always welcome. Cubes of American cheese and salted crackers make a popular service. Peanuts are abundant. Serve a bowl of them with your coffee and sandwiches.

DOCTORS, TEACHERS ALL EAT WELL

If your husband is a doctor, lawyer, dentist or teacher, his meals should be as carefully planned as those of a first baseman. If you want to keep him in shape to answer calls, including his country's.

Although his caloric requirements might be less than those of an athlete—from 2,000 to 2,400 calories a day on an average—the mental and nervous strains usually undergone daily by professional men demand the rebuilding of energy and body tissue as would violent exercise.

A balanced diet built around meat twice a day, including also milk, eggs, vegetables, fruits, and cereals, is necessary for proper nutrition and good health. This menu for a day is a typical example:

Breakfast—Orange juice, French toast with maple syrup, Canadian bacon, coffee, milk.
Lunch—Broiled lamb chops with mushrooms, carrot and corn casserole, grapefruit salad, lime sherbet, sugar cookies, milk.
Dinner—Clam juice cocktail, ham steak with glazed bananas, asparagus au gratin, baked potatoes, whole-wheat muffins, butterscotch custard, coffee, milk.

HAM STEAK WITH GLAZED BANANAS
(Four Servings)
Two pounds ham steak 1 inch thick, 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1 1/2 cups orange juice, 4 firm all-yellow bananas.
Place ham steaks in greased roasting pan. Spread top and sides with brown sugar. Pour orange juice over all. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 1 1/2 hours. Peel bananas and cut in half lengthwise. Brush with orange liquor in which ham was baked. Arrange on top of ham steaks and place under broiler flame until tender and brown.

Iron Will Fight, Minister Declares

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Mohammed Shachyesteh, the Iranian minister, declared today that Iran would resist aggression from any source.

The minister, after conferring with Secretary of State Hull, told newspapermen that Iran would fight against Germany, Russia, Britain or any other force—even though the odds were ten to one—to prevent aggression on Iranian soil.

Denying that there were any German fifth columnists in Iran, the minister said that the total German population of his country was approximately 700.

Texans Begin To Feel Pinch Of Shortages

By POTT'S BOSWELL
Associated Press Staff

Black orders turn yellow in the files and gaps open in store stocks as the flood of production for national defense siphons off materials Texans use in their daily lives.

And Texas industry, like that in the rest of the nation, is slipping into the armament effort, changing the direction of its labors in a quiet revolution which the public citizen already is beginning to feel.

The effect is two-edged—the manufacturer may not be able to furnish the refrigerator coil Joe's restaurant wants for a new display case; the housewife may have to do without that certain kind of hairpin she is seeking.

But conversion to defense industry will be the salvation of many manufacturers, says Charles R. Moore, coordinator for the defense contract service of the OPM in the Dallas area.

Priorities are becoming more and more serious in the industrial world, says Moore, echoing comment by E. business structure of the southwest, T. Smith, chief of operations of the DCS, made on a recent trip to Texas.

"Priorities are becoming more and more stringent. In many industries serving no war need the time is not far off when materials will be unobtainable. These plants must turn to producing defense materials if they are to survive, and we intend to be in a position to show them how."

The shoe is just beginning to pinch. What's one man's shortage in manufactured goods may not be another's just now. C. B. Roberts, retail field officer for Sears Roebuck and Company, says, "While we have had difficulties in getting goods we have been anticipating more trouble than we have actually met."

But Sam, the shoe repair man, complains of a hard time getting the sizes in rubber heels and quality leather he wants, or the silk and linen thread for sewing; the companies advise consumers how better to take care of their clothes, and he is on the critical list; heavy consumer buying has in some instances helped create a shortage in shoes.

Colls and pins are made of metal. So are ships, planes, tanks, guns, silver cases, and refrigeration units for army camps. The army and navy get first take from the pot.

So a commercial refrigeration jobber, setting out to buy that coil for Joe, may not even get a back order.

The manufacturer, swamped with orders under priority to convert ice boxes in army camps to electrical boxes, or to build big refrigeration equipment for such camps, may say he can't hope to deliver.

The jobber does the best he can to Joe; may luckily find the coil with another manufacturer, but when a new army camp goes in, the chances are the jobber puts in his bid for the refrigeration equipment if he can.

Industry will be affected, as will

Nazis Claim 1,250,000 Red Troops Held

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Aug. 22—A new report of staggering Russian losses, including more than 1,250,000 prisoners alone, was issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters today as the invasion of Russia moved into its first month with the Wehrmacht holding a line about 300 miles deep into the Soviet from the Baltic to the Black sea.

The communique showed sharp rises in Red army captives and artillery pieces seized or destroyed in less than a month's time but a smaller ratio of gains in wrecked or captured tanks and warplanes.

These are the figures:

Ammunition
Tanks captured or destroyed	1,250,000
Artillery captured or destroyed	14,000
Guns destroyed or captured	15,000
Airplanes destroyed or captured	11,250

Some semi-official sources have figured that a roster of prisoners of such magnitude would indicate total Red army losses in dead, wounded and captured of about 5,000,000, but the high command did not go that far.

It still was silent on Germany's own losses, but it declared her armies and those of her allies were deep in Russia in "unbroken strength" while the Red army had suffered "casualties unimaginably high."

In language reflecting satisfaction with the achievements of the first two months, the communique reported operations "in full progress on the entire front" and gave this broad outline of the situation:

"In the southern Ukraine, the opponents' last bases on the Dnieper are being eliminated according to plan with heaviest losses for the foe.

"Northwest of Kiev, the enemy is retreating beyond the Dnieper.

"In the region east of Gomel, pursuit of the defeated opponent is being continued.

"In the front before Leningrad and in Estonia, our troops are fighting their way steadily forward. Attacks on the Finnish front on both sides of Lake Ladoga are gaining ground daily."

The visitor soon lost his misery, however. Drawing a pistol, he tied and gagged Pitt with towels, took $15 from a cash drawer and fled.

Gasoline Shortage Pinching Motorists

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Real or phony, the East's long-forecast gasoline shortage was pinching motorists today, with the nation's capital hit earliest and heaviest.

Some Washington filling stations sold pleasure car drivers only half as much fuel as they ordered. Others put a limit of five gallons on individual sales; others went as low as three. Yet some establishments were complying without question when requested to "fill 'er up."

Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum coordinator, renewed his denunciation of prophets who he said had "arisen to proclaim that there is no danger" and that "the warnings of an impending shortage are phony."

He said false figures were being circulated in an apparent attempt to "confuse the public" by challenging the necessity of diverting American tankers to British war supply service.

"That diversion of vessels was necessary, government officials said, and they declared it reduced the flow of oil to the East from Gulf ports to such an extent that last week's curtailment order became necessary. Jobbers have been instructed to reduce deliveries to filling stations 10 per cent below last month. Now some retailers are discovering that their August quota is nearly gone and that they must further restrict sales to individual customers."

Expanding on the government-ordered night curfew, a number of stations in the Washington and Philadelphia areas and elsewhere announced they would lock up all day Sunday.

Texas Cotton Growers Warned To Raise Yield

DEL VALLE, Aug. 22 (AP)—Dr. Z. T. Scott has the answer to a warning that Texas cotton growers must lower the cost of production and increase the yield per acre to compete successfully for domestic business with the cotton growing states east of the Mississippi river.

That picture of the situation was given in a talk yesterday at Fort Worth before a district growers' convention by Burris C. Jackson of Hillsboro, chairman of the statewide cotton committee.

Dr. Scott is actually only a beginner in the cotton growing business. An Austin physician, he started farming a 20-acre tract here two years ago.

Last year he brought in Travis county's second bale. This year his farm produced the first bale in the county. Although he used no fertilizer this year, Dr. Scott expects his yield to be a bale per acre. The cotton will be 1-4 inch staple.

One-fourth of the world's oil output is yielded by the good earth of Rumania, which ranks sixth among oil producing countries.

Wheat Varieties Suitable For Bread-Making Advised By Agronomist

At a meeting of the Gray county wheat farmers in the district courtroom yesterday E. A. Miller, extension agronomist of the A. and M. College of Texas, said it would be necessary for the farmers to produce wheat varieties more suitable for bread-making in order to maintain the markets for their wheat.

It is true that Chief Kan did produce exceptionally well in the Panhandle this year. However, the yields were no higher at the experimental station at Amarillo and on the test plots over the Panhandle than was that of Tenmarq. At the experimental station in Amarillo and in 38 test plots over the Panhandle over a nine-year period Tenmarq produced 13.7 bushels per acre, Standard Black Hull 13.8 bushels per acre, and Turkey Red 13.4 bushels per acre. Chief Kan in a four-year test produced 13.9 bushels per acre.

Would Penalize Poor Wheat
Frederick T. Dines, director of the Texas Wheat Improvement association, told the farmers that this year in Kansas the state AAA committee requested the Agricultural Adjustment administration to penalize varieties of poor milling qualities at least 10 cents a bushel.

However, the Washington office took the position that they hoped that through educational work the farmers would cease to plant these varieties another year, and such penalty would not be necessary.

The AAA officials in Washington have already indicated that it would be necessary to place a penalty on this wheat if the farmers continue to plant it as much as they have during the past two years. They did not feel that the government could afford to loan money on a commodity that could not be sold at a price anything like the loan value.

Mr. Dines said a survey had been made over the entire wheat producing area, and the locations of wheat of poor milling qualities were located. He stated that millers would not buy wheat from stations where as much as 5 per cent of the acreage had been seeded to Chief Kan. He stated that the better varieties of wheat such as Turkey Red and Tenmarq were as good as the wheat produced in the northern spring wheat region where a 10 to 20 cent premium was received.

Analysis Suggested
It was suggested that farmers have the seed that they wish to plant this year analyzed in order to determine whether or not it is suitable for planting. This work is done by the Texas Wheat Improvement association, and farmers desiring to have their wheat analyzed should bring samples of about one-half a pound to their local county agent who will send them in for analysis.

Mr. Dines stated that some of the wheat produced this year was low in germination, and suggested that farmers could send samples of wheat to the State Seed Testing laboratory at Lubbock for the germination test would be made free of charge.

County Agent Ralph Thomas acted as chairman of the meeting.

Texas Rangers Set Out Of Drive Against Cattle Rustlers

By HUGH WILLIAMSON

AUSTIN, Aug. 22 (AP)—Wide-hatted Texas Rangers, spurs clinking at their heels and six-guns hanging on their hips—just like the old days—are setting out in a drive on new-fangled cattle rustlers.

Cow thieves, since recent sharp increases in the price of meat, once more are making serious inroads on the herds, especially those of the sprawling West Texas plains, says Col. Homer Garrison, director of the state public safety department and the Rangers' boss.

Driving their trucks into the pastures, the rustlers cut out the animals they want, load them and drive away.

Some kill the cows they want, butcher them on the spot and carry away the meat, leaving the hide with its telltale brand.

Stopping the rustler is a tremendous assignment since much of the cattle country is thinly populated.

Famed for their horsemanship, the rangers use cars today, but they still own horses and use them in rough country.

Too, the rangers are trying new ways of trapping their old foes.

"We are now operating two checking stations in the Austin district," Colonel Garrison asserted, "in an experimental attempt to stop or check rustling."

Every truck containing cattle is stopped and its load checked against reports of stolen cattle.

It Was A Break For Telephone Operators

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 22 (AP)—Flying Cadet P. B. Cochran of Corpus Christi, Tex., brought his army training plane in low for a landing yesterday on Kearny mesa, and for two hours afterward could hardly make a telephone call to Los Angeles.

The plane's undercarriage carried away the ten top wires on an intercity line, and these were draped across most of the other 40 wires, causing a 90 per cent curtailment in service over the telephone company's inland route north. Repairs required two hours and 15 minutes.

Cochran was not hurt and the plane only slightly damaged. Army officers said the student pilot was making a routine landing on Gibbs field, but came down more than 150 feet too low.

Gene Bogue of the Texas Furniture company, Pampa, is now enrolled as a student in the regional laying school currently being conducted by the Armstrong Cork company in Dallas.

During his week's stay at the school, he will be given, without charge, instruction and an opportunity for practical experience in the most improved methods of laying linoleum floors.

The regional laying school was founded early this year in recognition of the fact that students from more distant parts of the country were unable to attend the regular Armstrong laying school in Lancaster, Pa.

Working on a specially designed portable traveling unit, students actually meet and solve virtually any type of problem encountered in modern floor and wall work.

The regional laying school usually stays a month in a given city, admission being by application.

'Peep' Gives New Punch To Cavalry

By NORMAN WALKER

WITH THE ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Aug. 22. (AP)—The cavalry still swears by its first love, the horse, but finds the animal's effectiveness even more pronounced with mechanized complements, such as the new bantam "Peep" platoons.

These light lightning units give the cavalry a deadly punch in modern warfare by doing the cavalry's main job of locating the enemy and vanishing before he can see them.

Bantam platoons have eight of the army's new midget "Peeps," capable of dashing cross-country as well as over roads, so light each crew of four with sub-machine guns can lift one from a manhole, and yet durable enough to mount a 37 mm. gun.

With an armored scout car, the bantam platoon's lieutenant and 38 men go tearing over terrain with the cavalry's horsemen like chickens around a hen, but with fighting power equal to trading blows with a tank.

"Our bantam outfits can go over ground that tanks can't negotiate," explained Col. Wilfred M. Blunt, commander of the 12th cavalry brigade from Fort Bliss, Tex., participating in the third army maneuvers.

"This makes them ideal for coordinated work with the mounted troops which can go anywhere."

"Other mechanized equipment placed at the disposal of the cavalry during recent times has tremendously increased its effectiveness and individual fighting power."

"But in the 'Peeps' we have a machine which works hand in hand with the cavalry and makes it ready for any contingency along a modern fighting front."

Heiskell Undergoes Knee Operation

Grover Lee Heiskell, flashy quarterback and ball carrier of the 1940 Pampa Harvester football team, left this morning for Lubbock where he will undergo an operation for a knee injury received in a game early last season. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. H. H. Heiskell.

The operation was ordered by Pampa school officials who carry insurance on Harvester players. The operation will be performed by a specialist who operated on several other former Harvesters who later played outstanding football in high school and college.

Young Heiskell plans to attend either University of Texas or Oklahoma A. & M. college at Stillwater this fall.

FDR Signs Order To Extend Army Service

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Implementing the selective service extension act, President Roosevelt directed in an executive order today that the term of service be extended 18 months for selectees, reservists, national guardsmen and enlisted personnel in the army.

The order was more or less a formality required under the extension act.

It provided that despite the extension, persons who have served for twelve months may be released as the interests of national defense permit.

Selectees, the order said, may be transferred to the reserves, after a year's service, "with a view to the early creation of a large trained reserve, while at the same time, maintaining in the army the immediate readiness for use in the defense of the nation," reservists now on active duty would be let out after a year, when they could be spared, under such regulations as the secretary of war might prescribe, and a similar procedure would be followed for enlisted men of the regular army.

THE CHRISTIAN HARMONY IN COMPETITION

The following article of mine is reproduced from the Christian Advocate with their consent.

Jesus was a truly great economist. No one ever gave more practical and condensed rules

In the last two verses of the Sixth Chapter of Matthew, He tells us if we seek the Kingdom of God

This, rationally interpreted in conjunction with His other statements, means that if we respect the equal rights of every other person

Jesus did not explain in detail this laissez faire plan—respecting the equal rights of others,—and the fallacy of worrying about the lack of adequate

No man, or even a majority of men, are wise enough to divide labor in harmony with the Kingdom of God

Men produce more when they have this inherent, God-given right to help divide labor by freely choosing the kind of work they believe will reward them most.

This God-given right to freely choose one's work and exchange the product is the only known way of fairly measuring what each man produces

Reasons For Not Understanding

Many do not understand this great truth set forth by Jesus. So they cannot believe it. Here are some of the reasons why they are confused:

They think the competitive system has been tried and failed. But it has no more been tried than has Christianity. There always have been

About 40 miles from Hollywood at Sherwood Forest, they've built a 10-acre jungle complete with river, a village and handsome temple, and who seems to be having more fun than anybody: except a couple of dozen monkeys who have got loose

People are confused about the benefits of competition because they can see that when some competitor undersells another, the one undersold is temporarily hurt or inconvenienced.

They fail to realize that if men tried to supply all their own wants and did not exchange anything, most people would perish in a few days.

Another cause for confusion is that inexperienced persons actually believe there is a limited amount of work to be done. If this were true and men actually wanted work, then competition would be harmful.

Another cause for confusion is that many people think there is some way of hoarding wealth without losing it, or that there is plenty of wealth for everybody if the wicked rich did not hoard wealth.

Real wealth has to be used in order to be preserved. Capitalists have to supply the wants of both their customers and workers better than others, before they benefit.

Certainly, because poverty is not being reduced as rapidly as we would like, no sincere, rational, humane person would advocate giving up what is left of the competitive system and not attempt to perfect it, until he has something definite in mind that he could explain without contradictions.

Can one conclude otherwise than that a man convicts himself of either stupidity or hypocrisy when he condemns competition and refuses to answer questions about a substitute rule for fear of contradicting himself?

If employees are not selected on the rule of competition,—the workers who will do the most for the compensation paid,—are they to be selected on a non-competitive rule? By lot? By seniority? By the worker's needs? By rotation? By force or intimidation? Otherwise, by what measurable, impersonal, eternal rule are they to be selected?

If they cannot give a rational answer and still oppose the competitive system, then they are in reality contending, as all dictators do, that their personal opinion, or the opinion of the majority, should be used as a rule of right conduct without regard to any of God's eternal, impersonal rules.

If the competitive system could be fully put in operation, then we would approach a practical, and not a visionary, communism, as then all the natural resources of all the world, and sooner or later all the natural talents of all mankind, would, willy nilly, become available to all mankind, as God intended them to be.

A CHANCE TO HIT THREE AT ONCE

Around Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

Water buffalo and snakes. By now Brothers Korcia—Alexander, producer of Zoltan, director, Vincent, art director—are making a movie out of Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book," and the result really will be something to see!

About 40 miles from Hollywood at Sherwood Forest, they've built a 10-acre jungle complete with river, a village and handsome temple, and who seems to be having more fun than anybody: except a couple of dozen monkeys who have got loose and gone native in the forest.

KALA NAG MISSING

About the only thing they haven't got is the boss elephant they wanted. That's Kala Nag ("Black Snake") in Hindi which was used in "Elephant Boy" and is still in the interior of India. Ghip space probably could have been found and they were willing to take a chance on submarines, but they couldn't bear to make poor old Kala Nag walk 600 miles to the coast. He's too tall for clearance if transported by trucks or barges.

Lawrence Stelling, who wrote the script, hasn't made all the animals talk as they do in the Kipling book. The python and cobra will talk because they hiss anyway and it will sound fairly natural when sibilant words are dubbed on the sound track for them. For the other creatures, no voices could be devised which wouldn't sound distractingly unreal. Therefore, a little girl barely mentioned by Kipling has been given a more prominent place in the screen play so that Mowgli (Sabu) can tell her what the animals say.

The python is 24 feet long and lives in a hole in a bedroom closet of his owner, a couple of snake fanciers in Glendale. By feeding him 12 dressed rabbits for breakfast they're able to start him at work in a slightly torpid state, but when he gets warm he grows frisky, and the crew has to keep him in check with the only weapon he understands—blow torres.

The cobra is a very gentle white one whose mistress merely has to look at him and say, "Hood, baby!"—and he does. But he's still a cobra, and the rest of the company keeps clear.

Sher Khan, Lord of the Jungle, is an unbelievably beautiful half-Bengal and half-Sumatra tiger. Real name's Roger. He's plenty tough, not the sort of beast for a Dorothy Lamour idyl. The shot made a Roger the next day, and he was exactly three minutes, and Stallings says that only over his dead body will so much as a foot of it be cut.

BEAR PERFORMER

In the Kipling story, Baloo the Bear taught Mowgli the law of the Jungle, but the Himalayan brown giant that the Korcias are using is no model of patience or virtue. Other day while a scene was being rehearsed by the water's edge, a crocodile popped up snorting, and scared the bear out of a three-weeks' growth of inhibitions. He turned on his trainer and the fellow explained he had been working bears 40 years but that the most important thing he'd learned was how to drop his price and run like blazes.

People You Know

A. P. Stark doesn't know what Mrs. Stark is going to put in the afternoon picnic basket on the 25th of Sept. 1, but he hopes it will be chicken, and Mark Denison hopes the same. As for me and Mummy we are going to take deviled eggs and beet pickles and potato salad and lemon pie and fried chicken. That's our favorite picnic menu but we expect to eat little of what we bring because we expect to be browsing around. Boy, are we going to get full at the picnic.

Another thing, there's going to be plenty of lemonade. There will be two covered castiron tanks full of lemonade with hydrometers in each. So the lemonade is going to be sanitary, too. What's the purpose of this picnic? Well, the only purpose is to be neighborly and show you are not so snooty as you may seem. You'll just go down there, helping a few songs, stand up when the name of your native state is called, listen to some stirring music, and to Stutterin' Sam's tomfoolery, and a few remarks by other people. Then you will spread your lunch, and you will be friendly and you will meet a lot of people, and you will enjoy a good picnic lunch, which is what makes a holiday worth while, anyway. . . . Don't try to tell me that everybody will be out of town on Labor Day. Oh, no, they won't. Not more than a few hundred, and don't forget that there are more than 20,000 people in and around Pampa. Well, this picnic ain't catering just to big shots. This picnic is for the people who don't think they are big shots, who don't think they are too good to associate with common ordinary folks who won't say "ain't," and this picnic ain't for people who are stuck up and snooty. So that's just about 90 per cent of the readers of The News license to pack up a lunch and come to the picnic. You'll meet your own kind there, and you'll have lots of fun with them.

THE LOOKING GLASS

By Stella Holt

Jessica was just going to bed when the house started rattling all over like an old wagon on a rocky road.

There were shrieks as missionaries, teachers and students ran out of the buildings. The whole earth was trembling; there was a deep murmur, low, weird and unholy. Hysteria reigned but was quickly routed by the general like little Miss Craig, Principal of the school. Her quick, sensible and forceful commands brought order to the wailing 250 students and teachers.

Then as though she had ordered that too, the earth ceased to tremble and the rumbling ceased. The sky was serene and beautiful. The river rushed over the dam and the plum trees were white with blossoms. An exquisite night in spring, in the Balkans. And yet the world had almost ended. It might still end.

The children went back into the dormitories with teachers appointed to sit up all night on watch duty. The principal came into the missionary living room, acted perfectly normal, said good night and went to bed. Jessica admired her super normal human composure.

"How do you get any feeling?" wept Miss North, dabbing at her eyes. She had been crying loudly from the moment the earth started to tremble. "How can she go to bed?" She felt betrayed that a woman of her own country and her own religion could go to bed calmly on a night like this.

Mrs. Tobey also took a gloomy view. She had her crochets and went at it like fury. She had never considered the Principal a religious woman. Surely, in a hour-like this a prayer should be said.

SIDE GLANCES

By Galbraith

Miss North kept on crying. Mrs. Tobey continued to think of a beautiful opportunity lost. What a prayer meeting it could be written up for the Missionary Journal. She had no personal relations with God and only prayed in a body.

The earth was still uneasy and quaked occasionally. Jessica went to her room. Not to sleep, but to think. She had always taken life for granted. But on this death-still night in the Balkans, that might be her last, the inestimable beauty and value of life struck her as never before. The wonder of Being. Never had she considered it a heaven-sent gift. And she had done nothing about it. Never acknowledged the glory of being alive. Tomorrow, if there was tomorrow, she would do something about it.

Behind The News In Washington

BY PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Along with consideration of the price control bill now before the House committee on banking and currency, there has been congressional chattering about handling price administration with a board, and putting in prohibitions on the fixing of prices before there had been ample opportunity to hold hearings and in general follow the safe, sane, cumbersome routine that characterizes the normal procedure of congress.

It would be nice if there were time for all this slow-poke red tape, but if you want to know how crazy all these proposals are, just take a look at the Bituminous Coal Division, which is now involved in about as many price-fixing cases as a government agency can be. BCD is responsible for only one commodity—soft coal.

You might think its problem relatively simple, as there are only some 15,000 coal mines to worry about. If, however, you were to multiply BCD's grief by the hundreds of thousands of similar agencies that would have to be set up to administer prices on hundreds or thousands of other commodities, you can easily see just what a mess the country would be in.

20 MONTHS ON THIS JOB

For a bit of background, you may recall that the present bituminous coal act was passed in 1937. In the spring of 1938, the old Bituminous Coal Commission began hearings on the establishment of minimum prices for the coal industry. In July, 1939, the old commission was abolished and the job was turned over to the Bituminous Coal Division of the Interior Department which, however, continued the hearings and retained about the same personnel. Those hearings continued until January, 1940—or more than 20 months.

Wouldn't it be fun, today, with inflation at the door, to hold hearings for 20 months on whether or not to put maximums on the price of wheat, corn or cotton?

Anyway, the hearings didn't settle the matter. When the BCD had all its evidence, it was millions of pages of testimony, it had to go into retirement for nine months before giving birth to its schedule of prices. That schedule saw the light of day Oct. 1, 1940—just 2 1/2 years after the hearings began.

In other words, if the government has to delay until this fall hearing procedure, you could expect price schedules on silk hose or rubber tires—well, with luck you might have it by New Year's Day, 1944.

Even when the coal code price schedule was published, the matter wasn't settled. There were actually thousands of prices, and nobody, even today, knows how many prices there are in that schedule. There was a price for practically every one of the 15,000 mines, for every one of the dozens of sizes and qualities of coal, and the mine price was different for every market. . . . Six hundred mine operators found fault with the schedule, as you might expect, and their cases had to be reviewed. Changes were made. Then 300 appealed to Secretary Ickes, and more changes were made. Three of the 300 made appeals to federal courts, and finally the price schedule was in effect.

GOES ON FOR YEARS

Today, Bituminous Coal Division finds itself with two problems on its hands. It is empowered to fix both minimum and maximum prices. On the one hand, it has about 100 cases on its hands, charging mine operators with selling coal below the minimum prices, allowing unauthorized discounts, failing to add actual transportation charges to delivered prices, and failing to keep records. There must be a hearing, a "trial," and a decision on every case. Mind you, these are for violations of minimum prices.

On the other hand, prices of some of the special coals are going up. On the one hand, it has about 100 cases on its hands, charging mine operators with selling coal below the minimum prices, allowing unauthorized discounts, failing to add actual transportation charges to delivered prices, and failing to keep records. There must be a hearing, a "trial," and a decision on every case. Mind you, these are for violations of minimum prices.

This sad story is told here to show the utter folly of trying to fix maximum prices and prevent inflation by any complex methods of boards and hearings.

The only way to fix prices is to fix prices. Some few people may get hurt in the process, but their wounds can be licked. In the meantime, millions more will be kept from being hurt. The second moral of this piece is that if you burn coal in your furnace, the coal consumers' council says you'd better fill up the bin now, while there's coal and before the price goes up. But maybe you'll figure you can keep warm by burning governmental red tape this winter.

TEX'S TOPICS

EDITOR'S NOTE: While Tex DeWesse is on vacation, his space is being filled each day by a different writer. Incidentally, DeWesse saw none of the copy before he left and said he had no desire to censor any of it. So here's today's guest columnist!

By H. WAMPLER

Today's column will not be a sensation. It will not reek with humor. It will be an ordinary bit of writing, just as you would expect from an ordinary person.

Very often, it is noted that a writer of a column refers to himself as "we." For the benefit of those who do not know the reason for this, Max Wade, the linotypist, gave an explanation a few months ago. . . . When using "we" a columnist is referring to himself and the other scribe from whom he "clips" daily.

A sure way to test your driving ability and to tax your patience is to drive down West Kingsmill, between Russell and Cuyler, any afternoon around 6 or 7 o'clock. With good luck the drive can be made in 10 or 15 minutes. Cars, most of them occupied by women drivers, are doubled-parked on both sides of the street, and anytime you sound your horn get ready for an indignant stare. . . . This unmonitored situation is an increasing traffic hazard.

Out in my neighborhood, where North Ward runs into Hobart street, a "mud-hole" is causing consternation among residents on North Banks street. After crossing this place in a car with a new wash and grease job, one begins to wonder just what causes all of the water to be there.

There is no "spring" near this dip and it isn't caused by rain. . . . The city water works is about a block away.

In your daily routine, do you ever come in contact with a man that has aspirations to be a "big shot"? . . . This man would say almost anything (short of a felony) for a little publicity. He imagines when walking downtown, or riding in his automobile, that bystanders will "nudge" each other and cast flattering and beautiful remarks his way. . . . When he says something his expression clearly signifies that he would appreciate applause.

In what should be a private conversation, the "big shot" ejaculates words long and loud, oftentimes misusing and mispronouncing them. He looks at everyone near him, except the party to whom he is supposed to be conversing, for glances of admiration. . . . He knows all about the foreign situation, and when speaking of the two rulers now at war, he calls them Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin. . . . I have been in a few towns that didn't have many men of that disposition.

The composing room of The News has given its first selectee to the army in the person of Herman Gray who last week left with other draftees for the induction station at Fort Bliss, El Paso. . . . Games at Fort Heman that the army knows a good thing when seeing it, and he will make a good soldier for one year and 18 months.

Speaking of typographical errors, this linotype operator holds the record of having more of them to get through the proof-reader and into the paper than any other man that has been employed in the composing room. . . . Incidentally, those "slip-ups" are the kind that can't be mentioned here.

No one knows better than a manipulator of the machine how essential it is to be brief when being a guest columnist. . . . Just like three drunk men. . . . a lot of talk and nothing said.

SECRET VOYAGE

YESTERDAY, Jim Mallory tells Jerry Hammond there is an "in" in the Sonora hold. Hammond knows that, admits he played along to keep Jim from reporting to the Coast Guard. He tells Jim the Sonora was scuttled by Bert Halloran, who was rescued after being fired upon by a British battleship in the Caribbean. Hammond offers Mallory $5000 to give up the search for the ship. Hammond says he plans to stay on the scene, believes there is something in the Sonora to salvage. Later Jim tells Lois Hammond he is on the way to New York. He refuses at first to believe him, says Mary Larsen would have gone to New York with Eric Forbes if she hadn't believed Jim would strike it rich. Jim insists he has lost everything, and an enraged Lois accuses him of telling her off.

"Jim, believe me—please." "Sure. Sure, I believe you. You didn't know Halloran was trying to bribe me, and threatening me. You didn't know that he was working with Forbes, and you don't know what's so valuable aboard the Sonora." "And you didn't break with Halloran and Forbes and make a play for me, right now, because I beat them to the punch. Sure, I believe your story. Go on with it. Tell me you're in love with me—so long as you think I'm in the money." She looked as though she had been slapped. There were tears in her eyes, and she kept biting hard on her under lip. Finally she said, "All right, Jim."

Just before dusk that evening one of the crew sighted a ship. Jim watched it through a pair of glasses. It was the Cuban schooner. It came in from the south, making directly for the Aurora's position, and it kept coming until it was within three miles and there it stood by. Jim could count eight men on the schooner. Curly Bates said, "Trouble, Jim?" "Looks like it. But I doubt if it will come tonight. They can't know we're not armed. I think they'll try to jump us at daybreak when we'd be more likely off guard. But we're not going to be here at daybreak." Curly's seamed old face showed surprise. "You're going to run?" "Sure. After I go through the Sonora's cabins."

CHILL TERROR

CHAPTER XI

JIM MALLORY watched Lois walk away in her fury. Knowing that she was walking out of his life, he strangely felt no regrets. He shrugged her out of his thoughts, tossed his cigarette over the side, and walked along the deck to the Jacob's ladder that would take him down to the Aurora's boat.

Mary Larsen stood at the railing, the sun bright on her coppery hair. She turned and faced him, smiled and said, "Well, Jim?" He halted. His face was stiff. He said, "So you didn't go to New York as Eric Forbes' secretary?" "No, I didn't intend to. Do you remember what you said to me when I came aboard the Aurora back at the Landing, Jim?" "I remember."

"Well, it does interest me. And I no longer care about the Sonora." "I know, I know. I'm the fair-haired boy now. I've got the Sonora right in my hand. You play the game safe, don't you?" "What do you mean by that?" Her smile was gone now, and hurt was in her eyes.

"What I mean is," he said, "that you put your money on the man who looks like a winner. Right now I look like a winner, to you." She bit her lip and stared at him wordlessly.

Jim's voice ran on, cold and hard with anger. "You handed me a line about Bert Halloran being lost at sea, and all the while you knew he was merely hiding out and working on this Sonora thing. And you were working with him." "I didn't know he was alive until I found that cigar case, Jim," she said miserably. "I swear, Jim."

"All right, all right. Stick to your story."

He went over the side and dropped into the Aurora's boat. Aboard the Aurora, he went to his cabin. Curly came in and found him pacing back and forth like a caged tiger. Curly lighted his pipe and patiently waited.

"Curly, I'm the world's champion fool," Jim finally said. "I fall in love with a girl who isn't worth a man's second look."

"I knew that girl meant trouble when she first came aboard the Ajax tug, Jim."

"She made a play for me, because she thinks the Sonora is making me rich. What a laugh!" "What are we going to do about the Sonora, Jim?" "We're going to go through her from stem to stern. There's no manganese aboard, but there's something else. I've a hunch it's something in the first mate's cabin."

BOTH got into diving suits the next morning and were lowered through forty fathoms of dark water. They reached the Sonora's hull. With the ship lying on its side they had difficulty reaching deck in its vertical position.

The crew above maneuvered their booms, swinging the divers so they finally managed to reach the wrecked bridge. Lamps had been sent down.

"The work for a time, moving loose timbers with the pincers at the ends of the diving suits' metal arms, staying below as long as they could. They didn't get into the cabin in that descent. Aboard the Aurora again, Jim saw the Hammond yacht had lifted anchor and sailed away. He wanted to believe he was glad it had gone, but he wasn't. He wasn't yet over his love for Mary Larsen.

THERE was no moon that night, and the complete darkness was a bit of luck. The schooner couldn't observe the Aurora's activity. Jim got into a rubber suit so that he could enter the sunken ship's cabins. He stood on the Jacob's ladder waiting for Curly to place his helmet when Blacksheep came to the railing. The Cayman's ebony face wore an uneasy grin, a sheepish look.

"Spike sub, I done got a confession to make. I done something you won't like, no suh!" Curly said, "Scram, Blackie!" And eased the iron helmet down on Jim's shoulders, bolted it fast. Jim carried a pince-bar and a small lamp down with him. He didn't light the lamp until he reached the Sonora; he didn't want the schooner's crew to know he was down. He used the bar to dig away into the Sonora's cabin. It took a lot of work and a lot of time, and he was staying below too long. But he kept at it and finally got into the cabins.

He found the stuff in the first mate's room, several wooden cases of it, and when he pried open one case he understood a lot. He understood everything. The cases contained gold bars. There was no doubt of it. Those dully glinting yellow metal bars were gold.

Jim said, into his phone, "Curly! I've found it! Send down a line to haul it up!" He got no answer. The wire was dead. "And suddenly chill terror got hold of Jim Mallory. He choked. He couldn't get his breath. He turned his lamp on his air hose; the hose seemed intact, but it was as dead as the telephone. No air was being pumped down to him.

Bill Would Create Cattle Monopoly, Texan Testifies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22. (AP)—Testimony that modern cattle rustlers were using trucks and high-speed highways was offered before a senate subcommittee today during a dispute between two rival associations of cattlemen.

The controversy centered on a House-approved bill which would allow the secretary of agriculture to designate one cattlemen's organization in each state to collect fees at stockyards for inspecting branded cattle.

Rep. Kleberg (D.-Tex.), part-owner of the huge King ranch in Texas, urged the senate agriculture committee to approve the house bill in order to coordinate inspection of brands, or identifications placed on cattle by owners.

W. P. McFaddin, Jr., from Beaumont, Texas, testified that the proposed measure would make an "absolute monopoly of cattle inspection in each state" and allow larger cattlemen's organizations to drive their smaller rivals out of business.

McFaddin heads the coastal cattle raisers association, representing about 800 producers, and testified that the proposed bill would give the larger Texas and southwestern cattle raisers association a virtual monopoly through the inspection revenue in Texas and other states.
