Last Play Night of Summer

County Agent Tommy Haegelin said that he had not expected such a large turn-out and for that reason had not made age-groups in the different events. He predicts bigger and better times for next summer.

The refreshments were served on an honor system, leaving each individual to keep track of what he consumed and to pay-up at the end of the evening. Apparently everyone over examined their conscience because the tally was $7.00 over what was spent. A good beginning for next year.

Several people were recognized during the evening: Our cooks—Barbara Farmer and Wanda Smith and our bookkeeper and secretary, Dorothy Browne.

Special thanks were forgotten in our excitement but should have gone to Shirley Newton for a delicious pot of chili and Larry Smith for the use of his tractor to work out rain soaked arena.

The last Borden County 4-H Play night was held Wednesday night in Gail Arena.

The night went over big! Kids and parents alike had a good time enjoying the show and eating hot dogs.

Richard Smith received the buckle for all-around boy and Cindy Beavers received one for all-around girl. Others receiving ribbons for their placings were:

Historical Marker

Mr. McCarty and Mr. Shauer were in Gail recently to confer with members of the Borden County Historical Survey Committee with reference to the placing of an Historical Marker to honor Gail Borden, founder of the Borden Milk Company, for whom the town of Gail and Borden County were named. This marker to be financed by The Borden Company, will be erected on the Court House Square. An inscription commemorating the various careers of Gail Borden has been prepared and submitted to the State Historical Survey Committee for approval. Such a marker has been a goal of the Survey Committee for some time, and we hope that it will soon be in place for all to admire with pride in our historical heritage.

(Forty newspapermen and their families — representing 12 state press associations — visited remote areas of Mexico in July. It was the fourth annual International Press Study Mission. This is the first of a series of three stories outlining the new "developing Mexico.")

ISLA MUJERES, Quintana Roo, Mexico--If you have returned from your 1972 vacation — and are taking a peek at the 1973 calendar for next year's vacation plans, you might want to consider a route that most tourists have not located yet.

Better hurry though, because jet runways are under construction on Mexico's Caribbean coast and the "unexplored will be explored" within the next five years.

Many Texans think of Acapulco, Mexico City, Guadalajara or the border cities when they plan a Mexico vacation.

That will change when the Boeing 747 starts pouring tourists into the $40,000,000 Cancun tourist development just north of this slim island where the Gulf meets the Caribbean.

Merida and the island of Cozumel will be attracting more vacationers because of the attractive shopping bargains and the gateway to the ruins of Chichen Itza and Uxmal. Cuzumel is ranked as having one of the top five beaches in the world for scuba divers.

Isla Mujeres is a beautiful island, five miles long, just north of Cozumel. It is a "free port" and boasts a first class hotel — the Zazil-Ha.

What do you want to do on your vacation?

If you want to explore ruins, the states of Veracruz, Tabasco, Quintana Roo, Chiapas and Yucatan offer a variety of archeologist's dream cities from the Olmec, Toltec and Mayan cultures.

Wild game hunting, deep sea fishing, scuba diving, shopping are rated tops in those five states. You'll see more visitors from Germany, France, other European countries and Japan than you will the U.S. It's an "in" area for Europe.

In Veracruz — look for Mocambo Beach. In Coatzacoalcos — ask for a tour of the Peme industrial complex.

In Villahermosa, take a tour of the Venta outdoor museum. The ceremonial city of Palenque is a highlight of Tabasco state. The Kohunlich archeological zone is important for all visitors in the territory of Quintana Roo —then travel north on new highways to the ceremonial city of Tulum and Akumal. In the state of Yucatan, visit Chichen-Itza and Uxmal — both fabulous cities of the Mayan civilization.

Folk dancing festivals — street marimba bands — exotic flowers in the rain forests — surf bathing — architecturally rich churches — native handicraft centers. Jungle safaris — rides on sea turtles — undersea kaleidoscope of marine creatures and coral formations — forests of mahogany, cedar, chicle, oak trees — glass-bottom boatrides — innumerable birds of multi-colored feathers — dark green swamps with yellow and blue flowers, striated with labyrinths of hyacinth — virgin beaches — hollow mountains with unexplored caverns and waterfalls — find them all in Mexico's developing peninsula.

Long Horseback Ride Outdoorsmen Tips For

THE BORDEN STAR, WED., AUGUST 23, 1972 9

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

Two brothers, L. Douglas and Leonard Woodworth are traveling on horseback from Chickasha, Oklahoma to Alamogordo, New Mexico. They will do missionary work with the Baptist Church in Alamogordo. Douglas left Fort Scott, Kansas on June 4th, where he had been song and youth leader at the Prescott Baptist Church. A few days later, he arrived in Chickasha to visit with his parents, Leonard and a sister and family. In Chickasha, Leonard, engaged in construction work, sold his truck to get money to buy a horse and join Douglas for the trip to New Mexico.

They spent a week in Crowley, Texas, visiting their brother and family and rode into Gail on the afternoon of August 15th. They rode their horses to the top of Gail mountain and spent two nights on top before continuing on their journey.

Douglas, who is 22 years old, had only been on a horse twice in his life before he began this trip and Leonard, 28, had never before ridden a horse.

They feel that horses will be the most economical and best way to reach the Indians in New Mexico and since they were not financially able to have a car and horse trailer, they decided to ride them. They reported the people along the way had been both friendly and helpful. They plan to seek work to support themselves while doing mission work and later send for their parents. Their father is blind and in a wheelchair. Douglas said that they feel that God was leading them to their location and both claim the Bible Verse, Romans 8:31 as their guidance. "If God be for us, Who can be against us."

By VERN SANFORD Clouds Help Fishing

Don't hesitate to go fishing on cloudy days. That's the best time!

It's difficult to get big-eyed black bass to hit topwater lures when the sun is shining bright, and especially in open water.

Apparently the reason bass hit best in the shade is the fact that you're more likely to find them there. Bass have no eyelids to shade their eyes from the sun, so they hide out in the shade of trees, overhanging ledges, etc.

On cloudy days they not only come out of cover, but those that dive deep to get away from the penetrating rays of the sun come to the top for a look around.

Tow Boats and Tow Lines

Nearly every boatsman has, at one time or another during his experience on the water, towed in a crippled craft or been aboard one being towed.

Natural inclination, especially if the towed boat is a runabout or smaller is to tie to the towing craft with a simple line. This means that more likely than not, the crippled one will turn one way, then the other, and follow a crooked course.

One way to help prevent the yaw is to rig a bridle from the quarter cleats of the lead boat, then tie the towline from the center of the bridle to the bow of the towed vessel.

Further steadiness can be achieved is someone remains aboard the towed boat and helps to keep control by steering the vessel along the proper course.

A nylon towrope is preferred to manila since it will stretch and absorb some of the sudden tugs.

If there are big waves and swells it helps to adjust the line so that both boats are in the trough and on the crest at the same time. This avoids the sharp strains that could snap the line.

Wrap towels around the tow line wherever the line might touch the tow boat—to protect the finish.

Head 'em up - move 'em out!
Whether your journey is to a different state or a mere jaunt across town, moving today requires detailed arrangements. So decide on a mover and set a moving date as soon as possible - a month's notice is good.

All motor carrier services must be certified by the Interstate Commerce Commission. They are required to provide you with a booklet entitled, "Summary of Information for Shippers of Household Goods." This booklet describes in detail many items of vital importance, such as information about obtaining estimates and loss and damage claims.

Contact one or more recommended movers for an estimate of charges. But remember - this is only an estimate, and is not binding on you or the company. Your final expenses cannot be determined until your goods are weighed after loading them into the van.

It is important that your goods are properly weighed and recorded. A slight error in the weighing process could result in an expensive charge. When the van containing your goods is being weighed, go up to the scales. Personally observe the recorded weights.

Effective this year is a new ruling from the Interstate Commerce Commission. If you suspect the mover's billing weight is too high, you may request it to be reweighed. If the reweight is more than 120 pounds below the billed weight, you will not have to pay for reweighing. This also applied if the billed weight exceeds the estimate net weight by 25 percent or more. However you still have to pay for reweighing if the reweight does not fit the 120 pounds or 25 per cent limits.

"The Summary of Information for Shippers of Household Goods," states: "If the total actual charges do not exceed the estimate plus 10 per cent, you must pay the actual charges prior to unloading your goods. However, when the total actual charges exceed the estimate by more than 10 per cent, the mover is required, on your request, to deliver your goods upon payment of the estimated charges plus an additional 10 percent, and you have 15 days to pay the balance."

Once you reach your final destination, inspect your property. Report any damages immediately. Your carrier service is a service to you. You are paying for the best. Make sure you receive it.

Make yours a "smart move." Be an informed householder and take the confusion out of moving. If you have any questions about moving or would like to receive additional information, contact my Consumer Protection Division at P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas 78711.

RAY HERRING—S.W. Fluvanna Parallel Terracing.

These terraces are holding back flood water on the Deep Creek Watershed. Most of the water is being held and the excess water is going over the end blocks at a slow rate of speed. Most conservation practices are designed to hold most of the flood water and release the excess at a slow runoff rate. Had it not been for conservation measures such as the above parallel terraces, the flood damage in Snyder would have been much greater. Soil Conservation Service Photo

Von Kleibrink, District Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, reports that the flood damage to city of Snyder would have been much greater if it had not been for the conservation measures that farmers and ranchers had installed on their farms and ranches in the Deep Creek Watershed.

There have been about 700 miles or 3,696,000 feet of terraces constructed on the watershed. These terraces held or slowed down the rapid rate of runoff. In addition to the terraces many ponds and diversion terraces have been constructed on the deep Creek Watershed. Also the good cover of grass maintained on the rangeland helped to slow down the rate of runoff.

Kleibrink concluded that if it had not been for the combination of conservation measures installed on the Deep Creek Watershed which slowed down the rate of runoff, the water would have been much deeper and caused considerable more damage in Snyder.

Summer Clothes Feature Cotton

Children really don't need many clothes for summer if what they do have is cool and machine-washable, can be tumble-dried, and needs no ironing.

The fabric that answers all these requirements has been around for a long time, but this summer it has acquired new status in the fashion world. It's cotton terry cloth, a natural choice for children's play clothes. The fabric is used extensively for children's shorts, polo shirts, and one-piece jumpsuits this summer.

Terry now comes in stylish ribbed or cabled versions, but it's still a favorite in regular plush pile with thirsty loops. Colors are bright on new cotton terries and run to vivid sunny shades like orange, yellow and hot pink, with printed patterns much in evidence.

SAN MARCOS—The excitement and nostalgia of Texas' world-famed Confederate Air Force will again be a major attraction at the Third Annual Republic of Texas Chilympiad festival at San Marcos Sept. 29 to Oct. 1.

The Harlingen-based CAF—which delighted thousands of spectators at last year's Chilympiad—will present a special air show Sunday, Oct. 1, at Gary Air Field, according to Chilympiad Co-Chairman Ken Weatherford and Jon Mostyn. The appearance of the planes—all of them of World War II vintage restored to perfect flying condition—is part of the dedication of this year's Chilympiad to the 25th anniversary of the United States Air Force.

As part of the three-day celebration, commanders of Air Force bases in San Antonio, Laredo, Del Rio and Austin have been invited to participate in the Chilympiad activities.

The commanders have been asked to serve as a special reviewing committee for the CAF show Sunday, which also includes a "static" show of the various airplanes before the actual Sunday flying activities.

Included among the aircraft featured by the CAF are a Messerschmitt 109, P-40 "Flying Tigers," P-38 "lightnings," Japanese "Zeros" and the Navy F6F Hellcat.

Also included among the aircraft are such planes as the AT-6 "Texan," the B-25 "Mitchell," the P-47 Thunderbolt, the P-51D "Mustang," the 4U Corsair, and the F4F Wildcat. Also, the B-17 "Flying Fortress," B-24 Liberator, and the A-20 Havoc, and the B-T 13.

The air show will include a scramble of "commando raiders," a mass parachute drop, a parade of fighters, reenactment of a bombing run as well as other events.

Directing the complex aerobatic entertainment will be Air Show Director Col. Hank Cline, an Austin insurance executive, and assistant director Col. Tom Webb of San Marcos, a flying school operator.

The CAF "Ghost Squadron" that will be appearing is a nationwide organization dedicated to the preservation of the famous aircraft of World War II.

The privately organized and funded organization sponsors the CAF Museum at Harlingen Air Force Base. The CAF has been recognized by the Air Force, Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.

The Chilympiad—sponsored by the San Marcos Chamber of Commerce—will begin with a Friday night street dance, with the state champion chili chef to be selected Saturday afternoon at the Chilympiad headquarters at Aquarena Springs.

Food booths and beer concessions will open Friday at Aquarena Springs.

Included Saturday is a starving artists' show, an Old Fiddler's Contest, and the actual chili competition.

The grand champion pot of chili will be auctioned after the judging as part of Saturday's activities.

The Sunday activities will include the air show as the main attraction.

Reigning during the Chilympiad will be the 1972 Chili Queen. The 1971 queen was Barbara Castleberry.

Numerous of the state's most famous—and colorful—chili chefs will participate in the cook-off.

The three-day event will determine the champion to represent Texas at world championship chili competition later this year.

The Chilympiad is recognized as the official Texas competition by the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI). The organization has chapters throughout the world.

Among the entrants will be Chief Fulton Battise of the Alabama-Coushatta Indian tribes, last year's champion, Mayor Kenneth Krueger of Noack, and CAF ace Col. C.T. "Curly" Edwinton.
