was sunk by Coast Guard gun-fire last night to eliminate what was considered "a menace to navigation."

Meanwhile, new chapters were organized in the Crimea of the seas as four of the Fort Mercer crew were brought to Portland by the cutter Yakutat.

Capt. Naab told how Second Mate William F. Palmer, 28, of Hampton, Mass., and Third Mate Vincent A. Gaidon, 22, of Bayonet, N. J., forced Capt. Panzani to break the agents' statement that a master is the last to leave his ship.

Four of the eight men who were on the Fort Mercer 602 lost their lives Tuesday in an attempt to help into Coast Guard aircrafts floated past the hull.

O. K. Henson, superintendent of Briscoe schools testified he had been offered the key by Stuppi and would accept it to open the station to get school freight from Thompson paraded six other witnesses to the stand, one of them J. H. Mason, a store owner, told the examiner that all his inbound freight was sent collect except from two companies.

A large group of men and women from Briscoe, which has a population of a little over 100, were present hear the testimony.

By BOB BUSH

Joe is only eight months old and during that time has been involved in a series of adventures — including being kidnapped twice — that would make any of his friends green with envy.

Joe is a crow who, since birth, has relied upon owner George Schoner, 900 N. Somerville, for his subsistence.

In June of last year Schoner found Joe fluttering helplessly in a nest containing several other small birds on an oil lease near Lefors.

All the birds were taken by other workers — which later died — and Joe was brought to his present home where he was nursed and fed.

Until a large cage outdoors could be made, Joe was kept inside where he could be watched and protected. The weather, however, was warm, and the bird soon was moved outside.

Joe like the arrangement. He like it so well that when he was big enough to be released from his cage he remained in the yard close to Schoner. As far as the question of food was concerned, Joe was contented with his ration of bread and milk — still a favorite with him.

Perhaps Joe could write a book about his adventures — that is if he could write, for the bird's life has been far from unadventurous, and at times, expensive for his owner.

When Joe first learned to fly several weeks after being born, he decided to see more of the world and left home, getting as far as City park several blocks away.

Here he became friends with a man who was resting in the park. The friendship grew until both bird and man retired to a local tavern where Joe was fed for two beers.

It was not until a few days later after Schoner had paid $5 for advertisements that his pet was recovered.

Several weeks afterward Joe again disappeared and was not returned until a second ad appeared — again at a cost of $5.

After his return the second time, Joe's wings were worn short, and although they have grown since he still is unable to fly.

This handicap, however, does not affect his aggressiveness. In fact when it comes to cats Joe is downright belligerent. Whenever a neighbor's pet is sunning itself in Joe's yard the bird will carefully walk up behind the animal, grab its tail with his beak and pull. Dogs, however, Joe leaves alone.

One of Joe's favorite pastimes is taking a shiny coin from a person and hiding it in the grass. Of course the bird will take just about anything offered him including letters from a mail box which he pulls out with his beak.

Each day neighborhood children visit Joe and usually wind up running from the yard chased by the large black bird. Joe soon learned he couldn't peck through shoes so now he reaches up under a boy's trousers to accomplish his mission. As for other birds, Joe pays no attention to them and in turn he is left alone.

Schoner came to Pampa two years ago from Seminole, Okla., and has been employed by two oil companies. At present he keeps his pet in a large cage containing various perches and a barrel in which the bird can go during bad weather.

Each evening the bird watches for his master to return from work when he is released and allowed to remain free until dark. Joe especially enjoys going for car rides and always sits atop the front seat.

Eighty years is the life expectancy of a crow. Joe now is eight months. And in that time he has lost all fear of human beings and ignores many of bird's natural enemies.

His owner believes that when Joe is again able to fly he will remain with the friends he has made since birth. And, although he will have the freedom of a bird he also will enjoy conveniences of a man.

Midland Bulldogs Open Grid Drills

MIDLAND—The Midland Bulldogs opened spring football practice Monday in preparation for their first season in toughest district in the state 1-AAAA. The Bulldogs, coached by Tugboat Jones, last season won the championship of AAA, their first title in 15 years. They were voted into AAAA in a December meeting of the district.

Coach Jones, along with his assistants, Audrey Gil and Red Rutledge, face a big rebuilding job. Missing will be 10 regulars, some of them all-district selections.

The Bulldogs plan to work out on fundamentals the first few days before hitting the ball hard. Plans call for weekly scrimmage sessions under game conditions, at the termination of each week's drill.

First Brackenridge Club Organized At TSCW, 1908

By The Associated Press

Back in 1908, while a student at old C.I.A. in Denton — now Texas State College for Women, Mrs. Erich W. Schwartz helped organize the first M. Eleanor Brackenridge club.

Mrs. Schwartz, then Annie Andrews of San Antonio, in 1909 received the first scholarship granted by Miss Brackenridge.

That was an act that has led to the creation through scattered points of the world of additional M. Eleanor Brackenridge clubs perpetuating the memory of a pioneer Texas woman.

The widow of a Washington doctor, Mrs. Schwartz not only organized such a club here but has helped get units started in several states, including Alabama, Georgia, California, Florida and Washington. Others are in Brazil, Finland, Holland, Mexico, Japan, Africa, Greece, China and Cuba. All are dedicated to helping underprivileged people.

An example of the international movement is the fact that all recognition that has come to Greek Ambassador Athanasios Politsis will broadcast an address of thanks for work the local unit of the Brackenridge clubs has done in maintaining orphans in his country.

The address will be made here March 7 — the birth anniversary of Miss Brackenridge, who died in 1924 at the age of 88. It is to be re-broadcast in several languages by the Voice of America.

Recalling the life of Miss Brackenridge, Mrs. Schwartz said the woman served as vice president of the board of regents of old C.I.A. for 20 years and during the early part of this century helped finance the education of a great number of girls.

It was Miss Brackenridge who, with her brother, George W. Brackenridge, left to the city of San Antonio the beautiful park there that bears their name.

Mrs. Schwartz, a native of Rockport, taught school in Beaumont from 1911 to 1915. She then married and came to Washington with her husband, who died in 1947. She has two sons, one a naval lieutenant commander and the other a doctor in the Air Force. She plans to go to San Antonio for this year's M. Eleanor Brackenridge ceremony March 7.

Time To Retire Is About 25; Then Go Back To Work Later

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—When is the right time to retire?

That problem is becoming of great concern to social workers who see America becoming a land of long-living greybeards. And more and more they question the wisdom of automatically turning out to uneasy pasture at 65 men who are still vigorous and healthy.

It seems to me that people who have the least immediate likelihood of being able to retire are the ones who are loudest in saying they want to. And it might also be true that the less anybody knows about life the more he wants to retire.

When is the right time to retire? "Now!" squalls the newborn babe, looking dimly about him in redfaced anger at the perilous, puzzling world of strange sights and sounds he has unwillingly entered.

"I surely will have enough money at 30 to quit," hopes the young college graduate, and begins making notes for his memoirs.

"About 50 will be right for me—and I'll spend the rest of my life traveling," muses the fellow of 35.

"I guess I'll hang on until I'm 65," he says at 50, educated to the falling value of money and a growing disinclination for long journeys.

"If they'll just let me stay on working until I'm 70 I won't mind," he says at 64, now in love with the job he has complained against for 40 years.

But at 69 he speaks out in panic:

"Retire? Never. I'm a better man now than I ever was. What is experience for—just to throw away as junk?"

And if he is forced into retirement, he goes grudgingly and might also be true that the less anybody knows about life the more he wants to retire.

What the government should do is retire all people at the age of 25, then put them back to work at 50 and let them stay happy at their tasks until they wear out their will to go on — if they ever did.

I'd like to try it myself. I'm only 40, and I sure could use ten years of retirement right now. Right now.

No Place for a Heavy Foot!

You'd find it out, in a mile or so, even if we failed to tell you. But we think it's best if we tell you now—

- you must treat the accelerator with special respect when you drive the Golden Anniversary Cadillac!
- Down under the hood of this gorgeous car is the most powerful engine ever used in standard American production.
- So take it easy—wherever you drive.
- Don't use that power to bolt away when the light turns green—and other cars have their ways to make in the traffic lanes beside you. And never use it for unnecessary speed, or for dominating the highway.
- Use it, instead, for the thing it was put there for—
- use it to give you that easy, floating, comforting ride which can come only when your engine is "loafing," and most of its power is in luxurious reserve—
- use it to give you that "shot ahead" when an opening shows in the traffic line—or when your safety calls for a blast of power—
- use it for a thrilling sense of mastery over car and time and space—
- use it, in short, for happiness and luxury—and for adding satisfaction to every mile you drive.

As you would expect, this amazing performance is but one of the wonderful virtues that have been added to the Golden Anniversary Cadillac.

There is marvelous new beauty—inside and outside. There is a wholly new type of power steering—available as optional equipment at extra cost. And there are literally scores of refinements and improvements of vital importance.

For its "year of years," Cadillac has certainly built its "car of cars."

Come in and see it—whether you feel you are ready for a Cadillac or not. It's an inspiration to inspect it—and an experience to drive it.

But if you do drive it, please remember—it's no place for a heavy foot!

MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

Questions and Answers about Newspaper Advertising

Q. Do you know of any measure for the value of newspaper circulation to an advertiser such as the standards that a business man uses in buying merchandise?

A. Yes. In the well-known standards that have been approved and adopted by advertisers—namely A.B.C. standards.

Q. What is A. B. C.?

A. A.B.C. stands for Audit Bureau of Circulations, a cooperative association of 3300 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers in the United States and Canada.

Q. What is the Bureau's work?

A. To audit the circulation of newspapers and periodicals so that advertisers can buy space on the basis of definite standards and verified facts and figures.

Q. How does A. B. C. accomplish this?

A. The Bureau has a large staff of experienced auditors. They visit the publisher members periodically and make audits of their circulation records. This information is then published in A.B.C. reports for the use and protection of advertisers.

Q. What do these reports show?

A. A.B.C. reports tell how much circulation a newspaper has, where this circulation is, how it was obtained, how much people paid for it, and many other verified facts that advertisers should know when they buy advertising.

Q. Are all publications eligible for A. B. C. membership?

A. No. Only those with paid circulation. This is important to advertisers because it is the best proof of interest and purchasing power on the part of the readers.

Q. Is this newspaper a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations?

A. Yes. We are proud of our circulation and we want our advertisers to know just what they get for their money when they advertise in our columns. The audited information in our A.B.C. report gives them the complete facts.

Mature Parent
 By MURIEL LAWRENCE
 The father of an adopted child writes me that though she does not know the facts of her birth, she is a happy and contented little girl.
 This father should certainly not try to do any divulging at this point. Until he recovers from his fear that the truth would be so shocking, so disturbing to his child that she must have better defenses to stand up to it, he should not attempt to tell it.
 His emotions about the facts might present them in an alarming light to his little daughter, just as our own uncomfortable feelings about sex, for example, can make youngsters uneasy about it, too.
 I wish this reader could bring himself to get some expert guidance on his attitude toward his foster parenthood. Such help would strengthen him to hold more firmly and confidently to the creative goodness of his adoptive action—a necessary development if he wishes his child to regard it as creatively good, no matter how long he postpones telling her the facts. Such help might also shorten the period of strain in which two loving adults must live with their child in cruel and needless fear of the truth.
 I am discussing the state of mind in this sincere and conscientious parent—because it so well illustrates the point I often try to make in this column—the power of our fear to make a bugaboo of an innocent fact.
 Here, in this father's case, the fact is an adoption. Would an expert in this field be alarmed at having to tell his own child that he was adopted? No, he would not. His experience has convinced him that a parent's pleasure and pride in his adoptive action insures the child's pleasant and proud reaction to it, too. Would the truth appear menacing to a religious person? No, the truly religious person would say that a truth not hostile to love, but in its counterpart, truth can only bring me closer in love to my child.
 The specialist and the religious person are looking at the same fact that my reader is looking at. To him, it is menacing; to them, it appears innocent and benevolent. What makes the difference in what they see? Fear.
 It is easy to recognize the fears of others and to perceive how another's fear of losing love is depriving him of peace. But when the fears are ours, we let ourselves be pushed around. Do we, for instance, relate our impatience with our small thumb sucker to our reaction when a neighbor recently called him "backward." Do we link our rage over an impatient child to fear that the relative who thinks our training is "too soft" may be right? Do we recognize the connection between our own fear of losing love and the way we are behaving to our son's pretty new "date"?
 The facts that our children such thumbs, are impudent or seek out pretty girls for companions are as innocent and benevolent as the fact of adoption. What makes them appear sinister to us is fear.
 It is a fact that the state kills people if it considers dangerous. Death by state execution is a fact. A criminal, a creature of violence and hate reacts to the prospect of death by state execution with all the violence and hate with which he has reacted to most facts. But once, someone reacted to the prospect of death by state execution by saying, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." The criminal and the Christ faced the identical fact. Where was the difference? It wasn't in the fact. Where was it? The answer to this question is very important to us as parents.

Cook's Nook
 People just never seem to tire of good gingerbread. After centuries and centuries of use, the recipe is still a favorite.
 The early Egyptians baked gingerbread, but the best recipes were found in the monasteries where the monks baked the gingerbread in handmade, wooden forms and turned them into shapes of people and inanimate objects. They used honey for the sweet flavor and there was great rivalry among the monks of various countries.
 Later Queen Elizabeth I served gingerbread at royal banquets and had the baker form the bread into shapes of various characters. It became especially popular for the English Christmas table.
 The Pilgrims had their favorite gingerbread recipes, too, and the story of Hansel and Gretel created the gingerbread house and helped perpetuate children's love of gingerbread.
 Here's an interesting pecan gingerbread that can be served warm or cold with whipped cream, creamcheese, applesauce or fresh fruits in season. It makes 16 two-inch squares.
PECAN GINGERBREAD
 1-4 cup shortening
 1-2 cup sugar
 1 egg
 1-2 cup molasses
 1 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1-2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon ginger
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1-2 cup buttermilk
 1-2 cup shelled pecans
 Cream shortening and add sugar. Blend thoroughly. Add egg and beat until fluffy. Add alternately with buttermilk. Fold in pecans. Bake in eight-inch square pan (well greased) and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees for 30-35 minutes).

Central Baptist Class Entertains Husbands

 Mrs. Albert Taylor introduced the program which included musical numbers by Patsy Kay Huffines and Mrs. J. F. Webb. LaVada Naylor accompanied during group singing.
 C. L. Hunter gave the closing prayer.
 Attending the banquet were Messrs. and Mmes. D. R. Brown and Marilyn, D. L. Allen, Bob Huffines, and Patsy Kay, Jess Hatcher and Patsy, C. L. Hunter, Dwight Irby, Albert Taylor and Vicki, Fred Williams, Jack Holligan, Henry Crump, O. E. Hussa and Andrea, C. C. Miller, Gower, Yager, Brown and Prescott.
 Others present were Mmes. G. C. Stark, Kate Thomas, Roberts-Wood and LaVada, E. B. Davis, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Buck and one out-of-town guest, Mrs. M. O. Padgett of Durant, Okla.

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Diana Gaines

THE STORY: Jennet Logan meets a young and charming biophysicist, Peter Surinoff, at a party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Pelletier. Peter awakens to Jennet the realization that her own life is empty and later Jennet tells her husband, Dr. Gus Logan, that she intends to take a volunteer nurse's side job at St. Joseph's hospital. The next day Dr. Logan has a cold, she is much sicker than Jennet and always in ill health. Jennet promises to take a paper to Dr. Pelletier at the hospital and perform other errands for her husband while she is seeing about her volunteer job. She goes to Dr. Pelletier's office first and finds Peter visiting there with the doctor. Peter leaves with Jennet and offers to show her his lab. Jennet is eager to see it, although in agreeing, she struggles with desire and the reluctance to escape the excitement of being with him.

they passed it, he explained, "Several, not soda pop." There were several closed doors, but the one to the animal room was ajar and she walked in. The cement floor was wet, glistened by the bluish illumination that came in from the skylight. Cages, rows and rows of cages, one on top of another, lined the walls and columned the center of the room.

"But it doesn't smell," she exclaimed.

"You should come in here on Monday mornings," he said, grinning. "It's just been cleaned—that's why I invited you."

He followed her as she moved slowly down the aisles, examining the faces of the animals.

"The chickens and rabbits and pigs aren't mine," Surinoff said. "A couple of the men in the medical science department are doing some experiments with them. They come over after classes in the late afternoon. Would you like to get one of the rats? Here..." He opened a cage and grabbed one and held it out to her.

"Oh, no!" she screamed, backing away.

Peter Surinoff

PETER SURINOFF had some entanglement with the glass door, and then they crossed the street to the campus. The sky, powdery with ocean fog, silvered the sunlight. The air held the fragrance of gently baking grass. Girls in ballet shoes and skirts and blouses, boys in tight trousers and bright-patterned shirts strolled or lounged the rolling lawns which were shaved to the smoothness of felt. Their voices were private except for an occasional ringing laugh.

Peter Surinoff walked here every day, Jennet Logan thought; the students walked here every day; they all belonged. Jennet, taking hurried pink linen step, to Peter's strides, felt a sudden distaste for her carefully tailored suit and the careful matching of her resounding pumps. Her chic marked her as a trespasser. She wished she were wearing the soundless ballet slippers, the casual blouse and skirt of those for whom this paradisaical plot of earth had been set aside. There was something old and sour and familiar about this feeling of being alien, of wanting to belong.

To hide her disorientation, she commented smugly, "Could we possibly have looked that young when we were in college?"

"The students? They do look young. They are young. I don't envy them that."

"You're too young to envy the young, I do."

"Why, Grandma?"

"Oh, they have so much time ahead of them. They can do anything."

"Time won't give them what they want."

"What will, then?"

"Just remember that all the old men and women you see on the streets and in the free clinics were young once. But I guess you don't ride the streets or see much of clinics, do you?"

SHE pushed away the picture of gray bulldog faces of old men, men faces of old women, summoned instead herself in a fresh starched uniform, dispensing youth and vigor. "I will soon," she retorted. "I'm signing up for volunteer work today."

"Well! A Gray Lady! When did you decide that?"

"Last night." And then, lest he feel that he was in any way responsible for her decision, she added, "I've been planning to for some time. Now that summer's almost here, I'll be free to."

"There it is. My rat hole," Peter Surinoff said, nodding toward the pink stucco bungalow. He took a key ring out of his pocket, pulled away the screen door and unlocked the wooden one, swinging it wide to the wall. "Get some air in here," he said.

Inside was an anteroom which contained a refrigerator, and

Indestructible Sam "Expects To Play"

ABLENE — (AP) — Sam Baugh, old indestructible of the Washington Redskins, is getting in shape for another season in professional football by coaching a group of collegians.

Baugh, in pro-football 15 years and who next season will set a record for longevity, is "spring training associate coach" at Hardin-Simmons.

But the old master of the forward pass says "these boys are teaching me more about some things of football than I ever knew."

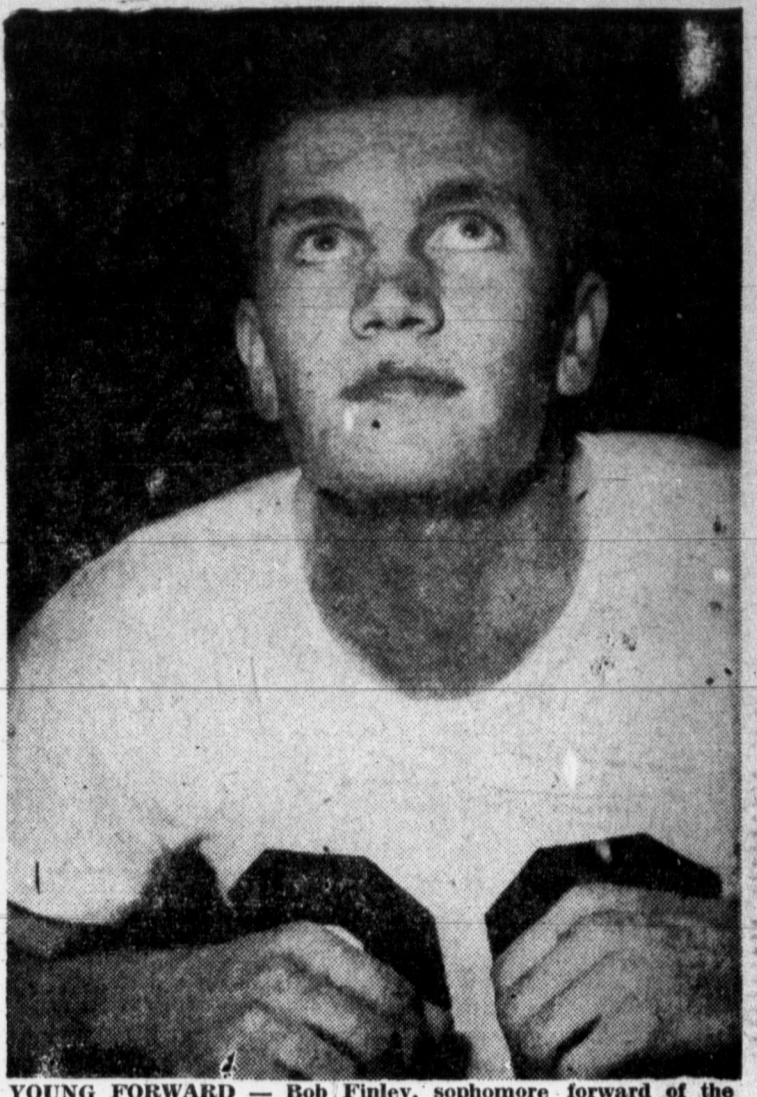

Baugh is helping Murray Evans, the new head coach at Hardin-Simmons. Evans succeeded Warren Woodson, who has gone to the University of Arizona.

Sam observed that the players "want to work a lot harder than I would like to work them. Of course the systems (pro Redskins and Hardin-Simmons) are a lot different, but that's all that's different. I'm having a lot of fun and getting a great kick out of working with these youngsters."

During the next 17 days of spring training here he expects to do much to Coach Evans, his staff and his football players, and also to myself. I'm getting in training too and I'm grateful for the opportunity."

Baugh owns a ranch at Rotan. He commutes to Abilene on weekends.

Sam isn't saying how much longer he will play pro football. Usually about this time of the year — for the past half-dozen years at least — he says "next season will be my last." But he isn't doing that this time. "I expect to play at least another season," is his reply.

YOUNG FORWARD — Bob Finley, sophomore forward of the West Texas State Buffaloes, will be in the lineup tonight when the Buffs bid for the Border Conference crown at Canyon. Finley hails from Floydada.

Buffaloes Bid For Border Crown, NCAA Spot Tonight

CANYON — (WTNS) — West Texas State's powerful Buffaloes will attempt to pull down a corner of the Border Conference eagle flag and a berth in the western NCAA playoffs here tonight when they play host to Arizona State's dangerous Sun Devils.

The tilt will be the last chance for Panhandle fans to see what many rate as the best Buff squad in 31 years. The Herd has racked up a 16-6 season record and currently places the Border circuit with a 11-1 mark. Only New Mexico A&M stands a chance to catch the Buffs in loop play.

If the Buffs can wrap up the conference pennant they will move into the national playoffs meeting St. Louis University Billikens in Kansas City on March 21 in a quadrangle meet with Kansas State and TCU.

West Texas State warmed to the Thursday night task by blasting rival Hardin-Simmons 81-54 in a Tuesday night encounter.

Bill Price, flashy Buff forward from Briscoe, continues to pace the Herd scoring attack with 257 points. However, the great scoring balance on the squad has made the difference in the Buffs climb into the national spotlight.

Greatest improvement of the year has been in the sensational play of pivotman Anstelt Burrus.

Savitt Enters Quarterfinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Savitt, fiery South Orange, N.J., net star, entered the quarterfinals of the national 1000 tournament last night when he whipped Dr. Reginald Weir, New York, 6-1, 6-4.

Dick won't see action tonight, but Bill Talbert, the defending champion seeded No. 1, and Don McNeill, the national grass courtist back in 1940, will.

Talbert plays Lorne Main of the Canadian Davis Cup team, while McNeill tangles with Nils Rohlsson, Sweden.

The quarter-final bracket was filled last night. Besides Savitt, Kurt Nielsen, Charles Materson and Budge Patty advanced in their half of the draw.

The quarter-finals also were filled in the women's division. Defending Champion Nancy Chatkine Kimer led the way followed by Althea Gibson, national Negro champion; Helen Fletcher of the British Wightman Cup team, and Mrs. Edna Salichs of Forest Hills, N.Y.

Maglie Due To Come To Terms

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (AP) — Sal Maglie, 23-game winner for the National League pennant winning New York Giants last year, may come to salary terms with the club in a day or two, it was indicated today.

Maglie has been a holdout and did not report with the battery men who have been working out here since Monday.

It was reported from Niagara Falls, N.Y., that Maglie said he is willing to accept a compromise if the Giants come up with an offer. Maglie reportedly has been seeking a $40,000 contract while the New York front office made a final offer of $35,000.

Horace Stoneham, owner and president of the Giants, said in Phoenix that "if Maglie wants to contact us, he can call here. We'll be glad to talk to him. If we don't hear from him today, we'll call Maglie tonight."

Need Homes For Phillips, Griffin

It's that time again. The baseball season is getting closer and already the boys are looking for places to live.

Right now the need is for two two-bedroom apartments or houses for Manager Jake Phillips and Business Manager Ivy Griffin of the Oilers.

Anyone having such available is asked to contact Mr. Griffin at 1121.

Irish B Boys Conclude Season

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Coach Clarence Morris' B team ended the season Friday night with a 23-22 hair-raising victory over the unexpectedly tough Perryton B.

Only uncanny accuracy of Lee Roy Passons, star B forward, saved the day. Passon popped in 13 free shots and added two baskets for a total of 17 points.

Roy Passons cracked the nets for 10 to lead his team. Irish B won 13 of 15 combats and both losses were to teams they previously had shellacked. Loss of Malcolm Passons, brother of Lee Roy, to the A team last month probably cost the B an undefeated season. They won the Alameda B tourney January 17.

John Vincent Gets Clean Bill Of Health By Board

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Career diplomat John Carter Vincent was reported to have been given a clean bill of health by the State Dept. Loyalty and Security Board. He will shortly return to his assignment as U.S. diplomatic agent at Tangier.

Vincent returned here late last year, demanding a public hearing on a long series of accusations made against him by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis). Last month he testified before a Senate subcommittee and denied he is a Communist or has been a Communist or has Communist leanings.

In his attacks, McCarthy has made much of the fact Vincent was chief of the State Dept.'s Far Eastern division during the time when U.S. policy called for a merger of the Chinese Communists and Nationalists into a coalition government.

Marionettes Appeal To Students Here

Not all studies are work for sixth grade students in the four ward schools.

For, along with regular classes, each student is given an opportunity to show creative abilities and desires through courses especially designed to interest a boy or girl.

Three projects daily are being carried on now, all under direction of Miss Virgie Denton, instructor in making marionettes, wood carving and art painting.

Most important of the three is to buy new materials but to use in making marionettes. The children of which is supplied from, 11 to 12, are given a piece by local merchants. Grocers have of cloth from which they cut provided thousands of apple boxes their own patterns. At present during the last ten years, Miss Denton explained. A local music store has contributed piano crates to build stages and one company has provided enough cotton for the project to make a mat and then stuffed with cotton, tress.

So equipment can be staggered, up to each student to show originality. Students also may choose other quality in the type of feet, arms projects. Boys usually enjoy carving and hair attached to the body.

Hair is made from old yarn, painting with water colors or usually from a sweater and is weaving purses and small scarfs sewn on the top of the form. And towels from eight-inch looms.

Hands can be made from copper wire, pipe cleaners or felt. Wood pipe cleaners or felt. Wood whatever project chosen, each from old crates cut to shape by student has an opportunity to re-arrange serve as feet for the marionettes.

Each child is encouraged not edge of the fine arts.

Potato Shortage Noted In Canada

It has also reversed a traditional trading pattern, Canada, which usually sells most of her surplus

Shamrock Merchant Develops Green Pipe For St. Pat's Day

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Irish schools likely will be closed for the celebration, but Clay York has started an innovation that may develop into a boom for the St. Pat's day jubilee here March 17.

York, a grocery merchant, has painted a number of corn cobs green and is drying them at his store for purchase by loyal wearers of the green. He said most of the pipes had been snapped up and he was readying others for the festival crowd.

Irishmen traditionally wear green on St. Pat's day and green hats, pipes and handkerchiefs will be in abundance. And green pipes, York says, go well with donegal beards. He should know, because he had both to prove it.

Shamrock schools will go all out in support of the St. Pat's day celebration March 17, reports Supt. Elmer J. Moore.

Students are expected to be in the thick of the parade and to participate in the band exercises.

potatoes to the United States, is leaning more and more on American supplies to fill the gap in her needs.

The irony is that in this potato crop year which started last July, the United States had been prepared to allow a bigger quota on shipments of Canadian potatoes to the U.S. market.

CARBONDALE, Ill. — (AP) — Her husband, Warren, gallantly gave up his ambulance cot to her, and they returned to the hospital to have her admitted.

Mrs. Sylvia Hastings, of Paulden, Ill., stopped the ambulance en route home to confer with their doctor. There she fell down steps, breaking a leg and arm.

Historic Statements Do Not Always Accompany Big Events

NEW YORK — (AP) — Every decent body knows history has had its big moments.

But when they depict them in the movies they always have a wise old character around to make some historic utterance, showing he knows how important the event is. And the bystanders generally nod profoundly as if they knew what was going on.

My theory is that people don't usually make historic remarks at historic moments. They just talk like they always do. I know I was aboard the battleship Missouri when the Japanese surrender was signed, and the most historic remark I heard was: "Quit shoving."

Recently two university professors—Louis L. Snyder and E. B. Morris—polled historians on the 10 most decisive events on man's recorded past. They were put into a book called "They Saw it Happen: Eyewitness Reports of Great Events."

Here is their list—along with a remark I think probably would be typical of the average reaction at the big moment:

1. The Destruction of Carthage, 146, BC, which put the Roman Empire on top of the world. (Roman soldier: "that's the big brass for you every time—burn a low-down son of a b— in the ranks won't have a place to enjoy himself.")
2. Battle of Adrianople, 378 AD, which marked the beginning of the end of the Roman Empire. (Roman soldier: "oh, my poor aching back—don't tell me this is France. Where are the d—s?")
3. Invention of printing from movable type, 1450, resulting in the rapid dissemination of learning. (Workman: "how am I ever going to get this ink outa my fingernails?")
4. Discovery of America, 1492, opening the new world. (Sailor: "Now maybe we can go back to Spain and get a planter.")
5. Advent of the steam engine, 1769, introducing the industrial revolution. (Workman: "If anybody thinks people will spend their life stocking a machine he's crazy. It hurts my ears.")
6. Declaration of Independence, 1776, the classic statement of human rights and the democratic credo. (Tavernkeeper: "well, it's nice to see these patriots put their signatures to something beside a bar tab.")
7. Discovery of anaesthesia, 1846, leading to the conquest of pain. (Nurse: hey, doc, the patient's knocked out—but do you think we can bring her to?")
8. Assassination at Sarajevo, 1914, which started off the first of two world wars. (Spectator, holding up son: "that's the Archduke—the one that's bleeding.")
9. D-Day, Invasion of fortress Europe, 1944. (American soldier: "Oh, my poor aching back—don't tell me this is France. Where are the d—s?")
10. The atomic bomb, Alamogordo, N.M., 1945, opening a new age in warfare and technology. (First scientist: "well, let's pack up and go home. My wife'll give me hell if I'm late against atom bomb or no atom bomb.")

Bandit Aid Sentenced

IPOH, Malaya — (AP) — A 21-year-old Chinese was sentenced recently to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of consorting with Communist terrorists. He was arrested in connection with the assassination of a British planter in 1948.

The arrest was made when two former bandits, now operating with a police jungle squad, saw him riding a bicycle in a nearby village. They testified at his trial that he was a member of the band which killed the planter.

Hawaiian Girl Is Featured In Choir Singing In Pampa Today

Wayland choir performs in Pampa today and a featured choir member is Miss Jolly Iwaauli Arnold of Hawaii. Jolly is known for her skill in performing ancient drum chants handed down through generations. She uses two handmade drums, the smaller made of two coconuts, the larger of a native tree with a head fashioned from shark skin. Jolly designed her own costume along the lines of ancient tradition. She also performs with other members of the choir, an intricate bamboo rhythm selection.

The choir is making four appearances here today. It sang at 10 a.m. at Pampa High school; at 1 p.m. in the junior high school for elementary students; at 2:45 p.m. for junior high students and will sing at 8 p.m. for the public. Tonight's performance will be held in the junior high school auditorium.

The choir is being sponsored here by PTA City council.

The 35-voice choir, under the direction of Shelby Collier, presents a unique concert. The first half is devoted to traditional A Cappella music, while the second half presents an international spirit with members of the choir wearing costumes of many nations.

Among selections heard are James' "Almighty God of Our Fathers," Kountz' "Prayer," Bach's "Jesu, Priceless Treasure" and Noble Cain's arrangement of "Religion is a Fortune." Also there are spirituals arranged by William L. Dawson.

Germans Like Beer

FRANKFURT, Germany — (AP) — Germany again is living up to her reputation as a nation of beer drinkers, latest federal statistics reveal.

Beer consumption per head of the 49 million West Germans rose to 11.6 gallons in 1951 compared with 9.2 gallons in 1950.

The pre-war high was reached in 1929 when 22.5 gallons per person was consumed by the 65 million inhabitants of Germany.

ACC Plans Dormitory

ABILENE — (AP) — Abilene Christian college will start immediately a campaign to raise $600,000 for a men's dormitory.

Also announced Monday by the ACC Board of Trustees was election of four new trustees: Jim Daniel, Eden; Noel Reynolds, Abilene; Gene Bennett, Denver City; and C. H. Kenley, San Angelo.

Stassen Says His Policies Close To Ike's, MacArthur's

MADISON, Wis. — (AP) — Mildred E. Stassen has invited supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Douglas MacArthur to vote for his slate of delegates to the April 1 Wisconsin Republican Presidential primary.

In an interview last night with the Associated Press, Stassen said his domestic and foreign policies "are closer to the view of MacArthur and Eisenhower than are those of Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and Gov. Warren" of California.

The former Minnesota governor said he did not believe Eisenhower or MacArthur would allow use of their names in the April balloting, as required by Wisconsin law.

Earlier, Warren made his first out-of-state bid for delegates to the national GOP convention when he accepted the invitation of a coalition group to enter the Wisconsin contest.

However, Stassen said he still thought the Wisconsin election would continue to rest between himself and Taft despite Warren's entry.

He said that in the absence of permission from Eisenhower and MacArthur for use of their names he considered Warren's action entirely a Warren movement and not one backed by Eisenhower-MacArthur supporters.

The coalition group, mostly of former progressives who now are Republicans, met here last Saturday. Group leaders said they planned to support Warren at the GOP national convention but switch to Eisenhower if Warren failed to secure the presidential nomination.

Stassen, at a University of Wisconsin student forum last night said American foreign policy must "seek to promote and extend freedom to mankind if this nation is to meet the challenges of its world leadership."

"It is not enough to go to the rest of the world with a policy of containment of the enemies of freedom or of walking away from our commitments," he added. "Americans must take and hold world leadership. It is a responsibility we cannot lay aside."

Deer Faced With New Danger-Dog

VICTORIA, B. C. — (AP) — Deer are faced with a new danger — undisciplined domestic dogs.

George Stevenson, provincial game inspector, reported the dogs are becoming more savage than mountain lions during some seasons of the year. He said the Game Department had to kill 12 dogs in two weeks recently.

The dogs go up into high ground near the shore and chase the deer down on the beach, then bite a hole in the stomach or throat and leave the deer to die.

When the snow is deep, they chase deer until the deer are exhausted, then kill them and leave them. "In very rare cases, the dogs make a meal of the meat," Stevenson said.

"SKYRAY" ON THE WAY—This is the Navy's new jet fighter, the Douglas F4D "Skyray," just unveiled as one of four new jet planes soon to be sent to Navy and Marine Air combat units. John F. Floberg, assistant secretary of the Navy for Air, said the new jets are expected to be superior to Russia's famed MIG-15 jet.

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with the truths expressed in the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Here Is Real Inflation!

We all talk about how the prices charged for various articles have doubled or trebled over a period of years. But when it comes to inflation, one thing has all the rest licked to death—and that thing is taxes.

According to U. S. News & World Report, the tax take of the federal government alone in the next fiscal year will amount to $72 for every man, woman and child in the country. That is about the size of the average per capita income in 1931. It is 120 times as much as was the tax take in 1900. In spite of this incredible burden of taxation, the government, according to official estimates, will still be more than $14,000,000,000 short of meeting its costs, and that money must be borrowed.

To quote U. S. News directly, "Altogether, the people are expected to provide $76,000,000,000 for the government in the year beginning next July 1. This is not again as much money as the people were asked to contribute to government at the peak of World War II. It is eight times as much as the government spent in the most lavish years of the New Deal and more than 13 times as much as the government collected in those years."

Just read those figures and facts over again and let them sink into your mind. Remember that the administration, not satisfied with the present intolerable situation, wants still another tax boost. Then answer a simple question: "How long can this nation remain strong and progressive when the government takes, spends, and wastes more and more of the wealth, resources and labor of the people? It is time to curb government spending with drastic economies to save our nation from bankruptcy."

Stockholders

We hear much about the importance of labor, which is quite as it should be. But we hear little about the importance of the stockholder—the man or woman who makes labor's jobs and living standards possible.

As an example, take the food and grocery manufacturing industry. An enterprise which serves almost every American family every day of its life. A study was recently made of 25 representative companies within the industry, ranging from the large to the small. In the majority of instances, the stockholders are more than employees—close to a two-to-one majority. And 52 percent of the stockholders are women.

Moreover, these stockholders aren't a bunch of bloated male and female plutocrats, who sit back and rake in big profits. In the case of one of the largest corporations in the group, 93 percent of the stockholders own less than 100 shares and more than half own less than 25 shares. The companies average a profit of something like three cents on each dollar of sales—which hardly looks as if the consumer was getting a gouging.

In short, the stockholders, the people who create jobs, are just as important to our national life as the workers, the managers, or any other group. If we discourage investment by unfair and punitive taxation, or in any other way, we will simply dry up the sources of the money which is the lifeblood of the economy. Then labor will be hit hardest of all.

Baxter's Views

By DAVID BAXTER SPILLS THE BEANS

It is often charged that creeping socialism has been fastened upon the country by Socialists working through the Democratic party—and since they are taking no chances on election—through the Republican party, too. They've had their Roosevelt and Trumans in the Democratic party and their Wilkies and Deweys in the GOP. Doubters have openly scoffed at this claim.

In looking over the many papers on all viewpoints about almost everything which readers of this column send me, I noticed an article in the WEEKLY PEOPLE, organ of the Socialist Labor Party (Dec. 22, 1951) entitled, "THOMAS AND SINCLAIR CHARLATANS!" The militant socialist paper denounced Norman Thomas and Upton Sinclair as phony Socialists and mere reformers instead of revolutionary Marxists.

The WEEKLY PEOPLE wants socialism quick. No fooling around. It drums its fingers impatiently on the table as it watches the take-your-time-about-it type Democrats and their Republican go-around their business. No infiltrating the big major parties for the Social Laborites. No political expediency. No pretending to be Republicans and Democrats. They want to know the bank job off in a hurry without first "casing the joint."

"The paper sneers at Sinclair for saying that when he sought office in an open primary he only got 60,000 votes whereas he got 879,000 in 1934 when he ran for Governor of California as a "Democrat."

Sinclair is quoted as saying: "I learned something from that, and that's a question of getting elected. It's a question of educating the public and putting Socialist ideas into laws and actual practice. A GOOD PART OF OUR EPIC PROGRAM (of 1934) IS NOW BEING ADOPTED IN CALIFORNIA AND ELSEWHERE THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY."

Did you get that? Sinclair was spilling the beans. He was admitting that open socialist economic and public office candidates for public office couldn't get to first base, but if you work through other parties and your candidates call themselves Democrats and Republicans you can put over any kind of plan you want, saying that, practically without the people realizing it, a good part of the Socialist program of 1934 has been woven into our laws and is in effect throughout the country. And you're getting it, isn't it?

Just read those figures and facts over again and let them sink into your mind. Remember that the administration, not satisfied with the present intolerable situation, wants still another tax boost. Then answer a simple question: "How long can this nation remain strong and progressive when the government takes, spends, and wastes more and more of the wealth, resources and labor of the people? It is time to curb government spending with drastic economies to save our nation from bankruptcy."

Although confessing that California, under its so-called "Republican" Governor, has little but a little left of bad Republicans who don't believe in socialism and might get control of their party again. He regards the Democratic party as being safe, by now, with its undercover socialists in full control, that he openly advised the Socialists-by-name not to run their own candidates because it might split the "Democratic" vote and elect "reactionary Republicans."

"Rather, he advised his fellow-travelers, "operating as a conscious group inside the Democratic party, . . . the Socialists can exercise enormous influence in forcing the nomination of socially-minded candidates and in electing them."

"This old Marxist Communist 'booming from within' strategy," said Sinclair even improves upon Marx's strategy being off on its own in a separate attempt by socialists in the party to prevent a real free-enterprise Republican from being nominated. They don't have to worry about real Democrats like Bryan and Lauchlin getting control of the Democratic party but they DO have to worry about someone like Taft or MacArthur getting the Republican nomination and maybe getting in the White House. They would still have their power in Congress, though.

It's quite amusing when these socialists get into a racket among themselves and start quoting each other. Quite informative, too.

Let us suppose that very few people ever had seen a vehicle propelled by an internal combustion engine—an automobile, jeep, truck, tractor or what have you. These things had been invented, developed and built in great secrecy. The bulk of the people knew about them dimly and from hearsay.

Better Jobs

By R. C. HOILES "Government And Moral Law"

Here is a continuation of an address made by Ben Morell, Chairman of the Board and President of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association at Chicago:

Legalities Do Not Determine Moralities

"In reality, political rights and moral rights are as different as day and night. Our forefathers knew that—and so stated. Their sole purpose in risking their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" to secure their political rights was to use them to insure that their natural rights would never be taken from them. They knew that legalities do not determine moralities. They fought for eternal principles, not political expediencies. And they so devised our Constitution as to prevent destruction of natural rights by the acts of government."

"Our forefathers rejected the slogan, 'The King can do no wrong.' But their descendants restored the same faith to its former high place with the slogan, 'The majority rules, therefore the majority can do no wrong.' And the sad part of it is that they do not seem to realize that this very concept is a resurrection of the idea against which their fathers fought so valiantly."

"I am glad that most of us now have our political rights. And today I make this plea—that we use those political rights to vote for a return to the principle of making our laws and other governmental actions consistent with our moral rights."

"But before this is done we should first determine what is moral law, and what are the consequences if we ignore it."

"I believe moral law is part of universal natural law. The law of gravity is a part of this natural law, or eternal truth. When a person falls from a tall building, natural law decrees that he will die. And he does lie, unless some other natural law supersedes and decrees otherwise. In like manner, when a person steals money from another, natural law decrees that he shall suffer accordingly, and he does suffer—spiritually, or physically or mentally or socially, or by some combination of these. The fact that the consequences of breaking a moral law may be slower in action and are less obvious than the consequences of falling from a building does not mean that moral law is to be violated without having punishment meted out with the same degree of certainty."

"We are all familiar with the dictum, 'Ignorance of the law is no excuse.' But we appear to ignore the fact that this applies with equal force to natural laws as well as to man-made law. A baby who unwittingly falls from a bridge is just as dead as the person who deliberately leaps to his death. It is not for us to call this 'unfair' or 'unjust.' Like the rising of the sun, it is an inevitable sequence. And in like manner, when a person votes benefits to himself to be supplied with money taken from others—even though he honestly believes it is his 'right' to do so—he will eventually suffer penalties that are as harsh as those meted out to a robber who willfully takes what is not his and is promptly shot to death for his ignorance of this law does not eliminate its existence—any more than our former ignorance of atomic energy was proof of its non-existence."

"Nor is so-called 'democracy' an excuse for breaking a moral law. Just as one person cannot 'repal' the law of gravity, just so two or more persons together, or a majority of any group of persons, cannot repeal it. And so it is wrong for one person to take another's money at the point of a gun, just so it is morally wrong for many people together to take another's money—or to vote material benefits to themselves and to send their government as agent to take money from others to pay for those benefits."

"The absurdity of this process of voting against natural law is illustrated by the story of the Virginia legislator who, many years ago, introduced a bill to make the mathematical ratio 'pi equal an even 3. Instead of its present awkward 3.141594, his argument in support of his bill was that if a law were passed to that effect—and everyone were forced to conform to it—it would constitute a great public service."

SECURITY OVERTONE (Wall Street Journal)

Let us suppose that very few people ever had seen a vehicle propelled by an internal combustion engine—an automobile, jeep, truck, tractor or what have you. These things had been invented, developed and built in great secrecy. The bulk of the people knew about them dimly and from hearsay.

Along comes a war and you have a great store of these vehicles cached away for just that purpose. So you bring them out, confidently expecting to attack the enemy with them. But then you realize that these few people know how to run them, to repair them or use them in any way.

As Mr. Hanson W. Baldwin sees it, in an article in The New York Times, we are doing something like that with the atomic weapons. The men that would be expected to use them, or do face them, have little or no appreciation of the nature, limits or capabilities of these weapons.

National Whittig... Indianapolis Tax Scandal To Involve Many Party Bigwigs

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON — Tax scandal investigators on Capitol Hill regard the Indianapolis

Brewing Company's case as a far more flagrant example of political profiteering and fixing than poor Theron Lamar Caudle's and picturesque deals with known racketeers.

The Hoosier affair involves such party bigwigs as Frank E. McKinney, Democratic national chairman; Frank McHale, Indiana political boss and McKinney's sponsor at the White House; Joseph D. Nunan Jr., of Brooklyn, former commissioner of Internal Revenue; John P. Wenchel and Charles Oliphant, former chief counsel for Internal Revenue; and Caudle himself.

It also touches President Truman and the late Robert E. Hannegan, who was chiefly responsible for landing Mr. Truman in the White House.

LEGALITY — Although every act in this drama of politico-industrial banking profit-making is defended as within the law, and may have been clothed with an air of legality, it is that very fact which makes it such a revealing example of the "get rich quick" attitude and processes now prevailing at Washington.

PROTEGE — The story must begin with the appointment of Nunan as Internal Revenue commissioner by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944. He was promoted to this responsible post, although his handling of the Internal Revenue office at Brooklyn had been condemned as inefficient and lax by Treasury intelligence agents. Three other collectors criticized by this group in 1947 were Delaney at Boston, Finnegan at St. Louis and Smyth at San Francisco. Delaney has been convicted, and the other two are under indictment.

Nunan was Hannegan's protege. A St. Louis politician, Hannegan served as Internal Revenue commissioner, postmaster general and Democratic national chairman under the Roosevelt-Truman regime.

He persuaded F.D.R. to favor Truman over Justice William O. Douglas as a substitute for Henry A. Wallace in second spot in 1944. It is generally agreed that political manipulation of Internal Revenue began under Hannegan.

Fair Enough..... Eisenhower's Retreat Resulted From 'Political Decisions'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER FRANKFURT ON MAIN — In his modest office at the Supreme headquarters of the Allied Powers just outside Paris, General Eisenhower said a few weeks ago:

"I had to retreat 100 miles after the victory in compliance with their decisions." He was referring to decisions made by Ambassador Winant and the Russian and British representatives on the European Advisory commission in London in 1943. Winant, who was conscious that he bore a faint facial resemblance to Lincoln, later killed himself.

Speculations among persons who knew him as to the reason why include the possibility that he felt terrible guilt in his assumption that we could trust the Russians. Obedient to that assumption he gave the Russians the line of their present Iron Curtain in Germany and, lest he wound their feelings by the faintest intimation of distrust, would not insist on access from the West to our sector in Berlin.

General Eisenhower said the military decisions were made by the military commanders, including himself. But he distinguished between military and political decisions. In this case, instead of rearing back and appealing to the American public if necessary, he bowed to a fateful decision by a man who at best can be called a fool.

At the "briefing" given for my benefit in our beleaguered headquarters in Berlin a few days ago by representatives of our state department, I received a booklet entitled "Berlin" with a short foreword which frankly referred to "The struggle between the East and West."

In this document, the state department says that after we had shattered the enemy's capital by two years of bombing, "the victorious Red army assumed control of the tattered remnants of what had once been the third largest city in the world."

The Red army was victorious in the sense that it was on the winning side, but the stipulation should be made that but for the bombing of Berlin and other centers of strength and our absurd generosity the Russians would not have taken Berlin. And the "victorious Red army" could not have "assumed control" if General Eisenhower had not received orders to fall back 100 miles.

The booklet continues: "With an industry dependent on Silesia, East Prussia, Saxony and foreign countries for raw materials and a transport system whose operation is subject to the whims of an unfriendly political power," meaning our gallant ally, Russia, "Berlin can but hope for a solution to the present impasse. Our basic mission of the Berlin garrison is to provide security for the United States agencies. The Soviets took advantage of the two months between the fall of Berlin in May and the arrival of the western allies in July to install as city administrators a crew of German expatriates trained in Moscow for just this contingency. One of these key officials, Paul Markgraf, had been carefully groomed for the role of president of the Be. in police force."

We know all about these expatriate German Communists and yet all this caught us by surprise. Demobilization set in with us. The Communists, especially in the Pacific where they have allowed themselves into the GI publications, yelled stridently against our "brass." Congress and our papers also wanted to bring "the boys" home. And demobilization became a dissolution and the American occupation in Germany became for a time a dis-

Boots

YOU'VE BEEN A GREAT INSPIRATION TO ME, PHIL! I-I WASN'T INTERESTED EVERYONE ELSE UNTIL YOU HAS LAUGHED AT MY INVENTIONS--BUT YOU ALWAYS WERE INTERESTED!

I KNOW--BUT I CAN UNDERSTAND THAT, PHIL! YOU ARE NOT AN ELECTRICAL ENGINEER--AND THE CLAIMS I MADE FOR THE IN-CAMBULATOR UNDOUBTEDLY DID SOUND FANTASTIC!

BUT YOU WERE INTERESTED IN MY FIRE EXTINGUISHER, AND IN MY ATOMIC LIFE PRESERVER, AND IN MY AIR TRANSFERFUSER AND IN MY WHIRLIE REMOVER--AND IN ALL MY OTHER FAILURES--

SO NOW THAT I FINALLY HAVE ATTAINED SUCCESS I WANT YOU TO SHARE IT WITH ME! I WANT YOU TO BE MY PARTNER, PHIL--SHARE AND SHARE ALIKE!

Mickey Finn

SAY, I DO REMEMBER SOMETHING ABOUT A... UM--TONIC YOU USED TO MAKE WHEN YOUR SISTER LIVED NEXT DOOR!

YES--INDEED--

I KNEW MY TONIC HAD THE RIGHT STUFF IN IT, ALL IT NEEDED WAS AGING!

HOW'D YOU MAKE IT, BOUNCE-WEED?

WE COULD CLEAN UP A FAST MILLION--

BLESS MY SOUL, I HAVE NO IDEA! I NEVER MADE TWO BATCHES OF THE STUFF ALIKE!

Art Exhibition Catalogs

ARTISTS REALLY ARE DIZZY, AREN'T THEY, FATHER?

SOME ARE, I GUESS.

THIS ONE MUST BE OUT OF HIS MIND.

QUIT TALKIN' AND HELP ME TIE HIM UP!

WHAT ON EARTH IS HAPPENING? GET THIS WILD BEAST OUT OF HERE!

BUT, MOM, WE GOTTA HIDE HIM TILL AFTER THE GAME!

OUT HE GOES AT ONCE!

Donald Duck

DONALD, I KNEW I SHOULDN'T HAVE BORROWED YOUR CAR! IT JUST GOT RUN INTO A TELEPHONE POLE!

DON'T BE SILLY! YOU MEAN YOU RAN IT INTO A TELEPHONE POLE?

I DO NOT!

I PARKED IN A DRIVEWAY, AND IT GOT RUN...

...INTO BY A TELEPHONE POLE?

WOULD YOU

Give $7500 for a great big, well constructed 5 room brick home and garage? . . . fenced in back yard . . . located in a good restricted residential district . . . on the pavement . . . just a few blocks from the best grade school . . . in a good neighborhood . . . If you wouldn't, would you give $7,000? . . . I've got to sell it right now for some kind of a price, and somebody's going to get a bargain . . . I hope it's you.

AND ANOTHER

one that I've got won't last long . . . this is a big house sure enough, and it's on a good paved street . . . The owners live out of town, and it's been rented for $45.00 a month for the past 3 years . . . They were just up and told me to rent it again, but I talked them into selling . . . It's located on a good paved street close in to the school and churches . . . and bus route . . . take $3500 for a quick sale, and we don't want all cash . . . I might sell it for as little as six or seven hundred down, plus, of course, the interest . . . and we wouldn't want the payments to run over $50 per month.

Texas Has Four Political Parties; All Plan Battle

Editor's note: This is another way around Amarillo, Pampa, in a series of stories on Texas political thinking as of early February. They were written by Dave Cheaven, capitol correspondent of the Associated Press, after a 1,200-mile, 32-county tour to get first-hand reactions from voters.

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Shivers Democrats have been on his left arm.

The loyal Democrats are hauling on his right arm.

The Taft Republicans are clinging to his right leg.

The Eisenhower Republicans have tackled his left leg.

So far this pressure is being exerted unequally and many voters are not yet aware of it. This correspondent found a wide variation of the extent of pre-convention organizing on a tour of 22 west, central and northwest counties.

Very few of the 83 persons contacted during this seven-day swing through a vast midsection of the state had been directly urged to attend precinct conventions.

Most of the "average voters" in that cross-section did not faintly or fully realize that these conventions give them their only direct chance to speak their minds in choosing party presidential nominees.

The professional politicians of course were highly alert to the meaning this year of the presidential precinct conventions.

They were already compiling lists of precinct chairmen and otherwise thinking about strategy for the May 3 conventions.

This was especially true in northwest Texas, in the Plains and in the Panhandle, centers of population where convention voting strength is extra heavy this year.

There were no signs of organization by anybody in many small towns and in the country.

A great deal of activity in the area covered by this correspondent comes from the militant Eisenhower Republicans. This branch of the GOP in Texas is made up of a few old guard Republicans but it has drawn more heavily on former Democrats who broke cleanly from the party on new deal and fair deal issues.

I attended one meeting of 50 Ike-for-President backers in Lubbock and only two of them had ever voted Republican. This was late in January and they were already organizing 25 counties in a precinct-by-precinct basis.

The Taft Republicans in the same area promised to fight back on the same level. It was that

Temporary Job Turns Permanent; Lasts 70 Years

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A young man who was given a "temporary" job on the Indianapolis News more than 70 years ago — the day President Garfield was shot — is still on the news paper today, his 93rd birthday.

He is Hilton U. Brown. The News' Associated Press membership is in his name and records in the New York general office show he is the oldest man now representing a newspaper in AP membership.

On July 2, 1881, the day of the Garfield shooting, Brown applied to the News for a job. The staff was busy and there was no one to take the place of the market reporter who had failed to show up. Brown was given the job on a temporary basis.

He is still on the news paper today, his 93rd birthday. He is Hilton U. Brown. The

Minister Aids Church

NEW YORK (AP) — A donation to help repair and maintain a 13th Century English church, one of the oldest in England, has been made by a New York minister.

The Rev. R. C. Hunsicker, vicar of St. Paul's Chapel here, sent a $200 check to the rector of Ifley church, Oxfordshire, England.

The New York clergyman said he was impressed with the antiquity and magnificence of the church he saw on a visit last summer.

Two Draw Sentences

PECOS (AP) — A pair of West Texans pleaded guilty to Mann act charges Monday and drew prison sentences.

U. S. Dist. Judge Ewing Thomson sentenced Thomas Rasco, Jr., 24, Andrews, to two years in prison and gave John L. Murdock, 22, Midland, 18 months in prison.

The pair were charged with transporting six prostitutes from Odessa, Tex., to Carlsbad, N.M.

Dick Cantino Would Make Changes If Living Life Over

By BOB THOMAS
GLENDALE, Calif. — "If I had life to live over again? Certainly, I'd do things differently. But I'd start back a few years."

Dick Cantino, the onetime sensation of the accordion, was pondering his past mistakes. He has had plenty of time to do so, since he has made no professional appearances since a year ago.

His career came to an abrupt halt when he failed to report for Army duty at Fort Ord. The handsome, husky 21-year-old was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $10,000.

He served the full time at McNeill Island, Wash., minus a month for good behavior and 15 days allowance for working on the prison farm. He regained his freedom two days before last Christmas.

"Naturally, I thought about the past while I was in prison and since I've been home," he told me. "But it isn't just the one big mistake I would have changed. I would have started further back."

"When I was touring with an entertainment unit for Horace Heidt, I was doing one-night stands with five and six shows a day. Sometimes we would travel 400 miles to make the next show the following day. When I finally got my freedom from Heidt, I started out with my own show the next day. The performers who had been with me before handed in their no-pace. The offers kept pouring in, I'd go to Heidt and joined me.

"I kept going at the same and I saw no reason not to take them. I was young, I felt strong and I was enjoying myself. I didn't realize what the fast pace was doing to me until the crack-up came. Then I had plenty of time to think about it."

Cantino has done little since his release from prison. He went to his home town, Fresno, for Christmas and then came back to Glendale. At present, he said, he is waiting to be drafted into the Army. "If I'm not drafted, I'll enlist," he said.

Meanwhile, his principal activity is working on a Glendale store, in which his parents will sell Italian foods.

"I wanted to find something for my folks that would give them something to do and provide an income," he said. "You see, there has been no money coming in for a year now. I know that the news stories said I was making $4,000 a week, but that was for only one engagement in Las Vegas. For a year or so, I had been making good money, and I saved as much as I could. But I wasn't able to make any investments."

Cantino said he receives several letters a day from the general public and nearly all of them

To Seek Election
EL PASO (AP) — Louis A. Fail, El Paso, will seek election to the congressional seat now held by Rep. Ken Regan, Midland.
The El Paso man made his announcement Monday. He was defeated for the same post in 1942 by R. Ewing Thomason, now a federal judge.

have been sympathetic. Will he make another stab at show business when he returns from the Army?
"I don't know," he said. "I hope so. As a boy in Fresno, I worked on the farm and in the ice house and my father's butcher shop, but my real interest was always music. It is my life."
